Mystery envelope adds twist to O.J. case

Testimony about dog's plaintive howl, bloodied paws casts doubt on alibi

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — A lumpy manila envelope containing mysterious evidence added a Perry Mason-like twist to the O.J. Simpson murder case Friday, while testimony about a dog's plaintive howl in the night cast doubt on his alibi.

Brandishing the envelope theatrically, Municipal Judge Kathleen Kennedy-Powell said that it contained evidence found by the defense and that she would open it in the courtroom.

But she then reversed herself and ordered both sides to submit briefs on how they think it should be handled, leaving the mystery unsolved until at least next week.

The hearing recessed early so prosecutors could listen to tape recordings of defense interviews with key prosecution witnesses — Simpson's house guest and a limousine driver — who are expected to testify about the ex-football star's whereabouts around the time of the slayings. The hearing will resume Tuesday after the holiday weekend.

The envelope episode interrupted grisly testimony of how Nicole Brown Simpson's dog, a white Akita found wandering the neighborhood with bloody paws, led neighbors to her body in a pool of blood outside her

Arafat's return caps odyssey of 27 years

PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat, left, makes his way to his car under heavy security after speaking to hundreds of thousands of supporters in Gaza on Friday.

■ PLO chief moves to affirm his control of fledgling Palestinian self-rule under way in both Gaza, Jericho.

N.Y. Times News Service

GAZA CITY, Gaza Strip — Yasser Arafat made a triumphant return to Palestinian lands Friday and pledged he would fulfill a decades-long dream of building a "democratic and free homeland" for his people.

Capping a 27-year odyssey from exiled revolutionary to Middle East peacemaker, Arafat appealed for Palestinian unity in a speech before more than 70,000 jubilant followers in Gaza City.

"I want to remind you that we have a big mission ahead of us, a big mission to build this homeland, to build our institutions, and to rebuild the institutions that Israeli occupation destroyed," Arafat said.

Gaza, home to nearly 900,000 Palestinians, took on a holiday atmosphere at Arafat's return from exile. Shops closed, loudspeakers blared music, police fired guns into the air and flags and banners emblazoned with Arafat's picture fluttered from bridges and rooftops.

Tens of thousands of people, many openly weeping, lined the roads to get a glimpse of the man who has become a living emblem of the Palestinian

Former Midlander with ties to city disappears in Austin

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

AUSTIN — Darlene Anderson, the national marketing director of an Austin-based semiconductor company and a former Midlander, has been missing from her Round Rock home apparently since Monday night, according to ex-husband Dan Anderson, a Midland insurance executive.

"She's vanished," Anderson said on Friday. "She's not a flighty person. She's very responsible and holds an extremely responsible position in her company. She loved what she did."

A company-called search of Ms. Anderson's Round Rock neighborhood is scheduled for today in hopes of finding clues to her disappearance. A search was held earlier in the week.

Prisoner makes oral history, uses dental floss to escape

CHARLESTON, W.Va. — Robert Shepard didn't need a file baked in a cake to get out of jail. Dental floss worked just fine.

While cameras, guards and computer-controlled doors were keeping other inmates in, Shepard braided the floss into a rope as thick as a telephone cord and used it to scale an 18-foot wall.

Now, townspeople are talking of Shepard as a real-life Spiderman — the comic-book hero who spins his web and hangs from ceilings — and dreaming up 1,001 new uses for floss.

"I just wonder how he got ahold of so much dental floss," said Mike Reiser, who lives near the South Central Regional Jail in South Charleston. "What did this guy do? Walk around with stuff in his mouth all the time?"

Mobile-homes fire

GREENWOOD — A fire consumed two 12-foot-by-60-foot mobile homes owned by David Carter on Thursday night.

Both mobile homes at 3306 South County Road 1070 were completely destroyed and surrounding grassland was badly burned, according to Midland County Fire Marshal Dale Little.

"We contained the fire, which burned an area less than a quarter of an acre," Little said.

He said fire fighters battled the blaze in windy conditions for about two hours, from 9:30-11:30 p.m.

"The mobile homes were a total loss. All that was left were the frames," Little said.

The fire marshal said the blaze began when embers from a trash barrel blew out and started a grass fire.

A trust fund has been set up to help Carter and his two children, Victoria, 5, and Alice, 7.

The fund is set up under David Carter Emergency Fund at Midland American Bank, Account No. 584061-01.

Danny Wayne Burgess of Monroe, N.C., was arrested at 4 a.m. Friday after being stopped for a traffic violation. Permian Basin Task Force officers searched his vehicle and seized one gram of methamphetamine, valued at $100.

He was charged with a second-degree felony and transported to Ector County Jail. Burgess had not posted bond late Friday night.

RANKIN — Firefighters from various counties battled an 80-acre grassfire from 7:00-9 p.m. Friday night. The blaze was located 23 miles south of Midland off of Rankin Highway, according to Midland County fire officials. Smoke from the fire could be seen from downtown Midland. No further details were available at press time.

Smoke billowing into Hastings Books Music & Video at Midland Plaza before 10 p.m. Friday night frightened employees and customers, but caused no serious damage, according to store manager Chris Hernandez.

Some type of firework was dropped into the videotape return box which leads into the store and fabric in the drop box was ignited, Hernandez said. "The smoke coming into the store scared everybody, but we caught it right away," he said, noting nothing other than the fabric appeared to be damaged.

FBI chief: Bureau to open Warsaw office

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The FBI plans to open an office in Warsaw as soon as possible to help in the battle against international crime, director Louis Freeh said Friday.

Freeh, on a 10-day swing through eastern Europe, talked of bolstering "what will be a very strong working relationship" with Poland to stem drug trafficking, money laundering, smuggling and terrorism. It is to include exchanges of information, liaison officers, experts and training.

"This is a two-way street where both sides will benefit," Freeh told a news conference before leaving for Vilnius, Lithuania. "There is much we can learn from the Polish police," particularly their experience in fighting Russian organized crime.

The main thrust of the trip was to "talk about practical ways to improve our relationship," and the two sides signed a memorandum of understanding outlining what they hope to achieve. One priority is a legal assistance treaty allowing both legal systems to swap law enforcement information.

The eventual goal is the formation of "NAPO," a North Atlantic Police Organization.

Polish President Lech Walesa agreed on the need for cooperation, saying "the United States can provide us with a level of assistance."

Freeh pointed out that Russian President Boris Yeltsin has estimated that Russian organized-crime groups have more than 100,000 members, many of them operating outside Russia, and that their presence threatens democratic institutions.

"We all have to be prepared for the threat to Poland, Russia and the rest of the world," Freeh said.

While there were discussions here on the smuggling of nuclear material, Freeh there has been no indication that organized crime has "gotten access to nuclear weapons."

He praised Poland for the speed with which it recognized the growing problem of organized crime, then began formulating legislation and setting up special police units to deal with the problem while adhering to democratic principles and human rights.

"It took over 30 years in the United States," he said. "In terms of the fight, I think the government here is very prepared."

Freeh said the suggestion to set up an FBI office in Warsaw came during discussions Friday morning.

Yemen fighting continues near southern city

SAN'A, Yemen (AP) — Northern and southern forces fought with artillery and rockets around the southern stronghold of Aden on Friday, shooting down yet another cease-fire in Yemen's 2-month-old civil war.

The Moscow-brokered truce was the eighth to come and go in the war, which is believed to have killed thousands and left Aden — a port city of some 400,000 residents and refugees — suffering from water, food and power shortages.

The south has claimed hundreds killed in Aden alone from weeks of northern artillery and rocket bombardments.

The southern presidential council issued a statement saying Aden was "being set on fire in front of the eyes and ears of the world," the southern-run Aden News Agency reported.

The civil war began May 4 over a political rift between conservative President Ali Abdullah Saleh, a northerner, and his vice president, Ali Salem al-Beidh, the socialist southern leader.

Beidh announced the south's secession May 20, ending Yemen's 4-year experiment with unity and democracy. The breakaway state at the southwestern tip of the Arabian peninsula has not been recognized internationally, but is believed to have the support of Saudi Arabia and other Persian Gulf states.

Northern leaders have vowed to capture Aden, the southern capital, and reunite the country by force.

U.N. efforts to mediate a truce in the war continued in New York, where representatives of both sides have been meeting for several days of talks. U.N. envoy Lakhdar Brahimi said the parties have made progress on setting up a method for monitoring a cease-fire.

All previous truces have broken down within hours.

French troops occupy hills to help Tutsis

BISESERO, Rwanda (NYT) — Taking a risk that will make their presence more precarious, the French military decided Friday to position 50 troops in these mountains to protect several hundred wounded and hungry members of the Tutsi ethnic group.

The French assistance for the Tutsis will certainly inflame the government, which is dominated by the Hutu tribe and had expected the French, who have come to their aid in the past, to help them defeat the Tutsi-led rebels.

"We were manipulated," said Sgt. Maj. Thierry Prungnaud. "We thought the Hutu were the good guys and the victims."

Already the mood has begun to change in this area, which is now almost exclusively populated by Hutu. Wednesday, the French flag was everywhere along the 70 miles of twisting road from Cyangugu to Bisesero; Friday, fewer than a dozen were seen. There were almost as many flags of the country's extremist Hutu party, the Coalition for the Defense of the Republic, whose militia are responsible for much of the killing of Tutsi, according to human rights organizations.

Countless thousands, most of them Tutsi, have been killed since April, the start of the most recent outbreak of violence in this four-year civil war.

The increasingly anti-French sentiment was even more palpable around Gisyeni, 70 miles north of here, said French officials, who characterized the attitude as not hostile but certainly cool.

A radio station operated by extremist Hutu has reportedly begun accusing the French of collaborating with the Rwandan Patriotic Front.

Three-digit-day string to go on

Staff Report

Another sweltering day, another record breaker. Friday's high of 107 broke the record high for the first day of July. The previous record was 105, set in 1989.

While triple-digit temperatures are predicted through the Fourth of July holiday, tomorrow's predicted high of 105 is not expected to be a record breaker. The hottest July 2 on record was set at 112, in 1989.

Although today's high might not be a record breaker, if it climbs above the century mark, then Midland will experienced triple-digit highs 10 days in a row.

A meteorioligist at the National Weather Service said, "It's hot, and there will be more of the same." Dry heat and gusty winds are expected for today with a slight chance of evening thunderstorms which could bring some welcome rain showers.

Today's high was 107, breaking the previous record high of 105, set in 1989. The record low for today's date is 60, set in 1936.

Today's forecast is partly sunny with a high near 105 with southwest winds 15-20 mph and gusty, according to the NWS at Midland International Airport.

Tonight's forecast is partly cloudy with a slight chance of rain showers or thunderstorms and a low in the mid 70s.

Sunday's forecast is partly cloudy with a high near 105.

NATION

The summer swelter baking the Southwest eased somewhat Friday, although the mercury still topped the century mark in many spots. Scattered thunderstorms east of the Rockies brought hail to the Plains and a tornado to Maine.

Record-setting highs in Texas ranged from 110 in El Paso to 106 in Midland and 105 in Amarillo, but most of the mid-afternoon temperatures reported statewide were 5 to 10 degrees lower than earlier in the week.

Albuquerque, N.M., set a record for the date with a high of 101.

In Caribou, Maine, a fierce thunderstorm produced a tornado that caused no damage, but heavy rains in the area flooded culverts. Similar storms produced large hail in parts of Oklahoma, Arkansas and Texas.

A tornado watch was posted for much of Nebraska, while severe thunderstorm watches covered parts of Olahoma, Kansas, Missouri, Arkansas and Iowa.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

GRILL: City sets new record

(From 1A)

service specialist John Chambers.

Midland reached 107 degrees, beating the daily record of 105 set in 1989. Amarillo reached 105 degrees, beating the daily record of 104 set in 1980.

But even at their hottest, most of the mid-afternoon temperatures reported over Texas were about 5 to 10 degrees lower than earlier in the week.

In this case, "low" is a relative term. Lubbock reached 105 degrees on Friday. However, that's almost 10 degrees lower than its readings earlier in the week.

Similar weather is in the forecast for the Fourth of July holiday weekend, the weather service said.

The dome of hot air over the Southwest is showing signs that it will, "over the short term, start to weaken and push down to the southeast, allowing us to cool down," said John Kalina, a weather service meteorologist in Lubbock.

However, in North Texas, the week's heat hasn't yet proved a rival for the 1980 heat wave, when Dallas-Fort Worth reported 42 consecutive days of high temperatures above 100 degrees.

"We've only had three days over 100 so far," said Bob Kleyla, weather service meteorologist in Fort Worth.

State forestry officials said the heat and lack of rain have raised am extreme fire risk in the West Texas range lands.

A 15-member fire crew fought a 7,000-acre grass fire near Van Horn in West Texas, said Lou Sloat, a Texas Forest Service spokesman. Lightning was being blamed for the fire, he said.

Similar range fires in the Fort Bliss Military Reservation, near El Paso, and in the ranch country between Wichita Falls and Abilene have also been brought under control, officials said.

Arid conditions prompted the Del Rio Utilities Commission to issue a call for water conservation.

The policy limits the watering of lawns and outlawed the filling of swimming pools and sprinkling of golf courses.

The city's seven pumps, which draw water from the San Felipe Springs, have been operating at near capacity, said Jim Palmer, superintendent of the Del Rio water department.

TWIST: Hearing to resume after holiday condominium.

"I remember it was coming down like a river," Bettina Rasmussen testified.

A bloody photograph of the scene was shown to witnesses by Deputy District Attorney Marcia Clark, who first motioned to Ms. Simpson's relatives in the courtroom to bow their heads and avert their eyes. The mother and Ms. Simpson's three sisters appeared tearful.

Simpson blinked and took deep breaths as the photograph of his ex-wife's body, clad in a black halter dress, was displayed.

Simpson, 46, is charged with murder in the June 12 stabbing deaths of his ex-wife and Ronald Goldman, a friend of hers. A preliminary hearing to determine whether prosecutors have enough evidence to put him on trial began Thursday.

Pablo Fenjves, a neighborhood resident, testified that he was watching the 10 p.m. news when he heard a "plaintive wail" from a dog about 15 or 20 minutes into the broadcast. He said the barking continued until he fell asleep around 11 p.m.

Another neighbor, Steven Schwab, said he was walking his own dog when at around 10:55 p.m. he saw an Akita, alone and agitated, with bloody paws. He said he tried to find the dog's owner, eventually turning the animal over to his friend, Sukru Boztepe.

The time could be significant because Simpson's attorneys haven't accounted for his whereabouts earlier than 11 p.m., the time that Simpson's first attorney, Howard Weitzman, said police had put the slayings.

Simpson's lawyers have said he was at home two miles away around 11 p.m., waiting for a limousine to the airport for a flight to Chicago. The exact time of the killings has never been established publicly by authorities.

Boztepe said he quickly turned away when he and his wife came upon the body shortly after midnight.

"The dog was in front of me and I had to stop," he said. "I turned right and looked the same direction the dog was looking. I seen a body. It was woman, laying down horizontally all the way to the path, face turned to me on the right side."

Boztepe and his wife went to a house nearby and summoned help.

Goldman was found slain near Ms. Simpson, but neither Boztepe nor his wife, Ms. Rasmussen, mentioned seeing a second body.

The mystery envelope produced the oddest, most confusing twist in the hearings so far. The defense produced the envelope, which contained evidence sealed in the presence of another judge.

Defense attorney Robert Shapiro wanted the package kept sealed and insisted he had no obligation to share it.

On Thursday, the owner of a Los Angeles cutlery store and a salesman there testified Simpson bought a 15-inch folding knife a few weeks before the slayings and had it sharpened.

But the men couldn't produce a receipt for what they said was an $81.17 cash purchase, and the owner acknowledged that his brother, who is the store's co-owner, and a employee agreed to sell their story to the National Enquirer for $12,500.

No murder weapon has been found.

Prosecutor William Hodgman hinted outside court that a coroner will testify that the victims could have been killed with that knife. "Stay tuned next week," he said.

Chicago police, meanwhile, downplayed the significance of a carving knife handle and small part of a blade found at O'Hare Airport.

"After exchanging opinions with the L.A. police, the lead does not look promising right now," Police Superintendent Matt Rodriguez said.

Analyst: 1 in 4 homes tune in

Associated Press

NEW YORK — As many as one in four U.S. homes tuned in to the opening day of O.J. Simpson's court hearing, a TV analyst said Friday.

"That would be supplemented, of course, by a significant out-of-home audience, since it ran in the lunch hour for most of the country," said David Poltrack, CBS' top audience researcher.

ABC, CBS and NBC pre-empted their regular programs for live coverage, earning a combined rating of 16.6 and a 49 audience share for the period from noon to 3 p.m. EDT, in the 31 metered markets of Nielsen's overnight report.

A single ratings point in the 31 markets equals 496,703 households; the share is the percentage of sets in use that are tuned in to a certain program.

"Over the course of those three hours, we figure that somewhere between 20 to 25 percent of all U.S. homes tuned in for some coverage," Poltrack said.

