Dean Resigns
After 14 Years
On Draft Board

Robert M. Dean revealed Saturday that he has tendered his resignation as Howard County member and chairman of Selective Service Board No. 71. The board handles military draft matters for Howard, Mitchell and Martin counties.

Dean has served on the board for 14 years. He recently suffered a heart attack and is in Malone & Hogan Hospital and is making rapid recovery. However, he said he did not feel his health and the press of his own business would permit him to continue on the Selective Service Board.

Dean submitted a letter of resignation to Col. Morris Swartz, state director for Selective Service, in Austin. The letter said:

"I request that I be relieved from the position of chairman of Selective Service Board No. 71. A heavy workload and a now a break in health has forced me to make this request. I am deeply grateful for the help and cooperation given to me by the clerks of the local board, and other board members, and your office.

"I consider it a privilege to have been able to serve my country in this capacity for the past 14 years.

"I will remain in my present position until my successor is appointed by the President."

Other members of the board are Martin Gibson, of Stanton, and Leonard Morris, of Colorado City. Mrs. Louise Nuckolls is chief clerk.

Blaiberg Worse

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP)—The condition of Dr. Philip Blaiberg, the world's longest surviving heart transplant patient, worsened Saturday. Medical sources said a combined heart and lung transplant might be tried to keep him alive.

Groote Schuur Hospital sources said a new lung was thought needed to eliminate creeping pneumonia, now believed affecting both Dr. Blaiberg's lungs.

Blaiberg's wife, Eileen, said Saturday evening, "The only way to save Philip's life is to give him a new heart."

It had been reported earlier that Dr. Christiaan N. Barnard's surgical team at Groote Schuur was considering giving Blaiberg a third heart.

No donor had been found, Barnard said, but it was understood that the 59-year-old retired dentist could be kept alive for some time with the help of a heart-lung machine.

Barnard declined specific comment on Blaiberg's condition. The hospital reported only a "further deterioration." Informants suggested, however, that the heart Blaiberg received Jan. 2 might be malfunctioning or rejecting seven months after its implantation.

The hospital had reported earlier Saturday that Blaiberg was "very ill" with a lung affliction and that complications "are giving rise to concern." Also in the background was a hepatitis attack that struck Blaiberg June 10. This liver condition, which led Barnard to return here from Europe, was reported improving, however.

Bleachers Collapse

MAY, Tex. (AP)—Bleachers collapsed Saturday night during the final showing of the May Rodeo, injuring "more than a few" persons, police reported.

Police at Brownwood said ambulances from Brownwood, Rising Star, Comanche and Cross Plains, as well as private vehicles, took patients to hospitals in Brownwood, Rising Star and Comanche.

Reviewing the . . .

Big Spring Week

. . . with Joe Pickle

Are we having our autumn in July? The weather of the past week would seem so. Most of the week was overcast and hazy. In between were several showers, not summer thunderstorms, but fine, peppy ones like a September turnip rain. In all, most of the territory got upwards of an inch moisture, enough to keep pastures green. The cool nights perked up cotton and feed.

We failed to get through the holiday period without a fatality. Saturday, Mrs. Opel Geneva Metcalf, 51, of Midland, died of injuries sustained Friday when her lightweight car plowed into the rear of a gasoline transport on IS 20 just west of the Coden refinery. Her 14-year-old daughter, Geneva, was injured seriously. A week ago, Dennis Brantley, 18, of Stanton, drowned near Reeseville, Wis., where he had been working on a construction project.

Bank deposits hit a mid-year high of $44,305,000, statements as of June 29 showed during the week. Loans and discounts also hit a peak of

Texas
Toll
Soars

By The Associated Press

Automobile accidents and drownings Saturday continued to accent the violent death toll in Texas as the long Independence Day holiday period racked up tragic results.

Traffic accidents had killed 23 persons by late Saturday with drownings taking 19 lives and another was killed in a boating accident. Gunfire killed 12 and five died in miscellaneous violence that included an airplane crash and two tractor accidents. The toll was 59.

FORECAST

The Texas Department of Public Safety in a pre-holiday forecast predicted that 38 persons would die in traffic crashes during the long period. The DPS kept every patrolman available on the highways.

The department announced Saturday that so far this year 1,527 persons had been killed in 1,285 fatal motor vehicle accidents since the year began.

The Associated Press began tabulating the holiday violent deaths Wednesday at 6 p.m. and planned to continue until midnight Sunday.

A.B. Montgomery, 72, of Fort Worth was killed Saturday in a two-car crash there.

Joseph Elmer Glasco, a Grapevine resident, was killed when his car left a Tarrant County road and ran off an embankment Saturday.

DROWNED

Robert W. Jefferson III, 16, of Groves drowned when he fell from the bow of a speed boat Saturday. The accident occurred on the Neches River near Beaumont.

Steve Summers, 24, was killed in a Houston service station when a tire blew out in his face Saturday.

Richard Machac, 16, of Houston drowned Saturday while swimming in a lake on Harris County's western edge.

Everett Manton Owens, 44, of Abilene and his wife, Florene Bowen Owens, 41, were killed Saturday in a two-car collision a mile south of O'Brien in Haskell County. The accident occurred on US 283.

Clara Washington, 39, was beaten to death in her home in Dallas Friday night. A man, 45, was held.

The body of David Meyers, 8, of Port Arthur was found floating in the Intracoastal Canal Saturday about three miles upstream from where he was last seen playing at Port Arthur.

Johnson Greeted By
Cheers, Eggs, PaintSigns Up For Alliance To Fight Disease

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP)—President Johnson signed at the Central American summit session Saturday a bill creating with the five nations involved an alliance to fight the deadly foot-and-mouth disease of cattle.

"We are here today," Johnson said, "to strengthen the bond of friendship between the United States and the republics of Central America."

NEW DANGER

"On the grazing lands and praderas of six sister nations to the south we ally ourselves against an ancient enemy and a new danger."

Under the bill that became law far from the scene of its enactment, Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman will set up a commission for prevention of the disease similar to one in existence with Mexico. The new cooperative program will embrace El Salvador, Costa Rica, Guatemala, Honduras and Nicaragua.

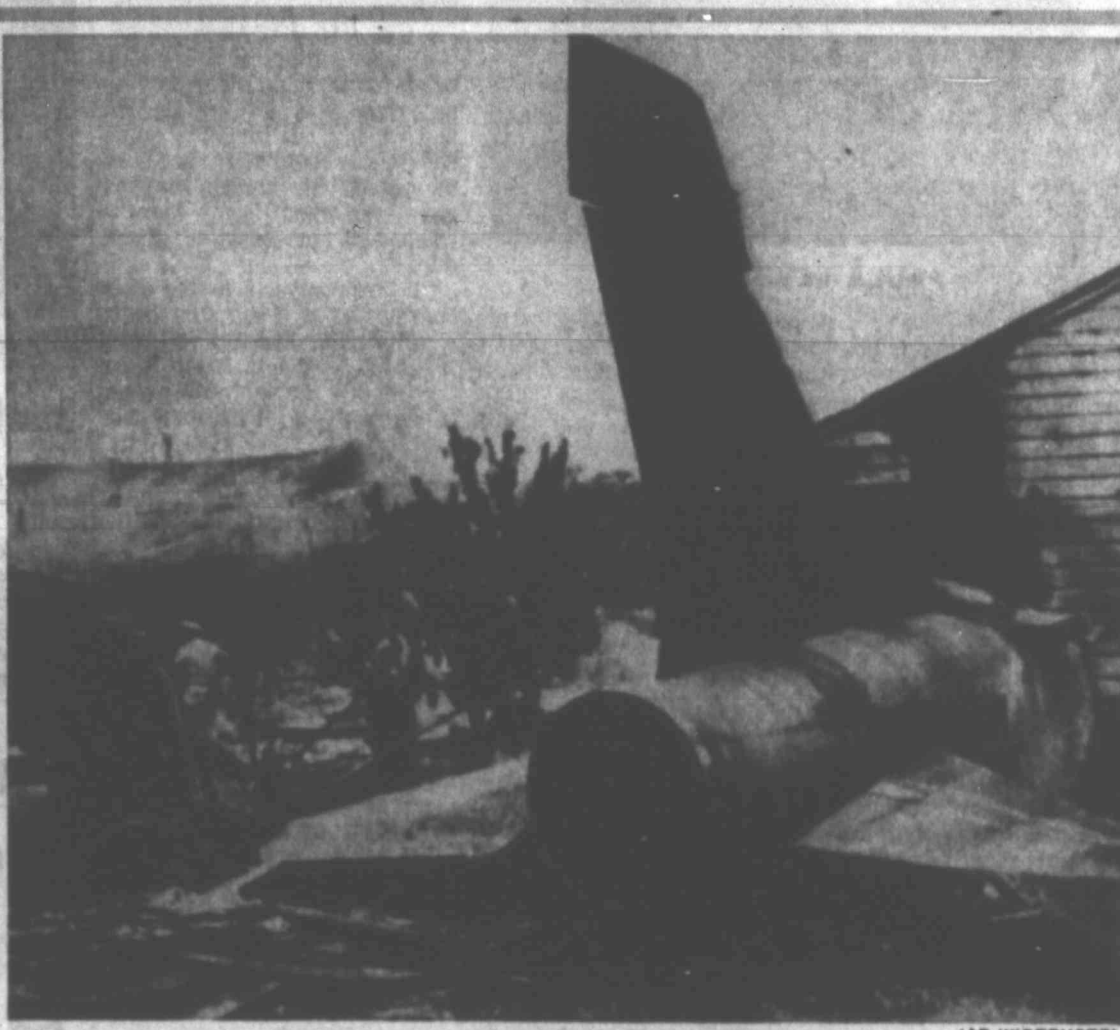

Central America is free of the disease now. But it threatens to spread northward from Colombia and through Panama. The five nations beyond Panama, members of a Common Market, asked the United States to help keep that from happening.

The bill was the answer. The Agriculture Department will supply technical and field assistance and the Central American neighbors will contribute manpower, equipment, supplies and facilities.

CAN RUIN

The President raises cattle on his land in Texas. So he spoke with authority in saying that once foot-and-mouth disease strikes, it can devastate a herd and ruin a rancher. Livestock must be destroyed, he said, and food is denied to the table and income is stolen from the farmer's pocket.

The bill, he said, will permit the taking of every necessary measure to prevent this.

Plane Crashes Into Houses

The tail section of a U.S. Navy Marine jet plane rests against a house as firemen hose down a burning part of the plane and another house near the Dallas Naval Air Station at Grand Prairie.

Navy Reservist Dies, Plane
Hits Grand Prairie Homes

DALLAS (AP)—A jet fighter piloted by a Navy reservist crashed shortly after takeoff Saturday killing the flier and smashing into two residences and a garage.

The residents of the homes were away.

The pilot was Lt. Gary Greter, 31, of Grand Prairie. He was employed by Ling-Temco-Vought.

Both homes and the detached garage caught fire. The homes were severely damaged and the garage with a car inside was destroyed.

The plane was taking off from the Dallas Naval Air Station at Grand Prairie between Fort Worth and Dallas.

It skidded over a series of railroad tracks and crashed into a field.

Witnesses said the plane bounced two or three times then broke in half, one section striking one residence and the other half the second home.

Both sections of the plane were ablaze when they hit the houses.

The ejection seat was found in the field and the pilot's body was some distance away. A Navy hospital corpsman said the pilot's body had no strap marks on the shoulders.

Officials at the scene warned spectators away, saying the plane carried live ammunition. But no ammunition explosions occurred.

Nasser To Get Help

MOSCOW (AP)—President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt said Saturday that Soviet leaders have "confirmed they will help us liberate our lands."

But the published part of Nasser's remarks contained no indication that the Soviet Union favors new military action instead of a peaceful solution to end the Middle East crisis.

He said at a Kremlin luncheon:

"We have been convinced again that the Soviet Union supports the Arabs and the rights of the Arab nations."

Lawyer Gets
Some Leads

LONDON (AP)—James Earl Ray gave his American lawyer Saturday what the attorney called "names and other leads" to investigate in preparing Ray's defense against charges of assassinating Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

The attorney Arthur J. Hanes, former mayor of Birmingham, Ala., conferred with Ray for 70 minutes in Wandsworth Prison.

Ray was arrested here June 8 and is being held pending a London court appeal against an extradition order to the United States signed by a British magistrate last Tuesday.

Hanes had visited Ray Friday in company with his court-appointed British attorney, but was alone with Ray Saturday except for prison guards. The lawyer was searched before the interview.

SEPARATED

The two men were separated by a glass panel, with a thick metal grille on either side to allow the passage of sound. At times they whispered and exchanged notes which were passed back and forth by the guard.

Hanes told newsmen he found the interview with Ray "most helpful, most fruitful, and beneficial." He added: "I am beginning to build a case, to organize a defense. He gave me names and other leads to follow up back in the United States and I am building a file."

Hanes refused to disclose anything about the information Ray gave him. He also refused to comment on how his case might work out if Ray comes to trial.

Latin Common Market Gets
Joint Support

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP)—President Johnson, greeted by thousands of cheering Salvadoreans and some anti-war youths who splattered his limousine with red paint and an egg, joined five Central American presidents Saturday in declaring support for formation of a Latin American common market.

HOPE

Johnson voiced hope that the five-nation common market already existing in Central America would serve as a pattern for similar organizations in Asia, Africa and—once peace terms are settled—the Middle East.

The confetti-filled welcome that tens of thousands of persons accorded Johnson's motorcade was marred by about 100 youths grouped with anti-Vietnam war posters on a hill overlooking his route from the airport where he arrived from San Antonio, Tex.

The youths threw some two dozen eggs, raw potatoes and a dozen or so paint bombs at the President's bubble-top limousine. One egg hit a side window near Johnson's head. The paint bombs missed but splattered the car when they hit nearby.

ARRESTED

Scores of the demonstrators were arrested. They were a tiny minority among the welcoming crowds that packed the roadside, often filling the highway from curb to curb. The greeters included one naked little boy waving an American flag.

A photographers' truck preceding the limousine took the brunt of the egg barrage while cars carrying Central American leaders behind Johnson fell into the path of the paint bombardment.

At no time was Johnson in danger of being hit by the missiles because of the bulletproof bubble over the top of the limousine's back seat.

After the motorcade reached the downtown site of the summit conference, Secret Service agents began wiping away the paint splatters and egg from the limousine.

BUSINESS

Inside, Johnson immediately got down to business with the presidents of El Salvador, Nicaragua, Guatemala, Honduras and Costa Rica.

He announced $65 million in U.S. loans to help Central Americans and their seven-year-old regional common market.

He approved $30 million to the Central American fund for economic integration and to help transportation and communications improvements. Another $35 million was approved for programs in each of the five countries. These included a pilot educational television station in El Salvador, a loan for elementary school development in Guatemala, a loan for rural electric cooperatives in Honduras and in Costa Rica to promote agriculture.

"One day the material needs of the Central American people will be met," Johnson said. "But I believe it can be said that the spirit of Central America has already triumphed."

Hawk Missiles
Sold To Israel

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Pentagon announced Saturday the sale to Israel of a number of batteries of Hawk anti-aircraft defensive missiles.

A spokesman said it was the first new sale of military equipment to Israel since the Arab-Israeli war more than a year ago. "Acquisition by Israel of additional Hawks should enhance its ability to defend itself against air attack," the announcement said.

The Pentagon refused to say how many batteries—there are 18 missiles to a battery—are involved in the sale, which the announcement said was agreed to on June 29.

Nor would the Defense Department say how much Israel is paying for the anti-aircraft missiles, being sold under a U.S. government credit arrangement.

The Hawk is designed to defend against high-speed air attack from low and medium altitude.

Israel already has a battalion of the weapons, comprising about 72 missiles deployed on wheeled launchers, delivered early in 1965.

Intelligence sources say Russia has rebuilt virtually all of Egypt's air strength, which was shattered on the ground by the Israeli air force at the opening of the six-day war in June 1967.

Survived By Playing Dead

LONG BINH, Vietnam (AP) — Paula Levine is a winsome, dark-haired 20-year-old entertainer who figured she could make a bigger mark as a pop singer by going to Vietnam than by any other route.

"After all, they told me it wasn't dangerous out here, that nothing would happen to us, and they said there would be plenty of bookings and a lot of exposure," Paula said bitterly as she sat on the edge of an Army hospital bed and clutched her blue gown to her.

BUBBLE MACHINE

That was how "Brandi Perry and the Bubble Machine" was born. Paula — who is "Brandi" — had an audition with an organization handling entertainment in Vietnam and, after she sang a couple of songs, the agent said, "Get yourself a trio, you've got yourself a show."

Blond Jack Bone, 18, joined as an organist. A 17-year-old drummer and a 19-year-old bass player completed the Bubble Machine.

They never had seen each other before May but by June 11, when they arrived in Vietnam for a two-month tour, they were a "happy family," Paula said. "These kids were like brothers." On Friday night, the bubble machine was playing in the Me-kong Delta to the south, the musicians had learned that the GIs they entertained looked forward with great anticipation to the occasional shows that came their way. That is why the group was driving to the coastal resort of Vung Tau in the late dusk Friday.

Highway 15 is notorious for Viet Cong incidents and several persons have been kidnapped along it recently. South Vietnamese militiamen had a road-block up Friday and the musicians, about halfway to their destination, were told they could not go any farther.

They turned their pickup truck back toward Saigon and were singing to themselves. "I thought I was hearing things. Then it came," Paula said, her hand twitching nervously.

HIT IN ARM

"I was sitting in the middle of the front seat. The boy on my right was hit in the arm and when I realized that someone was shooting at us I remembered the advice someone gave me when I got here — whenever you hear a crack, duck!"

"I threw myself to the floor boards and as I did so I heard a splintering crash and something hit my back. Later I realized it was the shattering windshield that had hurt me," she said.

Bone, in a back seat, said the headlights picked out five or six people holding guns on the road ahead of them.

