Reinforcements Join Mississippi Search

By MICHAEL SMITH

PHILADELPHIA, Miss. (AP) — Neshoba County created an auxiliary police force to meet the threat of integration activity today as the State High Patrol got orders to "double its efforts" in the relentless search for the three civil rights workers.

Some 110 deeply tanned farmers and workers answered an appeal from Sheriff Lawrence Rainey. From these shirt-sleeved volunteers, Rainey planned to pick the 50 best qualified and deputize them.

Mississippi expects a new wave of 250 civil rights workers today from an orientation center at Oxford, Ohio. This tense town in east-central Mississippi feared some of them would head here.

Meanwhile, 100 U.S. sailors continued to beat the woody areas around red dirt roads off State Rt. 16 in the general vicinity where the three youths vanished last Sunday.

Dragging of the Pearl River —largest body of water in this area — was begun.

The Highway Patrol got orders from Gov. Paul Johnson to redouble its efforts in the six-day manhunt.

Governor Johnson appealed to the people of this hill country Friday night to "search your own premises" for clues to the baffling disappearance of the three youths.

"Take a few hours of your own time to search for clues," Gov. Paul B. Johnson said in a broadcast from a local radio station.

Johnson came to Philadelphia late Friday as state and federal officers—joined by 100 U.S. sailors — again fought off snakes and insects while wading through swamps in their fruitless search for the trio.

Earlier, former CIA Director Allen Dulles had recommended to President Johnson that the FBI's role against "terroristic activity" in Mississippi be expanded.

Dulles met Friday with the President to report on his two-day White House mission to Mississippi. The President and Dulles conferred by long-distance telephone with Gov. Johnson during the meeting.

Cubans Now Have Control Of Missiles

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union is reported to be handing over the operation of its antiaircraft missiles in Cuba to the Castro military forces—but with a warning against trigger-happy firing at U.S. reconnaissance planes.

The transfer of the missile operations from Russian to Cuban hands is—according to information obtained by the United States—going on as the Russians near completion of their troop withdrawal.

The information indicates 600 to 800 Soviet officers and men left Cuba last month and about 1,200 more are still to be withdrawn. The Soviets will leave behind, however, what is described as a permanent training mission of 800 to 1,000.

At the height of the "eyeball to eyeball" missile crisis in October 1962 the Russians were believed to have 22,000 or more troops in Cuba.

The 24-base network of surface-to-air missiles — SAMs—the Russians are turning over is believed still capable of shooting down the American high-altitude reconnaissance planes that are patrolling Cuba.

The information here is that the central command governing the SAM sites is still under control of Soviet officers. Also, officials have given support to published reports that the advanced Soviet radar installed in the missile system has been dismantled and withdrawn. This would reduce the effectiveness of the missiles and their ability to knock down the swift American jets.

In another development Friday, the Organization of American States voted 17 to 0 to call a meeting of hemisphere foreign ministers here July 21 to consider breaking all diplomatic and economic ties with the Castro government. Mexico abstained in the vote.

Under the Inter - American Treaty of Mutual Assistance, Venezuela has asked the OAS to adopt sanctions against Cuba —the severing of diplomatic ties, a halt in economic relations and suspension of sea and air communications.

Thieves Make Big Haul

LONDON (AP)—Six bandits smashed the show windows of two jewelry shops near Piccadilly Circus today and fled with gems valued at $140,000.

Three men in a second-floor office overlooking the scene showered flower pots and furniture on the thieves, but they roared off in a car which narrowly missed hitting a number of shoppers.

The two shops, owned by the Goldsmiths and Silversmiths Association, are in Burlington Arcade, a shopping center only a hundred feet from Piccadilly Circus, the hub of central London.

The thieves smashed the shop windows with iron bars and sledgehammers and swiftly seized the stocks of jewelry on display.

Among the eyewitnesses to the robbery were Mr. and Mrs. Bernard H. Ridder Sr. of St. Paul, Minn. Ridder is president of Northwest Publications, which owns the St. Paul Dispatch and Pioneer Press. Mr. and Mrs. Ridder are on a tour of Europe.

US Plans Indictment Of Communist Party

JACK D. SHATTUCK
. . . space-science lecturer

Lecturers Will Trace Space Age

Residents of the Snyder area will learn more about the Space Age in a demonstration to be presented by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration here July 4.

Snyder will be visited by the Spacemobile, which will be a part of the program at the July 4th celebration here.

Accompanying the Spacemobile and presenting the demonstration will be Jack D. Shattuck and Robert McCurdy, lecturers.

Traveling throughout the United States and in foreign countries, the demonstration units provide an introduction to space science and to our nation's space activities.

The demonstration is presented by professional science educators who are authoritatively informed on the space sciences and the programs of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Models of launch vehicles and spacecraft, mechanical and electronic devices, and other audio - visual materials and experiments are a part of the Spacemobile demonstrating equipment. These aids are used in demonstrating basic scientific principles and how these apply to the programs of NASA.

For instance, the lecturer traces the history of rocketry — from the early efforts of the Chinese in the 13th century, liquid fuel rocket research of America's Dr. Robert Goddard, and to the more recent success of the Germans and their V-2 missile.

The scientific principles of orbits and propulsion are discussed along with the men whose discoveries and vision paved the way to present day exploration of outer space.

The audience will learn about the various projects of the NASA as the lecturer explains them by utilizing authentic scale models of scientific payloads now exploring outer space.

They will explore together the benefits of communications and weather satellites, and scientific information derived from current scientific satellites, the hopes for those launched in the future, and the aims of through space research.

The imagination of the audience will respond to the lecturer's discussion of man's flight to the moon. He will explain not only the mechanics of the flights of Projects Gemini and Apollo but will provide an insight into the biological problems of man in a space environment.

St. Augustine Beefs Up Police Force

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP) —Reinforcements arrived today to push to 230 the number of state law enforcement officers stationed in this racially torn city to maintain order.

Gov. Farris Bryant ordered more men after an on-the-scene inspection and conferences with state law officers. "I did not find much progress toward a solution," he said of the racial situation he has called a "clear and present danger."

The vanguard of the new men got their initial test Friday night when hundreds of whites congregated in a downtown square to listen to segregation speeches.

FROM THE FIRST FAMILY—Janet Boren, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil J. Boren, 3774 Avondale, displays a photograph of the first family which she received recently from Lady Bird Johnson, wife of the president. The White House sent the photograph after Janet wrote Mrs. Johnson that Janet's puppy had been named "Lady Bird", and "I think Lady Bird is pretty." A letter accompanying the photograph from the White House noted that "your kind words mean much to Mrs. Johnson."

Won't Sign As Russian Agent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is expected to seek a new indictment soon against the U.S. Communist party, which has refused to register as an agent of the Soviet Union.

This, it was learned today, is the course most likely to be followed by the Justice Department in reaction to a court decision upsetting a 1961 conviction of the party on the same charge.

Government sources indicated the new indictment will be painstakingly timed — possibly this summer—to allow the government to avoid the pitfall which won the Communists a reversal of the 1961 conviction.

At that time, the party was convicted of failing to register with the attorney general, as required by the Internal Security Act of 1950, and sentenced to pay a $120,000 fine — $10,000 each of 11 days past the deadline in which the party failed to register, and $10,000 for failing to file a registration statement.

The U.S. Court of Appeals reversed the conviction last December. A three-judge panel decided that the party officers who should have registered had the constitutional right to protect themselves from self-incrimination. The panel held further that the burden was on the government to prove that there was someone available to voluntarily register the party—someone who would not be concerned with possible self-incrimination.

The government, demanding full-court reconsideration, said the law requires that the party be registered, not that the person who performs the registration be a member of the party.

The government made it clear that it felt the party's use of the Fifth Amendment was a shame. It said the party, through its wide open propaganda program, never has hestiated to be represented in public by its officials, who clearly label themselves members of the party and disregard the possibility of self-incrimination.

Nevertheless, the court refused to reconsider the decision. The Supreme Court, when the department took its case there, also declined to review it.

The loss was a bitter pill. It had taken more than 10 years of litigation before the Supreme Court, in June 1961, upheld the constitutionality of an order of the Subversive Activities Control Board, which had found that the party was a Communist-action group, dominated and controlled by the Soviet Union.

The Justice Department still is considering what new steps to take against the party, in the light of the Court of Appeals decision. It has been studying two principal alternatives -- whether to reindict the party or to retry the old indictment.

The latter would require the government to prove that a volunteer was available back in 1961, to register the party. That course of action would be enormously complicated and tenuous, at best, in the courts.

RACE AGITATION

Dallas Situation Said Explosive

DALLAS (AP)—Racial demonstrators have created "an explosive situation" which could lead to gunfire here, Dist. Judge Dee Brown Walker declared Friday.

Judge Walker's statement drew a sharp reply from C. B. Bunkley, a Negro lawyer, who accused the jurist of "inciting a riot." Bunkley said Judge Walker's statement would help produce "the kind of situation we've got in Mississippi."

Judge Walker retorted that he was trying to avoid trouble here—not create it. He suggested that attorneys for demonstrators help reduce tension by insisting that their clients comply with "the spirit of the law."

The exchange took place as Judge Walker laid down ground rules for picketing of the downtown Piccadilly Cafeteria.

Judge Walker signed an order which applies to Rev. Earl Allen, Ted Armstrong, Congress of Racial Equality members and "persons in active concert or participation" with them.

The order specifies they must not:

— Harass Piccadilly customers, block the cafeteria entrance, or stand in its food service line.

—incite fights or engage in disturbances.

—engage in mass singing outside the cafeteria.

The order provides also that demonstrators must stay at least 10 feet from the entrance of the segregated cafeteria.

Attorneys Charles Morris and John B. Wilson Jr., who represent demonstrators, termed the order "so broad it is meaningless" and said they would appeal to the Fifth Court of Civil Appeals.

Meanwhile, Wilson said, he would advise demonstrators to comply with Judge Walker's order. But, he said, he believed they could gather near the cafeteria and protest its policies without violating the court order.

Judge Walker signed the order six hours after police arrested Rev. Earl E. Allen, who heads the Dallas Co-ordinating Committee for Civil Rights, outside the cafeteria.

Indictments Are Returned

The Scurry County Grand Jury returned 20 true bills of indictment against 11 individuals late Friday.

Seven of the indictments, all alleging forgery, named David Baker III as defendant, and four indictments for forgery were returned against Bill Cauble.

An indictment alleging making, drawing a worthless check was returned against R. M. McGaha and another charging giving of a check without sufficient funds named Clifford Minor. Another worthless check indictment was returned against an individual not in custody.

Lorenzo Garcia faces an indictment alleging armed robbery and assault with a prohibited weapon. Roy Cannon Burditt was indicted on a count alleging that he injured the property of another. James Edward Neblett of Hermleigh was indicted on a count alleging driving while intoxicated, second offense, and Robert Beauchamp of Aspermont was indicted for forgery.

Horacio Hernandez was indicted for misdemeanor theft, and Billy Hearn is defendant in an indictment alleging operation of a motor vehicle without consent of the owner, also a misdemeanor. The latter two cases were referred to county court.

Dear Abby...

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: We moved into a new neighborhood and I started going to the neighborhood beauty shop. The last two times I went, the same lady was there in her slip with her big fat legs showing as well as her busom. Another lady took off her blouse and sat there in a thin nylon bra. The lady in the slip didn't care what showed. I go to the beauty shop every Saturday and my 8-year-old son likes to go with me. He was so embarrassed by all these half - dressed women he could barely keep his mind on his comics. He has plenty of time before he has to learn what half - dressed women look like. He doesn't have to learn it at 8 years of age in a beauty shop. Should I tell those brazen women to be more modest? Or should I ask the shop manager to keep her customers covered?

NEW CUSTOMER

DEAR NEW: Women in various stages of undress have more business in a beauty shop than an eight-year-old boy. Leave the lad at home.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Why would a young, intelligent married woman go to someone's home for dinner with her hair done up in rollers and a scarf when she had been told there would be 16 other guests? I hope you can think of a good excuse for her because she is really a good girl otherwise.

BAFFLED

DEAR BAFFLED: She'll have to think of her own "excuses." But if you are interested in the reason, it is obvious. She's saving her best self for a worthier occasion, which is no compliment to her hostess.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: My boy friend is not quite 17 and he has grown a mustache — at least, that's what he calls it. It isn't very thick or dark. In fact, it just looks like he forgot to wash his face but, nevertheless, it is a mustache and he thinks it looks good. Everyone makes fun of it behind his back. When my mother saw it for the first time she had to bite her lip to keep from laughing. I really wish that he would shave it off. How should I tell him? I hate to hurt his feelings.

KATHY

DEAR KATHY: Tell him in the kindest, frankest, plainest words you can find. But TELL him.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: The woman who signed herself "WAITING" is not the only one whose husband uses poker games as a cover up for evenings spent with other women. How do I know? Because I was the "other woman" (for a while). I later learned that there had been many in his life before me. He is in his fifties, married, a devoted father and grandfather. But what kind of husband? I am glad I was only "the other woman" instead of his wife.

