Ross Sterling Becomes Texas Chief Executive In Outdoor Rites Today

AUSTIN, Jan. 19. (AP)—At noon, a 55-year-old successful business man will take the helm of the "good ship, Texas" from the hands of a young lawyer who has guided the state's destiny for the past four years, Ross Sterling, formerly of Houston, will become governor to succeed Dan Moody.

The weather forecast for tomorrow was fair and warmer. Preparations were being made to have the inauguration outdoors, at the front of the capitol, so that thousands of admirers of Mr. Sterling may see him embark on his new task.

A platform was being set up today in front of the capitol portico. Spaces will be reserved for the governor's party, members of the legislature, their wives and two guests each, state officials with their wives, and three bands, the University of Texas band, the Texas A. & M. college band, and the Arabia Temple Shrine band of Houston. Governor-elect Sterling has been a member of Arabia temple for many years.

Austin Swamped

At the same time Governor Sterling takes the oath of office from C. M. Cureton, chief justice of the supreme court, Edgar E. Witt of Waco will be inducted lieutenant governor to succeed Barry Miller of Dallas, who has occupied that position for six years.

The hotels were full tonight and many visitors had to be cared for in private homes. The hotels set up cots to take care of part of their guests. Hundreds more were expected to arrive tomorrow.

All available chairs in Austin, some 1,500 of them, were commandeered for the occasion, and even then seats were at a premium. With fair weather, the crowd was expected to exceed 10,000.

Governor-elect Sterling and Mrs. Sterling came to Austin today. Their daughter, Norma, and Mrs. Sterling's sister, Mrs. Ziffah Short of Houston, were already here. Mr. Sterling's brother, Jim Sterling of Dayton, was on hand and a son, Walter Sterling of Houston, planned to witness the ceremony. The

EVERY VOTE NEEDED, SAYS CAMPAIGN HEAD

Wichita to Get More Than Dollar Value for Each Dollar It Spends

POLLS OPEN AT 8 A. M.

Organized Opposition Works 'Under Cover' Against Program

Wichita Falls will vote Tuesday on a $1,000,000 bond issue for improving its water system, and for the first time in its history stands to get back more than a dollar's value for every dollar it spends.

Many Advantages

Other bond issues have been passed in times of prosperity, when prices for materials were high and bond interest was high. This time, if Wichita Falls approves its bonds, it will buy materials at the lowest price in years and will give work to hundreds of unemployed men—the majority of them heads of hungry families.

There are other advantages which have been brought out in the past month's campaign. Soft water, lower insurance costs, ample pressure for homes and lawns and sufficient water for the city's industries are some of them. The city council and city manager have pledged that there will be no increase in taxes if the bonds are approved.

HAVE YOU AN AUTO? OR RADIO? YOU CAN VOTE

Any citizen of Wichita Falls having property who paid a poll tax last year is entitled to vote in the bond election Tuesday, whether or not he paid the tax on his property. All that is necessary is that the voter have property subject to taxation. Property can consist of a watch, an automobile, radio, piano, jewelry, etc., and is not limited to real estate.

The usual requirements as to age and length of residence in the city apply as in other elections. Use your last year's (1929) poll tax, or you may sign an affidavit at the polls if you have lost it.

An appeal to all supporters of the bonds to vote today was issued Monday night by the campaign executive committee.

"The opposition is organized, although it has operated under cover," said Herbert Voelcker, chairman. "We shall need every vote possible today if we are to succeed."

Where to Vote

The polls will be open from 8 a. m. to 7 p. m. Tuesday. The city is divided into the following districts:

All voters living east of Lamar, south of the Wichita river, east of Mill and north of Chester will vote at box No. 1, at the central police and fire station.

Those who live south of the Wichita river, west of Lamar between Lamar and Brook, west of Mill street and north of the Wichita Valley railway and Chester street, and those living north of the river will vote at the county courthouse.

Those living west of Brook from the Wichita Valley railway track on the south to Wichita river on the north and those living west of Harrison street from the city limits on the south to the Wichita river on the north will vote at Alamo school.

Voters living south of the Wichita river and west of the center of Fillmore street to the city limits on the south and west will vote at the Buchanan street fire station.

Those living south of the Wichita Valley railway and Chester street and east of Harrison street will vote at the South Side Baptist church annex, 2206 Holliday street.

3. To save from $50,000 to $90,000 annually in fire insurance premiums from citizens of this city.
4. To perpetuate the pleasures of soft water enjoyed here since last June.
5. To eliminate excessive corrosion of radiators, plumbing, boilers, heaters, etc., caused by hardness or salt water.
6. To remove the necessity of expending large amounts annually for specially treated drinking water, softeners, and extra soap.
7. To provide unlimited amount of water at high pressure for sprinkling of lawns, gardens, shrubbery and trees.
8. To make ample soft water available to local industries all the year through the city's mains.

City Pledges to Give Local Labor All Possible Work if Bonds Carry

Mayor Walter Nelson Jr. and members of the city council announced Monday, that should the water bond issue carry in the election Tuesday, every local man possible would be given a job on the improvements at the earliest possible date and at the highest reasonable rate.

The statement was signed, in addition to Mr. Nelson, by J. M. Spoonts, C. E. McCutchen, R. O. Harvey, E. H. Eddleman, and J. N. Prothro, city councilmen, and George D. Fairtrace, city manager.

The statement follows:

"Supplementing former statements we, the mayor and members of the city council are glad to endorse the executive committee in their promise that every effort will be made toward the early beginning of work and the employment of all local labor possible. Provisions will be made to secure a wage scale not lower than thirty-five (35) cents an hour and that labor be employed in shifts if necessary, to afford sufficient relief to the unemployed.

"While it will be necessary to let contracts covering parts of the work, it is going to be possible to employ many by day work.

"All contracts will be awarded locally, if possible, with particular consideration toward the employment of local labor at a fair wage.

ONEAL'S BILL STRIKES SNAG

Split Tax Plan Discussed At Public Hearing

AUSTIN, Jan. 19. (AP)—Senator Ben G. Oneal's tax relief bill ran into opposition today and after being discussed for more than two hours at an open hearing, action of the state affairs committee was withheld pending a meeting of a subcommittee which is to report its recommendations at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Recommendations flew thick and fast today during the two hours and more of debate.

Citizens from North and Northwest Texas in sections hard hit by drouth and crop failures were heard. Tax collectors who claimed their duties under such a plan, a semi-annual plan which would allow payment of half of the taxes any time before June 31, would be doubled, expressed doubt as to the plan of receipting such collections.

"If you're going to give us a wildcat give us gloves to handle him with," J. W. Hall, tax collector of Harris county said.

He said the machinery for collecting 1930 taxes had already been set in motion.

He also said 120 counties did not get sufficient fees to cover the additional work of collecting the second half of the taxes.

Another point was that this second installment would fall due at the time when collectors were preparing their reports for 1931.

W. I. Thomas, commissioner of Hardeman county, said the county would get in more money if the tax payers were permitted to pay half of their taxes later than if an

AUSTIN, Jan. 19. (AP)—Highway contracts totaling $1,411,793 were awarded today by the state highway commission. Bandit Pair Rob A&P Store Here

Two unmasked bandits held up the Atlantic and Pacific Tea company store at Ninth and Van Buren streets early Monday night and escaped with a sum of money, the exact amount not given out by officials of the company.

The two hijackers entered the store as the place was being closed and, leveling guns at the attendants, forced them to open the cash register and give up the money it contained. Backing out of the door, the bandits escaped with a third participant who waited outside in an automobile with the motor running, police were told.

When the sum of money obtained apparently proved insufficient to the hijackers' expectations, one of the robbers used the butt of his gun on a clerk's head to exhibit his disgust. The clerk was uninjured.

US Treasury Has Helped Sufferers The World Over

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19. (AP)—The senate's proposal that $25,000,000 be spent to care for hungry and unemployed American citizens would extend once again the governmental hand that has carried more than $150,000,000 in relief funds to needy throughout the world.

Agreement by the house to the proposition would bring to more than 100 occasions since 1812 when aid has been given. That help has extended from China to Russia and Europe, to Alaska, to South America, and to flood, fire, famine, plague and earthquake victims in the United States.

As far as capitol employes could ascertain, however, congress never before has given a lump sum directly to the Red Cross. On numerous occasions money was allotted to governmental agencies and then distributed through the Red Cross.

Among relief appropriations have been, in 1812, $50,000 for Venezuela earthquake victims; a like sum to Chinese famine sufferers; $20,000,000 for starving Russians and in 1919, $100,000,000 for starving Europeans.

Most of the money spent in the United States has gone to Mississippi and Ohio river flood victims, who have received $4,459,000 since 1874. Other appropriations include: $180,000 in 1875 because of the grasshopper plague; $2,500,000 in 1906 to San Francisco after the fire and earthquake; $500,000 to combat yellow fever; $256,000 to survivors of the Ford theater disaster in the 90's and $200,000 to Minnesota pioneers for depredations by Indians.

HOOVER MEETS FRESH DEFEAT IN AID DRIVE

Relief Organization Frowns On Government Help After Parley

HERB'S MEN DESERT

Joe Robinson's Plea Stirs Senators to Help Feed Hordes

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19. (AP)—The Red Cross informed the senate and the country tonight it desired to remain a volunteer organization.

"We consider ourselves charged with the responsibility in the drouth area; we are meeting the needs and will continue to do so," said a resolution adopted by the central committee late today.

The statement was made public shortly after the senate had voted by 56 to 27 to give the organization $25,000,000 to carry on relief work in drouth areas and other emergency stricken areas.

The views expressed by the central committee closely coincided with those voiced by President Hoover. James L. Feiser, a vice chairman of the Red Cross, visited the White House shortly before the resolution was made public.

At the same time, the farm board made known that the grain and cotton stabilization corporations would sell their commodities to the Red Cross or any responsible unit of the government on easy terms to enable the agencies to relieve distress.

The move of the farm board was announced as a response to numerous requests that assistance be given in meeting requests for food and clothing. Chairman Legge explained that the law forbade that commodities be donated. He said no interest would be charged and the date of payment would be set to suit the convenience of the purchaser.

HOOVER FACES WORST DEFEAT

By FRASER EDWARDS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19. (US)—President Hoover tonight was confronted by his worst defeat at the hands of congress on the government "dole."

While an aroused senate, which voted 56 to 27 to give the Red Cross $25,000,000 to feed the hungry of the nation, started the move against the president, there was every indication that the house, which always has stood by him, will consummate it.

Compromise Sought

Administration leaders in the house worked like beavers tonight in a compromise provision to soften the blow but they admitted that they were "up against a tough proposition" and had little to promise.

The best that the house leaders hope for is a compromise whereby the federal government would put up $12,800,000 and this amount would be matched by popular subscription to the Red Cross. The entire fund would be disbursed through the Red Cross.

The seriousness of the situation, so far as the president is concerned is the fact that the $25,000,000 fund was tacked on the interior department appropriation bill with the votes of some of the staunchest administration Republicans.

Veto Expected

On the face of the vote, the senate could override a presidential veto of the supply measure, which some of the administration men say will come unless the food fund is eliminated.

There would be no question of another presidential victory on this proposition were it not for the fact that the Republicans in the house are in revolt and the leaders are ready to yield to them. Some of the house leaders still talk big but the wise ones say they must give in or jeopardize themselves in the next congress.

The first test of strength in the senate came on a motion by Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania, acting as the president's spokesman, to defer the adoption of the $25,000,000 food fund until Feb. 9, so as not to interfere with the present Red Cross drive for $10,000,000. This was voted down, 53 to 30.

Regulars Bolt

The motion then recurred upon a motion by Senator Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader, to reconsider the senate vote of Saturday by which the $25,000,000 provision was adopted. It was carried by a vote of 56 to 27.

It was no insignificant thing when such Republican regulars as Hatfield of West Virginia, Jones of Washington, Kean of New Jersey, Shortridge, of California, and McNary of Oregon, assistant Republican leader, deserted the president on that vote.

An even score of Republicans, 25 Democrats and 1 Farmer-Laborite (Shipstead of Minnesota) voted for the food provision, while 22 Republicans and five Democrats voted in the negative.

Contents of Wickersham Report On Crime to Be Shown Congress Today

By WILLIAM P. FLYTHE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19. (US)—The Wickersham commission submitted its long-expected report on prohibition to President Hoover today.

It will be transmitted to congress at noon tomorrow with a letter from the president, in which it is understood that he will express his views on it, and make a definite recommendation. He decided to do this only after he had read the voluminous document, it was learned.

Submission of the report today presented a unique situation. Until it was actually placed on the president's desk opinion had been divided as to whether it would actually go to congress at this session, because the administration feared that the debate which will follow could easily force an extra session, or at least jeopardize the legislative program.

However, President Hoover determined today that the report should go to congress promptly. He will, however, express the hope that the report should be referred to the proper branches of the senate and house for a study until the next session of congress.

The contents of the report were held in the strictest confidence and will be until it is submitted to congress, but it was understood that virtually all of the discussion on lawlessness is devoted to violations of the prohibition act. It was learned also that the commission itself is not in accord and that appended to the main body of the report each commissioner has written his own views as to how to deal with the liquor problem.

Red Cross Orders Survey of County To Determine Amount of Aid Needed

A survey will be made the latter part of this week to determine the extent of the needs of drouth stricken families in Wichita county, according to an announcement of W. O. Beeman, president of the Wichita county chapter of the Red Cross, following a conference Monday night with Mrs. Myrta Ellis, field representative of the national headquarters in St. Louis.

A meeting of all school principals and one trustee from each school district in the county will be held Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock in the justice court room at the courthouse to distribute questionnaires to be used in making the survey. Following the determination of the needs in this section and the amount of money required, a report will be made to the national headquarters for approval.

Although at the present time no estimate can be made of the amount of money to be required, Mr. Beeman stated that there were many families in the rural sections of the county that urgently required aid and that he had no doubt but that any amount needed here would be available upon the report to the national headquarters of the Red Cross.

School officials of the county will be given questionnaires at the meeting Friday and will make a door to door survey to determine the exact number of families in need and the amount of money required to give aid. Early next week, the questionnaires will be returned here for compilation and the re-

I. O. BOOSTERS PLEDGE TO VOTE 100 PER CENT FOR BONDS

JOBS PROVIDED FOR WORKERS

Soft Water Means Saving For Every Wichitan

Members of the I. O. Boosters club in their regular weekly meeting at the Y. W. C. A. Monday noon unanimously passed a motion pledging 100 per cent support in Tuesday's election to the proposed water bond issue.

Declaration of their purpose to vote for the issuance of $1,000,000 worth of bonds now for water improvements followed a concise discussion of the matter by Herbert C. Voelcker, chairman of the water improvements committee which was followed by a brief round table discussion in which numerous queries were put to Mr. Voelcker for answers.

Plan Outlined

The speaker outlined the four units of the plan adopted tentatively by the city council for reconstruction of the city's water system. The first unit, he said, will be a drainage canal around the north side of Lake Wichita to carry off irrigation drainage and salt-containing waters from upper Holliday creek. Such a ditch, it was pointed out, will be equipped at the head of Lake Wichita with low water dams so that under heavy rains, the flow would enter the lake after the first flush of water had washed out the watercourses. Present softness of the lake water will be preserved by such a diversion of drainage waters, he said.