Poltrack called the ratings "significant, but not overwhelming."

The figures represent a 24 percent increase in network viewing over the same day and time last week, Poltrack said.

For the same three-hour period, CNN had a 3.4 average rating, which equals about 2.1 million TV homes.

Court TV, which is airing live, "gavel-to-gavel" coverage, said it does not release its ratings.

TIES: Former Midlander disappears in Austin

(From 1A)

pany that manufactures semiconductors for space and military applications. Before she joined the business in 1993, she was a marketing engineer for Texas Instruments in Midland.

Anderson, who had talked to his blonde, 5-foot-8 ex-wife by telephone on Monday afternoon, said she seemed to be in excellent spirits and was on "cloud nine" after she had consummated a business transaction.

Anderson said he has told their two children, Daniel, 14½, and Marlena, 12½, of their mother's disappearance. Daniel, who lives with his father, and Marlena, who lives with her mother, were both at their father's house "for this part of the summer" when their mother disappeared.

"It's been pretty rough, really," Anderson said.

The Anderson couple divorced in 1989 and since have become "pretty close as friends," Anderson said. "The kids are the ultimate winners in that deal."

Anderson and Round Rock Police Det. Sgt. James Bond said that Ms. Anderson's house at Round Round was locked and that nothing in the house appeared disturbed or missing. All was in order.

"She didn't show up for work Tuesday," Anderson said, and had not called in. Her personal effects, including her wallet, purse, credit cards and money, were on the bed, as were her Monday work clothes, Anderson said.

"The (house) doors were locked; the car was in the driveway where she normally parks it. It was locked. The windows were locked."

Anderson said that a long-time girlfriend of Ms. Anderson had talked to her by telephone about 9 p.m. on Monday. But an hour later, when the friend telephoned, Ms. Anderson did not answer the call.

Bond said that there were no clues or leads in the case.

"We haven't found the set of keys she normally uses — no house keys or car key," the detective said. "We have no indication of where she might have gone — no evidence at this point."

Jeff Kendziorski, who had worked with Ms. Anderson at Texas Instruments in Midland, this year relocated to Austin to work at Austin Semiconductor as an engineering manager of product development. He reports directly to Ms. Anderson.

"We don't know what's happened," said Kendziorski, who said he last saw Ms. Anderson at end of their workday about 6:45 p.m. Monday.

"She was in fairly high spirits," he said. "She seemed to be in a hurry."

Kendziorski, who noted Ms. Anderson's "excellent position" with the company, said she was "about to realize quite a bit of success."

He described Ms. Anderson as kind-hearted.

"I've never seen her lash out or take aggressive action. She was very much in control of her emotions."

Barbara Ross, administrative manager of Austin Semiconductor, said there are "no leads whatsoever, none," on Ms. Anderson's whereabouts.

"Darlene is a very dynamic person, very career-oriented, and worked hard to get her career where it is," Ms. Ross said. "And above all, she's a tremendous mother. Those kids (Daniel and Marlena) are the dearest things in the world to her. She's not the kind of person who would wander off. She just would not leave those kids. There's no way. And she's not going to walk out on a career that she took so many years to build."

ORAL: Inmate uses dental floss to escape creation yard, which is topped by a chain-link fence.

The 5-foot-9, 155-pound inmate apparently attached a weight to his waxed and minty-fresh cord and hurled it upward to loop it through the fence. He then apparently used it to help him climb the cinder block wall, and hung from the cord while he cut through the fence with a 3-inch piece of hacksaw blade.

Shepard, 34, remained at large Friday, two days after the breakout. He had been awaiting trial on charges of robbing a post office, and his record includes convictions for manslaughter and armed robbery.

At the time of the escape, he was being disciplined with reduced privileges for using a handmade tool to scrape mortar in his cell. He was not allowed into the exercise yard until late at night, after other inmates were locked in.

Just how much floss it takes to make a rope of such a size hasn't been documented. Packages typically contain 55 yards.

Jail Administrator Larry Parsons said officials were checking records to see how much Shepard may have bought at the commissary.

"I just find it incredible that somebody could use something that thin," Parsons said. "He's almost taken on superhuman qualities."

In the meantime, inmates will have to pick their teeth with matchbooks. Sales of floss have been suspended.

"Those inmates have 24 hours a day to work on those things," said Jack Roop, executive director of the Regional Jail Authority. "They really get high planning these escapes, so to speak, and they do some things that are quite impossible."

Shepard has been the No. 1 topic of conversation in the checkout line at the Wal-Mart, which sells supplies to the jail.

"I think he was ingenious," Joan Workman said.

"It makes you want to hide your dental floss," Gaynelle Estep said.

"It must be strong," said Mrs. Estep's husband, Bobby. "I may take that kind of floss and tie up tomatoes with it."

Others were disturbed that Shepard could escape a $12.5 million high-tech jail that has been open for about a year.

"I don't like it, a brand new jail," Ginger Saunders said.

At Oral B Laboratories Inc., a toothbrush and floss manufacturer in Redwood City, Calif., marketing director Scott Meyer said he was not surprised the floss was strong enough to hold a man.

"It has to be strong in order to prevent it from shredding or falling apart when you pull it between teeth," he said. "That's one of the common features of it."

CAPS: Arafat returns to Palestinian homeland

(From 1A)

campaign for self-determination.

"This is our dream on this day, to see him," said Shah al-Shairi, 41, a grocery shop owner in Rafah. "It's his country and our country now."

The 64-year-old PLO leader, clad in his traditional olive-green uniform and trademark checkered headdress, dropped to his knees, kissed the ground and prayed after crossing from Egypt into the Gaza Strip border town of Rafah. His visit, expected to last three or four days, also will take him to the autonomous West Bank town of Jericho.

Crowds in Gaza City were smaller than anticipated, perhaps reflecting the continuing divisions within the Palestinian camp and the profound economic and social problems of Gaza, a teeming coastal strip of unemployment and squalor wedged between Israel and the Egyptian Sinai.

"If he comes to do nothing and without money, so what?" said Rustum Hussein Awayda, 40, who runs a pool hall in Rafah. "I don't care about him."

Arafat's 25-minute speech contained little of the angry rhetoric of his years as an exiled guerrilla. It focused instead on the need for reconciliation among Palestinians and the need to tackle poverty and other problems in Gaza and Jericho.

"In front of us are very difficult missions but we have to build our national authority in order to start building our independent state," he told the crowd.

Security was extremely tight as thousands of Palestinian policemen and Israeli troops were deployed to protect Arafat. The Israeli army and police, in one of the most intensive security operations in the Jewish state's history, banned Israelis from the autonomy zones in Gaza Strip and Jericho.

The visit touched off violence by Palestinian radicals and threats by right-wing Jews opposed to the Israeli-Palestinian peace process that in May extended limited self-rule in the two autonomy zones.

Israel radio said a Palestinian youth disguised as a cameraman aimed a pistol at Arafat as he spoke in Gaza City but was seized before he could fire. Palestinian officials denied the report and journalists covering the speech said the photographer merely had a long camera lens with a gun-like grip.

"The only way to assassinate Arafat today was by overkissing him," Nabil Shaath, one of Arafat's top aides, told the Reuters news agency.

In Israel and the West Bank, Jewish settlers and hawkish Israelis set up burning roadblocks and pummelled Palestinian cars with stones. Hundreds of protesters gathered at the entrance to Jerusalem waving flags, blowing whistles and chanting: "Death to Arafat."

On the walls of Jewish settlements along Arafat's motorcade route from the border to Gaza City were scrawled in spray paint: "Arafat (equal sign) Hitler."

Right-wing demonstrators vowed to mount a massive demonstration Saturday in Jerusalem and at other sites throughout Israel.

But an opinion poll published Friday suggested that most Israelis accepted the Palestine Liberation Organization as a peace partner.

The poll, conducted by the Begin-Sadat Center for Strategic Studies at Bar-Ilan University near Tel Aviv, said 59 percent of Israelis support direct and public negotiations with the PLO. Thirty-two percent opposed.

Palestinian protests to Arafat's arrival were muted, but not without bloodshed. Islamic Jihad, a Muslim fundamentalist organization, claimed responsibility for a stabbing attack on two Jewish settlers early Friday.

Americans get swamped by Haitian refugees who keep on coming

GUANTANAMO BAY, Cuba (NYT) — For the last two days, 1,700 American troops have been working round the clock, once again, to raise a tent city here for thousands of Haitian refugees. But the boat people are flowing in faster than the soldiers can pitch tents.

Coast Guard cutters delivered 500 more Haitians Friday, bringing the total to 1,956 since the camps opened on Wednesday. Hundreds more remain on United States ships offshore.

"I've got to expect that the flow out of Haiti will remain fairly constant," said Col. Mike Pearson, an army officer in command of the task force at this U.S. Navy outpost in southeastern Cuba. "I'm ramping up to take my maximum."

The Coast Guard intercepts about 1,000 refugees a day, so Pearson could reach his limit of 12,500 within days, forcing the administration to plead even louder with its Caribbean neighbors for help in temporarily sheltering the refugees. An American hospital ship at Kingston, Jamaica, the Comfort, has 1,000 Haitians aboard; the Turks and Caicos Islands have agreed to take up to 2,000 refugees later this month.

But Haitians here say tighter economic sanctions against Haiti's military government, heightened oppression by security forces and a U.S. immigration policy that many Haitians perceive as more lenient will send even larger numbers of refugees to sea in rickety boats.

Seeking additional sites was the focus of urgent meetings Friday in Washington.

Asmime Pierre, a 25-year-old sales clerk, said she and her husband, Jeudy, fled after he was arrested for belonging to the party of the exiled President, the Rev. Jean-Bertrand Aristide.

France outlaws foreign words, mostly English

PARIS (AP) — A cheeseburger by any other name may not be as authentic, but at least in France it will be legal.

Effective immediately, the French Parliament has banned 3,500 foreign words, including "cheeseburger," "chewing gum" and "bulldozer," from use by advertisers, schools, government and corporations.

Most of the foreign loan words are English. Under the law adopted early Friday, French must be used, instead.

Construction workers will clear roads with "bouteurs." Kids will pop "gomme a macher" into their mouths. Product planners will study "mercatique," not marketing. And computer users will load "logiciels" instead of software, though logiciels already is commonly used in French.

"Hamburger" is OK, but "cheeseburger" is out, and the McDonald's and Burger King fast-food chains will have to find a new word for their beef sandwich with "fromage."

Culture Minister Jacques Toubon introduced the legislation after conservatives won a big majority in Parliament last year.

Past government campaigns urged the French to avoid words like "snack bar," "weekend" or "jogging." Toubon's aim is to put into law limitations on such terms and introduce penalties for letting them through.

Under the law, ads produced in a foreign language must be accompanied by a French translation. Manufacturers cannot sell goods without instructions in French. Broadcasters must not use English words on TV and radio when French equivalents exist.

French must be used in classrooms and exams. Work contracts and corporate regulations must be done in French when they concern French workers.

Conference organizers must provide summations in French of speeches presented in other languages.

Disdain and mockery of the legislation abound. One British lawmaker said he would introduce a bill to ban "laissez-faire" and "ambience" from the English language.

Concern was also voiced. The French Academy of Sciences said Friday it would be impossible to provide translations of all scientific and technological work, and said the law risked "gravely compromising the spread of French science throughout the world."

Others say it is impossible to purge a language's use. Socialist lawmaker Francois Autin noted that in France's 1789 Declaration of Human Rights stated, "None shall have the power to dictate to others the forms in which they must speak, write or publish."

Enterprises risk losing state subsidies if they break the law. Fines of $3,700 have been proposed for certain offenses. Other punishments have yet to be spelled out.

Fines already exist for announcements not printed in French, such as theater posters and airline boarding passes, but the regulation has rarely been enforced.

"You would think we were declaring war on English words by expurgating them from the French language, and even preparing to send violators to prison," Toubon wrote in American newspapers in April.

Mexican voting officials cite 9 million increase

MEXICO CITY (NYT) — More than 45 million Mexicans — 9 million more than in 1991, when the last federal elections were held in Mexico — are registered to vote in the Aug. 21 presidential election, federal officials said.

The increase, which brought the registration level to 91.4 percent of Mexico's voting-age population, is reflected in the list of registered voters turned over Thursday to the nine political parties by the Federal Electoral Institute, known as the IFE, its initials in Spanish.

Because of a change in the Federal Electoral Code, this is the first time the list is made available to each party so far ahead of the election, said Jose Angel Conchello, National Action Party candidate for senator from Mexico City.

"In the 1991 election, we got the list the night before the election," Conchello said. "It is worthless then."

A total of 45.7 million registered before the deadline expired Feb. 28.

In 1991, only 36.5 million people registered for the mid-term federal elections, an IFE spokesman said. The last presidential vote was in 1988. The outcome of this year's presidential vote is expected to be decided by voters in the heavily populated state of Mexico — located south of Mexico City and home of the Popocatepetl and Iztaccihuatl volcanoes — and in this capital.

Mexico state has the largest number of voters, 5.8 million, followed by the Federal District with 5.4 million.

Serb leader: Peace plan is humiliating

SARAJEVO, Bosnia and Herzegovina (NYT) — The leader of Bosnia's Serbian nationalists Friday called the latest international proposal for ending the Bosnian war a humiliation for his people, and a Serbian counterattack regained slivers of territory lost to Muslims and Croats last week.

The comments by the Serbian leader, Radovan Karadzic, came in response to a proposed map drawn up by diplomats from the so-called "contact group" countries — the United States, Russia, France, Britain and Germany. It would require the Serbs to surrender to the Muslims and Croats nearly a third of the territory under their control.

"The contact group maps we heard about are humiliating," Karadzic said after meeting in Belgrade with Aleksei Nikiforov, a Russian diplomat, and Serbia's president, Slobodan Milosevic.

"They cut off our territory and absolutely annul the possibility of the survival of the Serbs on these territories."

"The contact group is playing with fire," Karadzic told the Bosnian Serbs' press agency.

"It is clear that they want to foist on the victorious side in this war, on the victorious army, the Serbian army, humiliating conditions to end the war.

"If the map is not changed, we should definitely go our own way. We should stop all cooperation with this entire worldwide mafia concerning our problem. We should deny the right of anyone in the world community to dictate to the Serbian states."

Karadzic again called for the creation of a Greater Serbia through the unification of the self-proclaimed Serbian states in Bosnia and Croatia with Serbia and Montenegro.

The contact group is scheduled to present the map, the fruit of months of closed-door diplomacy, to Bosnia's Muslim, Croatian and Serbian leaders at a meeting in Geneva next week.

Russia closes last prisons for alcoholics

MOSCOW (AP) — The last inmates of Russia's far-flung prison camps for alcoholics walked free Friday, but many headed right back to the bottle.

Russian television showed police detaining just-released inmates who began drinking around the corner from one of Moscow's two preventative labor and therapy camps.

"Hurrah! Freedom!" one man shouted, waving his arm in triumph as he left the facility. Some were met by friends and wives who celebrated their release with shots of vodka.

The camps, first opened by Soviet authorities in 1968 to keep drunks off the streets and out of sight, were ordered closed by President Boris Yeltsin and parliament.

At one time throughout Russia, there were 213 camps holding 143,000 alcoholics and drug addicts serving terms of up to two years, said Col. Rudolf Volzhanin, head of the Interior Ministry department that oversaw the program.

By Thursday, there were just 11,000 inmates in the last 79 of the camps. By noon Friday, the camps were empty.

"All of the guys are happy that this gulag is closing," one inmate told Russia's Independent Television. "It's a holiday for us. Of course we will celebrate it back home with a glass or two."

The government wants the Interior Ministry to get out of the treatment business and concentrate its efforts on fighting Russia's spiraling crime wave.

Some ministry and health officials have criticized the decision, saying the camps should have been left open until a national treatment program was established to replace them.

Moscow has only two drug rehabilitation centers and Alcoholics Anonymous is still in its infancy in Russia. And since some inmates were allowed to work outside the camps, officials concede they were probably drinking on the side.

During their 26 years in existence, the camps were designed to treat their alcoholic inmates and put them to work making locks, car batteries and other things.

Volzhanin heatedly rejected any comparisons to the cruel gulag camps that once held millions of political prisoners and hardened criminals.

Courts sentenced people to the camps for multiple convictions on alcohol-related charges, such as public drunkenness or disorderly conduct.

Some authorities worried about what would happen to the former inmates without the treatment and closely structured life the camps had offered them.

"After the closure, the addicts will just end up on the street," said Nikolai Shutov, chief physician.

Freighter full of Cubans lands in Florida

■ Officials: It's largest single boatload of refugees to land since 1980's Mariel boatlift.

N.Y. Times News Service

MIAMI — The largest single boatload of Cuban refugees to land in Florida since the Mariel boatlift in 1980 docked here Friday, joining a wave of Cubans fleeing their homeland that is the greatest since the 1980 influx, when 125,000 landed in Florida.

The 137 men, women and children who made the 90-mile journey from Cuba in a 75-foot steel-hulled freighter pushed this year's total to 3,854; of that total, 1,173 arrived in June.

