Production Limit Of 10,600,000 Bales Set In Farm Act

Cotton Sections Of Bill Agreed On By Solons

Penalty Of $10 Bale In Excess Of Quotas Would Be Assessed; Opposition Is Expressed

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18. — Senator Smith (D-SC) reported agreement today by a senate-house conference committee on the cotton sections of the ever-normal granary farm bill.

Smith said the group had agreed on a 10,600,000 bale production this year with a penalty of 2 cents a pound, or $10 a bale, on production in excess of quotas.

Couldn't Consider Other Plans

The South Carolinian said the committee could not because of legislative procedure, consider recommendations made earlier today by southern state commissioners of agriculture.

The state leaders suggested a 13,000,000 bale production for 1938 with additional benefit payments to cotton growers, financed by a processing tax of use of addition customs receipts.

Smith said the conferees had yet to decide upon method of paying benefits to cooperating farmers under the granary program.

Opposition Expressed

Unanimous opposition to these bills had been expressed by the southern state farm leaders in a resolution which described the granary measures as "totally inadequate to cope with the present distressing condition of the cotton producers."

J. C. Holton, Mississippi agriculture commissioner, said the granary provisions were "a make-shift structure" and failed to consider the thousands of acres of land diverted from crops or workers who would be displaced by acreage reductions.

Processing Tax Said Needed

R. J. Goode, Alabama commissioner of agriculture, acting as spokesman for the Southern group, explained that the proposed processing tax was a "compensatory tariff payment" and was needed to offset what he said was the sacrifice in southern states for reducing cotton acreage under the proposed granary programs.

Goode also said his group objected to the "dairy-livestock" amendment contained in both the senate and house bills which prohibits pay-

Seventeen Dead, 27 Missing In Fire In Canadian School

ST. HYANCINTHE, Que., Jan. 18. (Canadian Press) — Flames which flared in the night swept the College of the Sacred Heart for boys here today, leaving 17 known dead and 27 persons missing.

Two faculty members from Rhode Island were among the teaching brothers and students missing and four others from New England were among 21 victims in hospitals with serious injuries or burns.

One of the dead was identified as the Rev. Brother Jean Baptiste, 64, who jumped to his death, and another as Joseph Vincent, 15, St. Hyacinthe student.

Building Is Destroyed

Provincial police said they feared a majority of those missing perished in the flames which destroyed the 37-year-old, four-story brick building.

Many of those in the hospital were injured in jumping from the top floor dormitory quarters where the flames trapped students and brothers.

Firemen, their caps coated with frozen spray, poured tons of water into the flaming ruins throughout the day.

Fire Had Start

The fire was believed to have had at least a half hour start when it was discovered about 2 a. m. by a passerby. The flames spread rapidly through the building before all the 80 boarding students and 31 teaching brothers could be aroused.

The terror and confusion in the darkness of the smoke filled dormitories described by Robert Dionne, 18, of Drummondvill, Que., a survivor who sustained leg and shoulder fractures as he jumped into the snow below.

"The first I knew was when I was awakened by someone shouting: 'Fire, fire'," the youth said.

"I jumped out of bed and everybody was running around. Already the smoke had filled our dormitory.

"I dashed to one door but the smoke was so thick I had to turn back.

"Everywhere I ran the smoke was

Tax Relief Urged For 'Sharing'

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18. (AP)—The house ways and means committee heard Frank Gannett, Rochester, N. Y., publisher, recommend today that congress grant special tax deductions to corporations sharing their profits with employes.

If employes received "wage dividends," he said, there would be better cooperation between capital and labor, purchasing power would rise and employment would expand accordingly.

Would Have Fewer Strikes

"We would have fewer strikes," he said, "for the worker would understand that to tie up the production of a factory would be to lessen his own reward."

The newspaper executive testified at hearings on tax revision recommendations of a house sub-committee.

He said he had instituted a profit-sharing system under which his employes received 10 per cent of all net profits for 1937.

Not Getting Its Share

"It is my belief," he continued, "that the bitterness that has developed between capital and labor is due largely to the feeling on the part of labor that it is not getting its just share of the rewards from production of wealth . . ."

Capital is entitled to a first and

Japanese reported a Japanese tank unit had occupied Hohsien, nearest town to the scene of the Panay incident, after killing 200 Chinese and driving out 500 others. The unit then advanced toward Hanshan.

Since Japanese troops held Hohsien whe nthe Panay was bombed, the tank maneuver was interpreted as meaning possibly that

Queen-Elect Of Egypt Prepares For Wedding

(By The Associated Press)

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 18.—Slender, dark-eyed Farida Zulficar, who will become Egypt's second queen since Cleopatra on Thursday, completed with sphinx-like calm her prenuptial arrangements today.

The 16-year-old bride-to-be had her 45-gown trousseau packed and sent to Koubbeh palace where she and young King Farouk will live after her marriage.

From the time of Cleopatra, who was the country's ruler when Egypt passed under the domination of Rome in 31 B. C., there was no Queen of Egypt until Farouk's mother gained the title when her late husband, Fuad, was proclaimed king in 1922.

All Cairo Aflutter

All Cairo was aflutter over the impending ceremony, which will be Egypt's first royal wedding since the days of the Pharaohs, for Fuad already had been married to Queen Nazli when he became king.

The 17-year-old Farouk received foreign diplomats bearing presents. Among diplomats paying their respects was Sir Miles Lampson, British ambassador, who brought a letter of congratulations from King George.

Farida is the daughter of a judge of the Alexander mixed court of appeal.

Earle Advocates U. S. Ownership

(By The Associated Press)

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 18. — Federal ownership of Pennsylvania's vast anthracite fields was advocated tonight by Governor George H. Earle as the "only enduring" solution to the ills of the industry.

Earle said this decision was reached by two large operators, two union leaders, one independent producer and the governor's own anthracite commission after a long conference at the executive mansion.

To Enlist FDR's Aid

The governor said he would visit President Roosevelt Monday or Tuesday to enlist his support.

Earle said the proposal would involve purchase of all hard coal lands in Pennsylvania by the federal government which also would regulate marketing.

The lands would be sought first "at a reasonable purchase price" but if this could not be agreed upon, the properties would be condemned and the government would take over at the condemnation price.

The mines still would be operated by private industry, however, Earle said. The operators would ob-

Shallowater Man Is Burned By Grease

L. T. Turpen, 48, of Shallowater was severely burned about noon Tuesday when he fell across a pot of boiling grease at his home where he and Mrs. Turpen were rendering lard.

He was rushed to West Texas hospital and was admitted about 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. According to attaches of the hospital, the man suffered second degree burns on half of his body, most of the burns being on his back and legs.

Mrs. Turpen, who pulled him from the fire and who suffered burns to her hands and arms in doing so, gave him slight chance to recover.

She said she discovered him lying across the pot amid flames and did not know how long he had been there. Apparently he fell into or across the pot, knocking a portion of the boiling grease into the fire around the pot, thus causing the flames to flare up, Mrs. Turpen said.

The injured man is a farmer of Shallowater.

Mrs. Allie Clark Is Victim; Two Others Injured

Car Crashes Into Culvert Near Anson; Mr. Clark And Mrs. N. J. Lanotte Of Post Are Hurt

(Special To The Avalanche)

LITTLEFIELD, Jan. 18. — Mrs. Allie Clark, about 54, of near Littlefield, was killed instantly and her husband, about 58, and Mrs. N. J. Lanotte, about 55, of Post, sister of Clark, were injured, probably critically, when the car in which they were going to attend funeral rites for C. O. Clark, 87, father of Clark and Mrs. Lanotte, crashed into a culvert on the highway between Anson and Albany about 6 o'clock tonight.

The injured man was rushed to a hospital at Abilene, according to friend of Mrs. Lanotte at Post who had communicated with authorities there, and his condition was believed dangerous, although definite information relative to his injuries was lacking.

Mrs. Lanotte's Condition Critical

Mrs. Lanotte was taken to a hospital at Stamford for treatment of fractures of both legs and one arm and a severe case of shock. Her condition was believed by Post friends to be possibly critical.

A report late tonight from Abilene said Clark suffered several fractured ribs, scalp wounds and severe facial wounds. Attendants described his condition as at least serious.

According to an Associated Press message from Abilene, Clark was driving the automobile when the accident happened. Post friends said they had talked to Clark this afternoon when he stopped there on his way to Irving where funeral services for his father were scheduled for Wednesday.

Formerly Lived At Post

Mr. and Mrs. Clark moved to a farm near here "four or five" years ago from Post. They lived at Post several years where he was engaged in the grocery business. A daughter, Mrs. Delmar Cowdrey of Post late tonight was called to Abilene to be with her father. No information was available relative to funeral services for Mrs. Clark or whether rites for C. O. (Uncle Lum) Clark would be conducted as scheduled.

