Skylab 2 Given Go Ahead

Crew Is Said Fit

By PAUL RECER

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP)—Space agency officials gave Skylab 2 astronauts a go ahead today to continue man's longest space mission.

William C. Schneider, the Skylab director, said Skylab 2 astronauts Alan L. Bean, Dr. Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma are medically fit to continue their space voyage until at least Sept. 7, the 42nd day.

Skylab 2 is scheduled as a 59-day mission, but medical data on the men is examined each week. Based on these studies, officials decided that its safe for the mission to proceed.

Schneider said approval to continue the mission came on the recommendation of Dr. Charles Berry, the space agency director of life sciences.

The Skylab 2 astronauts, in the 34th day of history's longest space flight, are still in excellent health, officials said.

Bean, Garriott and Lousma conducted hours of telescope camera studies of the sun today and planned to take pictures of the earth, including areas in Africa hit by drought and by locust swarms.

Periodic medical re-evaluation is required because long term space flight causes deconditioning of muscles, including the heart. In weightlessness, the heart, in effect, becomes weaker because it doesn't have to work against the tug of gravity to pump blood.

The rate of this deconditioning is monitored by medical tests the astronauts run on themselves. The tests have been conducted almost daily since the mission began July 28.

An official said an extensive review of the findings Wednesday by space doctors uncovered no medical problem that would require the mission to be curtailed.

If you have been impressed by the Western Texas College plant, you have another real treat in store for you if you haven't been in the new student center.

Just completed this month and barely in time for the fall semester, the student center provides outstanding facilities for recreation, social events, food service, etc., for the college.

"I wish every person in Scurry County, especially every taxpayer, could see this building," said Dr. Robert Clinton, WTC president.

The north view from the student center looks out over the small lake toward Snyder and there is plenty of glass on the first two levels to make this a truly outstanding feature. On the third floor, a door opens onto the roof over the second floor.

Ultimately, the land area between the student center and the lake will be completely grassed and when that is accomplished the setting will be even more remarkable. Arvel Hall, director of maintenance at the college, says they already have learned that grass can be produced rapidly on the WTC campus and points to the golf pitching range east of the tennis courts as an example.

The student center building makes the most of the terrain at its site. The front entrance takes you into the second floor at ground level on the south side, while the first floor is at ground level on the north side. It should be a popular place when the fall term begins.

Crow season is nearly here and the Texas Parks and Wildlife Dept. has advised that it still is legal to shoot crows in Texas—under certain conditions. And these conditions apparently lend themselves to rather liberal interpretation. A crow may be shot in Texas if it is committing depredation or about to committ depredation on ornamental or shade trees, agricultural crops, livestock or wildlife.

There was considerable controversy last year about this time when the U.S. entered into an agreement with Mexico placing the family corvidae, which includes crows, under federal protection. It has since been determined that there was no intent to provide federal protection for the raucous, common American crow, but the treaty was really to protect other members of the crow family which are found in Mexico. States in the U.S. now have an option. They may treat the crow as a game bird with a maximum hunting season of 120 days, or they may permit hunting of depredating crows the year round. Texas took the second option, which means a crow may be killed almost any time because you could claim that most any crow seen is "about to commit a depredation." And when one is disposed of there always seem to be two or three more to take its place.

An area between Snyder and Colorado City, centered upon the China Grove community, likely could claim to be the crow capital of this area. The noisy black birds show up there by the thousands every autumn.—WACIL McNAIR.

Lawyers Hunt Way To Sustain Nixon Stand

By MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has vowed to resist an historic court order commanding him to deliver secret Watergate tape recordings for a judge's private inspection.

Chief U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica ordered Nixon Wednesday to produce the tapes demanded by special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox, but temporarily withheld the effect to allow time for appeal.

Nixon refused to obey the order. The White House, in a statement from San Clemente, Calif., said without elaboration that the President's lawyers "are now considering the possibility of obtaining appellate review or how otherwise to sustain the President's position."

The order and a companion 23-page opinion fueled the President's clash with the courts and the Senate Watergate committee over access to the tapes of his conversations with key advisers implicated in the Watergate scandal.

The dispute has been carried further than any similar confrontation over presidential power in U.S. history.

On a key point, Sirica squarely disputed Nixon and ruled that it is not the president but the court which has ultimate authority to determine whether material sought in a criminal investigation is protected by executive privilege.

Nixon has claimed that a president's confidential records are privileged from disclosure.

The existence of the tapes became known last month when a former White House aide told the Senate committee that Nixon routinely recorded his Oval Office conversations.

Cox, acting on behalf of the Watergate grand jury, then subpoenaed tapes of eight meetings and one telephone call between Nixon and his advisers at the time, John W. Dean III, H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman.

Trapped Britons Okay

CORK, Ireland (AP) — Two Britons trapped for 24 hours in a midget submarine 1,375 feet beneath the Atlantic sent a message of reassurance to their wives today as an international rescue operation got under way.

"Our morale is fantastic," the two men said in the message. "Tell them (our wives) we're OK."

The men are trapped in the the 20-foot long submarine Pisces III. They have enough oxygen to last until Saturday morning.

The submarine's mother ship Vickers Voyager sailed from southern Ireland's Cork harbor with two other midget submarines and six divers. It was expected at the scene, 150 miles south of Cork, later today.

Gas Freeze Extended Week

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government today extended the retail price freeze on gasoline for an additional week to give gasoline retailers more time to post new gasoline price ceilings.

The ceilings had been scheduled to go into effect Saturday, but were delayed by a court challenge brought by gasoline retailers.

The effect of today's action on gasoline supplies over the holiday weekend was not known.

The extension of the price freeze until Sept. 7 is the third for gasoline prices. It originally was scheduled to expire Aug. 12.

A new system of price ceilings will replace the price freeze. The Cost of Living Council says it should force many gasoline retailers to lower prices from one to three cents per gallon.

Each retailer must post on his gasoline pump by Sept. 7 special stickers that list the gasoline ceiling price, plus the octane rating.

Retailers may obtain the stickers from any one of 33,000 local post offices around the country.

The Cost of Living Council made clear there was not enough time for the retailers to put the ceilings into effect, even though an Appeals Court Wednesday granted a stay of a lower court order that prohibited enforcement of the ceilings.

The extension of the freeze and the ceiling prices also apply for diesel fuel.

The Phase 4 regulations for the rest of the petroleum industry, including other petroleum products, have been in effect since Aug. 19. Council director John T. Dunlop said today the new ceiling prices "will assure motorists of stable gasoline prices while at the same time assuring dealers of minimum mark-ups which are actually above the average national markup applied during 1972."

For the motorist the most noticeable thing about the ceilings might be special new stickers which would be placed on the nation's approximately one million gasoline pumps.

The stickers would show the octane rating of the gasoline and the maximum price that could be charged for it. The actual sale price will still be shown on the changeable numbers on the pump face, with the sticker showing the top price allowed by law.

Enforcement of the ceilings had been blocked by a court order, but the council won permission to enforce them Wednesday from an appeals court.

Mack Wallace To Succeed Tunnell

AUSTIN (AP) — Mack Wallace of Gov. Dolph Briscoe's staff was named today to succeed Byron Tunnell on the three-member Texas Railroad Commission, effective Sept. 15.

Tunnell, 47, announced his resignation Tuesday to accept a job as vice president in the governmental affairs department of Tenneco, a Houston-based company.

Wallace, 43, is executive director of the Governor's Criminal Justice Council. He also served as Briscoe's legal counsel.

A native of Athens, Wallace is a graduate of Henderson County Junior College and Baylor University School of Law. He served as Henderson County attorney in 1957-62. He became district attorney of the 3rd Judicial District of Texas in 1962 and joined Briscoe's staff last January.

His appointment by Briscoe as railroad commissioner gives him the job until the November 1974 election when he must run to fill out the remainder of Tunnell's six-year term. Tunnell was re-elected in 1972.

Tunnell was appointed to the commission in January 1965 by Gov. John Connally, who also appointed another member of the commission, Jim Langdon, in 1963. The third member is former Lt. Gov. Ben Ramsey, appointed by Gov. Price Daniel in 1961.

Tunnell had served one two-year term as House speaker at the time of his appointment just before the opening of the 1965 legislature, and he was virtually assured of another term. His decision to accept Connally's appointment cleared the way for Rep. Ben Barnes of De Leon, then only 26, to become speaker.

Wallace will take a big pay raise, from his present $28,500 a year to $34,000 for commission members.

He said he had not sought the post, and Briscoe told him of his appointment at 5 p.m. Wednesday.

"The only charge the governor gave me was to do what was right," Wallace said.

Asked if he would run next year for the remaining four years of Tunnell's term, he said he "would cross that bridge when we come to it." The subject did not arise in his conversation with Briscoe, Wallace said.

He said he had no oil interests, had never practiced law before the commission and had no past connection with the oil industry other than preparing a few deeds.

"I buy gasoline for my automobile," Wallace said when reporters asked about any past oil industry connections.

J. F. Neill Dies Here

He was married on July 30, 1937, at Abernathy to Miss Sara Lee Morton, who survives. Also surviving are a son, James F. Neill, Jr. of Denver; a sister, Mrs. Fred Flattery of Denver, and two grandchildren.

Steel Companies Plead Their Case

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top steel company executives complained today their prices have not kept pace with rising costs in recent years, and one said the federal government is partially to blame.

"We have been under continuous pressure by the federal government which seems to look on steel prices as a political rather than an economic matter," said Stewart S. Cort, chairman of Bethlehem Steep Corp.

Averaging about 4.8 per cent, the proposed increases generally would apply to flat rolled steel products, which are used in manufacture of automobiles and home appliances.

The Cost of Living Council scheduled public hearings today and Friday to determine whether the proposed increases are justified under the Phase 4 anti-inflation program. Ten steel companies have proposed increases. They include U.S. Steel, the industry's largest.

Cort said Bethlehem's proposed price increase of about five per cent is only about half the company's increase in costs since its last price increase in early 1972.

Cort said that while demand for steel has grown and there will be additional need for new steel capacity in the near future, the net income of steel producers as a percentage of revenues has been declining.

"What this boils down to is that, unless our financial performance can be improved now, we will not be able to secure funds for future expansion," Cort said.

Another witness, Frank A. Nemec, chairman of Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co. said his company also has been unable to increase prices to keep pace with costs.

