

On The BEAM
By J. W. King, Jr.

Members of the Loraine Volunteer Fire Department are as civil minded as any group anywhere. They are constantly on the lookout for something to do for their home town.

The latest gesture of this nature is their offer to help pave the two streets, Lightfoot and Looby, from the highway to the school grounds. Plans are just about completed, according to John Horton, with the cooperation of city officials and county commissioner to do the job. A caliche base is to be put down, wet down and rolled and topped with asphalt.

All of this is going to be done without cost to property owners along the streets unless they want to chip in and help on the proposition. No assessments will be made against their property.

Any property owner on these two streets should be willing, if they are able, to contribute something toward the expense of paving them. Both of them are important thoroughfares and need to be fixed so they will not wash away. A good street in front of any property will raise the value of the property. Let's all pitch in and help pave those two streets.

Some time ago we mentioned the fact in this column that Loraine needs to do something to keep business from going to other towns. So far we have done nothing.

There is no question but what Loraine is losing a lot of business right now that should be coming here. Our banker reports that checks given elsewhere for various items of merchandise amounts to a considerable sum every week.

Money spent in other towns does Loraine no good. Loraine can't continue to grow and prosper if a lot of home people trade elsewhere. If Loraine people go elsewhere to trade Loraine merchants will suffer, churches and schools and other institutions will suffer.

Loraine merchants are as much to blame as anyone for business leaving Loraine. They are not taking full advantage of the opportunities offered them to secure business. Merchants in other towns use large spaces in their home paper to let the people in their community, and other communities too, know the price of their merchandise and they are getting the business.

Large ads in the home paper and outstanding bargains by home merchants would help keep Loraine people at home to do their trading and induce people of other communities to come to Loraine. With a little effort we could expand our trade territory a great deal right now, especially north.

Child Labor Law Still In Effect

Dallas, July 26.—When the school bell rings this fall, Federal officials here are going to be making efforts to see that employment does not interfere with education.

Employment of children under 16 years of age in agriculture during school hours in unlawful under the Federal Fair Labor Standards Act. William J. Rogers Regional Director of the Wage-Hour and Public Contracts Division of the U. S. Department of Labor in Dallas, says his staff plans to enforce the law this fall as it did last year. His region includes Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, and New Mexico.

He pointed out today that the law applies directly to farmers whose crops or products, either directly or indirectly, go into interstate or foreign commerce. He illustrated the matter with the case of a farmer who sends his product outside the state or processor, canner, or dealer who will send it outside the state—either in its original form or as part of another product.

The law does not apply to a farmer's own children working on their parent's farm, he said. But if farmers hire other under-age children during school hours, the farmers themselves are responsible, he declared.

By "school hours" is meant the hours when school is in session for the district where the employed children under 16 currently are living, he explained. That includes children hired as individuals or as a part of a family group directed by labor contractors, processors, or others. It includes both citizen and alien children.

The Federal law sets no minimum age for the employment of children in agriculture before or after school hours on any school day, or at any time on school holidays, or during school vacations. But most states have school attendance laws and whichever statute, Federal or state, sets the higher standard governs the matter in any given state, he says.

Any person who willfully violates the child-labor provisions of the Federal law is subject to a maximum fine of $10,000, or after a second conviction for a similar offense, a maximum fine of $10,000 or imprisonment for as much as six months, or both, he said.

Rep. George Mahon Reports On Bill

For the past 11 weeks I have been conducting committee hearings in Washington on the appropriation bill for the Army, Navy and Air Force for the current fiscal year. I expect to present the bill to the House of Representatives for passage during the second week in August. I think some facts about the bill may be of interest. Because of the confidential nature of much of the testimony has been printed and is available to Members of congress, the press and public. Four volumes containing 3,500 pages, totaling nearly three million words, were required to print the testimony of the 500 witnesses who testified.

A lot of words and witnesses were involved in the hearings. The issue before us, however, was the 56 million dollar appropriation bill for the Army, Navy and Air Force, one of the largest appropriation bills to be submitted to Congress in the history of the nation. Generally speaking, one-fifth of the money would be required to pay, feed and clothe the men in service. An additional one-fifth would be required to maintain the installations, aircraft, ships, etc. One half of the sum would be used to pay for tanks, airplanes, ships and weapons of war. Remaining funds would be used for research and development and many other purposes. We will make savings and reductions wherever reasonably possible. It appears that a minimum reduction of at least one billion dollars can be made safely.

Our civilian and military experts are by no means infallible, but it was interesting to note that most of them who appeared before the committee were of the opinion that there would not be a global war involving the United States and Russia in 1951. Some of them expressed the idea that the danger of war with Russia would be greater in 1952 and 1953 as the Russian atomic stock pile increased. Many of our military people felt that war between the United States and Russia is inevitable, but our top military leaders do not agree with this conclusion.