Other than her husband and daughter, Mrs. Clark is survived by three sons: Bill Clark of Lubbock, a railroad employe, August Clark of Littlefield, and Jack Clark of Mopahans.

Skies were somewhat overcast at take-off time, but visibility to the north was good.

The equipment of each plane shows how far aviation has progressed since the days of "flying the ocean with a sandwich." Each carried an electric stove, ice box, and complete provisions. The navy saw to it, furthermore, that among each crew there was an excellent cook.

She has a pink and white complexion that would make a fortune as an advertisement for any soap or cold cream.

The cast wandered over Senior High school building Monday afternoon, high in praise of such a magnificent structure. One Dutch youth, visiting the home economics department, was distressed that no one occupies the model bedroom that is one feature of the suite. To him it appeared a terrible waste of space.

Senators Criticize Move To Cut Funds For Labor Board

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18. (AP) — Senate supporters of the National Labor Relations board criticized today proposals to cut its funds and investigate its activities.

The senate appropriations committee voted yesterday to reduce the board's 1939 appropriation $385,000 below the $2,955,000 recommended by the budget bureau.

Almost simultaneously the senate judiciary committee was setting up a subcommittee to consider a resolution by Senator Burke (D-Neb) for an inquiry into the board's operations.

Chairman Thomas (D-Utah) of the senate labor committee, however, characterized the proposed inquiry as "entirely out of order" and the cut in funds as "penny wise and pound foolish." Other senators indicated they would join him in fighting the reduction.

Wallace Says Rails Seeking Rates Which Would 'Tend To Intensify Recession'

Reduce Would Be Better Move

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Secretary Wallace told the Interstate Commerce commission today that freight rate increases now being sought by American railroads would "tend to intensify the current recession."

The administration's agricultural spokesman suggested railroads actually should reduce their rates, which he declared to be among the factors "hindering, rather than helping, a recovery in industrial activity."

Testifies On Application

Wallace testified on an application of the nation's rail carriers for a 15 per cent raise in rates on virtually all commodities, including agricultural products.

Criticizing what he called "inflexible" rates schedules, the cabinet officer suggested that the commission establish a "flexible policy which would result in freight rates lower in depression periods and higher in prosperity periods."

Would Reduce Volume

Higher rates, just now, Wallace contended, would reduce the volume of agricultural as well as general railroad traffic. This would hold rail revenue about at their present level, he said, if it did not actually reduce them.

Maintenance of "high" rates during the 1929-33 depression period, Wallace said, showed these effects on railroads and farmers:

Policy Reduced Movement

Farmers and shippers tended to seek "more advantageous" means of transportation, or to utilize their own labor in sending their products to market, thereby reducing the movement of farm products by rail.

Farmers tended to become more self-sufficing and to shift from production of crops for direct sale, to production of feed crops to be sold indirectly as livestock and livestock products, lowering the volume of rail transportation.

Increase of farm production near consuming centers and resulting "dislocation" of areas farther from consuming centers.

SEISMOGRAPH PERMITS

Christmas Day Is Dryest Day Of '37, Records Reveal

Dryest day of 1937, so far as water was concerned was Christmas.

This was disclosed Tuesday in final pumpage reports for the year from the city water plant to City Auditor D. D. Martin.

Gallonage Is Low

Gallonage on Christmas day, despite clear weather and temperature ranging above the 60-degree mark, totaled only 1,153,00.

Which marked it as easily the dryest day of 1937 in spite of the fact that only 1,097,000 gallons were pumped on June 3. Water consumption on that day was reduced by .93 of an inch of rainfall, officials explaining that an inch of rain between June 1 and Oct. 1 will mean a reduction of from 1,000,000 to 2,500,000 gallons in water pumpage within 24 hours.

The December water plan also revealed that water demand for 1937 exceeded that of the previous year by more than 26,000,000 gallons, in spite of the fact that the distribution of rainfall in 1937 cut more heavily into consumption than was the case in 1936.

Total Is Greater

Total consumption in 1937 was 628,072,000 gallons, as compared with 601,927,000 in 1936.

The comparative December reports showed 51,159,000 last year and 43,732,000 the year before. That increase of more than 17 per cent was described as being about the normal comparison for months of the year when similar weather conditions prevailed.

Rainfall in 1937 tended to cut more sharply into the city demand than in 1936 was in face of the paradoxical fact that precipitation in 1936 was nearly five inches more than last year. The exact figures, as reported at the experimental substation were 22.25 inches in 1937 and 27.03 in 1936.

The explanation of the apparent paradox is that more than 14 inches of the total 1936 rainfall was in the one month of September. Water officials explained that one-inch of precipitation will cut as deeply in city demands as three or five inches. Thus, they explain, there were more days last year when consumption was affected by precipitation than in 1936.

Lubbock Firm To Draw Plans For Seagraves School Addition

FDR Refuses To Amplify View

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18. — President Roosevelt refused today to amplify his press conference statement of last week that he favored abolition of holding companies in all lines of business.

He told his press conference it would be rather silly to give a dictionary definition of a holding company at the present time although the private power utility holding company law defines a holding company for that branch of industry.

Difficult To Name Type

Informed that the Securities commission had declared there were all kinds of holding companies and asked if last week he had in mind all of them or specified types, the president said it would be difficult to give a definition which would cover all fields.

As soon as a definition was given, he added, some persons would try to put certain companies in the holding company category and others endeavor to keep other companies out.

No Specific Program Asked

In reply to other questions he said he was getting along very well in conferences with business and other groups. He said the six representatives of finance, labor and industry who met with him last Friday did not ask him for any specific program of action.

The president had no comment on the statement of David E. Lilienthal, member of the Tennessee Valley authority, criticizing the proposal of Wendell L. Willkie that the government purchase the utility subsidiaries of Willkie's commonwealth and southern corporation in the Tennessee valley.

He also declined to commit himself on Willkie's proposal when asked if it had made any progress toward solution of the utility problem.

Had Been Needing Gly-Cas For Years

Now Enjoying Good Health Again; Constipation, Kidney Disorders Eliminated, Lumbago, Muscular Cramps Gone

"It is remarkable what a single medicine like Gly-Cas can do," said Mr. Monroe Winchell, 110 Ouachita Ave., Hot Springs, Arkansas. "For ten years I had suffered with a stubborn case of constipation and in spite of the strongest of laxatives I seemed unable to show any improvement. My system accumulated so much poison that my kidneys and bladder were soon affected. I was forced to get up at all hours of the night and rest or sleep was simply out of the question. Lumbago attacked me and I had such cramps in my muscles it was difficult for me to get around at times. I was tired and worn-out all the time and had no pep or energy. I tried my best to get relief—but met only with repeated failure until I began Gly-Cas."

"Gly-Cas completely changed my health condition," continued Mr. Winchell, "and I am feeling fine today. My bowels were easily regulated, kidneys are again functioning normally, lumbago no longer troubles me and those muscular cramps are now in the past. Too much praise cannot be given a medicine that does its work as well as Gly-Cas—it can be depended upon not to disappoint."

Gly-Cas is sold by Mark Halsey Drug Co., 1219 Broadway, this city, and by all the leading drug stores in surrounding towns.—Adv.

Theft Of Sudan Seed Being Investigated

Investigations Tuesday by Sheriff Tom Abel and Police Chief Don Reeder into theft of from $2,000 to $3,000 worth of sudan seed from the W. Bogart farm two miles south of Cotton Center failed to uncover any definite clues as to who perpetrators of the crime were, they said.

Bogart, who lives at 2611 Twenty-second street at Lubbock, said he believed five or six loads had been removed either during Christmas week or soon after New Year's.

Clark Bogart, a brother, is living on the place, but it was pointed out that the brother lives approximately two miles from the place the seed had been stored.

Bogart was unable to determine the amount of the seed stolen, officers said.

Grady Harrist, deputy sheriff, transported an Idalou man adjuged insane to a Wichita Falls state mental institution.

Kirkpatrick And Gernand Lead Bruin Attack

AUSTIN, Jan. 18. (AP)—The Baylor Bears and Texas university Longhorns staged a wild scoring spree here tonight in a Southwest conference basketball game, with the Bruins getting the better of it 51-45.

Hub Kirpatrick and Bubba Gernand led a dazzling assault on a weak Longhorn defense that kept the Bears ahead from the first minute on. Kirkpatrick scored 19 points; Gernard 17.

Wee Willie Tate was blazing hot for Texas, banging in long shots right and left to tie Kirkpatrick at nineteen points.

It was Baylor's second victory, leaving the team unbeaten in the conference race. Texas has two losses and two victories.

Gernand Is Booed

The game was not as close as the score sounds. The Bears ran up a 11-2 lead before Tate started hitting and the Longhorns whittled the deficit to 13-15. A scoring rush by Kirkpatrick gave Baylor a 23-15 edge at the half. During the last half the Bears led by five to thirteen points.

