M. E. REVIVAL DRAWS NEW INTEREST

Meeting Opened Yesterday With Rea In Charge

Increased attendance at both the morning and evening hours of worship marked the opening of the special revival campaign at the First Methodist Church yesterday.

A special interest is being manifested in the topic for the evening services when Rev. Rea will deal with some of the great characters of the Old Testament. The Sunday evening topic was "The Most Influential Man in the Old Testament." Tonight Rev. Rea will deal with "The Most Christ-Like Man in the Old Testament."

The music is in charge of Rev. Dee W. Cobb, evangelistic singer and young people's worker. Rev. Cobb is also conducting the young people's services, which are being held one-half hour before the regular evening services.

Morning services begin each day at 10 o'clock and the evening services at 8 o'clock.

PLANE REACHES SEATTLE WITH CRASH VICTIMS

SEATTLE, Aug. 19.—Pilot Joe Crosson's plane bearing the bodies of Will Rogers and Wiley Post south from their tragic air crash deaths in Alaska arrived here today from Vancouver.

The plane's curtains were drawn.

Pan-American Airways officials in New York indicated the bodies may reach Los Angeles tonight.

A big Pan-American transport ship left Alameda, Calif., today to make connections with Crosson's and fly the bodies south from Seattle.

Meanwhile, plans were made for funeral services for Post in Oklahoma City Thursday and for Rogers the same day in Los Angeles.

Plans were also made to establish permanent memorials to the flier and humorist in Oklahoma.

President Speaks to Young Demos on Air

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—President Roosevelt will speak over the air Saturday night at 8 o'clock C. S. T. in a speech to the Young Democratic Clubs of America, in Milwaukee.

The speech is to be nationally broadcast from the White House.

clone Stadium To See First Action as Drills Start Today

this morning, he stated, and ordered them to report at the new stadium this afternoon. Names, experience, probable positions, etc., of the candidates probably will be ready for publication this afternoon.

The lads will not have the pleasure of trotting onto the sodded field—not this early in the season. A space has been cleared off at the stadium to be used for early drills while the boys are getting into shape and the grass is still growing. It'll probably be some time before Chesty lets them tromp down his handiwork.

Twenty-six children from the W. & O. home at Corsicana will arrive here tomorrow afternoon, forerunners of the 700 to 800 visitors expected for the Lower Panhandle Association convention here Wednesday and Thursday.

The group will be made up of about 18 girls and eight boys of the home's glee club. They will be accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Conch, superintendent and matron of the home.

To Stage Parade

The entire party will be the guests of the Gate City Creamery and the Memphis Coca-Cola Bottling Company while in the city.

They will parade the business section and give a 10-minute entertainment on the east side of the courthouse soon after their arrival. Then they will go to Huckabee's Cafe for dinner at 6:30 o'clock.

The glee club will render a public program at the First Baptist Church Tuesday night, an advance meeting to the opening of the convention proper. All members and ex-members of the IOOF and Rebekah orders are urged to be present, and the public is cordially invited to attend.

Local Member

Little Bonnie Ballew Baldwin of Memphis Lodge 444 will be one of the party. She became a ward of the home at the age of six months. She is now six years of age.

Members of the Odd Fellow and Rebekah lodges here state that this will be an outstanding event in that the public will be made better acquainted with the scope and quality of the work being done by the home.

Four Wellington Scouts to Camp

Special to The Democrat

WELLINGTON, Aug. 19.—Four Wellington Scouts, accompanied by Joe Thompson, left Sunday for Camp Taryall near Colorado Springs, where they will attend the Jamboree of Adobe Walls Area Council. Their baggage was sent ahead on a truck and the Scouts will take a special bus for Camp Taryall.

Those who are making the trip are Paige Wilson, Joe Hardy, Silas Henry, Travis Somerville and Joe Thompson. The local scouts are making this trip as a substitute for the National Jamboree which did not materialize.

LARGE CROWDS ATTENDING CHURCH OF CHRIST REVIVAL

Large crowds were in attendance at both the morning and evening services at the Church of Christ yesterday, John G. Bills, of Eastland, who is conducting the revival, announced this morning.

Eight responses were received yesterday morning and another last night, he stated. Everyone is invited to attend at 10 a. m. and 8:15 p. m.

