Voters Will Make Decisions Saturday

With interest spurred by several state and district races as well as a number of local contests, Howard County voters will march to the polls Saturday to express their choices of public officials for the next two, four and six years.

Although there is only one contested county-wide race here, intensive campaigns for the governorship and a seat in the U. S. Senate are expected to help attract a representative number of Howard Countyans to the voting booths.

The county's voting strength this year is something in excess of 9,000. Some authorities on local politics are predicting that 6,000 may go to the polls. Others, pointing to the single county-wide race, say the number will be smaller.

The polls will be open from 8 a. m. to 7 p. m. Saturday. Two voting boxes—Seash and Morris—have been abolished since the last election. One new box has been created in Big Spring. It is No. 15 and takes in what formerly was a part of Box No. 2 in Big Spring. Area covered by the new box is in two segments—from 4th St. to 11th Place between Main and Goliad, and from 11th Place south to the city limit between Goliad and Settles.

Voters in the two areas will ballot at Turner Junior High School, 10th and Runnels. Voters in the old Seash and Morris boxes have been divided among other boxes in those areas. Others will ballot in the customary places.

Election officials point out that voters who are not sure about their voting places will find their box (precinct) numbers on their poll tax receipts.

Headlining the local elections is the race between John Richard Coffee, incumbent, and Wayne Burns for the post of county attorney.

Five candidates are seeking the county commissioner's seat in Precinct 2. They are G. E. Gilliam, the incumbent, and M. A. Lilly, Sam A. McComb, Ralph White and W. T. (Tommy) Cole.

Earl Hull, veteran commissioner from Precinct 4, has five opponents in that contest. The other candidates are A. E. (Arle) Suggs, J. W. (Jim) Little, Roy Bruce, Willis Walker and L. J. Davidson.

The only other contested races on the local level are for Justice of the Peace, Precinct 1, Place 2, in Big Spring and Justice of the Peace, Precinct 2, in Coahoma. Seeking the Big Spring office are the incumbent, A. M. Sullivan, and Russell Johnson, Dr. Gale J. Page and Jess Slaughter. Candidates for the Coahoma post are Mrs. T. H. McCann Sr., the incumbent, and J. L. Brown.

Unopposed locally are Charlie Sullivan, asking re-election as district judge; Wade Choate, seeking a new term as district clerk; Ed Carpenter, bidding to succeed the

Appeal Planned In Sexton Case

CLEBURNE, Tex. (AP)—Special Judge Atwood McDonald and attorneys for opposing claimants of the multi-million dollar estate of eccentric octogenarian J. E. Sexton will confer here Wednesday.

Judge McDonald yesterday refused to admit to probate a will purportedly signed by Sexton which would have left the bulk of his oil and ranch lands and other assets to attractive Mrs. Agnes Kirk, operator of a Cleburne rest home at which he once stayed.

The judge said he was refusing to admit the will to probate because he did not believe the late W. T. Mayo signed the will as a witness and that if he did sign he was not mentally competent to do so.

Sexton's sister and four nieces, who were cut off with $100 each by the will, are contesting the will.

Attorneys for both Mrs. Kirk and for Sexton's relatives filed notice of appeal.

The case is expected to be heard by a district court jury.

Coahoma Asks Bids On Installing New Sewer System

COAHOMA (SC)—Bids will be received on Aug. 15 for construction of a sanitary sewer system in Coahoma.

Included in the project will be the installation of 36,656 feet of varying sizes of sewer lines, plus units of the treatment plant. These included an Imhoff tank, sludge drying beds and oxidation ponds.

Plans drawn up by Parkhill, Smith and Cooper, 201 Ave. R, Lubbock, call for 4,500 feet of 10-inch line, 4,925 feet of 8-inch line and 27,200 feet of 6-inch line.

Plans are on file at the office of the city secretary in Coahoma, at the engineer's office in Lubbock, or the Texas Contractor in Dallas. Bids are to be filed with Mrs. Mattie Miller, city secretary, prior to 2:30 p. m. on the opening date.

Defense Change Bill Goes To Ike

WASHINGTON (AP)—The big battle over defense reorganization is over. Only President Eisenhower's signature is needed to put it in effect.

Congress completed action on the once controversial issue Thursday when both House and Senate quickly passed a compromise reorganization bill by voice vote.

Eisenhower is expected to give his quick approval. He said he is satisfied with the bill, which gives him most of the authority he sought to reorganize the nation's complex and sprawling defense forces and to streamline the chain of command.

retiring R. H. Weaver as county judge; Pauline Petty, asking re-election as county clerk; Frances Glenn, asking a new term as county treasurer; and Walker Bailey, seeking re-election as county school superintendent.

Under the new system of four-year terms, the offices of sheriff, county tax assessor and county commissioners for Precincts 1 and 3 will not be up for election until 1960.

The U. S. Senate race in which Ralph Yarborough's bid for re-election is challenged by William A. Blakely heads the list of state races in which local interest has mounted steadily the last few days. Voters also will choose a governor from the field that includes Price Daniel, incumbent, W. Lee O'Daniel, Henry B. Gonzalez and Joe A. Irwin.

Other contested state races are for lieutenant governor, pitting the incumbent Ben Ramsey against George Nokes; Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, Place No. 1, with J. Edwin Smith, Robert W. Hamilton and Wilmer B. Hunt as candidates; Place No. 4, Joe Greenhill and Sarah T. Hughes as candidates; commissioner of the state land office, L. J. Dimmitt versus Bill Alcorn; and commissioner of agriculture, with John C. White, Tom Griffin and Glenn H. Kothmann competing.

Howard County voters also will have a voice in choosing a state senator for this district. Incumbent David Ratliff of Stamford is opposed by State Rep. Robert Patterson of Snyder.

Unopposed are Will Wilson for attorney general, Frank P. Culver for Place 2 on the supreme court, Ruel C. Walker for Place 3 on the supreme court, Kenneth Woodley for the court of criminal appeals, Olin Culberson for railroad commissioner, Robert Calvert for comptroller of public accounts, Jesse James for state treasurer, George Mahon, U. S. representative from this district, Kenneth Woodley for state representative, Clyde Grissom for chief justice of the 11th court of civil appeals, and Esco Walter for associate justice of the 11th court of civil appeals.

This third firing of the Thor with a Vanguard second stage went 6,000 miles before landing in the Atlantic Ocean where an attempt was made to recover the nose cone.

Hope Dims For Little Space Rat

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Specially equipped ships and planes continued searching the Atlantic today but hope dimmed that Wickie the space mouse would be recovered inside a nose cone after an intercontinental range flight.

The tiny white mouse was enclosed in the nose cone of a Thor-Able rocket that streaked 6,000 miles through space Wednesday.

The recovery unit resumed the search in the South Atlantic near Ascension Island, but Air Force officials said today's effort probably would be the last attempt to find the nose cone.

The hunt was called off temporarily Thursday night when darkness closed in and the searchers failed to receive signals from a beacon transmitter inside the nose cone recovery package.

Once the nose cone hit the water after a blazing, 12,000 m.p.h. re-entry from space, a 27-inch orange and blue balloon inflated automatically. The balloon floated on the surface with the nose cone suspended 30 feet below, but it appeared as a dot in the wide expanse of ocean.

If Wickie still was alive she had enough oxygen, food and water to last for about six weeks. Technicians still were analyzing telemetry data which will tell how the mouse's heart reacted to the hectic journey.

Cement Plant Set For Odessa Area

DALLAS (AP)—Western Cement Corp. said today it would build a $8,500,000 cement plant in the Odessa-Midland area.

President Everett Knott said the area has been under study for three years, and plans are now complete.

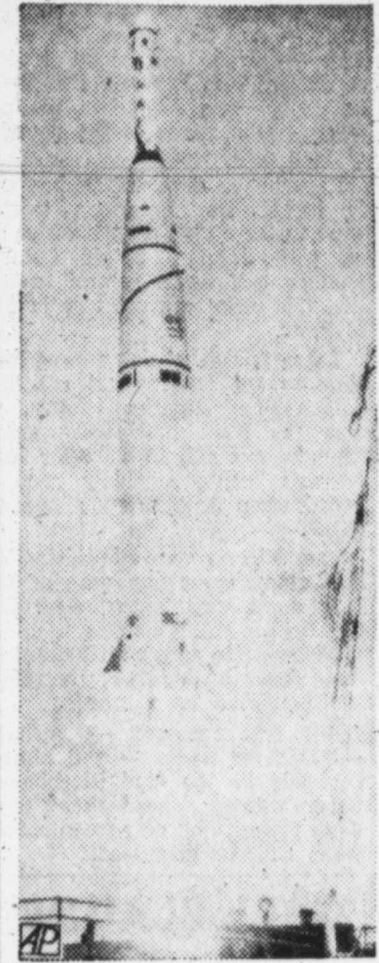

The plant near Odessa will have an annual capacity of 1,400,000 barrels of cement.

Farm Bill Backers Claim Wool Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate backers of a limited new farm program claimed important support of wool area senators today in their effort to push through a bill that will avoid a presidential veto.

A thumping 67-7 vote last night tacked a four-year extension of the federal wool subsidy program onto the bill previously covering only cotton, rice, corn and feed grains. The vote climaxed a marathon 12-hour Senate session.

Sen. Allen Ellender (D-La.), floor manager for a bipartisan bloc, said he hoped to complete action on the controversial measure and send it on to the House before the Senate quits tonight.

Ellender is willing to add some additional sections to the Senate bill, such as an extension of the surplus disposal program and special provisions for a long staple cotton program.

But he and other supporters have bluntly told the Senate that other major amendments—such as addition of new programs for dairy producers or wheat farmers—would assure a presidential veto.

Secretary of Agriculture Benson has indicated support of the bill—if other provisions are not written into it.

Last night's initial test was not considered a true measure of Senate sentiment. Sens. Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.), Clinton Anderson (D-Mo.) and Stuart Symington (D-NM), William Proxmire, (D-Mo.), who had spent hours criticizing the measure, voted for the wool amendment.

They complained that cotton, rice and wool area senators were ganging up against dairy, wheat and other farm sections. Humphrey assailed the wool amendment as a "divide and conquer" special interest device to pick up

Delaware Solon Hits Wool Subsidy As 'Gravy Train'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. John Williams (R-Del.) denounced the government's subsidy program for wool producers last night as a "socialistic gravy train."

He told the Senate the big and rich get most of the benefits. Williams raised his objections in a losing fight against an amendment to the farm bill which would continue the multi-million dollar subsidy program for four more years. In addition, it would authorize for the first time direct appropriations from the Treasury to help finance it.

Williams said the fund from which the payments have been made is broke, and that appropriations will be needed to supplement revenues from tariff duties on the wool imports which have financed it until now.

He said the program was authorized in 1954 with promises it would be self-supported from tariff duties.

Williams obtained the Senate's permission to publish in the Congressional Record a list of wool producers who received subsidy payments of $10,000 or more apiece in 1956. He said this is the latest available.

Williams said the Agriculture

Hundreds Of Early Settlers Gather For Annual Reunion

Old timers and hundreds of others who probably could not quite qualify for that distinction were converging on City Park Friday morning for the celebration of the 34th annual reunion of the Howard and Glasscock County Old Settlers Assn.

Nearly a ton of choice beef and goat, done to a turn on the big barbecue pits, was being sliced for serving as 11 a. m. rolled around. Huge pots of beans, quantities of the traditional "son-of-a-gun" of West Texas get-togethers, along with onions, pickles and bread were being arranged on long tables.

Politicians who are now on the eve of election day were being urged at that hour to assemble at the loudspeaker truck and impress the throngs of their statesmanlike qualities.

The big event was the dinner at which the barbecue will be the piece de resistance. How many would eat was not certain but it seemed probable, in the opinion of veterans of many other reunions of the association, that one of the largest turnouts in history was gathering.

The association had recruited a small army of volunteers to help in serving the noon-day meal and to deal with the hundreds of other details which such an occasion generates. Here, too, the politicians were regarded as natural choices and most office seekers had discarded coats, hats and ties and were wearing long white aprons as they became for the busboys.

More than 300 had registered officially at 11 a. m. Scores of others were standing in line waiting their turn to register. Usually each registrant dropped a handful of change or a bill into the registration box. All of this money plus a sizeable amount collected in advance will be needed to pay for the big celebration.

Nervy Pair Ready For Space Jaunt

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP)—A pair of nervy aeronauts today prepared for a 24-hour jaunt into space slung beneath a paper-thin plastic balloon.

Navy Cmdr. Malcolm D. Ross and former Navy balloonist M. Lee Lewis were scheduled to take off on a flight designed to carry them nearly 15 miles above the earth.

The takeoff is contingent on late weather reports.

The balloon, 172 feet in diameter, will be launched from a deep open pit iron mine near Crosby, Minn.

Ross and Lewis will be testing the "strato-lab" aluminum gondola and its complex scientific equipment for maintaining an artificial atmosphere.

Equipment inside the ball-shaped gondola will provide them with oxygen and air conditioning, and will remove the excess moisture and impurities in the air they breathe.

The flight will be a test for a forthcoming "Project Mars" flight in November when a Johns Hopkins University astronomer, Dr. John Strong, will make spectrographic photographs of Mars' atmosphere.

Among the 50 side experiments planned for today's flight will be testing a small television camera and sending its signals back to earth. The National Broadcasting Co. network will attempt to pick up the pictures live.

About 10,000 insects will be carried along in a Department of Agriculture cosmic ray experiment. Effects of the rays on the genetic mutation of the bugs may give an indication of their effect on human space travelers of the future.

Governor, Senator Races Hold Stage

By ROBERT E. FORD
DALLAS (AP)—Candidates in Texas' biennial political circus put the finishing touches on their acts today in preparation for tomorrow's primaries.

It mainly will be a Democratic show. The party will nominate a governor, senator, four U. S. representatives, a dozen or so other state office hopefuls, a legislative slate and hundreds of local and district candidates.

Republicans also will hold primaries, but they will be going through the motions, since only one major office is contested—for U. S. Representative from Dallas County.

Both parties also will hold precinct conventions tomorrow. The GOP has come up with no controversial issues. But the Democrats will go through their traditional fight between conservative and liberals for control.

The factions will seek enough strength in the precincts to control the county conventions a week later, and therefore the state convention in September. Capture of the state convention means control of the party machinery. Both party segments really are aiming at 1960, when delegates to the convention will be selected.

The race striking the most fire between Ralph Yarborough, seeking re-election to the Senate, and William Blakely, trying to unseat the junior senator.

Blakely has campaigned on a conservative, states-rights platform. He accuses Yarborough of being dominated by out-of-state labor groups.

Yarborough denies he is dominated by any group and has attacked Blakely on the issues of farm programs, subsidies for Braniff airlines of which Blakely is a stockholder, and Blakely's record when he was a senator for four months.

