Execution dates set

DALLAS (AP) — Ernest Benjamin Smith Jr. and Jerry Lane Jurek have become the first death row inmates to have their execution dates set under the new Texas death penalty law.

Smith, 28, was told today by District Court Judge R.T. Scales that he must die in the electric chair at Huntsville on Nov. 22 "before sunrise."

Jurek, whose case was the test used by U.S. Supreme Court in upholding the constitutionality of the new Texas death penalty earlier this year, was told Tuesday in Cuero he must die on

Jan. 19 also, "before sunrise."

Smith, 28-year-old father of two, stood motionless with his hands behind his back and showed no emotion as Judge Scales told him the date of his execution.

He had been convicted of the 1973 robbery-murder of convenience store clerk William Stewart Moon, 55.

The death penalty in Texas can be applied in cases where a killing occurs during the commission of a felony.

Jurek was brought to Cuero Tuesday morning from the Huntsville state prison and had his execution date set by State District Court Judge Joe E. Kelly.

Jurek had been convicted Feb. 4, 1974, of the drowning of 10-year-old Wendy Adams, daughter of a police officer in Cuero, on Aug. 16, 1973.

Her body was found in the Guadalupe River.

Jurek was quiet during the court proceedings and said only "no" when he was asked by the judge if he had anything to say.

Both Jurek and Smith were returned to prison after their dates were set.

There are 46 other death row inmates in the state prison.

The date setting also sets in motion the final series of appeals by the defendants.

Attorneys for the two men said they intended to use all possible avenues of appeal.

The Texas electric chair has not been used since July 30, 1964, when Joseph Johnson of Harris County (Houston) was executed for murder.

Fifteen missing after ship hits loaded ferry

LULING, La. (AP) — A Norwegian tanker crashed broadside into a fully loaded Mississippi River ferry today, capsizing the river boat and throwing many passengers and cars into the swift-moving river. Fifty persons were reported missing and officials said they did not expect to find more survivors.

Four bodies were recovered and 15 survivors were brought to a Luling hospital. Sheriff John St. Amant said he didn't think additional survivors will be found.

A witness on a rescue vessel said the 664-foot tanker Frostia "ran completely over the ferry ... pushed it upriver, flipped it over, and it started sinking."

Another witness said persons trapped in sinking vehicles screamed and shouted for help as their cars sank.

The ferry George Prince sank within 15 minutes and lay with only a portion of the hull sticking out of the muddy waters.

At least 20 survivors were pulled from the swift-running river by a sister ferry boat and taken to St. Charles General Hospital. Several were reported seriously injured.

"We saw the ship moving up the river, and the ship blew (its whistle) for the ferry four or five times, but the ferry just kept going," Wilds said.

Tolison did not see anyone in the door of the Nichols home, could not locate where all the vehicles were parked that night and did not hear a second shot.

Police did not contact Tolison that night or the next day.

IT WASN'T until Rick Hamby, special investigator for the district attorney, reached him about two weeks ago that Tolison spoke to any judicial or law enforcement officials about what he saw.

"I figured with a house full of people there they wouldn't need me," Tolison explained.

Tolison testified he had never been convicted of a felony, but several of the other witnesses had.

Bright said he was serving a sentence for possession of marijuana at the same time Mike Green and John Smith were in prison. (District Attorney Robert H. Moore III prosecuted Green when a jury assessed Green's punishment for sale of marijuana.)

Mrs. Nichols said she was serving probation for possession of marijuana, and her husband, Lloyd, another witness in the trial, served prison time for "possession of marijuana, I believe."

Several testified to seeing Ingram shoot Green at the door.

"Oh God, he's killed me this time," Green said, according to Miss Hollingsworth. "I'm gonna die. He's killed me."

The defense called two law enforcement representatives as its first witnesses.

In murder trial here

Ingram recalls surreal vision

By JOHN EDWARDS

The defendant's voice cracked today as he began describing a surreal vision he had when the victim was choking him.

Jay Doug Ingram, 26, a Vincent farmer, is being tried before a 118th District Court jury for the April 10, 1975, shotgun slaying of Michael Ralph Green.

"HE (GREEN) was choking me as hard as he could," Ingram testified. "The clouds parted ... A bright light came down out of the sky. Everything got real peaceful," Ingram said.

"About that time, it looked like he was looking up at the sky," Ingram continued.

"He let go with his hand, and I just started drifting back into myself, back into reality again," Ingram said. Green's pupils were dilated, and Green looked angry, Ingram said.

"Now, will you leave," Green said, according to Ingram.

"I said, my God, Mike, all I want to do is leave," Ingram said.

As he stumbled to his car, Ingram said he thought Green was chasing him.

"I just knew any second he was going to grab me," Ingram said.

Ingram said he got a shotgun he kept in his trunk to kill rattlesnakes on the farm but couldn't find the keys to his car.

"I couldn't see past the edge of the road," Ingram said. "I just wanted to get my keys to leave."

Green was coming out the door of 1217 Mobile, Ingram said.

"When I looked over there, I saw four shoulders," Ingram said. The edges of his vision were so blurred he could see little else, Ingram said.

"He was coming back to get me," Ingram said, sniffing and his eyes watering. "And I couldn't take any more."

"I didn't want to die," Ingram said.

"Mike stopped, and I pulled the trigger," Ingram said.

INGRAM'S TESTIMONY about conversation at the birthday party for Green differed from that of prosecution witnesses in several respects.

Ingram said he had a headache when he started drinking beer and took a tranquilizer belonging to his mother earlier in the day.

The 6-foot-five-inch blond told of stopping for a bottle of wine and being given a plastic bag of marijuana at a friend's house. Then, Ingram said, he went to the home of Lloyd and Donna Nichols.

Before the prosecution rested Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. Nichols confirmed her husband's testimony about being surprised when Ingram appeared at their house. "Yes sir, we'd asked everybody in town not to tell him where we lived."

"HE WAS PRETTY loaded, and he asked if he could stay and eat supper and go home," Mrs. Nichols said. But Ingram didn't go home, and birthday party guests began arriving.

"They (Ingram and Green) got into an argument over Jay Doug talking a real rude to Carol and everything and he was demanding she go and get him a beer," Mrs. Nichols said.

"What he was saying was making me sick," Miss Hollingsworth said.

Green asked Ingram to "step outside," Robert Bruce Bright, another guest at the party, said.

"It was close to dusk" when Green and Ingram began fighting with fists outside the Nichols' home, Bright said.

"If I let you up, will you leave?" Green asked Ingram, Bright recalled.

"Yes, let me up, I'll leave," Ingram replied, according to Bright.

"He (Ingram) was sort of crouched over," Bright said. "It looked like he was in a half trot to me."

MISS HOLLINGSWORTH said she talked to Green when he went back inside the house of 1217 Mobile, "but he never said a word to me. He never said a word until he went to the door and then he said, 'I'm going to do see that he's leaving.'"

"I grabbed him," Mrs. Nichols said. "I had both of my arms on his arm. I didn't want him to go back outside."

Herbert Wayne Tolison, who formerly lived across the street from the Nichols, testified he saw what happened next.

Tolison had gone outside to change the oil in his truck and saw a man he could not identify staggering toward a car.

"He opened the trunk and took out a rifle," Tolison said.

The unidentified man walked toward the Nichols house. "He stopped and brought it up, a deliberate movement," Tolison said.

"He fired and looked around," Tolison said. "I got a little spooky. So I ran into the house."

Panel seeking to disbar Yarbrough

HOUSTON (AP) — The grievance committee of the State Bar of Texas today filed a lawsuit in district court calling for the disbarment of Donald B. Yarbrough, the Democratic nominee for the State Supreme Court.

The suit accused Yarbrough of violating the code of professional responsibility and other offenses.

The lawsuit asks the court to bring Yarbrough, a 35-year-old Houston attorney, before a hearing that would "disbar, suspend, or reprimand, as the facts shall warrant."

The legal action filed in 113th District Court in Houston, said the acts and conduct of Yarbrough "violated the Code of Professional Responsibility, the Texas Securities Act, offenses against property and constitute fraudulent and dishonorable conduct of such nature as would warrant his discipline by judgment of this court."

Yarbrough was the surprise winner in the Democratic race for the State Supreme Court. Many political observers credited his victory to a similarity in names with Don Yarbrough, a widely-known Texas politician, and former U.S. Sen. Ralph Yarbrough.

The 40-page suit accuses Yarbrough of executing a scheme "to defraud Rex L. Cooper, (a Houston businessman) of $100,000; executed a scheme to defraud Douglas W. Ford (also of Houston); and scheming to defraud Joanne Masters of $25,000."

The suit also accused Yarbrough of conduct involving "dishonesty, fraud, deceit and misrepresentation" in several other cases.

The Grievance Committee listened to testimony concerning the Yarbrough case in September.

Yarbrough is opposed by two write-in candidates.

Mercury dips to record low, frost nips cotton

The mercury dipped to 30 degrees early this morning breaking a 60-year record for low temperature.

But the record was barely broken. Record low was 31 degrees set in 1916.

The Big Spring Experiment Station reported a light frost, as did F. M. Hamey, local farmer. Hamey stated that a killer frost could be spotted in certain low-lying regions.

Bill Reid, Lamesa, reported a "real good" frost in the area around his property. Cecil Allred of Ackerly reported that temperatures dropped to 28 degrees this morning, causing a significant frost.

Area cotton farmers will hold their breath, hoping that the frost will be strong enough to defoliate the mature plants naturally. This would make spraying unnecessary.

Carter's aunt to visit here

Heremity Gordy Dolvin, aunt of Democratic Presidential nominee Jimmy Carter, will be in Big Spring Thursday, campaigning for her nephew.

