Chest's Success Hinges On Efforts of Workers Tuesday

REPORTS DUE TODAY NOON- ON CAMPAIGN FOR $55,000

Committee Cheerful After First Half Day's Work

68 MEN IN DRIVE

Scores of "I Care" Buttons Already Seen On Streets

The "I Care" button, crimson symbol that Wichita Falls has a heart, blossomed again on the streets of the city yesterday.

Carried out on the wave of enthusiasm and bolstered at the start by a remarkable demonstration of co-operation, 68 business men left the Kemp hotel at noon to make initial solicitations for a $55,000 community chest fund.

And before nightfall, hundreds of little white badges with a bright red heart and lettering were flaunting from coat lapels the message that the wearer had done his duty to that civic element that needs a little help and cheer now and then.

Official statements as to the progress of the campaign will not be made until noon today and pending these reports, directors of the work maintained silence last night. It was, however, with undisguised glee that they watched the first forays through the business district and noted the Heart at Home.

I saw the grandeur that was Rome,
The glory that was Greece,
And then I came a-sailing home,
And found a land of peace,
And saw more grandeur in a day
Than all that ever passed away
In Rome, more things of beauty, too,
Than Greece in all her glory knew.

They showed me places in Spain,
And castles on the Rhine,
And then I came back home again
To this old land of mine,
And found that my own town, egad,
Had all the things that Europe had,
Yes, found this city of by own
Had roofs of gold, and walls of stone.

Six hundred years ago they built
A castle for a king,
With walls of stone and roof of gilt
And art and everything;
And people go there thousands miles
To marvel at those mighty piles,
While in our own land, so to speak,
We build a new one every week.

Go see the glory that was Greece,
Described in many a book,
And yet, before your journeys cease,
Give your own land a look;
It's only when back home he comes
A fellow sees real stadiums—
To see the grandeur that was Rome
The place to look is here at home.

When J. T. Harrell Signed First Contribution to Community Chest

The cameraman hung around the City National bank yesterday and here's what he caught. Just to give the drive a good start, directors and officials in the Community Chest Campaign persuaded J. T. Harrell, vice-president of the bank and president of the chamber of commerce, to let the photographer take his picture while he signed the very first check to be contributed to the chest fund after the 1925 drive actually got under way. Mr. Harrell is seen above filling in a substantial figure as his contribution. The gentleman on the left of the row behind Mr. Harrell is Hubert M. Harrison, general manager of the chamber of commerce and director of the chest campaign. Mayor R. E. Shepherd is looking over Mr. Harrison's shoulder with a complacent grin. Joe Art, chairman of the publicity committee for the campaign, looked up to see what the photographer was doing just as shutter snapped and accordingly he got a head-on view. The tall dignitary directly behind Mr. Harrell is Joe Huckins III, chairman of the campaign committee. Oral Jones, cashier of the City National, dropped in to see what all the commotion was about and stayed to make sure everything was put through correctly.

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Northwestern university students celebrating the achievements of the Purple football team tonight set fire to an unoccupied fraternity house, then engaged in a pitched battle with firemen and policemen until the police used tear bombs to drive them back.

Gathering on the campus about 1,000 men and women students waited until 9 o'clock when the old Phi Kappa Sigma house was fired.

Firemen were surrounded and their hose taken from them and turned on the fire fighters. Police were given an ever hotter reception and reserves with tear bombs were sent for. When the supply of bombs was exhausted the students again surrounded officers while another detachment started for the old stadium, consisting mostly of tiers of wooden seats, and announced they expected to fire it.

ALICE'S SKIN SHOWN JURORS IN KIP'S SUIT

Negress Exhibits Color In Judge's Private Office Monday

LETTERS UNPRINTABLE

"Mystery" Letter, Telling Of Salacious Incidents Read

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 23. (AP)—The last conceivable veil of reticence was torn from the Rhinelander annulment suit today.

Not only were the two "mystery" letters written by Leonard Kip Rhinelander to his negro bride, Alice Beatrice Jones, read in open court, but the defendant herself was taken into a private room so that the jury might determine the color of her skin with some of her clothing removed.

Day of Sensations.

It was a day of one sensation after another. Counsel for the contending sides dropped their usual urbanity and interposed objections to one another's questions; the defendant broke into copious tears and almost suffered hysterics and women were forcibly removed from the court room when they showed reluctance to give up their seats during reading of young Rhinelander's letters. The day, however, ended quietly when cross examination of Rhinelander ended and minor witnesses took his place.

When Lee Parsons Davis, counsel for Mrs. Rhinelander, at length barked "that's all." It was the end of almost a week of mental torture for the wealthy young plaintiff. Day after day he had been subjected to a merciless bombardment of questions on intimate details of his love life, culminating today in the public reading of two of his love letters, whose unprintable nature made it necessary to have the court room cleared of women. He was tired when the ordeal was finished. He slumped down in his seat and the minor actors in the drama took up their part.

Alice Leaves Court.

Mrs. Rhinelander suffered to. Clinging to her mother's arms she had left the court room while her husband's letters were being read. She returned, wrapped tightly in a coat, to play an active part herself. Mr. Davis wanted the jury to see for itself just what color her skin was in an effort to weaken Rhinelander's contention that he thought she was white. At first he wanted the court cleared, but Justice Morschauser suggested that the jury might retire to a private room. Mr. Davis acquiesced and the party, made up of Mr. Davis, Isaac C. Mills, Leonard's attorney, Justice Morschauser, a court stenographer, young Rhinelander, Alice and her mother, and the jury filed out. Alice was in tears and shaking with sobs.

Ten minutes later the party returned, Alice alone remaining in the jury room. "Was your wife's color just the same as it was at the Marie Antoinette?" asked Davis. "Yes the witness responded in a low voice.

Letters Are Read.

"The two mystery letters" were centered about events that took place at this hotel in 1921, when Alice and Leonard registered there for a week as man and wife. The threat of their introduction last week has brought two adjournments in order that Mr. Mills and associate counsel might investigate them. Their nature was admittedly so startling that reports rose that the suit might be withdrawn rather than have them revealed. Settlements ranging up to $300,000 were reported, but as quickly denied.

SPECIAL MEET CERTAIN SAY 50 MEMBERS BACKING CALL

Lanham and Burkett Send Resignations on Request To Governor

CALLED "DEPLORABLE"

Legislative Petition Says Highway Mess But "Trifling Incidents"

AUSTIN, Nov. 23.—(AP) Unless Governor Miriam A. Ferguson immediately convenes the legislature in special session, they will meet without her call, approximately 50 members of the legislature decided here tonight. They adopted a resolution which in effect is an ultimatum to the governor.

The petition asking Speaker Lee Satterwhite to call the extraordinary session has been signed by 52 members, three more than the necessary number. This petition will be presented to the speaker, only in event Governor Ferguson does not call the session. The ultimatum of the legislator follows:

"We are gratified to learn of the resignations of Commissioners Lanham and Burkett. The resignations, however, are trifling incidents in the present deplorable situation in Texas. The situation remains unchanged. In 1926, there will be expended just as much money from the highway fund as there was expended in 1925. The opportunities for extravagance, waste and mismanagement, and the temptations for 1926 will be equally as great as they were in 1925.

"The recent judgment of the district court of Travis county, followed so quickly by the resignations of the two highway commissioners, is conclusive evidence of the very urgent public necessity to correct by legislative assembly, the wrongs which everyone will now admit exist.

"This problem now has passed far beyond any consideration of personalities. It involves the welfare and best interests of the people of Texas. We believe that the chief executive of this state, realizing this existing situation, should convene the legislature in special session immediately.

"The issue is well defined; if the governor refuses to act, then it will be the plain duty of a sufficient number of the members of the legislature who believe in, and love Texas, to take such action to protect her welfare and her glory."

W. R. Montgomery of Edinburg, who delivered copies of the ultimatum to the press, said not more than five or six of the approximately 55 members present objected to language of the statement released for publication. The legislators were inclined to be reticent about what took place behind closed doors.

The conference was held in the banquet room of a hotel, dinner being served before the legislators took up the discussion of their course.

The governor had backed her appointees until early today when the legislators began signing two petitions. Governor Ferguson announced the resignations of Lanham and Burkett but has not indicated who will succeed them. She had requested both of them by telephone.

Hotel Lobby Crowded.

While the conference was going on, the lobby was crowded with scores deeply interested in outcome of the deliberation. Ghent Sanderford, private secretary of the governor, and Ernest May, assistant attorney general, were among those who waited word from the conference.

Speaker Lee Satterwhite said: "In event the governor does not call a special session of the thirty-ninth legislature by Dec. 15, by the power vested in me through this petition by the members of the legislature I shall call the session."

For two hours before the main conference started, a dozen of the legislators most active in demanding a special session were closeted in a hotel room. Among those in the room were W. R. Montgomery, Luke Mankin, author of the anti-mask bill adopted by the thirty-ninth legislature; T. K. Irwin, Lee Satterwhite, speaker of the house; Alfred Petsch, Claude Teer, Robert Bobbitt, and W. A. Williamson.

52 Sign Petition.

While the 52 members signed the petition to Satterwhite, 44 signed the petition to the governor, and 39 of the 49 members who were in the executive meeting signed the virtual ultimatum to the governor. Those who did not sign the ultimatum were T. J. Renfro, Harold Kayton, J. E. V. Jasper, S. J. Bird, Sam E. Bateman, John T. Smith, Sam D. W. Low, J. W. Stevenson, M. H. Hagerman and A. R. Shearer.

It is reported the ultimatum of tonight was adopted because Governor Ferguson ignored the petition presented to her early this afternoon asking for the convening of the special session. This petition was signed by 44 legislators. Announcement of the resignation of Frank Lanham and Joe Burkett, highway commissioner, may have been the governor's answer to the petition.

Three Crude Increases Evince "Bullish" Tendency of Oil M onday

TEXACO AND OTHERS MEET HIGHER MARK

Texhoma Increases Ten Cents on All Grades It Buys

The oil industry has started upward again.

Or, at least, that is the way north Texas oil men view a growing tendency to strengthen in both the refined and crude markets covering a period of the last seven to ten days, this tendency culminating yesterday in revisions of the crude price schedules o fthree major purchasing companies to conform with the slightly higher quotation of a strong competitor, the posting of a ten cent advance on all grades by a strong local independent, and a ten and twenty-five cent increase of Pennsylvania grades.

Two weeks ago, three weeks, ago, the industry was characterized as more or less balanced. Crude was fairly strong and refined prices fairly weak. The combination cut the refiner's margin of profit to such an extent to where any increase in runs to stills would have been, figuratively, "cutting his own throat," and runs were kept almost at a demand stage. The threat of an influx of new crude from the deep pay at Garber proved the other stabilizing influence.

Production Decreases

But with Garber looking not half so well, more likely salt water, in fact than the 100,000 or 150,000 barrels a day it was originally estimated at, and the American Petroleum Institute showing decreases in the national crude output over a period of several weeks, the tendency to strengthen has become much more pronounced, actually resulting yesterday in crude increases of a sort from three different sources.

In the last four or five years it has become the habit after a fashion to "raise in the winter, and cut in the spring." It will be remembered that the raise materialized last year in spite of Wortham's looming 150,000 barrels a day. Yesterday's increases apparently mark the first stages of the same late fall bullish tendency to the markets; the difference is that this year it has come between twenty and thirty days earlier than it did last year.