Borgnine, Merman Wed

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actor Ernest Borgnine, 47, the shy butcher in the film 'Marty," and singer Ethel Merman, 55, one of Broadway's most beloved belters, looked forward to their honeymoon as Ethel and Ernie Borgnine Saturday.

Their wedding—the third marriage for each—was to be at 3 p.m.

The wedding was planned for the garden of Borgnine's Beverly Hills home, with Municipal Judge Mario Clinco officiating.

Only the immediate families were to attend the wedding—including Borgnine's father, his sister, his brother-in-law, and his 12-year-old daughter, and Miss Merman's parents and a grown son and daughter. A wedding reception for about 500 persons was scheduled later at the fashionable Beverly Hills restaurant of Dave Chasen.

Ruby Sought To Spare Mrs. Kennedy

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The Dallas News in a copyright story today quoted Jack Ruby as saying he deliberately planned to kill Lee Harvey Oswald "to spare Mrs. (John F.) Kennedy the anguish of returning to the city where her husband died."

The News attributed its information to an informed source that said Ruby considered himself a "human sacrifice" in order to kill Oswald, accused of assassinating President Kennedy Nov. 22.

The source said the statements were made during a 3½-hour interview with Chief Justice Earl Warren June 7.

Ruby was quoted as saying he first thought about killing Oswald upon reading an emotional letter to Caroline Kennedy in a newspaper Nov. 23. On the same page was a report that prosecutors might ask Mrs. Kennedy to testify at Oswald's trial.

Ruby said he no longer cares what happens to him. He said, however, that he objected to the insanity plea entered by Melvin Belli, chief defense attorney at his trial. He said he wanted to testify but Belli told him prosecutors would "cut you to pieces" and show premeditation.

State Notes 'Operation Motorcide'

AUSTIN (AP)—Texas' top law enforcement officer announced Saturday the annual "Operation Motorcide" for the July 4th holiday with a warning that the traffic situation in Texas is "critical."

Col. Homer Garrison, director of the State Department of Public Safety, said 32 persons are expected to die during the "Operation Motorcide" period from Friday midnight to Sunday midnight despite department attempts to focus public attention on added hazards of holiday road travel.

The department will implement the highway patrol force with patrolmen from several other department divisions.

Garrison said present record-breaking traffic death trends could result in a new high of more than 3,000 highway deaths in 1964. The 1963 total was 2,729.

Department weekend efforts will be supplemented by the Texas Safety Association, which will conduct an information program; the Texas Council of Safety supervisors and the Texas Motor Transportation Association, which will operate a "Holiday Road Patrol" of 35 to 40 autos to assist stranded motorists.

Guilty Plea Heard

Raymond Day of Ruidoso, N. M. pleaded guily in county court Saturday morning to a DWI charge. He was fined $100 plus $26.35 court costs and sentenced to 3 days in jail. The charge had been filed by the police department.

FHA's Personnel In Bi-Area Meet

The county personnel of the local Farmers Home Administration Office have just returned from attending a bi-area meeting of FHA personnel of Areas 18, 19 and 20 held in Lubbock, where policies and procedures for the Agency's 1965 program were discussed and outlined, Joseph E. Box, local county supervisor, advised today.

A great deal of the program centered upon the part Farmers Home Administration will play in 1965 in carrying out President Johnson's Anti-Poverty Plan to be put into action soon, and a review of existing procedures that may be carried out now without additional legislation. State Office officials reminded county office personnel that Section 504 Loans and Grants of Title V of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended, provided for moderate cost of housing and related facilities for elderly persons or persons in any age group who have serious physical handicaps and reside in rural areas.

Under this type of Housing loan and grant procedure an elderly person is one who is 62 years of age or over and because of circumstances beyond his control does not or will not have sufficient income to qualify for other types of Housing loans under the regular Housing programs of the Farmers Home Administration. The same applies to the physically handicapped with the exception that there is no limitation as to age group. In either case, the applicant will be a qualified owner of the property in a rural area on which minor repairs or improvements are to be made and such repairs and improvements are necessary to make buildings safe and sanitary and remove hazards to the health of the applicant, his family or the community.

Funds for such minor repairs and improvements may be used to repair roofs, supply screens, repair or provide structural supports, provide convenient and sanitary water supply, provide toilet facilities and add a room to an existing dwelling, in justified cases, and pay fees and expenses for closing the loan and - or grant.

Under Section 504 Loan and Grant legislation, a combination of a loan and grant, a loan or a grant may not exceed $1000. Such loans will bear interest at the rate of 4 per cent and will be scheduled for repayment over a period of not more than 10 years.

For detailed information concerning loans and grants for these persons, Box, local county supervisor, Farmers Home Administration, may be contacted. Scurry and Kent Counties are serviced out of the Snyder FHA Office.

Re-Trial Set For Informer

KANSAS CITY (AP)—A new trial has been asked for George John Gessner, the former Army private who faces life imprisonment for supplying nuclear weapons information to the Russians.

A motion for a new trial for the 28-year-old Melbourne, Fla., defendant was filed here Friday. It listed 20 grounds for a new trial and challenged the authority of the court to eliminate classified information from recorded transcripts.

The new astronauts were selected early this year for for NASA's Project Gemini but none has yet made a space flight.

They are Navy Lt. Commander Charles Conrad Jr., head of the astronaut group; Air Force Major E. Aldrin, Air Force Captains W. A. Anders, C. Bassett, M. Collins, D. Eisele; Air Force Lt. Commander T. Freeman; Navy Lt. Commander R. Gordon and Lieutenants A. Bean, E. Cernan and R. Chaffee; U.S. Marines Captains D. Scott and C. Williams and civilians R. Cunningham and R. Schweikart.

Texas Legislature Facing Shakeup From Court Order

By LEE JONES

AUSTIN (AP) — The legislature faces an internal shakeup plus a host of other problems because of the Supreme Court redistricting order.

"Seats in both houses of a bicameral state legislature must be apportioned on a population basis," wrote Chief Justice Earl Warren.

His opinion said under-presentation of city dwellers is unconstitutional.

The decision probably means the eventual shift of Texas legislative control from rural to urban areas and the possibility of more so-called liberal members, officials say.

"We're going to have the speaker in 1967," a so-called liberal and big city representative asserted. "The legislature will be a lot more responsive to city problems which have been neglected because of the apathy of the country boys."

The court ruling also sets up the internally bitter problem of drawing new districts for the state House and Senate. There is a good chance this will have to be done in 1965. Politicians' instinct for self-preservation likely will compete with a desire to carve districts that satisfy the court's equal population doctrine.

The current representation in Austin, as set out by the 1961 redistricting act, does not balance when compared with 1960 population figures for house and senate districts.

The four most populous counties—Harris, Dallas, Bexar and Tarrant—have about 36 per cent of Texas' people but only 13 per cent of the voting strength in the Senate, with four of the 31 seats. In the House they have 35 of the 150 representatives, about 23 per cent.

Following the supreme court's order of representation as nearly equal in population as practicable, there should be a senator for about every 310,000 people and a representative for every 62,000.

The most drastic changes will be in the Senate.

"It appears that the five largest counties will have 12 of the 31 Senate seats, leaving 19 places to be allocated among the remaining 249 counties. Some districts will have some districts ... wide," says Lt. Gov. Preston Smith.

Harris County (Houston) would get four senators, Dallas three, Bexar (San Antonio) two and Tarrant (Fort Worth) possibly two. Each now has a single senator under a state constitutional limit of only one senator to any one county. El Paso County, which now shares a senator with the Midland-Odessa area and several other counties, would be entitled to a senator of its own.

The Harris County House delegation would increase from 12 to 19 representatives, Dallas from nine to 14, Bexar from seven to 10 and Tarrant from seven to nine.

Adding senators and representatives for the cities will strip some from less-populated counties. The new, probably larger, rural districts, inevitably will pit some incumbent lawmakers against one another for re-election, as happened after the 1961 reapportionment. Deciding whom to force into such contests always makes redistricting a bitter chore.

The legislature is not expected to redistrict on its own. A federal court suit in Houston, which has been delayed pending the Supreme Court's decision, is expected to order the reapportionment. Plaintiffs say they will ask for an early ruling by the three-judge federal court now considering the case.

How will redistricting change in the legislature?

"After redistricting in the light of the Supreme Court's edict, the balance of power will definitely swing to the metropolitan centers," Smith said.

Smith said he does not think rural domination has resulted in unfair treatment of cities and he does not foresee striking changes in the kind of legislation enacted.

"I've been a member of the legislature since about 1944, and I don't recall any legislation passing the House and Senate that discriminated against city areas," said Smith, former senator from Lubbock.

"There is not much question in my mind that we will have a great many more so-called liberal members of the House and Senate because if you check the roster you will see that most liberal members come from metropolitan areas."

Former Dallas Rep. Bob Johnson, now director of the Legislative Council, said "The cities could control if they stick together." He added that there is a lot of liberal and conservative division among city legislators.

Johnson agreed with Smith that there has been little discrimination against cities. "I bet there aren't 10 bills a session that draw the line" between urban and rural interests, he said.

Sen Criss Cole of Houston said, "Urban interests should get the protection they have needed for a long time."

Some contend there will be more sentiment in a heavily urban legislature for liberalized state liquor laws and for elimination of the state property tax, leaving the ad valorem field to the cities.

Federal Leases Causing Concern

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON (AP) — Independent oil operators are becoming alarmed over the crude oil production boom on federal leases off Louisiana.

Production there now exceeds 300,000 barrels a day and recent discoveries indicate even more in the near future.

Spokesmen for the independent segment of the industry told the Interstate Oil Compact Commission this week at Billings, Mont., that oversupply and declining prices are reducing the ranks of the independents through sellouts, mergers and bankruptcy.

They said all onshore producing areas are losing markets to two sources with relatively unlimited growth potential — oil imports and offshore federal lease production.

"The potential of offshore production is a very real threat matched only by imports," said Earl Turner, executive vice president of the Texas Independent producers & Royalty owners Association, one of several trade groups which serve as advisory committees to the compact.

"In recent years imports and offshore production have become the principal beneficiaries of continued depressed production levels in many states." Turner said. "These disproportionate growth areas, moreover, seriously threaten the entire structure of state oil and gas conservation."

After hearing Turner and other independents, the 33-state compact adopted a resolution asking that oil imports be reducted substantially.

No resolution on federal lease production was adopted but, on a motion by Mississippi, the Cokpact's staff was instructed to compile factual data on the situation.

Louisiana still claims title to parts of the Gulf areas the Supreme Court has said belong to the federal government. Pending settlement of this old dispute, millions of dollars in lease sale and royalty income are being held in escrow. Meanwhile, the Interior Department handles lease sales for the disputed areas and Louisiana supervises drilling operations and production allowables.

There has been criticism of some of the federal lease operations ever since a record lease sale was held early last year. Many oilmen contend this sale was poorly timed in that the industry already was battling a worldwide surplus of oil.

Terms of the leases include time limits for exploration and production, however, and some plush production discoveries already have been made in the new areas, most of which are beyond the disputed zones.

Building In State Dips During May

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas building during May was low for the year, the Texas Bureau of Business research said Saturday.

The University of Texas agency said construction totaled $122.6 million, a decrease of 20 per cent from April. The five month cumulative value was $681.7 million, or 2 per cent below 1963.

May residential construction dropped 6 per cent. Nonresidential building was down 25 per cent.

"Current asthorizations in Texas indicate that residential construction is below the levels reached last year; construction of one-family homes is being authorized at about the same rate as in 1963 but permits to build apartments have declined," the bureau report said. "Several categories of nonresidential authorizations in 1964 are offsetting this drop. Authorizations to build hotels, motels, service stations, hospitals and churches have all shown increases."

During the first five months, Corpus Christi, El Paso and San Antonio showed improvement in authorizations for both one-family and apartment buildings.

Beaumont, Port Arthur, Orange, Brownsville, Harlingen, San Benito, Fort Worth, Lubbock and Midland showed gains in permits for apartment building but decreases in one family building permits.

In Austin, Dallas, Galveston, Laredo Odessa, Tyler and Waco, there were increases for one-family dwellings but losses in apartment authorizations.

The six area showing decreases in both categories were Amarillo, Abilene, Houston, San Angelo, Texarkana, and Wichita Falls.

State Broiler Prices Climb Steadily

Movement ranged from normal to brisk and was expected to increase the coming week.

Closing prices: South 14.50; East 14.00-14.70. Last week: South 13.50; East 12.60-13.90. Year ago: South 14.50; East 13.35-14.10.

LIGHTEST MEXICO

BY JOHN ABNEY

MEXICO CITY — Top of the morning to everybody who likes money and I suppose that takes care of all of us, including Fidel Castro.

Mexicans are looking forward eagerly to the presidential election in July because they can't wait to vote for Senor Gustavo Diaz Ordaz. The Nation feels his policies will get money in circulation and bolster everyone's economy.