With the year now at the halfway mark, the number of Cuban refugees arriving by raft or boat has surpassed the total of 3,656 who fled here in all of 1993, immigration officials say.

"It's by far the busiest month and year since the Mariel boatlift of 1980," said Petty Officer Rob Wyman, a Coast Guard spokesman here.

The vessel was monitored by the Coast Guard for several days as it made its way near the Bahamas, Wyman said, and was escorted to shore by a Coast Guard patrol boat when it arrived off Miami Beach.

Agents of the Immigration and Naturalization Service interviewed the Cubans and turned them over to Church World Services, an organization that helps refugees settle in the United States.

Along with the new influx of Cubans, the Coast Guard halted 1,667 Haitians in June, the highest monthly total since 1992, when President George Bush ordered the return of all Haitians found at sea.

INS spokesman Russ Bergeron said the refugees were leaving their homelands for different reasons.

The main reason for the influx of Cubans, Bergeron said, is a deteriorating economy at home. In addition, he said, the weather this year has been more favorable than usual for crossing the Straits of Florida in inner-tube rafts or small boats.

As for the Haitians, he said, many have fled partly because of President Clinton's announcement in May that those found at sea would be interviewed for possible political asylum, creating a heightened "anticipation of the opportunity of gaining some sort of relief."

Although both Cuba and Haiti are undergoing economic difficulties, some of the refugees say they have fled because they fear political oppression or violence.

Rolando Mora, a 30-year-old music instructor from a town near Havana, arrived in Key West this morning after a Coast Guard cutter rescued him and two friends from a raft made from gas cans and wooden planks.

Mora said he had been jailed in Cuba for a year for speaking against the government.

Clinton wins as Senate narrowly upholds Bosnian arms embargo

WASHINGTON (NYT) — By the narrowest of margins, the Senate failed Friday to muster enough votes to force President Clinton to violate the Bosnian arms embargo unilaterally. The action spares the president a major embarrassment as he prepares to meet next week with European allies who strongly support the embargo.

The closeness of the vote — the principal measure was defeated on a tie of 50-50 — prevented the White House from declaring a full-fledged victory. But the administration can take credit for its intense lobbying campaign, including bringing European foreign ministers to Capitol Hill.

The effort succeeded in turning back rising sentiment in the Senate to let the Bosnians defend themselves and avoided the kind of huge defeat the president suffered last month in the House on the same issue.

The vote, which has been on and off the calendar for more than a week, was deemed so close Thursday night that it was postponed until Friday so that a senator favoring the administration's position could return from a funeral in Nevada. Vice President Al Gore presided over the Senate on Friday in case his vote was needed.

Friday's action does not end the possibility of congressional directives on Bosnian policy.

Reno seeks independent counsel for Whitewater

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Janet Reno asked a federal appeals court Friday to appoint Robert B. Fiske Jr. as an independent counsel to continue his investigation of President Clinton's investments with the owner of a failed Arkansas thrift.

Reno took the action just one day after Clinton signed legislation reviving the independent counsel statute, which had lapsed for 18 months.

Reno last January appointed Fiske as "special counsel" to probe the Whitewater and related investments of Clinton and his wife Hillary during Clinton's terms as Arkansas' governor. But she had said repeatedly it would be better for an independent panel of judges to appoint the person pursuing the investigation.

Under the statute passed by Congress this week, a special division of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit appoints independent counsels.

Robert Shapiro, one of O.J. Simpson's three defense attorneys, arrives at the Criminal Courts building in Los Angeles Friday for the second day of Simpson's preliminary hearing. Shapiro convinced O.J. lawyer Alan Dershowitz to cancel a 'Nightline' TV show appearance, a source says.

O.J. attorney denies infighting

LOS ANGELES (AP) — O.J. Simpson defense team member Alan Dershowitz canceled a "Nightline" TV appearance after lead attorney Robert Shapiro moved abruptly to control his high-profile colleague, a source said.

Dershowitz denied Friday there was disorder in the ranks, saying he alone made the decision to withdraw from the ABC news program Thursday.

But, according to the source, Dershowitz told the "Nightline" staff shortly before his scheduled appearance that he had received a message from Shapiro telling him not to talk about the case anymore.

The note came to Dershowitz during his earlier appearance Thursday on CNN's "Larry King Live," which airs at 9 p.m. EDT, said the network TV source, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Dershowitz remained on the King show, fielding questions from a studio in Martha's Vineyard, Mass. He was then to appear on "Nightline" from the same studio, but informed ABC he was withdrawing, a network spokeswoman said.

Another prominent attorney, Menendez defense lawyer Leslie Abramson, speculated about the issue during an interview Friday with ABC anchorman Peter Jennings.

"I get the feeling that there is some kind of gag order or agreement between counsel in this case. There have been little hints and suggestions that led me to that. . . . It's only a suspicion," Abramson said.

"I don't know that Bob (Shapiro) will ever have any luck in shutting Alan Dershowitz up, but there's something going on," she said.

When the Simpson team was assembled, observers speculated there could be discord among the high-powered attorneys.

F. Lee Bailey, another Simpson lawyer, refused comment Friday.

Dershowitz, who was openly critical of the defense in the murder trial of Lyle and Erik Menendez, dismissed Abramson's comments, including her claim that he was "yanked" off CNN by Shapiro.

"She just didn't know what she was talking about," he said Friday in a phone call from Martha's Vineyard.

"Not only wasn't I yanked (off CNN), I never discussed with Bob Shapiro that I wouldn't be on 'Nightline.' It was my decision," he said.

The defense team had already agreed to avoid rehashing specifics of each day's court proceedings in the media, said Dershowitz, a Harvard law professor whose clients have included Claus von Bulow and Jim Bakker.

New college loan program to aid millions, Clinton says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Calling education "the great equalizer," President Clinton on Friday said his administration's retooling of the nation's college loan program will give millions more the gift of learning.

As announced by the Education Department, college students will now be able to pay back their federal loans over 30 years, instead of 10, or choose other, new repayment plans.

Clinton said the changes will help "open the door of education to all Americans" and bridge the gap between rich and poor.

Clinton commented as he addressed the 1994 class of Presidential Scholars, 141 high achieving young people chosen from the top 1 percent of high scorers on college aptitude exams.

"This administration has worked very hard to give the American people the tools they will need to go confidently into the 21st century," Clinton told the group, gathered with their teachers and parents.

Panel deals Clinton health setback

■ Committee also OKs abortion coverage restrictions, including one to let employer or plan invoking "moral conviction" exclude procedure.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — In a setback for President Clinton, the Senate Finance Committee voted to shrink the scope of health reform Friday night, rejecting a new $50 billion payroll tax on large companies and scaling back standard insurance benefits.

In a series of close votes, the committee also agreed to restrictions on abortion coverage, including one to let any employer or health plan invoking "moral conviction" to exclude the procedure from its insurance coverage.

A final vote was expected Saturday on the bill, which fell far short of White House demands for universal coverage.

Approval would virtually wrap up work in Congress' committees on the top item of Clinton's legislative agenda. With partisan lines drawn, the House and Senate are expected to vote next month on the issue — a scant three months before midterm elections.

Despite opposition by Democratic lawmakers to key ingredients in Clinton's plan, party leaders in both houses have pledged to enact a bill that satisfies the president's call for non-cancelable insurance for all Americans.

In a flurry of activity as Congress drove toward a 10-day July 4 break:

■ House Democratic leaders predicted they would win approval for health reform that meets Clinton's bottom-line demand — with or without Republican votes.

■ Republican party officials accepted an offer from Ross Perot, the 1992 independent presidential candidate, to finance a $1 million program criticizing Clinton's health reform measure.

■ Clinton dispatched a letter to all members of Congress declaring: "We can make history in the month ahead if we listen to the American people." He renewed his appeal for "guaranteed private insurance for every American."

In a meeting that stretched well past dark, the Finance Committee stripped out the proposed new payroll tax on large companies, tentatively scaled back tobacco tax hikes and reduced the required level of benefits that all insurance plans would be required to offer. Instead, lawmakers voted to turn more of those decisions over to a new National Health Benefits Board.

There were several close votes on abortion. Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., cautioned that "the whole enterprise (of health reform) could founder on this subject."

The vote letting employers exclude abortion was 12-8. Earlier, on a vote of 11-9, the committee gave states leeway to place "constitutionally permissible" restrictions on abortion.

But it rejected a proposal that would have stripped abortion services from required insurance coverage. That vote was also 11-9.

Three other committees, two in the House and one in the Senate, had earlier approved health reform bills calling for universal coverage.

The tide flowed the other way in the Finance Committee, where lawmakers had no taste for Clinton's proposal for businesses to finance insurance for their workers.

PTL televangelist Bakker exits jail for halfway house

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Jim Bakker returned Friday to the state where his lucrative TV ministry began, arriving at a halfway house after 4½ years in prison for defrauding investors out of millions of dollars.

"I'm glad to be back in the Carolinas and I'm glad to be with my son today," said Bakker, who built his religious empire, Heritage USA, near Charlotte. "I'm excited to be anywhere."

Accompanied by his teen-age son, Jamie, and his attorney, the [illegible] leader arrived at a Salvation Army halfway house shortly after 11 a.m. He had left a minimum-security prison in Jesup, Ga., about seven hours earlier and flew to this city in the Blue Ridge Mountains, where he must stay at the halfway house until Dec. 1.

Bakker, 53, was convicted in 1989 of defrauding thousands of his followers who sent him at least $1,000 each in return for promised lodging at Heritage USA for three days and four nights every year for the rest of their lives.

During his trial, prosecutors said the scheme brought about $158 million into PTL from far more people than Heritage USA could accommodate. Rather than building promised hotels for his followers, Bakker spent their contributions to live in luxury himself.

On Friday, Bakker chatted for a few minutes with reporters before going inside the one-story brick halfway house. Bakker will live with about 15 other men at the center and be driven to a job somewhere in the area, but officials would not disclose further details.

Bakker's attorney, Jim Toms, would not comment on reports that Bakker's job would be at his law office in nearby Hendersonville.

"I can't think of a better place in the world for Jim Bakker to be than the Salvation Army," Toms said after bringing his client a turkey club sandwich and slice of Key Lime pie for lunch.

Bakker began his television ministry in Charlotte and before it collapsed in 1987, he was host of a popular television show and ran Heritage USA as a major Christian resort and religious retreat in South Carolina.

Bakker's original 45-year sentence was reduced by an appellate judge, who said a federal judge made inappropriate remarks about the case.

While he was in prison, Bakker was divorced by his wife of 30 years, Tammy Faye. She later was remarried to Roe Messner, who was the chief builder at Heritage USA.

Pesticide continues to plague peregrine falcons

MEDFORD, Ore. (AP) — Jeep Pagel rappelled down a spectacular rock cliff to a ledge harboring two peregrine falcon chicks, pulled on a surgical glove and gathered up broken eggshells.

"A toxicologist told me, 'Don't touch the eggs. They're loaded with organochlorine contaminants,'" the U.S. Forest Service biologist said afterward.

More than 20 years after DDT was banned in the United States and the peregrine falcon was put on the endangered species list, the deadly pesticide still is causing problems for the bird.

DDT, ingested by the falcons through the birds they prey on, has long been blamed for eggs with shells so thin they often crack before they can hatch.

Now Pagel is wondering whether DDT or other chemicals are responsible for an unnatural 2-to-1 proportion of females to males among newborn chicks and whether they are also causing at least one male to act like a female.

"With these contaminants introduced into the system since the 1940s, I may never have seen normal peregrine behavior," he said.

DDT came into wide use during World War II to control insects such as lice and mosquitoes. Through the 1950s and '60s, it was widely used to control crop-eating insects.

But when scientists discovered that birds such as the peregrine and the bald eagle were ingesting the pesticide, and were unable to hatch young because of eggshell thinning, DDT was virtually banned in the United States in 1972.

The bald eagle has recovered enough that the government is taking it off the endangered species list and listing it instead as a threatened species.

The effects of DDT in wildlife have been dissipating as the chemical gets buried in the sediment of rivers and bays, said D. Michael Fry, a research physiologist at the University of California at Davis.

But storms and dredging stir it up from time to time.

Phone sex firms go overseas to escape U.S. law

SAN FRANCISCO (NYT) — Ever yearn to talk dirty with someone in the former Soviet Union? Want to be verbally abused by a dominatrix in the Dominican Republic?

If you ring up dial-a-porn numbers these days, you may be doing just that — whether you realize it or not. You'll certainly find out when you get your phone bill.

To circumvent Federal Communications Commission rules against over-the-phone obscenity, dial-a-porn services are increasingly moving offshore — sometimes way, way offshore.

Take, for example, that number offering "sizzling, uncensored" talk with "Vixen Vicky." Dial it and your call gets routed to the nation of Moldova, in the former Soviet Union.

Call the number for the "super kinky sex party" and you'll talk to someone in Guyana. "Steamy kinky fantasies" gets you Nicaragua. "Hot talk" connects you to Sao Tome and Principe, an island nation off the west coast of Africa.

"We're seeing more and more of these (dial-a-porn) services heading to other countries, where they're outside the jurisdiction of the FCC," said AT&T spokeswoman Lynn Newman. "It's the latest thing."

Since 1988, it has been a violation of the Federal Communications Act to transmit obscene material over the phone for commercial purposes. The U.S. Supreme Court has since upheld the law.

Nevertheless, dial-a-porn lines have proliferated. Publications such as the Bay Guardian and the S.F. Weekly carry dozens of ads for "steamy, uncensored hot talk" catering to callers with just about every conceivable interest.

But phone sex lines currently using 800 or 900 numbers are either toned down to the point of being innocuous or are operating illegally, said FCC spokesman Keith Nichols.

Since overseas dial-a-porn calls are unregulated, nobody at the FCC, AT&T or Pacific Bell could estimate how many providers were scorching the international phone lines.

Most overseas phone sex calls begin with 011, the standard international access code. Some start with 105 or 106.

O'leary: Alaskan oil ban should be lifted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lifting the ban on exporting oil from Alaska's North Slope would create jobs and bolster the price of California crude, the Department of Energy said Thursday.

The department released a cost-benefit analysis that forecast gains for the economy and the U.S. oil industry if the longtime prohibition were lifted.

"The study concludes that the export of Alaskan oil would yield clear economic and energy benefits to the country," Energy Secretary Hazel O'Leary said in a statement. "In both California and Alaska, it would create new jobs, stimulate onshore production and increase state revenues."

These gains could be achieved without a significant adverse impact on the environment and with a minimal or no increase in gasoline prices, DOE said.

The 126-page report came a week after President Clinton met with lawmakers from oil- and gas-producing states and voiced willingness to consider lifting the ban. The administration will now weigh these benefits against impacts on U.S. and international trade and maritime concerns, DOE said.

When Congress authorized creation of the trans-Alaska pipeline in the 1970s, it required the oil be sold only in the United States. But some North Slope producers, especially British Petroleum Co., and some independent producers in California, have been pressing to end the export ban.

Texas Super Bowl?

HOUSTON — The NFL Commissioner says the 1999 Super Bowl could be held in Houston if the Oilers succeed in getting a new dome built by then. In a letter to Houston Mayor Bob Lanier, NFL Commissioner Paul Tagliabue said: "Houston has everything we're looking for in a host city except a stadium." Tagliabue promised to use his influence to promote Houston if plans for a new stadium are finalized by this fall, when the game site will be selected.

Mike McClure, the Oilers executive vice president, released the letter Thursday as part of the team's effort to win support for a new dome.

The stadium currently used by the Oilers, the Astrodome, lacks sufficient seating to host a Super Bowl, according to NFL officials. A proposed new stadium with seating for 75,000 has already met opposition from the mayor's office, the Houston Astros, and the head of the group that holds the lease on The Summit, where the Rockets play. Lanier said he will not support the stadium if new taxes are needed to fund it. The Astros, who hold the lease on the dome, would lose a major renter if the Oilers move out. Both the Rockets and the Oilers said renovations to the Astrodome and the Summit aren't enough: They want new homes when their current leases expire.

BOSTON — Boston Red Sox manager Butch Hobson, already under fire for his club's recent woes, was suspended Friday for five games for shoving an umpire. Hobson has appealed the decision by American League president Bobby Brown, and was in the dugout Friday night when the Red Sox hosted the Oakland Athletics at Fenway Park. A hearing is pending.

Hobday's record pace interrupted by rain

■ South African native Simon Hobday grabs two-shot U.S. Senior Open lead as second round is completed today.

Associated Press

PINEHURST, N.C. — Simon Hobday, playing at a record pace on rain-softened greens, grabbed a two-shot overnight lead Friday in the storm-disrupted and uncompleted second round of the U.S. Senior Open.

The free-spirited South African was 9-under-par for the tournament — matching the Senior Open record for 36 holes — when he was halted by darkness at 7:30 p.m., CDT.

Now he will have to wait until today to see if he can match or beat the record.

He was among 33 players still on the rain-soaked No. 2 course when darkness fell at the Pinehurst Country Club. They marked their positions and were due to return at 6 a.m. to complete second-round play.