Local Democrats and Carter supporters will host a coffee and question-and-answer session for her, beginning at 2:30 p.m. at the Democratic Headquarters, 4th and Runnels.

All women's clubs have been invited to the reception, which is open to the public.

She will be greeting the public until about 3:45 p.m.

She was named Roswell Woman of the Year in 1966, won the Layman Award for Georgia Recreation Park Society, and was awarded the Jaycee Award in recognition for community service in 1973 and 1975.

Democrat leaders say everyone is invited to attend and talk to Heremity.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Merchants spared

Q. Why aren't local merchants used in the fur and diamond displays at the Big Spring Country Club each year at the annual benefit for the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center? Why are out of town firms used when local businesses could do it just as well?

A. Persons in charge of the Gala considered this, but ran into several problems. One was that the big city furriers and diamond merchants offered wholesale prices that were hard to resist and a percentage to the local benefit. If local merchants met this price, they might find a new problem in that many local charities would want to be considered during the year for the same price. Also, the Gala committee decided that the local merchants have their own projects and style shows during the year. Local artists hold shows during the year. And bringing in the outside talent and selections helps to draw a crowd for the event. The Gala committee also fully realizes that local merchants are called on over and over to donate to local charities without being called upon to give up their profit in yet another benefit.

Offbeat: Jet with throne room for sale

SEATTLE (AP) — The Boeing Co. is trying to sell a 747 with a throne room. The prospective buyer is King Khalid Bin Abdul Aziz of Saudi Arabia.

His would be the first 747 executive jet. The Boeing Co. has outfitted 707s, 727s and 737s as executive planes, but never the jumbo jetliner.

Boeing confirmed Monday that it has been negotiating with Saudi Arabia for a specially built and equipped 747SP (the letters stand for Special Performance) to serve as a flying palace for the king and his royal retinue. The 747SP is 47 feet shorter than the standard jumbo jet, with a range of 7,000 miles at high altitudes.

Few details are available on the selling points, but in addition to the throne room, the plane reportedly would be equipped with a hospital room wired for satellite communications with a Cleveland hospital.

Other executive planes have included such details as goldplated fixtures in the bathroom.

Winconsin top cranberry state

WASHINGTON (AP) — Traditional leader Massachusetts is back ahead of Wisconsin this season as the No. 1 producer of cranberries, with the total U.S. crop forecast at 2.26 million barrels, second largest on record.

The record crop of the native North American fruit was harvested five years ago. At the state level, if bad weather holds off, high marks are expected in Massachusetts, with 950,000 barrels, and Wisconsin, with 860,000, and New Jersey.

Energy

Cosden begins to feel it

Gas shortage evident

The natural gas shortage in America this winter is the leading edge of the coming energy crisis, a Cosden refinery engineer told the Big Spring Rotary Club Tuesday.

Dale Imanuel, a Cosden employee for two years, said that natural gas curtailments are hitting Cosden every winter.

If it is a cold winter this year, Cosden could have some curtailment problems, the University of Texas graduate in chemical engineering said.

Imanuel noted that each winter the shortfall on natural gas across the nation has been growing: from 14 per cent in 1974, to 18 per cent in 1975, to a projected 22 per cent cutback in natural gas in 1976.

He also noted that the U.S. has had mild winters during the past two years which have helped keep shortages from being even worse.

Imanuel said that Cosden got 50 per cent of its natural gas from Pioneer and about 50 per cent is self-produced.

Businesses feel the natural gas curtailments first, and if the winter is cold, the curtailments could be severe in some sections of the country, he said.

The nearest thing to a fuel crisis that will be visible this winter will be the natural gas shortages, Imanuel said. But he added that just because there are not long lines at the service stations does not mean it has gone away.

While worldwide energy use has been cut by 14.3 per cent, there also has been a worldwide recession since 1973, and now that the recession has ended demand is growing again, he said.

Most energy has been saved by industry, which uses most, he said. Cosden is spending "lots of money" streamlining its operation.

Imanuel had no good news for the energy consumer. He read from an article which predicted the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries will raise the oil price in from 5 to 15 per cent in December.

He also quoted an international energy organization as saying that the U.S. continues to price its energy below world market levels.

Imanuel, who was born in Houston and raised in Monahans, traced the nation's energy problems from the beginning of the industrial age to the present.

He discussed the 1930s when oil replaced coal, the 1950s when the U.S. started outgrowing its energy supplies, to 1970 which was the peak domestic production year.

Although the U.S. has only 6 per cent of the world's population, it consumes 33 per cent of the energy, he said, including a 200 per cent increase since 1955 in oil needs and a demand for electricity which is doubling every 10 years.

To keep the U.S. going, 35 million barrels of oil per day are required.

Imanuel said if one tries to visualize one day's worth, imagine Cosden's largest storage tanks (100,000 barrels) stacked on top of each other until they reached 3.3 miles high.

Imanuel said that while all of the oil processed at the Cosden refinery is West Texas sour crude, some of this is traded out. Cosden is connected with the gulf coast by a pipeline, but usually Arab oil is not moved up the pipeline to Cosden.

The West Texas sour crude is great for Cosden, Imanuel said, because Cosden is also handling chemicals, and there are more chemicals in the sour crude.

Indictments seen in bombing

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The chief prosecutor in the Don Bolles murder trial predicts that further indictments may be obtained soon in the bomb slaying of the investigative newspaper reporter.

With a jury expected to be seated by Friday, Maricopa County Attorney Donald Harris said he believes "five or six, maybe seven" more conspirators in Bolles assassination "are still at large."

"We're close. We're real close," Harris said Tuesday. John Harvey Adamson, a 32-year-old greyhound dog breeder, is charged with the gangland-style bombing murder of the Arizona Republic newsman. Bolles, 47, died 11 days after a charge of dynamite exploded through the floor of his car June 2.

Harris expressed fear that the unidentified suspects, who he said are "well-to-do," might pay to have Adamson eliminated. "People will do anything for a price," he said. "We're trying not to lose our one link in this case."

Jittery officials added another security measure at the courthouse on Tuesday. Glass doors near the courtroom were boarded up to prevent public view of Adamson when he is brought back and forth from his jail cell. Adamson also wears a bullet-proof vest when exposed to public view.

Superior Court Judge Frederick Heineman said he hopes to seat a jury by Friday to hear opening statements. At the end of Tuesday's closed-door jury selection, 12 of 87 prospects had been excused for hardship or prejudice.

Heineman, who has barred press and public from the first phase of the trial, said prospective jurors are being quizzed carefully because of "the extreme publicity" surrounding Bolles' slaying.

Halloween date changed

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP) — The Great Pumpkin and the "Good Book" don't mix in this Arkansas community.

The City Council passed a resolution Monday night declaring that Halloween will be held on Oct. 30 — a Saturday — instead of the traditional Oct. 31 — a Sunday.

Mayor Neil Stallings said he proposed the change because he wants the children in this Arkansas city of 27,000 to be able to go trick or treating Saturday night so they'll be free to attend church Sunday evening.

Weather

Cold temps recorded including Marfa's 19

By the Associated Press

Unseasonably cold weather, triggered by a cold front and a high pressure ridge, sent the mercury plunging to record lows at some cities and towns in the Lone Star state early today.

At Marfa, it was 19 several hours before the sun was expected to start warming the frigid Southwest Texas air. Temperatures were expected to reach the 60s and 70s over most of the state by mid-afternoon.

Other early morning readings around the state included 28 at Amarillo, 30 at Dalhart, 36 at Lufkin, 40 at Dallas, 38 at San Antonio, 47 at Corpus Christi, 39 at Houston and 56 at McAllen in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

Patches of light frost were reported in the Texas Hill Country and forecasters warned that even lower temperatures in that area by early Thursday might endanger tender vegetation.

Waco recorded 35 degrees at 6:30 a.m., breaking a record for the coldest Oct. 20 on record. The old record of 37 degrees was set in 1966. Wichita Falls also set a new record for so early in the season with a low of 33, breaking the previous record low of 35 set Oct. 7, 1952.

There was no cloud cover to help keep temperatures warmer over most of the state as the only clouds reported were in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

Forecasts called for clear skies and a warming trend during the day, but there were indications that even colder temperatures may be on tap for early Thursday.

Gas well abandonment denied by Phillips

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Southern Union Gas Co.'s applications to abandon natural gas service in 14 Phillips Petroleum Co. camps in the Borger area has been denied by the Texas Railroad Commission.

The commission also approved Tuesday a joint motion to dismiss the appeal of the Lone Star Gas Co. concerning its rates in Stephenville.

The dismissal followed a new Stephenville ordinance increasing general service rates for that city on Oct. 7.

In recommending denial of the Southern Union abandonment, the commission examiner, Tom Hill, noted that the gas company offered no proof at a July hearing that the 108 customers in the Panhandle camps would have a firm supply of propane, which Southern Union suggested as an alternative fuel source.

Hill also noted that the record does not indicate that Southern Union had exhausted all reasonable possibilities of locating another gas supplier.

In ordering continuation of the service, the commission said that such action was in the public interest. The order also provides that Southern Union shall not be obligated to provide any new gas service in the Phillips camps and may abandon service and remove residential facilities if written certification is obtained from Phillips or an individual owner that a residence will be abandoned and gas services is no longer required.

Chamber's action is laudable

I was happy to see the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce program more money for industrial development next year.

The chamber has increased the amount that it contributes to the Industrial Growth and Development division by about $150 for the coming year.

This could mean some very slight belt tightening in other areas of chamber work, but it should not mean much since the chamber income should be up with revised dues and the increase in membership.

The most important problem facing our town right now is jobs for our people.

Industrial development at this time in our city's history must be given the highest priority — second only to the fight to save Webb Air Force Base.