Schedules Revised

What happened yesterday is briefly this.

The Texas company, the Magnolia company, and the Humble oil and refining company revised its price schedule to show a decrease of twenty cents on 28 to 28.9 Baume, the lowest grade quoted, to an increase of twelve cents on 44 degrees and above, the highest quoted. The decrease on the lower grades is two cents smaller for each grading above 28-28.9, until 38-28.9 is reached, this grading being unchanged at $1.95 a barrel. From there on the prices are increased, two cents on the first grading above, four on the next, six on the next, and s con. On the most of north Texas crude, the revision amounts to a two cent increase, the grade 39-39.9 being raised from $2.01 to $2.03 a barrel. The revision meets posted price schedules adopted by Prairie and Gulf last August when the first cuts in prices were announced, and is made both in recognition of the growing strength of the market and in order to meet the increasing competition of those companies for crude.

Texhoma Increases

Second, Texhoma Oil and Refining company posted a ten cent increase in all grades. Its new price range from $1.63 a barrel for stuff below 32 degrees gravity, to $2.44 for oil of 44 degrees gravity or above. On the grade 39-39.9 degrees, Texhoma bests Prairie-Gulf, Texas Company-Magnolia-Humble by eight cents its offering being $2.11. The move is explained at the Texhoma offices in this way: Texhoma has always posted a price for the crude it buys and has only reluctantly departed from this posted schedule and entered the spot market. In order to get the crude it wants at this time it is necessary to pay an increased price. The company has elected to come into the open with its ten cent increase rather than play the spot market for oil. It is pointed out that the independent refiners have had to pay some sort of a premium for their oil for several weeks.

Pennsylvania Increased

Third, the usual precursor of a substantial Mid-Continent crude price advance came yesterday in ten to twenty fice cent advances in Pennsylvania grades. Pennsylvania has always had about the same relation to the mid-continent oil situation that Maine has had in national politics: "As Maine goes, so goes the nation." Corrolary, "As Pennsylvania goes, so goes the Mid-Continent." The price increase in Pennsylvania amounted to ten cents on the lower grades, twenty-five cents on the higher grades.

What To Look For

In the face of past annual experience in the industry, the decreases in Mid-Continent production and the small likelihood of any new increases, and the "staen" aspect of all the markets, other and more substantial advances would be surprising in the near future. This is, in brief, the concensus of opinion among certain market students of Wichita Falls, when asked their views of the situation yesterday.

hle, with a tendency to strength.

In the north Texas refined market gasoline for export is experiencing a good demand. Most of the buyers are in the market and 12 1-2 cents a gallon was paid for one order yesterday. This is about a quarter of a cent better than was being paid a week ago. Fuel oil was strong at about $1.35 against $1.30 a week ago. The increase on these two items alone gives the refiner about 5 cents a barrel increased gross proceeds from the barrel of crude run to his stills. New navy gasoline has not shown the strength of the higher gravities, however, about 9 3-4 cents being considered about right yesterday. The week had shown a slight weakening here, although the market steadied yesterday under the inclucnce of better crude prices.

It is generally believed that there is little likelihood of tankwagon increases of any sort at present for gasoline for domestic use.

Oil Field Briefs

Magnolia, Portwood.

Magnolia No. 2, Portwood, a location north of the No. 1, in block 1551, TE&LCO survey, northwest of the Harmel, southwest Archer county, pumped 76 barrels in ten hours from sand at below 1,340 feet.

Cole et al, Bryan.

Cole et al have some kind of an oil, reports to the Record News last night indicated, on their No. 2 Bryan, located 150 feet west and 150 feet north of the southeast corner of the north half of block 1367, TE&LCO survey, about two miles south and a little west of the southeast Litchfield production, north Young county. The well had sand at 958-61 feet and bailed some oil and a little water. It is just two locations west of the old No. 1, a dry hole. Further information was unobtainable last night.

Sun Company Pool.

Litchfield, Verschoyle et al No. 1, Young, in the southeast corner of the tract just west of Pandem, block 2432, southwest of Megargel have what looks like a 75 to 100 barrel producer from sand at 1,442-44 1-2 feet. It is going on the pump. The well will make some water. Location for No. 3 has been made 300 feet to the north and the rig is moving u pthere.

Sun Oil company was drilling in late yesterday on its No. 4, Richardson, a location west of the No. 1 and offsetting Litchffield to the south. Sand had been topped at a depth of 1,445 feet and drilled to 48 feet. Sun should be drilling in today on Nos 3, between No. 2 and 3 on the east line of the lease, casing having been set and cemented at a depth of 1,441 feet.

On the Simms-Pandem lease on the Cockrell, in 2432, No. 2, north of No. 1, tested salt water in sand at 1,445-48 feet, had a foot or so break of shale, and has set a string of 5 3-16 inch casing to test another sand at 1,449-51 feet. No. 3, east of the No. 2, was on the sand at 1,443 feet and setting and cementing casing.

On the Gulf Richardson lease in block 2424, No. 2, Richardson was setting and cementing casing at 1,445 feet yesterday, after getting a dose of salt water in sand at 1,425 feet. Nos. 3 and 4 on the west line of the lease are both drilling and should be completions by the end of the week.

North of the field between production and Megargel the Trinity drilling company, representing G. T. and W. railroad interests is down below 1,200 feet and drilling on No. 1, Covkrell.

SE Litchfield.

Tidal Oil Company apparently had about a 100-150 barrel well in its No. 7, Campbell, 660 feet north of the south line of the west line of their lease in block 1483, sand at 893-905 feet. The well is on the south edge of the pool, a location south of No. 6 which is showing for only about 15 barrels or better from broken shale and sand at 887-927 feet, with no water. No. 5, Tidal's northeast location, quit at 925 feet with no oil, a dry hole.

Camp Oil and Gas company has made a location and is rigging up for a test in the southwest corner of the southeast ten acres of block 1483, southeast of production in the field. Dry holes have cut off the pool in practically every direction except southeast.

Caldwell Area.

Petroleum Producers No. 1, Wolfe, in the SPRRCO survey, abstract 415, west of the Texhoma discovery well, was down below 1,100 feet yesterday and drilling.

Texhoma Oil and Refining company's No. 1, Abercrombie, in the southwest corner of the SPRRCO survey, abstract 1251, east of the discovery well about 350 feet, was down below 1,217 feet yesterday and drilling. No. 2, Oldham, in the northeast corner of the east ten acres of the tract pumped 47 1-2 barrels in fourteen hours from sand at 1,325-37 feet. Texhoma has made a third location on the Oldham, just west of the No. 2, probably 300 feet.

Caldwell Area.

Maer and Staniforth No. 1, Young and Langford, in the northeast corner of the Young and Langford tract, southwest of the Caldwell well and in central Archer county, had apparently missed the sand yesterday, after getting the lime about ten feet high. Pandem's north offset to the discovery well had made a small well, it was understood.

Lomax Area.

Lomax-Staley-Wynes No. 3, Wilson, in the northeast corner of the 37 acres in block 88, A.&G.N., central Archer county, looked like 100 to 125 barrels yesterday, sand at 1,513-23 feet. It was swabbing.

Burns and Maxson, No. 1, Wilson, in lot 41, Geraldine townsite, east of the old Sunshine pool, north central Archer county, was down 859 feet yesterday and drilling.

Ellsworth County.

The Continental Oil company was down 2,631 feet Saturday and drilling in its No. 1, Hughes, northeast of Wellington, Collingsworth county, Texas Panhandle.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflammed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed in the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga.—Adv.

very apparent earnestness with which the teams went about their labors.

These leaders conceded that only through intensive activity by the workers and whole hearted support on the part of the citizenship could the full quota of $55,000 be raised in eight hours. They were satisfied, though, with the first day's work and they found food for reflection in the fact that out of the 68 men whose time was enlisted for the work, only thee failed to show up at the noon meeting. These three were unavoidably detained and sent legitimate excuses. Their places were immediately filled from the reserve list and no delay was caused.

Team Workers Cheerful.

Team workers questioned last night united in saying they were cordially received and were not being disappointed by those they approached for subscriptions. In a good many instances, though, prospects were not in their offices and return calls must be made this morning. It is probable some of the prospects can not be approached before tomorrow, but it is evident that the bulk of the $55,000 fund can be accounted for by the time reports are made this noon.

All team captains and their workers will dine at the Kemp again today at a joint meeting of the Advertising club and real estate board. Another consignment of enthusiasm will be administered, with successful reports themselves, it is expected, providing most of the stimulant. If need be, the campaign solicitation will be carried on through this afternoon and into Wednesday. A second report will be made Wednesday noon at a joint meeting of the Lions and Kiwanis clubs.

Huckins Presides.

The Monday noon session was presided over by Joe Huckins 3d, general chairman of the campaign committee. The two principal addresses were given by Hubert M. Harrison, campaign director, who emphasized the care that must be taken in filling in pledge cards and in interviewing prospects, and by Walter Cline, who, in one of his inimitable little talks that always go straight to the heart of the matter, urged that the workers create in their solicitations an atmosphere of community interest, friendliness, civic co-operation and brotherly love.

Mr. Cline's remarks inspired the workers anew with the feeling that the community chest campaign is more than a commercialized proposition designed to discharge an arbitrary duty required of the city by its unfortunates. He reminded them that their solicitations were missions of service to the whole community—a service to the needy beneficiary of the fund, and a service to the men able to contribute. He concluded with a note of optimism regarding the campaign which will, he said, go over without trouble if the spirit of co-operation for which Wichita Falls is noted prevails in the present work.

Many Stores 100 Per Cent.

It was announced last night that a large number of business firms here have already taken up 100 per cent contributions from their employes. Big placards announcing the houses as 100 per cent strong in support of the chest are being distributed from the chamber of commerce office as fast as notification comes in that they have been earned.

EPIDEMICS OF MENTAL FOLLY

Following a revival conducted by two evangelists last week at a Southern college the faculty and students banished all symbols of "vanity and worldliness" in a bonfire fed by all library books on evolution, love-story magazines, lip-sticks and rouge and other wicked articles. The ceremony was marked by singing as the marchers carried the fuel to the flames.

No doubt there is a serene spirit of elation permeating the college today, but how long will it last, how complete this wholesale regeneration, the psychopathologists well understand.

There is great need in the United States for the serious study of psychiatry in the group aspect, a national institute patterned after that dealing with economics, which will frankly analyze group hysteria. This need was seen as long ago as 1913 by Sir William Osler at the opening of the Phipps Clinic at Johns-Hopkins. As his biographer, Dr. Harry Cushing, tells us:

He expressed his confidence that the psychiatric institute would play its part in the national campaign of prevention of mental ill-health—a campaign as important to the public as the great struggles against tuberculosis and infant mortality; adding that "it would be helpful also to study in a sane, sober and sympathetic way epidemics of mental, moral and economic folly as they swept over the country."

Well, the inquiry into epidemics of economic folly is every day widening and in the process of time we shall learn to apply the revealed knowledge, but epidemics of mental and moral folly defiantly forbid inquiry. Truly, as Dr. Osler said on another occasion, this is yet the childhood of the world and a supine credulity is still the most charming characteristic of man.