One room fan typt air-conditioner with pump $39.95

Slightly used reel type lawn mower $60.00

Roe's Furniture and Appliance
Highland Shopping Center

They refer to him by his initials — DO — partly because Mexicans like to be democratic and partly because they have learned what "do" means in English. The public is convinced Senor Diaz Ordaz will do things to get green stuff flowing all over the country, which makes bankers and businessmen and even spenders happy.

Practically everyone I know likes to spend money except this aunt of the kids. She is loaded but she does not trust banks. She used to keep her funds in a bank but every morning when she would go in the manager would smile pleasantly at her and she got suspicious.

Then she would immediately call the police and demand a full rundown on her account. I mean she made them get every penny out and count it in her presence and then stamp her initials on everything before she would leave.

One day she read that a bank was held up in Saigon so she withdrew her money and put it in a 50-gallon oil drum which she has buried in her back yard. And I got it from pretty reliable source that the bank gave her 2 per cent if she would close out her account.

Anyhow, she rented a second-hand shovel from a store across town and every night at the stroke of twelve she goes out and digs up this drum of heavy bills. And before she goes near the garden, she locks the servants in an upstairs front bedroom and pulls a sort of circus tent awning over the garden.

Then she cuts open the top of the drum with an acetylene torch she borrowed on approval four years ago and puts on a jeweler's eyeglass and white, silk gloves to examine the money.

She has the serial number of every bill written down on a roll of the front and back of each bill to double check.

Every Thursday night she rolls the barrel into the laundry room and washes the bills in a special machine. After they come out damp dry she irons every loving one and puts them back in the barrel which is lined with Ermine.

Then she welds the top on and buries it in a different place but she has become such an expert at fitting the pieces of sod together that even Scotland Yard would never notice a flaw.

Of course this may seem a little unusual but money is her hobby. Like some people play golf, others go to the movies with girls and you always find a few whose real pleasure comes from being avid hyperchondriacs.

Actually, the philosophy behind her eccentric ways is the old saying, "You can't take it with you."

This aunt says it may be true but she has signed a notarized oath in court to keep it while she is here.

Two Robbery Suspects Returned To Midland

The pair are Glen Garrett, 35, of Odessa and James Timothy Overton, 23 of Austin, Tex.

When arrested after a high speed chase by Oklahoma officers, they carried revolvers and a double-barrel shotgun.

The Texans were charged with reckless driving, possession of illegal firearms and vagrancy.

Track And Field Athletes In Final Run For Olympics

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States' premier track and field athletes, thoroughly tested and incredibly talented, this week begin the final run of qualifications for an American team that faces its biggest challege in recent Olympic history.

They go into the first of two sections of Olympic trials at Randall's Island in New York this weekend; trimming the field to six men in each event.

The final eliminations, trimming it to the three men in each event who will represent the United States in Tokyo, will be held in Los Angeles Sept. 12-13.

But just to reach this stage of competition, still a long, long way from a ticket to Tokyo, the athletes have had to survive major tests.

Even to be eligible for the Olympic trials, the athletes have finished in the first six in their events in either the national NCAA championships at Eugene, Ore., the AAU championships at New Brunswick, N.J., or won their event in the Armed Services meet at Quantico, Va.

"The Olympic Committee for track and field actually has adopted a policy following the tradition whereby the athletes select themselves on the basis of their performances in the Olympic trials," said George T. Eastment, chairman of the United States Olympic Track Committee.

'Except for the performances of the winners in the New York trials," Eastment said, "the composition of the remainder of the squad will be based on the order of finish of the competitors in the Los Angeles trials."

This means the team will be picked in the following manner:

First, an athlete must qualify for the New York trials through the NCAA, AAU or Armed Services championships. The winners in New York qualify for one of the three spots in each event for the Olympics.

The next five finishers in each event qualify for the Los Angeles trials, where the other two positions in each event on the Olympic team will be filled.

The U.S. team, though loaded with talent, still faces one of its biggest challenges in history.

Although reports from Russia are sketchy and incomplete, indications are that the Soviets are putting together probably their strongest men's team ever.

One U.S. Olympian already has been selected, marathoner Buddy Edelen, who won the AAU event. The representatives in the 10,000 meter run, the decathlon, and the 20 kilometer and 50 kilometer walks will be selected in other trials.

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

You just know things are going right for the Philadelphia Phillies these days. They've got a pitcher who can't pitch helping a hitter who couldn't hit. That's the kind of weird combination which weaves winners.

When Clay Dalrymple's second homer of the season soared out of Busch Stadium Friday night for a 6-5 Phillie victory over the Cardinals, nobody could have been prouder than Cal McLish, the hurler who's spent the season on the disabled list.

McLish, whose sore arm has left him virtually useless to the Phillies' pennant push this season, took Dalrymple, whose bat has been something of a hindrance too, in hand recently.

"I've been watching you," McLish told Dalrymple. "You're not swinging the way you did last year."

The catcher listened, and so would you if your batting average was under .200. "He told me a couple of things I didn't realize I was doing," said Dalrymple.

"I was dipping my shoulder and lunging before the pitch got there," he said. "Now I'm concentrating on holding the bat still and driving down on the ball."

Cardinal reliever Ron Taylor can testify that Dalrymple drove the ball, but it went anywhere but down. Taylor came on to protect a one-run St. Louis edge gained when the Cardinals knocked out Jim (Perfect Game) Bunning in a three-run eighth inning.

After Tony Gonzalez doubled to open the inning, Dalrymple hammered one onto the right-center pavilion roof. Goodbye lead, goodbye ball game.

Cookie Rojas and Richie Allen also clouted two-run homers for the Phillies and Bob Skinner, whose eighth-inning double ignited the Cardinal rally, had four hits for St. Louis.

In other NL action, San Francisco nipped Los Angeles 4-3, Pittsburgh whipped Cincinnati 8-3, New York topped Milwaukee 8-4 and Chicago edged Houston 7-6 in 10 innings.

In the American League, Detroit edged New York 1-0 in 11 innings, Baltimore whacked Washington 9-4 in 13 innings, Boston edged Cleveland 3-2, Los Angeles stretched its winning streak to 11 straight with a double shutout over Kansas City, 1-0 and 6-0 and Minnesota split a pair with Chicago, winning 2-0 on Gerry Arrigo's one-hitter and then losing 9-4.

Bunning's perfect game magic disappeared fast when leadoff batter Curt Flood cracked a double in the first inning.

'I just heaved a big sigh when he hit that ball," said Bunning. "I said to myself, 'Well, things can get back to normal now."

The victory maintained Philadelphia's one-rame lead over the Giants who parlayed eighth-inning errors by Maury Wills and Jim Gilliam into an unearned run and their second straight victory over the Dodgers.

Tom Haller's sacrifice fly drove in the run off Los Angeles' reliever Bob Miller—the first run off Miller in 31 2-3 innings.

The Pirates pounded three Red pitchers for 13 hits with Bill Virdon and Roberto Clemente contributing three apiece. Virdon had a triple and a two-run double and Clemente ripped a pair of doubles.

Starter Joey Jay, who gave up nine of the hits, was the loser.

The Mets exploded for an eight-run second inning with homers by Charlie Smith and Joe Christopher, the latter a grand slam, doing the major damage, and routing Warren Spahn.

Tracy Stallard survived three Milwaukee homers and went the distance to pick up the victory.

Pinch hitter Leo Burke's 10th-inning single bailed the Cubs out in their seesaw game with the Colts. The lead changed hands four times in the last two innings before Burke's hit brought Doug Clemens home with the winner.

Cardinals Win Over Giants 11-1

The Little League Cardinals moved back into a tie for 2nd place Friday night by upending the Giants 11-1. The victory gives the Cards a record of 6 wins and 5 losses, the same as the Braves. The Cubs are on top with a 7-4 record.

This was the only contest in Little League play Friday. The game between the Yankees and the Indians was called off because of the death of R. D. Glasscock, father of Yankee manager Gene Glasscock.

The Cards jumped out in front in the first inning with 2 runs on consecutive homers by David Thompson and Glenn Rambin. The final 3 runs came in the 4th on a pair of walks, a single, a double by Neal Starnes and a home run by Mike Blythe. Gordon Gray was the winning pitcher, giving up just two hits, both singles.

Talkative Girl Wins At Tennis

By JOHN GALE
Associated Press Writer

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) —"That's what I mean about you, Billie Jean. You're just plain dumb. . .

"Come on, Billie. You can do better than that. . . .

"For goodness sake, get on with it girl."

The author of this torrent of non-stop abuse and exhortation is—Billie Jean Moffitt herself.

One of Wimbledon's most likeable and popular competitors, the 20-year-old Californian from Long Beach spills more words on the court than tennis shots.

Billie Jean shocks herself with her own wordiness.

"If only I could keep my mouth shut," she bemoaned to a newsman, "it would be a whole lot better.

"I just talk too much. But there it is, I'll never be the quiet type."

In the latest of her three Wimbledon campaigns, Billie Jean is mixing up good and bad shots, dropping sets unexpectedly and talking to herself harder than ever.

In spite of indifferent form, she should however reach the semifinal where her path may be barred by the holder, Marge Smith of Australia.

They have met five times—and Big Marge has won four times out. Billie Jean turned back the Australian in the Wimbledon championships two years ago, but lost the return match in the 1963 final.

"My main problem is I don't play enough tennis all the year round," said little Miss Moffitt.

When British unknown Margaret Lee stole the first set from her Friday, Billie Jean responded to the challenge with her most devastating form. She ran out a 3-6, 6-4, 6-2 winner to move into the round of 16.

Chuck McKinley of San Antonio, Tex., the defending men's champion, had an uphill 8-6, 6-4, 2-6, 6-4 victory over British Davis Cupper Billy Knight in the fourth round, dropping his fourth set at this Wimbledon.

Others through to the quarterfinals include top seeded Roy Emerson of Australia, who won in straight sets against Arthur Ashe of Richmond, Va., the first Negro to be chosen for the U.S. Davis Cup squad.

All-America Game Might Be Answer

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Can George Mira make it as a pro? Is Scott Appleton a $104,000 football player? How good is Don Trull?

The answers to some of these questions will be clearer after tonight's All - America football game at War Memorial Stadium. Of the 58 players involved in the East-West game, all but eight will be playing pro ball during the 1964 season.

Those figures you see on your television (ABC) will be real, live sweating athletes, and no re-run of last season. The season begins in earnest for these young men in the game cosponsored by the American Football Coaches Association and the Buffalo Evening News.

About 25,000 fans are expected at kickoff time, 8:30 p.m. EST.

Mira, the fabulous University of Miami quarterback who gained almost three miles in his college career, will do the passing for the Eastern team coached by Pete Elliott of Illinois. Mira is due to seek the quarterback job with the San Francisco 49ers later this summer.

Coach Bob Devaney of Nebraska and the West is torn between Dennis Claridge of his own Cornhusker squad and Trull of Baylor. He probably will alternate the two quarterbacks, depending on the situation. Trull, who supposedly got $100,000 to sign with the Houston Oilers, is the pro type who throws from the pocket. Claridge, signed by Green Bay, combines roll-out running with passing and may be used as a halfback by Vince Lombardi with the Packers.

The weather man says it will be a typical summer night that will melt a few pounds off the big boys. Warm, humid and sweaty is the forecast.

Traffic Jams At Cleveland Open

By FRIT ZHOWELL
Associated Press Sports Writer

CLEVELAND (AP) — Two traffic jams were on today as the $100,000 Cleveland Open Golf Tournament went into its third round.

One was on the Highland Park municipal course, which is reeling from sub-par onslaughts led by Arnold Palmer. A flock of money-seeking talent is tangled near the top for the $20,000 stretch drive payoff.

The other is on the Ohio-Pennsylvania Turnpike, which is filled with 54 hopefuls who failed to make the 144-stroke halfway cutoff. They are headed for Philadelphia, scene of next week's $120,000 Whitemarsh tourney. They plan to sneak in a few practice rounds there, hoping to do better than they did here. That is a weekly problem to many of them.

The tournament trail is not a golden one for many of the newcomers. The 54 forfeited their $100 entry fee and most of them—unless they won a PGA tournament—must play a qualifier to get into the Whitemarsh field with the privilege of paying a $120 entry fee.

Another group faces the same problem here as the field is cut to 60 after today's round.

Palmer had no trouble with cutoff problems. He carved out an eight-birdie 64 Friday, his best round of the year for a 36-hole total of 131. This is the best halfway mark for anyone so far this season.

But he couldn't shake off a newcomer, 23-year-old Richard H. Sikes Jr. of Springdale, Ark., the 1961 and 1962 Public Links king and the 1963 collegiate champ. Sikes, appearing in his first PGA tournament — he turned pro just after the Masters—also had an eight-birdie 64 and was only a stroke back at 132.

Third after a 65 was top money-winner Jack Nicklaus with 133. Al Geiberger, first-round leader, and George Bayer were at 134, with Tony Lema, Rex Baxter and Terry Dill deadlocked at 135. Sub-par scores were boasted by 57 of the survivors, and 12 others hit it on the nose for the first two rounds.

National Open champion Ken Venturi failed to survive the cutoff point. He missed by one stroke, with a score of 75-70—145.

