Nation-Wide Home Brew Drive Hinted As Court Upholds Seizure Of Supplies

Home Town Talk

By B. D. D.

Wichita Falls' population in the 1930 census will be announced within a few days.

The district census supervisor's office is now making a recheck of its names and the final figures will soon be ready.

Although Talker has no inside information he expects the population figures to be disappointing to those of us who had hoped to see them show a large gain over the 1920 census. Talker guesses the figures will be between 43,000 and 45,000. Much short of the 50,00 to 60,000 many had hoped.

Wichita Falls will drop below Beaumont, Galveston, Austin and Waco in population rank and will not be greatly, if any, above Amarillo, and our per centage of increase will be small in comparison with some of these cities.

Whatever increase in Wichita Falls population is shown it will not reflect the substantial development and growth that has taken place here in the last 10 years. In 1920 Wichita Falls was a boom town with a large floating population, many being counted as Wichita Falls residents who did not properly belong here. The 1920 census was taken at flood tide. The 1930 census is being taken at ebb tide. The flow is about to turn back to Wichita Falls; perhaps it has already started.

The showing will not be anything over which to become swollen with pride but that is something that doesn't go far in building a bigger and better city anyway, and now that we are down to earth again we can go about making secure the foundations.

There is one thing about the present census and that is that it has been pretty thoroughly taken and when the final figures are announced there will not be much room to claim that many people have been omitted. A chamber of commerce committee, which has been cooperating with the district supervisor's office, is well satisfied on this point. The Wichita Falls count will be about as nearly 100 per cent inclusive as it is possible to make it.

After all it is not the number of inhabitants that is important about any city! it is their well being and happiness that counts. The best city is that whose people are profitably employed and in which there is that moral force which must work for happiness. When these conditions prevail there is pretty certain to to be steady growth. Wichita Falls is not all that we could hope it to be but, we confidently believe, there are forces working to make it better and greater.

We are going to have good enough sportsmanship to congratulate Waco and Austin and Amarillo and all the other cities that have grown more rapidly than Wichita Falls in the last decade, and to remind them that they will have to keep moving to hold their places.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Hardin of Burkburnett gave $400,000 to Baylor university at Waco. This gift will help Baylor university to give increased and better service to the young men and women who seek education from it.

It will be remembered that these donors offered a similar amount to a college in Wichita county but the gift failed of acceptance because of the inability of the community to raise sufficient funds to establish the kind of a college desired. Maybe such a college will be established someday.

In the meantime we have the problem of providing support for the Wichita Falls Junior college which is performing a fine service for the young people of this community. Somehow financial support for the Junior college will be found. Maybe the best and most effective way of providing this support will not be adopted immediately. It is the lot of most educational institutions to have to struggle and to grow slowly and to appear often about to be extinguished and then along comes some bequest or development that gives them the necessary funds for service and growth.

Governor Moody appeals for harmony among Democrats, while Tom Love answers with a statement which in effect says "sic 'em" to the bolters. Moody would have Democrats unite on some program in which they could all join; Love would keep alive the rancor that has split the party in Texas. Talker believes the majority want harmony and the strength of unity to express their disapproval of special privilege and corruption which is no new manifestation of the common enemy.

Seems like there is enough that ought to be done in the state and nation for Democrats to do without finding any time for quarreling among themselves. Talker wouldn't say that all the blame is on one faction or the other and it will take some forgetting on both sides before the reunion which both ought to want can be accomplished. Talker is ready to do his part of the forgetting.

MATERIALS FOR MAKING BEER MAY BE NABBED

Supreme Court's Decision Holds Bottles, Caps, Etc., Can Be Unlawful

BUREAU SCANS CASE

Stores Selling Equipment For Making Beverages May Be Liable

WASHINGTON, May 5. (AP)—A nation-wide drive to seize paraphernalia used in the manufacture of home brew was envisioned by Assistant Secretary Lowman of the treasury today after the supreme court had held that containers, barrels, bottles, corks, etc., might be seized when offered for sale in such a manner as purposely to attract purchasers who want them for the unlawful manufacture of liquor.

Lowman said before any action was taken a careful study would be made of the decision the court handed down. The ruling was in the test case which resulted from the seizure of materials from Ike Danovite, the surviving partner of the Feitler Bottling company of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Sales Widespread

Treasury officials said the sale of bottles, corks and other containers used in making liquor was wide spread, and if it was found they could be seized the prohibition bureau would have an effective instrument with which to fight bootleggers who sell home brew. No effort has been made by the prohibition bureau to interfere with the manufacture of home brew in private homes, but its efforts have been directed toward stopping manufacture by persons who sell it.

The decision of the supreme court was unanimous. It held that the purpose of the prohibition act was to "suppress the entire traffic" and that "the act should be liberally construed to the end of this suppression."

No Property Right

The opinion was handed down by Justice Holmes, who explained that the controversy turned on the proper interpretation to be given the prohibition against the "manufacture" of illicit liquor. He stated the statute made it "unlawful to have or possess any liquor or property designed for the manufacture of liquor intended for use in violating this chapter," and that there was no property right in such liquor or property.

A search warrant may be issued, he explained, and the liquor with its containers and other property seized must be held subject to the orders of the court. If the seized liquor or property was unlawfully held, possessed, or used, the liquor and property designed for its unlawful manufacture, must, he added, be destroyed, unless the court ordered otherwise.

Danovite had contended, Justice Holmes pointed out, that the empty containers, bottles and other apparatus, seized from him, had not been and could not be used for the manufacture of liquor, which the law prohibited, because the manufacture had been completed before the bottles and other containers could be used, and that the articles were not designed for and could not even be used in the "manufacture" of liquor.

Asserting that Danovite's argument "is obviously correct if the word 'manufacture' be taken in the strictest and most exact sense," Justice Holmes stated, "the word may be used in a looser way to express the whole process by which an article is made ready for sale on the open market."

SPRIGGS TRIAL JURY IN BOX

Testimony Opens Today in Negro's Case

A jury to try Ed Spriggs, 55-year-old negro, on a charge of murder in connection with the slaying of Isaac Johnson, 18-year-old negro boy, here several weeks ago was completed late Monday afternoon in the 89th district court. Judge P. A. Martin during the morning session overruled a defense motion for continuance because of absence of witnesses.

Immediately after the selection of the jury, the indictment was read and the defendant entered a plea of not guilty and made application for a suspended sentence. Throughout the questioning of prospective jurors, attorneys for the defendant centered their questions around their attitudes toward the law of self-defense and asked if they believed in the state suspended sentence law. An additional venire was called during the afternoon, the first called having provided only 10 jurors.

Jurors selected were Leon Harn, H. E. Blackwell, R. Mullins, Fred A. Stevenson, W. H. Burk, I. A. Littleken, Luther Kindall, B. F. Vanpelt, J. A. Reynolds, D. Mullinghaus, J. E. Scott, and J. B. Conant. The jurors were sworn in and the witness rule invoked, Judge Martin then adjourning court until Tuesday morning when testimony will begin. The courtroom Monday was about half filled with negroes.

Isaac Johnson was shot and fatally wounded at a negro restaurant here after an alleged altercation. Ed Spriggs was indicted for the slaying by the last grand jury for the 30th district court.

FREE BRIDGE ORGANIZATION IS PERFECTED

Mayor Walter Nelson Jr., Heads Group Formed At Lawton

EFFORTS OUTLINED

Next Meeting Will Launch Active Work of Gaining Free Travel

Special to The Record News

LAWTON, Okla., May 5.—A permanent organization of the Red River Free Bridge association was effected here today through the election of Walter Nelson Jr., mayor of Wichita Falls, president; Robert P. Hall, of Electra, Texas, secretary, and the following board of directors: Andrew M. Bourland, Vernon, Texas, chairman; Charles Snyder of Altus, Bob Mooney of Temple, John Easley of Ardmore and Mat Loehler of Lawton, for Oklahoma, and True Strong of Nocona, R. R. Gilliland of Quanah, J. P. Williams of Henrietta, Joe Moore of Frederick and Orville Bullington of Wichita Falls.

Meeting Planned

A meeting of officials will be called shortly by President Nelson and a date set and city named for the next meeting.

Many North Texas and Southwest Oklahoma towns and cities were represented at the meeting today which was held in the chamber of commerce assembly room with J. P. Williams of Henrietta presiding and Robert P. Hall of Electra officiating as secretary. Preliminary district meeting had been held at Frederick, Electra, Vernon and Temple, all having the same purpose the promotion of free bridges across Red river. At these meetings a decision was reached to hold a general meeting at Lawton today, and the response of delegates was most encouraging.

Cooperation Urged

"Tie Texas and Oklahoma together with free bridges," was the general slogan today and the officers and directors were authorized to cooperate with the state highway commissioners of Texas and Oklahoma in securing free passage across the river for taxpayers of the states. General sentiment expressed was to the effect that tax payers, not tourists, should have first consideration as they number 15 to one interested.

It is evident that an endeavor will be made to promote the purchase of the toll bridges at a reasonable compensation to owners and have them operated by the state as free bridges. A free bridge every 50 miles is entirely inadequate it was contended, for the accommodation of those most interested.

Addresses were made by former State Senator J. D. Parnell of Wichita Falls, M. Koehler of Lawton, Adrew M. Bourland of Vernon, and Robert Hall of Electra. Luncheon was served delegates in the chamber of commerce buffet and following adjournment a sightseeing trip through Lawton and Fort Sill was made.

Kansas Police Puzzled By Second 'Cats Case'

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 5. (UP)—A second "cat case" has bobbed up for Kansas City police to solve.

It appeared today when a humane society member informed police, some one had taken a mother cat and five kittens "for a ride."

A sack containing the animals, was placed on a boulevard in the path of automobiles. It was discovered by the children of Mrs. George B. Bearden.

Clues to identity of persons who sacked the cat and kittens are as meager as those unearthed in the unsolved ransom kidnaping case of Michael Katz, millionaire cut rate drug store owner.

Mr. And Mrs. J. G. Hardin Of Burk Give $400,000 To Baylor At Waco

WACO, Texas, May 5. (INS)—The largest individual gift ever made to Baylor university, totaling $400,000, to be made on annuity basis, was announced here today by President S. P. Brooks, of the university.

The donors are Mr. and Mrs. John G. Hardin, of Burkburnett. Both have been residents of Burkburnett for 51 years, and received their share of oil royalties during boom days.

GIFT TO BAYLOR COUPLE'S LARGEST

Presentation of $400,000 to Baylor university at Waco by Mr. and Mrs. John G. Hardin of Burkburnett, as announced in news dispatches from Waco Monday, represents one of the largest in a long list of charitable donations made by these pioneer Wichita county citizens in recent years.

During the building of many churches and schools in Burkburnett since the oil boom, Mr. and Mrs. Hardin have been consistent and heavy contributors. Other institutions, both in Burkburnett and elsewhere, have benefited extensively also during this period by gifts from the Hardins.

In December, 1928, Mr. and Mrs. Hardin made an offer of $400,000 toward the erection of a four-year college in Wichita Falls contingent upon the citizenry choosing at that time to launch upon such undertaking with contributions at least equaling the amount offered by the Burkburnett couple.

CREAGER LIBEL SUIT ARGUED

Magazine Counsel Contends Charges Invalid

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, May 5. (AP)—Whether the six times R. B. Creager's name was mentioned in articles published by Colliers Magazine dealing with Hidalgo county politics constituted a million dollar libel against the Republican national committeeman for Texas was argued today as Creager's libel suit against the magazine went to trial.

With the completion of a jury late today, the defense immediately attempted to prevent the questions involved from reaching the jury. This attempt was a request that the court rule upon whether the exact wording of the article constituted libel.

Defense counsel argued that in no instance did the mention of Creager's name in the articles, which drew national attention and a congressional committee to Hidalgo county, libel him.

The six times, counsel said, were: In connection with alleged American domination of Mexican voters; that Creager encouraged the defeat of the Republican party in Hidalgo county; "Creager's decision," referring to the so-called rump convention; the reference to the visit of a congressional committee "to study the political leaders' technique;" alleged friendship of Creager "runs the show down in that part of Texas."

Holding that none of the references constituted libel, defense lawyers asked that the court so rule and dismiss the hearing. They also declared that Creager's pleadings do not set forth special damages done him.

Should Judge Estes rule against the defense, the case will then be presented to the jury which retired while these arguments were heard, to determine the extent of damages.

'Shotgun Fireman' Halts Blaze With Well-Aimed Bullet

Special to the Record News.

JEAN, Texas, May 5.—M. H. Sims, county commissioner of this place, today was acclaimed as Young county's champion "shotgun fireman." He put out a fire with a shotgun.

A store building at Loving, eight miles east of here, caught fire from a short circuit in an electric wire. Although a great crowd of volunteer fire fighters quickly gathered, the danger of receiving an electric shock prevented any from attempting to extinguish the blaze. J. E. Morrison, owner of the building was beginning to vision a pile of charred ruins where once his building stood. Then Mr. Sims hit upon an idea.

He took a shotgun from a show window in the store and shot the troublesome wire in two. The fire then was put out easily enough. The damage was slight.

First Day of John Brady's Trial Fails to Place One Juror in Box

Veniremen Excused in Rapid Order by Church and Lodge Faiths Are Not Mentioned by Attorneys

COURTROOM, Dallas, May 5. (AP)—His nerves jaded and his face noticeably drawn after six months in jail, John W. Brady of Austin, former appellate court judge, today was called to trial for the first time in a strange city on charges of murdering Miss Lehlia Highsmith, court stenographer. Brady's first trial at Austin resulted in a hung jury.