GOP CANDIDATE

The winner will face GOP candidate Roy Whittenburg of Amarillo.

Another major statewide race is for governor, with Price Daniel seeking renomination against three opponents. One is the old campaigner and former governor and senator, W. Lee O'Daniel. State Sen. Henry Gonzalez, the only person of Mexican descent ever to run for Texas governor, shows signs of obtaining strong support. Another candidate is Joe Irwin of Dallas, a semi-retired real estate and insurance man running on a cleanup platform.

The winner will face Edwin S. Mayer, Sonora, the Republican choice.

A bitter fight also has developed between Ben Ramsey, incumbent lieutenant governor, and George Nokes, who is attempting to win his post.

Eighteen Texas members of the U. S. House face no opposition either in the Democratic primary. Neither do they have GOP opposition in November's general election.

Strangest race is for the Republican nomination for the House in Dallas County. Rep. Bruce Alger is seeking his third term as the only GOP member of the Texas congressional delegation. His opposition is Grover Cantrell, a former Democrat who says he still is a "Stevenson Republican."

Cantrell is a leader of the Communications Workers of America.

A vote turnout of about 1,300,000 from a potential vote of 2,055,318 is expected. Polls open at 7 a. m. (CST) and close at 7 p. m.

$1.2 Billion Added To Defense Money

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the Senate Appropriations Committee has its way, President Eisenhower will receive $1,200,000,000 more in defense money than he requested for the year that began July 1. The committee yesterday approved a measure to provide $40,032,000,000 for Defense Department operations. This sum not only gives Eisenhower more than he sought, but tops by $1,600,000,000 the amount authorized in a House bill passed last month.

Some senators contend the administration isn't expanding the nation's defense program fast enough in the light of Soviet scientific progress and the Middle East crisis.

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex), Senate majority leader, told Secretary of Defense McNamara he was disappointed over what he described as a lack of grim urgency in the defense establishment.

"We must work today as though there would never be a tomorrow," said Johnson.

Most of the increases approved by the Appropriations Committee would provide additional airpower.

An additional $108,700,000 was provided for 13 more long-range jet B52G bombers. The House had provided money for 39.

An item of $111,180,000 was earmarked for 30 additional KC135 jet tankers. The House program had called for 26.

The committee proposed an increase of 140 million dollars to expand the capacity of the Air Force to carry troops and supplies.

It supported the House proposals to grant increases for nuclear submarines, ballistic missiles, research programs and to prevent Pentagon cutbacks in manpower.

A sizable portion of the Senate hikes over the House figures would go toward meeting the costs of new military pay raises.

'Weird' Is Word To Describe Diplomacy Of Last 7 Months

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—This has been an almost weird seven months in high diplomacy. During most of that time—until now—it would have been hard to find anyone willing to bet a dime on a summit conference in 1958.

Now it seems assured. But at a price. The Soviets have scored a smashing propaganda victory by forcing the conference. The United States practically had to be dragged into it.

It remains to be seen—after the results are known—whether the conference turns out to be a farce and this country was right in its reluctance to meet with Premier Khrushchev.

There is no exact parallel in history for these past seven months. They produced a shower of letters between President Eisenhower and Khrushchev, hairsplitting, and the kind of progress that never, until now, amounted to anything except one step forward and one step back. In short, nothing.

The Soviets started it last December with a letter to Eisenhower, proposing a meeting at the top. The administration thought it could brush it off by letting a press officer dismiss it as propaganda before the State Department released a translation of the Soviet note.

QUICKLY SHAKEN
This cavalier treatment didn't work. Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles were quickly shaken out of that attitude by the reaction of American allies who wanted much more serious attention given the Soviet proposal.

Nevertheless, Eisenhower and Dulles dabbled about answering it, giving the Soviets almost a solid month in which to parade before the world as unanswered peace-lovers.

And before Eisenhower finally got off his reply to the first Soviet note, the Soviets sent another. Even Dulles by then indicated the Soviets were beating us in propaganda. The administration decided to be a little quicker in the future.

Then began the rain of letters, with the Soviets urging haste and Eisenhower taking the position there should not be a summit meeting until there had been adequate preparation for it and all sides agreed thoroughly on what they'd discuss.

Without such preparation, of course, a summit meeting, could turn into a shooting gallery. But the whole idea seemed to collapse last month when the Soviets suddenly broke off negotiations with Western ambassadors in Moscow on preparations for a summit together.

TOUGH TIME
They did this at a time when—for a reason still incomprehensible—they abruptly turned tough in all directions. For a time, they appeared not to care what the rest of the world thought. Whatever propaganda gains they had made were suddenly being thrown away. But Khrushchev saw a new and golden chance to score on the West—and took advantage of it fast—when American troops were sent into Lebanon and British troops into Jordan at the request of the heads of government of both countries.

Khrushchev moved fast, but not in haste. The American troops went in July 15. Khrushchev waited until July 19 before issuing another call for a summit meeting, this time to avoid war in the Mideast.

Those few days' delay gave him time to see what world reaction was to the American move. It was far from universally good. Thus he was able to know for sure he was hitting a widely popular chord when he wrote his summit letter.

The Eisenhower administration still didn't want any part of sitting down with Khrushchev. But the British did. This left it up to Eisenhower to split with Britain or trail along behind her. He reluctantly agreed to a meeting.

But this meeting—perhaps within three weeks—will almost certainly be the kind Eisenhower never wanted: one without thorough preparation or agreement on what will be discussed.

Miss U.S.A.

Eurlene Howell, 18-year-old honey blonde coed, from Bossier City, La., stands with her trophy, crown and scepter after she was named Miss United States of America at the Miss Universe contest in Long Beach, California. She is 5 feet 6, weighs 119 and measures 36-23½-35½. She is the daughter of a retired oil well driller.

Pessimist Having A Wonderful Time

NORTON, Kan. (AP) — "I haven't got a chance but I'm having a wonderful time."

Strange words from a man seeking the Republican nomination for governor of Kansas. But Harvey F. Crough, a farmer and school teacher from Minneola, said he has no illusions about the outcome.

"Either Clyde Reed or Fred Hall will be nominated," he said Wednesday during a campaign visit here.

However, he is campaigning hard, because "my candidacy gives the Republican voter who might be dissatisfied with the two main contenders a chance to register that dissatisfaction without staying away from the polls."

They'll Have To Go By The Numbers

BEDFORD, Pa. (AP) — Come September pupils at Bedford High School may have difficulty deciding whether they're in the right sociology class. Twin brothers, John and James Forsha of Johnstown, Pa., have been engaged to teach the subject next semester.

Wonders If He's Accident Prone

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Jazz musician Charlie Ventura wonders if he's becoming accident prone. Last Saturday he broke a toe in a home accident. While mounting the stage at the Sans Souci Hotel yesterday the 40-year-old saxophonist fell and broke five ribs. He'll be offstage three to four weeks.

Foe Of Foreign Oil Interests Signs Anyway

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — President Arturo Frondizi, long a foe of foreign participation in Argentine oil development, announced last night agreements with U.S., Soviet and West European companies to help increase oil production.

The foreign companies will aid Argentina's oil monopoly YPF to triple domestic production, Frondizi said. Argentina now produces about 33 million barrels of oil a year and has a perennial shortage.

To ease the current shortage, contracts were signed for the Soviet Union to deliver 8,125,000 barrels of oil by next July and Colombia to supply 15 million dollars worth.

Frondizi was elected president last February on a platform that supported the strong popular feeling against allowing foreign capital to dominate the extraction of Argentine resources. The Argentines, however, lack both the capital and technical know-how to develop their oil fast enough to keep pace with the demand.

Frondizi conceded in a radio-television speech last night that he would be criticized for his decision to deal with foreign companies but he said Argentina's sovereignty would not be affected.

The largest contract was signed with a group of U.S. and European companies, including the Atlas Corp., the Hidden Splendor Mining Co., Petro Atlas, Inc., Williams Brothers Co., Mid-Continent Exploration and Ferrosal AG of Germany.

FACTS PROVISIONS

This contract provides for:
1. 50 million dollars worth of equipment and machinery to be supplied YPF over three years, to be paid for in pesos and dollars.
2. Drilling of about 4,000 wells in the Comodoro Rivadavia area of Patagonia, about 900 miles south-southwest of Buenos Aires, within six years with equipment supplied by the foreign companies.
3. Installation of a five-million-dollar plant for local production of oil industry equipment.

4. Supply of a minimum of 18 million barrels of oil over a period of two to three years.

5. A study for construction of a new gas pipeline between Comodoro Rivadavia and Buenos Aires.

Frondizi said the group also committed itself to lend the Central Bank of Argentina 30 million dollars.

Pan American International Oil Co. has signed a separate contract to drill some 300 to 400 oil wells for YPF, Frondizi said. This investment is expected to total 60 million dollars.

A third agreement provides for Lane-Wells of the United States to invest 2½ million dollars for oil well repairs, Frondizi announced, but this could be increased to 10 million.

A "letter of intentions" has been signed with the Belgian company Petrofina covering a possible contract for drilling 200 wells, Frondizi said.

"Just a few hours ago," Frondizi said, "the Russian government informed our government it is ready to sell machinery for oil exploitation for 100 million dollars, to be paid for in Argentine primary goods in long installments."

Experts Doubt Chiang's Son Will Cause Succession Trouble

By SPENCER MOOSA

TAIPEI (AP)—The future role of President Chiang Kai-shek's elder son, Chiang Ching-kuo, is a question raised by almost every politically minded visitor to Nationalist China.

There seems to be a widespread impression abroad that a power struggle between young Chiang and the Premier, Vice President Chen Cheng, is in store if anything happens to President Chiang.

But foreign diplomats in Formosa believe there will be an orderly succession if the presidency becomes vacant. In such a case the constitution provides that the vice president serves the remainder of the President's term.

People who are convinced there will be an undisturbed succession make these points: Chen Cheng is Chiang Kai-shek's acknowledged political heir; he commands power and prestige second only to Chiang's; as deputy director general of the Kuomintang, Chiang's ruling party, he will automatically succeed to its leadership.

The same quarters maintain there is no reason to believe that Chiang Ching-kuo entertains the idea of a forcible succession to the presidency or that he would necessarily succeed if he tried it.

Young Chiang, they assert, is essentially a patriot and doubtless realizes that a coup would give the Americans a chance, if they wanted it, to revise their China policy and in effect doom the chances of a Nationalist return to the mainland.

Relations between Chen Cheng and Chiang Ching-kuo are good. Although he wields a great amount of influence, the younger Chiang, a well-disciplined, unpretentious man, treats the vice president with the respect and consideration due a man senior in rank and position.

Young Chiang is 49 and if he had the political ambitions credited to him could go far by legitimate means.

If he has the desire and the necessary support, there is no reason why he might not be able to succeed in time to the premiership and ultimately even to the presidency.

Vice President Chen Cheng included him as a minister without portfolio in the new Cabinet formed July 14. This is his first Cabinet post. Young Chiang retains three other jobs: head of the retired servicemen's program, commander of the youth corps and deputy secretary general of the National Security Council.

Perils Of Job

CINCINNATI (AP)—Bookkeeper Schamuel Schuller, 51, who has filed more than 50 city income tax returns for customers, was convicted in Municipal Court on a charge of failing to file a return for himself. He said he hadn't had time because he was "so busy making out returns for customers." He was fined $100.

Drunk, Crazy Or An Insurance Plot

HICKORY, N.C. (AP) — Elmer Glenn Johnson of Valdese parked his car, got out and hailed a cab. Shortly afterward he was booked by police on a drunk charge. He had parked his car on railroad tracks at a crossing. A freight train was halted in time for police to haul the car off the tracks.

N.Y. Mayor Sees No Reason To Play Host For Khrushchev

NEW YORK (AP)—Mayor Robert F. Wagner sees no reason to play host to Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev comes here for a summit conference.

"The hosts will be the federal government and the United Nations," Wagner said, "and we have nothing to do with it."

The mayor made the comment before leaving for a vacation in California.

When King Saud of Saudi Arabia came here early last year, Wagner snubbed him on the grounds that the monarch was anti-Jewish, anti-Catholic and pro-slavery.

Some consider Wagner's remarks yesterday to mean he would be no more hospitable to Khrushchev.

A City Hall spokesman said later, however, that the city was "prepared to do whatever the federal government asked it to do in connection with the proposed extraordinary United Nations meeting."

A Bible Thought For Today

"But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and His righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." (Matthew 6:33)

A Duty You Can't Delegate

Under Texas statutes, the control of political party machinery begins with the precinct. Voters registered in a particular box or precinct come together to elect a convention chairman and secretary and to perform such other business as may seem advisable.

Usually this has to do with the adoption of certain resolutions which identifies them with one group or another. In former years the organization of a precinct convention was of no particular consequence; now it has become increasingly important because of the divergent shades of political philosophy grouped under one banner.

Thus, the precinct conventions here and over the state will reflect a struggle between those of moderate-conservative persuation and those with of arch-loyalist, liberal or labor leanings.

Speakeading the different groups are the State Democratic Executive Committee for the moderate-conservatives, and the DOT (Democrats of Texas) for the liberal-labor combine.

Claims and counter claims of the two may furnish fodder for resolutions, but underneath it all the issue is the choice between the two philosophies.

Which do you prefer? Well, the only way you will have a chance to register a choice is to attend your precinct convention Saturday evening at 7:30 p.m. You will find a listing of the places in today's Herald. You may not win, but you will have the satisfaction of having exercised your rights and of being a good citizen.

The Time To Express Your Opinion

At this hour, just before the Democratic primary election in Texas, a great number of voters already have made their decisions, and will exercise their preferences Saturday without hesitation.

There may be others still weighing the candidates, endeavoring to arrive at a vote on the basis of knowledge at hand.

It is to this latter group that The Herald invites consideration of various candidates it believes can serve Texas honestly and efficiently.

For the U. S. Senate seat from Texas, we regard William A. Blakely as a man of outstanding business background and sound political philosophy—a philosophy that conforms to those of Texans who believe in the free enterprise system, in states' rights and in the principle of the majority of the people running their government.

The Herald has advocated the re-election of Price Daniel as governor, as the best man in the field to keep the state on a progressive plane. For lieutenant governor, Ben Ramsey is a man of experience, versed in the problems of our state. For land commissioner, Bill Alcorn has done a good job under appointment, has earned an elective term, for commissioner of agriculture, the state will be well served by the election of Glenn Kothmann, a young man of proper training for the post. For the State Senate from this district, David Ratliff of Stamford has made a good record and deserves re-election.

For Place 1 on the Supreme Court, Robert W. Hamilton, a West Texan with a fine judicial record, ought to get heavy support in this area. For Place 3, Joe Greenhill, now serving under appointment, has established himself as worthy of a full term.