"The proposed 42-inch conduit, or pipe line, for bringing water to the city filtration plant will relieve the present contamination," Mr. Voelcker said. "At present, the germ count doubles between the lake and the plant, according to analyses which have been made. Furthermore, the present ditch will be utilized for carrying irrigation waters to be drawn directly from Lake Kemp by means of ditches at Call Field. This will leave the Lake waters for city use alone. An item of pumping expense at the plant will be eliminated because with the conduit, sufficient pressure from gravity will be retained to force the water through clear-water basins."

Larger Lines

Complete renovation of the plant to make it modern and more economical in operation was described as the third unit in the improvement program. The fourth part of the plan calls for the extension and enlargement of lines in the distribution system.

Mr. Voelcker emphasized, in his discussion of the financial elements involved, that the business district and business concerns will pay the larger portion of bond retirement funds. Engineer's analyses have shown, he said, that 60 per cent of the city's water is used east of Lamar avenue, whereas the larger residential sections are west of that street. He also said that larger consumers, such as industrial plants, would meet an increase almost 50 per cent in their water rate (from 15 to 20 cents per 1,000 gallons) while the domestic consumption rate would increase only one-third.

According to estimates already made, the speaker said, about $300,000 of the proposed $1,000,000 fund will be spent for labor, and to the highest possible maximum of local men will be employed on the project.

Saving in Insurance

He further stated that fire insurance department investigators had estimated that from $50,000 to $80,000 annually would be saved to local citizens in reduced fire insurance premiums with the proposed improvements completed.

Relative to reduction of various expenses through provision of better water, Mr. Voelcker quoted figures showing that there is now sold every year in this city about $90,000 worth of bottled drinking water.

W. R. Fidler, manager of the J. C. Penney company, was introduced as a new member of the club, and spoke briefly urging the importance of passing the bond issue at Tuesday's election. About 20 members were present at Monday's meeting.

Yes, Yes, YES! Mr. Gould Is For The Water Bonds

If all the folks who have called up John Gould and asked him if he is against the water bonds will go out and vote for the issue today there is no doubt but what the election will carry.

So said Mr. Gould Monday afternoon to The Record News. So that all may know how Mr. Gould stands and so that such people will quit calling him on the telephone in order that he can help get election returns tonight, The Record News is reprinitng a statement made Friday by Mr. Gould. It makes clear in no uncertain terms just how he stands, to wit:

"Another anonymous circular, opposing the water bond issue, has made its appearance.

"The fact that my name was used in the circular prompts me to say, first, that as a citizen I am emphatically in favor of the bond issue, and intend to vote for it; second, that if I were against it, I would have the guts to fight it openly; third, that anonymous communications are never compatible with good faith or proper motives, in any cause.

"I dislike to dignify the circular by making any reference to it, but it makes use of my name in a way that might be misunderstood."

Authors of Anonymous Circular 'Hiding in Dark,' Says Swanson

Wichitan Answers Charges Made in Letter, and Dares Bond Opponents to Reveal Their Names

Editor, The Record News:

The following is submitted as reply to the third (or more) anonymous circular and "last minute" stampede literature by the "Taxpayers Committee" against the bond issue, and with attention invited to the weight to be given to any argument of anyone masquerading in the dark and then attempting to cast slurs at the openly stated and signed arguments for the bond issue, we submit following answers to the 10 "alleged" arguments opposing bond issue:

1. "This is no time to increase tax burdens." Answer. The time to get anything is when it can be purchased for best price and value for the expenditure, and that time is NOW, and it pays to buy anything that will produce in economy of costs more than installments to buy. The better water will reduce insurance, plumbing repairs, soap bills, etc., for all the people more than they pay for improvements.

Worth the Money

2. "Wichita Falls is already overtaxed" etc. Answer. Any city is overtaxed that pays more for what they get than it is worth. Our alleged "over-taxing" is due to past "mistakes" that must be paid for as we as individuals are paying for analagous mistakes in over-buying. All that has no relevancy as argument against anything worth what it costs and more.

3. "High taxes are one cause of depression today." Answer. Those of us paying taxes, usually think that we are always overtaxed and the other fellow is let off too easy Operation under high tax burdens is often easier than going without a vital need. Consider how we all struggle to pay installments on luxuries, and then consider whether intelligent to refuse to pay for imperative needs. Water is a most vital need, only air to breathe more vital. Air, water and food are possibly only vital imperative needs.

WHY HE IS FOR WATER BONDS

Editor, The Record News:

Tomorrow I am going to vote for the water bonds, not because I am out of a position, but because it will be a benefaction to the community. It will give work to those with families who are dearly in need, but it will also improve the sanitary conditions of our present water distribution.

Yours truly,
JULES E. EHLERS,
Civil Engineer.

4. ". . . All defects of the present system can be remedied with revenue from present water system . . ." Answer. The city council has power to raise taxes for current needs; likewise to raise water rates to make repairs as herein alleged can be done. But, it would cost just as much in extra taxes, or the money thus applied would require existing rates or increases just as long. The argument admits that "defects" exist, and thus reduces issue to means to obtain or provide, on which basis I'll support the officials in control whenever I admit the need of the improving, and cannot suggest a better way. Alternative would delay project many years, and at city loss, when economies secured by immediate action, would offset costs, and more.

5. ". . . will not soften water . . . ; nor . . . propose stop irrigation from Lake Wichita . . ." Answer. Either opponents are mistaken, or I have wrong understanding. I understand that project will insure water from Lake Wichita (which is far softer than Lake Kemp), and will arrange reserving Lake Wichita water to FIRST provide all city needs. By-passing Lake Kemp water AROUND Lake Wichita, and cutting off open ditch supply from Lake Wichita will do this, and such is part of the project.

Alleges "unfair to laboring man . . . hold up . . . as inducement his support . . . when . . . little . . for actual labor . . ." Answer. The project has been held up primarily as a needed water improvement, and that conceded only incidentally as "unemployment relief." The labor part is an approximate fixed ratio whenever handled, and if unemployment relief more desirable this year than anticipated later, such is added inducement for supporting project. Opponents admit 15 per cent for labor (probably more) and if needed as a city improvement, as argued, such 15 per cent is an immediate (almost) extra dividend in labor relief. A city project paying labor is preferable from all sides to "charity" relief of same amount.

Practical Economy

7. ". . . method paying off fundamentally unfair to man of small means . . ." Answer. Absolutely diametrically opposite views are held on this. Increase of water rates suggested for minimum bills, will hardly pay one-fifth of the annual estimated cost of $72,000. The other four-fifths are paid by, or secured by property taxes—retaining existing rates till paid—and property owners also pay many water bills that are increased also, and likewise many of the "minimum" bills increased, so that the men of small means do not pay even the fifth.

8. Makes further reference to construction of Lake Kemp, and "25c" cost. Answer. That was voted without discussion of consequence, and most of us now on both sides of this issue, so indifferent from oil activity, we do not recall positively whether we even voted. This issue has been discussed for years, and engineering authorities agreeing it is necessary, I am supporting them and the city officials as better guides than opponents of the project.

9. Suggests "get along with old clothes just as you and I are doing." Answer. None of us are doing it, when and if we are able to figure out that getting improvements will pay for themselves annually in avoiding other incidental losses or increased income. Economy must be practical. It is economy to do without luxuries. It is poor economy for a farmer to try to train a mule to get along without eating—or drinking.

10. Inquires who is paying for the advertising. Answer. Is it not as logical for those believing that economies resulting will more than offset costs, to pay for an advertisement as those thinking otherwise to pay for "anonymous dodgers," unsigned circulars, etc., and especially when they apparently dare not fight in the open, for fear perhaps they may themselves be guilty of what they impute to others, without evidence in that some of them have alternative methods for improving water system, perhaps, that requires sale to the city of material for which they are agents.

I have no proof of this, that would convict in court, but state, and sign my name, that some of those who have opposed the bond issue have appeared before city officials to sell material in which they are interested—for commissions presumably — and which suggest other projects in part at least.

Read Shakespeare, and other poets, philosophers and statesmen, and you will find all agree that darkness, anonymity, etc., hides foul thoughts and dark deeds, far more frequently than does conduct in line with open covenants openly arrived at and "an all cards on the table" policy. I'd be inclined to give city officials my support in this case, by reason of open, above board methods they have observed in handling the project, as compared with the opposition, had I not other reasons for also voting, and urging others to vote for the bond issue tomorrow, Tuesday, Jan. 20, 1931.

AID PROMISED 300 UNEMPLOYED AT VERNON

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Texas, Jan. 19.—Appeals from 300 unemployed men, gathered in orderly mass meeting at the courthouse Monday morning, resulted in the afternoon in the organization of official, civic and charitable bodies in a campaign for immediate relief.

Spokesmen for the men asked Judge J. V. Townsend to use his influence in providing work and groceries. The first appeal was made Saturday and the group reassembled Monday morning. Judge Townsend then informed them that every effort to meet the situation was being made and promised immediate aid.

Chamber of commerce officials, representatives of the city and county government, and leaders of the welfare work in the city together worked out a plan and appointed an executive committee to carry out the project.

The group decided to ask every employed man and woman to donate one day's pay a month for the benefit of the jobless. A canvass of the city will begin early Tuesday morning. Applicants for aid will be given one day's work and an allotment for food, it was explained.

Members of the executive committee include: R. M. Fielder, chairman; Will I. Stephens, Mrs. Bertha Ross, Mrs. W. H. Hudgins, J. B. Lawson, Fred C. Russell, and Rev. E. L. Moore. They will appoint subcommittees to work with them in the canvass.

Radio Speakers To Answer Bond Questions Today

Herbert Voelcker, chairman of the executive committee directing the campaign for the $1,000,000 water bond issue, Monday night announced a 15 minute radio address in support of the bonds to be broadcast over KGKO between 9:30 and 9:45 Tuesday morning. At that time a member of the executive committee will be glad to answer any bona fide question telephoned in to the KGKO station either before or during the address. He explained that the names of the questioners would not be broadcast unless desired, but would have to be made known to the committee. Ed Bebb will make the 15-minute talk.

Moody's Friend

Adjutant General R. L. Robertson was placed in charge of policing arrangements. He announced all automobile traffic would be kept out of the grounds from dawn on. The state highway patrol, state rangers, national guardsmen, the Austin police and the Travis county sheriff's department will work with General Robertson in handling the throng.

Mr. Sterling will go into office as a close friend of the retiring governor. Governor Moody appointed Mr. Sterling as chairman of the state highway commission. Four years ago, when Texas last had an inauguration, the situation was considerably different. Governor Moody had just defeated the retiring governor, Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, for a second term.

Short speeches will be made at the ceremony by Mr. Sterling, Governor Moody, Mr. Witt and Lieutenant Governor Miller.

Meal Ordered

When the exercises are finished, Governor Sterling and his family will go to the executive mansion to find their first meal "steaming and waiting." Governor Moody arranged with his servants to prepare the noon meal and work until after it is finished.

Governor Moody will be at his desk again tomorrow morning, answering any correspondence of a pressing nature. He planned to spend tonight in Texas' "White House" but he already had practically everything moved and he will be ready to leave the mansion tomorrow morning.

Many of the large number that attends the inaugural exercises will stay over tomorrow night to be guests at the inaugural ball, which is expected to be one of the most brilliant social functions in the state's history. For the first time in many years the dancers should have "elbow room," as the large new gymnasium of the University of Texas is available for the event.

Bands to Parade

Detailed plans have been made to route the traffic to and from the gymnasium. The reception is scheduled to last from 9 to 11 o'clock tomorrow night, with the dance from 11 well into the "wee small hours."

Mr. Moody, escorting Mrs. Sterling accompanying Mrs. Moody, will lead the grand march. Next will come the state's officialdom. Tuxedos and evening gowns will be the form of dress. Two orchestras have been engaged, the Ligon Smith orchestra and the University of Texas orchestra.

The three bands will start making music early tomorrow and will parade through the downtown section. The strains of music, however, will not be necessary to remind residents of the capitol city that tomorrow is inaugural day.

County Reappoints Mrs. Dale And Wallace Martin to Hospital Board

Funds Appropriated for Burk Bridge Paving and Bids Called On New County Farm House

Mrs. Mamie Dale and Wallace Martin were reappointed members of the Wichita General hospital board of managers Monday by the county commissioners, who also recommended the selection of Jack C. Barnard as the fifth member for another two years.

For the purpose of taking up this county's one-third of the cost of constructing concrete pavement between the free bridge at Burkburnett and the end of the present pavement, the commissioners placed the amount of $1,632.98 in escrow. It was anticipated that the contract for paving of the short gap would be let Tuesday at Austin.

The court also passed an order requesting the local chapter of the American Red Cross to make every effort to secure aid for people in this country. The motion set out that the continual drain upon the general fund of the county for charity relief is beginning to exceed the county's capacity to handle it.

The annual report of Miss Ethel Luise Webb, home demonstration agent, for 1930 was received, and the bond of Joe Overbey, county surveyor, was approved.

County Auditor Paul Barnett was instructed to advertise for bids for appointment as the county depository for the ensuing two years. Bids are to be opened Feb. 9. Mr. Barnett also was authorized to advertise for a four or five-room house to be purchased for removal to the county farm. Bids are to be received and opened Feb. 9.

The action comes as a result of a telegram sent by Mr. Beeman to St. Louis Monday morning appealing for aid in providing relief to stricken families in the county. A few hours after the wire had been received in St. Louis, Mrs. Ellis was dispatched here from counties just west of here where she had been working. J. W. Richardson, also a field representative of the Red Cross, maintains his headquarters here and conferred with Mr. Beeman earlier in the day.

Mr. Beeman's telegram to the national headquarters follows: "Drouth situation this county becoming serious. Reports show numerous families have reached end of their resources. Situation in city being handled satisfactorily but no provision for country people. This chapter needs help. Do you have investigator who could survey our county? We are attempting to raise our quota for national relief. W. O. Beeman."

OIL CRUSADERS MAP COURSE

Night Session Rounds Out Campaign Plan

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19. (AP)—Independent petroleum producers of the nation tonight pushed ahead their plans to lay before congress their plea for immediate relief.

The executive committee of the governors' oil relief conference, which today discussed in detail its campaign course, held a night session to round out its program.

Meanwhile, letters from the conference to the congressional delegations from the oil producing states were prepared by the committee and mailed to them for consideration tomorrow.

Triple Demands

The petition calls on the congressional delegations to support the three-fold crusade of the producers for a partial embargo on crude oil, complete exclusion of refined products and a tariff duty.

It asks that the congressional members from the oil states support an organization in the next house that would favor the oil operators' plea.

Committees of the states' delegations to the oil relief conference called on their state representatives in congress to gain support for their campaign. These groups are functioning as sub-committees of the executive unit.

Prepare Bill

The producers for the time being are holding in abeyance their previous announced plan to call on President Hoover and present their case to him. The executive committee today was undecided over when or whether the visit to the White House would be made.

Russell B. Brown, secretary of the conference and the executive committee which is headed by Orville Bullington of Wichita Falls, Texas, declared tonight the committee was considering the details of the bill it will propose to the house committee in interstate and foreign commerce.

The bill calls for limitation of imports of crude oil, prohibition of imports of refined oil and the establishment of tariff duty schedules on petroleum. Senator-elect Gore, Democrat, Oklahoma, is assisting in preparing the bill, which is expected to be presented to the house committee within the next three or four days.