The bulk of the money contributed to the industrial development programs comes from the city of Big Spring. But the city's participation is limited by law to 1 per cent of its general fund, or $23,000, and that alone is not enough to sustain the aggressive program of industrial development which Big Spring needs.

THE REMAINDER should come from a reshuffling of chamber priorities, and I think no one disagrees that industrial development should be at the top of the priority list.

I also would like to see Howard County move towards contributing to the industrial effort.

The city council has been anxious to see the chamber commit as much money as it could to the effort, over and above the in-kind contribution of shared secretary, utilities and building rent.

Part of the misunderstanding about how much cash the chamber was committing to the industrial effort came because the budget submitted to the city on industrial development was in error.

THE CHAMBER has many worthwhile programs that it must pursue, but none are more vital to our community at this point in time than the industrial effort. I would not object if the 22 per cent of chamber dues which were spent on industrial development last year could be increased to 30 per cent or more.

Certainly, it is important that the industrial effort has enough funds to make it effective.

In approving more cash for the industrial efforts, the chamber directors are making a most wise decision.

Now the community must get out and work to turn this challenge into a success story.

Saving face

Around the rim

Candy Smith

Taking your flu shot is a matter of saving face, it's that simple.

Back in 1921 people were really afraid of "passing on" from the dread disease. As a matter of fact, they were dropping like swine.

IT WAS SWEET revenge for the sow populace. Driving by pastures, one could observe them stifling their giggles, rolling in the mud with hilarity and generally enjoying their final vendetta.

For it was only a few years earlier, in 1918, that the dirty, groveling humans had spread a new germ throughout the country, beginning with the Iowa State Fair. Naturally, human beings what they are, had to find a scapegoat for their blunder.

And so it became the lowly sow which took upon their shoulders the burden of guilt. They suffered obsequies from every passer-by. Indeed, the wrath of God was visited upon their humble souls and little sows knew what it was to be born with original sin.

The little pigs hid their snouts in shame and in horror, for some believed that they really had been the cause. Not that they cared whether those human bacon-makers kicked the bucket or not, but because sows themselves were subject to infection.

In the depths of despair, a local leader named Porky drew up a plan. It was to take approximately 58 years but the outcome would definitely be worth their while. Stealthily the pigs experimented until they found a vaccine. It killed and maimed many, but they would probably have died sooner or later, and this way they were glorified in the annals of sow history forever as martyrs.

The vaccine was distributed year after year until finally sows were no longer subject to the disease. Porky had long since passed away, but his son Hambone had carried out his wishes scrupulously.

THE DORMANT virus was brought out just at the right time in history.

Sows, having since the beginning of time an ability to foretell the future, had known for centuries that the Western world would be close to doom in the year 1976; November 2, 1976 to be exact.

The muddy little animals had them cornered. The lousy humans would die if they took the vaccine and they'd die if they didn't take it. And all this in the midst of an election. Hee, hee, hee, it was working too well to be true.

Politicians and physicians falling over each other assuring the country everything would soon be alright. "Yes," the sows would snicker, "when you're all six feet under and we rule the pasture."

The country was falling. Newspapers, the gage of sanity in civilization, were running stories side by side, here professing their would be no serious side-effects and there reporting three deaths following vaccination.

Mankind would do well to take a lesson from the sow, especially now that they no choice. It doesn't matter now, so accept your fate with dignity. Take your flu shot and save face. Yours and the governments.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am sure I have read somewhere in the Bible that before the end of time it will not be possible to tell summer from winter except by the leaves on the trees. Please tell me where this reference is found? — P. V.

DEAR P.V.: There is a very wonderful promise that God made in the days of Noah and it is to stand for all time: "While the earth remaineth, seed time and harvest, and cold and heat, and summer and winter, and day and night shall not cease" (Genesis 8:22). We can be sure, therefore, that there is no suggestion in the Bible that summer and winter will cease before the end of time.

There are, however, many references in the Bible to signs in the sky (and particularly in relation to the sun) that will be seen in the very last days. These do not mean the end of summer or winter, but will be strange occurrences in the skies that everyone will see. They will be indications that the Lord is about to return.

Jesus referred to these signs: "There shall be signs in the sun, and in the moon, and in the stars; and upon the earth distress of nations... for the powers of heaven shall be shaken, and then shall they see the Son of man coming in a cloud with power and great glory" (Luke 21:25-27).

In his sermon on the day of Pentecost, Peter said: "The sun shall be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood, before that great and notable day of the Lord come" (Acts 2:20). We do well to watch for the signs in the skies, while at the same time trusting in God to keep his promise concerning the continuance of summer and winter for as long as man needs such changes in the seasons for his harvests.

When Christ has returned and His Kingdom is established and we are living in eternity and not in time, there will be no need for seasons or for the sun and moon: "The city had no need of the sun neither of the moon, to shine in it: for the glory of God did lighten it, and the Lamb is the light thereof" (Revelations 21:23).

Pap test is not infallible

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Does a Pap test reveal the presence of cancer in the fundus of the uterus, or just of the cervix?

I am in my late 50s and for the past several months have had an almost clear vaginal discharge. There have been times, however, when it is a bright pink or a light red.

Years ago I was told I had a fibroid tumor. I was told would probably shrink at menopause. My doctor sees nothing wrong with the cervix, and the Pap test is negative. Should I be concerned? — Mrs. A.B.

The fundus is the upper part of the uterus, where it broadens out. The cervix is the narrower portion below it near the vagina.

A Pap test of the cervix can show changes in the fundus. The smear reveals any cancerous cells sloughed off.

The pinkish discharge is significant. Its cause should be determined, preferably by a D and C to see if there are any changes in the lining of the uterus. In short you could have suspicious cells in the fundus that would not show a positive Pap smear. No test is 100 per cent foolproof, although the Pap test is remarkably reliable.

It is true that fibroids tend to become smaller at menopause. Hormone therapy could be a factor in your problem. I am more concerned about the source of the pink to red discharge.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been doctoring for high blood pressure for about 12 years. I am now 60. A year and a half ago my doctor put me on water pills. I was told to drink a glass of orange juice or eat a banana a day to keep certain chemicals in my body.

Recently I had a kidney infection. The doctor (a new one) told me to stop taking the water pills and he told me I could not drink enough orange juice to keep the chemicals in my body. I'm confused and would like to know which doctor is right. — Mrs. H.B.

The water pills were to help your body rid itself of liquids, which was a part of your original high blood pressure problem. But while doing this such pills can remove much of the vital chemicals (as potassium) from the body. Thus the orange juice or banana suggestion. Both fruits are rich in potassium.

Diuretics generally are not advised for patients with a kidney infection. A new approach will have to be found, probably a combination of diet (salt restrictions, etc.) and blood pressure pills. The important thing now is to clear up the kidney problem. If you have frequent urination because of the kidney infection you may need some form of potassium supplement. The bananas would be fine, but there are pill supplements your doctor can prescribe.

Until the status of your kidney is determined, your doctor will have to concentrate on that problem.

How is it now?

William F. Buckley, Jr.

PANAMA CITY — For those antiquarians who cherish an occasional vignette of the kind which in better days would stir the blood of free men, here is one the hero of which is a Panamanian banker.

For reasons irrelevant to the story, this young businessman had a mission to transact with Fidel Castro, and the contacts to arrange for a meeting with him. He made his arrangements to go.

BUT THESE arrangements are to be distinguished from those apparently made by the typical visitor to Cuba from the United States, whether Congressman or civil servant or journalist. The visitor put all other cares aside and spent an entire fortnight familiarizing himself with the Cuba from which Fidel Castro — it is now being all but universally said — rescued the people. He was sophisticated enough to know that for years the Russian Communists quieted western apprehensions by reciting the horrors of life under the czars.

Recent studies establish that the period of greatest growth in virtually every direction in Russia was during the first 15 years of this century. But all Communist arguments are orchestrated around the conditions in Russia in 1917, and those in Russia today. It is not even asked what would Russia under the czars have done between 1917 and 1976 in the absence of Lenin and his successors. It is as if a comparative view of industrial history were conducted by a professor who remarked that in 1917, only one in 40,000 Americans owned an automobile, whereas in the Soviet Union nowadays, there is an automobile for every 500 people.