These are choices through opinion. This newspaper recognizes, and respects the right of all its readers to hold different opinions, and regards this right as one of the greatest American heritages.

It is one of the blessings that every individual's vote counts as much as the next one, and that every individual can exercise his own free choice at the ballot box. Our country has not yet found any method that works better, in the long run, than the expression of the majority will. This is weakened only when qualified voters fail to exercise their rights, to the extent that the majority will is not actually expressed. Be sure you vote Saturday.

Falling Prey To Soviet Propaganda

WASHINGTON — Political partisanship inside the free countries and insidious propaganda which fuels the gullible are the two most dangerous factors that could drag the world into a big war. They could lead some day to a miscalculation by the Communists, who might be tempted to assume that allied unity is not what it appears to be on the surface and that peace-at-any-price and surrender are really preferred by the West to a defense by arms.

No more vivid example of the perils of political partisanship could be cited than is to be found in hearing or reading the texts of the broadcasts being transmitted 24 hours a day by the Communists not only in the Middle East but throughout the world. They quote regularly from American, British, Canadian and French political personalities, as well as from newspapers in those same countries which appear to be giving moral support to the Soviet position in the present crisis.

Thus, the letter from Khrushchev proposing a "summit" conference, was immediately seized upon by the Communists as a great stroke and called a "propaganda" victory before the respective governments of the United States, Britain, and France could formulate their replies. The needling by former foreign minister Lester Pearson of Prime Minister Diefenbaker in Canada, urging sympathetic treatment to the Soviet offer, was played up. So was the demand by British labor party leaders that Prime Minister Macmillan accept at once. Members of the political opposition in the foreign relations committee of the United States Senate are quoted as having lost faith in the policies of their own government and as having demanded now a complete re-consideration of past steps. The implication given is that the Communists' strategy, which seeks to take advantage of any dissension in the United States is actually working.

Free countries naturally sanction the most unrestrained kind of debate on public questions, but the price of it sometimes comes high. The enemy uses every word of capricious criticism to broadcast everywhere what is pointed to as the true American or Canadian or British opinion, as the case may be. Granted that freedom of expression is desirable, is it too much to ask of the political opposition that it wait a few days and not come out in the middle of delicate negotiations with speeches and statements depreciating what one's own government is striving to do. Also, is it necessary for the "Voice of America" to broadcast the dissident comments of some American newspapers that are critical of our own government? Wouldn't it be just as well to describe briefly in a paragraph the nature of the opposition comment, without giving elaborate quotations therefrom? Don't the Communist radio stations do their own job of presenting "the other side" when it suits their interests?

Perhaps the strongest denunciation of the harpooning tactics of members of the political opposition in free countries came on Monday of this week in an editorial in the "New York Times" which deserves to be quoted abroad and to be read carefully inside our own Congress, because of analogous circumstances here:

"There is something baffling about the vehemence with which some of the 'neutralists' have responded to the action of Britain and the United States in the Middle East. The old cry of 'imperialism' is again being raised and there is a new 'colonialist' whipping boy, the United States."

"If it is necessary carefully to analyze some of the motives and feelings that prompt certain Asian and African states to disregard facts in favor of prejudices, it is even more difficult to account for the 'neutralism' of those that do not have a 'colonial' past. Moreover, some of the latter, such as Sweden and the left wing of the labor party in Britain, are mature enough politically to know the Communist danger when they see it. They should also be mature enough to realize that what is at stake is the freedom of nations and of men. It is not to be supposed that they would wish to play into the hands of the enemies of that freedom. It is hard to understand why, even if almost unconsciously, they now do so."

As for Soviet propaganda, it has its effect unconsciously on some Americans. The palace guard revolution in Iraq is naively viewed, not as an example of treason bought and paid for by Soviet agents, but as the spontaneous outburst of public opinion in a country so easily infiltrated as Iraq. Nasser is glorified, and is seriously argued in retrospect on Capitol Hill that America should have given him the Aswan Dam and bought him off, even though we learned that he was secretly getting arms from Soviet Russia and broke off our negotiations with him for that reason. The argument is made that maybe the Communists are not such bad fellows after all and that it is best to negotiate a compromise with the Soviet regime and perhaps to encourage its puppets in the Middle East to be "neutralists."

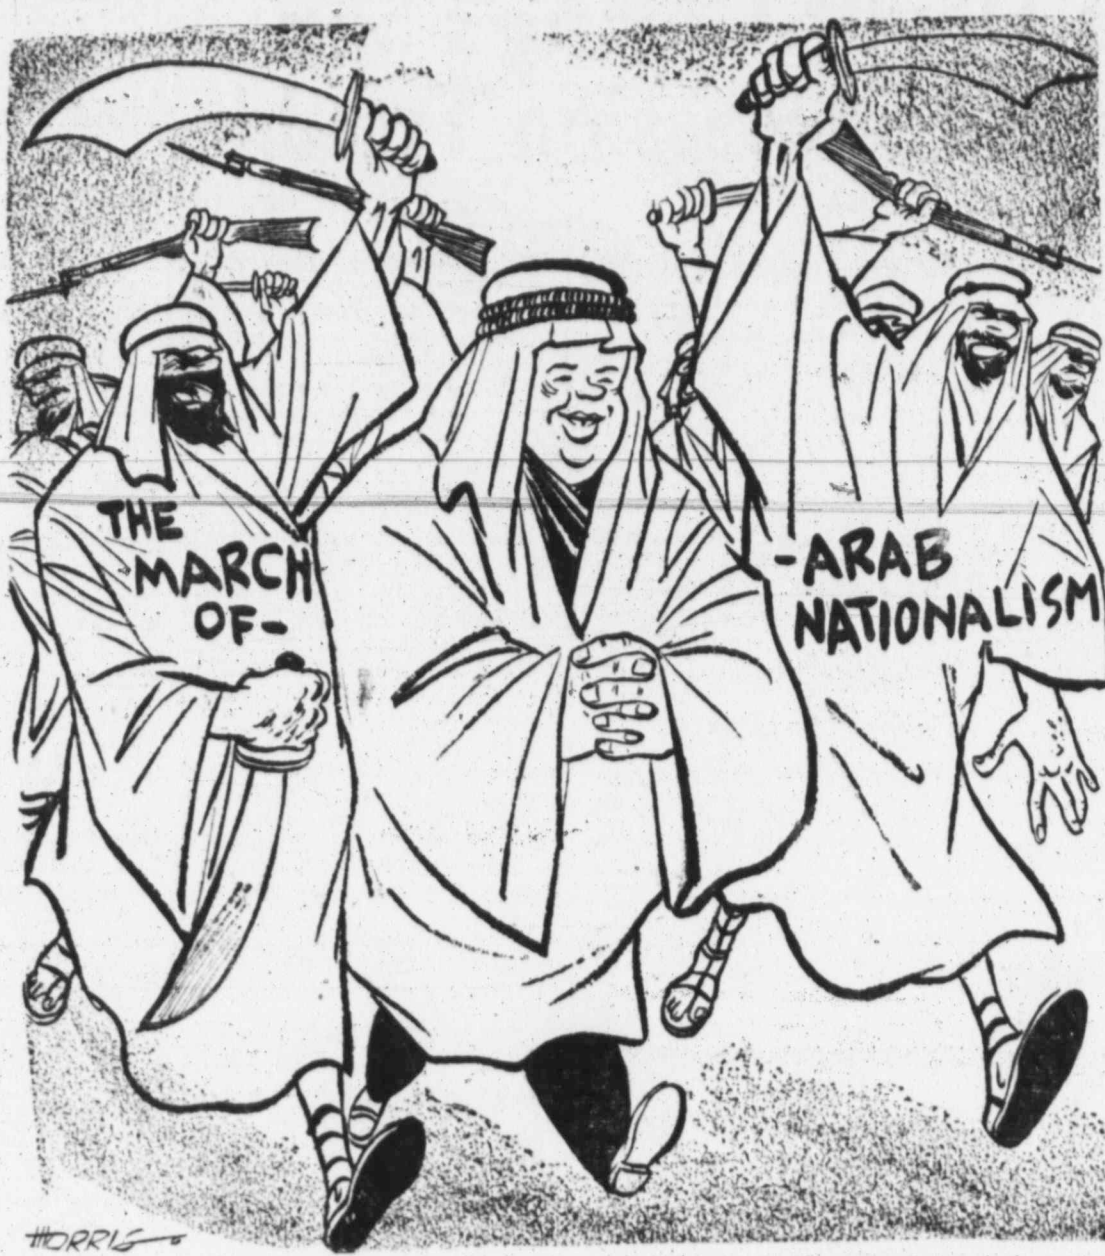

Defeatism and the effort to play on the emotions of what is erroneously assumed to be an uninformed or ignorant public opinion are the chief influences that encourage statesmen find it necessary to combat today. They have to struggle to avoid political daggers in their backs at the same time that they see in front of them an unscrupulous enemy whose tactics cannot be imitated and which can be dealt with only by unity on the allied side and a readiness to fight if the showdown finally requires it.

ATLANTA (AP)—When the Southern Bell Telephone Co. recently cleaned out its library, one of the books discarded was a 925-page tome entitled "The American Technical Society Library."

The library card in the back showed it had been taken out just once, 27 years ago by a young college trainee named Ben S. Gilmer.

Gilmer now is president of Southern Bell.

Little Hero May Dry-Gulch 'Wagon Train'

NEW YORK (AP)—As if everybody didn't feel small enough already, we will be asked this autumn to look up to a hero only six inches tall.

He is Mel Hunter, star of "World of Giants," a new television series, and a lot of big money is riding on his tiny but muscular frame in one of the top duels of the 1958-59 video season. CBS is gambling four million dollars that Little Mel will be able to untrack "Wagon Train," the highly rated program that sets out every Wednesday night from the rival trading post run by Sheriff Bob Sarnoff of NBC.

It is to be a no-holds-barred contest for audience favor between the fantastic and the horse opera. Who is this rash unknown, Mel Hunter, who has risen to challenge the long reign of the Western?

He is the brainchild of John Ziv and Richard Dorso.

Mel is a strapping 6-foot secret agent who is exposed to rays from a deadly enemy missile fuel behind the Iron Curtain. His molecular system is affected, and he shrinks until he is only half a foot tall.

Instead of asking waivers on him or peddling him to a circus, Mel's superiors in a government department known only as "the Bureau" decide to keep him on the job as a spy hunter.

The fact they now have a 6-inch agent is, of course, the bureau's top secret. He goes on his missions in a briefcase carried by his buddy, Bill Winters. The briefcase has air vents and contains an airplane type seat in which miniature Mel straps himself for comfort.

Because of his small size, everything that happens to Mel is a matter of life or death to him," said Dorso.

"Two of his biggest problems in the pilot show are how to outfit a hungry cat and how to get a telephone off the hook so he can call the Bureau."

As the little burro tossed and jolted, Haledjian wondered what madness had prompted him to sign up for this mountain ride. He should have remained at the resort astride a beach chair and let local color alone.

"That there's the Johnny Kid's corner," suddenly announced the tour's grizzly little guide. He pointed to a projection of rock which formed a perfect corner. "Seventy years ago on that spot, Rango Charlie got bushwhacked by Johnny Kid."

"Johnny Kid objected to Rango Charlie's weakness for palmin' aces. As Rango Charlie was the fastest gun in three counties and related to half the town, Johnny Kid never pushed his objections. But one fine day he crouched behind that there rock and waited."

The guide dismounted and briefly made like Johnny Kid. "Long about 4 in the afternoon," he resumed, "Ringo Charlie and his brother Sy come along. They'd suspicion'd something. So they'd left the horses back a piece and come up quiet, on foot."

The guide rose from his knee, rounded the corner, and walked a dozen paces. He turned about, enacting the part of Ringo Charlie, and sneaked toward the corner. He squinted dramatically into the afternoon sun and held one hand cupped above the butt of an imaginary pistol.

"Johnny Kid seen Ringo Charlie's shadow comin' while Ringo was still six feet away. Out jumped the Kid, two guns blazing. Ringo Charlie goes flat as a slab, and Sy high tailed it back to town for a posse."

"A fair fight was one thing, but bushwhackin' was another breed of cow. When folks heard how Johnny Kid had the advantage on Ringo Charlie, they up and lynched him, even though the Kid don't yet have any chin fuzz."

"They hanged an innocent boy," spoke up Haledjian.

The guide stared. "W-what's that?"

"Sy lied to the townsfolk. I suppose he hated to admit a mere

Around The Rim

Ideas 'Borrowed' By Communists

There are two kinds of freemen: The truly free, whose concept of freedom restricts his rights where his neighbors' rights begin; and the pseudo-free, for whom freedom exists for his own personal benefit.

The true freeman believes in equality of rights and before the law. The pseudo-freeman is not free at all, but is a prisoner of his own stupidity and arrogance. In this, he is a slave.

It's not difficult to tell one from the other. Both types mouth the same words up to a point, but the slave reveals himself through his actions; he also reveals himself through his words when touching upon his prejudices. In brief, the slave would force his own pattern upon others; he would extend his own rights beyond the borders of equality to restrict the rights of others.

The slave nearly always operates from the basis of a dogma of some sort, and he judges right and wrong strictly upon the basis of his dogma. A true freeman might also subscribe to a dogmatic belief, but he does not deny his fellow man the right to act according to his conscience. The slave does, when he has the power, and in a peculiarly arrogant manner. The overbearing oaf who promises to "make a believer" out of you is just an extreme example; others are not so readily obvious.

A few days ago, a mob of racists shut down a theatre in Alabama which had attempted to show a film, "Island in the Sun," which depicts a romantic link between a Negro and a white woman. The theatre's manager did not force anyone to see the film; in fact, he warned the public of the nature of the movie and urged each patron to make up his own mind about seeing it. That was the attitude of the man who respects the rights of others to choose for themselves.

It was not the attitude, however, of the mob. Men who use shotguns to force censorship upon the general public are respecting only their own self-assumed right to choose for everybody else.

A less extreme example of the slave mentality may be had in our own neighboring Abilene, which likes to call itself the cleanest town in West Texas, morally speaking. "The best place I know of to bring up children," they'll tell you—blandly overlooking the fact that their city has one of the worst juvenile problems in the state, and that the rum-runners are doing a land office business.

Abilene has a board of censors that recently banned a film called "And God Created Woman," starring a sexy French actress named Brigitte Bardot, on the claim that it was immoral. Had the censors not been blind, they would have seen that, although it is naughty, the film is not nasty—that it gets across the moral that oats sown while one is young do not sprout trouble in later years.

But whether the film is immoral is beside the point—the censors took it upon themselves to decide for everybody, and backed it up with the force of law. Those who felt they had the right to choose for themselves got lost in the shuffle.

This list of examples could be endless, but they would all point up one glaring nub of truth: The Communists didn't invent a thing; they just borrowed a few methods that have been kicking around for ages.