"We stopped, or tried to, and the pickup ran off the road," she said. "We thought they were our soldiers firing at us in mistake. Three of us jumped out into the roadway and started shouting that we were Americans and for them to stop firing. They just stood there and fired at us point blank about five yards away."

"A bullet smashed into my hand and knocked me into the ditch. The two other boys were killed." Also wounded at this time was a young Army sergeant who had volunteered to drive with the group to Vung Tau.

Paula said the guerrillas rummaged through the truck and the three survivors played dead. The guerrillas took wallets, ID cards and airplane tickets the men were carrying but did not touch Paula.

Heap Big Sitdown

INDIAN TOWNSHIP, Maine (AP) — About 40 Passamaquoddy Indians have conducted a sit-down demonstration at a logging site in this forested township. The Indians contend the Georgia Pacific Co. is logging on land that is theirs under a 1794 treaty. At issue are 19,000 acres of timber which both parties claim.

Patients To Get A Cool Treat

Thursday promises to be a happy summer day for more than 200 children and adults at the Big Spring State Hospital. The patients will help 7-Eleven food stores celebrate its 41st anniversary. Ice cream and soft drinks will be served to the patients on the hospital grounds Thursday morning, according to Tom Passmore, 7-Eleven supervisor.

7-Eleven food stores comprise the Southwestern stores Division of the Southland Corporation with headquarters in Dallas. Eight 7-Eleven stores currently serve Big Spring.

Arson Blamed For Fire At Stanford

STANFORD, Calif. (AP)—It may take $300,000 to repair damage caused by arsonists who broke into the office of Stanford University President Wallace Sterling, university officials estimate.

The figure does not include the value of personal belongings and memorabilia destroyed, Alf Brandin, university vice president in charge of business, said.

Firemen said the blaze, reported at 5 a.m. Friday, probably started in the president's office and spread to several other offices.

There was a strong smell of gasoline and the "evidence clearly pointed to arson," said Bruce Wiggins, the fire marshal.

University spokesmen declined to blame any individual or group, but there was a clue that indicated antagonism toward the Stanford Research Institute (SRI).

A green book bag, filled with SRI records stolen from a filing cabinet, apparently was dropped outside the building.

The SRI, of which Sterling is an ex-officio director, performs much defense work and has come under attack by antiwar groups.

Sterling, 62 next month, retires Sept. 1 and will become chancellor. Just before the school year ended, he was serenaded by about 2,000 students. He served 19 years as Stanford president.

General aviation district offices will provide time to be spent exclusively in aircraft accident prevention. Their goal is to find what the underlying accident problems are within their respective districts and to help solve or minimize them. They will be available to talk to aviation groups to furnish or show aviation films, to assist in developing safety programs for aviation organizations and fixed base operators. Also, they will give courtesy standardization flights to individuals who request them.

Concentration is principally on reduction of fatal accidents. The most common causes of fatal accidents and recommended ways to avoid them will be the subject of meetings with aviation groups. Emphasis will also be placed on minimizing or eliminating certain kinds of hazards at general aviation airports. Inspectors will coordinate their efforts with state and federal airport personnel, fixed base operators and airport managers to resolve problems in this area.

The FAA is soliciting ideas for program improvement and is asking the aviation public to report any kind of hazard to aviation operations. The active support of each operator, pilot, instructor, mechanic, servicing attendant and airport manager is earnestly solicited to insure success of the test program.

WHEN SHOULD YOU TRY SELF-MEDICATION

Medical authorities agree that self-medication should be restricted to first aid for symptoms of conditions that one can recognize easily. Examples are, a simple cold that does not persist, occasional constipation, simple headaches, minor aches and pains, infrequent indigestion, or minor burns.

But, if symptoms persist, or re-occur frequently, it is dangerous to keep masking them with home remedies. A physician should be visited to diagnose the true causes of any ailment and to treat them for a cure. Treatment at the beginning of any problem is usually more effective and can prevent much future pain.

Warren Will Stay If Needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Earl Warren says he will stay on as chief justice of the United States if the Senate does not confirm Abe Fortas as his successor.

But, Warren told a news conference Friday, he expects Fortas to be approved despite the declared opposition of 19 Republican senators and he believes Fortas will be "a great chief justice."

"I am obliged to stay on," Warren said. "I suppose that under oath I am obliged to perform the duties of my office. I neither expect nor hope that would be a fact."

Michigan's Robert P. Griffin, leader of the Republican opposition bloc, declined comment on Warren's declaration. There was no immediate reaction from the others, scattered across the country for the long July 4th weekend.

But the Republicans, who claim unnamed supporters among Southern Democrats, say their campaign is based on principle more than personalities.

In talking with newsmen in the court's east conference room Warren stoutly defended Johnson's authority as well as his selections.

Johnson, said Warren, is no more a "lame duck" president than any other president serving his last term in office. The chief justice rejected the idea that Johnson should have left the nominations to the next president, saying: "I thought that as long as a man is president he has a right to perform the duties of the office."

Lavish in praise of Fortas, Warren said he had "a great record" on the court and earlier as a lawyer, teacher of law and government administrator. Asked also what he thought of Thornberry, now a U.S. Circuit Court judge in New Orleans, Warren said he did not know him as well but that he believed he will become "an excellent justice."

The chief justice said he called Johnson the morning of June 13 to say he was retiring and that the telephone conversation, followed by an immediate visit to the White House, was their first talk on the matter. He said they did not discuss a successor.

"I would not dare to broach a subject of that kind myself," Warren declared. "I do not believe it would be in character to do so."

The chief justice said he left his retirement date open on a June 13 letter to Johnson so he could stay on to handle the court's administrative work during the summer recess.

He said another reason was to overcome the "danger of four-to-four decisions" when the new term begins in October. Warren said he had been pondering retirement for a number of years and that the decision was "a purely personal thing." He ruled out health as a reason saying it "has been very good."

Most Decorated General Dies

KAPPELN, Germany (AP) — Gen. Bernhard Ramcke, commander of German parachute troops during World War II, died here Thursday, a spokesman announced. He was 78.

Ramcke was one of Adolf Hitler's most decorated officers. He was taken prisoner by U.S. troops after the battle of Brest Sept. 20, 1944. A French court charged him with war crimes and sentenced him to five years in prison in 1951 but he was released shortly afterward because of failing health.

Survives Fall Of 13 Stories

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Frank A. Phillips was in the prison ward of Los Angeles County Hospital when he slipped down a laundry chute — 13 floors straight down to the basement floor.

Phillips, 29, suffered leg and back injuries in the fall Friday. Authorities said he was trying to escape while being treated for narcotics addiction during a robbery sentence.

Farmer Carries Gun, Radio To Fields Daily

BEISAN VALLEY, Israel (AP)—Benny Berman, 23, packs a submachine gun, a smoke bomb and a walkie-talkie radio when he leaves his wife and two young children at 4 a.m. to work in the fields.

Berman lives in one of a few Israeli settlements in the 12-mile long Beisan Valley south of the Sea of Galilee which has become a frequent battleground for mortar, artillery and machine gun units of Israel and Jordan.

Berman's walkie-talkie connects him with other Kibbutz workers and with military units along the Jordan River. His gun is constantly at the ready. The smoke grenade is for cover if he must retreat from snipers.

There are other dangers in this beautiful and hot valley, 600 feet below sea level.

Mines are laid in the wheat, vegetable and cotton fields by Arab guerrillas who slip across the Jordan at night. Frequently the area flashes into brilliant light long after dark as Israeli patrols fire flares to help them hunt raiders.

Berman, a sergeant major in the army reserve, leaves his tractor near an army camp all night but he checks it for booby traps each morning.

He drives to the fields, alert for any tell-tale mound in the sprawling pastures. In his path could lie a mine big enough to crumple his tractor—as one did recently in the same settlement.

Beneath the golden wheat there could be an antipersonnel

Water Use Shows Gain

Water deliveries by the Colorado River Municipal Water District showed a gain for the first time this year during June.

During the month the district pumped 1,298,329,408 gallons, 6.60 per cent more than for June of last year.

Member cities of Odessa, Big Spring and Snyder accounted for 919,147,500 of this, or 4.92 more. Big Spring, however, with 294,336,000 gallons was off 1.23 per cent while Snyder's 83,691,500 gallons was up 22.75 per cent and Odessa's 541,120,000 gallons was up 6.02.

The oil companies used 371,504,298 gallons, up 8.66 per cent over deliveries of June 1967.

Stanton took its first water during the month and had chalked up a record of 7,677,700 gallons.

For the year, the district has delivered 5,769,651,178 gallons, which is still 9.71 per cent under the 6,380,063,428 for the first half of 1967. Cool damp weather has cut down sharply on member-city consumption so far this year.

Evaporation was 10.8 inches while the 53 year average is 10.3 inches.

HELPS THEM ROLL DOWN HILL

Slide Built For Rocks

Getting rocks from the top of a mountain involves more than kicking it off the edge.

At least Roland Scherer, Weatherford contractor, has found this the case in obtaining rock for rip rap of oil well mounds in the new lake basin above Robert Lee.

He has resorted to an ingenious method to make rocks do what they ought to do anyhow—roll down a hill. If all goes well, he will be shoving hundreds of tons of limestone down a 40-degree metal chute to a catch basin. There they will be picked up by big loaders and put into 12 and 20-cubic-yard haulers for a trip to the mounds a few miles away.

Scherer has about completed the earth work for the mounds for the Colorado River Municipal Water District so that the oil wells in that location can produce in the dry when the new lake is impounded. The rock is needed to protect the mounds from wave action.

Initial efforts to shove the rock off the side of Meadow Mountain, which is some 600 feet above the valley floor ran into trouble because the smaller rocks and fine material piled up in depressions along the steep slope. What started at the top didn't always get to the bottom.

Scherer is attempting to solve this by using old railroad tank cars. These have been split down the sides, and the ends cut out. The half cylinders have been welded together to form a continuous chute, which is anchored at the top and at points down the slope. The bottom of the chute has had iron plate welded on for cleats which dig into the mountain to prevent slippage.

A big shovel has been gouging out a catch basin at the base of the chute halfway up the mountain otherwise the rock might scatter over the countryside. Plans are for a loader to dump the rock from the cap at the top into the chute. If there is any disposition for fine material to clog the apparatus a heavy metal weight will be dragged up and down by cable.

If all goes as planned, Scherer will soon be hauling at the rate of 1,500 cubic yards a day.

Savings-Loan Groups Have Modest Gain

Big Spring's two Savings and Loan institutions registered modest gains for the year ending June 30, it is shown in statements of condition.

Total combined assets for First Federal Savings & Loan and Big Spring Savings at the end of last month were $25,187,045, up by more than three-quarters of a million from the comparable date of 1967, when the figure was $24,420,568.

Member share accounts (savings) were up from $22,455,910 to $23,455,910. First mortgage loans went up from $19,977,665 to $20,106,979.

Figures by individual institutions, 1968 totals first, 1967 totals in parentheses:

BIG SPRING SAVINGS—Total assets $7,555,320 ($7,404,068); savings and investment accounts $6,981,537 ($6,953,544); mortgage loans $6,156,764 ($5,908,573).

FIRST FEDERAL—Total assets ($17,631,723 ($17,016,500)); member share accounts $16,068,682 ($15,502,366); first mortgage loans $14,042,214 ($14,068,092).

Stereo Thieves Strike Twice

Stereo tape thieves hit Big Spring twice Friday, taking about 70 tape cartridges from a car parked at the Holiday Inn and about 20 tapes from a car parked at a service station on Gregg Street.

Calvin Bell, Rt. 2, Box 69, Port Lavaca, reported to police that someone had gained entry to his car by running a wire between the rear and front windows and unlocking the car door while his car was parked at the Holiday Inn Motel. The tapes were in two boxes which had been taped together.

James Hendricks, St. Lawrence Rt. 2, Garden City, reported that 20 cartridge and an empty suitcase were taken from his car sometime between 8 a.m. and 7 p.m. while it was parked at a service station at 2100 Gregg St.

Starvation Now Stalking Nigeria, Plagued By War

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP)—After a full year at war with itself, Nigeria faces the danger of losing not thousands by bullets but by starvation.

Relief officials say a staggering portion of the breakaway state's seven million people are in desperate condition. The situation is just slightly better for many of the five million in areas recaptured by federal forces.

The boundaries of Biafra are one-third of what they were July 6, 1967, when rebel forces under Col. Odumegwu Ojukwu first met federal soldiers. Biafra, which declared itself independent May 31, 1967, now is about the size of Maryland, with more than twice the population.

But there are no ports or open roads. And there are only a few makeshift airstrips—all menaced by federal air power.

Federal authorities have concentrated lately on the fringe areas and cleaning out the rivers in the swampy coastal region populated almost entirely by tribes other than the Ibo, who dominate in Biafra.

Just Owerri, Aba and Umuahia remain as the key cities in Biafra. Many contend that the federals, who have clearly outgunned the secessionists, are holding off attacking them in the hopes of settlement of a war that involves regional antagonisms, tribal rivalries, and age-old distrust.

But no one's peacemaking efforts appear to be working. The Nigerians demand that Biafra renounce its sovereignty before they will cease fire. The Biafrans demand a cease-fire before doing anything.

Meanwhile, the people are starving. Ojukwu has rejected aid coming via federal areas charging the enemy might divert it—or poison it. That leaves him with what can be flown into his secret airstrip from the Portuguese and Spanish territories off the coast or perhaps can be dropped from aircraft.

Such hopes dwindled Friday. The federal government announced that its air force would try to shoot down any aircraft not expressly cleared with authorities.

Fender-Benders Are Investigated

Police are investigating two minor fender-benders and a hit-run case reported Friday.

In the 1400 block of Wood Street, a car driven by Warren David Holley, 1419 Wood, was in collision with a parked car belonging to Carl C. Thomas, 1407 Wood.

Friday afternoon two cars ran together at Fourth and Scurry. The cars were driven by Roy Cederberg, 2306 Merrill, and Linda M. Phillips, 2304 Merrill.

Ray Parker, 1405 Mt. Vernon, reported to police Friday afternoon that a car hit a tile fence at 1410 Park, and left the scene.

By CHARLES E. BEHL

Our nation's Declaration of Independence remains one of the world's greatest documents . . . an enduring testament to man's individual liberty, his right to chart his own course freely.

The independence of our fathers won for us did not come easily. They had to fight for it . . . and to act wisely so that what they won would not be lost in later generations. The freedom we enjoy is a monument to their wisdom.

So it is with each of us in our own lives. Many kinds of independence must be nurtured and carefully preserved. That includes financial independence . . . the ability to stand on our own feet, even after retirement, to enjoy freedom from want and fear.

This kind of financial independence, which contributes so much to spiritual independence, can only be preserved through planning the structure of our lives. Regular savings are one of the chief building blocks. As one of our famous forefathers, Benjamin Franklin, said, "It is hard for an empty sack to stand upright."

Angel Arrives On Scales At 2 Pounds, 4 Ounces

A two-month premature baby girl, born weighing two pounds, four ounces last week at Cowper Clinic and Hospital, is reported doing "just fine," by hospital officials.

Tiny Angel Edwards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Franklin Edwards, Sterling City Route, was born at 6:35 a.m. June 27.

Since her birth she has lost two ounces," but all new-born babies lose 10 per cent of their birth weight," a nurse said.

The child, "just barely a handful," should be able to go home from the hospital as soon as she weighs five pounds, officials said. The mother has already been released from the hospital.

The Edwards have six other children, Frankie, 19; John, 17; Susie, 13; Henry, 11; Geneva, 9, and Crystal, 2. Edwards is a driller for Duncan Drilling Co.

Connally Attacks 'The New Politics'

HOUSTON (AP)—Supporters of "the new politics believe . . . the interests of the individual or the special interest group transcend the rights of all," Gov. John Connally told the Texas Bar convention Saturday.

Connally said the Greek philosopher Heraclitus observed that "There is nothing permanent except change." But the governor said lawyers need to raise their "voices in alarm against the perfunctory philosophy of change for change sake alone."

Connally, a lawyer, said members of the profession "are often considered to be guardians of the status quo, but little do people realize that in reality we are guardians of the basic principles and values which have governed and guided mankind since the start of recorded history."

"We have the duty and the obligation to analyze critically and constructively the changes which are taking place today and to point out falsification and fallacy," he declared.

Connally said society is urged to accept a new morality that insists a man's actions "may be relatively right and relatively wrong. . . No longer are we enjoined to do right, but rather we are directed not to get caught."

"We are developing—no more, no less—the complete rejection of the values, principles and rules which have enabled mankind to rise from the jungle to a sophisticated state of civilization," he said.

"Let us seek sound solutions rather than snap judgments. . . Let us resolve to do all that we can individually and collectively to preserve, protect and defend our basic principles which sustain and strengthen our country."

Man Treated For Knife Wounds

Abraham Lopez, 1010 NW 2nd St., was treated for minor knife wounds Friday afternoon at Cowper Clinic and Hospital and released.

Lumina Rodriguez, Lopez' sister, reported to police at 4 p.m. that her brother had been cut with a knife and was bleeding. An ambulance had been called when police officers arrived on the scene.

Lopez refused to give any information on the incident to police, and no arrests have been made.

Tire, Wheel Lost

Frank Herridge, 1803 Monticello, reported to police Friday that a truck tire, wheel, tube and tire lining valued at $100 had been taken from his truck while it was parked at the 66 Truck Terminal between 11 p.m., June 30 and 7 a.m. July 1.

Edwards' Have A Baby Boy

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Edwards, Lubbock, are the parents of a son born Saturday at Malone & Hogan Foundation Hospital. The young man weighed in at eight pounds and has been named William Connally Edwards Jr. Mrs. Edwards is the former Toni Taroni.

The paternal grandmother is Mrs. W. K. Edwards, Lubbock, and the maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Tony Taroni, Big Spring.

El Paso Hit By Flooding

EL PASO, Tex. (AP)—A steady downpour of rain that started three days earlier forced evacuation of several El Paso families Saturday, closed a shopping center, blocked streets and was blamed for one traffic death.