Birthdays of Lee and Jackson Commemorated in Services Here

Confederate Organizations and Veterans Pay Tribute; Daniel, Kirby, Martin and Bratton Honored

Sons and Daughters of the Confederacy, veterans of the Spanish-American war and world war veterans met Monday night in the parlors of the First Presbyterian church to commemorate the birthdays of Robert E. Lee and Stonewall Jackson. One great Confederate flag hung before the audience.

Mrs. C. D. Shamburger, president of W. R. Scurry chapter U. D. C., presided and after the strains of "Dixie" that brought every person present to his feet, introduced each number on the program. Mrs. R. E. Shepherd presided at the piano and R. E. Shepherd led the group in singing "How Firm a Foundation" the favorite hymn of both Lee and Jackson. Mrs. Shamburger quoted Pat Neff's memorial speech in Austin when he stated that the nation that did not memorialize its heroes would never do anything worth memorializing, and saying that although everyone knew both soldiers for their leadership, it was a better and sweeter inspiration to know that each was deeply religious.

Tribute to Soldiers

Mrs. W. P. Bolding was introduced and in a short talk told of the devotion to duty, the patience and fortitude of Lee, who said, "Duty is the sublimest word in our language," and of the fact that Stonewall Jackson never entered battle without prayer.

Mrs. Guy Rogers, whose grandfather and his three brothers fought with Jackson and Lee, eulogized the courage, the fortitude and bravery of the footsore and weary Confederate soldiers, who against overwhelming odds and with no resources still persisted to the day when they stacked their guns and covered them with their Confederate flags in surrender.

Mrs. Shamburger stated that since crosses of honor had been bestowed on the Confederate veterans, the U. D. C. had prepared to give crosses for military service to veterans of the Spanish American war and world war who were lineal descendants of Confederate veterans and named four Wichitans whose papers were ready and for whom crosses had been ordered—Roy J. Daniel, C. C. Kirby, Tom Martin and Rev. Wm. D. Bratton. The crosses which were sent by insured mail on Jan. 9, have not yet been delivered. They will be presented at a later date.

Two violin numbers were given by Mrs. Jouette Bonner with Mrs. Ben Bell at the piano, after which Mike Newman, speaking for the Spanish American war veterans, Roy J. Daniel for the world war veterans and Judge Edgar Scurry for the Sons of Confederate Veterans, each brought a word of greeting.

Judge Scurry Speaks

Judge Scurry said that his greatest pride was having his father's name identified with the daughters and sons of Confederacy and told in a touching fashion how after his father's death, each day in his home was a memorial day. He paid tribute to Jefferson Davis, "great as a soldier, as president, as secretary of war and as Christian gentleman."

Claude B. Woods, who has recently received appointment as vice commander in chief of the Sons of Confederate Veterans of the transmississippi department, spoke briefly to the group, regretting that no veteran could be present and saying that with only between 13,000 and 14,000 left, they were dying at the rate of about 20 per cent a year. Tender tribute was paid the thinning ranks. "Blest Be the Tie" closed the impressive service.

U. manual, by Miss Alice Leath; the junior and intermediate leaders and sponsors, by the Rev. E. M. Agee; the intermediate manual, by Mrs. C. P. Moseley; the junior manual, by Mrs. S. F. CONTROL OF BUS LINE SOLD

Fort Worth Man Comes Here as Manager

Purchase of a controlling interest in the Southwest Coaches, Inc., by Robert Grozier of Fort Worth and W. D. Owens of Sweetwater was announced here Monday.

Gus Fowler, for many years a resident of Wichita Falls, will retain his interest in the concern and will continue in office as vice president, it was stated. Mr. Owens, who was made president, is moving from Sweetwater to Abilene, the southern terminal of the company's main line. Mr. Grozier, general manager, is moving with his family from Fort Worth to Wichita Falls this week. It was announced also that Ivy and D. Yates Grozier, both of whom will be connected with the bus company, are moving to this city from Fort Worth.

The Southwest Coaches, Inc., operates four buses daily between Wichita Falls and Abilene via Seymour, Stamford, Anson and Haskell. No changes in schedule are contemplated by the new management, it was said. In addition to the main line, the concern operates a division which runs from Stamford to Sweetwater via Hamlin, Rotan and Roby. Bus service on the Sweetwater division articulates at Stamford with that on the principal line.

In addition to being general manager of the concern, Mr. Grozier holds the office of secretary-treasurer.

A Rich Lady's Nose Talk With Your Bandit Raffling Off a Job Joy at Bedford

By EMILE GAUVREAU

Mrs. Horace E. Dodge Jr., society lady who has been worrying about her nose because it wasn't fashionably retrousse, decided to give it the proper tilt, regardless of cost. A plastic surgeon drops dead while performing the operation. Another, Dr. Joseph Safian, who remodeled the noses of famous people who worry about such things, finishes the job on Mrs. Dodge. It is assumed the wealthy lady will be more concerned about how her nose is going to come out than what happened to the first plastic surgeon.

When held up, have a heart to heart talk with your bandit. The depression furnishes an appeal to reason. By this method, Meyer Gluck, delicatessen store owner in East Orange, N. J., saved half of his receipts. A masked gunman walked in on him but Mr. Gluck did not lose his tongue. "Business is terrible," he said. "There is one dollar in change in the cash drawer. Take half." The bandit took 50 cents. No socialistic theory could be fairer than that.

Mr. David Kirchenberg, Broadway business man, adopts a novel way of giving a job. In response to his advertisement for a stenographer at $12 a week, several hundred girls rush to his place. He raffles the job off, a fair enough procedure, which satisfies even the losers. The lucky number, Miss Isabel Iskowitz now pounds Mr. Kirchenberg's typewriter. Washington gentlemen, trying to solve the unemployment problem, and doing nothing, might experiment with the raffling idea. At any rate, it would indicate that something is being done.

The Bedford reformatory for girls in Westchester, a place of gloom for unfortunate young women in New York state, now rings with shouts and laughter of its inmates. They no longer trudge the paths from cabin to cabin with heads bowed. Scores of them, illegally committed, now hear they will be released.

These young women, framed by paid stool pigeons were sent to the reformatory in violation of all their rights, although some admitted the guilt with which they were charged. If the law in New York is to have any meaning, and justice any decency, they are entitled to their freedom. The farce of the situation is that those who cast the first stone were the guiltiest of the lot—the grafting magistrates, the smirking bondsmen, the slimy stool pigeons and other pharisees who make up present-day New York.

In Hungary, the penalty for murder is death and for the first time in many generations, a woman, Frau Marie Kardos is hanged. She murdered her husband and son. She is led to the gallows, her arms and legs are bound and a noose adjusted around her neck. Then a stool, on which she is standing is unceremoniously kicked from under her. Doctors examining her a few seconds later pronounce her unconscious. Eight minutes later she finally dies. Not a pleasant picture but more humane than burning alive in the electric chair.

Alfred E. Smith wants the Republican national committee to apologize to him for distributing 800,000 copies of a notorious barroom cartoon labeled "Al Smith-Raskob ideas of happiness." The old-time saloon, where workers drank their beer quietly, was a saintly place compared with the modern speakeasy where young girls crowd the men at the bar and thirsty policemen out of the way.

The "official" closing of Great Lake steamer transportation is Dec. 15.

The old bicycle club which disbanded in New York recently might get some comfort in the fact that we still have our business cycles.

Delaware prison officials who ordered five convicts flogged apparently had their own ideas as to how to put prisoners in stripes.

Williams on the Rack

CARL WILLIAMS of Oklahoma, a member of the federal farm relief board, journeyed to Memphis to address the Southern Association of Commissioners of Agriculture. He said "the problem of cotton acreage reduction will solve itself if the South will feed itself." This was a shock to the association, which had been called in special session to consider means to reduce production and increase consumption of cotton. Carl Williams warned the association a 12,000,000 bale total cotton production, instead of the usual 14,500,000 or more, is the maximum which can be grown without disastrous results this year. He said a 10,000,000 bale crop would be still more desirable because of overproduction in the past. He said something else—that foreign growers had increased the quality of their products, while American growers have consistently forgotten quality.

A state senator from Mississippi, after Williams had concluded his remarks, made this statement: "I felt like I had just heard the funeral sermon of cotton."

Why the funeral sermon? Carl Williams is a square shooter. He has a knack of telling wholesome truth. He is for imporved quality of cotton and a lower acreage. A 12,000,000 bale crop this year would place money in the pockets of the growers. A 15,000,000 bale crop will place poverty in the pockets of the growers. There is a marked difference between a pocket depressed by poverty and a pocket swollen with coin of the realm.

The Corn Sugar Ruling

SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE HYDE'S ruling that it is no longer necessary for manufacturers of food products to indicate on the label the fact that they have been sweetened with corn sugar has aroused plenty of protest. Secretary Hyde's assertion that corn sugar is now much purer and sweeter than it was when the food and drugs act was first passed, and that this ruling will be a boon to agriculture has only partially answered the complaints.

An editorial in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical association discusses the question from the standpoint of medical science. It points out that many of the old objections to corn sugar no longer apply, because corn sugar has improved so greatly in the last decade; but it adds:

"However, if such a decision should in any way undermine the purpose of the food and drugs act, if it should encourage sophistication and adulteration of food without reasonable declaration, so that the purchaser may be suitably warned, the gain will be more than offset by the loss."

This is a timely warning. The whole purpose of the food and drugs act was to enable the purchaser to make sure exactly what he was buying. It is to be hoped that this fact will not be forgotten at Washington.

Our Masquerading Is Having Tough Going

BIG bankers say that the weeding out of weak and unnecessary business organizations by the present depression will leave American finance and industry in the healthiest condition ever known. Be that as it may, if these hard times, by bringing everybody to an equal footing on the rock bottom of fact, have the effect of debunking commercial enterprise in this country they will have been worth the price.

If chambers of commerce get permanently out of the habit of building cities by ballyhoo Americans will be infinitely more fit to stand prosperity. Just now anything but the plain, unadorned truth is revolting. Under existing conditions Mr. Doe much prefers to read that 100 men lost their jobs yesterday while eight men found employment than to be offered a headline announcing only that eight men returned to work.

Much air is escaping from publicity balloons. Perhaps when prosperity returns enough ballast will have been thrown over that Mr. Doe will be able to recognize a balloon as just a balloon.

What a Lynching Does

IT OUGHT to be pointed out that most people who are protesting against the recent lynching at Maryville, Mo., are not moved by any misplaced sympathy for the victim of that outrage. After all, a man who beats a girl to death does not deserve a great deal of consideration, and if this murderer's death was horrible, so was the death of his victim.

What causes indignation at the affair is the fact that it is a blow against all of society. The 2,000 men who were in the mob that burned that negro alive will be worse men, for the rest of their lives, than they were before. You cannot give free vent to cruelty and bloodlust without damaging your whole being.

The main job of civilization, after all, is to lift mankind out of savagery—in Tennyson's words, to "move upward, working out the beast." A crime like this at Maryville sets the whole process back.

Gloom for John Bull

JOHN BULL isn't enjoying gloomy days, but he has them. Three hundred thousand coal diggers are going on strike, 70 cotton mills shut down in a single day and 20,000 workers were thrown into idleness, in accordance with the lockout declared after 5,000 weavers in nine mills had struck in protest against the so-called more looms per weaver system. If the lockout materialized, 250,000 weavers will be affected and an equal number of spinners also will lose their jobs. Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, voice of the labor government of the British empire, is skating on thin ice. David Lloyd George, chief of the liberal party, keeps the MacDonald government in power, but the Welsh Napoleon of British politics may sidestep some day, and then the crash will come and another election will take place. John Bull has troubles of his own and his empire may hit the toboggan in the future.

Portrait of a ham trying to do his column between blackouts, songs, dances and allegedly witty sayings on the current Palace menu: My frail form is black and blue already from the clowning with the acrobats . . . If I only had some of that an-al-gee-seek that you rub on your skin to erase the aches . . . Oh, well . . . Anything for a laugh . . . I'll never do this again for twice the coin . . . My head hasn't stopped pounding since Wednesday when Arthur Willi, the theater's booker, first Brought the Subject Up . . . I would have been a chump to spurn all those "cocoanuts" . . . I will pay for the bride's and the kid's holiday at Miami Beach . . . Wonder how June is feeling . . . They didn't tell me about her operation until after I had completed the first long day . . . Sime, the Variety publisher, was with June, so I'm glad . . . She had someone she knew near her . . . I hope he likes the notice he asked me to write about my act . . . I rapped the boys on the papers who said I was good . . . That ought to teach 'em a lesson, that's what it ought to do . . . They should never be disloyal to their public and subscribers . . . Just because I'm one of the craft doesn't mean that they have to give me a boost when I certainly do not rate one . . . I've shelved four and a half pounds since the opening matinee from the strain—the nervousness—the fright—the devastating feeling in the stomach and that something—that tingling feeling that races to the finger tips just before you go out there to be confronted by the Broadway sharpshooters . . . Golly! I never dreamed they would be that affable—that patient—that tolerant! . . . Wonder why they were so nice to me? . . . They went out of their way to give me a break which is something I certainly never gave any of them . . . Their generosty made me feel so ashamed . . . Remorse set in when I heard that reception . . . I've been such a rat.

Poor Lillian Roth . . . The audience never suspected that those tears she flooded all over the stage were genuine . . . Lillie sings that ballad she warbled in "The Vagabond King" flicker in which she moans about her lover—who is sentenced to death . . . Two moments before she went on Sunday some careless lad let her answer the phone . . . Which let her know that her real sweetheart, her groom to be, had died while under the operating blade . . . He was only 23, too . . . How she screamed and shrieked in her undressing room Her grief was terrific . . . She adored him so . . . . Richman wasted no sympathy on her . . . The rest of us moaned with her, telling her how sorry we were, which was wrong, for it only made her cry all the harder . . . Harry shook her and yelled: "None of that stuff, do you hear? This is your life—your job. Audiences never understand . . . They aren't interested in your grief! . . . They came to be amused, entertained and diverted . . . You've got to go out there and sing your head off!" . . . And so asserting himself Harry shoved her out onto the stage . . . I never saw such a display of "heart" in my career, or as we vulgarians prefer calling it—"guts!" . . . Her sweetheart was dead up there at the hosp and she had to go out there and make them laugh . . . And applaud . . . And how she did it! . . . Then when she came to that sad song in which she yells: "He was my man! He made me happy! He took my heart! I love him so!"—the tear ducts opened wide and how she wept . . . The spectators of course must have said to themselves: "Gee, what an actress. Look at those real tears!" . . . I've written about such things from hearsay before—oh, hundreds of times—about "The Show must go on!"—"The Curtain Must Go Up!" . . . That was the first time I got a close-up of it . . . Hellinger would have given me his right arm for that story—for his Saturday page.