"THE ENVIABLE ONES"

Somewhere in his latest novel, "One Increasing Purpose," A. M. S. Hutchinson asserts that busy people "are the enviable ones." That philosophy was prompted because a girl in the story has set herself 10 years of labor, to meet the financial obligations of her deceased father.

That Hutchinsonian theory is not new. It accords with much the sages have said in commending industry, and deploring the evils of sloth and idleness. It is as old as literature, and must have had its place among the tribesmen before the dawn of history. But it remains one of those generalities that his age accepts with reservations, if at all.

There is actual happiness in work, if it chances to be the sort of employment for which one is suited. The artist finds joy in creative endeavor; sculpture, painting, poetry, music bring other rewards than the price of the finished product. The plowman, united to the soil, may get a thrill from the well-turned furrow, nor be blinded to the beauty about him by what were drudgers to others. So with other occupations. There is reward in work.

Yet there is merit to leisure, for those who use it well. This is recognized in the long struggle for shorter working days, for five-day weeks and regular vacations. It would be foolish to assume the workers were happier in the distant day when toil was so nearly all their lives. And surely the envied, if not the enviable, are those not bound to routine, nor servile through necessity.

There is much work to be done. Labor of some sort is the common lot. He is wise who learns to do his part of it without wailing or resentment, if the pay suffices. Even so, he would be foolish to see no more than work; foolish not to crave and demand his share of freedom from his tasks. They who are always busy are not the enviable ones. They may be too busy.

RECORD AUTO OUTPUT THIS YEAR

Now a trade paper says that the total production of cars and trucks for all of 1925 will be from 4,200,000 to 4,400,000 or a new high record. Germany is fifth in autos, an increase of 45 per cent, which includes American cars despite the high tariff laws of the Teutonic republic. Germany has one pleasure car for each 244 inhabitants. Berlin has one pleasure car for every 30 people. Germany isn't bankrupt.

Uncommon Sense

A FLYING START

It is never necessary to wait until the first of the year to make New Year's resolutions.

Planning to change one's life is far more important than planning a change in a house.

And no house owner would think of beginning tomorrow on a change in his residence which he had not thought of until today.

New Year's resolutions are always useful, if any real attempt is made to keep them.

Better even a month of careful living than none at all.

• • • •

The man who begins today to think about what he is going to do next year, and starts to do it so that he can have a little preliminary practice is far more likely to go clear through the year than the man who wakes up New Year's day to say to himself, "Henceforth I am going to cut out bad habits and behave myself."

Improving one's habits is all there is to what we call reform.

It is our habits which rule us.

The more firmly "set" they are the more autocratic they become and the less chance there is of getting free of their domination.

If the person who is dissatisfied with his progress will sit down today, list his bad habits, decide on the new ones and good ones he means to put in their place, he will have a flying start when the first of the year arrives.

No one is so good, nor so successful that a little amendment will not be of service to him.

Even if he has no vices, he is sure to have some habits which either tend to break down his health, or interfere with his happiness in some way or other.

It is these habits that New Year's resolutions are intended to break.

It is idle to say that "we are as we are, and cannot change ourselves."

• • • •

There are hundreds of people who do change themselves, who leave behind them old vicious ways of living, and become good and industrious citizens.

But to do this requires a great deal of will power, and a great deal of self sacrifice.

These things can be acquired. But they need thinking over and planning in advance if they are to be successful.

In order to avoid failure with its consequent despondency, in keeping New Year's resolutions, it is always a good idea to map them out in advance, and to consider ways and means to keep them.

Then when they are once made they will last longer—perhaps all the year around.

An the benefits conferred by keeping them for a year will be such that after that they will be renewed year after year, like profitable leases or contracts.

SIR JOHN FORTECUSE AGAIN

The recent publication in the London Times of an article on George III by Sir John Fortecue characterizing the original American stock as fanatical and criminal should surprise no one familiar with Sir John's previous effusions on this country. We learned quite a bit about his views on the occasion of his appearance here in the interests of the English-Speaking Union. His visit created some interest in his writings, and when it was found that he was so consistently insulting to the United States it was thought proper by the Secretary of War to cancel Sir John's promised Armistice Day address at West Point. His opinions may be in harmony with those of the English-Speaking Union, but they do not make for a closer friendship between the English-speaking nations.

It is unfortunate that so many of our English friends have just such quaint notions of history as those of Sir John. There are plenty of distinguished Englishmen who can contemplate America in a spirit of justice, but unhappily enough among the distinguished and the literary critics to make the protestations of friendship heard on state occasions sound like sarcasm. These latter play into the hands of those in this country who regale themselves by twisting the lion's tail. The fact that Sir John and some of the literary critics are insufferable bores does not make their anti-American jabberings any the less harmful to the cause of real appreciative friendship between the two nations, speaking the same language and cherishing many of the same traditions.

THE PRESIDENT GETS LEFT

Even presidents can be deserted by their wives, Mr. Coolidge found Thursday.

He and Mrs. Coolidge had just arrived in New York for a visit. Almost before the train had stopped, Mrs. Coolidge without so much as a "by your leave" was whisked away to parts unknown.

The president is reported to have been "slightly nonplussed at the sudden departure of Mrs. Coolidge."

It must be a bit disconcerting to arrive in a big place like New York and have your wife desert you in the station. Especially when the prominence of your position prevents you from making a scene.

The president was philosophical about the whole matter. He undoubtedly gave it a great deal of thought, but decided to go up to his hotel and sleep over the problem. It is possible to think of much worse solutions.

The wisdom of his decision was apparent when he awoke. There was Mrs. Coolidge waiting for him. She had spent the afternoon riding with friends and visiting art galleries. And to top it all off, she had passed up the attractions of a shopping tour.

The president really shouldn't worry. A wife who runs off occasionally, providing she runs off with the right people and doesn't spend anything, is a pretty good sort.

PETER'S ADVENTURES IN ANIMAL LAND

BY MRS FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

OLD OAK TREE TELLS A SECRET

"Peter's up to his old tricks again!" sighed the gentle voice that seemed to come from nowhere.

Cotton-tail was too startled to squeal, but nothing could get the better of the little brown bee's curiosity.

"What tricks?" she demanded in a sharp buzz.

"Just being kind and helping folks out of trouble!" The voice was now but a faint whisper. Cotton-tail pricked up his ears to listen. But the little brown bee grew impatient. She rose from the clover top, beating the air with her wings as bees have a habit of doing when they are excited. Of the three only the boy did not seem surprised. He smiled but said nothing.

"Who's speaking?" buzzed the little brown bee. And at this the leaves of a big tree close by began to rustle as though a wind were blowing through them.

"I, the spirit of the Old Oak Tree. Listen and I will tell you a story. Once upon a time there was a boy who was very lonely because he had no brothers nor sisters, nor near the farm where he lived were the neighbor's boys and girls to play with. So this boy, whose name I shall tell you in a moment, spent much of his time beneath my branches. I was lonely, too, and often I tried to talk to him, to tell him of my friendship. But the boy was thinking so hard of how unlucky he was not to have any playmates, that I could not make him hear me. One day while he was standing beneath my branches along came a man with an axe over his shoulder.

"What are you going to do, father?" asked the boy.

"I am going to chop down a tree for kindling wood, son' was the man's answer. 'Winter is coming and we shall need stout logs to keep the home fires burning. I rather think I shall chop down that tree you are standing under.'

"My end had come! At these cruel words I thought my bark would burst with terror! But before the man could strike a blow, the boy threw his arms around me.

"'Oh, father, please don't hurt this old tree. Why, 'tis my best friend. I love it!'

"The man looked surprised, but laughed. 'Al right, son, if that's the way you feel about it the old oak's life is spared. There are plenty of other oaks as good farther in the forest.' And when the man had gone the boy pressed his face against my rough bark and murmured:

"'I am so glad you are safe, dear tree.' I felt the sap melt within me. I had thought the boy selfish, and all the while he had been caring for me. Thanks to him I was still to remain in my old place at the edge of the forest, again to feel the rain and the snow and the wind upon my branches, to stand sentinel through the night under the silent stars. How could I reward him? For a moment I was puzzled. Then I knew what to do for him. I would give him the gift of understanding all living things both great and small; to every beast and bird and fish he should be able to speak in its own language. And I would give him yet more! He should have the magic power of growing to the size of the great Four-Foots, when with them he went adventuring, or of shrinking to the stature of the tiniest insect in the meadow. And when he was weary of strange things and people he should become himself again in a twinkling. Cotton-tail and Brown Bee, have you guessed this boy's name? It is Peter and there he stands beside you!"

"I THOUGHT MY BARK WOULD BURST!"

"Dear Tree, how happy I've been ever since that day when you whispered to me the passwords—'Watch, Listen!'—that would take wherever I wanted to go and bring me back again!" cried Peter. But there was no answer. Cotton-tail, who never stayed long in one place, had spied an especially tempting bit of clover and was off to sample it. The little brown bee had flown to tell the story she had just heard to her family. And the Old Tree, having said its say, was silent.

SAGITTARIUS

Today's planetary aspects are, from early morning until sunset, quite adverse. Thereafter, they undergo a decided change, and become actively favorable and stimulating vibrations will prevail. During the day, you should refrain, as far as possible, from making any important decisions, as your judgment will be affected by the inimical influences that are apparent. The signs denote that you will not experience any violent emotions of either anger or disappointment, but there will be sensed an inexplicable nervousness and restlessness. In the evening, all the worries of the day will have disappeared, and you will derive real pleasures from the recreations and diversions of the home or family circles.

Children born today will demand more than usual care, as they will not be inherently strong, and subject, in a marked degree, to the vicissitudes of infancy. Their recuperative powers will, however, enable them to "ride out the storm," if the masters of these little vessels steer them according to chart. A boy's character will be morose and, at times, sullen. He must, to counteract this disposition, be forced to associate with boys of similar age, and to participate in their games. A girl promises to be vivacious, full of spirits, and easily impressionable. During her early years, these qualities will charm and attract. Later on, however, care must be taken to tone them down, so that she becomes less impulsive and more circumspect and self-restrained.