"If the decision is that the steel industry is not to be allowed price increases which are thoroughly cost justified—then the message is loud and clear, and plans for capacity expansion may be set aside—at least for the present," Nemec said.

Struggle To Supply Power

By BARTON REPPERT
Associated Press Writer

Hot and humid weather smothered the East Coast and much of the Midwest today as utilities struggled to cope with increasing demands for electricity.

For the third straight day, the New York State Power Pool ordered a 5 per cent cut in voltage. A spokesman said the state's power system was strained to capacity by huge demands, primarily to operate air conditioners.

The National Weather Service said there was no relief from the heat in sight until next Tuesday, but a power pool spokesman said industrial closings over the long holiday weekend would ease demands for electricity.

Some 200,000 New Yorkers were left without power Wednesday night after several feeder cables burned out. The blackout affected an area of Queens including La Guardia Airport, where passenger terminals were darkened but emergency power kept runways lighted.

While the New York State Power Pool for a second day resorted to a 5 per cent voltage reduction, the Tennessee Valley Authority reported it was relaying to New York power generated by private utilities in Texas and the Southeast.

Temperatures reached 95 Wednesday in New York City, 94 in Chicago and 98 in Washington. The National Weather Service warned that air pollution in the capital metropolitan area was at record high levels.

A General Motors plant in Linden, N.J., had to shut down when some of the 1,750 workers there walked off their jobs because of the sweltering heat.

City officials in Philadelphia said water pressure in some areas had dropped to half its normal summer level. Policemen, firemen and Water Department employes worked to turn off opened hydrants.

In New York, Consolidated Edison was forced by repeated failure of 27,000-volt feeder cables to cut power in Jackson Heights and parts of Corona, Woodside and Elmhurst.

The blackout snarled traffic at intersections and delayed subway service because trains had to be run with hand signals. Hospitals as well as the airport switched to emergency power supplies.

Four wire hubcaps valued at over $100 were stolen from a parked car at the Phillips 66 Truck Stop of the East Highway between 7:30 p.m., Aug. 27 and 6 a.m. Aug. 28. The theft was reported by the car's owner, Roland Cantrell of 201 Thirty-third Street.

Between $325 and $400 was reported stolen from Mrs. Louise Pettijohn's residence at the Casa Milagro Apartments No. 42 on Aug. 28. Two persons were reported entering the apartments between 2 and 2:30 a.m.

Two Mishaps Are Reported

Two traffic mishaps were reported by Snyder Police. A 1969 Mercury driven by Keith William Jordan was in collision with a 1972 Pinto owned by E.D. Loyd on the Piggly Wiggly parking lot.

Another mishap at the intersection of Twenty-fourth Street and Avenue Q involved a 1960 Chevrolet driven by James Wesley McDaniel and a 1967 Ford 600 owned by U-Haul Co. and driven by Rickey Oran Sanders of Abilene.

Night Course Scheduled In Psychology

A General Psychology course designed for busy working people of the community is being offered on Monday evenings this fall at Western Texas College in Snyder.

The course, which is a 3-hour college credit offering, is tailored by instructor Joe Reaves to allow maximum exposure to the major concepts of psychology with a minimum of outside study time involved.

No research paper is required, and an abundance of audio-visual materials such as films, slides, filmstrips, and tapes will be utilized. Printed study guides will be provided to help students prepare for tests, and retests will be given for students who wish to raise the score on any test taken previously.

The class will meet as a group from 6:30-7:45 each Monday evening, with the hours from 7:45-9:30 set aside for individual instruction and audio-visual presentations. Students can arrange for the latter to be done at times other than the 7:45-9:30 p.m. if they desire.

Registration is set for Tuesday, Sept. 4, from 6:30-9 p.m. at the WTC campus in Snyder.

Demands For Water Soar

The return of a conventional August pattern—hot and dry weather—may push water deliveries by the Colorado River Municipal Water District past the two billion-gallon mark for the second time this summer.

Monday's demand of nearly 75 million ballons was a tip-off as to the outlook. This was, said O.H. Ivie, general manager, more or less in keeping with the trend for the last three weeks of the month.

The peak this year was reached with 2,041,000,000 gallons delivered in June; for last year it was 2,074,000,000 gallons in July. Monday's total was well under the daily peak of 78 million in June.

The cities drawing on CRMWD took 59,620,000 gallons Monday. This included Odessa 21,280,000, Midland 14,160,000, Stanton 492,000, Big Spring 12,134,000, Snyder 3,607,000, San Angelo 7,847,000. Oil companies took 15,301,000 gallons, including part of it in unpotable and salt water.

PHNOM PENH (AP) - Government infantrymen reopened one of Phnom Penh's two supply highways today and a convoy of more than 100 trucks sped into the capital.

In South Vietnam, the Viet Cong increased attacks southwest of Saigon in a drive to isolate the Mekong Delta and its rice from the South Vietnamese capital, military sources said.

The Cambodian troops blasted through the last rebel bunkers along a two-mile stretch of Highway 5 that leads to Battambang Province to the northwest. The province is a major rice producer.

The highway has been cut since Saturday at a point 35 miles to the northwest, causing food shortages and leaps in food prices.

The Cambodian command said operations were continuing to reopen the capital's other major supply route to the coast, Highway 4, blocked at Moha Saing, about 30 miles southwest of Phnom Penh.

Hard fighting also was reported farther south on Highway 4 at the Prek Thnot Dam, 29 miles beyond Moha Saing. A communique said government forces repulsed several Khmer Rouge attacks, "the enemy suffered some losses, and our side suffered seven killed and 10 wounded."

The military sources in Saigon said the Communist command's goal is to cut South Vietnam's Highway 4, the main highway through the Mekong Delta to Saigon.

The drive now is centering on the districts of Cai Be and Cai Lay, areas of traditional Viet Cong control in Dinh Tuong province in the northern delta.

Sweaters Top Fall Styles

Actress Says Celebrities Should Help Others More

By EVE SHARBUTT
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Ruta Lee admits frankly that she is a "doer, not an observer."

The slender blonde actress has been active in cancer crusades, antismoking tours, heart fund drives and as president of a Hollywood group called Thalians, which provides help for mentally retarded children. She says she believes one must pay dues as one goes along in life.

Between television and film appearances, summer theater shows and crusades, Miss Lee is on the Los Angeles Environmental Quality Board and is the only female on that city's Economic Development Board.

"I felt I could represent show business," she said, "showing what can be done by people who are celebrities."

Serving her third term as president of Thalians, Miss Lee has also been named a 25th anniversary ambassador for a jewelry firm.

"One of the things about television is that you must develop a fashion sense. You become your own costume designer, dragging a wardrobe to the studio so a director may choose what looks best. It takes a bloody van to transport it. If there's anything I feel like lobbying for in Washington on behalf of the profession, it's that wardrobes for professional actors are not tax deductible," she said.

Miss Lee adds that game-shows are often filmed five at a time, and that, naturally, requires five costume changes.

"I'm one who believes people want to see real celebrities, not someone wearing jeans and a T-shirt and perhaps a scarf. I think people want to see someone who walks into a room or onto a set and evokes a reaction of, 'Ooooh!'," she added. "People expect femininity and glamor."

Miss Lee lives with her family in a house that once belonged to Orson Welles and Rita Hayworth. She says that, luckily for her, it has lots of closet space.

"I keep clothes a very long time, and have some that are 10 years old. It's a good feeling to pull something out that is still good, with good fabric and good line, alter it and add some jewelry and wear it. Of course the best part is when it still fits," she said.

Miss Lee is especially active in musical comedy theater but one of her favorite eras is the '60s. She says they were a golden era of television, and remembers with delight working at Warner Bros. studios.

"It was a real entertainment lot," she said. "You'd be called for makeup at 5:30 a.m., and you could have breakfast. So between bites of toast you could wander over to see who was being made up in the other makeup rooms. It was like a big sorority. I call my house in Palm Springs 'the house that Jack built,' for Jack Warner."

With her pertectly coiffed blonde hair, bubbly Miss Lee is an actress who, she says, has a familiar face and a not always familiar name. During an interview in a restaurant, two young people stopped at her table and said, "You look so familiar, but who are you?" and she gave them an autographed card.

"I learned that from John Wayne," Miss Lee added.

Another fan leaned over and tapped Miss Lee on the shoulder. "Not only are you beautiful," said the fan, "but you're really interesting."

Miss Lee says she hopes nice, pretty people will be part of what she feels is a coming renaissance in entertainment.

In coming months, she will arrange her schedule around panel shows and a television film to travel for Sarah Coventry.

"The company is basically female-oriented, and that's important today.

"Women who need to work part-time and be part of a fashion field may do so for this firm. If a woman wants or needs to work more, she can. The company encourages women to rise to management levels. Women get the money."

A native of Montreal, Miss Lee was in the headlines several years ago when she traveled to Lithuania to bring her 90-year-old grandmother to the United States.

"God has been good to me," she said. "What better way to repay that than to do for your fellow men?"

Cop Story Doesn't Hang Together

THE FALLING MAN. By Warren Forma. Crowell. 101 pages. $4.95.

This is a rather pretentious little novel composed of bits and pieces that occasionally hang together but more often do not

Frank Cleary, a New York policeman, has been shot by a gunman in Harlem. As he falls into death, thoughts of his past life drift through his mind. This is not a bad way of telling a story, but author Warren Forma needlessly clutters it up by giving Cleary thoughts that are not his but rather those of his Irish ancestors.

While Cleary's own thoughts deal with the violence of today, the other thoughts deal with the time of The Troubles in Ireland, and Forma's efforts to stitch the two groups into a whole by having some of the same characters and incidents appear in both are not terribly successful.

Obviously, Forma is trying to make a statement about needless violence dogging man for all of his days. It doesn't come off. Nor does the Irish lilt he imposes on the speech of his American-born Irishmen. It doesn't ring true, at all, at all.

Rizzo Agrees To Moving Bell

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Mayor Frank Rizzo has agreed to approve moving the Liberty Bell from its cradle in Independence Hall here.

Rizzo, saying the bell and the hall are "synonymous," says the bell may be moved to a planned structure across the street from the hall—but not one inch further.

Rizzo said he will "absolutely not" permit the bell to be moved almost three blocks away to a spot suggested by the state.

The Weeders Guide

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

A bottle of seeds buried on the Michigan State University campus 90 years ago was dug up on April 20, 1970. The seeds were planted and soon there were some new 90-year old weeds.