Police said Rafael Reyes, 41, of Canutillo, El Paso County died Friday after his car skidded on a wet street and struck the center roadway island. The car overturned.

The Weather Bureau said the city was washed by nearly four inches of rain in three days, including three-fourths of an inch in a one-hour period early Saturday. More rain was expected late Saturday.

The average rainfall through the first six months of the year, a Weather Bureau report said, is about 2.72 inches in El Paso. The city had reported little more than 1.58 inches this year until this week's downpour.

Police said some families in low-lying residential neighborhoods in the south and east areas of the city were being evacuated.

A shopping center closed Saturday for awhile when water in the parking lot was being washed into stores by motorists' cars. The city's zoo was closed because water was running into animal pits.

Fire department crews were helping pump water out of downtown stores' basements.

A portion of Interstate 10 through El Paso was blocked temporarily early Saturday by running water.

Wallace Thrives On Politics, Campaigning

By DON MCKEE

Associated Press Political Writer

EN ROUTE WITH WALLACE
(AP)—George Wallace runs for president like it was the next best thing to being president. He can't stop.
"You think I'll have much of a crowd tonight?" He asks for the third time as the four-engine DC-6, looking rather battered and in need of paint, drones over the hills of North Georgia heading for Atlanta.
PUFFS
He fishes out a handkerchief, wipes his mouth, puffs on a cigar, looks out the window, wipes, puffs.
"What about that crowd last night?" he asks, and answers himself. "That was a good crowd."
It was his crowd in his territory, the one at Chattanooga, Tenn.
The Baptist preacher, his hair slicked down, had stood behind Wallace's bullet-proof, portable lectern with its red and white bunting and in his invocation advised God, "Outside of the return of Jesus Christ Himself, the only salvation for this country is George Wallace."

Then the cardboard campaign buckets, gleaming the ruffled bills, were passed along the rows of people, all of them white apparently, typical of the crowds at Wallace fund-raising dinners and rallies. Usually the only Negroes noticed were waiters or waitresses and sometimes policemen.
Suddenly the country musicians struck up "Dixie."
Wallace, a slight smile on his lips, walked onstage. The crowd went wild, screaming, waving Wallace placards. Wallace waved, held up two fingers in a V sign. He wore a black suit, black tie.
LECTERN
Then he stepped behind the lectern, which affords considerable protection for Wallace's 5-foot-6 frame. A little stout now at 150 pounds Wallace began to speak.
Wallace, 48, thrives on campaigning and politics. He says he's running to win, not to throw the election into the House of Representatives. His candidacy is being taken seriously by a growing number of politicians who oppose him.

Gov. John Connally of Texas, who has been through many political wars and is close to the national administration, told reporters during the recent Southern Governors Conference at Charleston, S.C. that both major party candidates should "run scared of George Wallace—and of each other."
A former Georgia governor, Carl E. Sanders, said Wallace was gaining momentum and unless Democratic organizations nationally and in the South got to work, "Wallace will sweep the South."
5 TO 10
Several other governors at the Conference said privately Wallace might carry five to 10 states, but not even his strongest supporters among state chiefs—Gov. Albert P. Brewer of Alabama and Gov. Lester Maddox of Georgia—would predict a victory.
Wallace even became an issue in the Republican in-fighting when Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York charged that aides of GOP frontrunner Richard M. Nixon were courting the third-party candidate's support. Rockefeller called Wallace a racist.
Nixon replied: "From what I've read, Wallace's appeal is in the direction of racist elements. I do not have Wallace's support and I do not want it."

GEORGE WALLACE

tion of the property ownership rights," Wallace says.
"And you know it is ironic and cruel. We've stood for property rights, the rights of the states and constitutional government."
"You know the only argument they can use against us is: 'Well, he's a racist; he's a hatemonger.'"
"It's a sad commentary when you can't talk about law and order without some liberal left winger saying you're a racist—and I resent it."
WON VOTE
Wallace says his wife Lurleen, who succeeded him as governor, got 87.5 per cent of the vote in a Negro ward in Selma, Ala., the focal point of a civil rights campaign three years ago.
"I'm proud of that," Wallace says. "Our movement is not against people because of race or color."
"Recently the Democrats and Republicans in Congress joined to pass a law to put you in jail without a trial by jury because you don't want to sell or lease your house to somebody," he said in his Chattanooga speech. "Let's put them both out!"
"They say our people are sick. I'm tired of folks saying we're sick."
"I'll tell you who's sick. It's some of the leadership of this country."
Wallace opposes federal gun control laws. "Let local authorities handle it," he says.
"They ought to abolish crime by putting people in jail."
"I'll tell you what's brought on more crime than guns—it's the Supreme Court of the United States... and those in high places. If they're going to register anything, they ought to register Communists, not guns."
Wallace lashes at federal court rulings.
TAKEN OVER
"They've taken over the schools, the hospitals, the labor unions."
"They've passed a law that will put you in jail if you don't sell your house to somebody you don't want to."
"When I get to be president, the first thing I'm going to do is turn back every school to local control." His words were drowned in the roar of applause from the Chattanooga crowd.
"We're going to repeal open housing," he says.
George Wallace says he is what he says. He knows what many people want to hear. "There's not much basic difference in people," he says. "Basically, if we can carry Georgia, we can carry Pennsylvania."
On some other issues, here is Wallace:
Communist—"You can only deal with Communists from a position of strength."
Vietnam—"It's a frustrating, exasperating experience. We should never have become involved by ourselves... if we cannot win militarily, then we ought not to have been there in the first place."

He says he was raising a "constitutional question as to who would run the schools."
In private Wallace answers questions about his plans and programs by repeating the things he says at rallies.
"We want to turn the schools and other local democratic institutions back to local control," he says.
DESPITE
Despite his handshaking and physical contacts, more limited now by the tighter protection by Secret Service men, Wallace's essential appeal is in what he says, not his oratorical talent or style. He fires his audiences with the attacks on crime, riots and "militants, activists, revolutionaries and Communists."
What about his chances? Well, he said, he withdrew in 1964 in favor of Republican Barry Goldwater "because I didn't want to split the vote up, and they ran a poor campaign."
If anyone withdraws, he said, it should be the Republicans.
And even if his candidacy throws the election into the House of Representatives, Wallace said: "We have nothing to lose and everything to gain."

Wallace does not talk about segregation any more.
He does talk about guidelines and control of schools and hospitals, court decisions, open housing and law-and-order. Guideline writers get special ridicule.
"A guideline writer, you know," Wallace says, "is some fellow with a pointed head who can't even park a bicycle." This gets a roar. Besides, he says, guidelines are composed by phonies—pseudo-theoreticians, pseudo social scientists.
"They ought to be asking what the cab driver thinks," he says, "and the policeman and fireman, the beauticians and barbers, the steelworker and auto worker and textile worker."
LOCAL
The Wallace answer to racial issues is: It's a local matter. His fight against what he calls federal encroachment goes far back. As an Alabama circuit judge, he attracted attention by refusing for a time to turn voter records over to federal authorities. He threatened to jail federal agents and after election as governor, Wallace stood briefly in the University of Alabama doorway to bar Negro students.

Stanton Rotary Club Installs

STANTON (SC) — The Stanton Rotary Club held a ladies night and installation of officers last week at the Belvue Restaurant with a dinner. Doyle Corder presided at the meeting, and new officers were installed as follows: Jim McCoy, president; Owen Kelly, vice president; and Arthur Wilson, secretary. Elmo Wasson, past district governor from Big Spring, spoke on the purpose and aims of Rotary clubs. There were 18 members and guests, Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Wasson, present.

FBI Will Check Brutality Claim

ODESSA, (AP) — FBI agents said Friday they will file a report with the Justice Department after an investigation of a charge of police brutality brought against the Odessa Police Department.
The FBI entered the case Wednesday after P. M. Rhodes, 29, of Odessa filed a complaint. Rhodes was arrested a week ago at a bar and charged with being drunk and disorderly. He later was taken to a hospital for treatment of cuts, bruises and a broken leg.

Conditions For Growth Better

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP)—Growing conditions in Texas improved during the week, says John Hutchison, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. It's a welcome relief from the pace during June.
Showers fell as a cold front moved across parts of the state and have been locally heavy, but turbulence has been less widespread, the director added.
Crop conditions were spotted. Because of dry weather, ranges in the west are declining, Hutchison said. In other areas, grazing is abundant and livestock, statewide, are in good to excellent condition.
District agents at midweek listed these conditions:
Moisture is generally adequate in the eastern side of the Panhandle but short in middle and western counties. Wheat in the southeast is about harvested. The harvest is in full swing in all other areas, he said. Cotton growth, range and livestock condition were good.
More rain and turbulence left South Plains (Lubbock) cotton in all stages of growth. Early cotton is squaring and beginning to bloom, while in the south it is just up to a stand. Recent dry, hot weather helped both cotton and grain sorghum. Irrigated sorghum is now being watered for the first time. The wheat harvest is about over and yields have been good. Livestock and ranges are in good condition.
Field work has been stopped in North Central Texas by showers but during the weather break the grain harvest was about finished. Cotton made good growth. Corn and grain sorghum are looking good but some farmers are now spraying for midge control in grain sorghum. Peanuts are being planted and all livestock conditions are good.
Rain is needed in far West Texas where ranges are dry. Livestock still are in good condition. Cotton is squaring and blooming west of the Pecos River. Some wind damage to cotton had been reported in Midland County. Insects are still light in most areas. The grain harvest is over and yields were good. The onion movement was slow. Cantaloupes look good and alfalfa in Ward County is producing seed. Lambs are being marketed.

Hot, dry winds have depleted top moisture over most of West Central Texas. Some areas got rain. The grain harvest is about 90 per cent complete with yields above average. Cotton growth was good with light insect damage. Peanut planting in Mason and San Saba counties is nearing completion. Pecan prospects have been reduced some by shedding. Ranges are in good condition but a general rain would help. Livestock are in excellent condition. Lambs and calves are moving to market. Livestock are being carefully checked for screwworms.

TAUGHT TO BE
Wallace quickly retorted that Nixon was "very presumptuous." Said Wallace: "Mr. Nixon is not the nominee of the Republican party yet." He said, too, he wouldn't get out of the race under any circumstances.
The exchange resulted from a remark by Nixon's Southern campaign manager, Howard H. "Bo" Callaway of Pine Mountain, Ga., who told Mississippi Republicans: "Maybe we can even get George himself on our side, because that's where he ought to be."
Wallace says his American Independent party likely will hold a convention and choose a running mate after the conventions of Democrats and Republicans.
Heartened by New England crowds on a recent trip, Wallace talks more of a winning strategy now—carrying the South and several large electoral-vote states such as New Jersey.

EYE TEETH
In 1964, Wallace "shook the eye teeth of the liberals," as he put it, by winning 25 per cent of the primary vote in Wisconsin, 30 per cent in Indiana and 45 per cent in Maryland.
Wallace says he is running to keep a pledge he made to give voters "a choice." Candidates of the major parties, he says, sound alike on important issues.
"The difference is twaddledum and twaddledum," he says.
In his campaign forays he talks about a breakdown of law and order. The President's Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders, he says, calls for "paying a ransom to those that would burn the country down to keep them from burning it down." Then he talks about open housing.
"People resent this destruct-

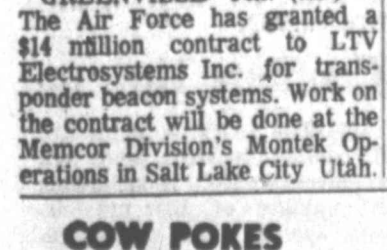

TTA Soars To New Total

HOUSTON — TTA passenger boardings soared to a new all-time high last month when 172,450 passengers were carried along the airline's 65-city system, according to A. G. Kamel, TTA vice president-sales, Houston.
The increase represented a striking boost of more than 42 per cent above the figure for June of last year and exceeded the previous all time high of 159,407 by 8.2 per cent.
Numerous cities along the TTA system reported individual record boardings last month, Kamel said, attributing much of the increase to the airline's new weekend travel plan which allows unlimited travel via TTA on Saturday and Sunday for a package price of $25.
He pointed out that the peak vacation season and an increasing number of Texas tourist attractions were also factors in the new boarding standard.
Cargo shipment also noted impressive gains, company officials in Houston said. TTA's airliners transported 1,978,315 pounds of freight and 477,797 pounds of cargo last month for a total of 1,456,112 pounds.
According to Kamel, TTA's airliners logged a total of 42,592,553 miles with an average load factor (percentage total of seats occupied) of 52.28 per cent, the highest in the company's 20-year history.

John T. Dillard Dies
On Farmlands Check

John T. Dillard, engaged in farming, ginning, cotton buying and horse breeding here for many years, died unexpectedly Saturday.

Mr. Dillard was fatally stricken about 10:45 a.m. while in his car, during an inspection trip of his farmlands. A doctor was summoned, but death had occurred. Mr. Dillard was 74.

He had been a resident of Howard County since 1905, and in addition to his agricultural interests was a pioneer in this area in the breeding of racing horses. Many of his lines have been winners on the established tracks.

Mr. Dillard had extensive farm properties, had owned and operated a gin, and earlier had been associated in cotton buying in the firm of Hatch and Dillard. The family home was for years in the Fairview area, but Mr. and Mrs. Dillard in recent years resided at 1500 Johnson Street.

He was born in Amity, Ark., Sept. 24, 1891, and came to Texas with his family as a child. He moved on westward to Howard County more than 60 years ago.

Funeral services will be at 4 p.m. Monday in the Valley-Pickles Rosewood Chapel, with Perry Cotham, minister of the 14th and Main Church of Christ, of which Mr. Dillard was a member, officiating. Burial will be in the City Cemetery. Survivors will be pallbearers.

Mrs. Hartman Hooser
Dies Of Gunshot Wounds

Mrs. Hartman Hooser, wife of a well-known Big Spring attorney, died in a local hospital at 2:15 p.m. Saturday, a short time after she had suffered gunshot wounds in the head.

She had been rushed to the hospital from her home, 1800 Brent, after Mr. Hooser had summoned an ambulance.

Justice of the Peace Walter Grice said late Saturday death occurred from apparent self-inflicted wounds from a .38 caliber pistol.

Her husband, in the yard at the residence, told authorities he heard two reports which sounded like firecrackers, and went into the house to find his wife in a dressing room. Mrs. Hooser only a few minutes before had talked long-distance with a sister in Odessa concerning a trip to Eastland to see their mother.

Funeral services will be at 2 p.m. Monday in the Valley-Pickles Rosewood Chapel, with Rev. John Black, Bonham, and Rev. John Baird officiating.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Down toward the Washington monument, a tourist stared at the jerky and asked what in the name of heaven was it.

Back toward the national Capitol, hundreds stood and watched Charlie, the mule, minding his own business, plodding his circle to run the cane grinder to make sorghum.

"Sore-gum; it makes your gums sore," a city kid told his little brother with more assurance than knowledge.

This is all part of the second annual Festival of American Folklife, a part of the Smithsonian Institution program for studying and encouraging survival of America's traditional folk culture. Last year's festival on the Fourth of July weekend drew more than 400,000.

Willard Wilson from "down around San Antonio" was making the jerky, slicing beef and covering it with salt and pepper. "Then you hang it up in the sun where the cats, dogs, kids and coyotes can't get it," he said.

How do you know when it's ready to eat?

"Oh, in one to ten days—when the buzzards don't get after it, it's ready to chew on," he said.

The Smithsonian set up tents along the mall that runs from the Capitol to the Washington Monument. Beneath the tents, old and young from 23 states demonstrated what the Smithsonian calls folk culture, the cultural roots of the people of the United States.

There are basket weavers from North Carolina and New Mexico, woodworkers, quilters, one woman sitting in the shade churning butter—"like they did make dolls from corn husks. There are spinners, weavers, pottery makers, whittlers and everybody applauded when he finished. Children got souvenir wisps of wool.

The Tigua Indians from El Paso, Tex., brought adobe bricks from home to build a domed outdoor oven to show how they bake bread.

There is folk music, with thousands of folks sitting on the grass beneath the elm trees listening.

Willard Watson of Boone, N.C., was carving little roosters from gnarled mountain ivy wood.

"My grandpa told me to carve your wood by the old of the moon," he said as he worked. "It burns livelier."

"This younger generation, they're living too fast to learn anything."

Top government economists dispute this, but none of the experts challenges the idea of some increase in unemployment.

Some economists have expressed fears the extra restraint of the tax-spending package—the shift from the economic accelerator to the brake is the sharpest in two decades—might force a sharp rise in unemployment and possibly a recession.

Collection of the 10 per cent tax surcharge through increased withholding from paychecks will begin with checks received after July 13. Since July 14 is a Sunday, the effective date for practical purposes is July 15.

Beardsley
Tells Officers
Of Shooting

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Harris County Chief Deputy Sheriff Lloyd D. Frazier said Saturday a convict has told officers that he shot a motorist to death in Arizona.

Frazier identified the convict as Bobby Wayne Beardsley, 26, who escaped from the Harris County Rehabilitation Center May 19. He was held there on charges of burglary, theft and passing a forged instrument.

He was captured at Houma, La., shortly after his escape.

Frazier said Beardsley told a deputy he robbed and killed a motorist who gave him a ride May 5, 1964, between Tucson and Wilcox, Ariz.

He had just been released from the Santa Fe, N.M., state prison March 3, 1964 and was hitchhiking to Texas. He did not say where he was hitchhiking from. Frazier said he confirmed Beardsley's story in prison.

In Cochise County, Ariz., Sheriff J. T. Willson said he recalled a similar killing about that time and would seek more information.

Frazier said Beardsley told a deputy, "We drove about 30 minutes and then I pulled a pistol on him and told him to pull over and I made him get out of the car and empty his pockets on the ground."

Beardsley was quoted as saying he took about $30 from the motorist and when the driver sought to grab the pistol, "I shot him three times in the side of the chest."