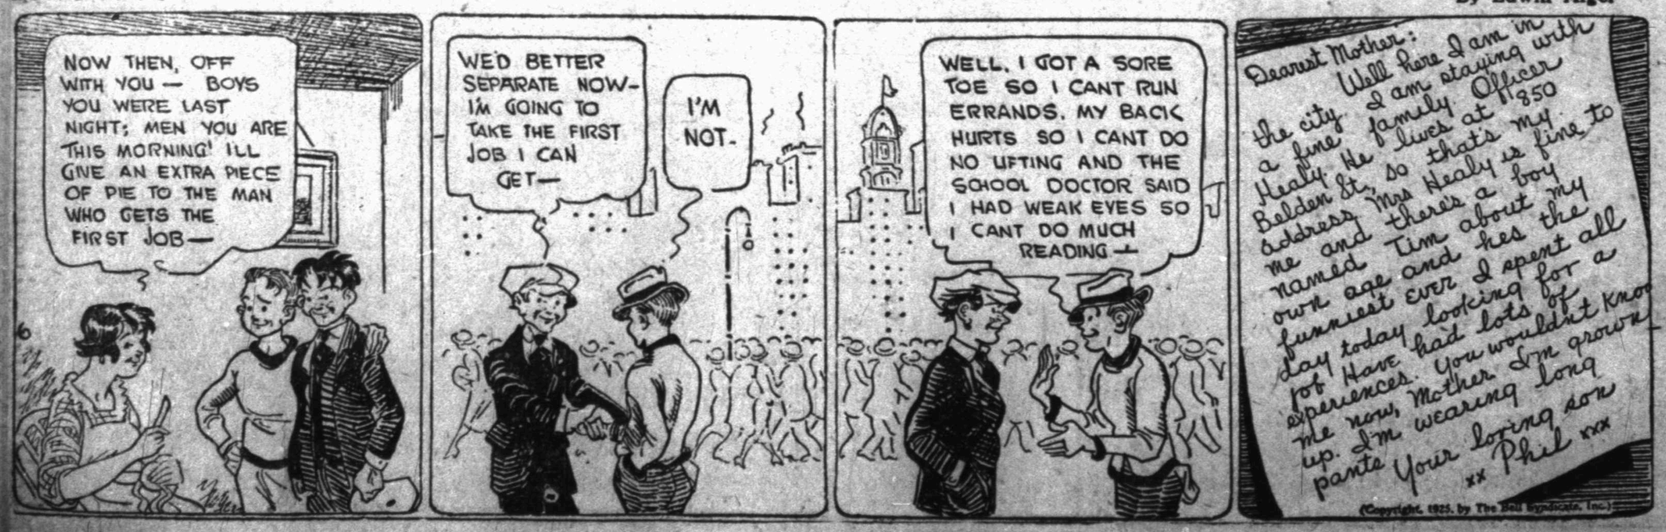

If today is your birthday, you are exceedingly self-contained, rarely taking anyone into your confidence and always working out your own plans without consultation with others. You are persistent and determined, and at no time willing to acknowledge defeat, until it is so palpable that it cannot be denied. Even then, you are not prepared to attribute failure to your own mistakes, but create alibis that may satisfy you, but never fool others.

You are very emotional in your love, and always ready to feel hurt when your strong emotions are not reciprocated as fully and freely as you think they should be. Your temperament is jealous, and often a slight incident, capable of easy explanation, causes you endless worry. If you could acquire the habit of talking over your difficulties, instead of brooding over them silently, many a heartache would be saved you.

SYNOPSIS

Connemara Moore is at the farmhouse of David Lacy, on Long Island, in company with Sweetie, a mysterious young woman whom she met aboard a no less mysterious yacht last night. To the farmhouse comes Aunt Celimena and Brewster, her lawyer. Connemara had slipped away from Auntie's Connecticut home on the night she was to have announced her engagement. Bing Carrington, one of her suitors, has been thrown off another yacht and has swam to shore.

"May I use your telephone? Important. Must get the police at once," chattered the amazing object that greeted the eyes of the servant. Bing was a thoroughly saturated, glistening visitor from an absolutely unknow world. He was a thing of many colors.

Before the blinking servant could muster the words to reply, or the strength to slam the door, a masculine voice called out from somewhere inside the house.

"Who's there? What's up?"

"God—God only knows, sir," cried the servant. "I never saw anything like——"

"I say," bawled Carrington, manfully pushing his way into the hall—"I say, look here, where's your telephone? Don't come down. I must get hold of the police. Oh, hello! There you are. I didn't mean to get you out of bed."

A man fully dressed, was coming hurriedly down the stairs. He stopped about halfway down, and stared at the strange visitor.

"Well, for the love of Mike!"

"Where is it?"

"You needn't be afraid of me," chattered Bing.

"Where is what?"

"The telephone."

"Oh, the telephone? It's out of order. Isn't working. Can't get central or anything on it. Ext, who the devil are you and—what's up? Accident?"

"You needn't be afraid of me," chattered Bing. Now, remembering what was said about the telephone, he added; "Did you say out of order?"

"I did. What do you want with the police? But first of all, can't I give you a nip of whiskey? You seem wet."

"Say that again, please," cried Bing, eagerly.

"You seem wet."

"I didn't mean that."

"Oh, I see. Henry, bring it into the library at once."

"I'll drip all over your rugs."

"Hang the rugs. No, that's what you do when you beat 'em. I don't know what you do when you wet 'em."

"Sorry to get you out of bed like this," apologized Bing, following the other down the hall, his feet squashing in a most lachrymose manner.

"Can't you see I've got all my clothes on?"

"Oh, excuse me. I didn't know but what perhaps you might have—ahem! Yes, as I was saying, there is no time to be lost."

"Now tell me all about it," said his host, a stout, middle-aged gentleman. Henry had returned.

Whereupon Bing, in as few words as possible, gave him a bald and discreetly incomplete story of his most recent adventure.

"My name is Merrill," announced his host, when Bing paused for obvious reasons. Mr. Merrill was evidently a man of action and resource. "Rum runners, that's what they are. Now, I have a brother, Bob Merrill—a good bit younger than I am He's in the revenue service. That is to say, he's a sort of volunteer Secret Service man. Amateur sleuth, you know. Terribly keen about it. Simply delights in chasing smugglers, shooting at 'em, and all that sort of thing. Keeps his launch just off my landing. He's been out in the Sound tonight, roving around, looking for bad eggs. By bad eggs I mean smuggies. That's what he calls 'em, smuggies. I heard the launch come in half an hour or so ago and tie up to the buoy. So I suppose Bob's out there now. He sleeps on board these nights—ready for anything, you see. Now, I tell you what we'll do. We'll get a rowboat, paddle out there, and get him on the job. He'll run these confounded pirates to earth or sink 'em."

"Well, that would be the same thing as running them to earth, all right. I suppose there's earth at the botom of the Sound."

"Lots of it. Largely protected by bottles. Come along. Let's be off. No time to lose. Ah, I beg your pardon. You must get into some dry clothes, Henry, take Mr. Carrington upstairs and—and dress him. Give him that grey checked suit of mine. Shirt, underclothes, and everything too. You certainly need a change, Mr. Carrington."

"Oh, I am perfectly warm now. Clear down to my toes."

"Well, I'll have another one waiting for you when you come down. About the same dose—or a trifle stiffer?"

"Suit yourself, Mr. Merrill," said Bing genially.

He followed Henry upstairs and in a very short time returned to the library, completely—or to be quite honest about it—rather incompletely attired in Mr. Merrill's gray checked suit. Bing was a tall, spare man, Merrill a short, pudgy one. It was a very fashionable suit of clothes, but it lacked cohesion when applied to Mr. Carrington's frame. The coat scarcely reached to the small of his back, there was a seven or eight inch gap between waistcoat and trousers, and nearly all of Mr. Merrill's white socks were exposed to view.

"You look fine," said Mr. Merrill approvingly. "Much better than you did a while ago."

Two minutes later they were hurrying down to the shore, and Henry was off to a neighbor's to telephone for the police. Coming to the end of the float, the two men stepped into a small boat and cast off, Merrill handling the oars. The tiny light of a launch could be seen a short distance out in the Sound bobbing slightly in the swell. The oarsman had not taken five strokes, however, before he stopped and uttered a mild imprecation.

"That dog-goned dog!" he exclaimed, peering over his shoulder. "Hear him? Hear the racket he's making?"

"I thought perhaps you had a small auxiliary engine up there in front——"

"Not a bit of it. It's Bugle's tail. Stop that, Bugle? Do you hear me, sir? Cut it out! You see, Mr. Carrington, on hot nights he comes down here and sleeps in this boat. He's a regular sea dog. Loves life on the ocean wave and all that sort of thing. He'd sing it if he could, wouldn't you, Bugle?"

Bugle rapped twice with his tail.

"He raps three times when he wants to say No," explained his master.

"What does he do when he doesn't want to commit himself?" inquired Bing, who was feeling very bland by this time.

"Simply holds his tail, that's all. But we can't have him along with us now. Get out, Bugle! Down with you. Go home!"

Bugle ignored the command. He refused to move anything but his tail. Mr. Merrill resumed his rowing.

"Oh, well—all right," he muttered. Now to his passenger: "Bob will find this boat you're talking about—the Filomena, did you say? And he'll make short work of the darned pirates. If they run for it, he'll put a couple of one-pounders into 'em, and sink 'em."

"Good Lord! He mustn't do that. He mustn't sink Aunt Celimena."

"I thought you said her name was Filomena."

"She isn't boat. She's Connie's aunt. She's a lady."

HOW IT STARTED

The Order of the Bath.

Few of us, even in this democratic America, are unfamiliar with the term, "A Knight of the Bath," or have not heard of the Order of the Bath, which is the largest English order, and the highest to which a commoner in Britain can attain.

Established in 1127 by Henry I who conferred it for the first time upon Geoffrey of Anjou, its name has been the butt of much witticism. It is an authenticated fact, however, that the name does take its origin from the process of the bathtub!

As an emblem of the purity henceforth required by the newly installed knight, a part of his initiation was the ceremony of bathing! Burke relates, for instance, that Lord Willoughby received "knighthood by bathing" from Edward II. And it was from this traditional detail that the new order established by Henry I derived its name.

The Order of the Bath is today the second order in rank in England, the first being the Garter.

SOCIETY

Following an annual custom, women of the First Methodist church met at the home of Mrs. P. P. Langford and dividing the day into morning and afternoon session, enjoyed an interesting program in observance of the "week of prayer" which is observed at this time of the year by all of the Methodist denomination.

The women of this church inaugurated the custom of observing the "week of prayer" with an all day meeting and program centering around two institutions of the church, one foreign and one home, in the year of 1893, and since this time these programs have been yearly events.

At the meeting held yesterday, the lesson centered around the Carolina and the Sue Bennett institutes. The former, a girl's school in Korea, and the latter, a school located in the mountains of Kentucky. Many interesting facts were brought out about both institutions, and a large offering was made for their support.

The program included devotionals led by Mrs. Hancock; a talk by Mrs. N. H. Martin; "Interesting Facts concering the Carolina institute" by Mrs. W. W. Silk; a talk by Mrs. B. P. Williams; music by Mesdames George Thorburn and C. Y. Tully; "Korean Customs and News" by Mrs. W. D. Cline and a special prayer for the Carolina institute by Mrs. W. H. Downing.

A luncheon plate was served at the noon hour, after when the afternoon session was opened with devotionals by Mrs. W. W. Cook. Mrs. A. K. Presson discussed the Sue Bennett school and Mrs. N. B. Chennult gave the story of James Lewis.

Mrs. C. B. Haynie gave a prayer of Thanksgiving and Joel McGregor sang a solo. Mrs. D. J. Carithers discussed the Bennett memorial and Mrs. C. W. Snider talked on "What Will Your Gift Be Today."

The program was concluded with the dismissal by Mrs. J. C. A. Guest.

Black, 78 years of age, who surprised the host and hostess by bringing with him a bride. The aged bridegroom had kept his plans a secret, introducing his bride at the dinner, which according to Mrs. Brooks, proved a "real" wedding affair instead of an anniversary celebration.

Plates were laid for Mr. and Mrs. B. Black of Wilson, Okla., Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Girard of Enid, Mrs. Kitty Black and daughters, Margaret and Cecelia and Mr. Robert Harwood, of Snider, Okla., and Mrs. C. H. Brooks and children and Miss Thelma Brooks of this city.