The third round is set for this afternoon.

An afternoon thunderstorm not only caused a 2-hour, 35-minute delay and forced an overnight suspension of play, it also contributed to a major reshuffling of the leaderboard.

Jim Albus, who shared the first-round lead with Hobday, completed a 69 and was the clubhouse leader at 7-under-par 135, and Australian Graham Marsh was next at 136.

The rain softened the greens, smoothed out the spike marks and provided the late starters with a major advantage.

"No question about it," Marsh said after completing a bogey-free, 3-under-par 68.

"After the storm, it was throwing-darts-stuff out there. The late players definitely had a major advantage.

"It made the greens so soft that if you had your irons zeroed in, you could go right for the flag. But the biggest advantage was that the rains smoothed out the greens," he said.

The leaderboard reflected the advantage of the late starters as the top three players and six of the top nine played after the storm came.

Midland Angels starter Korey Keling delivers a pitch against the Wichita Wranglers Friday night at Christensen Stadium. The Angels won 17-13 after two straight losses.

Angel bats finally strike gold, 17-13

By Bill Petitt
Staff Writer

The Midland Angels snapped off their offensive slumber Friday night at Christensen Stadium just in time.

Midland, which had been handcuffed by Wichita pitching for the last two nights, erupted for 17 runs, and held its collective breath as bullpen closer Ron Watson did what no other pitcher could do Friday — get people out.

Watson retired the last four batters, including three strikeouts in a 17-13 win.

"It would have been a shame to waste all those runs," said Watson, who recorded his 11th save of the season. "We started the second half so well at El Paso and then to come home and lose three of four... this gives us a chance at a split at home."

The win is big for Midland which improved to 5-6 in the second half of the Texas League season. It pulls Midland to within two games of the Wranglers in the second half race.

Watson squelched a Wichita rally that saw the Wranglers come back from a 13-4 deficit with seven runs in the fifth inning. The inning was capped off by a grand slam by Brad Gennaro that pulled the Wranglers within 13-11.

Both see-sawed back and forth the rest of the game but Midland never surrendered the lead.

Offensively, it was a balanced Midland attack as every Angel scored in the game. Chris Pritchett went 2-for-4 with a season-high five RBIs, including a three-run double in the Angel fourth, scoring Marquis Riley, Tim Harkrider and Jim Walewander to give Midland a 10-4 lead.

"I think losing a long game like this or an extra inning game is especially tough," said Pritchett following the game. "It is good to win both of the long games in this series (earlier a 9-8, 13-inning victory).

"The series up in Wichita kind of built up to this. All of the games were close with the pitching being OK, but it seems like

Sampras rises to occasion, beats fellow American Martin

■ Wimbledon Semifinals

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Pete Sampras shrieked in pain, his right ankle twisted, his easy run toward a second straight Wimbledon championship suddenly in doubt as he lay motionless on a hard, tawny patch of grass.

He rose slowly, dropped his first set of the tournament, then furiously pounded out aces and service winners to beat Todd Martin, 6-4, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, and reach Sunday's title match against Goran Ivanisevic.

Unlike Martina Navratilova, thrilled to be playing in the women's final Saturday against Conchita Martinez, win or lose, Sampras will be satisfied with only one thing.

"There's a huge difference between winning and losing the final," he said. "Everyone only remembers the winner. You get so close, you want to be holding up that trophy."

The winner in the men's final, predicted Boris Becker, will be "the first one to serve 40 aces."

Becker may not be far off. The three-time champion felt the sting of 22 aces in a 6-2, 7-6 (8-6), 6-4 loss Friday to Ivanisevic, who has a total of 140 aces in his six matches. Impressive as that is, Ivanisevic is slightly off the pace of the record 206 aces he served two years ago, including 37 while losing the final to Andre Agassi.

Sampras, seeking to become the first man to win back-to-back Wimbledon titles since Becker did it in 1985 and 1986, has notched 100 aces so far. But the key for him has been timing, producing tremendous serves to get out of trouble and close out sets as he did against Martin.

"I really didn't serve well the entire match, but I did serve well on the big points," Sampras said. "I was down five break points in the last game and came in with some really good, tough serves. On break points throughout the

Against all odds, Martina bids for 10

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Against big odds — the London bookmakers had it as 16-1 before Wimbledon began — Martina Navratilova bids for a 10th title in her final singles match at the All England Club Saturday.

Standing in her way is Conchita Martinez, who was born in 1972, the year before Navratilova played her first Wimbledon.

In her final season before retirement, the 37-year-old Navratilova arrived at Wimbledon a little shaky. She had washed out of the French Open in the first round, so disgusted with her play that she smashed her racket and dumped it in a trash can. She was seeded fourth here, largely on reputation and a history of flourishing on grass.

Then strange things began happening all around her. Promising Mary Pierce withdrew on the eve of the tournament. Top seed and defending champion Steffi

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — He has the same uniform, the same starting position and — of even more significance — the same car.

U.S. World Cup continues to grab attention

■ With teams like the United States, Nigeria and Saudi Arabia still in the tournament, Americans have plenty of excitement to look forward to.

Associated Press

The big shots are there. So are the little guys. This World Cup isn't all that different from the NCAA basketball tournament.

Except, of course, the first world soccer championship ever held in the United States is an unknown commodity seeking a spot in the American sports pantheon. The NCAAs are an established winner.

As an attention-grabber thus far, the World Cup has come through. Of course, not all the headlines have been positive — the drug suspension of Argentine superstar Diego Maradona and the flop of pretournament favorite Colombia come to mind.

Still, when the second round begins today with defending champion Germany against Belgium at Chicago and Spain playing Switzerland at Washington, the tournament has many things going for it.

Such as the presence of the United States, which plays powerhouse Brazil at Stanford, Calif., on the Fourth of July.

Nigerian team member Finidi George signs autographs after his team's win over Greece.

The Nigerians will play Italy Tuesday in the single elimination second round.

Such as Saudi Arabia and Nigeria, like the U.S. team a decided underdog that came through the first round in style.

Such as a knockout format the rest of the way in which any game tied after 90 minutes of regulation and a full 30 minutes of overtime goes to a shootout. Americans could be entranced by that.

"Now it's elimination," Brazil coach Carlos Alberto Parreira. "Make a mistake and you're out."

"We're prepared," U.S. goalkeeper Tony Meola said. "I'm sure Brazil doesn't want to be part of a penalty kick shootout in the final 16. They want to win in regulation."

Yes they do. The Brazilians, under more pressure than anyone in this event — which everyone back home expects them to win playing majestic soccer — aren't real anxious to meet the hosts.

"They are a very difficult team, despite their lack of soccer tradition," said midfielder Dunga. "They are greatly improved, with players from Germany and England. The crowd will be with them."

The crowds also figure to embrace the Saudis and Nigerians, whose persistence and flair — if not their technical skills — were evident throughout an opening round filled with surprises.

Saudi Arabia plays Sweden on Sunday at Dallas. Nigeria takes on Italy at Foxboro, Mass., on Tuesday.

The Saudis already appear to have an edge. Just listen to the Swedes.

"I really didn't want to face the Saudis in the second round, because they're so used to playing in the heat," Kennet Andersson said.

And Nigeria? After coming through in the final seconds of its last game to win Group D, anything is possible.

"I have seen every team in this competition and no one is spectacular," said Samson Siasia. "No one is unbeatable."

Only Brazil, Germany, Sweden and Spain went through the first round unbeaten. But Siasia is right, none of them looked invincible.

The other second-round games have Romania vs. Argentina on Sunday at Pasadena, Calif.; the Netherlands vs. Ireland at Orlando, Fla., on Monday; and Mexico against Bulgaria at East Rutherford, N.J., on Tuesday.

Even if the World Cup doesn't give soccer a lasting legacy in the United States, it certainly has been entertaining so far. Goals are up — 93 in the first round this year, compared with 80 in 1990. Oleg Salenko of Russia became the first player to score five times in a World Cup game.

Attendance was strong and upsets were prominent, from the United States over Colombia to Saudi Arabia over Belgium and Bulgaria over Argentina.

The Argentines, of course, didn't have Maradona, who was banished from the tournament after testing positive for ephedrine, a banned decongestant and dieting aid that can serve as a stimulant. It was the first drug scandal at the World Cup in 16 years and probably spelled the end of Maradona's career.

While his teammates headed from Dallas to Boston and then on to California, Maradona was reported Friday as being in places as diverse as New Hampshire and Cuba.

One thing was certain: the South American team that has won two of the last four World Cups was not the same without him.

"Maradona's presence alone lifts our players way over our rivals," coach Alfio Basile said.

They'll have to do it without Diego now.

Argentina lost without Maradona

DALLAS (AP) — Anyone who watched the game could see it at once. Without Diego Maradona, Argentina became a rudderless ship trying to find its way in the middle of a storm.

Only mere hours after Maradona was kicked out of the World Cup for testing positive for ephedrine, Bulgaria pounced on the opportunity and further battered the Argentines, 2-0.

Argentina thus ended the last day of the first round losing its star, the game and first place in Group D.

The Argentines were looking forward to extending their stay in Foxboro, although that would have meant having to play Italy in the round of 16. They had gotten used to their surroundings and the thousands of Argentine fans that made their way up to Massachusetts.

Then came the biggest scandal in soccer since Maradona was kicked out of the Italian League and suspended for 15 months for cocaine use.

The players flew Friday from Dallas to Los Angeles, carrying only what little overnight luggage they had brought from Boston. They will play Romania at the Rose Bowl on Sunday.

Maradona went to Boston to be with his wife and daughters and reportedly planned to travel to California to watch Sunday's game.

Thursday was a painful day for a team that had been elevated to favorite status. It had thrashed Greece 4-0 and beat African champion Nigeria 2-1. And it had Maradona.

"We miss Maradona very much, quite a lot," said Argentine coach Alfio Basile.

"We were all tied up. We were broken ... I'd look around and I couldn't find myself without Diego," said forward Abel Balbo.

Against the Bulgarians, who finished second in the group and will face Mexico in New Jersey on Tuesday, the Argentines showed just how much they had come to depend on Maradona's passing skills.

"Maradona's presence alone lifts our players way over our rivals," Basile said.

Leonardo Rodriguez, Maradona's replacement for that game, seemed lost in the attack and uncertain with his passes. He was replaced midway through the second half.

After only two matches the 33-year-old Maradona won over critics and doubting fans with his superior playmaking skills. He had lost a step or two to younger defenders, but he was well on his way to recording one of the most spectacular comebacks in the sports' history.

"We loved having him on the field. His drive and enthusiasm were so contagious," said teammate Fernando Redondo.

Now Argentina must face Romania without Maradona's stocky figure directing traffic, setting the pace, shouting encouragement or simply getting the ball to the right player at the right time.

Striker Claudio Caniggia, who left the game against Bulgaria with a pulled hamstring and is doubtful for Sunday, had called Maradona the most important player on the team.

Basile was asked a few days ago if worried his team slowly was developing a case of "Diego dependency".

"Oh, please," Basile said. "I wish to God my team had another 10 Maradonas."

Now, Basile and the team must find their way without the original.

World Cup Capsules

Associated Press

A capsule look at the second round of the World Cup (all times CDT):

July 2

At Chicago (noon)

Germany vs. Belgium

The Germans had a tough time holding onto their unbeaten record when South Korea hit back from 0-3 to lose 3-2, but nearly tying it. Berti Vogts' team wilted in the heat of Dallas after edging Bolivia 1-0 and tying Spain 1-1 in earlier games. Captain Lothar Matthaeus is struggling with six stitches in a foot injury. Juergen Klinsmann remains in form, having scored four of Germany's five goals.

Unpredictable Belgium was upset 1-0 by Saudi Arabia in its final Group F game in Washington, yet downed its neighbor, the Netherlands, by the same score. Enzo Scifo, its captain and most influential player, points out that Belgium is at its most dangerous when it is the underdog.

At Washington (3:30 p.m.)

Spain vs. Switzerland

The Spaniards are in the World Cup for the ninth time, but have reached the last eight only twice. To get there this time, Spain needs to reproduce the performances it had against Germany, a 1-1 tie, and Bolivia (3-1) and forget the fact it threw away a 2-0 lead to South Korea in a 2-2 draw. Jose Luis Caminero, who scored twice against Bolivia, is missing because of a one-game suspension.

Swiss teamwork may get it past Spain for the first time in 17 games and avenge a loss in 1966 that sent Switzerland home from the tournament. But the Swiss were beaten by Colombia 2-0 in their last game and the Colombians went home eliminated.

July 3

At Dallas (noon)

Saudi Arabia vs. Sweden

The Saudis edged Belgium 1-0 in their final game, one of the biggest World Cup upsets on record, and are confident now of beating anyone. They wound up second in their group, scoring six goals in three games, and showed they have the attacking skills to open strong defenses. Midfielder Fuad Amin is most dangerous with two goals.

The Swedes surprised tournament favorite Brazil by gaining a 1-1 tie in Detroit, even without suspended top scorer Martin Dahlin, who scored three times against Cameroon (2-2) and Russia (3-1). Sweden has a tough defense and talented offense, with Tomas Brolin teaming up with Dahlin.

At Pasadena, Calif (3:30 p.m.)

Romania vs. Argentina

Florin Raducioiu and Gheorghe Hagi dominate Romania's offense, but the defense was crunched 4-1 by Switzerland. Raducioiu hasn't scored since the opening game against the Colombians (3-1) and will be out Sunday after getting two yellow cards in the first round. The defense stiffened for a 1-0 victory over the United States.

Diego Maradona is no longer around to inspire Argentina, banished by FIFA after testing positive for drugs. Without their leader, the Argentines tumbled 2-0 to Bulgaria after victories over Greece (4-0) and Nigeria (2-1) with him on the team. Gabriel Batistuta scored three and Claudio Caniggia had two in the first round.

July 4

At Orlando, Fla. (11 a.m.)

Netherlands vs. Ireland

The Dutch offense is failing over itself to score goals, and that's the problem. Coach Dick Advocaat has cut the forward line from four to three to create room for Dennis Bergkamp and Bryan Roy, and the results for a team that seems to lack inspiration slowly are improving. The negative was a loss to neighbor Belgium, but the Dutch scrambled past Saudi Arabia 2-1 and Morocco 2-1

Ireland has scored only two goals on the way to the final 16 and plays with one striker in front of a five-man midfield. But Ireland is capable of scoring goals from any position and has a rock solid defense built around veteran (but injury prone) Paul McGrath.

At Stanford, Calif. (2:30 p.m.)

Brazil vs. United States

Romario, who has scored three goals, looks in top form. Bebeto, Rai and Zinho are giving good support and the defense, for once, looks pretty stable. But after comfortable victories over Russia (2-0) and Cameroon (3-0), the Brazilians looked lackluster against the Swedes (1-1).

The Americans were buoyed by a 2-0 victory over listless Colombia, but then slumped to a 1-0 loss to Romania. John Harkes, one of their most impressive players so far, misses the game because of suspension. But Ernie Stewart can shake up the Brazilian defense with his runs and Marcelo Balboa and Alexi Lalas will be a danger in the back.

July 5

At Foxboro, Mass.

Nigeria vs. Italy

Daniel Amokachi (two goals) and Rashidi Yekini (one) will be tightly marked by the Italians, but can expose a defense missing veteran Franco Baresi. Nigeria is well-organized on defense and attack and its only defeat was to a Maradona-inspired Argentina.

Italy is slowly — very slowly — improving after losing 1-0 to Ireland in its opening game. Dino Baggio, who connected in the 1-0 victory over Norway, and Daniele Massaro, who scored in the 1-1 tie with Mexico, are there to assist player of the year Roberto Baggio. Leftback Paolo Maldini is becoming a major figure in Italy's bid to reach the quarters.

At East Rutherford, N.J.

Mexico vs. Bulgaria

The Mexicans topped the toughest group, thanks to goals from Luis Garcia (two in a 2-1 victory over Norway) and Marcelino Bernal (in a 1-1 tie with Italy). They arrive at Giants Stadium with a tough-to-beat approach and have reached the quarterfinals twice before.

Bulgaria was overpowered 3-0 by Nigeria in its first game and looked like it would be one of the first teams going home early. But striker Hristo Stoichkov (three goals) and partner Emil Kostadinov have engineered a 4-0 victory over Greece and a 2-0 triumph over two-time titlist Argentina.

More precautions taken at Olympic Festival in wake of Kerrigan attack

By Owen Canfield
AP Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS — Ah, the Olympic Festival. It's 10 days of competition for athletes of all ages, in 37 sports ranging from archery to wrestling, in a relaxed, low-key setting. Well, fairly low-key.

This year, for the first time at the festival, photo ID credentials are required of athletes, volunteers and the media. Visitors to the athletes' village at Washington University are greeted by Highway Patrol troopers.

"It's a heightened awareness of security issues, obviously brought to the forefront with the Harding and Kerrigan incident," Gary Alexander, director of Olympic Festivals for the U.S. Olympic Committee, said Friday.