Beardsley was quoted as saying he drove the car into the desert, dumped the body, then drove to Juarez, Mexico, and sold the car for $75.

Frazier said Beardsley escaped briefly from the Big Spring, Tex., jail Aug. 20, 1964. He was later convicted and sentenced to prison for burglary, the deputy said.

The deputy said Beardsley was in the Texas prison at Huntsville from November, 1963, to February, 1968, after conviction.

Youngsters Get Training In Shooting BBs

IRVING, Tex. (AP) — The young man on the line was cold as steel. Shot after shot he squeezed home with all the accuracy of a professional. The bulls-eye took a peppering.

The scene wasn't a rifle range, but the YMCA in Irving. The young man firing with radar accuracy wasn't 20 but 12. He wasn't using a rifle but a BB gun.

800,000

His name isn't important because 800,000 children, boys and girls, between the ages of 7 and 14 joined him in competition for the International Jaycee BB Gun Championships being held in Irving this weekend.

In these days of increasing demand for gun control legislation, why were the young people being encouraged to shoot? The question was asked Ken Scrivner of Tulsa, Okla., promotion manager for the U.S. Jaycees tournament.

"As long as you have the right to bear arms, you have the responsibility to give young people a basic knowledge of them and to have respect for them being the dangerous weapons they are," Scrivner said.

"We teach gun safety and responsibility. I don't feel that gun control laws will have any effect on a mentally deranged man bent toward assassinating a public figure."

The other day a friend of mine from Tulsa sent a clipping that had a headline 'Tulsa Boy Loses Eye.' Some kids were shooting bottles and cans along a railroad right-of-way. If they had been under control, it wouldn't have happened.

"We've never had an accident in a tournament. And I've never heard of one in a training session."

Scrivner said the youths were encouraged to leave their powerful and accurate BB guns at the headquarters of one of the 2,000 Jaycee chapters across the nation — and also in Canada and Mexico — where they shoot. The shooting of wildlife isn't condoned.

He said the youths go through a 13-hour training course in basic fundamentals of safe gun handling. Scrivner said they are taught responsibility, gun safety, and sportsmanship.

In Norton, Kan., home of last year's international champions, there are 31 teams. Some teams have girls who are adept at hitting the bulls-eye from 15 feet in the prone, kneeling, sitting and standing positions. Scrivner said the target is equivalent of a 50-foot target with a .22 rifle.

The Daisy Manufacturing Co. is co-sponsor of this year's tournament with 220 shooters. Some of the kids said they would rather shoot than play baseball.

LOTS OF FUN
Kevin Keenan, 12, of the Milwaukee suburb of Brookfield, Wis., said "It's lots of fun. I would rather do this than play ball."

"I've learned to respect guns. I own a BB gun, but I never use it outside of YMCA control."

What about the gun control legislation Kevin? How do you feel about it?

"I think they should make people register their guns, but not take them away," he said. "I feel if people use guns properly there won't be any problems."

Merger Approval Asked By TTA

WASHINGTON (AP) — Trans-Texas Airways has filed an application with the Civil Aeronautics Board asking federal approval of a merger and certificate transfer to Texas International Airlines, a newly formed Delaware corporation.

The airline said it would continue to transact business under the Trans-Texas name.

The application said directors of both companies have approved the merger, and it will be submitted to shareholders at special meeting in Houston, July 23.

Opponent Asks Martin About Action On LCB

AUSTIN (AP) — Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin's Republican opponent in the November election asked him in a telegram Saturday when he was going to "do something" about the Liquor Control Board "scandal."

"Now that the special session has ended, I hope you will find time to do something about the 'irregularities' and 'law enforcement' your office discovered in its investigation of the Texas Liquor Control Board," Spenser Wynn said in a telegram made public by the GOP state headquarters.

"If you were waiting for members of the Senate or the House to step forward and admit using their influence to control operations of the LCB, apparently your wait was in vain. Let's clear the air in the liquor regulation scandal. Making one man a scapegoat hardly seems the answer."

He apparently referred to former LCB Administrator Coke Stevenson Jr. who drew most of the fire in Martin's report of the investigation.

"Will the one-party system, which has dominated Texas for decades, permit a full and free investigation of this scandal? Will it allow you to make full disclosure and the freedom to act in the best interest of Texas?" Wynn said.

Wynn asked how Martin "arrived at the conclusion that LCB records regarding licenses are private or confidential and not public in nature?"

"Do you intend to investigate the activities of the liquor board to the point of actually making full disclosures and doing something?" he said.

"Your assistant, Nola White, has said it may take years to clean up the liquor board mess. Why must it take years, and when do you plan to start?"

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — "Take the handcuffs off the police and put them on the criminals."

"My little boy says a prayer every night for the police officers."

"Legislators should raise police pay and not theirs."

"I support them even though they just gave me a ticket..." They were pleasant about it."

So callers told two Lansing women who conducted a 10-day, call-in campaign aimed at showing area law enforcement agencies how much the public appreciates their services.

Mrs. Priscilla Peterson and Mrs. Betty Gillings were concerned over "the lack of vocal support for our police in these times of demonstrations, civil disobedience, constant charges of police brutality and handcuffing of police by courts."

They set up telephones in a donated office, collected 36 others to help answer the phones and waited.

A total of 1,461 persons called. Signatures on petitions and resolutions from several service clubs and groups totaled 383 and there were 22 letters.

Of the 1,887 total, 21 were negative. One man said only, "Cops are crooked."

But hundreds of others voiced support for law enforcement agencies.

And 99 callers said they felt police should receive more pay. And 145 expressed concern about Supreme Court decisions they felt were tying the hands of their police.

"I'm against the criminal having more support from law than the honest citizen," said one caller.

"We are wasting tax money if we don't support our police and get our courts to do something about the offenders," said a woman.

A man from San Francisco called to say he was just traveling through Lansing, heard about "voice of the people" and was "proud of San Francisco police too."

West Germans Visit Grandchildren Here

By BRENDA GREENE

Mr. and Mrs. Ewald Siemonett, Kitzingen, Etwäshausen, West Germany, saw their two grandchildren for the first time Wednesday.

They flew from their home in Germany for a month-long visit with their daughter and her family, Mr. and Mrs. David Abreo, 1383 Grafe. The Abreos have two children, Suzanne, 5, and Doris, 17 months.

Dressed in a native costume and with a broad smile attributed to the German people, Mrs. Siemonett said she was very happy to be here with her daughter's family.

"We came especially to see our grandchildren and to meet our daughter's in-laws."

Mrs. Abreo has planned several trips for her mother and father, including a tour of HemisFair and Six Flags. "I want to show them as much of the country as I can," she said.

"It is a great deal hotter here than at home," Siemonett said. "It rains more in Germany than it does here and it is greener there."

He is employed as secretary of the railroad in Kitzingen. Mrs. Siemonett works in a large food store. It is different from American supermarkets, she explained. Employees measure and weigh the products for the customers, such as sugar. "The goods are sold hand to hand," she said.

The couple flew from Frankfurt, Germany, to New York. After a brief stop there, they continued to Dallas and then Midland. They are impressed with America.

Siemonett was an infantryman and a pilot during World War II. He was taken prisoner by the American forces in Germany and France.

"I was happy to be an American prisoner," he said, "and not a Russian prisoner. That is all forgotten now. West Germany is happy to be a friend of the United States."

Mrs. Abreo is the youngest of the Siemonett's children. She met her husband while he was

Money Cache Found In Motel Rooms

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—A simple auto license tag check led police Friday night to motel rooms where they found thousands of dollars. The money was believed part of the loot taken in a Queens County, N.Y., bank robbery last May.

Police and FBI agents arrested two men and two women on charges of being fugitives from New York.

Arrested were Edward McConnell, 22, Jama Zuber, 19, Raymond Ravich, 43, and Lucy Georger, 38, all of New York City. They were held in East Baton Rouge Parish (county) jail without bond.

Police gave this account:

Detectives stopped a car for having an improper license tag. The driver, McConnell, had no driver's license. They took McConnell and Miss Zuber, armed with pistols, in for questioning.

The officers recalled McConnell's features as fitting a man mentioned in a police bulletin about the May 22 robbery of the Franklin National Bank in Long Island City, N.Y.

THE WEEK

$26,768,000. These gains averaged about five per cent.

Big Springers observed the Fourth of July in various ways, including dedication of a plaque to the Webb AFB personnel who gave their lives in service, a reading of the Declaration of Independence (Let Freedom Ring), bell ringing, and fireworks.

In neighboring Colorado City, medals earned by two servicemen who made the supreme sacrifice were presented to the parents of Sgt. James G. Standefer (Silver Star) and Spec. 4 Robert W. Cooper (Bronze Star).

Today begins the second season of Starlite Specials at the City Park. At 8:15 p.m. today the congregations of the city are invited to join at the amphitheatre for hymn singing and for other special music. This will be repeated a week hence, and in between there will be a variety of entertainment which should please everyone. Why not make your plans to attend?

Word from the Texas Historical Survey Commission indicates that Big Spring may be in line for another marker at the "spring" site near the City Park. There is one on the Marcy Trail, but there is enough history about the spring itself to justify another. Visits to the spring can be documented back for about 300 years when Cabeza de Vaca, escaping his Indian captors and making his way back to Mexico City, apparently stopped at the spring.

While on the topic of history, some bones turned up in the screen of the Jones gravel works southeast of the city. Right off hand these were deduced to be those of some Indian who went off to the happy hunting grounds.

Butcher Family Departs B'Spring

A final farewell to friends at Webb AFB and in Big Spring was said Saturday by the family of Brig. Gen. Chester J. Butcher, former wing commander at Webb.

The general flew here Friday afternoon and Saturday afternoon he and Mrs. Butcher and their children, Judy and Bruce, departed by automobile for their home in the Washington D. C. area. They will be residing at 3707 Sprucedale Drive, Sleepy Hollow Woods, Annandale, Va. 22003.

Gen. Butcher was assigned from Webb to an administrative post with the Defense Communications Agency in Washington. His duties may take him to the Southeast Asia war zone later on.

on the banks of an early-day creek. Aw gee, why didn't we name it Springpithecus and refer to it as the Howard Man?

Appropriations clearing the legislature about held the line so far as Howard County Junior College is concerned. The state aid will be $315,000, about $2,000 more than this year. HCJC could share in a $2,000,000 pool, however, if enrollment jumps up as expected.

The State of Texas made its first quarterly distribution of city sales taxes to municipalities which voted it. In most cases, the totals considerably exceeded expectations. Big Spring, which will share in the next distribution, can hope that this will be the case here.

Mel Ivey To Judge Auditions

Mel Ivey, formerly head of the choral program at Big Spring High School, will join with Lawrence Kelly, Dallas Civic Opera manager, in judging the auditions to fill vacancies in the male section of the DCO chorus. These will be conducted July 27.

Ivey, who recently was appointed director of choral activities at Loyola University in New Orleans, also will conduct the first month of rehearsals for the DCO chorus, which begins July 19. The chorus will be preparing for the opening production, "Orpheus in the Underworld."

Ivey left here a year ago to complete his master's requirements in music at North Texas State University.

Diane McEwen Recupere Here

Diane McEwen, who was injured severely in a fall two weeks ago in LaJolla, Calif., is back home to recuperate.

She was accompanied home by her mother, Mrs. Robert R. McEwen, who went to LaJolla after Diane had slipped on a skate board and broke a leg, wrist and knocked out some teeth. Indications are that she will be in convalescence about six months.

Bandsmen School

Three Big Spring band members are among those who will attend the 21st annual McMurry College band and twirling school in Abilene July 14-27. They are Nancy Faught, Jackie Condon and Alvis Ashley. The school is under the direction of Dr. Raymond T. Bunn, McMurry's veteran bandmaster.

KANSAS PRO TIED WITH LEE TREVINO
Rod Horn gets par on par three eighth hole

Horn, Trevino Tied In Buick At 54 Holes

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP) — Kansas Rod Horn, a PGA tour rookie, put on a midround birdie charge to force a tie for the lead with U.S. Open champion Lee Trevino Saturday in the third round of the $125,000 Buick Open Golf Tournament over the long-playing Warwick Hills Country Club course.

The 29-year-old Horn, a former insurance salesman from Overland Park, Kan., carved a five-under-par 67 out of the 7,001-yard, par-73 course to grab a share of the lead with Trevino, the second round leader, who had a 70. Each had a 208 for 54 holes.

One stroke off the pace was another tour rookie, Mike Hill of Jackson, Mich., whose second straight round of 67 gave him a 209 total.

Johnny Stevens of Wichita, Kan., another rookie, was two strokes off the pace at 210. Veteran Johnny Pott and Tom Weiskopf, second leading money-winner on the tour, were three strokes back at 211.

Horn, three strokes behind Trevino at the start of the round, bogeyed the first hole, then ripped off four birdies in the next five. He had another string of three birdies to go nine under par for the tournament and take a temporary lead.

Then he bogeyed the 15th hole after hitting his drive into a fairway trap and lost a stroke.

Trevino, eight under par for the tournament after five holes, bogeyed No. 9 to go seven under and then came back with two-foot birdie putt on No. 13 to get it back.

Hill, two strokes under par after Friday's second round, stormed through the first nine holes in 32 strokes with two birdies and an eagle on the par-four, 398-yard sixth hole. He bogeyed the par-three 11th hole when he two-putted, then had birdies on 13, 14 and 15.

Hill, younger brother of tour veteran Dave Hill, missed a four-foot birdie putt on No. 16, taking a par, then bogeyed the par-three 17th hole when he hit into a bunker.

Stevens and Pott had rounds of 70 and Weiskopf had a 71.

Defending champion Julius Boros, who has won the tournament twice, shot a three-over-par 75 to fall six strokes off the pace. The 47-year-old Boros had trailed Trevino by only one stroke at the end of the second round Friday.

The tournament ends Sunday afternoon with an 18-hole national televised finale.

Clark TKO'd By Liston

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Former world heavyweight champion Sonny Liston took a convincing step on the comeback trail Saturday with a seventh round technical knockout of young Henry Clark of San Francisco.

Liston, winning his seventh straight — all by knockouts — after losing for the second time to Cassius Clay in 1965, punched Clark at will in the seventh and the fight was stopped at 2:47 by referee Frankie Carter. The bout was scheduled for 10 rounds.

Clark, who had predicted the fight would not go over seven rounds, never seemed to hurt the ex-champion. He repeatedly missed with wild lefts and rights, while Liston hit him continually with left jabs.

Clark, rated fifth by the World Boxing Association and ninth by Ring Magazine, carried the fight to Liston until the last two rounds.

Clark, four pounds lighter than Liston at 215, seemed to run out of gas in the seventh and was jarred with a short left uppercut and went into the ropes after a hard right.

It was Liston's 40th win and his 30th by a knockout. Clark, the California heavyweight champion, was stopped for the first time in the career spanning 18 pro fights.

Card Ace Kayoes Giants, 3 To 0

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Johnny Edwards' two-run homer and right-hander Bob Gibson's clutch pitching carried the St. Louis Cardinals to their sixth successive victory Saturday, a 3-0 conquest of San Francisco.

Edwards cracked his second homer of the season after Curt Flood's bunt single in the first inning. Gibson, who has won eight straight, helped his own cause with a double in the second that led to an unearned run.

Gibson, 11-5, hurled his sixth shutout of the season in winning a battle of All-Star hurlers from the Giants' Juan Marichal, 15-4.

The Cardinal hurler was in constant trouble, however, as the Giants stranded 10 runners. Gibson worked out of a bases-loaded, no-out jam in the sixth by striking out Bobby Bonds, pinch-hitter Dave Marshall and Marichal.

Gibson allowed six hits and struck out nine. The Cardinals collected 10 hits off Marichal, who fanned five in pushing his league-leading total to 128.

Nicklaus, Casper Head U.S. Team

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland (AP) — Jack Nicklaus and Bill Casper head the strong American contingent teeing off Wednesday in the 108-year-old British Open Golf Championship.

Nicklaus, a former winner, and Casper, leading money winner on the rich American pro tour, are among nine U.S. players exempt from qualifying. Twenty-five additional Yanks are in the 308 who will play 36 holes Monday and Tuesday for 72 places.

Lee Trevino, the new U.S. Open champion, originally said he hoped to compete but later learned the tournament conflicted with a previous commitment. In addition to Nicklaus and Casper, favorites include Arnold Palmer, two-time winner who has been on a prolonged slump this year; former Masters champion Gary Player; South African Gary Player and the defending titleholder, Roberto de Vicenzo of Argentina.

Other exempt Americans include Deane Beman, ex-U.S. and British Amateur king; senior champion Chandler Harper; Bert Yancey and Tom Weiskopf.

The tournament proper, with 130 competitors, starts Wednesday over the rugged old Carnoustie course, where Ben Hogan won with a score of 283 in 1953. After the first two rounds, the field will be cut to the low 70 and ties and then after the third round to the low 45 and ties.

First prize is worth only $7,200—a pittance compared with the big purses in the United States—but the event draws top talent because of its age and prestige.

Britain's main challenge is expected to come from such youngsters as Tony Jacklin, Clive Clark, Tommy Horton and Peter Townsend. The Old Guard appears finished.

The course is frustrating. It measures 7,252 yards par 72, and if the weather is good it can be kind.

The weather almost never is good, and it can get so bad that Henry Cotton, perhaps the greatest British golf shot maker in the past 30 years, once described a round of 77 at Carnoustie as "the greatest round I ever played."

The par: Out 444 445 434—36, 3,624 yards. In 444 354 345—36, 3,628 yards. Total par 72. Total yards, 7,252.

This frightening prospect measures up to the 565-yard sixth hole but the real trouble is on the long par 4s. The 16th, 243 yards, is a par 3.

College Wins 8th Decision

College Baptist ran its Church Softball league record to 8-1 Friday night by defeating Berea Baptist, 6-1. Berea slumped to 6-3 with the defeat.