Selection of a jury here started at the beginning of the afternoon session but three hours of questioning failed to produce a juror. Seventeen veniremen were excused for cause by the court, the state used two of the 15 preemptory challenges allowed each side, and the defense exercised one.

Trial Delayed

The case was delayed for two hours this morning before the defendant's counsel decided to announce ready. Defense lawyers previously had indicated they might ask for a continuance.

Almost half of the men named in the special venire list of 600 appeared, but some 25 of them were excused before the individual questioning began.

District Judge C. A. Pippin frequently urged Maury Hughes and Ted Monroe of Dallas, conducting the inquiry for the defense to "hurry along."

Suspended Sentence Asked

Hughes said that the defense had filed application for a suspended sentence in case of conviction carrying five-year sentence or less and would use the same defense that obtained a deadlock at Austin, insanity produced by excessive drinking through a number of years.

Church and lodge affiliations of veniremen, which played a prominent part in questioning at the previous trial, did not enter into today's inquiry until the last man was questioned. Hughes elicited from J. T. Smallwood that he was a Baptist and that he had never belonged to any fraternal organization other than the Praetorians. It was not until he said he would not give a suspended sentence, however, that grounds for disqualifying him were established. Brady is a Catholic.

R. E. Gray, who was on a jury several years ago which assessed a death penalty, told defense attorneys that he would give a suspended sentence if he thought Brady's "brilliant" record before the stabbing justified it. Brady had been county attorney, assistant attorney general, attorney for the state banking department, judge of the third court of civil appeals and active in affairs of the former students association of the University of Texas, Gray, however, was challenged by the defense.

Nine of the veniremen excused for cause said they had formed opinions and five were opposed to the death penalty.

FOUR JURORS IN ALSUP CASE

Venire Exhausted and Court Takes Recess

FORT WORTH, May 5. (UP)—With the supply of veniremen in the John Alsup murder case exhausted at 3:30 p. m. today after selection of four jurors, court was recessed until Tuesday morning.

The defense used six challenges of the 15 allowed each side.

Alsup, former Fort Worth patrolman, was charged with murdering two negroes in an attempted robbery of the First State bank of Polytechnic, April 11. The state contended that Alsup and A. P. Boyt, also charged with the double killing, "framed" the robbery and killed the two in an attempt to collect the $10,000 reward offered by the Texas Bankers association for dead bank bandits.

FOUR INJURED AS TWISTERS WRECK HOUSES

Workmen in Park Crushed By Avalanche of Flying Pipe and Debris

OIL RIGS LEVELLED

Panic Stricken Residents Count as Many as Seven Funnel Clouds

Special to the Record News.

WALTERS, Okla., May 5.—Two hours after a series of tornadoes injured four men and demolished property in and around Walters, another still more terrific gale at 6 o'clock Monday afternoon swept hundreds of rigs from the oil field northwest of the town and raised the damage total to at least $250,000. Only one rig in the forest of derricks was left standing. The Shasta Oil company of Wichita Falls was one of the heaviest losers, three new rotary rigs, two power plants, and four automobiles being included among the wreckage.

Three of the four men injured were city park employes trapped in a water main excavation when the second of the afternoon storms whipped through the park. They were Bill Hood, Bill Smith, and Jack Hurley, crushed beneath debris hurled into the hole in which they sought refuge. The fourth man was E. B. Dycus, a traveler, caught beneath a shed splintered by the wind. None of the victims was seriously hurt.

Gins Destroyed

Two gins owned by the Spark brothers and the Farmer's elevator were razed and the Farmers gin badly damaged when the first of the storms swooped down upon the northwest section of the city. Scores of homes in the town and to the north were wrecked.

The twister formed and swept down upon the town with such furious rapidity that panic-stricken residents were not sure of their number, variously estimated at from three to seven. Hardly had they abandoned storm cellars after the afternoon storms before the cataclysmic cloud appeared to the northwest, cutting down everything in its path along a mile wide strip that stretched six miles to the northwest. A violent hailstorm with stones the size of a man's fist and weighing half a pound followed the last gale, beating down over the devastated area.

Wires Disabled

Wire connections within a radius of two miles were shattered and the town lay in darkness until after 8 o'clock. Telephone communication with the north was still broken late Monday night.

The first black funnel-shaped cloud formed over the city about 4 o'clock Monday afternoon, only to break up before it struck the

Rumor of Political Charge Against Bishop Cannon Stirs Methodists

DALLAS, May 5. (UP)—As time for the quadrennial conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, drew near, church leaders already assembled here for the opening session Wednesday declined to comment tonight on current reports that charges will be made against Bishop James Cannon Jr., of Washington, as a result of his political activities.

Bishop Warren Akin Candler of Atlanta, Ga., senior bishop was emphatic in declaring he would not be quoted. Others stated: "If such a thing happens, it won't amount to much."

Bishop Cannon, who arrived at noon today, declined to comment either on the work of the conference or the charge which may be made.

"You can say I am too busy writing my reports to do anything else," he said. "That's all I have to say."

Should charges be preferred against him, church procedure demands that they be placed before the episcopacy committee. Action then would be taken by the committee.

Two boards of the church held preliminary sessions today. The educational board went into ses-

Picturesque Arizona Senator Asks Probe of Parker Vote-Buying Deal

WASHINGTON, May 5. (AP)—Charges of vote-buying and denials by the administration of partisanship opened the second week of debate in the senate today over confirmation of Judge John J. Parker of North Carolina.

Senator Ashurst, Democrat, Arizona, ex-cowboy and picturesque debater, charged that federal judgeships were being offered for votes for parker, and with the consent of Parker.

Challenged by administration leaders, the Arizonian said he had not leveled the charge at President Hoover nor at any member of the senate but he demanded that the lobby committee investigate his assertion that a senator told him he had been offered a judgeship in return for a vote for Parker.

Senator McKellar, Democrat, Tennessee, a foe of Parker, informed the senate that his office had been ransacked Thursday. He did not attribute this to the Parker contest but mentioned the secret service in connection with it. McKellar produced the letter in the senate written by Joseph M. Dixon, assistant secretary of interior, urging the White House to name Park-

DEATH CLAIMS DEADWOOD DICK

Famous Western Character 'Cashes in'

making period of the early days, claiming the acquaintanceship of Wild Bill Hickok, Buffalo Bill, Captain Jack Crawford, "Poker Alice" Tubbs, and "Calamity Jane."

"Deadwood Dick" was almost the last of the actual and fabled heroes of the West. Unlike many of the other famous characters of the old West, Clarke lived to see his exploits among Indians, road agents and bad men grow into the legend class. Virtually all his life was spent in the West fighting Indians, ing stage coaches and guiding ing stage coaches and guilding United States cavalry.

His personal and fabled exploits formed the theme of paper back thrillers, written by Edward L. Wheeler, sometimes known as Ned Buntline. These volumes, usually forbidden reading for younger generations two or three decades ago, were read by boys and oftentimes girls for years until the plainsman became as well known as Buffalo Bill Cody, "Wild Bill" Hickok and Kit Carson.

"Deadwood Dick" himself used to chuckle over the stories that he had been a road agent until his reform and that he had spent his early days robbing stage coaches and rescuing maidens in distress.

As a matter of fact Clarke had only one wife, to whom he was always devoted, although at least one of the paper-backed thrillers had him married to Calamity Jane, whose fame as al marksman and gambler still is a legend.

Always a picturesque figure, Deadwood Dick clung to the long curls, high boots, and beaded buckskin suit outfit of his youth. For years the heavy .45 caliber pistol hung at his right side. Strangely enough it bore no notches in contrast to Wild Bill's. Dick always claimed he never killed a white man and he considered Indians of too little significance to count.

But during the day Deadwood sat beside the stagecoach drivers in the bandit infested Black hills as guard, not one ounce of bullion ever was stolen while he rode the Cheyenne-Deadwood stage, shotgun poised and cocked.

Hi-Y Club Holds Father-Son Dinner

Members of the Hi-Y club were hosts to their fathers Monday night at the annual Father and Son banquet of the organization held at the Wichita club. About 50 people were present. Men prominent in civic life here were the principal speakers, and an entertainment program was rendered.

Dr. A. F. Leach, Rev. C. M. Simpson, pastor of the Floral Heights Methodist church, S. H. Rider, dean of Junior college, and A. E. Myles, local accountant, each made a talk on the topic of "Selecting a Vocation," explaining the paths followed in their calling. Dr. S. S. McKinney, pastor of the First Methodist church, gave a summary of the series of talks. L. D. Herbert, member of the club, responded to the group of speakers, expressing appreciation of the aid local business men had given the Hi-Y members.

New officers elected at a previous meeting, including Harlan Ray, president; Leon Deaton, vice president; and William Donnell, secretary-treasurer; were installed in ceremonies presided over by Springer Williams, toastmaster at the affair.

The final address was delivered by T. F. Richardson, sponsor of the club, who reviewed its activities during the past year.

William Luther Donnell gave a violin solo, accompanied by Mrs. J. V. C. T. Christensen. The invocation was given by the Rev. Mr. Simpson.

They're Glad to Give a Statement

"Just a Few Bottles of Argotane Has Restored My Wife to Health," Says Lubbock Man

"After I spent a lot of money for medicine and treatments for my wife without it doing her any good, it sure does seem wonderful to me that just two bottles of Argotane has restored her to health again," is a remarkable statement made a few days ago by W. E. Foster of rural route 6, Lubbock, Texas. Mr. Foster is very well known here in this section and is employed at the Junction Service Station.

"Several years ago," he continued, "my wife's health failed, she lost her appetite, and before I realized it, she had gotten so bad she was in danger of complete breakdown.

"Nothing we did for her seemed to help her at all, but she just got worse instead of better. A friend recommended Argotane to her and persuaded her to try it. Soon after she took the first bottle I noticed that she was picking up and getting to be more talkative, and she has continued to improve ever since. She eats anything she wants now and it agrees with her."

Names of 500 Wichitans Uncounted In Census Turned In to Officials

The list of names of Wichita Falls residents thought to have been missed in the census here had reached almost 500, late Monday night, according to the report of chamber of commerce officials to T. L. Ball, director of the census for district No. 3 of Northwest Texas. The chamber is offering 25 cents for the name of each person who has not been enumerated and several valuable prizes are offered by Wichita Falls firms in an effort to count every person in the city in the census.

Officials of the chamber announced Monday that children of Wichitans who are away from home attending school but whose legal residence is in this city should be counted in the Wichita Falls census. It was also pointed out that citizens who are traveling or who happen to be away from the city at this time, regardless of how long they intend to remain away, should be counted here if they intend to return. LUTHERANS END SESSIONS HERE

Annual Conference Closes Late Monday

The annual spring conference of the North Texas division of the Lutheran church of the Missouri synod was brought to a close here Monday afternoon with a final meeting at the St. Paul's Lutheran church when Dallas was selected for the next annual spring conference of this division and Houston announced as the meeting place for the general state convention in June.

Other business at the meeting included the drafting of memorials to be presented at the state convention, one on radio broadcasting over station WBAP at Fort Worth in regular Sunday afternoon programs and another on the publication of the first statement of Protestant faith, the Augsburg Confession, in the press of the state. Papers for the next spring conference were assigned to Rev. C. M. Beyer of this city, Reverend G. Viehweg of Austin, Rev. G. A. Obenhouse of Clifton and Rev. G. H. Biar of Waco.

Votes of thanks were made to Rev. C. M. Beyer of St. Paul's here, to his congregation, to the Lutheran Walther league, to William E. Huff, president of the Wichita Falls baseball club, for his invitation to all delegates to the conference to attend the game Saturday, and to The Record News and Daily Times for reporting the meetings.

In a paper given Monday morning by Rev. W. F. Klindworth of Trinity Lutheran church, Dallas, on the subject, "How to Win the Stranger for the Kingdom of God and How to Keep Him," it was pointed out that "any kind of publicity, newspaper tracts, bulletins and other articles, will not answer in effectiveness the personal call of a pastor on a person who is to be gained for the kingdom."

"The secret of holding the stranger," Doctor Klindworth said, "lies in the sermon the pastor delivers. As to sensational topics, no sensationalism will hold a person in the church, because that is not the purpose of the church. The sound scriptural sermon, consisting of both law and the gospel, convincing man of his damnable sinfulness and then showing him how to obtain forgiveness for his sins —that sermon will hold the stranger and prepare him to live the happy life and die the peaceful death."

Harold L. Thomas, assistant United States district attorney, asked Federal Judge Albert L. Reeves that Strassi receive a maximum sentence and fine—five years' imprisonment and $10,000 fine.

The sentence was the most severe ever given a liquor law violator in Kansas City federal court.

ground. Almost momentarily, however, the second formed, swooping down upon the northwest corner of the town to devastate the little industrial center where the gins and elevator were located.

Before its full power was spent the third twister menaced the town, striking directly into the heart of the city park, uprooting practically every tree in the grounds and wrecking playground equipment.

The eight men at work in the park fled to a water pipe excavation, only to find debris from the storm hurled in upon them. A six-inch cast iron pipe crashed down into the hole, followed by a truck swept across the park. Fallen trees and other wreckage followed, imprisoning the workmen within their refuge.