1,000 ATTEND WELLINGTON REUNION

Old Settlers of Collingsworth County Have Big Time

WELLINGTON, Aug. 18.—The annual reunion of the Old Settlers of Collingsworth County was held Thursday at the LaHue grove three miles east of Wellington, with Judge P. W. Myers acting as master of ceremonies.

The opening address was given by Judge J. W. Elliot of Stratford, formerly of this county. At 11 o'clock and again in the afternoon the assemblage was entertained by Bill Ellis and his fiddle band from Sour.

It was estimated that at least 1,000 people were present when dinner was spread at noon. In the afternoon an enjoyable address was delivered by District Judge A. J. Fires of Childress, who in early days took perhaps the most active part in the organization of this county. Rev. D. D. Sumnerall, pastor of the Baptist Church led the singing of several old time hymns. A male quartet composed of J. L. Burt, Jack Henderson, Aaron Edgar and Joe Hamm rendered several numbers that were highly enjoyed.

A feature that occasioned much comment and merriment was jig dancing by some of the old timers who were past 80 years of age. Altogether the reunion this year was one of the most successful and enjoyable in the history of the organization.

BUDGET TO BE ADOPTED AND TAX RATE SET

Hall County's 1935-36 budget was scheduled to be adopted and the tax rate set in the monthly meeting of the Hall County Commissioners today.

Notice was served last week on tax payers to appear before the court if they desired to object to the adoption of the budget. County Clerk Floyd Springer said that there has never been an objection recorded.

The court was in session all day. The morning business was devoted to routine matters. The budget and tax rate were expected to be compiled later this afternoon.

Giles Youth Dies At Clarendon: To Hold Rites Here

W. H. Rousey Jr., nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Rousey, who reside three miles northeast of Giles, died last night at 9:30 o'clock at a Clarendon hospital.

Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the First Christian Church here, with Rev. J. H. Anderson, pastor, conducting. Interment will be in Fairview Cemetery with Hodges Funeral Home in charge.

The youth was born in Childress County on September 13, 1926. He passed away after a short illness.

He is survived by his parents, two brothers, Vernie and Charley, and one sister, Minnie.

DRIVING WITHOUT TAGS

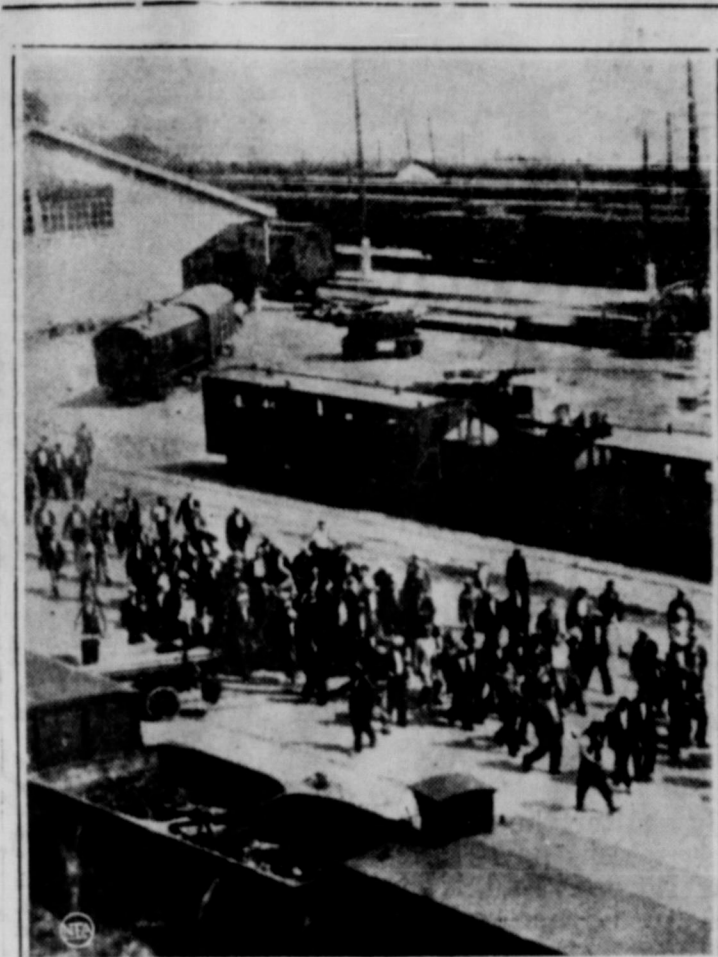

H. L. Abney was arrested this morning for driving his truck without the proper highway tags. He had the necessary tag for straight hauling, but it is alleged he was trucking off of the main highway.