In the first game of the evening, Salem Baptist outlasted the Catholic church, 5-3.

Berea was shut out until the final inning. Bernard McMahon had a home run and a single for the winners. Jimmy Roger contributed a double and a single while Don Ritchey and Billy Paul Thomas each had two singles.

Thomas, who went all the way on the mound for the winners, struck out all 21 batters retired. He walked only three and surrendered only two hits.

Salem Baptist is currently 6-2 in the standings while Catholic is 2-4.

Leroy Walker ripped off four hits, including two doubles. Darrel Morgan chipped in with two triples and a single while Ryan Walker came up with two singles, all for the winners.

Ed Temple's Program Producing Olympians

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Railbirds at the Tennessee A&I State University athletic field find it easy to imagine some of the dozen high school girls out there becoming world famous track stars in a few years.

They're following in the footsteps of Olympic gold medal winners Wilma Rudolph, Edith McGuire and Wyomia Tyus as special students in A&I coach Ed Temple's annual six-week summer programs.

"We're working them hard—trying to cram two or three months of training into a six-week period," Temple said. The girls receive a minimum of five hours of detailed instruction daily, beginning at 6 a.m.

Temple, the architect of the A&I summer program, began it in 1955 and it helped produce a string of U.S. Olympic gold medal winners in women's track.

Miss Rudolph, one of the first summer trainees, later attended A&I and won three gold medals in the 1960 Olympics in the sprints and relays.

Temple has a recruiting eye on most of the girls in the summer high school program, but this year two of them are visitors from Mexico City—Guadalupe Alvarada, 16, and Corina Cardenas, 14.

"When our A&I Tigerbells were in the Mexican International last April, these girls and their coaches wanted to see our training system and our summer program," Temple said.

"Their coaches asked if the girls could come if they paid their own expenses, and we were glad to have them."

The only high school senior in the group is Iris Davis, 17, of Pompano Beach, Fla., a sprinter. Temple said she will enroll at A&I this fall.

"Tyus, Rudolph, McGuire—all of my gold medal winners—have been in my summer program," Temple said. "Our A&I Tigerbells work out once a day during the summer program, but the high school girls go three times a day."

"It's a great stimulant for these kids to actually train with the college girls."

Miss Tyus, 100-meter world record holder, ran with Miss Rudolph in the same program.

"Tyus received a big boost from running with the world's best, and now these kids are running with Tyus," Temple said. "We don't want to push them competitively. We try to hold them back, feeling that their peak will be reached when they are 21 or 22."

"But we'll throw the high school girls against the Tigerbells before they leave so they can get a good test and the feel of a real challenger."

Temple, 40, graduated from A&I in 1953 and became head track coach in 1955. His women's track teams have won four consecutive outdoor national titles and six straight indoor championships.

"We've lost only one outdoor national and two indoor national championships since 1955," he said proudly.

Temple coached the 1960 U.S. women's Olympic track team.

At A&I, he wears three hats—teaching sociology, coaching track and managing the U.S. Post Office substation on campus—and he sees a parallel in the jobs.

"In the classroom, it's a learning process. Here at the post office, I'm trying to make certain the package gets there in time. And on the track, it's both."

Red Sox Nudge Angels, 5-3

The Red Sox won their fifth Sophomore Teen-Age Baseball league game in nine starts by turning back the Angels, 5-3, here Friday night.

A three-run outburst in the fourth inning turned the trick for the Sox. Winning pitcher Billy Wood surrendered five hits to the Angels, who are now 5-4 in the standings.

Wood and B. Felts each had two hits for the Red Sox. Mike Gamboa of the Angels smashed a double.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

Native Borns Doing Well

By TOMMY HART

One could field a pretty fine team of native Texans now doing business in the two major baseball leagues . . . Consider a lineup like this: Jerry Grote (NY Mets) or John Bateman (Houston), catcher; Joe Horlen (White Sox), Al Jackson (Mets), Bill Henry (Red Sox), Chuck Hartenstein (Cubs), Ray Culp (Red Sox), and Nolan Ryan (Mets), pitcher; Frank Robinson (Baltimore), first baseman; Joe Morgan (Houston), second baseman; Max Alvis (Cleveland), third baseman; Frank Grubbs (LA Dodgers) or Frank Johnson (Giants), shortstop; Danny Cater (Oakland), Curt Flood (Cardinals) and Ted Uhlaender (Twins), outfielders; Ernie Banks (Cubs), Eddie Mathews (Detroit), Norm Cash (Detroit) and Don Buford, reserve infielders; and Vic Roznovsky (Baltimore), reserve outfielder . . . For coaches, there would be Rocky Bridges (Angels) and Jim Busby (Braves) . . . All were born in this state . . . One of the reasons Abilene Cooper is picking up a lot of support to repeat as District 3-AAAA football champion is the return of Andy Duval to play quarterback for Merrill Green's club . . . Andy proved an able understudy to Jack Mildren last year and looked particularly good against Big Spring . . . Darrell Chaney, the shortstop who is under contract to the Cincinnati Reds, is called "Norton" by his teammates because he resembles TV comic Art Carney when he wears a hat . . . Carney, of course, takes the role of Norton in the Jackie Gleason series, "The Honeymooners" . . . That District 3-AAAA football magazine will likely be made available to West Texas readers shortly after the coaching school is held in Fort Worth . . . Rice University's second place finish in the NCAA tennis tournament was the best Southwest Conference finish in any NCAA sport this year.

ANDY DUVAL

Robb Smith, the former Big Spring Country Club golf champion, is departing the service to take a jet flying job with a Midland oil company . . . Bob Milburn, the San Angelo scribe, was commissioned to accept the votes for the District 2-AAAA all-star baseball team for the past spring but reportedly did not complete it because the coaches of the two Odessa schools did not complete and return their lineups . . . It should have been released anyway . . . Of the 41 names on the University of Arkansas spring football roster, over half (21) were recruited in the six adjoining states, including seven from Texas . . . Yogi Berra probably had his best season with the New York Yankees as a player in 1950 when he hit .322, powered home 124 runs, scored 116 times and accounted for 28 home runs . . . Those who have seen him play say young Mike Weaver of Big Spring would be one of the area's finest golfers if he weighed another 20 pounds . . . His long irons seem to give him the most trouble . . . Chuck Harrison, the former Abilene baseball star, is bidding for a return to the majors with some red-hot hitting for Richmond of the International League . . . The University of Houston basketball team will get major exposure in most of the country's press this year, meeting UCLA and USC in Los Angeles, Notre Dame, Kansas State, Illinois, Seattle and Bowling Green in Houston . . . In addition, the Cougars will play in tournaments at San Francisco and New Orleans . . . Sweden, which gave the boxing world Ingemar Johansson, is thinking about outlawing the fight game . . . Lamesa High School has quietly set about to create its own athletic Hall of Fame . . . Ray (Shorty) Snyder recalls a golf tournament match in Breckenridge years ago in which two opponents, Novis Russell of Wichita Falls and Earl Stewart Sr., drove off their tee and advanced down the fairway to find one ball touching the other . . . They say that Pat Fischer became unhappy with the St. Louis (football) Cardinals the past season because Coach Charley Winner and his aides were putting much of the blame on the Birds' 6-8 season on the defensive backfield . . . St. Louis once had one of pro football's finest defensive secondaries.

HARD ROCK RHYTHM is the music of a "now" generation, and that's what it will hear when "James Green and the Mercenaries" perform Friday evening. Seated are Allen Brown, lead guitar, and Pat Gray, percussion. From the left, others are Bobby Thompson, electric organ; James Green, lead singer; and Rick McKinney, rhythm guitar. Not present for the picture was Clay La-Rochelle, bass player.

SUMMER DRAMA STUDENTS will present a one-act character comedy Monday evening entitled "Poor Aubrey." Shown rehearsing, under the direction of Dan Shockey, are Kerry Gunnels and Belinda Gonzales. Also in the play, But unable to be present for the picture, are Elizabeth Lipscombe and Janet Kerry.

PLANNING TO PERFORM for the second religious music program are Mrs. H. M. Jarrett, pianist, and Mrs. Robert Deming, violinist. No admission will be charged for this program, however, an offering will be taken.

"A Week In The Park"

With —Star Lite Specials—

The sound of old-fashioned gospel singing will fill the amphitheatre tonight to begin the "Week in the Park Starlite Specials."

The series of summer entertainments, sponsored for the second year by the cultural affairs committee of the Chamber of Commerce, will have something for everyone in its range from hymns of praise to rhythms of rock.

Each night brings something new as Big Springers are encouraged to use and enjoy park facilities that have been improved and beautified in recent months.

Show time will be at 8:15 nightly, beginning this evening and continuing through Sunday, July 14, with the exception of Wednesday and Saturday. Tonight's program will be the first of two Gospel Sing-Songs. Others are Drama Night, Monday; Variety Night, Tuesday; Country and Western Night, Thursday; and Teen Night, Friday. Admission will be 25 cents for each event, except for the religious music programs, when an offering will be accepted. Pre-schoolers will be admitted free.

Mrs. E. H. Boullioun is chairman of the cultural affairs committee, with Mrs. Roy Cederberg and Joe Dunn serving as co-chairmen for the Starlite Specials. Ambassadors Club members will act as ushers, and several organizations have volunteered to operate concession stands.

Miss Bonnie Glenn Weds Terry Franklin

STANTON (SC) — Miss Bonnie Mozelle Glenn and Terry Cleo Franklin were married Saturday in the First Baptist Church with the Rev. W. H. Uhlman, pastor, conducting the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Franklin and Mr. and Mrs. O. R. Glenn.

Dr. Mike Fisher sang "The Wedding Prayer," accompanied by Miss Melba Angel, organist. Altar decorations included baskets of pink gladioli, votive candles and palm greenery. Family pews were marked with votive lights.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in an Empire gown of white lace over peau de soie with lace sleeves. Applied lace roses enhanced the front of the gown and the chapel train, attached with a peau de soie bow. The sash circled the Empire waist to tie at the front, and lace bordered the hem of the gown. Her organza petal cap was encrusted with seed pearls and sequins and anchored the veil of illusion.

She carried a bouquet of white orchids and Sweetheart roses atop a white Bible.

ATTENDANTS

The bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Dwayne Thompson of Midland, was matron of honor, and bridesmaids were Miss Beverly Boyce of Groom and Miss Paula Hardy and Miss Kay Sawyers, both of Garden City. All wore cerise A-line dresses with a deep pleat at the front and small bow enhancing the neckline. Their headpieces were veiled fabric rose clusters, and each carried a pink carnation nosegay with cerise streamers.

Steve Hall was best man, and groomsmen were Dwayne Thompson, Lole Badgett and Kenneth Yates, all of Midland. John Wyckoff of Garden City and Ray Thomas served as ushers.

The flower girls, La Rae Thomas and Tracy Yates, wore pink lace dresses which were ruffled at the front. Their headpieces were lace bows. Mark and Mike Thompson were ring bearers, and altar tapers were lighted by Robbie and Bobbie Glenn, sisters of the bride.

The bride is a graduate of Garden City High School where she was a cheerleader and a member of the Student Council, Beta Club and Future Homemakers of America. The bridegroom graduated from Stanton High School where he was president of the senior class. The couple will reside in Stanton until September, when both will attend Howard Payne College in Brownwood.

RECEPTION

The reception was held at the church with Miss Marjorie Glenn, sister of the bride, presiding at the register. Members of the house party were Miss Gaylene Etchison, Miss Danna West of Garden City, Miss Jane Hodges, Miss Laura Costlow, Miss Linda Adams, Mrs. Richard Adkins and Mrs. William A. Patke, the latter of Canyon.

The bridesmaids' bouquets

Care For Eyes By Eliminating Strain

The eye has amazing strength and adaptability. And yet it is not completely self-sufficient! Wise people take care of their eyes by maintaining general good health, having their eyes checked yearly by qualified specialists and by doing everything possible to eliminate the "tired eyes" feeling, which may be nature's danger sign.

Make Pique Cloth For Next Party

If you're planning a small luncheon soon, here's an idea for a tablecloth with a cool-as-a-cucumber look, suggested by the National Cotton Council.

Snowy white cotton pique, available in piece goods yardage, can be used to make an elegant cloth for a summer party table. Instead of hemming the tablecloth, edge it with several bands of white jumbo cotton rickrack. The raised texture of some types of pique is wavy, which would coordinate perfectly with the zig-zag lines of the rickrack.

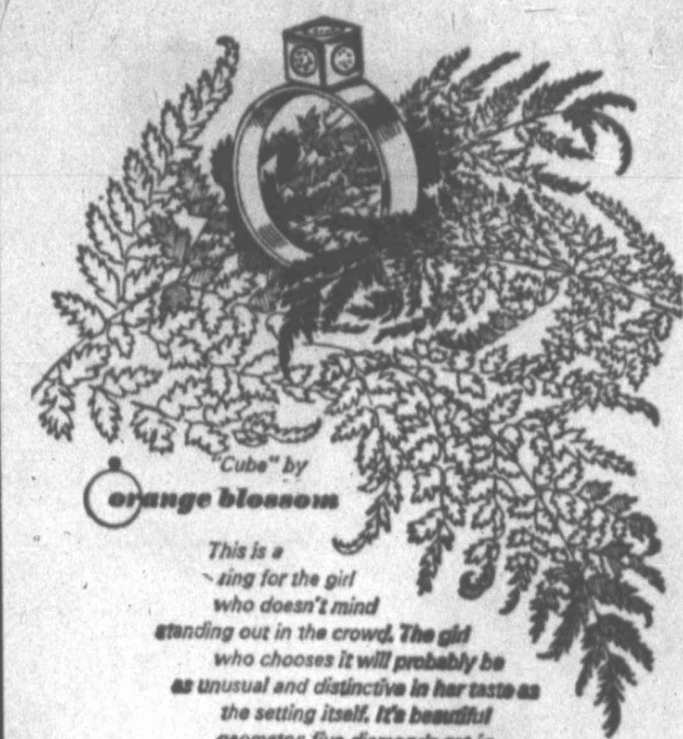

To continue the cool white theme and add another interesting texture to the table decor, create a centerpiece with a vase or bowl of white hothouse milkglass. Fill the container with white roses.

This is a ring for the girl who doesn't mind standing out in the crowd. The girl who chooses it will probably be as unusual and distinctive in her taste as the setting itself. It's beautiful geometry; five diamonds set in each side of an 18K gold cube above a broad, bold band. And if the ring seems unique, so is its guarantee. If you should ever want a larger diamond later on, Orange Blossom will exchange it for its full purchase price. Now for the first time, a diamond is really forever. The Cube, by Orange Blossom #202.

'ROUND TOWN

By LUCILLE PICKLE

The Fourth of July is almost as good a day for getting families together as Thanksgiving according to the number of groups that joined here on Thursday.

We were with a gathering of friends and relatives at the home of MR. and MRS. REX BAGGETT and had a wonderful evening of feasting, visiting and finally viewing some old movies of the various family gatherings. Some of the more interesting ones were made at the Centennial of Big Spring, the celebration that all the community joined forces for in October, 1949; the arrival of the first diesel train; Lyndon Johnson's arrival here by helicopter when he was campaigning for the Senate; several weddings and all those delightful pictures of our children as babies. We didn't need any fireworks!

MR. and MRS. ROBERT STRIPLING are at their Ruidoso home for several weeks. They were joined there Thursday by the FLOYD PARSONS who returned here Saturday night and were to leave today for their home in Little Rock. Paul Parsons plans to spend the remainder of the month here with us.

Also in Ruidoso is MRS. OBERA NORRED. Her daughter, MRS. ELOISE LONG whose home is in Garland, visited with her mother before she left for New Mexico and has remained here to visit her brother, NEIL NORRED, and Mrs. Norred. The three plan a trip to Del Rio before Mrs. Long returns home.

Guests in the home of MR. and MRS. PREACH MARTIN are their daughter, MRS. ROGER RIDGWAY, and her children, Patti, Nancy and John, whose home is in Borger. Mrs. Ridgway is the former Margaret Martin. They plan to be here several weeks.

MR. and MRS. CAPPY RICKS of Bridge City are here for a week or more to visit her parents, MR. and MRS. C. E. SHIVE, and her brother and sister-in-law, MR. and MRS. BERT SHIVE.

At least three local artists who exhibited in the Seventh Annual July-4th Art Show in Snyder came away with victories.

MRS. MYRTLE LEE took the purple first place ribbon for her oil "Spanish Lady." She was given a trophy which is a gold palette set in Italian marble. She was competing in the professional class. MRS. BILLY SIMPSON, competing in the adult amateur division, took first place and also won the popular vote. DR. JIM ROBERTS won two ribbons for his Western paintings, "Will Rogers" and "White Faced Herefords."

There were 289 entries at the Towle Park Show Barn and possibly 4,000 people viewed the showing.

Jerry Owen of Atlanta, Ga., is visiting her brother-in-law and sister, SGT. and MRS. JAMES R. BORGO.

MRS. TRAVIS REED has returned from Ruidoso where she has been with her daughter and her family, the SONNY EDWARDS.

According to those who have been at Albany's Fandangle this year, the show is better than ever. The G. R. ROBINSONS and the R. V. MIDDLETONS are among those who have been there recently.

The J. L. WOODS are vacationing in Ruidoso, and recently, the PAT BOATLERS and the AL ATONS have been there.

Down from Pueblo, Colo., to visit friends has been MRS. AUDA STAMFORD who made her home here for many years.

MR. and MRS. FRED STITZELL of Garland are expected the fore part of the week for a visit in the home of her parents, MR. and MRS. A. W. MOODY. CHARLES VESSEL, the Stitzell's son, is in Sweden on the trip sponsored by the Lions Club.

MR. and MRS. J. P. CAUBLE were hosts at their ranch over the holiday for a number of friends and relatives. CHAPLAIN and MRS. DON CAUBLE and their son, KY LANE, and WALTER HOLOMAN of Abilene, MRS. BUSTER CAUBLE of Vealmoor, MR. and MRS. BOBBY JOHNSON, MRS. DOROTHY PETTY and M. A. HAMPTON were among those present.