Injured Men Rescued

When the bewildering succession of tornadoes abated, rescuers found Bill Hood with two broken ribs, Bill Smith suffering from a crushed shoulder, and Jack Hurley badly injured about the head. Physicians feared his skull was fractured. All three were taken to the Walters hospital for treatment.

Roofs were hurtled through the air, windows shattered, livestock killed, and scores of incidental damages incurred. The fury of the wind swept dry the creek bed, swollen from recent rains. It carried a standpipe from one of the gins more than a mile to wrap it around a tree.

A traveler caught in the gale was stripped of all his clothing and hurled through the air. He was taken to the hospital, suffering from embarrassment and fright, and protected while townspeople took up a collection to buy new garments for him.

A pair of mules hitched to a wagon were killed when the wind swept them through the air for several hundred yards. The wagon was splintered but its occupants, a woman and child, were unhurt.

Still not sure that yet another gale was not forming to spread the devastation, the town late Monday afternoon crept out of its storm cellars and set about counting its losses, moving in the dimness of candlelight and robbed of all electric power.

SPECTATOR SEES TORNADOES STRIKE

R. J. Schuyler, Duncan, Okla., manufacturer, who narrowly escaped the fury of the storms, arrived in Wichita Falls late Monday to describe the devastating progress of seven separate tornadoes which he saw strike in and around Walters Monday afternoon.

Mr. Schuyler said he watched the menacing funnel shaped clouds form and strike from a hillside near Walters. Observing the first move off toward the northeast he raced to a telephone to warn his family in Duncan.

Finding himself in the path of one of the clouds bearing down upon the section, Mr. Schuyler abandoned his car and fled to a farm house storm cellar where he watched the twister rise above the little machine without damaging it. He counted the clouds as they formed and struck, declaring that they numbered seven.

"I've been storms and I've seen cyclones" the manufacturer remarked, "but I never realized the true worth of a dug-out until I saw seven tornadoes in 30 minutes."

School Principal Thinks Of Carnival When Pupils Disappear

The carnival always has, still does and probably always will hold its charm for youngsters. Knowing this to be a fact, W. E. Walker, principal of the Travis school, entertained no doubts Monday as to the whereabouts of about half a hundred of his pupils who failed to appear for the opening of school Monday morning.

Principal Walker, when told of the large amount of absentees, proceeded to call James A. McDonald, county juvenile officer, who has gained a rather intimate knowledge of the workings of childish minds in his work. The two of them went at once to the site of the unloading carnival tents and booths near the ball park. Within a short while they had rounded up no less than 40 children and when the news spread about that they were looking for truants, a large number of other youngsters promptly reported at the school.

er as a "master political stroke."

Senator Smoot, Republican, Utah, supporting Parker, announced that his office had been entered too by a thief. Senator Brock, Democrat, Tennessee, spoke up and said his office also had been visited.

Earlier in the day Senator Stephens, Democrat, Mississippi, read to the senate a letter from Attorney General Mitchell assuming full responsibility for the appointment of Parker and denying that partisanship played any part in the choice. Mitchell himself is a Democrat. He said the letter from Dixon to Walter Newton, executive secretary to President Hoover, urging the Parker appointment had not reached the president.

Senator Caraway, Democrat, Arkansas, questioned his declaration but Senator Ashurst said he believed it was so "or such a letter never would have gotten to us."

The debate left the result over the Parker nomination still in doubt and the time for a roll call problematical.

Home on Iowa Park Road Razed by Fire

The home of Jack Peacock, mechanic for the Dixon Motor company, on the Iowa Park road about seven miles from the city, was destroyed by fire late Monday night with damage estimated by officials of the fire department at $2,000. An alarm was turned in at Central fire station here about 10:15 o'clock and the chemical truck and two fire companies were sent at once, but the flames had gained such headway by the time the trucks were able to reach the scene that their efforts without the aid of water were futile. The house is located just beyond the Sand Beach Swimming pool.

Don't fool yourself!

Since halitosis never announces itself to the victim, you simply cannot know when you have it.

Get rid of halitosis— it may get you fired

What kind of people do employers like to have around them? Certainly not people with halitosis (unpleasant breath). You can't blame a man for firing an employee with halitosis to hire one without it.

Don't fool yourself that you never have halitosis. It's impossible for you to know when you are a victim. Don't take the chance. Keep yourself continually on the safe and polite side by daily rinsing the mouth with Listerine, the safe antiseptic.

Being an active germicide capable of killing 200,000,000 germs in 15 seconds, full strength Listerine checks mouth fermentation and infection—both a cause of odors. Then it gets rid of the odors themselves; it is an instant deodorant.

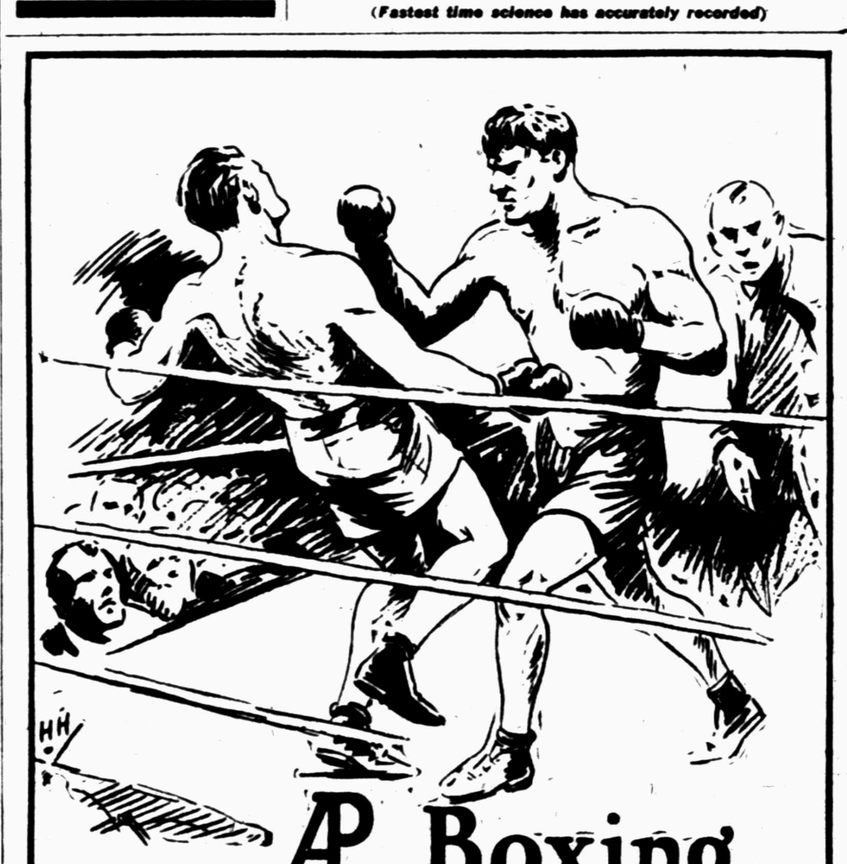

Thousands who used to be unwelcome because of halitosis are now acceptable anywhere. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

QUANAH PUSHES AIRPORT WORK

Gilliland Field Nearing Completion

Special to The Record News.

QUANAH, Texas, May 5.—Work is now under way at Gilliland field, and in a few weeks the Quanah airport will be among the most complete and up to date in this section. Runways north and south and east and west will be made on the 160-acre field, according to R. R. Gilliland, owner. These runways will be 200 by 2500 feet, and at latter date, if need arises, diagonal runs will be made. An automatic ground leveler is being used, and all old fences and barns will be removed. The two-room house already on the field will be remodeled into a passengers' waiting room and a rest room for pilots.

A woven wire fence will be placed around the field, and a graveled entrance 30 or 40 feet wide will open into the field from paved highway No. 5, about three miles east of Quanah.

A white circle 100 feet in diameter and four feet wide will be placed in the center of the field, with an arrow pointing north, in accordance with government regulations. This circle may be seen from an altitude of 5,000 feet. Twelve-foot whitewashed letters spelling "Quanah" will also be placed in the field.

It is expected the field will be ready for use in a few weeks by transcontinental planes, both express and mail, and efforts are being made to have Quanah included on a number of routes.

West Texan Loses Hand and Foot As Shotgun Discharges in His Hand

Special to The Record News.

PLAINVIEW, Texas, May 5.—W. O. Teague, 48, lost his left hand and left foot as a result of an accident that occurred at his home here early Monday morning. An automatic shotgun, which he used to hunt rabbits, was discharged twice while in Teague's hand, one shot taking effect in the left hand and a second shot striking the left foot just above the ankle. A neighbor heard the shots and rushed to the injured man's assistance. He was found crawling on his knees holding the injured hand up.

He was rushed to a local sanitarium where doctors stated that both the hand and foot were practically severed by the shots. The arm was removed at a point about one third of the lower arm length back from the hand and the leg was amputated about three inches above the ankle. It is not known how the gun was discharged.

Public Appeal On Treaty Planned

WASHINGTON, May 5. (US)—An appeal will be directed to the American people to prevent any impairment of adequate naval defense through the London naval treaty, it was learned today.

Confident that public opinion will be thoroughly aroused when the ramificatioins of the pact are exposed to full light, opponents of the treaty are planning exhaustive hearings.

The medium of attack will be through the senate and house naval affairs committee.

A last-minute change in plans put over the senate hearings, scheduled to start today, until later in the week, Senator Hale, Republican, of Maine, chairman, decided it would be better strategy to have the affirmation side stated first before the foreign relations committee by Secretary of State Stimson and other members of the delegation. The latter committee meets Wednesday, in executive session to map out its program.

Irrespective of the senate procedure, Representative Britten, Republican, of Illinois, chairman of the house naval affairs committee, plans to hold open hearings on Thursday, with Secretary of Navy Adams as the first witness.

'Red' Documents Called Forgeries

MOSCOW, May 5. (US)—The Soviet government today officially branded as "forgeries" the purported communistic documents published by Grover Whalen, New York police commissioner, which are now being investigated in Washington.

It was also reported that the Soviet intends to demand the prosecution of Whalen through the head of the Amtorg Trading corporation, a Soviet industrial organization, in New York.

In Izvestia, official Soviet daily, authorities said that the reason for the publication of the "Whalen letters" was the fear of the Communist menace in America. In an editorial comment, Izvestia said:

"Whalen represents the colorized figure of the contrabandist. His activity has the nature of a public scandal.

"The American industrial crisis is blameable as the reason for Communist persecution. Whalen's interference concerning the 'hand of Moscow' in American affairs is a bugaboo to frighten the American public."

GANDHI HELD WITHOUT TRIAL

Indian National Leader Is State Prisoner

By ROBERT WELLES RITCHIE

LONDON, May 5. (US)—Mahatma M. K. Gandhi, leader of India's revolt for independence, is a prisoner for no one knows how long. He will be released only at the pleasure of the Bombay government.

Regulation 25 of the bengal ordinance under which Gandhi was arrested, holds the Mahatma under the same terms as a prisoner of war, without a specific charge. He is interned without the rights of habeas corpus and with no provision for trial.

There is no such ordinance existing in Britain or elsewhere in the British commonwealth, though such an act was enforced in Ireland after the famous Easter rebellion.

In India, the ordinance is operative only in the bengal presidency, and it was re-enacted a few days ago, following the burning of the arsenal at Chittagong by the revolutionists, by special order of the governor-general. Under it, Gandhi is designated a "state prisoner."

MOBS PROTEST LEADER'S ARREST

BOMBAY, May 5. (US)—The progress of India's campaign for independence, which tomorrow may find the entire country in the throes of a general strike because of the arrest of Mahatma M. K. Gandhi, tonight finds natives in a tense fighting attitude and British soldiery reinforced at all strategic points.

Bombay was alive with demonstrators all day, protesting against the arrest of the sainted nationalist leader in monster parades and mass meetings throughout the city. Although the city is charged with excitement, there were no incidents.

Meanwhile, an abortive riot was attempted at Peshawar, gate city of the Khyber pass and scene of several outbreaks. This was quelled almost instantly by British troops, with the arrest of 10 agitators. Headquarters of the nationalist organizations there were raided, and seditious documents confiscated.

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 5. (UP)—Directors of the Oklahoma Historical society voted a $1,000 appropriation today for archeology work to be undertaken in the state soon.

This amount will be matched by the federal government. J. B. Thorburn, director of archeology and ethnology for the society, will direct the work.

The society expects to center much of the work in the eastern and northwestern sections of the state, where evidence of pre-historic races has been found.

Dr. E. E. Dale, head of the history department of Oklahoma university, was named a director of the society succeeding Dr. J. S. Buchannon, deceased.

A committee will be named to investigate the feasibility of appropriating money to pay the expenses of Mr. and Mrs. Gant Foreman of Muskogee while they are investigating old records in the congressional library that pertains to Oklahoma history.

The society voted to appoint a committee that will prepare resolutions of condolence and sympathy in the death of Dr. Buchannon, a prominent member of the organization.

Pair Charged With Pouring Acid on Balloon and 'Chute

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 5. (UP)—County officers searched today for E. E. Fairbaran and Louie Lapoint, charged with an attempt to commit murder in connection with destruction of C. C. Bonnette's balloon when acid was poured on it at Spring Lake park Saturday night.

Bonette owned the balloon scheduled to make several flights Saturday night and Sunday at the Spring Lake opening program. A heavy rain, however, prevented the ascension Saturday night.

