Terrorism rise linked to bombings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The surge in terrorism anticipated by the Reagan administration after the U.S. bombing of Libya took shape today with the murders of three kidnap victims in Lebanon, an attempt to put explosives aboard an Israeli airliner in London and fire bombs thrown at a U.S. Marine post in Tunisia.

In Khartoum, the U.S. Embassy announced today the evacuation of some 200 dependents of mission employees and other personnel from Sudan, apparently because of Libyan threats against American targets.

The announcement came after an embassy employee was shot in the head in Khartoum late Tuesday and thousands of people on Wednesday burned American flags and shouted slogans to protest the U.S. bombing raid on Libya.

An embassy statement did not name specifically Libya, Sudan's neighbor to the northwest, but apparently referred to Col. Moammar Khadafy's government, as no other neighboring nation has threatened attacks on U.S. interests. Libya called for attacks on American interests worldwide after the air raid.

In Libya, Khadafy was reported alive but possibly wounded in the bombing raid on his headquarters Monday night. Administration officials sifting through intelligence reports said there were indications he had left Tripoli, the capital, and had gone into the desert amid reports of fighting within the military.

Three bodies were found in the mountains east of Beirut with a note nearby that said one was a CIA agent and two were British intelligence officers killed in retaliation for the U.S. bombing of Libya, the Moslem Voice of the Nation radio reported from Beirut.

White House deputy press secretary Edward Djerejian said the United States has confirmed that all three victims were British. "As far as we know, there are no Americans found," Djerejian said.

The British government supported the U.S. action punishing Libya for the April 5 bombing of a Berlin nightclub and permitted U.S. Air Force bombers based in Britain to participate in the raid.

Three bodies are identified

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Three bodies found on a mountain highway east of Beirut today were identified by an Irish diplomat as those of three Britons kidnapped in Lebanon.

A senior Druse militia source quoted an anonymous caller as saying the three men were killed in retaliation for the British-supported U.S. attack on Libya.

John Rowan, first secretary of the Irish Embassy in Beirut, made the identification soon after the bodies were brought from the mountains to the American University hospital in Beirut.

"These are Padfield, Collett and Douglas," Rowan told reporters as he emerged from the morgue, a reference to British writer Alec Collett, 64, and teachers Leigh Douglas, 34, and Philip Padfield, 40. Rowan knew all three men.

A note found near the bodies claimed the three were a CIA agent and two British intelligence officers.

State rep for ISDs due here

"I try to filter out the hostility to pick up what's really happening," noted Dr. Paul C. Dunn, the Levelland dentist who serves as this area's appointed representative on the State School Board.

Dunn, contacted at his Levelland office, noted that some hostility is often a part of meetings he has conducted during his tenure on the state board.

He will be appearing in Snyder Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at Worsham Auditorium. His local talk is at the invitation of the Texas State Teachers Association chapter and all area educators and the public are invited.

He said he makes the appearances for two reasons. "Since I'm appointed, I feel more of an obligation to get input."

He noted also he attempts to answer the questions most on educator's minds. "By picking up on common concerns throughout the district, I'm able to discern areas where we really have a problem."

Dunn noted appearances like the one Thursday have become frequent events for him, saying he likely has "10 more" scheduled before the state board meets again for its May session.

"Common problems" often pointed out at these meetings include the TECAT test for teacher literacy; the controversy surrounding setting a statewide method for the appraisal of classroom performance for career ladder selection; and the classroom size requirement of one teacher to 22 students.

"I've also learned you can never totally predict what will come up," Dunn said.

He said he normally begins with a 15-20 minute presentation, then opens the meeting up for questions and answers. He said the sessions generally last about one hour.

The 38-year-old Dunn represents District 15, an area which includes points as far north as the Texas Panhandle and to the west to Odessa.

Some 170 slate wildflower tours

Classes from Snyder comprising some 170 school students have scheduled tours of the wildflower trail at Western Texas College Friday as two days of Wildflower Day events begin.

From 3 until 5 p.m. Friday, a "plant-in" of the native plants is scheduled with students from all county schools invited to participate.

The tours — which students may take at their own pace — will be throughout the day. Guided tours of the trail will be given by members of the Wildflower Day committee from 4-6 p.m. Friday.

In addition, county school students have provided essays and drawings pertaining to Wildflower Day. Some 500 of these are now on display at the Scurry County Museum on the campus of WTC.

At Friday's plant-in, those attending will be given a butterfly weed plant.

The map of the wildflower trail along the WTC prairie which fronts the campus has now been updated. Copies of it are available in the museum.

The trail is in conjunction with the county Wildflower Day

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Working allows most of us to afford two luxuries--eating and living indoors."

Jay Huckabee is one of Scurry County's resident historians. Jay claims he really hasn't been around all that long. He does say, however, that if he had realized he would have lasted this long, he would have taken better care of himself.

Jay brought us a copy of Texas Centennial Review, a publication published in 1936 when the state was celebrating its 100th anniversary.

