South Once Grateful for Tammany's Help, Speaker Says

"Shame on the Hoover Democrats that raise the false cry of Tammany hall and its corruption as an excuse for their bolting! Let them come clean and tell the truth and say that they do not like the way Al Smith says his prayers," was the challenge Mrs. Cecil Smith of Sherman, former national Democratic committeewoman for Texas, hurled at bolters in her address before a rally of Democrats at the courthouse Wednesday evening in support of the candidacy of Gov. Alfred E. Smith as president of the United States.

"Of all the hollow, hypocritical cries of this campaign that is the most cowardly and unjust. Tammany has some unclean pages on record—no human institution has escaped, but at its worst it was never as rotten as the Harding-Coolidge cabinet, with every member tarnished and three who should rightfully be wearing stripes in the penitentiary.

"Tammany hall has many times proved itself a friend of the south. When Jefferson Davis was in prison with a ball and chain riveted on his ankle, Charles O'Connor, chief of Tammany hall, came to the rescue and by superhuman efforts led him out, a free man. And again when the south was prostrate with no place to hold a convention, Tammany hall threw open its doors and the south was enabled once again to begin her struggles for political independence.

Religious bigotry and intolerance are at the bottom of about 90 per cent of the opposition to the Democratic candidate, the speaker said, and this intolerance has recruited ignorance and hysteria into this campaign.

Tabor Murder Jury Hears Klan's Initiation Plans

Testimony Presented at Previous Trial Relates Slaying of Prospective Member of Order

SWEETWATER, Texas, Oct. 10. (AP)—Plans for a Ku Klux klan initiation, interrupted by the shooting to death of the prospective klansman, were told to the jury here today trying L. P. Kirk for the slaying of Crawford Tabor on Dec. 19, 1923.

A group of klansmen went to the home of J. M. Wells, Tabor's father-in-law, north of Ballinger to get Tabor on the night of the shooting. One of their number, a man by the name of Lanehart, testified as to preparations for the initiation at a former trial for Kirk, and since he was absent today, both the state and defense agreed to the introduction of his testimony at a former trial.

In the testimony, as read to the jury by W. J. Cunningham, Lanehart said that Tabor had signified he wished to join the klan, and was on friendly terms with the five men—Lanehart, Kirk, Lee Proctor, Polly Proctor and Rube Cope—who went to his father-in-law's home for Tabor. They planned to take Tabor into a pasture nearby and initiate him.

Tabor was shot to death a short distance from the Wells' home a few minutes after he had accompanied his father-in-law and Kirk to the automobile where the four other men were waiting. Evidence introduced at the trial showed that Kirk knocked at the dobr of the Wells home and, when Wells asked him in, said his automobile was broken down and asked assistance in repairing it.

Tabor Joined Men

Wells testified that before accompanying Kirk he thrust a pistol in his pocket. Tabor, said to have been unarmed, joined the two men in their walk to the supposedly disabled car.

What occurred when the three men reached the machine has never been definitely explained. There was an exchange of shots and Tabor fell fatally wounded.

RASKOB GIVES GLOWING NEWS

Smith Confers With His Campaign Chief

NEW YORK, Oct. 10. (US)—Expressing satisfaction with the progress of his campaign, Governor Smith left New York tonight on a unique excursion—the first invasion of the solid South by a Democratic presidential candidate since the Civil war.

The governor's confidence was inspired by the reports of political conditions in the various states which he received from John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee. At the same time, it was disclosed that Raskob vigorously pressed the governor to make at least one speech in Tennessee, either at Chattanooga or Nashville where he will stop over for a few hours.

The candidate, however, was adamant in his determination to limit his speaking dates to three in the next 10 days. He used the sanguine reports made to him by Raskob as an argument to uphold his position that Democratic candidates in the past have "talked themselves out of the picture" and he does not intend to make that mistake.

In addition to the speech to be delivered at Louisville, Ky., on Saturday night, the governor announced that he will make addresses at Sedalia, Mo., Oct. 16 and Chicago, Oct 19. He will then return to Albany to prepare for a whirlwind finish of his campaign in the East.

Ohioan Falls Dead After Seeing Blimp

SANDUSKY, Ohio., Oct. 10. (AP)—Anthony Loth, 60, retired business man, was among the thousands who watched the navy dirigible Los Angeles fly over Sandusky shortly before noon today.

As Loth was entering his home, after one last look at the big bag, he staggered and fell dead of heart disease. The excitement was too much for him, in the opinion of physicians and Coroner A. R. Grierson.

LAKEHURST, N. J., Oct. 10. (AP)—The dirigible Los Angeles returned to the naval station at 9:35 o'clock tonight from Texas. It left here Saturday night.

24 Police Indictments Asked in Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 10. (UP)—Indictments will be asked Thursday against Police Captain Charles Cohen and 23 patrolmen, it was indicated tonight by District Attorney John A. Monaghan.

Placing of the 24 names before the October grand jury will constitute the biggest move since the start of the special investigation here.

Murder Theory Dropped In Shooting of Priest

BEAUMONT, Oct. 10. (AP)—Murder theories were abandoned today by officers investigating the double shooting Monday of the Rev. Anthony De Simone and John Rose, slain in the priest's study, after a coroner had returned a verdict of murder and suicide.

Texas Supreme Court Gives Woman Right to Present 'Bloomer Scandal'

AUSTIN, Oct. 10. (AP)—Mandamus proceedings against the Beaumont court of civil appeals to bring the Nacogdoches "bloomer slander" case before the supreme court for review were authorized by the latter tribunal today, on application of Mrs. Grace L. Layton.

Mrs. Layton got $6,000 judgment against the Perry Brothers Variety store of Nacogdoches in district court. A jury found that a store manager's charge that she stole a pair of bloomers was false, and awarded her damages for slander. The civil appeals court reversed and rendered the case, and Mrs. Layton appealed to the supreme court, alleging that the decision conflicted with one by the latter's decisions.

NEWLIN YOUTH FOUND GUILTY AT MEMPHIS

State Wins Its Attempt to Prove Death Occurred Before Crash

CASE TRIED QUICKLY

New Judge Sets Mark in Completing Hearing in Three Days

By TED THOMPSON
Staff Correspondent

MEMPHIS, Texas, Oct. 10.—Conviction of Clyde Miller on a charge of murder by a jury in district court here today only partially disposed of the path the courts must take in solving the mysterious death of Bruce Collier, 22-year-old son of a wealthy Newlin farmer, on the eve of last year's Christmas holiday.

Jim Bennight, Miller's pal, remains to be tried on a charge of accessory after the fact in the alleged murder.

Bennight, who has been in jail about eight months through inability to make bond, likely will spend four more months there, as his case will not be tried until the February term of court, District Judge A. J. Fires announced.

25-Year Sentence

Miller, who has been on bond, also was in the custody of Sheriff Sid Christian, remanded to jail today after the jury returned its verdict, and after Judge Fires had fixed the penalty at 25 years in the penitentiary.

Freedom on bond is not allowed after a sentence of more than 15 years has been affixed, the judge explained.

The jury deliberating Miller's case arrived at its conclusion in about 30 minutes, and determined guilt or innocence on the first ballot, C. L. Caviness, one of the jurors, said.

Miller, who throughout the trial had shown little signs of concern, broke into animation when the jury's findings were announced, and held hurried consultations with his attorneys. The latter shortly announced that a motion of appeal in the case would be filed.

Testimony was offered in the case yesterday that Miller engaged in a fight with Collier in front of a restaurant on the night of Dec. 24, 1927, and that in the melee Collier was struck over the head with a bottle.

Body Found in Wreck

Later his body was found in the wreckage of his car, which had been struck by a train on an abandoned crossing near the spot. The state alleged Miller had dealt the fatal blow, and had later, with Bennight's assistance, placed Col-

BYRD DEPARTS AMID CHEERING

Great Adventure Begins as Explorer Sails

By MARJORIE DRISCOLL

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 10. (US)—Off on the great adventure . . .

There were whistles and flags at Los Angeles harbor today, crowds that lined the shores, crews of other ships that leaned over the rails and cheered as the stocky, snub-nosed, oil-blackened whaling vessel C. A. Larsen picked her deliberate way down the channel and out to sea.

On her bridge stood a young man in navy uniform, a smile on his quiet face, his steady eyes turned southward: Commander Richard Byrd on his way to the antarctic.

Hundreds Cheer

It was 5 o'clock when the C. A. Larsen sailed, to the tooting of a band, and the cheering of hundreds of American legionnaires, and the flag-and-handkerchief-waving of thousands of people, from Mayor Cryer down through an imposing list of officialdom and hundreds of just plain everyday citizens.

An hour before that, Commander Byrd and Mrs. Byrd had arrived at the harbor, and gone aboard. The farewell that was between these two was, somehow, typical of the whole business. There wasn't any emotionalism—no tears or frantic huggings or kissings. Just a warm, firm handshake, and a straight look from eye to eye—like two time-tried pals might exchange.

"Good bye, dear—and good luck," whispered the little, quiet unassuming woman whose hopeless wish was that she could go along with her husband into the strange places.

Simple Good Bye

"Good bye," from the commander.

That was all. And a few minutes later, Mrs. Byrd slipped ashore unobstrusively—to wait through the two years or more that will pass before she can grip that hand again.

The Larsen is bound for Dunedin, New Zealand, where the other ships of the expedition are converging. The Byrd party will sail to the edge of the ice barrier on the expedition's two ships, the Eleanor Bolling and the City of New York, while the Larsen and the Sir James Clark Ross join the whaling fleet in Ross sea.

The start from Dunedin will be made some time about Dec. 1, to reach the antarctic seas when the ice has opened. The Larsen is due at Dunedin about Nov. 8.

Builder of Collapsed Structure Arrested

PRAGUE, Czecho-Slovakia, Oct. 10. (UP)—The chief construction engineer of a seven-story building which collapsed near the center of the city Wednesday was rescued from the wreckage of the structure late today and immediately arrested.

He was taken to police headquarters by officials who said that faulty material had been used in an attempt to speed construction of the building.

Detective Here Denies Hickman's Guilt as Slayer Waits Gallows

"Guilty Sinner" Says He's Ready to Pay Penalty, While Sleuth Plans Help for Condemned Youth

William Edward Hickman, scheduled to hang Oct. 19 at San Quentin prison for the slaying of Marion Parker in Los Angeles, did not actually commit the murder and he did not butcher the girl's body, declared Dewitt C. Fretz, formerly with the William J. Burns Detective agency, A visitor in Wichita Falls Wednesday.

Fretz, who was one of the investigators in the Parker case, said Wednesday night Hickman undoubtedly will divulge the real murderer in an "eleventh hour" statement since all hope of escaping the gallows is gone. The detective, who formerly traveled in this territory, visited friends here en route to Los Angeles.

Expects Statement

"I never have believed Hickman committed that crime, and now I believe that since Hickman's 'last starw' has been removed, he will give some clue as to who killed Marion Parker," Fretz declared. He said several others who worked on the case held the same opinion.

The detective stated also he will offer his services to Jerome Walsh, Hickman's attorney if the youth "comes through" with a statement.

"I believe in 15 days such a statement could be disproved or would give sufficient time to dig up substantial evidence," Fretz avers.

Modern Type

"It is against all reason that Hickman could have committed the crime alone," Fretz said. He pointed out Hickman is the type of modern, "harboiled" criminal who will keep a "tight mouth" as long as there is a faint chance.

"But even the most 'hard-boiled' criminals will not 'take the rap' when it comes to death and I believe Hickman holds a trump that may save him from the 'gallows,'" Fretz said.

READY TO PAY, SAYS HICKMAN

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Calif., Oct. 10. (AP)—In a signed statement addressed to the Associated Press, William Edward Hickman, sentenced to death for the slaying of little Marion Parker, today confessed he was a "guilty sinner" and thanked the state supreme court for giving him time to prepare for death.

Hickman asked "the people" to pray for the condemned men at the prison and said he was sorry he "offended God and man."

He denied to Warden James B. Holohan that he tried to commit suicide in his cell as rumors had indicated.

"I have made up my mind to take my medicine," he said, "and I am not going that way."

JURY RETURNS 11 INDICTMENTS

Second Report Is Made by Investigators

Eleven indictments were returned by the Wichita county grand jury which made its second partial report to Judge E. G. Thornton in 30th district court late Wednesday afternoon. John W. Bradley, foreman, told Judge Thornton the jury likely will complete its work by Thursday night.

One of the indictments charges Raymond Scott, a white youth, with theft of a Buick automobile from T. S. Thompson of Wichita Falls. Scott was arrested several days ago and is in the county jail. Other bills, warrants on which were not served Wednesday night, charge burglary and liquor law violations.

Dick Kenley, district attorney, said Wednesday night the jury is expected to turn in its report Thursday at which time the inquisitors will have completed all matters submitted by his department. It is expected the jury will be dismissed subject to call of the 30th district court until the end of the court's term.

Since the term opened two weeks ago the grand jury has returned 26 true bills and its work has covered a wide field in investigations, Kenley stated. There were, however, no murder cases before the body.

The grand jury Wednesday called several witnesses in its investigation into alleged ill treatment of prisoners in jails in Wichita county.

Life Savings Lost by Aged Victim of Thugs

WICHITA, Kan., Oct. 10. (UP)—George A. Boley, 62, lost the savings of a life time when he was overpowered and robbed of close to $1,000 by two thugs here this afternoon. Boley was en route to Mansfield, Mo. He drew his money from the bank at Rockyford yesterday morning.

Burns Increases Number of Officers At Schools; Car Owners Are Warned

"The police department is adding to the number of officers stationed at city schools in the mornings up to 9 o'clock and also when school children are leaving school, in an effort to reduce the possibility of accidents."

This announcement was made Wednesday by Frank Burns, chief of police, in asking cooperation of all motorists. Two motorcycle officers have been engaged in this work since school started, and under the new order two other traffic officers will be added.

"By having officers at the schools we hope to emphasize to careless drivers that they should first consider the safety of children," the chief considered. "We want the automobile driving public to have adequate warning, to know that stop and slow signs near schools must be obeyed, and to realize that officers are checking up on violators.

"The chief aim is not to catch violators, but rather to gain the cooperation of those who know in their hearts that they are not as careful as they should be.

"With the opening of schools for the fall, we must be more careful in driving, because of the thousands of little ones who are apt to dart into the paths of our machines."

AIR SOVEREIGN BEGINS VOYAGE ACROSS OCEAN

ALL IS IN READINESS

Engines, Stores and Cabins For Passengers Pass Final Inspection

FRIEDERICHSHAFEN, Germany, Oct. 11. (UP)—The Graf Zepperlin, Germany's greatest dirigible, started this morning on a flight to the United States.

The big silver-colored craft swung lightly away from the starting tower at 7:51 a. m., its five motors roaring noisily. The start was made under very favorable weather conditions.

Sixty persons were aboard the craft as it lifted easily into the morning skies, circled slowly and then started nosing out towards the United States.

It will be the first commercial flight between Europe and the United States and Dr. Hugo Eckener, designer of the craft, expects to be in the air between 60 and 75 hours.

The probable course is across Belgium, the English channel, and along the north Atlantic ship line to the United States. This route is 4216 miles.

The start had been made with little delay once Eckener decided that weather conditions were suitable to the long flight across the Atlantic.

The commander arrived at the hangar shortly after 7 a. m. The skies were overcast but there was no ground wind. Thousands of persons, who had been gathering from the first break of dawn, were massed about the field.

Eckener ordered the doors of the hangar opened. He had a canary, a mascot, taken into the main operating Gondola of the craft.

At 7:18 a. m. the doors of the hangar were opened and within a very few minutes the passengers and crew were ordered to board the craft. Eckener assumed his place in command forward in the gondola.

The gang plank was dropped at 7:23 a. m. and the first of the five 12-cylinder motors was started at 7:26 a. m.

The sled on which the craft leaves the hangar was placed in position at 7:44 a. m. and E. A. Lehmann, the first officer, took his place at the observation control.

Then with all five motors running, Eckener ordered the craft taken from the hangar at 7:48 a. m. The motors roar drowned out the shouts of the thousands of persons at the field as the nose of the big transatlantic air liner swung out of the shed.

The silvery craft finally was completely emerged and at 7:51 a. m. rose slowly into the air. One minutes later she had officially started on the long journey that will not end until a landing has been made in the United States.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Oct. 10. (UP)—Unless there is a sudden and unfavorable change in the weather conditions, the monarch of all aircraft is scheduled to race westward toward New York at 8 a. m. Thursday.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander, said tonight that the silver dirigible Count Zeppelin would depart on her trans-atlantic trip Thursday—or probably not at all this week. Although in his desire to guard agaist any possibility of accident, Dr. Eckener has declined to set a definite time for departure, weather reports indicated the big craft would be able to get away on schedule.

Thousands of visitors and the 60 persons who will be aboard when the Count Zeppelin leaves, were anxious for the start and hopeful that nothing would intervene. If the start is not made Thursday, it is unlikely that the Count Zeppelin will depart until next week, for the crew is brave but just a wee bit superstitious. They had rather not start on "unlucky" Friday or on Saturday, the 13th.

In Perfect Shape

Dr. Eckener received an invitation from President Coolidge to visit at the White House while in the United States.

Mechanics and engineers, appearing midget-like beside the great gas bag, swarmed over the Count Zeppelin rechecking instruments and engines. The dirigible,—she is 770.5 feet long,—was in perfect shape after her final trial flights and the five 550-horsepower motors were declared in readiness for the long trip.

In the tiny kitchen—a shining and complete affair—were stored more than a ton of food stuffs. In the cabinets were bottles of champagne, light wines, and mineral waters.

KING PROBLEM STIRS EUROPE

Abyssinian Celebrations Set Some to Thinking

LONDON, Oct. 10. (UP)—Great rejoicing in Addis Ababa, capital of Abyssinia, upon the coronation of Ras Tafari as monarch has brought Europe smack up against that puzzling "king making" problem again.

Plainly, the elevation of Ras Tafari to the throne and the great rejoicing of his subjects, as reported in dispatches from Addis Ababa, has brought a few more wrinkles to the brows of political observers here. They can only speculate, however, upon what is behind the sudden rush of tiny countries to the protection of the crown.

After September's monarch, King Zogu I, of Albania, passed off the front pages of newspapers there were other disturbing rumors from Poland, where it was said Marshall Pilsudski had his eyes on the crown, and from Hungary, where it was reported the former Empress Zita, exiled to Spain, confidently awaits a military coup which she expects will put her son, the Archduke Otto, on the Hungarian throne.