"It's not a situation where we (the USOC) felt there was a huge need to beef up security. It came from more of an interest of having the athletes feel comfortable. And it does. It adds a great deal."

Alexander said the local organizing committee was approached by two St. Louis-area men who wanted to help with security. Through their contacts, the men got others interested in helping out. And it built from there.

Mike Dyer, president of the local organizing committee, said the enhanced security efforts reflect "the overall things that are happening in sports these days."

"We want to protect the athletes; they're the reason we do all of this," he said. "It's not obtrusive to the athletes. It's just secure. We're just trying to make sure it's a safe environment. The athletes can come and go as they need to, and the spectators are where they're supposed to be."

The festival began Friday with only one event, tennis, on the schedule. The opening ceremony under the St. Louis Gateway Arch — the event that officially kicks off the festival — was scheduled Friday night.

Things pick up Saturday with competition in 17 sports, including figure skating, boxing, basketball and swimming.

As always, the Olympic Festival has drawn more than its share of unknowns among the 3,000 athletes who will compete since many of the sports' governing bodies use the festival as a developmental tool.

However, this fest also has attracted many well-known athletes. The festival roster includes more than 80 Olympians, led by Jackie Joyner-Kersee, who will compete in the 100-meter hurdles.

SENIOR: 2nd set to be completed today

ter, was 4-under-par for the day and needed a par on the final hole for a 67.

A par also would enable him to tie the Senior Open record set in 1992 by Dave Stockton.

Hobday was less than enthusiastic about the early morning return.

"I'm not a pretty sight at 7 in the morning," he said, "but that's how the cookie crumbles.

"I would like to have finished. It was just getting better and better out there today and when you're 50 years old, you never know what tomorrow will bring."

Tom Weiskopf, also among the leaders, did not finish. Weiskopf, in the same threesome with Hobday, was 4-under-par for the tournament — 5-under for the round — with one hole to play.

Defending champion Jack Nicklaus and Ray Floyd each shot 68 and reached the tournament halfway point at 137.

Of the three at 139, only former amateur champion Jay Sigel, with a 66, played in the morning. His total was matched by Gary Player, who had a 67 after the rains, and Tom Wargo, who had a 70.

Hobday broke out of a tie for the lead with a 5-foot birdie putt on the 10th, birdied the 12th from about six feet and the 13th from 15 feet.

A 20-footer on the 15th put him within reach of the Senior Open two-round scoring record.

Vietnam veteren defies odds after mine accident takes leg

PINEHURST, N.C. — When Corbin Cherry had his left leg blown off in Vietnam, the first thing he thought about was his golf game. How was he going to play on one leg?

Well, the former Army chaplain couldn't choke back tears Friday as he walked up to the 18th hole during the U.S. Senior Open at Pinehurst's No. 2 course.

Many in the gallery surrounding the green whispered as Cherry's score was posted. Some laughed. Others who knew his story gave him a round of applause after he had hacked his way out of some high rough en route to his fourth 7 of his round of 95 — that's 24-over-par.

It didn't matter that he had shot a whopping 43-over-par for two rounds and missed the cut. He was here. He had defied the odds.

"We had people getting a little uptight out there today, and I guess I should have been one of them, but it's too great a privilege to get mad and to throw clubs," Cherry said about playing in the major tournament.

Cherry's left leg was rubbed raw by two days of walking in 90-degree heat and humidity, but it was the moment that made the amateur qualifier from Mill Valley, Calif., sob like a baby, not pain or his rounds of 90 and 95.

"My wife tells me I shouldn't worry about being emotional but I am," Cherry said, while rubbing his eyes with a towel. "This is such a sense of fulfillment to be here with all these great athletes."

Cherry, who was a late entry as an alternate, hardly ever walks when he plays in San Francisco, where he is a minister in a veteran's hospital. He also changes a sock every three holes to absorb some of the shock and friction from his artificial leg.

But the pace of play prevented Cherry, 55, from changing his stump socks, and his leg became inflamed and eventually raw. But he trudged on.

"The man has the best attitude of anyone out here," said Jim Helton, who carried Cherry's bag for two days. "I've caddied on the Senior Tour before and I have had some of the guys you (reporters) paint as heroes and they are jerks. This guy is a saint.

Phil Mickelson watches his chip shot sail onto the 15th green in the PGA Western Open Friday. He trails Nick Price by one stroke for the lead.

Miraculous shot saves Price's second round

■ Western

LEMONT, Ill. (AP) — Defending champion Nick Price saved par on his fourth hole with a miraculous shot from the bunker Friday. It may have been the shot that saved his whole round.

Price went on to finish with his second straight 5-under-par 67 to take a one-stroke lead after two rounds of the Western Open.

"It was the biggest par of my life. It was one in 10,000. It set up my whole day," said Price, now 10-under on the 7,073-yard Dubsdread course at Cog Hill Golf and Country Club.

Price's drive on the par-4, 416-yard fourth hole went into the water. After a drop into the rough, his third shot skidded into the bunker and then he blasted in from about 40 feet to save par.

Buoyed by that shot, Price got an eagle-3 on the 525-yard fifth, the very next hole. He completed the round without a bogey on a windy, sunny day that dried out the greens.

Phil Mickelson, who shared the first-round lead with four others, trails Price by a single stroke after shooting a 3-under 69.

Two shots back at 136 are Larry Mize, Bill Glasson and Scott Hoch. Mize had a 5-under while Glasson shot 70 to go with his opening-round 66 that had tied him for the lead. Hoch shot a 69 Friday.

There were also six others within three shots of Price, including three-time Western Open champion Tom Watson.

Watson's 67 on Friday included two bunker blasts for birdies, including an 80-footer on the par-5 15th.

Price must have known how Watson felt after making such an improbable shot.

"I feel like I stole something, like I got away with something I shouldn't have," Price said of his shot on No. 4.

"I didn't get greedy. I had some solid pars and that was a key to my round. The conditions made it really hard today. The greens had dried out and you couldn't get the ball close."

Price said he will play the course not the competition the remaining two days, much as he did last year when he won the tournament.

Mize's round included a 30-foot chip for a birdie on the par-5 11th and a 20-foot bunker shot for another birdie two holes later. That was two tough shots in his first four holes after beginning on No. 10.

Mom's home cooking stakes Green's first round lead

■ Youngstown-Warren

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — There is nothing quite like home cooking for Tammy Green, who shot a 5-under-par 67 on Friday for a one-shot lead in the Youngstown-Warren LPGA Classic at Avalon Lake Golf Course.

A 50-foot birdie putt on the 381-yard, par-4 ninth hole was a highlight for Green and helped her overcome bogeys at Nos. 6 and 8. She had four of her seven birdies on the back nine.

The 34-year-old, seven-year pro credits her improving performance to playing near home.

"It's all because of mom's home cooking," Green said. "Like her pot roast with potatoes and carrots, and Mom always makes that."

A week of rain gave way to sunny skies and warm temperatures Friday. But the greens remained damp and soft, enabling players to shoot for the pin on most approaches.

"It was pretty much like throwing darts," said Jean Zedlitz, one of six players a stroke off the lead. "I was just getting the yardage for the flag and throwing it right up there."

Julie Larsen, who also shot 68, agreed with Zedlitz's assessment. "I felt I could hit it right at the pin. The greens were nice and soft."

Also at 68 were Tina Tombs, Dottie Mochrie, Colleen Walker and Caroline Keggi.

Zedlitz and Tombs said changes in their swings paid off.

Zedlitz had a backache early in the week which forced her into a slower backswing.

"Maybe I should do that for the rest of the year," said Zedlitz, yet to crack the top 20 in 1994.

Tombs had missed the cut in eight of 11 starts this year and hasn't finished higher than 28th. But a recent session with her new golf pro enabled her to shoot 34 on each side while registering just one bogey.

"A month and a half ago, Mike Adams started me on some swing changes," Tombs said. "I was having problems off the tee, but that's coming around. I have one of the best short games around and if I keep working on some stuff I will be more consistent."

Among the nine players who shot 69 was Val Skinner, who won at Atlanta earlier in the year.

SAMPRAS: Ivanisevic aces Becker

match, I really served well. But throughout the whole match, the rhythm wasn't there. It didn't click like it has been."

Martin is tall and rangy, with long arms that allow him to cover the court almost from sideline to sideline while stationed in the middle. That size helps him just as much when he's serving and receiving.

"He's one of the best returners in the world, and he's 6-foot-6, and he's got a lot of wingspan, so it's tough to get a big ace by him," Sampras said.

Ivanisevic, at 6-4, is built much the same way, and he's going into the match brimming with confidence about playing Sampras.

"He's No. 1, but he's not unbeatable. I think I can beat him," said Ivanisevic, who will move up to No. 2 behind Sampras in the next ATP rankings on Monday no matter what happens in the final. "I have a good score against him (five wins to three). Pete can also beat me easy, but he doesn't like lefty serves here. He always has problems with the lefty. He's very confident at the moment. But I saw him in his match today, and he's also a human being. He can make mistakes.

"I'm playing much better than two years ago. I'm volleying much better and mentally I'm much more cooler. I let Agassi beat me. I mean, I beat myself."

Sampras made mistakes, but his serves at key points saved him after he hurt his ankle in the third set against Martin. Sampras sprinted across court and drove a forehand winner down the line in the seventh game of that set, but his foot stuck on the dry grass. He tumbled to the turf and rolled over onto his back.

He wasn't hurt badly, but it doesn't take much to change the course of a match between two brutal sluggers.

"I was just a little stunned," Sampras said. "I put my foot down to have a small slide, and my foot stopped, but my momentum of my body just went over. It was really a minor twist, nothing that's going to cause me any discomfort. I may just tape it up in my next match."

Though Sampras played down the injury, Martin won 10 of the next 12 points, breaking Sampras and closing out the set with an ace. Sampras, who hadn't been broken since the second round and hadn't lost a set all tournament, suddenly looked vulnerable.

Yet at that bleak juncture, Sampras dug down deep and thought about one of the most crucial aspects of his game that he's worked on with coach Tim Gullikson.

"I've had a tendency in the past to really get down on myself and mope around," Sampras said of matches when his serve was broken or things weren't going well. "Today, even though I lost the third, I'm still up one set. You have to look at the positives."

That's exactly what he did, bearing down on returns to break Martin for a 3-1 lead, then zipping through the next two service games with the loss of only a single point. And when Sampras faced the five break points while serving out the set, he came up with the answers he needed: two aces, two service winners, and a backhand that kicked the chalk on the sideline.

WOMEN: Upsets pave way for Martina

(From 1B)

Graf lost in the first round. No. 2 seed Arantxa Sanchez Vicario also lost. With emotional crowds urging her on, Navratilova weaved her way through the draw to reach her goal — one more final at Centre Court.

"This is what I wanted last year," she said. "I wanted that one more chance and I'm there. This is what I dreamed about. This is what I wanted — to go out in style. So I'm tickled."

It has not been an easy trip.

"I've won a lot of matches during this tournament where I just hung in and got the break," she said. "I am happy with how I was able to overcome the nerves and get my game together. I played the way I know I'm capable of playing. I've been doing it in practice. I've been doing it in some matches, but I have not done it consistently and I have not done it in big tournaments.

"So I'm not going to say I'm proud of myself, but I'm pleased with the way I'm playing and the way I'm handling everything.

"Only one more to go."

It will be the 32nd Grand Slam singles final for Navratilova, who has won 18 singles titles, half of them at Wimbledon. She won her record ninth Wimbledon title in 1990. The 18 championships tie her with Chris Evert, only one behind Helen Wills Moody and six behind Margaret Court.

Including doubles, Navratilova has accumulated 55 Grand Slam championships, second only to Court's 62. She has 18 Wimbledon championships, trailing only Billie Jean King's 20.

Martinez is the first Spanish woman to reach the Wimbledon final since 1928 when Lili de Alvarez was runner-up for the third straight year. She has played in the shadows of two other Spanish stars — Sanchez Vicario and Sergi Bruguera — both winners of the French Open. Like them, however, Martinez has flourished on clay and has beaten Navratilova three times in four meetings on that surface.

"Where I grew up in Spain, they say the grass is for cows," Martinez said. That, however, has always been Navratilova's favorite surface, which could mean problems for Martinez, playing in her first Grand Slam final.

"It's going to be very difficult," she said. "She's a great player on grass. She's playing great tennis at the moment. She's tough.

"It depends how the crowd is going to get. But I just played in Rome against her and the crowd was getting crazy with her, so I don't have to worry very much."

Martinez won that match and the Italian Open title in straight sets and, in fact, has won the last six sets she's played against Navratilova, all of them on clay at Rome.

Martinez said that while growing up, Navratilova was her idol. Now she is the last roadblock to a title Navratilova wants very badly.

"I don't have anything to lose," she said. "It's like: 'Go for it.' "

WARNING!

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) warns that in-line roller skating -- a popular new sport - can be hazardous if skaters do not wear helmets and other protective equipment or do not learn to skate and stop safely. As use of in-line roller skates has increased, it appears that the number of injuries also has increased.
CPSC recommends these safety tips to help prevent injries with in-line roller skates.

Wear a helmet, intended for use with skate-boards or roller skates, along with knee pads, elbow pads, and gloves.

Skate on smooth, paved surfaces without any traffic. Avoid skating on streets, driveways, or surfaces with water, sand, gravel or dirt.

Learn to stop safely using the brake pads at the heel of most in-line roller skates. With one foot somewhat in front of the other, raise the toes on the front foot and push down on the heel brake.

Do not skate at night because of your difficulty in being seen and your difficulty seeing obstacles or other skaters.

Gonzo's grand slam in 8th caps Ranger rally

Associated Press

■ AL Roundup

ARLINGTON — Juan Gonzalez hit a grand slam in the eighth inning Friday night, capping Texas' rally from a six-run deficit and leading the Rangers to a 10-6 victory over Detroit in the first game of a doubleheader.

Texas snapped a six-game home losing streak and won for only the fifth time in the last 16 games.

The Tigers had a 6-0 lead in the fifth, but Texas scored three runs in the fifth, one in the sixth and six in the eighth.

Gonzales hit his third career grand slam and 12th homer of the season, knocking a fastball from Mike Henneman (1-2) into the left-field stands. He has three homers and nine RBIs in his last four games.

Darren Oliver (1-0) retired one batter in the eighth for his first major league victory.

The eighth-inning rally started against reliever Mike Gardiner when Manuel Lee led off with a double and scored on Ivan Rodriguez's single. Henneman relieved and got one out before Jeff Frye reached on shortstop Pat Gomez's fielding error and stole second.

One out later, Will Clark was walked intentionally, bringing up Gonzalez. Manny Lee capped the rally with an RBI single.

Mariners 4, Yankees 3

NEW YORK — Ken Griffey drove in the winning run with an ninth-inning single and Jay Buhner ended the game with a great running catch as Seattle beat New York.

Bobby Ayala (3-1) picked up the win despite allowing the Yankees to tie it in the eighth inning. Xavier Hernandez (3-4) took the loss.

Griffey ripped Steve Howe's 0-2 pitch toward second baseman Dave Silvestri, who failed to get in front of the ball. It went into right field, scoring Rich Amaral.

The Yankees had a chance in the bottom of the ninth when Bernie Williams walked with two outs. Randy Velarde, who had three hits, hit a liner to deep right, and Buhner leaped and grabbed it before crashing into the wall.

In obvious pain, Buhner didn't get up for five minutes and had to be helped off the field.

Orioles 14, Angels 7

BALTIMORE — Baltimore and California tied a major-league record by combining for 11 home runs in the Orioles' 14-7 victory.

Jeffrey Hammonds hit two homers for Baltimore and Mike Mussina got his 12th victory despite giving up five home runs in five innings. Rafael Palmeiro, Leo Gomez, Cal Ripken and Chris Hoiles also homered for the Orioles, who have hit home runs in a club-record 17 straight games.

Tim Salmon had two homers, while Chad Curtis, Chili Davis and Jim Edmonds each hit one for the Angels, who have lost four straight.

Two teams had combined for 11 homers seven previous times, the last coming on 11 solo homers in Toronto's 10-1 victory over Baltimore on Sept. 14, 1987.

Athletics 6, Red Sox 3

BOSTON — Resurgent Oakland won its eighth straight game, beating Boston with a five-run first inning and eight strong innings from Ron Darling.

The winning streak is Oakland's longest since it won 10 in a row in September 1992, and the A's broke an 11-game losing streak against the Red Sox. Boston has won just seven of its last 27 games.

Darling (6-9), who settled down after allowing a two-run homer to Mo Vaughn in the first inning, allowed just five hits and retired the last 14 batters he faced. Dave Leiper and Dennis Eckersley pitched the ninth.

Oakland, which has been in last place in the AL West since April 26, has won 16 of 20 overall.

Indians 6, Twins 1

CLEVELAND — Jack Morris pitched a four-hitter for his 251st career victory and Eddie Murray hit his 453rd career home run as Cleveland beat Minnesota.

Morris (7-5) struck out six, walked none and retired 18 of the last 19 batters he faced in his first complete-game victory since last Aug. 1. He improved to 6-1 in 10 starts since he shaved his mustache to change his luck following a May 9 loss at New York.