The January edition showed three Texas teams which played in major bowl games. Texas Christian was in the Sugar Bowl, Southern Methodist was in the Rose Bowl and Hardin-Simmons University was in the Sun Bowl.

That year, 20 million people were expected to visit various Texas Centennial celebrations. They were expected to consume 320 million eggs, 280 million pounds of butter, 300 million quarts of milk and eat approximately one billion meals.

Here's another piece of Texas trivia. "Remember the Cottonwood," is hardly a slogan to inspire men to charge enemy lines and fight to death.

If Gen. Sam Houston had approached his soldiers on the mission in San Antonio where Travis, Bowie, Bonham and Crockett fought and died, Texas still might belong to Mexico.

Alamo, in English, means cottonwood.

Sam Houston was said to be a man of many words--some of them salty. Yet he was clever and a motivator. When he made a speech, it inspired folks.

Houston was careful and decided to attack the Mexican army on the afternoon before Santa Anna expected it. He had determined that at a certain time, the sun would be in the eyes of the enemy and many would be taking a siesta.

Realizing the toll on lives might be high, he added, "But men, remember the Alamo. The Alamo."

In addition, the district will give Conservation Teacher awards for both the rural schools and Snyder.

Q. — How many trains pass through Snyder daily?

A. — The number varies, according to officials with Santa Fe Railroad. They estimate from 12 to 15 per day.

In Brief

OPEC talks

GENEVA (AP) — OPEC oil ministers today failed to agree on a strategy for stabilizing oil prices during a third day of talks, the cartel's spokesman said. Nigeria's oil minister indicated the cartel was far from agreement.

However, cartel spokesman James Audu said progress had been made in a three-hour morning session and that ministers from the 13-member Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries would resume their deliberations Friday.

Audu said OPEC technical advisers would meet later today to come up with recommendations on a pricing and production policy.

Balkacem Nabi, Algeria's oil minister, told reporters some cartel members are not ready to cut production as a means of ending the oil price slump.

Four arrested

AUSTIN (AP) — University of Texas police arrested four people who were protesting the U.S. bombing of Libya.

The four were held briefly at UT police headquarters Wednesday before being released without charges, UT officials said.

Charges also haven't been filed against some three dozen people arrested last Friday in a protest over South African investments.

But Ronald Brown, UT vice president for student affairs, said the university may decide to file charges of disruptive conduct later in each set of arrests.

GNP report

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. economy showed a four-fold rebound in growth from January through March, helped out by the best news on inflation in almost two decades, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said the gross national product, the broadest measure of the economy's health, grew at a 3.2 percent annual rate from January through March, the best growth rate in a year and more than four times the pace of activity during the last three months of 1985.

The upturn in growth was aided by a steep decline in inflation. Prices, as measured by an inflation index tied to the GNP, were rising at a rate of just 2.5 percent in the first three months of the year. This was the slowest rate since no increase at all in the second quarter of 1967.

'Pigs' anniversary observed

HAVANA (AP) — Cuba observes the 25th anniversary of the Bay of Pigs invasion today, but the government media is giving that historical turning point equal billing with criticism of the U.S. air raid on Libya.

The Communist Party newspaper Granma carried more than 40 stories from dozens of countries Wednesday highlighting the adverse international reaction to the attack on Libya.

The media concentration on Libya fits nicely with Cuba's long-held view of the United States as a ruthless, expansionist power.

But while the limelight this week turned toward Libya, the Bay of Pigs anniversary of April 17, 1961 is not being ignored.

Wednesday night, a photo exhibit portraying the events surrounding the 65-hour battle at the Bay of Pigs, or Bahia de Cochinos, was inaugurated by Education Minister Jorge Fernandez, who as chief of operations at the time has emerged as one of the heroes in the defeat of the CIA-sponsored attack.

The exhibit hails the event as the "first great military defeat of Yankee imperialism in the Americas."

The defeat of a ragtag band of about 1,400 Cuban exiles assembled, trained, supplied and directed by the United States is considered one of Cuba's brightest moments.

What President John F. Kennedy had thought would be a quick invasion of Cuba by Cuban exiles, helped surreptitously by Americans, to overthrow Fidel Castro instead became one of the embarrassments of his administration.

The invasion failed miserably, primarily because the Americans failed to back up the languishing exiles when their supplies ran short and the Cubans began advancing on the small band of invaders in the Zapata Swamp of southwestern Cuba.

A flotilla of U.S. warships, including the aircraft carrier U.S.S. Essex and seven destroyers, was steaming toward Cuba. But unknown to the Cuban invaders, the Navy had orders not to get closer than 25 miles off Cuba.

The doomed Brigade 2506, aided by a small cast of American pilots, had no way of knowing when they landed at Playa Larga and Playa Giron that within three days their takeover attempt would be easily quashed.

Castro's air force sank two of the brigade's ships carrying badly needed ammunition and communications equipment and shot down five B-26 bombers. His troops, backed by about 50 Soviet-built tanks, killed 114 men of the brigade and captured 1,189 others.