Sunday, when he went to his tent to prepare for a flight, he discovered large holes eaten both in his balloon and in his parachute. County officers found an empty bottle, which had contained the acid, in a ditch 200 yards from the balloon, C. C. Downer, county evidence man said.

Good sewing machine needs best oil, say repair men

If all housewives knew what repair men know about sewing machines, they wouldn't think "any kind of oil will do." Three-fourths of all repairs on sewing machines are due to neglect or the wrong kind of oil.

There's only one oil good enough for your machine—the best. Regardless of price, you can't find better oil than 3-in-One. It is a scientific blend of high grade animal, mineral and vegetable oils and contains unique properties not possessed by ordinary oil. It cleans and protects as well as lubricates. It is unsurpassed for sewing machines, vacuum cleaners, lawn mowers, washers, electric fans, refrigerators, locks, hinges and general household lubrication.

Don't endanger the life of your sewing machine and expensive household equipment with ordinary oil. 3-in-One Oil costs only a trifle more and will save you lots of money in repairs. At good stores everywhere, in 15c and 30c sizes. For your protection, look for the trade mark "3-in-One" printed in Red on every package.—Adv.

'Quitter' Wife Is Told Few Things By Dorothy Dix

Straight Talk to Quitter Wife—Foolish Mother Who Teaches Her Children That They Owe Nothing to Their Parents—How to Choose a Career.

Dear Miss Dix: A little over a year ago I married. After about three weeks of happy married life my husband had the opportunity of buying a large amount of stock in a very old established firm in the city, but in order to do so he had to borrow heavily. After he borrowed the money we had no more happiness. Everything I did was wrong and at the least provocation he would abuse me and use the vilest language and I spent the most miserable year of my life. There was no other woman in the case, but he said that every time we were together we quarreled, so he stayed at the office in order to be away from me and worked 10 and 11 hours a day. Three weeks ago I got a divorce. Now he has been to see me and wants me to come back. He says the reason he acted the way he did was because he was so worried with financial affairs. Do you think he has changed? I still love him, but I have schooled myself to forget him and I don't want to risk my happiness again, although my impulse is to return to him. Please give me your honest opinion.—M. F. M.

Answer—When you look back at the wreck of your marriage, don't you feel that you were just as much to blame as your husband was and that if in the stress of an ordeal in your lives he showed himself somewhat of a brute, you proved yourself a poor sport?

Certainly nothing excuses his making you wretched and his abuse of you. It is not hard to picture how surprised and hurt a bride of three weeks felt in having her honeymoon so abruptly terminated and in having nagging and fault-finding replace flatteries and cajoleries and knocks take the place of kisses.

But you could have saved the situation if you had had a little patience, a little forbearance, a little discernment and a little sympathy for your husband. You knew that the chance of his life had come to him and that he had to stake all that he had and more upon it. You knew the frightful anxiety under which he was laboring. You knew that he was overworked, overstrained; that every nerve was quivering and raw.

So you might have sensed that there was really nothing personal in what he did and said to you. You were just simply the escape valve for the irritability that he had to keep bottled up in him all day and that he could not show to the outside world. If you had been big enough to realize this and had met petulance with gentleness, if you had laughed at his fault-finding and turned the edge of his temper on your good nature, if you had petted him and amused him and jollied him instead of arguing with him when he came home overwrought of an evening, you could have saved this ugly break in your lives which you will never be able to quite bridge over. For always there will be between you the memory of divorce, the knowledge of a love that was not strong enough to endure stress and that may fall you again in time of need.

I am not justifying men in taking out on their wives all of their business worries, though many a man does it and many a woman has only to give one look at her husband's face as he comes in the door of an evening in order to know whether stocks are up or down and how things have gone at the office. And if they have gone ill, heaven help her, for she is due to hear that she is the poorest cook who ever put a pot on the stove and to get the bawling out that her husband would have given his boss or his best client or customer if he had dared.

But even in the face of such injustice a wife may well remember that it is her husband's nerves that are speaking, not his heart, and that if he is cross and unreasonable and grouchy and glum, it is nearly always because he is weary unto death with the struggle of modern life, and that the reason he is overworked is because he is trying to give her and their children comforts and luxuries.

As to your question about going back to your husband, I should strongly advise it. He has had his lesson. Perhaps you have had yours. You still love each other and when you take up your life together again I hope you will be wiser and more patient and more forbearing and understanding with each other. —DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am in my 60s and live with a married daughter who has children of her own. She often remarks that no child owes anything to its parents, that the parents brought the child into the world without its consent, therefore, all the talk of children's duty to parents is all bosh. Imagine how a mother feels who has this constantly impressed upon her! What license will my daughter's children take with her with these views impressed upon their minds?

—A FORLORN MOTHER

Answer—As we sow we reap, and and I think your daughter will harvest with tears and bitterness the wrong ideals that she is sowing in her children's minds.

For she will not want her children to treat her as she is treating her own mother. She will not want to fell that they have no sense of obligation to her, that they have no gratitude for all the sacrifices she has made for them, no appreciation of her love, "no memory of the long nights she has watched by sick beds," of the times she sat up to all hours so that they might have a new frilly dress for a party, of the hours she has spent over the cooking stove making the kind of pie they like, no memory of how soft mother's breast was and what a refuge her arms were to which they could flee in any time of trouble, no memory of how mother was never too tired or sick or to busy to amuse them or comfort them or to enter into all of their plans and hopes.

No. Your daughter will not want her children to feel that she has only done her duty by them when she has given them 20 years of her life and that when they are able to stand alone and go on their own that they are free to go away and forget her. She will want them to feel that they owe her a debt that can only be repaid by tenderness and consideration and by their feeling that it is a privilege to cherish her in her old age.

But how can she expect this if by precept and example she is teaching them that a mother is merely an upper servant whose duty it is to serve them and that when they no longer need her work they are free to discard her? How can she expect them to honor her when she does not honor her own mother? How can she expect them to be tender toward her when she has no compassion or tenderness for the woman who bore her?

No women are to be so much pited as the mothers whose children are ungrateful and unappreciative and who show them that they consider them burdens. I often wonder that such women do not realize how much happier they would be in some old ladies' home, where they could, at least, have their own self-respect, than they are in the homes of their children, where they know themselves to be unwelcome guests.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am a young girl and very anxious to take up nursing as a profession and I feel that that is my real calling, but my parents want me to be a writer and my music teacher wants me to be a musician. What do you think?

—BARBARA.

Answer—Be a nurse if that is what you desire. We are only successful in doing the things for which we have a natural aptitude and in the doing of which we find interest and pleasure.

There are few better professions for a girl to take up than nursing. It is well paid and gives great opportunity for usefulness. Besides, nurses have an exceptionally opportunity to make good marriages.

To be a successful writer or musician one must have a God-given talent. Neither are occupations that you can follow just because your parents or your teachers recommend them. —DOROTHY DIX.

First Methodist Society Has Inspirational Meet

Members of the W. M. S. of the First Methodist church, South, held an all-day meeting at the church Monday, when the program was presided over by Mrs. W. W. Cook, the president. Mrs. Stanley Raub led the singing and Mrs. Homer Lee gave the devotional. Mrs. Lee read the 15th chapter of John, dealing with "Abiding in Christ," and gave a beautiful interpretation of this Scripture. Mrs. J. C. Russel followed her with the chapter in "Christian Stewardship" dealing with the use of money, and her conclusion was that the right application of it usually means the right use of time and talents as well.

Mrs. Cook introduced Mrs. C. M. Simpson, conference superintendent of study, who spoke on the subject: "A Challenge to Christian Women." She stressed the fact that the conference looks to every auxiliary for help in carrying on the missionary work throughout the world, then turned to our own country, where she said "there are 75 million people in America who belong to no church," and very vividly told of their needs in this wonderful appeal to the women.

The meeting adjourned for luncheon at 12 o'clock which was served by circle four, with Mrs. L. C. Ulrich, leader.

E. F. Bohmfalk was introduced and announced the annual Mother-Daughter banquet at the church for Friday night, May 9. Mrs. W. C. Cline spoke, inviting all mothers with daughters over 10 years of age to attend. Mrs. T. H. Lawson was introduced as a new leader of circle two, in place of Mrs. O. T. Doell, who has resigned.

At 1:30 o'clock the meeting was called to order again by Mrs. Cook. Mrs. W. W. Silk read the minutes of the last meeting and they were approved. Mrs. Bert Bean gave the report of the treasury. Then came splendid reports from the different circles and Mrs. B. P. Williams, as representative of the federated board, announced May as the month for special attention of the Methodist church to the day nursery. The need of many things was given, and the society voted to donate one dozen sheets. Many members signified the intention of personally attending to the call. The quarterly meeting of the federated missionary society was announced for the fourth Thursday in May at the Highland Heights church.

Hunting the Greens

In many county districts it is not unusual to see people out in the meadows with big baskets on their arms for the early spring greens. The practice of using green vegetables at this season is widespread, as man seems to instinctively yearn for the tender green leaves at the end of winter.

Greens are nature's true spring tonic. They are blood purifiers and builders of the highest order. If you are searching for the best blood tonic for rosy cheeks and good rich blood, then eat plenty of greens. If some of them are used in their raw state they will contribute a goodly amount of vitamins which are needed to build up a general resistance.

When you help yourself to greens you are taking a dose of the very best medicine in the exact form that nature, herself, prepared for your use. Greens are among the most alkaline-forming of all foods. They contain large amounts of iron and calcium in an easily assimilated form. Those who are suffering from acidosis would do well to eat greens two or three times every day. When the old-fashioned grandmother ordered greens for that spring fever she was prescribing the very best treatment. After the winter diet the blood of most people is sluggish and flooded with acids. The greens are just the foods which will correct this condition.

In many sections the greens are gathered only at springtime, but they should be eaten whenever possible throughout the year. All varieties of greens have the virtue of providing cellulose or roughage to scour out the intestines and relieve constipation. The bulk which they supply is soft, and for this reason they are non-irritating laxatives. They cannot cause overweight, no matter how much of them is eaten. If you are hungry at the table, the best plan is to fill up on greens. Greens are splendid for patients with anemia. They supply the iron which is needed by the red blood cells and also the lother elements so important for building up the general health.

Most of the vegetables which you think of only as greens make also excellent salads. They may be mixed with the more usual lettuce, giving the salad a change in flavor. Among the vegetables which make excellent salads are as follows: Chicory, watercress, endive, romaine, lettuce, dandelions, spinach, sweet basil, mustard, tarragon, parsley, nasturtium leaves, Swiss chard, escarole, Chinese celery, cabbage, beet tops, tender turnip tops, purslane, kohl rabi leaves when young and tender, fennel, lamb's quarter, and dock. Below are some of the vegetables which may be cooked for greens: Seakale, radish tops, broccoli, lettuce in soups and stews, chicory, dandelion, cowslip, burdock, spinach, swiss chard, young nettles, sorrel, kale, endive, beet tops, turnip tops, savoy cabbage, romaine, lettuce, purslane, fennel, mustard, watercress, Chinese mustard, orach or French spinach.

In cooking greens it is best to use as little water as possible. In some of the waterless cookers it is not necessary to use any. This results in the retention of all the mineral salts in the vegetable. While cooking destroys some of the vitamins, it does not destroy all of them, but the proportion of vitamins in cooked greens is much lower than in raw greens.

You may not be able to find all of the greens mentioned in your district, but you will find some of them. After all, it doesn't matter whether you pick your greens, yourself, or whether you buy them from the market, or grow them in your own garden. The only important thing is to eat them.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Reducing

Question—S. F. C. asks: "Is there any way a man can reduce without exercising or dieting? If not, what diet would you advise?"

Answer—Exercising and dieting are the only two really healthful ways of reducing. The diet is especially important. Anyone may reduce by avoiding foods that are high in caloric value and living principally on non-starchy vegetables and fruits. The best and quickest results are usually obtained on an orange juice fast, and I will be pleased to send instructions for taking this if you will send me your name and address on a large stamped envelope.

Pulse Pounds

Question—Seventy asks: "What is it that makes an elderly person have pulsations all over his body at night? It is pound, pound, pound, until I get so nervous I would like to die. Then I get a headache, and the whole situation keeps me awake half the night. I am glad when the morning comes so I can get away from these dreadful conditions. What do you think causes these symptoms? Could you recommend any remedy that would help me—or is there any diet? I live simply, and do not eat much meat. Considering my age, my health in the daytime is good, but the nights are a nightmare."

Answer—It is possible that you have a heart trouble or an aneurysm and should have a careful examination to ascertain just what is your trouble. If you will then write to me, sending your name and address and your doctor's report, I will be better able to advise you.

Hoover Receives Tariff Protest in Silence

WASHINGTON, May 5. (UP)—No comment was forthcoming from the white house today following receipt of an appeal to President Hoover to veto any tariff measure which provides upward revision of rates.

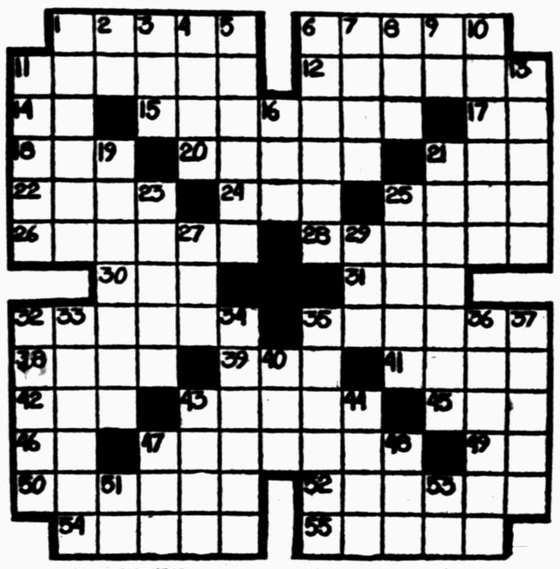

More than a thousand economists, including several of national reputation, united in an appeal to the president and the chairman of the senate finance and house ways and means committee to defeat the pending tariff bill.