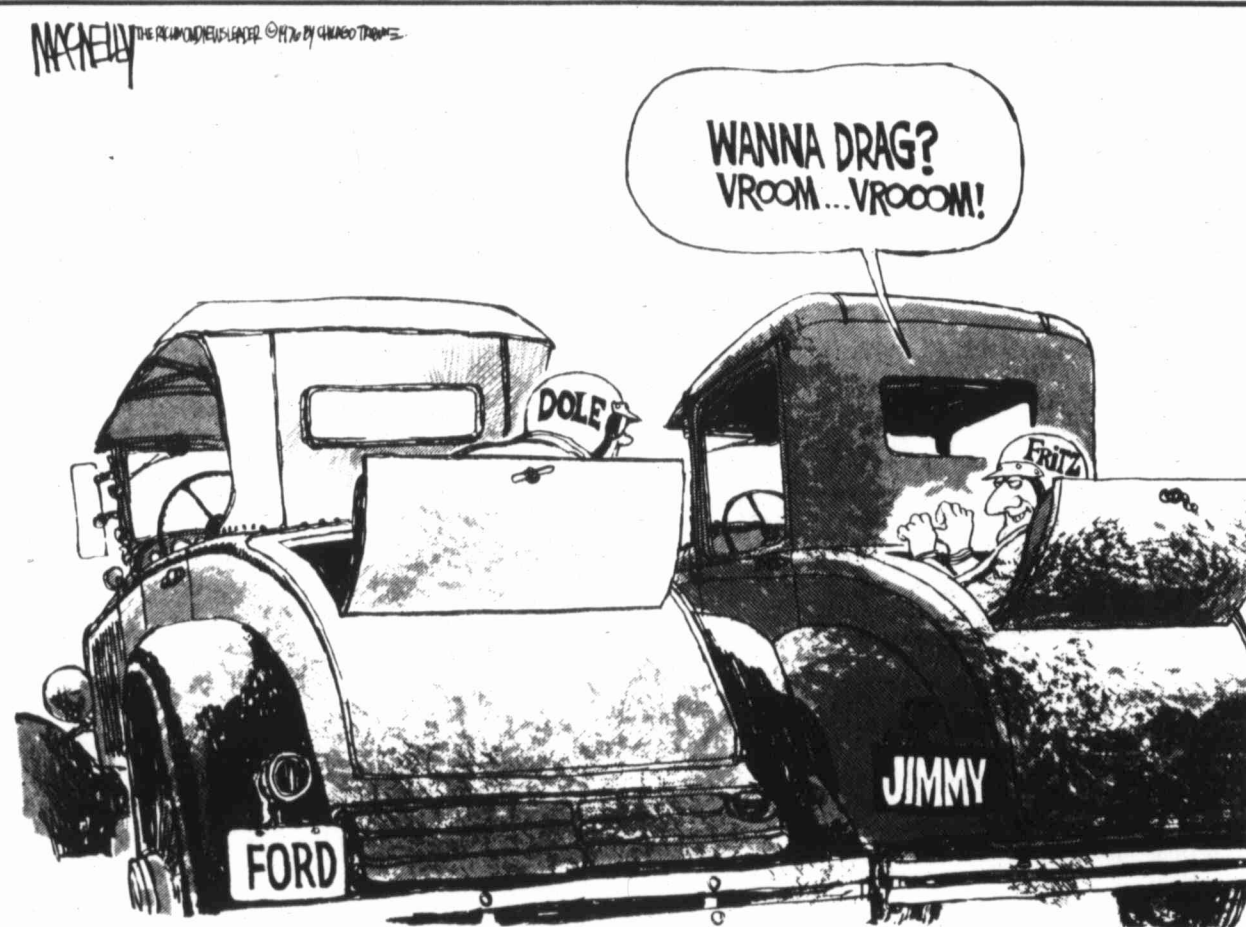

Having done his historical homework, the banker visited with Cuban refugees, getting from them in detail figures, descriptions, locations. On arriving in Havana, he knew that Castro would play his seigniorial game of refusing to indicate an hour for the scheduled conference. He took accordingly two precautions. He devoted his time to touring Havana and the countryside demanding that his official guide stop the car at this school, or at that grocery store, or at this medical clinic; and into the memory bank the descriptions were stored: How it was now, almost 20 years after Castro's takeover; compared with how it was then.

THE SECOND precaution was to train the body. "Mens sana in corpore sano." Castro, like Stalin — whose legitimate son he is — rejoices in midnight conferences. They suit, to begin with, Castro's personal habits. They are, moreover, psychologically intimidating. Stay up until midnight doing whatever you do in the evening hours, get awakened by a knock on the door at two in the morning with the news that Castro is expecting you at that moment, and you are not likely to be at your best.

The visitor, anticipating that Castro could not postpone much longer the interview, went to bed at 8 p.m. — and indeed, at two in the morning, in the safe house where he had been told to stay, the knock came to inform him that Castro was in the east wing.

With, incredibly, very nearly all of his cabinet. He likes that kind of thing. The full court, any hour of the day or of the night; and the conversations began.

In thinking back to when something of the sort happened to another dictator, one can only think of the great moment when Stalin, at a reception in Moscow, was accosted by Lady Astor who asked when he was going to stop killing people. Castro swaggered in with the kind of stuff that overwhelms American senators and Latin American archbishops; and he found he had run into a stone wall.

Dear Editor:

I was once a Democrat, but not any more, having read the Democratic Platform which encourages these programs:

1. The Democratic Platform endorses repeal of the Right-to-Work law.

2. The Democratic Platform states that union agitators can come on private property without any recourse of the law.

3. The Democratic Platform endorses to take guns away from the American people on some pretext or other and leave American people helpless.

4. The Democratic Party has stated that it wants to introduce 32 new spending bills.

Compare this platform with this excerpt taken from a file on "Communist Rules for Revolution", which was obtained by the Armed Forces in Dusseldorf in May 1919. It might explain some of today's happenings.

B. Get control of all means of publicity and thereby:

1. Get people's minds off their government by focusing their attention on athletics, sexy books and plays, and other trivialities.

2. Divide the people into hostile groups by constantly harping on controversial matters of no importance.

3. Destroy the people's faith in their natural leaders by holding the latter up to contempt and ridicule.

4. Always preach true democracy but seize power as fast and as ruthlessly as possible.

5. By encouraging government extravagance, destroy its credit, produce fear of inflation with rising prices and general discontent.

6. Forment unnecessary strikes in vital industries, encourage civil disorders, and foster a lenient and soft attitude on the part of government toward such disorders.

Dear Editor:

President Ford is continually referring to an error of Jimmy Carter in regard to tax revision even though Ford had been sent a personal message correcting the original intent. It seems that Mr. Ford has made many more errors not given the repetitive references by the Democratic nominee. It looks like a repeat of the "Nixon dirty tricks," and the National Republican Chairman electing Nixon, with his dirty tricks, was the present Republican nominee for V.P., Sen. Dole. In the recent debate Dole preferred to make caustic remarks and try to appear cute rather than answer the questions presented him on a factual basis.

I think people need to look a little deeper into the character of the candidates. Jimmy Carter has presented his financial accounting, showing contributions from all segments of the state of Georgia when he was elected their Governor. Ford has steadfastly refused to do so regarding money received by him during his campaigns in Michigan and only replies that he had done that when interrogated by the Committee investigating him when he was selected for vice president and was cleared. Why does he not reveal exactly what the Seafarers and Marine Engineers gave him? He admitted in his press conference that he used money from his campaign funds to pay personal accounts and for a trip to his ski lodge at Vail, Colo. at a time when his personal account did not have sufficient funds. Ford seems to feel nothing was wrong since he paid it back. Can we afford to have a man like this in the White House who actually took funds improperly and admits it and tries to justify it on the basis of repayment? The act was still illegal.

What's going on between Ford and the Teamsters Union? Ford sent a member of his Cabinet to the recent Teamsters Convention who praised the Teamsters' organization. The former Democratic Atty. General Bob Kennedy, after investigating and trying their president, Jimmy Hoffa, sent him to prison. During the Ford-Nixon era he was paroled. During Hoffa's parole time he was campaigning for Teamsters' presidency to unseat Fitzsimmons and seeking a pardon from the Republican President, but he was kidnapped and no trace has been found of him. The Teamsters' President Fitzsimmons has been questioned severely about Hoffa's disappearance. Will the FBI now stop seeking evidence since Fitzsimmons supports Ford?

The Teamsters' Central Pension fund has been found to have been operated in an illegal manner by lending money to organized crime in the amount of more than 300 million dollars (Wall Street Journal 1-15-76). These loans it was alleged were also accompanied by "kick-backs, bribes, illegal commission and excessive fees," so states the law suit.

U.S., Britain, France veto U.N. sanctions

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — African diplomats say the triple Western veto of sanctions against South Africa places a new responsibility on the United States, Britain and France to bring about the independence of South-West Africa.

"The burden on these countries is much more serious now that once again they have protected South Africa in the Security Council," said Ambassador Salim A. Salim of Tanzania, a leader of the black Africans' U.N. battle against white rule in South Africa.

The three permanent Western members of the Security Council on Tuesday vetoed a resolution calling for a ban on arms sales to South Africa for its failure to relinquish control of South-West Africa, or Namibia, as it is known in the United Nations.

U.S. Ambassador William W. Scranton and British delegate James Murray said they opposed sanctions because sensitive consultations were under way with the South African government on the future of the territory, and an embargo might disrupt these.

The French representative, Jacques Lecompt, said he knew nothing of these negotiations, but he argued that because he and other members of the council are not fully informed on the negotiations, this should prevent the council from taking action against South Africa.

The resolution got 10 affirmative votes, or two-thirds of the council membership, from Sweden, the Soviet Union, China and the seven sponsors, Benin, Libya, Tanzania, Guyana, Panama, Romania and Pakistan. Japan and Italy abstained.

It was the third triple veto by the Western powers in support of South Africa and the second against sanctions.

The African resolution charged that South Africa had failed to meet the council's demand that it agree to a U.N. referendum in South-West Africa by Aug. 30 to determine the future of the territory.

But at the heart of the debate was the question whether Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger had prevailed on South African Prime Minister John Vorster during his recent African shuttle to negotiate with the South-West African People's Organization (SWAPO). The United Nations recognizes SWAPO as the "legitimate representative" of the people in the territory, but Vorster's government refuses to deal with it and has been working out an independence agreement with tribal chiefs and other black leaders.

After his return from southern Africa, Kissinger told the General Assembly that "progress has been made" toward achieving U.N. goals in South-West Africa. The council debate had begun on Aug. 31, and the Africans marked time, saying they were waiting for "tangible evidence" of the progress Kissinger claimed. Last Friday, they said they had seen no such evidence and would wait no longer.

A CAPITOL TRIP — Mrs. Dene Sheppard and four VA volunteers will represent Big Spring and Texas at a Washington conference this weekend. If their accents don't give them away, the cotton bolls and cactus plants they plan to hand out will. From the left, Kathy Huskey, Connie Sheppard, Dene Sheppard, Denise Ayers and Tammy Plew.

VA volunteer group Washington-bound

Not one of them is named Smith, but the trip to Washington will be a memorable experience for each.