Four American pilots also died, while the Cubans say they lost 161 men.

The invaders languished in Cuban prisons for 22 months until the Kennedy administration ransomed them for $53 million worth of food and medicine.

Memories of the invasion were refueled by the events this week in Libya.

On Tuesday, thousands of demonstrators gathered at the University of Havana to condemn what the newspaper called "the brutal military aggression against the people of Libya."

The protesters carried signs saying "Reagan Terrorist," "Long Live The Libyan Revolution" and "We Condemn Yankee Aggression Against Libya."

A front-page editorial accused President Reagan of engaging in the "grossest form of state-sponsored terrorism."

Downed F-111 may have damaged sites

WASHINGTON (AP) — A massive bomb from the American F-111 which was downed during the attack on Libya may have fallen on a neighborhood in Tripoli, damaging civilian homes and the French Embassy, Pentagon officials say.

The search for the lost bomber was called off after Navy ships and planes failed to find any trace of the aircraft or its two-man crew, Adm. William Crowe, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said Wednesday.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said the Pentagon remained uncertain about the cause of the damage in the civilian area.

"It could have come from the plane that is missing," Weinberger said in Boston. "We just don't have any idea.

"But it's a mile away from any of the target areas, and it was specifically rejected as a target even though there's a large intelligence building right next to the French Embassy," Weinberger said.

Pentagon sources, speaking on condition they not be identified, said officials were studying the possibility the bomber was hit by anti-aircraft fire and missed its target when it dropped a 2,000-pound bomb.

"We are confident that there was no mix-up in the targets," one source said. "But if this plane was hit or had internal problems, it could have lost a bomb."

"There is some evidence that whatever happened on this plane, it tried to break back hard toward the sea," a second official added. "Anything can happen in a situation like that."

Fussy Husband's Neatness Is Messing Up Wife's Mind

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a fanatic about neatness. When Harry (not his real name) comes home from work, he zooms through the house, snatching every toy he sees to put away. Our children, 2 and 4, may keep the toy they're holding—the rest Daddy sees as "clutter." It's hard to explain to a 3-year-old why she can't find the bear she was playing with only minutes before.

I am not a poor housekeeper, but I have to fight to keep the Sunday paper an extra day if I didn't finish reading it. Christmas morning Harry sat with a garbage bag while presents were being opened so the boxes and wrapping paper could be discarded immediately. ("Hand the trash to Daddy, then you may open another present.") Christmas card envelopes with addresses I needed were thrown out while the mail was being opened.

When Harry and I were dating, I teased him because he did his laundry every day. He explained that if anything happened to him, he didn't want anyone to find a pair of dirty socks in his apartment! I thought he was kidding; now I know he was serious.

My self-esteem as a housekeeper is shot because I can't keep everything perfect for Harry. Does Harry have a problem? Or do I have one?

END OF ROPE

DEAR END: Psychiatrists have a name for people like Harry. He's "compulsive obsessive"; everything must be in "perfect" order at all times or he's inappropriately upset. Your problem is dealing with your husband's compulsive behavior unless (or until) you can persuade him to see a therapist and put an end to it.

DEAR ABBY: While waiting for a smog check at a gasoline station, I met a man and we got to talking. I'm a widow, 68 years young. He told me he was a widower, age 70. As it turned out, we both belong to the same health club and we seem to have a lot in common. I liked his looks and thought he'd make a nice friend.

My car was ready first, so as I was paying my bill, I thought to myself, "Why not give him my phone number so he can call me?"

I tore a deposit slip with my name and address on it out of my checkbook and handed it to him, saying, "Here's my phone number. Call me, and maybe we can have coffee sometime." He smiled and seemed pleased.

Well, it's been two weeks, and I haven't heard a peep from him. Do you think I was too forward?

WAITING

DEAR WAITING: Too forward? Absolutely not. I say, "Shoot the ducks while they're flying!"

DEAR ABBY: I am 39, and last month my husband of three years died. We were very much in love, and the loss is almost unbearable.

In the past few weeks I've received dozens of cards and notes, for which I'm grateful, but many were addressed "Mrs. Jane Doe" or just "Jane Doe."

Abby, I'm widowed, not divorced! The omission of my husband's first name hurts me. Maybe I'm too sensitive, but my husband's name is dear to me. I've lost him; I don't want to lose his name as well.

Please remind your readers that a widow is entitled to, and wants to, use her husband's full name. It's one small way she can keep him close to her.

HEARTBROKEN IN OHIO

DEAR HEARTBROKEN: Please accept my heartfelt condolences. I shall print your letter, hoping it will spare other widows the pain you have experienced.

Please consider that those who "hurt" you when they omitted your husband's first name in addressing their cards and notes of sympathy did so unwittingly. So give them an "A" for thoughtfulness and a "D" for lack of awareness.

Dr. Gott

Peter Gott, M.D.