Gay and barbaric scenes in the splendidly decorated streets of Addis Ababa were described in United Press despatches which told of the celebration. The festivities continued hours after the coronation of Ras Tafari. Visitors from every part of the kingdom thronged the capital and roved through the streets in their gorgeous costumes, carrying glittering weapons.

As a result of the celebration, which apparently was more jubilant than that for King Zogu, Europe is wondering whether crowns are returning to public favor or whether this is merely part of a deep international scheme.

Giant Negress Freed Of Murdering Husband

OKEMAH, Okla., Oct. 10. (UP)—Polly Bennett, giant negress charged with murdering her husband, Andy Bennett, with a flat iron, was acquitted by district court here.

Bennett was killed in a family row Aug. 25. His wife pleaded self-defense.

Polly, who weighs 300 pounds, claimed that Bennett threw some objects at her and that she picked up an iron and beat him over the head and face. She exhibited a scar on her forehead to show that Andy had scored first in the marital battle.

Smith Cuts Hoover's Lead in 'Digest' Poll When South's Votes are Counted

Ballots From Dixie and Big Cities Favor Democrats; First Alabama Returns for Hoover

Governor Smith reduces Herbert Hoover's lead more than seven per cent as the first major returns are reported from the South and several larger cities in the fourth week's returns of the Literary Digest's 19,000,000-ballot presidential poll, released for newspaper publication today.

With the votes now received from 39 of the 48 states, Hoover has 1,201,869 votes of a grand total of 1,911,257 tabulated, while Smith polls 688,829. This gives Hoover approximately 63 per cent and Smith 36 per cent of the total vote as compared to the previous week's tabulation when the percentages were nearly 68 for Hoover and 31 for Smith.

Separate City Returns

A new feature of this mammoth "postcard election" is the introduction of separate urban returns, included in the total, from Chicago, Philadelphia and New York, where the entire electorate is being polled which show Smith leading in these three cities with 185,000 votes to Hoover's 177,404.

Arkansas, Georgia, Louisiana and South Carolina are the only states that have as yet given Smith a plurality. Though Hoover has a slight advantage in the present returns in Alabama, the vote is practically a stand-off.

Virginia and North Carolina give Hoover a definite lead but the returns from the South, The Literary Digest cautions, are less than half completed and should not be taken as indicative of the final returns.

The first separate returns from New York City, reported this week, give Smith 102,539 votes as against 65,205 for Hoover. Almost 30 per cent of those voting for Smith here report that they voted the Republican ticket in 1924, while Hoover gains less than 15 per cent from the Democratic ranks of four years past in the same city.

In New York state as a whole, where it is stated that the returns are more nearly complete, Hoover is leading by 170,113 to 144,276. This ratio may be reduced next week, The Literary Digest points out, when more votes will be reported from New York City.

Switch Parties

A tabulation of "how the same voters voted in 1924" shows that Smith receives nearly one-half of his support from those who voted for the Republican candidate four years ago, a slight decrease from last week when over one-half of his vote was from Republicans.

Over 76 per cent of Hoover's vote comes from professed Republicans at the last election and about 23 per cent of his strength is coming from those who state they voted the Democratic ticket in 1924.

Hoover, it is shown, is receiving more than one-half of his support from the Democratic ranks in the states of Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Louisiana and Texas.

Of the 306,987 participating in this "straw poll" who did not vote in 1924, which includes both those who have since arrived at voting age and others who failed to note their previous political allegiance, over 58 per cent are voting for Hoover and 39 per cent are marking their ballots for Smith.

Voting Increases

"Previous polling records for the fourth week of a national poll, set by The Literary Digest's presidential poll of 1924," The Literary Digest state editorially, "are left far behind with this week's tabulation of nearly 2,000,000 votes from 39 of the 48 states. The present tabulation shows an increase of almost half a million votes over the fourth week of the 1924 poll, or practically 33 per cent.

"In fact, no Literary Digest poll has ever stirred such wide-spread interest both among the daily newspapers throughout the country and also, judging by the mass of private correspondence daily received among the individual voters themselves.

"Votes from the states in the 'Solid South' and from New York City appear for the first time in considerable numbers in this week's tabulation, with the result that the Hoover majority is somewhat reduced. The Republican lead of more than two-to-one in last week's tabulation is cut down to less than two-to-one this time.

"The breaking down of political fences, already noticed in previous reports on the poll, is even more plainly evident as voters from the southern states come in. Alabama shows the Republican candidate slightly in the lead, supported by far more former Democrats than Republicans. While the vote here is practically a stand-off, both Virginia and North Carolina give Mr. Hoover a substantial lead.

Count Just Started

"Arkansas, Georgia, Louisiana and South Carolina are the only states, thus far, which have registered a preference for the Democratic candidate. In all of the southern states, however, considering the fact that the poll is at present not more than half completed, the vote can hardly be taken as closely indicative of the final returns.

"The Digest's present totals, it will be noticed, show that 160,386 Democratic votes are now in the Hoover column, while Mr. Smith claims the considerably larger figure of 259,913 votes from Republican voters as of 1924. On the other hand under the total of the column headed 'No Vote,' which includes those who vote for the first time in this election, and those who neglect to state whether they voted or not, Mr. Hoover has the advantage by 180,102 to 119,754 for Smith.

"In the final analysis, of course, the majorities in the separate states expressed through the votes in the electoral college will determine the election."

DEFENDS GOOSE

$10,000 Damage Asked In Suit Against Fowl's Mistress

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10. (UP)—Mrs. John R. Ragland has come to the defense of her goose, declaring it to be harmless, docile, gentle and tractable instead of vicious, excitable and of violent disposition as charged by Mrs. Amelia Facteau in her $10,000 damage suit against Mrs. Ragland. Mrs. Facteau said the goose flew at her and in her attempt to escape she suffered a fractured wrist and injured her arms and legs.

G. O. P. INVITES OTTINGER HERE

New Yorker Asked to Talk For Hoover

Wichita Falls will have a chance to hear Albert Ottinger, attorney general of New York and candidate for governor of that state, if a telegram from Wichita Falls Republicans is heeded, it was announced Wednesday by O. R. Hartt, county Republican chairman.

"Mr. Ottinger is a splendid speaker and a noted man," said Mr. Hartt.

"He has served in the present New York state administration with Al Smith and is well acquainted with the governor.

"We have invited him here to speak on behalf of Herbert Hoover, and if it is possible for him to come to Wichita Falls, his talk should be more than interesting."

Tax Collections for Month Total $10,704

State and county collections during September totaled $10,704.40, according to the report for the month issued Wednesday by Guy C. Raley, county tax collector. Of this amount in 1927 taxes Mr. Raley said state collections amounted to $4,830.37, with county collections at $5,874.03.

Included in the aggregate amount were $243.95, special road taxes, and $384.66 for district schools.

HOOVER PORES OVER PROBLEM

Conferences Held With Two Eastern Leaders

By W. B. RAGSDALE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10. (AP)—Herbert Hoover renewed his study of the Massachusetts and New York political situations today between strokes on the speeches he is to deliver in those states within the next two weeks.

H. Edmund Machold, chairman of the New York state committee and Charles D. Hilles, national committeeman for that state, conferred with the Republican presidential candidate during the morning regarding plans for his address in Madison Square garden on Oct. 22.

Previously Hoover had discussed his visit to Boston this week end with Samuel R. Winslow, chairman of the federal board of mediation.

Optismistic views were presented to him regarding both states. Hilles, in a statement issued after his talk with the nominee, said that the Republicans had a fight on their hands in New York and were organizing to carry it on.

"One of the most satisfying features has been the heavy registration of women," he said, "and we expect them to play an effective part in this election. We are confident, but not over-confident."

A new Massachusetts recruit volunteered his services to the Republican candidate in a telegram received from Clarence R. Edwards of Boston, Major general retired, of the United States army.

China Celebrates New Government

SHANGHAI, China, Oct. 10. (UP)—China tonight celebrated her first unified central government in 17 years of Republican history with parades and speeches in honor of independence day and the installation of Chiang Kai-Shek as chairman of the nationalist government council. General Chiang was given the title of president.

The red flags of the Kuomintang (nationalist political society) were flung throughout the city and at Nanking the government issued a manifesto stressing the achievements of antionalists and appealing for further cooperation along the lines of Dr. Sun Yat Sen's reconstruction program.

General Chiang, who commanded the nationalist troops in their successful drive against Chang Tso-Lin's northern armies last summer, is modern in his views and dress and one of the outstanding foes of Bolshevism.

Hearing on Election Petition Delayed

Hearing of Justice of the Peace E. C. Wilson's quo warranto proceedings asking that W. H. Coffman's name be barred from the November election ballot had not been set Wednesday by Judge W. W. Cook in 78th district court. Judge Cook said he had not received Wilson's citations.

Wilson alleges Mr. Coffman, Democratic nominee for justice of the peace at Electra, is not eligible for office because he declared opposition to certain Democratic nominees.

40 and 8 Official Takes Bride While Legionnaires Make Merry at S. A.

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 10. (AP)—Romance was not to be denied last night in the round of dinners, entertainments and revelry that marked activities of delegates to the convention of the American legion.

Unwilling to continue longer their single existence, Jack Morris Jr., of Chicago, cheminot nationale of the 40 and 8 in Illinois, was married to Miss Peggy Cole, Chicago short story writer.

Colonel William Mitchell, former head of the air service; Gen. John J. Pershing and L. Sable, French attache at Washington, witnessed the ceremony, which was followed by a dinner given by Colonel Mitchell.

The romance, Morris said, began sometime ago in Chicago.

"What Wrong With the United States," by Thomas Faye, and "The Signing of the Treaty to Renounce War," by John Bass were two talks presented at the regular meeting of the senate Tuesday night. The meeting adjourned at 8 o'clock so that the members could have the opportunity of hearing Frank Norris speak at the Memorial auditorium.

Miss Eleanor Pitman entertained with two vocal selections, playing her own accompaniments on the ukelele.

Mi Novia Espanola (My Spanish Sweetheart), a one-act play, was presented at the meeting of the Spanish club Wednesday morning in the main auditorium. Both the French and Spanish clubs were presented at the entertainment.

At the close of the period, the French club held the election of officers for the ensuing year. Gaylord Giles was elected president. Other results follow: Virginia Moore, vice president; Lloyd Wyatt, secretary; Virgil Daniels, treasurer. It was agreed that the president should have the authority of appointing a program chairman.

Approximately 75 students attended the first meeting of the year of the Speakers' club Wednesday morning in the Little auditorium. Two committees were appointed during the meeting. The program committee consists of Jimmie Mytinger, Clay Underwood, Dell Hatchitt and Martin Hodgkiss. Marjorie Vincent and T. H. Blanton were appointed as the program committee.

John E. Lyle, former president of the club, gave a few words of welcome to the new members, and urged the proper selection of officers to guide the club. Randle Hanks gave a short talk explaining the importance of public speaking in other phases of life besides the school. After a reading was presented by Kathleen Cason, enthusiastic impromptu talks were given by the following club members: Elmer Parish, Kenneth Mills, Margaret Bone, Philip Kouri. The meeting closed with a brief history of the progress of the club given by Howard Scott.

R. O. Jonas, faculty supervisor of the Wichitan and supervisor of many of the various activities of the high school and college, was re-elected sponsor of both the freshman and sophomore classes Monday morning. This is the third consecutive year that Mr. Jonas has served as sponsor of both these organizations.

AL IS ENDORSED BY UTAH BODY

Progressive Committee in Statement of Reasons

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Oct. 10. (AP)—In a statement issued today the Utah state progressive committee endorsed the candidacy of Gov. Alfred E. Smith for president. The statement follows:

"We, the members of the Progressive state committee of Utah, enthusiastically endorse the candidacy of Gov. Smith for the presidency of the United States, because:

(a) His record and utterances on public questions, notably hydro-electric power and farm relief, together with his stand on humanitarian measures stamp him as an outstanding leader of progressive thought and activity in the nation.

(b) Because of his candor, honesty and straight-forwardness in an age of political double dealing, hypocrisy and deceit.

(c) He is courageous and honest enough to take a definite stand on the liquor question.

Progressive State Committee.

(Signed) E. A. Mitchell, Chairman.

JONES COUNTY TRIAL UPHELD

Conatser Denied Rehearing In Slaying Case

AUSTIN, Oct. 10. (INS)—The court of criminal appeals today denied a motion for rehearing in the case of Lloyd Conatser, convicted in Jones county in connection with the slaying of Sheriff Bob Smith of Fisher county and sentenced to serve 99 years in the state penitentiary. The case had previously been affirmed.

Bill Smith, under sentence for his part in the slaying, has been granted a reprieve by Gov. Dan Moody on the ground of temporary insanity.

HARD FIGHT IN SO. CALIFORNIA

But Demo Chances Seen Slim at Best

(Editor's Note: Raymond Clapper of the United Press Washington staff is touring the country reporting the presidential campaign from an unbiased viewpoint. The following dispatch deals with Southern California. A subsequent one will describe conditions as they exist in Northern California.)

By RAYMOND CLAPPER

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 10. (UP)—Although the majority of politicians throughout the United States have never thought Governor Smith had any more chance in California than the Cards had against the Yanks, the Democrats are putting on a hot fight and actually have some Republicans slightly agitated to the point where they feel every effort should be made to get out the full Republican vote for Hoover, just to take no chances.

On paper the Democratic fight would seem largely one of desperation so far as this state is concerned. Harding got a 400,000 majority over Cox in 1920. In 1924 Coolidge got 200,000 over the combined vote of Davis who received 100,000 and La Follette who received 400,000. In the presidential primaries last spring, Hoover on the Republican side got two and a half times the combined vote which the Democrats mustered for Smith, Reed and Walsh combined.

Hoover's vote in Los Angeles county alone was larger than the state vote all three Democratic presidential candidates received. Not much cheer for Democrats.

Nevertheless those figures do not represent the situation as it appears today. Few seriously believe Smith has a chance in this state, yet elsewhere people are heard to say they believe he will surprise the country by the strength of his California vote.

Here in Southern California Hoover has his greatest strength. This section dominates the state. Los Angeles county alone contains one-third of the vote of the state. It is dry and largely Protestant. Iowans, and other middle-westerners bulk large in its population. Los Angeles looks like a middle western town until one hits Hollywood and even there the thriving business section looks like downtown Des Moines except for the greater prevalence of movie palaces.

Los Angeles and the surrounding country depends on outside sources for water. Some say present facilities will be inadequate in 10 years, due to continued growth of this section and that its progress then will be stopped unless Boulder dam is constructed to create an additional water and power supply.

Hoover is represented by some as favoring the Swing-Johnson bill. By others as opposing it. A straight-out statement on this would have pleased Southern California more, but it might have displeased Arizona, which opposes the plan. Hoover chose the alternative of a position which each side claims is favorable to it.

Los Angeles is thought of by many in the East as the playground of wicked Hollywood, but the fact is that it is a strongly religious center, due to the middle-western influx. Aimee McPherson could thrive nowhere else as in Los Angeles. Hindoo Swamis abound. News stands in many cities display religious pamphlets originating in Los Angeles. One by the Rev. Bob Shuler, who has a tremendous following here, assails the Roman Catholic church in severe fashion, partly by use of questions.

Out in Beverly Hills and Hollywood a different atmosphere prevails. If they don't vote for Smith there, then they probably will vote for Will Rogers.

TRAIN WINS

Dirigible Los Angeles Is Beaten in Race With Express

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 10. (INS)—The huge navy dirigible Los Angeles lost a race with a speeding Baltimore and Ohio express train this afternoon when the train roared into the station here at 2:41 p. m., four minutes before the huge blimp sailed over the city. The train and the dirigible left Akron, Ohio, at the same time today.

The Los Angeles is en route from San Antonio, to its base at Lakehurst, N. J.

At New Castle, Pa., Engineer Morrison of the express said that the dirigible followed the express on its Ohio run.

The dirigible passed over Bettis field airport, headed eastward.

HAITAN BOA AMERICA'S PET

But Big Snake Necessitates Change of Plans

By SAM LOVE

NEW YORK, Oct. 10. (UP)—The eccentricities of the snakes of Haiti have long been a subject for delighted study among snakeologists, but it remained for John S. Boswell, a Braddock Heights, Va., business man to have a most curious experience at sea with a Haitian boa.

As a result, he had to make a radical last-minute change in his customs declaration.

Bound home on the Dutch freighter Astrea, Boswell's pride, was a seven foot boa, or the rare Haitian silver grey species. So far as he knew it was the only snake he had. He kept it in an old black suitcase, intending it as a little present for Dr. Raymond C. Ditmars, curator of reptiles and mammals at the Bronx zoo.

"Vell, how iss te constrictor—any eggs she has laid you?" the mess room steward would ask each morning.

"No eggs—and she's still in the suitcase," Boswell would answer truthfully.

As the voyage drew to a close, Boswell one evening made out his customs declaration which included, "one snake; kind, Haitian boa; length, seven feet."

The next morning the skipper on the bridge heard howls from Boswell's cabin. He rushed below through a passageway full of sailors and noise. Reaching Boswell, he found him bending ecstatically over the opened suitcase, in which 17 little snakes were wriggling around the original snake cargo, which was hissing warning to all aboard to keep their hands out of that suitcase. Each baby was 18 inches long and about as big around as your little finger.

Dr. Ditmars today received the 18 snakes enthusiastically and said they would be a big addition to his collection of Haitian snakes, to which he has just added a Haitian "dog" snake, which he obtained in Bermuda.

Wilkins at Uruguay To Board Antarctic Ship

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Oct. 10. (UP)—Sir George Hubert Wilkins, British Explorer, arrived today on board the S. S. Southern Cross to embark in the whaler Hectora for Deception island. There he will establish his first base for his south polar expedition.

Wilkins told the United Press he expected to start for Deception island Oct. 24 or 25.

Unusual Book Program Arranged For Literature Department Today

"Books old and books new, books rare and books few" will be featured at the opening luncheon of the literature department of the Woman's Forum at the clubhouse at 12:30 o'clock Thursday.

The literature department throughout the year concerns itself with books of travel, history, fiction, and other subjects. This opening meeting, however, will feature books in an entirely different manner than during the remainder of the year.

Ladies will be dressed to represent different titles and characters of books, some in familiar and easily recognized costumes, while others will portray works little known to the average reader.

One of the most interesting of the characterizations will be of the rare Hindu book, "Ramayana," which will be on exhibit. A member of the department will represent the character for which "Ramayana" stands, and will serve as a guide to the book.