The seeds were an experiment started in 1879 by Dr. W. J. Beal, then a young professor of botany, as a seed vitality study. He said he wanted "to learn something more in regard to the length of time the seeds of some of our most common plants would remain dormant in the soil and yet germinate when exposed to favorable conditions."

Dr. Beal chose 50 seeds of 20 different kinds of plants. They were put into 20 lots prepared and mixed with sandy soil and put into pint bottles. The bottles were buried 18 inches deep with the mouths slanting downard so water would not seep in.

Dr. Aleksander Kivilaan, continuing the experiment, related: "The original plan was to dig up a bottle every five years and germinate the seed. However, in 1920, the interval was changed to 10 years to prolong the study." The project is believed to be the oldest continuing experiment at the nation's oldest college of agriculture.

The seeds, where dug up, yielded only one species of plant, moth mullein (Vervascum blattaria).

"In 1960 three species germinated," Kivilaan said, adding that it was not unexpected that moth mullein was the only one to survive the test of 90 years. "There weren't many plants of the other two species in 1960, indicating they might nearing the end of their longevity."

In addition to life-length, the plants coming from the 90-year-old seeds were studied to determine if exposure to 90 years of natural soil radiation had any effect on their genetic structure and ability to reproduce.

Only seven of the original 20 seed bottles remain hidden beneath the campus. The next test will come in 1980, the 100th anniversary of Dr. Beal's experiment.

SUGAR PEAS

Treat sugar peas as you do any others. Plant them in early spring, one to two inches deep and pick them when the pods begin to bulge. Remove strings before freezing. You may eat the pods and the peas.

There is no scientific basis for claims that garlic is a good insect repellent. But, one plant expert told us, there may be the same degree of control you would get by not doing anything and, "it is difficult to argue with success."

A prayer plant needs moist soil but don't allow water to stand on the crowns, as the stems rot easily. Best conditions include diffused sunlight, warm temperature and high humidity.

If anthracnose has hit your sycamore trees, especially for a few years in a row, consult a professional tree man. The disease turns leaves brown rapidly as they emerge from bud, and many trees show signs of losing vigor and start to die back from the crown. The disease is especially harmful to newly established trees or large mature trees. Fertilize specimen trees as soon as possible and, in the event of drought, water root systems deeply.

Honesty Pays Off In Roast

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — When Mrs. LaVille Bair noticed cars swerving to miss a large box on 24th Street, she decided to go pick it up.

The box was filled with two dozen top sirloin steaks—a stronger than normal test of honesty in these days of meat shortages.

Justice was meted out, however, when she called a local meat firm whose name was on the box.

Her reward for return of the missing steaks was a roast and package of patty meat.

"I keep telling myself that we really don't like steaks anyway," Mrs. Bair said Wednesday.

Milk Subsidy Program Canceled

WASHINGTON (AP) — Milk subsidy programs for some 40 million school children are being canceled.

The Agriculture Department said lack of funds is forcing it to eliminate the milk subsidies for schools that also have a federally subsidized lunch program.

Schools without the subsidized lunch program will continue to get the milk subsidy, officials said, a provision affecting about six million children.

Under the milk subsidy the government has provided an average of three cents toward the price of a half-pint of milk. The price of a half-pint of milk is now expected to rise to 10 cents when schools open for the fall term.

Management Of Nation Provokes Businessmen

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The task of managing a corporation whose primary goal is to make a good product and sell it at a reasonable profit is infinitely less complicated than running an entire nation of multiple interests and values

And when that country is the United States, where the great variety of goals often conflict with each other, rather than Japan, where ambitions of government and business are sometimes mutual, the contrast is glaring.

It is this sense of disorder that today makes American businessmen furious and frustrated and provokes them into charges of mismanagement in Washington.

"Running the country is no different than running a business," they say. "It's all a matter of management, and management is little more than obtaining optimum results, whether in business or government."

Maybe so. But you decide whether the difference is simply one of degree or whether managing a country of diverse interests is an entirely different matter than running a company of unified goals.

The proposition is that there is an energy shortage and that the logical solution is to reduce consumption or expand production. But, the critics argue, we are making precisely the opposite moves.

A price ceiling on natural gas has discouraged exploration and increased usage. Coal with sulfur content has been banned, sharply restricting supply. New safety rules have cut output. Strip mining has been restricted.

Atomic power has been delayed by uncertainty about licensing requirements. Security restrictions have ruled out some sites. Environmental suits have added to the delay.

With natural gas, coal and atomic power all restricted, there remains petroleum as a source of energy. But, the critics say, the scenario being acted out assures a shortage here also.

First, automotive consumption of gasoline is grossly increased by drastic reductions in engine efficiency because of antipollution requirements. The public is encouraged to buy more and bigger cars than ever before.

Oil containing sulfur is banned, thus reducing refining capacity. New antipollution objectives makes refineries more expensive. Uncertainty about future requirements discourages investment.

New refinery sites are eliminated because of environmental problems. Supplies of crude oil are made uncertain. The Alaska Slope development is delayed. Development of offshore oil production is retarded by the threat of leaks.

This scenario, says Bruce Henderson, head of the Boston Consulting Group, has actually occurred in the United States.

"Each and every action described has been the result of public policy," he comments. "Each act had laudable objectives." But, he continues, "in the aggregate, these actions will prove to be very punishing to the general public for years to come."

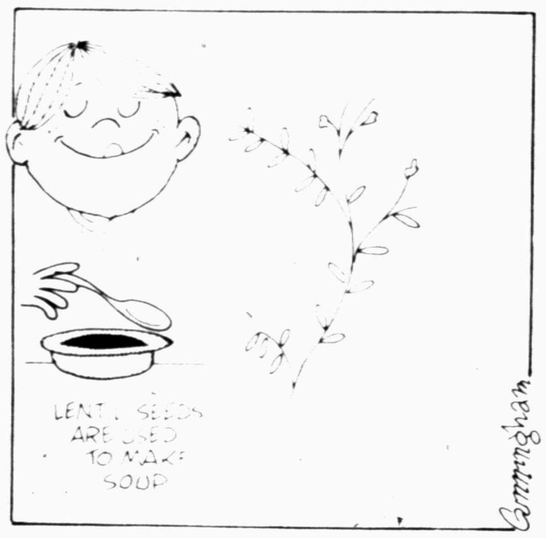

A similar performance by private business, he states, "would justify charges of gross mismanagement."

Junior Editors' Quiz on LENTILS

QUESTION: What is lentil and where does it come from?

ANSWER: Lentil is an Old World plant of the legume family. It is an ancient food plant, known to man some 2,000 years before Christ. It is grown in southern Europe, Egypt and western Asia, but until recent times was little known in the United States.

The lentil plant has pale blue flowers and broad pods, similar to those of the pea and bean. The pod contains seeds, brown, gray or black, depending on the soil and location. These seeds, about 1/2 inch in diameter, are edible and highly nutritious. Lentils belong to the body-building and protective food group. They contain proteins to supply muscle and tissue, phosphorous for the nervous system and vitamin B for appetite and growth. Lentils are cultivated extensively in Europe for cattle food and for human food. They are usually dried and are much like split peas in appearance. Before cooking they are treated like dried peas or beans, and are soaked overnight. In the United States, lentils are favored in a thick, nourishing soup, flavored with salt pork or ham.

One Good Idea Worth Millions

By HAL BOYLE

SUN CITY CENTER, Fla. (AP) — All it takes to make a million dollars is one good idea.

Smith Johnson, now 79, had that idea 53 years ago. He invented the modern steel paint pail.

In 1920, he and his father operated a small, struggling factory that made pails out of wooden staves. They couldn't be stacked on top of each other, and this made shipping costs prohibitive.

"I knew a better way had to be found," recalled Johnson. "And one snowy night I set out to do it."

By morning he had sketched out the answer — the steel paint pail that has become standard in the industry in the years since then.

"I knew I had a winner right at the start," Johnson said. He was right. Within two years, he was manufacturing 5,000 pails a day; and within five years, they had earned him over $300,000.

Johnson figures his invention has netted him well over a million dollars, a figure that might have been multiplied several times if he had been able to collect royalties on all the 80 million pails, based on his invention, that have been marketed throughout the world.

This lost revenue doesn't disturb him.

"The world would die if I had to do the bookkeeping for it," he said cheerfully.

A restless man with many interests, Johnson entered the rubber products field after his paint pail won success and patented 16 more inventions.

He still is active as vice president of a rubber company in Pauling, N.Y., and takes pride in being able to call each of its 245 employes by his first name.

"And they all call me Smith in return," he said. He is proud of the reputation he holds for maintaining good employe relations.

Johnson has no formula for how one can go about getting a million-dollar idea and is wryly critical of his own performance lately.

"I haven't patented anything new for 25 years," he complained mildly. "I guess I'm stuck on some kind of plateau. But I still like to keep puttering around. Work keeps your blood circulating."

WEST COAST BIG BOYS

Trojans, Bruins Awesome

By RON ROACH
Associated Press Sports Writer

The University of Southern California's sophomore sensations are juniors and UCLA's Wishbone-T attack is a year older as these crosstown rivals appear the powers of college football in the Far West.

Coach John McKay, who has had national championship teams at Southern Cal in five-year intervals—1963, 1967 and last season—says his 1973 Trojans can improve over the 12-0 squad because the youngsters on that team should be better than ever.

They include juniors Richard Wood, All-American linebacker who helped the Trojan defense limit opponents to 134 points, and Anthony Davis, versatile tailback who rushed for 1,191 yards and scored 114 of the team's 467 points.

The Trojans also have juniors Pat Haden at quarterback and Johnny McKay, the coach's son, at split end, plus senior Lynn Swann, flanker of whom McKay said last year: "Swann is to us as Johnny Rodgers is to Nebraska."

The Trojans are favored to capture the Pacific-8 title and Rose Bowl bid again, but the "gutty little Bruins" of UCLA are definitely no longer little. They compare well with USC's pro-size linemen, and the Wishbone-T offense Coach Pepper Rodgers installed at the end of the 1971 season has matured to seem almost unstoppable.

Mark Harmon, son of ex-Michigan great Tom Harmon, directs the triple-option attack as a senior after leading the Bruins to an 8-3 campaign last season.

UCLA, with Kermit Johnson leading the Pac-8 in rushing, was second only to Oklahoma in rushing last year and could be much tougher to defense since James McAlister, big and quick, has been moved from halfback to fullback.