Sugar's no cure for hepatitis

DEAR DR. GOTT — My niece moved to the South recently and somehow contracted hepatitis. She says it's not contagious. Someone prescribed the following treatment: Drink lots of fluids, get rest and eat at least a pound of sugar a day for the next couple of months. The first two sound reasonable, but that third idea sounds crazy to me. What do you think?

DEAR READER — I think it sounds crazy. Hepatitis is a contagious viral infection of the liver. Years ago, doctors prescribed a high-sugar diet because hepatitis patients lost their appetites and their caloric needs were not met by ordinary meals. However, a pound of sugar a day would be astronomically high, even for "Refrigerator" Perry. The fluids and rest are OK. I suggest that you and your niece follow the instructions given by a doctor; the other advice is best ignored.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I'm sure you've read about the couple who visited a fertility clinic for two years, at which point the woman gave birth to seven babies. (Four died because of prematurity). The couple is now suing the clinic, claiming it was at fault for prescribing Perganol, which causes the development of multiple fetuses. I know that you sometimes "take on" your medical colleagues, but in this case, don't you think the couple bringing suit is a little off-the-wall? Or is fertility such an exact science now that the fertility clinic could predict the precise outcome of the Perganol treatment?

DEAR READER — I doubt that any fertility clinic could predict such an outcome, although multiple births are a recognized complication of Perganol therapy. Many physicians practicing today express a damned-if-you-do, damned-if-you-don't attitude that reflects the litigation-oriented society we live in.

I think the couple you described might be just as likely to have sued the clinic if no pregnancy resulted from treatment. The sad part of the story is that the parents will probably be awarded some money, even though they have three healthy babies.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Could you please explain what a bicornuated uterus is and what possible effect it can have on childbearing? Can it be surgically corrected?

DEAR READER — A bicornuate uterus is either a double-barreled womb or a uterus with two hornlike extrusions. It is common in many nonhuman mammals, but in women it can cause difficulty bearing children. It need not be repaired but, in many cases, may be surgically corrected if a woman persistently experiences premature labor.

What is HYPOGLYCEMIA and how is it treated? You can find out in Dr. Gott's new Health Report on the subject. Send 75 cents plus a long self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2597, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to ask for the Health Report on HYPOGLYCEMIA.

Diet exercises

Exercise firms your body during a diet for weight loss.

Actual measurement reduction occurs because of tighter muscles. Controlling calorie intake leads to weight loss.

So-called "spot reducing" is merely measurement loss resulting from flab turning into toned-up muscle.

Humans don't lose weight only in certain areas. Weight control combines lifetime eating habits with regular but comfortable exercise. No need for sweat and strain — regular exercise (and calorie control) is the thing.

Against the hair

You may want to flaunt a long-hair style but if nature has not endowed you with a Brooke Shields mane, improvise. With extra care, you can give more glamour to an average head of long hair.

Start with a "body" perm, which produces no visible curl but swells the hair shafts so they will look thicker and accept whatever curl you want to put in.

If the hair is oily, perming will also help keep oil down. Use a protein-formula shampoo and rinse-conditioner which will both penetrate the uplifted outer scales of permed hair for better body and add sheen to the surface.

Makeup

A person with a long, thin nose often has a pointed chin. Makeup can help change the facial effect.

Have Soviets wasted time?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, stung by cancellation of summit planning talks, lashed out at the Soviet Union for a lack of progress in easing superpower tensions and bitterly condemned the Kremlin for failing to avert the bombing of a West Berlin nightclub.

"They have wasted six months since the summit," the State Department said in a sharply worded statement Wednesday that blamed Moscow for not maintaining the momentum begun at President Reagan's meeting with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev last November.

In a separate but related blast, the department said the Soviets had been warned Libyans were planning an assault in the German city and could have stopped them from carrying it out.

It virtually blamed Moscow for the April 5 discotheque bombing in which an American soldier and a Turkish woman were killed and hundreds wounded. Reagan, saying there was irrefutable evidence linking Libya to the attack, had U. S. warplanes bomb Tripoli and Benghazi on Monday in "self-defense" against terrorism.

"We urged the Soviets and East Germans to restrain the Libyans," the State Department said. "Had they done so, this entire cycle of events would have been avoided."

The department said the Soviets were advised March 27, in Washington and in Berlin, that there was evidence indicating Libyans in East Germany planned actions against U.S. "interests and citizens" in the German city.

The statement said the United States had kept Moscow informed of its concerns at every stage leading up to Monday's bombing of Libya and "requested their assistance."

The department criticized the Soviets for supplying Libya with anti-aircraft missiles and said the United States had warned Moscow the missiles "might encourage (Col. Moammar) Khadafy to take risks which would force us to respond. This, in fact, turned out to be the case."

The United States and the Soviets had agreed to step up their dialogue with a May 14-16 meeting here between Secretary of State George Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze.

The idea was to try to fix a date and arrange the agenda for a second Reagan-Gorbachev summit meeting to be held in Washington either in July or after the U.S. congressional elections in November.

But the Soviets responded Tuesday to the American attack on Libya by denouncing it as a "criminal action" and canceling Shevardnadze's visit.