A crowd of about 4,500 saw the game. They enjoyed booing Gernard, whose clever tactics caused two Longhorns, Moers and Parmley, to foul out trying to guard him. He nonchalantly tossed nine of 11 free pitches through the hoop.

Crooner Tommy Farr Finds Jersey Camp Dull Place Compared With Mayfair

(By Associated Press Feature Service)

SUMMIT, N. J., Jan. 18.—Tonypandy Tommy Farr has gone a trifle toney. After Mayfair he finds the simplicity of Mme. Bey's training camp retreat in the Jersey hills a bit monotonous and dull.

"There's not a blarsted thing to do," he grouched.

The yellow-haired, thick-chested thumper glanced about at the plain, unpretentious appointments of his conditioning quarters, and grunted:—

"It's a bit different from Mayfair, doncha know."

The former coal-miner from Wales finds no companionship among his sparring partners. They aren't elegant enough for Tommy.

"I like the association of bright, witty persons, well educated and all that," he said. What, another Gene Tunney? Farr quick'r spoiled it. "I'm very fond of burlesque."

He's grouchy and he doesn't attempt to hide his irritableness. Tommy Evans, his trainer, buttonholes sports reporters on the side, and explains: "I've tried to keep him this way. I like 'em when they're fussy. They're ready to go." Farr fights Jimmy Braddock in New York January 21.

"My dear boy, there's absolutely nothing to do," Tommy said. "The quietness is driving me distracted. I spend all my time alone in my room reading and listening to music. This is the greatest training camp in the world but I like a bit of fun or recreation."

Farr's chief entertainment is in hearing Farr sing. It seems that all Welshmen sing and Farr's rise in the pugilistic profession apparently has improved his voice. For he's sold thousands of records of his songs in England. He's a sort of Crosbyish crooner, but he assures you he is no Irish Thrush like Jack Doyle.

Although crabby, Farr has none of the mental worries that harassed him while he was training for Joe Louis last summer. He has jettisoned his manager and does his own piloting.

"I'm in great shape," he puffed, after six rounds of fast boxing. "I've had 39 fights in three years and I've boxed many exhibitions since the Louis bout. I'll be at my peak for Braddock."

Tommy has chosen his sparring partners so that each offers a different style attack. All are good left jabbers and he has a southpaw, too. There's a fast middleweight to give him speed.

Sammy Baugh To Keep Playing With Redskins

By FELIX R. McKNIGHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Jan. 18—Slingn' Samuel Adrian Baugh today punctured the publicity bubble surrounding his alleged $25,000 salary demand and added he probably would sign a three-year contract with the professional Washington Redskins within a few days.

The lanky football pitcher said he had no intention of becoming the Dizzy Dean of the gridiron and was anxious to ink his contract as soon as George Preston Marshall, the Washington wet-wash king and Redskin owner, arrived in Dallas this weekend.

Baugh said he had conferred with Marshall and added he had two salary alternatives. One calls for a flat, one-year contract at "between $13,000 and $14,000," while the other is a three-year renewal of his old terms.

The "old terms," Baugh hinted, amounted to approximately $727.27 per game.

Looking Out For Sammy

"One year's football at $13,000 or $14,000 is considerable money," drawled Sammy," but I'm a pretty frail boy, you know, and I'm liable to go out any time. Suppose I signed for a one-year term; got hurt. I'd be throfigh. Under terms of the three-year contract I am protecting myself for that length of time—broken leg, smashed career or not."

Baugh, who leads his Redskins into an exhibition game against the Chicago Bears here Sunday, stretched his six-foot, two-inch frame, planked a huge foot on the desk and continued:

"Me got $25,000? Who ever heard of such a thing? It's the bunk—just publicity. Salaries just don't come that high in professional football. The amount I made in my first year was very good for a youngster. It's tough going though—having those big fellows slam you around on the tail end of every pass. Guess maybe I earned that money."

Baugh said he still had his plans pointed towards a coaching career.

"Sure, I'm going to keep right on playing. It doesn't hurt to keep your name before the public when you are shooting for a coaching job. I'm learning more football all the time. Ray Flaherty, our coach, is a grand fellow and a fine football coach. It is true that I've learned a little more football since I left Texas Christian. You are bound to, however, when you keep right on playing. Remember, there are a bunch of pretty fair football players in that league."

Ready For Texas Game

Scheduled to play two more games after the Dallas date with the Bears, whom he rifled down for the professional title, Baugh said he hadn't tired of playing despite the long schedule.

"After that Chicago game for the title on that icy field, Sammy had enough football," he grinned. "But then I came on down home, rested up for a couple of weeks, and now I'm ready for more. Rain ruined our game on the Pacific Coast last week. Say, I hope this sunshine continues here—I'm ready to play another game in Texas."

Sammy said his marriage plans were still indefinite. Engaged to Miss Edmonia Smith, attractive Texas Christian co-ed from his home town of Sweetwater, Baugh said they had decided to hold off the marriage until she completed her school work.

"Gosh, we've got to have one smart one in our family," he grinned.

At $727.27 per game, Samuel Adrian Baugh isn't so dumb.

Per capita beer consumption in Texas, liquor board accountants say, was .842 gallons in October.

Moran And Higami, Wearing Jackets, In Return Main Event Here This Evening

TONIGHT'S LINEUP

Curtain raiser — Bulldog Bill Venable, Tuscaloosa, Ala., vs. Cyclone Mackey, Clovis. One fall or 20 minutes.

Semi-windup—Otis Clingman, Amarillo, vs. Otto Ludwig, Hamburg, Germany. One fall or 30 minutes.

Main event — Jacket match, Sailor Moran, Bald Knob, Ark., vs. Tetsura Higami, Tokyo. Two out of three falls or 2-hour time limit.

Place and time—The Auditorium, 8 o'clock.

The same torso twisters who performed in last week's main event are returning to the Auditorium for the principal spasm tonight—but in different garb and under slightly different circumstances.

The boys will "cover up" tonight. Paradoxically, they will "open up" with just about everything short of murder. It's a "jacket" match, an old Oriental custom that is rapidly becoming popularized in the United States, especially along the California coast where the wrestling population includes numerous Japanese.

Moran Accepts Dare

Promoter Sled Allen has been trying to sign up a jacket match for some time, but few of the Caucasion grapplers have been willing to put the canvas coat on and go to the mat with an Oriental. Comes Sailor Moran to the rescue.

"Jackets, fists, axes, knives or pistols—it's all the same to me, and it doesn't matter who I meet. If I wasn't tough enough to take care of myself against one man in a ring, I'd quit," vehemently stated Mr. Moran after being challenged jointly by Tetsura Higami and Promoter Allen, "and especially if it's against a snaggle-toothed Jap," he added as an afterthought.

So Moran will don the Japanese kimona tonight, which is a jacket of heavy canvas reaching nearly to the knees, with an extra heavy collar, and long sleeves.

A fall is won when a contestant gives up, or when in the judgment of the referee he is unable to continue. Very little is barred. A man may do all the punching and choking he wishes, without fear of fouling. As a rule, the choking is done by grasping the opponent's collar and twisting it tightly about his neck. But there is no limit to the possibilities of rough stuff.

Jap May Be Favored

Higami, well versed in jacket wrestling, stands a chance of being the favorite tonight, but the "fists not barred" rule is right up Moran's alley. He may forget all about the jackets and start swinging his pet blow from the floor to the region of the Jap's heart. He did this last week, and Higami folded like a toy accordion.

Higami claimed "foul" after the bout, protesting Moran's body-punch, and jabbered excitedly that he could lick Moran, or any other middleweight, in a fair wrestling match—or with jackets. So jackets it will be, something different for the local spectators.

The supporting card, without jackets, promises plenty of action.

Clingman Returns

Otis Clingman, practically a wrestling idol in these parts and extremely popular wherever he goes—and he goes to plenty of places—comes back to do the semi-final honors with the big German, Otto Ludwig. Clingman returned here last week, after a long absence, looking very good physically and turning in a nice job against the newcomer, Bulldog Bill Venable. Venable held Clingman to a draw, but Otis, who had just come from sea-coast altitude, should be better acclimated tonight.

Venable is back on the card, too, meeting Cyclone Mackey in the warm-up. The Alabaman showed enough last week to warrant bringing him back. He may be around for quite a spell.

Here's What Rassle "Jacket" Looks Like

The grotesque looking object at the right is Tetsura Higami, veteran Japanese grappler, dolled out in native wrestling costume—the jacket. Higami will wear the affair, made of heavy canvas, and Sailor Moran will wear one just like it, tonight in the main event of Sled Allen's show at the Auditorium. The "jacket match," first ever staged here, is old stuff to the Orientals, who do most of their wrestling at home dressed in this garb. Pinning the shoulders does not necessarily constitute a fall. The boys grapple until one gives up or becomes unconscious, or until the referee stops the mayhem. The strangle hold is not barred. The big collars on the jacket afford fine hand holds for strangling purposes. The heavy belt is employed as another handle, for body slam purposes. In this kind of match, real jiu jitsu is practiced, and the Orientals are experts in that. Moran defeated Higami last week in a catch-as-catch-can match, using his fists to subdue the shrieking Jap. Fists are not barred in jacket matches, either.