It was nice of "J. G." (James Gow) of The World to give me a break in his review of the show . . . He said I had "savoir-faire" and that I was pleasant, etc . . . I must send him a note of thanks . . . I never expected a break from his rag . . . Which I have slugged from time to time because it permitted one of its staff (who had it in for me) to put words into a star's mouth, which she has told friends again and again (and which she told me) she never said . . . At any rate they let the 20-year-old critic say some nice cracks about me . . . But I must give him a little lesson in journalism, which, perhaps, he will be grateful for some day . . . He devoted part of his notice to slapping me for something I was not guilty of . . . He said that I obviously faked a wire of congrats from George S. Kaufman, the author of "Once In a Lifetime" and other hits . . . He was so positive in his statement . . . He balled me out so . . . I suppose someone steered him wrong—for a purpose . . . But it wasn't a spurious telegram at all . . . And if he was a good reporter he would have invested a nickel and phoned George to check it up—instead of rushing into print and making me look like a fabricator . . . I will give a grand (or more) to any charity if "J. G." can show that it wasn't a legitimate wire from Kaufman . . . If he cannot find Kaufman to check up on it then let him inquire at the Postal Telly general offices and see if Kaufman didn't send me that wire on Jan'y 8—at 5.38 p. m., to the Daily Mirror . . . I don't want to embarrass the kid, but he embarrassed me a little and it's a good thing I have a form of expression to make retort . . . And I want to counsel the aspiring journalist along these lines . . . First get your news right . . . That is, get it right as often as possible . . . We all make mistakes—that's why they have rubber mats under spittoons . . . Then when you make your readers believe that you are usually accurate—even when you make a boner—they still believe you.

I want to throw a cheer at the stage and orchestra crews of "Ballyhoo" who helped Walter Batchelor save that troupe from being dumped into the unemployment army . . . When they learned Walter didn't have enough coin to put up bonds for the chorus, and crews, the boys came forward and furnished their own bonds . . . That's the first time I ever heard of a stage hand or a musician going to such extremes to give an actor a hand . . . And I trust that the mob who like me will buy tickets for the Stage Hands' Ball which takes place at Madison Square Garden on February 21, the ducats are only two dollars and you will be assured of a grand show . . .

THE LOVELY LIAR : BY ROB EDEN

BEGIN HERE TODAY

In need of money after running away to New York to escape the tyranny of her mother, Poppy Prior pawns her wrist watch and ring. After a day's fruitless search for work she is seized at her hotel by two detectives for stealing a bracelet, which she found on the train. She had thought it worth about two ninety-five.

Now Go on With the Story

CHAPTER VI

"Kid, I'm giving you some good advice, and if you're wise you'll take it, get me?" Riley, the taller of the two detectives, announced as he walked her along the corridor of a big office building.

Poppy nodded dumbly. She had been so bewildered in the taxi coming here, and so little had been said, Riley and Maitland had smoked and kept silent. She had been too stunned to ask any questions. However, when one of them had demanded the bracelet, she had given it up willingly. Was it real? Real diamonds? Obviously it must have been stolen and she, they thought, had stolen it. They'd find out differently when they asked her. For she'd found it on the train coming to New York.

She had watched Riley put it in a wash leather bag, carefully. It wasn't as if she didn't want to ask about it. She did. But she couldn't speak, somewhow.

"How old are you?" Riley asked in a kindly tone.

"Eighteen," words had come at last.

"Eighteen? Well, don't tell Rogers you're eighteen. If you're wise you'll tell him you're sixteen or seventeen."

"Why?"

"Oh, he'll be easier on you if you're under age. If you admit you're eighteen he'll give you the works."

"But I didn't steal the bracelet—if that's what you want to know,"

"Where'd you get it?"

"I found it—"

"Where?"

"On a train."

"What train?"

"Oh—" But here they turned into an office, marked on the door, "W. W. Rogers, Private Detective," and Poppy found herself in a big waiting room. Maitland plunged into a door and came out presently, announcing that Rogers and the rest of them were waiting.

"Remember what I said, now. Tell Rogers you're sixteen. You look it, so it won't be no lie," Riley whispered in warning as they started for the door. "I'm just helpin you."

"I didn't steal the bracelet, Mr. Riley," Poppy protested.

"Well, you got to prove you didn't."

"They won't believe me?"

"They won't believe nothin', until you got a cast iron alibi. That bracelet's worth fifty grand, kid, and I don't mean maybe."

"What's fifty grand?"

"Fifty thousand dollars."

Poppy gasped. She had thought it just a cheap, ordinary piece of costume jewelry!

There were four people in the private office besides herself and the two detectives, a man sitting at the desk, a man with gray hair, and cold gray eyes, and grayish skin. He was wearing a gray suit, too. Near him sat a younger man, and beside him a girl. Beautiful, Poppy thought quickly. Standing near the window was the pawnbroker Poppy had gone to see that morning, his soiled shirt concealed with a sacky untidy coat. He was leering at her.

"Poppy Prior?" the man at the desk asked quickly. Poppy nodded. She glanced again at the girl sitting so still in her chair, thinking she might get sympathy. But the girl's eyes were hard, and blue as stones.

"This the girl, Abras?" the man at the desk barked out. Poppy found out later he was Rogers, the head of the private agency.

"That's the girl. She came to my place this morning after 9 to pawn a watch and a ring. I saw the diamond bracelet on her arm, examined it, and knew it at once from the police description. Tried to tell me it wasn't real. Told me a couple of times it was phoney, trying to get me to believe she was wearing cheap jewelry. I know the line, though, and I know diamonds like nobody else in New York knows 'em."

That was true Poppy decided.

She had gone in after 9 to pawn her things and she had thought the bracelet a cheap one . . .

"Where's the bracelet, Riley?"

"Here, sir." Riley produced the bracelet from the bag.

Rogers handed it to the girl with the hard blue eyes. "Yours, Miss Nixson?"

"Of course." She took it eagerly. "Of course," she repeated.

"Perhaps I ought to introduce you, Miss Prior. This is Miss Nixson, Miss Celia Nixson, the owner of the bracelet and the two rings you stole." Poppy was too dumbfounded to deny anything. "And this is Mr. Kevin Wallace." He indicated the man sitting beside Miss Nixson. "Mr. Abrams you have met, very evidently."

The Rings

"My reward?" Abrams said quickly. "I get the thousand dollar reward?"

"Yes," Rogers frowned.

"Now?"

A broader frown, but Rogers wrote out a check and handed it to the pawn broker. "That's all for you now, Abrams. We don't need you any more, except when the case comes up for trial. You'll be a witness, but you'll be notified."

Poppy saw the pawnbroker snatch the check, look at it, and lumber away.

"Now, Poppy Prior, I'm ready for you. Sit down, will you?"

Poppy fell into the chair Riley brought up. She didn't like this gray man, didn't like the way he looked at her, the way he rapped his pencil smartly on the polished surface of the desk.

"Where are the two rings? Riley and Maitland couldn't find them when they searched your room."

"I don't know anything about them. I didn't steal the bracelet. I found it."

"Where?"

"Kid, I'm giving you some advice, and if you're wise you'll take it. Get me?"

"On a train."

"What train?"

"I'd rather not say. You'll just have to believe me."

How could she tell him what train? That would mean telling her whole story, telling about Ted. Telling about Ashland. They might have to have corroboration for her story and wire Ashland. Mother would find out she wasn't married. Everybody in Ashland would find out—

No, she couldn't tell what train. Couldn't tell them for that matter that she came from Ashland at all. When they asked her, she'd say California.

"I suppose you don't know anything about the robbery?" Rogers was being sarcastic, but Poppy didn't know it.

"No, I don't."

"Well, for your information, I'll give you a little data. Miss Nixson's apartment was entered by thieves June 28, a month and a half ago. This bracelet and two valuable rings were taken from her jewel box. Naturally she reported her loss to the police and also put me on the case. We offered a reward of $1,000 for the return of each piece, with the stipulation, of course, that we get information as to the thief. Abrams, who saw the circulars, called this morning just after you had left the shop, and reported that he had seen the bracelet. He gave us your address. Does that satisfy you?"

Poppy was getting frightened. There was an edge on his voice that was dangerous. Her lips were trembling as she looked again at Miss Nixson, who had taken a cigaret and was smoking in a thoroughly complacent manner. Her scarlet nails seemed like jewels as her fingers carried the cigaret back and forth to her lips. Blond hair peeped out from the smart black turban she wore on her head. She wore a dull black silk dress, and a pair of long black gloves, and a silver tipped double fox lay on the desk in front of her.

Contented Celia

Celia Nixson was quite pleased with herself. She had her bracelet back. True the two rings were still missing, but this girl would

Q.—In the banquet scene in Macbeth is the ghost of Banquo shown upon the stage?—E. S.

A.—Both versions of the play Macbeth by Shakespeare are given—with the ghost appearing and without it. At present the Ben Greet players, producers of what is known as pure Elizabethan drama, do not show the ghost of Banquo at the banquet table as this is a deviation from the true Shakespeare. Other companies having in mind the dramatic effect of its appearance, show the ghost of Banquo with weird lighting effects.

Q.—How are the members of the Communist party of the Soviet union classified?—B. H. G.

A.—The membership as of July 1, 1928, consisted of 1,317,369 members and applicants. They were classified as follows: Workers, 60.8 per cent; peasants, 20.9 per cent; intellectual and office workers, 18.3 per cent.

Q.—Can air mail be sent to or from all postoffices in the United States?—E. S.

A.—If the postoffice is not on an air mail line, the mail is carried by ordinary methods to or from the nearest air mail station. The envelope should be marked "Via Air Mail" and bear adequate postage. It costs 5 cents for the first ounce and 10 cents for each additional ounce to any point in the United States, Canada, or Mexico.

Q.—Did Grover Cleveland oppose woman's suffrage?—I. R. E.

A.—In a magazine article ex-President Cleveland some 15 years before the suffrage amendment was adopted said: "Sensible and responsible women do not want to vote. The relative positions to be assumed by man and woman in the working out of our civilization were assigned long ago by a higher intelligence than ours."

Q.—How far did Jackson and O'Brine travel in making their airplane endurance record?—H. G.

A.—In August, 1930, they established the record of a 647 hour, 28 minute flight and covered a distance of 42,008 miles.

Q.—What will prevent the electric shock one gets when shaking hands during cold weather?—A. E.

A.—A damper atmosphere will prevent it. This is a common phenomenon indoors in winter, when the air in a house is likely to be very dry.

Q.—For how long a term is a congressman-at-large elected?—T. H.

Q.—Do the words fort and fortress express the same idea?—W. C. K.

A.—They are often used interchangeably. In the United States, all permanently garrisoned places, whether fortified or not, are termed forts. In fortification, fort is usually applied to a work entirely enclosed by defensible parapets. Fortress generally designates a fortified city or town, or any piece of ground so strongly fortified as to be capable of resisting an attack. It is a permanent fortification.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

The big thing on the state social calendar at the moment is the inaugural ball. From all over Texas, they're wending their way toward the capitol.

◇ ◇ ◇

It makes us remember inauguration festivities in other states. We have known many governors of many kinds and we have known the round of cheerful gossip that followed on several inaugurals.

◇ ◇ ◇

Once in South Dakota, when the governor was native of a race predominant in that comparatively new state, we remember the reception at which his large, good-hearted wife stood at the head of the receiving line dressed in a white satin gown imported from Chicago with the long train that was the height of fashion in that day. With this costume, she wore high buttoned black shoes.

◇ ◇ ◇

An orator of the long-haired type was one of Mississippi's governors while we lived there. He was a "man of the people" and, though ready with words and of some brain capacity, lacked education. His wife, a handsome woman, murdered English without remorse. That he could not speak properly was taken as a matter of course, but there was much comment because his wife would not go East and study English before she became the lady of the governor's mansion.

◇ ◇ ◇

Mississippi was once proud of her statesmen. That day has long gone by. The little man who now is autocrat of that state has his adherents but he has striven to be a Mussolini without that gentleman's driving power and has made the educational institutions of the proud old state a laughing stock.

◇ ◇ ◇

But he loves himself; even he would admit that. Katherine Anthony begins her biography of Queen Elizabeth "Henry the Eighth was a descendant of Narcissus. He admired himself very much—" As we look about us in the present world, we marvel at the number of descendants that innocent youth Narcissus has.

◇ ◇ ◇

Men have a habit of thinking the vainest of the vain are those members of the opposite sex who powder, rouge and put on lipstick before their open vanities. We argue it is the vanity in mankind that brought forth the old saying "All men are born guileless but die deceitful," even if 'tis just as true of woman.

◇ ◇ ◇

Nature, at least, is not deceitful. We pondered on that fact as we gazed upon the lovely contrast of heavy white frost and vivid patches of green. Such prosaic things as collards and turnip greens are picturesque.

◇ ◇ ◇

More than that, they are a comfort and we wish that every poor family had a patch. The moderate winter has been a blessing for many reasons, one in particular being the unemployed without fuel and food.

◇ ◇ ◇

To a mere woman, the attitude of Mr. Hoover on Red Cross relief is the most mysterious thing ever encountered politically. We are glad we are a Democrat.

How Cardui Helped

"WHEN I was just a girl at home, my health was not good," writes Mrs. A. L. Sanders, 115 J St., Anderson, S. C. "My mother, knowing Cardui was a good medicine, gave it to me, and I was greatly improved.

"Some years later, I was run-down again, and this time suffered quite a bit of pain in my sides and the lower part of my body. My head would ache. I remembered Cardui and started taking it again. I took about four bottles, after which I was much stronger and better. I think Cardui is a splendid medicine for both old and young women."

Some Carrot Recipes

The carrot is so common a vegetable that many people do not appreciate its virtues. However, it may be prepared in a number of appetizing ways so that it need never become monotonous. Here are a few of the unusual ways of preparing carrots.

Jellied Chicken and Carrots

Two level teaspoonfuls of gelatin.
Three cups of chicken stock.
One and one-half cups of cooked chopped carrots.
One-half cup of chopped celery.
One tablespoonful of finely chopped parsley.

Soak the gelatin in cold water for five minutes, and dissolve in the hot chicken stock. Pour a thin layer of this jelly in the bowl, allow to stiffen slightly, and pour in the mixture of the vegetables and remaining jelly. Serve on lettuce.

Boiled Ham With Vegetables

One pound of ham
Three small potatoes
One bunch of medium sized carrots
One turnip

In a pan place enough water to cover the ham. While the water is boiling plunge the ham in and boil an hour before adding the vegetables. Serve when they are cooked.

Cream of Carrot Soup

Three cups of meat stock
Three cups of canned carrots, or one bunch of raw carrots
One cup of evaporated milk.

Heat the stock and the cooked carrots, then add the evaporated milk, bring to a boil and stir in a half cup of melba toast crumbs just before serving.

Vegetable Loaf

Two cups of chopped carrots
One-half cup of string beans
One-half cup of canned peas
Two chopped turnips
One egg
One-half cup of milk
One cup melba toast crumbs.

Pass the peas through a sieve, mix with the chopped carrots and other vegetables. Beat the eggs slightly and add to the milk, then add the milk and egg to the vegetables. Place the bread crumbs in last, add a small amount of salt and shape into a loaf. It should be baked in the oven for 35 minutes.

Vegetable Cocktail

Add tomato sauce to an equal amount of whipped cream, amout a half cupful of each.

Place chopped carrots, asparagus tips, celery, artichoke hearts, etc., in chilled vegetable dishes and pour this sauce over them. Grated cheese may be sprinkled over the top.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Dandruff

Question: J. M. writes: "I would like for you to print a remedy for dandruff. I wash my hair and in one week the dandruff is all over the scalp. I use a lye soap, as I have been told that it would cure the dandruff."

Answer: Do not use any strong soap on your scalp, but wash your hair daily for one week and then every other day for several weeks. If your hair is not long it is well then to continue shampooing the hair at least two or three times weekly. Use any plain soap, but rinse your hair well afterwards. After you have dried the hair as much as possible with a towel, rub in a little cocoanut or almond oil.