Friendliness among the southern people, especially the citizens of Wichita Falls, has caused much comment from two girls from Boston Mass., Misses Edith Robinson and Miss Ruth M. Bickford, who are guests of Dr. and Mrs. W. B. Whiting of this city.

The young women have just arrived from the east and express themselves delighted with this city. Miss Robinson is a graduate of a high school in Maine and a former student of the Washington State Normal school of Maine, and of the Bryant-Stratton business school in Boston.

As Written for the Record News By the Flapper Wife

READ THIS FIRST:

FLOSSIE and MARY ROSE MIDDLETON are two sisters, the daughters of a widowed mother. Both of them work for the Dexter Oil company.

Flossie, a beauty, helps to keep the files. Mary Rose is secretary to JOHN MANNERS, the sales manager and is deeply in love with him. Manners, however, is engaged to DORIS HINIG.

Mary Rose discovers that Flossie has been going on long drives with the president of the company, HILARY DEXTER. Dexter is a married man, the father of grown daughters.

When Mary Rose orders Flossie to return some valuable presents that Dexter has given her and never go out with him again, she threatens to go live with her chum, ALICE JAMES.

One night when the girls' mother, MRS. MIDDLETON, thinks that Flossie is spending the evening with SAM JESSUP, who is Mr. Dexter's secretary, Mary Rose and DR. TOM FITZROY find her in a private dining-room of a Seymour Road House. With her are Alice James, Mr. Dexter, and another man who they call "George."

She is deathly sick with an attack of acute indigestion. Tom brings her through it, while the two men sneak away, fearful lest Flossie die and they be dragged into a scandal.

Tom and Mary get Flossie home in Tom's car, only to be met by Mrs. Middleton, but for the present Mary keeps the story of Flossie's escapade away from her mother. Alice James wants Tom to take her home, but he refuses.

(Now go on with the Story)

Tom took his watch from his pocket, and looked at it.

"You can see for yourself—it's two o'clock!" he said, holding it toward her.

"Oh, what's two o'clock! The shank of the evening!" Alice retorted. "I've been out till three and four lots of times! You talk like a rube from a nine o'clock town!"

Her disgust was most apparent.

"It is too late for you to go home, Alice," Mary Rose said quietly. "You run upstairs, and take the spare bedroom. Mother'll give you a clean nightgown, if you ask her for one."

"Oh, fish!" complained Alice, flouncing away.

At the door of the room she turned and looked back at Tom, who was watching her with grave eyes.

"Goodnight, Hay-foot," she giggled

(Mrs. F. E. Cauble.)

suddenly. "Next time you come in to town, bring me some nice red apples, won't you?"

Mary Rose laughed in spite of herself. "She's a wild kid—" she began, and stopped as she looked up at him. His eyes met hers with a dull kind of hunger in them.

He gripped both of her wrists in his big hands. "Let's not talk about her," he said huskily. "I've had about enough of her and Flossie for one night. I want to talk about you and me. Are you going to go with me, tomorrow, and look at that little white house I told you about?"

He waited for his answer. She looked up at him, with the shadow of a dream in her soft eyes—the dream that every woman has of a house of her own. Of friendly grate-fires, and red geraniums in the windows, of lamps glowing in the evening dusk. Oh, it would be heavenly to have a little home, somewhere!

But—without love, would it be a home? Or only a house? Four walls, and a roof over them.

She looked up at Tom, and the tears that had held back all evening ran down her cheeks. She shook her head, and buried her face in her hands. "Oh, Tom, I'm so sorry. But I don't want to marry you, Tom," she sobbed, hysterically.

She felt his arms around her, holding her close. "All right, all right," he was saying, soothing her. "All right. You don't have to cry about it, Mary Rose."

He held her away from him, and looked at her wet cheeks and quivering mouth.

"Look at me," he said. She shook her head.

"Mary Rose, there's another man—somebody you do love," he said.

Slowly, with shut eyes, she nodded. "He's going to be married soon," she said with a gulp. "Isn't that just my rotten luck?"

She felt his hold of her relax. He picked up his hat and turned to go. But at the door she stopped him. She put her arms around his shoulders, and laid her cheek against the rough shoulder of his coat. "Oh, Tom, you're so good," she whispered sobbing.

He took her face between his hands, and kissed her slowly and deliberately. "Listen to me, Mary Rose," he said, "You think you're in love with this bird, now, and that your heart's broken, most likely. But it isn't. You're going to care for me. And I'm going to marry you, sure as death. Nothing in this world can stop me" —he kissed her again—"from having you!"

Then he went. Mary Rose stood like a statue, where he had left her until the purr of his car died away in the still night air. Then she took out her handkerchief and rubbed her lips with it.

As she was undressing before her bedroom mirror, the telephone downstairs rang sharply.

She ran down through the dark house to answer it.

CHAPTER IX.

Tom Fitzroy's voice came to her ear when she lifted the receiver. "Mary Rose?"

What in the world could Tom want, calling her at this hour of the night? And only a few minutes after he had left her, too.

"I—I j-just want to say I'm sorry I kissed you a while ago," he answered her unspoken question. "You didn't want me to, and I'm sorry I did."

She frowned in the darkness.

"Tom Fitzroy!" she said, lips close to the mouthpiece. "Did you get me 'way downstairs in the middle of the night, just to tell me that?"

In the pause that followed, she could hear him breathe. Then his voice, again: "Listen, Mary Rose, I've got to talk to you now. Tonight. You wait there for five minutes! I'm coming back!"

"Tom! Tom, listen! Are you there?" There was no answer, but she knew he was listening. She went on:

"Tom, if you come to this house tonight, I'll never speak to you, again! Talk about scandal! Why, it's almost three o'clock!"

"Yes, I guess it is," he answered, "I must be losing my mind—I never thought of the time. Well, I'll call for you tomorrow. Goodnight."

They rang off.

"Crazy, boy!" Mary Rose said to herself, as she climbed the stairs.

But she smiled at her reflection in the mirror of the old dresser, as she brushed her hair.

It was comforting, somehow, to know that even if John Manners didn't find her attractive, Tom Fitzroy did.

It was nice to know that even if she became an old maid, it would be because she wanted to be an old maid! And not because she had to be one!

She smiled again as she lay down to sleep away the three hours of darkness that remained of the night.

We are never so brave and carefree again as we are in our early twenties.

The passing years give us many a jolt and bang. And by the time we're thirty or forty, we learn to be wary of pain.

But twenty takes a mortal blow, lifts its head—and laughs.

And so it was with Mary Rose Middlton, when she awoke the next morning, fresh as a daisy. Her heart was as full of hope and happiness as a robin that sang, somewhere in the neighborhood, as if there was nothing in the world but sunshine and springtime.

"Suppose he is engaged? What of it!" she said to herself, thinking of John Manners as soon as she opened her eyes. "He's not married to Doris Hinig yet, and he may never be! There's many a slip——"

She sprang out of bed as the bells of the Catholic church rang at six o'clock. She bathed and dressed, making herself as lovely as possible for John Manners' eyes that day.

She was as careful about the brushing of her satiny bob as Flossie always was about hers. She polished her nails and rubbed some of Flossie's "Heart of Love" perfume on her soft skin. From the bottom drawer of the old dresser she took a pair of black chiffon stockings and pulled them on. Swung a triple strand of imitation pearls around her neck and stood back from the mirror to see the effect.

All her life she had scorned girls who "dolled up" for work as if they were getting ready to go to a party. But now, for the first time since she had left business college, her job was not th biggest thing in Mary Rose Middleton's life. A man was—and she was dressing herself, not for work, but for him. For John Manners!

"What are you getting all fussed up for?" a sleepy voice came from the bed. Flossie had wakened and was sitting up, rubbing her eyes.

"Oh, gee! But I'm tired," she went on, "I'm not going to work today—that's a cinch. My tummy feels like a bomb, getting ready to explode."

Mary Rose raised her eyebrows.

"Of course, it's none of my business what you do, Floss," she said very quietly, "but if I were you I'd go to work today, if I had to crawl there on my hands and knees. You weren't there yesterday, either. And it sems so unfair to lie down on the job, just because you happen to be a pretty girl, and Mr. Dexter has a soft spot in his heart for you—"

"Oh, blah!", snapped Flossie. "A girl's a fool not to use her looks to make life easy for her, if she can. If I were old and ugly like Miss MacFarlane, I'd know I had to work like mad to hold my job. But I don't have to—thank fortune!"

She held up the little finger of her right hand, and wagged it at her sister.

"I can wind Hilary Dexter right around my little finger," she said calmly, "And if I asked for Miss MacFarlane's job I'd get it tomorrow—and two or three assistants to go with it. There's nothing in the world Dex wouldn't do for me, if I asked him to—"

Mary Rose looked at her coldly. The look that a thoroughly good woman has for one who isn't quite so good.

"Just how far has this affair between you and Mr. Dexter gone, Flossie?" she asked. "You don't let him make love to you, do you?"

Flossie sat up in bed and ran her hands through her gleaming curls so that they stood up in sunshiny tendrils all over her little head. She laughed hysterically.

"Well, I haven't let him kiss me—yet," she said, "if that's what you mean. I'm not such a simp as all that, sweetie. I keep letting him think I'm going to let him. But I never do. See? That's my system."

To Mary Rose it seemed a shameful system. The friendship between her sister and Hilary Dexter struck her as shameful and shocking.

"And what about Sam Jessup?" she asked, as Flossie put her little bare feet out on the shabby rug, and stood up, stretching. "Even if Mr. Dexter seems to have forgotten that he has a wife, you might at least remember that you're going to marry Sam."

"Oh, Sam!" Flossie wrinkled her little nose with scorn. "I'm not so sure that I'm going to marry Sam Jessup at all, if you want to know! He's always going to be poor. And I'm terribly tired of being poor!"

She wailed as she went on: "Just look around you at this house, Mary Rose. This awful room—"

Her iceblue eyes swept it disdainfully. They scorned the ingrain carpet, the cheap wall-paper, the dim mirror of the old walnut dresser.

"I don't see anything the matter with this room, or with the rest of the house," Mary Rose answered sensibly. "It's not a palace, but at least we own it."

THIS WOMAN'S REMARKABLE RECOVERY

Entirely Due to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Forest City, Iowa.—"My first child lived only a short time and I was sick for a year after. When I bent over and raised myself up again I could almost scream with pain in my back. One day I was so bad that I had to leave my washing and get ready to go to the doctor. He gave me medicine but it did no more good than if I drank just water. Once when we had been in town a little book telling about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was left in our car. I have taken five bottles of the Vegetable Compound now and I do all my housework and help with the milking and taking care of chickens and garden. Besides I have a fine baby girl eight months old, just the picture of health and I am feeling fine myself. You may use this letter as a testimonial and I will answer any letters asking about the Vegetable Compound." — Mrs. OSCAR F. BORGELIN, Route No. 5, Forest City, Iowa.

Three Bills Talk Wages

A Fable Founded on Facts Concerning Your Money.....

Three One Hundred Dollar Bills met as they were going home after a year's work.

"How much did you earn this year?" said the Second Bill to the one with the big sack of money.