Alexander Gets Nod For Hall Of Fame Honor

By ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—To the list of baseball immortals in the hall of fame established at the game's birthplace in Cooperstown, N. Y., the official jury today added the name of Grover Cleveland Alexander, one of the great right-handed pitchers of all time.

"Old Pete," who ended a brilliantly colorful but somewhat checkered career in 1930 after nearly 20 years in the National League, was the only star to qualify for the all-time galaxy in the third annual vote by members of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

With a minimum required total of 197 votes, Alexander alone qualified for election by being the choice of 212 experts among 262 participating in the national poll.

Finishing short of the total essential to gain hall of fame entry were George Sisler, famous first baseman of the St. Louis Browns in the nineteen twenties; Wee Willie Keeler, great outfielder who spanned the century's turn in National League company; and Eddie Collins, long-time king of second basemen with the Athletics and White Sox.

The only others to receive more than 100 votes were in order, George (Rube) Waddell, southpaw who gained fame first with the Athletics; Frank Chance, one time "peerless leader" of the Chicago Cubs; Ed Delahanty, slugging king of his day who ended up with Washington after a long National League career; and Big Ed Walsh, iron man pitcher for the Chicago White Sox, 110.

Alexander becomes the ninth of the so-called "modern" group of super-stars voted into the hall of fame. The baseball writers' polls have been restricted to players active since 1900 but no longer in competition at the time of the vote. The first five choices were Ty Cobb, Babe Ruth, Christy Mathewson, Hans Wagner and Walter Johnson. Last year Nap Lajoie, Tris Speaker and Cy Young were added to the list.

Dixie Howell, Hunting Job, Finds Heavy Damage Suit

SANTA BARBARA, Calif., Jan. 18. (AP)—Millard "Dixie" Howell, former Alabama and 1935 Rose Bowl football star, faced a damage suit and possible manslaughter charges today as the result of an automobile accident 20 miles north of here yesterday.

Lowell Enyart, driver of the car which collided with the one in which Howell and his wife, Peggy, a former Birmingham society girl, rode, was in a critical condition. Deputy Dist. Atty. David Licker said if Enyart died Howell would be charged with manslaughter.

The football player, who said he was broke and was looking for a job, was released on his own recognizance.

Daughter Of "Pepper" Martin Petted The Wrong Pooch

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 18. (AP)—Alice Jane Martin, 18-month-old daughter of J. L. "Pepper" Martin, St. Louis Cardinal baseball player, was used to her pet chow and so she wasn't afraid of the stray dog that came into the yard.

But the stray dog wasn't like the chow. The stray bit her. That was last Thursday. Subsequently it was learned the stray, a spitz, was rabid. Alice Jane was receiving Pasteur treatment today.

Game And Fish Controversy Aired In Senate Inquiry

AUSTIN, Jan. 18. (AP)—The self-requested senatorial investigation of the state game commission and department proceeded today with further testimony changing political activities resulting in failure to care for the needs of the average hunter and fisherman.

The state's general investigating committee issued subpoenas for two witnesses after one turned down a telephoned invitation to appear and the other assertedly could not be found immediately.

Jess Showers of Vernon, former commission chairman who resigned after a controversy with other members and Governor James V. Allred, was ordered to report tomorrow after he declined a telephone invitation by Senator T. J. Holbrook, committee chairman.

Seek Austin Man

The house of representatives' sergeant at arms, Ernest Boyett, was drafted to hunt for Ed J. St. John of Austin after the committee failed to locate him. Boyett said he served the subpoena and the witness would appear tomorrow.

The subpoenaing of Showers followed testimony of Sidney P. Smith, Austin insurance agent, that Showers had submitted a 'blanket indictment" of game department practices to the governor before his resignation.

Senator Joe Hill of Henderson, committee member, demanded Showers be brought before the inquisitorial body.

Showers and Jack O'Brien, San Antonio newspaper man, resigned after attempting unsuccessfully to oust Will J. Tucker, commission secretary. A bitter word battle between Allred and O'Brien preceded their resignation. Both attacked what they described as politics which interfered with proper management of the department.

Smith, a member of the Texas Game and Fish Protective associations about it, said Tucker once had offered him a gulf patrol boat to "have a party."

Laws Favor "Rich Men"

He said he had been taken hunting on a lease which, he "understood," was paid for by the department and later refused similar invitations because he thought he was not entitled to "such privileges."

The witness informed the committee it was 'talk in the street" the group would "whitewash' the commission and department and that "nothing would come of the investigation."

"Unless there is more factual and less hearsay testimony against the department," said Senator Albert Stone of Brenham, committee member, "I cannot see how they have been at fault."

Smith charged Game Warden Jim Ferguson of Austin had solicited

At 100 Years, Is He Oldest Working Man In The U. S.?

John Michael Horan

By NEA Service

A determined man, John Michael Horan of Milwaukee, looks ahead to celebration of two anniversaries. One is due Jan. 23, his 100th birthday, and the other on April 17, 1955, the 100th anniversary of the job he got 84 years ago and still holds.

Boiler inspector for the Milwaukee railroad in the Milwaukee shops, Horan walks eight blocks to his job daily, puts in his regular eight hours at his desk and making the rounds, walks home at night to pursue his favorite hobby. This is tracing whether any man in the world has worked or held a single job longer than he has. So far Mr. Horan is happy to report he has found no such person.

Piling cordwood for the old-time wood-burning locomotives, Horan went to work in 1855. He has not missed a single day's work since due to illness. Successively he became clerk, fireman, engineer and superintendent of boiler inspection.

Father of three sons and two daughters, he has outlived three of his children. His wife died n 1901. Regular rest and regular work is Horan's prescription and he intends to stick to it!

Baby's Chance Of Living Depends To Large Degree On Father's Income, Session Told

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—A baby's chance of living depends to a large degree on his father's income, Miss Josephine Roche, former assistant secretary of the treasury, said today.

In an address prepared for the National Conference on Better Care for Mothers and Babies, Miss Roche said babies in the poorest families die at about five times the rate of babies in homes of moderate comfort.

Earn Less Than $1,250

"Approximately 1,000,000 of the 2,000,000 babies born in the United States each year are born to families who are on relief or earning less than $1,250 per year," she said.

The income of such families, the public health service declared meanwhile, depends to a large extent on their freedom from disease.

The health service said many of those now unemployed could go back to work, if they had even a minimum of medical care.

In the second of a series of reports on the state of the nation's health—the first inventory of its kind ever taken—officials declared that preventable illness or disability is one of the major causes of unemployment.

conditions showed that persons on relief and those earning less than $1,500 a year get sick oftener, are sick longer, suffer more severely and receive less medical care than persons earning $3,000 a year or more.

During the past year, Texas liquor inspectors destroyed more than 700 "moonshine" stills.

Families Too Poor To Afford Medical Care, Report Says

Bronko Takes Grid Hurts In Stride; Rope Burn Hurts

CHICAGO, Jan. 18. (AP)—Bronko Nagurski, one of football's all-time stars, looked ahead today to another season of ripping apart enemy lines—from a hospital bed.

The "Bronk," former Minnesota grid ace and now a claimant to the world's heavyweight wrestling championship, is convalescing from a leg infection caused by a rope burn incurred in a recent match. Although he expects to be back on his feet and ready for more ring engagements within two weeks, his fullback job with the Chicago Bears is still his No. 1 interest.

"I've done a lot of wrestling more or less successfully, but football still is my game," said the 28-year-old 224-pound giant, who has been knocking down tacklers in the National profesisonal football league for eight seasons.

Nagurski, rated by Owner-Coach George Halas of the Bears as one of the 10 greatest all-time players, grinned and remarked he "must be getting soft" as he told how he happened to be flat on his back.

"I've had my nose pushed all over my face, suffered numerous fractures and have taken about everything football had to offer without much trouble," he said, "and then I get a rope scratch and land in a hospital for a week or so."

Nagurski revealed he was "plenty sick" when he tossed Pat O'Shocker in Detroit in 20 minutes last Friday night. When he arrived here the following morning his temperature was 102—resulting in a fast ambulance trip to the hospital.

Nagurski thinks football will enjoy its greatest season next fall.

Italian Boxer Faces 120-Day Suspension

NEW YORK, Jan. 18. (AP)—Enrico Venturi, Italian lightweight, and his manager, Carmine Tarrentino, were suspended for 120 days each by the New York State athletic commission today following the "unsatisfactory ending" of the non-title bout with Henry Armstrong, featherweight champion, at Madison Square Garden last Wednesday.

Thirty days of Venturi's suspension became automatic when he weighed in over the weight called for the contracts. The commission also ruled Tarrentino was responsible for the Italian not making the weight of 135 pounds.