Fruit for Child

Question: D. D. writes—"Please let me know through the column the best time to give fruit to a child of three years. Should he have it between meals or with meals?"

Answer: It is usually best to make an entire meal of some one kind of fruit. If fruit is taken between meals it is better to use it at 4 or 5 o'clock in the afternoon before the evening meal which should not contain any highly starchy food.

Anemia and Age

Question: Mrs. A. W. asks—"Will you please tell me if a man of 65 can be cured of anemia of the blood?"

Answer: The age should make no difference. The cure depends upon eliminating from the blood the poisons which are killing off the red blood cells faster than they are being formed.

LONGHORN COUNCIL MAY NOT RENEW CONTRACT WITH WALKER

The Rambler's Corner

By FRED THOMPSON

Fraternity Notes

The Spudders have received the signed contracts of Pitchers Wallace Hebert and Forrest Presnell. So the official Spudder roster is now made up of three. These two and Roland Flinn, Maine's towering terror, who signed a coupla weeks ago.

Hebert, for your information, is the correct spelling of the first name above. The hurler is a Frenchman, and his nom, as he would call it, is pronounced "E-bare," the T silent like in Olney.

Both "E-Bare" and Presnell bared their respective souls via the government post. Both, strange to say, wrote perfect letters. On opening the fold of the paper, no torsos of infinitives dropped out. The French, you know, lead the world in culture. E-Bare and Presnell have been associated with each other, and had Presnell felt uncomfortable in the world of beautiful letters, his association with E-Bare would have straightened him out. It is possible that this occurred. In perfect lingo, we repeat, both expressed satisfaction with their transfer to the Spudders, hinting that they would do their level best.

Hal Wiltse, the blond, paid his semi-monthly visit to the Spudder offices Monday to collect his mail, revealing in the brief appearance that he is fostering a mustache which is comin' out white.

Catcher Bryant, drafted by the Spudders from the Wilkes-Barre club of the New York-Penn, also wrote the club officers of his intention to bear down.

Lester White's little girl is 3½ months old and weighs 15 pounds, according to a note from him from Long Beach, Calif., where he is summering this winter. He's pitching every Sunday, says he, and is keeping in good shape.

Jim Levey is sporting around town in army pants and hoss-riding boots.

Horrace Robbins had an invitation to play in the Reynosa, Mexico, polo tournament, but an injury sustained some months ago in a polo game here forced him to decline, which made him feel anything but pleasant.

Robert Fuss, who this season will graduate to the Spudders from the Scranton club of the New York-Penn, is highly recommended by A. W. Elliott, Scranton pilot, in a letter to Prexy Huff.

"We are very glad to have our young players advance in their profession, whether it is by draft or by sale . . . ." said Elliott . . . . but "I am sorry to lose him.

"As to his ability," Elliott continues, "he played the outfield for the Scranton club last year. Previous to this he had played in the infield for three years. His performance in the outfield was so good that it was not advisable to move him. He has always hit over .300 and is a conscientious player. As to his habits, it is with great pleasure that I recommend him to you. He does not drink and is a clean-living young man. I wish all my players were like him. I hope that he proves to be a valuable man for your club and that he continues to advance in his profession."

Wright of Olney

One of the outstanding basket ball players in this section is Wright of Olney, according to Robert Gott, secret service operative for this column in the home of the Cubs. Stating specifically that this is under-cover stuff and not for publication, he claims Wright is "a regular Dietsel for T. C. U." The statistics uphold Gott's contention. Friday night the Olney team whipped Bowie and in turn was defeated by Alvord by one point. In the Alvord game, Wright made 10 points in five minutes. In the Bowie game he made 21 points in the little over a half of the game he played. He made 23 points against Childress Saturday night.

TWO DEFEATS START RUMOR

Next Year's Berths to Be Awarded Thursday

By GAYLE TALBOT, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Jan. 19. (AP)—Two lopsided defeats handed the Texas Longhorns by T. C. U. and S. M. U. on their North Texas tour were not cheering to Fred Walker, coach of the Steers. The Texas mentor was advised here of an apparently well-founded report from Austin that the Longhorn athletic council already had decided not to renew his contract next year.

"That's the first I had heard of it," Coach Walker said. "Of course, I knew there were several persons down there fighting me, but I had no idea it had gone that far. I certainly hope it hasn't and I intend to find out when I get back to Austin."

Coach Walker suggested that one of his enemies on the council might have started the rumor just to "stir things up" and start a controversy. He didn't seem to think that his failure to produce a basket ball champion since going to the university had much to do with the situation.

The report that the council had decided not to renew Walker's contract came through the Associated Press correspondent at Austin, who received it from a man "in direct contact with the athletic council," who asked that his name be withheld. The informant said that sentiment among members of the council indicated Walker would not be retained as basket ball coach "even though his team won the Southwest conference title."

Walker was the center of a heated controversy last spring, when he was opposed for reappointment by Clyde Littlefield, head football coach, and Uncle Billy Disch, baseball mentor.

CROWDS INCREASE AS REFEREES WHISTLE LESS

They are playing a faster, freer brand of basket ball in the Southwest conference this winter, thanks to a very forceful suggestion made by Dr. R. N. Blackwell, business manager of the athletics at Southern Methodist, to conference court officials.

The coaches are not particularly pleased, but the spectators and players are. When the cash customers are pleased they tell others, receipts swell correspondingly, and that was Dr. Blackwell's idea in the first place.

In advising the arbiters to toot their whistles less frequently and be less technical in their decisions, Doctor Blackwell had in mind the financial strain being felt in several conference schools. He felt they could not stand the customary basket ball loss this year and that something should be done to attract the crowds.

Various coaches and officials have complained, privately, that the doctor had no right to tell them how to "call" the games. There has been some talk of rebellion. But it is noticeable, nevertheless, that the referees are "letting 'em go" more than ever before, and that the crowds are larger.

Doctor Blackwell's mysterious influence over the arbiters possibly is explained by the fact that he is the man who officially assigns the working crew for all conference games. The coaches agree on officials, but the doctor ratifies the selections and pays the bills.

COUNCIL TO CONSIDER CONTRACTS THURSDAY

AUSTIN, Jan. 19. (AP)—A meeting of the athletic council of the University of Texas will be held Thursday night to consider coaching contracts, Dr. W. E. Metzenthin, chairman, said today. Metzenthin said no formal protest had been made against any member of the present coaching staff but that contract renewals "would be given careful and weighty consideration."

Colleges Plan Rowing Regatta

NEW YORK, Jan. 19. (UP)—Preliminary plans for holding the annual intercollegiate rowing regatta at Poughkeepsie were announced here. Definite decision as to the date and number of crews to be invited will be reached at the annual meeting of the Intercollegiate Rowing association here, Jan. 22.

It is known the race will be held about June 17. It is expected nine crews, the same number that started in 1930, will compete.

Actually, the intercollegiate regatta is an invitation affair but any college of worthy scholastic standing which boasts a crew receives an invitation to compete.

The crews that started last year were Cornell, Syracuse, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, California, Columbia, Washington, Penn, Wisconsin and Navy.

ELECTRA, Texas, Jan. 19.—Leading their foes all the way and displaying a superior game, the Electra High school Tigers defeated the Harrold quintet, 32 to 18, here tonight.

Harrold showed talent in passing, but was weak on goal shooting. The Tigers struck their gait early and by half-time stood on a 15 to 6 margin. Curfman was high point man for the winners with 13 points, while Nixon set the pace of the losers with eight. The Tigers meet the Wichita Falls Coyotes on the local court here next Saturday night. Northwestern Defeats Michigan Cagers, 26-21

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Jan. 19. (UP) — Northwestern university's basket ball team earned another leg on the conference title tonight by defeating Michigan, 26 to 21.

The towering players from Evanston led throughout the game, outclassing the Wolverines almost as easily as they did in their first game of the season. Reiff, Northwestern forward, starred with a total of 15 points.

Coyotes Defeat Presbyterian Team

Fighting back a determined rally, the high school Coyotes defeated the Southern Presbyterians of this city last night on the Coyote court by the count of 47 to 41.

After a slow start and raggedly played first half the Pack swarmed all over the court and hit the basket from anywhere and everywhere, Brandon and Janeway leading the way. With a comfortable lead the Red and Black clad five took things easy, and it nearly resulted in a defeat for the prep aggregation. Only a few minutes were left to play when the Presbyterian tossers tied the score. The Coyote team suddenly came to life and Allen and Janeway sank two pointers in quick succession to give their team victory. Both teams were guilty of frequent let-downs after a period of sensational scoring, but for the most part the Coyotes displayed a super type of basket ball.

Bob Brandon and Orion Janeway led the scoring for the winners with 14 points, Reeves being close behind with 12 counters. Flechtner, Roberson, and O. Reeves led the futile attack of the losers, the latter getting high honors with 15 points. Score:

'Just Charge It' Habit Gets Dean Chaperon

JEROME DIZZY DEAN

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Jan. 19. (AP)—Jerome Herman "Dizzy" Dean, youthful mound recruit of the St. Louis Cardinals, is spending the winter at Charleston, Mo.—and there's a reason.

Charleston is the home of Oliver French, business manager of the St. Joe Western league club, appointed semi-official custodian of the ball player whose escapades and self-confidence have caused him to be compared with "Whataman" Shires.

Dean has been the star boarder at the French home ever since a painful experience last season with charge accounts while members of the club stayed at a downtown hotel.

After he had been sent back to his native Texas there turned up, among other bills, a debit slip from a "drive-it-yourself" automobile company, reported to have totaled $600.

Fining the obstreperous pitcher, withholding spending money and other repressive measures failed of the desired effect, so it was decided that Dean's daily life should be personally conducted.

For a player who never touches a drop of forbidden beverages, Dean probably enjoys more attention from his owners than any diamond performer since the days of the immortal Rube Waddell.

Even Rube never squandered a fat bonus, given him by a big league club for signing on the dotted line, commuting in carefree fashion between midwestern and Texas points.

Church Cage Loops to Continue As Result of Gift by T. E. Noble

Through the generosity of T. E. Noble, local business man, the church and Sunday school basket ball leagues will be able to remain organized the remainder of the season, Ross Edgemon, sponsor of the league, announced Monday night after a meeting of managers of the two leagues. At the meeting Edgemon announced Mr. Noble had volunteered to pay the rental on the Floral Heights Presbyterian church gymnasium, where the league games are played, for the remainder of the season. The rentals amount to $80.

The leagues were facing disorganization owing to lack of funds, and the money necessary for gymnasium rentals offered the biggest problem.

It was further announced the price of season tickets for the rest of the season had been reduced from $2.50 to $1.

The managers in both leagues joined in a written statement of thanks to Mr. Noble, as follows:

"As manager of our basket ball team, I want to thank Mr. Noble for his kindness in backing our league, and am sure that all the churches in the league appreciates his good will."

Smith Medalist In Curtis Meet

High Wind and New Ball Hoists Scores

MIAMI SPRINGS, Fla., Jan. 19. (UP)—A retired army major won medal honors today in qualifying play for the eighth annual Glen Curtis trophy tournament. Major M. R. Smith, Kansas City, Mo., shot a comparatively high 78 to lead the field.

A high wind combined with the big new ball was blamed for the high scores.

Jack Ryerson, Cooperstown, N. Y., winner of the Miami Biltmore invitation tournament last week, was second with 79.

Allen Purchases Nashville Club

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 19. (AP)—The Nashville club of the Southern association passed today to R. G. Allen who recently terminated his 16 years' ownership of the Little Rock club because of inability to renew his park lease. Allen will transfer his connections immediately to the Tennessee capital, home of the Volunteers.

"I will move here and put in a good club," Allen said. "With eight good towns in the league there have to be four in second division. We can't promise a winner but we are going to aim at that. We are going to get and keep good players."

Allen paid $50,000 for the 629 shares, representing 90 per cent of the outstanding stock and agreed to assume a bonded mortgage indebtedness of $82,500, receiving the club debt-free except for this. The sale was to satisfy a debt of approximately $50,000 to Caldwell and company and $70,000 to the Fourth and First National bank.

Discoverer of Storti Given Job as Umpire

The man who first discovered Lin Storti was a ball player, and a good one, will serve on the Texas league umpire staff this season. He is Leslie Tullos of Dallas, who with John King will be a newcomer to the league in the role of arbiter. The rest of the staff of last year will be retained, League President J. Alvin Gardner, announced Monday.

The hold-over umpires follow: E. L. Ballanfant, George Barr, Steve Basil, S. J. Colfer, M. M. Dominique, Harry Kane and J. W. Sears.

Both of the newcomers have venerable records in the Texas league, and in Texas baseball. Tullos served as manager of the Abilene subsidiary of the Spudder club part of 1928, and in that position his path crossed Storti's. Storti had been signed by the Amarillo club which then was in the Western league. Amarillo released him, and Tullos put Lin to work in Abilene. Since then Storti has served with Tulsa and Wichita Falls and is now on the roster of the St. Louis Browns.

CUBS IN FOR TOUGH WEEK

Olney Team to Play Three Leaders in Race

Special to The Record News.

OLNEY, Texas, Jan. 19.—Albert Acker's Cubs face the hardest week of work since the current basket ball season started. Captain Gilmore and his sharpshooters must meet two undefeated teams in five days after sandwiching a game with Childress there.

The fireworks start at Olney Tuesday night against the undefeated Jacksboro crew, runner-up in the district last year. Jermyn, Eliasville, Bowie and Alvord have already fallen before the steamroller attack of the Jack county entry and the Cubs must strut championship form to turn them away. Jermyn and Alvord both hold a verdict over the Olney team and prospects for a victory Tuesday night look meager for Acker's team.

Thursday night will find the Cubs in Childress and they may expect plenty of trouble there, even though the Lions were disposed of easily in a previous meeting at Olney. From Childress the Cubs will turn toward the brilliant Crowell team there. Last year's regional champions, Estelline, have fallen before the Crowell team as have all other opponents from a wide stretch of territory. Out of the Olney-Crowell-Jacksoboro trio will likely come the district and possibly the regional champion.

The Cubs are not sure of getting by the Eliasville team in the Young county tournament Feb. 13 and 14. At any rate this week's activity will give fans a chance to size up the field.

Campbell to Try For Speed Record

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Jan 19. (AP)—Capt. Malcolm Campbell, last of the four daredevil racers officially credited with driving an automobile faster than 200 miles an hour, will risk his life on the beach here early next month in challenging for the "speed king" crown.

The British captain, in his Blue Bird II, will try to break the 231 miles an hour record set in 1929 by the Golden Arrow with the late Sir H. O. D. Segrave at the wheel. Campbell will be the second Britisher to attempt to pass Segrave's mark. Kaye Don made an unsuccessful attempt last March in the Silver Bullet.

Campbell, who thrice has held the highest crown in the racing firmament since he set a mile straightway mark of 150.76 in 1925 on Pendine Sands, Wales, plans to leave England Jan. 14, for America.

On the 14-mile narrow sand strip, called by many the finest straightaway course in the world, Seagrave first flashed across the stretch at more than 200 miles an hour. The Britisher took the title for the "flying mile" at 208. The same sands saw Campbell boost the mark to 206, the late Ray Keech push it to 207, and then Segrave came back to establish the present record of 231.

Keech was killed at the Altoona track, while several others, including Lee Bible and Frank Lockhart, hustled to their death on the Daytona Beach sands in trying to win the speed honors. Segrave lost his life several months ago in England in a speedboat accident.