The tournament ends Sunday.

Cardinals, Yanks Win FL Contests

The Yankees defeated the Indians 15-5 and the Cardinals tromped the Giants 15-2. The Yankees are in 2nd place in the American Farm League with a 7-4 record, 2 games behind the leading Athletics, who are 9-2. The Cards are in 2nd place in the National Farm League with 6 wins and 5 losses. The Braves lead with an 8-3 record.

The Cardinals pounded out 12 base hits in winning after 4 innings via the 10-run lead rule. Laddie McMillan hit a double and Danny Andrews hit 3 singles. McMillan did the pitching for the winners.

Inspite of the high scoring in the American Farm League game good pitching was in evidence. Winning pitcher Jerry Beard struck out 11 batters and Rudy Hinois struck out 12 for the Indians. Cleve Chambers tripled for the winners and Steve Chambers doubled. Hinois doubled for the Indians.

Trinity Signs Three High School Players

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—Trinity University football coach W. C. McElhannon has announced that three more high school football players have signed letters of intent to attend Trinity this fall.

They are: tackles John P. Curbow of Somerset nd Charles Hahn of Charlotte and halfback Bob Kerr of El Campo.

Phillies, Buffs Gain Victories

The Pony League Buffs downed the Sports 14-1 Friday night and the Colt League Phillies pulled into a virtual tie for the lead by shutting out the Yankees 8-0. The Phillies are now 6-5 and the Red Sox, who have been leading the league are 5-4. The Yankees have won 4 and lost 6.

The Buff-Sport contest was called after 5 innings because of the 10-run lead rule. The win gave the Buffs undisputed possession of second place in the Pony League. The Dodgers lead with a 7-1 record. The only extra-base blow of the contest was a double by Tommy Chorn. Tony Suttle was the winning pitcher, giving up just 4 hits.

The Yankees and the Phillies were even in hits at 4 each. However, one of these was a 2-run homer by David Cadena, the winning pitcher. The Phillies also took advantage of 6 walks.

Doctors Keep Close Watch On Sick Cleveland Player

By EDWARD J. TUNSTALL
Associated Press ports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Doctors maintained a close watch today over Cleveland third baseman Max Alvis after an attack of spinal meningitis struck the 26-year-old baseball player.

Alvis was taken to Boston's Santa Maria Hospital late Friday when he complained of a high temperature and stiffness in the neck. But it wasn't until the sixth inning of the game against the Red Sox that George Strickland, acting manager of Cleveland, learned of the seriousness of the ailment.

Dr. Thomas Tierney, team physician for the Red Sox, said he believed the disease was arrested "just in time."

"He's a pretty sick boy," Tierney added, "but we believe we got it in its early stages."

Doctors ruled out the possibility of a quarantine for the Cleveland team. But sulfa tablets, which have been successful in combatting the disease, were ordered for the Indians.

"We weren't given any shots and we weren't examined," Strickland said Friday night in squelching reports the team was taken to the hospital for routine examination. He said the sulfa pills were ordered as "a precautionary measure."

The disease attacks the brain's covering and nerve cells. It is usually caused by an invasion of bacteria through the nose and throat. In recent years the incidence of recovery has been high, due mainly to sulfa and other antibiotic treatment.

The attack recalled that Bruce Campbell, a Cleveland outfielder, suffered the first of three meningitis attacks in Detroit. He had been slightly ill for a few days, then his condition turned worse.

He had subsequent attacks two months later at his home in Chicago and the following years was stricken while playing in Boston. A third attack all but convinced Campbell he was through with baseball but he returned later in the season and hit .371 in 76 games. He played six more years in the majors, finishing his career with Detroit and Washington.

Alvis, a native of Jasper, Tex. is in his third season with the Indians. He batted .274 in his first full season last year and was high in the running for Rookie of the Year honors since he played but a part of the '62 season. He sported a a.251 average going into Friday night's game.

Alvis is married, has two sons and lives in Cleveland.

AAU Championships In Two-Day Run

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) —The National AAU Track and Field Championships, forerunner to next weekend's Olympic Trials, started a two-day run at Rutgers University today.

Finals on tap today included the pole vault—with 17 entrants who have gone over 16 feet — javelin, broad jump, shot put, 100-meter dash, 110-meter hurdles and the 10,000-meter run. The rest will be completed Sunday.

The first two American finishers in each event will make up the U.S. team that opposes Russia's best in a duel meet at Los Angeles next month. The first six finishers in 17 of the 19 events—excluding the 10,000 meters and the 2-mile walk — qualify for the Olympic Trials in New York next weekend.

Jose Stable Performs As Expected

NEW YORK (AP)—Jose Stable performed as expected Friday night.

First the Cuban, a 3-1 favorite, stopped Vince Shomo of New York in 1:08 of the sixth round at Madison Square Garden, then he hollered, "Get me Griffith."

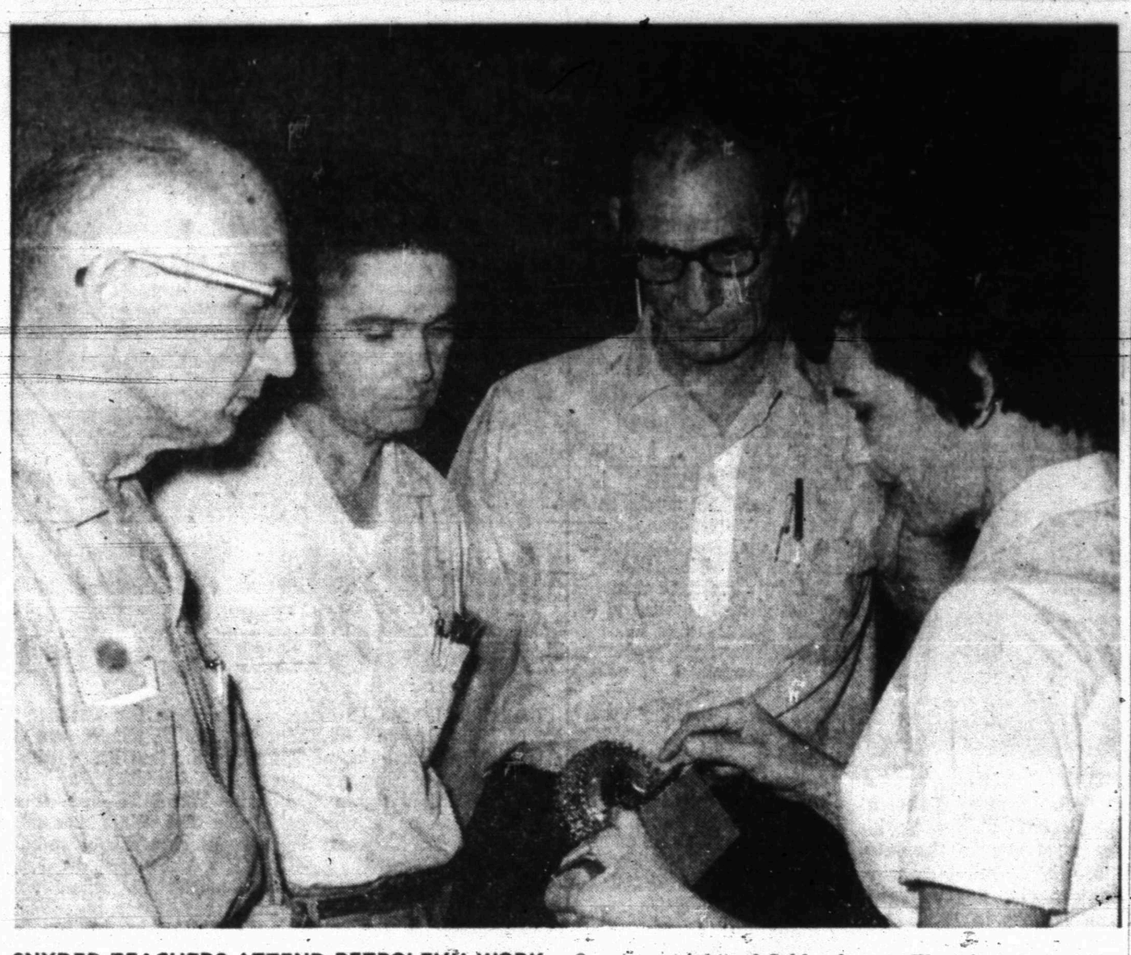

Emile Griffith is the world welterweight champion. It is customary for all contenders to yell for a title fight after a victory, especially on television, and Stable, despite his difficulty with the English language, did not disappoint.

It was the eighth victory for Stable, who is ranked third among the welterweight contenders. Shomo is No. 4.

Referee Joe LoScalzo stopped the spirited scrap as the more-experienced Cuban hammered the bleeding, apparently tired underdog around the ring. Shomo was bleeding from cuts on the mouth, over the right eye and from the nose.

Welk Caters To Audience Wishes

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Lawrence Welk, with almost 40 years as a popular band leader behind him and soon to start his 10th season as star of a high-rated television show, has an uncomplicated recipe for success:

"We try to please our audience," he explains simply. "We try to bring it some joy, happiness, relaxation and always to be in good taste—the kind of entertainment that should come into the home."

Every year, Welk says, somebody predicts that the time has come when "big bands" will at last make a comeback.

"Well, I differ from musicians' thinking today," he said. "There's a depression in the orchestra business — you don't find them in hotels, in ballrooms, restaurants or doing one-nighters much any more. And I don't think the depression will be over until there's a change in the philosophy of the musicians.

"Generally, the modern musician plays from the heart—his own heart, but he's no judge about what people want to hear. I think that my people could run a pretty good show without me, but I do think that I'm important just because I'm around to knock out some of those jazzy numbers.

"'Why is he playing this?' I'll ask. 'He likes it,' I'm told. Well, that's not a good reason. The real question is will the audience like it. A lot of the time I don't think it will."

Welk's tried-and-true formula for success is based on variety. Each of his Saturday night programs on ABC contains many musical ingredients: clean, polished band music with a bouncy beat and the tune that is clearly recognizable; Dixieland; familiar songs from operettas and musicals; folk songs, modified rock 'n' roll; honky tonk piano; comedy songs; waltzes, even polkas.

"The ladies are my No. 1 audience," said Welk, "and the gentlemen are my No. 2. We also have about five million young children in our audience. We are short on teen-agers, but they are a problem. And I just can't afford to go after a teen-age audience and lose my regular one. I don't try."

The veteran orchestra leader is a calm-mannered, soft-spoken man who was born and brought up on a farm near Strasburg, N. D. The suggestion of a foreign accent that marks his speech comes from his parents who immigrated from Alsace-Lorraine in 1878 and settled among other German-speaking families.

As a child, he learned to play the accordion, although he could not read music, and started out as a soloist in demand for local parties.

Soon he formed a small orchestra that grew through the years as they graduated from one-night stands to long engagements in theatres and hotels in the big cities. He played Chicago—one ballroom and several hotels—for nine solid years.

A six-week date at the Aragon Ballroom in Santa Monica, Calif., stretched into a 10-year engagement, during which, in 1953, he made his television debut on a local Los Angeles station. Two years later his show moved onto the ABC network.

Welk says he "always tries to get the best out of everyone" but often fails to spot it.

"Larry Hooper played in the orchestra six or seven years before I discovered that he could sing," he said.

"He didn't even know it until we did a bit with every member of the orchestra singing a little. Now he's a regular—as a singer.

"Jerry Burke had been with us seven or eight years as a pianist before we sat him down at the organ. I was against having Kathy Lennon sing 'How You Gonna Keep 'Em Down on the Farm'—and she turned out to be the hit of the show that night."

Performers and musicians stay with Welk for years and years, and there really is a strong family feeling on the show, with Welk taking a personal interest in the lives of his group.

He is a devoted family man, living with his wife of 33 years, Fern, in a comfortable big home in Brentwood. His two daughters are married, and Welk proudly carries pictures of his five grandchildren.

Italian President Struggles With New National Crisis

ROME (AP)—President Antonio Segni began talks with political leaders today, seeking an end to Italy's 25th government crisis since World War II.

The crisis imperiled a solution to Italy's economic problems, including a long siege of inflation and strikes.

Premier Aldo Moro's center-left Cabinet resigned Friday night in a doctrinal split between the Roman Catholic Christian Democrats and their Socialist partners over increased aid to church schools.

Segni asked Moro to stay on while the president consults with other political figures on finding someone to form a new Cabinet. There was speculation Segni would ask Moro to try again.

The resignation caught the nation by surprise, since the additional aid sought by Moro's Christian Democrats for private schools was less than $240,000.

The Chamber of Deputies rejected the budgetary request by a vote of 228-221 Thursday night, with only Christian Democrats in favor of it. Moro's Socialist, Democratic Socialist and Republican partners abstained. The Communists, monarchists and fascists voted against the proposal.

A few Christian Democrats bolted from the government in the secret vote, showing growing dissatisfaction within the party since Moro formed a coalition with the Socialists last Dec. 21. It was the first Cabinet in 17 years in which the Christian Democrats and Socialists were allied.