They said the measure would increase retail prices, hurt the farmer, lessen employment, imperil American investment abroad, and embitter foreign relations.

AUDIT CLAIMS

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 5. (UP)—Members of the state agriculture board met today to audit claims of the agriculture department for the past month. The board probably will hear protests of state mill operators against certain feed regulations when it meets Tuesday.

A.—It is said to be a corruption of the word, salaam.

The Record News Offers Its Readers a Booklet on Making Cellars Dry

Real estate dealers say that a good dry, light cellar adds from $500 to $1,000 to the value of an ordinary dwelling. Moisture and darkness favor mildew, molds, decay, and putrefaction; moisture also hastens the corrosion of metals. Hence, a dry cellar makes for wholesome, sanitary conditions in the home; promotes comfort and health; lengthens the life of homes, furnishings, and plumbing; and increases the usefulness of basements for storage, workshop, and laundry purposes.

Our new government booklet, Making Cellars Dry, tells all about this. Send for a copy today, using this coupon.

The railroad official who predicted American tourists would leave a sum of $300,000,000 in Canada this summer may have occasion to revise his statistics now that a man in Lowell, Mass., has been found drunk for the 127th time.

A woman in Walla Walla, Wash., says that she has been visited by a census enumerator for the first time in her century of life. And to think that all these years we have quoted our population statistics wrong!

Our Modern Idol

MARK TWAIN remarked, in "Life on the Mississippi," that every small boy in a river town in the old days had but one ambition—to grow up and become a pilot of a river steamer.

It was not only because the river pilot, in that era, occupied a position in the top strata of riverside society. He had, in addition, the glamour that goes to a man who is master of a difficult, picturesque and sometimes dangerous calling. He was an expert, almost an artist, in charge of a great mass of machinery, and his position in the public eye was enhanced accordingly.

Since Mark Twain's day the glamour of the river pilot has faded. For a long time, doubtless, the railroad engineer took his place; indeed, even today there is a thrill to the sight of a huge locomotive that must fill vast numbers of youngsters with a burning ambition to become engineers when they grow up. But this modern age, if it has done nothing else, has at least furnished the small boy with an idol more dazzling and exciting than anything any former age could give.

The present era has produced the airpline pilot; and if you doubt that this personage is fit to put dreams and desires in the breasts of youngsters, just visit an airport some day and watch the planes and flyers come and go—and be convinced.

In the first place, there is nothing anywhere more supremely lovely and inspiring than an airplane in the air. The designers nowadays, just to make things better, have taken to paiting their planes in gay colors; and when a red-cabined bird with bright yellow wings soars up from a smooth green field, poises itself against the blue-sky and then scuds off to vanish in the haze over the horizon—well, the onlooker has seen something as fine as the twentieth century can furnish.

But it is not the airplane, after all, that really appeals to the small boy. It is the pilot.

The average airplane pilot, in fact, is about as prepossessing a person as you will meet anywhere. He has no swagger, no blatancy, no self-assertion, as so many of small-boydom's idols have; instead he is generally quiet, soft-spoken, reticent, even shy. But he has a look in his eye and a set to his shoulders that are priceless. In his daily work he leaves the earth behind him and out-sails the birds. He trusts his life, every day, to his own skill with a cool confidence. He has a magnificent skill and a courage so calm that it usually goes unnoticed.

Was there ever a person more made to order for the day-dreams of adventurous boys? If this mechanical age has done nothing else, it has at least given the small boy an idol that is worthy of him.

Small Boys and Dynamite

THE AUTHOR of "Tom Brown's School Days" asserts that there is a special providence that looks after small boys; and sometimes, when you see what some youngsters do, you are almost forced to believe it.

A few days ago half a dozen small boys were playing in Central park, in New York. They found some two dozen cylindrical, varnished little sticks, with gay printing on their sides. These sticks made excellent playthings. The boys amused themselves for several minutes with them, throwing them around, tossing them up in the air and catching them and otherwise doing what playful small boys might be expected to do with nice, shiny little sticks.

Then a man came along and examined the sticks. He gulped, then called a policeman.

The boys had been playing with dynamite sticks, cached under a bush by thieves who had stolen them a few days before from a construction job!

How they managed to fling that dynamite around without getting blown to bits is something that their respective guardian angels will have to explain.

Daniel Roper's New Plan

COL. DANIEL ROPER of the Carolinas, one of the ablest lieutenants of Wm. Gibbs McAdoo in bygone years and the holder of an important office under Woodrow Wilson, advises the Democrats to abandon the national convention system of naming candidates for president and vice president and to go back to the old system of each district in the 48 states selecting its own elector, the state unit to elect the two electors at large, and all to assemble and organize the electoral college in the city of Washington and proceed to name a president and vice president of the United States. Colonel Daniel is reminded that the old system passed out when the ox cart period of civilization came in, and now the airplane system may relegate to the dodo and the ox cart the motor vehicle system of civilization. There is no going back to the cave man.

Makers of a Governor

CHIEF L. G. PHARES of the state motor patrol, according to a capitol correspondent, has discovered that at least 150 men in Texas claim the honor of having been the "prime factor" in getting Dan Moody elected governor. All 150 were arrested for violation of state highway laws. All paid their fines. All promised to use their powers to get Phares fired. Man is a vain mortal. He struts like a pouter pigeon and when he goes hence his footsteps on the sands of time are just as faint as those of an ant who has passed on to the ant paradise for the faithful.

Wish

I've tried my best to rout your memory,
And when the victory is almost won
Your strange allure comes creeping stealthily
And back I am again where I'd begun.

A girl I pass may hint a bit of you,
A voice I hear will cause a fitful start,
And I am left to start the task anew
Of breaking down your stronghold in my heart.

I mind the time I was a whistling lad,
And life was just a gay enchanting lark;
I whistle yet—but, oh, the tune is sad—
For well I know I'm whistling in the dark;

I hope the time will never come when you
Will understand what I am going through!
—THE "TORCH" SINGER.

From a Barrymoron?

Among other things difficult to believe in the N. Y. Sunday World of April 27 is Mr. Paul Sifton's interview with Ethel Barrymore. The First Actress is quoted as being in a lather about New York first-nighters, particularly "the appalling wisecracking critics."

"New York," according to Miss Barrymore and Mr. Sifton, "is infested with the most terrible men who write. No one used to pay attention to them. But now you pick them up in dentist's offices. Managers pay attention to them and their impertinent wisecracks. One or two of them ought to be shot at dawn. It is a sad comment on American manhood that Walter Winchell is allowed to exist. And the worst of it is, not that he is published here, but his stuff appears all over the country."

Rebuttal

Well it is difficult to believe this Ethel Barymore statement. Difficult because we saw her but once in our career and that was during the premiere of her starring vehicle, "The Constant Wife," at the Maxine Elliott theater, a few years ago. Our report was choked with superlative comment on her grand playing, and her charm, and her class. She was delightful, and in the notice we asserted that she was surely America's greatest actress.

We have never seen Miss Barryore, on or off the stage, since, chiefly because we have been barred from the playhouses in which she has since appeared. So it is difficult to believe that she ever said anything of the sort or even mentioned our name to Mr. Sifton, whom we prefer to believe placed those words in her mouth.

Because Mr. Sifton's play, "The Belt," was not only deservedly black-balled by us and most of our confreres, but was belted straight into the play-morgue within a fortnight.

As If We Didn't Know

Wayne G. Haisley has come to the conclusion that it is more blessed to give than receive—a dig.

Golly!

The recent flying activities of Colonel Lindbergh had a group of locals chinning about fliers and one reporter wondered if this fact ever appeared in print. When Chamberlin and Levine were 1,000 miles across the Atlantic on the hop to Germany, Levine penciled a note to Chamberlin.

"Oh, my God!" wrote Levine, "what am I doing out here on this ocean? I just remembered that I have $12,000 in cash on me!"

Not, New, but Clean

Take it from Bob Benchley it hasn't been revived in 20 years. A dialectician who was very hungry raced into a railroad station restaurant during a train stop to snatch a bit of food. The waiter was sorry, but all they had left was a ham sandwich. The very orthodox fellow decided that it would be better than nothing and bit into it.

Almost instantly the heavens crashed and a deafening bolt of thunder nearly felled him.

"Oy!" he trembled, as he looked out of the window at the sky, "all dis excitement for a tiny bit of sendvich?"

Fact

They vouch for it at the Cocoanut Grove, Boston's most fascinating night club. The master of ceremonies was irritated by a beautiful young thing who hissed him every time he came on or she tossed pennies at him. She did it every night for almost a week. He decided to kill her with kindness.

"Will you dance with me?" he asked her one evening. She agreed. While they danced he said: "Gee, honey, why do you hiss and throw coins at me that way? Don't you like me?"

"I'm mad about you, you brute!" she cooed. "That was the only way I could get you to notice me."

The romance still is blazing, and he can't lose her now, fearing the consequences if he gives her the chill.

A Form of Criticism

In Paris, according to a local, there is a cat and dog cemetery. On one pet's resting place is this marker:

"All the rest of my friends are cats, but this cat was my friend."

Romance

Maybe the hooch is getting better. Perhaps it was the drummer of the orchestra who was singing "It Happened in Monterey" via the megaphone: "... my indiscreet heart longs for the sweetheart that I left in old Monterey." At any rate, they loved each other, oh, so madly, and it was their last night together. Her mother, it appears, was taking her back to Europe so she could forget Him.

Caressing each other tenderly and on the verge of tears, she hoped he would never forget her. He vowed that he never would.

"Then let me make certain that you won't," she said, and she pressed her burning cigaret on the back of his right hand, holding it there for several seconds. The scar, she said, would remind him of her forever.

Then she made him press his burning cigaret on hers.

Capsule Criticism

The Paris Boulevardier makes our Crisp Cracks from Caustic Critics Department: "We are told that the New York stock crash brought great suffering to Balieff. We sympathize, particularly when we remember the last 'Chauve-Souris' opening in Paris. We sat through it, and we too, suffered greatly."

CARESSE ⚜ A Complete Novel By RUTH TAYLOR

SYNOPSIS

Caresse O'Neill, daughter of the owner of Shady Lawn Inn in the village of Riverton, is jilted by her sweetheart, Ted Branard, son of the town's wealthy banker, on the day of the wedding. Caresse insists on continuing the party which had been arranged in her honor, and telephones Billy, a New York friend, to come down and bring two other friends as escorts for Miriam Nowell and Bess Parker, her best friends. They later go to a nearby roadhouse.

A few weeks later Caresse and friends are riding on a lonely road when the car gives out of gas near the old Morton place, which they believe abandoned. They go to the house, find a lighted lamp and a grand piano, and start dancing. Suddenly the door opens and the owner, Lee Deering, enters, to confront them.

Caresse's friends slip out of the house while she tries to explain their presence to Deering, and Caresse accepts his invitation to muffins and coffee before she returns home.

Deering becomes a boarder at Shady Lawn Inn and his friendship with Caresse develops rapidly. Teddy Branard returns suddenly, and calls on Caresse. She forces him to take her to a local roadhouse as a blow at Ted's father.

The elder Branard promises Ted a new boat if he will forget Caresse, then offers Mrs. O'Neill $50,000 for the Inn on condition she leave Riverton. The offer is refused.

At a birthday party for Caresse the next night, the village constable appears and informs them a complaint has been signed against them for disturbing the peace.

In court the next day the case is dismissed for lack of prosecution. Teddy forcing his father to drop the matter on the threat to "tell the truth" about the whole affair and the persecution of the O'Neills.

Caresse and Teddy elope, but the car crashes into a wall when Teddy, drunk, loses control.

Lee Deering was playing softly.

CHAPTER SEVEN

Lee Deering, his head cocked on one side to hear with his mind's ear what the piano did not sing, was playing softly. The tall floor lamp was drawn up close beside the big grand piano. Now and again he stopped in the middle of a passage to jot down a few notes on the lined score propped up before him on the music rack.

He frowned, dissatisfiedly.

"If I only had four hands," he complained. "Or at least a few more fingers. Let's see. Here's where the oboe comes in. Ta-ta—um-um-umum. No good. I should go like——"

He lifted his head and listened. From down in the road came the wailing note of a motor siren. "There!" he nodded. "That's it—almost. It should be something like that. Not so raucous, but modern."

His hand reached for the pencil, but it stopped, poised in midair. Deering frowned.

The siren was coming closer. It sounded like——It was! It was coming up the hill to his door.

His frown of annoyance deepened.

"Now who can that be?" he asked, aloud. "At this time of night? I certainly hope none of the gang have dug me out. Things have been going too smoothly."

The car drew up outside and stopped. Its bright headlights threw their glare through the open doorway and picked out Lee at the piano. The siren sounded insistently. The composer rose from his piano bench and went to the door. He stood there, his hand shading his eyes from the headlight's glare.

"Yes?" he queried. "Who is it?"