Captain Campbell will come back to the famous battleground of speed with a goal of 250 miles an hour. He says he has gone 225 in Africa, where he sought a new mark last year, and he believes his car is capable of going faster than the record mark.

U. T. 1931 GRID HOPES HIGH

20 Letter Men to Return, Husky Frosh Abound

AUSTIN, Jan. 19. (AP)—The ballyhoo has started. In this instance the ballyhoo has to do with the prospects of the 1931 University of Texas football team which will engage Harvard, the University of Missouri and the University of Oklahoma, in addition to Southwest conference schools.

Hopes for another championship team are running high. The aspirations are based largely on the strength of the squad that last year cavorted as freshmen.

Even the band has taken the schedule to heart, approximately 200 coming out for the musical organization in the hope they may blow themselves into a trip to Cambridge next fall.

20 Letter Men Return

Coaches feel the 1931 season will be an auspicious one since 20 lettermen will return in addition to a flock of reserves and some brilliant men from the frosh squad. As a whole the freshman squad was not as strong as that of the preceding year, from which the backbone of the 1930 championship eleven was drawn, but certain players stand out head and shoulders above those produced in recent years.

The greatest strength on the freshman team was in the center and tackle positions, with several individuals adding danger to the backfield combination. The center position was remarkably strong, with four men offering better material to the freshman coaches than was available to varsity coaches at the start of the season. Bill Smity of Cisco, Carlos Bell of Liberty, Malone Poss of Mission and Jim McLean of Greenville were the leading pivot men.

Walter Howie, who started in the varsity lineup in most of the 1930 games, will be hard pressed to maintain his standing as a regular when the four centers begin gunning for his job. There will be four brawny members of the 1930 squad out for tackle positions, with the possibility that some of them will develop into guards or into first class bench warmers when the frosh talent hits the grid. Among the hefties who will seek varsity berths next fall will be "Bull" Katrols, a fast 200-pounder from Granger; Arthur Niebuhr of Belleville; David Wood of Mission; James Clark of Waco; Morgan Wheeler of Poteet and Dennis Wallace and Fred Beasly of Junction.

Rockfield Looks Good

The already strong varsity backfield will be further strengthened by the addition of Bohn Hilliard, former Orange High school star and later a whiz for Schreiner institute. Hilliard is favored to take over the position vacated by Capt. Dexter Shelley, and predictions are rife that he will make the all-conference team his first year. He is a fast, deceptive runner, has a remarkable change of pace and can pass and punt with the best of them. Although he weighs only about 168 pounds, he has worlds of drive and power and once in the open field is usually long gone.

While Hilliard was the outstanding frosh player, he had a hard time keeping ahead of other yearling backs. Among them were Ronald Fagan from Terrell school at Dallas; Smoky Allen from Abilene; Vernon Taylor from Gonzales; Paul Whitman from Ashland, Ky., and James O'Neal of Port Arthur. Fagan and Hilliard were given the best chance to become regulars.

There apparently will be only one week spot in the team, and that is at the ends. Both Peterson and Vining, regular ends, graduate in June. Three sophomore lettermen of 1930 will be back and were favored for these posts. They were Ed Price, Bill DuBose and Jack Sparks. The only freshman ends showing promise were J. D. Voyles of Clovis, N. M.; Floyd Garrett of China Springs and James Shear of Waco.

NEW RULES URGED

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 19. (UP)—New rules governing the conduct of boxing bouts were recommended to the New York state legislature in the annual report of Edward J. Flynn, secretary of state, submitted today.

Among other things, Flynn suggested gymnasiums used as training sites of boxers which charged admission fees to watch practices, be subject to tax.

BRADDOCK TO FIGHT SCHAAF

Baer Bout Last Week Set Comical Precedent

By HENRY M'LEMORE
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—The next performance at Madison Square garden, that modern day hippodrome where fistic fun and frolic are furnished, comes on Friday night when James J. Braddock of Jersey City, meets Ernie Schaaf of Boston, in a scheduled 10-round bout.

Like the medicine show magician who went on after Houdini and Blackstone, Schaaf and Braddock are in a tough spot. For no matter how earnest their efforts, the boys are going to have a hard time maintaining the high standard of comedy established by the Baer-Heeney-Dempsey-Timekeeper troupe that played the garden last week.

Three Ring Circus

Three—meaning the Baer-Heeney etc., etc., troupe—was an act that would have wowed 'em at the old Hippodrome where the customers craved their elephants and clowns. Baer and Heeney, the heavyweights made excellent elephants; the two befuddled timekeepers, one of whom couldn't start timekeeping because his trousers were caught on his chair, made most excellent clowns and Dempsey was a super ringmaster. The scene had everything and judging by the laughs was cordially received.

The only thing wrong with the show was that the comedy was a trifle overdone. Had some member of the boxing commission stepped into the ring after the "queer count" and told Heeney and Baer to continue fighting, it might have been the smash hit of the season.

As it ended, with Heeney "knocked out" while still fresh and ready for combat, the thing lacked drama. Had the scrap been allowed to continue, old Tom might have licked the Pacific coast youngster and supplied the show with a needed dramatic punch. Heeney was leading when the fight ended and was getting in more than a few solid right-hand smashes. And boys that can take old Tom's right-hand smashes are very scarce, indeed.

Schaaf Is Favorite

Getting back to the coming fight, Schaaf should win. The Boston boy in whipping Baer a few weeks back, displayed better than average boxing ability and an utter disregard for punishment.

Braddock hasn't fought in three months. During the lay-off, the Jersey City Irishman accumulated much weight and is now a legitimate heavyweight. His handlers claim the added poundage has increased his punching ability without diminishing his speed afoot. Maybe so, but such is too often the case.

Larry Johnson of Chicago, who last appeared here as a light-heavyweight contender, will return as a heavyweight to meet Paul Cavalier, New York, in the 10-round semi-final.

Entry List Small For Steeplechase

LONDON, Jan. 19. (UP)—A total of 51 entries, the smallest number since 1927, have been filed for the grand national steeplechase to be held at Aintree, Liverpool, March 27.

It was predicted by racing men not more than 30 horses would start and will offer a direct contrast to the race of 1929 when there were 66 starters. A large field is considered unwieldy and is believed to add to the hazards of the race.

Hurdler to Compete In Millrose Games

NEW YORK, Jan. 19. (UP)—Lee H. Sentman, winner of the national indoor 70-yard hurdle championship last winter and who also won several intercollegiate events for the University of Illinois, will compete in the 50-yard special hurdles event of the Millrose games Feb. 7, it was announced today.

Wolffs and Bankers Win Three Straight

The Wolff Brothers and the City National bankers provided the sensational elements of Monday night's Commercial league bowling matches by whipping their opponents three successive games. The Wolffs defeated the Parfet & Martlew five, and the City National team disposed of the First National hopefuls.

Staley's took two out of their three games with Texas Electric Service company. The game scheduled between the Building and Loan team and the Montgomery company bowlers was postponed. Scores:

Star Coast Backstop Sold to Brooklyn

OAKLAND, Calif., Jan. 19. (AP)—Ernest Lombardi, 22, the heaviest hitting catcher in the Pacific Coast league for the last three years, was sold today by Oakland to the Brooklyn Nationals.

The deal involved "not less than $50,000" Oakland officials said and two players—Henry De Berry, veteran catcher, and Eddie Moore, who played both at second base and in the outfield for Brooklyn last season.

Negotiations for the purchase of the big backstop started last year but were held up until the Coast league recently voted to accept the universal draft, without reservations.

Reagan Basketeers Whip Henriettans

The Reagan Junior High basketeers defeated the Henrietta cagers Monday night on the Henrietta court, 19 to 15. The Reaganites faced the same team that was defeated by only one point by the Zundelowitz team. The Reaganites played only a fair game due to an interruption in training the last few days, according to Coach Beck.

GARLAND ORR IS RELEASED

Huff Mails Pink Slip To 1930 Utility Outfielder

Garland Orr, utility outfielder for the Wichita Falls club last season, was mailed his unconditional release Monday by William E. Huff, Spudder president.

Huff said that with the array of outfielders coming to the club this year he thought it would be impossible to find a place for Orr. The Spudder outfield prospects this year include Morris Badgro and Herbert Kelly and Garms, and in addition the club is hopeful of the Browns sending Ted Gullic to this city.

Orr served relatively little last season. His fielding was steady but with the exception of the last few games of the season his hitting was weak.

Let's All Play '31' for All It's Worth

IN THE Game of Life, as in a game of cards, we must take what Destiny deals us and play our hands with good, clean sportsmanship, win or lose.

Lady Luck is fickle in her fancies and moods. If she may have frowned on us in the deal of 1930 she is quite likely to smile upon us in the deal of 1931. Hard luck is never for long, no more than Hard Times can survive in a country so basically prosperous as this country of ours.

But Life is not all a Game of Chance. We can, if we will, influence the tide of Good Fortune because Fate abhors a "quitter" and looks with favor upon the optimist, the opportunist, the doer, the go-getter and those with energy and faith to persevere.

Let us determine to play this new deal for all it is worth. Let us constantly play "trump cards" so that we can take the tricks that score. Let us make the most of our strong hands . . . the Aces of Action, Enterprise and Cooperation supported by "Honor Cards" in every deal we pursue.

POSSES SEARCH PLAINS FOR MISSING LUBBOCK AUTOISTS

EDITORS AND WOMAN LOST

Party Last Reported Near Antelope Preserve

LUBBOCK, Texas, Jan. 19. (AP)—A concerted search was being conducted by more than 20 carloads of men in Cochran county and adjoining territory tonight for Charles A. Guy and L. H. Quinn, editor and publisher respectively of the Avalanche-Journal newspapers here, and Mrs. Guy. Fear was held for their safety.

Fred Snyder, a rancher, reported that he had seen the trio at about 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, and so far as has been learned they have not been seen since. Snyder said they asked him where antelope could be seen and he directed them to drive only a few hundred yards from the highway on which they had stopped near Lehman, in Cochran county.

Search Called

Mayor J. J. Clements tonight issued a proclamation asking, unless the missing were found tonight, that all available men having automobiles assemble at the city hall at 8 o'clock Tuesday morning to form a huge posse to enter the search.

The party left Lubbock shortly after noon Sunday in a heavy coupe owned and driven by Mr. Guy. They had told friends that they were going to Cochran county to see antelope and expected to return here by 6:30 o'clock Sunday night.

Dr. Sam Dunn, brother-in-law and close friend of Mr. Guy, and Tom Duggan, local attorney, chartered an airplane here this afternoon and returned after several futile hours of scouring Cochran county territory from the air.

Plainsmen in Hunt

An automobile carrying three members of the Avalanche-Journal staff left later in the afternoon. The principal searching party organized here early tonight included John Lemond, chief of police and former cowman; W. E. Twitty, fire chief; O. B. Conley, chief deputy sheriff and Doctor Dunn, a surgeon. Men familiar with the country to be searched were included.

The caravan included about 10 automobiles and was equipped with lighting equipment, tools, and medical paraphernalia.

Half a dozen other carloads of searchers subsequently left for the territory in which Guy, his wife, and Quinn were believed lost or injured.

Dorrance D. Roderick, publisher of the Herald-Times at El Paso and former associate of Guy and Quinn in newspapers here will fly from El Paso to arrive early Tuesday morning if the missing persons are not found by that time.

Friberg Boys Form New Scout Patrol

Special to The Record News.

FRIBERG, Texas, Jan. 19.—A troop of Boy Scouts to be known as the Friberg Coyote patrol, with Rev. Albert F. Hensel, local Methodist pastor, chosen as scout master, has been organized.

The troop is sponsored by the Parent-Teacher association and the Messrs. N. B. Singletary, Casper Geyer and Fred Greer were appointed to act as local committee for the troop.

The patrol enjoyed their first hike in the woods Wednesday evening when they met on the banks of the Wichita river. A short business meeting was held, during which a patrol name was chosen and Jack Caper and Byman Gever were selected as patrol leaders. Following this the boys tried their hand at frying bacon, boiling eggs and roasting potatoes without utensils, and for tenderfeet scouts they were unusually successful, it was reported.

They broke camp at 10 o'clock and took the trail through the woods under the leadership of Scout Edwin Byman, all the members in high spirits over the affair.

Members of the patrol are Edwin Byman, Jack Coker, Raymond Hensel, Edward Lee Singletary, Byman Geyer, Chester Doyle, Charles Greer, Keith Hensel, Eldon Kemp, Erbie Horton, Wilbur Bryan, Earl Lamb, A. D. Kemp.

The regular meeting of the troop was held at 3:30 Monday afternoon.

CISCO BANDIT TELLS HISTORY

Convict Blames Life On Reform School

EL PASO, Jan. 19. (AP)—While W. M. Miller, Cisco police chief was en route here to take him into custody, Robert Hill, Texas convict and last of the four Cisco "Santa Claus" bandits, attributed his career of robbery to a rearing in reform school. He was sent when seven years old.

Hill, a fugitive from the Wynne state prison farm, was recaptured here last night when he attempted to cross the international bridge to Juarez. Officers making the arrest said he had been here about 15 days.

"Half my life has been spent in reform schools or prisons," Hill declared, "and it made me reckless enough to take big chances. I was beaten, abused, treated like an outcast in the reform schools. They broke me. It made an enemy of society out of me, just as it has hundreds of others who were not hardened or burdened with criminal tendencies when they entered reform school but who left that way. I was released from reform school when 20 years old."

Hill's youth was thought to be the reason for his having received a 99-year sentence instead of the death penalty. The four "Santa Claus" bandits robbed the First National bank of Cisco Dec. 23, 1927. Marshall Ratliff, the leader, was lynched at Eastland Nov. 19, 1929, after killing a guard. Henry Helms was executed in the electric chair, Sept. 6, 1929. Louis Davis died of gun wounds the day after the robbery. Two Cisco police officers were slain in the fight at the bank.

Public Invited To Hear Speaker Of U. S. C. of C.

An invitation to hear Ralph Bradford, assistant manager of the commercial organization department of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, who will be the principal speaker on the program of the Junior chamber of commerce luncheon to be held Friday, Feb. 6, is extended to all interested persons, according to Maurice Cheek, president of the Junior chamber here.

Mr. Bradford is to make 22 appearances in Texas during his tour of the state, it was said. John Boswell, manager of the chamber of commerce, is in charge of arrangements for the speaker's itinerary, which began Monday night at the annual meeting of the Texarkana Chamber of Commerce.

The official of the national organization is a former manager of the Corpus Christi Chamber of Commerce.

Mail Orders Accepted For Comedy Tickets

Mail orders for George White's musical comedy, "Flying High," to be presented at the Memorial auditorium here Wednesday night, Jan. 28, at 8:15 o'clock will be received and given prompt attention, H. C. Cheshire, local booking agent, announced Tuesday.

"I urge people to mail in their orders early," Mr. Cheshire said, "because this will be the only musical comedy brought here this season and the good seats are expected to go fast."

The company consists of 76 persons, all well known actors, actresses and dancers of Broadway. DeSylvia Brown and Henderson, considered by many musical critics the best composers of popular music today, wrote the music for the show.

As to the tunes, "Without Love," is considered to be the best while "Thank You Father" and "Love" run a close second and third, Mr. Cheshire said.

Archer County Landmark Goes Up in Flames

Special to The Record News.