Why Not The Smell Of Soap And Water?

Nobody, but nobody, admires American industry and the brain trusters who guide it more than I. For love them, they are always dreaming up ways to improve the health and happiness of my sex.

Women might still be beating clothes on a rock on the edge of a stream if some great, unassuming humanitarian had not invented the old washboard and then followed it up with the electric washing machine. There should be a niche in the Hall of Fame for the genius who discarded the sadiron for the steam type, not to mention the mangle.

By and large, the washing machine and the vacuum sweeper have done more for women than the Bill of Rights. At least, they have given the girls time to enjoy and exercise the latter.

So I am grateful; so grateful, indeed for these conspicuous benefits that I hate to beef about the fringe benefits. But here goes. It seems to me that the boys, carried away by their past successes, have begun to boondoggle.

Much as I appreciate what American industry has done for me in the past, I want the lads to cease and desist immediately from putting cheap perfume in good, honest scouring powder, household detergents and kitchen soaps. My kitchen and bathrooms smell like a joss house in which the incense has mildewed.

Only yesterday when I sprinkled my heretofore favorite scouring powder in the sink, I was immediately enveloped in a mushroom-shaped cloud of some dubious scent that would have been just dandy, or so it seemed to me, in ridding the lily pond of mosquitoes (it would probably get rid of the lilies, too).

I hastily washed the powder down the drain and reached for my heretofore favorite kitchen soap, only to discover that it had been befooled up with an odor strongly reminiscent of that favorite Russian perfume, Breath of Stalin.

For a moment, but only a moment, the smell carried me back across the decades to the time Mama fumigated the house with sulphur candles after I had the measles. And it struck me quite forcefully that when a woman attacks a sink or bathtub with a cleansing agent, her object is to clean, not fumigate.

The average housewife today knows the going price of Chanel No. 5. Passion's Plaything, Romp in Rome and Black Narcissus to the last penny. She is not under any illusion when she shells out 15 to 19 cents for a can of cleanser that its aroma is going to duplicate Patou's Joy, for instance, or Diorissimo.

At that price, the best she can expect is a product that smells like a cross between an insecticide and Attar of Fulton Fish Market. What she really craves is a clean sink and not Toulours Glamour—accompanied by a clothespin for the nose.

After all, what's wrong, all of a sudden, with the fine old smell of soap and water? For years, the bouquet of good, plain soap and water indicated in a home the cleanliness that is next to Godliness. Why, all of a sudden, does a home have to take on that deadly odor of disinfectant and fading flowers once associated with hospital corridors?

Lay off the cheap perfume, gentlemen! Or I am going to be forced to save all those gift coupons that now come with soap and detergents and trade them in on a gas mask.

Auto Armistice Won't Last Much Longer

"Not so far in the future, we will have to evaluate the situation and make a decision."

That's not Khrushchev talking—in the war of nerves in the Middle East. It's closer to home.

It's Walter Reuther reminding us that a war of nerves still tingles in Detroit. It's his way of notifying the automobile companies that the armistice can't last much longer. It's either pay up or take a strike.

Furthermore, it's important news to anyone hoping to buy a 1958 model new car at a bargain price.

Soon, General Motors, Ford, and Chrysler will close out their 1958-model runs. In August, they'll be swinging into let's-get-em-out-of-production. They will want unimpeded output. Dealers will be clamoring for 1959 for the show rooms. That's when Reuther figures he can strike and win concessions.

That's also the time for bargain-conscious buyers, who don't care about the latest, to start shopping for 1958 models. Dealers then want to clear their floors. Dealers then would be ready to make price concessions.

And now Reuther comes along rattling a strike. Will that change the supply-demand pattern? Will it make dealers less anxious to get rid of the old to make room for the new?

Automotive News reports that new-car stocks on July 1 amounted to only a 26.8-day supply, 673,000 cars. On July 1, 1957, there were 745,000 cars on hand. This year's clean-up won't be as long or as difficult as last year. It will be orderly.

Supplies will gradually be reduced until October 1, when new models will be leaving factories in volume. But will they? All depends on a pact between the Big Three and Reuther.

Reuther doesn't actually have to strike. He can encourage slow-downs to make the companies come to terms. Then the 1959 won't roll plentifully. Then dealers will have excess floor space. They won't push '58s with price slashes.

The bargaining in Detroit has been intermittent. The companies had offered to extend the present contract for two years, which would have given auto workers an immediate pay increase of nine cents an hour—about seven cents for the annual "increased productivity factor" and two cents as a cost-of-living adjustment.

Technically, nothing's on the bargaining table now. When the contracts lapsed in June, the offer lapsed. However, Reuther undoubtedly figures he can pick it up any time. It's hard for management to withdraw what once has been offered.

But the auto companies are not in a mood—so they've indicated—for making grand concessions. General Motors Corp. notified Reuther that its contract would terminate May 29. It offered, in effect, to take a strike. Reuther declined and asked an extension of the contract, GM acceded.

Refusal would have been a "lockout," and lockouts in this day and age are poor public relations. But none of the companies has been checking off dues. Arbitration proceedings have been suspended. So the companies and the union go into the new-model homestretch deadlocked. Not only are inventories low, but Automotive News reports July sales up. The University of Michigan's periodic survey indicates that "between February and June there was no further decline" in consumers' intentions to buy cars. Indeed, "there was possibly a small increase."

The Middle East news has caused some new-car prospects to close deals. Consumers remember the car shortage during World War II and the limitations on production during Korea.

Reuther may not have intended to do so, but he has dictated sales strategy on 1958 models. He has made it easy for dealers. They have small reason, at this juncture, to throw concessions around. Buyers had better adjust their sights accordingly.

Wool Men Claim Labor Dept. Attacking Bracero Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas wool growers spokesmen have accused labor department officials of trying to wreck the bracero program in this country.

The bracero program is the one under which Mexicans are imported for farm work in the United States.

The president of the Texas Sheep & Goat Raisers Assn., T.A.

Kincaid of Ozona, yesterday criticized administration policies when a 13-man advisory Mexican labor committee met with the director of the bureau of employment security, Robert Goodwin.

Kincaid said Mexican labor recruitment had been drastically curtailed and continued:

"Our own government has imposed impractical regulations which have almost brought the program to a standstill so far as Texas sheep and goat ranchers are concerned."

The regulations of which Kincaid spoke were adopted recently as changes in the old labor import program. They call for fixed minimum wages and involve recruitment practices of Mexican officials below the border, Kincaid said.

A vice president of the National Wool Growers Assn., Penrose Metcalfe of San Angelo, added:

"It looks like they are trying deliberately to wreck the program." Metcalfe said the will of Congress had been flouted when minimum wages and hours were fixed for agricultural labor.

Kincaid argued that Labor Department officials take an impractical stand in pushing use of American labor for many ranch jobs. Despite high unemployment in this country, stockmen cannot recruit sufficient qualified domestic help for many jobs, he said.

Neither Kincaid nor Metcalfe are members of the advisory committee. Texas members of the group are A.M. Muldrow, Brownfield; J. B. Kirkland, Pecos; and W. H. Hughes, El Paso.

Hike In Bracero Fees Is Reported

WESLACO, Tex. (AP)—An increase in bracero contracting fees by 50 per cent by Aug. 1 was reported yesterday by Jack Drake, executive vice president of the Valley Chamber of Commerce.

"Due to the lack of appropriations, it has been found necessary to raise the contracting fees to $15 per bracero, and recontracting to $7.50," Drake said. Present fees are $10 and $5.

Drake said the bracero program must be supported from a revolving fund maintained from fees paid by contracting farmers because Congress eliminated the appropriations for it.

"There appeared to be a choice between raised contract fees or no braceros at all," he continued.

Drake said the Labor Department in Washington had clarified the labor piece rate wage policy considerably.

"The earning policy calls for establishment of a piece rate at a level that will afford Mexican nationals of normal competency who apply themselves the opportunity of earning an average of not less than 50 cents an hour," Drake said.

"The policy does not provide a minimum wage and no individual worker is guaranteed 50 cents an hour by this policy."

He said that if 90 per cent of the braceros in any one crew weren't receiving 50 cents an hour at the piece rate being paid then the employer should examine his piece rate structure closely.

Drake further advised:

"There is no penalty provided at this time for failure to apply the 90-10 formula. A new formula has been designed for those braceros on hourly rated schedules. In determining the prevailing wage among domestic laborers, which is the yard stick, the rate received by the greatest number of domestics will be used, provided this number is at least 40 per cent of the total so employed. If 40 per cent earning the same hourly rate cannot be found, the highest rated bottom 51 per cent will be the rate used, Drake concluded.

Russian Cabbie Approves Move

MOSCOW (AP)—The Russian cab driver said "he did it," he gave it to them.

He was reflecting the self-confident Soviet reaction to Premier Nikita Khrushchev's decision to accept the West's challenge and go to New York.

When Khrushchev faces the West across the table at the U.N. Security Council "he will show them," the cab driver continued.

The Communist party paper Pravda elaborated on this view of the man in the street. It pulled out the stops Khrushchev kept carefully muted in his letters to the West last night.

Pravda accused the United States of meddling, wire-pulling and open aggression in the Middle East. It accused President Eisenhower of "turning white into black and black into white."

"The ruling circles in the United States who thought the Soviet Union would turn down a heads-of-government meeting within the framework of the United Nations will have to be disappointed," said Pravda.

Pravda's list of accusations was long. Khrushchev's, to be delivered in New York in person, is expected to be even longer and much more colorful.

Hot, Fair Weather For Election Day

By The Associated Press

Continued hot and generally fair weather has been predicted for the election weekend in Texas. Scattered thundershowers will dot the state but they shouldn't dent the vote total, the weatherman said.

There was thunderstorm activity at Childress and Amarillo early Friday. Galveston and Austin reported scattered clouds. Elsewhere in the state skies were reported clear.

Early morning temperatures ranged from 65 at Dalhart to 83 at Dallas, Palacios and Galveston.

High readings Thursday afternoon ran from 90 at Corpus Christi, Galveston and Dalhart to 111 at Presidio.

Except for light showers in the Panhandle, no precipitation was reported in the state.

Reds In Conflict With Nasser Forces

BEIRUT (AP)—Returning travelers say the Communists have come into open conflict with President Nasser's forces in Aleppo, northern Syria.

The informants said the Reds organized "volunteer bands" of 50 each to shout "Down with Nasser" in public places. When they began shouting near the officers' club, more than 200 were arrested.

Since the Syrian-Egyptian union in February, Aleppo has had an economic slump and the Communists are trying to blame it on Nasser. A bad crop this year caused a general drop in buying power.

Testifies At Sexton Hearing

Albert D. Osburn, New York handwriting expert, uses charts to explain to the court why he believes the signature of J. E. Sexton on a check and will were forgeries. Osburn testified at Ciebume, where the will of the late millionaire was held invalid in probate court.

House Closes Money Books

WASHINGTON (AP) — Except for some minor odds and ends and some compromises to be worked out with the Senate, the House today closed the book on appropriation bills for 1958.

Based on House action alone where final passage has not been completed, the prospect is for total appropriations of about 70 billion dollars for the year. But later Senate actions could raise that total substantially, especially for defense and foreign aid.

The 70 billion figure would represent a cut of about $1,600,000,000 from President Eisenhower's request for $71,539,831,539 in new money. Last year Congress cut nearly five billion from Eisenhower's requests.

On the basis of their record this year, members of the House and Senate aren't likely to emphasize any claims of economy in this year's election campaigns.

The last of 20 regular, supplemental and deficiency bills sailed through the House yesterday by voice vote and went to the Senate. It totals $1,218,815,000 for construction programs for the Army, the Navy and the Air Force at home and abroad. This is 511 million dollars less than the President requested, with the Senate still to act.

The Senate Appropriations Committee voted to add $1,600,000,000 to funds the House already has voted for defense, with most of the extra money for more air power.

The $40,032,000,000 defense total is $1,200,000,000 more than Eisenhower asked. How much of it will be accepted by the Senate—and by a later Senate-House conference committee—remains to be determined.

The Senate is expected also to increase amounts the House voted for foreign aid. The House cut $593 million dollars off the total of an authorization bill, and Eisenhower is pushing for restoration of most of this amount.

Both the Senate and the House have completed action on five supplemental and deficiency bills. Of the 15 regular departmental appropriation measures, all have passed the Senate and gone to the President. The remaining eight either have passed the Senate and are in a Senate-House conference or have not yet been considered by the Senate.

House Cracks Down On Deficit Spending

WASHINGTON (AP) — House leaders, faced with an immediate rise in the national debt ceiling, are cracking down on deficit financing of legislative programs which add to the government's already vast debt.

First result of the crackdown has been the sidetracking by the House Rules Committee of a bill calling for a two-billion-dollar community public works loan program to be financed out of Treasury borrowings.

The practice, commonly followed to finance programs called for by federal laws, bypasses the House Appropriations Committee. Instead of voting direct appropriations, Congress authorizes the federal agency concerned to borrow the necessary funds from the Treasury. The Treasury in turn must borrow the money, thereby increasing the public debt.

Concern over this form of public-debt financing has been heightened by word that Secretary of the Treasury Anderson is due to come before Congress Monday to request another hike in the debt ceiling.

The legal debt limit, already raised temporarily to 280 billion dollars, would go up to 288 billion if the Treasury's request is granted.

The all-time high was a ceiling of 300 billion dollars in the latter part of World War II.

Budget deficits for the fiscal year just ended June 30, and in prospect for the current year, may make even the proposed increase barely adequate. The government went in the red nearly $1 billion in the year which ended June 30, and the prospective deficit this year is 10 to 11 billion.

The House Rules Committee refused to act on the community public works bill unless its Treasury financing features were revised to make them subject to Appropriations Committee control.

Rambler Sales Keep Going Up

DALLAS — Rambler sales in American Motors' Dallas zone in the first six months of 1958 showed 45.1 per cent over the comparable period of last year to establish a new record, according to T. J. Slaggett, zone manager.

The Dallas zone covers Texas and part of New Mexico.

Slaggett added that Rambler retail sales nationally in each of the last nine months have exceeded sales for the comparable months of the year earlier.

See Yourself As Others See You? There's No Cure

CHICAGO (AP) — If you really see yourself as others might see you, medicine has a name for it — autoscopic hallucination — but no cure.

This odd phenomenon is not uncommon in literature. It has been described for more than 2,000 years. An early report about a man who could not go for a walk without seeing his double coming toward him, was attributed to Aristotle.

The romantic theme of the double appears in many 18th and 19th century literary works. But it was first introduced into medical literature only toward the end of the last century.

The subject is discussed in a 22-page article, "Autoscopic Phenomena," by Dr. N. Lukianowicz of Barrow Hospital, Bristol, England, in the August issue of Archives of Neurology and Psychiatry, published by the American Medical Assn.