The Trojans and Bruins pit a balanced offense against a running attack in the battle for Pac-8 supremacy, and a similar battle shapes up in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association between University of the Pacific and San Diego State.

The Tigers of UOP, 8-3 last year, rarely pass the football, challenging foes on the ground with the Houston Veer option offense. Mitchell True, who gained 1,164 yards for UOP last year, is gone but the Tigers have running talent in Willard Harrell and Mike Mangrum.

Coach Chester Caddas has the enviable job of choosing between Bruce Keplinger and Carlos Brown to quarterback the Tiger offense.

At San Diego State new head Coach Claude Gilbert, succeeding Don Coryell, has quarterback Jesse Freitas back from last year's 10-1 team that lost only to Houston.

Dates to remember: Oct. 20, San Diego State at UOP, and Nov. 24, UCLA vs. USC.

Those games may decide the Pac-8 and PCAA titles, but there are other teams on the West Coast that aren't conceding the championships before an initial kickoff.

The race for third place in the Pac-8 is wide open, and in the PCAA San Jose State appears the foremost challenger to San Diego State and UOP.

The rest of the Pac-8, in no particular order:

—Washington, 8-3 last year, will be no easy mark, especially in Seattle where the Huskies host Southern Cal on Nov. 17. Coach Jim Owens, who had a swarm of lettermen returning a year ago, has only seven starters back. Junior Dennis Fitzpatrick and sophomore James Anderson try to succeed Sonny Sixkiller at quarterback.

—Washington State will miss the talents of quarterback Ty Paine but the Cougars still have Ken Grandberry, who finished behind Johnson and Davis in the Pac-8 rushing race. At 7-4, WSU under Jim Sweeney had its first winning record since 1965.

—Oregon joins Washington and WSU as teams looking for a new quarterback, the Ducks having to replace Dan Fouts. Coach Dick Enright has Fout's 1972 understudy, Norval Turner, and a large, experienced offensive line. They could make Oregon better than last year's 5-6 record.

—Oregon State, only 2-9 last season, changes from a Power-T offense to a more wide-open passing game with the Pro-I formation. Coach Dee Andros has sophomore Steve Gervais, who played last year, and Alvin White, a junior college transfer, battling for the quarterback job.

—California, 3-8 in 1972, has as good a passer as anyone in sophomore Vince Ferragamo, and another good quarterback in Steve Bartkowski. Ferragamo threw six touchdown passes in five varsity game appearances as a freshman, and he has top-flight targets in Fred Leathers and Steve Rivera. The Bears, in their third year of a four-year sentence of probation for recruiting and other violations, are eligible for the Pac-8 title but ineligible for post-season play.

—Stanford, 6-5 last year after two consecutive Rose Bowl victories, boast the Pac-8 champion passer, Mike Boryla. Coach Jack Christiansen's Cardinals also have the running and receiving talents of John Winesberry.

Billie Jean Defending Her Title

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Defending champion Billie Jean King launches the women's segment of the U.S. Open tennis championships against Peggy Michael of Los Angeles today.

More of the oppressive heat and humidity that hung over the West Side Tennis Club Wednesday was expected, but the women will have somewhat of a break. Their matches are best-of-three-set affairs while the men's are best-of-five.

Pancho Gonzales, the 45-year-old sentimental favorite who lost in four sets and then said he was not planning to play in the main event next year, called the center court a furnace and said after one set he felt like he was carrying 10-pound weights on his feet.

Ilie Nastase of Romania, co-favored with Stan Smith, said he doubted he could have gone five sets. Arthur Ashe said the heat bothered him, but because of the "anthropological significance" of his black heritage he might be able to endure better than others, especially Europeans who "don't know which side is up" when it swelters because sauna-like weather seldom touches their continent.

Gonzales, a specimen of physical fitness at 180 pounds, won the first set against Tom Okker 7-6 when he aced him for a 5-4 tiebreaker, but the younger Dutchman, seeded seventh, prevailed 6-7, 6-3, 6-1, 6-4.

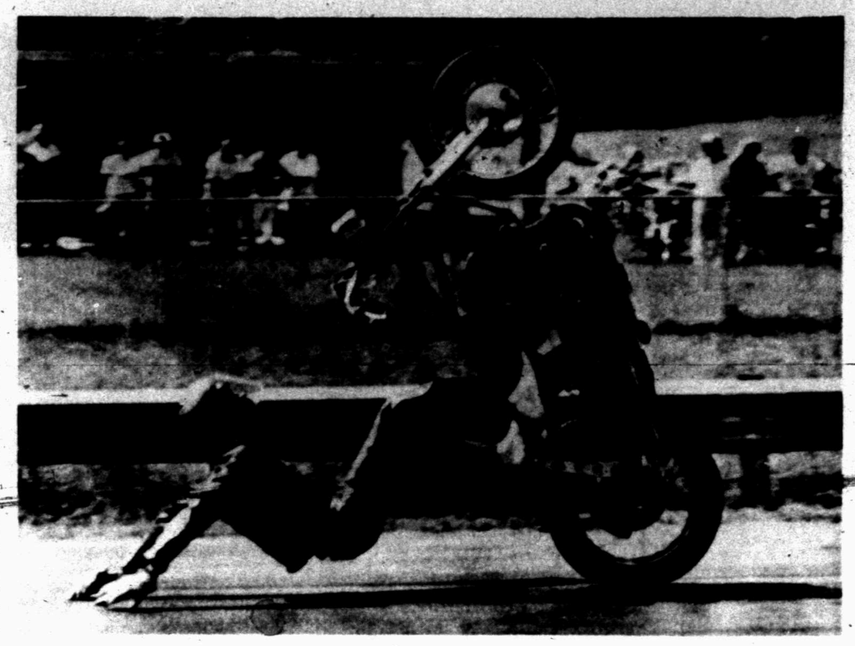

All other seeded players who saw action also advanced.

Nastase had an easy time with Humphrey Hose of Venezuela, a last-minute qualifier like Miss Michael. The Romanian, the epitome of decorum despite the heat, won 6-4, 6-4, 6-3. Smith, of Sea Pines, S.C., had it even easier. In the first set, Patrick Proisy of France pulled a groin muscle and finally called it quits with Smith leading 6-4, 5-0.

Ashe, the No. 3 seed from Miami, was extended to four sets by Australia's Colin Dibley 7-6, 6-7, 7-5, 6-2.

Australians Rod Laver and Ken Rosewall, seeded fourth and fifth respectively, had easy times with their opponents.

Oilers Make Some Deals

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers let go four players Tuesday but picked up another, then managed to whisk two of the players they waived onto the taxi squad.

Cut were Richard Cheek, a third-year offensive guard, backup center Guy Murdock, and rookies Kelly Cochrane and Shelby Jordan.

Cochrane, a quarterback, and Shelby, an offensive lineman, cleared waivers and were put on the Oilers' taxi squad. It is a familiar spot for Cochrane who spent last year in the same place.

Also the club announced they picked up off waivers Wally Dempsey, a 6-1, 235-pound linebacker from the New York Jets who played eight years for Saskatchewan in the Canadian Football League.

Dempsey, 29, went to the Jets after playing out his option last year and signed as a free agent.

Cheek, acquired off injured waivers from Buffalo, has been used sparingly in exhibition play. Murdock became a starter for the Oilers last year with four games left in the season after an injury to Calvin Hunt and was named to the NFL All-Rookie team.

Grid Seminar For Women

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — More than 250 women attended the first session of a ladies-only seminar in football held by University of Georgia head football Coach Vince Dooley.

Dooley says the graduates of the three-session clinic will know more about football than any man outside of the coaching profession. The women are eager to learn, he added.

The coach is using some of his players as training aides and has members of his staff helping with instruction. Attendance at a minimum of two Bulldog practice sessions is required.

Certificates designating a graduate of the seminar as a "Dame Good Coach" will be awarded at the end of the seminar.

Johnny Sample's Conviction Upheld

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Former pro football star Johnny Sample, who played 11 years in the National Football League, remains convicted of cashing forged U.S. Treasury checks.

The 3rd Circuit Court of Appeals upheld a decision against Sample by U.S. District Court last year, when he was found guilty on five counts of cashing the checks and possession of stolen mail.

He was sentenced to three years on probation and a $10,000 fine.

Tempers Flare At Slow Play In U. S. Amateur

By GEORGE STRODE
Associated Press Sports Writer

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Amid criticism of slow play, 64 survivors faced the third round and a fourth straight day of stifling heat today in the U.S. Amateur Golf Championships.

Even defending champion Marvin "Vinny" Giles III joined in the tongue lashing of the U.S. Golf Association, the governing body of the 73rd National Amateur at the Inverness Club.

"I have trouble getting excited for match play," said Giles, his freckled face a beet red after surviving Mickey van Gerbig of North Palm Beach, Fla., 3 and 1.

"I get more worked up over a $5 nassau bet," Giles added. "I would much prefer the National Amateur stay at medal play."

This is the first year of matches for the world's premier play-for-fun event after eight summers as a medal tournament.

Giles also agreed with British standouts who criticized the USGA for permitting a slow play, especially in the 93-degree heat.

And tempers weren't expected to be much shorter today with another mid-90 degree day in store.

"It took us five hours to play. That's ridiculous. It's hard to keep your momentum," said Giles. "I played like an idiot after the first six holes."

Hugh Stuart of Scotland, a British Walker Cupper who trimmed John Bodin of South Bend, Ind., 1-up, said, "If I lived in America, I wouldn't play the game."

Stuart said it took him 50 minutes to play the first three holes. British Walker Cup teammate William T.G. Milne and Peter Jacobsen of Portland, Ore., who won 5 and 4, required almost three hours for their front nine.

"You can't play golf like this," said Milne.

P.J. Boatwright, executive director of the USGA, agreed with the complaints but offered no solution.

Gene Mauch Theorizes Bailey Got His Pitches

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Manager Gene Mauch has this theory about Montreal slugger Bob Bailey and the Los Angeles Dodgers won't argue with him about it.

"Bailey could be zero for four months, but if you give him pitches he can hit, he will hit them," said Mauch. "He got pitches tonight that he could hit in the dead of winter at midnight with the lights out."

Bailey, operating in mid-summer with plenty of light, drove in five runs with a double and homer Wednesday night, lifting the Expos to a comeback 6-5 victory over the Dodgers.

