Battle Over Steering Wheel Results In Death Of Aged Texas Hitch Hiker

CAR OVERTURNS AS PASSENGER SHOWS FIGHT

Dallas Motorist Receives Slight Injuries on Road Near Rylie

STRUGGLE MYSTERY

Friends of Victim Explain Extreme Nervousness As Possible Cause

RYLIE, Texas, Sept. 17. (UP)—A struggle over the steering wheel of an automobile resulted in the death of Robert Wayne Hood, 62, here tonight, when the car in which he was riding overturned in the road at the outskirts of town.

G. C. Maples, of Dallas, was driving along the road and offered the aged man a ride into Rylie, he said. They had proceeded about 100 yards down the road when Hood, who was a stranger to Maples, began grappling for the wheel. Maples said he was at a loss to explain the man's action.

Maples lost control of the machine and it overturned. Hood suffered a broken neck and died instantly. Maples suffered slight injuries.

An inquest was held tonight. Friends of Hood said the man was highly nervous and this condition probably accounted for his struggle in the car.

Hood is survived by a wife and 10 children.

Genteel Racket, At Last

An Oklahoma man driving on his way to Corpus Christi was wondering Wednesday just how it happens that it costs money to cross a free bridge.

The man, as he drove up to the free bridge across Red river from the Oklahoma side, was stopped by another man wearing an official mien and an imposing badge, who informed the traveler that a toll of 50 cents was required for crossing the bridge.

The transient paid the toll, but before he arrived at a filling station operated by L. W. Proctor on the Burkburnett road, he had arrived at the conclusion that he had been victimized.

BOARD DELAYS ROAD ACTION

Highway Maintenance Plan Held in Abeyance

AUSTIN, Sept. 17. (AP)—Although in session since Monday the state highway commission today had failed to take any action on the proposed $1,000,000 maintenance program, aimed primarily at relieving financial stress in drouth stricken areas and in reducing unemployment. The commission spent most of today hearing delegations and attending to detail work incidental to the letting of contracts Monday and yesterday.

The maintenance program was submitted to the commission at the request of Gov. Dan Moody and the Texas drouth relief committee. Most of the projects will be grading and grubbing and the construction of drainage structures, a type of work that requires mostly manual labor. All the work will be done with local labor wherever possible. The program consists of 55 projects in more than 35 counties. This will be in addition to other allotments made regularly by the commission the special maintenance program merely being the advancing of work to this fall and winter that ordinarily would have been done next spring and summer.

More delegations were heard at the present session than ever before in the history of the commission. A total of 54 delegations registered, it being necessary to hear 12 delegations today although early and late sessions were held Monday and yesterday.

Two Charged In Robbery of Bus

ATHENS, Texas, Sept. 17. (UP)—Charges of robbery with firearms were filed today against Otto Hatton and Roy Marmon, of Opelika, following the robbery of a bus on the Waco-Tyler line late last night.

Hatton was arrested today. He confessed and implicated Marmon, officers said.

The holdup, last night, was enacted in true frontier style. The bus driver, Ernest L. Cross, arrived at Tyler at midnight and reported that two unmasked men had hailed him, apparently wishing to board the car.

He stopped and was confronted with a six-shooter and a terse command to "stick 'em up."

The driver and four passengers were relieved of approximately $100. One woman passenger was not molested, in accordance with the old time chivalry.

"We don't bother the women folks. Pardon us ma'am," one of the bandits said apologetically.

Their work completed, the driver was ordered to proceed on his way. The robbers stood in the road until the bus disappeared into the night, passengers said.

DEMOCRATS OF OKLAHOMA ADD NEW TAX PLANK

Harmonious Session Urges Strict Dry Law Enforcement

TEXT BOOKS VOTED

Convention Faculty Frowns On G. O. P. Move For Bond Issue

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 17. (AP)—A platform declaring for substitution of a gross income tax for the present ad valorem tax, voicing opposition to a general sales tax and pledging free text books and "strict" enforcement of both state and national prohibition laws, was adopted by the Democratic state convention here tonight.

Approval of the platform, as submitted by the committee headed by Claud C. Hatchett, of Durant, was without a hitch. While the platform made no specific mention of the proposal put forward by Ira Hill, the Republican nominee for governor, for the issuance of $15,000,000 in short term notes to provide highway construction work for relief of unemployment, it declared against bond issues "whenever it is possible to avoid" them.

An attempt was made at the committee's meeting preceding its approval of the platform to have included a plank openly condemning the Hill plan. While several members appeared to favor such action, the majority voted against it. The announcement was made in the committee room that William H. Murray, the party's gubernatorial nominee, believed that the proposal should not be "dignified" by being made a campaign issue.

Note Says Body Sought Will Be Found at Bridge

TERRAL, Okla., Sept. 17.—A second note, signed by Jess McCain, for whose body Red river is being searched, was received Wednesday by his uncle, C. J. Taylor of Marlow. The note, mailed on a train, read:

"This is no joke. If I am found it will be below the new bridge. I'm just a joke to the world and all in it. This letter will be picked up in a local mailbox. You will get it some day from me, who will be at rest."

Search for McCain's body began Tuesday after workmen on the bridge between Terral and Ringgold discovered clothing on the banks containing notes signed by McCain requesting the finders to notify C. J. Taylor at Marlow, and bequeathing his property and insurance to Mrs. Hattie Taylor.

Surprise Wedding Unites 'Young Bob' And Secretary

Senator La Follette Ends Long Bachelorhood With Quiet Wisconsin Marriage

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 17. (INS)—Senator Robert M. La Follette Jr. today married Miss Rachel Wilson Young of Washington, his secretary.

The wedding, performed at Maple Bluff farm, the old La Follette home, was held a few hours after the groom's brother, Philip F., had been assured of the Republican nomination for governor by an overwhelming majority.

The marriage of "Young Bob," son of the founder of Wisconsin's Progressive Republican faction, came as a complete surprise. The insurgent leader was known as a confirmed bachelor.

Wedding Hastened

By special dispensation, the usual five-day period between taking out the marriage license and the holding of the ceremony was dispensed. La Follette gave his age as 35 and his bride as 36.

Announcement of the marriage was made by the presiding pastor, the Rev. H. H. Lumpkin of Grace Episcopal church, after Mr. and Mrs. La Follette left for a honeymoon in northern Wisconsin.

Served Father

Mrs. La Follette, a native of Virginia, became secretary to the senior La Follette in 1924 and continued to serve under "Young Bob" following his father's death. The marriage originally was to have been held at the bride's home in Washington, but was performed here because of the senator's work in connection with his brother's gubernatorial campaign.

Neither the bride's parents nor Mrs. La Follette Sr., were present at the ceremony, although Mr. and Mrs. Phillip La Follette attended.

La Follette Victory Seen as First Kick by 'Sons of Wild Jackasses'

Rebuke for Administration Is Interpretation Placed on Wisconsin Vote; 'Wets' Show Strength

By FRASER EDWARDS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17. (US)—In many respects the triumph of the La Follette Progressives in Wisconsin over the Republican regulars was regarded by party managers today as the most significant development of the entire primary campaign.

From the standpoint of sounding sentiment on the Hoover administration in the bailiwick of the "sons of the wild jackasses," it even overshadowed the onward march of the anti-prohibition army along half a dozen fronts.

While Wisconsin serves as a political weather-vane now, the Massachusetts and Delaware senatorial contests will furnish another index to feeling in the East on the prohibition issue.

Blow at Hoover

In defeating Gov. Walter J. Kohler, stalwart Republican, for the gubernatorial nomination in Wisconsin by an indicated majority of 120,000, the youthful Phillip La Follette made his fight largely upon national issues involving the Hoover administration.

Not only does this victory restore the La Follette Progressives to power in the Badger state where they lost the governorship four years ago, but it looms as the forerunner of a rebuke to the administration in other western states.

Moreover, it was as another straw on the liquor issue. La Follette advocated the return of liquor traffic to the states, while Kohler hedged with a beer and wine and national referendum platform.

Results in Massachusetts and Delaware set the stage for four-square battles over the liquor ques-

Houston Cafe Bandits Fire on Girl Cashier

HOUSTON, Sept. 17. (AP)—The city was being searched today for two well-dressed young bandits who opened fire on a girl cashier and a customer Tuesday night after taking approximately $200 from the cash register of the Robert Vickers cafe.

The customer, M. L. Wallace, 22, was shot twice in the right leg. The cashier, Miss Edna McCarter, 22, escaped injury.

One of the bandits shot three times when Miss McCarter and Wallace followed the pair to the sidewalk. One bullet lodged in the door of a sedan parked in front of the cafe.

Oklahoma Easier Sites For Divorce Suits Than Reno

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 17. (UP)—Groundless suits heaped upon Oklahoma judges who have no means of investigation, make it easier to procure a divorce in Oklahoma City or Tulsa than in Reno, Nev., Judge Sam Hooker said today.

"The ratio of divorce to marriages in Oklahoma is one to four compared to one to six in the whole nation," Judge Hooker pointed out.

"In Oklahoma City, the ratio is one to two. In Tulsa there are almost as many divorces as marriages.

LIPTON'S YACHT SHORN OF MAIN SAIL IN RACE

Vanderbilt Craft Victor in Third Race as Rival Meets Mishap

SAIL AGAIN TODAY

Not Even Sir Tom Looks For Anything but U. S. Boat to Win

By DAMON RUNYON
(Copyright, 1930, Universal Service, Inc.)

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 17.—Our little tub tussle went blooey right in the faces of the experts today.

A dingus called the main halyard busted on the Shamrock V, just at a moment when Sir Tom Lipton's skiff had commenced to look like a sailing vessel instead of a soap dish for the first time since the season opened.

Now a main halyard is as important to a yacht in a sailing race as a pair of suspenders is to a pair of loose pants, because it supports the boat's biggest sail. So when the Shamrock's main halyard gave way, down to the deck came a sixth of an acre of laundry, and the poor yacht floated around half naked on the rolling deep, doubtless greatly embarrassed.

Vanderbilt Pushes On

So Skipper Heard of the Shamrock folded up then and there, while Skipper "Mike" Vanderbilt sent the Enterprise on over the 30-mile course all by her lonesome in a sort of walk-over. It counted as a victory for Skipper "Mike's" boat, of course, giving our folks three heats out of the three sailed in the international series for the America's cup.

They are going to sail again tomorrow, and if Skipper "Mike" takes that one, the race is over, and the experts at least will not be sorry, for the chef on the expatorial craft made the grave error today of feeding the experts lobster salad with a big fat rolling sea going on around and about.

All in all the result was like the finish of a heavyweight bout—very unsatisfactory—although your faithful old marine operative is inclined to think that Skipper "Mike" would have won in any event. He was all of a quarter of a mile in front when the what's-this on the Shamrock broke, and he was permitting no sea weed to grow under the bottom of the Enterprise.

Corking Start

The start today was a corker. Not over five seconds separated the boats crossing the line, this line being a stretch of blue water between the committee boat, Susan Moran, and a floating buoy. Skipper "Mike's" handling of the white defender at the start elicited prolonged "oos" and "ahs" from the noble experts aboard the destroyer, Porter, and also from a band of Rhode Island political notables who had joined the experts.

These notables included State Senator Bill Vanderbilt, cousin of Skipper "Mike," and son of the Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt who went down on the Lusitania years ago.

The start was at 11:40 and the sky overhead was clear, and a thousand feet up there in the blue crooned a trio of coast guard planes, while a bright sun sparkled over the vast field of water. It was very, very lovely indeed, and the big racers stood bravely into the wind with all sails gathering breeze into their enormous wings, like a brace

LLANO, Texas, Sept. 17. (AP)—Charged with murder in the fatal shooting of Charles Walker at Llano, Sept. 11, as Walker was operating a city street grader, Ray Click was bound over to the grand jury under $15,000 bond after an examining trial yesterday. Witnesses testified that Walker was unarmed and was shot in the back. They related that Walker dodged around the grader, calling for help and begging Click not to shoot. The testimony did not reveal a motive for the shooting.

'Lost' Wife Of Star Is Back Again

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 17. (UP)—Mrs. Marguerite Beery, wife of Noah Beery, screen villain, returned to her home here tonight after a nine-day disappearance.

Beery already had appealed to two agencies of the federal government to aid him in locating his wife who had been missing since Sept. 8.

The actor telephoned the United states marshal's office and later the department of justice division after he learned that Mrs. Beery had been seen in Las Vegas, Nev., and was believed to be on the way back to Hollywood.

Beery said he was informed that Mrs. Beery was not alone and added he wanted prosecutions to be launched if violation of a federal law was involved in her disappearance.

Mrs. Beery, according to several residents of Las Vegas, was accompanied by Raymond Weis of Hollywood, who has been in Las Vegas about six weeks promoting a motion picture venture.

FOUR MINERS DIE IN BLAST

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Sept. 17. (AP)—Four miners were killed and two were injured today in an explosion in the Sherman Coal company mine here. Steam Schooner Feared Foundered

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 17. (UP)—Evidence that the steam schooner South Coast had foundered approximately 200 miles north of San Francisco was found by two steamers late today, according to reports to the Hydro-Graphic office of the 12th naval district here.

An empty lifeboat was picked up by the steamer Benbow shortly after 2 p. m. Numerous logs and pieces of wreckage were floating on the ocean over a large area, 37 miles south of Cape Blanco, the Benbow and the steamer Tejon reported.

Coast guard headquarters here ordered the cutter Cahokia to proceed under full speed to see if it could be of assistance to sailors who were on the South Coast, estimated to number between 15 and 20.

The South Coast left Portland, Ore., Sept. 14 for San Francisco.

HOUSTON, Sept. 17. (AP)—Joe Todora, 26, who moved to Stafford, Texas, three weeks ago, after his marriage here, was shot and killed this afternoon at a farm on Rocky road, about a half mile southwest of Stafford. Sheriff Collins of Fort Bend county, was holding an 18-year-old youth, Tony Biamonte, brother of the dead man's wife.

Family trouble caused the shooting, according to ambulance drivers who brought the body to Houston. The drivers said they were told Biamonte accused Todora of beating his wife.

ORDER RENEWS AMITY AFTER REVOLUTIONS

Relations Resumed With Bolivia, Argentina And Peru

POLICY UPHELD

Provisional Governments Held Stable And Unopposed

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17. (US)—The United States today officially recognized the new governments of the Argentine, Peru, and Bolivia, effective tomorrow.

American representatives in the three South American sister republics were instructed to present credentials and resume normal diplomatic relations.

Secretary of State Stimson announced this important decision was made so that in the present economic situation, our delay may not embarass the people of these friendly countries in re-establishing their normal intercourse with the rest of the world.

Nations Await Move

He added that other foreign representatives here have made repeated inquiries of the state department as to what the United States' policy with the new governments would be. He declared the decision was made by the department without influence from these sources.

Secretary Stimson emphatically declared that recognition in no wise constitutes a change of policy by the United States toward the nations of South America or the rest of the world. The action is in entire accord with all the set policies of international law and past American diplomatic precedents, he explained.

Resumption of relations, he declared, was possible because the new governments appear to be stable and sound, functioning normally and unopposed in their power.

Effective Today

Secretary Stimson said in part:

"I have directed Mr. Bliss, our Ambassador to Argentina, to resume normal diplomatic relations with the provisional Argentine government; and have directed Mr. Searing, our ambassador to Peru, to resume normal diplomatic relations with the provisional Peruvian government; and have directed Mr. Feely, our minister accredited to Bolivia, to present his letters of credence and resume normal diplomatic relations with the provision-

Dallas C.-C. Heads Hear Banker's Complaint Against Co-Op Manager

DALLAS, Sept. 17. (AP)—Nathan Adams, first vice president of the Dallas Chamber of Commerce and president of the First National bank of Dallas, one of the largest financial institutions in the South, told the directors of the Dallas chamber today that he thought E. F. Creekmore, general manager of the American Cotton Cooperative association, should resign.