"About seven dollars," said the First Bill. "I certainly have a good job. I work with Cities Service Company. I bring home to my boss about seven dollars every year. It's a good safe place to work, too—never worry because there's three other bills the same size as I am to protect me and take my place, if necessary. And my boss can call me off the job to come home to him any time he wants to. I'm not under any time contract. But he never does call me off the job because he says he likes to have me work in a place where he doesn't have to worry about me and where he knows I am helping produce things that everybody needs every day. Says I am helping mankind to progress."

"Fine!" said the Second Bill, a little enviously, "I have a safe place to work, too, but I earn only about one-half as much as you do. Makes me feel rather lazy. I sometimes wish my boss would get me a job with Cities Service Company."

"Gracious!" lamented the Third Bill, "It makes me feel bad to hear you fellows talk. I haven't earned a cent for my boss. He won't let me. He keeps me in an old box up in the closet. I feel so useless. I don't feel a bit safe, either. If the house should burn down or a burglar get in, my boss would never see me again!"

MacMillan Chooses "A Well-Balanced Diet Built Around Meats"

Nothing developed on the trip to cause me to revise my idea about foods; which is that a well-balanced diet built around meats yields the best health results.

On the way north we had fresh domestic meat from the supply taken aboard when we sailed. After we reached the North we relied upon the wild life of the region, using seal, walrus, caribou, muskox, Arctic hare, and many kinds of wild ducks.

Every day we had fresh meat with plenty of fat at at least one meal and usually oftener when supplies were plentiful, and every one came through the four months in excellent condition; in fact, most of the members of the party gained weight.

While we often hear it claimed that eating too much meat is unfavorable to health, it is a fact that such ailments as gout, hardening of the arteries, and other disorders attributed to an excess of meat eating are quite unknown to the Eskimos who eat nothing but meat.

In my own experience I have never known anyone to attempt to live in the Arctic on a vegetarian diet. On the other hand, every Arctic explorer nowadays relies upon the native fresh meats as a sure preventive of scurvy, a much dreaded nutritional disorder which was prevalent in earlier Arctic experience times before we learned a lesson in diet from the Eskimo.

ONCE UPON A TIME — THE PUMPKIN PIE PRINCESS—VIII

by W. J. ENRIGHT.

THE STORY UP TO NOW

ONCE A PUMPKIN IN WHICH LIVED A TINY LITTLE GIRL FELL OFF THE WORLD AND LANDED ON THE MOON. THE MOON KING ASKED THE LITTLE GIRL WHAT HER PUMPKIN WAS. "MOST PEOPLE MAKE PIES OF THEM," SHE SAID. SO HE ASKED HER TO COME IN AND BRING THE PUMPKIN WITH HER. THEY WENT THROUGH A TRAP DOOR AND DOWN A FLIGHT OF MOVING STAIRS TO HIS CASTLE. AND HE TOOK HER TO SHOW HIS COOK HOW TO MAKE PUMPKIN PIES. "BUT DON'T SAY ANYTHING FUNNY," CAUTIONED THE KING.

THE JOLLY COOK CAME TO THE KING.

THE KING SAID: "COOK, I'VE SOMETHING HERE I WISH YOU'D TRY. IT'S NOTHING LESS THAN PUMPKIN PIE." "AND WHAT MIGHT THAT BE, YOUR HIGHNESS?" ASKED THE COOK, WIPING HIS HANDS ON HIS SNOWY WHITE APRON.

"IT'S DELICIOUS," SAID THE KING. "AND THE LADY ESMERELDA WILL TELL YOU HOW IT IS MADE." AND WITH THAT HE GENTLY PLACED ESMERELDA AND THE PUMPKIN ON THE COOK'S GREAT TABLE.

"I AWAIT YOUR ORDERS, MY LADY," SAID THE COOK. SO, ESMERELDA TOLD HIM WHAT SORT OF PAN TO USE, HOW TO MAKE THE CRUST AND ROLL IT, HOW TO PREPARE THE PUMPKIN, AND WHAT SPICES TO MIX WITH IT.

SPORTING NEWS — THE RECORD NEWS — FIRST ACCURATE COMPLETE

TOP O' MORN STUFF
By Blondy Cross.

THAT'S FOOTBALL.

Such are the breaks of the game. Post mortem comment from no less athletic authorities than Messrs. Roy Huddleston and Len Smith, two quite famous or ill-famous Wichita Falls sporting gentry, has it that had not Steed and Moore been out of the game with injuries McCallum's Coyotes would have defeated Amarillo Saturday hands down, thereby remaining in the Texas high school football championship race. And Mr. Huddleston also has kind words for Baggett's Vernon Lions as follows: "Now, listen! Wichita Falls isn't the only team in this section that can beat Amarillo. Vernon can do it, too."

Regardless of the fact Wichita Falls defeated Vernon and Amarillo stopped Wichita Falls, close analysis of the season's play of the three teams including the Wichita Falls-Vernon and Wichita Falls-Amarillo games conclusively places the Lions and the Coyotes as the better teams of the three. But Amarillo today is champion of North Texas and the Panhandle; the Coyotes and Lions are not. Such is the trend of football the nation over.

THAT EARLY BIRD.

It may seem rushing the season quite a bit, but Monday we ran into Lawrence Medford, manager of the American refinery baseball team, scouting for two outfielders and a pitcher. "That's all we need to put out a world beater next summer," chirped Lawrence, or words to that effect.

They can't quit.

Bud McCallum told the writer Sunday night: "Well, you can say in the morning that the Coyotes closed the season Saturday with Amarillo. Our Central game is off; the boys are all bruised up, so we'll quit for the year." "Hold on, Bud. Let's have a little leeway, so you can change your mind if you should happen to want to. Let's say we're undecided yet," we shot right back at him.

So Monday morning no official announcement to effect the team was through for the year was carried. And sure enough, Bud's taken another hitch and is trying to match a game with the Maroon of Austin high school.

We cast an eye over Duke Trammel in sparring action yesterday with Eddie Murdock over at Dick Griffin's gym. Man! man! if this youngster stays right in close to Griffin and absorbs the boxing knowledge the little fellow radiates with it may not be many months until Texas turns out a welterweight champion.

Trammel is 1,000 per cent better all around than he was during that slump in several bouts here last summer. The Fort Worth youngster is much faster, and lack of speed has been his great drawback all along. He's learning to use that left, something else he lacked in the past. And, best of all, he still appears to pack that abnormal punch which has made him famous in the southwestern ring sector.

THE DRAWBACK.

We've been watching Duke for a couple of years now. Two great flaws stood out in his makeup. The first was: too slow and not a bit clever. The other: an apparent lack of a fighter's heart, no ferocity of attack. And with the boys who can sock hard the winner either must be of the vicious, slam-banging type, or must be clever in order to get over. Duke was neither. He packed the punching ability of a heavyweight, but being slow for a man of his class, and entirely lacking in aggressiveness, the only savior for a hard hitter who is not nimble footed, he made some sorry showings against boxers like the fleet Clyde Hull and slippery little Tommy White.

GETTING CLEVER.

Whether or not Trammel is developing that necessary ferocity of attack is a quaestion. But there's one point certain: the Cowtown youth is getting clever. Yessir, slow-footed, stolid Duke Trammel is branching out with occasional bursts of surprising speed, an ability to tie his man up in the clinches and a refreshing finesse with the southpaw hook and jab which works his opponent into a position to be on the receiving end of that crashing right.

There isn't anybody who ever said Trammel couldn't hit with the murderous effect of a sledge hammer, for he can. But in the past he couldn't always get it over. Now, lighter by several pounds, trimmed down around the waist, speeded up considerably and with occasional flashes of real scientific ability cropping out every now and then in his recent performances he seems well on the road to the upper tier of welter pugdom.

THE POSSIBILITY.

If it be possible for Trammel to improve as much again as he already has the past two months before jumping off on that tour of the east he has planned for the early stages of 1926, the Fort Worth lad will make a name for himself. The fact remains that no matter how good you are you can't take a stiff wallop on the chin. The best of 'em will fall before Trammel if he can get that punch of his over, and he's learning fast. He's learning to be, not a two-fisted fighter, but a two-fisted boxer with a sock. There's death in either mitt, but heretofore he didn't know how to get either of 'em over. And when you develop a boxer who can punch, too, then you've got a near-champ if not a champ coming up.

DUKE FLASHES SUDDEN SPEED WITH MURDOCK

Cowtowner Looks Better Than Usual on Eve Of Bout

Duke Trammel, billed with Jimmy Owens of Oklahoma City in the legion feature bout of Wednesday's fight card, arrived in Wichita Falls Monday and went to work in the S12 1-2 Scott gym. Trammel appears to be in the best shape of his career. He's lighter and much faster than in earlier bouts fought here this year.

Owens is expected on hand today, according to Matchmaker Wofford.

That Trammel will need all his increased speed and ability to stop Owens seems sure, if you would believe Eddie Murdock, Wichita Falls featherweight, and several other boxers here who know the Oklahoman.

Murdock describes him as a fairly clever boy with a wallop, and goes further to say he's one of the toughest ever turned out by the Sooner state.

Eddie worked with Trammel later in the afternoon and it's safe to aver he'll be telling today that the Cowtowner hits the hardest of any fighter ever developed in Texas or Oklahoma.

Owens and Trammel are billed over the ten-round route.

Wildcat Monte meets Jack Ercanbrack in a six-rounder. Battling Kosse fights Martin Thrasher in a four-round affair. Zollie Combs and Sam Mitchell, negro heavyweights, also are billed for a four-canto fest. Roughhouse Smith and Fighting Jack a couple of paperweights, are slated for the curtain raiser.

Pup Cagers All Irked—No Court

Coyote Pup cagers are all in a stew this winter. Nope, they haven't lost a game yet, or anything like that, because the season hasn't started.

The trouble is all over the fact Monty's Junior high lads haven't an indoor court to work on. They used the old American legion court last year. It wasn't regulation in any proportion, but now this is gone, the legion gave up the lease.

There's a possibility the Pups may be given a shot at the Junior college courts, but these will be kept relatively full with the Coyotes and Indians working there daily when the season opens soon.

Monty has a likely appearing prospective squad this year. Brackett and Carter are expected to shine brightly. Then there's Nichols, Herndon and Powell who stack up as snappy material.

DICK BOXES MURRAY

Dandy Dick Griffin, Fort Worth bantom who takes charge of a gymnasium and boxing school here this week meets Eddie Murray in a ten-rounder Wednesday night at Enid.

Griffin will return to Wichita Falls Thursday, he said, to take up his gymnasium work. He plans no other matches the rest of the year out of the city, he said.

Watch Clara Five, Say Harrold Fans

The Clara basketball team stands a great chance to win the Wichita county championship, so say several Harrold fans. Harrold played Clara high school recently, and won by an 18 to 16 count. An extra five minutes of play was needed to decide the issue.

The play of Orlen "Curley" Walkup, and J. O. Seehon featured the game from a Clara standpoint. These lads went wild in the late minutes of the contest to overtake a big lead Harrold had piled up.

MASON DECLARES HE'LL BEAT MATSUDA IN PRELIMINARY TO SANTEL PAPPAS MAT BATTLE

All Principals Of Tonight's Wrestling Card On Hand Monday Rearing For Action

With all principals reporting Monday, everything was declared in readiness for the staging of the Wichita Falls wrestling association's mat card this evening in the Majestic theatre at 8:30 o'clock.