Against this backdrop, Reagan heard conflicting views Wednesday from his senior advisers on whether to keep U.S. nuclear missiles within limits of the 1979 SALT II treaty.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the president did not make a decision at the hour-long meeting. Another U.S. official, who demanded anonymity, said Reagan was expected to decide the treaty question by the weekend.

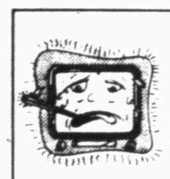

Shultz and veteran adviser Paul H. Nitze urged him at the meeting not to exceed the unratified treaty's ceiling on missiles when a new Trident nuclear submarine begins sea trials next month, the official said.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, CIA Director William Casey, arms control director Kenneth Adelman and senior adviser Edward Rowny all counseled him to add the submarine's 24 missiles without destroying older launchers in response to allegations of Soviet violations of the treaty.

"It was a chance for everybody to air his views," the official said. "Historically, Reagan never expresses his position until he hears everyone out."

"He's pretty close to a final decision," another U.S. official said of Reagan. "He may have made up his own mind already. But we want to talk to the other countries. We want this to be a consensus decision."

White House tried to hide decision to strike at Libya

WASHINGTON (AP) - "The biggest problem of a free democracy is that you can't do very many things secretly," one White House aide observed this week after the surprise bombing raid against Libya.

This administration, despite President Reagan's constant complaints to the contrary, has been more effective than most in cutting off the flow of information about the president's work behind closed doors.

Nevertheless, much was known about White House intentions leading up to the attack itself.

Reagan reiterated his willingness to retaliate for terrorist acts against Americans if he could determine responsibility. And U.S. officials spoke openly of the strength of their evidence tying Col. Moammar Khadafy's regime to the fatal bombing of a West Berlin nightclub.

Senior administration officials even disclosed, almost a week before the air raid, that Reagan's key advisers were agreed that he should take military action to punish the perpetrators of the April 5 disco bombing. They even noted that Reagan's hard-line aides had been joined by Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, who in the past had opposed retaliatory raids out of concern for the innocent and the long-range effects of such a policy.

The officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, said no time or targets had been selected, although Reagan himself has since told USA Today he knew on April 9 — five days before the attack — when and where the strikes would occur. He said he was careful not to say so as he answered a myriad of questions about Libya that night during a nationally broadcast news conference.

About the same time, Pentagon officials disclosed that two U.S. aircraft carriers were canceling port calls and returning to stations in the Mediterranean.

Their movements were used in the days to come as an indicator of Reagan's intentions, but observers were misled when the flattops seemed to be in a holding pattern off Sicily. The big ships actually moved in under cover of darkness to take up stations off Libya just before the attack began.

By the end of the week, members of Congress were complaining the administration wasn't keeping them informed of developments, and several warned that the president was required by the War Powers Act to consult Congress before attacking Libya.

AP analysis

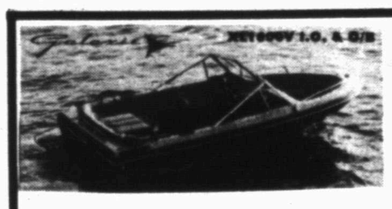

"Any public discussion or notification could have jeopardized the mission," said one White House official, speaking on condition he not be identified. "I realize that's always open to interpretation, but I lean toward the military view, that the element of surprise can be critical. The less notice, the greater likelihood of success, and the less danger to the lives of the pilots involved."

Dodgers keep going to wire but they lose seven out of 10

By The Associated Press

Tom Lasorda is rarely at a loss for words on the subject of baseball, but he readily admits he has no explanation for the Los Angeles Dodgers' record-setting run of futility.

"I've never seen anything like it," the Dodger manager said Wednesday night after his team played its 10th straight one-run game in a 2-1 loss to San Diego. "If somebody had told me something like this would happen, I'd have told them they're crazy."

Simply put, what has happened is that the Dodgers - favored by most to repeat as National League West champions - have lost seven of those games, including the last three in San Diego's final at-bat.

Padres Manager Steve Boros, whose team has won seven of 10 - and shares with the Dodgers the major-league record for consecutive one-run games at the start of a season, also is devoid of a meaningful answer.

"I'd like to be able to explain it, but I can't," Boros said after Graig Nettles' pinch-hit single off reliever Tom Niedenfuer produced the winning run with two out in the ninth inning.

Elsewhere in the NL, it was Houston 4, San Francisco 1, and Cincinnati 5, Atlanta 3. St. Louis at New York and Pittsburgh at Philadelphia were postponed by rain.

Nettles, whose glove work at third base for the New York Yankees made him a Dodger World Series nemesis long before he joined the Padres, certainly came through with his biggest hit so far this season. He went to the plate mired in a 1-for-16 slump.

"I know relief pitchers don't like to get beat with their second best pitch, so after it got to 3-2 I was looking fastball all the way," Nettles said.