"He was employed to sell the cotton of the South," Adams said, "yet he talks about the 'deplorable conditions.' In the first place, I resent that statement. I deny that there are any 'deplorable conditions' else I have been in the banking business 50 years for nothing. And any salesman who goes around talking about 'deplorable conditions' ought to be fired."

Mr. Adams expressed his views at a directors' meeting at which Senator Tom Connally and Congressman Hatton Sumners were present. Senator Morris Sheppard was invited but was unable to attend.

The directors of the Dallas chamber took no formal action but Adams said afterward that it would be suggested informally to officials of the American Cotton Cooperative association that more cheerful at-

Nye Committee Abandons Espionage Probe to Get Back to Expense Issue

CHICAGO, Sept. 17. (AP)—The senate committee investigating campaign expenditures today denied for the last time a plea of Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom of Illinois that he be allowed to present a statement in defense of Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican nominee for the United States senate.

With this gesture the committee calculated to purge the remaining hearings of everything pertaining to charges of espionage, wire tapping and desk rifling and to continue strictly along the lines of its main inquiry. This policy was declared yesterday, though the reason advanced then for not hearing Carlstrom was that Senator Bagner of New York was not present.

Carlstrom's statement, released to the press, had charged that employes of the committee tapped wires and performed other acts of espionage on Mrs. McCormick, whose expenditures in the April primary are under investigation. The statement offered to prove the charges and said further that a direct connection between Chairman Nye and the alleged acts of espionage was established when the committee subpoenaed detectives whose names had been furnished by a man pretending to betray his trust.

The names, Carlstrom charged, were purchased by a David Groh from Kenneth Wilson, an operative for the W. C. Dannenberg detective agency which was employed by Mrs. McCormick to shadow Nye.

Yesterday Mrs. McCormick charged the committee's refusal to head Carlstrom was a deliberate attempt to suppress facts.

U. S. TO RENEW LATIN AMITY

Provisional Governments Win Recognition

al Bolivian government. This is to be done tomorrow, Sept. 18."

Secretary Stimson pointed out that the recognition of the three new governments is a normal international precedent. He explained that the Americas are affected by a special treaty among themselves, made in 1923 and approved by the state department at that time although the United States wae not a signator to the pact.

Treaty Explained

This treaty, he explained, agreed that none of the five central American republics would recognize "any other government which may come into power in any of the five republics through a coup d'etat or revolution against a recognized government, so long as the freely elected representatives of the people thereof have not constitutionally reorganized the country."

This was done, it was explained, to discourage political wars in the Central American states, and the United States having approved the treaty, it is forced to adopt certain specialized policies in dealing with provisional governments of these countreis.

The three South American countries, however, are not included in this category, Secretary Stimson explained, and thus are accorded the same treatment as other nations.

BRITAIN WILL FOLLOW LEAD

LONDON, Sept. 17.—That the new revolutionary governments in Argentina and Peru will receive official British recognition when parliament convenes was indicated by an official statement issued today by the British foreign office.

The foreign office announced that Great Britain does not consider diplomatic relations with Peru and Argentina in any way affected by recent events.

URUGUAY BREAKS WITH PERU

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 17.—Uruguay today severed diplomatic relations with the provisional Peruvian government of President Luis M. Sanchez Cerro.

Advices from Montevideo stated that the government had taken this action as a result of alleged breaches of international law treaties by Peru. The supposition among neutral observers here is that the Uruguyan government referred to Lima's objections to the sheltering of political refugees by the Uruguayan legation during the recent revolution that led to the overthrow of President Augusto B. Leguia.

Chest and Salvation Army Heads Confer on Participation in Drive

No definite agreement was reached between the community chest and the Salvation army, one of the largest participating agencies of the chest, at a meeting of the boards of directors of both organizations Wednesday afternoon in the chest headquarters, it was announced by J. F. O'Donohoe, chest president.

The conference followed announcement Wednesday by officials of the Salvation army that it would not participate in the 1930 community chest but would stage an independent drive for funds.

Indications were that some kind of settlement will be made at a meeting to be held at the same place Thursday morning, Mr. O'Donohoe said.

Group meetings of the campaign solicitors were held at the Wichita club Wednesday evening where definite plans were made for the annual community chest appeal which will begin within the next week. About 75 employers were present, forming a very enthusiastic gathering. Roy Jones, chairman of the campaign, was also chairman of the meeting.

Several talks were made by members of the groups, including Roy Jones, Linden Brooks, Frank E. Jaynes, educational director, J. S. Bridwell and J. F. O'Donohoe.

Seventeen Couples Await Start Of Marathon Dance at Lake Tonight

With the start of the marathon dance to be held at the dance pavilion at Lake Wichita park only a few hours off, 17 couples have signified their intentions of competing for the $1,000 in prizes which will be given, according to Harry F. Sullard, director.

Sullard declares that he has never staged a marathon with conditions as trying as those that will confront the contestants at Lake Wichita. He states that the lapping of the water and the breeze off the lake will tend to have a soothing effect on the dancers which should put the last couple to sleep long before two weeks has passed.

The contest opens Thursday night at 8 o'clock.

titude perhaps would benefit the organization in its work.

"I didn't ask the directors to demand Creekmore's resignation," Adams explained, "but I would like to do so, if I could get anywhere with it."

CREEKMORE MAKES TERSE REPLY

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 17. (AP)—E. F. Creekmore, late tonight made a terse reply to Nathan Adams, first vice president of the First National bank of Dallas, who today told the Dallas Chamber of Commerce that Creekmore should resign as manager of the American Cotton Cooperative association, because of his "pessimism."

Mr. Creekmore's reply was as follows:

"It is reported Mr. Adams complains of my pessimistic attitude toward cotton. If he construes my taking the responsibility of advancing 90 per cent of its current value as pessimistic, it would be extremely interesting if he would indicate with percentage of its current value his banks are advancing."

FORT WORTH, Sept. 17. (UP)—Two negroes were held tonight following the death of Raymond Meador, 6, from injuries received today when a truck in which the two negroes were riding, ran over him. The negroes fled after the accident but were caught later.

Contractor and Publisher Sued by Galveston Bank

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Sept. 17. (AP)—J. S. Wilson, West Palm Beach contractor, and D. H. Conkling, newspaper publisher of this city, were named defendants in suits for $300,000 damages filed in circuit court here today.

The suits were filed by Lynn H. Dinkins, president of the Interstate Trust and Banking company of New Orleans; the Canal Bank and Trust company of New Orleans; the United States National bank of Galveston, Texas, and others.

According to information received at the courthouse here, the damages are sought as a result of alleged failure of the defendants to indemnify Dinkins and his associates for losses they sustained in an attempt to reopen the defunct First American Bank and Trust company of West Palm Beach after its failure.

tion, with Republicans taking the dry side and the Democrats the anti-prohibition end in the senatorial contests, and significantly enough, Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic executive committee, in commenting said:

"We will sweep both Massachusetts and Delaware in the elections this fall."

Republican leaders, however, believe the nomination of William M. Butler, a dry, has increased their chances for success in Massachusetts, as the nomination of Eben S. Draper, an anti, would have resulted in the rabid drys placing an independent candidate in the field.

Likewise, the outcome of the Democratic senatorial primary indicated that the Democrats of the Bay state were by no means unanimously in favor of Marcus A Coolidge.

Split in Delaware

The possibility of a split in the ranks of Delaware Democrats also was seen in the nomination of former Senator Thomas F. Bayard, anti-prohibitionist, over Josiah Marvel, a dry, in convention, after Marvel had apparently won in the primary.

The drys had scant cause for cheer in other sectors. Representative S. Wallace Dempsey of Buffalo, with 18 years service in the house, went down to defeat before Walter G. Andrews, an advocate of prohibition repeal.

Three dry Progressive congressmen in Wisconsin were defeated for renomination by anti-prohibitionist opponents, while the Connecticut Republican convention was adopting a plank advocating restoration of liquor control to the states and at the same time nominating a dry for governor.

Another blow to the drys was the resignation of Charles H. Tuttle, as U. S. attorney for the southern district of New York, with a declaration for repeal of the 18th amendment and state control, sale and distribution of liquor.

At the same time, Thomas Rohan, Democratic nominee for congress from the ninth Illinois district, withdrew from the race to leave a clear field to Representative Fred A. Britten, Republican, who is one of the most outspoken anti-prohibitionists in the house.

Wichita Falls C.-C. Asked to Vote On New Commodity Survey Plan

A report of the national affairs committee on commodity exchange trading, issued by the United States Chamber of Commerce has been received here by J. S. Bridwell, president of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce, it was announced Wednesday.

The special committee has made a complete survey of the situation now existing in the commodity markets and is presenting the question to the chambers of commerce affiliated with the national organization for a vote to determine whether the United States Chamber of Commerce will favor a change in the present system.

Frank Kell, chairman; R. E. Huff, A. H. Britain and Orville Bullington have been named as a committee to investigate the situation and offer its recommendation at the next meeting of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce.

Taking grain and cotton as a basis of its report, the national affairs committee, states that it finds a wide speculative fluctuation in prices of these and other crops and of foreign commodities generally and recommends that the department of agriculture take action in bringing about a voluntary remedy, suggesting the establishment of commodity exchange markets where local trading may be carried on and as a price registration center and where market information can be dispensed.

Mr. Bridwell urged that members of the chamber of commerce especially give attention to the question, which is of national importance, requesting that those desiring information on the subject make arrangements to get the information at the chamber offices.

GLAND 'EXPERT' LOSES LICENSE

Medics Frown on Sample 'Operation'

TOPEKA, Kan., Sept. 17. (INS)—The Kansas medical board today revoked the license of Dr. John R. Brinkley, Milford, Kan., "goat gland specialist."

The action of the board followed testimony by three prominent medical men of the state who yesterday witnessed a "goat gland operation" performed by Dr. Brinkley.

The witnesses to the operation—Dr. E. S. Eggerton, Wichita, president of the Kansas State Medical society; Dr. C. C. Nesselrode and Dr. Thomas G. Orr of Kansas City, Kan.—testified they were not favorably impressed and that their preconceived convictions unfavorable to goat gland transplantations were not changed.

Cleo Grantham's KGKO orchestra will furnish music for the luncheon, as added entertainment. The usual attendance prize will be awarded.

DUNCAN PAYS LOWER TAXES

Water and Light Revenue Offsets Valuation Loss

Special to The Record News.

DUNCAN, Okla., Sept. 17.—Despite an increase in the budget and a $125,744 loss in assessed valuations this year, Duncan residents will pay less taxes this year because of a good increase in revenues from the light and water departments.

A tax cut of 2.1 mills, or $2.10 on each $1,000 of assessed valuation, was assured Tuesday with the approval of the city budget by the county excise board. The budget is $162,939.69, compared with $155,760.34 last year.

No Government Tax

No tax levy for general government expenses was necessary. The only city levy is one of 22.1 mills for the sinking fund to pay bonded indebtedness.

Revenues from the light and water departments, will pay all general government costs. Water revenues increased from $49,569.22 during the 1928-29 fiscal year to $51,593.82 for the year ending June 30, 1930. In the same period, revenues from the light department increased from $57,863.10 to $68,239.10.

The municipal electric department had a net income of $22,984.79 for the last fiscal year, after all operating costs, including interest on bonds had been paid and a sinking fund set aside to pay bonds against the power plant, a statement by City Manager W. H. Hollingsworth shows.

Valuations Less

Valuations in the city of Duncan this year are $4,752,526, compared with $4,878,270 last year. The loss was caused by a recent court decision removing personal property of banks from the tax rolls.

Duncan, Marlow and Comanche suffered by the ruling, which took $270,000 from the county tax list. County valuations dropped from $19,749,050 last year to $19,646,566 for this year. School district budgets in the three districts which lost by the decision will be affected.

New Marriage Contract Would Cut 'Till Death Do Us Part' Clause

NEW YORK, Sept. 18. (UP)—An organized movement, similar to that already launched in England, today was instituted in this country toward substitution of a limited term contract in marriage for the present "till death us do part" provision.

The proposal was sponsored by the Church of the Universal Design, a sect whose leader, Annie C. Bill, recently presented to the Church of England attending the Lambeth conference in London a statement directing attention to the current "degenerative" marriage contract.

The Universal Design, a monthly journal published by the church, editorially supports the reform in its September issue.

Contract Renewal

Basically, the idea is to have legalized a marriage in which the bride and groom agree to live together for a term of five or 10 years. This contract could be renewed at its expiration only on the mutual consent of the parties concerned.

"Marriage is the only contract the law requires to be made for life," the periodical states, "or which can be terminated only by death or dishonor to at least one of the contracting parties.

"All civil contracts, except this most important one, must lapse or be renewed at the expiration of a specified period of time. Justice and wisdom demand some release from unforeseen hardships which may arise in the future.

"The present situation encourages hypocrisy, lowers the ideals of marriage, and creates a disregard for the sanctity of covenants and the laws of the land. The proposed change is not an attack on the institution of marriage but an adjustment of obsolete laws which are degrading it.

"Whenever legal codes interfere either with natural laws or spiritual aspirations mental fermentation ensues. Unless a means of relief, a safety valve, is found, the social structure becomes corrupted. It is impossible to estimate how much of the present political and economic unrest of the world is due to the friction and pent-up mental and physical suffering generated by the present inexorable marriage vow, 'till death us do part'!"

John V. Dittemore, editor of the Universal Design, was asked whether the proposed new contract would consider certain financial and social obligations in case, after the five or 10 years, one of the parties wished not to renew it.

Care of Children

"Such details," he said, "are now taken care of under divorce laws and they could be made to function similarly at the legal end of a marriage contract.

"Indeed it would be possible at the beginning of a marriage, when the contract is signed, to provide for the care and education of children, if any; the distribution of property and other such matters."

Dittemore said the church had no intention of sponsoring state laws looking toward the proposed revision.

"Our mission is merely to point out the present evils," he said, "it is the function of the state to correct them."

Cubes of translucent glass that can be arranged to form steps or designs of various kinds have been invented for interior lighting purposes in stores or residences.

PRATT TAKES NAVAL REINS

Building Program Favored By New Chief

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17. (INS)—Admiral William V. Pratt, when sworn as chief of naval operations today, declared he favors the building of the navy up to the limits of the London naval treaty and that his policies will be those held by Secretary of the Navy Adams. The eyes of retiring Admiral Charles F. Hughes were moist when he surrendered the office—the highest command of the navy.

The change in the high command brought about other reassignments. Rear Admiral John Halligan, Jr., became assistant chief of naval operations; taking the post of Rear Admiral William H. Standley, who will become commander of destroyer squadrons with headquarters at San Diego.

Succeeding Admiral Pratt as commander in chief of the United States fleet is Rear Admiral Jehu V. Chase, who was advanced from the general board. He will take the rank of admiral.

A Statement by the Cadillac Motor Car Company Concerning the Cadillac and La Salle Program

THE bringing out of the Cadillac V-16 a few months ago and now the new Cadillac and La Salle V-Eights, and early in October the new Cadillac V-12, may give rise to some question as to our manufacturing program.

It is our desire that Cadillac and La Salle owners and the motoring public be apprised of the facts.

The La Salle will remain companion car to Cadillac. It was so introduced, as such it has greatly succeeded and as such it will continue.