The world situation is confusing, complex and explosive. My own view is that some incident or unforeseen development might precipitate a shooting war between the United States and Russia at any time. I think the best hope for peace lies in our military preparedness effort and in the over-all strengthening of our nation and the other free nations of the world. We do not know the Russian timetable, but we know they seem to understand the language of strength.

What may happen in the Korean war is still not clear, but in my opinion it would be dangerous and inexcusable for us to let down our guard or disband our military forces by reason of the cease-fire in Korea. The truth is we are not now prepared for war. Our military buildup is just getting in high gear. We must be strong over a long period of years if there is to be any real hope for stability and peace. On the other hand, we cannot afford to bankrupt ourselves in reckless and wasteful spending.

During the progress of the hearings I was invited to go to the Pacific for the atomic bomb tests and also to Europe to confer with Eisenhower, but my work here was such that I could not leave Washington at the time. Suffice it is to say that we have made remarkable strides in the field of atomic warfare, and other highly significant developments are in the offing. Of course, Russia is making progress in weapons development too. For example, the Russian-made jet fighter which has been used against us in Korea is comparable to our best fighter aircraft.

I am supporting the request of our military people for large sums of money to expand our guided missile program. Guided missiles would play a major part in any future war. Of course, the hope of every thoughtful American is that our military preparedness program will be instrumental in preventing the outbreak of a general war.

ACP Stimulates More Conservation

Often overlooked in reports of accomplishments under the Agricultural Conservation Program are the additional conservation measures stimulated by ACP assistance, says Hulet (Gramp) Williams, member of the Mitchell County PMA committee.

In many instances, according to Mr. Williams, the conservation practices for which a farmer receives assistance under ACP are but a small part of the total amount of conservation work completed. But the incentive to do this additional work often is traceable to the assistance provided under the Agriculture Conservation Program.

Program assistance, the committee explains, covers only part of the cost of the conservation practices which are approved for aid under the program. In general, this is about 50 percent of the out-of-pocket cost. The farmer stands the additional cost and in most cases all labor and transportation expenses. Where materials or services are furnished they are provided in the same share-the-cost basis.

Furthermore, the county PMA committee must limit ACP conservation practices to the funds allocated to the county. Where the applicants for assistance exceed the county allocation—the amount of assistance to each farmer is sealed down to keep the total within the allotment. The objective, of course, is to use the available funds to obtain the maximum amount of conservation for each dollar allocated.

Many farmers, he explains, carry out much additional conservation work for which they receive no assistance. The small amount of assistance is the stimulant which sets off the chain reaction.

In cases where practices are withdrawn from the program because they have become a part of the established farming operations, a large portion of farmers continue to carry them out after assistance is no longer provided.

All of this conservation stimulated by ACP assistance adds up to a tremendous total and amounts for much lasting progress that is being made, says Mr. Williams. In his opinion, this is the accurate yardstick for measuring Agricultural Conservation Program accomplishments and the vital element which makes this United States effort both unique and successful.

18 Blocks Streets To Be Topped Here

Black topping of 18 blocks of streets is to get under way the later part of this week and the first of next week if plans put forward by the Volunteer Firemen and the city Council materialize, according to Mayor Vance Dickenson.

The 18 blocks to be topped are on Looby and Lightfoot Streets from Highway 80 to the Farm to Market beyond the school grounds. The streets will be built in the same manner as Hinson Street in front of the cemetery. Base will be of caliche with asphalt topping.

County Commissioner Moody Richardson has agreed to furnish men and machines for part of the work. The balance of the work is to be done by volunteer labor. Members of the Fire Department have agreed to contribute some labor. People who own property on either street may contribute their own labor or enough money to hire someone for as many days as they are able. Merchants of the town will also be asked to contribute money or labor, Mr. Dickenson said.

There will be no assessment made against property along the streets and those who do not want to or for any reason cannot contribute money or labor will not be forced to. Any contribution of money or labor will be voluntary.

The value of property along these streets will be enhanced greatly and the entire town and community will benefit from the topped streets. Both of them are able by school buses and nearly everyone who goes to the school grounds. Both streets wash badly every time it rains. If they can be built high enough to prevent washing much repairing will be saved and everyone will have all weather streets to the school grounds.

SCANNING THE WEEK'S NEWS
of Main Street and the World"Cease-Fire" Talks Should Follow
Unusual Pattern of Korean Events

PEACE—LIKE THE WAR—PUZZLING—With the confusing Korean conflict little more than a year old, the prospects for peace suddenly became brighter than ever. For the average citizen on the Main streets of America, however, the promise and the possibilities of an end to hostilities seemed just about as puzzling as ever.

American government and military leaders at first took a dim view of the "feelers" for cease-fire negotiations. With understandable caution, they mistrusted the sincerity and purpose of Red China and those pulling the strings of the puppet from behind. But UN and American leaders would not miss a chance for a just peace. Truman sounded the keynote: "We are ready (to negotiate), as we have always been."