Dr. Lukianowicz examined psychiatrists' reports of several specific cases in which patients have described the experience of viewing themselves as phantoms, without benefit of mirrors.

One example was the account of a woman who noticed a strange woman in mourning walking ahead of her as she returned home in late afternoon from her husband's funeral.

As she turned on the light in her room and undressed, the other woman did the same. Not particularly disturbed by the hallucination, the woman looked into the face of her companion and recognized herself.

Later, she reported, she had the feeling while seeing the image that it was more alive and warm than herself. As soon as she lay down and went to sleep, the apparition vanished. But she saw it on other occasions.

Dr. Lukianowicz says that there are two main theories about the cause: some irritating process in the brain, and the projection of memory pictures.

He suggests that they may have an element of attempted wish fulfillment, particularly in the case of one man who saw himself conducting an orchestra. The experience usually lasts only a few seconds, he said.

U. S. Electric Device Called Boon To India

NEW DELHI (AP)—An American-designed device launched today may revolutionize the life of rural India.

It is an electric generator and pump powered by bullocks, India's main motive power for generations.

With Prime Minister Nehru looking on, a pilot unit went into operation in Khanpur village, 18 miles south of Delhi.

The project is under joint auspices of the Ford Foundation and India's Community Development Ministry. It cost $5,000, but mass production is expected to cut this to $3,000.

The unit can pump water to meet the needs of villages and irrigate 100 acres. The generator can deliver 4½ kilowatts of power.

The unit is the result of research of Leigh S. Stevens, 67, of Yemassee, S. C. He developed it after touring this country in 1954.

Today he heard Nehru express keen interest in the potentialities for India's 700,000 villages—where more than four-fifths the population live.

For centuries Indian cattle have pumped water by the Persian wheel, trudging in a small circle and forcing up a maximum of 100 gallons of water a minute. The new unit triples the amount of water.

When a switch is thrown the bullocks go on working — but producing electric power which can be used immediately or stored.

Stevens said every part of the power unit can be produced in India.

Commemorative Stamps Arrive

The 4-cent and 8-cent commemorative stamps, honoring the 175th birthday of Simon Bolivar, South American patriot, are on hand and on sale at the Big Spring post office.

However, the supply of blocks is limited—the requirement being that a need for a sheet of the stamps must be shown before the one block each sheet has can be detached. This is a disappointment to the numerous stamp collectors who wanted blocks but it was promised that the blocks would be available as soon as possible.

More Gifts To Barbecue Fund

Ten additional firms have turned in their contributions to the Chamber of Commerce to help finance a hospitality barbecue for Cap Rock Electric Cooperative members when they stage their annual meeting here Aug. 8.

The donations raised the total in the fund to $480, the Chamber reported. About $1,000 is being sought to pay for the barbecue.

A crowd of 2,500 or more Cap Rock REA members is expected to attend from an area of several counties around Big Spring.

Latest to contribute were Security Finance Co., Little Shop, J&K Shoe Store, State Farm Insurance Co., Youth Beauty Shop, Quick Way Loan Co., Poncho's Newsstand, Texas Electric Service Co., State National Bank and Western Auto Associate Store.

Jet Crash Kills Pilot, 2 Boys

TOKYO (AP)—A U.S. Air Force jet bomber making a forced landing crashed into a small Japanese village today, killing the pilot and two Japanese boys.

The navigator of the twin-engine B57, 1st Lt. Norman H. Silver, 27, Portland, Ore., a Japanese woman and her two children were seriously injured. Air Force doctors treated 23 other villagers for lesser injuries.

The name of the dead pilot was withheld.

The bomber developed engine trouble while on a training flight from Johnson Air Base, 22 miles west of Tokyo. The pilot tried to make it to the base but crashed in Irumagawa village, a quarter of a mile from the base runway.

Work Under Way On City Projects

Work is under way on two projects for the city—a sewer line and repaving of the City Auditorium.

Ray Hodgson, contractor for the water and sewer lines to serve Webb AFB, has moved in equipment for work on the sewer line. Actual ditching hasn't begun yet, but the work so far has been clearing right of way.

The city reported Hodgson probably would start one ditching machine working westward from the sewage disposal plant and another from about Gollad also working westward.

Sundry Bros. have contract for the repaving of the auditorium, and their work this week has been replacing broken or cracked windows and plastering small cracks in the walls.

Priest Returns From Red China

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Rev. Cyril Wagner is back home today after a five-year imprisonment in Red China.

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower proposed to Soviet Premier Khrushchev today that the United Nations Security Council determine whether a Middle East summit conference is generally acceptable. If so, he said, the Council should determine a meeting date and make other arrangements.

The note was written by Eisenhower and Dulles Thursday and cleared with British and French leaders early today. It was handed to Soviet Ambassador Mikhail A. Menshikov by Dulles at the State Department a few minutes after 1 p.m. The White House arranged for its publication about an hour later.

This decision came after Khrushchev's acceptance Wednesday of a British proposal to hold the meeting in the U.N. Security Council.

Eisenhower thus slowed down the pell mell rush to the summit which Khrushchev seemed to set off a week ago with his demand for an immediate emergency meeting at Geneva.

Eisenhower also was obviously intent upon having the Security Council fix the ground rules for the meeting. He and Dulles consider this preferable to any kind of a special five-power conference outside the U.N. as originally suggested by Khrushchev.

Western sources at the U.N. said the Security Council probably next week to work out arrangements for a summit meeting.

These quarters said they have been given the definite impression that the Soviet Union will accept President Eisenhower's reported proposal that such details as time, place and participants be settled through U.N. channels.

Members of the 11-nation Council are keeping in close touch with the East-West exchanges and are ready to meet quickly if Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev agrees to this procedure.

The program will originate in the studios of a Lubbock station and also will be aired over outlets in Big Spring, Sweetwater-Arbuckle and San Angelo. Hardesty said the program will take the form of a panel discussion of Yarbrough's qualifications and record in the Senate. It will start at 8 p.m.

Radio License Transfer Is OK'd, KTXC Is Now KBYG

The Federal Communications Commission has authorized the assignment of license of the Big State Broadcasting Co., owner of Radio Station KTXC, to the Maples-McAlister Broadcasting Co., it was announced in Washington today.

Also approved was change of call letters to KBYG. The station had been off the air for several months, but resumed operations last Sunday under the Big State license for equipment tests.

The new owners, R. B. (Mac) McAlister of Lubbock and Grady Franklin Maples of Denver, will be in Big Spring about two months while operations are getting under way. General manager of the station will be Jim Richardson, formerly of Lubbock, who is moving his family to Big Spring this week. Mrs. Richardson also will be associated with the station.

Big State Broadcasting Co. is owned by Taylor Anderson of Big Spring and Emil Anderson of Dallas. The station, located in City Park, was on the air originally in 1949. Consideration involved in the transfer of title was $30,000, according to the FCC report.

The Maples-McAlister Broadcasting Co. recently sold stations in Englewood, Colo., and Lubbock. The firm also has owned stations at Clovis and Tucuman, N. M., and recently purchased KRWS at Post.

McAlister said KBYG will broadcast 24 hours a day. The station will emphasize music and news reports and will have no network affiliation.

Throw Beats Him There

Plicher Art Whitaker's throw to first sacker Ronald Thompson proved quick enough to beat Big Spring's Bob Andrews to first base in the bit of baseball action snapped by The Daily Herald's photographer during the American Legion playoff game here Thursday afternoon. The Lubbock Red Chicks won the game in 11 innings, 2-1, and will seek to clinch the series in a game at Lubbock tonight. Whitaker shaded Lefty Chubby Moser in a tight mound duel yesterday.

Plans Are Shaping Up For Tournament

STANTON (SC)—Plans are being firmed up for the annual West Texas Sand Greens Golf tournament, which will be held here Aug. 2-3. Indications are the strongest field in the history of the meet will be on hand. Any number of linksters are expected from Big Spring, even though they have been used to playing on grass. Among those from Big Spring the tournament committee is expecting to be on hand are Obie Bristow, Weldon Bryant and R. S. (Red) McCullah.

Defending champion in the tournament is Jack Arrington. His chief competition may come from Troy White, Aubrey Edwards and H. O. Allen, all of Big Lake; Boob Howard of Texas; Howard Gibson, Goldsmith; and Punk Cosby and Carl Beard, both of Odessa.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

Gorgeous George, who first wrestled here under the name of George Wagner in the days when Herman Fuhrer promoted the game on the vacant lot across the street west from the Crawford Hotel and then came back years later as a scented darling, is trying any number of gimmicks in order to remain a big name attraction. He now has a girl valet.

In the past, he hired a mousey-looking man in striped coat and cutaway trousers with a phony English accent to precede him into the ring and spray the corner out of which he would wrestle. That particular ceremony took place so that George could convey the idea to the crowd that he didn't want any germs lurking in that part of the ring.

George had his hair done up with bobby pins and would take the time to throw them in the direction of the crowd as souvenirs. Time was when George was knocking off $150,000 to $200,000 a year with his act but his income has skidded more than the stock backed by the lightning-red people in recent years.

The gal, who calls herself Cherie Dupre, may take the play entirely away from the Orchid Man. She's supposed to be quite an eye-catcher.

In the $50,000 Pepsi golf tournament in Long Island recently, the long-hitting George Bayer drove the 363-yard ninth hole, then three-putted.

Ernie Vossler, the Fort Worth linkster who registers out of Midland, has won $5,500 in the last three Odessa Pro-Amateur golf tournaments.

The new tennis courts at the Cosden Country Club are supposed to be among the best in the state.

One item was overlooked in their construction, however. There are no cranks for the nets and they have to be restored by hand once they sag. Permanent-type steel nets may shortly be installed there, however, according to reports.

Big league umpires receive $500 a month for expenses, in addition to their salaries. Out of that allowance, they pay for their meals, taxis, hotels and other incidentals.

They get nothing for working the annual all-star game. Not only that but they do not share in the pension fund for which it is played.

Eight invitational golf tournaments will be played in West Texas between now and the Big Spring Invitational, which takes place Aug. 29 through Sept. 1.

In two Forsan Softball league games against Nabors Paint Store of Big Spring, the Highway Department club of Sterling City used 23 different players in a vain attempt to knock off the locals.

The Sterling City imported several players out of San Angelo for their second contest against Nabors.

Buddy Runney, who never played regularly on the Midland High School basketball team despite the fact that he stands 6-feet-8, is bound for McMurry College on a cage scholarship.

Rademacher, Folley Meet

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Former amateur champion Pete Rademacher makes a second bid for professional boxing fame when he battles Zora Folley, top contender for the heavyweight crown, at 10 rounds or less tonight.

A companion 10-rounder features Mauro Vazquez, unbeaten

Mexico City featherweight, and Enrique Aceves of Los Angeles. The experts give Rademacher, 1956 Olympic Games champion, a good chance to score an upset. But Folley, 26, the pride of Chandler, Ariz., is a well-seasoned boxer with 45 pro bouts behind him.

Lubbock Nips Legion Nine

The Lubbock Bell Red Chicks and the Big Spring Legionnaires move to Lubbock tonight to resume their best-of-three game series to determine an American Legion Junior baseball Area titlist.

Lubbock went one up in the best by shading Big Spring in a brilliant mound duel that went 11 innings here Thursday afternoon, 2-1.

Art Whitaker yielded nine hits to D. R. Gartman's team in the two hour 35 minutes struggle but didn't give up an earned run. The Red Chicks, who brought their season's record to 20-1 with the win, managed only five blows off Lefty Chubby Moser, the Big Spring ace.

The Red Chicks used a base on balls to Whitaker and three straight sacrifice plays to win the game in the 11th. Jimmy Harris and Jack Hamilton moved Whitaker around to third on sacrifice bunts, and Rucker Barrett brought him home with a bunt. Harris had gained a life when the locals failed to retire him at first base.

Big Spring kept alive its chances to win when Wilson Bell led off the home half of the 11th with a double but he was stranded on second when Elton Kelly failed to center, Jerry Dunlap fanned and Terry Stanley popped to first.

Big Spring got its lone run in the eighth when Moser attained first base on a bobble, went to third on Pidge Daniels' double and rode home on a single by Jackie Thomas. Daniels also tried to count on the hit, however, and was retired by a perfect peg off the arm of Johnny Johnson.

Lubbock broke the ice with a run in the seventh when Harris walked and eventually scored home on a sacrifice by Ronald Thompson, one of five the Red Chicks had during the day.

Big Spring's attack was led by Kelly, who had singles in each of his first three trips to the plate. Daniels and Thomas each had two blows for the local nine.

Ronald Bandy and Barrett were the only Lubbock players to solve Moser's slants for more than one hit. Each had two singles.

Thomas and Stanley ran together chasing a pop fly in the 11th and Thomas was slightly injured but remained in the game. One of the LeFevre twins, Zay or Jay, will go moundward for Big Spring tonight as the Legionnaires try to even the set.

The win was Whitaker's 11th against only one defeat.

LOCAL LI'L LEAGUE NINE TIPS ANDREWS

ANDREWS (SC)—Robert Wilson pitched the Big Spring American Leaguers into the Sectional tournament of Little League competition by stopping the Andrews Nationals with four hits here Thursday night. Final score was 3-2.

The Big Spring contingent had to come from behind to achieve victory. A two-run outburst in the fifth opened the door for the winners.

Donnie Hollar and Wilson opened the inning with a single and a double, respectively, and they managed to get home on an error.

Dickie Spier had clubbed a solo home run for Big Spring's first run in the fourth. Wilson gave up an unearned run to the Andrews club in the second when J. Martin counted on a single by B. Smith. Andrews' second tally, scored by L. Jordan in the fifth, was also unearned.

Wilson fanned six and issued only one base on balls.

Big Spring collected six hits off two Andrews pitchers, with Wilson's two blows setting the pace, along with Spier's homer.

Big Spring's defense was sharp—the visitors twice snuffed out Andrews' rallies with double plays.

Big Spring now becomes eligible to take part in the Sectional tournament, which is scheduled to start in Rotan Monday. Five other teams will be there.

St. Louis May Not Be Dead In Nat'l Race, After All

By ED WILKS
AP Sports Writer

Is that really just a two-team race in the National League. Or aren't those St. Louis Cardinals dead after all?

While there's hardly any daylight from third to seventh in the race behind Milwaukee and San Francisco, the Cardinals appear to be the only club capable of a serious challenge, even with two months to go.

Trouble is, the Cardinals, just off their second seven-game slump of the season, still have to prove they're breathing. They've won four of their last six, and trail the skidding third-place Chicago

Cubs by only half a game, but they're still fourth, 6½ games back.

Sad Sam Jones, seldom given much support, made the Cards look like winners yesterday, shutting out the Braves 4-0 with a four-hitter.