Elsewhere in the National League, San Francisco defeated Philadelphia 3-1, New York shut out San Diego 3-0, Atlanta trimmed Chicago 7-4, Cincinnati beat Pittsburgh 5-3 and Houston edged St. Louis 3-2.

Astros 3, Cardinals 2

Jimmy Stewart's pinch single in the bottom of the ninth inning lifted Houston to its 3-2 victory over St. Louis.

Jimmy Wynn opened the ninth with a walk, moved up on a sacrifice and after an intentional walk, Stewart, swinging for winning pitcher Dave Roberts, singled Wynn home.

The Cards had tied it at 2-2 in the ninth on a two-out infield single by Joe Torre, who drove in both St. Louis runs.

Mets 3, Padres 0

New York moved out of the National League East cellar for the first time since June 27, shutting out San Diego 3-0.

Jerry Koosman and Buzz Capra combined for the eight-hitter and Koosman contributed a bunt single to New York's three-run rally in the fifth inning. Two of the runs scored on two-out hits by Willie Mays and Cleon Jones.

Giants 3, Phillies 1

San Francisco used the long ball with Dave Kingman socking two home runs and Bobby Bonds adding another for a 3-1 victory over Philadelphia that dumped the Phillies into sixth place in the NL East, one-half game behind New York.

Braves 7, Cubs 4

Dave Johnson, the major leagues' home run leader, ripped his 37th of the season, breaking a tie and triggering Atlanta's 7-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Johnson's shot broke a 4-4 tie in the fifth inning. Billy Williams hit his 17th homer for the Cubs.

Reds 5, Pirates 3

Jack Billingham tossed a three-hitter, pitching Cincinnati to a 5-3 decision over Pittsburgh. Billingham struck out nine of the first 12 batters he faced and did not allow a hit until the sixth inning.

Rookie Dan Driessen's fourth homer touched off a four-run Reds' rally in the fourth. Richie Hebner had a two-run homer, his 19th, for the Pirates.

American League scores: Kansas City 3, Cleveland 2; Milwaukee 9, Chicago 0; Baltimore 6, Texas 1; Detroit 9, Minnesota 5; Boston 6, Oakland 4; California 5, New York 0.

WHEELING AND DEALING

NFL Rosters Reduced

By ANDY LIPPMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

The wheeling and dealing was fast and furious in the National Football League Wednesday as clubs scrambled to pare down their rosters and to strengthen weak spots before the start of the season.

Leading the trading scramble once again was Joe Thomas, general manager of the Baltimore Colts and one of this season's biggest wheeler-dealers. Thomas made his 20th trade since Jan 22, acquiring Ed Mooney from Detroit for an undisclosed draft choice.

Mooney, who missed most of last season because of a shoulder injury, was obtained to strengthen the Colt linebacker corps, weakened when Ray May suffered stretched knee ligaments earlier this preseason.

John North wasted little time in getting in the trading market. In his second day as New Orleans head coach, North traded away a veteran tackle, Dave Long, and a couple of undisclosed draft choices for Jeff White, a place kicker from Miami, and running back Henry Matthews from the Patriots.

The Los Angeles Rams lost a long-time stopper when middle linebacker Marlin McKeever announced his retirement after 12 years.

The Rams also announced that rookie running back Steve Jones, fifth-round draft choice from Duke, was traded to St. Louis for a future draft choice.

Meanwhile, the Patriots acquired quarterback Charlie Richards from Washington and running back Jerry List from Oakland, both for future draft choices, while the Minnesota Vikings got linebacker Keith Best from Kansas City for a draft choice.

The Pittsburgh Steelers took steps to strengthen an injury riddled offensive line by acquiring Glen Ray Hines from Oakland. The 30-year-old Hines spent five years with the Houston Oilers and two years with New Orleans before being acquired last winter by Oakland.

Mike Siani took the advice of his attorney and returned to the Oakland training camp, after walking out after last Saturday's exhibition with Minnesota. The second-year wide receiver had been seeking a renegotiatied contract and a $5,000 raise.

John Riggins, another NFL walkout, was placed on the reserve list by the New York Jets, while Dallas placed veterans Walt Garrison and Mike Keller on the inactive injured list.

Miami Coach Don Shula said injuries would keep some of his strongest players out of Friday's exhibition against the Vikings.

Wide receiver Paul Warfield and defensive end Bill Stanfill were listed as doubtful. Warfield is suffering from a strained thigh and Stanfill entered a hospital with a stomach ailment.

Wide receiver Howard Twilley was still out of practice with a sore toe, but was expected to see some action. The Dolphin coach said Bob Griese would start at quarterback with Larry Csonka and either Jim Kiick or Mercury Morris as running backs.

Unwanted Safety

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Junior quarterback Tom Wilson, of Utah State, says his most embarrassing moment in football resulted in a safety — two points for the opposition. "I dropped back into the goal post and knocked myself out," he remembers.

ROCK HUDSON wouldn't win any popularity contests around Hollywood these days. When he went on a recent charity junket, instead of being friendly to fans he spent most of his time playing cards with a pal who travels everywhere with him. Is that all the strong, silent types do—play cards?

PETER USTINOV recently said, "If you keep quiet long enough, people will think you're a philosopher." Gee, let me make one thing perfectly clear. Everybody thought Nixon was keeping quiet because he was trying to cover up something but he was just trying to be a philosopher. Now if you believe that, I'll tell you another.

Both POLLY BERGEN and her agent hubby FREDDIE FIELDS seem to be making the most of their freedom! Who wouldn't after being tied down to a marriage contract for 17 years? While POLLY is still raising heck with agent JERRY HELLER, FREDDIE continues to slither around actress SALLY KELLERMAN. However, if old Hot Lips is looking to get hitched, she's latched onto the wrong man! FREDDIE has emphatically declared he will never re-marry, even if he got a divorce!

FLIP WILSON is being charged with assault and battery by SYLVIA DAVIS, who claimed in the suit she was a personal and business associate of FLIP's for 16 years. MISS DAVIS asked $3 million damages because FLIP allegedly beat her and threatened to kill her. I wonder if the devil made him do it.

The wags are saying that DAVID CASSIDY could use a few humility lessons and let others do the talking about the singing talents and handsome face. As the old saying goes—there's no smaller package than a man wrapped up in himself.

SONNY and CHER BONO vacationed in Hawaii after their strenuous seventeen-day-tour—though at $500,000 a week, who can complain? Those who'd like to see S&C on the big screen may soon get their wish, if the BONOS decide to do that musical version of the "Dick Tracy" comix, as they say they will. SONNY would be Tracy—with the help and a fake nose and maybe his platform shoes, while CHER would be his loyal TESS TRUEHEART. So stay tuned, crimefighters!...

LIBERACE has new fancy threads for his nightclub act, including a full-length white ermine coat which was originally designed for a queen—England's QUEEN ELIZABETH...

REX HARRISON was asked if he thought "Last Tango in Paris" would start another rash of nude films. "Just because BRANDO stripped off doesn't mean the rest of us will," said REX. "Besides, what is there left now to do on screen? I think we'll see a trend toward cleaner films"....

Italian Ambassador ORTONA likes to show his guests a photograph of a young SOPHIA LOREN with the Senator RICHARD NIXON. Another young congressman, Senator JOHN KENNEDY, was at the same party where the NIXON-LOREN picture was taken but was reluctant to pose with SOPHIA. Now I bet these days SOPHIA wishes she didn't pose with NIXON.

When ZSA ZSA GABOR was asked why she refused to attend a nudist party she replied, "Dollink, vy should I go to a party vere every woman vears the same thing?"

RODNEY DANGERFIELD was worried about his wife when she stayed out late: "I thought maybe she stopped in a bar and was talking to a guy. First I said to myself, she wouldn't do that. Then I thought—that's how I met her."

TUESDAY WELD and AL PACINO have moved their romance into the housekeeping stage but say they're unsure as to whether marriage will follow.

What kind of a year has this been so far? Well, if RALPH NADER had been paying attention, he'd have had it recalled.

Possums Short In Gilmer

GILMER, Tex. (AP) — The Northeast Texas town of Gilmer which considers itself probably the possum capital of the world is terribly embarrassed these days.

It's having an awful time finding any possums.

The crisis was revealed as Gilmer citizens prepared to present to the world some East Texas cuisine during the Texas Folklife Festival at San Antonio Sept. 6-9.

As of midweek, reports Ray Greene, co-publisher of the Gilmer Mirror, possum fans have been able to collect only two possums. They were captured when they sneaked into a feed lot to steal some cattle food.

This hardly is enough to serve possum stew to the 100,000 to 300,000 persons expected for the festival.

Instead, says Green, the public will be allowed only to savor the odors of samples of baked possum and possum stew. No eating allowed.

Anyway, San Antonio has some sort of law regulating the sale of wild meat.

"Since the shortage of beef is acute, possums are running faster," said Jack "Spot" Baird, chairman of the Upshur County chapter of the Occasional Observers of Possums Society (OOPS).

Other persons believe Baird may be just alibing because he hasn't caught more. The possum drought was noted as far back as last year when there was no lack of more conventional table fare.

Greene says possum hunting seems a lost art. You must hunt them at night, right during prime television time. Also, people aren't training possum dogs anymore. They are taught to hunt birds and squirrels.