MR. and MRS. BILL MIXON left Wednesday for Richmond, Va., where they will visit her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Malloy.

EASY EZZELL, son of MRS. GLORIA STROM EZZELL, 501 Westover, returned Saturday after spending two and a half weeks visiting with his father, Herschel F. Ezzell, in Nacogdoches. They also visited in Nashville, Tenn., and at the University of the South at Seawane, Tenn., and with his aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hackett of Rome, Ga.

For the July 4 holidays, MARGIE NEWMAN flew here from Dallas to visit with her mother, MRS. FAYE NEWMAN, 3304 Drexel.

Don't Overdress Painted Surface

When painting, don't make the mistake of overdressing a surface with too many coats. For the original paint job, most surfaces require a primer plus two finish coats.

Although two coats usually are necessary when repainting over old, very thin paint, one coat often is sufficient when repainting a surface in good condition.

MRS. LARRY WILLINGHAM

Wedding Rite Unites Couple

Double ring nuptial rites united Miss Myra Sue Harris and Larry Willingham in marriage Saturday in the Eleventh and Birdwell Church of Christ. Perry Cotham, minister of the 14th and Main Church of Christ, served as officiant.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. C. Eddie Harris, 2712 Carol, and Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Willingham, Gail Route. The altar was illuminated by candelabra holding cathedral tapers entwined with greenery and flanked by twin baskets of white carnations.

Dan Conley directed the a cappella choir in singing "Because," "I Pledge My Love," "Faithful and True," and "May God Bless and Keep You."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a white satin Empire dress designed with long sleeves and a cummerbund bow at the front accented with lace streamers. A chapel-length train extended from the gown, and her veil of silk illusion fell from a petal cap. She carried a carnation triangle bouquet centered with a corsage.

Miss Bobbie Harris, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Miss Becky Boyd served as bridesmaid. They wore pink linen street-length dresses fashioned with Empire bodices, side sashes and rounded necklines. They wore white accessories and petal pink hats.

Johnny Russworm was best man. Ushers were David Taylor and Thomas Willingham, brother of the bridegroom. Altar tapers were lighted by Lana Williams and Gary Willingham, brother of the bridegroom.

AT HOME

The couple will be at home in Euless, following a wedding trip to an undisclosed destination. For traveling, Mrs. Willingham chose a navy blue and yellow empire linen dress with

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father. She was attired in a pure silk organza gown over peau de sole designed with a lace yoke and petite lace sleeves. The chapel-length train fell from the dress yoke and her waist-length veil of silk illusion was held by a crown of seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white carnations surrounding a white orchid atop a white Bible.

GUNS KILL AN AVERAGE OF 10 ANNUALLY

Autos Claim Highest Toll Here

By SAM BLACKBURN
Guns kill 10 men, women or children in Howard County each year.
Motor cars kill 14 men, women and children in the county each 12 months.
These are the averages for the decade beginning in 1958. For the 10 year period, 139 have died in traffic accidents; 92 have perished from gunshot wounds. The fewest gun deaths in any one 12-month period in the past 10 years has been five, and the most in a single year has been 18.

The fewest traffic deaths in any year has been nine and most in any given 12 month period, 19.

Year in and year out, much is written and said about the dangers on the highways and of the urgent need for more caution when driving.

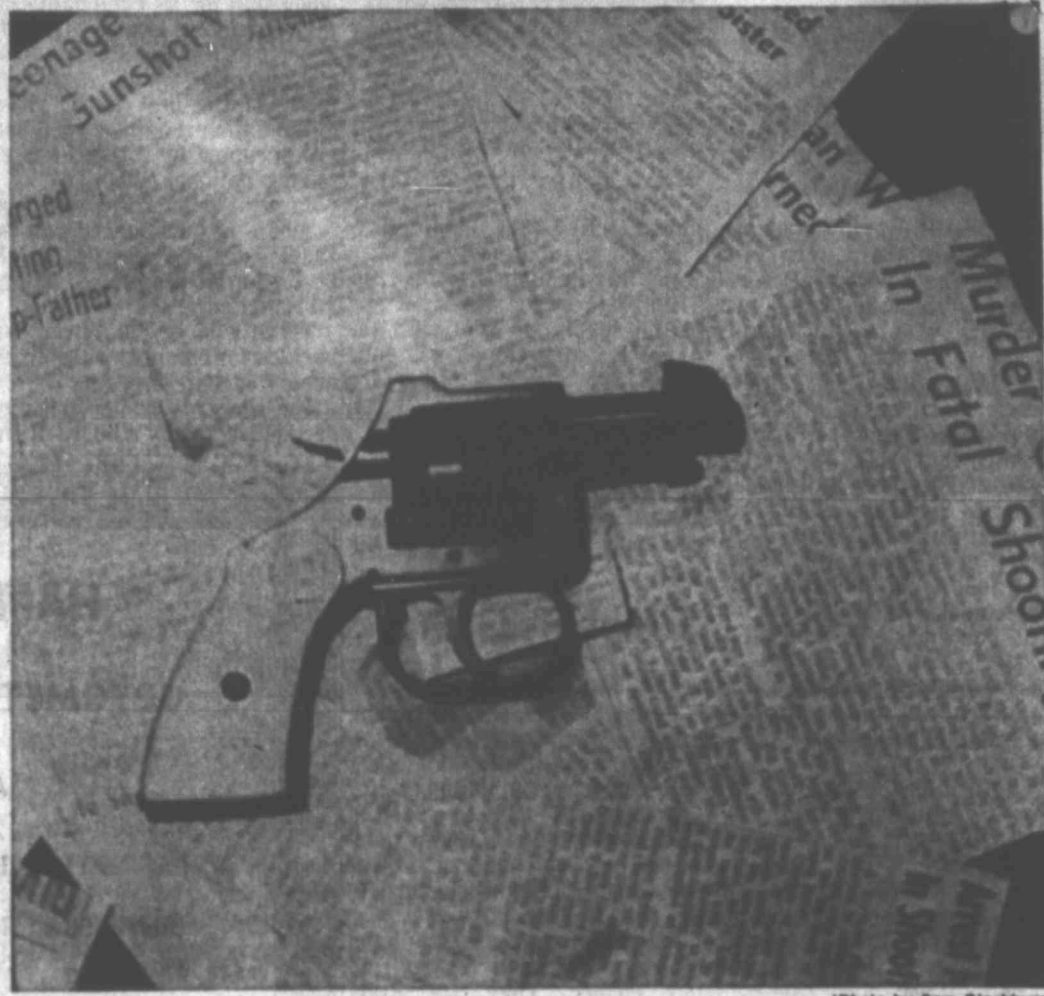

For some reason, 1968 is getting off to a bloody start in deaths by gunshot. Through June of this year, there have been 11 deaths from this cause. In the same six months, there have been only four deaths due to motor cars. Only three of the gun deaths, however, have been classified as homicides. The others have been ruled suicide cases.

LITTLE SAID

Until the relatively recent past, little has been said or written about the gun as a major contributor to the death lists. The assassinations of a president, a U.S. senator and a civil rights leader by gunmen has suddenly brought guns into the limelight and much breast-beating has marked the sudden and somewhat hysterical efforts to "control" the sale and possession of guns.

Peace officers in this county are well aware of the lethal menace of guns and are called up with dreary monotony to investigate deaths where guns have been the cause.

Peace officers know something else — the majority of the homicides which occur in Howard County and the bulk of shootings which terminate in injuries, rather than fatalities, are the product of a tiny pocket-sized pistol. This weapon is small enough to be carried in a man's shirt pocket, and yet deadly enough to have accounted for at least 90 per cent of the homicides which have occurred in this county in the past 10 years.

SNUBNOSED PISTOL FAVORITE KILLER Imported .22 revolver involved in majority of local gun episodes

These deadly little devices are mostly imported from Europe or from the Orient. They are .22 caliber and most load five shots. They are anything but effective at a distance, but since most of the shootings are when the principals are in close contact, the limited range is of no importance.

SMALL SLUG

Due to the small slug the pistols use, their effect is not always fatal. However, wounds in the head, the heart, or in other vital organs are as deadly as though the gunman had used a heavy caliber rifle.

The guns are sold for little money. Some are even listed as low as $5; others, slightly more refined, sell for up to $15.

Each year, the police, the sheriff's officers, and other law enforcement agencies seize dozens of illegal weapons. The bulk of the weapons found on suspects are these small inexpensive pistols.

Not all of the gun deaths charged to the county are homicides. Many are suicides (and there are examples where the same type weapon described above is used), accidental shootings and hunting accidents. Many of the gun deaths, however, are homicides — slayings in which one person takes the life of another.

Like the fatality list of motor cars, the statistics tell only a part of the story. For every motor car death which occurs, a dozen or more other persons narrowly escape death. Many are injured so badly they have to be hospitalized.

In the gun death record, the same rule applies — for each killing, there may be a dozen episodes in which the victim escapes with a non-fatal injury. Some of the wounds are serious. The important fact remains, however, that the victim's remaining alive after the episode must be attributed to his good fortune; certainly the person pulling the trigger had no humane intentions of preserving his target's life.

OTHERS

Of course in the decade, the guns which have been employed to take the lives of the 92 persons have not all been the shiny, black, little pistols. Shotguns, deer rifles, heavy caliber revolvers and automatics are all listed. Regardless, the fact re-

Tax Equalization Meeting Scheduled

Howard County taxpayers, who have questions relative to assessments against their property, as levied by the county, school and city tax agencies, will have a chance to discuss their problems with the equalization boards of all three Wednesday and Thursday.

The Howard County Commissioners Court will be convened as a county tax equalization board and will deal with tax assessments on county property, both real and personal.

The schools and city have named three members as a special equalization board which will deal with tax problems involving these two political subdivisions. The members are Pat la by which taxes for the county will be assessed raising the percentage from 20 to 25 per cent. The school district has also announced a tax increase. Protests and questions are expected as a result.

In addition, the valuations on many pieces of property have been revised for various reasons since the last session of the boards. Most of these revisions have been upward, but a few have been downward.

It is anticipated that the two days will be adequate to deal with all of the property owners who have problems.

If problems arise which require more time to check out, it is possible that the boards will be back in session next Friday to complete work on the matters carried over. It was stressed that no new cases will be taken up, Friday, if the extended session is found necessary.

BLOOMS SHOWING UP IN COUNTY COTTON FIELDS
Some plants are even forming bolls, county farmers report

Bumper Crops Expected With Weather's Help

By SAM BLACKBURN

Rains of the first week in July, while not as generous or abundant as might have been desired, have at least improved, rather than deteriorated, the crop prospects in this county.

"Give us an inch of rain in early August," say veteran farmers, "and we will have the biggest crop we ever produced in this county."

Apparently the happy cotton prospects and the flourishing grain to be found in all parts of Howard County is not the general rule in this section of the state. Persons who have travelled over adjacent counties report that the crops here are much better than elsewhere.

"Rainfall has been generous all year," explains Paul Gross, county farm agent. "We have escaped the damaging hail storms which have played havoc with many fields in our neighboring counties. The sand burned some fields a few weeks ago, but generally speaking, the loss was minor."

"Insect invasions have generally been light. A few fields have had to be poisoned and there are isolated instances where stands were lost to the beet armyworm. Fleahopper infestation has been light."

"A few boll weevils have been found in some fields but not in sufficient numbers to be a major problem — at least at this time. Grasshoppers are also being reported, but to this date their numbers have not been sufficient to do any great damage. "Much of the grain sorghum is in excellent shape. It is heading up in many fields and a little more rain in a few areas, particularly in the southeastern part of the county, is all we need to turn out a record crop of grain."

Cotton is the best that it has been in decades. Many fields are now blooming. A few have small bolls already forming. Farmers in many areas are happily looking forward to a crop which could easily enough produce better than a bale to the acre.

Tonsillitis Holds First On List

Sixty-two cases of tonsillitis were reported to the Howard County Health unit this week.

Tonsillitis led the list with the greatest number of cases reported; upper respiratory was next on the list reporting 38 cases.

Other diseases reported to the health unit by area physicians and hospitals are gastroenteritis 26, diarrhea 25, strep throat 4, measles 3, mumps 3, chicken pox 3, syphilis 2, impetigo 2, scarletina 2, trench mouth 1, and hepatitis 1.

Dear Abby

Musician (?) At Work

DEAR ABBY: There is a 10-year-old boy living next door to us who has just started taking violin lessons. Now that summer is here, we keep all our windows open, and we can hear this kid practicing night and day. I have heard "Santa Lucia" for two weeks now, and there hasn't been any improvement. I saw his father in the yard and said, "Your Joey sure practices a lot. I hear him night and day."

Joey's father said, "Don't complain. You are getting a concert for free. One day you will have to pay for a ticket to hear him."

I don't want to hurt anybody's feelings, but this Joey is making me crazy with his violin. Any suggestions?

THE MAN NEXT DOOR
DEAR MAN: If "mother love is blind," father love is deaf, so buy an air conditioner and keep your windows closed during the summer until it's time to "buy that ticket."

fer. It's too bad these glaciers don't marry each other.

DEAR ABBY: I have two sons. One is 15 and the other is 14. My neighbor has two daughters. One is 15 and the other is 13. My husband works nights, and I work days. The problem is that our two boys like the neighbor girls. They are nice girls from a good family, but when we are gone, the sisters will come over to see our boys. They don't date or anything like that because we feel they are too young.

But now that it's summer vacation, the girls have been spending a lot of time here, and I don't think it's right with no adults at home. Besides, you know how neighbors gossip. How do I tell these girls not to come here unless my husband or I are home?

WORRIED
DEAR WORRIED: You shouldn't tell the girls anything. Tell your sons that they aren't to have the girls in the house unless you are home.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

For Abby's new booklet "What Teenagers Want to Know," send $1.00 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069.

"I was only away for a minute..."

A minute is long enough, lady. More than enough to steal your car when it's sitting there, unlocked, keys in the ignition. (76% of stolen cars were left unlocked—nearly half also had ignition keys.) The worst that may happen to you is to have to walk home carrying the groceries. But remember this, stolen cars have 200 times more accidents. Most cars are stolen by teen-agers less than 18. Your carelessness is their temptation. Your car might be the stolen car that doesn't stop at the school crossing.

Don't help a boy go bad. When you park, take your keys.

A Devotional For The Day

Jeshurun waxed fat, and kicked: . . . then he forsook God which made him, and lightly esteemed the Rock of his salvation. (Deuteronomy 32:15)

PRAYER: Father, forgive our childishness for wishing to obtain what we want without putting forth the necessary effort. Give us insight and vision to strive for the goals of Your high calling of responsible sonship. For Jesus' sake. Amen.

A Good Report

The combined bank statements last week were on the whole quite encouraging for the community. Deposits were up by 4.6 per cent over a year ago, which means that we are doing a little better than the inflationary factor in the economy. They are down substantially from the April report, but everyone was aware that the April statement caught an abnormally large amount of deposits in transit here.

Total resources somewhat paralleled deposits, which might be expected, and were up 3.95 per cent. This presents a stable picture.

Perhaps the most interesting figure was that of loans, which were up by 7.07 per cent. Little better than half of the resources are represented in the loans, and this reflects that a lot of capital has been made available for the local economy. It indicates that money has been infused into the community for various relatively short-term purposes, and this means private buying in the final analysis.

Astute, energetic, progressive managers of business and service institutions should take notice.

Needed Action

City commissioners have taken cognizance of vandalism to and around the site of the historic "big spring," so recently rehabilitated. They have under consideration ordinances which would authorize punishment for offenders convicted of committing acts of destruction.

While we are not conversant with the legal requirements which would make it necessary for a special ordinance, we are in favor of whatever would contribute toward a protection of this place.

Many years ago when the Big Spring Hunting and Fishing Club, which had acquired the land, opened the spot to the public, vandals immediately began a wave of destruction. They tore down signs, dumped trash and refuse in the basin and tore down whatever they could find. (Nearby they repeatedly wrecked a Scout hut.) When the city recently began its work of improving the site as a public park and as a historic attraction, vandals immediately put upon the place. The city then erected gates, which it closed after certain hours at night. Still, this did not halt all the depredations.

It is a disgrace to allow a paltry few crude individuals to spoil the efforts of our city and the pleasure of us all. So whatever ordinances necessary are certainly in order; even some night watching service to catch the vandals would not be a bad investment.

The New Moscow 'Friendliness'

By WILLIAM S. WHITE

(Substituting for Marquis Childs) WASHINGTON — Washington these days is a whole city of crossed fingers, a place where hope is running a strange kind of race with the far older emotions of entirely justified skepticism and wholly sensible fear.

Improbably and almost impossibly, three successive bits of good news, three pointers in a row toward the possibility of some honest thaw in the Cold War with the Soviet Union, have released a certain careful and gingerly optimism from its long prison.

TROUBLED BY so many past disillusionments, brought about by past differences between Russian protestations and Russian performances, no one in real authority here is ready now to say aloud and without qualification what many are in fact privately thinking. This is that just may be, just perhaps and just conceivably, a great historical process leading toward enforceable and genuine Soviet-American accommodations may be moving below the surface of our days.

THE FORMAL signing in the White House of the treaty limiting the spread of nuclear weapons was, of course, no surprise. It had been long on the cards; though, to tell the truth, even here the whole atmosphere of the occasion as it turned out could hardly have been regarded by the most crusty of cynics as lacking in mild hope. And the three pointers that have followed this treaty, as though on cue and on pattern, are undeniably fresh and challenging.

The first was the wholly unexpected decision of the Kremlin to take up at last President Johnson's 18-month-old offer for serious discussions of an American-Russian limitation and reduction of both offensive and defensive nuclear missiles.