OLD TIMERS VISIT

Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Shaw of Cheyenne, Wyo., old timers of Hall County, came here Sunday for a short visit. They are leaving today for Dallas.

French Strike Mob Derails Trains

Storming through the railroad yards at Brest, France, a mob of angry strikers left a trail of havoc, wrecked buildings and derailed cars in their wake. At left are two cars torn from the rails by the mob that surges on to another attack. The outbreak was a manifestation of French government employees' displeasure over the recently instituted wage cuts.

Meat Strikers in Talk to Wallace

By Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Secretary Wallace told a group of housewives representing the Detroit meat strikers that the only way to bring about lower meat prices is to produce more meat.

Led by Mrs. Mary Zuk, the delegation asked Wallace to investigate the packing industry at Detroit immediately and to effect a reduction of 20 per cent in the price of all meats.

Wallace replied that present prices resulted from last year's drought. He said the AAA is attempting only to get a fair price for farmers and to provide sufficient food for consumers.

The women were obviously dissatisfied with the statement.

WHAT DO YOU THINK?

Local Opinions on Pertinent Topics.

THE QUESTION:
What do you think of "What Do You Think?"

THE ANSWERS:
HIRAM CRAWFORD: What do I think of "What Do You Think?" Do you think I am supposed to think of what you are thinking? I hardly think so, but I do think we have had enough thinking for morning, so I think I'll tell you what I think.

The column has only been running for a short time, but I believe it holds an interest for all the readers of the Democrat. I know I read it about the first thing after picking up the paper. It is something the people look forward to reading just like the "We Saw" column.

It is interesting to see what the other fellow has to think about some question that is related to local problems or those of national interest.

I have noticed that all the questions are answered in the affirmative by the persons being interviewed. I don't know if this is because they really believe their thoughts to confirm with the question or because they think it will be detrimental to themselves and their business to answer otherwise. I would like to see them really assert their honest opinion, if they are not really doing so already. After all ever person is a different individual and they do have minds of their own.

I may be wrong. I have not meant to offend any of those who have been interviewed.

All I ask is: Don't come around to me and ask my opinion of a topic that will be too controversial. But here I am contradicting myself. Well I said in starting that I wasn't thinking of "What Do You Think?"

F. V. CLARK: It is both interesting and diverting to see the views of the different business men on topics we all debate in our own minds.

I think it develops public interest for the leaders of Memphis to express their opinions on matters of national and local concern. This helps those who are not as well informed to finally arrive at a conclusion of their own.

The new program of the Democrat in printing more local items and dealing with matters of local concern is very good. It is not only helpful to the people it serves by keeping them well informed, but it is also to the advantage of the paper. I hope the Democrat continues this policy of printing more and more local news.

HENRY NEWMAN: The comments of different merchants in the "What Do You Think" column is enlightening to all the citizens of Memphis. This expression of separate ideas is very good. It gives all the people the opportunity of knowing his fellow man better.

It would be impossible for the average man to interview the leading business men, so that he might know what they thought this and that and I welcome this chance to give my own appreciation of the column "What Do You Think."

TOMORROW: What do you think of any or all of the amendments to be voted on August 24?

The Government CCC camp was a beehive of activity this morning as 162 war veterans of Company 1821 busied themselves with making the camp habitable.

They were going through the process of cleaning up the building, completing small pieces of construction, arranging living quarters and preparing to feed the men.

Details at Work

Numerous details were at work on various phases of the work. Meanwhile, CCC trucks pulled in and out of the camp, unloading supplies and transferring equipment.

A temporary mess tent has been set up at the east end of the camp, where the food is being prepared while the permanent mess hall is being placed into shape.

The enrollees in blue and uniform-clad army officers made up the personnel, moving about rapidly in what to an outsider almost appeared to be confusion, but each was going about a definite job that is playing a part in getting the camp underway.

To Beautify Camp

As the work progresses, after the barracks and other buildings are placed into order, the camp site will be cleaned and beautified with sidewalks, flag pole, roads, and otherwise dressed up. "You won't know the place in a couple of weeks," one of the boys stated.