"Give us a hand here, brother, will you?" a strange man's voice called out to him. "We've brought you a couple of callers."

Lee was wondering, and annoyed at being disturbed as he made his way to the car. The strange man had got out and he and a woman were trying to lift some one from the back seat—some one inert, helpless.

"What is it?" asked Lee, as he came closer.

The man's voice held a sneering note.

"Oh, just a couple of young booze hounds out joy riding come to grief. We found them up the road a bit, tangled up in the wheels and gadgets of their car they've smashed up like nobody's business."

"We're afraid one of them is pretty badly hurt," put in the woman. "The young man. We saw your light, so we brought them here first, so——"

"Quite right," agreed Lee. "It was the thing to do."

He leaped to the car and stretched out his long, capable arms to give the man aid in lifting the injured motorists from the back seat.

"Who are they?" he asked. "Know them?"

"Not from Adam," said the man. "We're strangers hereabouts. That goes without saying by us getting ourselves lost on this heathenish back road. We were in a hurry, and thought we could find a short cut. Here's what we found!"

"Steady, there," admonished Lee, as he shifted his arm under the limp body of the injured woman. "She's not heavy, but she's limp. Knocked out completely, eh?"

"She probably didn't have far to go," sniffed the strange woman, as she pulled down the unconscious girl's skirts. "Looked like they might have had their accident while they were taking a drink. The bottle was smashed all about them. I don't think the girl's much hurt, but the boy!"

Not till he and the stranger carried the injured girl into the house and laid her on the couch did Lee Deering see who she was. As the light fell across her white face, with a streak of bright red blood across one cheek, accentuating its pallor, he recognized Caresse O'Neill. He started violently and bent over her.

"Caresse!" he cried.

She did not answer. She only moaned slightly as she gave the first warning of coming out of her coma.

"Know her, do you? That's a good thing. We were wondering what to do. Got a phone? My wife will call the hospital for the ambulance while you and I get the other young stew in the house."

"You think she is—is——" began Lee.

He could not believe it. Caresse drunk? It seemed impossible.

The man's shoulders shrugged.

"Can you doubt it?" he asked, with a condescending laugh. "Smell her. She smells of Scotch to high heaven. So do both of them. Come on, we've got to get that other one inside. He's pretty well smashed, I'm afraid."

Lee reluctantly left Caresse and went out to the car with the strange motorist. His mind was in a turmoil, but underneath, most of all, was bitterness and resentment. The girl had fooled him! He had thought her so fine and innocent, and she was—

Teddy Branard, as his rescuers had supposed, was badly injured. They saw that as soon as they got the moaning boy inside the house.

The ambulance, they were assured, would be out at once. In the meantime, they did what they could for the two. The woman and Lee vainly tried to staunch the blood from the wound in Teddy's head. It was bleeding freely, staining Lee Deering's pillow which they shoved under his head as he lay on the rug where they had placed him.

"Not so good," said Lee, anxiously, but as he worked over Teddy Branard his thoughts were on Caresse.

She was, so far as they could see, not badly injured. She was unconscious, true, but Lee came quickly to the conclusion that the man and woman who had found Caresse and Ted were right. Caresse's coma was not due so much to injury as it was to what she had drunk before the accident had happened.

Whenever he bent over her he drew back, nauseated. The fumes from the Scotch drove him back. Caresse must have been having a great deal. He did not see, or think to note, that her clothing had been saturated with the drink.

He was not so personally concerned about Ted.

"Yes, I know him, too," he admitted. "But not well. He's the son of Cyrus Branard, the millionaire manufacturer who has that fine place on the other side of town. Don't think I'll call his father, though. The old man's—well—odd. Rather inclined to jump at conclusions. I shouldn't care to have him think the boy had got his injury here. We'll wait for the ambulance."

The ambulance was not long in coming, but it seemed a long time to Lee Deering, with his thoughts in the jumble they were. Caresse O'Neill had deceived him! She was not what he had thought she was. That was all he could think of.

He, as well as the two motorists, sighed with relief when they heard the clang of the ambulance bell as it came up the hill.

"Good!" exclaimed the man who had told Lee his name was Anderson. "Now we can let the doctors worry. I shouldn't like to see a chap pass out on me, but—"

"Even if he did—or she did deserve it," put in his wife, unsympathetically.

The ambulance surgeon's first quick survey was for Teddy Branard. His examination was hasty, but thorough. Just for a moment he applied his stethoscope.

"Ummm," he commented. "Pretty badly shot. Leg broken, disjointed shoulder, plenty of abrasians and flesh cuts, and possibly a fractured skull. Alive, though, and heart beating after a fashion, though what he's got inside him doesn't help. Here, John!" he called to the orderly. "Bring on the stretcher. We've got to get this chap on the operating table at once. Lend a hand there, will you?" to Lee. "Easy does it! Good!"

With Teddy on the way to the ambulance, the doctor's attention was turned to Caresse. Again she moaned slightly as his hands hovered over her. He shook his head and lifted his shoulders as he tore off strips of adhesive tape.

"She's all right," he pronounced. "Shocked, maybe, but she'll come out of it." He sniffed the aroma that rose from the prostrate girl. "More of that," he commented, drily, "than anything else. She can go home. No need for the ambulance."

Lee questioned him as the surgeon deftly and rapidly stuck a few pieces of the adhesive plaster here and there on Caresse's few abrasions. The doctor nodded.

"Of course I'm sure," he said. "Seen too much of this sort of this sort of thing to be fooled. The only wonder is we don't get more of these joy-riding idiots than we do. I've been expecting to hear from that young Branard ass ever since he got that new car. What his father will have to say will be—something!"

He nodded his head toward Caresse.

"She's the O'Neill girl, from down at the inn, isn't she?"

"Yes," informed Lee.

The young doctor whistled.

"Ummm! More trouble. Guess you know about—" his head jerked toward the ambulance outside—"about her and—him? Well, got to get on, now,"—without waiting for Lee's answer. "That boy for the table. You'll call her mother, Mr. Deering? See to getting her home?"

"Yes," once more said Lee, monosyllabically. "And thanks, doctor, for coming so quickly. Good night."

Lee stood in the doorway and watched the tail lights of the ambulance as it clanged its way down the hill. The car of the Andersons followed.

Even when they were out of sight down the road, he still stood there, staring out into the night, and thinking. He did not want to turn back into the room. He did not want to see Caresse in the condition in which she was. If she had been hurt, he would eagerly and pityingly have done what he could for her. Of course he would, now. But the heart that would have been filled with pity under other conditions now held more of resentment and disgust than any other emotion.

Caresse O'Neill was no different from the hundreds of other girls he had himself known, other hundreds he had known of—"modern" girls who dashed about the country at night with a bottle at hand and mouth. It was disturbing—more than disturbing. He had come so thoroughly to believe Caresse of a different mould.

Slowly he turned back into the room and went over to her side.

Eucharistic Meet Opens at Carthage

CARTHAGE, Tunisia, May 5 (UP)—Pilgrims from all parts of the world were gathered today for the opening of the eucharistic congress this week.

More than 10,000 visitors thronged Tunis and Carthage as the vatican delegation headed by Cardinal Lepicier left Naples on a special steamer and the French delegation, led by Cardinal Verdier, arrived on the African coast. Thousands of Americans also are en route.

The pilgrims were without a definite program.

The Moslem and Jewish population—which predominates in Tunisia, watched preparations with greatest interest and cooperated in providing accommodations for the visitors at the greatest of Catholic ceremonies. Arabs opened their homes to the pilgrims despite the tradition that the Arab home is sacred and never opened to foreigners.

Psychiatrist Holds Epilepsy Is Curable

WASHINGTON, May 5 (INS)—Thousands of epileptics go to work every day, and their cure isn't a hopeless one, Dr. Douglas A. Thom of Boston, famous psychiatrist, today told the international congress on mental hygiene. He asserted epilepsy is far from the dread disease pictured by the average person—but far more prevalent.

"Epilepsy is very prevalent," he said. "Thousands of America's wage earners go to their factory every day with epilepsy. We are studying it, and making progress. It should be the duty of every physician to watch for it in its early stages."

THREE HOME RUNS SEND SPUDDERS TO VICTORY OVER CATS

The Rambler's Corner

By FRED D. THOMPSON

Yesterday morning's columns on this page carried the announcement that J. B. Hanson, nationally known checker wizard, is in the city and ready to take on all comers at the local Recreation club. The expert at the game of jump and take apparently is touring the nation, giving all local checker sharks the merry hah-hah. He came here from Dallas, where he took E. L. Witt, former Texas champion maneuverer, for a ride, so to speak, giving the Texan a sound beating.

Mr. Hanson is a thinly man with deft fingers, and has all the earmarks of being a checker champion. He is a product of our modern American civilization, just as the tiled-floor bathroom and the cigaret lighter are. The local champions haven't got a chance with him. Through with mauling the experts of one village, he goes to the next, where the same process is repeated, and the boys who had commanded dignity and respect through their ability to outwit their friends at the squared board are left in gloom and ignominy. The village wizard, in fact, has become nothing but a myth as the torch of civilization has fathomed the dark and revealed that there are specialists in checkers, as in everything else.

How different were the old days, when every community had its checker player par excellence, and moreover, each boarding house had its crowned champion.

Indeed, if you will trace the history of checkers, you will find that it rose to favor along with the rise of the boarding house, which now is slowly becoming a fond memory in modern America. Who does not remember the boarding house of a decade or so ago before the hotel managers had become privy to the advantages of dining room jazz bands and publicity agents? The proprietress thereof was a kindly woman who knew how to cook and was sincerely dubbed "mother" by every one of her customers. The board, to use the customary expression, was not of sawdust but real food. And right next to the dining room was a spacious parlor, or, as it was known then, the "front room," and after the evening meal everybody gathered therein and talked and smoked and read and generally had a good time. It was before the days of advanced psychology, and the people engaged in the conversation genuinely enjoyed hearing the other fellow talk, without secretly prying into his sub-conscious to fathom motives and wish neuroses and inferiority complexes. And when the talk lagged, the "mother" of the boarding house pulled out the checker boards and the various battles waxed hot and prolific. And the games were taken seriously. Indeed, there was a certain romance in the atmosphere. My earliest impression of one of these checker tourneys of remote days is the picture of great brawny men who had spent a day at hard labor bending their furrowed brows over the squares, pondering over the next move in such a manner as a district judge meditates over whether the defendant should get five years or fifty. They were totally oblivious to the worries the day had brought, and their intense concentration improved their game, and, as I said before, produced some kings of the game.

Oddly enough, the best checker players in the boarding houses were men of a literary turn of mind. There was, for instance, a drilling contractor in a Central Texas oil field whose two grand passions, outside of a yearning to drill a gusher, were the newspapers and checkers. His evening gorging done, this gentleman quietly retired to the most remote corner of the front room and devoured every column of the old Austin American, which then was Central Texas' most respected news organ. Nor could any one budge him while this process was going on. Finished, he would extract a pad and pencil and compose what we would call editorials, little comments on life. These he would mail to the American editor, and later would beam broadly when they appeared in print.

His more intellectual labors done, he would invite a checker contest and he usually won. He was the best in the house.

Later, in Austin, the champion of the boarding house was a man of a peculiarly diverse personality. During the day he was a Bradstreet agent, dealing in he financial problems of local business institutions. At night he was an author, writing short stories about life as he viewed it. Moreover, he was successful in this enterprise, and his short stories appeared regularly in the better class magazines. His literary forebears were Mark Twain and O. Henry. Like O. Henry, he had a certain gift of humor that made him highly respected among the yokelry that occupied rooms to the right, left and in front of him. And like Mark Twain he smoked an enormous pipe.

This was the most colorful boarding house checker champ that I ever knew. Indeed, he had a set ritual he observed before starting each game. His rule was never to refill his pipe during a game. To do so was to lose. Hence at the start of each game he returned to his room—he never carried his tobacco into the front room, probably also on account of superstition—opened a large humidor and loaded his smokestack. He came into the front room before lighting it. With great ceremony he struck the match on the edge of the checker board he was soon to dominate, and, after politely bowing to his opponent, the game started.

It was a source of great pride to me that once I defeated this champion. Once, and only once. Though a kid in knee breeches, I had read all this author's books, and figuring after that I knew as much as he did about literature, I set out to beat him at checkers. But the fates were against me. Ever since I have thought that the reason I failed was because I was not a literary man. He was a real author, writing short stories, whereas I was doomed to be merely a newspaper man.

Such men as the drilling contractor and literary checker champions have gone the way of an older day, now, and the only thrill we get from the game is by watching professionals such as Mr. Hanson. And this is a second-hand method and usually is as dry as mixing a drink for somebody else. Even when we play the modern-day champion we are afflicted by a feeling of inferiority from the very start, because we realize that the champion had done nothing else, probably, all his life, whereas we must spend at least eight hours of the day worrying not about intricate plays, but about bread and butter. The old days, indeed, have vanished. And for which, alas, and again, alack!

FELINES TAKE COUNT, 10 TO 5

Teams Meet Today in Last Game of Series

By FRED D. THOMPSON

The Spudders were home-run minded Monday, and Crouch's and Bettencourt's four-base swats with one on each time, and Storti's circuit clout with the paths deserted featured a heady slugging match from which the Wichita Falls knockers emerged victorious. The score was 10 to 5.