More Sports/8B

Murray's two-run home run in the second inning, his 12th, was also his 2,900th career hit, moving him past Carl Yastrzemski into 19th place on the career home run list.

Cleveland scored twice on Murray's home run in the second, then finished Scott Erickson (7-6) with three runs in the seventh on Carlos Baerga's RBI single, a run-scoring double by Albert Belle and a sacrifice fly by Manny Ramirez.

Royals 4, Blue Jays 3, (12)

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Brian McRae hit a two-out RBI single in the 12th inning, giving Kansas City a victory over Toronto and sending the Blue Jays to their 12th loss in 13 games.

McRae's single was the third straight two-out hit in the 12th off Woody Williams (1-3), who pitched four innings of relief.

Jeff Montgomery (2-3) pitched one-third of an inning for the win.

In the 12th, David Howard singled and beat a throw to second when Vince Coleman singled behind the bag at second. McRae then lined a single to right and Howard scored easily.

White Sox 8, Brewers 0

CHICAGO — Jack McDowell threw a seven-hit shutout and Julio Franco had five RBIs, leading Chicago to a victory over Milwaukee.

Franco went 2-for-4 with a two-run homer, a two-run single and an RBI groundout. He has 71 RBIs this season, matching his career high.

Marlins ease slump with 11th inning win over Braves

Associated Press

■ NL Roundup

MIAMI — Kurt Abbott lined an RBI single in the 11th inning to lift the Florida Marlins to a 4-3 victory over the Atlanta Braves on Friday night.

Abbott drove home Greg Colbrunn, who had led off with a single off reliever Greg Olson (0-1) and moved to second on Benito Santiago's sacrifice bunt. Bret Barberie was intentionally walked before Abbott stroked a 1-1 pitch into left field that fell in front of Jarvis Brown.

The victory was only the third in 12 games for the Marlins.

Florida got strong pitching from starter Mark Gardner and relievers Yorkis Perez, Robb Nen and John Johnstone.

Johnstone (1-0), who was called up from Triple-A Edmonton on June 27, pitched two innings.

Florida threatened in the ninth when Santiago singled and moved to second on a bunt by Barberie, who was safe at first on the play. Abbott then laid down a sacrifice bunt, moving Santiago to third and Barberie to second. But Matias Carillo popped out to shallow left and Carr Carr struck out to end the inning.

Cubs 3, Astros 2

HOUSTON — Rookie Steve Trachsel allowed six hits in 8⅓ innings and kept his perfect road record intact as Chicago defeated Houston.

Trachsel (7-5) improved his road record to 6-0, striking out six and walking two. Trachsel got one-out relief help in the ninth from Randy Myers, who finished up for his 17th save after giving up an RBI double to Luis Gonzalez.

Myers stranded runners at second and third with two out as the Cubs won for the eighth time in 12 games.

Doug Drabek (10-5) failed in his second straight attempt to win 11 games. He allowed two runs on six hits, while striking out six and walking none in eight innings.

Reds 4, Pirates 2

PITTSBURGH — John Roper remained unbeaten this season, stopping Pittsburgh's eight-game home winning streak by constantly pitching out of trouble as Cincinnati beat the Pirates.

Roper (5-0) pitched out of jams in the first two innings, then settled down to allow only solo homers by Orlando Merced and Andy Van Slyke as the Reds won for the ninth time in his 10 appearances.

Jeff Brantley got two outs for his ninth save.

Thomas Howard's run-scoring double and Hal Morris' RBI single keyed a two-run fifth inning against Paul Wagner (5-6) as the Reds twice set up scoring opportunities with stolen bases.

Cardinals 11, Rockies 4

ST. LOUIS — Gregg Jefferies returned to the lineup after a six-game absence with a 4-for-4 game, including two home runs and three RBIs, as St. Louis beat Colorado.

It was the fifth straight victory for the Cardinals, who hit five home runs and set season highs for runs and hits (17). They've scored 37 runs during the streak.

The Rockies have lost four straight and have allowed 20 homers in their last nine games.

Jefferies hadn't started since getting spiked in his right heel on a play at first base June 22, an injury that required six stitches. Four stitches were removed on Thursday but two were left in and trainers customized his shoe by removing the back and replacing it with a plastic plate to relieve pressure.

Mets 10, Padres 7

SAN DIEGO — Bobby Bonilla, Kelly Stinnett and Jim Lindeman each hit two-run homers as New York defeated San Diego.

Bobby Jones (8-7) pitched six-plus innings, allowing three runs and three hits. He tied a season-high with seven strikeouts and walked four.

Bill Krueger (0-1), the 13th pitcher to start for the Padres this season, lasted just two innings after being called up from Las Vegas of the Pacific Coast League. He allowed five runs and six hits.

Phillies 3, Dodgers 0

LOS ANGELES — David West allowed three hits in eight innings as Philadelphia beat Los Angeles, ending the Dodgers' three-game winning streak.

West (3-6) struck out five and walked two, limiting the NL West leaders to singles by Rafael Bournigal, Mike Piazza and Cory Snyder.

The left-hander, who made his first 93 appearances for the Phillies in relief before being moved into the starting rotation on May 24, was primarily a starter with Minnesota before going to Philadelphia in a December 1992 trade for pitcher Mike Hartley. West broke into the majors in 1988 with the New York Mets.

LEE: Benavidez signs with LCU

(From 1B)

Benavidez's cousin Randy Velarde, also played for Midland Lee and went to Lubbock Christian before being drafted by the New York Yankees.

"I'm excited for Eric," said Jesse. "When we went up there, it made me feel old, looking at my name up there by the press box for the Hall of Honor.

"It's a small school, but Eric can get a good education and he'll have a chance to play right away."

Benavidez was a first-team all-district 4-5A selection after hitting .439 with 36 runs, 36 hits and 12 RBIs. He led the team in stolen bases with 15 and had a fielding percentage of .933 off a Rebel baseball team that finished 25-5 before losing to state semifinalist Lubbock Monterey in the Region I quarterfinals.

He played for the Texas All-Stars in the Sunbelt Baseball Classic last weekend in Vernon, Texas and Edmond, Okla.

Earlier, Lee teammates David Galvan and Alex Hale signed on with Cooke County Junior College to play baseball.

everyone is swinging a hot bat."

Wichita starter Greg Keagle (0-[illegible]) is roughed up for eight runs in 2⅓ innings. He had come up from Class-A Rancho Cucamonga two weeks ago where he had compiled an 11-1 record in the first half of the season.

Ty Boykin, who went 2-for-3 with four RBIs, scored Pritchett on a double to give Midland an 11-4 lead.

Jose Monzon, who finished the game with four RBIs, drove in Chris Smith and Mike Wolff to end the fourth with Midland ahead 13-4.

Wichita trimmed Midland's lead to 13-12 after Paul Gonzales, who came into the game replacing first baseman Jason Thompson in the fifth inning, connected on his sixth home run of the year over the center field wall.

The Angels scored two runs in the seventh and eighth innings to pad their lead to 17-13 as Watson came in to seals the victory.

ANGEL NOTES: Midland played without manager Mario Mendoza who is in Los Angeles for a fmaily gathering. John Morris managed the club last night and will manage the club until Mendoza returns on Sunday... tonight's game will be followed by a fireworks displays and an airshow will precede the game.

PEPSI: Earnhardt starts at pole ball Roberts (1962), Cale Yarborough (1968), Lee Roy Yarbrough (1969) and Bobby Allison (1982) as the only drivers to win both of Daytona's premier stock car races in the same year.

(From 1B)

"We started fourth here in February and won the race, and this is the same car, so maybe we can do it again," Marlin said after qualifying Friday at 189.665 mph.

"Our car, 'Sweet Pea,' won at Talledega in '93 (with Ernie Irvin driving); won this year's Daytona 500, and then gave us a top-10 (eighth) at Talledega in May. ... With a car that's two-for-three and a team that's won the majority of its races on superspeedways, you can't help but be confident going into the deal."

Defending champion Dale Earnhardt is on the pole for the first time at Daytona, while Rusty Wallace will chase his fourth consecutive Winston Cup victory from the inside of the seventh row.

A confident Earnhardt, who ran 191.339 in qualifying Thursday, has won three of 15 races from the pole during his career.

"It's getting ready to be four wins from the pole," the six-time Winston Cup champion said. "I know its been 20 years since anyone's won back-to-back July races at Daytona, but we're here to beat the odds. That's what racing's about."

Earnhardt may be confident, but history is not on his side. Only one driver has won the Pepsi 400 from the pole (Yarborough, 1981) since 1974.

"It doesn't bother me that it's tough to win from the pole, and it doesn't bother me that we're the defending champion of this race," Earnhardt said. "We're real close with this car right now."

Marlin is equally confident. And, he's brought along a few good-luck charms from his last trip to Daytona.

"I ain't real superstitious, but I'm going to wear the same helmet, firesuit, gloves, shoes and all in the 400 that I used in the 500," he said. "We retired all of that stuff after the 500, but I think I might break it all out. It's just one of those deals where you never know."

Earnhardt has won three of the last four races with restrictor-plate engines on the Winston Cup circuit. Marlin took the other.

In all, Chevy has won eight consecutive restrictor-plate races — a string of domination Wallace would love to break in his Ford Thunderbird.

"If I won this one, it would really be something. As everybody knows, I've had terrible luck at Daytona — and Talladega," said Wallace, who is coming off victories at Dover, Pocono and Michigan.

"I don't expect to win four in a row, although me as a driver, I don't go to any race unless I think I can win it. I definitely have the car and the capability and the roll — the roll we're on — to do it. I hope it works."

Rookie Jeremy Mayfield showed unexpected speed in leading second-round qualifying.

Driving for T.W. Taylor, Mayfield earned his seventh start of the season with a lap of 186.509 mph Friday, placing the 25-year-old from Nashville, Tenn., 30th in the 43-car field.

"We couldn't seem to find any speed yesterday or even in practice today," said Mayfield, whose fast qualifyng lap Thursday was 185.147. "Somehow, the guys came up with four-tenths (of a second) between practice and qualifying today. Now we can work on getting ready to race."

Only nine drivers made qualifying attempts Friday, with Lake Speed, Kyle Petty and Ward Burton also moving into the lineup.

Mansell says he's still got some left

MAGNY COURS, France (AP) — Nigel Mansell thinks he can improve on the slow speed he posted Friday while driving a Formula One car for the first time since 1992.

■ Formula One

The Briton was seventh to circuit points leader Michael Schumacher in provisional qualifying for Sunday's French Grand Prix, averaging 121.380 mph. Driving a Williams-Renault, Mansell covered 2.641 miles in 1 minute, 18.340 seconds.

"I certainly feel there is a lot more left in me and the car," Mansell said. "But the car is a lot more difficult to set up. I haven't got a balance yet. We just have to be patient."

"I am optimistic we can go a lot quicker."

The last time Mansell raced at Magny Cours, he set a lap record that still stands at 128.1.

The Briton, who won the Formula One title two years ago for Williams before moving to the Indy-car circuit, will get a chance to improve on his speed in final qualifying Saturday.

He found the cars different from any he has driven either in Formula One or Indy-car. He won the Indy-car title last year for Newman-Haas, but is not a serious contender this season.

In the aftermath of the deaths two months ago of Ayrton Senna and Roland Ratzenberger, Formula One cars have become bigger and slower, but more stable. There are no longer computer-controlled active suspension or traction devices.

"With the changes in regulations you have here, there is no question that these cars are lot harder to understand," Mansell said. "I just have to settle in and get comfortable and find a bit more time.

"I am very optimistic we can do better tomorrow ..."

Schumacher, who has won five of the first six races this year, gained the provisional pole with a lap of 1:17.085, averaging 123.36 in a Benetton-Ford.

Second was Gerhard Berger of Austria in a Ferrari. Mansell's Williams-Renault teammate, Damon Hill of Britain, was third.

"There is no competition between Damon and I this weekend," Mansell said when asked what he would do if he and Hill were battling late in the race.

"It would be a lovely situation and it would be no problem to wave Damon by," Mansell said. "He is in the world championship and I am not."

"We are working together. Damon is completely familiar with all the systems. Tomorrow, I will be more optimistic."

Mansell, who could because of open dates in his Indy-car schedule drive in as many as three more Formula One events, terms himself a weekend guest. The season began with Senna driving for the British-based Williams team. But he was killed May 1 at Imola, Italy.

Fourth in qualifying was Frenchman Jean Alesi in a Ferrari, followed by Martin Brundle of Britain in a McLaren-Peugeot and Rubens Barrichello of Brazil in a Jordan-Hart.

After Mansell came Jos Verstappen of the Netherlands in the second Benetton-Ford.

REVIEWS AND PREVIEWS EDITOR JIMMY PATTERSON

Jackson's 'Who I Am' introspective, fun

■ His laid-back nature in tow, Alan Jackson has recorded an album that comes close to the perfect '90s country effort.

By Jimmy Patterson
Special Projects Editor

Let's get this out of the way first: "Who I Am," Alan Jackson's fourth MCA album, is by far his best yet. It also qualifies — so far — as one of the best albums to come down the increasingly crowded country farm-to-market road so far this year.

"Who I Am" is both introspective and frolicking fun, even though Jackson still refuses to go full throttle and emerge from the shy-hole he has been in for what he claims has been his entire life. But with this guy, what you hear is who he is. He says he'll never hop on the big star bandwagon, preferring instead the simple life that has worked so well for him thusfar.

Jackson is almost the perfect country star of the '90s. He's easy-going. Down to earth. Humble.

If only he could cut loose just a little more, he'd benefit that much more. Even uptempo songs from "Who I Am" are a tad underplayed — just on the verge of exciting — thanks to the superstar's quiet persona.

Still, this album stands out above most other pseudo-country that you find on the shelves today.

The brightest spots included within are "Gone Country," and "Livin' On Love."

"Gone Country," in fact, may eventually go down as one of Jackson's most popular. Certainly it ranks right up alongside "Here in the Real World" and "Don't Rock the Jukebox." Almost playful in nature, "Gone Country" studies the case of three wannabes stuck in nowhere singing jobs who have a yearning to make it big in Nashville. It's a poke at all the riff-raff that's invaded country music, but the song is far from threatening, as Jackson sings with more personality here than in anything he's done to this point.

'I Love Trouble'? Well, maybe not

By William Arnold
N.Y. Times News Service

■ 'I Love Trouble' is playing at the North Park Cinema.

He (Nick Nolte) is a fiftyish, high-living, vaguely dishonest Chicago newspaper columnist who reached his journalistic peak long ago and is now content to coast on his celebrity status.

She (Julia Roberts) is a twentysomething, hard-working, mostly ethical cub reporter for the across-town competition who is out to make a journalistic name for herself.

In the lively but forgettable romantic-comedy-thriller "I Love Trouble," these two opposites meet over a puzzling story, butt heads trying to cover it, eventually join forces to solve the mystery, and — surprise! — fall in love.

It's a venerable old movie formula — the one about the two rival reporters who work so hard at out-scooping each other that the competition becomes an aphrodisiac. Think of "Exclusive" or Bette Davis in "Front Page Woman" or the Clark Gable-Myrna Loy "Too Hot to Handle."

This update has some fun with the formula too. It makes a serviceable action-adventure, and a strong-enough romantic vehicle for Nolte and Roberts that we barely notice the 27-year difference in their ages, or the fact that they took an instant dislike to one another on the set.

This movie also looks terrific. Designed by Hollywood's

Saga of fomer football player, murders makes engrossing TV

By Frazier Moore
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK — It didn't hold much promise, this summer's TV fare. Reruns and filler were the rule. Then, O.J. Simpson entered the picture.

■ Opinion

Variety editor Peter Bart this week, "and given TV's meager pickings, what's wrong with wringing every last nuance out of it?"

Why even bother to ask?

On Day 18, L'Affaire O.J. continues to swamp network newscasts, prime-time magazines, the "Inside Editions" and "Hard Copys," the talk shows, Court TV and, of course, CNN, whose Simpson coverage scored 14 of the cable Nielsens' Top 15 spots (a clean sweep was spoiled by the Stanley Cup Finals).

Indeed, CNN spotlights Simpson in an eponymous, prime-time half-hour "every night," anchor Linden Soles intones, "as long as the story warrants."

Which may be a while. In show-business lingo, this saga of the former running back boasts "legs."

Court TV scheduled "gavel-to-gavel" coverage beginning 11 a.m. EDT of today's preliminary hearing in the California vs. Simpson murder case. And

Voices from the past come to life

■ 'The Shadow' is playing at the North Park Cinema.

"The Shadow," the celebrated mystery series of Depression-era pulp-magazine tales and wartime radio plays, has always been a risky prospect for film adaptation.

Here lies the province of imagination, after all, and the movies' tendency to over-literalize such matters can be a handicap for a story whose chief entertainment value lies in its ability to provoke grand fantasies in its readers and listeners.