Mrs. Nancy Taylor Allee, custodian of the book while it is out of the museum, will tell the story of the volume. Among other famous books she will exhibit are a first edition of "Robinson Crusoe" and a reprint of the original manuscript of Edgar Allen Poe's "The Murders of the Rue Morgue."

The program will also include a skit in which names and characters of books will be given. This skit is entitled "The Social Register," and was written by Mrs. Wayne Somerville especially for the occasion.

Mrs. J. W. Cantwell will give a talk on "Summer Book News."

Members will be eligible to attend the luncheon on last year's cards. Reservations may be made with Miss Clara Schultz after 9:30 o'clock at telephone 9664.

Young Wichita Falls

You wouldn't know Tarleton Morrow now—he's had his hair cut masculine fashion since the above photograph was made. And there isn't going to be another picture made any time soon, not until his friends and family get used to looking at his neatly shorn head.

It might be mentioned casually in passing that the young man in Tarleton Morrow, and not Junior. Tarleton is the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Tarleton Morrow of 1905 Tenth street, and is the grandson of Judge and Mrs. W. C. Morrow of Austin, his grandfather being one of the judges of the court of criminal appeals. But there isn't much chance of the boy following the somewhat hereditary legal calling—he'd rather fly in an airplane than attain heights in rhetoric.

Tarleton is sort of blonde right now, but he has brown eyes and when he attains majority some 16 years from now, he'll probably kill 'em off with a dark masculine brand of good looks.

Mrs. Wilson will begin a series of free lectures Sunday night. They are to be given in the ball room of the Kemp hotel.

An Old Recipe to Darken Hair

By JANICE RANDALL

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, for only 75 cents. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger. —Adv.

CHIC CHERIE LATEST FASHIONS

Kitty is about to travel 50 miles back to her boarding school, but you'd think she was leaving for a pole, for either pole! There are a lot of reasons why she doesn't want to go back to school and she is thinking of all of them, looking sulky in a charming coat of rough tweed, yellow, brown and black, with a badger collar.

Just at the very last moment, the hop delivered the accessories Emily had ordered for her. A pair of strap pumps and a purse made of the same tweed as the coat, used half and half with matching leather. Emily's frock is a tailored coat-dress of bluish tweed with a little vest of silk pique. Kitty begins to feel better.

After all, even if her last year's roommate is gone and even if Emily says she's not to play hockey this year and even if she is having her teeth straightened, there are pleasant things about school. And in the meantime, Dina and Cherie are going up with her and they are the sort of people that do credit to anyone. Cherie's tweed ensemble, especially smart for traveling (even if it's only 50 miles) is brown with a blouse of tan jersey and a collar of natural lynx. Dina's is also of brown tweed with a beige jersey blouse trimmed with the tweed. No fur trimming, but a scarf collar of the material to make up for it.

GOOD UTENSILS HELP COOKING

'Dressing Up' Adds Interest To Many Menus

IDA M. CHITWOOD
Noted Culinary Expert

After you have the indispensable "pots and pans" for your kitchen, and it's a question of what to add next, do you sometimes wonder what to buy?

Or, perhaps you realize that the preparation of food is a lot more trouble than it should be. When you begin to look around for ways and means to make it easier, do you know which of the up-to-date devices save labor?

Or, perhaps you are a thrifty housewife who doesn't like to see food wasted, and yet that old casserole has been so over-worked; the family sighs on seeing it. What you need is a new baking dish or a few individual ones to give those unavoidable left-overs an appearance of exciting novelty.

On the other hand, you may have solved these particular difficulties and want to know just what equipment you will need to add attractive, original touches and tempting garnishes to your dishes. A little "dressing up" will often make the simplest food a delight to the eyes of your family and friends. For instance, potatoes—the most prosaic of foods—take on new interest when you cut them with a fancy cutter before frying them; a plain pudding or molded dessert prepared in a fancy mold gains a prestige it never had before; and the most easily made vegetable, meat or fish salad becomes a party dish if a few fancy cut garnishes of beet, pimento, or green pepper are added.

Whatever your problem, the cooking school will help you. It has many suggestions from the most efficient equipment for deep fat frying to the latest implements for making fancy icings and vegetable garnishes.

This does not mean that you will want them all, but a number of them you will surely need, and a few minutes of "eye" and "ear" shopping in the cooking school will save you many hours of wearisome looking in the stores.

WORKING WOMEN SELDOM LOSE A DAY'S PAY NOW

Strengthened by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

MRS. R. C. HAZLETT
Station G., R. No. 2, Columbus, Ohio

Eastwood, Ohio.—"I first took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a weak, nervous, run-down condition, seven years ago, after my baby was born. Some of the girls in the factory where I worked when I was able, advised me to take it. I got one bottle and that helped me so much that I took one after another until I had taken nine in all. But now I just get a bottle when I begin to feel badly, for I must say the medicine sure helped me and I am able to work every day. I will answer any questions anyone asks me, for I think your medicines are fine."—Mrs. R. C. Hazlett, Station G., R. No. 2, Columbus, Ohio.

Recommends the Compound

Los Angeles, Cal.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I was working in a factory and I was always on my feet, being the supervisor there. This caused my health to fail and I really was run-down very badly as I had no appetite at all and could not eat enough. I am taking the Vegetable Compound and also the Pills for Constipation. I have recommended them for several years and am safe in saying that probably 25 women have been helped through taking my advice. I am glad for you to use these facts as a testimonial."—Mrs. E. A. Francker, 1261 Cypress Avenue, Los Angeles, California.

Mothers Who Fail to Demand Their Children's Respect Called Criminal

A Shining Example of the Wrong Kind of Mother Love—Straight Talk to Four Young Women on The Meaning of Marriage—Better For Both to Stay Away.

Dear Miss Dix—I have a sister, 48 years of age, who has a son 30 years old. He has been married and divorced on account of non-support of his wife. This man will not work. He spends his time in playing pool and gambling. My sister has supported him all of his life, and babied and humored him. He gets practically every cent she earns, and when I remonstrate with her she tells me that I do not know what real mother love is because I make my children behave and work. My children respect and love me, while my sister's son breaks her heart with his cruel treatment. When I ask her what will become of her in her old age, she says she can go to the poorhouse. What do you think of her?—C. A. N.

Answer: I think she is one of the criminal mothers who do more harm than any one else in the world. For they bring up the hoodlums, the stick-up men, the gunmen who would rather steal and kill than work. They bring up the lazy loafers who beg and beat their way through life, parasites on society. They bring up the mean, selfish husbands who break the hearts of the women they marry.

Such mothers wreck the lives of their children because they cultivate in them every vice. They develop their every weakness. They make cowards and quitters of them, and foredoom them to failure. The greatest enemy that malignity itself could invent could do a child no worse harm than does the mother who spoils and indulges it.

Mother love is not always a blessing to a child. Sometimes it is a curse upon it. It is a blessing when it cherishes and cares for the child; when it guides and directs its development; when it teaches it self-control and high ideals of conduct; when it teaches it habits of thrift and industry; when it strengthens the weak places in a child's character, and put into its hands the weapon with which to fight the battle of life.

But mother love is a curse upon a child when it fosters selfishness and egotism; when it breaks down all of its moral fiber by letting it shirk every responsibility and duty; when it condones its indulgence in its passions and cultivates laziness and shiftlessness in it; when it robs the child of its manhood or womanhood and unfits it to live in a world that no mother love can pad softly for it.

When you see a mother spoiling a child and indulging its every whim and caprice, you do not need to be a prophet to foretell that she is laying up trouble for it. For the discipline that the mother did not give the child when it was little, life gives with a hard hand when it is grown.

It is the indulged boy, who was never made to do anything hard by his overtender mother, who throws up his job as soon as it becomes work, and who drifts from one situation to another, always trying to find something easy to do, until he finally lands in the down-and-out class.

It is the spoiled girl on whom mother waited hand and foot, whose ways mother put up with, and who had to have every wish gratified, who quits cold when she finds that marriage is a stern reality instead of a romantic dream, and who fills the divorce courts.

The mothers who really love their children love them well enough to help them make the most of their lives. —DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—We are four young women and each one of us wants to ask you a question:

First: I am in love with a married man and I know he loves me. Should I accept his attentions?

Second: Why are married men more interesting than single ones?

Third: I am a young married woman and find my husband can't hold me. I am not thrilled with him as I used to be. Am I justified in accepting the attentions of another man?

Fourth: My husband is in the United States army and at times I am very lonely. What would you advise?—THE JUNIATAS.

Answer: First: Certainly you should not accept the attentions of a married man. Treat your sister woman as you would like her to treat you. When you get married you will not want some other girl to be running around with your husband and encouraging him to spend his money upon her.

Unless you are a cruel, conscienceless girl, you cannot want to break up another woman's home and orphan her little children. Unless you mean to be a home-wrecker, what do you expect to get out of a love affair with a married man? What happiness can you derive from indulging in a hopeless passion? All that you will get out of it is weary waiting that will get on your nerves and make you old before your time, a smirched reputation, and a bitter and cynical old maidenhood.

Second: Married men are not more interesting than single ones. There's no earthly reason why they should be. They only seem so to you because they have the lure of forbidden fruit.

Many women have a passion for playing with fire, and the fascination of the married men to them consists in its danger. For they are pretty sure to burn their fingers before the game is over.

Third: Marriage isn't made up of thrills. It consists in doing your duty and living up to the contract that you have undertaken. If you will consider that side of the question a while, you won't need to worry about your husband's holding you. It seems to me that you are deliberately encouraging yourself in being dissatisfied, and that you are out hunting for temptation.

Believe me, you will no happiness in seeking an affinity, and when you find him you will discover in time that he no more thrills you than your husband does. Any woman can think herself in love or out of love and, if she is wise, she concentrates on developing her affection for her husband.

Fourth: Because your husband is away from you is no excuse for being unfaithful to him. Indeed, just because he is not there to look after you, you are the more bound to be true to him. Don't permit yourself to fall in love with another man. If you are lonely, find something to do so that you won't have so much time to consider your emotions. —DOROTHY DIX.

Reduce the Acid

In sick stomachs—instantly

Sick stomachs, sour stomachs and indigestion usually means excess acid. The stomach nerves are over stimulated. Too much acid makes the stomach and intestines sour.

Alkali kills acid instantly. The best form is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, because one harmless, tasteless dose neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Since its invention, 50 years ago, it has remained the standard with physicians everywhere.

Take a spoonful in water and your unhappy condition will probably end in five minutes. Then you will always know what to do. Crude and harmful methods will never appeal to you. It may save a great many disagreeable hours.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drugstore.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875. —Adv.

Progressive Republicans Support Smith

By D. FIELD BRITTLE

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 10. (AP)—Emblazoned in red across the front of a hotel here is a large sign announcing "Progressive Republican Headquarters." Above it is a great picture of Alfred E. Smith, flanked by appeals to elect him president.

It is symbolic of the topsy-turvy condition of political affairs in this state, home of La Follette progressivism and most "irregular and unruly of Republican colonies. It explains much of the confidence of a Smith victory held by Democrats, who always are a small minority here, and it contributes a reason for the many disturbing reports that have been carried to Republican headquarters at Chicago and Washington.

That largely is the Smith, or anti-Hoover side of the picture, but the whole canvas is not at all unpleasant to the eyes of the Republican managers, beset though they are with troubles. They frankly admit they were worried not so long ago, but they declare the wave of sentiment for Governor Smith reached its peak with his Milwaukee address and is now receding. They have no illusions about the strength to be given to Herbert Hoover.

Internal Strife

Dating back to the supremacy held by the late Senator La Follette, the Republican party in this state always has fought itself, the La Follette wing against the other elements. The hotel sign is evidence that the fight goes on. It just happens that Governor Smith is the happy beneficiary, for the faction helping him is not so determined to elect Smith as it is eager to defeat Hoover.

The solidity of the movement against Hoover awaits some clarification. Young Bob La Follette, who succeeded his father in the senate and who shares the faction's leadership with Senator Blaine, stands aloof between Hoover and Smith, despite pressure from both sides. Blaine has publicly announced his inability to support Hoover, and has said he had no doubt that many of his friends would support Smith, but he has not definitely pledged himself to the New Yorker.

Beck Is Defeated

Since La Follette pulled the party's hair at the Kansas City convention by offering his own minority platform, he has returned home to easily win re-nomination without once recommending Mr. Hoover to his supporters. Although his victory was without difficulty, La Follette saw the gubernatorial candidate endorsed by him, Regresenative J. D. Beck, go down to defeat, a rare happening to the La Follette forces.

The warfare between the two Republican factions reached to the organization of Hoover forces in the state, and resulted in the refusal of the national committee to recognize Committeeman Herman L. Ekern of the La Follette group. He was succeeded by George Vits, contestant for his post, but Ekern still retains his chairmanship of the state central committee, control of which rests with his faction.

Issues Befogged

To a degree the family squabble has befogged the issues on which Wisconsin's electorate will make its presidential choice. Standing as perhaps the lone exception, the Wisconsinite is not breathlessly interested in farm relief, for he is the nation's leading dairyman. He is more interested in tariff protection for his products, and both Democrats and Republicans are promising him lots of it. Prohibition and religion, with a goodly touch of St. Lawrence waterway, stand more prominently to the fore, the first two of wide and varied interest to a populace made up largely of foreign stock.

It is to the more than 700,000 Germans, according to the 1920 census, and the 147,000 Norwegians and 118,000 Austrians that the Smith managers look for votes because of the governor's liberal stand on prohibition. They are fortified with the knowledge that two years ago the state voted almost two to one in favor of the question whether congress should amend the Volstead act to permit sale of 2.75 per cent beer.

Woman Suing for Libel Shifts Blame for Slander on Key Men

MORRISTOWN, N. J., Oct. 10. (UP)—Mrs. Helen Brumley Baldwin, whose attacks on the nation's leading liberals have split this quiet village in two warring camps, shifted the full burden of her libel suit today on the shoulders of the Key Men of America.

Mrs. Baldwin is suing the Rev. William H. Bridge for $5,000 because he said her criticism of Oswald Garrison Villard, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise and others was a "lying imputation."

Today she took the stand for the third time and admitted that all the adverse data she had on the activities of Jane Addams and Mrs. Lucia Ann Mead of Brookline, Mass., was furnished to her by the Key Men of America.

SCHOOL OMITS 'BORING' STUDY

Experimental College Will Stress 'Human Situation'

By WILLARD R. SMITH

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 10. (UP)—Freshman mathematics, required English examinations, classes, and many others of the bugbears that beset the college freshman, are unknown in the university of Wisconsin experimental college.

Dr. Meiklejohn and his associates are working out a course of instruction which substitutes study of "human situation" for the study of subjects.

The experimental school selected for its first year of study the Athenian civilization of the fourth and fifth centuries, B. C. This era of human life offered many advantages for the work contemplated, Meiklejohn said.

The stage on which this era was enacted was small and easy to see as a whole, he said, and its story was told by some of the best writers and scholars known to the world. In their writings many of the deepest and most significant currents of modern thought and appreciation are to be found.

The study, Meiklejohn continued, was chosen "on the theory that young Americans can understand in terms of likenesses and differences how the Athenians lived—under what circumstances, for what ends, by what devices and with what successes and failures—they will be helped toward better understanding of life in contemporary America."

Extensive reading on the subjects considered by the experimental course is required. Oral and written reports to the advisers disclose individual abilities to assimilate from this reading. The conferences between pupil and adviser are so frequent that the latter is expected to have an intimate knowledge of the mind of each of his 10 or more pupils.

They are allowed to pass on to the junior and senior classes of the university proper liberal or pre-professional work, as fully accredited students.

RATE PARITY FRISCO'S PLEA

Southwestern Case Again Heard in Galveston

GALVESTON, Oct. 10. (AP)—The Frisco railroad will suffer heavy losses in moving traffic to Oklahoma and Arkansas unless the south Atlantic ports are kept on a rate parity with those of the gulf on cargo originating in New York and the eastern seaboard territory and destined for the Southwest, V. H. Stanage, traffic manager of the St. Louis and San Francisco railroad, said here today at a rehearing of the consolidated southwestern rate case.

"We cannot hope to obtain any great amount of traffic in these states without this parity," Stanage said. He added that the rate to Oklahoma and Arkansas points at present via the south Atlantic ports was $2.70, and proposed a rate of $2.78 to apply as a maximum. This would blanket the greater portion of Arkansas and Oklahoma and preserve the parity with the gulf which has been in effect for more than a quarter of a century, he said.

Stanage offered figures which were intended to show that the present differential in favor of the gulf ports under the South Atlantic to Shreveport and Monroe, La., was 18 cents, while to Texarkana the difference was 23 cents in favor of the gulf. Other exhibits contained figures on rates to various points served by the Frisco.

In arguing for the $2.78 rate to Oklahoma and Arkansas via Savannah Stanage said this was the present rate from New York via Galveston to the same points.

'KIDNAPING' IS JUST RUNAWAY

Port Arthur Youths Told of Desire to Roam

PORT ARTHUR, Texas, Oct. 10. (INS)—Probabilities of just a plain case of runaways and not kidnaping developed today in the case of Leona Roy, 13, and Evelyn Cannon, 14, Port Arthur Junior High school girls, who were last seen Friday when they left that morning for school. Wilford LaFleur, 14, is with the girls, it was learned.

Peter Settles, 15, told police that the girls left a bundle of clothes in his barn the night before they disappeared, and told him that they were going to run away. The LaFleur boy chummed with the girls and was seen with them after they had changed to knickers.

Young LaFleur is said to have remarked that he was going to California. The Roy girl told friends that she wanted to visit her father at Aransas Pass, Texas, it was learned. The Cannon girl is reported to have expressed the desire to get a job in a Houston department store.

The two men arrested in connection with the case are being held in jail pending further developments. The men admitted taking the girls as far as Beaumont.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Most New York lawyers are so dignified that they wear a black ribbon on their glasses perhaps to impress their clients. Impressing a client always means a higher fee.

Most successful lawyers get big fees for their performances and make their clients like paying them, which reminds me of a story I heard recently.

An important firm of attorneys had as a client a wealthy Englishman by birth who was involved in some litigation, and the two partners in the firm were puzzled as to how much money they should ask for their work. One partner thought $5,000 as a retainer was sufficient; the other felt they should receive twice that much, so they went into a huddle and agreed that the one recommending the higher fee should do the negotiating. He was a member of a race which made some success in the legal profession in New York and therefore the logical choice, since his partner was Irish. The conversation with the client went something as follows:

"How much will this litigation cost me?" asked the Englishman.