Obviously the number of motor cars which any manufacturer may sell in a given price field is finally governed by the ability of the public to buy them.

Cadillac cars having gained almost universal acceptance in the finest car field, any considerable expansion must be through cultivation of a broader market in lower price ranges.

Our experience has been in building fine cars. The Cadillac organization could not adhere to its fine car ideals and successfully produce a low priced car, but through a more complete coverage of the fine car field it was apparent that we could give greater value and appreciably lower prices.

For the broader market, therefore, we created the La Salle out of our Cadillac experience and developed it as a quality car.

For the highest priced fields we have produced the sixteen-cylinder Cadillac and the twelve-cylinder Cadillac.

And between the very broad market for the La Salle and the relatively narrow market for twelve and sixteen cylinder cars, there is a large market for Cadillac V-8's.

These lines of cars contribute to one another a tremendous influence in sales, a marked advance in values and make possible the low prices at which Cadillac and La Salle cars are sold.

And this, briefly, is the reasoning in Cadillac's program.

Were it not for La Salle, all Cadillacs would be higher in price; and were it not for the Cadillacs, La Salle prices would necessarily be so high as to defeat the purpose for which the La Salle was designed.

Each of these lines is dependent one upon the other—the Cadillac V-16, the Cadillac V-12, the Cadillac V-8, and their companion car, the La Salle.

THERE's a harmony between the natural loveliness of this modern age and the natural, mild goodness of Camels. And if you find them keeping company, don't be surprised.

Camel has given the world the luxury of a naturally, mild cigarette—a cigarette that preserves all the refreshing fragrance of the choice, mild tobaccos from which it is made—a cigarette that is delightfully smooth, but never flat, never parched, never tasteless.

Modern smokers are awake to the fact that mere flatness doesn't mean mildness. That's one reason there's such a swing to Camels. Watch it right in your own crowd. Join them in Camels—a smoke that's enjoyable all the way—all the time.

Altrusa Club Gives Dinner And Program At Camp Noble

Misses Juanita Kinsey and Ida Catherine Walker were hostesses Tuesday evening to members and guests of the Altrusa club in a dinner at Camp Noble with talks following pointing the way for work suggested. The name "Sign Posts" in the Altrusa yearbook was the unique suggestion for the evening's entertainment.

A delightful old-fashioned fried chicken dinner was served on a red checked fringed tablecloth and an enormous center of yellow thistles and milky white wild flowers, made a splendid setting for the menu.

Following dinner the party congregated in one cool end of the long living room and heard a talk by Frank E. Jaynes of the community chest board and a brief talk by Miss Walker on vocational education. Miss Kinsey addressed the group on the national federation in White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., where she went to represent the Altrusans.

Community Worker Speaks

Mr. Jaynes stated that he had spoken to Altrusa clubs all over the world and always enjoyed meeting them because he found them mentally on tiptoe. His talk was a strong plea for vocational guidance.

Quoting Babson's figures, that two per cent of the people were doing the thinking for the other 98 per cent, that two per cent were positive and 98 per cent negative, he gave comparative figures on mentality in the United States. "What we need," he said, "is unselfish, splendidly qualified leadership. One can aim at no goal, be engaged in no agency that transcends leadership."

Mr. Jaynes made a point of the tragedy of the one life to be lived that is so often muddled because of lack of guidance. He spoke also of the tragedy embodied in the fact that the popular mind loses sight of the fact that a community drive is of importance. "The community chest is to the city," he said, "what a man's pocketbook is to him."

Miss Ida Catherine Walker also talked on vocational guidance, a theme very near to her in her work as an Altrusan and also in the Y. W. C. A.

Conference Report

Miss Juanita Kinsey showed pictures and souvenirs of the national Altrusan conference and pointed proudly to the fact that a Texas woman, Elizabeth Gardner of Austin, is the next national Altrusan president. She mentioned the work of many Altrusa clubs and stated that Nashville, Tenn., had the best system of vocational guidance of any in the United States. Leading artists who are also Altrusans were mentioned for the parts they took in the national meeting.

Members and guests who enjoyed the evening were Mesdames Wayne Holmes, Finley Weldon, Dr. Maude Lindsay, Misses Olive Olson, Lucia Powell, Eva Wallace, Mineola Harding, Florence Watson, Frances Brooks, Anna Belle Farquhar, and Miss Amanda McDaniel; Messrs Frank E. Jaynes and Campbell and the two charming hostesses, Misses Ida Catherine Walker and Juanita Kinsey.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

In speaking of women, a recent press report tells of a rich old gentleman at a dinner in San Francisco who gave his idea of what makes happy married life in the words, "Keep them at home; don't let them enter the business world." As he said it, he smiled across the table at a placed little lady.

That was an occasion when placid and placed meant the same thing. A little old lady who had been "placed" safely in a home for a number of years should be placid, if sane.

But we would argue the question with the rich old man. If all husbands had a wealth of riches, it would be a different thing. What extremely wealthy woman wants to get out and work? Or if she does, she can find work in philanthropy and social service and not in mere "jobs" that give some women a chance to help out in the home.

It is a difficult thing, as we heard a clear thinking woman remark this morning, for anyone to be a critic without a standard and to have a standard, there must be a background of experience. (How nice it is to hear people say clever things one can cop).

From what we read in that same story, the rich old gentleman had experience with only one wife. Where was the necessary background to give him a standard? (Which is twisting our friend's remark with a vengeance, for she spoke of criticism of the arts).

But at that, isn't successful marriage one of the fine arts? The unsuccessful class with melodramas and some tragedies upon the stage.

We think this woman's idea of critics would be much better food for thought than the old man's words. His idea is almost that of a past decade. During the late war, more women than had ever done so, took an active part in the business world and since that time, many women work because they wish, and still are happy wives with happy husbands.

One must have an objective in life to be happy. With modern household equipment and system, both married women and young ladies have time on their hands. There's no person who is not more happy with an objective and if she can find a place in the business world that pleases her, her lines have fallen in more pleasant places than a restless housekeeper—who has no children to take her time.

How much happier this world would be if every critic of every kind would only criticise from a standard gained from study of the subject.

Mr. Shumate was replaced Wednesday by I. E. Long, torpedoman first class, a former shipmate what has been in the navy more than 12 years, the past eight years having been spent on a submarine. Following two months of training at Dallas in the state headquarters, he assumed here his first recruiting post.

Two Boys Returned To State Reform School

Two boys, 15 and 16 years old, will be taken to Gatesville Thursday by Juvenile Officer James A. McDonald for return to the school of correction there, it was learned Wednesday.

Both youths had been at liberty on paroles during the past several weeks, but were again taken into custody recently upon charges of further misdemeanors. One was alleged to have been involved recently in the theft of a car, an offense of the same nature as that which precipitated his first consignment to the reformatory. The other is charged with burglary, passing of bad checks, and other offenses. They had been at Gatesville a little more than a year when they were paroled several months ago, Mr. McDonald said.

HOME DECORATION TALKS—NO. 2

by Fay Fraser

CHARLEMAGNE'S TABLES

If we all could have three tables like Charlemagne possessed—one of silver, one of gold and the other of jewels—no doubt none of us would ever worry about their appearance.

Although, perhaps, if the truth were known, Charlemagne's Queen probably became pretty tired of seeing the same old gold and silver tables year after year around the castle. Today, the modern wife knows that it is easy and economical to change the color scheme of her breakfast set when time dims its appearance.

I recently suggested a very striking dining room design for Mrs. Hauptman in Bartlesville, which she liked. Her dining room set was dingy and cheerless. We set it in Ojai Gray Flex with trimmings of Forest Green Flex. Because Flex, that marvelous new color-coating, is flexible, we were able to paint the leather pads of her chairs with Gray Flex.

I do want to recommend Flex to your attention. It is neither an enamel nor a lacquer—but Flex. The newest thing out in paints. Any one can paint with it because brush marks and uneven laps disappear with Flex! This wonderful color-coating dries quickly in a hard, tough, lustrous finish as smooth as glass!

Flex comes in many different colors. Gay, charming colors. You need no experience to "Flex" your furniture or woodwork or automobile. Flex flows on as easily as water, yet dries in a few hours in a hard, flexible finish with a soft, velvety lustre. You can buy Flex at almost any good hardware or paint store. I advise you to try some and see how much fun it really is!

Jury Discharged In $5,000 Damage Suit

For the second time in as many trials, a jury in the suit of John Craig against J. M. Childers for $5,000 damages failed to agree on a verdict and was discharged shortly after 4 p. m. Wednesday by Judge W. W. Cook of the 78th district court.

Disagreement resulted about one year ago in the first trial of the damage suit, which grew out of a traffic accident of November, 1928.

"A friend of mine, seeing how miserable I was, told me to try Cardui. I have never ceased to be grateful, for I felt better from the time I began taking it.

"I kept on taking Cardui until I felt well and strong. I was less nervous and was soon enjoying good health. I have had good health ever since. I haven't had to take any medicine since then, except one spring I took a couple of bottles of Cardui. I felt much better after taking it."

Cardui is purely vegetable, and contains nothing harmful. The medicinal value of the herbs from which Cardui is extracted has been well-known in the history of medicine for more than six hundred years. Get a bottle, today.

From These Tiny Mountain Districts Come Coffees Unlike Any Known Before

Have You Tasted The Rare Central American Coffees That Women Everywhere Are Turning To?

Active volcano near Antigua, Guatemala—heart of the famous region where Folger's rare mountain coffees are grown.

FROM the West Coast of Central America comes a rare flavor in coffee that is captivating the world.

We don't want to tell you how good it is. We want you to try it yourself and see.

It comes from coffees grown in tiny mountain districts that leading experts concede, produce probably the choicest coffees known today. Nature gives them a rare tang and full mellow body that is unlike any other coffee you ever tasted.

Less than one pound of coffee in 20 grown in the world comes from this famous region. That is why you do not get this flavor in ordinary brands.

Introduced by Folger

Years ago Central American coffee was first served in the famous Bohemian restaurants of San Francisco, where it was introduced by Folger. Travelers tasting it there were captivated by its unusual flavor.

Connoisseurs among the European nobility, it is said, even went to Central America to purchase private plantations, first to supply their own tables and later to exploit commercially. Thus the fame of this rare coffee spread around the world.

Accept a Pound to Try

Just go to your grocer and buy a pound of Folger's. Drink it tomorrow morning. Next morning serve the coffee you have been using. The third morning serve Folger's again. Then choose between them.

If for any reason you decide against Folger's, your grocer will refund your money. We'll pay him. That's fair, isn't it?

ARMED GUNMEN TAKE BREWERY

Plant Regained in Bloodless Engagement

ELIZABETH, N. J., Sept. 17. (UP)—An armed force of 25 gunmen, said to have been under command of Jack Dunn, Hoboken, gangster, seized an entire brewery here during the night, but were driven out by an augmented force of prohibition officers commanded by Alexander McPhee of Newark, the Newark prohibition administrator's office announced today.

No shots were fired in the two "engagements," but dry officials characterized the incident as "the boldest piece of direct warfare ever waged by an eastern gang against the prohibition department.

Warrants Issued

The brewery still was held by dry forces today, and warrants were being issued for many of the gunmen who were recognized as they took possession of the big beer plant.

Five of McPhee's men, it was announced, raided the Peter Breidt brewery shortly before 6 p. m., acting on warrants issued by United States Commissioner Augustus L. Friedman of Newark. It was charged the brewery, which covers two blocks, had no permit to manufacture near beer.

Nine men, including two visitors to the plant and seven workers, were put under arrest. A number of others dashed to safety through a secret tunnel.

The agents proceeded to work, taking samples of the beer in the big vats for analysis. The agents pulled the bungs from the vats and permitted 200,000 gallons of beer to flow into the streets.

Worth $194,500

The beer was said to have been valued at approximately $194,500.

Working only in candle light, since the electric wiring had been cut, the agents on guard were startled when about 25 men, flourishing guns, appeared in the darkness and ordered them to the wall. There was a parley, and the gangsters finally decided to permit the agents to leave.

McPhee was notified by his men, and immediately called out a force of 22 men, who forced their way in. Evidently they took the gangsters by surprise, for the gunmen ran to cover and escaped.

Clowns and Lassies Give Ringling Show Color Seldom Found in Circus

FELIX ADLER

Here we have Felix Adler, one of the ace clowns with the Ringling and Barnum & Bailey circus, exhibiting in Wichita Falls, Saturday, Sept. 20. for a single day with afternoon and night performances beneath the "big top" pitched in rear of the ball park, telling pretty Rose Reiffenach, Hungarian Magyar equestrienne the one about the Scotchman and the two cups of coffee, and while Rose probably doesn't speak a word of English she appears to enjoy the wise-cracking of the merry Andrew.

Rose is but one of scores of circus lassies who are exceedingly easy on the eyes; in fact, this year's edition of the "greatest show on earth" has so many pretty girls among its sawdust celebrities that it has been termed the "girliest show on earth."

Adler is but one of five score Pagliacci's who furnish the merriment upon the main tent program with jokes and wheezes that are guaranteed to be no older than some of the side-crackers that are popularly supposed to have contributed to the early demise of the late King Tut.

What is admittedly the world's largest circus returns here after an absence of two years with a performance that lives up to its well known slogan more generously than ever before, and with a host of attractions that will be entirely new to local circus fans, along with the best of the old time features without which the circus couldn't keep house.

Thirty tents, big and little, are required to house this enormous aggregation of humans, animals and horses, while four trains are needed to transport it around the country.

Davidson Cotton Picking Will Aid Unemployment

Special to The Record News

FREDERICK, Okla., Sept. 17.—Davidson business men, generally, are optimistic over the fact that, barring unforeseen calamities, the promise of a good yield of cotton bids fair to be fulfilled. Even though the market prices have slumped to rock bottom, at least employment will be provided to many people during the coming fall and winter months.

According to one extensive cotton grower interviewed the first of the week, almost 100 per cent of the cotton growers of the Davidson community have signed up to market their cotton with the Oklahoma Cotton Growers association, which was offering eight cents for cotton there Monday. Bankers and merchants are lending their cooperation toward making the marketing plan a complete success.

A report made by the five gins shows that approximately 375 bales of cotton have been ginned to date, however, general harvest of the crop will not commence before Oct. 1, it was stated.

FETE MARKS TERCENTENARY

Boston Celebrates 300th Birthday

BOSTON, Sept. 17. (INS)—This cradle city of American liberty today celebrated the birth of new world freedom with the Cabots and and the Winthrops rubbing patriotic elbows with the Finnegans and the Kellys.

Three hundred years ago, a handful of firm-jawed colonists began a new civilization in establishing the Massachusetts bay colony. With a rifle in one hand and an ax in the other, they carved the beginning of a great city and country from virginal forest land.

Today, more people than lived in the early 13 American colonies turned out to cheer New England's greatest parade commemorating the tercentenary celebration.

It was estimated that between two and three million persons were jammed along the line of march as the eight-hour parade got under way.

There were many dignitaries of the nation in the reviewing stand, including governors, mayors and a cabinet officer.

The post of honor at the right hand of Mayor James M. Curley, of Boston, was reserved for William Randolph Hearst, publisher. The mayor termed Mr. Hearst "the one American who had earned the right to this distinction" for his expose of the secret Anglo-French naval treaty.

Beside the honor guest were seated Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams, of famous colonial ancestry, and Mayor Reuben Salter, of another Boston city—that of England. It was the British Boston that Gov. John Winthrop, first governor of Massachusetts, chose the name for the little settlement in the wilderness.