Sporadic attempts at filming "The Shadow," most notably with a hook-nosed actor named Victor Jory during the 1940s, have failed because their limited technical and imaginative resources could not measure up to the grandeur of the tale. A grim hero with the "ability to cloud men's minds" and associated with, on radio, the resonant voice of Orson Welles, is not readily captured in visual terms.

And yet by following the definitive magazine illustrations, by playing a very old-fashioned exotic-menace story as straight as an arrow, and by deploying epic-scale special effects, director Russell Mulcahy and colleagues have delivered the first "Shadow" movie to measure up to popular expectations. (And of course "The Shadow" remains familiar; his radio exploits of 1937-54 have been available in tape-recorded form since the 1970s.)

Star quality is hardly at issue here, but Alec Baldwin gives more than a generic performance as the tormented savior known as the Shadow. His nose crucially elongated when posing as the masked Shadow, Baldwin brings an intimidating dignity to the role, avoiding any lapses into the contemptuous attitude called "camp."

The story has to do with a born-again barbarian warlord named Shiwan Khan (played by "The Last Emperor's" John Lone), last of the mighty Khans, a character who originated in a 1939 issue of Walter B. Gibson's long-running "Shadow" magazine series. Khan, who knows all the Shadow's mysterious secrets — no fair telling — and then some, intends to become master of the wards), a 12-year-old Wunderkind and walking encyclopedia of baseball lore.

BASEBALL: Kid inherits big league team

(From 1C)

A serious-minded youth who suggests a pint-size, preadolescent Griffin Dunne, Billy inherits the Minnesota Twins when his grandfather (Jason Robards) dies suddenly.

To the astonishment of the professional baseball world, he immediately appoints himself the manager of the team. And in typical Hollywood movie fashion, he miraculously leads the Twins out of a prolonged slump to become American League pennant contenders.

"Little Big League" is a more good-natured film than most Hollywood movies about children who suddenly find themselves wielding grown-up clout.

Billy wins over the initially hostile members of the Twins by appealing to the child in them. He reminds them how lucky they are to be in the major leagues and to have their faces on baseball cards. "Don't worry about winning and losing," he tells them. "Just go out and play. Have fun."

In other scenes, "Little Big League" looks and sounds like a training film for future business executives.

Like any tough manager, Billy is forced to make difficult decisions. The most painful is the letting go of his earliest childhood idol, a legendary slugger who is well past his prime. There are other, homier lessons to be learned. As his fortunes rise, Billy unwittingly begins patronizing his grade-school buddies. Eventually he becomes so obsessed with his job that he forgets his own advice about how the game should be fun.

The movie, which is the directorial debut of Andrew Schienman, has its icky formulaic side. Billy is the only child of a picture-perfect single mother, Jenny (Ashley Crow), who always says the right thing and never has to raise her voice.

The movie asks us to believe that until Jenny is approached by Lou Collins (Timothy Busfield), the Twins' kindly first baseman, she hasn't had a date in many years. The knotty psychological complications of Billy being Lou's boss are barely skirted.

The movie's best scenes are those shot on the playing field in Minneapolis's immaculate Metrodome, which looks like a contemporary baseball Garden of Eden.

Because the Twins are played by professional athletes who can act (not by the actual team members), the scenes on the ballfield have a credibility that is unusual in a baseball film. Adding to the realism are the appearances of a number of major league players as the Twins' opponents. The glow and cleancut innocence of these scenes evokes the magic of the game as seen through the eyes of a youthful fan.

"Little Big League" is rated PG (Parental Guidance Suggested). It includes one scene of a boy watching a soft-core movie.

SHADOW: Story quite simple

(From 1C)

world by blowing New York off the map.

And so the Shadow deploys his network of secret agents, whose newest recruit is a mind-reading social butterfly named Margo Lane (Penelope Ann Miller), and — in a real show-stopper of a visual effect — finds Khan's secret hideout, masked from public view in the most obvious of places.

The story is little more than that, but David Koepp's efficient screenplay allows generous insight into the Shadow's circle of helpers (including Peter Boyle and Sab Shimono), associates (including the delightful Jonathan Winters as a grumpy top cop), and lesser antagonists (including Tim Curry, doing a sharp Charles Laughton caricature).

The art-deco set design evokes the second quarter of this century sharply without upstaging the action. The camera-trick effects are genuinely special, occurring just often enough to make the viewer want to see more. The PG-13 rating, marking "The Shadow" as rougher than kid stuff but not quite adults-only fare, accounts for scattered cursing, some shocking but never gory violence, and the occasional erotic innuendo.

TROUBLE: Never quite clicks

(From 1C)

greatest living art director, Dean Tavoularis ("Apocaylpse Now," "The Godfather"), the best thing about "I Love Trouble" are its endlessly interesting sets and backgrounds.

Yet the movie never completely clicks, and part of the problem is that the filmmakers just can't make the frantic "Front Page" era of local journalism come alive in the age of joint operating agreements — or, in fact, give the slightest credibility to its newspapering situations.

Indeed, this is one of those affairs that seems to have some glaring improbability of one kind or another in every scene — a sloppiness that bothers some viewers more than others, but is definitely a drawback in a film that works off such a complicated mystery plot and asks us to take it seriously.

An overall shallowness to the writing is a hallmark of the husband-and-wife team of Nancy Meyers and Charles Shyer, whose last film was the 1991 remake of "Father of the Bride." Both movies are slick and work as TV-style situation comedy, but miss the depth and inspiration of their models, and leave us with no lasting gratification.

SIMPSON: Case makes for irresistible television

(From 1C)

ABC, CBS, CNN and NBC also planned extensive live coverage.

But this remains a story more about fame than murder, more about the celebrity accused than the victims (ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson and her friend Ronald Goldman), whose only public recognition has spun off from O.J.'s.

A football great, sports commentator, film personality, product spokesman — Simpson is not just hugely famous, but perhaps the most famous person in American history to face a murder rap. He is "a man who once wore 32," as Steve Dunleavy trumpets on "A Current Affair," "but now wears many more numbers aross his chest."

And he is the undisputed star of this quite unexpected media show.

Two weeks ago, Simpson cruised an L.A. freeway while commanding a TV audience estimated at 95 million viewers, each chilled by the prospect that what was already the most riveting TV program in years might try to top itself with an on-screen suicide.

Instead, Simpson went to jail. But the coverage has never let up. Even when there is nothing to show or say.

As if through a casting call, seemingly everyone who has ever had a brush with O.J. Simpson has been heard from: golf caddy; high school friend; the Playboy centerfold model he phoned, though never got around to meeting in person.

One by one, in "exclusive" after "exclusive," each witness is granted TV time for testimony that airs unsubstantiated and unchallenged.

Not to mention often contradicting whatever interview went before.

On "Dateline NBC," a former pal acknowledges losing "a little respect" for O.J. after seeing the black eye he gave Nicole.

Nonsense, argues Simpson girlfriend Paula Barbieri. "He's not a violent person," she tells Diane Sawyer on "PrimeTime Live." "He's so real, he's so sensitive, and just everything about him is spiritual."

After much build-up, Nicole's professed "best friend" drops a bombshell on "America Tonight": Nicole and O.J. loved each other, yet they pushed each other's buttons. (Yeah, them and 50 million other couples.)

And Nicole's real-estate agent conjures up for "Dateline" an encounter with O.J. at his ex-wife's funeral. "I looked into his eyes. I felt like I was looking into his soul." And what did Simpson's soul disclose? "Here's a man who has had an incredible loss." Oh.

Larger issues than O.J. Simpson have been unearthed by the coverage, most notably domestic violence.

But that's just a sideline. More to the point are more universal, diverting themes: Romance gone wrong. The hero with feet of clay. Or, possibly, the innocent wrongly accused.

Plus, there's the sheer sport of it all. For a certain courtroom maneuver last week, defense attorney Robert Shapiro was pronounced the first-round winner by on-air "legal experts" handicapping the contest. Score one for O.J.'s side.

ON SCREEN

(Condensed movie reviews by Los Angeles Daily News film critics. The rating system for the film list is: ★★★★ — Don't miss it; ★★★ — worth your while; ★★ — Has it moments; ★ — If you must)

N.Y. Times News Service

CITY SLICKERS II: Billy Crystal is back in the saddle, but the herd of laughs has disappointingly thinned out in this urbanites-on-the-range sequel. This time, our favorite New York cowboys are searching for hidden gold instead of male-bonded smiles, and it's neither as sweet nor as fun. Jack Palance rustles the show from everyone else, again, as the late Curly's even nastier twin brother, Duke. PG-13. Rating: ★★

THE COWBOY WAY: "Coogan's Bluff," "McCloud," "Crocodile Dundee," "Midnight Cowboy" — throw them all in a blender, scrape up whatever flies out, and you've got this senseless, cowboys-in-New-York comedy thriller. Woody Harrelson and Kiefer Sutherland are the rustics who bust up an illegal alien enslavement ring. Harrelson supplies the film's only charm, and that's dependent on your tolerance of male narcissism. PG-13. Rating: ★★

THE FLINTSTONES: The live-action version of the Hanna-Barbera cartoon looks super, delivers dozens of Stone Age sight gags and paleolithic puns, and boasts the incomparable John Goodman as bumbling Fred Flinstone. But with only the flimsiest of stories to tie it all together, the film gradually becomes a yabbadabba-yawner. PG. Rating: ★★

GETTING EVEN WITH DAD: Macaulay Culkin is paired with Ted Danson in this clunky comedy about a widowed ex-con whose plans for one last heist run into unexpected interference from his lonely, precocious son. Saul Rubinek and Gailard Sartain play Danson's cartoonish henchmen, and Glenne Headly plays an undercover cop who winds up making nice with Dad. Danson's street accent is painfully bogus; Culkin is still cute but he can't do much with this picturesque goo. PG. Rating: ★

I LOVE TROUBLE: Dreadfully inept action-comedy-romance about rival Chicago newspaper reporters uncovering an agrichemical scam. Speaking of chemistry, there is none between stars Nick Nolte and Julia Roberts — mainly because he can act and she can't. The catchphrase dialogue and witless plot supplied by Nancy Meyers and director Charles Shyer is no help, either. PG. Rating: ★½

THE LION KING: Disney's latest animated spectacular isn't quite as seamlessly perfect as the last three features. But it's nevertheless a gorgeous, enjoyable lesson in the eternal cycles of nature and the development of (some very humanlike) behavior. Set in Africa, it's about future King of the Beasts Simba's coming of age. Elton John and Tim Rice wrote the songs, voices include Oscar-winners Jeremy Irons' and Whoopi Goldberg's, and the artwork, though often dazzling, is built upon a becoming naturalism. G. Rating: ★★★

LITTLE BIG LEAGUE: A 12-year-old boy (Luke Edwards) inherits the Minnesota Twins from his grandfather (Jason Robards) and decides to become major league baseball's first owner-manager since Connie Mack. An amiable fantasy; it helps to know baseball but the scenario should appeal to anybody who thinks they could handle a glamour job better than the big shots. PG. Rating: ★★½

MAVERICK: Lightweight fun in the Wild West. Mel Gibson pours on the charm as the conniving gambler, Jodie Foster is almost as slick as the woman who loves and robs him, and original TV Maverick James Garner lends his solid presence to the role of a questionable lawman. "Lethal Weapon" purveyor Richard Donner emphasizes thrills and laughs; William Goldman's script is his cleverest since "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid." PG. Rating: ★★★

NAKED GUN 331/3: THE FINAL INSULT: The third installment of David Zucker's popular police laugh-a-thon finds Frank Drebin (Leslie Nielsen) drafted out of retirement to foil a terrorist plot while trying to save his marriage to the baby-minded Jane (Priscilla Presley). A worthy successor to its predecessors, featuring sendups of everything from "White Heat" and "The Great Escape" to "Thelma & Louise" and the Academy Awards. PG-13. Rating: ★★½

RENAISSANCE MAN: This soggy, plastic hybrid of "Dead Poets Society" and "Private Benjamin" has Danny DeVito as an out-of-work ad man assigned by his unemployment office to teach "Hamlet" to disadvantaged Army recruits. The young performers who play the soldiers are the film's biggest strength. Director Penny Marshall has a way with warm-hearted comedies, but even she can't make this Hollywood boilerplate work. PG-13. Rating: ★

SCHINDLER'S LIST: Steven Spielberg's epic tale of the German industrialist who saved more than 1,100 Jews from Hitler's ovens is an impressive and moving achievement on every level except the key one: as with all Spielberg movies, there are no fully fleshed-out characters. Liam Neeson does his best with the two-dimensionally written title hero, a money-hungry sensualist who sacrificed much in the name of humanity. Ralph Fiennes eclipses Neeson — weirdly — as a psycho concentration camp commandante. Filmed on location in Krakow and outside the gates of the Auschwitz death camp, in brilliant black and white. R. Rating: ★★½

SPEED: An LAPD SWAT team officer (Keanu Reeves) tangles with a psychopathic bomber (Dennis Hopper) who wants to get rich the old fashioned way — by extorting it. Deservedly touted as the sleeper of the summer season, the film delivers nonstop thrills, a solid action performance by Reeves and an appealing supporting turn by Sandra Bullock as a perky and plucky passenger. A real crowd-pleaser. R. Rating: ★★★½

WITH HONORS: Insensitive Harvard students learn lessons in humanity from a homeless bum in this sentimental, simplistic social study. That the derelict is played by Joe Pesci, disappointingly, does not mean that he's psychotic; just occasionally embarrassing, excruciatingly adorable and almost always right. Brendan Fraser is the young man whose eyes are opened widest; Gore Vidal has fun as a conservative professor. PG-13. Rating: ★★

WOLF: Jack Nicholson is in top form as a New York book editor who finds that his gradual transformation into a werewolf has unexpected benefits, including a romance with the rebellious daughter (Michelle Pfeiffer) of his crass new corporate boss (Christopher Plummer). Mike Nichols' ambitious attempt to meld supernatural thriller with contemporary urban drama/satire/love story isn't entirely successful, especially in the stretch, and it gets a bit gruesome here and there. But for the most part, it's literate, escapist fun. R. Rating: ★★★

WYATT EARP: A big, juicy western with all the trimmings, this epic co-produced by director-writer Lawrence Kasdan and leading man Kevin Costner is too much of a good thing. The production looks great, and Costner's somber portrait of the famed lawman-adventurer is solid, but at more than three hours it's way too long and bogged down in boring detail. PG-13. Rating: ★★½

'Blown Away' a major disappointment

By Caryn James
N.Y. Times News Service

■ 'Blown Away' is playing at the North Park Cinema.

When Tommy Lee Jones turns on his coffeemaker, he could be making a cup of coffee or he could be making a bomb. At least that's what viewers ought to think for more than the fraction of a second that the seriously mistimed "Blown Away" allows.

It's no surprise that Jones is brewing a bomb, and such lack of suspense is a pretty big problem in a thriller about a mad bomber.

"Blown Away" tries to be much more than that, of course. The film might have been the thinking person's "Speed," adding character and dialogue, even ideas, to action.

Jeff Bridges plays a member of the Boston bomb squad, trying to outwit Jones as a brilliant bomber who has targeted him and the entire squad. Unfortunately, the characters are half-formed and the dialogue is stilted. Those factors would have done in "Blown Away" even if its awkward pacing hadn't.

One of the most intriguing actors around, Bridges is always worth watching, but as Jimmy Dove he is forced into countless hackneyed situations. Whenever he defuses a bomb, he has a black-and-white flashback to another bombing in Ireland.

He is about to resign from the squad, but on his wedding day his former partner is killed on duty. Jimmy identifies the bomber as Ryan Gaerity (Jones), with whom he has a secret shared past, and becomes determined to find him.

Gaerity begins the film by breaking out of an Irish prison, but by the time he arrives in Boston the most interesting part of his story is over.

The script underuses Jones, and the supposed cat-and-mouse chase between the men degenerates into a series of awkward speeches. Gaerity's smartest move is to acquire a cassette by the group U-2, which gives the movie a lively and distracting score.

As Jimmy's wife, Kate, Suzy Amis is given the film's worst lines. After Jimmy confesses that he has another identity, she says, "I don't even know who you are," an especially bad choice of words, since he has just told her his real name.

Forest Whitaker is Jimmy's new partner. And as Jimmy's great friend and father-figure, Lloyd Bridges figures in the only bomb scene with any real suspense or emotion behind it. Otherwise, the squad defuses some bombs, and many others go off.

The explosions provide big, magnificent special effects, but there is no buildup that makes sense. The pattern of the film is: talk, a big kaboom and fireball, more talk. Often that dialogue involves Irish accents that come and go like the wind.

When Jimmy jumps on a moving Jeep booby-trapped with a bomb, yelling at the driver, "Don't step on the brake," it's too bad that the audience will inevitably think of "Speed." Although "Speed" has nothing on its mind, every bit of its no-brain action works.

"Blown Away" has more ambition, but nothing works. No film with this cast could be a total waste, but "Blown Away" is surely one of the summer's major disappointments. "Blown Away" is rated R. It includes several deaths by bombing.