It was Sam's fourth consecutive victory, but he just managed to clear .500 with an 8-7 record. The Cards have averaged less than three runs in his defeats, have averaged less than four in the games he's won.

The Big Spring Tigers return to baseball action here Sunday afternoon, meeting Pecos at 3 p.m. The Bengals dropped a 3-2 decision to the Lamesa Red Sox in Lamesa Wednesday night, despite the fact that Danny Valdes of the locals pitched a two-hitter.

Big Spring scored both its runs in the first inning.

COACH MAY BE HIRED T

He'll Find Which Is Most Difficult

MANILA (AP) —Capt. Marion (Pat) Boling today plunged into a social marathon that may be as tiring as his coming attempt for a record nonstop solo flight across the Pacific.

The 43-year-old airline pilot from Palo Alto, Calif., landed here late Thursday from Guam in his tangerine-colored Beechcraft Bonanza. He leaves Wednesday on a flight to Seattle, Wash., or possibly Wichita, Kan.

He started a round of courtesy calls, luncheons and dinners today. The schedule even includes a "fly-in" fiesta Sunday at the estate of sugar man Jose Yulo south of Manila.

The present solo record for light planes was set in 1949 by the late Capt. William (Bill) Odom, who flew from Honolulu to Teterboro, N.J.

Candidates Spell Out Final Appeals

By RAYMOND HOLBROOK

Associated Press Staff
Candidates today were projecting their final appeals to Texas citizens for votes in Saturday's primary election.

Although they were passing up no opportunities for last-minute handshaking, the candidates in the top races were pointing toward their final state-wide television addresses Friday night.

U.S. Senator Ralph Yarborough makes his final plea for re-election at 8 p.m., while his opponent, William A. Blakley, a former senator, set his statewide telecast for 9 p.m.

Gov. Price Daniel, aided by Fess Parker—the Davey Crockett of TV and movie fame—scheduled his address at 9:30 p.m. Two other gubernatorial candidates also planned last-minute appeals—State Sen. Henry B. Gonzalez at 7 p.m. and W. Lee O'Daniel at 8:30 p.m.

Confident predictions of success at the polls were mixed with new thrusts at their opponents as candidates stumped the state Thursday.

Both Blakley and Yarborough attacked each other's attendance and voting records in the U.S. Senate. Yarborough charged that his opponent with supporting the big money Republicans. Blakley accused the incumbent of making the Middle East crisis into a "carnival sideshow of his political circus."

"My opponent's big money support of the Republicans has helped put Ezra Taft (Benson) in office and kept him there," Yarborough said. "My opponent, who has personally drawn through his Braniff Airways dividends more than $100,000 a year in subsidies for the past six years, opposes subsidies for farmers while in Dallas and everywhere else, except one day of the year in Bryan."

Yarborough also said that Blakley was absent 41 per cent of the time while an interim senator. Blakley said that Yarborough spent so much time recording political speeches in Washington that he did not take time to vote on the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act.

Predicting a "very successful victory," Blakley said "I am confident that the people of Texas want the control of Texas in the state and not directed by outside interests."

Daniel, campaigning in East Texas, urged his supporters to vote Saturday and warned them that complacency could force a runoff in the governors race.

O'Daniel, in a Dallas telecast, charged that Daniel is related to the big oil monopoly so he will veto any oil and gas taxes and said "the people are fed up with the graft and corruption down there (in Austin) and particularly in the last two years."

Gonzalez carried his campaign to Beaumont, Galveston and Houston Thursday.

Joe Irwin, another candidate for governor, said at Galveston that honesty and integrity are the main issues in the race. He planned to windup his campaign with a rally at San Augustine Friday night.

Lt. Gov. Ben Ramsey, predicting victory in his race for re-election, said at Austin "the voters know this is no time for immature political opportunists and reckless experiments in our government."

George Nokes, his opponent, said in Dallas that Ramsey "refuses to answer for what has been going on in the Texas Senate. He seeks an unprecedented fifth term yet conducts his campaign as a private affair, just like he runs the Senate."

Navy Probing Admiral's Death

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Navy is investigating the death of Rear Adm. Lynne C. Quigley, who told his wife "You'd be better off a widow" just before his disappearance at sea.

Quigley, 52, vanished from the liner President Cleveland Wednesday about 800 miles off San Francisco. He apparently jumped overboard in a fit of depression, Commodore H. D. Ehman, the liner's master, told newsmen after the ship docked here yesterday.

A Navy board of investigation, headed by Rear Adm. John Q. Owsley, started a formal inquiry. The admiral and his wife were returning from his tour of duty as deputy chief of staff on the joint staff of the commander of U.S. forces in Japan. He had been ordered to San Diego to become commander of Amphibious Group 1, Pacific Fleet.

Mrs. Quigley, the former Ann Griffin of Washington, D.C., said her husband had left their cabin early in the morning saying "You would be better off a widow" after kissing her.

She reported his disappearance and the ship was searched. Mrs. Quigley said she had reason to believe her husband, who had been nervous and tense, may have jumped from the ship.

Record Company Sues Warner Bros.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A record company is suing two Warner Bros. corporations and nine subsidiaries for five million dollars in damages.

Precision Radiation Instruments Inc., which makes records under the Tops label — filed a federal court action yesterday charging conspiracy to suppress and eliminate competition.

The suit asserts the defendants refused to accept royalties for records produced by Tops and brought court actions against 14 retailers who sold Tops' records.

Captured Flier To Stand Trial

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Foreign Minister Subandrio told newsmen today captured American flier Allen Lawrence Pope will be tried soon before a military tribunal.

He did not name a date. Pope, 30, of Miami, Fla., was captured when his rebel-owned B25 bomber was shot down over East Indonesian waters May 18. He was brought here May 30.

Everybody Appeals Church Pews Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — Everybody concerned is appealing the case of the nonunion church pews.

The five-man National Labor Relations Board itself must decide whether an examiner's findings were just right, too hard or too soft.

The case involves complaints by the Endicott Church Furniture Co., Warsaw, Ind., that the Carpenters Union has boycotted installation of Endicott-made pews in churches around Chicago, Minneapolis, New York and Detroit.

The union lost an NLRB bargaining rights election held in March 1956 among the 60 employees of the Endicott firm.

The company contends the union since then has been trying to stop churches from installing Endicott pews, as a means of forcing Endicott to capitulate and put its workers under union contract.

An NLRB trial examiner, C. W. Whittemore, has ruled there was insufficient evidence at a series of hearings to support these charges.

But Whittemore did find that in the case of the Nassau Baptist Church, East Williston, N.Y., the union illegally persuaded union workmen to go on strike to stop nonunion Endicott workers from installing pews.

DEAR ABBY

MODERN CHILDBIRTH

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Don't laugh at the man who said the modern woman makes too much fuss over giving birth. It isn't the women's fault, though, it's these modern doctors who give them so many shots and pills they go out of their heads and can't remember a thing. I think it is a sin to deprive a woman of the most beautiful memories she will ever experience. I have had seven children and remember every minute of labor with each and every one of them. It was wonderful! Grandmother was right. Stay awake and pray. I usually pray for something to put her to sleep.

DEAR MOTHER: Medical science has provided us with improvements making childbirth safer and virtually painless. The modern woman who stays awake and prays is usually praying for something to put her to sleep.

DEAR ABBY: I read in your column where an eligible young man said he was intelligent, handsome and liked a good time but he was not geared for marriage. I know his kind. I am not interested in him for myself, but there is a living doll in this office who would like a man of his description. Please send me his name. I think this girl has what it takes to strip his gears. Thanks.

"THE GAL AT THE SWITCHBOARD."

DEAR GAL: Sorry—no can do!

DEAR ABBY: While I was in Okinawa I fell in love for the first time. She was a wonderful Okinawan girl. I would have married her, but my friends told me it would never work out so I left her behind although it broke my heart. I thought I would forget her if I forced myself to go with American girls. I am sorry to say I talked myself into marrying an American girl I grew up with.

She loves me but I do not love her because I am still in love with the girl I left in Okinawa. Should I be honest with my bride of six weeks and break up the marriage before there are children? If a man has ever really been able to forget his first love I wish he would write and tell me how he did it.

HEART-BROKEN SGT. DEAR HEART-BROKEN: Don't compound the felony of a snap judgment marriage by a snap judgment divorce. You'll have fewer regrets if you unburden your troubled conscience to your clergyman instead of your bride. Quit brooding and living in the past. I think you made the best choice.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 16-old girl who has a problem. Whenever a boy calls me up and my mother answers the telephone she always asks, "WHO IS THIS?" I am standing right there and she could very easily just say, "ONE MOMENT, PLEASE" and hand the phone to me. But she insists on asking who it is. Sometimes the boy will say, "NEVER MIND, I'LL CALL BACK" but he never does. I am losing out on more calls that way. Is my mother right in asking who it is and scaring them away or isn't she? LOSING OUT

DEAR LOSING: Your mother is interested and curious, so don't be too critical. There is no reason for her to ask who is calling if you are standing right beside her. Plead your case in the most appealing mother-daughter language and she'll comply.

CONFIDENTIAL TO AGGIE: Some fellows don't realize they aren't the only pebbles on the beach until they're all washed up. If he doesn't know how to treat a nice girl, he doesn't deserve to have one. Say six.

Russians May Use Summit Meeting For Propaganda

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Foreign Affairs Committee members today were reported convinced that the Soviets will try to use a U.N. summit meeting as a propaganda sounding board.

They oppose President Eisenhower's attending under such circumstances.

Chairman Thomas E. Morgan (D-Pa.) said Asst. Secretary of State William Macomber was given this advice during a secret briefing on the Middle East crisis late yesterday.

Eisenhower completed his reply to Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's proposal that the heads of member nations attend a special Security Council meeting in New York along with Prime Minister Nehru of India and Arab representatives.

The nature of Eisenhower's reply has not been announced.

Morgan said he does not think Eisenhower can refuse to go, but he said he should not accept in haste.

"I don't think he should go up there and get into a lengthy wrangle with Khrushchev under the TV cameras," Morgan said.

He contended also that this country should insist on strict adherence to the Security Council rules, with discussion limited to the subject at hand and prevented from developing into a propaganda free-for-all.

Snore Still Big Mystery

LONDON (AP)—Thousands are being spent to bring quiet to hospital wards, but the snore still baffles the experts.

Wards are soundproofed. Trolleys stopped from squeaking. Nurses wear noiseless shoes.

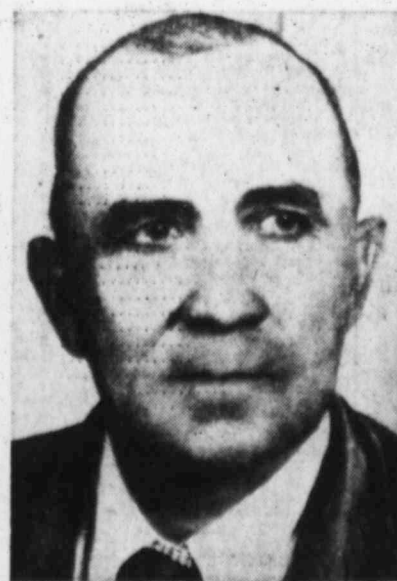

"This is a most acute problem," the King Edward Hospital Charity Fund said in its annual report Wednesday.

Hospitals tried putting snorers together in special wards. They woke each other.

Separate cubicles were tried. The snorers sounded even louder. The next experiments will be with soundproof curtains, noise-absorbing tiles and beds that keep patients on their sides while they sleep.

Radio-Teletype Waves Hit Moon

FT. HUACHUCA, Ariz. (AP)—An Army-civilian team believes it may have been the first to bounce ultra-high frequency radio-teletype waves off the moon and back to earth.

Technicians from the signal corps and the Collins Radio Co. of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, announced they had recently sent a radio-teletype message from this fort to Encino, N.M., using the moon as a passive relay.

The first radio contact with the moon was made in 1946 by the Signal Corps at Belmar, N.J.

Martin Ballot Has Contests For 2 Offices

STANTON — If voters in Stanton go to the polls in large numbers tomorrow, it will be because of the district and state contests. There is very little interest in the county races, because there are no county-wide races. All county officers are running without opponents.

There will be two commissioners running for re-election, and both have opponents. Joe Froman, veteran office-holder in Precinct 2, faces J. H. Burrow; and in Precinct 4 incumbent Edmund Morrow is running against B. E. Burdon.

Only three office-holders at the courthouse are up for re-election. These are Jim McCoy, county judge; Doris Stephenson, county and district clerk, and Elmo Reed, county treasurer.

There will be a total of 1,197 registered voters, according to Mrs. Stephenson, but this does not take into account the "overs" and "unders." Voters will go to the polls at the Courtney School, Ackery Paymaster Gin, Brown Paymaster Gin, Flower Grove School, Lenora Baptist Church, Tarzan Church of Christ, Irvin Snell residence at Pleasant Valley, First Methodist Church in Stanton, and at the Stanton Elementary Gymnasium.

Sticking Together, 3 Children Drown

MARS, Pa. (AP)—"They were just like all kids... excited about one thing one time and another thing another time... all three were blond-haired and stuck together all the time."

This was Mrs. Herbert Brooks' comment after her three grandchildren, William, 8; Rhonda, 7; and Michael, 6, drowned yesterday in a pond near their home.

The children's mother, Mrs. William Brooks, told firemen the children were wading when one of them apparently fell into deeper water, dragging the others down. She said they always held hands while wading.

"The current troubles are not taking religious lines," adds the Rev. Horace M. McMullen, who has spent 11 years in the Middle East. "Furthermore, I don't think they will."

Dr. Carleton and the Rev. Mr. McMullen both served as president of Aleppo College in Syria, the former for 17 years until 1954 and the latter for four years until he retired last July 1.

The five Arab states most closely linked to Arab nationalism—Iraq, Jordan, Egypt, Syria and Lebanon—have a total population of about 35 million. Nearly 10 per cent is Christian, mostly in the cities.

In Lebanon, Christians are in the majority with 54 per cent. Syria has a hefty Christian minority of 11 per cent, Egypt and Jordan 8 per cent and Iraq 3 per cent.

"The Arab leaders are conscious that they need both Christians and Moslems behind them," says the Rev. Mr. McMullen. "And they know that the Christian communities are loyal to their governments and to Arab unity as a whole."

"The Middle East is one place where Christianity is not identified with the West and colonialism. After all, Christianity started there. It was there before Islam."

The word community is frequently heard in discussions of Middle East religions.

To a large extent, Middle East life is organized around religious communities, which handle a surprising amount of their own civil as well as religious affairs—marriage, divorce, etc.

Each religious community of consequence is almost guaranteed a place in the government. In Lebanon, the president must be a Christian, the prime minister a Moslem. Former Syrian Premier Faris Al-Khoury is a Christian.