MEGARGEL, Texas, Jan. 19.—The old ranch home of Alex Logan, a well known land mark of Archer county, burnt down Thursday night. It was occupied by T. W. Blewett and family who were away from home at the time. The building was partly covered by insurance.

Pass the Cigars

Promptness is one of the first rules observed by policemen, but when Sergeant John C. McIntyre reported to the station Monday night an hour or so late he was readily excused. He had shortly before become the father of a seven and a half pound son, who also has potentialities of becoming a sergeant. Both Mrs. McIntyre and the heir were resting well at the Wichita Falls Clinic hospital Monday night.

Bill Would Provide Sooner Solons With Sedate Dormitory

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 19. (AP)—Oklahoma legislators took Gov. William Henry Murray up today on his inaugural proposal for a state-owned dormitory for members of house and senate, where they would be sheltered from the influences of downtown night life.

A bill by Representative Fidler, Democrat, Oklahoma City, introduced today provides for a 175-suite apartment house on Capitol grounds, to be manned by persons over 60 years of age, who must be recommended for employment by their respective ministerial alliances.

Single members of the legislature, the bill provides, shall be housed in apartments "consisting of a single bedroom and kitchenet, the same to be equipped with one single bed, one rug, one electric refrigerator and two chairs." Slightly more extensive furnishings are provided for apartments housing married members. A "study hall and library," also are proposed.

"The Oklahoma legislative home" would be built at a cost of $500,000.

In his inaugural message the governor said such a place was needed because of lobbying practices.

Trio Charged in Theft Of Chillicothe Bonds

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 19. (AP)—Ruby Lee Dean and Mel Boyd arrested today in connection with the theft of $12,000 in negotiable bonds of Chillicothe, Texas, and Jimmie McDaniel all of Oklahoma City, were charged with receiving stolen property.

McDaniel, arrested Saturday, when police recovered $11,000 worth of the bonds, had sought release from the city jail on a writ of habeas corpus, after refusing to waive extradition to Texas.

His bond was set at $20,000 when he pleaded not guilty before George H. Giddings, Oklahoma City police justice. Boyd's bond was set at $10,000 and the woman's at $2,500.

Police said they had information McDaniel obtained the bonds from the woman and Boyd.

ONEAL'S BILL STRIKES SNAG

Split Tax Plan Discussed At Public Hearing

emergency provision were not made.

Another to appear at the hearing was Judge J. E. Magee of Hardeman county, who said one Quanah bank was carrying $36,000 in school warrants because the county did not have enough money to pay its teachers.

Senator Frank Rawlings of Fort Worth said all of the "howls" against the emergency bill had come from tax collectors who said they would be called upon to do more work. Rawlings plead for the people who needed the aid. He said the salaries made by these officials would justify their working more.

Representative Coke Stephenson introduced to the committee for consideration a proposal which would permit tax payers whose taxes are not paid by Jan. 31 six months in which to pay. A tax payer would then make an affidavit that he did not have the money to pay taxes and would be given an additional six months in which to pay.

Under Stephenson's plan a man who made a false affidavit to evade tax payments would be liable to imprisonment of from one to 10 years.

George Shepard, state comptroller, appeared before the committee.

Senator Walter C. Woodward of Coleman said he was preparing a bill which would include provisions for a graduated scale of tax penalties. Starting at 1 per cent on the man who paid but $100 in taxes, the rate would climb. Members of the committee doubted if this plan were possible, stating they believed it class legislation.

City Defers Action On Three Petitions

Action was deferred on all matters brought before the city council Monday evening at the regular meeting held at the Memorial auditorium.

The application for permission to erect a gasoline filling station at the corner of Tenth and Taylor streets, filed last week by the Gulf Refining company, brought a heated discussion from both the representatives of the Gulf and property owners in that neighborhood. It was voted to consider the matter for another week before final decision.

A house on Eighteenth street, vacant and dilapidated, was described by E. E. Fischer as a fire hasard in a complaint made to the council. It was voted to wait a week for the fire chief to make an investigation.

A score or more of members of the American Legion and Spanish-American War Veterans presented lengthy pleas for refurnishing of the large room in the basement of the auditorium, used by those organizations as a meeting place. Action on this matter was also deferred by the council until further investigation could be made.

U. S. 'Oliver Twists' in Stricken Town Get New Answer to Cry for 'More'

ENGLAND, Ark., Jan. 19. (AP)—Small Oliver Twists from drouth-burned farms peeped over their soup bowls here today and asked for more.

But somehow the pathos of that original Oliver of old England was partly missing. It was quite a festive occasion, and there was more than enough to go around.

It was a school house soup line—only here they don't call it a soup line. It's just being "folksy."

Times are hard in England, they'll tell you, what with the drouth and a bank failure and a poor cotton crop. But they're not too hard to furnish "the kids with something to eat."

Women Busy

In a half dozen kitchens about town housewives give their mornings to the preparation of savory soup and hot chocolate.

The bakery man donates several hundred loaves each day, the mayor and chief of police head a small group of citizens who make it their duty to see there is money enough somehow to buy the ingredients.

But every noon hour more than a thousand small pupils from the first grades to the high school forget the meager contents of their lunch pails.

Teachers will tell you about those lunches, consisting, most of them, of a thin piece of salt pork and a heel of bread—sometimes a piece of "fried pie," smeared with sorghum. Some times it's just a heel. Sometimes nothing.

Like a Picnic

Something had to be done to prevent pellagra and other deficiency diseases. Salt pork is a poor preventative. Mayor W. O. Williams, and citizens rose to the occasion.

Some of the children are embarrassed but to most of them it's a new kind of picnic.

One small sobersides from a hard-hit farm family injected a note of repressed laughter among the teachers serving today's line at the grammar school. It was his second appearance before the soup kettles.

"I don't guess as how you'd be giving any whistles away with the soup, teacher?"

"Only soup," was the grave reply.

"Reckon as how I'll have some more then, please."

And there was "more."

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Jan. 19. (AP)—Cotton was quiet again today, but a slight opening decline in response to relatively easy Liverpool cables was followed by a generally steady market. March contracts after selling off to 10.15 early or 4 points net lower, closed at 10.17 with the general market closing steady, net unchanged to 2 points lower.

There was further switching from near to late months without much change in the prevailing differences, with spot house brokers buying January and March against sales of late present or early new crop positions. General business was quiet and local traders appeared to be waiting further developments either with reference to the Lancashire labor situation or the further shaping up of general business conditions.

Liverpool cables said hedging and continental liquidation had been absorbed by covering in that market with the market steadied at the decline by the steadier ruling of Egyptian cotton in Alexandria. Business in cotton cloths and yarns at Manchester was reported inactive with lockout of weavers restricting operations. Exports today 24,239 making 4,340,818 so far this season. Port receipts 12,140, U. S. port stocks 4,055,316.

Futures closed steady, unchanged to 2 points lower. Spot quiet; middling 10.15.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 19. (AP)—There was no improvement in trading in the cotton market here today, business being almost negligible. The market apparently has dropped into a rut from which nothing so far appears able to extricate it. Following an easier opening and a loss of 2 to 4 points in sympathy with lower Liverpool cables prices rallied gradually on a little covering. The market developed a little activity in the late trading and some of the active months duplicated the earlier highs. The close was steady and at or near the highs, the general market showing net unchanged to 2 points down.

Liverpool came in as due to 3 penny points worse than due and private cables stated the continent liquidated and there was some hedge selling. Manchester reported cloth and yarns inactive with the lockout restricting business. First trades here showed losses of 1 to 3 points and prices eased off a little further after the start, March dropping to 10.15 and May to 10.39 or 2 to 4 points under the close of Saturday.

Later the market rallied slowly under the little covering and March traded up to 10.18 and May to 10.83 up 3 to 4 points from the lows and January advanced to 10.00 up 5 points.

There was a little more activity in the late trading owing to some trade buying and prices duplicated the earlier highs. March closed at 10.17 or net unchanged for the day and May closed at 10.41 net 2 points down.

Port receipts 12,040; for week 24,404; for season 7,315,700; last season 7,319,486; exports 24,645; for week 41,987; for season 4,220,200; last season 4,603,457. Dull Day Ends With Leading Issues Registered at New Low Levels

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Jan. 19. (US)—During a session which was noticeable chiefly for its extreme dullness, prices of various leading stocks today slid off to new lows and resulted in a generally lower closing. The railroad stocks alone were able to show a fractional net gain at the close of the day, which witnessed a turnover of 1,114,000 shares, smallest since Dec. 1.

If anything, today's market emphasized that the high ratio issues, which comprise many of the largest corporations' shares, are subjected to persistent pressure. Among the leading industrials, the setback exceeded a point on the average, while utilities were off a fraction. The low priced and severely deflated stocks, measuring from the peaks, were relatively ignored and maintained a very narrow range.

The market's picture can best be illustrated in the statement that General Electric, Westinghouse Electric, Allied Chemical, Case Threshing Machine and others of similar grade established new lows. The net declines even among these stocks was not substantial, but their steady recession naturally discouraged attempts to active sponsorship on the bull side. It seemed a case of letting the selling run its course.

Pressure against General Electric which is almost as persistent as when the stock was at its high of last year will be explained in official disclosure tomorrow that orders received by the company dropped 23 per cent during 1930, and in the last quarter advance business fell off 32 per cent compared with the preceding year.

Westinghouse was weak in sympathy, but this stock has witnessed considerable covering by interests who sold it short at substantially higher prices than now prevail.

Gillette, about which there has been a great deal of gossip recently with respect to powerful new sponsorship, sold off sharply. It is known that a very aggressive manipulator has an option on 25,000 shares of Gillette, but he is reported to favor delaying activity in the stock until a more favorable general market exists.

An extensive short interest in the stock provides the principal basis for bullish sponsorship, and it was suggested that the disappointing action of the stock may have been a manouver to entice additional short selling.

A good deal of the selling today originated in southern resorts, where various of the leading speculators are vacationing, particularly the bears. This was understood to be especially true of the selling in General Electric.

The oil stocks were irregular, with Standard of New Jersey under pressure, while others rallied fractionally. It is stated that the biggest factors in the industry have determined to cure its ills by the old-fashioned method of ruthless competition. The price-slashing which will evidence this method will come, not in crude oil, but in gasoline, according to the reports. Phillips Petroleum was favored by short covering.

General Motors and others in its group were relatively firm, with considerable short covering taking place in G. M. The stock has confounded bears recently by its persistent resistance to pressure, not all of which is attributed to short selling. While usually well-informed interests anticipate no better than 40 cents per share net for the final quarter of 1930, it is recognized that year-end adjustments will determine the final figures.

Johns-Manville sold off with the general list, but persistent demand was noted for this stock on the setback. It is one of the favorite trading issues for a rally. Kroger Grocery was an exception to the general trend, rising over two points on sizeable volume. This stock has been persistently accumulated for several weeks by interests who are bullish on the company's long-term prospects. Large-scale activity, however, would indicate speculative sponsorship.

Standard statistics analyzing prospects for Ingersoll-Rand state: "Presumably the business has not been as prosperous in the last year as formerly. Return from the regular $4 dividend, and extras totaling $2 as paid in 1930, is small. Current price is a liberal capitalization of earning power."

The bond market held firm, especially the highest-grade issues. Money continued extremely easy. The substantial short account in stocks provides the chief basis for expectations of a rally.

Grain

TEXAS CASH GRAIN

FORT WORTH, Jan. 19. (AP)—Fair demand was reported for all offerings on the cash grain market today. Estimated receipts for two days: Wheat, 33 cars; corn, 13; oats, 7; barley, 2, and sorghums 18. No. 1 hard wheat of any protein was probably worth 79@80½c, basis delivered Texas common points.

Quotations on coarse grains ranged as follows, basis carloads delivered Texas common points, freight paid:

Corn, No. 2 mixed 76½@78c; No. 2 white 78½@80c; No. 2 yellow 78½@79½c.

Oats, No. 2 red 45@46c.

Sorghums, No. 2 milo per 100 pounds $1.32@1.34; No. 2 kaffir $1.30@1.32.

No. 3 white oats delivered Texas group one points, quoted at 43½@44c, to which add one cent for delivery group three.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Jan. 19. (AP)—Responsive to an unexpected shrinkage of the United States wheat visible supply and to only meager enlargement of stocks of corn, grains rallied late today. Adverse weather for corn crop movement added to the upward momentum of corn. Traders ignored French import control plans that included $2 a bushel as a minimum price for wheat grown in France. Similar measures are already enforced by other European countries.

Wheat closed irregular, ⅛ cent off to ⅝ cent up; corn ⅝@1 cent advanced; oats unchanged to ⅛ cent higher and provisions varying from 2 cents setback to an equal gain.

Both wheat and oats showed visible supply decreases, which tended to cause a shift in the market position of traders who had been selling. At first, however, all grains were weak owing to moist conditions over domestic wheat territory where recently drouth was threatened.

Corn and oats swayed with wheat. Corn was helped upward by the fact that industries were absorbing more than half of the current receipts here, and by reports that Nebraska farmers were burning corn for fuel, corn being cheaper than coal.

Provisions duplicated the course of hogs values.

Closing indemnities—wheat, May, bids, 82¼c; July 65⅝c, 67¼c. Corn, March, 66⅝@⅞c, 68⅝c, May 69@69⅛c, 71@71⅛c; July 70⅝c, 72⅛c.

CREW TAMES UNRULY WELL

Wild Gusher Capped At Oklahoma City

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 19. (UP)—An unruly oil and gas gusher, which threatened destruction to a densely populated industrial section of Oklahoma City when it broke connections today and blew wild, was shut in early tonight.

The wild well, No. 1 Wespaco of the T. B. Slick Estate, with daily production of 60,000 barrels of oil and 50,000,000 cubic feet of gas, was brought under control at 5:54 p. m., by a crew of field workers. A 3,000 pound "Christmas tree," a huge steel cone was jabbed into the volcano of oil and rock to gradually shut off its flow.

Shutting in of the gusher once again brought a feeling of safety to the 700 residents of the section. The air still was filled with a fine mist of brown crude petroleum, however, and firemen maintained their guard against fire.

The well, situated within half a mile of the city hall and almost within a stone's throw of downtown skyscrapers, is the fifth producer to blow wild in Oklahoma City's urban section since opening of the great flush field here.

Damage done by the rock and oil spewed from the well's mouth will total many thousands of dollars, Fire Chief George Goff estimated tonight.

So great was danger that the pillar of oil and gas might become ignited from a stray spark and spray the city with a rain of fire, Chief Goff ordered 700 persons to evacuate their homes. The Red Cross already had started to provide food and warm places for them to sleep tonight when the well was pinched in and its threat ended.

Factories were shut down by Chief Goff. Railroads, with tracks a full 500 feet from the well, were ordered to reroute their trains.

December proved to be the banner month for bounty paid on all animals. Payments were made on 77 wolves, 19 bobcats and 1,462 rabbits.

At this rate Young county should be well rid of predatory animals within a short while and the county paid has helped farmers and trappers throughout the county.

Little Miss Nobody

CHAPTER XLVIII

You would sacrifice the peace of mind of your parents in order to marry me again, yet when we were married you were not brave enough to face their disapproval!"

"I didn't realize the truth then, Celeste. Pat didn't kill herself on your account, but to save herself from exposure."

"You deserted me, Dale. I suspected from the first that you would desert me, but not after we were married."

"But, darling, if you could realize the pressure they used you'd have to forgive me."