The commission found there was nothing in the bout that could be construed as dishonesty but said the fight had an "unsatisfactory ending." Referee Arthur Donovan told the commission that in his opinion Venturi might have gotten upwhile he was being counted out in the sixth round.

Venturi went down, claiming foul, but as soon as the court of ten was finished, he jumped to his feet.

Salem's 'Wife-Swapping' Case Brought To An End Tuesday

SALEM, Mass., Jan. 18. (AP) — Salem's wife-swapping" double-divorce case came to an end today with opposing counsel branding the principals "brazen" and "connivers."

Both charged infidelity and the hearings were marked by frequent charges an denials that Watson, a tree surgeon, and Lee, chauffeur for a utility company, had "swapped" wives frequently.

I am an advertising man

For over thirty years I have been writing advertisements for national advertisers—shoes, soap, cereals, automobiles, radios, tobacco, blankets, tooth-powder.

To me it is the most fascinating work in the world—learning about the merits of merchandise and then telling people about them—bringing greater comfort, and enjoyment, into people's lives—introducing people to new pleasures, helping them to get the most for their money.

Besides being fascinating, it is satisfying. My intimate experience with advertisers has shown me that, except for rare exceptions, the manufacturers and merchants of this nation lean over backwards to be sincere and honest.

The law of advertising is simple once one understands its working—the more people know about the merit of a product, the more people buy it. The greater the volume of sales, the less the cost to manufacture. Savings in making mean either lower prices to the consumer or greater value put back into the merchandise.

As an advertising man I can sincerely affirm that it pays to read the advertisements in the newspapers—for news of new things, for news of bargains and savings.

There are thousands of other men—and women—devoting their lives to advertising writing, who will tell you the same thing. They know!

A Tough Defense Of Laurels

WHILE we of Lubbock may slap our collective backs because of the truly phenominal cleanup record the city has maintained through another year, laggards among our civic-minded citizenship will not face the job ahead of them in 1938 without feeling of dread.

The word has just been received that for the eighth consecutive year, Lubbock has been adjudged the championship cleanup city of Texas. As the emblem of that championship, the city will receive another handsome trophy to be added to the collection on display at the chamber of commerce. It is no more than stating facts to say that the achievement, as we look back over the years, has been one over which to marvel. It is something no other city in no other state has ever been able to accomplish in the comparatively brief history of intensely organized cleanup drives.

But our work the next year is cut out for us, so to speak. Last year, Amarillo made a record so remarkable that Lubbock won by the proverbial whisker. Amarillo deservedly will receive a trophy in recognition of its efforts. The Panhandle city was tough last year. It will be tougher in 1938.

The whole thing puts Lubbock on a most difficult spot. Having won eight consecutive annual trophies, pride must drive us forward in the effort to keep the chain unbroken. Yet we must realize that, being the championship city, other contenders will point their guns at us. Ours must be the uneasy head with the crown.

Likewise we must realize that all other contenders will have the benefit of all that we have learned in eight intensively organized campaigns. That is as it should be and as it has been for the last several years—a proud distinction indeed. Amarillo's 1937 drive was modeled largely after Lubbock's and we may feel a share of pride in that city's splendid achievement.

Proud should we be also that apparently our foremost challenger for the 1938 crown is our neighbor of the Plains. We know their metal because they are people of our own kind. It should inspire us to the supreme effort of all cleanup campaigns because victory over such a foe will be well worth the winning.

EXPLANATION OF CARTOON

THE LITTLE CHAMPION

The family of little Margaret Villar-Kelly, residing in Vedado, Havana, Cuba, is mighty proud of her, and they have good reason to be. She is a dandy little gymnast for her age. Margaret is only 3, weighs 40 pounds, and every day in their home gym, she vies with her brother, aged 7, for acrobatic honors. At her tender age, she comes down 15 steps on the inside of a ladder one hand at a time—holds her body horizontal, grasping one ladder rung with the back or her head against the next rung above— presses 20 pounds—and performs all the regular gym stunts. The best, though, is grasping a 5-inch circumference rope that she cannot reach without jumping, and climbing up the rope hand over hand 10 feet without using her legs at all. Try it sometime!

LINDA BENTON—Heroine, the daughter of a famous singer.
CAPT. BARRYMORE TRENT—Hero, flying "daredevil."
MIRANDA TRENT—Barrymore's grandmother; a "strong woman."

Yesterday: Barry asks Linda if she "would" marry him. Later, Barry comes home that night, tense, drawn. Old Miranda is worried, too. Linda ponders the picture.

CHAPTER VI

For what seemed an eternity to Linda, old Miranda and her grandson faced each other in silence, the old lady's hands very tight on the handle of her cane.

"When?" demanded Miranda Trent at last.

"Probably not until early day after tomorrow . . . An extra few hours of preparation may add more to my chances of getting them out alive than the delay can possible add to their immediate danger."

After a pause in which she seemed to think this over, old Miranda nodded and asked, "You're trying it alone then?"

"It seems best." Barry was standing before the fireplace, lighting a cigaret, his slim, lithe figure drooping with weariness. "I've got to carry extra fuel in case I—have to be out longer than I hope. Not to speak of emergency supplies."

"Your plans are all made, I suppose?"

"Been at it all afternoon. It took a little time to get the official okay."

They were strangely quiet, this old woman and her grandson—strangely alike in their curt, matter-of-fact directness. Question and reply was an unemotionally business like as the checking of an invoice. Gone the raillery, the little ceremonies, the half-playful bickerings of their daily intercourse. It was as if you saw them now stripped for action, and you could not fail to notice how utterly these two were made of the same fiber.

"Lieutenant Rust would have some means of signaling—aside from radio, I mean—to a plane flying overhead?"

"He would—unless the whole outfit's wiped out."

Suddenly Linda broke through the icy sheath of horror that had been closing in about her since she began to understand, and cried out. "Barry! You're not going—down there—alone in that jungle? . . . Oh, no! . . . You said, yourself, it was hopeless."

She knew from their faces how childish her outcry sounded in the contained stillness of that room. They turned to look at her—Barry, detached, almost grim in his weariness; old Miranda, rigid with incredulous annoyance.

"My dear Miss Benton," she said, her clear old voice like a trickle of icy water, "I think you forget yourself."

Her eyes apologetically swept the galaxy of superior Trent women that looked on from the paneled walls.

"If my grandson has decided what is best for him to do, it is not for you—or for me—or for any other woman to tell him that he must, or must not . . . Now," her manner dismissed Linda as completely as if she had not been there, "what can I do to be of the most help, Barry?"

"Just have Jefferson stir me up something hot, and then shovel me into bed, Duchess—" Barry's smile held a glimmer of his usual carefree self—"and stop hopping on Titania for not wanting me to fall among boa constrictors and crocodiles. I think it's mighty sweet of her . . . Gosh!" he yawned and stretched. "I'm too dog-tired and hungry to care, myself."

"Miss Benton — " Mrs. Trent glanced briefly at Linda, who stood like a stricken child, the back of her fist pressed against her quivering lips—"will have to learn some time that making a fuss about things that have to be is about as intelligent as trying to dam Niagara with chicken wire."

She raised herself briskly from her chair.

"No, don't ring, Barry. I prefer to direct Jefferson myself."

"Poor little Titania!" Barry took Linda into his arms as the indomitable tap of Mrs. Trent's cane faded into the distance. "It's a tough world for gossamer wings, isn't it? Now this ties it! We tell grandmother—tomorrow—about us."

"No!" cried Linda into his shoulder, "No!"

"Just after lunch," Barry went on, kissing the top of her bright head. "The Duchess is always at her brightest and best then—a bit drowsy, and more inclined to view the weaknesses of the rest of the world with tolerance."

"Not mine. She thinks I'm just an—an invertebrate worm . . . But Barry, how can she just let you go off that way—as if it were nothing?"

Barry laughed.

"It's a sort of inherited gift," he said, "like having second sight, or having red hair. The Trent women—even those who have married into the family — have been the wives and mothers of soldiers for so long, that the later generations have all been born with cartridge clips in their mouths instead of silver spoons . . . And grandmother was born a Trent. She married her second cousin."

When Linda laughed a little unsteadily, Barry patted her shoulder and said, "That's a good girl! Now wipe your nose before the Duchess comes back."

Linda said, clinging to his coat collar, still between sobs and laughter, "Imagine having your grandmother having anyone tell her to wipe her nose! . . . But then, I don't suppose the Trent women ever have to wipe their noses."

"Oh—I must have forgotten to mention it—" Barry continued to pat her shoulder and laugh down into her blushed, tear-stained face—"the Trent women are all born with patent nosewipers."

"And automatic refrigeration, too," Linda choked. "I think all of you Trents are born that way . . . You're just alike, your grandmother and you. Why, for a minute you both looked at me as if I were some strange little crawling thing you had never seen before. . . . But, Barry, she is marvelous, just quietly going ahead and doing things for you—and I haven't done anything but hang onto your collar and blubber."