Recently, there has been some criticism in church circles over the lack of Christian missionary zeal among Moslems. Dr. Carleton and the Rev. Mr. McMullen agree that missionary activity as it appears in other lands is virtually non-existent.

"If you mean pulling them over to baptize them, there's not much," says Dr. Carleton. "But if you mean making friends among the Moslems, there's a lot."

FILM SHOWN

SAGE Plans For Webb Described

Big Spring Kiwanians got a fleet of pictorial glimpse of the general appearance of equipment used in SAGE Thursday and were told that the building alone to house this electronic warning device would cost as much as $6 million.

The complicated equipment inside the building, it was said, would cost "several times that amount." SAGE is a device to safeguard this country against attack by air or missile and is a combination of many machines which store information, "remember" what has been stored and, in seconds, can compute from this previously provided data, instant details on the threat in the skies. In addition it can guide attacking forces to the enemy weapon, supervise its destruction and guide the defense elements back home.

The Kiwanians were heard a short film about SAGE and heard a few brief comments on the plans for the installation here from Col. William Lee, projects officer at WAFB. Col. Lee said that the SAGE plans here had advanced to the point that the prime contractor was to have been in Big Spring on Thursday afternoon to select site for the building.

Paul Vagi was operator of the projector for the film. Bob Vance, a son-in-law of Harvey Clay, past president of the club, was presented in two piano selections. He played compositions by Chopin.

Announcement was made that next Thursday noon will be ladies day at the club and all Kiwanians are asked to bring their wives as special guests.

Boy, 15, Set On Killing Cop

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP)—The 15-year-old boy, baseball bat in hand, stood at the front door of Mrs. Jack Kilburn's home last night and said, "I'm going to kill him."

"Him" is Mrs. Kilburn's husband, a Kansas City policeman. She told the boy that Kilburn wasn't home, and the youth left quietly.

Today Kilburn got the boy's name from neighbors and arrested him. Police said the boy had been drunk on eight bottles of beer he had stolen.

They said he picked out the Kilburn home because someone told him a policeman lived there. "I just don't like policemen," they quoted the boy, whose name was not released.

Stanton Forms Committees For Urban Renewal Studies

STANTON —The votes in the Urban Renewal election were canvassed and certified by the city council in a meeting Wednesday night. The official count was 96 to 51 favoring a complete investigation of the plan.

Members of the city council are S. W. Wheeler, mayor; Harvey White, city secretary; and councilmen Morgan Hall, Jack Jones, Jack Ireton, Robert Herzog and John Davis. Meeting with them were Joe Pierce, Midland representative of the engineering firm of Pierce, Pace and Norris, and J. M. Nuessle, Midland attorney.

The council formed two commissions and made appointments to fill them. The Urban Renewal Commission will be composed of R. O. Anderson, Ed Hall, John J. Wood, J. L. Brantley and O. B. Bryan.

Another commission to be known as the Local Housing Authority will be in charge of Findley Rhodes, Elmore Johnson, James Eiland, and Bernard Houston. The fifth member, County Judge Jim McCoy, declined to serve because of his present position, and his place will be filled by someone else.

The third group to be formed will be the Planning and Zoning Commission. Members have been appointed, but since there is a question concerning the eligibility of one member, the list will not be made official until the next meeting. This will be held next Thursday night.

No further work is contemplated until after this meeting, according to Harvey White, city secretary.

"Perhaps our first move will be to investigate the water system and a method to drain the lake," he said. "Also we must set up certain areas in town to which the Urban Renewal will apply. As we understand it now, we can't cover more than 90 per cent of Stanton."

The engineering firm will help the committee in setting up a workable program. Also, contact will be made with the Urban Renewal Officials at Fort Worth.

"This program is not something that can be accomplished overnight," said White. "We want to go slow with it and find out exactly what we can do and can't do. After a few more weeks, we hope to have much more information to pass on to everyone."

Planning to attend from the First Methodist Church are Mrs. H. M. Rowe, Mrs. Ruby Martin, Mrs. Ruby Rowe, Twila Lomax and Mrs. R. L. Penney. The Wesleyan Methodist Church will be represented by Mrs. T. A. McGuffey, Mrs. C. W. Parmenter, Mrs. Joe Kitching and Mrs. John Garrison.

Featured speaker will be E. Louise Nichols of New York City, a field worker for the Woman's Division of Christian Service, The Methodist Church. Another feature will be clinics for all officers. Clyde Nichols, association president.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

OUR LESSON is long, so we must be brief in outlining the important points in its teaching. We all, whether young or old, meet with a number of people in our lives, and our attitudes toward them are very important, whether they be rich or poor, healthy or disabled in some way, whether we like or dislike them.

The younger classes might be asked about the different people they meet in a day, Dr. Wilbur M. Smith suggests. It should be impressed on the pupils that an attitude of love and helpfulness toward all will please God, and is the way in which Christ treated everyone He met.

"Ye shall do no unrighteousness in judgment: thou shalt not respect the person of the poor, nor honour the person of the said. Even in our own fruitful land there are some in want, and in far-off places of the world there are millions. Remember and help them to the best of your means wherever they may be. Do not favor the rich and prosperous, discriminating against the poor. Love all and treat them with courtesy and kindness.

Be patient with those who suffer from deafness, and be helpful to those who are blind. It is always a heartwarming thing to see people who suffer from loss of sight being lovingly aided by those who can see, as we may almost any day.

"Thou shalt not hate thy brother in thy heart." "Thou shalt not avenge, nor bear any grudge against the children of thy people, but thou shalt love thy neighmighty, but in righteousness shall thou judge thy neighbor."—Leviticus 19:15.

"Thou shalt not go up and down as a talebearer among thy people."—Leviticus 19:16. How much mischief does idle gossip do in the world in our own time as in those long gone days. Reputations have been ruined by it, and innocent people made most unhappy. Even children may indulge in this bad habit, so the command should be impressed on every one of every age group.

Generosity toward the poor is stressed. If among your friends there be some in want, the children of Israel were told, "Open thine hand wide to him, and lend him sufficient for his need."

Deuteronomy 15:7, 8. The poor we have always with us, as Jesus bor as thyself: I am the Lord."—Leviticus 19:17, 18.

"Owe no man anything, but to love one another: for he that loveth another hath fulfilled the law."—Romans 13:8. Paul, a man of high ideals, evidently believed in paying debts as promptly as possible, but it is always love to others that he stresses most in his epistles.

In his epistle, James refers us to Christ our Lord as to our dealings in community justice. If in an assembly one man richly clothed comes, and also "a poor man in vile raiment," do not seat the rich man in a prominent place and leave the poor man standing at the door. Treat both alike with love and courtesy. Thus may you contribute to justice in your community.

SILHOUETTE CONTEST

Starting Sunday

The Little Foxes

They're back with a bang in the fall fashion picture. Irene designs this hat and three-yard bus in cross fox.

High Dome

She may not be an intellectual, but she's right in style in John Fredericks' yellow seel dome cloche over a mesh veil.

Monkey Business

This is the new look in hats. Lilly Dache designs a deep bucket cloche in brown velours covered in monkey fur.

Empire Bonnet

In the romantic mood of the season, Hattie Carnegie fashions this hat of sapphire angora felt with a froth of veil.

Bubble Cloche

This startling confection is made of pink swan feathers and peacock "eyes" with a riddy look. It's designed by Alice.

Fur And Feather Are Features Of Fall Hats

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

Furs, feathers and frou-frou will go to the head this fall, as hats get in step with the Empire fashion mood.

Husbands may as well be warned that every woman is going to want a fur hat this fall, and probably a fur boa to match. For these are the prescribed accessories to wear with the simple, straight-line wool dresses and understated suits of the season.

There are high fur shakos and deep fur cloches, fur berets and fur bonnets ranging from mink in all its mutations through beaver, seal and bunny to dramatic, long-haired fox. The latter hits an all-time high in dramatic effect when teamed with a matching boa, three yards long.

When it isn't fur, it's feathers. There are hats covered entirely in curled ostrich; others made of such things as swan feathers and peacock "eyes." The latter are the iridescent eye-tips of peacock feathers, not real seeing eyes, you'll be glad to know.

The furs and feathers are likely to be used in high toques or deep cloches, although there are many variations. Sally Victor makes a high, back-slanting bonnet of fox, and Lilly Dache covers a deep brown velvet cloche with black monkey fur.

The Empire bonnet also is much in evidence, in draped and crushed velvet or rich metallic brocade. Some of the hats have a poke bonnet look. Others suggest the boudoir caps of another generation.

New hats must have either height or depth—there are no insignificant beanie in the fashionable lineup. When you wear a hat this fall, everybody will know it, and often it will be the most important part of your costume.

Luck Token Cues Decor For OWC

Lucky pennies and a wishing well suggested the theme for the welcoming coffee given by the Officers Wives Club, Thursday morning at the base. Mrs. R. Higginbotham, chairman of Section Four, and her group were hostesses.

Newcomers and guests of Class E. were introduced by Mrs. E. Larr. She also presented Mrs. Kyle Riddle, wife of the base commander, and Mrs. Andrew Terpening, OWC president. Mrs. Terpening spoke briefly of the functions staged monthly by the OWC and stressed the gala party which is on the calendar for August 16.

Decorations were keyed to a miniature wishing well, engulfed in artificial posies, which centered the refreshment table. Each person received a name card to which was attached a shiny copper penny.

Mrs. P. J. Macchi, Mrs. L. A. Bruffat, Mrs. A. D. Johnson and Mrs. Bruce Williams received the door prizes.

Four Main Chores Are August's Garden Tasks

By MARY COCHRAN

Your calendar of garden duties for the month of August is short and simple. Weed, feed, cut and soak. Weed your garden; feed your chrysanthemums; cut back your flowering shrubs, and soak every living plant to keep it alive through the heat.

This is the month to divide and plant lilies. Trim all brown leaves from daylilies. If the clumps are overcrowded for daylilies or Oriental poppies, water them thoroughly and dig up for dividing. Cut the day lily tops back halfway to the roots after dividing the clumps into sections. Replant only the healthiest roots and discard the rest. Each new section should have at least one new shoot.

This is the best month for planting Oriental poppies. If the heat wave continues through this month, wait until September to plant your other perennials. You can sow seeds of Texas bluebells, stocks and wallflowers in shallow boxes for sturdy plants to be set out before frost arrives.

Check pyracanthas for lace bug, and spray with lindane if pests are present.

Stop pinching back chrysanthemums later in the month except the Azaleum variety that can now keep its buds. This is the feeding time to give the best blossoms for fall.

Flowering shrubs and trees may be gently pruned now of all unwanted growth. Soak them thoroughly, particularly those new ones set out last spring. Check regularly to see they don't wilt.

Check tall garden plants to be sure they are well staked and tied. Don't forget to order your iris and plant now. This is their dormant period.

Check mulches around camellias, gardenias, and azaleas and add more mulching if needed. Mulch will cut down your water bill in all beds for it holds the moisture.

Repot hyacinth and freesia bulbs for winter bloom. Water potted bulbs very lightly until mid-September, when they should be watered freely.

Trim hedges regularly to keep them compact and attractive. Clip back straggly branches of broad-leaved evergreens at same time.

This is a good time to feed roses.

BANKS FAMILY WILL HOST OPEN HOUSE

On Saturday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Banks, 1804 Settles, will entertain at an open house to mark their Golden Wedding anniversary. Friends are being invited to call between the hours of 2 and 5 p.m.

The couple was married July 26, 1908 in Yantis, Wood County, and came to Big Spring in 1928.

Expected to be present for the affair are the seven children, several of the 19 grandchildren and the two great grandchildren.

Garden Council Sets Schedule

Decisions about future flower shows were made Wednesday morning when members of the Council of Big Spring Garden Clubs convened at the home of Mrs. C. W. Neefe. Seven attended.

It was agreed that the council will sponsor two shows annually, one in the spring and another in the fall. Responsibility for staging each of the shows will lie with two of the garden clubs, in rotation.

The fall show, set for October 30, will again be set up at the Howard County Junior College.

HJCJC will also be the setting for Flower Show School No. 5, scheduled for Sept. 29, 30 and Oct. 1.

Mrs. R. P. Nicholson, 1601 Vines, will be hostess to the council August 27.

Altrusans Meet To Swim, Eat

Mrs. Obie Bristow was hostess Thursday evening for a swimming party and patio supper for members of the Altrusa Club. This was a change from the regular luncheon meeting.

Guests gathered early for a swim and chatting.

A buffet supper was served on the patio and the group was seated at quartet tables lighted by hurricane lamps.

At the end of the evening, committee meetings were held, with reports to be given at the next session. This is scheduled for Aug. 14.

Summer Slump Clinic Set By Baptist Circles

When the newly-organized Training Circle of the Baptist Temple met Thursday evening, plans were made for assisting at the Summer Slump Clinic, which will be held Tuesday at the church.

Mrs. Byron Lipe was appointed social chairman for the meeting, at which the circle will furnish coffee. Mrs. Robert Hill, in whose home the group met, presided in the absence of the leader, Mrs. Harold Rasberry.

The missionary calendar was read by Mrs. Lipe, who offered a prayer for the persons listed. Duties of officers were discussed for the members, and it was announced that an election for regular officers will be held at the meeting on July 31.

A guessing contest was carried on with Mrs. Hill as leader. The program, based on the study, God's Word on Stewardship, was presented by Mrs. Hill, Mrs. Dalton Knox and Mrs. Lankford.

Mrs. Clifton Boyd, a new member, and Mrs. Lipe read the Scripture. Mrs. Stanley Harbin, 1403 Marijo, will be hostess for the next meeting, it was announced.

Legs To Show This Year; Make Them Presentable

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Beauty Editor

This is the year for legs, if you plan to wear the new fashions. And don't forget that the backs of your knees will be featured in this new look. Horrible? Worse than that. The only way to fight it is to improve your knees if they don't measure up, and that's a tall order for any girl.

How do you stack up? Below the knees? At the knees? Calves? The surest treatment for fat legs is a general reducing program, unless the legs are out of proportion to the rest of the body. Exercise will help in spot reduction, if fat knees or bulging calves mar an otherwise pretty leg.

Help reduce your knees this way: Stand with your feet together, knee caps touching. Pull kneecaps upward. Relax. Repeat as often as you can.

Sit down, spreading the knees apart, and deliberately slap them together. The bulges should meet, but do it gently.

Calves may be reduced with this exercise: Sit on the floor with the legs straight out in front. Slide the right heel toward the body until the knee is a bit bent. Let heels remain on the floor as you straighten your knee sharply, slapping your calf against the floor.

If you'd keep your calves slim, wear shoes with heels. Ballet slippers and flat shoes increase the development of leg calves because of the stress put on that area when you wear low-heeled shoes. Alternate from low to high heels as often as possible.

Since eyes will be on your legs, they will also be on your feet. Those "little pump bumps" that bulge above your shoes, for instance, need careful attention.