Celtics have high expectations again

by The Associated Press

The Boston Celtics, nearly unbeatable at home during the regular season, have the Chicago Bulls right where they want them - Boston Garden - in the first two games of their NBA playoff series.

The Celtics, 67-15 overall and 40-1 at home, have every reason to be overconfident against the Bulls, winners of only eight of 41 road games. The two teams meet tonight in one of four NBA playoff series openers.

Boston players say their own expectations are just as high as those of their fans and the media.

"We expected ourselves to win last year and the year before and the year before that," Celtics forward Kevin McHale said Wednesday. "Other people's expectations of us are half of what they are of ourselves."

"A lot of those expectations are held by the players themselves," swingman Scott Wedman added. "So if it's coming from the players, it's confidence, not pressure."

Other best-of-5 first-round series starting tonight are Detroit at Atlanta, Sacramento at Houston and San Antonio at the Los Angeles Lakers.

Boston's 40-1 mark broke an NBA record of 37 home victories in a season and also erased the all-time mark of 33-1 set in 1949-50 by the Rochester Royals. The Celtics' 31 consecutive home victories is another NBA record.

The Bulls believe they would have been much better than 30-52 had they not lost guard Michael Jordan for 64 games with a broken left foot.

The Bulls won six of their last 10 games to pass Cleveland for the last playoff spot in the Eastern Conference. Over that span, Jordan averaged 26.5 points in 27.7 minutes per game.

Boston's Dennis Johnson will get the primary responsibility for stopping Jordan.

"DJ is one of the toughest I go against," Jordan said. "He's seen a lot of offensive players and knows what to expect."

The defending champion Lakers also appear to have an easy first-round opponent in San Antonio. Los Angeles finished 62-20 for the second consecutive season, while the Spurs won only 11 of their last 38 games and finished 35-47.

"We are all starting at the starting gate," Lakers Coach Pat Riley said. "We know what we've done this season and we're proud of our record."

The Lakers, who won NBA championships in 1980, 1982 and 1985 without the home-court advantage in the final round, would have to play four games in Boston if they meet the Celtics in the championship series for the third straight year.

"We have the home court in all of our conference games," Riley said. "We have shown we can win the championship on the road in three of the last six years. When and if we get to the finals, both teams will be ready to play, no matter where."

"I think the key to the San Antonio series will be how (Spurs' center) Artis Gilmore plays," Lakers forward Maurice Lucas said. "If we don't come prepared, we will have trouble."

WTC cagers set for all-star tilt

WACO -- Pam Cox and Angela Jeans, all-conference, all-region choices from Western Texas College, will play in the Texas Association of Basketball Coaches Women's Junior College All-Star Game, Friday, April 18, here at McLennan Community College's Highlander Gym.

Tip-off for the contest, which pits Region 5 players against those from Region 14, is 6 p.m.

Joining the two sophomores from Western Texas will be Charlotte Lewis and Missy Davis from McLennan; Doreatha Conwell, Donna Wilson and Renay Daughtery from Odessa; Valerie Barnett from Cisco; Kasi Higgs from Grayson and Rolisha Goins from Weatherford.

Cox, 5-8, averaged 17.9 points, 4.1 rebounds and 5.8 assists per game while shooting .581 from the field and .695 from the free throw line. Jeans, also 5-8, averaged averaged 10.6 points and 7.7 assists. She shot .583 from the floor and .795 from the free throw line.

Westerners compete Friday; getting ready for regionals

ODESSA -- Western Texas College golfers, aiming towards the regional tournament, play in the fifth Western Junior College Athletic Conference Tournament here Friday.

The 18-hole tournament is being held at Odessa Country Club.

"There's no way we can win the conference but we want to finish as high as we can," said Coach Dave Foster, whose Westerners are in fifth place. "We're aiming for regionals right now. We feel like we can play with anybody in the conference. What we need is to get one or two low scores in the 60s. We've had some good rounds, but you've got to have two under par at least in this league."

Odessa leads the conference standings with 18 points. Midland is second with 17, followed by New Mexico Junior College with 16, New Mexico Military with 15½, Western with 9 and South Plains with 8½.

Playing for Western Texas will be Mike Harrison, Pat Fitzpatrick, Frank Schuster, Matt Smith, Ken Livingston and Bo Kay.

"The other teams will be watching us. We can still play a spoiler's role," said Foster. "We're going to do the best we can and hopefully be ready for the regional tournament."

The regional tournament is next week, held in conjunction with the sixth and final WJCAC tournament of the season. They will be held in Hobbs, N.M.

Snyder seniors look to vault to top of district track meet

ROBERT PATTERSON

REGGIE PRICE

When Snyder attends the District 2-4A Track and Field Meet Saturday, a large part of its hopes will rest on the shoulders of pole vaulters Robert Patterson and Reggie Price.

They, along with shot putter Jimmy Hunter are considered Snyder's best chances to reach regional competition from the boy's team.

Ironically, neither of them expected to be vaulting this year. For Patterson, it was a case of, as he put it, "senioritis". For Price, it was a culmination of past injuries. But not only are they vaulting, they are eyeing a trip to the regional meet in Brownwood.