Today the enrollees are also preparing for a visit tomorrow by Capt. Bolton, sub-district commander from the CCC headquarters at Lubbock. Capt. Bolton will be here a short time for a brief inspection of barracks, equipment, etc.

Riley W. Carleton, educational advisor, stated this morning that the men and officers are highly pleased with the reception they have received so far, and that "we will try to reciprocate by being one of the community and fitting in as best we can."

May Be Filled

Although there are only 162 men in the company at present, it is expected to be filled to its authorized strength of 210 enrollees during the next enrollment period.

As the first official act of the camp, it was announced that 189 juniors for the camp at Columbus, N. M., will be enrolled here on August 26 and 27. On the first day 28 will be enrolled from Gray County, 45 from Hall County and seven from Floyd County. On the second day they will be enrolled as follows: Donley County 19, Briscoe County 10, Swisher County 12, Collingsworth County 40 and Childress County 28.

RETURNS PRISONER FROM LUBBOCK FOR BURGLARY

Kermit Roberts, charged with burglary, is lodged in the county jail. It was stated this morning.

Deputy Sheriff Turlington went to Lubbock yesterday to return Mr. Roberts to the county jail to await trial. He is booked in the Estelle Court for burglarizing the headquarters of the Mill Iron Ranch, Turlington said.

IN ONE BASKET

THERE is no harm in putting all your eggs in one basket, as some wise man once remarked, if you keep watching the basket carefully.

And that, according to Quincey Wright, professor of international law at the University of Chicago, is precisely the spot the world is in today. It has got all of its eggs in one basket, and if it fails to keep its eye on the basket it is going to find itself in the middle of one of the grandest omelets ever seen.

Prof. Wright says that whether we like it or not we must face the fact that the world has become one community. It may be split up into some dozens of separate nations, each one sustained by the most intense patriotism; nevertheless, the facts of world communication, trade and organization bind it together irrevocably.

"The world, which before 1500 was divided into many wholly distinct civilizations, is becoming a single civilization," he says. "The states remote from the center of Europe's refuse to realize this because they regard the world civilization as European."

"The growth of international communication is bound to go on, and is bound to increase cultural unity and uniformity of the world in spite of all efforts of states and nationalities to maintain individualism."

All of this simply amounts to another way of saying that we can no longer afford to be indifferent to the things that are happening in remote parts of the world. The Atlantic is broad and the Pacific is broader—but radio, submarine cables, steamship lines and the vast web of trade and finance have shrunk them to the size of inland lakes, as far as human relations are concerned.

It would be hard, for instance, to find a quarrel which seemingly had as little power to affect the United States as the present one between Italy and Ethiopia. It is a long way off, and none of its issues touch us in the least.

Yet this pending war will upset European politics very profoundly. It will affect the plans of every state department on earth. It might very

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JO DARIEN breaks her engagement to BRET PAUL, college athletic star, because he objects to her taking a job as hostess at Crest Lake Inn, fashionable summer resort owned by wealthy DOUGLAS MARSH. Jo goes to Crest Lake and later Bret arrives as a life guard.

Douglas Marsh's eccentric mother dislikes Jo. PETER FRAGONET, film actor, pays Jo marked attentions and asks her to marry him as soon as he can get a divorce. Jo becomes friendly with LOLA MONTEZ, film actress.

Prompted by his mother, Marsh asks Jo to leave Crest Lake. She decides to go to Hollywood to look for a job and Fragonet persuades her to go with him by plane. There Jo begins to doubt Fragonet. She moves from her hotel to a rooming house, begins a fruitless search for work. Lola Montez sends for Jo and she goes to the actress' home. Lola confides to Jo that she (Lola) was Fragonet's first wife.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVIII

Leaning back against the luxurious cushions of Lolita Montez's town car, Jo had plenty to think about. Lolita's revelation that she had been Fragonet's first wife, that her child was his had affected Jo with all the force of a nervous shock. Even now, after an hour with Lolita, walking in her garden and talking of pleasant things, Jo was weak and bewildered.

She had admired the little actress at Crest Lake, but that admiration was as nothing compared with Jo's feelings for her now. At Crest Lake she had believed Lolita Montez was overly bitter about Fragonet, had half-concluded that this dislike grew from professional jealousy. But now she knew that Lolita was not half so bitter as she might have been. Jo had left Lolita with the actress's promise that she would find something for Jo to do in Hollywood. "You might as well have something at the studio," Lolita had said. "I've more influence there than anywhere, and it would probably pay more than you'd get elsewhere."