"She is a grand old girl," approved Barry. "But we can't all be alike, and you're rather an artist in your own particular line. Stick to it. I like it."

As the wheels of Jefferson's tea-wagon sounded on the polished floor of the hall outside, he kissed her swiftly, and whispered, "Tomorrow—after lunch." Then drawing her arm through his, he led her, with his knees shaking in mock terror, in ludicrous pantomime of a wedding procession toward his grandmother's favorite chair.

When old Miranda came in, they were both laughing.

"Upon my word, Barry, you look rested already!" she said approvingly, and added with the gracious unbending that often followed one of her vitriolic outburts, "What have you done to him, Miss Benton? . . . And what are you two laughing about?"

"Titania," said Barry, blandly reaching for the largest sandwich on the tray, "was just telling me the most amazing story about—er—a family of her acquaintance. They were born, she insists, fully equipped with automatic nose wipers and electric refrigeration. . . . Only she found them rather unsympathetic and lacking in the finer feelings of life."

"Indeed," said the old lady, "you can't tell me Miss Benton ever talked any such nonsense!" And wondered why they laughed again.

Altogether it was a very gay little supper party—on the surface at least—with Barry alternately teasing and paying the most extravagant compliments to both of them indiscriminately.

Old Miranda professed herself to be inordinately hungry, and ate so many sandwiches that Linda, who had seen her groaning in one of her attacks of indigestion, was alarmed; and Linda convulsed them both by singing and acting out a droll little French song, in which she imitated a quarrel between two wooden manikins over the attentions of a window dresser.

There were practically no long silences, and if one did by chance threaten, everyone promptly began to talk at once.

It is true that after the party had broken up, Jefferson showed Cicely a neat pile of barely nibbled sandwiches on the lower tray of the tea-wagon opposite Miss Linda's chair; and that Linda returning to the drawing room after hours of sleepless tossing for a book she wanted, saw through the open door old Miranda, sitting by the dying fire, her fingers stroking the sleeve of Barry's overcoat, which lay across her lap. Linda stole away without her book.

The National Whirligig

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

"JIM" FARLEY'S blessing on Robert H. Jackson's New York gubernatorial boomlet has been erroneously interpreted as evidence that the national chairman is through with politics.

The P. G long ago abandoned any ambition to seek the White House by a New York crosscut. He believes he has a sufficiently strong personal grip on party machinery—party personnel—to enter the 1940 sweepstakes without a prior apprenticeship at Albany. He is keeping his plans to himself, but the politicos of five states with 50 delegates have a tacit agreement to pledge them to "Jim" at the next convention.

No practical politico minimizes the good-natured chairman's chances, despite obvious obstacles. He is the most popular man among professionals, not barring the President himself. He is strictly regular in all his dealings, and has no sympathy with newfangled economic ideas that irritate old-fashioned partisans of the Northeast and South. It would need only the backing of the White House to drop the nomination into his broad lap the next time. He knows it, too, but he is asking no favors from anybody—yet.

PENALTY: Five days before the crash of a transcontinental plane in Montana with a loss of 10 lives Washingtons' foremost aviation experts uttered a prophetic warning against the type of ship involved in the accident. The Cassandras consisted of the members of the National Advisory committee for Aeronautics—Charles A. Lindbergh and Orville Wright among them.

In their annual report they declared that modern designs had accentuated the "stalling dangers" responsible for so many wrecks, and the ship which crashed answered their description completely. The trend toward high speed in lifting and landing, said the noted aviation agency, had gone so far that "many airplanes in common use cannot be considered reasonably safe, even for experienced pilots."

The Department of Commerce at first refused to license the model, but did so after radical changes in the design. Nobody here appears to attach any blame to the designers or manufacturers or transportation company. It's the penalty the traveling public must pay for speed—for progress.

BREAKING: President Roosevelt has been playing hide-and-seek with organized labor in his recent appointments. It marks a radical shift from the days when the A. F. of L., the C. I. O. or the Railroad brotherhoods boasted that F. D. R. was a lodge member in good standing.

Only a few laborites noticed that the President did not reappoint Interstate Commerce Commissioner Frank McManamy when his term expired on New Year's Day. Mr. Roosevelt sent the name of fellow-Commissioner Mahaffie to the Senate, but he withheld the nomination of labor's representative on the board. Mr. McManamy is 67 years old, and the President insists he should step out, despite the brotherhood's squawks.

F. D. R. tried to square accounts by naming Charles McLaughlin, the railroaders' candidate, as Assistant Secretary of Labor—a post which both William Green and John L. Lewis have been scrapping to fill from their respective ranks. The President seems determined to break the fetters which have bound him to the squabbling labor leaders. It's their intro-union feuds which have weakened their standing at the White House—and elsewhere—as David Dubinsky noted in his amazing attack on John L.

REBUFFED: The G. O. P. directors have hung a "Republicans only" sign over the door to party preferment in 1940. The no-outsiders-wanted signal has just become visible to a few sharp eyes.

The executive committee's failure to name William Allen White to the new policy group inspired an inquiry into the whys and wherefores among party liberals. They couldn't understand why the Sage of Emporia—a Landon man—wasn't named, and suspected skulduggery on the part of the rival Hoover faction. But they discovered an even more surprising reason.

National Chairman Hamliton suggested Mr. White at the recent session, but the mere mention of the grand old liberal's name precipitated a bitter row among the bigwigs. Mr. White's crime was that he had proposed Fiorello LaGuardia as a potential candidate for the presidential nomination two years hence. It was soon after this rebuff that the New York Mayor formally signed up with the American Labor party. His friends say it was a case of tit-for-tat.

STORY: On his present vacation in Arizona, C.I.O. Chiftain John L. Lewis drove into Brewery Gulch to revisit the mine where he worked 30 years ago. On the front page of the local paper he discovered that a prophet is without honor in his own country.

In Column 1 appeared a prose poem purporting to relate the experience of a census canvasser in an Alabama town. When the investigator was informed by a negro mammy that she wasn't married, the latter was asked the names and identity of three children romping in the sunlight. It appeared that the pickaninnies were hers, and answered to "Hugo L. Black, John L. Lewis and Harold Ickes."

"Aren't those strange names for three negro boys?" asked the canvasser. "Do you know of any better names for three what-you-calls 'em?" replied the mammy. Mr. Lewis didn't seem to appreciate the point. He declined to be interviewed, explaining that he wanted to be "left alone."

NEW YORK
By James McMullin

DAVID DUBINSKY'S blast at John Lewis for blocking a peace agreement between the C. I. O. and the A. F. of L. is the first maneuver in a new campaign of great potential moment to organized labor. It confirms our recent prediction that the head of the Ladies Garment Workers union would step out on his own if the impasse between the embattled rivals continued.

Mr. Dubinsky has been a tireless worker for reconciliation, although his union was one of the first to affiliate with the C. I. O. He has has several bitter private arguments with Mr. Lewis on the subject, but this is the first time he has challenged the latter publicly.

Lewis can't get too tough with Dubinsky. The C. I. O. can't afford to lose the garment workers. Dubinsky, on the other hand, can and will use pressure from two angles to compel resumption of peace negotiations. The first is withdrawal of urgently needed financial support from the C. I. O. unless its chiefs show a more reasonable attitude. The second—of which his outburst last week was a sample—is a big publicity drive to arouse rank-and-file members of all unions to demand in no uncertain terms that leaders on both sides quit their petty squabbling and get together.

SPOTLIGHT: There are indications that Robert H. Jackson has been made the butt of a subtle double-cross. A few of his Washington boosters are undoubtedly sincere in their efforts to built him up. But it looks as if some of the "promoters" have shoved him out in front prematurely with malice aforethought. To them he is evidently a pawn in a greater game. Jackson, green and guileless politically, has fallen in with their plans without realizing that he may be slated to become a sacrificial goat.

The Jackson Day line-up in New York was significant in this connection. Jim Farley, who ran the show here, gave Bob Jackson the lion's share of the spotlight, and young Bob naively admitted to reporters that he was a candidate for governor.

At the same time, John J. Bennett, Jr.—his leading rival for the nomination—got the second best play-up at the party.

STRATEGY: The point is that the Roosevelt forces want no part of Bennett and are uneasy about the undercover strength he has already developed.

Of course it couldn't be proved, but the strategy evidently is to push Jackson against Bennett and let them kill each other off, thus clearing the field for a "compromise" candidate to be chosen by Roosevelt.

If Jackson should by any chance attract enough popular support to put him over, that would be all right with the big bosses too—but he's off to a bad start and the odds are against him.

Side Glances---By George Clark

"It fits fine. Now all I have to do is learn to ski by next week."

The Plainsman Says:

That Girl on Broadway says if your job is harder than you like, remember you can't sharpen a razor on a piece of velvet.