Van Lear Black's Widow Moves to Break Will

BALTIMORE, Sept. 17. (AP)—Mrs. Jessie Gary Black, widow of Van Lear Black, Baltimore publisher and world flier who was lost at sea from his yacht, Aug. 18, has renounced the will by which she was bequeathed one-third of the residuary estate after a number of other bequests, including $250,000 to one of her daughters, had been paid.

By her action, Mrs. Black, it was explained, claims her statutory right under the Maryland law to an absolute one-third of the entire estate before deduction of the special bequests.

The estimate of the estate made at the time the will was admitted to probate was more than $3,000,000.

Wealthy Hermit Dies Alone in Barren Dwelling

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 17. (AP)—Perryville avenue's man of mystery Wm. W. Lewis, a hermit and reputedly wealthy, is dead.

The aged recluse—he was believed to be about 70—was found yesterday in a dying condition in the unfurnished kitchen of his 17-room house, where he had lived for the past 15 years. Death was attributed in part to under nourishment.

Several bank books were found among Lewis' personal effects showing that he recently had deposited several thousand dollars. Other papers indicated he had received other thousands in interest on stocks and bonds.

The only furniture in the spacious home, which neighbors said Lewis built, was a single bed, a bureau and a chair. In that one room Lewis had lived through years of solitude. In the attic, police found furniture, trunks, silverware and chinaware.

Neighbors said Lewis was a grandson of the founder of the Lewis Foundry company at Groveton.

Their pilot, Ray Thise, 25, of Pawhuska, Okla., received minor injuries. Spectators said Thise was stunting when the accident occurred.

BANDITS USE MACHINE GUNS

Six Armed Men Take Huge Haul From Bank

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 17. (INS)—Six bandits armed with revolvers and two machine guns, this morning robbed the Lincoln National Bank and Trust company of $20,000 cash and $30,000 in bonds and securities. Two men remained in the bandit car keeping the building covered with machine guns.

Twenty patrons and employes of the bank were forced to lie on the floor as the bandits systematically looted the cages.

W. E. Barkley, president of the institution, was struck twice by the bandits, and was taken to the hospital for treatment. Phil Hall, vice president, was also hit over the head with a revolver but was not seriously injured.

In eight Michigan towns, veterans of the grand army of the republic number only one.

School Teachers Hurt in Truck Crash on Bridge

RAYMONDVILLE, Texas, Sept. 17. (AP)—Three Raymondville school teachers were seriously hurt and several others received minor injuries in an accident last night while they were en route to Harlingen in a truck.

About 15 teachers were riding in the truck, sitting on the sides with their feet hanging out. While crossing a floodway bridge the rear end of the truck swung against the guards, crushing the legs and feet of those sitting on that side.

Miss Cullum and Miss Williamson, grammar school teachers, received fractured ankles and severe cuts on their legs. Mr. Ware, a high school teacher, received a wrenched ankle, and others minor bruises and broken toes.

An Amazingly Quick Way ... to end headaches!

HEADACHES had been the bane of her life. Excitement, hot weather or indigestion would cause her head to ache. It seemed that every time she planned to go out, those splitting pains would spoil her evening. And it wasn't limited to evenings, either, for her work at the office was interfered with by those terrible pains in her head.

Then one night she had a date with John. They were going to the theatre and then to a party at a friend's home. She had been counting on it for weeks. She had a headache when she got up and in the rush of dressing and the hurry of getting ready, it grew steadily worse.

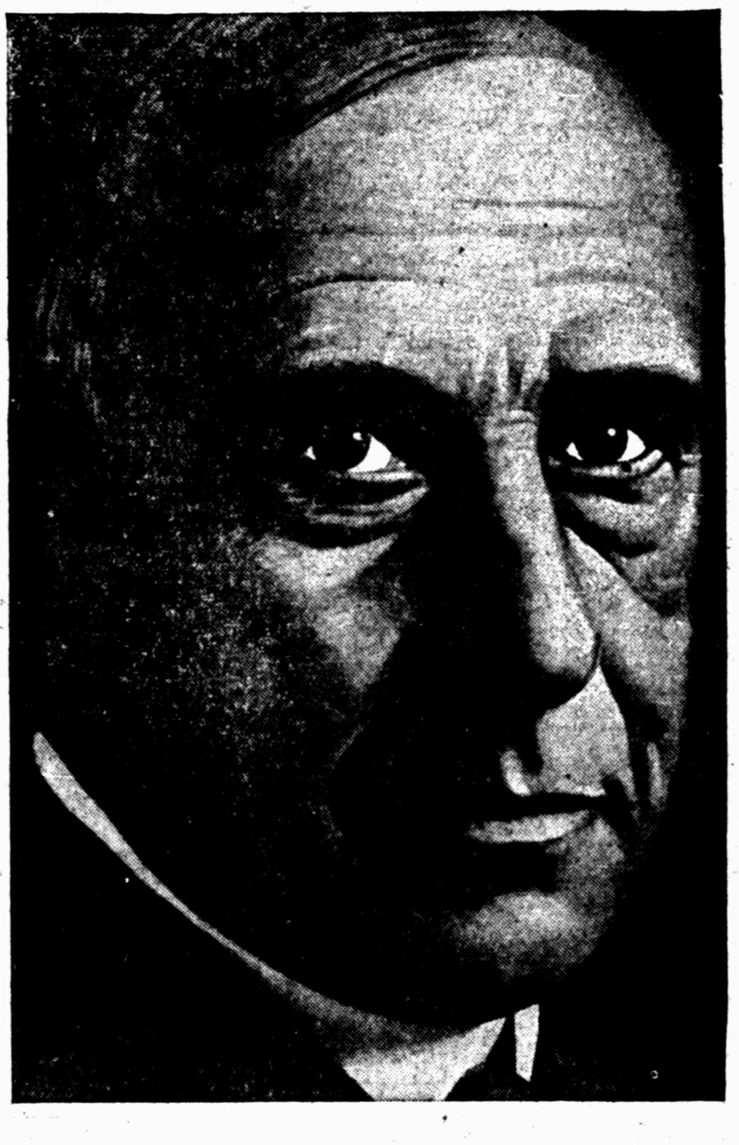

It looked like her evening was spoiled and it would have been, too, if John had not insisted that she try some medicine that all the fellows at the office used for headaches. She took a dose of Capudine. John waited for her and by the time she was ready to go, the pain had left her. Now when excitement or nerves cause her head to ache, she takes Capudine. She has told all of her friends and they have found relief the Capudine way, too.

Being liquid, Capudine acts immediately, often in one-third the time required by other forms. It contains no narcotics, does not disturb digestion and is approved by Doctors and Druggists. Even with the most severe headache, relief comes very quickly.

Sold at Drug Stores, 10c, 30c and 60c bottles and by the dose at soda fountains.

A "Graceful" Death
Human Glory and After
Chevalier's Salary
The League of Grab-Bag

By EMILE GAUVREAU

Another brilliant aerial ace loses his life in stunt flying. This time it is Capt. John O. Donaldson, world war veteran and president of the Newark Air Service. His plane crashes at the Philadelphia municipal flying field as thousands look on. When 2,000 feet up he threw his plane into a "graceful spin." After dropping 1,800 feet he couldn't take his plane out of it.

His war record proves he was a brave man. But he died because he was a foolish man. Stunt flying does nobody any good. It should be penalized just as much as zig-zagging through crowded streets in an automobile. The science and profession of aeronautics needs no acrobats.

A man who was once president of a great republic now lies sick, broken and dishonored in an army prison of the city of Buenos Aires. Only yesterday his word was law. Today he has less authority than the peasant in the fields.

So it was with some of the outstanding characters in history—with Nero, Caesar, Napoleon, Kaiser Wilhelm. Human glory and power are reared on edifices of the most tenuous fabric. Even where a national hero is truly great, envy and malice will overthrow and destroy him.

Nevertheless, the desire to attain political heights is an unquenchable fire in the hearts of certain men, and the warning to Cromwell to "fling away ambition, for by that sin fell the angels," remains unheeded, even though the wages is death.

Maurice Chavalier, French movie star, is to receive $20,000 a week in salary. This calls to mind the contracts of other movie celebrities. Charlie Chaplin is reputed to have received $1,000,000 for a single picture. Gloria Swanson and Gilda Grey each earned close to half a million on sundry releases. George Arliss and John Barrymore have likewise reaped huge fortunes.

Many will want to know if the art of a movie star deserves such high monetary reward. The answer is: Whether he deserves it or not, he actually earns it, and more, for his employer. The dispute which still rages in some quarters as to whether art is greatest which has a universal appeal, or an appeal that satisfies the most refined aesthetic tastes, leaves no doubt, however, which of these pays more.

The moral is: If you want to be rich, serve the greatest number, not the discriminating few. The multitudes wear homespun and subsist laregly on ham and eggs; they do not dress in sables or dine off caviar. And they know what they want.

The League of Nations convenes in Geneva. Representatives of the governments of practically every important country are there, presumably to unite in an effort to insure the peace of the world.

As a matter of fact, however, the representatives have their hands and feet, and their minds also, tied tight by instructions from their respective countries. Each knows exactly what he is supposed to concede, what to demand in exchange, on what items to compromise, what to compromise, what to oppose, etc. The convention will turn out to be a grab-bag party of patriots, not a dignified session of internationalists.

The correct name of whalebone is baleen and it is not a bone, having none of the properties of bone. It is found attached to the upper jaw of the whale and serves to strain water taken into the whale's mouth.

Uncle Ez Push is the meanest ole Democrat. This mornin' he said, "Who ever dreamed that the time would come when the success of the grand ole party would depend on the weather?" A little indigestion now an' then is relished by the best of us.

We would have no issue against Tom Thumb golf if only the players would be content to give thumbnail sketches of their game.

Racketeers in Chicago have just bombed their third beauty shop. Well, those fellows may have their own ideas as to how to lift faces.

Our Surplus Energies

A 19-YEAR-OLD South African girl swims the English channel, two Americans finish driving an automobile across the continent in reverse gear and a couple of chaps in Los Angeles are preparing to try to capture the airplane refueling endurance record again; from which it appears that the human race, taken by and large, is not losing any of its energy, however much it may be deficient in horse sense.

Indeed, it is the energy involved in all of these contests that is the most striking thing about the whole business. A man who will drive an auto backwards for thousands of miles may have funny ideas, but at least he likes to be doing things. The girl who swims the English channel is not, whatever else she may be, anemic or spiritless.

Considering the fact that contests and stunts of this kind are thicker than the fallen leaves of autumn, the obvious conclusion is that the modern world does not provide people with enough outlets for their energy. In fact, one of the big problems of the next generation may be the search for suitable safety-valves through which active men and women can get rid of their excess vim.

The ordinary methods of earning a living nowadays do not always suffice. In the old days they did, and when all else failed a man could at least go exploring the African interior, or take to pioneering on the American frontier or in the Australian bush; but all the likely places have been explored now, and frontiers aren't what they used to be. Life doesn't drain us physically and spiritually as it did our ancestors.

This may seem a minor problem. Yet it would be quite possible to argue that it was this very reservoir of stored up, long-balked energy—this restlessness in a world from which so many hazards have been removed—that made the ordinary people of the world welcome the world war in 1914. For it is undeniable that they did, actually, welcome it. Their rulers got them into it, and in a few months all hands would have liked to be out of it, but when it first came it was hailed with cheers.

It may be that we shall make games and sports serve as our safety valves. The tremendous popularity of all kinds of sport, both mass and professional, at the present time, seems to indicate a long step in that direction. Yet that sort of thing, after all, is a poor substitute. The grandsons of the men who had the hardihood to push the Oregon trail across the plains may be working off their extra spirits on the golf course, but a golfer, when all is said and done, is not quite as inspiring a figure as a trail-blazer of the old frontier.

Of course, there is still a vast amount of hard, back-breaking work to be done and there are still huge problems to be solved. If we learn how to apply ourselves to these things, our surplus energy will take care of itself. If not, these trick endurance contests will be with us for a long time.

You Tell Us Why

PECULIAR outcroppings there are on the face of the world's greatest democracy and the leading Christian nation, which titles presumably are still born by the United States.

Today we have the spectacle of a nominee for the senate admitting expenditure of more than $3,000,000 in order to effect her "selection" by the voters of Illinois as their representative for the furthering of government of, for, and by the people. Under democracy's big tent she and another senator are engaged in an expensive and backbiting quarrel relative to the exact manner in which money was spent in aiding the people to "choose" their candidate.

While unemployment looms as one of the most serious problems facing the country, the government proceeds with further elevation of a tariff wall which appears to intensify rather than relieve the prospects of even more drastic hardships for the wage earners of the country.

While the country's resources have been plentiful, and its possession of wealth prodigious, the average family has been put to it sorely for two years to secure sufficient food and clothing to exist comfortably. We extoll education and culture, yet every educational institution witnesses the absence or withdrawal of large numbers of students because they have not the wherewith to pay tuitions. No shortage of any of the physical requirements for providing such education can be shown, nor is its great importance denied—but the money can not be devoted to that purpose.

For those and innumerable similar reasons, it is not surprising if the rest of the world wonders if our civilization, our government, our Christianity, really are supported by the highest ideals of which we are capable. There is reason to suspect that a shoddy substitute is being tolerated.

Is a Gun-Seller Liable?

IN CHICAGO a storekeeper who has sold guns to gangsters is going to be brought to trial. A Chicago jurist has a theory that a man who sells a gun with which a criminal commits a murder can be tried as an accessory in that murder, and it is proposed that this theory be tested legally in the case of the storekeeper.

How the courts will dispose of this contention is something for the future to disclose; meanwhile, the case emphasizes the ease with which a criminal can equip himself with weapons in this country. No matter how this particular trial comes out, society ought to protect itself by throwing a few more restrictions about the sale and purchase of deadly weapons.

A Liability Once More

IN BYGONE years Tammany Hall was a heavy liability to the Democratic party in national elections. In 1928 it was still a liability, but the old rule was at least modified enough to give the head of the party ticket to a Tammanyite—something that never could have happened before. Now, however, it appears that the old order is going to return in full force.

Tammany seems to be piling up excellent campaign material for Republican orators in New York City. The disclosures there recently about graft and corruption in the city government and in the courts are extremely shocking. It does not take a political expert to foresee that they will eventually be mentioned quite frequently in national campaigns.

To Hubert ("Rudy") Vallee

Thank God, you're back—we prayed
each day and night
That you'd return to us—unspoiled, unchanged;
And here you are again—you gorgeous sight,
No wonder that all Brooklyn is deranged.
We watched you as you strode upon the stage,
Each curl was visible from where we sat;
You crooned a current song that's all the rage,
What of it if you were a trifle flat?
Let columnists deride you if they will,
We faithful fans ignore their cracks so clever;
We're glad to note your crooning still can thrill—
We're glad your map looks just as dumb as ever!
—Young Man of Manhattan.

Things That Knock Me Cold

The United Press' story in the N. Y. Sun announced from Chicago that Al Capone (the boy who made good beer in the windy city) had "absorbed his rivals." That a merger had been effected with his competing gangs, etc. The U. P. story goes on to report: "As tentatively selected the cabinet (Capone's) will include: Secretaries of Beer-Manufacturing: Joe Saltis and Klondike O'Donnell. Secretaries of Vice: Jack Guzik and Hymie Weiss. Maintaining houses under Capone's regime will not require a change of occupation for either of these."

Now, this is the sort of reporting that makes a news service sappy, at least to Capone and his loyals. One can still hear them laughing their throats hoarse over it, considering that Hymie Weiss was machine-gun'd to death in front of the Holy Name Cathedral, Chicago, a few years ago!