But Lolita had been emphatic in her advice that Jo should forget Fragonet and avoid him utterly. Now, after this latest glimpse into his stormy story, Jo could well agree. Looking back on the whole thing, Jo realized how reckless and foolish she had been. She could only hope that she hadn't already gone too far—or that Fragonet hadn't—for she still feared the threat of trouble from Edna Fragonet. As Peter had hinted, Edna might will let loose her wrath, once his picture was released and she stood a better chance of payments from him.

Last in her troubled thoughts, Jo did not notice the sleek blue roadster which drew alongside the car as Lolita's driver waited for one of the boulevard lights to change from red to green. Then through the open window she heard a familiar voice from the roadster. She leaned forward and saw Silas Drann at the wheel of the other car. At sight of Jo his round eyes grew rounder still.

"Miss Darien! I thought this was Lolita's car and—"

"It is," Jo smiled.

"Well," laughed Drann, "you never can tell in Hollywood. What are you doing?"

The traffic bell sounded, and hurriedly Drann forced a new question. "Where can I get in touch with you?"

Without thinking, Jo repeated her address. "Fine," said the director, shoving his car into gear. "You'll hear from me soon."

As Lolita's car moved on with traffic Jo leaned back against the cushions and smiled at Drann's apparent friendliness. She hadn't the slightest notion that he'd get in touch with her at all.

The next day she stayed close to her room, following the advice of Lolita who had said she'd telephone. But as the hours wore on and she did not hear from the actress, Jo decided that something must have happened to delay Lolita's plans. She had just decided to get a breath of outside air when her landlady called up the stairway:

"I'm sending up a Mr. Drann," she shouted, as though Jo Darien were somewhat deaf.

Jo hurried to the door, wishing that the bungalow owner wouldn't be quite so liberal-minded in her handling of male callers. But it was too late—the bulky form of Silas Drann was already on the stair.

"Good evening, Miss Darien," he puffed. "I was afraid I might not find you in—but I took a chance and stopped by on the way to the studio."

Embarrassed, Jo invited him to sit down. "I—I suppose Miss Montez sent you?" She was puzzled, for Lolita hadn't mentioned what work she had in mind for Jo at the studio, and Jo hadn't for the moment imagined it would be anything in Drann's department.

At the question, Drann raised his eyebrows. "Montez? Oh—yes. Yes, she did."

Jo dropped into a chair, relieved. "She's wonderful. I think."

"Yes, we all think so," the director cleared his throat. "Now Miss Darien, had you ever thought of going into pictures at all?"

"You mean—you can't mean acting in them," laughed Jo.

"That's just what I do mean," snapped Drann. "Miss Darien, I want you to take a screen test. Jo could hardly find her voice.

"But I—it's so absurd, Mr. Drann. I've never had any experience. Not even in amateur theatricals, and—"

"So much the better! If you get through a good screen test—if your beauty registers at all and your voice is passable—I will make an actress of you. I have done that before, many times. I did it with Montez."

"But I—" Jo broke off, laughing. "I'm sure it would be all for nothing, and even if I could be an actress I'm not sure I'd want to be."

"Nonsense!" Drann almost yelled inside the little room. "I watched you at Crest Lake. You are beautiful. You are natural. You are young. I want you to be at the studio tomorrow at 10. Ask for me. He got up abruptly, hat in hand. "You'll promise to be there?"

"Why... if Miss Montez wants it, yes. But I thought she had something in mind for me in the office somewhere."

"In the office?" Drann repeated in disgust. "You can get nowhere in the office. I'll see you tomorrow at 10!"

Then, without the formality of a goodbye, the director was gone. Jo stood watching him from the window, saw him push his heavy frame behind the wheel of his roadster. Somehow she wished Lolita Montez hadn't drawn Silas Drann into her affairs. Instinctively Jo mistrusted him. He seemed more like a heartless machine than a man. And Jo felt that Lolita, in planning to get her into pictures, was giving her too great a test. She was sure to fail, Jo felt, and she wouldn't want to ask Lolita for a second chance. "It's odd she'd want me to go into the movies when she herself hates them so," Jo thought, bewildered.