Lester White went the route for the Spudders, giving up 14 clouts, while the Spudders pounded Whitworth from the box with eight hits and five runs in four innings, and, as soon as they got used to Gribble's underhand throw from the south side, touched the relief pitcher for six hits and the remaining five runs.

Advance One Notch

The victory, coupled with Houston's victory over Beaumont, shoved Wichita Falls up into third place in the league. Shreveport remained at the top despite a drastic drubbing by the Dallas Steers.

The Spudder defensive was in spectacular form Monday, Lester White, Storti and Burns figuring in an unusual double play, pitcher to second to first in the first inning, and Levey and Storti handling line drives and hot grounders with astounding speed and accuracy. Storti had a good day at second with nine assists and four putouts, while Levey ran him a close second with five assists and three putouts. Neither erred.

Crouch Pounds One

The Spudders scored in every frame but three. It started in the second inning. Burns grounded out to first unassisted. Bettencourt singled to left and stole second. Then came Crouch's homer over the left field palisades, scoring Bettencourt and himself. Euller singled past second. White struck out and Euller was thrown out at second, catcher to short.

In the third, Levey flied out to center. Storti doubled to center. Fitzgerald singled to left, scoring Storti, and took second on the throw in. Kloza sacrificed to center, sending Fitzgerald to third. Burns doubled to right, scoring Fitzgerald. Bettencourt grounded out, pitcher to first.

Euller scored in the fourth on his single past second, White's base on balls, a wild pitch and Levey's sacrifice fly to left. In the fifth Gribble replaced Whitworth, and at first it appeared his peculiar delivery was going to be the downfall of the Spudder sluggers. Fitzgerald couldn't at first fathom the underhand southpaw and struck out. Kloza managed to get to third on Tavener's wild throw from short to first. Burns fell Gribble's victim and was struck out. But Bettencourt connected with one of Gribble's curves and sent the pill bouncing into the carnival grounds to the left of Athletic park, scoring Kloza and himself. Crouch grounded out, third to first, closing the inning.

Storti Gets One

Storti strode up in the seventh and put another in approximately the same spot for the third Spudder homer of the day. Fitzgerald by this time had recovered his eye sufficiently to bang a single to right. Kloza doubled to center, sending Fitzgerald to third. Burns grounded out, pitcher to first. Bettencourt singled over short, scoring Fitzgerald and Kloza. Crouch singled past third, sending Bettencourt to second. Euller hit into a double play, short to second to first, closing the period.

Moore started the scoring for the Cats in the third. He singled past second. Was safe at second when Mallon was thrown out, Storti to Levey to Burns. Bonowitz singled to center, scoring Moore. Cox tripled to center, scoring Bonowitz. Kelly grounded out, Levey to Burns, closing the inning. In the fifth, Mallon scored on a base on balls and Bonowitz' double to left. In the seventh, Gribble scored on his single past second and Mallon's double to right. In the eighth, Fowler scored on his single past second, Manager Snyder's single to center, and Tavener's single to left.

The two teams meet today in the last game of the series.

FOR PLANE SAFETY

LONDON.—A simple, yet effective device has been installed on a few airplanes in England which aids them in landing on dark nights. Beneath each wing a small searchlight is fitted with the beams of light converging. The distance at which they cross each other, forming a large patch of light, is known to the pilot, so as soon as he sees the light on any surface he knows how far he is from the ground.

Wichita Athletes Take Fifth Place In Junior College Track Meet

FORT WORTH, May 5. (AP)—The John Tarleton Plowboys of Stephenville made a clean sweep of the Junior college track meet on the T. C. U. track here today. North Texas Aggies were second with 26 points, nosing out Texarkana by one-tenth of a point. Paris came ahead of Wichita Falls for fourth place by the same margin, totaling 9 points, while the Wichita Falls team made 8 9-10. Gainesville was sixth with 3 1-5 points.

Six junior college records were shattered. To Irwin, weight man of the Plowboys, goes the credit for two of these. He put the shot 42 feet 4½ inches and hurled the javelin 138 feet six inches to accomplish the feat. Carter, also of the Plowhands, jumped 5 feet 11½ inches to break all records in the high jump.

Cook of John Tarleton, running the half mile in 2 minutes and 3.4 seconds broke that record. Reed of Texarkana, with a vault of 13 feet, three-fourths inch and Huddleston of Texarkana, with a broad jump of 22 feet, 1½ inches broke those former marks.

Gilliland, dash star of the Plowboys, nosed out Irwin, his teammate, for high point honors by one-fourth of a point. Gilliland won first places in the century and 440-yard dashes and received 1⅓ points for his lap of the winnig relay team while Irwin won first place in the shot put and discus throw, both of which broke all previous records and won third in the javelin.

GIANTS STEP UP IN LEAD

New York Beats Pirates 9 to 1

PITTSBURGH, May 5. (AP)—Bill Walker's southpaw slants abetted by his home run with the bases full sent the New York Giants into first place in the National league pennant race today as the Pirates were defeated, 9 to 1.

Walker blanked the Pirates for eight rounds, handing out only three hits. George Grantham's home run in the ninth, however, spoiled the otherwise brilliant performance. In addition to giving a masterful exhibition of holding the usually hard-hitting Pirates, Walker won his game in the fourth with a home run with the bases loaded. Score:

Don't say "no" to nature

Who's speaking, when kiddies tease for sweets? It's nobody else than Old Mother Nature, who calls for quick energy food. Sugar is most necessary to children. Give it to them freely, but wisely diluted with lots of water, and with fruit juice for flavor and health. Dr. Pepper is the ideal combination; delicious, healthful and safe.

AT 10-2 & 4 O'CLOCK

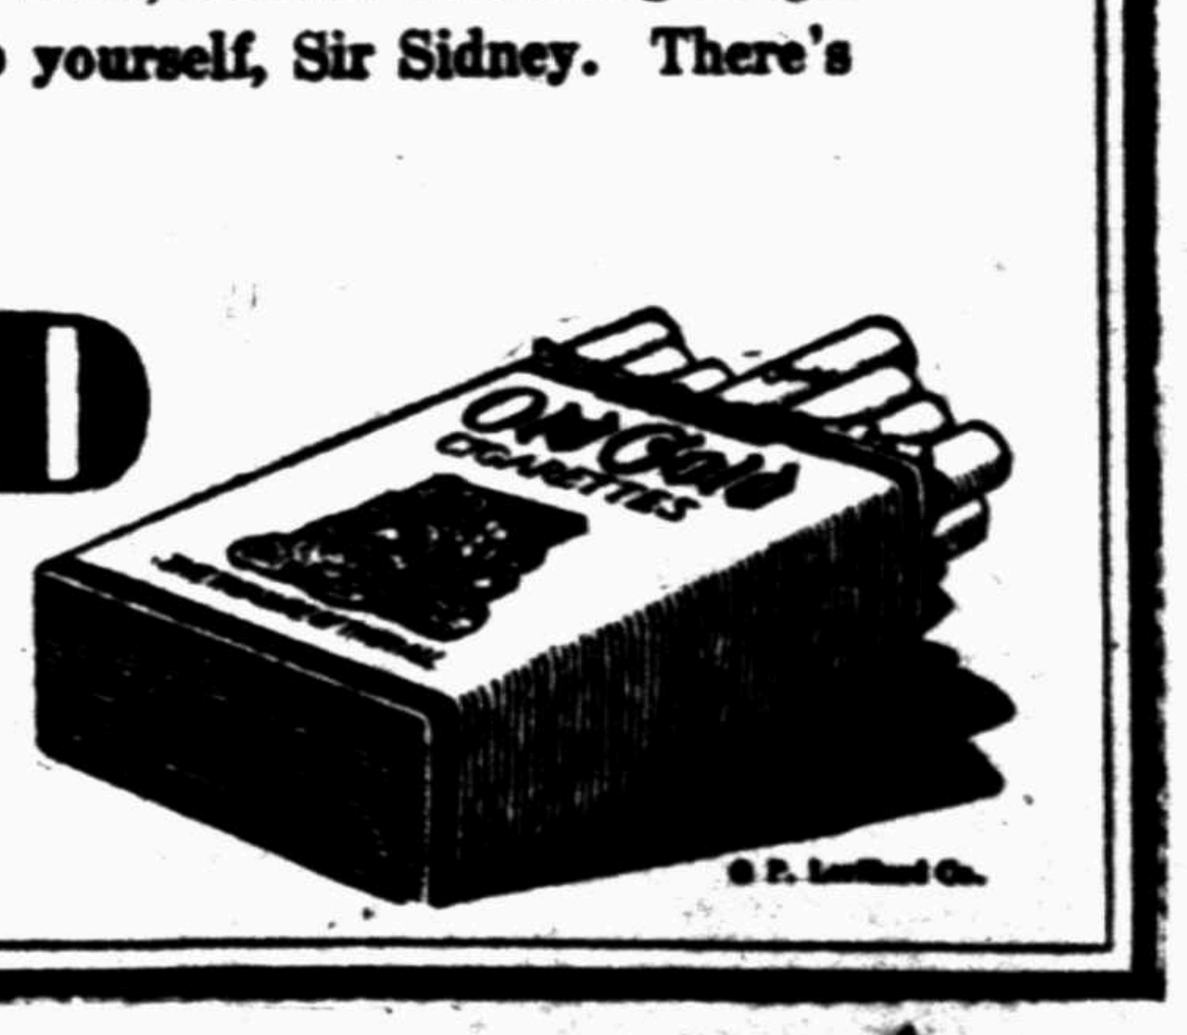

"ONE STEP CLOSER AND I JUMP!" CRIED the LAST of the D'UBERVILLES

"B-but Tess, I'm asking you to be my wife," stammered Sir Sidney Sissingham.

"What," cried the fiery fraulein, "you'd call me 'wife' in rasping tones like those. Never! Before you dare presume, sir, learn what wonders, upon frayed vocal cords, are worked by honey-smooth, queen-leaf tobacco. Relieve my tortured ears and your tortured throat with OLD GOLDS. Mellow your speaking voice, calm that cackling cough and soothe that squawk. OLD GOLD yourself, Sir Sidney. There's not a bark in a billion."

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, May 5. (AP)—An early decline in cotton under selling promoted by relatively easy Liverpool cables and a favorable view of present weather and crop progress was followed by very sharp recoveries in cotton today.

May contracts after selling off to 15.92, or 27 points lower rallied to 16.35, or 16 points net higher in the late trading on covering or rebuying by early sellers, while the new October contracts sold up from 14.00 to 14.32 and closed at 14.30. The general market closed firm net 15 points higher to 11 points lower.

The opening was steady at a decline of 7 to 12 points in response to the easier Liverpool cables.

Old crop positions held relatively steady, but July eased off to 16.03, making a new decline of 28 points. The new crop positions were relatively more active than recently and at the lowest showed net losses of 36 to 43 points, with the new December contract declining to 14.11 and March to 14.30.

Offerings subsided at these figures, which brought in a renewal of covering in both old and new crop months and the highest prices of the day were reached on most positions during the last half hour. July sold up to 16.48, or 17 points net higher, and closed at 16.44. While the new crop recovered most of its earlier losses selling within 4 to 9 points of Saturday's closing quotation.

At the close May was 10 points under July but 204 points above the new October. Exports today 15,271, making 6,314,937 so far this season. Port receipts 7,950. U. S. port stocks 1,635,620.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, May 5. (AP)—Cotton worked lower in fairly active trading today, the downward trend being due partly to much lower cables but principally to more favorable weather, crop reports from the interior and weakness in stocks and grain.

There was renewed selling by Wall street and the trade sold new crop months, the discount of October under July widening to more than 160 pounds.

After opening down 11 to 14 points and rallying a little on covering, prices eased to 19 to 21 points under the close of Saturday. Again declining in the early afternoon to levels 33 to 36 points under the previous close, the market rallied sharply in the late trading on improvement in stocks and recovered 33 to 43 points. It closed near the top with old crop months 16 points net up and new crop months 6 to 8 net down.

July after dropping to 15.65 down 33 points rallied to 16.08 and closed at 16.04 or 16 points net higher for the day. The general market closed steady 16 points net up to 8 down.

Liverpool at the opening was 7 to 12 points worse than due.

Financiers Blame Hoover's Statement As Stocks Plunge to New Low Levels

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, May 5. (US)—Evidence of better support from banking circles and some "bargain hunting" investment demand influenced short covering that rallied the stock market at the close of another hectic session today. The list held well at the opening but bears renewed their onslaught and all active issues registered new lows for the year before the final recovery set in.

Easing of money from renewal of 3½ to 3 per cent had no influence. Steel finished with net gain of 1½ for the day, Atchison gained 3⅜, General Electric 3⅞, American Can 1¾, Consolidated Gas 2¾, Radio 1½, Radio Keith 1½, Columbia Gas 2¾, American Telephone 3, Warner 2, Paramount 4¾, Westinghouse 6¾, Vanadium 2, Electric Power 1¾, Standard of New Jersey 2, Johns Manville 3½ and Public Service 3¾, Anaconda lost 1⅞, Foreign Power 2, Chrysler 1½, Sears-Roebuck 1⅞, Texas Gulf 2⅛, Hudson 2 points while other active stocks showed unimportant change for the day. Volume reached the largest total of the year to date amounting to 8,270,000 shares for the five hours.