"Ten thousand," replied the lawyer.

"Pounds?" asked the Englishman.

"Yes," said the lawyer.

"Well, I think that's all right," answered the client.

After his departure, the Irish member of the firm eagerly entered the office of his partner to discover how he had made out.

"Well, what did you get?" he demanded.

"Ten thousand," replied the partner.

"Pounds, not dollars," answered the other member of the firm.

Perhaps there was a celebration that night, I don't know.

In East Eighty-sixth street, in the German section of New York, there are several places which feature German cooking and something that looks, smells and tastes like beer and comes in steins. Bud Fisher, the cartoonist, and this writer were there the other night, when we met Claire Briggs and a friend of his named Keegan. It seems Mr. Keegan had once worked on the San Francisco Chronicle, where Bud Fisher started his activities, so they began to reminisce about the circulation department and one of his first assignments was to attack a fashionable section of San Francisco and convince the residents of that quarter they should subscribe to and read the San Francisco Chronicle. The first man that he approached was no other than Mike De Young, publisher, proprietor and owner of the sheet. Of course, Mr. Keegan didn't know who he was.

"I don't think it is a very good paper," said Mr. De Young.

"I went on and tried to show him why it was a good paper," explained Mr. Keegan in telling the story, "and he gave me a great argument. When I finally failed to convince him, he told me who he was and gave me an increase in pay."

There may be a moral in this anecdote—perhaps it is to always try to sell to a proprietor.

A GOLF WIDOW'S SONG

You were my mate, my love, my all,
Until you heard the niblick's call;
You were my stars, my sky, my sun,
Until you sought a hole-in-one;
You eased my hurts and cured my ills
Before you chased the rubber pills.
You owned my heart—my life (perhaps)
Until you learned of greens and traps.
I never know when you'll come back;
I might as well start wearing black.
You're just the same as dead, you see,
For all the good you are to me.

A Mayor Behind the Bars

MAYOR ANDREW J. GILLIS of Newburyport, Mass., known as the "bad boy" mayor of New England, was sentenced by a judge to spend the next two months of his executive term in the county jail for the illegal storage of gasoline. He had been indicted on 12 counts for opening a service station in violation of the ordinances of his city.

Mayor Gillis thrashed the former mayor and was given a jail term for his offense against the peace and dignity of the laws of Massachusetts. He served a term. Once on the outside he announced as a candidate for the office of mayor and he swept the political platter.

It was something awful, to say the least. Gillis represented the unruly collarless element of society. He had defeated a gentleman who represented the upper crust. Success turned the head of the bad boy. He swelled up like a pouter pigeon. He felt that he was the law and gospel of the community as well as the chief executive elected to a dignified place by a majority of the voters.

Without asking for a permit he established a service station. Now he will cool off in jail for 60 days and the commissioners will run the staid and ancient town of Newburyport.

The Law's Queer Quirks

THE WAYS of the law are perplexing and strange.

In Vancouver, B. C., Gordon Northcott was held on a murder charge brought by California authorities. He was first taken into custody on a mere notification that he was wanted; but to hold him for extradition it was necessary that he be arrested on a definite warrant for murder.

This warrant arrived and was served. But Canadian laws forbid the serving of a warrant on a man in jail. So Northcott was formally released; then, as he stepped out of the jail, he was re-arrested, served with the warrant and led back to his cell.

All of this hocus-pocus was undoubtedly necessary. But, as we say, it makes the devious ways of the law seem a bit involved and confusing.

The Big Grain Yield

YOU WOULD THINK, offhand, that the man who makes his living by raising food products on the farm would be delighted with a big yield. The more the better; that sounds quite reasonable.

But it doesn't work out that way. The wheat price, right now, is away down, and is going lower. Why? Simply because there are bumper crops everywhere, from Canada to the Argentine. Nature is bountiful and kind this year; and the result is that the men who depend on nature's bounty are going broke.

The simple fact testifies more eloquently than anything else to the fact that we need to do something about the farm situation. Something is badly out of joint somewhere when a year of plenty is a year of want. At some place in our economic machine we have quite perverted the natural order of things.

New Air Giants

WHILE Germany and England put the finishing touches on two giant new dirigibles, larger and more palatial than anything yet attempted, the airplane designers are also looking to greater size and carrying capacity.

A German firm is now constructing a flying boat of unheard-of size. This monster airplane will carry 135 passengers, will weigh 115 tons with a full load and will be equipped with 10 1,000-horsepower motors which will give it a speed of 180 miles an hour.

If airplanes of this size prove practical, steamship and railroad lines will begin to look on aviation as a most dangerous competitor for passenger traffic. A plane that carries a mere half dozen passengers is no menace; but one that takes 135 would give transportation leaders many an hour of worry.

"Blue Gas" Important

THE GITANTIC new airship, Graf Zeppelin, just completed in Germany, is bigger and more luxurious than anything ever built before. Its arrival in the United States will be awaited with great interest.

There is one feature of it, however, that the general public will pass without noticing—yet it may prove the most important development in dirigible design and operation since the war. It is the new "blue gas" fuel which the airship's engines will consume.

This fuel, of a secret composition, is a gas, weighing the same as air. It not only enables the ship to devote more of its lifting power to a "pay load"; the ship does not get lighter as the fuel is consumed, and the precious lifting gas, consequently, does not have to be valved out toward the end of a flight.

It is a safe bet that our naval authorities, who are planning the construction by Goodyear of two tremendous airships, will be more interested in this fuel than in any other feature of the new ship.

SMITH VICTIM OF FALLACY

"Smith is at once the victim and the beneficiary of the most popular of American fallacies," says a writer in the October Atlantic Monthly, who adds: "Because a president of matchless genius triumphed over poverty and the want of most desirable things, the public has ever since decided that, whatever a man may wish for his own children, he should prefer for his president's childhood the advantage of no advantages."

AUTOMOBILES SHOW PROGRESS

While people are freely commenting on the wonderful development in the airplane industry in recent years it might be well to note the improvement in the automobile industry. If one will take the time to compare the motor cars of today with those of half a dozen years ago he will be forced to realize that development has not been confined to airplanes.

PERSONALITY IS SIMPLICITY

We may be of little faith but we question whether personality can be taught, any more than red hair, high insteps, or any other gift of the gods. Wherein of course, we differ with the advertisements.

Moreover, it seems to us that the attempt to acquire "it" by taking thought is likely to produce a tiresome self-consciousness. Personality plus is usually personality plus affectation. Examine the attractive personality and we find that it is simplicity itself; examine simplicity and the problem gets strangely difficult. Great simplicity is the root of all great art, great statesmanship and great personality.

The Room Under the Stairs

The Baffling Story of a Man Who Read of His Own Murder

By HERMAN LANDON

Copyright by G. Howard Watt — Serialized by Ledger Syndicate

Synopsis of Preceding Installments

Thomas Dean, well-known writer of mystery novels, has hidden from the world the fact that he is really

Paul Forrester, who as a youngster had been mixed up in a breach of promise suit and had figured in a self-defense killing out west some years before, from which encounter he still bears a knife scar on his neck. Dean is therefore astounded to read the death-bed confession of

Martin Lamont, western business man, in New York on a visit, in which he repents the murder of Paul Forrester five years before. This confession is witnessed by

Dennis Littleby, famous lawyer, at whose home the dying man is visiting, and

Dr. John Ballinger, well-known physician. Identification of the body, found in "The Room Under the Stairs," in Dean's deserted family house, is made by

Lieutenant Shane, of the police, who also finds a watch bearing the initials "P. F." Revisiting the house, Dean discovers pieces of a broken watch crystal at the scene of the murder, and is surprised at the sudden entrance of Littleby, who seems upset over Dean's find. Matters are further complicated by a strange young lady

Viola Gray, who tries to connect one of Dean's stories with Forrester's secret.

A visit to the notary who took the confession reveals that Lamont seemed to have a peculiar dread of the telephone.

That night Dean outwits a hired assassin, Freddie Mills, and forces the man to give the signal by telephone that his night's work has been successful and Dean supposedly killed.

Next morning at police headquarters Littleby shows no surprise at seeing Dean alive, and reports to Shane the strange disappearance of Lamont's daughter, just arrived from the West.

The Second Test

He sat back, twirling his long, white fingers over his chest, giving a little nod now and then with his long, narrow head. Shane drew a pad of paper toward him and picked up a pencil.

"Can you give me a description of the young lady, Mr. Littleby?"

"I can only repeat what Babson told me about her, and that isn't very illuminating."

Shane jotted down the meager information. From time to time he stole an incomprehensible glance at the novelist.

"She may turn up before tonight," he told Littleby. "How is Lamont?"

The lawyer's lips twisted into a baffled smile. "It is most remarkable! Dr. Ballinger now tells me there is a hope—just a ghost of a hope, of course, but a hope nevertheless—that he may pull through." He rose and reached for his hat and stick.

"Just one moment, Mr. Littleby," said Shane respectfully. "Did you ever hear of a slick bird who calls himself Freddie Mills?"

Dean gave the lawyer a narrow, covert glance. The question seemed to bewilder him.

"A bird, you say? My knowledge of ornithology is very deficient."

"Freddie Mills is a crook, a professional slugger and gunman," Shane elucidated. "His scale of prices, I understand, runs from $5,000 up to anything his clients are able or willing to pay. Ever hear of him?"

Littleby, frowning, inclined his head and pondered. Suddenly his brows came up; his face cleared.

"Yes, I remember now. Mills was a witness in the Stapleton murder case. I was engaged by the defense, as you may remember. Yes, I remember Mills."

"When did you last see him?"

A brief pause intervened between the question and the answer. Apparently the lawyer was trying to refresh his memory.

"It was about two weeks ago, I think. Mills came to my office and tried to interest me in behalf of a friend who was under arrest. The case did not interest me, and I referred Mills to another lawyer who specializes in matters of that kind."

"You have not been in communication with Mills since?"

"Why, no," said the lawyer, as if wondering at the trend of the questioning. "He is a repulsive character, and I have as little to do with his kind as possible.

"Don't blame you," said Shane "Well, thanks, Mr. Littleby. You have helped me a lot, and I appreciate it. We'll try to get on the trail of Miss Lamont at once."

For a full minute after the lawyer had departed Dean and Shane faced each other silently across the desk, then the lieutenant remarked: "Well, Dean, it seems our seance fell flat. To tell you the truth, I expected it would."

"Why?"

"Because, in the first place, when a wise gazabo like Littleby goes in for crooked work he is too smart to get caught at it. In the second place, I had no evidence that he has done anything crooked."

"Except my hunch," said Dean ironically.

"Except the hunch of a man who makes his living exercising his imagination."

"Why not call me a liar and be done with it?"

"All right—just as you like. No offense meant, though. There are licensed liars just as there are licensed embalmers and chauffeurs. But I don't think you are lying, exactly. You are just slicking up the facts. Now, Littleby didn't act like a guilty man, did he?"

"A clever man never looks guilty."

"Something in that. I admit Littleby is clever. It takes a clever man to collect the fees he gets. But cleverness wouldn't have helped him very far in this case. He couldn't have stood there, cool as a cucumber, without batting an eyelid, if he'd had any reason for thinking that Mills bumped you off last night. And he didn't deny that he knew Mills, as he would have done if he had anything to hide. He told the truth like an honest man."

"Or like a man who is too shrewd to get caught in a lie," Dean suggested. "However I wasn't positive that Littleby was the rascal. I only contended that out of the five persons we mentioned he seemed the most likely suspect. I wish one of the others would drop in." He grinned and looked wistfully at the door. "Tell me, Shane, do you really believe that everything in connection with Lamont's confession is just as it appears on the surface?"

The lieutenant considered, and his answer, when it came, evaded the question. "You have a queer knack, Dean, of firing shots in the dark and almost hitting something."

"For instance."

"You fired one at Littleby when you asked him how he could know the time of Miss Lamont's arrival. I had a funny feeling that he was about to trip on that question, but he caught himself in time." He paused and peered queerly in Dean's direction without looking straight at him.

"And then there are those pieces of glass you found in the floor in the Hudson street house—the ones that did not match the crystal of the watch I discovered. I've been thinking about that, too. And I am still wondering what was in Lamont's mind when he stared at you in that peculiar manner."

Dean felt a gentle shiver at the recollection.

"I wonder if we shall ever know," he mumbled.

"And I am wondering whether you want it to be known," said Lieutenant Shane.

Dean chuckled ironically as he walked out of Lieutenant Shane's office. It seemed as if all the threads of destiny had been drawn into an inextricable knot. He walked briskly, as if trying to outdistance a horde of nagging perplexities. Everything his thoughts touched seemed to turn into a wilderness of paradoxes.

Shane's suspicious attitude was merely a trifling detail in the maddingly chaotic scheme of things. It scarcely mattered any longer, but he was forced to the conclusion that the lieutenant had definite reasons, beyond those he had stated, for questioning Dean's story of his encounter with the thug. The fact that he had tricked the novelist into admitting the existence of the scar on his neck was an embarrassing, but relatively unimportant, detail. In a situation where incongruities were heaped upon incongruities, isolated complications lost their significance.

For want of something better to do, he boarded a train and went out to Top O' The Hill. He fancied that Mrs. Blossom received him with an air of gloomy suspicion, but he could not be certain. Mrs. Blossom's repertory of moods had always baffled him.

He ate the luncheon she sat before him, snuggled food and drink to the prisoner in the dilapidated garage, smoked a pipe in his workshop and, shortly after 2 o'clock, announced to the housekeeper that he was returning to the city and might not be back in time for dinner.

"By the way," he added as an afterthought, "did any one call this morning?"

"Nobody, sir."

"Any telephone calls?"

"No, sir." For a moment she regarded him with a sort of sour anxiety. "Hadn't you better see a doctor, Mr. Dean? You haven't been acting right since Tuesday."

Dean assured her he had never felt better in his life, and in a moment he was on his way.

There was a crumb of satisfaction in the thought that there had been neither visitors nor telephone calls. It meant that the person seeking his life had not taken the trouble to verify Freddie Mills' monosyllable report over the wire. At least until the evening papers came out, his unknown enemy would be in ignorance of the outcome of the murderous attack.

But Dean's expectations in that direction had already received a setback. There had been more of instinct than of logic in his suspicions against Littleby, and they had crumbled like a punctured toy balloon. He could see now that his distrust of the lawyer had been rather absurd. An inscrutable manner and an unreadable physiognomy did not prove a man a criminal. The elimination of Littleby from the range of his speculations left his suspicions without a perch to light on. As for the other four persons he had mentioned to Shane, it was hard to think of any one of them as the would-be murderer. Lamont, Dr. Ballinger, the nurse, the notary—it was preposterous!

There remained only little Miss Gray. For some reason, Dean had not mentioned her in the lieutenant's presence, although he dimly felt that she had her dainty little foot in the mystery—how deeply Heaven only knew. It could not have been just an accident that her visit to Top O' The Hill should have coincided with his introduction to the riddle. And there still lingered in his mind, as a result of her visit, a distinct impression of a subtle and intriguing personality.

"Rot!" said Dean, half aloud, abruptly punctuating his thoughts. It were sheer idiocy to think of Viola Gray is an instigator of murder. It would be just as reasonable to suspect the notary, or even Dr. Ballinger—yes, even the nurse at Lamont's bedside. He had caught only a glimpse of her, enough to fix her in his mind as a colorless and matter-of-fact individual and far removed from the inner circle of the mystery, her only connection with the case being her position as attendant to the dying man.

Dismissing all these speculations as useless, Dean suddenly decided to go out to Kew Gardens. Anyhow, the air would be fresher out there, and his brain needed the stimulant of fresh air.

Besides, there might have been developments explaining the mystifying movements of Shirley Lamont, the dying man's daughter, of whose arrival and subsequent disappearance Littleby had told. It was of her he was thinking as he alighted at the little station and swung down the street leading to the Littleby residence.

He had proceeded only a few blocks when the sight of a roadster, flashing red in the sunlight, made him draw in his steps. A slight, vividly garbed figure was exploring the mysteries under the hood. For a moment he studied the profile; then walked up and tipped his hat. "Can I be of assistance, Miss Gray?" he inquired.

Blanching Cheeks

She looked up from her bewildered inspection of spark plugs and coils. Possibly she had not recognized his voice, but the proffer of assistance, even if coming from a stranger, must have been a relief. Her pout gave way to a hopeful smile; but in an instant, as she saw his face, Dean stood thunderstruck at the change that came over her.

It was as if a demon's wand had touched her face, transforming its young charm into a look of ghastliness. There was terror in her eyes, a look of icy fear about her gaping lips. She shrank back, shuddering.

"You!" she gasped, in a curiously hollow voice. "You—I thought you were——"

Dean steadied himself. Her stricken face had telegraphed a staggering revelation to his brain, and he was still reeling from the shock of it. Her face—it seemed a decade older of a sudden—swam before his eyes in bits of gray film and distorted lines, but he thought he knew how to complete the sentence she had left unfinished. It seemed incredible, preposterous, but the fragmentary utterance admitted of but one interpretation.

The Reader's Opinion

The columns of The Record News are open to its readers for the discussion of questions of current interest or import. Letters should be not more than 300 words in length, preferably shorter, and should be signed with the name and address of the writer. Initials, or pen-name, will be substituted upon request. Letters must be free of personal abuse or libel, and the editor reserves the right to reject parts or all of letters.

RELIGION, POLITICS AND DEMOCRACIES

Editor The Record News: I am a regular subscriber and reader of the news and request you to publish this letter in answer to some confusing, not to say deliberate misstatement of facts contained in letters published in your paper of the 6th and 7th of this month. First is an article or a letter written by Col. L. L. Yandell of Mississippi and republished by request of D. M. Perkins. I wish to state that if Colonel Yandell's statement that Beauregard, Rosencrans and Thomas were Catholics is as inaccurate as his statement that Lafayette was a Catholic, not much credence can be placed in his statements. I wish to state that Lafayette's and Washington's Masonic aprons are displayed side by side at Mount Vernon, Washington's old home. I personally saw them and know whereof I speak. I am perfectly willing to give credit where credit is due. At the same time it makes my blood boil to see such statements and absolute falsehoods published in our leading daily papers. There are thousands of our people who are not well informed, consequently are being misled by such false statements. Some persons make false statements from ignorance—some from malice.

Questions Oath

I also want to ask Dr. Henry Dyke if he does not know that the purported oath of the Knights of Columbus is a matter of congressional record. The copies that he refers to are probably verbatim of the records. Now, Doctor Van Dyke, I would like to ask you how you know that the obligation that you say the Knights of Columbus took is the one you quote in your letter? You say that you are a Protestant, I ask that you be fair and tell us by what means you came in possession of the secret obligation of this Knights of Columbus. I want to ask if you think that members of other secret fraternal organizations place any credence in your quotations of such secret oaths.