An amateur imitator had been hogging the limelight at a party and his unwilling audience was bored stiff.

After he had bungled a dozen or more imitations of lions, tigers, bears and monkeys, he beamed:

"Yeah," said one onlooker. "Let's see you imitate a groundhog that has seen his shadow!"

LUBBOCK is now outfitted with a brand new, gold-plated, diamond-studded traffic ordinance but, practically speaking, we are "all dressed up with nowhere to go."

Main reason is that although the ordinance is, generally speaking, as good as we may expect, it is impossible of enforcement under present conditions.

What makes the ordinance so much stuff and nonsense is the fact that the city is not prepared for it.

Take, for instance, our stop-sign hodge-podge — which is nothing new. It has been a hodge-podge ever since it was instituted, although City hall goes blithely on with never an act to correct the matter.

Let us use 16th street as a bright and shining example of stop-sign foolishness.

Between Texas avenue and Avenue X, 16th street is crossed by something like 18 north-south avenues. A few of those avenues are equipped with stop-signs as they enter 16th; the others are not. Thus 16th is a boulevard, and its traffic has right-of-way, at a few intersections while at the rest it does not and drivers coming into 16th may do so without warning. As a result, the 16th street driver is confused no end. He has right-of-way—and he doesn't.

THE same situation portends to some extent on Broadway, on Avenue H and, for all we know, on various and sundry other thoroughfares.

There's no system to the placing of stop-signs. As a matter of fact, there's no system to much of our comical efforts at traffic control.

Hence what's the use of an overall traffic ordinance?

During the past several days the city has initiated a ruling which practically eliminates parking on 19th street in front of Senior High, on Avenue T in front of Dupre school and, for all we know, in front of other schools hither and yon about the city. That's a swell idea as far as it goes. But:

Taking care of the Avenue T parking along the east side of Dupre has made similar parking along 20th street, on the north side of Dupre, even more of a snarl than ever before.

The situation is just another example of how traffic rules are pulled out of a hat without any thought being given possible results.

THE PLAINSMAN, parked on 20th at Dupre school yesterday noon, got a big kick out of the situation.

Nicely painted signs to Dupre's east warned parkers but many of them didn't believe in signs. Then, to their dismay, up popped a snappily garbed and handsome young traffic cop who did a land office business in handing out tickets. But while all that was going on, cars were parked on both sides of 20th to the north of Dupre; east-west traffic on 20th was tied in a knot in the narrow space remaining, and scores of kids were darting across 20th from between the parked automobiles.

The Avenue T problem was nicely solved — to the complete demoralization of 20th street!

What can be done to make the new traffic ordinance fill the bill for which it was drawn? That's easy. There's no deep, dark mystery surrounding the problem, at all.

All officialdom needs to do is to give the matter some thought, and then put the thought into ACTION.

Any city employe who can count up to four can do the work after boulevards are started, stop-signs are uniformly ordered at intersections with boulevards and the order to do the job is given.

All that is necessary is a little mental application to the problem and a little elbow grease to do the work. Official Lubbock has been blundering around over the traffic situation now for about three years—and has in its possession all sorts of surveys and figures concerning natural traffic flow.

It looks like there's been too much procrastination in the matter.

That Man on Avenue Q says you're interested in the "how" of your job, the "how much" will take care of itself.

WITH APOLOGIES TO GRAY:

The curfew tolls the knell of parting day,

Along the quiet lanes the cattle come;

The plowman puts his tractor in the barn

And jumps into his car and drives to town!

SENATOR DENNIS CHAVEZ, of our neighboring state of New Mexico, didn't have any ancestor on the Mayflower when she drifted into Plymouth harbor, one reason being that Chavez's ancestors already were here—living in what is now New Mexico.

The Mayflower, that doughty little ship which must have carried at least a million pilgrims if it brought as many ancestors as claimed, didn't get to these shores until 1620. The New Mexico senator's forebears were oldtimers by then, having arrived with Spanish troops in 1617.

The first Chavez received from the King of Spain an original land grant and at least a part of the property is still in Chavez hands. The senator still lives on it, near Albuquerque.

General Hugh Johnson ain't as mad at the national administration as he used to be.

The other day he received with his perfectly addressed mail a letter bearing only his picture, clipped from a newspaper and pasted on the envelope.

TARZAN THE MAGNIFICENT No. 1 By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Whether Lord and Lady Mountford were alive or not meant little to Tarzan. But he was intrigued by the mystery of their disappearance. What strange thing had reached out of the jungle to clutch them? That, indeed, was something he would like to discover.

"I guess you'll want a couple of days to get ready," Wood said. The ape-man shook his head. "I'm ready now." For him the elaborate equipage that burdens civilized men is unnecessary. Except for his weapons he traveled unhampered, like a jungle beast.

I ated at having the aid of the mighty Jungle Lord, Stanley Wood commanded his safari to press on with new vigor. Day after day they pushed deeper into the wilderness, and at last they halted. Van Eyk put his finger on the map he had carefully prepared.

"This is our position, Lord and Lady Mountford were last reported here by friendly natives. After that—radeout!" Wood nodded solemnly. "This is the end—and the beginning of our trail." Tarzan of the Apes added grimly: "The frontier of the Unknown!"

Without friendship and love, life would not be worth living, for admiration and affection are the breath and heart beat of all human happiness. Within you is a power that controls your destiny. It is in every woman and man, but few discover it. Those who do are blessed with the akey to Life's Happiness. With all my heart I urge you to bring forth this innate charm that is yours Develop it, and you will attract to yourself those things that make life worth while. You are helpless in the hands of women who have learned how to use their hidden powers of attraction. You have these powers You can discover and develop them and swiftly make yourself irresistible to men . . even in competition with women far more attractive-looking. You can win and hold the love of the one you want. So if in doubt, ask the man who knows.

RECOVERY FORCES FALTER AGAIN

NEW YORK, Jan. 18. (AP) — Recovery forces again faltered in today's stock market and leading issues slipped fractions to a point or so.

A sharp break in secondary railroad bonds, following action of the Erie in filing for reorganization under the federal bankruptcy laws, was a depressing influence. Erie bonds dropped 2 to 13 points. The road's shares were off about a point each, the common at 3, first preferred 5¾, and second preferred 4.

A slump in December net operating income for Southern Pacific, one of the first major lines to report for this month, also was a chilling speculative influence. While this company's common shares were down only ⅞ at 20⅛, its bonds were substantially lower.

The volume of stock offerings was exceptionally small. Transfers totalled 779,060 shares against 933,680 yesterday. It was the slimmest turnover for a full day since Dec. 1. The Associated Press average of 60 issues was off .4 of a point at 46.6.

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 18. (AP) — Cotton prices lost 10 to 14 points here today under liquidation of near months and hedge selling from the interior.

The market encountered trade demand on all dips but only in sufficient volume to absorb on the scale down.

There was little desire to enter the market on the speculative side because of the delayed farm bill. Last prices were near the bottom.

March closed at 8.53, May at 8.61, July at 8.66-bid, Oct. at 8.72 and Dec. at 8.78-bid. Spots were steady but middling declined 13 points to 8.63.

AVERAGE PRICE

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 18. (AP)—The average price of middling cotton today at ten southern spot markets was 8.50 cents a pound; average for the past thirty market days 8.41 cents a pound.

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, Jan. 18. (AP)—Cotton eased today under increased liquidation, while demand was limited. May reached from 8.56@8.47 and closed at 8.49 with final prices 7 to 9 points net lower.

The market opened 2 to 4 points lower following easier foreign markets but there was enough trade buying to hold fluctuations within a narrow range during the early trading.

Toward midday, increased Wall street selling sent prices lower and traders found little reason to buy owing to the generally easier tendency of all markets.

Rockefeller Announces Plans For Completion Of Center

NEW YORK, Jan. 18. (AP)—John D. Rockefeller, jr., today announced plans for the early completion of Rockefeller center by construction of three new buildings at a cost of $12,000,000.

The first, a $4,000,000 15-story office building will be started within a few weeks. Twelve buildings have been erected in the modernistic business district, including the 70-story RCA building.

Rockefeller said in a statement that the building plans were "a concrete expression of confidence" in "the belief that a generous extension of production programs, with an adequate wage scale and a fair return on the capital invested, will not outrun a steadily developing demand."

THEFT IS REPORTED

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, Jan. 18. (AP)—Proving more potent as an immediate market factor than did recurrence of Kansas dust storms, heavy wet snow-falls in Nebraska today pulled wheat values down.

Persistent slackness of European demand for North American wheat counted also as weight on prices. It was doubted export purchases of North American wheat today would total even 200,000 bushels.

Besides, the Liverpool market, due ¼ to ⅜ of a cent lower, closed today to 1⅛ cents down.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures after showing a maximum fall of 1⅝ cents were ⅛ to ¾ under yesterday's finish, May 96@96¾, July 91⅛@91¼, corn ⅛ to ⅜ advanced, May 60⅝@60¾, July 61, oats exactly unchanged, rye ¼ off to ⅛ up, and provisions unchanged to 15 cents down.