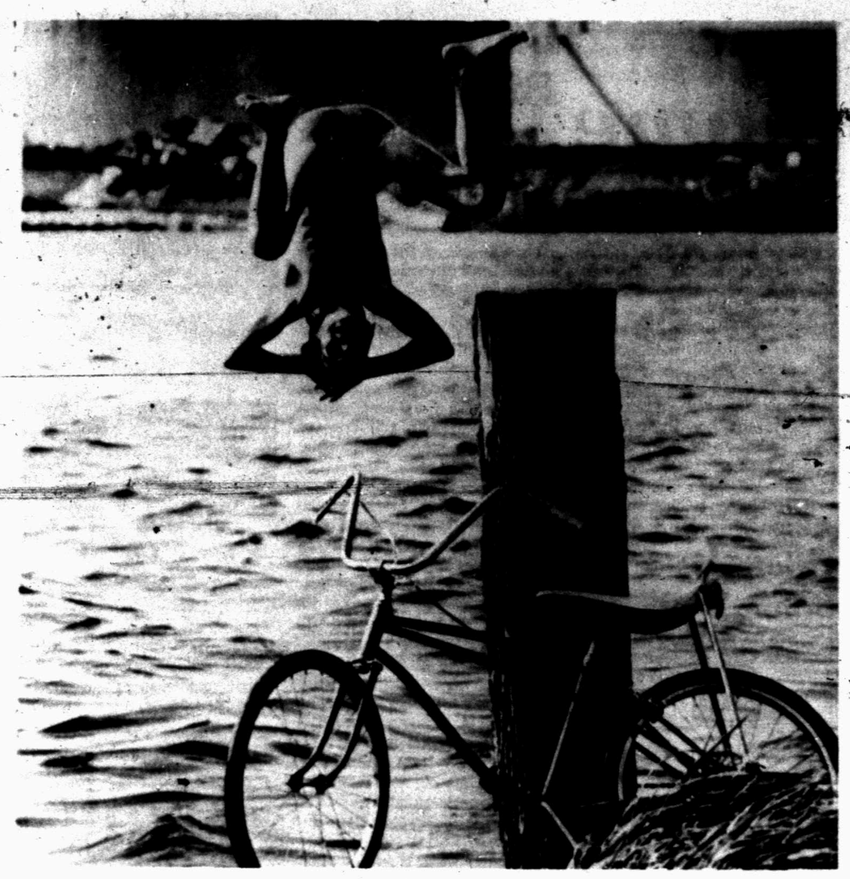

The ladies of Gilmer will provide mountains of East Texas food, however, reports Mrs. Sarah Greene, editor of the Mirror.

This will be in the form of genuine East Texas yam pies.

The yams were donated by Loyd Justiss of near Daingerfield. He is a major, prize-winning yam grower.

Gilmer ladies prepared 200 pies last year and sold out while long lines of purchasers remained, clamoring for the delicacy.

Deadline To Strain Railroads

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Officials of railroads hauling grain to ports of export admitted Wednesday they will be strained to utmost capacity—if all goes well—to move all of the grain sold abroad between now and midsummer of 1974.

Their comments were made at a special meeting at the Kansas City Board of Trade for more than two dozen railroad executives, grain exporters and other grain company officials, plus state and federal officials.

Joseph B. Gregg, Kansas City grain executive and chairman of the Transportation Committee for the Board of Trade, explained that 3½ billion bushels of grain are earmarked for export on the basis of sales through Aug. 3. The present pace of transportation to ports on the Gulf and elsewhere is approximately 75 million bushels a week.

"You're inclined to go into a state of shock when you sit down and look closely at those figures and realize you only have 10 months left to do it," Gregg added.

He said those figures covered grain exports only and did not include any shipments for domestic purposes.

Dave Valentine of Chicago, representing the Santa Fe Railway Co., said improper use of equipment on the Gulf and elsewhere causes a paralysis in the grain movements.

He said his words were directed not only to the railroads, but elevators and exporters as well.

One rail executive noted a Houston elevator had a backlog of 1,700 grain cars and was unloading an average of only 113 cars a day.

An elevator operator replied that at times such situations were beyond the control of the elevators. He said U.S. government inspectors had refused to permit one foreign vessel to take aboard a load of export grain until the vessel was returned to the Houston Ship Channel for a complete housecleaning—forcing a delay of several days while scores of loaded cars sat idle.

Coal is the most abundant fossil fuel. American reserves are currently estimated at 1.5 trillion tons, 3,000 times the 500 million tons burned in the United States last year.

Coin Theft Being Probed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Postal officials said Wednesday they are investigating the apparent theft of an undisclosed amount of gold coins shipped from El Paso, Tex., to Los Angeles.

Los Angeles Postal Inspector Stanley H. Jenson denied reports that the value of the stolen shipment was $250,000.

Utility Firm Named In Suit

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Coastal States Gas Producing Co. "sordidly ignored prior contractural obligations" in past dealings, claim two local hotels who now are paying higher utility bills.

The operators of the Menger Hotel and the El Tropicano Motor Hotel filed a class action suit in federal court Wednesday, saying they and other Coastal States customers are due "millions of dollars" in damages.

The suit was filed the same day that U.S. District Court Judge John H. Wood ordered the transfer out of state of a $54 million suit against Coastal States Gas Corp. in connection with the merger of Coastal with Colorado Interstate Corp.

Coastal States Gas Corp. is the parent name of Coastal's far-flung operations.

The two hotels say their utility bills already are higher by several hundred dollars monthly because San Antonio's publicly-owned utility has had to buy emergency supplies as a result of natural gas shortages of Coastal's Texas subsidiary, Lo-Vaca Gas Gathering Co.

The shortages which now face San Antonio and other Texas cities in the Lo-Vaca system are the result of past transactions of Coastal according to the suit, which says the company "quickly sold more gas than it had in valid reserves..."

Besides this federal suit, Coastal States is a defendant in a state suit here seeking an order for the company to uphold its long-term, low-cost contract with San Antonio. Coastal States has asked for relief from its contracts.

Its stock prices, which had descended almost 50 points to $7.50 a share when trading was suspended this year by the Securities and Exchange Commission, are the center of the suit involving the Colorado Interstate merger.

Judge Wood ordered the merger suit transferred to Delaware, where it apparently will be consolidated with two similar suits filed in New York and in Delaware. Coastal States, although headquartered in Houston, is a Delaware corporation, according to suits here.

Jan Weisberg, a plaintiff in the merger suit being transferred from here, alleges she bought Colorado Interstate stock in 1967 for $34.375 a share and watched it grow to $35.50 when Coastal merged with Colorado Interstate last year. The suit claims Colorado stockholders got 0.87 shares of Coastal for each Colorado share.

The Weisberg suit alleges omissions and misrepresentations in Coastal proxy statements.

Now kids can look it up in their own Funk & Wagnalls.

After 60 years of making encyclopedias for adults, Funk & Wagnalls has learned enough to make one for children.

It's called the Young Students Encyclopedia. And it's designed to do something more than just get them through the next homework assignment—to make them want to learn on their own.

Instead of burdening your children with tons of forgettable detail, it appeals to their native curiosity. The article on Airplanes, for example, illustrates an experiment children can perform at home showing how things fly. There are hundreds of other drawings, games and puzzles that not only teach but provoke, involve and entertain in the process.

In other words, it's an encyclopedia children will actually use. They'll also use it a long time. It's designed to be simple enough for children just learning to read and comprehensive enough to serve until they're ready for an adult encyclopedia. They can't outgrow it the way they do shoes.

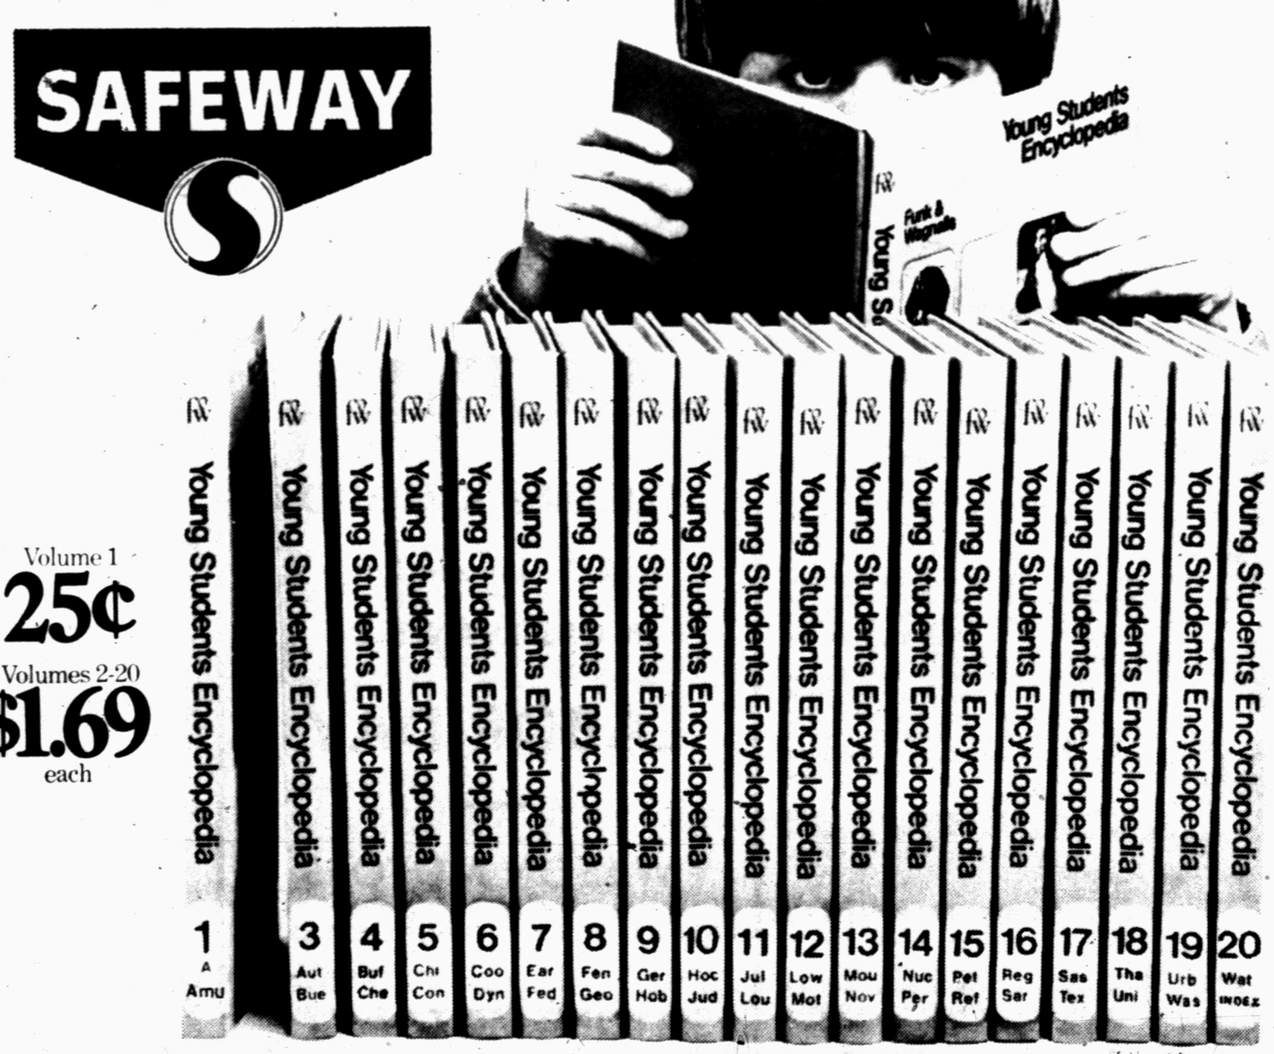

Which brings up another nice point about the Young Students Encyclopedia: it's intended exclusively to help children, but it helps grown-ups too.