"I think we will do real well," said Patterson, who has vaulted 13-6 this seaon and won three meets. "I feel good about it."

Patterson almost didn't come out for track this season.

"I started getting the itches for it and I did pretty well the first meet (13-foot at Big Spring). I decided to keep it up," he said.

Like Patterson, Price almost didn't vault.

"When I busted my head in Andrews (last year) that had a lot to do with it," he said.

Price has been vaulting since the seventh grade - so has Patterson. But Price has suffered through more than his share of bad luck.

"I've hurt knees, both my ankles, my neck and had a couple of concussions," he sighed. "It (being injured) is in the back of my mind. I don't let it bother me when I'm vaulting, but it's there."

Both vaulters feel they are capable of going in the mid-14s.

"At San Angelo (where he cleared 13-6), we decided to go for 14-7 because that was the record. I probably should have gone for 14," said Patterson. "But on my last vault I came down on top of the bar. I know I can clear it."

He said instruction from Dale Jenkins, former standout from Snyder and later Abilene Christian University, has helped him.

"He helped me get my steps down better. Now I'm concentrating on my form," said Patterson.

Price, too, is looking to land in the mid-14s.

"I've gone 14-6 twice in practice and I plan on doing that this weekend. I feel pretty good about it. That's what I'm shooting for," he said.

One reason for their success is they help each other.

"If one of us goes out he'll try to help the other one to win it," said Patterson. "We get along real well. We want to see each other do our best."

The vault is scheduled for 11:30 a.m. Saturday at Monahans Stadium.

Correction

A sports article in Wednesday's edition of The Snyder Daily News referred to Kim Koening and Yolanda Anderson, when in fact the girls were Kim Koening and Yolanda Rivers. The Snyder Daily News regrets the error.

Lybia situation may change plans for game in London

CHICAGO (AP) - Tensions raised by the U.S. attack on Libya using planes launched from England shouldn't affect a planned exhibition football game in London between the Dallas Cowboys and Chicago, says Bears Coach Mike Ditka.

But Dallas general manager Tex Schramm said that after the Monday night attack, "It's a whole new ball game."

Meanwhile, Marjorie Kriz, a spokeswoman for the Federal Aviation Administration office in Chicago, said Wednesday that communiques urging extra vigilance have been sent to airlines serving international cities from Chicago.

O'Hare International Airport, located just outside Chicago, is the world's busiest airport.

Ms. Kriz said the "sensitive nature" of the procedures designed to counter international terrorism prevented her from disclosing details about the communiques.

The undaunted Ditka, when asked of possible terrorist threats in London, replied: "That's OK with me. I love it. What are they gonna do? Bomb the stadium?

"I wish I had a machine-gun on the plane," Ditka added. "To me, it's silly. I agree totally with our country and our actions. I don't have any qualms about it."

But Schramm, referring to the possibility that terrorist attacks might increase as a result of the air strike, said, "I won't risk the lives of young men."

Bears president Michael McCaskey said he expects no change in team plans to fly to London for the Aug. 3 game.

"For us and the NFL, the smartest thing to do is wait and see," he said.

National Football League spokesman Dick Maxwell said, "It's too early to say whether this will have an effect on the London game.

"Security will be part of our concern. It always has been," he added.

ASTROS

McReynolds from second base.

His hit made a winner of reliever Rich Gossage, 2-0, who worked the ninth in relief of starter Dave Dravecky.

Astros 4, Giants 1

Strikeouts may have become commonplace to Nolan Ryan. That's understandable after 4,101 of them. But a game-winning RBI from a lifetime .122 hitter is another matter.

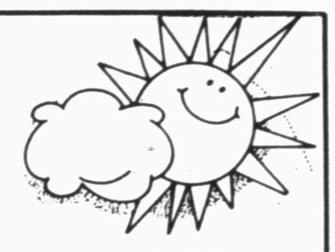

"I didn't realize that was it," Ryan said jokingly in discussing a two-run, second-inning single.

"A big RBI man like me ... that is pretty surprising."

Ryan, 2-1, struck out nine San Francisco batters in 7 2-3 innings. He allowed six hits and walked three before Dave Smith came on in relief to collect to his third save.

The game-winning RBI statistic has been used only since 1980, but Ryan said he couldn't recall ever having one in his 19-year major-league career.

Motel Association meets in Snyder

The Snyder Motel Association met last Saturday at the Willow Park Inn. Motel owners included a representative from the American Motor Inn; Y. Hieh, new owner of the Beacon Lodge; M. Ilyas, Pal-O-Mar Motel; Art and Helen Feinsod, Purple Sage Motel; Mr. and Mrs. G. Bhakta, Three D Motel; P. Patel, Travel Inn; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Pointeau, Travelodge; and Blanche Chisum, Willow Park Inn.

Subjects discussed were security and ways to protect guests at motel properties; motel responsibilities during large conventions such as rodeo week; advertising and creating a positive image for Snyder; and guest amenities such as HBO and other movie systems.