At 10 tomorrow, Drann had said, at the Atlas lot.

The man at the big wide gate which guarded Atlas from the rest of Hollywood was instantly simply, "PLEASE!" Jo obeyed, suspicious. But when Jo gave him the name of Silas Drann a little of his suspicion melted—but not sufficiently to allow him to let her enter before he had called Drann's office and verified her appointment. Once he had determined this, he was courteous itself.

"Just go right on in, Miss Darien," he said. "It's that big white building to the left there. They'll tell you where Drann's office is."

As Jo made her way to the administration building of the Atlas organization she saw none of the ceaseless activity she had expected. All about her were high enclosing walls and behind them, she supposed, the real picture-making went on. Some of them were dotted with signs warning, "SILENCE," or "NO ADMITTANCE," or "DO NOT ENTER WHILE RED LIGHT IS ON."

Even the grass in front of the administration building was not to be disturbed, although the sign was a gentle one, pleading simply, "PLEASE!" Jo obeyed, directing her steps to the concrete walk.

She did not have to go far. Drann, she encountered, was in the entrance way. He burst out, smiling, "Time! And punctuality is requisite in this business, on, I want to rehearse little."

Taking her by the arm, the bewildered Jo crossed the entrance and into a small room which was empty save for a chair, a table, and a light and wires overhead plopped immediately.

"We won't do much," Lolita said to Jo.

"Let's see you walk," Lolita looked at her. "Walk, walk! You to walk, don't you?"

Jo found that she her smile was really a pompous absurdity. She handed her a sheet of paper.

Wellington Splits Two Tilts With Paducah's Loop Leaders

By WOODROW MURRAY
(Wellington Correspondent)
WELLINGTON, Aug. 19.—The Wellington Gassers yesterday split their important doubleheader with the loop-leading Paducah nine and sent the decision of Western Division standings into the final game of the season.

After taking the first game, 4 to 4, yesterday, the Gassers fell down in a single inning of the nightcap to drop a 6-4 decision to the leaders.

With both clubs hitting lustily, the Gassers entered the last half of the ninth with the score even and drove in three runs that decided the battle.

In the short second game, Paducah chased in six runs on five hits, a base on balls and an error in the second inning and then drifted to victory.

Next Sunday the Gassers invade Chilress for the final clash of the season. Victory in the final game would send the Gassers into their place over the Memphis Owls, while a defeat would leave the standings as they are today, with Paducah in first, Chilress second, Memphis third, Wellington fourth, for the Shaughnessy play-off that starts next month.

SKYROCKETS TO DEPART FOR GRID CAMP

Wellington Gridders To Condition in New Mexico

Special to The Democrat
WELLINGTON, Aug. 19.—Members of the 1935 Skyrocket football team will leave tomorrow for training camp in New Mexico. With the Wellington Public Schools scheduled to open September 2, G. L. Farrar, superintendent, has announced that members of the team will enroll today and will leave for New Mexico tomorrow.

Prospective members of the team met at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the high school building, at which time final plans for the outing were discussed.

The Skyrocket training camp will be similar to that of the 1934 squad and will be conducted for the purpose of getting the members into shape for the coming season. The Skyrockets meet Wheeler in their opening game September 20.

During the Boer War, bullets used in the defense of Kimberley were stamped with the words: "With C. J. Rhodes' compliments."

Owls Trample Pampa, 9 to 3

Pounding the offerings of Pampa hurlers after three scoreless innings, the Memphis Owls went on a rampage yesterday afternoon at Fair Park Stadium to defeat the Advertisers, 9 to 3. It was the first of a series of practice tilts designed to get the Owls into shape for the opening of the Western Division's title play-off next month.

The Owls blasted the visitors' defense wide open in the fourth frame with a fierce attack that brought home five runs before they were halted.

Clifford Stewart delivered the death blow when he drove out a long homer with two aboard.

Joe Marcum singled to open the frame, Moore struck out and Tunnell walked to place the Owls in a dangerous position. L. Marcum's single brought Brother Joe home with the first tally, and Berryman added Tunnell to the scoring list with another bingle. Stewart's homer drove L. Marcum and Berryman in ahead of him.

The Owls continued the attack after that and were never threatened.

The line score:
Advertisers 011 000 010—7 2
Memphis 000 521 01X—9 14 1
Sellers and Legg; Stewart, Blanchard and Sims.