Going to the 30th anniversary observance of the Veterans Administration Voluntary Services, National Advisory Committee are four representatives from Big Spring. They, along with Mrs. Dene Sheppard and Mrs. Lois Meiselman are the only Texas representatives to the meeting.

Denise Ayers, Tammy Plew, Connie Sheppard, and Kathy Huskey left today for the Capitol and plan to return Sunday. The workshop they will attend in Washington will be made up of youth volunteers throughout the nation.

Also in attendance at the meeting will be the Chiefs of Voluntary Services at 171 VA hospitals from across the country, adult volunteers, and National Representatives of service organizations.

The Big Spring delegation is well prepared for all these non-Texans. The delegation will be carrying packets from the local Chamber of Commerce, bolls of cotton, cactus plants, handouts from the highway department on Texas, and packets from the Dallas Chamber of Commerce.

They will have some large posters depicting scenes of Texas and a large map of the state with a star to mark Big Spring.

They will each be wearing special Big Spring T-shirts. Planned activities in Washington include a tour of the White House Saturday morning, as well as a monument Saturday afternoon.

The four earned their way to Washington by serving as volunteers at the VA hospital. They had to be selected by the staff to attend.

The reason they are able to go is the generosity of the VA voluntary services, which is footing the bill for transportation and hotel costs.

Mrs. Sheppard, chief of voluntary services at the hospital said, "We feel it will be a rewarding and educational trip, with a chance for our youth to exchange ideas with other youth volunteers and to tour the capital during the Bicentennial year."

That's all just fancy talk for being very excited. Ms. Sheppard has never been to Washington, either.

Boycott resumes, court battle lost

PORT GIBSON, Miss. (AP) — For 12 white merchants who won a $1.2-million judgment against a black boycott, the future holds dreams of prosperity, but the present is a time of more economic hardship.

The merchants hope the courts eventually will force the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) to pay the judgment. But, meanwhile, blacks have clamped another boycott on Port Gibson's small but normally busy main street in retaliation for the legal fight.

W.P. Gordon, mayor of this town of 3,000 persons, says he doubts the merchants will ever see a dime of the judgment.

U.S. District Court Judge Orma Smith is expected to rule Thursday on one facet of the legal fight — whether the NAACP must put up $1.56-million bond in order to file an appeal to the state Supreme Court.

Under state law, a loser who wants to block collection while carrying on the legal fight must post bond to cover judgment and costs. Actually, there are 129 other losers in the case, but only the NAACP could possibly raise that kind of money.

"I think if they could get together out of court and raise enough money to just pay off the lawyers, that would be the best thing that could happen," Gordon said.

The merchants were awarded $1.2 million in damages allegedly suffered by an illegal secondary boycott in 1967, staged by the NAACP and area blacks to focus attention on their demands for jobs and changes in local government. The merchants described the boycott as a wartime blockade.

The court ruled, in effect, that the protest was political and should have been directed against municipal officials, not the merchants. Protest leaders, however, maintained that many of the merchants were in fact the municipal leaders of Port Gibson.

Most of the defendants in the case were picketers or boycott leaders back in 1967 and rank as poor people.

"If they collected everything owned by every black person in Claiborne County they wouldn't have no $1.2 million," said the Rev. Eddie Wall, a black Baptist minister.

The new boycott was called by Charles Evers, former candidate for governor, mayor of nearby

Fayette, and one of the few black defendants with anything to lose.

"We're not going to buy anything until they quit trying to sue us," said the Fayette businessman. "I know it might cost me, but I can't stop because I might lose a few dollars. If we stop now our struggle has been done in vain."

"They are killing this town," said Waddy Abraham, 65, a grocer. "If you don't have good, prosperous merchants, you don't have no town."

If the judgment stands, Abraham would be due $142,217 in damages — some of it presumably collected from former pickets who, though they have little to lose, had to be included among the defendants to make the suit valid.

"All these defendants, I don't know how they wound up in the case," he said. "We were not out to harm the local folks, we were after the NAACP and the big boys."

Y will buy van soon

The local YMCA board approved the purchase of a new van for use in future programs at Monday's meeting of the Y Board of Directors.

Though plans for purchase of the van were made, officials will have to wait until funds are available to go ahead with the project.

The van will be used to bus children from across the city for a variety of programs at the central YMCA, 801 Owens. The van will also be used by the Y gymnastics team, the swim team, on Tri-Hi-Y trips to Austin and a variety of outreach programs.

A bid for the van submitted by a local dealer was accepted by the board.

In other business, board members decided to hold another Y-sponsored, open dance in the gym following the Steer football game Friday. The dance will be held from 11 p.m. to 1 a.m. Admission is $1.

Sandy Burroughs was named as new office manager for the Y, replacing Jan Smith who moved up to the position of program director.

Plans are also being considered for men's and women's basketball programs for the near future. The men's program would consist primarily of church league play.

He's too slick
with his chick

DEAR ABBY: I hope you print this so a certain guy will see it and realize a few things.

I have this buddy who's going steady with this super chick. But he treats her like dirt. He's been going out on her with his ex-girlfriend, for example.

I think a lot of this chick and would love to take her out myself but not while she's going with my buddy. Abby, if he loves her as much as he says, why doesn't he spend more time with her? (She really loves the guy and is being hurt by all this.)

Sooner or later, someone else is going to come along and she's going to leave. It'll be too late for him and me both. What can I do to help out?

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: Tell your buddy what's happening. Lay it on the line. If he doesn't get the message, it will be open season on chicks, buddy or no buddy.

DEAR ABBY: You recently nixed the idea of a college son bringing home a girl he's living with on campus, and sharing a bedroom with her under the parental roof. You said the girl would be a guest and should live by the rules for such.

Parents who would impose such conditions are kidding no one but themselves. My middle- and upper-middle-class friends who are parents would disagree with you on the bedroom issue. Pursue that policy, and the grown kids won't come home at all!

I know of some parents who "disowned" adult children who live with lovers. The parents wound up alone and bitter, eating their hearts out over their estranged children.

In their hearts, parents would prefer the company of their children—lovers and all—to cold, righteous loneliness.

MOST PEOPLE

DEAR MOST: Sorry, but I don't think parents should be asked to turn themselves inside out culturally or morally to accept the lifestyles of their children. Each generation should give a little in bridging the old and the new ideas and values.

DEAR ABBY: You and I see eye to eye when it comes to visiting the sick. I've put these thoughts into ten commandments which might be helpful to your readers:

1. Always call first.
2. Never come early. And if you're going to be late, call and ask if it's convenient to come later.
3. Keep your conversation cheerful. Never bring bad news or talk about sickness and death.
4. Don't tell long-winded stories about people the person doesn't know.
5. Don't ask for details about the person's illness.
6. If the person appears tired, make an excuse and leave early.
7. Don't bring small children.
8. Don't smoke.
9. Don't make promises you can't keep.
10. Don't stay and expect to be served a meal.

HELPFUL

DEAR HELPFUL: Your commandments are indeed helpful to patients recuperating at home. The biggest favor you can do hospital patients is to send them cards. They need rest—not company.

Gala evening to feature known artists

Two of the many featured artists to arrive in Big Spring next week to show their work will be Albert Richardson and Gary Myers.

Both Myers and Richardson reside in New Mexico and use Southwestern culture and tradition as a major force in their works. One, Richardson, is a native of New Mexico. Myers took his family and talent to New Mexico less than two years ago.

Albert Richardson, from Ruidoso Downs, New Mexico, is a sculptor with a message. A message of naturalness and simplicity depicting his memories of the Mexican-American way of life.

Born in Arabela, New Mexico, a small ranching community in the foothills of the Capitan Mountains, Albert was the fourth of twelve children. Richardson, in his work, "A Way of Life As I Remember It," depicts this setting. "Living at the fast pace of today's world, I find I must slow down and record a piece of the Mexican-American role in Southwest history. I dedicate my art to the preservation of a part of the lives of the people who are so much a part of me," Richardson has said.

One of Albert's works, "Los Musicos," depicts a lively group of country musicians, three separate guitar players and a dog. "Miguel," the guitar player; "Felipe," the fiddler; and "Thomas," the mandolin player, are fashioned from a memory as a small boy in the Hondo Valley.

Albert's talent has been recognized only in the last few years. "This will be my second time to show in the state of Texas. So far I've completed nine pieces. I'm currently working on two new ones — an Indian woman and a longhorn cow with her calf." His works include "El Jinete," (Bronc Rider), "Dona Dorotea," (midwife), "La Varsoviana," (Put your little foot dancers), "The Trail Boss," "Texas Long Horn Bull," and a goose lifting off the water.

All of Albert's original sculptures are fashioned in clay, then cast in editions of 20 to 30, by the almost lost wax process. Much of the finished bronze work is done by Albert himself.

Gary Myers is a gambler. He says he took the biggest gamble of his life in 1975 resigning from a financially comfortable job as a large Oklahoma City advertising agency and moving with his family to Ruidoso, New Mexico, in hopes of becoming a western artist.

"The gamble paid off," said Myers, now one of the most popular and successful members of the new breed of western artists.

Since devoting himself full-time to his painting, Myers said he has shown in the Royal Western Watercolor Show and the Solon Borglum Sculpture Exhibition, both in the National Cowboy Hall of Fame, Oklahoma City.

His painting entitled "Racing Saddle" won first prize for watercolors at the five-state competition held in conjunction with the 1975 New Mexico State Fair. The painting was also featured on the Stallion Register cover of Quarter Racing World Magazine.

Another Myers painting recently appeared on the cover of Quarter Horse World. The Quarter Horse Journal also recently purchased the right to use one of his watercolors on the cover of an upcoming issue.