THE SECOND was the prompt and non-quarrelsome agreement of the Russians to release a downed United States aerial troop transport that has blundered upon Soviet territory in the sort of episode that only yesterday would have had Moscow howling venom and vengeance against us all across the globe. It would have been the easiest thing in the world for the Soviets to have pumped up this incident into an international crisis—and they didn't.

The third pointer was the unexpected release by the North Vietnamese Communists, with only the routine sort of billingsgate, of three captured American fliers.

IT HAS ALL been almost too much for our officials, and especially for those whose jobs are in military intelligence, in the Pentagon, in the tougher-minded areas of the State Department, to take in and to accept. Inevitably, they are looking for the catch, the hook, the gimmick; as, of course, well they should. But the extraordinary meat of the business is that nobody has yet found the catch, the hook, the gimmick; and it is possible at least that there really isn't one after all.

OFFICIAL WASHINGTON has so long and so rightly been conditioned to the bad and menacing in international affairs that the present situation has all but caught official Washington off balance. This, of course, is actually all to the good. It is far wiser and safer to react with reserve than with a fatuous grinning optimism. All the same, it would be equally foolish to allow ourselves to be automatically the captives of past disappointments and worse. The great problem for the Administration, in short, is to walk a very thin line between too much hope and trust and too little of either.

What Others Say

There is a compelling lesson for those Americans urging import quotas on everything from "steel to strawberries" in the speed of United States reaction to trade moves by the French. In the aftermath of the recent disastrous strikes, France is trying to protect its balance of payments by such traditional methods as restricting imports and subsidizing exports.

William M. Roth, the President's special representative from trade negotiations, announced within hours that the United States would retaliate, employing so-called "countervailing duties" to offset export subsidies by France or other countries.

The lesson for American protectionists is that other countries would react at least as swiftly to trade restraints imposed by the United States Congress. This is not untested economic theory. I happened, with ruinous results to the whole world, after the passage of the Smoot-Hawley Tariff Act in 1930. In four succeeding years parallel restraints were invoked by more than 50 countries. American exports fell by 70 per cent to an annual level of $2 billion. A proportional shrinkage in present day circumstances would mean an annual loss of some $20 billion in sales of American farm and industrial products. — CHICAGO DAILY NEWS

Will The Second Half Bring A Slowdown?

WOAH, THERE!

- Economists think that last half will see a cooling
- Although profits may stand still, inflation still a threat
- Effect of tax surcharge still debatable among economists
- Merger fever heightened by Hughes offer for ABC network
- However, some proposed business combines don't come off

NEW YORK (AP) — Business embarked this past week on the second half of 1968, a period which many industrialists and financiers expect to bring a slowdown in economic growth.

It will be the first period in which the impact of the tax increase and government spending cut will be felt.

Economists call these measures "a great experiment" and aren't sure what the results will be.

A panel of business economists, meeting in Washington under auspices of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, expressed the opinion that the current economic boom will slacken in the next six months.

They represented the banking, building materials, automobile and steel industries.

BRAKES ON

Carl H. Madden, chief economist for the chamber, summed up their projections by predicting a standstill in profits over the next 12 months because of an expected economic slowdown, keener competition and lower productivity in relation to wages.

He said prospects over the next 12 months are for more inflation, higher wages, sluggish growth and an increase in the unemployment rate.

The First National City Bank of New York said in its monthly economic review that some slowdown in the rate of economic expansion is expected — and even welcomed — now that the tax increase and expenditure cuts have been enacted by Congress.

"Just how much the tax increase will accomplish now remains to be seen," the bank said. "It has been assigned heavy responsibilities in stabilizing prices and wages, lowering interest rates and improving the balance of payments.

QUESTION MARK

"Some observers expect that its main effect will be to restrain price inflation. Others believe it will reduce prices very little but instead curtail real growth."

First National said that even before the tax increase was enacted there was good reason to believe that economic expansion would slow in the second half.

"The tax increase, at best, is a great experiment and we have relatively little experience on which to assess its consequences," the bank added.

"Take-home pay of individuals will be reduced. Some consumers will spend less as a result. Others may save less or borrow more. Corporate spending plans are likely to be moderated in the light of lower profit expectations."

MERGERS

Hughes Tool Co., wholly owned by financier Howard Hughes, offered to buy two million shares of American Broadcasting Co., Inc., at $74.25 a share—a total of $148.5 million in cash. This would give Hughes Tool 42 per cent of ABC's outstanding common shares. If ABC stockholders respond with more than two million shares, Hughes Tool said it may elect to buy additional shares. ABC management said it would fight the offer.

Montgomery Ward & Co., the big department store-mail order chain, and Container Corp. of America announced plans to merge into a new corporation. The combination would establish a company, based on 1967 results, with more than $2.3 billion in sales, more than $50 million in earnings and a net worth exceeding $900 million.

GIVES UP

Loew's Theatres, Inc., gave up on its bid to take control of Commercial Credit Co., the nation's second biggest finance firm. This left Commercial Credit clear to go ahead with its planned merger with Control Data Corp.

U.S. corporations concluded a record 765 major mergers and acquisitions in the first half of this year. The total was 22.5 per cent higher than the 624 such transactions in the 1967 first half.

Horticultural Failure No. 444

Confession has been made here before as to my lamentable lack of ability to get any of Mother Nature's plants to grow and bear in kind. But now it has gotten ridiculous.

Wouldn't you think any dunderhead could grow a radish?

Each Spring, there occurs the affliction common to so many people; that is, to plant; and in the planting live (for awhile) in the fond hope that the blossoms or produce that should ultimately come will be as large and luscious as they are pictured on the seed envelopes and in the catalogues.

THIS MALADY made its seasonal recurrence awhile back; but I did not yield to high ambition. I had learned the hard way that peach trees do not flourish around me; that cantaloupes are for the experts. Just last year a modest effort was made to get into blooms just a few — just a few — commonplace flowers. As you would have guessed, they turned up their little petals and left me again in a state of dark discouragement.

BUT A NEW Spring, a new hope. This year, I concluded, the practical thing to do was to forget the flowers — not necessarily useful plants anyway — and to go for something worthwhile, like furnishing food for the table.

I spelled this out in visionary fashion, while the Lady of the House reacted with something between detached amusement and downright sarcasm.

Nothing dismayed, I carried on my plans until they shaped into the idea of planting (a) radishes; (b) carrots, and (c) squash. These, I felt, were what could be categorized as the common or garden variety of vegetable, and ought to respond to no care at all.

(IT MIGHT as well be admitted that my attitude toward growing things is that they should make it on their own — weeds do).

So, putting aside past failures, came the day of tilling the bed, or at least digging a couple of little trenches and building up a few mounds. With unaccustomed eagerness, I sowed the seeds: a row of radishes here; a row of carrots there; a few hills of squash nearby. Then I sat back in the easy chair on the terrace, sounding encouragement to my seeds: "Come on, kids, let's see you produce."

OH, I PERFORMED what were felt to be the essentials, some sprinkling now and then, the pulling of a few encroaching weeds; even — at what I regarded as the appropriate time — doing some thinning.

The radishes were due to mature first, and I could hardly wait to extract them from the ground, proudly bearing them into the kitchen and demanding "garden fresh" vegetables as a part of the meal.

The time came, all right. Those radishes, instead of being plump, tart and succulent fellows like I had seen in the pictures, were just about the size of the head of an old-fashioned hatpin. There was no flavor, but heat enough to take the coating off the tongue.

THIS IS THE kind of thing that destroys a man's self-confidence. If he can't grow a radish, what can he do? You know the answer, and I have only to add that I do not intend even to have another look at the carrots and the squash. Heaven alone knows what monstrosities they will be.

But, as the Lady of the House kept telling me, there is fine fresh produce in the food stores.

An American Tourist In France

PARIS — One of the rarest species in France these days is an American tourist. No one can remember the last time the French saw one, so I cause a sensation when I arrived in the French capital.

As soon as I checked in at the Hotel George V, I noticed that things had changed for Americans in the last few years. First, the concierge broke into tears, then the doorman ran to tell the bartender, the bartender called up the chef, the chef told the waiter. Everyone came to see if an American had really checked into the hotel.

THEY STOOD AROUND in a circle. "C'est formidable," said the chef. "It is an American. I would know one anywhere."

The young page stared as if I were a man from Mars.

The bartender said to him, "This was before your time, son, but once Paris was filled with thousands and thousands of people just like this."

"It's true," the waiter said. "They were everywhere. You could see them at the Folies Bergere and the Lido. At one time there were so many of them there weren't enough hotel rooms to take care of them."

The page looked as if the waiter were putting him on.

THE CONCIERGE said, "He is not lying, son. You couldn't get a taxi because of the Americans. You couldn't get into a restaurant or a nightclub. They had money to burn."

The doorman wiped his eyes as the memories came back. "There were so many of them, we took them for granted."

The bartender shook his head. "They always wanted their martinis very dry."

No 'Vacancies' On The Court

WASHINGTON — Surprising as it may seem to many people, there is actually no "vacancy" today in the office of chief justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. Nor is there any "vacancy" in the office of associate justice for which Judge Homer Thornberry of Texas has been slated.

These strange paradoxes reveal the need for a clarification of the present law. When Chief Justice Earl Warren recently wrote to President Johnson, he did not actually resign from the Supreme Court. What he did write was this statement: "I hereby advise you of my intention to retire as chief justice of the United States effective at your pleasure."

PRESIDENT Johnson, in his reply, used similar language which also makes clear that there is no "vacancy" today in the office of chief justice. Mr. Johnson wrote to Mr. Warren as follows:

"In deference to your wishes, I will seek a replacement to fill the vacancy in the office of chief justice that will be occasioned when you depart. With your agreement, I will accept your decision to retire effective at such time as a successor is qualified."

THE SUPREME COURT cannot, by statute, consist of any more than nine justices. If one justice announces that he "intends" to retire, this is not a termination of his service. He actually must specify a date for his retirement so that a successor will then be able to take office.

THE PRESENT retirement law for judges is full of weaknesses. It gives the President of the United States a tremendous power. For the device of retirement can be utilized "at the pleasure of the President," and it permits him to dangle nominations before Congress. If the Senate, for instance, doesn't currently confirm the nominees for the prospective vacancies, the President can acquiesce in Mr. Warren's stay in office indefinitely and thus can assure a continuance of a particular kind of judicial philosophy. Chief Justice Warren will not be relieved of his duties until the Senate has actually confirmed a successor.

EVEN THOUGH a new chief justice takes office, Mr. Warren continues to be paid the same salary he received while serving on the Supreme Court. This compensation continues during the remainder of a justice's lifetime.

The procedures prescribed by present law can have a far-reaching significance. Thus, there are many members of the Senate who do not wish to confirm Associate Justice Fortas for the post of chief justice, and they may delay action by filibustering. Also, it is difficult to see how there can be actual "vacancies" while both Chief Justice Warren and Associate Justice Fortas continue to serve in their present posts.

THE SPIRIT of protest among senators of both parties is growing. An example is the statement by Sen. Robert P. Griffin, Republican of Michigan, who summed up the attitude of the opposition as follows: "Positions on the Supreme Court of the United States cannot be regarded as ordinary political plums. Such deviations as may have been condoned in the past cannot serve as a guide for the present or the future . . .

"AT THE present time, the American people are in the process of choosing a new government. By their votes in November the people will designate new leadership and new direction for our nation . . .

"The maneuvering to deny the people and the next President their choice in this instance is wrong in principle — and everybody knows it." (Copyright, 1968, Publishers-Hall Syndicate)

AN ADDRESS BY SENATOR BARBARA JORDAN OF HOUSTON

Who Speaks For The Negro?

A talk by Sen. Barbara Jordan at Houston before a "Conference on the Role of News Media in Race Relations," sponsored by the Texas Daily Newspaper Association and the Texas Association of Broadcasters, at Austin, May 27, 1964.

It is always dangerous for a politician to talk to this many people who are members of the press, but I have enjoyed what is termed by some as an unusually favorable press since my election to the Texas Senate and I hope that what I say today will not reverse that judgment, that we can discuss some mutual matters of concern.

You know, as I listened to the introduction and the lists of "firsts"—and I always hear this when I am introduced and people continually ask me whether or not I get weary of being referred to as the first Negro to do this, that, and the other and I tell them "no," I fully enjoy it and have no desire to reverse that—I'm just willing for some seconds and thirds and fourths to come along.

There was a long drought in the Texas Senate for Negro representation. Eighteen eighty-three was a long time ago and, consequently, when I got to the Senate it created a bit of a stir, understandably. I became a part of the sight-seeing tours of the capitol. There were people who would stand outside the door and say to the doorman: "We understand you've got something new inside."

He said they would want to just peep in and take a look. He asked me if I was embarrassed of that and I said: No, tell them just to glance inside, there's no way for them to miss me.

Frequent Contacts

Getting elected to the Senate caused me to have frequent contacts with members of the press and one I thought was an interesting one came when I went into one of our major cities and was met by the news media, as was the custom after my election. There was this one young reporter who just really wanted to understand what went on down in Harris County that I got elected.

And he said to me: "Now, tell me, Senator, is your district all-Negro?" And I told him: No, it's about 46 per cent Negro and the rest is just plain old White American.

He says, "Well, don't you feel a little strange representing a district that is not all-Negro or predominantly Negro?" And I advised him that I did not feel strange.

He says, "Well, now, let me try to figure this out. What about your opponent, was he white?" I said: Yes, he was and he still is!

That ended our little discussion.

So, I suppose it's logical for me to speak from a subject that is titled "Who Speaks for the Negro?"

I don't know whether or not we will answer that question, but one thing I think is absolutely sure—you don't speak for the Negro. The white press does not speak for the Negro. It should not. It should not try. It should not assume to be spokesman for a whole race of people. The names that we hear when we talk about the spokesmen for the Negro are Stokely and Rapp and Roy Wilkins and Whitney Young. Then there's McKissack and Powell and others. And I wonder sometimes to which speaker are you listening.

Many Sounds Coming

You see, there are many sounds coming from the Negro community, as it tries to disengage itself from the entanglement that has been weaved around it as a race by prejudice and discrimination. And the sounds that we hear coming out of the Negro community are, at times, uncertain and at other times, unsure. At times the sounds that we hear are disruptive and devastating. And, occasionally, we hear sounds of faith and sounds of hope and sounds of light. At other times it seems as if what we hear are the guttural sounds of a man who is being choked to death and is somehow trying to push past his lips words of warning. The sounds are many but the sounds are not new. They are very, very old sounds. They are centuries old, in fact. But, still they are repeated and who repeats them? Who utters the sounds? Is he an educator or a minister or a lawyer or an extremist or a black militant? Is he a newspaper editor? Is he a child? Is he a group which was born going downward? Is it a people in search of their humanity?

Who is speaking, and what is he trying to say? Is the question that we ought to try and figure out whether or not the sounds we hear are valid sounds, if they are sounds to be trusted. And we ought to try to answer the question of whether or not the sound of any black man's voice is to be trusted.

You Must Answer

I think that you, as articulators and communicators of ideas and opinions in this country, have got to try to answer these questions if we are ever going to be able to trust each other; to trust the humanity of each other, all mankind. Julius (Carter) told you about some of the things he heard when he walked through the Negro community asking questions. Well, there was a white man who walked through the ghettos of Watts and Harlem and Mississippi. And he heard some of the same sounds and the people were saying to him "Nobody will listen to us." The people were saying to him "I want to be respected as a person. I want to be counted in. I'm tired." This is one of the sounds—"very, very tired. I'm sort of sick and tired."

Now, these are the words that are spoken by persons who, perhaps, have not gained national attention, because what they say is not very dramatic. Perhaps what they say is not even newsworthy. And I suppose that is why they do not get put into print. But, you see, the people who have been uttering these tired, old, long-playing sounds are a little bit tired of the kind of counsel that they have received from some spokesmen for the Negro community.

You see, we have these spokesmen who have counseled patience. They have said "be patient, we are going to the Congress, we are going to see that the legitimate methods of change work. We are going to somehow establish in this land and we are going somehow to get justice and equality through law and through the legal processes of this country."

Spokesmen Of Many Shades

These spokesmen are usually associated with the NAACP, with the Urban League. These spokesmen are sometimes associated with the Negro communities, with the Negro Chambers of Commerce. Well, all of these groups went to the Congress and they all went to the courts and they came out with judicial pronouncements and they were reported.

But nothing happened. The desperate existence of the resident of the ghetto remained as desperate as ever, as lonely as ever. There was action at the top but the man who lives in the basement and the sub-basement of the lives of our communities, somehow did not feel one tremor of change. So what happened?

The resident of the ghetto lost faith. He lost faith not only just

Shield For Blacks

There are no words that you can print which articulate the fear that is felt by these spokesmen as well as the words "black power." You see, in my judgment, the whole concept of black power acts as a shield for blacks against the onslaughts and structures of a system which controls this country. They have somehow said that because I am afraid I will not be able to break through to the kind of society promised then I will protect myself behind an all-black shield. These persons who have become the major spokesmen for ghetto residents, have begun to speak a revolutionary language to white America and their language is newsworthy and I understand why you print those words because their language is newsworthy.

They have somehow said: "America, we are going to make you sit up and take notice and listen. And we are going to do that with the most dramatic method possible." And therefore we have the violence and we have the devastation and we have the destruction, which also is a voice. It is a voice coming out of the guts of the black ghettos of this country. Tom Wicker, in writing the introduction to the President's Commission Report on Civil Disorder, made this observation:

He said what white Americans have never understood but the Negro can never forget is that white society is deeply implicated in the ghetto. White institutions created it, white institutions maintain it, and white society condones it.

We cannot quarrel with that kind of assertion because black Americans have always known this. The various voices in the communities, have said to you in a thousand ways, a thousand times, "give us the same kind of life you have."

If you cannot answer the question what does the Negro want, then answer the question of what do you want? And once you answer that, remember that the Negro wants the same thing. No different. And that's what that voice has been trying to say. But white Americans have refused to listen; they have somehow decided that if we just give a token, if we throw a crumb, if we throw a bone out there, we'll keep our Negroes happy and they really don't require much as a people and all we have to do is keep them happy.