A little petroleum jelly rubbed into the backs of heels before you wear the offending shoes may help to minimize the effects of friction. And you don't want to have the "bubbles" from aching feet, so make sure those callouses are taken care of now.

Callouses may be eliminated by following this routine: Fill a pan with hot, sudsy water. Douse well with bath salts or other softeners. Immerse feet for 15 to 20 minutes. After soaking, scrub the calloused areas with a brush. If all dead skin isn't removed, use an abrasive such as pumice or grainy meal.

Rinse feet under cold water tap, the icier the water, the more invigorating. After drying well, attend to your cuticle with an orange wood stick and cotton. It will be soft after all the soaking, and easy to handle. Massage the feet with a petroleum jelly. Grasp the ball of the foot and firmly move hand back to heel.

If you do this routine at night, wear an old pair of socks to bed. You'll feel like dancing in the morning after sleeping off this treatment.

Horses Bolt At Rodeo Celebration

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Before thousands of startled spectators, four horses bolted while pulling a stagecoach in the Cheyenne Frontier Days rodeo. One of them was dragged with blood before the rig was stopped.

Mrs. Leora Krieger, 50, Berthoud, Colo., suffered a broken leg but 11 children inside the stage escaped injury when they were pulled out in time.

The horses were halted by Floyd Farris, who rode alongside the runaway and slowed them to a stop.

Young Burglars Confess Break-In, Will Face Judge

Two burglars, one 12 and the other 15 years old, have confessed to breaking into the Churchwell Grocery, 1602 W. 3rd, on the night of July 18. A. E. Long, juvenile officer, said Friday.

The two youngsters told the officer they entered the store through a window. They took a gum-vending machine, some cigarettes and $5 in change, they said.

The battered gum machine was recovered.

Long said he would bring the two boys before the juvenile court sometime next week. One of the pair has already made one appearance before the court, he added.

Ten competitive events and several specialty acts are scheduled. One of the highlights will be the presentation of the 1958 Aqua Queen, being selected from the corps of YMCA swimming instructors by youngsters who have participated in swimming classes this summer.

A swimming exhibition, "Beyond the Seas," will be presented by Sue Gay.

Also scheduled are a water ballet, a clown act, and a walking race featuring the small fry.

Competitive events are the junior and senior diving.

The water ballet, entitled "Carousel," will be staged by Martha Haynes, Judy Reagan, Pat Johnson, Gretchen Briden, Pat Russell, Lana Lewis, Barbara Daley, Pat Rogers, Gloria Coker, Sally Pachall, Jan Daniels and Judy Morrow.

Clown divers will be John Yates, Robert Chambers, and Joe Baird. The swimming judges are to be Dr. Thomas J. Williamson, Paul Shaffer, and Tommy Hart. Timers will be John L. Dibrell and Hart. Olen Puckett will be starter, and diving judges will be Puckett, Shaffer and Bobo Hardy.

Hugh Hamm and Sue Gay are to serve as directors of the meet and J. N. Young will be master of ceremonies. Marilyn Fortson, Joan Gay and Gary Tidwell are listed as recorders.

Trophies, provided by the Howard County Athletic Assn., will be presented to winners of the different events.

Driverless Truck Misses Traffic

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP) — Emmett Luther Brock, 57, Durham, N.C., was stricken with a heart attack yesterday while driving his tractor-trailer through the thick of noonday business traffic here.

The truck rolled about 50 feet into the yard of a store and stopped without striking anything.

Brock was dead on arrival at a hospital.

State Claims Shaver's Life In Girl's Death

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Former airman Jimmy Shaver was put to death in the electric chair here early today—his 33rd birthday—for the 1954 rape-slashing of a three-year-old San Antonio girl.

His only birthday gift was a bouquet of flowers given to him yesterday by his aunt, Mrs. Elaine Tyler. With the flowers was a note: "May this be a small ray of sunshine to you on your birthday."

The execution of Shaver, convicted of the death of Chere Jo Horton near a San Antonio tavern, had been delayed several times by reprieves.

The last was issued after a former jailmate, Donald Summers, confessed to slaying the girl. Earlier this week the State Board of Pardons and Paroles said a lie detector test showed that Summers was not the slayer.

The former airman was calm and smiling when led into the death chamber at the state prison here. He thanked the guards for the treatment shown him. The switch was thrown at 12:03 a.m. and he was pronounced dead two minutes later.

Shaver's last statement was: "I want to thank everybody, especially my Christian friends who tried to do so much for me and I especially thank Capt. Joe Byrd and all his guards for being so wonderful to me. I appreciate it with a humble heart. May God bless every one of you."

As he was being strapped into the chair, the sweat started rolling off him in the 100-degree temperature of the death chamber.

At 1:15 p.m. the prison received a long-distance call from J.C. Horton, the father of the slain child, who called to see if the execution was still scheduled.

A last minute effort to save Shaver was made yesterday by his father, uncle and grandmother. They asked for more time and pointed again to the February statement by Summers.

The dramatic statement by Summers, who had been in a San Antonio jail with Shaver, won a stay of execution for Shaver after he had been prepared for the electric chair.

It set off a long investigation. Earlier this week the Board of Pardons and Paroles said a lie detector test indicated Summers did not kill the little girl.

Shaver spent his final day reading the Bible and visiting with relatives, including two ministers from El Paso.

His mother, Mrs. F. E. McGhee of El Paso, was in Huntsville but did not visit her son.

"My mother's instinct tells me that my son did not commit this horrible crime," she said.

Shaver was twice tried and convicted. His attorneys based their defense on insanity, and did not question his guilt.

An Open Letter to Jerry Holleman President, Texas AFL-CIO Delegate-At-Large, DOT

Dear Mr. Holleman:

Do you really mean what you said publicly on June 29?

Do you really mean that successful men shouldn't have anything to do with our public affairs in Washington? Do you really mean that our public offices should be turned over to men who have never made a success of their own careers?

Do you Mr. Holleman?

That is what you were saying in your attack on Senator Blakley. You were saying that it was perfectly all right for union leaders in Washington, New York, Cleveland, Pittsburgh and other big cities to pour money into Texas to elect a man of their choosing. You were saying that the workingman is against success.

We can't believe you know the workingman, sir. We don't believe you know Texans either, Mr. Holleman.

All of us are young Texans. We have just graduated from our Texas colleges. Our parents are workmen and women. We know they want us to be successful—and we want to live up to their expectations and justify their many sacrifices to help us attain college educations.

Nobody else but you ever told us success was wrong, Mr. Holleman. Men like Bill Blakley built Texas and built America. Along with many, many others, he has helped keep Texas growing and prospering. You and many of your fellow union leaders might not even be here in Texas if it had not been for business leaders like Bill Blakley.

While Mr. Blakley has been building, what has your candidate been doing, Mr. Holleman?

Since most of us were only a year old he has been running for office and he hasn't yet received a majority of the votes. On his fifth attempt—in a special election where there was no run-off—two out of every three Texans voted for his opponents.

Mr. Holleman, your candidate has a record of failures unequalled in Texas.

If you expect young people to follow your leadership, Mr. Holleman, do you really mean to tell them that a long record of failure will win more for them than a record of outstanding success?

Mr. Holleman, your organization is quick to criticize Mr. Blakley for being a success in business. What about the AFL-CIO's own record in business?

Would the hundred thousand members of the unions who lost their life's savings because they took the word of AFL-CIO leaders on ICT stock agree with you that business success is bad?

Mr. Blakley has been successful in business, Mr. Holleman, while your organization has been a party to the biggest failure in Texas history.

You attack success, Mr. Holleman, from a record of failure. Which leadership do you think Texans, young and old, want to follow? Your kind or the kind offered by Bill Blakley?

The kind of Texas we want is the kind of Texas our parents helped to give us. We want to keep it that way for ourselves and our children. We don't want the conditions which the political labor bosses have created in other states, Mr. Holleman. We like what we have here—a chance to make good—just as Bill Blakley has done—and we believe he is the man who can help us do just that.

That is why we are supporting him and will continue to do so. For he is the dream-come-true which we and every other Texas boy and girl have had since we were a year old—when your candidate began running for office.

We believe that Bill Blakley will be the kind of Senator who will make every Texan, including you, Mr. Holleman, be proud to say "I am a Texan."

We are proud to be Texans and we're going to be even prouder when Mr. Blakley goes back to Washington. And you can be sure he's going, Mr. Holleman, because you just can't fool enough Texans enough of the time.

Sincerely yours,

P.S. We also believe that Bill Blakley is a good Democrat. While you and your candidate were organizing the DOT party, Mr. Holleman, Senator Blakley was casting the deciding vote which prevented the Republicans from taking over the leadership of the Senate.

51 Postmen Get $8,849 In Back Pay

Fifty-one employees of the Big Spring Post Office got a summer-time Christmas present today.

The present was in the form of checks for back pay due them on the recent 10 per cent raise allotted to postal workers. The checks represent 10 per cent of their salaries from Jan. 11 through the last pay period.

Elmer Boatler said the 50 checks, before deductions, totalled $8,849.59. After the deductions for federal income tax, the total dropped to $6,771.68.

The average for all of the 51 employees sharing in the amount was $132.77. The face amounts of the checks ranged in size from one which was only $4.28 to $226.16.

The small check, Boatler said, was to a worker who had accepted a job with the office, worked only a short time and resigned.

The back-pay checks arrived midway between the last regular pay period and the one due on Aug. 1.

The employees have been paid at the new rate, which is about 10 per cent average over their old scale, for the past month.

The law made the pay boost retroactive to Jan. 11 and the money received today is the difference between the old scale from that date to the time the new pay rates were made operative on current checks.

Questions Of Blame, Salvage Remain After Ocean Disaster

By FRANCIS STILLEY
NEW YORK (AP)—After two years, two major questions still hover above the sunken hulk of the Italian luxury liner Andrea Doria.

One of them is: Who is to blame for the fearful collision with the Swedish motorship Stockholm off the coast of Massachusetts two years ago tonight? Months of court hearings failed to settle the issue. It probably never will be.

The second question may or may not be answered in the years to come: Can the Andrea Doria be salvaged or resurrected from the depths of the Atlantic?

Meanwhile, one major task made necessary by the crash is all but ended. For more than a year attorneys for insurance companies have been busy settling death, injury and cargo claims.

Claimants will receive a total of about six million dollars. They originally asked about 116 million.

Only a few claims remain to be settled.

Foreign underwriters also have paid the Italian Line some 14 million for the loss of the Andrea Doria, and the Swedish-American line received a million for repairs to the smashed bow of the Stockholm.

The largest death settlement went to the four small children who perished in the sinking. It was for $175,000. The figure was predicated on the education and style of living the children normally could have expected the parents to provide until they reached adulthood.

But one firm maintains it is determined to try, just the same. This is the A. A. Salvage Co. of Trenton, N. J., and some associates.

A spokesman said this week that divers expect to go down shortly to check the Doria and see what might be done. If the ship can't be raised, he said, it might be blown apart and salvaged piecemeal.

The spokesman said either operation might cost 2 1/2 million dollars or so and the company would be lucky to make expenses in a mere salvage of scrap and any valuables still intact.

The company wants to haul up the Doria and sell her for repair and resumption of sea service. The spokesman believes some ship line might be willing to pay as much as 15 million dollars for the vessel, plus another few million for repairs—far less than the cost of a new ship.

the responsibility were dropped. Insurance agents for the two lines set up a fund for settling claims.

Before the hearings were concluded, the substance of the testimony was that each ship blamed the other for making a wrong turn at the last moment as they met.

As for the matter of raising or salvaging the Doria, the situation has brought some conflicting opinions.

Some experts have voiced belief that, while the liner theoretically might be brought up from the 225 feet of water, the job would be so expensive and dangerous it wouldn't be worthwhile. Others term it impossible.

Oliviers Give 'All' For Show

LONDON (AP)—The first couple of British drama hobbled before the footlights early today with baggy pants, glassy grins and a collection of hurts and bruises.

When it came to jumping through the paper hoop, Sir Laurence Olivier yielded the stage. His actress wife Vivien Leigh struggled painfully through the knockabout stuff with their other partner in a clown act, actor John Mills.

It was all part of a gala mid-night charity show, "The Night of a Hundred Stars," held at the London Palladium for the actors' orphanage fund.

The Olivier act might have been better if they hadn't rehearsed so energetically Thursday.

Sir Laurence strained a tendon. Vivien took a flying leap into the arms of Mills and gave out a scream that shook the theater—twisted knee.

Mills slipped off quietly and got his rib strapped up.

The show went on but 52-year-old Laurence confined himself to singing with canes for support.

Vivien and Mills bravely struggled through the soft shoe shuffles and the rest of the clowning with a stand-in for Olivier.

Two Americans got into the show.

Kirk Douglas climbed on Burt Lancaster's shoulders. Dressed as stockbrokers, they sang "Maybe It's Because I'm a Londoner."

All For Naught

MIDDLETOWN, N.I. (AP)—Police, fire fighters and Coast-guardmen searched the water off Atlantic beach last night by the light of 50 automobile headlights for Wallace A. Martland, 19, Newport. He had been reported at the beach and presumably had drowned. Later, searchers discovered Martland was home in bed.

Jailer Convicted Of Fines Thefts

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP)—Louis

Fritz, 51, a deputy sheriff and jailer here more than 15 years, was placed on probation for five years yesterday by Common Pleas Judge Fred B. Cramer. He had been charged with embezzling about $8,200 in fines and costs paid at the jail from 1951-57. Judge Cramer ordered Fritz to make full restitution within 3 1/2 years.

PRECINCT NO. 2
FOR A SECOND TERM

TO THE PEOPLE:

Several years ago I served two terms as County Commissioner from Precinct No. 2. Then during the next four years I worked for the Trinity Memorial Park.

Thanks to your generosity I am serving as County Commissioner again and I am now seeking re-election to a second term this time on the court.

I am experienced in Commissioners' Court procedure and I find this experience helpful to me as a County Commissioner.

I am aware that certain special interests are going all out in an effort to defeat me at the polls because I am not a "YES" man.

If you believe in a commissioner who will use his own judgement, I will appreciate your vote and influence in the Democratic primary election.

Regardless for whom you vote, please vote!

LONE STAR BEER SETS NEW RECORDS

San Antonio, Tex.—Second quarter sales of Certified Quality Lone Star Beer established new records for each month of the quarter, according to a report released today by Floyd O. Schneider, general sales manager for Lone Star.

Sales were up 12.5% in April, 23% in May, and 13.3% in June over the same months last year.

Principal contributing factor for these major sales gains, according to Schneider, has been the introduction of absolute quality certification by Lone Star, marking the first time in brewing history that a brewer has offered positive day-to-day quality certification by the world's largest independent testing and research laboratories, The United States Testing Company.

Thus Lone Star has become the nation's first quality beer.