Extra:

You might thank your favorite scoopee-maker for learning the latest news. That Paul Whiteman has been turned into a miniature golf course.

It takes eight strokes to get out of his fifth chin!

"Typically French"

The French Chamber of Commerce and the French Line invited Robert (Cutie) Benchley, among other American immortals to a formal dinner to Coste and Bellonte aboard the Sick de France, last evening. When La Belle France does a thing, she does it up brown, as the saying doesn't go, but what we started out to report was that the telegraphed invitations were sent collect—costing La Belle Benchley sixty-four cents.

The high Coste of—finish it yourself.

Of All Things!

David Murray says that in Hollywood, it isn't the original cost—it's the yup keep. Maybe this one is better:

"Sandy, the Scot, seems to get a kick out of solitaire."
"Really?"
"Yes. Every time he loses he pays for his own lunch."

Someone Marries

Something old, something new,
Something borrowed, something blue,
Someone giving the bride away,
Someone catching the bride's bouquet,
Organ clinking Love's Old Song—
Everyone thinking: "It won't last long."

Now Justa Minute

"For no reason at all Mrs. Brinkley's favorite son, Doug, fumbled through a recent copy of Life (a publication) and more than thrilled was he to find in that particular issue, a column signed A. S. and headed 'Imaginary Interviews.' Can you imagine his lack of embarrassment? The 'Imaginary Interviews,' which were originated by Doug Brinkley, have appeared on the stands for the past five months in the Club-Fellow. In other words, the real thing. Imitation is a form of flattery, and Doug takes the opportunity to extend his thanks to any imitator."—Doug Brinkley in the September Tatler and American Sketch.

Well now, far be it from this buttinsky to kick down Master Brinkley's little mud pies, but a chap christened Claude Binyon has been writing exactly the same thing for Variety for ever so many years. Or am I too loud?

Old, but Clean

Among other mean digs attributed to George Jean Nathan, the meanest of the first-night meanies, is this. Nathan, it appears, often abused the acting and producing of the late Henry Miller.

When Henry passed away, his son, Gilbert, inherited some of his father's honors. One evening in front of his pappy's theater, an old friend of the Miller tribe affectionately patted Gilbert's back and said: "A chip off the old block, eh?"

To which the very horrid Nathan groaned: "You mean a slice of the old ham!"

System

Ben Bernie, one of the better comedians who directs an orchestra, is at the moment jesting in Hollywood. He relays the fact that the panic still is on out there for actors. Recently a pal of his, who is credit manager for a Los Angeles shop, received the following letter from a distressed debtor, one of the strong silent and now passe stars of the philms.

"Dear Sir: I have many, many bills to settle, so each week I put them all in a hat and draw out one, which I pay. It may be your turn next week but no more of your threats or I won't put you in my raffle!"

O, Mr. Volstead!

When Eddie Downing recently went home to visit his maw in the scenes of his Blackstone valley boyhood, his "neighbors" (representing cities and towns embracing about 80 per cent of the Rhode Island population) turned out to give him an ovation. There was an auto parade with stops for speeches between Providence and Woonsocket. (Golly, how I flopped in those towns!)

At Woonsocket, the hero was required to make a speech. Eddie got to reminiscing, because this was truly his home town. "Right over on that corner there," said Eddie emotionally, "there used to be, if I remember correctly, a saloon."

"Correct, Eddie!" interrupted a vag, "and it's still there!"

THE STORY THUS FAR

Hopeless because of her failure to make a decent living in New York City, pretty Donna Raynor writes to Randolph Granby, a wealthy bachelor: "I could get a rich husband if I had the proper setting. It would cost a thousand a month and I'd need two years to get the proper man. Will you give it to me?"

Intrigued by the girl's personality and her unconventional ideas, Granby accepts her proposal. Through his brokers Donna receives $25,000; Granby prepares to sail for France, and Donna leaves her shabby hotel for a more fashionable address in the exclusive fifties.

An Intruder Proposes

With deliberation Donna turned her back on Times Square. When next she entered the square it would be in some one's limousine, and that some one would bear a name at mention of which the doorman at the theater would bend his obsequious back . . .

Eastward she strolled now, and finally entered her bank. She indorsed Callum and Rignaud's check, made out a deposit slip and approached a grated window.

"How soon may I draw against this?" she asked.

The teller cast a swift glance at her. He looked down at the check, then looked at her again with interest. He scribbled his initials on one of her deposit slips, stamped it with the date, and pushed it beneath the grating toward her.

Even tellers can be human, machine-like though their work is, and this was an extremely pretty girl.

"Lucky in the market, eh? Callum & Rignaud—brokers, aren't they? Well, invest it in something solid now. This market won't last forever, you know. Draw against it? Tomorrow morning."

As though suddenly appalled at his own unbending, he clicked his teeth upon the final "g" and turned back into the depths of his cage. Tomorrow morning!

Donna had vaguely thought that it might be longer. She had an idea that the larger the amount of the check, the more trouble and delay there was in getting hold of the money. Tomorrow morning, eh? But there was no reason on earth why she should stay until then at the Hotel Mercat. She had three hundred dollars which she had offered Jinny—she blushed as she realized that Jinny had thought it was offered as a bribe—and she went to another window and drew two hundred of it.

Three blocks from the bank was a luggage shop. She bought an excellent suitcase, without fittings, for $85. She paid cash for this, and then asked to be shown trunks. She selected two, one with drawers and compartments only, and one equipped only with hangers for frocks. They came to $325. They were by no means the most expensive in the shop, but were serviceable as well as good looking.

"Send the trunks to me tomorrow—at the Herndon," she said. "Miss Donna Raynor."

The salesman reached for a pad and pencil.

"You have an account here, Miss Raynor?"

"Why—er—no," she said, "but I bank at the Fifteenth National, and—"

The salesman appraised her.

"It would be a pleasure to open an account for you, Miss Raynor," he said. "The Fifteenth National, I think you said. And there's really no need for you to pay for the suitcase. Let that go on the bill, Miss Raynor."

She was pretty, looked honest, must have clothing or she'd not require two expensive trunks and a suitcase, and she banked at the Fifteenth National. Charge customers buy twice as much as those who must pay cash. The salesman sold her a plain black leather bag, equipped for bottles but not fitted, for $140 on her way to the door. That was also charged.

She took a taxi back to the Mercat, went to her room and in the one bag managed to crowd the few personal effects which were to attend her on her migration. Then she rang for the slatternly colored chambermaid who intermittently attended the wants of the Mercat's guests. To the grateful maid she presented her shabby clothing and also the battered trunk. Then, in too much of a hurry to escape these drab surroundings to wait for a dilatory bellboy, she carried her bag to the elevator. She paid her bill—it amounted, for the four days since it had last been paid, to a trifle over $16—and stepped into a taxi outside.

It was on the tip of her tongue to tell the driver to take her directly to the Hotel Herndon, but the bellboy who had carried her bag from the desk to the street lingered within earshot. It would be as well to throw what obstacles were at hand in the way of any possible prying curiosity. The Herndon was the most fashionable hotel in the city. It would arouse a certain interest if it were known that a resident of the Mercat moved thence to the Herndon.

"Grand Central station," she said to the driver.

She felt like the heroine of the latest newspaper triangle as she thus covered her tracks.

At the station she merely transferred herself to another taxi, and 10 minutes later she was registering at the Hotel Herndon: "Miss Donna Raynor, New York City." The clerk eyed her speculatively. The Herndon could afford to be selective, and while its attitude toward single women from out of town was cordial, it was not anxious to fill its rooms with young women who were native to the city. In the case of a spinster, if the outmoded word still has meaning, there is virtue in an out-of-town residence.

However, the clerk was as generous in his estimate of her as had been the salesman at Bleakie & Co.'s shop. She was a well-bred young woman, of modest and pleasing demeanor, with plenty of good looks, and he summed her up in the one word, "class."

From the window of her room Donna looked out upon Central park. Immediately below her hummed the traffic of Fifth avenue, its raucous noises diminished by height to a pleasant murmur, punctuated by an occasional staccato backfire. But beyond, the trees were burgeoning in early summer green. Boats plied the waters of a little lake, propelled by shirt-sleeved youths who sought an exercise denied them through the chill winter. A few antiquated hansoms moved sedately amid the throng of motors.

Reluctantly she turned away from the entrancing view. She went to the telephone and asked that a hair-dresser and manicurist be sent to her in exactly 30 minutes. The half hour intervening she spent in the bath, and she was fresh and dainty in a simple dressing gown, when she gave herself over to the ministrations of the two beauty specialists. Hair waved, manicured, massaged, soothed by the ministrations of deft fingers and the applications of cream and lotions, she picked up the telephone two hours later and asked for a number.

Once a week, religiously, during her residence in New York, Donna had made a point of going to a good restaurant at the luncheon hour. Attired in her best, it had given her a subtle feeling of self-assurance to enter Pierre's, Sherry's, the Marguery or the Colony, and to permit herself an extravagance utterly unjustified. She knew better than to make frequent appearances at any one place; to be noticed meant to be remarked upon, and speculation is not good for a girl even though the speculation be done by complete strangers. But she read the papers, and frequently she saw pictures of men or women next to whom she had lunched the previous week. She knew the names and features of a score of smart people. And one young woman she had spoken with.

A week ago, indulging in her desire to be—even remotely—of the smart world, Donna had lunched at the Colony. She had recognized—as who that read the tabloids might not—the extremely chic and equally unconventional Libby Prentiss.

Libby Prentiss had divorced herself from the laws of decorum as casually as her parents had divorced themselves from each other. Not, as people too swiftly pointed out, that Libby ever did anything wrong, but . . . She refused to live with either parent; she insisted that she would not be bored, and surrounded herself with what she termed "amusing" people. But it is an unfortunate fact that respectability and the quality of being amusing do not too often go hand in hand, and Libby's friends figured frequently in the press in scandals. She was herself a most prolific source of copy for the society columns, and apparently took an unholy delight in shocking her somewhat solemn relations. For all that, she was too strongly entrenched to become declasse, unless she did something quite outrageous, and thus far Libby had avoided that.

"When are you sailing, Libby?" her companion had asked.

"I've bookings on the Ile de France," Libby had replied. "But I'm economizing, my dear. I'm trying to rent my apartment, and if I don't do it—" she shrugged her pretty shoulders. "I've put it with Cromwell & Magann, and they say they'll get a tenant."

"Of course they will," her companion had assured her, and that was all the talk that Donna had overheard.

But, because she had suddenly become determined to get out—somehow or some way—from the life she was living, she had paid a visit to Cromwell & Magann, received a list of apartments from them, and called upon Libby Prentiss. She had not the slightest idea that she could lease the apartment, but it was in satisfaction of a craving—not snobbish in its origin—to see a girl like Libby Prentiss in her own home that she pretended a desire for an apartment.

The Prentiss girl had received her in friendly fashion.

"It's really a duck of a place, Miss— Raynor, is that it? I'm perfectly happy here, but I've a million things to do on the other side, and don't expect to come back for a year or so, so—it costs me exactly $24,000 a year, and I'm willing to let it go, with my own things in it, for that amount."

Outside, Donna wanted to sob. This gem of an apartment, in which she could be unbelievably happy, and debarred from her possession simply because she didn't have money! Why, if Libby Prentiss felt like it, she could abandon an apartment that cost her $24,000 a year and still not be forced to practice economy.

She found herself railing at fate, and it did no good to tell herself that she was an absurd young woman, demanding things which fate evidently did not intend to grant her. She was no better—no worse—than thousands of young women who wanted luxury and position and things like that, but who had not happened to be born of rich and securely placed parents. She might just as well make up her mind to plod along. . . . It was within 24 hours after looking at Libby Prentiss' apartment that Donna wrote her letter to Ran Granby.

Now she called the Prentiss apartment. Somehow it soothed her soul to be able to do so. After her noncommittal departure from the little flat, she had felt—In addition to other emotions—a bit of a sneak, of a peeper. She had entered the apartment under false pretenses, merely to gratify a cheap curiosity, to strengthen her own importance by pretending, if only for a moment, that she was of Libby Prentiss' own station, would be, by virtue of aggressiveness, of Libby's class.

"This is Miss Raynor," she said, when the apartment's owner came to the telephone. "I've decided to

Q.—What is the purpose of the good luck box often seen in a Jewish home?—W. J.

A.—Among Orthodox Jews it is a common custom to have a small box in the living room in which small sums of money may be placed. While the money in these boxes is often used for private purposes the contents are more frequently, particularly by the Orthodox Jews, devoted to the needs of the poor Jews or for the Jewish cause in Palestine, or for the acquisition of land in Palestine by the Zionist organization. There are a great many boxes put out by the Zionist organization for this purpose. These are blue boxes decorated with the Shield of David. Visitors to the home frequently drop a small contribution in the box before leaving, and it is reported that the name good luck boxes originated in the custom of dropping into the box gains from cards or other recreations.

The Record News Offers A Booklet on House Cleaning

Keeping everlastingly at it is the secret of good house cleaning. This means keeping the house clean, rather than cleaning thoroughly at long intervals. It means daily tidying of the rooms in constant use, distributing the cleaning, especially the heavy kinds, through the week, and removing dirt not only frequently but thoroughly by methods that have been proved good according to both scientific and practical standards. All the members of the household can help, if only by keeping their own possessions in order and putting things that they use in place in good condition.

There is a wealth of such valuable instruction in the booklet on house cleaning now offered Record News readers. Send for a copy, today, using this coupon.

Health and Diet Advice

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper.

The Grapejuice Diet

During the grape season, when the grapes are plentiful and of a remarkable price, everyone should use them, and children should be encouraged to eat them. It is well to keep a dish of grapes standing in a convenient place in the home where they may be used between meals or even occasionally in place of a meal.

The fresh grapes are slightly laxative to the bowels and are stimulating to the kidneys. The skin and seeds may be eaten, except where there is an ulceration of the bowels or severe intestinal inflammation, where they might prove irritating, and the juice would be more satisfactory.

Grapejuice is one of the most nourishing of all drinks, and may be substituted for the fresh grapes if you prefer, and it has the advantage of being obtainable during the season when fresh grapes are scarce. Grapejuice can be preserved by pasteurization or by the newer process of evaporating a portion of the water so that the juice becomes more concentrated. The concentrated grapejuice is more nourishing than fresh, and since the water is extracted at a low temperature the juice contains vitamins of the fresh grapejuice. In the form of grapejuice the nutritive value of the grape is not destroyed but is in solution so that the organic minerals and sugar of the grape are readily taken up by the blood and eagerly seized upon by the tissues which are always hungry for the vital organic salts.

When on a grapejuice diet you may drink an eight-ounce glass of the grapejuice every two hours during a waking day. If you are using the concentrated juice, be sure to add some water to dilute it to the consistency of fresh grapejuice. The grapejuice fast may be taken either for reducing or for general elimination. The rest from ordinary food will be good for your overworked organs, and your whole alimentary canal will be cleansed by this delectable juice of the fruit of the vine.

Grapejuice prepared in various ways makes an excellent dessert for you to use with your protein meals, and here are some recipes for preparing grapejuice which I am sure you will find tasteful.

Grape Ice Cream

Into a dish place half the contents of an envelope of plain gelatin and add two or three tablespoons of juice to soften. Dissolve over hot water and stir into one and a half pints of grapejuice. Add this to one pint of cream and a half cupful of honey. Stir well together and add one pint of milk. Put into a freezer until of the desired consistency. This amount will make about two quarts when frozen.