TVA Director Says Body Is Willing To Negotiate

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18. (AP) — David E. Lilienthal, director of the Tennessee Valley authority, said today the TVA was willing to negotiate for useful physical assets of Commonwealth and Southern corporation's southeastern utilities, but did not intend "to pay for water, or write-ups."

Lilienthal added that TVA would cooperate in the sale of distribution lines to municipalities for a "fair price" but would not "be a party to recommending that any municipality pay inflated prices."

Wendell Willkie, president of Commonwealth and Southern, huge utility holding company, had suggested "as a last resort in a desperate situation" that the government purchase six utility operating companies the corporation has in the southeast.

Several municipalities in that area have arranged to set up distribution systems and buy electric power from TVA.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 19—A United States district court took control of historic Erie railroad today under the federal bankruptcy act.

The road, reporting it expected to be unable to meet approximately $10,000,000 in debts due between Jan. 1 and March 1, sought the action as a way out of its dilemma.

Suit Is Filed To Bar Sale Of Rail System

LAREDO, Jan. 18. (AP)—Publisher William Prescott Allen today filed suit in district court seeking to restrain the Texas-Mexican Railway Co. from selling out to another railway concern and moving its general offices and shops elsewhere.

The Laredo Times publisher set out in his unusual petition that the Texas-Mexican Railway Co. employed a large number of citizens of Laredo in various capacities, has a large monthly payroll and that merchants, the banks, and other business men and trades people receive large benefits from the money distributed by the employes.

He further alleged that when the railway built into Laredo the city donated a right-of-way, lands for buildings, general offices and shops. In return for those donations, the petition further stated, the railway company agreed at all times to maintain general offices and shops in Laredo.

Based on information which he considered "reliable," the petitioner alleged the Texas-Mexican Railway Co., which operates between Laredo and Corpus Christi, was now negotiating for the sale of the entire systems, including all assets of right-of-way, lands, buildings, equipment, shops, etc., to another railway system which threatens to remove the general offices and shops to another city.

Hearing on the petition was set for Feb. 28.

January Permits Near $100,000

Four building permits issued Tuesday by City Building Inspector Jim Reid authorized construction estimated to cost $9,540.50.

The week's total climbed to $13,910.50 and the aggregate for the month and year was boosted to $82,813.50, according to figures released by Reid.

Permits were to: Mrs. George Dupree, owner, and J. B. Maxey & Sons, contractor, to construct a one-story frame residence and garage at 2506 Twenty-second street, $3,117.50; J. A. Hall to repair and alter poultry house at rear of property at 2021 Third street, $73; N. R. Cogburn to construct a one-story frame residence at 511 Sixteenth street, $350; S. H. Reid, owner, and R. E. McCurdy, contractor, to construct a two-story residence and garage at 3008 Twentieth street, $5,500; Gray Lumber company, owner, and Sampson Bros., contractor, to construct a one-story frame addition to warehoues at 1520 Texas avenue, $500.

A permit issued Monday for a residence at 1926 Twenty-third street erroneously named the owner as A. T. Cocanougher. It should have been Clifton Cocanougher, son of A. T., officials were advised today.

Lions Hear Of Cotton Program And Debate Question Of Silk Or Lisle Hose At Luncheon

A double program, report of the club's one-variety cotton contest for farm boys and a discussion of whether women should wear silk hose, featured Tuesday's program of the Lions club at the Hilton hotel at noon. Vice President R. H. Bean presided in the absence of President W. H. Evans.

U. Brown and Quanah F. Parker were introduced as new members. Ladies night next Tuesday will be in charge of H. C. Pender and William Dean, with the losing side in the recent attendance contest serving the meal. J. W. Henley was chairman of the losers and John Toles of the winners.

Chairman M. E. Heard of the cotton committee reported on a meeting last Wednesday night at which a 5-year program was drawn up. Each boy entered is to raise 5 acres of cotton, a variety to be selected from among the four best producers, as records of the state experiment sub-station here indicate.

The committee hopes to secure 40 Lions to sponsor a boy in the purchase of seed. He will be asked to assist the boy in keeping records on lint yield, turnout, etc. Several sub-committees were named by the group and the program is underway.

Pender, after stating the question to be discussed, "Should Women Wear Silk Hose," asked several members to discuss phases of the question, such as: "beauty of silk hose; effect of the change from silk to lisle; quantity of cotton to be consumed if change is made to cotton and the effect on automobile accidents of the new kind of hose. Speakers included John D. Mitchell, Rufus Scarbrough, George Gray, Ed Allen, Boone Horn, Heard, Sam J. McFarland, J. W. Jackson and W. H. Plank.

Retail Sales Are Still Holding Up

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Jan. 18. — Aided by January clearance sales, retail trade this week ran 2 to 5 per cent above last week and 2 to 6 per cent above a year ago, Dun & Bradstreet reports.

"Consumers' attention centered strongly on January 'white goods' promotions," the credit agency said. "With prices on some of these items the lowest in several years, many retailers reduced their inventories below the corresponding 1937 level.

"In many industrial districts, retailers were heartened by the strength of purchasing power, in view of employment curtailment and payroll shrinkage."

Buying was spotty, sales spurting in some localities and sagging in others, but for the east retail trade averaged 2 to 7 per cent ahead of last year. New England sales were 2 to 6 per cent above the 1937 comparative, Middle West up 4 to 8 per cent, Northwest up 4 to 9 per cent; South up 3 to 10 per cent, Southwest up 4 to 8 per cent, and Pacific coast unchanged to 2 per cent higher.

Wholesale buying ran 3 to 10 per cent ahead of last year.

Gum-Drop Cooperative Doing Well In Government's Co-Op Community In Maryland

GREENBELT, Md., Jan. 18. (AP)—The gum-drop cooperative is doing well—a profit was in sight today.

Youngsters in the grade school of this government-built community heard their parents talking of cooperative stores.

They tried the idea. Ninety-two boys and girls bought shares of stock for 10 cents each, and voted that candy, gum, cookies, and pencils be handled by their co-op.

James L. Dameron, 14-year-old manager, said receipts during the first 10 days more than covered the first inventory and provided a start on a reserve, which must precede distribution of profits.

Washington's army crossed the Delaware river from the mouth of a creek, at a spot where the Delaware measured 100 feet across.

Flunking Fee Advocated By University Of Oklahoma Finds Slight Favor At Tech

By CLAUDE TUCKER

Whether the old "flunking fee" that has turned up again at the University of Oklahoma should become a reality is a question on which many divergent opinions were expressed.

Here is what eight Texas Technological college students had to say when asked if they were in favor of such a fee.

Mattie Hodge—I am not in favor of it, because the student who flunks loses enough without having to pay a fine of three dollars. When he fails a course he has lost about ten dollars in money and three hours each week, not to mention the time out of class he has put in studying. Most students flunk because they can't help it, and those who don't care for flunking wouldn't mind paying the three dollars, anyhow.

Lloyd Heggen—I think it would be a good thing, because it would keep the scholastic standing above par. With a fine to pay students would dread flunking more than they do now.

"No, Definitely Not"

J. S. Henninger—No, definitely not. Most of the boys who attend Tech work, and they haven't any money left when they have paid the essential fees. Too many students fail to participate in social activities because of insufficient funds, and the flunking fee would be just another burden. There are certain required courses for which some students have no talent, and, consequently, can't help flunking. And if a student fails in a dishonorable way, paying a three dollar fine wouldn't reform him. Such a fee would be a graft, and the colleges certainly shouldn't be setting an example of that kind before its student body.

She Favors Plan

Ruth Barnard—Yes, I'm in favor of it, but it might not be a good thing. It would be hard on the students who can't help flunking, but it might make a lot of them study more.

Ronald Dyer—No, I wouldn't be in favor of it. Most students fail because they can't help it, not because they want to. And the students who don't care for flunking usually have plenty of money anyhow, so a little fine of three dollars wouldn't make a great deal of difference to them either way.

Margaret Jennings—A good idea even though this is a poor man's school. A lot of students think it is a joke to flunk, because they are out for the social and not the academic phase of college life. Most of the students who fail don't care, because the money comes out of dad's pocket. After a fine or two, however, dad probably would raise a howl and insist, one way or another, that his child do a little more studying.

Most Disapprove Of Idea

Clinton Edwards—Judging from the looks of things right now I wouldn't be. If the student had to pay a fine when he failed a course, naturally, no one would want to flunk, but I really don't think it would do much good. Most of the students at Tech, I think, are going to school on their own hook and studying just about as hard as they can, so having to pay out money for flunking wouldn't help matters any.

Dorothy Lamb—No, I wouldn't be in favor of it. If a student wants to take a course and flunk, that is his business, and paying a fine probably wouldn't make him want to study any more.