Actually, the government did not have to resign, since no question of confidence was involved. The Cabinet decided to quit to provide a political 'clarification."

Mexico City Begins Local Copter Service

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Helicopters will criss-cross the capital carrying both tourists and local citizens starting in November, newspapers said Friday.

A company called Helicopetero Hughes, S.A. is scheduled to begin service from a polo field near Chapultepec Park, and fly to the famous Basilica of Guadalupe, the floating gardens of Xochimilco, the National University and the Pyramids of Teotihuacan.

Auto Industry Contract Talks Generate A Cloud

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The forthcoming contract negotiations in the automobile industry raised a cloud on the business horizon during the week.

Although the possibility of a work stoppage against the booming automakers is still remote, motor stocks were depressed at least temporarily on the New York Stock Exchange.

The chance of a strike was pointed up by the statement of Henry Ford II, chairman of Ford Motor Co., that willingness to accept a strike was "part of the price" of preserving 'free and responsible collective bargaining."

Ford begins negotiations with the United Auto Workers on July 1. The UAW's contracts with Ford, General Motors and Chrysler expire Aug. 31.

"There seems to be widespread assumption that government and public opinion will no longer tolerate strikes in major industries and therefore that a real strike in the automotive industry is out of the question this year," Ford said in a speech at Coronado, Calif.

"I am convinced that responsible bargaining is most unlikely if the very possibility of a strike is ruled out from the beginning."

Walter P. Reuther, UAW president, replied: "I think Mr. Ford's remarks were most untimely. We're not talking about a strike. We don't want a strike."

The UAW's contract goals include earlier retirement and higher pensions, a shorter work week, higher wages and improved working conditions.

The automobile industry had some more immediate troubles.

Teamsters Union locals from New England to Delaware rejected a contract negotiated by their international union and struck, the trucking companies who deliver new cars to Eastern dealers.

As a result, General Motors cut back output temporarily at plants in Tarrytown, N.Y., and Wilmington, Del. Other major assembly plants in the East indicated they have sufficient storage space to continue operations for at least a week.

Meanwhile, automakers raised production for the year to a record 4,364,148 passenger cars, exceeding the old mark of 4,257,150 set in the first half of 1955.

Output during the week totaled an estimated 177,300 cars against 175,218 the previous week and 168,891 a year ago.

Steel production declined during the week for the fourth consecutive week, dropping 3 per cent from the previous week to 2,349,000 tons.

However, orders were coming in quite well at a time when the demand usually slows, because of seasonal factors.

With the first half of the year coming to an end, the Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York ommented: "The excellent business news of the past month indicate that the nourishment of tax reduction is reaching the muscles of the economy. Production, sales, orders, employment and earnings all exhibit brisk tone."

The Commerce Department reported that each dividend payments by corporations issuing public reports totaled $454 million in May, up 11 per cent from a year earlier.

The Federal Trade Commission surprised the tobacco industry by issuing an order that cigarette packages and advertising carry a warning by next year that smoking is dangerous to health. The cigarette makers indicated that the order would be taken to court. This could delay effectiveness for years.

Curtis Publishing Co. announced that copper and zinc ore has been found on its property at Timmins, Ont. Its holdings are adjacent to land where Teas Gulf Sulphur Co. reported finding an estimated 55 million tons of copper, zinc and silver ore.

Yarborough Discloses Space Grants

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., has announced three National Aeronautic and Space Administration grants to Texas and eight other projects in the state in which federal money will be used.

The eleven items total $12,261,005.

The NASA grants include:

One of $850,000 to the graduate Research Center of the Southwest in Dallas for a three-year study of space technology.

One to Texas Woman's University, Denton, of $90,000 for two years research into skeletal mineral losses in human beings and pigtail monkeys.

And a third to Rice University, Houston for $62,651 for a year's experiments on techniques for measuring abundance in solar winds.

Rural Electrification Administration loans announced by the senator include:

To the Dickens County Electric Cooperative, Spur, $638,000 to build 113 miles of new lines to serve 364 new customers.

To the San Bernard Electric Cooperative, Bellville, $917,000 to build 70 miles of new lines to serve 450 new customers.

To the new Era Electric Cooperative, Athens, $364,000 to build 51 miles of new lines to serve 450 new consumers.

Yarborough also announced a $696,000 loan to the Green Valley Water Supply Corp., Guadalupe County, to drill a deep well and lay a pipeline system.

In addition, the senator said the National Park Service next week would let a $74,490 contract to Clyde Construction Co. of Odessa for installation of water, sewer and electrical systems at the Ft. Davis Historical Monument site in Texas.

Houston Selected For Baptist Meet

CHICAGO (AP) — Members chose Houston Friday as the 1966 meeting place for the American Baptist Association. They re-elected Dr. Paul Goodwin of Little Rock, Ark., president. Memphis, Tenn., was selected earlier as site of the 1965 session.

Lubbock School To Integrate Faculty

LUBBOCK (AP) — Lubbock will integrate its faculty at an elementary school already heavily integrated in student body.

Supt. Nat Williams said three Negro teachers, a man and two women, are being reassigned from two all - Negro elementary schools to join 16 white teachers at the Martin Elementary School.

The three-year-old school is expected to pass the 50 per cent mark next term in Negro enrollment.

"Basitically we think that if the majority of pupils in a school are Negro, there should be some Negro teachers," Williams said.

Public school integration began in 1956.

TRAVEL TALK

By Hulin Fowler

(EDITORS NOTE: Please address your travel questions to Mr. Fowler in care of this newspaper.)

This summer and fall, vacation - bound West Texans are fortunate indeed, as there are some wonderful places available to them at most economical rates.

For instance, you can enjoy a week with everything at Frenchman's Cove in Jamaica, West Indies, for $192, but these same seven days will cost the "winter tourist" up to $1,000!

Your week with "everything" will include an air - conditioned one bedroom house that cost approximately $50,000 to build. Luxuriously appointed, with even a stereo phonograph, each house has a kitchen — complete with all the electrical gadgets and cooking and serving ware — and a man-sized living room facing onto a luxurious West Indies setting.

Also included is your own personal maid or butler, all of your meals — featuring such entrees as duckling, beef, trout and other delicacies — many sports activities, and private beach on a fresh water lagoon.

And if that's not enough, you also receive free laundry service, parties featuring local Calypso music, private electric cart to roam the beautiful estate, a rafting trip down the Rio Grande River, and a piano in your house on request!

Incidentally, all tips are included in the $192 per person price, a thoughtful gesture on the part of the management which will be appreciated by most travelers.

Frenchman's Cove, "discovered" not too long ago by the late Erroll Flynn and other Hollywood stars, has been called by Time magazine "the most luxurious resort in the Caribbean."

The resort is a 40-acre estate bordered by the Caribbean Sea. The rainfall is lushly tropical and the average temperature, further tempered by an almost continuous ocean breeze, is 80 degrees.

The palm pillared beach is surrounded by soaring jungle cliffs with a crystalline, spring-fed river leading into the surf on one side.

Frenchman's Cove is about five hours by air from Dallas, and you can take 44 pounds of luggage on a tourist or economy ticket and 66 pounds on a first class ticket.

The special rate will last through Dec. 1. However, when a week's summer vacation costs over $800 less than in winter, you'll need to make reservations early for one of the 18 guest houses on the estate.

THE PAYOFF—Mr. Cy Miller, acting administrator of Cogdell Hospital looks on as Mrs. Inez Brown, left, general treasurer of the auxiliary, and Mrs. Lucille Joyce, snack bar treasurer, get together to write out a check for payment of the new Isolette Infant Incubator, in the amount of $1,712.50. The new equipment is being paid for from receipts of TV rentals, the snack bar, and the rememberance fund.

DELIVERING FLOWERS — Mrs. Wernette Lloyd has been a member of the Hospital Auxiliary for several years and has held various offices in the organization. She is now a board member and performs various duties such as delivering flowers, magazines and newspapers to patients.

MEMORY BOOK—Mrs. Eilene Snyder, a new member and also serving on the board of directors is showing Mrs. Oran Thompson the Memory Book that is kept by the Ladies Auxiliary. Any size donation is always welcome and can be made at any time. The money is used for life saving equipment. The donor's name and who he wishes the rememberance for is listed in the book.

THE SNYDER DAILY NEWS

VOL. 15, NO. 50 SNYDER, TEXAS (79549) SUNDAY, JUNE 28, 1964 SECTION B

Cogdell Memorial Hospital Ladies Auxiliary Purchase More Equipment

Isolette Infant Incubator provides a means of stabilizing an infant's body temperature at the normal physiological level.

In the standard incubator, the temperature of the air surrounding the infant is thermostatically controlled. With such a system, the infant's body temperature tends to fluctuate above and below a desired mean and there is always the danger of some degree of overheating when attempting to raise the body temperature of a cool premature infant.

This new isolette incubator stabilizes the infant's abdominal skin temperature, which correlates to the infant's body temperature. A highly sensitve and accurate temperature sensing thermistor is attached directly to the skin of the infant's abdomen. This probe detects temperature changes as small as 0.2 degrees. These minute variations in skin temperature are amplified and relayed through the ISC power unit, causing the isolette's heater to be turned on or off for the precise periods necessary to stablize the infant's body temperature at the desired control point.

In effect, the ISC power unit enables the infant to act as its own thermostat.

Also purchased as extra equipment with the isolette, was an isolette rocker bed, which is a mechanical application for assisting circulation and respiration of an infant by a slow rocking motion.

DEMONSTRATING—Mr. Don Huey, a representative of the Air Shields Manufacturing Co. of Hatboro, Pa., explains the operation of the new machine to two nurses who work in the obstetrics ward. At left is Margie Stevens and behind the machine is Millie Tutor. The new equipment was delivered Wednesday.

On March 13, 1958, some 60 women, Texas Hospital Auxiliary association leaders, and county and hospital officials met at Martha Ann Womn's Club for a discussional meet on organizing an auxiliary of the Cogdell Memorial Hospital. Dr. E. A. Rogers spoke briefly concerning the need for such an auxiliary. "We have a fine hospital here, one to be proud of, and I believe such an auxiliary would make it even better by adding that personal touch."

The meeting was closed with the understanding that the hospital board would take the matter of an auxiliary under consideration, and would then notify those interested as to whether a hospital auxiliary should be attempted.

On April 10, 1958, the Ladies Hospital Auxiliary held its first general meeting and orders were taken for uniforms, followed by election of officers and committee chairmen. Mrs. Carl Herod was named president.

April 20, 1958, was the big day when the Ladies Auxiliary started their volunteer services at the hospital, wearing their cherry colored uniforms. Evidently this organization started with a strong wheel, and is still going strong, as no spokes have fallen out as they roll down the road to success. In February of 1959, the auxiliary purchased a porto lift for the hospital and an intercom system, enabling the locating of doctors, nurses and guests much simpler. In 1959 the auxiliary also sponsored the organization of a junior auxiliary, known as "Candy Stripers".

A complete orientation program is held annually to outline the auxiliary in the ethics concerning doctors, patients and nursing services, as well as knowing the hospital basic structure, trustees and administration staff.

IN CENTRAL SUPPLY—These two Auxiliary workers do a multitude of chores in central supply which enables the nurses to give more time to patients. Pictured above cleaning hypodermic needles and vials getting them ready for the sterlizer is Mrs. June Bellamy, left, who is a new member and also serving on the board of directors. Mrs. Beverly Dickerson, right, is chairman in charge of central supply and is packing various supply kits and trays.

SNACK BAR—Mrs. Janet Hall, publicity chairman and snack bar worker is pictured as she serves Leland Herod, Jr., a Coke. Mrs. Flo Watson is manager of the snack bar, while Mrs. Wilma Stone was working as cashier when the picture was taken. Last year the volunteer workers put in 8,411 hours of services at the hospital. Prior to the installation of the snack bar, visitors had to drive to town for food.

LUNCHEON HELD—Eighty-five mothers and daughters attended the lovely luncheon held Thursday noon at Martha Ann Woman's Club. Board members of the club were hostesses. Tables were laid with white linen and decorated with attractive bamboo bird cages filled with fresh cut flowers. Some of the mothers attending had only sons, so they "borrowed" a daughter and attended.

OFF TO EUROPE—Vada Rogers, Tulia; Pam Stephens, O'Donnell; and Mary Ellen Ainsworth of Snyder, are shown boarding a plane at Dallas' Love Field as they leave on the first leg of a 21-day trip to Northern Europe. They are among 25 Texas 4-H Club members who are making the tour to learn about foreign agriculture and tell the story of American agriculture. The group is being accompanied by Marshall E. Crouch, Assistant State 4-H Club leader.

In Spain: Women, Si; In Top Jobs, No

By HAROLD K. MILKS

MADRID (AP) — President Lyndon Johnson's program to bring women to top government positions is unlikely to strike a responsive chord in Spain — even among the women.

Women in government are almost unknown in this country, where most men, and their wives as well, believe the place for women is at home. Nor do those who deal in government appointments forsee a rush to bring feminine choices to major posts in the near future.

Madame Ambassador of Spain? Madame Minister at a meeting of Gen. Francisco Franco's cabinet? It's hardly likely, say those who know Spain and its people.