Grape Gelatin

Place a pint of grapejuice over the fire in a double boiler. When hot add the contents of one envelope of gelatin which has been soaked in a little cold water. Stir continuously for a few minutes, then remove from the fire and place in molds. Let cool and place in the ice box just before serving. If you prefer, you may put the preparation in a flat fold and cut it into cubes after it has congealed.

Grape Sundae

This is easily made by pouring grapejuice or concentrated grapejuice over a dish of ice cream.

Grape Milk Fizz

Fill a glass one-third full of grapejuice. Add another third of milk, and almost fill the glass with charged water of ginger ale which should be stirred just before serving.

Grape Mint Drink

Mix one pint of grapejuice with half a cupful of chopped mint leaves. Place on ice one hour, strain, and serve in glasses half filled with chopped ice. A sprig of mint may be placed in each glass so served.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Milk of Magnesia

Question—G. W. writes: "As milk of magnesia seems to be a good thing in a general way, I am wondering what would be the objection to using it regularly."

Answer—There is no doubt but what milk of magnesia makes an excellent anti-acid to use in the relief of hyperacidity of the stomach. I have known many elderly people who claim to have used magnesia, soda or some other alkali all their lives and seem not to have suffered any bad effects. The main thing to remember if you have hyperacidity is to change your eating habits so as to correct this condition by removing the cause which lies mostly in inharmonious food combinations.

Throwing Away Glasses

Question—Mrs. J. S. writes: "I have been wearing glasses for 20 years. I am now 36 years old. My eyes are getting weaker all the time. Do you think it due to wearing glasses so long? And do you think that by discarding them for a period and trying a special diet I could make my eyes strong and clear again?"

Answer—Properly fitted glasses are simply scientifically made magnifying glasses with which you can see more clearly. There is no way by which their use can make the eyes weaker. What you need to do is to have some new glasses to fit your eyes at the present time. A correct diet will always assist in clearing up the vision and increasing the general strength of your body which in turn will increase the strength of your eye muscles. I will be glad to send you an article on eye exercises, but you should also go to an optometrist and have your eyes carefully examined and fitted for new glasses.

'Anti-Dumping' Ban Asked Against Foreign Matches

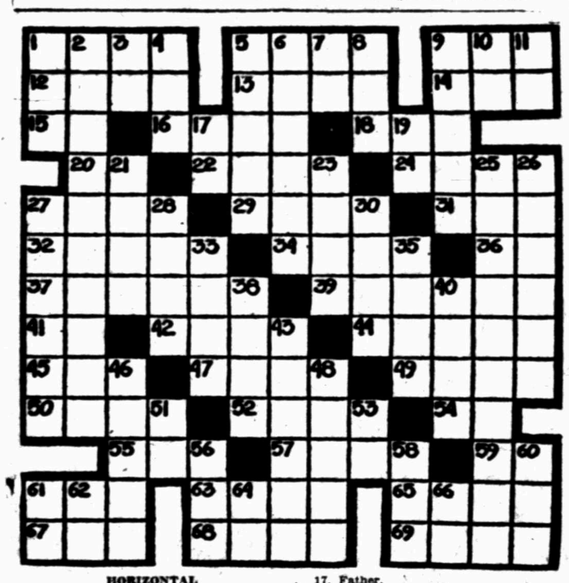

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17. (AP)—President Hoover was asked today to apply the "anti-dumping" law against Austrian and Finnish match producers to aid American industry.

Representative Seiberling, Republican, Ohio, and Tom A. Palmer of the Palmer Match company at Akron told the chief executive that benefits to the industry from the higher tariff already were evident, but that dumping by the two foreign countries was hampering the industry's growth.

The American federation of labor they said, was cooperating with them and other match companies to secure application of the law, which was designed to prevent selling products in this country below the home sale price.

It makes little difference in watering the lawn whether the water is applied in small daily amounts once or twice a week. Regular watering of one sort or another will almost double the growth of grass during the dry season.

SNYDERMEN WHIP MEMPHIS CHICKS IN OPENER OF DIXIE SERIES

The RAMBLER'S CORNER

By FRED D. THOMPSON

Now that we've been whipped, who are we to support in the Dixie series?

The Cats, of course.

Frankly, it tears my heart out to do it, but it must be done. They are fellow Texans, and they are fighting to uphold the old tradition which says that Texas league baseball is far superior to the brand played in the Southern association.

But the main reason we hope the Cats win is that it will mean more money to the Spudder players. Our boys will share heavily in the receipts, although not half as heavily as they would had we won the pennant. Being the second place club, the Spudders will get a nice rake-off. Houston, third place club, will take what's left, which won't be so much.

The Cats, then—dern 'em—are the ones we hope will win.

With the Dixie series in progress, many people are interested in the history of the intersectional warfare, wanting to know who were the winners in past years.

Here it all is. The Dixie series was started in 1920. Fort Worth has won the most Dixie championships, five in number. The Cats are now in their seventh Dixie series, having lost the title once years ago.

In the first Dixie series in 1920 Fort Worth whipped Little Rock for the title. Little Rock won two games in the series.

In the second series, in 1921, the Cats whipped Memphis, the latter winning only two games.

In 1922, Mobile whipped the Cats, the latter winning two games in the series.

In 1923 the Cats beat New Orleans, four games to two.

In 1924 the Cats beat Memphis, four games to three.

In 1925 the Cats beat Atlanta, four games to two.

In 1926 Dallas broke the Panther spell, won the Texas league championship, and whipped New Orleans, four games to two, for the Dixie title.

In 1927 the Spudders won the Dixie title, whipping New Orleans four straight games.

In 1928 Houston whipped Birmingham, four games to two.

In 1929, Birmingham defeated Dallas, four games to two.

The Southern association, therefore has won only two Dixie championships, Mobile winning the first in 1922 from the Cats; and Birmingham winning the second in 1929 from the Dallas Steers.

The Southern association, in the history of the series, has advanced five contenders for the Dixie title, Little Rock, Memphis, New Orleans, Atlanta and Birmingham; while the Texas league has only advanced four contenders, Fort Worth, Dallas, Wichita Falls and Houston.

From the Texas Statistical bureau comes an interesting sidelight on this year's Dixie series, in the form of the part Ziggy (Eagle-Eyed) Sears has played in the intersectional wars of the past. It follows:

"John William (Ziggy)—Editor's note: (Eagle Eyed)—Sears holds more Dixie series records than any man who has participated in it. He is one of the three players to have taken part in six series; has played in the most games; been the most times at bat; scored the most runs in all series and in one series; has made the most hits, also the most one-base hits; in two series batted safely in every game; has hit the most doubles in all series; the most home runs in one series; leads in total bases for all series, and for one series; has made the most long hits in all series and in one series; has made the most sacrifice hits, bases on balls, and is the only player to bat .300 or better in as many as four series.

We suggest the statistical bureau 10 years hence compile Ziggy's records as an umpire, starting with his calling of nine straight balls on Stormy Vincent here late in the second half and including his record-breaking peer through 15 feet of planks to see Euller's home run ball which didn't count for one in the recent play-off game here.

Have you noticed there has been absolutely no talk of a "frame-up" in the late lamented play-off? Never in the history of the league, probably, has there been such absolute agreement on the fact that there was no "stack-up" of the games in the post-season series.

And yet, forgetting the tight scores of the games, forgetting how the players fought tooth and toenail, and considering merely the fact that the play-off went the full five-game route and that the opposing teams each won the opening game in their home town, there is every justification in the world for a squawk of "frame-up."

The series opened here and the Spudders whipped the Cats in the opening game. "Fine!" shouted Spudderland, and promptly turned out in thousands to see the second game, which was won by the Cats.

With the series tied, the Spudders opened in Fort Worth Saturday, and the Cats won. "Grand!" shouted Catville, and some 12,000 people turned out Sunday, swelling the clubs' receipts immeasurably. And then the Spudders won, deadlocking the series the second time, and necessitating a fifth game, which, remember, would add thousands of dollars more to the treasuries of the two clubs.

And in the fifth game, the Cats won, and Cowtown was satisfied. Their money was well spent, they figured.

Considering merely these facts, of who won, when, and where, there was plenty of room for the squawkers to kick.

But the bitterness of those battles overshadowed everything else. If any man had put up a howl of frame-up after watching the Spudders lose the opening game in Fort Worth Saturday he would have been mobbed, by both Wichitans and Cowtowners. Even the thought of frame-up after witnessing the last two bloody battles would have been revolting. There was too much bone-crunching in evidence.

And so the Texas league probably saw its most successful play-off in years. The clubs reaped heavily of golden coin, each getting around $20,500. And they deserve every penny of it. They put on one of the most magnificent shows patrons of the noble sport have ever witnessed.

There has been some talk as to whether Howard Fitzgerald will be back with the Spudders in 1931. Howard has been the wizard of the middle position here for years. He made the big show twice, playing with the Cubs and the Red Sox, but a weak throwing arm hindered him. The pride of Eagle Lake is undoubtedly the best center fielder this loop has ever watched perform. For the Spudders to lose him would be the last straw. After losing our infield, Hal Wiltse, and the rest! It has gone far enough. We have had the blues for days, thinking of the other boys who have gone on. To lose Fitzgerald would bring us to manly tears.

But now that the subject has got into print, we might as well break down and tell the truth. In The Times of Wednesday, Fitzgerald was reported as saying before he left for New Orleans on a visit that he would be "back in harness next season."

He told me quite differently. He said he was thinking of quitting baseball, and should he land in a good job somewhere he would not again don a uniform.

Of course, he may not have meant that seriously. Every clubowner will tell you that stars of the game are always saying that at the end of the season. The end of the season is always a critical time for a baseball star. He starts looking into the future with dim and downcast eyes, and he is startled that he can't penetrate its unfathomable mists. He is human like the rest of us. He can't look ahead and see what the fates are to do with him. He probably has a wife to provide for, and children at the school age. He is trying to plan ahead for them, keep them well provided for and free from worry. He wonders whether the old game will treat him as kindly as it did the past season. He grows afraid that it will not, and plunges through the recesses of his mind hunting for a new idea of life, trying to change his attitude to fit an uncertain future. In short, he is looking for another job.

In most cases this fear is uncalled for. In Fitzgerald's case, it certainly is unnecessary. There are yet many seasons of good baseball in the lanky greyhound of the garden.

There is some talk also of whether or not Skipper Williams will return. A prediction that Skipper Williams will not return would be based on more logic than the guess that Fitzgerald will not. Skipper Williams is an older man than Fitzgerald and has seen many tough days. The old farm, no doubt, is quite a lure to him. Calm evenings after a day of running a profitable farm—no idiotic umpires to worry with—no howling club presidents after a protest is made—these things likely will keep old Carl in retirement.

And if he does retire, the logical man for the skippership, it seems

CATS SCORE 3 ON NO HITS

Errors and Walks Give Texans 4-3 Victory

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 17. (AP)—The Fort Worth Panthers, winners of five Dixie series pennants, showed some 7,000 howling fans how to score three runs on no hits and took the first game of the series, 4 to 3, from the champion Chicks of the Southern association this afternoon.

The Cats bore the Texas league standard in the inaugural of the 10th Dixie title battle.

Chicks Seek Vengeance

Doc Prothro's team, seeking to avenge two previous Dixie pennants won from them by Fort Worth, got everything but runs while the Cats, in the wild eighth, scored three runs on two walks and two errors.

The Chicks took a one run lead in the second, yielded a tie score in the fifth, and went into the lead in their half of the same inning, 3 to 2. Then came the eighth and gloom for Memphis.

Beck Walked Moore and Mallon, first two up. Beck threw Bonowitz's bunt to third when there was no one there and Moore and Mallon scored. Then McDaniel, Chick first baseman, dropped a throw and Bonowitz went to second, and the across the plate on a sacrifice fly. Both teams went out in short order in the final inning.

Dick McCabe, Manager Snyder's first nomination for mound duty, gave up seven hits to Beck's six.

SPUDS SURPASS CATS IN BATTING AND FIELDING IN LEAGUE PLAY-OFF

Typical of the even play in the exciting series in which the Fort Worth Cats took the Texas league pennant for the seventh time in the past 11 campaigns is the fact that the two clubs registered exactly the same batting average, while the two leading pitchers on each club won both of their two starts and finished with only .27 between them in earned run efficiency. Typical of its season record, too, is Wichita Falls' edge in number of hits, total bases and long hits, and in this short series, the Spudders, too, had the best fielding average. But errors played a surprisingly small part in the history of the series.

Wichita Falls furnished the leading hitter of the play-off in Crouch who led in hits with 11 and in average with .677 and the top slugger in Kloza, who also led in runs batted in. Evidence of the offense superiority over the pitching is the fact that no regular on either club failed to hit safely at least once.

The official play-off statistics follow:

Levey and Burns Turn in Great Day's Work in First Game With Browns

Spider Levey and Jack Burns showed the big boys of the Browns they had the stuff, and plenty of it, Wednesday when they took to the diamond with the rest of the Killefermen in St. Louis against the New York Yanks. Levey was at his old post of shortstop, and Burns was at first.

The Browns whipped the Yanks, 9 to 8. Levey had a vital part in the victory. In four times up he hit safely twice, one of them being a double. He handled four chances without a bobble, drove in two runs, scored twice himself, and participated in a double play. Burns was at the end of that double play. Jack went up to the plate four times and hit safely once. In addition he handled 12 putouts and two assists faultlessly.

Storti did not get into action, according to the Associated Press story of the game. Melillo, whom Storti is expected to replace, played second base. Neither did Crouch participate.

LIPTON'S YACHT LOSES CANVAS

Main Halyard Breaks As Third Race Starts

of gulls, or have I used that simile before?

Anyway, at 12:24, with the yachts about four and one-half miles from the start, and the Enterprise leading, there was a sudden cry of "looky" from the embattled experts, and all fingers pointed at the Shamrock. The mighty mainsail, or, as we seagoing folks say, mains'l, crumpling like a dish rag, and drifting downward, emptied of wind.

Mammoth Sail

This sail is no mere pillow slip. It is triangular in shape, and made of 7,600 square feet of heavy canvas.

The sail is handled by a steel rope, or halyard, that runs through the towering mast, and is manipulated on the Shamrock by a mechanical winch below the deck. Incidentally this winch is the only mechanical gadget on the Shamrock, though the Enterprise has all sorts of 'em.

There wasn't enough wind to carry away the sail, so the inference is that the halyard was either tautened beyond its strength, or that there was a defect in the steel rope. A similar accident occurred to the Resolute back in 1920.

Anyway, the sail was down, whatever the cause, and the Shamrock was a dead duck as far as this heat was concerned.

The Erin, bearing Sir Tom Lipton, and a band of guests who are becoming violent tea addicts under his jurisdiction, approached the limping Shamrock, and a small boat put off from the committee boat to inquire into matters. Poor Sir Tom felt pretty bad about the matter because the start had given him some hope that there might be a race in the Shamrock yet.

Meantime, the Enterprise was hull down against the horizon. In yacht racing when an opponent falls by the wayside you do not pause to lift him up, or to inquire into the state of his health. You just go on about your business, and that's the way Skipper "Mike" went. After bobbing around the crippled Shamrock awhile, mid mutter of "ain't that too bad," from their passengers, the sightseeing craft set sail after the Enterprise.

Personally I didn't notice any great difference in the race after the Shamrock fell out. It has been a one-boat affair all along, anyway. The Enterprise sailed majestically out and around the marker at the end of the 15-mile course against the wind, then sailed back just as majestically with the breeze to the other end of the course.

The pleasure armada tooted rather faint heartedly at the finish, because even the captains felt that the victory of the Enterprise today was about as hollow as a triumph over Phil Scott.