Gus Pappas, Greek light heavyweight champion, who meets Ad Santel, undisputed world's light heavyweight king, breezed into the city Monday evening, saying he is primed for action.

Santel has been on hand for several days.

Matty Matsuda, welterweight champion, who meets Charley Mason, champ middleweight grappler of the northwest, arrived from El Paso Sunday night but ran up to Lawton yesterday on business. The Jap will return this morning.

Two Matches

Mason showed up Monday afternoon. The card is to be composed of two matches, Matsuda and Mason hook up in the opener, a match which should prove quite attractive to lovers of the mat game.

Santel and Pappas wrestle the final bout.

The bringing of the light heavyweights is but the initial step toward the staging of a series of matches between top-notchers of the heavier class here, according to Matchmaker Ross. Strings are out, said Ross, to bring one of the world's leading heavies to Wichita Falls to meet the winner.

Matty Always Wins.

Although the Santel-Pappas match ranks up as the strongest billed for Wichita Falls in a number of years, many wrestling enthusiasts are not overlooking the Matsuda-Mason affair.

Matty has performed before Wichita Falls fandom on several occasions, and every time he came away the victor. He took 'em all, large or small, and none of 'em could beat him. Has at work has developed quite a following here whether friendly or otherwise.

In going against the heavier Mason, who stacks up as one of the best at his weight, Matsuda faces quite a likelihood of being beaten at last.

Mason has met and defeated a number of the headline middleweights. Some of the toughest, and any close follower of the game will tell you these babies are mean ones, Mason has tangled with are Ira Dorn, Peter Bugnkos, Pat Brown and Walter Miller. Mason beat Miller for the middleweight championship of the northwest.

Mason intends making Wichita Falls his headquarters, so he particularly has his heart set on pinning Matty, and he appears confident he can turn the trick.

"I'm all ready for the bout," Charley said last night, "and I think I'm a sure winner. No, I'm not underestimating Matsuda in the least. He has a fine record, but I expect to be there all night if it takes that to beat him."

RED SURE TO FATTEN ROLL IN NEXT TILT

Fandom Rushes Office For Pasteboards to "The Grange Game

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Professional or amateur, the public is so heated up over Harold "Red" Grange, that a capacity crowd of 50,000 persons is assured when he makes his professional debut with the Chicago Bears in the Chicago National League park Thanksgiving day.

When the 28,000 reserved seats were placed on sale today, two lines of purchasers, each a block long, formed at ten o'clock and seven hours later appeared to be even longer. Traffic was tied up by the crowds which jammed the downtown ticket office until half a dozen policemen were assigned to keep the lines in order.

The 28,000 seats were sold before night, those falling into the hands of scalpers selling for $15 and some for $25. The standing room and bleacher seats will be placed on sale tomorrow.

Nobody wanted a ticket because it was the Bears or Cardinals playing—they all wanted tickets for "the Grange game." Because of the tremendous advance sale an indications of a standing room capacity the latest receipts $90,000. All of this means gold for Red's pockets for his contract provides for a general cut of the gate receipts.

NICHOLS READY FOR CAGE

Red Nichols, Coyote Pups center, says he's ready for basketball where he hopes to land another center position. Nichols is a well built chap for this position, being taller than the rest of the Pup candidates.

Games Everywhere But Not In Wichita Falls Turkey Day

High school football teams of the Wichita Falls section have been eliminated from the championship race. Nevertheless, the gridiron game runs wild Thanksgiving day over the section.

Burkburnett's Bulldogs attack the Tigers in their Electra stronghold. Vernon high gridders will endeavor to defend the fortress from assault by Oak Cliff's Leopards. Bowie plays Nocona. Archer City's Wildcats battle the Olney Hillbillies.

Then, of course there's quite a bit of Wichita Falls interest attached to that Junior College clash down at Decatur. But with it all, no game has been carded for Wichita Falls. The senior high school may play at Austin. The Junior high hasn't anything on the program yet.

HUMBLE BEATS TRINITY.

Bi-District B Champs Tangle With Beaumont Next.

HUMBLE, Nov. 23.—The Humble high eleven defeated Trinity high here today, 26 to 0, in a bi-district game of the University of Texas Interscholastic league. The victory places Humble a notch higher in the scrap for the state title.

Humble is a class B team, but the eleven must now face Beaumont for the championship of Southeast Texas.

OWL CHANCES LESSENED

Hoculi, Murray, Williams Out Of Baylor Game.

HOUSTON, Nov. 23.—Chances for a Rice Victory over the Baylor Bears were materially lessend Monday when Coach John W. Heisman announced that three of his first string men will be missing from the lineup Thursday when the two clubs meet for the last game of the season. The Owl coach has made known the fact that Paul Hoculi, halfback, George Murray, fullback, and Sam Wilson, guard, will not be in the lineup Turkey day.

Why a Thanksgiving game!

Conference Ends.

Critics around the Southwestern conference area are inclined to believe this year that the choice of all-conference wingmen must be the best of mediocrity. They are beginning to look backward and lament for the ends of 1924. Yet last year there was really only one first-class all-round extremity warden and the two next best had defects in play. 1925 will not compare over-badly with 1924.

Those who seem to stand out above the field: the Key and Dawson of SMU (if Key's October failure is overlooked for his play in conference games. Newell of Texas, Coats of Baylor (if considered instead of tackle), Ward of TCU Joseph of Rice, Parker of Arkansas and Deutel of A&M.

From the Texas viewpoint, Key looks like the best wing the Longhorns faced all year, since that day he flamed into a good pass receiver as well as a superb defensive player, although his interference running left something to be desired. Coates suffers by frequent shifts and the ill luck of his team. Newell and Joseph have both looked like extremely good ends at times, improving as the season advanced. Newell's game against Baylor, although his injured hand had not entirely healed, was one of the season's classics.

The pass has been used so much that nearly all of the candidates have had chances to prove good receivers, but the most effective passing has been to halfbacks. Only Dawson and Key have caught any great number of flings in conference games.

Woman's virtue is not dependent on her hair, says archbishop of Paris. He has nothing to say about the bald-headed men.

Bill Holloway, the plumber, suggests that the reason many colleges suspend a student who gets married is that most college professors are married men.

They try to make the penalty to fit the crrime.

Not the Method But the System

Col. Chauncey Brown, opining in the Dallas News on this and that, finds that there can be little legitimate complaint over the Southwestern conference's method of fixing a football championship, pointing out that the table as it stands today represents fairly the standing of the teams.

Granted. But the fact remains that there can be no fair championship under the system employed in football as in baseball and basketball, that each team must meet all of its rivals—not an impossibility, but an impracticability. And the further fact remains that the conference is still usurping the prerogative of the sport page in awarding any championships at all.

Nearly any scoring system the conference has used has been fair. It has only been when it sought to go beyond the letter of its own law that it gave birth to argument. But rules or no rules, a fair estimation of a championship can be reached any year without conference help.

Dr. Wilce assigns the mud as his answer to the question, why so many seemingly weak teams have defeated so many seemingly strong teams this season. Might it not be that some are only seemingly weak and others only seemingly strong?

Once In 10 Years.

Here is a little thing for the gentleman who gives points to figure on this year at College Station:

1925 is the 10th season since the score in the annual struggle between the contending teams has been greater than a margin of seven points.

1916 was the year that, fortified with Rip Lang's kicking and Casey Traube's speed, Texas defeated the Aggies 21 to 7. The year before, the season that marked the resumption of athletic relations after three years abstinence, the Aggies had won, 13 to 6, making one first down, a touchdown, to do it.

But from 1916 on, it has been different.

The Aggies won 7-0 in 1917, 1918 and 1919.

Texas won 7-0 in 1918, 7-6 in 1920, played a scoreless tie in 1921, won 7-6 in 1923 and again in 1924. There was small comfort in any of those years for the point giver.

In the 10 years of play since relations were resumed, Texas has won five, Aggies four and there has been one tie. Pretty close work.

ALL'S QUIET ALONG WICHITA FALLS SPORT FRONT AS GRID SQUADS PIPE DOWN FOR DAY

Tribe Conditions For Decatur Encounter, But Coyotes And Pups Have No Games Carded

All was quiet along the Wichita Falls athletic front Monday, barring the swish of gloves as legion mittsters romped through their training paces at the S12 1-2 Scott gym, and leaving out the guttural murmurings of wrestlers billed on tonight's mat card as they uttered the usual throaty prebout defi's.

Bube Mosley sent his warlike Tribe of Junior college moleskinners through what the hack writer would term a brisk workout. But scrimmage was nil. The squad took on a bit of heavy running and signal drill as conditioning process for the Thanksgiving Day game with Decatur college at Decatur.

Bud McCallum's tired and worn Coyote machine took a day off. There was no activity on the Coyote Pup's field either. Both McCallum and Montgomery were endeavoring to line up contests for this week. Turkey day engagements being desired.

Rooters to Decatur.

Monty declared he had no particular club in mind for the Pups to work with, but said he's on the lookout for anything which may show up.

McCallum hopes to bill a game with Austin high school at Austin. He said he expected no answer on the matter before this afternoon.

Junior college students plan to obtain a special coach to take a band of rooters and the Indian squad to Decatur. Arrangement has not been completed yet.

Deems Out.

Dummy Deems, first string quarter who alternates with Jack Thurman, and Willie Saunders, guard, were declared ineligible Monday. But it was said both still stood chances of bringing their scholastic work up to the mark required before students can participate in athletics at the school.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 23.—(AP)—The cotton market was fairly active today and was sustained largely by the strength of near positions particularly December, based on a belief that tenders on December contracts would be light both here and in New York tomorrow, first notice day, owing to the small certificated stocks in both markets—6,829 bales here and 29,640 in New York. There was also a tendency on the part of some traders to lower crop estimates.

At the highest of the morning prices showed gains over Saturday's close of 23 to 36 points. Prices eased off during the afternoon on liquidation and profit taking but prices were more or less supported until in the final trading there was a sharp decline in near position owing to liquidation by longs in advance of notice day. The close was a little above the lows showing a net loss of one point on January and a net gain of one point on December while later months gained 10 to 11 points.

At the start the market was firmer in sympathy with Liverpool and first trades showed gains of 11 to 23 points. After easing off a few points after the call the market advanced on the firmness of near positions based on expectations of small issue of notices for December delivery tomorrow. There was rather fair liquidation following the early advance and December traded down to 20.16, January to 20.02 and March to 19.62 or 16 to 28 points under the early highs. Prices soon rallied, however, and before noon made new highs at 20.33 for December, 20.26 for January and 19.91 for March or 23 to 36 points above the previous close.

The market was easier during the afternoon and made new lows on near months in the final trading, December trading down to 20.04 and January to 19.95 or 29 to 31 points down from the highs. The close was little above the lows.

Exports for the day totaled 22,159 bales.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Cotton futures closed steady at net 6 points up to 13 points down.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(AP)— A further advance in the cotton market today met realizing sales and after selling at 20.47 January declined to 20.15, closing at 20.16 compared with 20.10 at the close Saturday. The general market closed barely steady, net six points higher to 20 points lower.