First, it doesn't put much of a dent in your budget. Since it's sold direct to you through us, you can buy the complete 20-volume set a volume or two a week for only $1.69 each. And the first volume for the introductory price of a quarter.

Second, it helps prevent you from doing what you shouldn't be doing anyway—your children's homework. It provides the answers; you just provide the encouragement.

So instead of just shopping for things to nourish growing bodies, come in and pick up a Young Students Encyclopedia. And nourish their minds as well.

Hearing On Proposal To Split Oil Field Ends

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A month-long hearing on a proposal to split the East Texas oil field has ended with an attorney for Exxon Corp. urging rejection of an emergency plan he said would reduce oil production by 80,000 barrels a day.

Three Railroad Commission hearing examiners said all parties to the hearing would have 30 days after completion of the transcript, estimated at 2,500 to 3,000 pages, to file written statements or briefs.

One attorney predicted it would take 90 days for the hearing reporters to finish the transcript.

Following simultaneous filing of closing statements, all parties will have 15 days in which to file answering briefs.

The examiners then will study the entire record in the hearing and make their report to the commissioners, who will make the final decision.

Frank Douglass, Exxon attorney, said at Wednesday's final session that an "emergency" proposal by 32 independents to reduce the market demand factor in the entire field from the present 86 per cent to 50 per cent was unsupported by the evidence and would cost $117 million a year.

Wilbert Lasater of Tyler, representing the independents, said there was plenty of evidence that many wells in the 10-mile stretch between Kilgore and London will have to be abandoned before all the recoverable oil is produced unless the emergency plan is put into effect.

Representatives of Mobil, General American Oil Co. and Cities Service all sided with Exxon in opposition to this plan.

"The commission has given an opportunity for all those who have been spreading rumors through the field, that the field is going to pot, that it's no good any more—the commission has given them an opportunity to come forward with evidence, and there is no evidence that there is any emergency," Douglass said.

Earlier, Douglass cross-examined Homer Key, a petroleum engineer representing the independents, on Key's assertion that wells would have to be abandoned in the Kilgore-London stretch.

"Do you have any engineering data that shows any bypassing of oil due to shutting in of high-water-producing wells?" Douglass asked.

"No, sir," Key replied.

"Do you have a single example of how oil was trapped and was not moving in the field?"

"I think your (Exxon's) exhibits show this."

Key then analyzed an Exxon exhibit that he said showed oil in areas bypassed by water.

But when Douglass asked him if he had any evidence that this oil was "not moving in the reservoir," Key admitted he did not.

Douglass said even if the oil is trapped in areas bypassed by water, that doesn not mean it is lost. It can always be produced, he said.

"I'll agree to that," Key said.

Exxon opposes division of the field into northern and southern halves. It wants the commission to approve a 100 per cent market demand factor for the entire field.

The independents and General American want 100 per cent for the northern half but 50 per cent in the southern half, where most of Exxon's leases are.

Sees Gain In Grain Supplies

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz says livestock feed grain supplies should increase in 1974 by at least 6 per cent, if farmers produce all the grain they can.

The new government policies announced Wednesday, set an 89 million-acre allotment for feed grains for accounting purposes. Butz urged the farmers to produce all they can.

An Agriculture Department spokesman in Washington said the 89 million acres could produce about 206.8 million short tons of the commodities, compared with a 1973 production of 195.3 million tons.

The government said the 206.8 million short tons is the minimum amount of feed grain needed for domestic use and export for the 1974-75 season. Harvests this year are expected to fall 3.2 million tons short of meeting demands.

Butz discussed a target price in the new farm law, which provides that if market prices do not match or exceed the targets, producers will get government payments to make up the difference on production from alloted areas.

Butz said he is not totally satisfied with the new farm law, which means "the government is going to share the risks in going all out with the farmer for production," but said he is a team player, and "on the whole I think it is a good deal."

Some of the blame for high meat prices has been laid to shortages of livestock feed—corn, barley and grain sorghum—caused in part by export sales of large quantities of the grain.

Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

★★★

Q. If, after a tax audit, the IRS finds out that it owes me money, will it pay interest on the refund?

A. Yes. If an IRS audit examination results in a refund you will ordinarily receive interest at the rate of six per cent a year on the amount of the refund.

Q. I use the den of my home exclusively in my insurance business. I just repaired the floor of the den. Can I deduct the cost of this repair?

A. Yes. The cost of repairs to a room used exclusively for business purposes is fully deductible. If a part of the room is used for business purposes a proportionate amount is deductible. In addition, a portion of the cost of any repairs you make to the outside of your home can be deducted. However, you may not deduct the cost of painting and repairs of other rooms in your house.

Q. I am working in the United States this summer and plan to return to my home in Europe in the fall. When should I obtain my "sailing permit" from the IRS?

A. The permit, or tax clearance, should be gotten at least two weeks, but not earlier than 30 days, before your departure. The permit is part of the income tax form that must be filed by most aliens before their departure from the United States. For more information on obtaining a permit, write the nearest Internal Revenue district office and ask for a copy of IRS Publication 513, "Tax Information for Visitors to the United States." It's available free.

Positions Approved For Watching Games On TV

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The pro football season is about to bloom. But new fans may not realize there are officially approved positions for watching the games on television. These positions must be known.

If you aren't in them by kickoff, there's danger a passing inspector from the National Football League will dash in, throw down his orange flag and turn the channel to a cartoon. So remember:

—The Full Stretch. You extend fully on the sofa, head at a 90-degree angle to the set, left hand resting comfortably on the Sunday funnies. Classicists prefer Sunday book reviews, but this is optional.

—The Moveable Stretch. It requires an adjustable lounge chair. The full upright position isn't recommended, as urchins tend to grab the back of the chair while the viewer dozes. When this happens, the chair slams into the full recline and the viewer abruptly awakens. He then flails wildly and gets a hernia.

—The Forward Tilt. It occurs when three or more viewers occupy a sofa and have no room to stretch out. They sit leaning forward and burn cigarette holes in the coffee table.

—The Flanker. A temporary position on the arms of the sofa, usually occupied by housewives. Flankers aren't real fans and are there only to put out fires on the coffee table and sofa.

—The Floor Stretch. The viewer lies flat on the floor on his back, stomach, left side or right side. Floor-stretchers often say "off" or "dammit" because people find it great sport to step on them while going for a beer. Floor-stretchers spend the off-season with the chiropractor.

—The Leaner. In this position, you sit on the floor with your back against the sofa. By the end of the game, you are in the three-quarter Floor Stretch and saying "off" and "dammit" quite often.

—The Bar Stool. People in this slot rarely have a direct view of the TV set and don't really care. They do get engrossed in the game by the third quarter, but usually miss the fourth quarter, having toppled unconscious from the stool.

—The Thanksgiving Day Position. It only occurs on Nov. 22. Viewers cluster around a table and say grace. Then they put the turkey on the floor and the TV set on the table next to the cranberries. Anyone who complains has to eat the turkey or talk to Grandma.

—The Unexpected Position. It's right in front of the set, reserved for stiffs who just happen to drop by late in the season when the score it tied and the title at stake. Their job is to give you a detailed account of their summer trip to Bulgaria.

Uncle Of Derby Winner Charged

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — The uncle of a boy stripped of the 1973 All-American Soap Box Derby championship for using a magnetic speed device has been charged with encouraging a minor to violate state law.

Boulder County Dist. Atty. Alex Hunter filed the misdemeanor charge against Robert Lange Sr. on Wednesday.

Lange, in a letter to sponsors of the race, said he advised his nephew, James Gronen, 14, to put an electromagnet in the nose of his gravity-powered racer.

Lange was unavailable for comment on the charge, which stemmed from an investigation by Hunter's office begun immediately after the Aug. 20 disqualification.

Quake Death Toll Rising

By ALFONSO CHARDY
Associated Press Writer

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Demolition crews were leveling thousands of unsafe buildings today as other workers searched for more bodies in the ruins left by the earthquake Tuesday in southeast Mexico.

Officials said 527 bodies had been recovered and 3,575 persons had been injured. But officials predicted the death toll might reach 1,000 in the 300-square-mile area of Puebla and Veracruz states.

President Luis Echeverria toured part of the area by bus Wednesday and ordered the demolition of some 10,000 buildings still standing but considered unsafe in more than 50 towns.

The president spent hours listening to the survivors of the worst quake in Mexican history.

Alfonso Tabuara, director of the government's Housing Development Institute, said the demolition would take two to three weeks and prefabricated houses would be provided within 15 days for the homeless.

A Red Cross spokesman said in Ciudad Serdan, one of the towns that suffered most, 50 per cent of the 22,000 inhabitants were homeless and had gone to relatives in other towns.

Cleanup work went on in other towns where large numbers of abode homes crashed to the ground. Brigades of young medical and other students volunteered to distribute medicine, food and clothes.

"Some of these people come from as far away as Monterrey," Puebla Gov. Guillermo Morales Blumenkron said of the volunteers.

Many homeless were being sheltered in public buildings in such larger cities as Tehuacan and Puebla, where damage was minor.

Contact still had not been established with about 10 villages in the quake area.

"In Zongolica, for example, the rescue brigade we sent with a radio and a portable electric plant said 80 per cent of the village was destroyed," Urbano Arriaga of the Veracruz public safety office said. "Then their equipment ran out of gas and we lost contact."

Local Firm In Association

Wadleigh Construction, Inc., has been accepted for membership in the national Metal Building Dealers Association, R.W. Scott, Oakland, Calif., president of the trade group, has announced.

Lanny Wadleigh will serve as the official representative, casting his firm's vote in association business matters.

The local firm joins some 650 metal building industry firms in the association, which is dedicated to stressing professionalism among metal building dealers and promoting prefabricated metal construction in general. It sponsors educational meetings and seminars and conducts the metal building industry's only national trade show.