The repairs to the Shamrock were commenced almost as soon as she went out of commission. At first it was thought she might require another day to get ready for racing again, but tonight the glad news went abroad in the land, that Sir Tom's boat will be in there trying as usual tomorrow.

But no one is optimistic enough in Sir Tom's behalf, not even Sir Tom himself, to predict any result other than a final sweep for Skipper "Mike" and the Enterprise.

FABER WHIPS ATHLETICS, 4-2

The Hose Capture Battle With Champs

CHICAGO, Sept. 17. (AP)—Urban Faber let the Athletics down with six hits this afternoon, and despite four errors by his mates, the Hose won the third game of the series 4 to 2. Ed Rommell was nicked for 12 blows, four of them being clustered in the fourth frame to give the Sox a victory. Hits by Reynolds, Jolley, Cissell and Kamm figured in the scoring, along with an error by Mickey Cochrane that allowed a run to score. Cissell made a great running catch of a pop fly in the eighth to save a lot of trouble. Score:

AVERILL TIES RECORD

CLEVELAND, Sept. 17. (AP)—Earl Averill, Young Indian center fielder, stole the show by hitting three home runs in consecutive trips to the plate and a total of four round trippers for the day as Cleveland and Washington split a double-header today. Cleveland won the first, 13 to 7, and Washington copped the nightcap, 6 to 4.

Averill tied the modern major league record for consecutive homers with three in the first game. He drove in eight runs, enough to win the game. He missed a fourth straight homer on his last trip to the plate, when a long fly was foul by a few feet, and then grounded out. Scores:

CARDS WIN SECOND FROM ROBINS AND TAKE FULL GAME LEAD

The Rambler's Corner

to the old Rambler, is none other than the aforesaid greyhound of the garden, Mr. Howard Fitzgerald.

Now all this is, of course, prognostication. Fitzgerald and Williams may both be back, and we hope to goodness they are. But Fitzgerald is running his life, and Williams is ordering his—and Prexy Huff is picking his managers—not I.

Skipper Williams' farm is near Santa Anna, Texas. That town is also the home of the sweetest girl that ever drew a powder puff across her face, and certainly not, I won't tell you her name!

Santa Anna is a beautiful little town. In the evening a purple haze settles over the horizon. It is a rolling hill country, with outbursts of forest here and there. Near the town is a large hill, and you can go up there at night and see a million stars. A quiet, beautiful little place. I know. I went there once to see her.

Steady now! To the rear, march! Hold me, faery queen, else I take wings and fly!

Football Is Here

The men of iron on the 1930 Coyote squad will give their first exhibition of skull-bustin' here Saturday at Spudder park.

What! Have a football game on the sod made sacred by the tramp, tramp, tramp of Levey, Euller, Storti and Burns!

Aye, mates—baseball at Athletic park is now past and gone—until a new year is ushered in and grown full four months old.

But have no fears. Our Coyotes—young and eager—are going to give us plenty thrills this season. We've got to get behind them now, just as we lost weight howling for the Spudders. And Coach Holton's youngsters will deserve our cheers, just as the Spudders did.

They tangle Saturday with the Parrots from Fort Worth Polytechnic High school. Offhand, it appears that the Coyotes are going to get their socks whipped off. Wesley Bradshaw, Poly coach, has all of 11 letter men on his team this year, and his team last year captured the Fort Worth city title without an extra grunt. Coach Holton has only one letter man on his team—Chick Holden, powerful guard and punter. Chick played tackle last year, but will be in the guard position this fall.

But if the enemy has the veterans, Coach Holton has plenty of speed and snap in his crew to give them considerable worry. Parrots, you know, have a gift of repeating words shouted at them by their human fellow sufferers on this wicked earth. Maybe the Coyotes will teach them another oration and make them forget their triumphal cry.

If speed can do it, the Coyotes will win. From what I've seen of the squad, the backfield is very fast, and is thoroughly drilled in a number of fast and clever plays. This is due to Coach Holton's insistence on a long spring training grind. The things they learned early in the year are now being worked out to perfection as the team makes ready for the Parrots.

Coach Holton had not announced a starting line-up Wednesday. Even should he announce one, it probably won't stand up very long after the game starts. The Parrots will make similar changes. Both coaches want to give all material possible a tryout in Saturday's game.

The Electra Tigers will also start the football season off Saturday, and so will many other teams in Northwest Texas.

The Tigers are to meet the Chillicothe team at Chillicothe in the first practice game of the season.

We didn't hear until yesterday the report that some 100 Wichitans were arrested and fined in Fort Worth during the play-off games there allegedly for speeding across the viaduct leading down to the ball park.

The report came to me from Percy Cobb, the town's champion baseball fan, who said he knew all about it, being as how he was one of them forced to shell out.

Percy said that viaduct was "the toll gate to Dallas," and said his fellow sufferers were quite indignant at those well-dressed cops who stopped Wichitans who were going over 20 m. p. h. over said viaduct.

We don't know whether it is true that 100 Wichitans were fined, but if they were it certainly appears Fort Worth police were taking an unfair advantage, for we Wichitans were their guests, unacquainted with their derned rules and regulations, and furthermore we were heated and excited and all afire to get down there and see the ball games.

Furthermore, in Dallas, we understand, motorists are fined if they don't speed up over the Dallas viaduct, and it's a much better viaduct than the one the Cowowners have.

Giants to Play in Cuba After Season's Close

NEW YORK, Sept. 17. (AP)—The New York Giants will go to Havana after the National league season to open a series of baseball games with a team composed of players from the Pittsburgh Pirates, Oct. 10. Arrangements for the games were made by John J. Mc Graw and Julio Blanco Herrera Eleven games will be played.

Dave Bancroft will be in charge of the Giants, the condition of Manager McGraw's health forcing him to forego the expedition.

Senor Herrera has offered $1,000 to the first player to drive a home run over the fence at Havana.

Luque's Issuance of Bases on Balls Lays Foundation for 5 to 3 Defeat

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Sept. 17. (AP)—A small band of former Missourians left Ebbets field today singing a hastily improvised song, "Little Andy High" to the tune of "Little Liza Jane." They were celebrating the second straight victory of the St. Louis Cardinals over the Brooklyn Robins, today's triumph being registered 5 to 3.

The victory placed the Cardinals a full game ahead of the Robins and may prove to be the victory needed to send the Cardinals into the world series for the third time.

If the Cardinals get in the autumn baseball classic they should vote Andy High a double share of the players' profits. High today duplicated his performance of yesterday, doubling as a pinch hitter. Today his hit came in the ninth inning and drove home two runs while yesterday he doubled in the 10th and sent one run home. One would have been enough today.

Adolfo Luque, veteran Cuban pitcher, worked well on the mound for the losers but tired in the closing innings. He laid the foundation for his defeat by issuing two passes, one in the eighth and one in the ninth. The first was made into the tying run and the second was the winning counter. Score:

PROBE OF RHEM'S "ABDUCTION" ORDERED

NEW YORK, Sept. 17. (UP)—President John A. Heydler of the National league, was asked today to investigate immediately a story told by Flint Rhem, St. Louis Cardinals pitcher, to the effect that he had been abducted by "armed men" and forced to drink and remain intoxicated for 24 hours.

Rhem, who was to have pitched for the Cardinals today in the current all-important series with the Brooklyn Robins, left the Alamac hotel, where the club is staying, Monday night.

He returned last night, apparently suffering from the effects of alcohol, and told a rambling story of how he had been kidnaped and held prisoner and plied with liquor.

PIRATES WHIP PHILS

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 17. (AP)—Two big innings, the seventh and eighth, in which they scored all their runs, featured the Pittsburgh Pirates' 12 to 5 victory over the Phils today. Four Phillie hurlers were routed by the Pirates, while Erwin Brame limited the Phils to 12 scattered hits. Besides beating the Quakers with his arm, Brame played an important part in the victory with his bat by collecting four hits. Al Phillips, Roy Hansen, Pat Collard and Rae Benge hurled for the losers. This quartet was assaulted for 16 hits. Score:

BERGER HITS THREE HOMERS

Braves and Reds Split Double-Header

BOSTON, Sept. 17. (AP)—Walter Berger, Braves slugging outfielder, got three home runs here today in a double-header which the Braves and Cincinnati Reds divided. Boston won the first 6 to 3, and the Reds the nightcap 6 to 4. Berger got his first homer with one in the third inning of the first game and his two blows in the second game gave the Braves their four runs. He got one with none on in the sixth and another with two on in the eighth. In addition to this work he drove in two more runs in the first game. Scores:

CUBS EVEN SERIES

NEW YORK, Sept. 17. (AP)—Led by Hack Wilson's two tremendous clouts, which brought his season's home run total up to 52, and by Pat Malone's fine pitching, the Chicago Cubs evened their series with the Giants today by winning the second game, 5 to 2. The defeat put the Giants almost hopelessly out of the pennant race, leaving them 5½ games behind the league leading Cardinals with only nine to play, while the Cubs are only a half game behind the second place Brooklyn Robins. NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Sept. 17. (AP)—Early advance on relatively steady Liverpool cables and reports of continued holding in the South was followed by reactions under realizing or liquidation and a little more Southern selling in the market here today. New December contracts after selling up to 11.24 or 13 points net higher eased off to 11.06 or 5 points net lower and closed at 11.10. The final tone of the market was steady net 1 point lower to 5 points higher.

The opening was steady at an advance of 5 to 10 points on some trade buying and a moderate commission house demand for the later months, which seemed to be promoted by more encouraging reports from the Manchester goods market as well as by relatively small offerings from the South and the steadiness of Liverpool.

Cables advices received here from Manchester said there were persistent rumors there that the Indian boycott against British goods was lifting. Liverpool cables reported continental and Bombay buying and light hedging in that market. Export today 38,886 making 824,341 so far this season. Port receipts 49,774. U. S. port stocks 2,185,539.

Futures closed steady, 5 points higher to 1 lower. Spot quiet; middling 11.00.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 17. (AP)—The cotton market today was rather quiet with comparatively narrow price fluctuations and an absence of definite trend in prices. Good cables and the statement that the India boycott was waning proved responsible for an early advance of 10 points. After the weekly weather and crop summary was issued showing more favorable crop conditions than looked for, prices eased off and the decline was helped by hedge selling values declining 12 to 15 points from the highs.

The market continued to rule quiet all afternoon with prices near the lows and October made a new low 13 points under the earlier high. The close was a little above the lowest, showing net 2 points up to 2 points down.

Liverpool came in 3 to 6 points better than due and first trades here showed gains of 3 points. The market continued to gain after the start on the strength of the cables and covering, October trading up to 11.06 and December to 11.25, or 10 points above the previous close.

Prices turned easier in the second hour and continued to ease off on hedge selling until October dropped to 10.94 and December to 11.10 down 12 to 15 points from the earlier highs and 2 to 5 points under the previous close.

The market ruled quiet during the whole afternoon with prices near the lows and with October making a new low at 10.93, down 13 points from the earlier high. The close was a couple of points above the lowest, showing net declines for the day of 1 to 2 points on the most active months.

Port receipts 40,774, for week 264,481, for season 1,527,870, last season 1,135,340. Exports 38,886, for week 179,002, for season 809,797, last season 592,231. Port stock 2,189,514, last year 898,248. Combined shipboard stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 80,881, last year 73,390. Spot sales at Southern markets 40,633 bales against 49,774.

Futures closed steady net 2 points up to 2 down.

Stocks Slump to Lowest Total Of Weeks, Barely Over Million Shares

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Sept. 17. (US)—A dull, virtually meaningless, professional market was experienced on the stock exchange today. The volume slumped to the smallest total in weeks, and exceeded only by a slight margin the million-share total, ample evidence of the lack of general participation. Fluctuations, on the whole, were restricted to narrow limits. For most of the session prices held firm and somewhat higher than the previous day, but a last-minute setback resulted in closing quotations hardly changed on the average from the previous day. Developments were rather cheerful, including additional recovery in grain prices, although slight, and further evidence of somewhat larger buying of raw materials by large corporations. The Canadian tariff measures which affect chiefly trade with the United States failed to have material influence on prices, since they had been more or less discounted. Pool activities were at a minimum, still being influenced by the chill received by disclosure here that the authorities are carefully scanning all suspicious stock performances.

No definite trend is discernible from current day-to-day fluctuations. The activities of a few professionals committed to either side of the market are sufficient to shift the level of prices temporarily. Thus, it was reported that a considerable amount of stock recently sold represented holdings of a large scale Chicago operator whose name seldom has been heard in Wall street but who figures as one of the largest individual traders in stocks. His selling was advanced as the cause of weakness in Paramount, pressure on which puzzled the market since it is widely appreciated that this stock represents one of the soundest enterprises in the motion picture industry.

Various Chicagoans have been badly hurt by the decline in such "local" favorites as Grigsby-Grunow and its affiliated Majestic household, which have suffered severe price deflation. Weakness in Paramount led to the usual crop of rumors as to dividends, earnings, etc. It is understood that Paramount's third quarter earnings will run probably within 25 cents per share of the net for the period of 1929. Yield on Paramount is close to 7 per cent.

Lacking incentive the market was inclined to drift, most of the time with a rather firm undertone. Various stocks improved upon their recoveries from the lows of the previous days but there was no "follow-through" which would encourage even bullishly-inclined traders. Weakness in Paramount affected the other stocks in this group but the entire group had enjoyed substantial price enhancement during the recent general betterment, so that additional profit-taking probably was being encountered together with professional efforts to take advantage of this development by going short of the stocks.

Railroad stocks as a group again held firm. These stocks, despite the continued bearish statistics regarding the industry, have been holding relatively firmer than either the utilities or the industrials. The bears on the rails, particularly those who have been seeking to capitalize nervousness over the Baltimore & Ohio dividend, received little cheer when the directors of this road voted the regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 a share. The stock responded to this action with about a point gain.

While there is widespread belief that the short interest at present is unusually large, the genuine short interest is subject to rapid reduction, since it represents chiefly professionals who are "quick-runners." In other words, traders who shift their position quickly. But the actual size of the short interest has been affected by a growing practice which concerns the large surplus loans of various brokerage houses. Various houses, confronted with the task of carrying unemployed time loans, made available by the liquidation of securities, are understood to be large borrowers of stocks, in this way employing their surplus funds at least at the normal interest rates on borrowed stocks. The net result of this operation is to "inflate" the supposed short interest.

Developments affecting individual stocks were few. Foster-Wheeler remained firm while International Combustion issues staged brisk recoveries on revival of the rumored absorption of the latter by Foster. The discussions are still under way and probably will be on terms more favorable to Foster-Wheeler than the original proposals which were opposed by certain of its stockholders. Stone & Webster was a strong issue among the utilities, responding to advices that the company has affected further operating economies. Steel common attained a price above 170 before the late recession, to close up the slightest fraction, which was the experience of many other leaders, although the close generally was irregular.

Grain

FORT WORTH CASH GRAIN

FORT WORTH, Sept. 17. (AP)—Nothing was doing in export wheat on the cash grain market here today but dealers reported a fair demand for milling grain with mills bidding 93½@94½c, basis No. 1 hard milling of any protein content. No sales were reported to the close of the market and these prices were called nominal.

Fair demand was reported for corn and oats. Barley was very slow. Trade in grain sorghums was small and scattering.

Estimated receipts: Wheat, 14 cars; corn, 9; oats, 3, and barley, 3.

Bids and offers on coarse grains ranged as follows, basis carloads delivered freight paid to Texas common points:

Corn, No. 2 mixed 96@97c; No. 2 white 97@98c; No. 2 yellow $1.07@1.08.