Members agreed to meet again on May 3 at 1 p.m. at Shakey's Pizza Parlor. Representatives from all area motels are invited to attend.

Happy throngs welcome home ships

MAYPORT, Fla. (AP) — A father held his baby for the first time, couples embraced tearfully and sailors talked of love of country as the USS Saratoga returned home after eight months at sea and a clash with Libyan forces.

More than 5,000 family members and others who just wanted to welcome the aircraft carrier and frigate USS Paul flooded into security-conscious Mayport Naval Station, many carrying banners of support.

"This is just wonderful. I love the United States," said a young seaman as he surveyed the welcoming crowd.

A similar scene was played out in Charleston, S.C., where the guided missile cruiser Richmond K. Turner and two other ships steamed into home port after 7½ months of maneuvers. Like the Saratoga, the Turner played a role in last month's confrontation with Libyan forces in the Gulf of Sidra.

As the Saratoga approached the pier, a line of sailors in dress whites stood side-by-side on deck along the length of the ship. Family members, some with binoculars, strained to spot their relatives. Balloons were released, the throng cheered and a band broke into a welcoming song.

Many family members who had not seen their loved ones for eight months fought back tears; others let the joyful tears freely flow.

The Navy asked that the names of the arriving servicemen not be published for security reasons.

A 33-year-old crewman from Jacksonville held his 4-month-old daughter for the first time. She smiled at him.

"This is a great thrill," he said, choking with emotion.

The carrier had been scheduled to return home a month ago, but became embroiled in the confrontation with Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy. The United States challenged his contention that the Gulf of Sidra was Libyan territory, not international waters.

The Saratoga was one of three carriers that steamed into the gulf, prompting Libya to fire surface-to-air missiles at U.S. planes and U.S. forces to attack Libyan missile sites and several Libyan patrol boats.

The Turner was part of the battle group that conducted maneuvers in the Mediterranean during the confrontation, and it fired on a Libyan patrol boat, but was not one of the ships that entered the gulf, said Capt. John Luke.

The sailors interviewed in Mayport were virtually unanimous in their support of President Reagan and the recent attacks against Libya.

Contestants from about 20 colleges and universities are expected including both the WTC mens and womens rodeo teams.

Nightly rodeo performances will be Thursday through Saturday at 8 p.m. In addition, an afternoon competition is slated Saturday and Sunday at 2 p.m.

In a special event due Thursday and Friday a "calf dressing" contest will be held in which three-member teams from local businesses and organizations will compete.

The goal will be to dress a calf in bloomers, then to drag the animal across a finish line. Five teams will be entered nightly, making a total of 15 contestants in the arena.

Teams to be entered Thursday night will represent the City of Snyder water department; Snyder banks to include one team member from each; Snyder public school teachers; exes from Western Texas College; and the Snyder Daily News.

On Friday night, teams will represent the Snyder Police Association; Snyder Fire Department; Southwestern Bell Telephone; the ladies from the chamber of commerce; and a second team of WTC exes.

Friday and Saturday night rodeo performances will feature special appearances of the Six White Horses from Hardin-Simmons University.

Also on Saturday night, a homecoming king and queen will be named, selected from returning WTC ex-students.

Ticket prices for the rodeo are $4 for adults, $3 for students and $6 for box seats.

This year's rodeo is dedicated to the memory of former county office holders Eldon Perry and Bill Zimmerman. Perry served as county commissioner for Pct. 1 and Zimmerman as the county's adult and juvenile probation officer.

observances planned for Friday and Saturday. A wildflower symposium will be held from 9-11:45 a.m. Saturday in the WTC Fine Arts Theatre.

Guest speakers at it will include Mike Moeller, assistant commissioner of the Texas Department of Agriculture; Dr. Charles E. Shields, of the Department of Family Medicine at the Texas Tech Health Sciences Center; and Vernon Wesby of Kerrville, president of the Native Plant Society of Texas.

In conjunction with the Wildflower Day events, the Scurry County Museum is currently showing an exhibit of watercolor paintings which depict almost half of the flowers to be seen on the trail.

"This path has been set up to provide an opportunity for local residents to see some of the area's native plants in their native environment," said, Britt Canada, Wildflower Day committee chairman.

Walkers should allow about 20 to 30 minutes for the walk, he notes. Photographs are encouraged but participants are asked not to pick any flowers.

Stalin's daughter's leaves again

MOSCOW (AP) — Josef Stalin's daughter has left the Soviet Union for the United States, an airline official said today. It was the second time Svetlana Alliluyeva has left her native land in a restless odyssey to find happiness.

Heinz Lanz, Swissair manager in Moscow, said Miss Alliluyeva, the only daughter of the dictator who ruled this country with an iron hand for 29 years, left Moscow Wednesday on a Swissair flight to Zurich.

He said she was booked to travel on to Chicago the same day. There was no confirmation that she had arrived in Chicago, and no information on her final destination.