"We try to be certain that our membership rolls include only the finest metal building dealers and contractors in the nation," Scott said. "We're happy to have Wadleigh Construction, Inc., as a member."

Ramps Extended At Lake Spence

Sportsmen soon will have access to enlarged boat launch ramps at Lake E.V. Spence.

R.A. Schooling, administrative assistant in charge of lake facilities for the Colorado River Municipal Water District, said three ramps needed only construction clean-up. They have been extended to spillway level at a cost of $22,500. The Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission has contributed $20,000 of this.

Desalting, or the production of fresh water from saline sources, is now providing about 300 million gallons of fresh water daily for cities and industries around the world.

Reds Adopt Collective Leadership

TOKYO (AP) — The Chinese Communist party has adopted a collective leadership to carry out its day-to-day affairs, Peking's official Hsinhua news agency reported today.

An official list of names broadcast by the agency showed that the party's 10th Central Committee political bureau has 21 members, including party chairman Mao Tse-tung.

The committee was elected at a party congress Aug. 24-28.

The list does not identify the ranks and titles of the members. The order of names in the list follows the number of strokes required in writing the family names of the members.

The party chairman, whose family name, Mao, takes four strokes, heads the list followed by Wang Hung-wen, a former Shanghai textile worker and vice chairman of the Shanghai Municipal Revolutionary Committee.

The fact that the names are listed according to the number of strokes in Chinese calligraphy — the equivalent to alphabetical order — clearly betokens something new, the suggestion that a collective leadership has been agreed upon. This same device was used after the death of Stalin in the Soviet Union, when no leader was important enough to step into his shoes.

Thus, the indications are that Mao is prepared to retire more and more to the background as the party prepares for the transition that must be made after he quits the stage.

Other members of the political bureau include Premier Chou Enlai, whose name appears 18th following Mao's wife Chiang Ching, veteran Communist Chu Teh, vice premier Li Hsien-nien, vice premier Li Teh-sheng and others.

A former Shanghai journalist turned critic, Wang Wen-yao, veteran Communist theoretician Kang Sheng and state Vice President Tung Piwu are also on the list.

SHS Student Is Listed In Who's Who

Kyle Rosson, a senior at Snyder High School has been notified that he is featured in the seventh annual edition of Who's Who Among American High School Students in 1972-73, the largest student award publication in the nation.

Rosson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Renal B. Rosson. He is active in band, choir and technical production of plays at Snyder High School. This summer he attended the University of Kansas on a voice scholarship. He also participated in the American Legion Boys' State where he was elected Speaker of the House of Representatives. He plans to attend the University of Kansas upon graduation.

In addition to having his biography published in the book, Rosson also will compete for one of 10 thousand-dollar scholarship awards funded by the publishers and will be invited to participate in the firm's annual "Survey of Achievers" later in the academic year.

Students from over 18,000 public, private and parochial high schools throughout the country are recognized for their leadership in academics, athletics, activities or community service in the Who's Who book. Less than two per cent of the junior and senior students nation-wide are awarded this recognition.

TO BLOCK MENTAL EXAMINATION

Henley's Lawyers To Appeal Court's Refusal

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Lawyers for Elmer Wayne Henley Jr. say they will appeal the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals' refusal to block a psychiatric examination for the Houston youth.

Henley, 17, had been indicted in eight of 27 known sex-torture slayings in the worst recorded mass murder case of this century.

The court took just over an hour Wednesday to overrule Henley's attorney's request that it prohibit the psychiatric examination ordered Aug. 22 by State District Court Judge William Hatten of Houston.

Ed Pegelow, one of Henley's three lawyers, said the decision would be appealed either to the Texas Supreme Court or to a federal court in Houston.

Dist. Atty. Carol Vance of Houston had sought Hatten's order so he could obtain an early reading on Henley's competence to stand trial and possible evidence with which to rebut a defense of insanity.

Hatten ordered Harris County Sheriff Jack Heard to take Henley to the county's psychiatric unit for an examination outside the presence of either defense or prosecution attorneys.

Pegelow said the next step might be an appeal to the Texas Supreme Court, although that court has jurisdiction only in non-criminal cases.

The court might have jurisdiction over the sanity matter, Pegelow said, because the issue of a person's present mental competence is a civil matter.

Henley's lawyers claimed Texas law gives the courts no right to order a psychiatric examination unless and until the insanity issue has been raised by the defense.

And they claim they have never raised the issue, although defense lawyer Charles Melder of Houston has told reporters insanity would, indeed, be Henley's defense. They hope, however, for acquittal on grounds that police obtained statements from Henley unconstitutionally. They contend no attorney was present when Henley waived his right to remain silent, told police where to find 27 graves of teen-age boys and young men and gave officers other statements.

The mass killings came to light Aug. 8 when Henley called police and told them he had killed Dean Corll, 33, whom he protrayed as the mastermind of a homosexual panding, torture and murder ring.

David Owen Brooks, 18, also has been indicted in connection with eight of the slayings.

Meanwhile Wednesday in Houston it was learned that Henley and Homer L. Garcia, 15, one of the murder victims, had been attending the same driver education school this past July.

Garcia, whose body was found earlier this month in a grave near the Sam Rayburn Reservoir in San Jacinto County, was identified Tuesday through dental records.

He was last reported seen July 17 when he attended the driver school and telephoned his mother and told her he was going to a party with a friend and would spend the night at the friend's house.

John Tomlin, a supervisor at the school, said Wednesday Henley's mother had enrolled him and he started classes July 16, the day before the Garcia boy disappeared.

Garcia completed the three-week course at the school the same night he disappeared, Tomlin said, but Henley and Garcia attended separate classes between 6:30 and 8:30 p.m. both July 16 and 17.

Tomlin said he did not know if the two boys were acquainted. He said Henley dropped out of the school several days later.

School Lunches To Cost More

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

You'd better be prepared to add a nickel or two to Johnny's daily lunch money this fall.

An Associated Press survey shows school districts are boosting the price of cafeteria lunches and cutting back on high-priced items like beef in an effort to make ends meet.

Rising food prices, cancelation of the federal milk subsidy, a beef shortage and cutbacks in commodities normally provided from surplus Agriculture Department stocks have combined to put the squeeze on school districts.

Prices of hot lunches in most areas are going up a nickel or a dime from the 35 or 40 cent level of last year.

Milk prices went up almost everywhere with the cancelation of the federal subsidy program that affected 40 million youngsters. The appropriation for the program is pending in a Congressional conference committee and the Agriculture Department says that until the lawmakers act, it has no funds for subsidies which provided three cents toward the cost of half a pint of milk.

The Florida Department of Education said school lunches went up an average of 7 cents across the state this fall. George Hockenbery, school lunch supervisor, said 63.9 per cent of the state's 1.5 million children participated in the hot lunch program last year, but he estimated that 12 to 15 per cent of the youngsters will drop out because of higher costs this year.

James Thigpen, superintendent of schools in Harlingen, Tex., where classes opened Monday said Wednesday that he had no problems getting bids for supplies "at this point," but added that lunch prices for elementary school pupils had been upped from 35 to 40 cents due to an anticipated shortage of goods usually furnished by the Agriculture Department. Lunches for secondary school students will remain at 40 cents, he said.

The menus in San Francisco schools, which open Sept. 5, will be normal for the first two weeks, but officials say they don't know what will happen after that. Hot lunches in elementary schools will go from 40 to 45 cents a day.

Harriet Kossove, director of food services for the 78,000-pupil system, said she paid from 71 to 92.2 cents a pound for ground beef last year. This year, she said, she has been able to obtain a commitment for two weeks supply only and the price is $1.10 a pound.

She said pasta products also are hard to obtain and "the price ... has risen almost 100 per cent."

Dear Abby

Service with a smile —and nothing else

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to the letter stating deliverymen and servicemen often combined business with pleasure where housewives were concerned. In my 20 years of marriage I have not had one man make any advances toward me.

I have been told I am very attractive, and my 19-year-old son has said, "Mom, if you weren't my mother, I could go for you."

I have let servicemen into my home, even leading them down the cellar. Sometimes there were two of them, and if any of them ever had any ideas, they never showed it. They simply read the meter, checked the gauge, or did whatever they came to do, and left.

Once a fellow did indicate that he wouldn't mind hanging around. He said, "Mmmmmmmm, that apple pie you're baking sure smells good. I can smell the cinnamon."

My answer was, "Oh, really?" And that was the end of that. It must be a very lonely housewife who sent out signals that would make a serviceman think he had a chance with her. NO FOOLING AROUND

DEAR NO: You're lucky you had a serviceman who only wanted a piece of your apple pie. One woman wrote to say the meterman told her he'd heard that she had a water bed, and could he bounce around on it a bit just to see how it felt.

DEAR ABBY: For years my husband, son, and I have been planning a grand trip to Europe. [Combining our 25th wedding anniversary, our son's college graduation, plus visiting a French couple who saved my husband's life during World War II.] We have our reservations, passports, new clothes, etc. and are scheduled to leave in three weeks.

However, my mother in law, who lives in the midwest, just phoned to say she plans to have cataract surgery one week before we leave! She has known about this for two years, but has been putting it off. My husband spoke to her doctor who says a three-week delay won't harm her.

Should we ask her to postpone her surgery for three more weeks until we get back? My husband says, no matter what, our trip is still on, but I can't see how we could go and have a good time with her in the hospital. We have spent every vacation with her for 24 years, and now I feel it is our turn.

What is your opinion? Am I selfish, or is she being contrary? And what if she doesn't postpone it? TORN

DEAR TORN: If she's put off the cataract surgery for two years, and her doctor says another three weeks delay won't harm her, go, have a wonderful time, and don't feel guilty.

DEAR ABBY: To "SORRY," who shoplifted a small item, was caught, arrested and prosecuted, and has her name on a file in the court records. If you have been in no legal difficulty for a year following this incident, you should go to the probation department and inquire about the possibility of "sealing" your records.

Once your records are "sealed," it is as tho they never existed, and you may apply for a job without mentioning the fact that at one time you had this record.

I know this is done in California and New Jersey. A lawyer can tell you in which other states "sealing" is possible. There is no earthly reason why anyone who committed a minor crime between the ages of 18 and 21 should have this on his "record" for life. DEPUTY CLERK

CONFIDENTIAL TO "GUILTY CONSCIENCE": I mailed your $10 to "that place" in Hannibal, Mo., per your instructions. God bless you and pleasant dreams.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.