Two Myers paintings are featured in the Big Chief Headdress Collection of Oklahoma, which is now touring the country as part of America's Bicentennial celebration.

In addition, he has traveled over 3,000 miles researching a series of paintings commissioned by the Kerr-McGee Corporation as a result of the commission. Myers works have appeared in nationwide publications including Time and Newsweek.

Internationally Gary traveled with the Oklahoma Artists to the Germany Exhibition, sponsored by Marlboro, and was recently chosen to show with American painters in Paris.

Myers also participates in annual shows in California, Montana, Washington, Arizona, Nebraska, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Texas. His unique interpretations in the medium of watercolor have caught the attention of discriminating collectors and critics alike.

Myer's work is an experience or the very essence of the western heritage.

Give turkey

sneak preview

You don't have to wait until Thanksgiving to put a turkey in the oven.

With turkeys presently in bountiful supply according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA), now is a good time to give the big bird an early debut and to try out some new stuffings.

Marketing specialists with the USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service report new crop marketings of turkeys in October are running about 10 per cent over a year ago, and the supply of turkeys in cold storage is up about 7 per cent.

Potatoes are also on the USDA plentiful foods lists, so you might want to try a grated potato stuffing for a sure winner.

LARGEST MARIJUANA SEIZURE — Coast Guardmen Peter Munro (L) and Kenneth Stone check over packages of marijuana in the forward hold of the Panamanian freighter Don Emelio in Miami Beach, Fla. Tuesday. Three tried for WWII crimes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nightmare of wartime Europe will be relived in three U.S. courtrooms next month as federal authorities and to present testimony from witnesses.

Provisions are noted

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) today announced additional major provisions of the 1977 upland and Extra Long Staple (ELS) cotton programs.

The hearings before federal immigration judges in New Britain, Conn., Baltimore and New York City will be, in effect, this country's first trials for crimes committed during World War II.

The charges mark a turning point in the government's efforts to track down and deport Nazi war criminals living in the United States.

In these cases and others to come, government lawyers are relying on the memories of Jews who watched in horror as their friends and neighbors were beaten and slain by the hundreds in prisons and concentration camps.

About 20 who escaped the persecution and now live in Israel will be brought to the United States to testify in the three hearings, said Verne

The cities of Coahoma, Gail and Lamesa have received permits from the Texas Department of Health Resources for landfills.

A permit was issued to Coahoma for an 11.02 acre landfill 1.3 miles south of the south city limits of Coahoma at the south terminus of a country road.

The City of Lamesa was issued a permit for 105.45-acre landfill at the south city limits of Lamesa. The site is .4 of a mile southwest of US 87, .5 of a mile east of SH 137 and .5 of a mile north of FM 2052 in Dawson County.

Scott Whiteside, manager of one of the stores, said Friday a middle-aged man, dressed in work clothes, paid for the 240 magazines at $1.50 each plus 4 per cent sales tax.

A man answering to the same description then went to another bookstore and purchased its stock of 218 "Playboy" magazines, said Donald Cates, a clerk.

It was reported by Dr. Hays that the coliseum is about 12 per cent complete with 45,000 pound beams going up this week. It is expected to be completed by October 1977.

He also warned the board that the Speaker of the House has come out against funding outlying extension centers for colleges, which would hurt Howard College's extension program in Lamesa and San Angelo.

The board approved Foundation By-Laws and Articles of Incorporation for a foundation to which grants may be given for the college. It was approved, subject to approval by an attorney.

Dr. Charles McCamant was named administrative dean rather than head of adult continued education and financial aids director. The salary will be the same.

IN THE LANDSCAPE report, Dr. Hays mentioned some consideration of closing off Adams Street, which runs from Birdwell Lane to the football field in front of the college Union building.

This would fan out traffic on to Kentucky Way and 11th Place during ballgames and other activities. City Manager Harry Nagel told the college president that it is a dedicated city street and could not be closed without a public hearing. No action was taken.

K. H. McGibbon reported on the meeting of the Association of Community College Trustees in St. Louis which was attended by Dr. Warren, Dr. Hays, Mrs. Johnnie Lou Avery and McGibbon.

Board members present Tuesday included Dr. P. W. Malone, Jimmy Taylor, Don McKinney, Davis, McGibbon and Warren. Administrators attending included Ben Johnson, Dr. Bobby Wright, Mike Bruner, Dr. Hays, Dr. McCamant, and Mrs. Avery.

By using lignite coal to generate electricity, Texas Electric will be saving its customers $44 million in 1976.

We've turned to lignite because natural gas, our main fuel, is running out. New supplies of gas just aren't available in the huge quantities we need. Those supplies that are available have soared in cost.

'Too much for contract' New look at tax problem

A discussion of tax appraisal and tax collections, plans for a committee to devise policies for the coliseum and awarding of two bids were the main items of business before the Howard College board Tuesday.

Dr. Charles Hays discussed with the board the recent tax appraisal meeting. He told the group that "I feel obligated to always be seeking the best for the college. I think that we are paying too high a percentage for tax assessment and collection. This is why we have been investigating other possibilities."

HE EXPLAINED to the board that the city, Big Spring schools and the college have been considering using the college computer system and joining together in tax collection. "I think we would save close to $15,000," he told the board.

He and Harold Davis, board member who serves on the appraisal board, said that the county now wishes to make an offer for handling all four services. This will be considered at the next appraisal group meeting.

The board agreed that information from the next tax appraisal meeting be brought back to the board for further consideration as to what route would be best both for the college and for the taxpayer as a whole.

In other business, the board agreed to allow Dr. Charles Warren to appoint a committee to devise policies and procedures governing coliseum operation. The committee would be subject to board approval. It is expected to include some members to be named by the Chamber of Commerce.

In other action, the board approved a pickup bid on the low bid on a 3/4 ton pickup which went to Bob Brock Ford at $4,660.35. Other bids includes Dewey Ray, Inc., $5,371.14; Jimmy Hopper Toyota, $4,959.72 and Pollard Chevrolet, $4,815.00.

The board awarded steel bids for a room adjacent to the cafeteria for club meetings to Central Texas Iron Works of Abilene on the low bid of $4,975. Other bids included W & W Steel, Lubbock, $4,980; Alamo Steel and Machine, Waco, $5,700 and Roberson Steel, Inc., Lubbock, $5,053.

It was reported by Dr. Hays that the coliseum is about 12 per cent complete with 45,000 pound beams going up this week. It is expected to be completed by October 1977.

This doesn't mean rates will go down. But we will be able to keep increases in your electric bills as low as possible.

By using lignite coal to generate electricity, Texas Electric will be saving its customers $44 million in 1976.

We've turned to lignite because natural gas, our main fuel, is running out. New supplies of gas just aren't available in the huge quantities we need. Those supplies that are available have soared in cost.

In 1976 the lignite plants that use it will cost less than new natural gas alone. Here's how:

FAMILIAR SCENE — It's Gregory Peck, not Gen. Douglas MacArthur, coming ashore on a Pacific beach. If the photo looks familiar, perhaps it is because the one of Peck and the one of MacArthur really landing in the Philippines were taken by the same man, Roger Wrenn was shooting for Yank Magazine back in 1945. Tuesday, the 61-year-old Wrenn was covering the filming of the movie "MacArthur" for his present employer, the San Diego Union. He said the mock invasion did cause memories to come rushing back.

Medal of honor winner to speak here Monday

Veteran's day celebrations at the VA Hospital will begin at 1 p.m. Monday. The celebrations will honor especially Medal of Honor recipients throughout the country, culminating in the dedication of a Live Oak tree to "America's Medal of Honor recipients who helped make this Bicentennial observance possible 'by gallantry above and beyond the call of duty.'"

Featured speaker will be Col. Merlyn A. Dethlefsen, Deputy Commander for Operations with the 96th Bombardment Wing at Dyess AFB. Colonel Dethlefsen received the Medal of Honor while flying a Wild Weasel mission over North Vietnam in 1967. He earned his wings in 1955 at Harlingen AFB.

Thirty-nine color TV sets will be presented to the hospital by W. T. Evans, VAVS representative and member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. The TV sets are a gift of the VA volunteer organizations.

The program will be opened by Betty Coffee,

COL. M. A. DETHLEFSEN

master of ceremonies, in front of the hospital.

Musical selections by the Big Spring High School Band under the direction of Bill Bradley will follow.

GD unveils F16 fighter

FORT WORTH (AP) — General Dynamics Corp. unveiled its new $6 million F16 fighter for an international audience here today, with U.S. Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld giving the opening address.

Representatives from Belgium, Denmark, Norway and the Netherlands took their first glance at the newest addition to the United States' air arsenal. Each country has agreed to purchase the plane for their NATO forces, but they had seen only prototypes before today.

The new planes cost about $6.1 million each and are designed to carry about 10,700 pounds of bombs, missiles and cannon.

When General Dynamics was given the U.S. Air Force contract to build the plane, it was forecast that by 1978 almost 12,000 persons would be needed to work at the Fort Worth plant.

In addition, the program is expected to generate up to 65,000 new jobs nationwide because more than half of the plane's components are subcontracted by other firms.

Highlighted by Missouri-Nebraska

Top College teams vie Saturday

NEW YORK (AP) — Will the real Missouri Tigers please stand up?

Will the team that takes the field Saturday against third-ranked Nebraska be the fighting Tigers who defeated Southern Cal and Ohio State or the pussycats who lost to Illinois and Iowa State?

For yourself since the key Big Eight contest will be televised nationally by ABC-TV.

Besides being a matchup of two ranked teams — Missouri is No. 17 this week — it also features a head-to-head meeting of two of the nation's top passers, Nebraska's Vince Ferragamo and Steve Pisarkiewicz of Missouri.