"I forgave you long ago. I would even have remarried you if you had come back to me without knowing. But you would never have come if you hadn't happened to run across Pat's diary."

"Don't rub it in, Celeste. I've been cruelly unfair I know, but please don't hold it against me."

"I'm not holding it against you," Celeste insisted. "I'm glad you came because now perhaps I can stop wanting you. All this summer I've hoped and longed that after you'd thought things over you'd be sorry."

"I've been sorry a thousand times. Oh, Celeste, have you forgotten those three days in the hotel at Yuma?"

Her voice was like ice.

"I've not forgotten. I'll remember them always, but it's as if they had been spent with some one who has died. . . ."

He saw then there was no hope. And Celeste had the bitter satisfaction of knowing that she had never seemed more desirable than now when he realized she was definitely beyond his reach.

Her heart ached as she watched him leave the rooming house, but the scene, painful as it was, had immediate results. For the first time since she had met him on that fateful afternoon almost a year ago she was free of his intangible fascination. She no longer hoped to meet him on the street. She was able to fall asleep without thinking of him.

As her jaded nerves became soothed and steady again she found herself becoming more interested in Richard Randolph Clayton. He was the most deliciously informal person she had ever known. He cared not one iota for the customary business conventions. Never pretended to be "in conference" when he wasn't. On the contrary, he avoided all such conferences when he possibly could. Celeste was able to sympathize with Jenine in her exasperation over his absent-mindedness, although she knew now Jenine had not been in love with him but with the bond salesman who had for so short a period been Celeste's husband. R. R. C. insisted on seeing the most unimportant visitor. Celeste discovered that Mr. Smith had spoken truly when he said their employer's donations to charity were enormous and unheralded by publicity of any kind.

One day in late September a few weeks after Dale's appearance Celeste returned from lunch to find R. R. C. almost buried beneath a pile of maps, steamship routes and booklets of travel information.

"Where you going?" she inquired smilingly.

He answered almost curtly, "Away! I've stood it as long as I can."

Ignoring the twinge in her heart as she contemplated the future without him, Celested repeated, "Where?"

"Don't know yet. Don't care much."

His thin face looked so unhappy she asked, "Anything wrong?"

"Today is an old anniversary which I don't like to remember."

"Your wedding day?"

R. R. C. smiled unpleasantly.

"On the contrary, it was the day my wife left me to run away with another man. I've never told you about it, Celeste, I was very much in love with her although she was eight years older than I. I was only 20 when we were married. Too young and inexperienced to hold the affection of a woman of her age. She ran away and two years later was killed in an automobile accident.

Mr. Smith had related the story to Celeste months ago, but it seemed infinitely more tragic as repeated by R. R. C. Perhaps because now she had learned to appreciate the fineness of this strangely lonely man whose life had been so barren of normal affection.

"I'm sorry," Celeste said. "I think a long ocean voyage will be just the thing for you. But we'll miss you. The office won't be the same."

The prospect of the office without him brought tears to her eyes.

"Celeste!" he cried. "Do you mean that? Why don't you come, too?"

She was in his arms, half laughing, half crying. "You haven't mentioned loving me since the day my marriage was announced."

"I didn't want to annoy you. I didn't think you cared."

"Sure you'll never be sorry?" she insisted. "After all that's happened I'll have to admit I really am just nobody."

"You're the most adorable sweetheart in the world," her employer corrected passionately. "And three days from now you're going to be Mrs. Richard Randolph Clayton."

"But what will you do for a secretary? I've been a very satisfactory secretary, haven't I?"

"Poorest secretary I've ever had," grinned R. R. C. "Only my unlimited devotion has made me put up with it. Never once have you written a whole letter without at least one misspelled word. Your typing is terrible. You're fired," he declared, "but before you go please telephone the agency to send some one to take your place."

Celeste dialed the number smilingly.

"Mr. Clayton must have a competent secretary immediately. Plain, but neat appearance. At least 30 years old."

She turned triumphantly.

"They'll have one here by 2 o'clock. I trust you liked my specifications?"

She had expected to find him laughing, but the look in his eyes was that of a little boy who has wakened from a bad dream to see his mother coming to him out of the dark.

"Oh, my darling!" he cried and hid his face against her breast.

The Lovely Liar

tell Rogers where they were. She had to.

Celia was hard where her jewels were concerned. Hard as flint. You had to be when there were so many thieves around. And she was quite convinced that Poppy was the thief. Else why should she have been wearing the bracelet when she went to the pawn shop? Been so insistent that Abrams think it was just a cheap thing?

Cheap? Celia was indignant. Celia never wore anything that wasn't real. Never had and never would. The stones that studded the small black cigaret case in her purse were real. The clasp on her purse was made of 10 nice diamonds. The cover of her vanity box was a mass of seed pearls. Celia handled all her things as if they were tin, and absolutely valueless. Threw her bag which she had bought at Tiffany's on the desk as if it had only cost four dollars and ninety-five cents, when in reality Leonard Nixson, who was her father, and who gave Celia anything she wanted, had paid $495 for it. Leonard Nixson always paid Celia's bill without a question. He wanted her to have anything she wanted.

Didn't this Poppy Prior know real diamonds from paste? Celia did and thought everybody else did, too. You couldn't fool Celia where diamonds were concerned.

But Poppy didn't know real diamonds from paste. In Ashland people had paste jewelry mostly, except for engagement rings. People she knew there, anyway. Grace had a small diamond engagement ring which Poppy had admired time and time again. Grace always took it off her finger when she washed the dishes, always put it on the shelf above the sink. Once she had thought she had lost it and had been heartsick for two hours until she found it on the floor, where it had rolled from the ledge. Poppy knew Roy had paid $250 for it.

Her eyes caught those of Kevin Wallace. He had friendly eyes, brown, and they seemed to be reassuring her. She felt better after that. He must believe her anyway, else he would not have looked that way.

"Well, Miss Prior, suppose you tell me where you found the bracelet?" Rogers was asking.

"I said on a train—"

"What train?"

Poppy gulped and plunged into a lie. "I was coming from California—" Then she closed her eyes.

WORK AWAITS SERVICE CLUBS

Sherrill Tells Kiwanis Of City's Needs

Members of the Kiwanis and other service clubs were challenged to set themselves more seriously to the task of rendering real service to their communities in 1931 by Joe N. Sherrill in an address Monday noon at the weekly Kiwanis club luncheon.

Mr. Sherrill's discussion was presented in observance of the 16th anniversary of the organization of Kiwanis International.

"Kiwanis, as other service clubs," he said, "is primarily to do those things that individuals have not done. If everyone did his part spontaneously in society, there would be no need for Kiwanis. This is the reason why it is so necessary in times such as these to have such organizations. Nor is our main object served by carrying about a community purse; I think there are organizations that can do that better than ours; it should be only incidental to our main purpose."

1931 a Challenge

Likening the business world today in the United States to a man in a dark room, groping fearfully for a door which he knows is somewhere near him, Mr. Sherrill declared that service clubs should devote themselves to assisting in reaching that door of better conditions.

Reviewing the accomplishments of the club in the past, and those of other local clubs, the speaker said:

"These achievements have been well started, but are they finished? Our pride and self-satisfaction will not sustain us for long. Times were good when the day nursery program was before us. Conditions were much better at the time the park project was launched than they are now. This year is a challenge to Kiwanis. What may we do?"

Mr. Sherrill named the provision of adequate leadership by Boy Scouts in this community, provision of ample and proper food for local children, relief of unemployment are more important than matters which he said are receiving the entire attention of congress. "Grand jury investigations," controveries over appointments to various commissioners, and similar procedure in the United States senate, he declared, would be displaced by serious attention to relieving distress if public opinion were actively asserted.

"These are just a few things that are flaunting themselves in the face of Kiwanis," he said. "The privilege of doing these things has passed; they are so paramount, so apparent, so confronting, that it is our duty to do them."

Marrs Gives Thrift Talk

Judge John P. Marrs spoke briefly in observance of National Thrift week. Education of children to the greater exercise of thrift should be increased in the public schools as well as in the home, the speaker asserted.

"If you raise your children in such a way that the urge to self-support becomes a fundamental characteristic in them, you have made a wonderful contribution to the welfare of all society," Judge Marrs said. "If you do otherwise, they are almost sure sooner or later to become applicants for charity's aid. We should remember that of all persons reaching the age of 65, three-fourths of them are dependents."

Monday's program was arranged by Ira L. Cain, chairman of the committee on education.

Emil Hermann, president of the Wichita Falls Little Theater, made an announcement relative to that organization's presentation of "The Passing of the Third Floor Back" during the last week of January. He presented tickets for 15 Kiwanians and their wives to attend a complimentary pre-view of the play on Monday night, Jan. 26. Four public performances will follow, he announced.

Saving the Meat

MOSCOW.—In addition of urging the increase of Soviet Russia's population, the government now has a campaign on for increasing the population of meat animals. A heavy fine is now levied on those who slaughter any animal that is capable of reproduction. A peasant who violates the law is fined many time the value of the pigs, cattle or other livestock.

MAJESTIC: "Raffles" with Ronald Colman and Kay Francis. Charlie Murray comedy, "Movie Memories" advertisement and sound news.

STRAND: Richard Barthelmess, Mary Astor and Robert Edeson in "The Lash." Cartoon, Charlie Chase comedy and sound news.

STATE: "Way for a Sailor" with Wallace Beery, Jim Tully and John Gilbert. Short subjects and sound news.

GEM: Robert Montgomery and Dorothy Jordan in "Love in the Rough." Andy Clyde comedy.

With an unusual story (what? after all these years!) and John Gilbert and Jim Tully and Lella Hyams and Wallace Beery, more especially with Wallace Beery, "Way for a Sailor" turns out to be worth some attention.

◇ ◇ ◇

Short, seemingly disconnected glimpses of a sailor's life are bewildering at first, but are all the more interesting on that account when the threads are later picked up and woven into a really interesting story.

◇ ◇ ◇

Especially should a critic mention the gorgeous shipwreck scene, the thrilling description that John Gilbert gets off about the sea, the convulsing antics of Polly Moran as a wharf rat and the way Wallace Beery looks as he comes around the corner in his nightshirt just as his accordion is being tossed overboard.

◇ ◇ ◇

Leila Hyams is at her best and so are some of the others, but nobody at his best can better Wallace Beery. His natural acting and the vivid picturization make for realism in one of the season's strangest pictures. Maybe it is strange because it is true to life.

◇ ◇ ◇

It would be fair to mention that the Strand theater has been trying to correct the annoying defect in its screen for several months, that experts from various places have worked in vain to locate the trouble, and that it is a baffling mystery. The fact remains, however, that it is disconcerting, especially during the last week.

Ken Maynard In Person Booked At Theater Here

Ken Maynard, probably the most popular of all western stars of the screen, will be at the Majestic theater Sunday, Monday and Tuesday of next week in person. Maynard has a full stage act in which his famous horse, Tarzan, appears. It is not generally known but he is a musician and plays several instruments. His act will consist of music, roping and fancy tricks and stunts performed by Tarzan, conceded to be one of the most intelligent and best trained horses in the world.

The Majestic management announced that Maynard will appear four times Sunday in order to take care of the many fans who would like to see this movie star and his wonder horse.

Besides the act on the stage, there will be that funny pair, Wheeler and Woolsey in their latest screen comedy, "Hook, Line and Sinker," and to take care of the crowds, the management has asked as many as possible to attend the afternoon shows, thereby obtaining choice seats. The regular Majestic prices will prevail throughout this engagement.

Rattlesnakes Aid Rat

BUCHANAN, Mich.—Two rattlesnakes came to the defense of a trapped muskrat on the trap line of Slim Salisbury and nearly succeeded in freeing it. Salisbury came upon the trapped creature and as he bent over to release his catch the two snakes come from behind a log and struck at him. They missed, however, and Salisbury killed them.

HOOD TELLS NEED OF CLOTHING FOR CHILDREN

Editor, The Record News:

I have had calls from good people over the county for clothes for their children so the children could go to school.

Just this morning, one lady with nine children, four who are of school age, said that she could not send her children to school because they did not have warm clothes to wear. These children need suits, stockings, underwear, dresses and coats.

I wish the people would look through their closets, bring out the garments they can spare and send them to my office for distribution. I hope you can do this immediately as there will be suffering in case of bad cold weather, which we shall no doubt have before winter ends. Clothes for children between the ages of 6 to 15 are the ones needed.

What clothes that are left will be sent to the Salvation Army. Thanking you in advance for this act of charity, I am, Sincerely yours,

J. A. HOOD,
County School Superintendent.

Honest

SPRINGFIELD, Mo.—The McCoy brothers are hailing one man as the original honest man. They recount the story of how, 35 years ago, a man entered their meat market and ordered $4.45 worth of meat on credit. He failed to pay the bill. Just the other day the same man walked in and asked for a bill. Old ledgers were dug out and a bill was given him. He paid it with interest.

JUDGE CALLS COURT DOCKET

Juries Suspend Terms In Four Cases

Prosecution of criminal cases before Judge Allan D. Montgomery in the 30th district court Monday afternoon by the district attorney's force encountered no difficulty in obtaining convictions, but each of four defendants received suspended sentences following pleas of guilty. William Gokey and Roy Foster, facing charges of burglary in connection with the alleged theft of goods from a confectionery store at Burkburnett, entered pleas of guilty and received suspended sentences of two years each.

E. L. Hinsley, charged with forgery and with passing a forged instrument, was given a three-year suspended sentence, and Aubrey Tarkington received a similar sentence after pleading guilty to a charge of forgery.

A complaint charging burglary was filed Monday by District Attorney Sam B. Spence against Ernest Nolen, who was arrested during the day for alleged participation in the offense for which Gokey and Roy Foster were indicted. Nolen was indicted by the January grand jury, it was said, and probably will be tried during the week of Feb. 9.

Trial of the Davis brothers, brought from Palestine last week, was deferred because material witnesses for the defense were absent. Sheriff Perry Browning was endeavoring Monday evening to locate the missing witnesses and to obtain their immediate appearances for the Davis trial.

Dee Bowerman was charged in a second complaint filed Monday by Mr. Spence with possession of intoxicating liquor for the purpose of sale. The man's arrest followed a raid made on a house in Electra by Sheriff Perry Browning Sunday night, it was stated.

The first Galveston tornado of 1900 resulted in the loss of 6,000 lives.

Registration Opened for Classes In Vocational Training Here

Vocational classes in junior business training which will be open to both women and men employes of the various local business establishments will be opened next week, according to an announcement made by W. R. Rosamond, director of vocational education for the public schools.

Enrollment is being taken at the Y. W. C. A. and will be open all this week, Mr. Rosamond said. The classes are being sponsored by public schools and the curriculum will include any kind of vocational work that the students are interested in. Mrs. Wenonah Roach Ware has charge of the course of study which is being worked out.

Classes will be conducted throughout the day and will be arranged to suit the convenience of the student who will be allowed to attend the courses at least one hour each day. The senior and junior chambers of commerce will secure space for the classes as soon as the enrollment has been completed and it is ascertained how much space will be needed.

C.-C. President at Work On 1931 Committees

J. L. Jackson, newly inducted president of the chamber of commerce, will probably announce appointments to committees the latter part of the week, he said Monday.

Mr. Jackson has been busy since his election last week in preparing the list of appointees to fill standing committees. An invitation has been extended to past presidents and past and present directors to make suggestions in completing the personnel.