The opening was firm at an advance of 14 to 35 points under continued buying stimulated by the official crop and ginning figures of Saturday. Initial prices brought in a good deal of profit taking, but early offerings were absorbed on slight set backs and buying on the bullish view of the latest crop forecast was promoted by relatively firm Liverpool cables. Houses with continental trade connections were reported among the buyers and there were private reports of buying by both exporters and domestic mill interests in the southern spot markets which may have contributed to the advance.

After selling at 21.42 early, December was relatively easy, but March worked up to 20.53 in the early afternoon and at the best prices of the day, the market showed net gains of 28 to 42 points and recoveries of about 143 points from the low level of Saturday morning. The demand then tapered off, while the relatively easy ruling of December seemed to stimulate profit taking by scattered buyers of later deliveries and the afternoon market was easier. December broke to 20.93, a net decline of seven points and the December premium over January narrowed from about 100 points in early trading to 79 points at the close. There was switching from December to January and March and these two positions ruled relatively firm, showing advances at the close while other deliveries were lower.

Tomorrow will be the first December notice day and it was rumored about 25,000 bales of cotton out of the certificated stock might be tendered.

Exports today 21,659 making 3,329,223 so far this season. Port receipts today 57,607. U. S. port stocks 1,422,147.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—(AP)—General selling largely of a profit taking character led to sharp set backs today in the price of wheat. Much of the selling appeared to result from talk which was current that advances of late had been too rapid, and that a reaction was to be expected. Wheat closed nervous, 1½ to 2¼c net lower, new style, December 1.58¾ to 1.59 and May 1.55¾ to 1.55½, with corn ¾ to ⅞c down, oats ⅜ to 2c off, and provisions varying from unchanged figures to 35c decline.

All deliveries of corn sold nearly at the lowest prices yet this season. Fine weather prevailed, and consignments of corn are increasing. Oats sympathized with corn.

Provisions reflected a decline in the value of hogs and in corn as well.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Stock prices broke sharply again today when selling pressure was renewed against the motor shares. Closing quotations disclosed a large number of losses ranging from one t oten points. The volume of trading fell below two million shares for the first full session since October 8, the day's total aggregating 1,732,000 shares.

There was nothing in the day's news to account for the reaction, which was generally accepted as a further correction of the weakened technical position resulting from the speculative excesses of recent months. The opening was irregular, but prices gathered strength in the late morning and early afternoon, leading to the belief in many quarters that the market was again fundamentally sound. The late break, therefore, came as a surprise and led to heavy liquidation for both accounts.

Motors showed a marked absence of effective buying support. Chrysler broke from 187 to 175, where it was nearly ten points off on the day. General Motors, selling ex-dividend, registered a net decline of seven points at 100½ and Fisher Body sold off 6¾ to 89¾. Hudson dropped from 93¾ to 88 and then rallied to 89, off 2¾ and Mack Trucks showed a net decline of about a point at 213¾, after having sold as high as 219¾.

Oils developed a temporary outburst of strength in response to an increase of 25 cents a barrel in Pennsylvania crude prices and reports of stiffening gasoline prices, but the early gains were substantially reduced or wiped out in the late wave of selling. Pan-American B was heavily bought on the announcement that another well, flowing 40,000 barrels a day, had been completed on the Tierra Blanca district of Mexico making the second gusher there within a week.

A rather thin market developed for some of the high priced industrial specialties. DuPont broke from 215 to 200 and then rallied to 204 off 9¾. American Brake Shoe and Foundry fell over ten points to 133 and then rallied to 135, and Chicago Pneumatic Tool, Coca Cola, Foundation company, General Electric, International Shoe, Loose Wiles Biscuit, United Drug, United Fruit, U. S. Rubber and Woolworth showed net losses from about four to six points.

Standard industrials lost ground with the rest of the list. U. S. Steel common showed a net loss of 2¼ at 127½ after selling as high as 131¼. Baldwin dropped 1½ to 122¼ and American Can showed a net loss of one point at 241½.

Rails showed better resistance to selling pressure although losses of a point or more were recorded by Atlantic Coast Line, Baltimore and Ohio, St. Paul preferred, Chicago and Northwestern, New York Central, Union Pacific, Great Northern preferred, "Nickel Plate," Southern Railway and a few others.

There were a few independent strong spots. Federal Mining and Smelting which sold at 15¼ this year, touched a new high record at 86 and then eased to 83, where it was up 8½ points on the day. General Baking jumped six points to a new top at 256 on one sale. Good buying also was noted in Gold Dust, Mathieson Alkali and United Cigar Stores.

Despite the sharp shrinkage in excess reserves shown in last Saturday's clearing house statement call money renewed at 4½ per cent, holding steady at that figure all day. Time loans and commercial paper rates were uncharged.

Foreign exchanges were irregular. French francs duplicated the year's of 1.87 cents on selling inspired by the defeat of the Painleve ministry and then rallied slightly on the announcement that Aristide Briand had been asked to form a new French cabinet. Demand sterling held fairly steady at $4.84⅛ and Italian lire rallied about five points to around 4.05 cents. Polish zlotys broke 40 points to a new low record for the year at 14.80 cents.

Livestock

TEXAS LIVESTOCK

FORT WORTH, Nov. 23.—Generally steady market conditions prevailed in the cattle division at Fort Worth Monday. Receipts were estimated to reach the proportions of 5,500 head of cattle and 3,000 calves. A very large quota of the cattle supply ran to stockers and feeders.

Beef steers were relatively scarce, the trade showing some little activity, and holding just about in line with last week's close.

Fat cows were scarce, but salesmen were in possession of a fair showing of low-costing kinds. Trading ruled moderately active and prices were well in line with last week's close. Canners closed around $2.25 to 2.65, cutters brought $2.75 to 3.25, and desirable fat cows made $4 to 4.50.

Receipts of heifers and yearlings were small, as usual. The run offered only a few drafts that were very useful. All kinds cleared without being peddled.

Bulls were purchased at values that were in keeping with last week's lower schedule. The best of the run made $2.50 to $3.50.

Desirable calves sold readily, good heavy going at $7 and some grades moving around $7.10. Other classes did not sell until rather late in the session and the market closed 25c lower.

Demand for stockers and feeders held up in spite of the large run. A feature was the sale of a ten-car string of good feeder steers at $7.50, their average weight being slightly over 1,000 pounds. Good stock cows brought $3.75 to 8.75.

Shippers, packers and order buyers were in the market for hogs, and not more than 500 head were actually available. Total receipts reached 1,000, but half of the number came on direct billing to local packers. The market displayed an uneven trend. Butchers and shippers made purchases at values that were fully steady, while the big packers secured their droves, small as they were, at a decline of around 10 cents. A butcher paid $12, and several drafts went at $11.75, but the top to packers was $11.70. A range of $11.40 to 11.70 applied to the bulk of the run. Trading was active, the yards being cleared by 11 o'clock. Nothing much was available for pig traders, the market being a nominal affair.

The estimate was for 3,000 sheep, arrival including a few decks that were on through billing, and sixteen decks that were brought in by feeder buyers, but placed on the open market. Trading made fair progress, the opening developing a generally steady trend. Some desirable feeder lambs went at $13.00, but nothing was choice enough to bring out the full strength of the trade. Moderately useful shorn wethers cleared early at $8.25. Feeder yearlings brought $11.50. Two decks of fat goats made $3.00

Cattle 8,500 including 3,000 calves; market steady; beeves $4.25@7.75; feeders $3.50@7.75; fat cows $3.25@5.00; cutters $2.75@3.25; canners $2.25@2.65; heifers $3.50@8.50; yearlings $3.50 @ 9.00; bulls $2.50@3.75; calves $3.50@7.50.

MARKET GOSSIP

R. B. Flowerree and company, brokers Staley building, today received the following market comment from Fenner & Beane of New York, New Orleans and Chicago.

Cotton

Cotton was strong most of today owing to prospects of small tenders on December tomorrow and a report published in New York newspapers to the effect that members of crop reporting board are in doubtful if the total crop predicted by them will be gathered.

Ring traders were bearish at the start and inclined to sell on good weather, but the resistance of the market soon discouraged activity on the short side.

Later in the day considerable covering developed and prices sold about 25 net higher, but lost it all in the late trading, closing about unchanged.

Tomorrow's market will be governed largely by th amount of cotton tendered on December contracts. That position acted tight and there is said to be a large short interest in it in both markets.

When the orchestra stops its surge of music—and the applauding couples begin to leave the floor—when you join the good fellows for jolly talk and friendship

—have a Camel!

WHEN the orchestra gives you encore after encore, but finally stops. And the couples glowing with happiness reluctantly leave the floor. When you join the men for jovial talk until the next dance begins—have a Camel!

For no friend so enhances the joys of life as Camel. Camel makes every happy occasion happier, adds its own charm to every festive day, every blithesome evening. Camels contain the very choicest tobaccos grown in all the world. They never tire your taste, no matter how freely you smoke them. They're so skilfully blended they never leave a cigaretty after-taste. Rolled into Camels is every good feature you have ever wished for in a cigarette.

So, when you're waiting happily and confidently for your time to rejoin the dance—taste the smoke that's known and loved by the world's experienced smokers. No doubt about it, you'll never know how good a cigarette can be until you—

Have a Camel

Camels contain the very choicest tobaccos grown in all the world. Camels are blended by the world's most expert blenders. Nothing is too good for Camels. In the making of this one brand we concentrate the tobacco knowledge and skill of the largest organization of tobacco experts in the world. No other cigarette made is like Camels. They are the overwhelming choice of experienced smokers.

Our highest wish, if you do not yet know Camel quality, is that you try them. We invite you to compare Camels with any cigarette made at any price.

Millions Die Of Indigestion

Most Common, Yet Insidious Of Fatal Diseases, Strikes Like Lightning and When Least Expected.

Protect Yourself by Strengthening Your Digestive Organs With Farraline—Then Eat What You Please Without Trouble.

Nature, with her infinite wisdom, has provided in Farraline a quick and sure relief for the millions who are living in constant fear of that dreaded disease—Indigestion. Farraline is not a concoction made by man, but is a strictly natural product and contains the essential elements which Nature has provided to strengthen and tone up the weakened organs of digestion.

Indigestion and weak blood march hand-in-hand. No dispeptic can have pure rich blood until his digestion is made perfect again. Stomach disorders always weaken the blood and weak blood causes anaemia, weakness and nervousness.

If you have had warnings of Indigestion do not delay another day to accept the positive guarantee that your money will be promptly and cheerfully refunded if the very first bottle of Farraline does not give you relief. Don't be misled into believing that heart-burn, gas, bloating, constipation, biliousness, sick stomach, bear and kidney pains will gradually go away. These are danger signals warning you that the dread disease Indigestion, is gradually sapping your very life. Regenerate your digestive organs at once with Farraline then you can eat three good meals every day without discomfort. A 10 day's treatment of Farraline will cost you only One Dollar at your druggists.—Adv.

Panatrope Will Make Debut Here

The new Brunswick Panatrope will make its debut Wednesday evening, Nov. 25, at a free concert given by the Phonograph Shop at the Wichita club at 8:30. The new Panatrope is a departure from the old style phonograph, being capable of reproducing all of the heretofore "too high or too low" vibrations missed by the old style machines.