JACKSON: Album breaks out with 13 songs

(From 1C)

"Song for the Life" looks at a man who has suddenly found a new reason to live, appreciating the little things in life, like sunsets and midsummer days (obviously not those in Midland).

There are no real lyrical gems here like "Who Says You Can't Have It All," but neither is there the requisite clunker or two ("Up to My Ears in Tears," "I Don't Need the Booze To Get a Buzz On)" that seem to have intruded on Jackson's previous three albums.

"Who I Am" is a smooth flowing, even album that is quite simply a very pleasant listen.

"Job Description," a tune written for the singer's daughters, paints a scenic picture of life on the road spent by a singer who's yearning to be more of a family man.

"I sleep eighty miles an hour/To the whining of the diesel down the interstate/Dreamin' 'bout my little girls/The easy chair that sits beside the fireplace."

Other highlights include "Thank God for the Radio," an easy-going tune in the tradition of some of Don Williams' later material, and "Livin' on Love." Carried by a bouncing fiddle line, the song follows a couple from marriage to senior citizenry while preaching the virtues of love over material possessions ("Livin on love/buying on time/Without somebody nothin' ain't worth a dime.")

"Who I Am" tells the listener a lot about Alan Jackson, but there are times when one can become a bit confused. The title song begins with the line, "I know you don't like my drinking," while three songs later, "Song for the Life" opens with the lyric, "Well, I don't drink as much as I used to."

The album includes 13 songs, a thankful break from the traditional, boring country standard which has heretofore held that a country album must be about 31 minutes and contain no more than 10 songs. Hopefully, the album will be a groundbreaker in that respect, too, and the country music purchaser will start getting more tape or disc for their buck.

Jackson's debut, "Here in the Real World" is one of the better country albums released since the resurgence of country music five years ago. "Who I Am," though, is a far better overall work from a singer that stands only to continue to grow in popularity.

SATURDAY, JULY 2, 1994

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR: Progress is certain if you rethink your priorities. Somehow you always seem to be in the right place at the right time! Let those in authority know that you can be counted on in an emergency. A financial bonanza just before Christmas relieves money worries. Romance will be laced with fun and adventure early in 1995. A lean look could help you land a high-profile job in the field of fashion or physical fitness.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: legendary civil rights advocate Thurgood Marshall, actress Cheryl Ladd, baseball player Jose Canseco, actress Polly Holliday.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Someone who seems to have all the answers may be bluffing. You will be surprised at how well you meet a challenge! Romance becomes even more blissful.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A meeting or phone call fills you with enthusiasm. Group activities prove more enjoyable than one-on-one encounters. Keep things casual. Fire up the barbecue and invite in family, friends and neighbors.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Travel light today. One look — and an attractive newcomer could win your heart. A candid chat will clear up a misunderstanding with friends or relatives. Share an emotionally rewarding experience with a good friend.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A family member may be starved for attention. A circuitous route may be the shortest path to success. Arguments should be avoided at all cost. A platonic relationship intensifies.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): The spotlight shifts to the domestic scene. Emotional fireworks make you wish you could turn the clock back to yesterday! A reconciliation will brighten your evening. Invest your savings wisely for a bright future.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): An excellent day to finalize real estate deals. You can make considerable business gains by meeting influential people in a social setting. Dress and act conservatively.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A stumbling block could arise in a relationship. Do more listening than questioning. Mate will come around. Be careful when talking with people who like to pry.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A deep dark secret could come to light, leaving you unnerved. Romantic relationships occupy your thoughts; the question is how to make one last forever!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Be careful not to let a charismatic individual lead you astray. Dreams are vivid and enlightening. You and your partner are on the same wavelength.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Do not let jealousy and suspicion undermine a vital relationship. Bury the hatchet and reopen earlier channels of communication. Let the good times roll tonight!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Cherish your powerful intellect and imagination, others do! Go with the flow; happy events are in the works. Focus on fun and frolic tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You may have to make allowances for a partner now. Expenses could be higher than usual. A stay-at-home weekend could be safer and more fun than traveling.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are courageous and impulsive, quick to take action when they see something that needs to be done. Eager to help around the house, these youngsters sometimes tackle projects too difficult for their age. Wise parents will supervise any attempts to cook or do the laundry.

Michael Keaton is out as caped crusader in next 'Batman' flick

LOS ANGELES — Holy casting crisis!

Michael Keaton is out as the caped crusader in the next "Batman" movie, reportedly because Warner Bros. balked at his $10 million fee.

Val Kilmer, star of "The Doors," will play the crimefighter in "Batman Forever," set to go into production in September, the studio said Thursday.

The Hollywood Reporter said Warner Bros. wasn't willing to meet Keaton's price to play in his third "Batman" movie. Other reports have it that Keaton and "Batman Forever" director Joel Schumacher didn't get along.

"I look forward to having the opportunity to play a wide variety of roles of many genres," Keaton said in a statement.

Keaton's exit is the second for "Batman Forever." Robin Williams was to play the Riddler, but dropped out. The movie costars Tommy Lee Jones as Harvey "Two-Face" Dent, Jim Carrey as the Riddler and Chris O'Donnell as Robin.

BATON ROUGE, La. — Percy Sledge will be singing for the IRS.

Singer Percy Sledge will be singing for the IRS.

The singer known for the hit "When a Man Loves a Woman" was given five years' probation and ordered to pay more than $95,000 in back taxes Friday. He also received six months in a halfway house but can continue performing.

Sledge pleaded guilty in April to tax evasion for failing to report more than $260,000 in income.

"I am giving you the most lenient sentence I can impose under the law," U.S. District Judge John Parker said. "But I have confidence in you and I want you to perform and earn a living. I want you to be able to support your family and pay your taxes."

Sledge could have been sentenced to 15 years in prison and fined $750,000.

"Thank you, Jesus," Sledge said after the sentencing. "I appreciate what the court has done for me."

The judge also ordered Sledge to participate in a substance abuse program. Neither the judge nor Sledge's lawyer offered specifics.

THE HAGUE, Netherlands — Jazz innovator Ornette Coleman has won the International Bird Award.

Jazz innovator Coleman wins international award.

The award, named for the American jazz saxophonist Charlie "Bird" Parker, honors musicians who have had a lasting influence on international jazz.

The award is sponsored annually by the group that puts on the North Sea Jazz Festival, where Coleman is scheduled to perform July 10.

The 64-year-old Texas-born musician and composer "is a saxophonist who has kept his own style throughout the years," Aernoud Oosterholt, spokesman for the eight-member jury of jazz critics from seven countries, said Friday.

"He has never wanted to be influenced by any other musicians. . . . He is one of the few musicians in the world who has made jazz what it is today."

In the late 1950s, Coleman introduced jazz that broke away from the bebop style built around improvising on the chord changes.

In Coleman's groups, the rhythm section no longer strictly kept time. Instead, it interacted freely with the horns.

HAGERSTOWN, Md. — Anka Radakovich, sex advice columnist for the twentysomething crowd, is seven years older than she has let on. She is 37.

That makes her more of a baby boomer than a member of Generation X, the group for which Ms. Radakovich has fashioned herself as a spokeswoman.

Her age has been listed as 30 in newspapers and in Newsweek's June 6 story "The Myth of Generation X," which showed pictures of Ms. Radakovich and three other "Generation Xers" on the cover.

She said the "innocent" untruth about her age began a year ago when she wrote a column for the men's magazine Details about getting dates through personal ads. Since her real age "would have seemed old to my readers," she wrote that she was 29.

"You can see how it started out like a joke," Ms. Radakovich told The Herald-Mail in Hagerstown, where she graduated from high school in 1974. According to school records, Ms. Radakovich was born on May 5, 1957.

ABC wins ratings week during Simpson tragedy

NEW YORK (AP) — Three ABC news magazine shows were in the Top 10 and the network won the ratings week after the prime-time tragedy of O.J. Simpson swept aside other stories.

For the week of June 20-26, ABC led with a 10.0 rating and 19 percent share of the TV audience. CBS was second, with a 9.4 rating and a 17 share, and NBC trailed with an 8.1 rating, 15 share.

Fox Broadcasting Co., which programs only 15 of the 22 prime-time hours, had a 5.3 rating, 10 share.

A single ratings point equals 942,000, or 1 percent, of the nation's 94.2 million TV homes; share is the percentage of sets tuned in during a specific time period.

ABC's special Tuesday edition of "Turning Point," devoted exclusively to the Simpson story, was the week's top-rated show, with an 18.7 rating, 32 share — its best-ever ratings performance.

The broadcast was seen by an estimated 25.4 million viewers, ABC reported.

Game 7 of the National Basketball Association championships was second-highest in the ratings, with the Houston Rockets' victory over the New York Knicks delivering a 17.9 rating, 31 share.

ABC's "20-20," with a brief Simpson story, finished in fifth place; "PrimeTime Live" was eighth, and "Day One" was 23rd.

Other Simpson broadcasts included NBC's "Dateline NBC," which was 12th; CBS' "Eye to Eye with Connie Chung" was 15th, and CBS' "America Tonight" was 43rd.

SMU leader: Devout now is out on campus

By Jim Jones
Associated Press

FORT WORTH — God is being shunted aside on college campuses, Southern Methodist University President A. Kenneth Pye said at a conference I recently attended.

"It just isn't fashionable to be known as someone who is devout," said Pye, who spoke at a symposium in Dallas on "Religious Liberty and Religious Conviction in American Public Life."

Don't get Pye wrong.

He's not a member of the Religious Right, even though he happens to agree with religious conservatives Pat Robertson and Jerry Falwell, who have often said that God has been expelled from colleges and public schools.

Pye was decrying a faulty message he said is being promulgated on university campuses — that one can't be a devout believer and an intellectual.

"We create a kind of dichotomy for youngsters by saying you can't believe and be the best kind of intellectual person," Pye said.

Pye said being religious is not trendy "unless you are a fundamentalist when being devout is the beginning and end of your existence and you don't have to worry about anything intellectual."

Fundamentalists might not agree that they don't pay attention to intellectual matters.

But they would say "Amen" to the views of Pye and other scholars at the SMU symposium, who are considered moderates or liberals, who declared that religion isn't being given its proper role in American society.

Keynote speaker at the meeting was Stephen L. Carter, a Yale University law professor and author of the award-winning book "The Culture of Disbelief: How Our Legal and Political Cultures Trivialize Religious Devotion."

The trivializing of religion in American society mentioned in Carter's book has hit college campuses especially hard, Pye said.

Before he became a college president, Pye, an attorney, told of working with the Ford Foundation on overseas assignments and witnessing religious intolerance among Hindus and Muslims in India.

When he returned to the United States to serve as a college administrator at Duke University and at SMU, Pye said he was delighted to return to a place of true religious freedom.

But he soon discovered a worse situation, he said.

"I found that the worst possible message was being communicated to students," he said. "We were saying that you can't be an intellectual and still be a devout believer."

Pye, a Roman Catholic serving at a United Methodist-supported university, said there is absolutely no conflict between being a good scientist, physicist or any other kind of expert and being a dedicated believer.

Pye said a standoffish view of being religious permeates government, too.

Many in government, he said, think they must stay away from religion to do the best job.

"This isn't the way it ought to be," Pye said. "It ought to be possible to believe and worship God and still adhere to whatever discipline you choose in which you think or hope you are an expert.

"And if you find yourself in government to serve as an elective or appointive official, you should not have to exclude your religious values."

Pye and others at the symposium said that many in government and education keep religion at arm's length because of the U.S. Constitution's guarantees of separation of church and state.

"It is a very tough problem because we are a pluralistic society with many different religions," Pye said. "But I think this is one of our strengths."

The right to believe or not believe should continue to be protected, Pye said.

But there should be no conflict between intellectual pursuits and following a religion in a devout manner, he said.

"We ought to take pride in mixing the two," Pye said.

Presbyterians discuss gender of God

By Peter Steinfels
N.Y. Times News Service

WICHITA, Kan. — As soon as the vote flashed on the convention hall screens, several thousand Presbyterians meeting here gasped, rose, clasped hands and began singing, "Praise God from whom all blessings flow."

They were elated because their fellow delegates, at a General Assembly in which deep theological differences were evident, had given nearly unanimous endorsement to a report meant to resolve one of the church's most provocative disputes: the fallout from a November conference that invoked a female personification of God.

That conference, a feminist reexamination of basic beliefs, had stirred waves of anger in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and produced threats from congregations to withhold millions of dollars in contributions from the national headquarters. Today, 98 percent of the delegates approved a report that reasserted a number of the church's basic convictions that it said had been "criticized and ridiculed at the conference."

Votes on many other issues at the convention here were relatively close, including one to prohibit ministers from blessing same-sex unions. That and other issues have long been gnawing at a denomination whose membership has dropped from 4.3 million in 1965 to 2.7 million now.

The debate over the feminist conference began in November, when 2,000 women gathered in Minneapolis for four days of ritual and discussion. The conference, called "Re-Imagining 1993," was denounced as blasphemous by leaders of the more conservative, evangelical wing of the denomination, who widely publicized provocative statements by speakers and flamboyant rituals using feminine imagery that departed from traditional concepts of God, Jesus, church and family. The conference was sponsored by an interdenominational group but it received more than $70,000 in support from various Presbyterian funds and was attended by many denominational leaders.

Thursday's report backed some of the conservatives' complaints, finding that some presentations and forms of worship went beyond Presbyterianism's "understanding of what makes faith Christian." The report dealt delicately with the conference's frequent invocation of "Sophia," the Greek word for wisdom, as a feminine name for God, something that evangelical critics claimed was the worship of a neo-pagan goddess.

Although the report found that the November conference was not deliberately trying to worship a new god and that some participants "found the use of Sophia as a name for God to be liberating," it also said the conference had used this term and other language "in ways that imply worship of a divine manifestation distinctly different" from the Christian Trinity of Father, Son and Holy Spirit.

At the same time, the report endorsed the right and value of participation in "ecumenical, cross-cultural and interfaith conversations" in which participants can expect that "their own theologies will be challenged and stretched" and in which not all the rituals may be appropriate.

Imagination was an essential part of theology, the report said. Presbyterian Christians, whose church is rooted in the Reformation, should be especially aware "that their particular expressions of the truth in Jesus Christ are neither infallible nor absolute," the report said.

San Antonio officials weigh public paddling for juvenile offenders

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Work has started on a proposed city ordinance that would require the public paddling of graffiti-spraying juveniles .

City Attorney Lloyd Garza, Presiding Municipal Judge Stella Ortiz Kyle and Councilman Lyle Larson, the chief advocate of a public-paddling ordinance, met this week to discuss the proposed ordinance.

It would feature what Larson describes as a "fallback position."

Parents who do not want their children paddled would be assigned by a municipal judge the same number of community service hours as the youngster. Parents and children would work together to clean the graffiti from walls and buildings, Larson said.

"That way, the parents can impress upon their kids the importance of staying out of trouble," Larson said.

Despite some local opposition, Larson's proposal, which he first made to the Greater San Antonio Crime Prevention Commission, has gained national attention.

Alberto, first big storm of hurricane season, grows in gulf

MIAMI (AP) — A tropical depression that dumped up to 10 inches of rain on western Cuba grew in the Gulf of Mexico Friday into Tropical Storm Alberto, the first named storm of the hurricane season, forecasters said.

"The people that live along the north Gulf coast, we want them to listen to the radio, to monitor the storm, because everytime we have a tropical storm in the Gulf of Mexico, it could gain some strength," said National Hurricane Center specialist Lixion Avila.

"We don't know if it's going to become a hurricane," Avila said, "We still think it's going to be 50 mph or a maybe a 60 mph tropical storm."

The increasingly organized cluster of thunderstorms carried maximum winds of 40 mph, just 1 mph above the threshhold where a tropical depression becomes a named tropical storm.

The system was moving northwest at near 7 mph, and was expected to continue on that heading and at that forward speed through Friday evening.

System moves northwest; forecasters predict likeliest point of landfall is 'somewhere along the Louisiana coast,' warn people to watch out today, Sunday.

At 11 p.m. EDT, the center of the storm was centered near latitude 24 degrees north latitude and 87.3 degrees west longitude, or about 365 miles southeast of the mouth of the Mississippi River.

It was moving northwest near 8 mph, and it was possible the storm might slowly strengthen within the next day.

Forecasters determined the likeliest point of landfall is "somewhere along the Louisiana coast" in the National Hurricane Center's 48-72 hour forecast, Avila said.

"If we've got a system in the Gulf of Mexico, it's hard to get it out of there without striking land someplace," hurricane specialist Max Mayfield said earlier Friday.

There is no danger of any landfall for at least two days, but Mayfield worried about people being out of touch over the long Independence Day weekend.

"There's going to be a lot of people going to the coast," he noted. "By Saturday night and Sunday morning, people are going to have to pay real close attention in the Gulf of Mexico."

Storm development would not be unusual a month into the hurricane season, Mayfield said, adding: "This is where we've had several past storms form at this time of year."

The depression developed Thursday off Cuba after being tracked as a tropical wave from Africa.

The Atlantic hurricane season runs from June through November. A storm becomes a hurricane once sustained winds reach 74 mph.