There was another statement made by Senator Robinson in his acceptance speech which I challenge. He, Senator Robinson, stated that he is a 32d degree Mason and that a committee of his brethren had been appointed to examine the fourth degree Knights of Columbus oath and had reported that that oath contained nothing that a good American citizen could not take.

I want to ask Senator Robinson in all candor to tell his brother Masons that he honestly believes that the Knights of Columbus submitted their secret obligations to a committee of Protestant Masons; also want to ask him if he would be willing to submit his secret Masonic obligation to a committee of Knights of Columbus.

Now friends of true Americanism take due notice and govern yourselves accordingly. I am a son of a man who faced the muzzles of thousands of rifles in the hands of the enemies of what he believed to be right. I was conceived, born and reared a Democrat.

His Democracies

I have always been a Democrat—am a Democrat now and will remain a Democrat. If Al Smith is a Democrat I am a nigger baby born at the north pole. I would rather be called a traitor by the Tammanyites, Smithites, and Raskobites than by the good honest, Protestant, Christian people of America. I know I would be a traitor if I should support a candidate whose every official act and whose every utterance—both public and private have been in favor of the whisky traffic. I do not believe that these charges can be successfully contradicted. I am not willing to be nailed to a dark forbidding cross and submerged in a keg of beer. Al Smith does not deny that he takes a drink occasionally. I appeal to the God fearing, patriotic American men and women, to stand shoulder to shoulder and thwart the damnable purpose of making America wet. I believe in state rights so long as the purpose is right but when the liquor traffic is trying to control our God given freedom—then they must be curtailed.

R. J. DICE, M. D.
Randlett, Okla.

Editor's Note—The Knights of Columbus oath as quoted by Dr. Van Dyke in the article mention was introduced in evidence in state's exhibit "D" in the trial of the action of the State of Minnesota vs. A. M. Morrison and Garfield E. Morrison for libel in 1914. The defendants were found guilty. Dr. Dice may also be cited to an Oklahoma case, Crane vs. State 14, Okla., Cr. 30, 166. Pac. 1110, also to the case of the People vs. Gordon, Cal. App 627, 219, Pac. 486. There are a number of other similar cases in which convictions have been obtained against persons for publishing and circulating the "fake" oath of the Knights of Columbus. In each of these cases the real oath of the Knights of Columbus as quoted by Dr. Van Dyke was introduced in evidence. As to the religion of Lafayette, encyclopedias at hand including the Britannica, International and Americana make no mention of it. In Lafayette's time it was not uncommon for Catholics also to be Masons.

ARREST OF TOURIST "OUTRAGE" HE SAYS

Editor The Record News: I wish to extend congratulations to you on the short editorial story appearing in Friday's issue entitled "Jump on His Neck."

I think the act of this petty officer (precinct) committed is an outrage to American citizenship as well as a disgrace to "The City That Faith Built," not only that but a disgrace to the state of Texas. And I think the city of Wichita Falls should rise up in one voice and demand this precinct officer to resign from office.

The tourists passing through Texas should boycott Wichita Falls if they are subjected to this inhuman treatment.

I think if Wichita Falls allows this outrage just because they were of the less fortunate class of people, that all tourists should shun Wichita Falls as they would a leper colony. Again my editor of "Jump on His Neck," I shake hands with you.

Please publish this under "Voice of the People."

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE (420) OUR PRESIDENTS

The World War in Europe affected America from the very beginning. President Wilson protested the sinking of our ships without warning. For a time the practice subsided. Then came the election of 1916, with Wilson the Democratic candidate and Charles Evans Hughes the Republican. The result was long in doubt, and for a time it was believed Hughes had been elected.

By NEA, Through Special Permission of the Publishers of The Book of Knowledge, Copyright, 1922-28.

"He kept us out of war," was one of the slogans frequently heard in the campaign, favoring President Wilson.

For a time the practice of sinking American ships was discontinued by foreign powers — it was resumed, the German ambassador was dismissed.

Before the breaking of relations with Germany, William Jennings Bryan, secretary of state, disagreeing with Wilson over the threatening nature of his notes of protest, resigned from the cabinet. Congress declared a state of war on April 6, 1917. Soon the streets were filled with uniforms. The Selective Service Act made every fit man liable for duty. (To Be Continued)

HEALTH and DIET ADVICE

By DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Mr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper.

Okra

Okra or gumbo, the fruit of a large herbivorous plant resembling the cotton plant, has a ridged, mucilaginous pod which is excellent in soups, or stewed as a vegetable. This plant was first cultivated by the ancient Egyptians, but it is very popular in Europe around the Mediterranean and in the southern states. Fresh, canned or dried, it is a wholesome vegetable.

Okra pods contain a mucilaginous substance which forms a jelly in water. The pods vary in length from four to six inches, but some are even longer. They become tough as the pod enlarges in size. As the pods are usually cut into slices for cooking purposes, one can easily test their value, because when they are too old they are hard to cut.

Okra should only be cooked in enameled pots, since metallic vessels are apt to cause it to discolor. An analysis of the okra pod shows that it is alkaline forming, containing fair amounts of sodium and calcium. Many correspondents have written me asking how to prepare okra. Here are some recipes:

Stewed Okra

Cut off the stems of the okra pods, boil in salt water until soft, then allow the water to evaporate and stir in a lump of butter. In this way okra may be used either as a vegetable or as a garnish for rice or fish.

Tomatoes and Okra

Cut the okra into small pieces. Boil one part of okra with two parts of tomatoes. Add salt and butter when cooked.

Okra Escallop

Arrange a layer of Melba toast in the bottom of a baking dish, then place a layer of cooked okra, then another layer of Melba toast and last of all a layer of raw sliced tomatoes. Sprinkle with cheese and celery salt and let bake until the tomatoes are soft.

Okra-Lima Bean Soup

Cut into small pieces two cups of okra pods. Add to one half cupful of diced carrots, one turnip diced, one half cup of chopped celery, and a tablespoon of chopped parsley. Cook for 30 minutes in water enough to cover, then add a cupful of mashed, cooked lima beans and cook over a slow fire for one hour. When ready to serve add one-fourth of a cupful of cream and salt to taste.

Corn and Okra

Slice and steam the okra until it does not offer resistance to a fork. Add the okra to equal parts of canned corn, add crushed Melba toast to take up the moisture, and sprinkle with parsley. Place in a baking pan in a hot oven for about 15 minutes or until browned on top.

Chicken Gumbo Soup

Make a soup stock of the left over chicken from a meal, or those portions which are undesirable for baking or broiling, such as the neck, head, feet, etc. Add the desired amount of sliced okra and let cook until tender, then add a small amount of cream, a little chopped parsley and celery salt to taste.

Questions and Answers

Question: R. H. asks: "Could you advise me what to take when there are phosphates in the urine?

Answer: The important thing to do is to stop the mental overwork or any other nervous strain which is the cause of the excess of phosphates in the blood or urine. You can probably get rid of the excess by drinking large quantities of water between meals, but the cause is a waste of nervous energy, and this cause must be considered in a real cure.

Question: K. L. asks: "Is water a food?"

Answer: Water must be considered as a food, as three-fourths of the bodily weight is made up of this indispensable element. There would be no form of organic life without water, and although a man can live for many weeks without other foods, he cannot live more than a few days without water. Water is composed of oxygen and hydrogen gases, and when these gaseous elements are so combined as to form water they are able to have a more important effect upon metabolism than when they are extracted from any other kind of food material.

Question: K. H. writes: "I have a mouthful of perfect teeth that are all loose. I can brush them hard three times a day, still they do not bleed or hurt me in any way. Do you know of any way I can tighten them up again?"

Answer: Go to a good dentist and get his opinion about your teeth. You are doubtless having some absorption of the alveolar processes which are the bony structures holding the teeth in place. Proper treatment will sometimes stop such necrosis, or degeneration of bone, but it is best to rely on your dentist's judgment as to whether your condition can be cured, or whether your teeth must be extracted.

"The next morning a highly irate fat man called the conductor and wanted to know why a red lantern was fastened to the curtains of his berth. The conductor was puzzled and called the porter for an explanation.

"'It's in de rules, boss,' the porter said.

"'In the rules nothing!' said the conductor. 'Show me!'

Honest Election and 'Dry' Victory Is Plea

CHICAGO, Oct. 10. (AP)—For an "honest election and an honest count and a victory for prohibition," the National Women's Christian Temperance union has issued a call for an hour of prayer on the eve of election day.

Over the name of Mrs. Ella A. Boole, president, and other officers of the union, the call requests all members of the organization and "like-minded friends" to devote an hour on Monday, Nov. 5, in prayer asking God for a blessing on the nation.

"Great issues are at stake and there is need for prayer for Divine guidance," the call stated.

Tarrant Allowed to Force Bond Approval

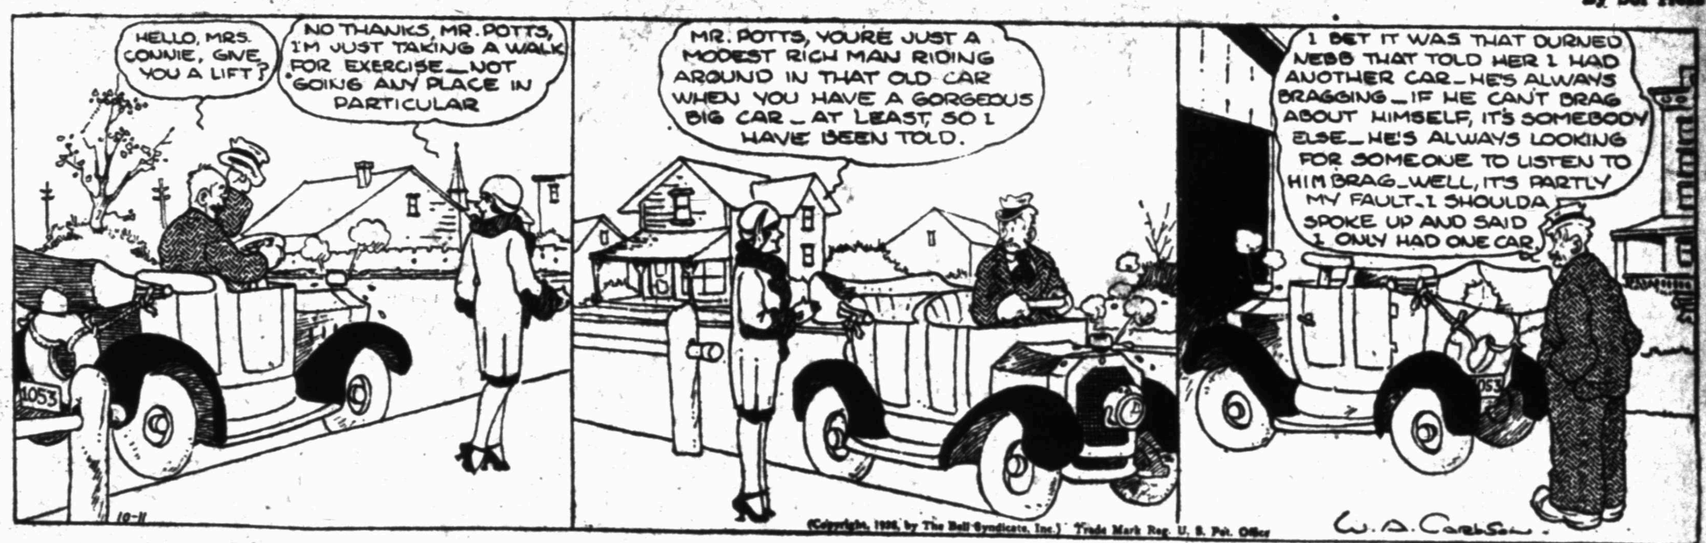

AUSTIN, Oct. 10 (AP)—The supreme court granted application of the Tarrant County Water Control and Improvement district No. 1 today for leave to file a petition for mandamus forcing Attorney General Claude Pollard to approve the district's $6,500,000 bond issue.

Mr. Pollard recently refused to approve the issue because the fate of the San Saba Water Control district, declared unconstitutional by the Third Court of Civil Appeals, is still pending in the supreme court.

INDIANS, COYOTES DRILL FOR CONFERENCE GAMES NEXT WEEK

PACK WILL MEET ELECTRA PREPS

Tribe Clashes With Ranger Collegians Here Friday

Football teams at Wichita Falls Junior college and high school are working this week getting ready for the conference season which opens next week for both teams.

The Junior college Indians begin the conference schedule here Friday afternoon, Oct. 19, at Athletic park with Ranger Junior college, while the Coyotes journey to Electra for their first conference skirmish of the season Saturday, Oct. 20.

Both Idle This Week

Games have not been scheduled for this week for either team. Coaches are ironing out the weak places that were shown in their lineups in the early games. The vacant week will also give injured men a chance to regain form.

Coach Bud McCallum faces the serious handicap of uncovering a dependable quarterback and a reliable passer and punter to fill the place vacated by the recent discovery Captain Harvey Black's ineligibility.

It is expected that Dick Hambrick will wall heir to the signal calling duties and a share of the punting and passing through Jerry Elliott and Morris Lee probably will do a considerable amount of the work left by Black.

Tribe Drills in Air

E. A. Baggett has spent the greater part of the week in perfecting a passing attack for his Junior college Indians. It seems that he will depend largely on the air this year and his attack has the promise of being a good one.

Tommy Hutcheson, the fast little halfback and a letterman from last season, is again out for practice and is looking mighty good this week. He probably will start his first game of the season next week against Ranger.

Yankees Share $5,531.91 Each

Cardinals Get $4,197.37 as Consolation Money

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 10. (AP)—Although the total players' pool of $419,736.60 set a new record for the world series, each winning share drawn down by the Yankee regulars $5,531.91, will fall somewhat short of the record individual total of more than $6,000 established in 1923, when the Hugmen also won the prize. This diminution is due both to the generosity of the Yankees in remembering secretaries and other club officials, and to the share now deducted from the pool for members of the two major league clubs finishing fourth.

The losing St. Louis Cardinals, dividing their money into only 28 parts, each will receive a check for $4,197.37.

Of the $419,736.60 in the pool, $293,815.62 goes to the players on the two world series contenders and the remaining $125,920.98 to the six first division clubs of the contender's pool, or $176,289.37, and the Cardinals 40 percent, or $117,526.25.

The Yankees voted to deduct $4,800 from their money to reward Eddie Bennett the mascot; Mrs. Urban Shocker, widow of the former Yankee pitcher, and various secretaries and officials.

Manchurian Monarch Resumes Tennis Play

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Oct. 10. (AP)—After an absence of two seasons, General Chang Hsueh-liang has returned to the tennis courts here.

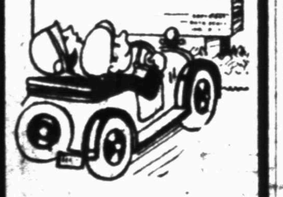

The young general, successor to his father, the late Marshal Chang Tso-lin, as head of the government of Manchuria, entered as an active participant in an international tournament conducted under his own patronage.

He and his doubles partner, Li Ying-chao, sailed through the first round at the expense of an American pair, but met elimination at the hands of a British couple in the second.

The young general's renewed interest in sports is taken as a hopeful indication by his friends, who have been worried lest the strain of recent and present responsibilities break down his health.

DAILY DOPE

By LARRY DAILEY

"DEAR DOPEY," writes a wise cracking guy who apparently is no friend of mine, "how are you picking the S. M. U.-Simmons football game?" After reading your alleged dope on the world series, I am anxious to see how you pick the football game, so I can bet on the other team. What's your alibi, Larry? Yours, laughingly, One-Who-Bet-on-the Yanks."

◇ ◇ ◇

The hombre who penned that missile (not missive) doubtless is a reformer. If not a professional reformer, he is an amateur reformer. Reformers are people who always are trying to find flaws and point out mistakes. As for my world series forecast, I don't see what his idea is in bringing that up. Just like a reformer, isn't it, reader friends? However, now that the matter has been broached, I will carry it through to the bitter end. I break down and admit I picked the Cardinals to win. And in five games.

◇ ◇ ◇

THERE YOU ARE, my professional pride bared to the eyes of the world. I picked a loser. "Gracious," my thousands of readers are saying, "and I thought the man infallible." I picked the Yanks to win last year, and the Cardinals the year before. I said Tunney would beat Heeney on a knockout. Am I to be discredited because big beezarks like Ruth and Gehrig and others had no more sense than to play ball when they should have been in the hospital? Is it my fault that the Cardinals folded up like an accordion? How was I to know that Alexander had been a teetotaler all season, it being an established fact that old Grover, when indulging in his grog, was a great pitcher. There were figures to substantiate my belief in the Cardinals. That those figures were as reliable as an iceman's scales was no fault of mine. Rather, the series proved that instead of my prediction being incorrect, it showed that figures do lie.

◇ ◇ ◇

ANYHOW, I'm a good loser. In fact, I'm not perturbed that my forecast went wrong, except for the natural desire to be right. I was shown up to be a bum prophet—but there are a thousand and more other "experts" exposed to the same light. All honor to the Yankees, as great and courageous a ball club that ever played, who established an unprecedented record, one indeed that will stand for countless years, of winning two consecutive world series in four straight games.

◇ ◇ ◇

YOUNG STRIBLING may be the next heavyweight champion of the world. At least, the Georgia youth has indicated that he will be a foremost contender for the throne vacated by his majesty, King Tunney. William Lawrence, who wasn't seriously considered as a titular contender, except by a few critics, started a "comeback" a few weeks ago. So impressive was Willie in his "comeback" fight that even in the East, where they are unfriendly and in some quarters hostile to him, they rate the son of Pa and Ma Stribling as a contender.

◇ ◇ ◇

Stribling, in his first fight in the East for a couple of years, knocked out one Jack Squires in the first round. Jack Squires may or may not be a formidable fighter, he probably is not. But Johnny Risko had difficulty in whipping Jack in 10 rounds, whereas Stribling knocked him out with such a workmanlike exhibition of two-fisted socking that the other heavies immediately had previous engagements or otherwise evinced an aversion to fighting, following the example of Mister Tunney, whenever a battle with Stribling the stripling was mentioned.