Behind the Scenes

"Women are important in Spain, and they have great influence in government as they do on every phase of our lives," says one key Spanish official, who admits privately he shuddered when he read that President Johnson planned to bring a bunch of women into top levels of his government.

"But the influence is exercised in a behind - the scenes manner, usually through their husband. That applies to them all from senior ministers' wives down to the wife of the lowest government clerk."

Low Level Jobs

Many women are working in government offices in Spain today. All appear to be on the lower levels. A few in the ministry of education have key posts, but below the level of director - general of departments. Others scattered through the various ministries exercise influence equal to that of a veteran and highly - ranked civil service employe in the United States.

"But when it comes to top official rank, the women don't appear in Spain," another official says. "It may come some day and perhaps it would be a good thing, but I don't know when."

Vote Restricted

Spanish women themselves appear to have made no great clamor for governmental appointments. Like their husbands, most Spanish women believe home and children are their primary responsibilities.

Women have won the vote in Spain, but there are still restrictions. Any female citizen of 21 years or over may vote in general elections and referendums. But in municipal elections, a woman may vote only if she is head of her family. If she has a husband, the vote for the family goes to him.

There are other restrictions on women in Spain. For example, a woman who is married cannot own real property — it is in the name of her husband in most cases. And if she wants to go abroad her passport application must bear her husband's written approval.

An informal survey of Spain shows about 50 women won election as members of municipal councils in the last election. In Madrid, the selection of the first female council member in history was front page news.

Legal associations said there were about 6,000 women in Spain with law degrees. But they added not more than 500 of these practice law and few appear in important cases. None has been a judge.

"Spain is still a man's world," says one prominent jurist here. "And few people want to trust an action or a defense to a woman, even though we have some women lawyers who are brilliant."

Non-Practicing Doctor

Medical sources estimated 7,000 Spanish women in this nation of 31 million people had received medical degrees. But most of these have become housewives rather than practicing doctors. About 150 women are recognized as medical specialists in Spain, most of them specializing in the treatment of children.

There are a handful of women engineers in the country, most of them specialists in the Bilbao and Barcelona industrial areas. With Spain's 5.6 billion dollar development plan now in its first of four years, experts here predict there will be more.

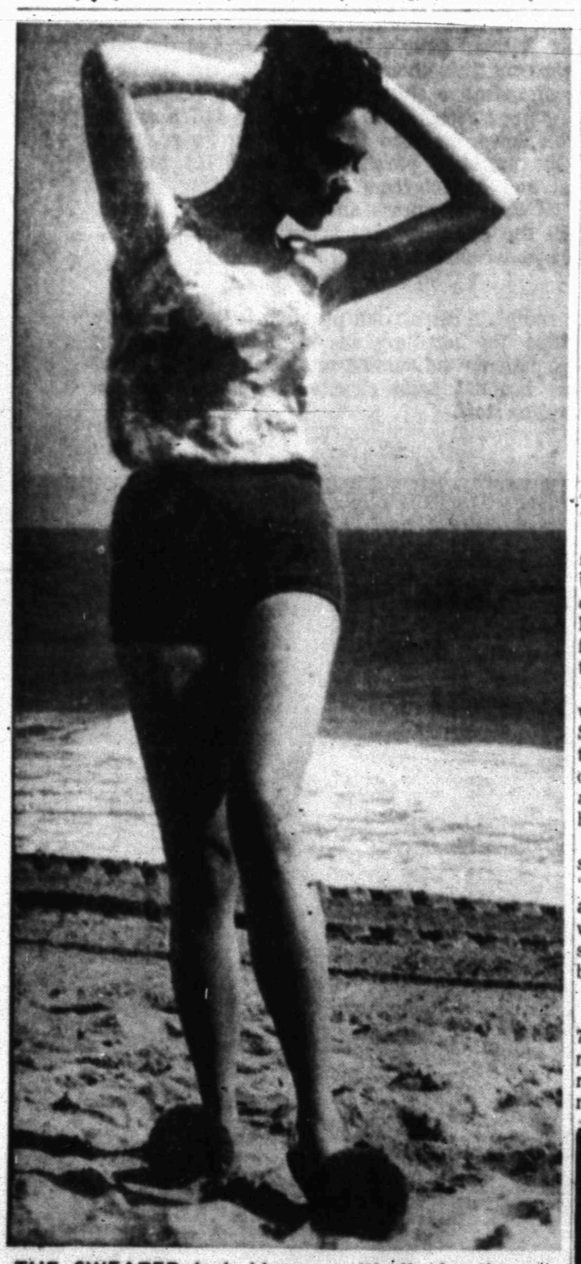

Who Ranks?

Who are the top - ranking Spanish women of today?

Politically, Pilar de Primo Rivero, head of the feminine section of the Spanish Falange, and a sister of the founder - martyr, Jose Antonio de Primo Rivero, appears to rank first. But her post is largely a figurehead, Spanish experts say, without real power or influence.

Unquestionably, the leading Spanish woman of today in Spain is Senora Carmen Popo de Franco, wife of the man who for a quarter century has headed the Spanish government. Cabinet ministers and other members of the government recognize her influence on General Franco, and are quick to establish and maintain the best of relations with her.

Internationally, Spain's top-ranking woman is the former Fabiola de Mors, 35, a daughter of the Count and Countess of Moge, who in 1960 married King Baudouin of Belgium. She is now Queen Fabiola of the Belgians.

THE SWEATER look blooms exotically by the sea in this striking one-piece in a kitten-soft wool and angora knit. The brilliant floral-printed top blouses softly over streamlined solid color trunks. It's a dramatic new theme for swimwear, matched by the "pro" performance of the all-American wool and angora knit, which flexes with every movement, never sags or slips.

If Stretch Fabrics Look Limp — Try This

There's a trick to caring for popular stretch fabrics. Although the new easy - care stretch fashion can now be machine washed and dried, they often look limp and lifeless after several washings. The secret to keepng them new-looking is a whish of spray - on starch and a touch of the iron. Just spray the dry, freshly-washed garment as you iron. Dark colors and hard - to- finish weaves such as gabardine stretch fabrics should be prayed - on starched and ironed on the wrong side to avoid iron shine. Spray - onstarch replaces the "body" that makes stretch fabrics look new, without affecting the pliable texture.

STEPS OUT OF MUSICALS

NEW YORK (AP) — Gower Champion takes time out from the staging of musical comedies to direct a straight play for Broadway next season.

Swamped with bids for his services, Champion has chosen Roger O. Hirson's "World War Two and a Half," being produced by Alexander H. Cohen.

Shows he previously directed were the song-and-dance hits "Bye, Bye, Birdie," "Carnival" and the current hit, "Hello, Dolly!"

Democratic Royalty

AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A group of pajama - clad young ladies with pin curlers in their hair sat around drinking Danish beer, discussing life, and plotting a wee hours raid on the refrigerator.

It might have been a typical slumber party except that of the hostesses one would someday be the queen of Greece and another the Queen of Denmark. The third a nubile princess, would undoubtedly have a regal future of some kind, too.

Nor was it exactly typical that the setting for this youthful house party was the hoary stone palace of the King of Denmark.

"The girls are so natural, so completely democratic that you don't think about them as royalty," says one of the "in" girls of Copenhagen's young smart set who regularly attended such castle parties given by daughters of King Frederik IX.

Yet much of the world is doing just that. The oldest, Margrethe, 23, is currently being schooled to succeed her aging father as the Danish ruler.

Little Heartbreaker

Impending is the marriage of the youngest, 17-year-old Ann-Marie, to King Constantine who recently inherited the Greek throne after the death of his father. Impatient to have a queen again, many prominent Greeks are pressing to hasten the nuptial date not set for some time after Princess Ann-Marie's 18th birthday on August 30.

Despite this pressure, the wedding will not be any sooner, believes this royal family friend Rosemarie Heering, because marriage for Danish girls under 18 is illegal without a special letter from the King. "And I don't think he will give it in the case of his own daughter."

Whenever the rites occur Ann Marie, a dark beauty often called "the little heartbreaker," and her bridegroom will become the youngest reigning couple in the world. She will leave behind her a two room apartment in Amalienborg castle with its floral upholstered easy chairs and sofa, array or records, dolls and teddy bears.

On Second Thought

Rosemarie never volunteers information about the royal family. Anxious not to betray her personal friendship, the pretty 21-year-old answers questions carefully and only after considerable prodding.

"Did you plan to mention the house parties? I'm not sure I should have said anythin. about the beer. The King and Queen might not approve. Maybe I should have said colas. . . ." frets Rosemarie furrowing her otherwise smooth golden forehead with concern.

Although untitled, the brown-eyed miss with the flashing white smile and deep dimples is definitely upper echelon. She is a fourth generation Heering, only daughter of Peter F. Heering, maker of a famous cherry cordial.

Far Horizons

Designated by her government to officiate at the opening of the Danish pavilion at the New York World's Fair, Rosemarie traveled here alone. Shunning lavish hotel accomdations, she arranged through intermediaries to share an apartment with two American girls she had never met before.

Wealthy Danish young people usually work and live modestly away from home a year or two, Rosemarie says. This is especially true of young girls preparing for marriage.

Her cousin Yoyo, whose father is a prominent member of Parliament, left the family castle to serve as a maid in uniform in the home of a family friend. Still another cousin has hired out to a household in France.

Proud of Heroism

At the moment domesticity of this sort or as a young matron has no appeal for Rosemarie. "I don't want to be stuck at home like my married friends," she says.

Rosemarie's generation is too young to remember the deeds of her father who stole from his own firm thn undrthwatch-e-t-ful eyes of the Nazis to finance an underground to spirit the Jews to Sweden and Norway; c. of her uncle who hid 500 of them in his castle during Nazi occupation. But she is fiercely proud of them.

"Iers is a light - hearted generation in love with the British Beatles, French fashions and American dance. The Danes are noted for their sense of humor anyway. Soon, very soon in the case of Princess Anne - Marie, the happy influence of that generation will be felt around the world.

MRS. ELMER LLOYD McLEOD

Cunningham - McLeod Vows Pledged In Church Rites At Flat On June 13

GATESVILLE, — In a candlelight ceremony at the First Baptist Church of Flat Saturday evening, June 13th, Miss Bettie Louise Cunningham and Elmer Lloyd McLeod of Corpus Christi exchanged wedding vows.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Cunningham of Route 1, Gatesville, formerly of Snyder, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe L. McLeod of Corpus Christi.

Rev. H. Earl Calloway read the double ring ceremony. The altar was centered with a sunburst arrangement of white gladioli flanked by seven-branched candelabra holding burning white tapers interspersed with glazed palm leaves.

Mrs. Harold Cunningham, sister-in-law of the bride, sang "Because" and "Oh Perfect Love," accompanied by Mrs. Zonnell Haynes.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an original ivory peau de soie grown by Bianchi, designed with molded bodice, encrusted with hand beaded motifs of bridal pearls and imported crystal beads. A cumberbund marked the snug waistline accentuating the sweep of the bell skirt. Her bouffant bubble veil of ivory silk illusion held a crown of hand run French crystals and pearls. She carried a bouquet fashioned of white orchids and glamellias in a cascade design.

Attendants Dressed in Blue

Miss Betty Jo McLeod of Corpus Christi, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Merry Tuggle of Odessa and Miss Valerie Hawley of Corpus Christi. The attendants wore formal length gowns of ice blue peau de soie styled with sleeveless fitted bodices and controlled skirts with imported back interest of flat bows and streamers at the back U-shaped necklines. Their matching headpieces were fashioned of triple forward petals and a flat bow holding short pouf veils. They carried bouquets fashioned in a cascade design of white French feathered carnations trimmed in blue.

Miss Janette Cunningham of Austin and Miss Chrisann Cunningham of Houston, nieces of the bride, were flower girls. They wore blue formal length dresses similar to those of the bridesmaids and carried white baskets of rose petals.

Ben Carter of Victoria was best man. Harold Cunningham of Houston and Kenneth Cunningham of Austin, brothers of the bride, were groomsmen. Ushers were Vicky Chambers and Richard Chambers of Snyder and Bob Creel of Corpus Christi.

Reception at Church

A reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church immediately following the ceremony. The bride's table held the three - tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride-and-groom figurine. The cake was served with white mints, nuts and punch. The bridal bouquet and those of the attendants decorated the white table.

Presiding at the table were Mrs. David Evans of Temple and Mrs. Curtis Beard of Brownfield. Mrs. Kenneth Cunningham registered the guests. Others in the house party were Mrs. Ruby Oswalt and Mrs. Barbara Bruton.

The bride graduated from Belton High School, attended Hardin-Simmons University and was graduated from the University of Texas. She teaches physical education at Flour Bluff High School in Corpus Christi. Her husband, a Miller High School graduate, attended Del Mar Tech and was graduated from Texas A&I College. He is teaching industrial arts at Baker Junior High School in Corpus Christi.