NOT MUCH

Well, we haven't received much in terms of what this country has to offer. And now there is so little time left, so little time left to save this country from a tragic and irreversible contradiction. America has always known what is right. We don't need to lecture America. You have written about the conscience and content of this country. You have written all the quotable quotes of America and our young black children have memorized all of these quotable quotes about equality and justice and freedom and human dignity and they stand up in their American history classes and they try to recite the thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth amendments. And, yet they know, as well as we all know, that these amendments really did not change the basic quality of life of this country.

We know that even though that thirteenth amendment, which they proudly beat their breasts and say abolished slavery, was simply substituted by a whole system of segregation. We know that the fourteenth, which said every man born and naturalized in the United States, is a citizen of the United States. We know that over 20 million Americans really do not have all the attributes of citizenship. We also know that the fifteenth, which guaranteed the right to vote, in 1965 had to undergo the most thorough re-examination the Congress has ever had about voting rights, and sent federal registrars into the deep South to protect this right to vote.

The little children, though, are still singing about the great Civil War amendments. And they talk about the pledge of allegiance and they stand up every morning when they get to school and they put their hands on their hearts and they say "one nation, under God, indivisible, liberty, justice for all." The words have always been within the content and the context of this country.

But the facts were not there. And that is what has created the tragic kind of dilemma that we are in now. We somehow were not able to involve the words with the reality of this country. We talked about the bloody revolution that we fought but somehow we are still, as a people, trying to struggle with and define and affirm and actualize the promise of this country.

You see, we have spoken to the Negro through the news media, just as the Negro tries to speak to you. But when you have spoken to him you have promised him a life that could be good, a land of the free and a home of the brave, and you see he believed you. But you didn't believe what you were saying.

And that's why we are in such a mess.

Dr. Kenneth Clark is a Negro educator and articulate spokesman of the Negro community. He deals with this tension and says in dealing with it, this:

"A basic dilemma of America is whether the Negro should be accepted and taken seriously as a human being and permitted the rights and privileges afforded other human beings, or whether or not he should be ostracized from our political system."

The Negro does not quite know what to do today. There are some voices which say, "persist, insist, demand. Demand your unqualified right to be included in the system and in the society."

But there is another voice in the Negro community. And that voice is saying, "Negro, sit down and shut up." And this is a voice of Negroes who are saying "let's accommodate ourselves to the system because nothing is going to change it."

Gnawing Doubts

Dr. Clark continues that it is the gnawing doubts of white America, about its own self worth, about its own inferior status as a people emerging out of Europe, that is responsible for the social and institutional arrangements we have today in regards to the Negro. What Clark said is that your—the white—demanding status needs have built up the kind of system that we have now. You may disagree with Clark but if you do then I would ask you why the dominant society of America—the white majority—had to devise such grandiose and great schemes to suppress ten per cent of the population? Why would 99 per cent go to such lengths to suppress 10 per cent?

The critical dilemma that the Negro faces is in trying to understand whether or not the creeds and promises of America mean what they say. He has begun—the Negro has—to doubt himself, to doubt his own self worth. He has begun to see the kind of humiliation that he must constantly live with and therefore, perhaps, accommodate and withdraw if he cannot change it. These have been the results of the kind of speaking that we have done for the Negro in this country.

These are the fatalists and it is the conflict between the voices which say "let's persist, let's press, let's change," and the voices which say "let's accommodate and withdraw from the fray."

Black power is a form of withdrawal from the fray. I am sure that some of its most articulate advocates would not make that admission but I see it as a form of accommodation and withdrawal from the fray.

And I would pose to you the question: Have you ever questioned the extent of your own contribution to the perpetuation of a system which continues to breed self-doubt and a lack of worth in the mind and heart of the Negro? I would ask you whether or not you, in your contacts, with minority group people, with black people, whether your own contacts with them serve their dehumanization, their self-doubt and their sense of unworthiness? I would ask you whether or not in all of your journalistic skill can you somehow define and help make real the promise which has always been the promise of this country?

Promises Are Made

What we have to understand is that promises are made not to land, to air and to water but to a responding and expecting people. And when you have spoken to the Negro in this country you didn't say Negro of America or white America, you said we promise to all of the people of the country the principles of freedom, equality, justice and human dignity. The words are right there.

But do they mean anything? And have you tried to define them?

The Negro has become tired of empty promises, of meaningless phraseology, of exploitation and of intimidation. He is tired of a thousand blatant indignities heaped upon his head a thousand different times on a thousand different days.

He's tired but he has faith in you.

The Negro in the main, the majority of black people in this country, still have faith in white America.

Don't forget that. Even those who shout the loudest and those who talk the loudest if you could get them in the quietness of their conscience they would hope not to destroy America but to make America own up to their involvement in it in a meaningful way. The Negro has always had the faith, an almost blind faith, in what this country promised to become. The Negro, in the main, still has this faith in you and in your ability to change so that his impatience will subside, so that bold and dramatic and courageous action will be taken, so that an application of the power of men and women of good will will be applied to the kinds of problems that we confront.

Clear Responsibility

As I see it, your responsibility then becomes clear. You can help as a great big voice of this country. You can help encourage meaningful alliances of people of good will. You can help bring this country toward a national commitment to fulfill the historical resolve of this country.

William Brink and Louis Harris did a study on U.S. racial attitudes and they published this in a book which they entitled "Black and White." And in the first chapter of that book they made these observations: "Americans are, on the whole, a tolerant and generous people. They have fought lofty wars of liberation, they have sacrificed their sons with not much more assurance than that some kind of principle was at stake. Since World War II they have bankrolled their shattered allies and the underprivileged nations of the world with only an occasional wince at the pinch of their pocketbooks. America has opened her heart to the oppressed and her shores to the homeless. She has done all of this but," Harris and Brink continue, "America has not seen fit to grant to America's twenty-one million Negroes the freedom that was guaranteed them by the Constitution of this country and reinforced by the American Emancipation Proclamation."

Why This Refusal

Why is it that we have this refusal on the part of America to really "count in" those 21 million black Americans? Well, there are some who say that the answer is rooted in three centuries of American history, that no nation can overnight shed a prejudice which was ingrained for 300 years, years in which the Negro has been an alien person, an alien creature with an alien skin and on alien soil. Other ethnic groups in this country have just assimilated themselves into the colorless mass of white America and you could forget about their existence because they were not visible reminders of their presence all the time.

But James Baldwin, who is an articulate Negro author, wrote about the Negro and of the Negro. He said:

"You were born where you were born and you faced the future you faced because you were black and for no other reason. You were born into a society which spelled out with brutal clarity, in as many ways as possible, that you were a worthless human being."

Do you spell that out in your contacts? In your stories? Do you, too, spell out this kind of worthlessness of the Negro on the American scene?

Today we have a society that has a cancer built into it. And that cancer is eating away at us, gentlemen, and in order to cure it—and I think it is curable—we've got to treat it not with palliatives and Band-Aids and half-hearted increments, but we have to treat this cancer with radical surgery. We've got to cut it out and somehow remove it from the scene of America.

Overcome Non-Being

I suppose if we were to listen to all of the many sounds and many voices coming out of the Negro community we would see the total effort, regardless of whose voice we heard, and would see the total effort of the Negro as one to overcome the last vestige of his non-being and to somehow end his invisibility and secure his individuality and his relevance and his wholeness as a human being. The question that we've asked throughout this conversation with you is: "Who speaks for the Negro?" Well, I'll answer that question—no one.

No one can.

You see, the Negro stands silhouetted against a thriving and

Howard County Closed To Visits Of Russians

By PEGGY SIMPSON

WASHINGTON (AP)—Thirty-three Texas counties are off limits to Soviet Union officials and Russian reporters under a travel restriction imposed by the United States.

"Approximately one-fourth of the Soviet Union is closed to all foreigners, including Americans," a State Department official said.

"We tried to get them to lift that sort of restriction so in 1955 we decided to close approximately the same proportion of the United States to the Soviets," he said.

AIR BASES

The Texas counties on the restricted list include those containing some of the state's major air bases, armaments works and defense plants.

The only persons excepted from this ban are Soviet citizens who are employees of the U.N. secretariat, tourists and persons on such cultural exchange groups as chamber music or ballet groups, but these groups have a fixed itinerary agreed to beforehand," the State Department representative said.

There is a second category of 13 Texas counties that are closed to embassy personnel from the Eastern European countries of Poland, Rumania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Czechoslovakia. Reporters and other Eastern Europeans are not af-fectured by the restrictions.

"The primary consideration is security in the case of the Eastern European restrictions rather than a strictly reciprocal travel ban," the State Department official said, "although all Eastern European countries limit the travel of U.S. citizens to some extent."

Violations of the travel bans are handled on a case-by-case basis, the official said. "They may be warned or not allowed to travel any more. Actually, people try not to violate the restrictions. They are used to them in their own countries."

The 33 counties closed to Russians are:

—Carson, Potter, Randall and Armstrong, which surround Amarillo and the Amarillo Air Force Base.

—Bell, Coryell, Burnet, Williamson, Travis and Lampasas, which stretch through Central Texas and include the Ft. Hood Army reservation, as well as the cities of Killeen, Temple and Lampasas. Bergstrom Air Force Base is off limits but city of Austin is listed as open to the Soviets, however.

—Bowie, Cass, Marion and Harrison, which include the Lone Star Army Ordnance Plant at Texarkana, the Longhorn Ammunition Plant at Karnack, and the cities of Marshall and Longview.

—Grayson, Dallas, Tarrant, Collin, and Denton, which include the Strategic Air Command Base at Carswell Air Force Base near Fort Worth, Perrin Air Force Base near Sherman and the many plants clustered around Dallas and Fort Worth handling defense contracts.

—Hockley, Lubbock and Cochran, which include Reese Air Force Base and the cities of Lubbock and Levelland.

—Wichita and Wilbarger, which include Sheppard Air Force Base and the cities of Vernon and Wichita Falls.

—Taylor, Jones, Shackelford, Callahan, Nolan and Runnels, which include the SAC base at Dyess Air Force Base at Abilene and the cities of Anson, Sweetwater and Ballinger.

FT. BLISS

—El Paso, which includes the Ft. Bliss Army Base at the city of El Paso.

—Howard, which includes Webb Air Force Base at Big Spring.

—and, Medina, which includes the top-security Medina Base west of San Antonio.

The 18 Texas counties restricted to Eastern Europeans are Armstrong, Bell, Bowie, Carson, Coryell, Dallas, El Paso, Grayson, Howard, Potter, Randall, Tarrant and Taylor. Carson and Potter counties are accessible to these foreigners through US 66, however, the State Department official said.

Knotts Has Garage Filled

It's out. Don Knotts, the skinny, quaking-voiced comedian starring with Barbara Rhoades in his latest Technicolor laugh-fest, "The Shakiest Gun in the West," coming tonight to the Jet Theatre, can hide his closely guarded secret no longer.

He's a "junker." "I tried to hide it as long as I could," Don explained recently, "but a few weeks ago I had a lawn party and the moment I opened the garage doors to pull out the patio furniture, everybody knew at once I was hooked."

There before their astonished eyes were stacks upon stacks of junk, piled from the floor to the ceiling.

"I got on this antique-collecting kick a couple of years ago," said the lean actor, "and I've invaded nearly all the antique shops and junk stores in Los Angeles. I've even gone to great lengths to uncover the history of each piece."

"I've collected enough stuff to start my own museum—or the world's largest bonfire!"

Youth Takes Over In Dire Forecast

"We have simply given up our constitutionally guaranteed right to the pursuit of happiness and are involved in a headlong retreat," contends noted author Robert Thom.

"Our worship of youth has gotten out of hand when parents strive for approval and acceptance by their children rather than the other way around," in the opinion of the respected author and playwright discussing the emphasis placed on youth today.

Thom, whose original story and screenplay of "Wild in the Streets" begins at the Jet Theatre on Wednesday, is the author of the Broadway stage hit "Compulsion," and sees possible disaster ahead for the world.

His ideas on this possible disaster are stated in the film which stars Shelley Winters, Christopher Jones, Diane Varsi, Hal Holbrook, Millie Perkins, Richard Pryor, Bert Freed, Kevin Coughlin, Larry Bishop, Michael Margotta, and special guest star Ed Begley. In the picture a young, and slightly anti-social, folk-rock singer is asked to appear on a televised political rally and uses the platform as the first step in eventually getting himself elected president in a youth take-over of the nation.

"With more than 52 per cent of the population of the country now less than 25 years of age, the only stumbling block to an immediate take-over is the fact you have to be 21 in order to vote. However, it wouldn't take much effort on the part of the country's youth to stage a gigantic demonstration that would quickly frighten the legislators into allowing them that privilege," according to Thom.

"Wild in the Streets" is the somewhat frightening story of what could happen right now and in the words of Thom, "It is an indictment of the adults in America who all seem to want to be 12-year-olds, those who would abdicate their responsibility in the running of the country. This state of affairs seems to leave only the 14 and 15-year-olds with the ambition to run the country and see if they can do a better job. The most frightening aspect is that they just might be able to improve on the situation we seem to have gotten them into."

"The truth" in this entertaining story is that it is based on the experiences of real people, the Beardsleys who live in northern California. In 1961 Lucille Ball read of Frank Beardsley's wedding to Helen North, and she was elated with the possibility of their romance becoming a laugh-filled movie. Several years later Producer Robert Blumstein agreed to produce the movie if Lucy would play the part of Helen North. She accepted.

When Frank Beardsley (Henry Fonda) meets Helen North (Lucille Ball) he is a Navy Warrant Officer and widower with ten children and she is a Navy widow with eight children. All of the puzzling, hilarious, sometimes poignant episodes of their meeting, courtship and marriage are straight out of history... Beardsley history, that is... with a dash or two of dramatic license.

This newsworthy "happening" takes place in and around San Francisco... including locations aboard the U.S.S. Enterprise at sea, "aboard" (Navy jargon) the land-locked Alameda Naval Air Station across the bay, and in many of San Francisco's favorite tourist spots... Fisherman's Wharf, Ghirardelli Square, Chinatown, and others. Just by chance Frank and Helen had decided to settle their families near or on the Navy base where Helen takes a job as a nurse in the dispensary. When the eldest Beardsley daughter suffers a fainting spell and is rushed by Frank to the dispensary, they meet... mentioning their marital status to one another but NOT their large families!

Frank invites Helen to dinner that evening... and their romance is off to an hilarious start! As they swing through several glittering nightspots with Frank's buddy, confirmed bachelor Darrel Harrison (Van Johnson), each feels a strong attraction for the other... in spite of several comic incidents during their first date.

Art Show Set Monday

By WINNIE UNGER
An art show and tea open to the public will be held from 3:30-4:30 p.m. Monday at Lees Service Club at Webb AFB.

When the design workshop class will display work, much of it completed during the last five weeks.

Mrs. Tincie Heddins, instructor on loan from Angelo State College's art department, possibly will have some of her own canvases up for the exhibit. Mrs. Heddins had words of praise for the enthusiasm of the 16 students, and said their response to the class was "every bit as good as any of her college classes."

The workshop took in broad areas of color exercises, composition, and how new ideas for work may be stimulated by working out designs in collages with organic, geometric and free forms.

The July 4 Snyder Art Show honored three local painters with awards. Mrs. Myrtle Lee won a trophy for first place; Mrs. Billy Simpson won best in amateur portraiture; and Dr. Jim Roberts took two ribbons for western paintings.

Texas Tech's annual summer music camp for pre-college students begins July 14-26. Guest conductors, clinicians, and nationally known musicians head up the 35-member faculty which includes Francis McBeth of Ouachita Baptist University, Ark.; Robert G. Mann, director of the Midland-Odessa Symphony and Chorus; and Charles Schaefer of Emporia (Kan.) State College.

Eligible to attend are band students in grades 7-12, choir students in grades 9-12; and orchestra students from elementary through high school. Registration will be from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. July 14 in Tech's Music Building.

Students may enroll in concert band, orchestra, choir, stage band, twirling, drum majoring and electives of their choice. Electives offered include theory, music appreciation, ensemble playing and conducting. Private lessons will be available at an additional fee.

Enrollment fees are $30 for band, choir and orchestra students attending full-day sessions; $15 for elementary string students attending half-days. Room and board is $65 for the two-week session.

Inquiries should be directed to Joel Leach, Youth Music Camp Director, Department of Music, Texas Tech, Lubbock 79409.

Witchfinder Stalks Screen In New Feature

In the 1640's, when Matthew Hopkins, Oliver Cromwell's self-appointed "Witchfinder General," stalked his evil and sinister way through the towns and villages of Eastern England, the practice of witchcraft was a crime punishable by death.

Hopkins, whose story has now been brought to the screen in the horror-thriller, "The Conqueror Worm," which comes Saturday to the Sahara Theatre, and stars Vincent Price, used this fact to his own profit and aggrandizement, by branding many innocent Roman Catholics as "witches" and putting them to agonizing torture and death by hanging and burning.

A lawyer himself, he was careful to keep within the law. In two years, he destroyed over 200 persons, ostensibly as witches, but in reality because they were, in Cromwellian eyes, "Papists and idolaters." There were few genuine witches among them.

He could not do it today. In 1735, an enlightened Parliament passed the "Witchcraft Act," which forbade prosecutions for "witchcraft, sorcery or enchantment." It has never been revoked.

The last persons to be arraigned for witchcraft in England were Jane Clerk and her son and daughter, of Great Wigston, Leicestershire, in 1717. They were acquitted.

The last person actually to be executed for the offense was Alicia Mollard, of Exeter, Devon, in 1684, 37 years after Matthew Hopkins had ceased his dread operations.

Since those days, witches, wizards and sorcerers have flourished in England with impunity. Today, it is estimated, more witchcraft—and its more sinister corollary, Black Magic—is practiced in Great Britain than during the whole of the 16th and 17th centuries.