◇ ◇ ◇

STRIBLING, who gained overnight fame several years ago down in Columbus, Ga., by whipping Mike McTigue, then light heavyweight champion of the world when he (Willie) was a schoolboy, is a young man of only only 24 years, though a veteran of the ring. Trained from babyhood by his parents, the famed and wise Ma and Pa and always a model of clean living, Stribling is a wonderful example of physical and fighting perfection. Except for a poor fight with Paul Berlenbach two years ago he never has been decisively beaten. He has whipped several foremost light heavyweights and a few good heavies. He is a master boxer and ring tactician and a rough and aggressive fellow who can assimilate a deal of punishment, though seldom in his career has he been called on to withstand much of a lacing.

FOR A COUPLE of years it seemed that Stribling was quitting the hemped square or confining his activities to touring the tank circuit, which has made him and his parents wealthy. Stribling, with the exception of Dempsey and Tunney, has made more money boxing than any man—and much of his wealth has been amassed from his many excursions into the hinterlands. The continued popularity of the "schoolboy wonder" continues to be a source of mystification to his envious brethren of the gloves. When High Hat Tunney announced his retirement, Stribling, little considered as a claimant to the title, achieved his k. o. of Squires. He may not wear the royal purple of champion. But he's a rough, tough fellow in the ring, is this likeable son of likeable Ma and Pa, and it's going to take the best to beat him.

Porkers Drill In Secret For Battle With Baylor

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Oct. 10 (AP)—Two practice games already successfully negotiated, the Arkansas Razorbacks began their rehearsals this week behind closed gates in preparation for their opening Southwest conference clash with Baylor at Texarkana Saturday.

Arkansas probably will enter Saturday's game with a weakened lineup as both Milan Creighton, husky wingman, and Clarence Geise are ailing and might not be able to play.

Ruth and Teammates Acclaimed As Special Train Speeds East

Thousands of Boys, Girls and Adults Give Conquerors Royal Greeting, Along Route to New York

By ALAN J. GOULD

EN ROUTE WITH YANKEE SPECIAL, ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 10. (AP)—No conquering hero in sport ever was accorded more noisy of sustained acclaim than was Babe Ruth today as the special train bearing the world champion Yankees sped in triumphant style from the conquest of St. Louis.

Baseball's greatest showman and most colossal clouter basked in the spotlight of his latest achievements with characteristically boyish enthusiasm shown by the crowds of youngsters that scrambled at various stops to cheer him. Until late at night, after departure from St. Louis, people gathered at stations in Illinois, Indiana, and Ohio in hopes of getting at least a fleeting glimpse of Ruth and his mates.

Great Demonstrations

Today, hundreds of schoolboys and girls clustered about the special train in the Buffalo yards during a half hour stop, yelling wildly for Ruth and his hitting partner, Lou Gehrig. The demonstration was repeated at Syracuse, Schenectady and Albany.

These Yankees, who defy all laws of baseball averages, all precedent and all figuring against them, are returning home like a lot of kids who have been out on a high school game. It may be the secret of a good share of their success. They are serious and concentrated enough on the field, but with worry, aches and training rigors behind them, they are a care-free, joshing group.

It is a question in Babe Ruth's mind whether he got his biggest "kick" out of hitting his third home run in the final game, off Alexander, an old nemesis, or out of his great running catch of Frisch's foul for the final out.

Says Catch Was "a Darb"

"I wanted to belt another one to show up those birds who were tossing pop bottles and giving me the razz out there in left field," said the Babe. "But, boy" I liked that catch. Wasn't it a darb"?

The attitude of the Yankees, with their sixth pennant in eight years and their third world's championship victory is "watch us next year.' They are already talking about taking their fourth pennant in a row, to set an American league record and equal the mark of the Giants in the National.

There are certainly few signs that they are slowing up. Ruth was given up as "through" three years ago when he developed his famous case of indigestion. Two seasons later he set a new record of 60 home runs.

U. S. Women's Golf Team Scores Win

RYE, N. Y., Oct. 10. (AP)—The United States team of women senior golfers triumphed in the first international match with the players from Canada by 35 to 4 over the Westchester-Biltmore course today.

In the thirteen matches, all but three of the United States representatives won all three points of their individual matches. The following players won three points: Mrs. F. E. DuBois, U. S. senior titleholder; Miss Georgiana Bishop of Brooklawn, Mrs. Ronald Barlow, Merion, Pa.; Mrs. G. W. Roope, foremr U. S. senior champion; Mrs. S. S. Laird, Jr., of Westchester-Biltmore; Mrs. S. E. Bentley, Braeburn; Mrs. Chas. Downey, Springfield, Mass.; Mrs. J. C. Barclay, Hackensack; Mrs. E. W. Stifel, Wheeling, W. Va.; Mrs. M. D. Patterson, Westchester-Biltmore.

Bambino Ruth Adds To Batting Honors

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 10. (AP)—Although Lou Gehrig tied Babe Ruth's record for four home runs in a series, and smashed Bob Muesel's mark by one with nine runs batted in, the 1928 games gave the Bambino plenty of additional laurels to add to his already large store. The great slugger not only tied his own world series mark by smashing out three homers in the final contest today, but also finished with the record batting average of all time, .625.

The Babe's figure displaces Hank Gowdy's mark of .545 made in the 1914 series of four games. Gehrig tied to Gowdy's percentage, in the four 1928 contests.

Between them, the Babe and Lou collected 16 of the 37 Yankee hits and 41 of the 71 total bases. They also scored 14 of the 27 runs and batted in 13 of the 25 so batted in.

Ruth and Gehrig were the only Yankee regulars to hit above .300 except Cedric Durst, who alternated in center field with Benny Paschal, and who batted only eight times. Durst hit .375.

Britain Asks U. S. Fistic Heads To Consider Scott's Title Claim

NEW YORK, Oct. 10. (AP)—The British Board of Boxing Control, ruler of Great Britain's fistic system, asked the New York State Athletic commission today if Gene Tunney really had retired. If he has, the British board respectfully requests that Phil Scott, heavyweight champion of Great Britain, be given a chance to win the title Tunney gave up.

In a long letter to the fistic fathers, the British board offered its services in the interest of producing a genuinely "world" champion—that is, if Gene has retired. If reports cabled overseas were exaggerated and the big marine was only fooling when he said he was through, the entire matter, of course, could be dropped.

The commission hastened to inform the British board that the situation was just as grave as had been pictured abroad and that Tunney had really quit the ring. The fathers assured their co-workers overseas that Scott would be given every chance in the eliminations designed to fill Tunney's place and thanked them for their offer of cooperation.

HARVEY BLACK IS INELIGIBLE

Coyote Leader Is Banned From Prep Competition

Wichita Falls high school gridders resumed practice yesterday for the opening of their conference schedule next week, without the services of their captain, Harvey Black, leader of the Coyotes, yesterday was declared ineligible for scholastic competition. Coach Bud McCallum of the Pack was responsible for the ban against his captain and a star backfield man.

Black played three seasons of prep football with the Archer City team, it was discovered by McCallum. Four years of scholastic competition are all that is permitted high school athletes of Texas and thus Black is barred, as he had played one year with the Coyotes.

A meeting scheduled to have been held yesterday at Quanah to act on a formal protest lodged by Amarillo on Black's eligibility was made unnecessary by the action of Wichita Falls high school authorities in placing a ban on Harvey.

While disappointed that he cannot lead the Pack into action again, Black yesterday resigned himself to the blow. He will continue to assist in winning the district title for the Coyotes by helping coach the squad.

No election will be held for captain, but McCallum will appoint a leader before each game, the mentor said.

Penick Denies Arkansas Rumor

Razorbacks Not Asked to Quit Conference

LUBBOCK, Texas, Oct. 10. (AP)—Denying reports that Arkansas university had been asked to withdraw from the Southwest conference Dr. D. A. Penick, president of the conference, today issued this brief statement:

"The Southwest conference has never as a body signified any desire for Arkansas to withdraw. Neither has any one member come out with such a statement as appeared in the press recently. The rumor has been hatched up by a number of scribes who are taking a lot for granted."

Dr. Penick said further that the report circulated that the Texas members wished to limit the conference to six members also was unfounded.

"If Arkansas does choose to withdraw, the schools who applied for admittance to the conference last fall will be considered," Dr. Penick said.

They're Just Backfield Men on Missouri Team

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 10. (AP)—All of Coach Gwin Henry's University of Missouri football players who operate behind the line are backs—not halves, quarters or fulls.

Henry designates them, but only for the benefit of the scorers. Missouri uses the huddle system of signal calling.

'Frisco Captures Opener Of Coast Loop Playoff

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 10. (AP)—Hitting brought the San Francisco Seals a 12-5 victory over the Sacramento Senators today in the opening game of their seven game series for the Pacific Coast league championship.

TEXAS MEETS STRONG VANDY

Longhorns Are Crippled for Saturday's Battle

AUSTIN, Oct. 10. (AP)—The Texas university football squad devoted itself earnestly today to perfecting its attack in preparation for the annual game with Vanderbilt at the state fair at Dallas.

Curtis Beatty, guard, and Mona be unavailable for the game on account of injuries. Beatty has an injured shoulder, with bones pulled asunder, and Rees has some cracked ribs.

Goaded on by tales of a Vanderbilt football team touted as the strongest in the south, as reported by Freshman Coach C. J. Alderson, who scouted the Vanderbilt-Colgate game, the Longhorns were drilled strenuously against Vanderbilt running plays.

In Vanderbilt, Texas will face a team similar to Southern Methodist university, with a first class line thrown in. Although Texas defeated the Commodores last year, 13 to 6, the prospects this year are regarded as dubious.

AROUND THE RING

By CHARLES W. DUNKLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO, Oct. 10. (AP)—The impression prevails in the great open spaces that the 1929 edition of the heavyweight elimination extravaganza will find Gerald Ambrose Griffith, late of Sioux City, Iowa, as a member of the cast.

Kighting under the war-like nom de plume of "Tuffy" Griffith, this sensational young light-heavy weight, growing like a weed, has been pounding his way through all sorts of competition in the midwest.

Starting out three years ago as a flyweight, weighing 112 pounds, Griffith today is a full fledged light-heavyweight and heading for the heavyweight ranks. Within a year, his handlers say, he will scale around 190 pounds and stretch skyward six feet, one inch.

Jumping from one division to another so quickly that it was difficult to keep track of him, Griffith first gained recognition as a star performer in the middleweight ranks. He soon outgrew that division, also, and was forced to battle with the light heavies. In the two battles he fought as a 175-pounder, Griffith has been considerable of a sensation. He knocked out the ancient, but cagy, Tony Marullo, the New Orleans veteran, in a couple of punches, and just the other night tipped over the veteran Mike McTigue in less than a round.

McTigue is no morning glory for anybody to knock out. He is a terrific hitter himself with the right hand and smart in the ways of boxing. Against Griffith, however, McTigue's ring generalship and hitting prowess crumpled before the Iowan's two-fisted attack.

Griffith has plenty of courage, a wonderfully developed body and a blast of dynamite in his fists, particularly his right. When he realized that he had hurt McTigue, he displayed the old Jack Dempsey viciousness in finishing the aged Celt.

Griffith is just 21 years old and in three years has engaged in 51 contests, never losing a decision. The nickname of "Tuffy" was hung onto him because of his exploits on the gridiron while playing with Trinity college, which is located in Sioux City. He cut considerable ice as a ball-carrier, playing halfback and fullback.

Just as he was about to crash into the picture as a real heavyweight threat, Les Marriner, the collegian, finds himself on the rack for at least three months, due to a broken right hand. This Chicago youth fractured his hand in two places trying to knock out George Gemas, a hard headed Philadelphian, in a battle of knockdowns that will go in the book as a thriller.

All told there were 16 knockdowns scored, with Marriner being spilled on the canvas himself three times, and the other party kissing the canvas thirteen times.

A forest of steel pillars rising skyward in the double block bounded by Madison, Wood and Lincoln streets and Warren avenue on Chicago's great west side, is bringing into reality P. T. Harmon's dream building—a gigantic sports arena, the largest in the world. Construction work is so far advanced that plans are being made for its formal opening in February. The arena will have a seating capacity of 25,000.

Did you know that Pal Moore, the famed Memphis bantamweight flash, had joined the ranks of amateur boxing promoters in Chicago . . . Johnny Ertle, who won the bantamweight championship at 116 pounds, now weighs 160, and is running a billiard hall in St. Paul . . . They say that Jack McTiernan, 19-year-old Pittsburgh youngster is another Harry Greb, plus punching ability.

Marchman Awarded $12,000 Verdict In Law Suit; Hotel Lease Is Upheld

An instructed verdict by Judge P. A. Martin in 89th district court Wednesday gave O. F. Marchman judgment for $12,000 for rentals alleged due on the Marchman hotel since last March. The verdict was against the McCoy Hotel Operating company.

Judge Martin gave a verdict in favor of the defendant on other issues, including the matter of the hotel lease, held by the Hilton Hotel company, which continues in force. Mr. Marchman sued for cancellation of the lease and for damages.

In his suit Mr. Marchman sought to recover the lease on the hotel, claiming that terms of his contract with the McCoy Hotel company provided that the McCoys were to remain in active operation, management and control of the hostelry. The McCoy company sold the lease to the Hilton company last spring.

SOUTH PLAINS MEET FRIDAY

C of C Delegation Will Set Celebration Date

The South Plains committee of the manufacturers and jobbers division of the Wichita Falls chamber of commerce will leave early Friday morning for Fort Worth to confer with committees from other cities in this region on plans for the celebration to be held in November upon completion of the Denver and South Plains railroad, according to J. W. Chatham, traffic manager of the chamber of commerce.

The Wichita Falls delegation will include Mr. Chatham, James Biggs, R. E. Penick, A. C. Rayzor, P. V. Halpin and George Keith. Other towns to send delegates to the conference include Dallas, Fort Worth, Plainview and Lubbock.

The meeting will be held in the offices of F. E. Clarity, vice president and general manager of the Fort Worth and Denver railroad, at 10:30 o'clock Friday morning. At that time the date for the celebration will be set and other necessary plans made.

The board of directors and the manufacturers and jobbers division of the chamber of commerce here have endorsed the proposition of celebrating the opening of the new trade territory. About 125 business men and jobbers of Wichita Falls are expected to attend the celebration in November.

Hungry Thief Raids Cafe of Cookies

A thief who was just hungry entered a cafe on Barwise street last Tuesday night, ate his fill of cookies and other food, but molested nothing else in the shop, according to reports received at police headquarters.

W. Allen who investigated the case found no clue other than that the intruder entered and departed from the shop through a window, and took only food during his stay in the building.

State Grants Charter To Owners of KGKO

A formal charter was granted by the state of Texas Wednesday to the Wichita Falls Broadcasting company, according to an Associated Press dispatch. The incorporators were given as C. W. Snider, J. T. Harrell and L. H. Cullum. The company owns the physical assets of KGKO, the National Life Insurance company station.

Boy Commits Suicide Thinking Brother Lied

WARRENSBURG, Mo., Oct. 10. (INS)—Because he thought his younger brother had lied to him about feeding two pet cats, Clifton Sprinkle, 13-year-old son of J. A. Sprinkle of five miles northwest of Warrensburg, committed suicide this morning by drinking carbolic acid. He drank the poison at 8 o'clock and died two hours later in the clinic here.

WIN RADIO PRAISE

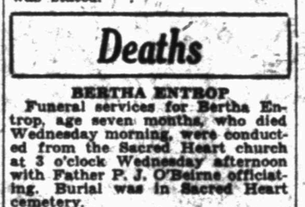

Radio artists and the radio listening public alike gave unstinted praise Wednesday night to Mrs. John F. Cammack, soprano, Mrs. Pauline Slaughter, pianist, and Joseph Robinowitz, violinist, for their program over station KGKO, according to Glen Hewitt of the radio team of Zack and Glen of KGKO. Many telephone calls, messages and telegrams of thanks and approval of the program were received, it was stated.

Deaths

BERTHA ENTROP

Funeral services for Bertha Entrop, age seven months, who died Wednesday morning, were conducted from the Sacred Heart church at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon with Father P. J. O'Beirne officiating. Burial was in Sacred Heart cemetery.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Entrop who live on the Iowa Park road.

Miller Is Voted 25-Year Term

ller's body in his car and rolled it onto the railroad track.

Arguments in the case were completed at noon. The charge to the jury was delivered immediately after court convened at 3:30 o'clock. Five bills of special exceptions to the charge, submitted by the defense were overruled, with the exception of one paragraph in the first bill.

The chief exceptions objected that the court had failed to instruct the jury regarding intent to kill where a deadly weapon was not used. Judge Fires, in overruling the exception, held that such a charge would be contrary to the revised murder statute passed by the last legislature. Other exceptions overruled included, in the main objections that the charge had failed to submit the issue of self defense, and that it had failed to include the supposition that Collier died of neglect of wounds previous to the train crash.

Exception Granted

The exception granted called for a definition by the court of the word "voluntary," when used in connection with the commission of a crime.

County Judge R. H. Templeton, of Wellington, opened arguments for the state. He was followed by Allen C. Grundy and David Fitzgerald, defense attorneys. Final argument was given by District Attorney James C. Mahan.

Through all the arguments, Miller, sitting beside his diminutive wife, showed signs of strain. His only other relative with him at the trial was his brother, Emmitt Miller, who testified from the stand in his behalf Tuesday.

B. L. Collier, prosperous Newlin farmer, and father of the deceased, never once left the courtroom during the entire trial. He was accompanied by Clyde Collier of Greenville, Horace Collier of Alba, Texas, both older sons; and his youngest child, three-year-old Jess Tom Collier. His daughter, Mrs. E. F. Billingsly of Farwell, Texas, and his second wife, Mrs. Mary Collier, also were present.

Trial Speeded Up

Action in the case was speeded up from the first by the prompt decisions of Judge Fires. Otherwise, court officials predicted, the cause would have consumed more than a week. Judge Fires, recent appointee of Gov. Dan Moody to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Judge C. C. Small of Wellington, is one of the pioneer criminal lawyers of the Panhandle. The Miller case was the first jury trial he ever participated in the capacity of a district judge.

Crowd Dwindles

Surging crowds that filled the courtroom Monday, when the jury was selected, and Tuesday, when the score or more of witnesses were heard, had dwindled to a handful by Wednesday afternoon when the probe into the probable cause of Collier's death, as far as Miller was concerned, ended.

$65,000 SUIT OPENS HERE

Slander Alleged in Case Before Court

Hearing of Mrs. Lucille Bolton's $65,00 suit for alleged slander against J. S. Nichols, local realtor, was opened Wednesday afternoon in 78th district court before Judge W. W. Cook. Mrs. Bolton is suing on the claim Mr. Nichols accused her of stealing a diamond pin from him.