But for those who like to watch football where games are really won and lost — in the pits — keep an eye on the opposing tackles when Missouri has the ball.

Morris Towns, 260, and James Taylor, 255, will be blocking against Mike Fultz, 275, and Ron Pruitt, 247. All are highly coveted by the pros.

Nebraska thinks Fultz and Pruitt are the best defensive tandem around. Missouri feels the same way about Towns and Taylor on offense.

There should be some headknocking going on. The in-and-out, up-and-down, unpredictable Tigers have made a believer out of this corner. Upset Special of the Week... Missouri 20-17.

Last week's score was 47 right, 20 wrong and two ties for a .701 percentage. For the season, it's 285-116-10—711.

Notre Dame at South Carolina: The Irish haven't allowed a touchdown in four games and the Gamecocks, who cracked the Top Twenty this week for the first time, haven't been scoring much against good defenses... Notre Dame 28-7.

Arkansas at Houston: Houston has this nasty habit of knocking off Southwest Conference foes and the Cougars are thinking Cotton, as in Bowl... Houston 27-17.

Michigan at Indiana: The Hoosiers have won three of their last four, the only setback a three-pointer to North Carolina State. They're getting there, but Michigan is already there... Michigan 35-14.

Pitt at Navy: Touchdown Tony Dorsett needs 152 yards to pass Archie Griffin and become college football's all-time leading rusher. Navy blanked the Panthers 17-0 last year but Dorsett gained 122 yards and had a 75-yard touchdown run called back... Pitt 31-10.

UCLA at California: UCLA's 28-14 victory a year sent the Bruins to the Rose Bowl instead of the Golden Bears. Cal's thirsting for revenge, but quarterback Joe Roth and wideout Wesley Walker are ailing... UCLA 30-20.

Oklahoma State at Oklahoma: It's homecoming at Norman and Coach Barry Switzer hopes some defensive backs show up. He's lost three of his four-man super secondary for the season. The Cowboys have been pointing at this one for some time. Second Upset Special... Oklahoma State 24-21.

Maryland at Duke: The Terrapins have been struggling of late and Duke will be tough at home but... Maryland 28-12.

Oregon State at Southern California: Ricky Bell is well-rested after a week's vacation following that 51-carry, 347-yard outburst against Washington State... Southern Cal 38-7.

Arizona at Texas Tech: Arizona has a habit of making trouble for the Red Raiders, who may be looking ahead to Texas... Tech 33-21.

Purdue at Ohio State: "Will our players take them lightly? No, I'm sure they won't if I have anything to do about it," promises Woody Hayes... Ohio State 28-7.

Georgia at Kentucky: Fran Curci calls Kentucky's 4-2 record "a miracle." How about 4-3, Fran... Georgia 24-14.

Florida at Tennessee: Tennessee leads the series 13-2 but the Gators smell — can a Gator smell? — the SEC championship... Florida 29-22.

Iowa State at Colorado: The Cyclones cracked the Top Twenty this week for the first time in a while. They have outstanding people at the skill positions, but Colorado has more bone-breakers... Colorado 21-14.

East Carolina at North Carolina: Tar Heels are out to avenge last year's 38-17 trouncing but ECU is for real... East Carolina 24-17.

Iowa at Minnesota: Next week it's Minnesota-Michigan for the Little Brown Jug. This week it's the Third Upset Special... Iowa 20, Minnesota 14.

"NAMES 'SIX-POINT', WHAT'S YOURS — Mr. E.D. Holcomb of Martin County shot this six-point elk Saturday in Gunnison, Colo., from about 550 feet with a 7mm magnum while out hunting with Red Woods, an outfitter from Gunnison. The elk, who'll dress out at about 400 pounds, graciously offered to decorate a wall in the Holcomb home. It was an offer they couldn't refuse.

TEXAS TECH
RED RAIDERS

Free safety Frazier

LUBBOCK — Around the Texas Tech athletic department, he's known as the man who has made a habit of being in the right place at the right time when the opposing quarterback makes his moves. But when you've been there, it's easy to know what move the quarterback is going to make.

Greg Frazier is Texas Tech's starting free safety and the 6-1, 196-pound junior is having no trouble in his first season as a regular in the secondary. Converted from quarterback during spring training, Frazier has found a home on defense.

"Playing quarterback in the past has definitely been a help in the switch to defense," Frazier said. "I think I have a better understanding of what the opposing offense is trying to do than I would if not for the playing time at quarterback."

The Iowa Park product sat out last year as a redshirt but was the number three quarterback behind Tommy Duniven and Rodney Allison.

"Last year was a difficult year for Greg," says defensive coach Jess Stiles. "We were trying to redshirt him but at the same time we had to keep him ready to play quarterback in case Duniven or Allison either one got hurt. It's worked out though and now Greg will have two years as a starter in the secondary."

Not everyone has been willing to turn Frazier completely loose as a quarterback, however. Defensive back coach Gary Wyant thinks of Frazier as his quarterback in the secondary.

"Greg calls all the defenses for our secondary," Wyant said. "He is a highly intelligent young man who provides great leadership back there. He's thinking all the time."

Head Coach Steve Sloan echoes Wyant. "Greg is an outstanding young man in every respect," Sloan said. "He's making a tremendous contribution to our team this fall."

Despite playing at free safety, Frazier is one of the team leaders in total tackles and ranked six in the nation in interceptions through the first three games. He was in on more than 15 tackles against New Mexico the second game of the season for a career high.

Frazier is a quiet young man who takes his accomplishments quietly. A good example is when he was complimented recently about his ability as a tackler.

"By the time they get back there to me," he said, "Those guys are so tired it doesn't take much to bring them down."

Frazier saw limited action at quarterback two years ago when Tech went to the Peach Bowl. He also led the 1973 junior varsity team in passing, hitting 24 of 62 passes for 304 yards and four touchdowns. He was all-district 4-AAA three times in both football and basketball at Iowa Park and rolled up more than 2,000 yards total offense in his high school football career.

Greg's quiet manner and winning attitude have made him a favorite around Texas Tech and his tremendous play in the secondary has helped make the Raiders a winner on the field this fall.

Tech will take on the explosive Arizona Wildcats Saturday night in what could be an offensive show. You can bet Frazier will be ready.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, OCT. 21, 1976

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when you would be wise to adopt a most cooperative attitude with those you come in contact with and gain their goodwill. You benefit by assistance they can give you in return.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Show how much you value associates and cement better relations today with them. Civic work can bring fine benefits now.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Make sure you handle an added assignment in a most meticulous way. Reconcile any disagreements you may have with others.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan time for amusements that you truly enjoy. Doing something particularly thoughtful for your mate is wise.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Study an important new venture carefully before taking action. Add new touches to your home for added comfort.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Be more cooperative with associates and get excellent results thereby. Be careful of the opposite sex today. Relax at home tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Use good sense in the handling of monetary affairs and you save the situation today. Avoid one who is not thinking straight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make fine inroads where your career is concerned early in the day. Later get together with congenials and have a delightful time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Investigating what has been puzzling to you in the past can bring good results now. Avoid one who is annoying to you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Know what you want where a personal goal is concerned and then find right ways to gain your aims. Be logical.

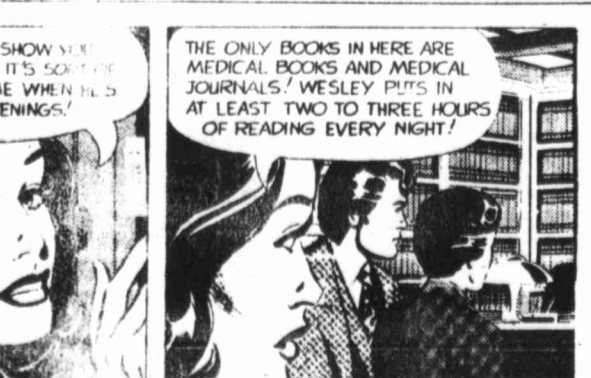

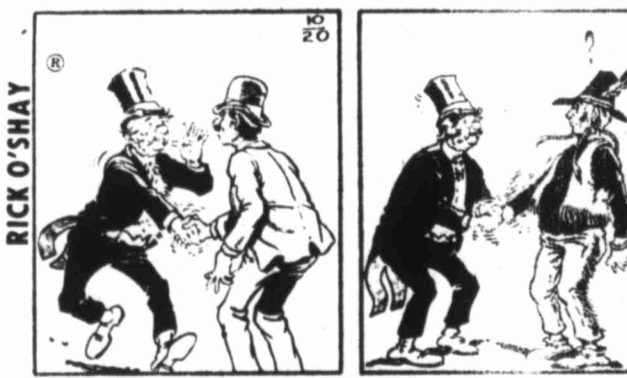

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Listening to what those in power have to suggest and following their advice can lead to good things for you at this time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get advice you need from those whose experience has been different from yours. Use extreme care in motion.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Your intuitive faculties are working fine today and can help you achieve your aims. Show more devotion to loved one.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be a favorite with others and should have education directed along lines of professions that require precision. A fine marriage partner in this chart, since the happiness of mate is ever uppermost in this nature.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

PUMPKIN PROWLING — Cats and pumpkins just seem to go together this time of year. One curious kitten climbed a golden globe to take a better look in a pumpkin patch in Shelby Township near Mt. Clemens. "All the cats like the pumpkins," patch owner Mary Ann Vyncek said. "They're always crawling over them." And it all is a reminder — halloween is about ten days away.

Grand jury to hear CB shootout evidence

HALTOM CITY, Tex. — Police say a fatal shootout between two CB radio operators will be referred to the Tarrant County grand jury because of new information uncovered Tuesday.