Oats, No. 2 red 51@51½c; No. 3 white delivered Texas group one points 48½@49c, to which add 1 cent for delivery group three points.

Barley—No. 2 nominally 68@69c.

Sorghums—No. 2 milo per 100 pounds nominally $1.93@1.97; No. 2 kaffir $1.65@1.66.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Sept. 17. (AP)—Fresh upturns in wheat values today went hand in hand with further sharp curtailment of the harvest movement both in Canada and the United States. Canadian country marketing for 24 hours amounted to but 2,447,000 bushels against 3,834,000 bushels a year ago, with Minneapolis and Duluth receiving only 560 cars against 934 cars at this time last year. Meanwhile, domestic milling centers reported new flour business averaging up to capacity or better, and flour buyers less fortified than usual at this time in regard to purchasing.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to one cent higher. Corn closed ¼@1⅜c up, oats ⅛@¼c advanced and provisions unchanged to a rise of 12 cents.

Scarcity of future delivery offerings formed an outstanding feature in the Chicago wheat market today, especially during the late dealings when prices reached their highest level.

Corn and oats traders took their clue largely from the action of wheat. Frost reports were without market influence, much of the crop being reported officially as now beyond danger.

Provisions advanced on account of scattered buying of lard and despite downturns in the value of hogs.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—December 86⅛@86⅜c, 88⅞@89c; March 89⅞c, 92⅜c; May 92⅜c, 95⅜c. Corn—September (bids) 91c; December 86⅞@87c, 89¾@89⅞c; March 88⅛@88⅜c, 90½s; May 89⅞c, 92⅛@92¼c.

PIT NOTES

CHICAGO, Sept. 17. (US)—With some noticeable change in sentiment toward wheat and the better buying power in evidence many of those who recently have seen nothing but lower prices in prospect were of the opinion that the market would at least be more of a two-sided affair in the near future.

Most of the interpreters were convinced today that while the corn market was largely a professional affair it gave evidence of having been pretty well sold out. The recovery in the May following the heavy pressure of yesterday was surprisingly strong.

Although there was little activity in export circles today and no sales reported in seaboard wires, clearances on old sales were substantial at 756,000 bushels, compared with 54,000 bushels a year ago.

Canadian country deliveries of wheat yesterday totaled 2,447,000 bushels, compared with 3,854,000 bushels a year ago. Minneapolis and Duluth had 560 cars of wheat, compared with 1,305 a week ago and 934 a year ago.

It is reported that about 75 per cent of the crops in Northern Iowa and 50 per cent in the southern part of the state and in Northern Illinois are safe from frost.

TEST SOUTH OF BRAZOS SHOWS

Shallow Well Promises Important Extension

Flowing to the top of the mast after drilling two feet into a shallow sand topped at 723 feet, Webb and McDonald No. 1 Johnson, located 1850 feet south of the north line of section 733, T. E. & L. survey, in Young county, is the means of opening up another distinct shallow pool in the section southwest of Newcastle in that county.

The well, an absolute wildcat, and the first to be brought in from a shallow sand south of the Clear Fork of the Brazos river is logging with the wells producing in the "wonder pool" to the north of Newcastle, and from the present showing of the well indications point to a good producer.

The test is shut down at present while casing is run and is showing plenty of gas. In the past few days several new locations have been staked out near the Webb-McDonald well and in the next several days others may be added to this part of the county.

CONTEST HEADS SEEK ENTRIES

Young Vocalists Wanted For Radio Competition

Members of the audition committee which will serve here in connection with the fourth annual Atwater Kent radio audition for amateur singers are now engaged in the search for the best singers among the young men and young women of this community in the hope of discovering a finalist in the coming contest, it was announced Wednesday.

In charge of Mrs. Lois Parker, who has supervised the local contest in former years, the committee is registering young vocalists whose ages are from 18 to 24, inclusive, for competition here on Sept. 29, before the microphone of radio station KGKO.

Following the practice of former years, $25,000 in cash and 10 scholarships in well-known conservatories will be awarded to national finalists in the contest. Winners in Wichita Falls will compete with winners of other communities in a state elimination. State winners will compete in a district which will comprise practically one-fifth of the United States. In each community, state and district, one male and one female singer will be chosen. For the district and national contests, all expenses of participants will be paid. The national finals will be held in New York, and will be broadcast through a network for final rating by a board of distinguished musicians.

Participation in former contests has given the winners enviable starts toward successful musical careers, and has provided excellent training for runners-up in the annual finals.

Those desiring to compete in the local contest on Sept. 29 are requested by the audition committee to write station KGKO, Wichita Falls, at once, giving name, address and age. Such applications must be filed before Sept. 25, it was said. For further information, prospective contestants are asked to call 2-5104.

Optimists Hear Of Football Outlook

Prospects of the Wichita Falls high school Coyotes to get somewhere in the 1930 football race were discussed by Barry Holton, coach, before members of the Optimists club Wednesday noon.

Importance of the Lubbock game in establishing the finishing position of the Coyotes in the district race was stressed by Coach Holton. The game will be played on Oct. 4, he said, and will bring to Wichita Falls a Lubbock team containing 11 letter men from 1929 and a trainload of fans.

Business men of the city were invited to attend practice sessions now being held every afternoon, as well as attending the Saturday games. Mr. Holton announced that the Coyotes will meet Polytechnic Hi of Fort Worth here next Saturday afternoon. He was introduced by Frank Haley, chairman of the athletic committee. The program was arranged by Jimmie Randel and Bill Mitchell.

Ralph Hyer welcomed James V. Allred, Democratic nominee for the office of attorney general of Texas, back to the club after a prolonged absence occasioned by the two primary election campaigns. J. Will Gray announced the local contest in the fourth annual Atwater Kent radio audition which is to be held on Sept. 29. R. D. Ford was named to represent the Optimist club as a judge of that event. Music for Wednesday's meeting was furnished by the Royal trio from radio station KGKO.

The amount of natural and artificial gas produced in the world in a year would fill a dirigible a mile in diameter and 20 miles long, powerful enough to lift the Egyptian pyramids.

The Age of Youth

take your apartment, if it's still for rent."

The always merry voice of Miss Prentiss took on an added glee.

"Miss Raynor? Oh, yes. Of course. I'd about decided to close it up and sail without renting it. Why—er—shall I send the agents around, Miss Raynor, with the lease? I suppose there are matters of reference and that sort of thing . . . and about my goldfish! Could you keep the poor dears? They really cost nothing, and . . . I wish I could keep one closet—"

"Come and have tea and we'll arrange those things," said Donna daringly.

She felt, almost, the chill at the other end of the wire. Then Miss Prentiss assented.

"Where?" she asked.

"I'm stopping at the Herndon," said Donna.

"I'll be there in half an hour—shall I bring the lease with me?"

"Certainly," said Donna.

What had the teller said? That her deposit could be drawn against tomorrow morning? Well, it was after banking hours now, so no check could be presented. Further, she'd date it tomorrow. . . . She drew a check, payable to the order of Elizabeth Prentiss, for $2,400. That should be convincing enough.

She was fully dressed 30 minutes later when the telephone rang.

"Miss Prentiss calling," she heard the clerk announce, and there was deep respect in his tones.

"Sorry," Libby greeted her. "Really can't stay for tea. Million things to do. But my agents sent up the lease to me, and here it is. Er—they seemed to think that a year's rent in advance——"

To be seen taking tea with Libby Prentiss meant a great deal to Donna. But her voice was casual, and her manner unperturbed.

"I'd thought that myself," she said. She led the way into a reception room where were ink and pens. She signed the lease, received a copy from the Prentiss girl, delivered the madeout check, and received a receipt.

"I'm sailing day after tomorrow, Miss Raynor," said Libby. "You can move in that afternoon."

And so it was settled. Donna shook hands with the other girl, wished her a pleasant trip abroad, and went back to her room. She read and reread the clauses in the lease. This was to be her home. More than that; it was to be the vantage point from which she assaulted—life itself!

Forty-eight hours later she moved into the East 57th street apartment. It was as charming as she had first thought. Libby Prentiss had brought taste to the aid of money in furnishing the three rooms. The dining room was dainty and cheerful; the living drawing room was delightful; and the bedroom was charming. The little kitchen, the bath appointments—everything was all that Donna could desire.

She had spent two days of hectic shopping. Black's, on hearing of her bank and the fact that she had a charge at Bleakie & Co., offered credit to her. She bought three day frocks and two evening gowns. Luckily, her slim figure was in the mode and the garments needed no alterations. She bought underthings, stockings, blouses, a coat-suit, an evening wrap, a light day coat, shoes. . . . Two thousand dollars she spent for garments, and stayed up half the night at the Herndon putting the things in the two trunks.

Now she was in her own home. Libby Prentiss' maid had agreed to stay on, and Donna had leaped at the occasion for retaining her. From the maid she could judiciously extract information that might prove priceless.

With the maid's aid she put away her fresh things; she sent the trunks to the storage room; upon a dressing table she laid out the pretty but no too expensive toilet things she had purchased. She ate, with a relish she had not experienced in months, the grapefruit, the fillet of sole, the chop, the salad and the stewed fruits that the maid prepared for her. Then, equipped with half a dozen magazines, a case of cigarettes and a couple of books, she went to bed. She composed herself for a delightful evening. Tomorrow she would definitely take the first step in the journey toward her goal, but tonight. . . .

She felt a sudden compunction for her treatment of Ran Granby. He had been the magic prince who had rescued the fair maiden from the dragons of poverty and despair. She thought it was her resolution not to see him until they met, casually, at some dinner table that had weakened, whereas it was really her loneliness that made her reach out for a kind word from some one.

So she called him up. A caretaker, though she didn't know who it was, answered. No, Mr. Granby was not in. Mr. Granby was sailing on the Ile de France tonight and had already left his apartment on the way to the boat.

Donna hung up. Well, perhaps it was as well. When she considered how much she owed him. . . . She felt a certain sympathy for the girls who bartered too much in return for such surroundings as these. Prescientiy, she knew that she would find it hard to give up these things.

The doorbell rang. Idly she heard the maid's footsteps as they went down the little hall from the kitchen. She heard voices at the front door in indistinguishable murmur. Then she heard heavy footsteps, saw framed in the doorway to her bedroom, an extremely handsome but somewhat disheveled youth.

Beyond him, clawing furiously at his shoulder, was the maid.

"I'll ring for the police," she was crying. "I'll have you arrested."

The youth stared at Donna. That young lady sat bolt upright, drawing her negligee closer about her.

"Thought good old Jennie here was lying," said the youth. "Libby never said she was going. Never said she was letting her apartment. Find same maid, think same mistress . . . most embarrassing. Always gentleman. Never let be said Frank Gardner anything but gentleman. Sorry. Disturb charming lady in dishabille—not done. No need for police. Retire gracefully and with distinction. Difficult task but can be done. Apologies offered—trust graciously received."

Despite herself Donna smiled. The boy—he was few years beyond that age—beamed upon her.

"Loveliest lady ever saw," he solemnly declared. "Believe I'll marry you. How would you like to be Mrs. Frank Gardner?"

Incongruously, through Donna's mind, ran the thought: "If only he were sober and asked that question."

For Frank Gardner's name was the best known, almost, in the country.

PIERCE-ARROW OPENS BRANCH

Auto Distributing House Is Announced

Establishment of a subbranch in Wichita Falls by the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car company of Dallas, in charge of J. H. Johansen, was announced Wednesday following the opening of the new business in the building at Sixth and Lamar, which formerly was occupied by the Dixon Motor company.

Mr. Johansen, who has been connected with the Dallas branch of the Pierce-Arrow company for many years, is moving his family to this city, it was stated. Prior to coming here to open the subbranch, Mr. Johansen has visited Wichita Falls many times in connection with the business of the Dallas branch, it was said, and enjoys a considerable acquaintance in this community.

Jack Hyland, who has serviced Pierce-Arrow automobiles in this vicinity for several years, will be service manager for the new business, it was said.

According to officials of Pierce-Arrow company of Dallas, the large number of automobiles of that make in use in this community demanded the installation of a permanent service station here. The spacious sales rooms originally constructed for the use of the Dixon Motor company will be utilized for displaying a complete line of Pierce-Arrow cars, and a full stock of parts is also to be carried, it was said.

Damages Denied For Injury in Cranking Car

In a verdict returned Wednesday afternoon in the 78th district court, a jury refused T. H. Harris damages for a broken arm alleged to have been sustained in cranking a used car belonging to Boone-Kemp, Inc., defendant in the suit.

According to the evidence introduced, the plaintiff endeavored to crank a used automobile on the market lot of the defendant last fall, and received a broken arm in the effort when the car "kicked." The resulting petition charged that the car was defective and asked $10,000 damages for the injuries said to have been sustained by Mr. Harris.

In five jury cases completed thus far in Judge W. W. Cook's court this week, it was stated, the defendants have scored a perfect record with five decisions.

LEGION PLANS BIG GATHERING

Parade and Mass Meeting to Feature Celebration

Plans for an American Legion day celebration here on Oct. 24 designed to bring to Wichita Falls hundreds of legionaires from surrounding territory and to present one of the most elaborate parades seen here in many years are now being formulated by the local legion post, according to Milton Gaines, who is in charge of preparations.

Following the custom established by legion posts in many of the larger cities of the country, the local post will inaugurate the annual devotion of one day to convening all ex-service men in a large area in a get-together session, and to acquainting the public further with the work of the organization. Such celebrations are not held on Armistice day, Nov. 11, it was pointed out, because that occasion has come to be observed largely as a memorial day for those who fell in the war.

Parade and Meeting

Two events will comprise the program which is being planned for American Legion day. At 4 o'clock in the afternoon, a parade which promises to be more than three miles in length will be staged in the downtown district. At 8 o'clock, a public mass meeting will be held in the Memorial auditorium, at which the principal speaker will be Josh Lee, head of the public speaking department of Oklahoma university.

According to the information given, the following units already have been assured for the afternoon parade: Lions club boys' band, American Legion Post No. 120 (in uniform), the Forty-and-Eight, legion auxiliary, past post commanders, post commander, speakers, Boy Scouts, Camp Fire girls, Shrine drum corps, fire department, Red Cross society, chamber of commerce, Shrine patrol, Salvation army, and out-of-town legion posts. Tentative assurance also has been given, it was said, that the following units will be in the line of march: Iowa Park band, Burkburnett band, nurses, Y. W. C. A., merchants' floats, and the Knights of Columbus.

Lee Famous Speaker

Mr. Lee's subject for the address to be given in the evening will be "Taking the Profits Out of War." He is famed throughout the Southwest as an after dinner speaker, and has established himself as a favorite through his ability to combine sparkling humor with an under-current of sound philosophy. His address here will classify definitely as a plea against the recurrence of war.

The evening meeting will open with a concert by the Lions club boys' band, which will be followed by a barracks-room singsong to be conducted by C. Arch Smith. Melodies which shook the roofs of cantonment barracks during the late war, and to which khaki-clad buddies swung along in endless columns, will come to life again from the lips of legionnaires expected to number several hundred.

Merchants of the city and the public schools are to be asked to cooperate with the legion in making possible a city-wide celebration during the late afternoon and evening of the day, it was said.

No More Stock After Sept. 29

This Date Marks the End of the Present Sale of Texas Electric Service Co. Preferred Stock

Several days ago we announced that we had only a limited number of shares of stock unsold and that we could accept subscriptions only with the understanding that orders would be filled so long as there was stock available for sale.

The volume of subscriptions now coming in clearly indicates that all the stock available at the present time will be sold by September 29.

Therefore, after this date and until such time as we may have more shares to offer, no further subscriptions can be accepted.