After a wedding trip to Colorado, the couple will be at home in Corpus Christi.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding included friends and relatives from Corpus Christi. Brownfield, Temple, Copperas Cove, Odessa, Victoria, Snyder, and Roswell, N. M.

Snyder relatives attending were Mrs. A. C. French, Vicky and Richard Chambers, and Mr. and Mrs. Hoy Hamilton.

The bride is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Parker of Snyder.

Tortoise Shell

The lowly tortoise who usually appears on the backs of hair brushes is being sought after this season as a decorating accessory. The rich blending of black, brown, gold, brass and copper found in tortoise shell is turning up in wallpaper, table tops and chair arm moldings. Tastefully applied, tortoise shell can provide interest in both traditional and contemporary rooms.

Serve Up Bananas In Style

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

SERVING BANANAS with a main dish isn't some bright new idea modern cooks have dreamed up.

In the 1900's Beef Stanley was a famous offering. I've never discovered who "Stanley" was but I do know that Beef Stanley is fit for an epicure.

According to a distinguished cook book of the time, Beef Stanley is made this way. Beef sirloin is roasted over a bed of finely cut vegetables (carrot, onion, celery, leek and parsley) and seasonings (crushed garlic, peppercorns, bay leaf, whole cloves and thyme). A suspicion of gravy is made from the pan goodies plus demi-glace and strained. Next freshly grated horseradish is mixed with a few tablespoons of hot cream, and bananas — cut in half lengthwise — are coated with flour and fried briefly in butter. To assemble the dish, the horseradish cream is spread over the beef and it's surrounded by the gravy and bananas.

Nowadays bananas often accompany shrimp curry. If this appeals to you, grill whole bananas in a little butter, or brush them with butter and broil them as a curry accompaniment along with flaked coconut, ground bacon and mango chutney.

Banana Desserts

The year - round banana is delightful with the fresh strawberry. A simple and delicious way to team the two fruits is to slice the bananas, cost them with orange juice, and top them with the sliced sugared berries.

The same combination makes a marvelous Banana Split. If you have old - fashioned boat-shaped stemmed ice - cream sundae dishes, do use them; otherwise dessert dishes or plates will do. Line up small scoops of ice cream — the more flavors the merrier — on the dishes; place along both sides of lengthwise, along both sides of the ice cream pour over sliced sweetened fresh strawberries. Then just to gild the lily, top with puffs of whipped cream and whole ripe red berries with their green caps left on.

Good Cooks' Tricks

When bananas are still green at the tip, and you want to hasten their ripening, you may keep them in a tightly closed paper bag at room temperature.

For frying, baking or broiling bananas, the green - tipped or all - yellow fruit may be used.

Slice bananas as near as possible to the time of serving. If they must be cut ahead, squeeze some lemon or orange juice over them or coat them with canned or frozen pineapple juice.

Nothing makes a banana look prettier than fluting. To do this fancy work, draw the prongs of a fork lengthwise down a peeled banana, then slice crosswise.

Banana Arithmetic

When a recipe, for cake or cookies calls for one cup of mashed bananas, you'll find that three medium - sized ripe bananas will usually make this amount.

One medium - sized banana contains 85 calories.

GRILLED BANANAS—Serve them as a curry accompaniment along with rice, peanuts (whole or ground) and mango chutney.

Lemon Velvet

Dip two generous scoops of Almond Crunch Ice Cream (or Vanilla Ice Cream) into a tall, chilled glass. Add ¼ cup Rea-Lemon bottled lemon juice and ¼ cup simple syrup. Fill the glass with cold gingerale.

If there is a 12-cup aluminum popover pan in your kitchen, you'll find it's perfect for baking refrigerated butterflake rolls. Make 12 individual rolls out of the package (about 8 ounces).

ALL ABOUT BABIES

A Public Service of the National Baby Care Council

HOLD THOSE COMPARISONS

C. Robert Gruver
Editor
All About Babies

That you remember every little thing about baby's growing up is only natural. There's something fascinating about watching a baby develop, especially if baby is yours.

That because you remember you often compare your baby with someone else's baby or with your other children, is natural too. For, after all, comparison is an instinctive human trait.

We compare when we shop, hire a baby sitter, select a TV program, and give our vote to a political candidate. There probably isn't a thing that we do or say or think that to some degree doesn't include making a comparison.

Though the desire to compare is so much a part of us, take it from an experienced father — don't practice the art on baby.

You just can't compare your baby with any other baby. For that matter, you can't even begin to compare your baby with any of your other children. And for a very good reason too.

Every baby is an individual. The word "individual" means a single and particular being. In other words, your baby is his own sweet self. He cannot be an exact copy of any other baby.

For a time, during our son's first year, he gained a little over three pounds a month. We compared him with the baby across the street who was gaining hardly two pounds a month and decided we were raising a giant. Our doctor assured us our baby was normal and healthy and that his gains were in keeping with his large frame.

"Every baby," said our doctor, "develops according to his own schedule."

As we left the doctor's office, there was our neighbor in the waiting room. She had compared her baby to ours and had come to ask the doctor if she was raising a midget.

The folly of comparing one baby with another became evident when our daughter was born. Where the girl was early, the boy was late. Where the girl was fast, the boy was slow. Did this mean the girl was brighter than her more leisurely brother?

When we considered each child as an individual, it was quite evident that both were bright. Only the attributes, the special qualities that each possessed, were different. They're still different. The curious, fast moving little girl who poked her nose into everything is preparing for a newspaper career.

Identity Found On Weekend

BUDDWING. By Evan Hunter.

It begins with a man waking up very early on a Saturday morning in Central Park, unable to remember his identity. In the crazy Manhattan weekend which follows, he finally manages to dredge up the shattering reason for his blackout.

From the start he knows his name is Sam, and from time to time he remembers odd little, irrelevant, jig-saw bits from his past life.

Sam meets a young woman named Doris, who is undergoing psychoanalysis, and finds this encounter pretty disillusioning.

He falls in with a sailor on leave, and they follow a pair of Chinese girls, Sally and Tina, into a Chinatown binge. Next he wanders into Greenwich Village. He sees a woman who reminds him of someone named Grace, which convinces him that Grace is important to him. This woman proves to be a social worker, who wants to help him recover his equilibrium.

But Sam is picked up by a hard - boiled, wealthy woman who happens to need a tall man in a blue suit for the treasure hunt she wants to win. They descend upon Harlem, and get into a highstake crap game. Finally Sam wanders in and out of an Italian wedding reception.

This makes rather a weird odyssey, doesn't it? Would a man who realizes he is suffering from amnesia go through all these strange adventures? Perhaps not.

But if you go along with the surface happenings of the narrative, the author gradually will piece together for you the mystery of Sam's dilemma. In that respect, it is an unusual reading experience.

Drain small sardines and mash with cream cheese and lemon juice; fill the cavities of drained canned mushroom crowns with the mixture and sprinkle copiously with minced parsley. Serve cold with a cold drink as a before-dinner appetizer.

REFLECTIONS

Multiple Errors Keep Cuba Struggling For Progress

HAVANA (AP)—A faded sign on a downtown building reads: 'To consume what the country produces is to build the fatherland.''

But more than five years after the Cuban revolution it is difficult to find much to consume in this once beautiful city, now grimy and rundown.

"That was one of the early slogans of the revolution," a Cuban commented. "It has been forgotten."

That slogan faded because Cuban Communists found it takes more than slogans and theories to operate an economy and produce goods for a growing population.

"I don't deny our errors and stupidities," said Prime Minister Fidel Castro in a recent chat with newsmen at a diplomatic reception. "But this period has been our apprenticeship. It was useful, and necessary.

"The first battle, which we won, was political. We had to prove to our people we could go ahead without the United States.

"Now our battle is economic. The United States is obliging us to struggle, study and organize."

The battle cry here now is, "Social revolution was made for technical revolution."

What this boils down to is training of competent experts, administrators who can get things done.

Cuban officials have sadly admitted many times that getting plans from paper into practice had flopped because of a shortage of people with know-how.

With a shrug of his shoulders, Castro asked, "If we could have factories now, who would handle them? Industrialization first requires technical preparation of people."

Communist Cuba's economic history is a series of errors, confusion, waste and chaos. In its first race for industrialization, factories were ordered where raw material was not available, nor engineers and managers to operate them.

In agriculture, Cuba's principal crop, sugar—the mainstay of its economy—suffered when the richest sugar land was taken out of production in an effort to diversify and get rid of dependence on the crop that had been identified with the United States' dominant influence in the economy.

The abrupt, harsh change from capitalist to Communist government shattered the economy. Many of the nation's best economic experts and organizers fled. Enthusiastic but inexperienced revolutionaries took over, contributing to the disorganization.

Hundreds of Russian, East European and Chinese technicians and advisers poured in. But their unfamiliarity with tropical geography and temperament often produced additional frustrations.

The United States economic ban has had and is still having a powerful effect.

Transportation has been badly crippled, as many cars, trucks and buses halted for lack of spare parts. Machinery in many factories came to a standstill. Shelves in stores became bare.

Shifting of supply lines from sources 90 miles distant to countries thousands of miles away meant growing shortages, and increasing costs.

Long journeys of Soviet tankers bearing petroleum from Baku on the Caspian Sea to Havana prevented a complete paralysis of the country.

Cuban officials now say the worst is over. They say they don't believe the U.S. ban or their own mistakes can do worse than has been done.

They claim local farm production—now being reorganized—is on the upswing.

A look at grocery stores doesn't show this. But officials claim available supplies are being spread equitably — though thinly—to a larger number of consumers than before.

Grocery shelves are filled mainly with dreary rows of disinfectants and flavoring syrups.

People stand in line to buy their monthly quota of four eggs per person. Housewives crowd around empty meat counters waiting resignedly for their ration of three-fourths of a pound of meat per week per person.

For each person the monthly ration includes an eighth of a pound of butter, six pounds of rice, four pounds of sugar and one pound of lard, when available.

Shortages have produced a black market, where unrationed eggs cost from 25 to 40 cents each, compared with 6 cents in the market.

Fresh milk goes only to children under 7. They get one liter —.946 quart—daily.

Only children and those with medical prescriptions get oranges: three per week.

Clothing is also rationed: A man gets two pairs of trousers and two shirts per year.

Shoes are rationed and generally of poor quality.

A campaign to produce goods and technicians is now at fever pitch. From all sides, workers are urged to produce more, cut down absenteeism, improve efficiency in an "emulation" drive to set new competitive production goals among individuals, factories and farms.

The emphasis is on sugar once again: It is recognized as king of Cuba's agriculture and basic to industrial development.

Castro has pledged that Cuba, which last year produced an estimated 3.8 million tons of sugar, will reach an output of 10 million tons by 1970. Speculation is that this year's crop will be around 4 million tons. Officials are not talking.

Progress is being made in light industry. For example, the Czechs opened a sparkplug factory earlier this year and next month are scheduled to inaugurate a plant producing refrigerators, stoves and cooking utensils.

Power plants are under construction in various areas.

In a television interview this month with the Young Communists Union, oldtime Communist leader Blas Roca said, "We don't need to develop heavy industry for machinery because we can get machinery from Socialist — Communist — countries."

Roca said his advice to young Communists seeking a future in the technical revolution would be "go to the agropecuarian sciences"—studies of agriculture, livestock and commercial fish.

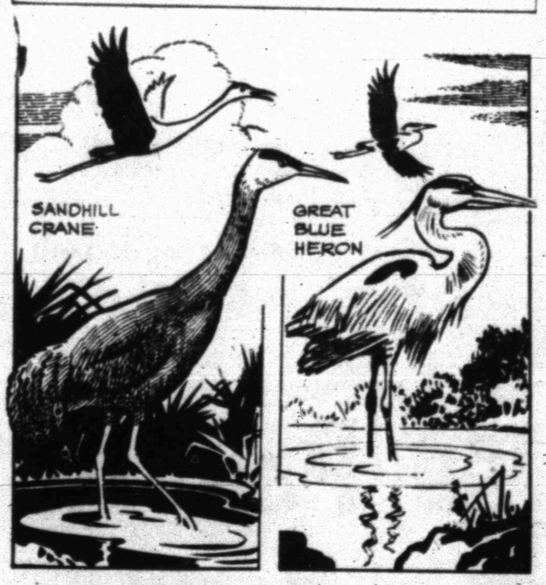

Concurrently there is a growing effort to reduce Cuba's trade and economic dependence upon the Soviet Union, East European countries and China. Cubans are asking for more technicians from West European countries. Recently increased trade with England and France and, to a lesser degree, with Holland and Spain has delighted Cubans.

Informed sources say the Russians are pleased at the prospect of having some Western countries ease the burden of holding up the Cuban economy.

But trade with Western Europe is still far from significant. The U.S. ban remains a giant obstacle.

The question remains whether new Communist plans can work where previous ones failed or only partially succeeded.

Junior Editors Quiz on BIRDS

QUESTION: How can one tell a crane from a heron?