Testimony in the case was started after Judge Cook overruled a general demurrer filed in Mr. Nichols' behalf and several hours of argument on exceptions filed by the defense to the plaintiff's allegations.

Lions to Meet at Lamar Avenue Church

The meeting of the Wichita Falls Lions club next Wednesday will be held in the Lamar Avenue Baptist church, it was announced at the Kemp hotel luncheon meeting of the club Wednesday.

J. D. Bright talked on fire prevention, and Salvation Army musicians under Capt. Z. H. Parker, gave a program of religious songs. W. K. Little Jr., gave two readings, and P. B. Curd and Frank Cripliver sang a duet.

Jolson Picture Runs Through Saturday

Al Jolson's vitaphone picture, "The Singing Fool," will continue through Saturday night at the Strand theater, it was announced Wednesday by Hans Smith, manager of the theater.

A special midnight matinee starting at 11:30 o'clock Saturday night will usher in next week's engagement of "Wings," the vitaphone picture which is now running in New York.

Robbins to Address C-C Business Council

Horrace Robbins as representative of the Wichita Falls Safety council will address members of the business council of the chamber of commerce at the regular weekly meeting Friday noon at the Kemp hotel, according to Hubert H. Harrison, general manager of the chamber.

The council will observe fire prevention week in the program and plans will be discussed for the fire prevention parade to be staged Saturday.

Wichita Man, Burned By Asphalt, Improving

R. D. Alexander, 20, who was painfully burned when he fell while carrying a bucket of hot asphalt near the Katy roundhouse, was reported resting well by attendants at the Hargrave-Walker hospital Wednesday.

Mr. Alexander is an employe of the Lydick Roofing company. He was severely burned along the right arm and body. His condition was not reported as critical.

Public Invited to Chest Meet Today

The public has been invited to attend a meeting of the budget endorsement and campaign committee of the Wichita Falls Community chest to be held at 10 o'clock Friday morning in the council room of the Municipal auditorium, it was announced Wednesday.

Member organizations of the chest have been invited to discuss their budget recommendations.

LAKE LOW

Absence of Rain Drops Spillway Marker 1.6 Feet

Lake Wichita is at the lowest level since last spring, it was learned Wednesday from Dr. A. H. Douglass, manager of the city water department.

"The gauge now stands at about 16 feet on the spillway marker," Dr. Douglas said. "The spillway level at which the lake is full to overflowing is 17.6.

"Last spring, before the heavy rains, the reading was down to 13."

Collegians Head Vaudeville Bill

Eddie Pardo with his all-collegiate company of 12 players will appear at the Majestic theater on the Interstate vaudeville bill Thursday and Friday.

Members of the company are all specialty artists who present a variety of acts with the entire company forming an ensemble frolic as the concluding act.

Featured with Pardo are Mollie Dodd, Alan Greene, Clayton Wentworth, Tommy Rush, Tamara Drasin and Minerva Reddy, as well as others well known in vaudeville.

County Judges Argue Auto Registration Fee

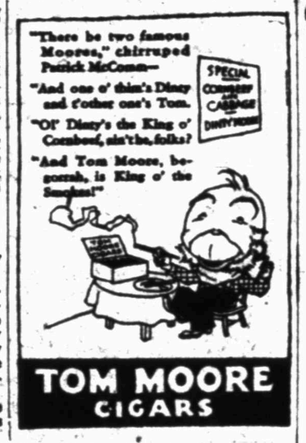

DALLAS, Oct. 10. (AP)—Arguments over the efficacy of the proposed plan to lower the automobile registration fee in Texas and make the gasoline tax bear the brunt of highway construction and maintenance expense occupied a major part of the opening session of the annual convention of the association of county judges and commissioners of Texas here today. The meeting will continue through Friday.

Optimists Hear Talk On Fire Prevention

J. W. Lyle spoke on fire prevention at the meeting of the Wichita Falls Optimist club in the Kemp hotel Wednesday noon.

Short talks and good will exchanges featured the affair. Joel MacGregor sang a series of songs, J. D. Bright gave a baby wardrobe to Mr. MacGregor on behalf of the club for the singer's infant daughter.

J. W. Gray read a telegram of greetings from Rev. Leslie Miller of Wichita, Kan., a former local Optimist. Honey Boy and Sassafras, KGKO radio entertainers, sang and J. V. Allred, president of the club, introduced the guests.

Giant Dirigible Starts Thursday

just as would be found in the salon of the large ocean liners preparing to weigh anchor for America.

Fitted Like Steamer

The compartments were ready for the passengers and their 50 pounds of luggage each. Each compartment has two beds, one upper and one lower, and is otherwise fitted as a small stateroom would be arranged. Windows from some of the compartments will permit a view of the vast territory over which the Count Zeppelin will pass.

The hall between the staterooms leads forward to the dining room and lounge and still further forward are the radio room, the galley, the navigation room and—under the nose of the dirigible—the control cabin where the pilot stands.

With everything in readiness for the departure, Dr. Eckener was studying latest weather reports tonight and making sure that the radio set for reception of photographs was in shape to furnish him with weather charts while en route.

Stowaway Threats

He has been bothered recently with many letters from persons who wish to pay for passage. Some of the writers threaten to stowaway on the airship if they are not permitted to go as passengers. One woman wrote asking that she be allowed to wash dishes en route to pay for her passage. She said she wanted to go to Hollywood to get a chance to act in the movies.

The Zeppelin management, also has received countless offers from German and American firms to furnish food stuffs and other material needed for the trip not only free of charge but with something thrown in. All of these offers—including everything from typewriters to toilet articles and electric stoves—have been rejected because of the Count Zeppelin's weight limit. Some of the companies offered huge sums if the products should be taken.

The passenger list still was not definitely announced. It will include 60 persons, with the possibility that 63 will make the trip.

Two Routes Open

The route will either be across Belgium, the English channel (just skirting England) and along the north Atlantic ship line to the American coast, or across France, to the Bay of Biscay, to Cape Finisterre, to the Azores islands, and to New York.

The former route, which is most likely, is approximately 4,216 miles. The dirigible probably would first touch the New England coast.

The second route is approximately 4,776 miles.

Among those scheduled to be aboard the Count Zeppelin as passengers are:

Commander Charles E. Rosendahl, U. S. M.; Col. Emilio Herrera of Spain; Albert Grzesinski, Prussian minister of the interior; Count Alexander von Bradenstein of the Zeppelin company; Lady Grace Drummond Hay of England; Robert Reiner of Weekawken, N. J.; Frederick Gilfillan, American resident of Switzerland; Karl H. von Weigand, newspaperman; Robert Hartmann, photographer; Major Bradenburg of the aviation ministery; Rolf Grand; Walter Kieffel; Professor Dettman; and Ernst Mayer.

Officers and Crew

Officers and members of the crew are:

Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander E. A. Lehmann, first officer; H. C. Fleming, second officer; H. von Schiller, Anton Wittmann, Max Preuss and Walter Schere, navigators; Wilhelm Seigle, chief engineer; Karl Beuerle, assistant; Walter Dumke, Willy Speck and Hans Ludwig wireless operators; A. Samt, Knut Eckener, K. Schoenherr, K. Rosch, P. Kindling and F. R. Bartschat, helmsmen, Ludwig Marx, Ludwig Knorr and P. H. Lenz, riggers; August Grozinger and Hermann Pfaff, chief machinists. In addition there are 15 machinists and two stewards, making a total of 40 members of the crew.

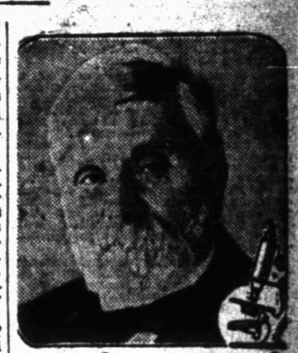

Small Requested to Remove Commerce Body

CHICAGO, Oct. 10. (UR)—The city council today requested Gov. Small to demand the resignation of the members of the Illinois commerce commission.

The action was taken on motion of Alderman Thomas Bowler following a stormy meeting of the committee of transportation on the 7-cent feeder bus question.

Two hundred copies of the penal code of the city of Wichita Falls soon will be off the press, it was learned at the Memorial auditorium Wednesday. The work is being done by the Martin Printing company.

Doctor at 83 Found People Preferred His Prescription

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice, known to druggists and the public since 1892, as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Then, the treatment of constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions that result from constipation was entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of senna and other mild laxative herbs, with pepsin.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings, to put into their systems. If grown people want to use them no one can deny them the privilege, but they should never be given to children.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you, and the better for the general health of all. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs? All drug stores have the generous bottles.

Many is the family today that makes it a rule always to have a bottle of this perfect preparation in the house. Keep it handy and observe these three simple rules of health: keep the head cool, the feet warm, and the bowels open. We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you—see special offer in coupon:

The Puncture Worry now Eliminated

WHEN we say that you need never worry about having a puncture with the New Miller Deluxe Balloon — we mean it. Punctures from ordinary causes are next to impossible. Look at its massive tread and thick carcass for the reason. Several extra pounds of rubber give you this extra tread thickness. Carcass is 6-ply, with double layers of pure gum between the plies.

Our own severe tests show that when you have driven this tire the number of miles representing the full life of average tires—you will still have from 30 to 40% of its sharp-cut tread left. Miller set out to build the tire every motorist has long looked for and needed. Especially those who drive hard and show their tires no mercy. Abuse this tire if you must — drive where you will — at any speed you choose. It will serve you as long as you keep your car.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Oct. 10. (AP)—Opening declines under further liquidation and a little southern selling were followed by rallies in the cotton market here today on trade buying and covering. December contracts advanced from 18.80 to 18.98, but met slightly increased offerings at that figure and closed at 18.90, with the general market closing steady net 1 point higher to 2 points net lower.

The opening was barely steady at a decline of 10 to 15 points under a continuation of the selling movement which was noted here yesterday and which was probably encouraged by continued good weather in the South, together with relatively easy Liverpool cables. The weekly report of the weather bureau was considered favorable, but evidently failed to stimulate much fresh selling and after the initial offerings had been absorbed prices turned steadier on covering. Some trade buying was also reported and while it was said to be in comparatively small volume, offerings were light after the first half hour.

The market became quite during the middle of the day, narrow enough to be influenced by small orders either way, and after some irregularity, prices worked up to 19.03 for October and 18.80 for March, or about 2 to 7 points net higher. A little more southern selling was encountered at these figures, whtile there was also realizing by some of the early buyers, and closing quotations showed reactions of 7 or 8 points from the best on the more active positions.

Except for some hedging at the opening and again toward the close, very little southern selling was reported. Private cable advices said that there had been good continental buying in Liverpool but that it had been supplied by hedge selling together with local and Bombay liquidation and that business in cotton cloths and yarns was slow in developing. Houses with Liverpool connections were credited with buying a little cotton here during the earlier trading. Exports totaled 25.895 making 1.317.207 so far this season. Port receipts 69.350. U. S. port stocks 1.437.959.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 10. (AP)—Early hedge selling and selling on favorable weather and lower Liverpool cables were absorbed by covering and trade buying in the cotton market today when the weekly weather and crop summary proved less favorable than the trade expected. December contracts traded up from 18.18 to 18.39 and closed at 18.35, unchanged, compared with yesterday's final quotation. The general market closed steady net unchanged to 3 points down.

Liverpool cables were 3 to 5 points lower than due at the start here and as the weather map was comparatively dry the market opened easy. Initial trades were 17 to 21 points below yesterday's close, with January at 18.13 and March 18.07. These prices proved to be the lows of the session.

Later in the morning a moderate demand developed when the weekly weather and crop summary failed to meet bearish expectations. Shorts covered and there was more or less trade buying and the improvement was further stimulated by favorable reports from the cotton goods trade. By noon December traded to 18.36, and active positions generally 17 to 20 points above the lows.

After reacting a few points on some realizing the market rallied again in the afternoon on prospects for less favorable weather in the near future and prices traded to levels 21 to 23 points above the lows and 2 to 4 points over the previous close. There was a renewal of realizing and prices eased off 9 to 10 points from the top but rallied again in final trading and closed practically unchanged from yesterday's close.

Motors, Steel, Radio and Other Leaders Go Forward on Session

By BROADAN WALL
Universal Service Financial Expert

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Bullish sentiment again prevailed today as the recognized leaders of the stock market were whirled upward. The entire list was stimulated by concentrated buying which continued in General Motors, U. S. Steel, Montgomery Ward, Radio, Allied Chemical, American Smelting and others of this character. Substantial advances were recorded in the most prominent issues and practically all of the gain was retained to the close.

General Motors, as on Tuesday, furnished leadership, establishing a record high price before profit-taking appeared. This issue apparently can be counted upon to become prominent whenever its sponsors so desire. They have, of course, the expectation of very favorable developments at the directors' meeting to stimulate enthusiasm. Furthermore, it was reported though unverified that the Motors' management has another great surprise for Wall street. This may take the form of a sensational new model in the lowest-priced field. Chrysler remained inactive, but Hudson approached the high for the year as the powerful interests sponsoring the issue continued active. It was stated that the objective of the Hudson group is a price well above 100.

Steels Advance

U. S. Steel responded to the 74,000-ton increase reported in unfilled business and also optimistic forecasts made in trade reviews. Bethlehem also advanced to a price within a fraction of its high for several years, although some doubt was expressed whether its directors will resume dividends at their next meeting or wait until next year.

American Smelting broke through its previous high as interests identified with the management continued to absorb the stock in large blocks. This company probably will vote a slip-up of its shares within the next few months, with a resultant increase in the dividend distributions to shareholders. Earnings of this company, although officially reported at around $20 per share or thereabouts, actually run 50 per cent higher.

Chain Store Spurts

F. & W. Grand Stores spurted to a new high, emphasizing that new interests prominent in several recent very successful stock market activities have become identified with the stock. It was stated that the floating supply of the shares is now the smallest in its history, one estimate placing the amount available in Wall street at less than 20,000 shares. The Grand organization is one of the fastest-growing retail chain store systems in the country, recent expansion into Pacific territory showing tremendous strides. The current buying is understood to be related to a possible merger of this company with another enterprise in the same field.

Marland Oil responded to buying reputedly for strong banking interests. Oppenheim Collins added several points to its previous gain over the same month a year ago and October, it was forecast, may disclose a 50 per cent increase. The current fiscal year, which will end June 30, next, is expected to show a net per share exceeding the record fiscal year of 1927, when $8.35 a share was reported.

Beacon Oil Absorbed

Beacon Oil was quiety absorbed by houses usually acting for the strongest banking group. This company, whose present known activities are confined chiefly to marketing in New England, is understood to be the active subsidiary of Standard Oil for development work in Venezuela. It is said that some of the leading Standard Oil executies are heavily interested in Beacon. Radio's rapid advance was influenced by the statement published here that an English group was anxious to secure a sizeable stock interest in the corporation. Commercial Credit dropped a point, despite report that the Chrysler interests were seeking control. Goodyear Tire added to its sharp previous advance in response to buying which has been taking place quietly in most of the rubber shares for several weeks.

MIDWESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 10. (AP) (U.S.D.A.)—Firm to slightly higher values prevailed around the 11-market circuit on fat lambs while aged stock held steady; choice range lambs on the Chicago market realized $13.45.

The supply approximated 89.800 against 111.829 a week ago and 102.460 a year ago.

The sluggish drift in trade again was the chief depressing influence in the cattle market. Feeder buyer competition in Kansas City proved only a small factor in the trade on western grass steers; stockers continued to meet a fairly broad demand. Chicago had a top of $18.10 on heavy steers and yearlings.

Total offerings of around 44,000 were 4,000 under a week ago and 7,500 less than the same day last year.

Hogs were tendered another price jolt of 15@25c but trade was active. The day's top of $10.20 was paid at Chicago aggregate receipts were estimated at 77.500 against 68.566 last Wednesday and 61.263 a year ago.

FORT WORTH, Oct. 10. (AP)—Hogs—Receipts 1.500; 20@25c lower; top $9.60; truck top $9.25; medium to good 170-220-pound rail hogs $9.00@9.50; 180-230-pound truck hogs $9.00@9.25; 130-170-pound hogs $7.50@8.90.

Grain

By THOMAS TEMPLE HOYNE

CHICAGO, Oct. 10. (US)—A weak cable from Liverpol lay the foundation for a bear raid on wheat and also corn today and those grains closed with losses of about two cents each. All through the session they came in for a pounding that looked as if it were led by short selling which forced prices lower and shook out longs.

At the close wheat was down 1½c to 2⅛c; corn was down 1⅝c to 1⅝c; oats were ⅜c to ⅜c lower; rye was down 1⅜c to 2⅛c.

Corn opened higher, but the selling orders were in the pit in volume, and in a heavy trade for a few minutes they knocked the price down three-quarters of a cent.

Then the market came back slowly about half way and held well enough to renew the confidence of bulls. But selling orders poured into the pit again and there was not buying power enough to absorb them.

For the rest of the session corn was on the down grade. It broke through the bid price and got half a cent or so under it, but when the market came back to a close that made only the high bids operative.

All the talk on corn was intensely bearish. Rumors that big run of new corn will head to this market were widely disseminated. They were accompanied by heavy selling.

Although corn did act today at all as I expected it would. I do not think that the break has demonstrated that the situation has become bearish instead of bullish. On the contrary the long side looks to me safer than the short side, although the bull must exercise great caution, perhaps, in picking his buying spots.

Wheat looked very sick at times today, but it was under constant pressure from the start. It may not be able to make much headway against this selling for a time, but it looks like a questionable market to sell before election day.

Peru and Chile Suspend Work of Commission

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10. (UP)—The governments of Chile and Peru have agreed to the suggestion of Secretary Kellogg to suspend the work of the Tacna-Arica special boundary commission for a period of four months, Secretary Kellogg announced officially today.

AGED MAN KILLED

PONCA CITY, Okla., Oct. 10. (UP)—Jesse F. Hall, 88, of Ponca City, died here today following injuries received when struck by a Santa Fe train Monday night.

Corns Lift Right Off!

Hard corns, soft corns, corns between the toes and callouses lift right off! You'll laugh—it is so easy and doesn't hurt a bit!

Just drop "Freezone" on any tender, touchy corn. Instantly it stops aching; then shortly you just lift that old bothersome corn right off with your fingers. It works like a charm, every time. Seems magic!

A tiny bottle of "Freezone" costs only a few cents at any drug store. Try it!—Adv.