"Another statement from Hoover and we'll have a panic!" was the exclamation of one market leader when asked: "What do you think?" He's not a bolshevist but a director of many organizations who is highly regarded in very conservative banking and financial circles. He is only one of many expressing such sentiment regarding the president's expression of belief that "the worst is over" just a day before the market went into its latest crash. It is such belief that fosters reports that very rich men identified with the Democratic party have been raiding the stock market with intent to discredit the administration, etc. Experienced Wall street people know these reports are bunk but the average man in the street does not and therefore is more disturbed as prices go lower. Those who know the stock market realize that there is no group strong enough to put the market down if the most powerful international bankers do not want it lower.

"Bill Danforth," the operator most mentioned in the street as a bear, in talking with this writer, declared the present situation was "very regrettable because so many people are being hurt." This might cause a laugh among many brokers but from what is known of Danforth it was a very honest declaration. In fact he and some other operators known to Wall street as professional bears have been more honest the few times they have expressed opinions or made statements than many bankers, brokers, et al, who push stocks in rising markets mainly for liquidating purposes. The bear operates in most instances on his own judgment and with his own money.

If the automobile trade is as reliable an index as is believed, last week's stock market alone put business back three or four months. A leading automobile official declares the last few days of last week witnessed several cancellations and a falling off in inquiries from potential buyers of new cars. He lays it entirely to the stock market; or rather to the nervousness aroused by the advices that go through the country by brokerage wires, newspapers, etc., that reflect the sentiment of Wall street and are taken as showing the views of the financial kings. While the automobile trade may be the first to reflect the result, a similar influence is ultimately reflected in chain stores and all other retail fields that ultimately effects manufacturers and producers.

While the international bankers give their time to reparations those very rich folks able to take advantage of bargains again are interested in the stock market. They don't want the bottom and always buy on a scale down. Having faith that the huge potential wealth of the country ultimately must influence security price trend irrespective of internatioinal financing plans, etc., they buy to hold. It is such buying that takes the short selling and liquidation in such stocks as Eastman Kodak, Steel, Consolidated Gas, American International, Foster Wheeler, Westinghouse, Allis Chalmers, American Can, Electric Bond & Share, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Standard of California and others. Railroads usually are a month or so behind the industrials.

Sterling turned a little firmer but the foreign exchange market generally remained highly irregular. Cotton remained soft while wheat and other grains remained under the influence of bearish pressure.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 5. (AP)—Dollar-a-bushel prices for wheat overtook the market here today owing in large measure to fresh wide-open breaks of quotations on stocks.

Wheat, corn and oats all outdid bottom-price records heretofore touched this season. Auspicious practical completion of seeding of the United States spring wheat crop had a contributing bearish effect on the wheat market, and so likewise did improvement of crop prospects for domestic winter wheat.

Wheat valued closed unsteady at but little above the day's lowest level, ¼ to ⅜c under Saturday's finish. Corn closed 1¼c off to ⅜c up, oats ⅛ to 1c down, and provisions unchanged to 7c decline.

Lowest prices of the day and the season were reached in wheat in the last few minutes of trading despite announcement of a liberal decrease of 3,332,000 bushels in the United States wheat visible supply.

A falling-off of 96,000 bushels in the amount of wheat on ocean passage was noted.

Corn and oats were influenced by the downward course of wheat. May corn, however, was relatively strong, and was about the only exception to generally lower prices for grain.

Provisions were responsive to grain weakness, although hog values were steady.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—May 98¼c, $1.02¼; July 99¼c, $1.04¾; Sept, $1.02⅛-¼, $1.06¾; Dec. $1.06⅞, $1.11. Corn—July 78⅞c, 81¼-¼c; Sept. 79¾-80c, 82⅛-¼c; Dec. 74¼c, 78¼-⅜c.

PIT NOTES

CHICAGO, May 5. (US)—Generally the opinion of the wheat trade seems to be that the bearishness in the situation is pretty well discounted and that any developments stand better than an even chance of aiding the constructive side. Commission houses are suggesting taking this view of the market, though there is little expectation for any sustained buying to develop under present circumstances.

Country selling at present dominates the corn trade. Advances in futures prices bring out increased offerings, while breaks depress marketings. Hence there is support on the dips and selling pressure on the bulges.

Shipments of wheat have started from Montreal and moderate quantities cleared during the past week. Indications are, Broomhall states, that shipments from this port will increase from now on.

Construction of a 1,000,000-bushel terminal elevator in Minneapolis by the Farmers Union Terminal Association of St. Paul was begun last week as the first step in a building program which will increase the organization's grain storage capacity from the present 1,000,000 bushels to 5,000,000 bushels. A million-bushel addition to the association's St. Paul elevator is to be started at once.

St. Louis wires spoke of a better clearance of hard wheat, but added that the sale of soft wheat flour for export was very light.

A REGULAR CHILD

LONDON.—Princess Elizabeth, wee lassie of the royal family, is a princess in name only. At heart she is only a child. She recently played a childish prank on one of the sentries of Buckingham palace. Observing that every time she passed him he presented arms, the little tot started to walk back and forth in front of him. The sentry presented arms so often he nearly fell of exhaustion.

Landowners Made Texas Citizens by Border Ruling Meet to Protect Titles

HOLLIS, Okla., May 5. (UP)—Unusual crowds assembled here today for a joint meeting of state officials and residents of the disputed Oklahoma-Texas boundary strip for purpose of perfecting an organization to defend land titles of former Oklahomans.

The organization was completed with W. P. Ponder, Mangum, president; Bert Branigan, Hollis, secretary. County presidents as follows: C. R. Fox, Ellis county; Charles Boren, Beckham county; John Chandler, Roger Mills county, and R. D. Miller, Harmon county.

Gray-haired men and women sat in silence as Chairman R. D. Miller, Hollis attorney, introduced the speakers from the Oklahoma legislature in following order: Bill Williams, Mangum; W. C. Austin, Altus; Alvin Moore, Cheyenne; Harry Dunning, Arnett; S. W. Carmack, Gould, concluding with Attorney General J. Berry King, who told of the efforts on the part of Oklahoma officials to preserve the home owners titles and pledged all future aid within his power.

One speaker likened the gathering to a funeral, with speakers as pallbearers, delivering orations to the once happy owners of Oklahoma homes, the titles to which have probably been lost in the transfer of the land to Texas.

At the Theaters

By W. L. UNDERWOOD

LITTLE THEATER, Avenue H and Polk street, 8:15 p. m.: Eulu Vollmer's "Sun-Up." Last play of the season.

STRAND: "Hold Everything," with Winnie Lightner and Joe Brown keeping their mouths amazingly open. Georges Carpentier in two rounds of exhibition boxing. "He Trumped Her Ace," bridge comedy. Song feature. Sound news.

STATE: "Phantom of the Opera," sound production with Lon Chaney and others of original cast. "Dad Knows Best," comedy. Sound news.

MAJESTIC: Joan Crawford in "Montana Moon." Nothing lacking but a good story and authenticity in the ballad-singing. "Chansons Russe," symphony orchestra feature. Talking comedy. Sound news.

GEM: "The Virginian," with Gary Cooper, Dick Arlen, Walt Huston, Mary Brian. "Campus Carmen," Comedy.

Even to those who thrilled to the original showing of Lon Chaney's gruesome mask in "The Phantom of the Opera" the revival with sound now featuring the State's program is using up many rolls of tickets. All in all, it is an interesting experiment as well as remaining a fascinating story. Regardless of Mr. Chaney's present disposition (it is rumored that he has capitulated to the sound-films) it is apparent to a blind man that the big mask man had nothing whatever to do with making this reconstructed "Phantom."

Most of the preliminary action, leading up to the spiriting away of Christine, has been photographed anew. Beginning with the young prima donna's disappearance into the cellars the original film is used. As the phantom sits at his underground organ, synchronized sound creates the illusion of sound photography, an improvement accomplished also in the gorgeous pageant of the "Bal Masque." Again on the roof of the opera—and here's new wine in an old bottle!—the two lovers snuggle against the tower and audibly outline their plans before a sound-camera, while on the carved figure above the enraged "Phantom" gestures furiously and by pantomime delivers what must have been thunderous invectives as his robes flapped noisily in the wind—but that was silent film.

After 30 minutes of highly acceptable dialog and delightfully clear reproduction of the opera "Faust," transition to the pantomime and printed sub-title as of old is surprisingly difficult—for a few moments. Should you doubt that talking pictures have taken a toe-hold on your receptive equipment, try it out on this "Phantom." The appeal of the story as a whole, however, is more definitely demonstrated by that fact, for the composition-production overcomes those occasional jerks to develop a steady pull on the best of nerves.

Sharing the current Majestic bill with Joan Cradford's "Montana Moon" and marking national observance of "music week" is a medley of Russian melodies arranged by Boris Morros, Paramount's music supervisor, and played by the New York Publix Symphony orchestra under Conductor Rubinoff. A commendable concert performance is screened with eminent success—and has actually drawn a goodly round of applause at each performance.

CANARY NIGHTINGALES

BREMEN.—Karl Reich has succeeded in developing a strain of canaries which sing like nightingales. He filled his room with both species of birds. When the young canaries were born, the parent birds were removed from the room. The small birds, hearing nothing but music of the nightingales, readily adopted it in place of their own characteristic singing.

KIWANIS HEARS TREATY TALK

Native of England Speaks On Rush-Bagot Pact

Celebration of the signing of the Rush-Bago's treaty between Canada and the United States in 1818 with O. E. Nichols, native of England, as the principal speaker, featured the weekly meeting of the Kiwanis club at the Kemp hotel Monday noon.

Relations between Canada and the United States during their entire history were traced by Mr. Nicholls in the course of his address. With reference to North America, he predicted the ultimate formation of "a great federation extending from the arctic to the Rio Grande." Other historic data bearing directly upon Canadian history were cited by the speaker. Service clubs such as Kiwanis International, he said, have contributed tremendously to building of international friendships.

F. W. Boardman and M. E. Wallace were welcomed as new members of the Kiwanis club by Walter H. Caldwell. C. J. Pate was appointed chairman of a committee to select a horseshoe pitching team for the city tournament.

Plans for a bridge tournament to be held on May 16 at the Wichita club were announced by Mrs. R. H. Peterson and Mrs. Charles F. Watson, who are in charge of arrangements. Proceeds will go to the Kiwanis park fund.

Entertainment Monday consisted of a song, "O Canada," sung by William E. Young, and orchestral numbers by the National Broadcasting Hawaiian orchestra, which plays with the Morris and Castle shows now in this city.

Woman Hiker Dies In Canyon Storm

PASADENA, Calif., May 5. (INS)—Mrs. Mildred Percy, 35, Chicago, Ill., welfare worker and educator, was dead today after attempting a five mile night hike through a blinding snowstorm in the San Antonio canyon.

CARDBOARD CHURCH

JOHANNESBURG—One of the oddest churches in the world, that at Benoni, about 20 miles from here, is to be moved from its present site. This church is constructed entirely of cardboard and beaver board, and was sent from England about 20 years ago in sections. It has been extensively used and has proven efficient.

Wichita Concerns Taking Space For Displays in Industrial Mart

Additional reservations of space in the new Industrial Mart, both by local dealers and chambers of commerce of nearby cities, were reported Monday by officials of the Junior chamber of commerce.

Among the firms planning displays in the new exhibit will be the Auto Spring and Supply company, whose entry will be a set-up of machinery which will be kept in motion while the mart is open, it was said.

Three additional Wichita Falls firms reserved booths late Monday, according to the announcement of Jerry Vinson. They were the Remington-Rand company, Draughon's Business college and the Standard Supply company.

Two additional displays on the second floor of the building were assured when chambers of commerce in Electra and Frederick, Okla., notified the local organization of their acceptance of proffered space.

Owing to small representation of the varied oil industries among the exhibits thus far announced, the petroleum division of the Junior chamber of commerce met Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock with Alvah Conner, chairman, and planned a systematic canvass of that industry in this community with a view to obtaining the participation of more firms.

Plans for opening on Saturday are being carried out rapidly, it was said. A large electric sign, 5 by 8 feet in size, will be hung Thursday, and all construction and painting of booths is to be finished by Thursday evening, according to the information given. Exhibitors are expected to have their displays completely installed Friday, ready for the formal opening on Saturday morning.

Oklahoma City business men, who are expected to spend a day and night here on May 12, will be taken through the new exhibition here, it was said.

Famous Financier Retires at Sixty

NEW YORK, May 5. (UP)—A. P. Giannini, founder of the trans-America corporation and the most colorful banking figure of his age, will retire from executive capacities in all his companies tomorrow—his 60th birthday—it was announced tonight.

His retirement makes good his statement when in 1924 he turned over the presidency of the Bank of Italy to his successor—that he would step out of active office at 60.

Mother Counts 18 Sets of Twins in Her Brood of 37

MEXICO CITY, May 5. (US)—Senora Juana Barrena de Chavarria, mother of 37 children, will probably be crowned queen of Mexican mothers during the celebration of National Mothers week, which begins here Saturday.

Senora Barrena de Chavarria bore only one single child, the first. The rest of the family arrived in duplicate—18 sets of twins. Not only is she "queen" in that she gave birth to the greatest number of children of any known Mexican mother, but she raised them all.

The senora is an Indian, living near the small town of San Bartolome in Chiapas, with her duly wedded spouse, Leoncio Chavarria. Twenty-five of her offspring are boys and 12 are girls. All are living, and have brought to their mother several hundred grandchildren.

The Chavarrias expect to round out the number of their children to 40, even though they live in the most abject poverty. Neither parents nor children are able to read or write.