Don Hilchen, whose CB handle was "Blue Goose," was shot to death Friday after he and Howard Collins, "Dirty Bird," to CB operators, began arguing over the radio and agreed to settle their differences face to face. Howard was in serious condition Tuesday as a result of the shooting.

The gunfight took place near an airport area freeway. Police said they were informed of the potential battle and dispatched three units to the scene at 6:30 p.m. But the shootings did not occur until 11:14 p.m. after the officers had been sent on other calls.

Police said taped radio conversations between the two will be included in the evidence presented to the grand jury.

Woman gives up attempt

KORISIA, Greece (AP) — An 86-year-old British woman has given up attempts to descend with underwater explorer Jacques Cousteau to the wreck of a ship she survived 60 years ago, a member of the expedition said.

He said that Miss Sheila MacBeth Mitchell abandoned her attempts to go down to the sunken hospital ship Britannic because of "unsurmountable problems with breathing, seasickness and physical movement."

The Britannic sank under mysterious circumstances on Nov. 21, 1916, off the Aegean island of Kea. It was believed a German submarine torpedoed the 46,000-ton vessel.

The expedition member said Miss Mitchell, who walks with the aid of crutches, "never managed to get deeper than 150 feet in the bathyscaphe after days of valiant efforts." The ship lies at a depth of 350 feet.

He added that Cousteau was reluctant to take further risks with Miss Mitchell, who will be returning to England.

Ridin' fence

Hot lips

with Marj Carpenter

I kept watching the results of the big Terlingua Chili cook-off. I thought maybe I'd see the name of my friend, Pat Miller of Odessa. But apparently she didn't place as a chili cook.

Formerly Pat Pearson of Big Spring, she went down as one of the University of Texas of the Permian Basin cooking crew.

But I should have known she'd bomb out. She already bombed out once this year trying to eat chili in a chili-eating contest in Odessa.

It was at the County Fair that she was entered as a chili-pepper eater. She works for the Womack-Claypoole Advertising Agency and two other agencies challenged them in the contest.

In her own words, "The contest started at 2 p.m. and was to take place on a flat-bed wagon. At 1:30, I began my ritual by drinking a quarter bottle of Pepto Bismol. Again at 2, I drank another 1/4 bottle to coat my stomach. Also at 2, I drank three mouthfuls of Chloraseptic to numb my throat and lips. My attendants brought me five gallons of water.

"The peppers we ate were brought by one of the chili judges. There were eight types of peppers and each had a varying degree of burn.

"We did all of this to accompany a Mariachi band from Tarzan. I fared okay through the first two peppers. I ate a pepper, licked salt and then drank milk. I think one of my opponents brought milk and said it was better than water.

"Well this was the beginning of the end. Milk, salt and peppers on top of Pepto Bismol began to do me in.

"Anyway, I gracefully bowed out on pepper 4 with tears streaming down my face. Tears were from hot peppers, laughter and heartburn — I was the last of the tenderized pepper bellies."

Now the big news comes out that Albert Agnor, class of '47 at Texas A&M (?) won the chili cook-off. But then most folks that attend say the entire thing is just an excuse for insanity anyway.

But I've always been a little bit jealous. I've always wanted to attend. If insanity is a qualification, I should have gone years ago.

But then I knew Wick Fowler, the Dallas reporter that started the whole thing. The late Wick Fowler was really a character. He wrote so many funny things that a lot of people forgot that he was at times a serious reporter.

He covered a hearing, concerning a physician in Pecos back in 1963. I remember one upset physician, that cornered both Wick and Ross McSwain, then with the San Angelo Standard and now the Wool and Mohair Association.

The angry man was yelling at them both and accused them of writing the story like "Marj Carpenter told you to write it." I should be so lucky that reporters of the calibre of Wick and Ross would even ask my advice about anything. Ross opened his mouth to explode, but Wick grinned and said, "No, she didn't tell us to write it. We all went off and got drunk and she wrote it."

The angry spokesman was so flabbergasted that he turned on his heel and never said another word.

So I've always had a weak spot for Wick Fowler and his chili cook-off — even though he's dead and gone. One of these days, I'm going to go that crazy event. Just to say I've been there. After all, I used to cook a pot of chili that gave everybody indigestion and someday I'm going to ride fence off that far and give it a try.

Hot dog thug mending ways

NEWPORT, Ore. (AP) — A hot dog restaurateur says he received a refund from a repentant robber.

Paul Hudson, owner of Lou's Dog House, says a man who held him up with a rifle telephoned him the next day. The man said he had never stolen before, was sorry he had done it, and would make restitution.

Jury tampering probed in Carrillo trial

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A juror in the official misconduct trial of Ramiro Carrillo has reported a possible jury tampering incident involving a witness called by the defense but who the defense says is Carrillo's enemy.

Testimony in the case begins today.

The witness, Ricky Barton, Tuesday allegedly told another prospective juror, Fred Looney, to remain silent about the Looney's hunting trips to Duval County because "we want you on the jury."

District Judge Joe Evins of Edinburg called Travis County Dist. Atty. Bob Smith about the alleged jury tampering, and Smith said he would wait until the trial is completed to investigate the report.

A seven-woman, five-man jury was selected to hear the case. Surprisingly, neither the prosecution nor the defense scratched the name of a woman on the jury panel who testified she overheard the conversation between the Barton and Looney.

The woman, Denise Elledge, reported the incident to the bailiff, and the judge first called Looney and then Mrs. Elledge to the stand after sending the other prospective jurors out of the room.

Looney said he had only a casual conversation with Barton about a mutual friend in Austin and about hunting at a ranch near Benavides.

Mrs. Elledge said she did not know Barton's name but that she heard him tell Looney not to talk about his hunting trips. "We want you on the jury," she quoted Barton as saying.

Carrillo's brother, former state Rep. Oscar Carrillo, told a reporter Barton has been subpoenaed by the defense but as an adverse witness. Barton is running a write-in campaign against Ramiro Carrillo for county commissioner, Oscar Carrillo said.

And, he said, even though Ramiro Carrillo's wife is Barton's first cousin, Ramiro Carrillo and Barton are "bitter enemies."

One of the prosecutors in the case, Duval Dist. Atty. Arnulfo Guerra, scoffed at that characterization. He said Barton was a Carrillo man as recently as last week.

The point is considered important because Mrs. Elledge, now on the jury, conceivably could hold it against whichever side it appears Barton testifies for.

Both sides agreed to eliminate Looney's name from the jury panel before the jury was selected.

The defense has asked that any alleged oral confession be suppressed.

A prosecutor acknowledged the state would offer such a statement, which he said was made at a time when Carrillo was not under arrest or in custody.

The prosecutor said the he would seek to show Carrillo used a county truck tractor to haul 14 loads of grain to an elevator in the summer of 1974. He also said he would show a second category of extraneous offenses, namely the payment by the county for Carrillo's groceries at the Cash Store in Benavides.

Another brother, former District Judge O. P. Carrillo, also was charged with using county money to pay for his groceries. The Senate convicted the judge of scheming to steal taxpayers' money through phony equipment rentals, but it did not convict him on the grocery charge.

Bombing, crash said work of right-wingers

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — The Venezuelan police have established that the bomb slaying of a former Chilean diplomat in Washington and the crash of a Cuban airliner off Barbados were part of a vast terrorist plot organized by rightists from Cuban and other Latin American countries, the newspaper El Nacional reports.

The influential independent newspaper said Venezuelan security agents had uncovered plans for a series of terrorist attacks in the United States, Venezuela, Trinidad-Tobago, Barbados, Guyana, Panama and Colombia.

Police spokesmen declined to comment on the report.

The crash Oct. 6 of the Cubana de Aviacion jetliner in which 73 persons died is believed to have been caused by a bomb. The Trinidad police say Freddy Lugo, one of two Venezuelan photographers arrested there, confessed to planting two bombs on the plane, and Venezuelan police are holding at least 14 persons in connection with the investigation.

They include Dr. Orlando Bosch, an anti-Castro Cuban exile wanted in the United States for parole violation, and Luis Posada, a naturalized Venezuelan born in Cuba who once worked for a Venezuelan government intelligence agency and operates a private detective agency in Caracas.

El Nacional reported that Bosch, who has been linked with anti-Castro activities in several countries, agreed to cooperate with the police after they threatened to deport him to Cuba.

The paper said Bosch arrived in Caracas on Sept. 23, two days after the carbomb slaying of Chilean exile Orlando Letelier in Washington. The report said he met three days later with several anti-Castro Cubans and told them Cuban exiles whom he identified as the "Novo brothers" were responsible for the killing.

Letelier was the ambassador to the United States of the Marxist Allende government which a junta of right-wing generals overthrew.

Security agents have located all persons who attended the meeting with Bosch and have called in for questioning some 30 Cubans who have been living in Venezuela for more than 10 years, the newspaper report continued.

It said the plans for the international campaign of terrorism were found during a search in the eastern part of Caracas but gave no further information about this. However, the police last week searched Posada's detective agency and said they found proof of a connection between the agency and the two Venezuelans arrested in Trinidad "as well as documents and equipment related to the case."

Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro blamed the crash on the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency and said in would renounce the 1973 antihijacking agreement with the United States in retaliation. The State Department denied that the U.S. government was involved in the crash.

Candidate says here

UNION, Miss. (AP) — State Republican headquarters doesn't have Dorothy Cleveland's telephone number, and she doesn't know the state chairman. But she's the party's candidate for Congress in the 3rd District.

Mrs. Cleveland, 71-year-old widow of a Harvard professor, filed as the Republican candidate when no one else came forward to oppose incumbent Democrat C.V. Montgomery, who was re-elected in 1974 without Republican opposition.

"I think my chances for winning are virtually nil," she said. "But I firmly believe there should be two names on the ballot."