25 NEW WELLS IN WEST TEXAS

Permian Basin Gains in Production

Special to The Record News

SAN ANGELO, Oct. 10.—Twenty-five oil wells were completed last week in three counties in the Permian basin of West Texas for total daily potential production of 195,512 barrels. Compared with 11 wells rating only 4,767 barrels during the preceding week, this was a gain of 14 producers and 190,745 barrels potential yield, yet still was below the mark during the week ending Sept. 22 when 269,719.40 barrels was indicated by 17 producers completed in three counties.

Winkler county led again last week, completing 16 wells for total daily potential production of 106,898 barrels. Six of the number were Southern Crude Oil Purchasing Co. wells. Pecos county ranked second with three wells completed for 85,776 barrels daily. Six completions in Howard county added 2,838 barrels to the total.

Eight tests were abandoned dry and four locations abandoned. Winkler county abandoned two tests dry and Fisiher, Andrews, Howard, Pecos, Reeves and Upton counties one each. Howard and Winkler counties abandoned two locations each.

Producers completed during the week ending Oct. 6, alphabetically by counties and by companies, follow:

Howard

Coyle-Concord Oil Co. No. 1-A Roberts, section 156 top of pay 2,953 feet, total depth 3,010 feet, initial production 1,604 barrels in 20 hours or 1,924.8 barrels a day.

"Married Life" Not Worth While

Blames Wives' "Nerves"

"Weak nerves," said a New York doctor recently, "in my estimation wreck more happily married lives than any other cause."

Besides making the sweetest disposition sour and irritable, nervousness is a terrible drain on your vital forces—it saps your youth and your strength and dulls your beauty. What a difference from the bright-eyed, vibrant girl he married. No wonder married life seems unbearable!

But you can get rid of your nervousness—speedily too—and become the steady-nerved, radiant woman you once were. Take a teaspoonful of Tanlac after meals and before going to bed and if it doesn't soon make a new woman of you—doesn't rid you of that tired, strained feeling—go back and get your money.

Go to your druggist now and get a bottle of Tanlac. Millions of folks have started back on the road to youth, health and happiness with this world famous tonic and there is no reason why you, too, can't begin today to rebuild your worn-out tissues and revitalize your entire system.

Six Capitalists Back Wet Move

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10. (INS)—Six capitalists, including John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, were the chief backers of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment during the three-month period ending Sept. 1, it was disclosed in the association's report to the clerk of the house today.

The report was filed to meet the law requiring reports on campaign expenditures. A similar report had been filed by the Anti-Saloon league campaign committee.

The wet organization collected $125,938.48 and spent $107,047.29 during the three-month period, the report stated.

Chief contributors were: Irenee Dupont, Wilmington, Del., $15,416.66; Lammott Dupont, $15,416.66; Pierre Dupont, $17,766.01; Raskob, $15,416.66; Edward S. Harkness, New York, $15,416.66; Arthur Curtiss James, New York, $12,500; Stanley Field, Chicago, $2,500; Grayson M. P. Murphy, New York, $2,500; Thomas W. Phillips, Butler, Pa., $2,916.66; Charles H. Sabin, New York, $2,916.67; J. R. Umstead, New York, $1,600.

NEW YORK BRAKE CO.

Five-Year Record

The New York Air Brake company is engaged in the making of air brake equipment for passenger and freight cars and locomotives. It has been manufacturing under Westinghouse patents since 1912. Repairs and replacements form an important part of the current business.

The company underwent a drastic readjustment of capital structure in 1922 when new blood came into the concern. The corporation has manufacturing plants at Watertown, N. Y., with a productive capacity of 1000 sets of car brakes a day. New construction during the war left the company with considerable excess capacity which has not since been successfully utilized. The company has two subsidiaries.

Earnings have been variable. In 1927 net income amounted to $1,097,000. This compared with $1,504,000 in 1926, and $1,226,000 in 1925. The 1927 net was equivalent to $3.65 a share.

Funded debt totals $1,804,500. Capital stock outstanding amounts to 300,000 shares of no par value. In April, 1928, the company's charter was expanded to allow it to engage in other lines of manufacture and the authorized capital was advanced to 500,000 shares of no par value. It is understood that the company is planning to acquire some other concerns.

Dividends are now being paid at the rate of $3 a share per annum, having been advanced from $2 in the final quarter of 1926.

As of January 1, 1928, total current assets were $7,094,250; current liabilities were $801,475, and net working capital $6,292,775. Book value applicable to the stock amounted to $36.11 a share.

LEGION VOTES FOR LOUISVILLE

Kentucky City Wins Over Two Rivals

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 10. (UP)—Louisville, Ky., was awarded the 1929 convention of the American Legion here this afternoon after a spirited contest with Detroit, Mich. and Miami, Fla.

Mayor William B. Harris, a legionnaire, spoke for Louisville and his warm assurance of true southern hospitality for the veterans of the world war won the convention for his city. He presented pledges of all Louisville hotels that hotel rates will remain unchanged when the convention is held. The pledge won spontaneous favor and the vote was as follows: For Louisville, 567; for Detroit, 345, and for Miami, 178.

Adoption of reports of committees and awarding of trophies consumed most of today's session, many of the 50,000 legionnaires who came here for the convention began drifting toward home today as the convention forgot its play to turn to serious business.

Elections Today

Concluding business sessions and election of the national commander will be held tomorrow.

Trophy winners announced at the close of today's session were:

Henry D. Lindsey trophy for state department attaining highest percentage membership by March 1: Won by Wisconsin.

North Carolina trophy awarded department not included among state departments attaining highest percentage membership over preceding year: Won by Canada.

John G. Emery trophy for department having highest percentage membership as compared to average membership for four preceding years: Won by Texas.

James A. Drain trophy for state showing most consistent service to community, state or nation: Won by Wisconsin.

John R. Quinn trophy for department having highest percentage membership on June 15 as compared average membership for four preceding years: Won by Texas.

Child Service Trophy

Milton J. Foreman trophy for state doing most for boys and girls: Won by Wisconsin.

Howard P. Savage trophy for department having in its jurisdiction the winning junior baseball team following the playing of the little world series: Won by the Oakland, Calif., baseball team.

The convention was stirred into bitter debatement for a time today when the California delegation submitted a minority report to the committee which was to report on child welfare activities provided under the $5,000,000 endowment fund raised a few years ago by the legion. The minority report proposed that funds now spent for administrative purposes and in seeking financial aid from congress and state legislatures for widows and orphans of war veterans be expended directly for the aid of the needy. After considerable debate the minority report was voted down.

State delegations were caucusing tonight for the election of the national commander. Paul McNutt of Bloomington and John Ewing of Shreveport, La., appeared on the surface to be leading the field of candidates tonight although Gen. Roy Hoffman of Oklahoma City was conceded considerable strength.

Youth Twice Attempts Suicide After Slaying Girl Because of Love

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 10. (UP) A youth who stabbed his fiancee to death "becaused he loved her," made a spectacular attempt to join her in death by dashing his head on a tile floor in the police station and tonight his condition was reported as dangerous.

Glenn Jenkins, 20, was the $30 a month waiter who took the life of Miss Marie Young, 21, because of his intense love for her and probably because of his disappointment at not being financially able to marry her. The two had planned to marry Aug. 15, but the nuptials were postponed because of lack of funds.

Doctors held little hope for Jenkins tonight as he had fractured his skull in leaping from a second tier of cells 18 feet to a tile floor below. This was his second attempt at suicide for just prior to entering the police quarters early today to tell them the dead body of his sweetheart was in his automobile, he swallowed some iodine. The poison was not effective.

Pigeon Fanciers Open Racing Season With Oklahoma Flight

Racing season for young pigeons was opened Sunday by the Wichita Falls Racing Pigeon club, a bird owned by A. L. Taylor winning the first race from Waurika, Okla., to Wichita Falls.

The birds are shipped to different towns during the early past of the week and released by express agents. The pigeon which averages the greatest number of yards a minute during the flight is second winner. The time is determined by a special clock which is attached to the pigeon's leg.

The racing season for young birds will last until the first of November while races for older pigeons will not open until spring, according to G. W. Ward, a member of the club.

This week's race will start from Purcell, Okla. The distances will be increased each Sunday until towns 300 miles from Wichita Falls are used as starting points.

BOLTING IS LAID TO BIGOTRY

Mrs. Smith Delivers Stirring Plea

will mean another step upward in that struggle for religious liberty which has been man's abiding dream through all the years of time. Have we forgotten the anguish, the blood, the tears and the longing that went into the making of this America?

"Can we forget the principles upon which America was founded—the principles in which our forefathers, Protestant, Catholic, Jew or Gentile have found a haven of refuge from religious persecution?

"Please God, when Alfred E. Smith, son of immigrant parents, child of poverty and member of a prescribed religion, takes his place as president of the United States, we can look the world in the face and say, 'Behold, America is true to her traditions.' True to the sacred promises of her founders, that no racial test, no social test, no religious test should ever bar one of her sons from her highest office.'"

Tribute to Couple

Another matter taken up by the speaker was the allegation that the Democratic candidate and his wife are not socially eligible to the aristocratic precincts of the White House. Mrs. Smith expressed herself as proud of the hardships and the lowly origin of the candidate himself, declaring "he is a son of poverty but a man that embodies the very principles upon which the democracy of this country is laid."

Mrs. Alfred E. Smith is a beautiful woman, according to Mrs. Smith's description, with a rare poise, and a winning and sincere friendliness. She is a convent-bred woman with all the attributes of refinement and tact that type of education engenders.

"I have seen Mrs. Smith several times, sometimes under trying conditions, as for instance when a large group of newspaper women hurled a barrage of questions at her, and she sat under the strain with perfect composure knowing exactly what to say and what not to say!

"For my part, I glory in the so-called lowly origin of the choice of the Democratic party—I take pride in the valiant Irish mother that brought him into the world, in that bitter poverty which forced him early to fight up every step of the ladder and which incidentally produced that priceless residue that we call character—in the inherited fiber that brought him unscathed through the temptations of the sidewalks of a great city—in that big heart that makes him the champion of women and little children—in that manly spirit and in that matchless brain that meets and wisely solves problems of state as they come up. In fact, I glory in every circumstance that combined to make our leader.

Party First

"Alfred E. Smith is but an incident in the life of the Democratic party. He has come and he will go, but the party remains. Would you forget the past of your country and imperil its glorious future by either love or hate for one man?

"The Democratic party has its roots deep in the soil of our being. It means liberty, the blessing that is the inspiration of every human soul. It has brought with it a great price and I beg you to give it the benefit of any doubt in your mind. Continue, even though with a waning faith, along the old paths of your fathers. Remember that the solid South was our bulwark in the past and is our sole hope in the future for white supremacy."

Mrs. Smith urged the women of Texas to maintain the solidity of the South for the Democratic party and to preserve the integrity of the Democratic party at this crucial time.

"Please understand that in this instance my country and my party are synonymous, for from the bottom of my heart I do believe that the preservation of this country depends upon the preservation of the principles of the Democratic party upon which the nation was founded and which are found today only in the Democratic party."

Mrs. Smith was introduced by Mrs. W. P. Smith of Wichita Falls, who had been introduced by Bert King after a brief opening talk extolling the fitness of the Democratic presidential candidate for the highest office in the country.

"Tolerance or Bigotry?"

"The statement that no man from the slums of New York is fit to become president of the United States is the greatest falsehood ever uttered. The struggles of Al Smith stand for democracy—and democracy is America.

"Democracy is the greatest ideal of man, holding horth hope to the lowly and humble. And that Alfred Smith is from the people is the greatest qualification he could boast in his campaign for president of the United States. He has been tried in every way and he has stood every test of manhood and statesmanship, and from the viewpoint of his human contact, he is the logical man to fill the place."

Edgar Scurry, chairman of the Wichita county Democratic executive committee and campaign director for the district, presided over the meeting and introduced Mr. King.

Announcement was made by Mr. Scurry of a Democratic rally at the Memorial auditorium Friday evening when A. H. Carrigan and John C. Kay will speak on the principles of the Democratic party.

MEDICS CLOSE MEMPHIS MEET

Banquet Tendered Doctors By C. of C.

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, Texas, Oct. 10.—The semi-annual meeting of the Panhandle District Medical society, composed of 23 Panhandle counties, closed a two-day session here Wednesday afternoon about 4 o'clock. The meeting was attended by about 100 doctors and their wives and other guests, and pronounced by both the local physicians and visitors to be a decided success in every way.

The program, according to Dr. D. C. Hyder, local physician, for the two days was carried out with only one exception, Dr. F. B. Malone of Lubbock was sick and could not attend.

Distinguished visiting doctors were present in the meeting from New Mexico and Oklahoma, which added much interest to the meeting.

The main entertainment feature for Wednesday was an elaborate banquet tendered to the doctors by the Memphis Chamber of Commerce in the ball room of the Memphis hotel, at 12:30 which was largely attended.

The visiting doctors voted thanks to Memphis and the local doctors for the way in which they were entertained and hoped to have the opportunity of returning to the convention city again some time, knowing that they will be welcome.

Those taking part on the program Wednesday were Dr. E. W. Jones, Wellington; Dr. C. E. High, Wellington; Dr. R. R. Swindell, Amarillo; Dr. J. R. Rather, Amarillo; Dr. J. T. Kreuger, Lubbock; Dr. Winfred Wilson, Memphis; Dr. R. A. Duncan, Amarillo; Dr. W. J. Shude, Amarillo, and Dr. J. R. Anderson of Lubbock.

This is conceded, according to Dr. Hyder of Memphis, as being the best district society in the state of Texas.

The next regular meeting will be held in Amarillo on the second Tuesday and Wednesday of April, 1929.

Girl Breaks Wrist In Volley Ball Game

Ruth Barnett, a Wichita Falls high school student, broke her wrist Wednesday morning when she slapped a volley ball with her hand during a game in the school gymnasium.

She was taken to a physician and the broken bone set. The break is not considered serious, according to instructors at the high school.

O. P. Maricle, Wichita Falls postmaster, left Wednesday for Mill Shoals, Ill., to attend the funeral of a relative who died Tuesday night.

RASKOB'S MOVE

Republicans Come Out With Thimbles and Tie Clasps

Thimbles for the ladies and tie clasps for the men!

This is the latest in political campaigning in Wichita Falls, and both items are free at the Hoover Republican headquarters on the Lamar Avenue side of the Hamilton building.

"We have an unlimited supply of Hoover buttons, and we thought the ladies would appreciate Hoover thimbles so we secured a supply of them," said Mrs. P. A. Welty, Republican candidate for congress from this district.

All women, regardless of political belief, were invited to get a free Hoover thimble.

First Christian Bible Class Has Banquet

The Men's Bible class of the First Christian church held the regular monthly bauquet at the church Wednesday evening with Voyle N. Armstrong, president, in charge of the program.

Speakers on the program were Judge P. A. Martin who talked on the work of laymen, Roy J. Mann, who talked on the church from the standpoint of a new member; H. E. Crain, R. B. McGee, W. P. Killingsworth, and Henry Penix, assistant superintendent of the Bible school. J. Hayne Holmes led a singsong.

The supper was served by Mrs. Roscoe Stayton's division of the women's council of the church.

Cops Seize Liquor and Merchandise in Raid

City and county officers "killed two birds with one stone," or rather with one search warrant Wednesday night when they raided a house on Avenue Y, recovering merchandise taken from a Wichita Falls store and capturing a quantity of liquor. A white woman and her brother were lodged in the county jail after the raid to await action of the grand jury. W. P. Belcher, city detective, and Charles Gant, George Garrett and Dick Moore, deputies, made the raid.

STORE WINDOW BROKEN

One of the two large plate glass windows in the front of the Bolton Furniture company store at 714 Seventh street crashed Wednesday evening.

Police investigation showed that a large ventilator from above the window had dropped from its fastenings, breaking the window as it fell. M. D Bolton of the Bolton company was notified, and made provision for guarding the store for the night.

EIGHT CONVICTS FREE IN BREAK

Six of 14 Escaped Prisoners Recaptured

HUNTSVILLE, Texas, Oct. 10. (UP)—Six of the 14 tubercular convicts who ripped their way to freedom from the Wynne prison farm near here last night, had been recaptured tonight.

Two packs of blood hounds were on the trail of the other eight.

The fifth and sixth convicts were captured near the Smitter farm, seven miles below Huntsville, by a posse headed by Dog Sergeant Tom Cauthen from the penitentiary here.

The convicts offered no resistance as they were surrounded. They were E. E. Brewer, El Paso, and W. B. Shigley, Johnson, Texas, each under two year sentence for forgery.

Four Taken Earlier

Four convicts taken earlier on the streets of Huntsville were Roy Davis, Donley county, under three year sentence for burglary, also with arson in connection with the burning of the hospital building at the Wynne state farm a week ago; John Reed, Young county, 28 years for robbery by firearms; Oscar Lafferty, McLennan county, seven years for forgery, burglary and theft; Ed Grigg, Dallas county, three years for burglary.

The prisoners, some of whom were included in the group that set fire to the hospital building at Wynne farm, gained their freedom last night by raising boards of the floor of the frame structure in which they were housed, according to Warden E. F. Harrell.

Haskell Man Out

Those still at liberty early tonight were:

Paul Denison, Eastland, 15 years for robbery by firearms; Carl Gassett, Tarrant county, two years for burglary; R. L. Edwards, Howard county, eight years for assault and theft; Roy Robbins, Harris county, five years for robbery by assault; Marion Azbell, Haskell, five years for bigamy; John Square, Tarrant county, four years for forgery; Joe Thomas, Collin county, 15 years for forgery; Leander Gaines, McLennan county, eight years for theft and burglary.

HOUSTON, Oct. 10. (AP)—Guards were still seeking four convicts who escaped the Ramsey state prison farm, near Angleton, Tuesday, said telephone reports from the farm late today.

The four men, O. L. Etheridge, serving two years for forgery from Jones county; John W. Harper, serving five years for forgery from Gillespie county; Willie Duncan, four for burglary from Collin county, and Bouchie Wallace, serving 17 years for burglary from Dallas county, escaped from their guard while at work.

$6 FOR PARKING

Wichita Car Owner Gets Three Police Tags In One Day

A day's parking cost a Wichita Falls motorist $6 Wednesday when he left his car in one place on a downtown street for more than six hours.

G. W. Wright, city traffic officer, plastered three "overtime parking," tickets on the windshield of the automobile each of which cost the owner $2. He might have parked his car in a garage across the street for a day at a cost of 50 cents.