ANSWER: Herons and cranes may look somewhat alike, since they are both being large, long legged and fond of wading in marshy places, but they belong to different orders of birds. Cranes are of the order "Paludicolae," or marsh dwellers, while herons belong to the order "Herodiones." The difference in appearance can be seen easily in our picture comparison of a Sandhill Crane and a Great Blue Heron. The crane's body is stockier, his bill is less pointed and his long inner wing quills hang out conspicuously over the tail and wing tips. The crane's plumage is more dense and compact than the looser feathering of the heron. In flight, they can be easily told apart, as the crane flies with long neck stretched out, and the heron carries his neck gracefully curved back.

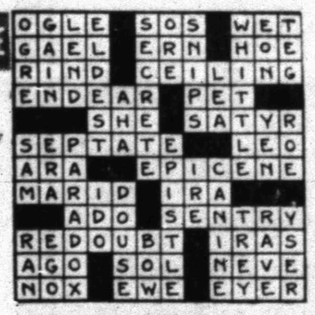

The magnificent Whooping Crane, which stands up to 5 feet high and has a loud call which can be heard a mile away, is now unfortunately very rare in the United States and may become extinct. They are an easy prey for hunters, being so large and of a conspicuous white color. They also have an unfortunate fondness for eating the farmers' corn. The smaller Sandhill Crane is the one most likely to be seen.

FOR YOU TO DO: There are few things more interesting to do than hide by the edge of some swamp or marsh and study the bird life there. Try your hand at it, keeping notes of the birds you have seen—you can check them in bird books later. 6-27

Girl Scout Handbooks Give Tips

Mrs. Joyce McCaleb, Snyder Girl Scout neighborhood chairman, would like to pass along the following information to Girl Scouts and their parents in this area.

Make memories of your family vacation stick. Pack some glue with the vacation supplies. Let the children use it to fashion pebbles, wood or what else from vacation or camp site into animal or abstract shapes.

The tip, from the "Brownie Girl Scout Handbook," suggests this practical application: use the finished product as a paperweight.

The souvenir-for-pennies idea is one of many for summer use from the various handbooks published by the Girl Scouts of the U. S. A.

Planning a picnic or a hike? Make it more fun and less work with the following hints from other Girl Scout handbooks:

—When packing sandwiches, stand them on edge. Bread won't get soggy.

—Keep matches waterproof. Dip them in colorless nail polish. Put them in a tin box with a small piece of sandpaper to ignite when needed.

—Lighten the load. Take along dried instead of fresh fruit. One pound of dried fruit equals six pounds of apples, or three pounds of peaches or two pounds of plums.

If the youngsters want to help with the cooking, do it the Girl Scout way. Wrap a square of cheese in a thin slice of bacon. Using a long green stick, pierce the wedges so that both bacon and cheese are held securely. Broil over coals, turning often to keep cheese from dripping into the fire. Serve on roll or bun.

—Try the recipe for walking salad for a satisfying lunch on a hike. Cut the top off an apple and core it almost to the bottom. Scoop out the pulp, chop it with cheese, raisins and nuts and mix with mayonnaise. Stuff the mixture back into the apple shell and put top on. Wrap in aluminum foil or some other insulating material to keep mayonnaise from spoiling in the heat.

Dress for the event, but always take along a bandana on any outing or camping trip. It's the original multiple-purpose accessory, according to the Girl Scouts.

Use it to shield your head from sun or rain, as a potholder, as a trail marker, a signal flag, a place mat, or an apron.

For emergencies the bandana can be used as a bandage or sling. Tie the tips together and you have a carry-all.

P. S. — 2.8 million Girl Scouts can't be wrong. If you follow any of this advice and it doesn't work, try again. You're probably off on the wrong trail. The Girl Scouts declare all these tips have stood the test of experience.

How To Cook A Husband

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

SOME OLD - FASHIONED recipes tickle the fancy.

One that may tickle yours appears in a book called "How to Cook A Husband" by Elizabeth Strong Worthington, published in 1898 and long out of print. Mrs. Worthington wrote that she came across the recipe in a newspaper clipping that attributed the rule to "a Baltimore lady."

In the 66 years since Elizabeth Worthingtons' book the husband-cooking recipe has cropped up at least once in a decade, usually in a local cook book compiled by a group of women to aid some worthy cause. But these later versions, if my cook-book reading memory holds good, sometimes stray from the version Mrs. Worthington reprinted. Here it is:

HOW TO COOK A HUSBAND
(1898 version)
By A Baltimore Lady

"A great many husbands are spoiled by mismanagement. Some women go about it as if their husbands were bladders, and blow them up; others keep them constantly in hot water; others let them freeze, by their carelessness and indifference. Some keep them in a stew, by irritating ways and words; others roast them; some keep them in pickle all their lives. Now it is not to be supposed that any husband will be good, managed in this way — turnips wouldn't; onions wouldn't; cabbage-heads wouldn't, and husbands won't; but they are really delicious when properly treated.

SENSE OF FULFILLMENT. . .Nurse Marion Preminger helps a doctor administer to African youngsters, a task that brought the ex-Hollywood personality contentment.

HER INSPIRATION . . . Marion Mills Preminger poses with Dr. Albert Schweitzer, 90-year-old humanitarian of the jungles.

Africa: Her 'Everything'

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Marion Mills Preminger, ex-Hungarian model, show girl, and former wife of Hollywood director Otto, is one of the few women who have found what they wanted in life.

For her it is a small barren room "like a monk's cell" in a house surrounded by chicken wire to forestall invasion of wild life from the black African jungle.

It is a land where the once fashion - conscious beauty must wear thick socks and bulky boots to avoid snake bite, and heavy, covering garments to shield herself from the black flies carrying sleeping sickness.

It is a hospital where it is so hot a newcomer can get a heat stroke at midnight. Indeed, the 90-year-old doctor who built it 50 years ago does not keep a thermometer there so that "we won't know how hot we really are."

What Marion Preminger wanted was what all women want, happiness. And through the aging doctor, Albert Schweitzer, she discovered that spiritual well-being, not the possession of material things, is the way to find it.

That is why she could work for 18 years as a nurse at the doctor's side preserving life, imparting knowledge, expecting nothing in return, without thinking once of her opulent Hollywood house with the swimming pool floating with gardenias, or the mad round of parties with scintillating celebrity friends she left behind.

To get this message across to other women wasting their time dreaming of riches and fame is why the formidable lady wrote her book "All I Want is Everything."

The title is unfortunate, she sighs. "It sounds so greedy, so material, and the point is that all the things I had in my life were nothing. Africa and what the doctor is doing is everything for me."

Every now and then she reluctantly returns to civilization to spread the gospel and win American club women, for the projects of the man she unabashedly idolizes.

WE NEED LIGHT

"Dark continent?" Marion Preminger draws herself up indignantly. "The only dark thing is our ignorance about it."

"Elegance was born there," she says archly, citing the carriage of native women. "high in child, another borne on her back, and a 50-pound load of bananas on her head and yet with head high and back ramrod straight."

Once she has started, the examples of high intelligence and cultural contributions of these so-called primitive tribes roll off her tongue without interruption.

"Our trouble as whites," she says, "is that we judge every civilization by our own standards."

This suddenly reminds her of the day Dr. Schweitzer had to make a trip to his leper colony to teach the tribal children there how to play with toys sent by well - meaning Americans.

"The youngsters are not afraid of a leopard, but a horse? They had never seen such a thing before. Nor a train. Nor a white doll. To them a white image is a nurse who gives injections that hurt or pills that taste bitter."

Equally misunderstood, she says, is Dr. Schweitzer himself. He has been the butt of criticism recently.

"He is censured because he does not educate these people. We are a first aid station, not a school. People don't seem to know that he feeds, houses and clothes the entire families of the patients who are sick. They travel for many miles to reach the doctor and they can't leave their families behind."

As for the doctor himself, the Hungarian girl, born rich and who has lived richly, waxes poetic.

"He is an ordinary man with extraordinary dimension. His greatness is his thinking — so simple, so crystal clear that if he were water we could drink him."

Somehow she can't imagine this world without the venerable doctor. "But if he dies, things will go on, his teachings, his philosophy, his goodness. Everybody will do what he expects."

And that includes Marion Mills Preminger who in his work has found everything she wants in life.

Decorative Tile

Ceramic tiles are coming into greater prominence as hot plates, trivets and conversation pieces. Many historic and vacation spots offer them as souveniers. You can add an artistic touch to your home by strategically placing a few of these tiles about your kitchen, living room, den and patio. These decorative tiles come in hundreds of hand-painted or silk screened designs, and can be found to match almost any decor.

ELEGANT FARE—Frogs' legs are as delicious as chicken. Saute the legs in butter and add fresh lemon juice.

'How Do I Cook Frogs' Legs?'

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

DEAR CECILY:

I've just been married a few months and my husband is fascinated by all kinds of food. Yesterday, as part of my birthday present, he brought me a package of frozen frogs' legs. They (the legs) are now in the freezer. What shall I do? — JEANNINE

DEAR JEANNINE:

Cook the frogs' legs, by all means. You haven't been married long enough to tell your husband to cook them himself.

Try not to mind your groom's epicurean leanings. You're bound to have an interesting life.

Just be glad your husband didn't catch the frogs himself. If he had, they might have started moving around in the pan. This does not mean that the frog has an after-life, only that in freshly-caught frogs' legs the muscles may go on contracting during skinning and cooking. Should your husband ever decide to catch his own frogs, chill the legs before cooking and you won't have to face a single twitch.

Frogs' legs are absolutely delicious, especially when cooked the following way. If you try this recipe your husband will undoubtedly say you are a marvelous cook and on your next birthday bring you home a turtle to cook. Compared to turtel soup, frogs' legs — believe me — are child's play.

SAUTEED FROGS' LEGS IN LEMON BUTTER

8 large or 16 small to medium frogs' legs
Salt and pepper
½ cup flour
7 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon minced onion
Rosemary
1 lemon, quartered

If frogs' legs are frozen, thaw before using. Wash and dry the legs and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Coat evenly with flour. Heat 4 tablespoons of the butter in a large skillet; add frogs' legs and saute gently, 5 to 6 minutes on each side. In a small skillet, melt the remaining 3 tablespoons of butter and stir in the lemon rind, lemon juice, onion and a pinch of remary; spoon over the frogs' legs. Cover skillet; simmer 6 to 8 minutes or until frogs' legs are tender. Serve at once with lemon quarters.

CLASSIFYING FROGS' LEGS

Frogs' legs (fresh or frozen) are sold in fish markets. If you look up recipes for the legs in cook books, you'll find them under fish or seafood because there is no section for amphibians. In his book, "James Beard's Fish Cookery", (Little, Brown), Jim suggests soaking frogs' legs in milk before cooking them; you might like to try his way.

Don't Do It Yourself

Here's a tip for you non-handymen. If you would love to have a stereo sound system in your home this Summer, but quake at the thought of doing complicated wiring and involved hook - up of component parts, here's the answer. It's a new "Solar System" of packaged components, all inter - engineered, incased in walnut cabinets, and designed for immediate quality performance the minute you take it home and plug it in. Consisting of four wall-hanging units (the necessity for shelving vanishes), the "Solar System" offers a "real cool" way to relax and enjoy the sound of music during the long Summer months.

Sauce For Steaks

A piquant Lemon - Onion Sauce will nicely complement those magnificent grilled steaks so popular in the summer. Chop a large onion and several sprigs of parsley. Cook in ¼ cup salad oil until onions are solft. Add 1½ teaspoons wine vinegar, 2 tablespoons Rea Lemon bottled lemon juice, 1½ teaspoons sugar, 2 teaspoons salt, and a dash of pepper. Stir and cook slowly about 5 minutes. Before serving, stir in 2 tablespoons butter or margarine.

Essays Worth Reading

The Cart And The Horse, By Louis Kronenberger.

Kronenberger is a man whose type is found rarely these days.

He is an intellectual in the true sense, and not in the debased coinage of that word, which so often has been used with a sneer. Furthermore, he is a writer who feels no need to "write down" to his reader; to use a fashionable term, he "communicates" in polished prose, assuming that his audience will appreciate his wit as well as his clarity.

His vehicle is the essay, a form once great, which seems to have faded into a low estate, and to be languishing somewhere between the articles of the mass mgazines and the academic jargon of the too - self - conscious esthetes. His essays are a fine combination of the form's two essentials — cogent observations, expressed in a language that is a tonic to the mind.

He writes about American culture of the present era, on the theme that the leaders "who should know better" do not tenet. He begins with the premise that "What seems to me socially, culturally, humanly amiss in American life as a whole is its way of jumbling values."

So he examines the upside-down values, the self-deception, the worship of giantism, the craving for status, the erosion of personal ethics. He finds Main Street's Babbitt has been replaced by Madison Avenue's New Babbitt.

He examines the flaws of the academy and of writers' motives. And in "Reflections and Complaints of Late Middle Age" (a fascinating essay which of course goes far beyond the understatement of its title) he ponders in all good humor such propositions as "Good sense is not, at the moment, conspicuous American trait."

Kronenberger delights in the right word, the striking phrase, the clean stroke of insight, the apt characterization, the turn of phrase which sounds a sterling bell.

He has much to say, and says it so well, that one reading of his book is not enough.