As America, and then the world, watched with abated breath, the peace campaign followed the pattern of war—aggressiveness and then reticence on both sides. Appropriately enough, thin-lipped Jacob Malik made the first overture—suggesting a cease-fire and withdrawal behind the famed 38th parallel as the "first step." After some half-silent political parrying, negotiations began through normal diplomatic channels in Washington and Moscow. Then wires hummed between Tokyo, Peiping and Pyongyang.

Anxious to save lives, Ridgway declared himself ready to talk to the Reds as early as July 5th. They, however, wanted a preliminary meeting on the 8th and a meeting of the top brass later. Ridgway concurred, and the first meeting was held in a once-rich home in the "no-man's-land" of Kaesong. The UN sent three colonels, one a South Korean. The Reds dispatched a like number, but included "receptive personnel."

The first meeting, merely a preparing for the real negotiations, was tense, and held in utmost secrecy. American officers returned tight-lipped to their stations, but said the meeting had been "harmonious."

Tuesday the top brass began to get at the core of things. As they did, American officials pointed out to the folks at home that a cease-fire would not be an assurance of peace, and that the approach to this one seemed fraught with trickery. The statement, intended, no doubt, to ward off optimism, was not necessary.

Generally, the American belief was that the Communists wanted to quieten the Korean scene in advance of a new outbreak somewhere else. The only optimists were those who thought the quest for a cease-fire meant the Russians were desirous of shifting main efforts to the diplomatic fronts in view of the disastrous failures in Korea. Some so-called "reliable" sources also said that Stalin was ailing, that there was a general internal struggle in Moscow to get in line for his job, and so the Reds needed more time to devote to the home front. One of the most logical ideas was that Red China wanted out while it still could "save face" and say it had not lost the war. Factually there was less truth than speculation everywhere. Only the Reds knew why the peace movement originated.

Keener U.S. observers marked the week the beginning of peace in Korea. Yet, they were quick to point out that, if peace comes, the hypochondriac world would be rid of one headache, and then could turn attention to many other ailments. A peace in Korea might be fuel for a colder war.

Joy That Is Real, If Premature

Patients at a hospital in Korea let their spirits rise after word of the possible "cease-fire" negotiations reached them, hoist nurse upon their shoulders. For most of them, the war is already over—their joy is for comrades on the front lines.

SHIFT INTO REVERSE—As the anxious world watched the move for peace in Korea, the business world reluctantly checked reverse gears to see if it was in working order.

Business analysts knew that cessation of hostilities would lessen the feeling of urgency and military spending would fall short of projected plans. Once the last shot had echoed in Korea, business could expect two things. First, the government would drastically cut down on quantities ordered. World War II stockpiles taught Washington a lesson. Second, delivery dates would be strung out over longer periods, with a few "rush" orders.

Future policy of business: to cease producing all-out and still remain ready for all-out production.

INFLATION PROFILE—During the year of Korean war, wholesale prices increased 20 per cent; retail prices about 10 per cent. Although restrictive measures had curbed the rise, and even dropped a few items down, defense spending and cutbacks in civilian production point to a strong inflationary trend, unless strong controls are applied.

Price director Michael Di Salle faced newsmen with these words, "We will need every bit of price control we have had" to combat inflation. He pledged to keep up the fight for more and stronger controls, said the public was beginning to get on the controls bandwagon.

IN THIS CORNER—While Di Salle spoke to the newsmen, congressmen on the hill were getting squared away for their own battle royal over prices and controls.

The administration was fighting gamely uphill, with two major sore spots: (1) An amendment sponsored by the agriculture committee to prohibit all price rollbacks on farm products, rescinding even the live beef cut of 10 per cent already in effect. (2) A proposal by the labor committee to revise the makeup of the wage stabilization board so as to give public members control and to take away WSB's authority to handle labor disputes.

UNDAUNTED DEFENSE—The President's trouble-shooter, W. Averell Harriman, spoke in support of the President's 8.5 billion dollar foreign aid program, warned congress that any relaxation now in the defense program "can lead only to disaster."

THE OTHER WAR—As the world watched for peace in Korea, President Truman called on congress to end the state of war with Germany, now nine-and-one-half years old. As he made the request, Britain, Australia and New Zealand ended their state of war with the Germans, and Canada and France were expected to follow suit shortly. India had done so on the first day of the year.

The moves were a definite attempt to bring the German people back into membership among the nations of the free world. Coming at such a time, however, the action seemed part of the jig saw puzzle that is our world of today. Wars, peace, and rumors of both.

LET US FORGET—And still another sign of the times came from Washington with the announcement that the U.S., Australia, and New Zealand have worked out a defense treaty. Uncle Sam is not forgetting the Pacific area.

The treaty, which will go unsigned until the Japanese peace treaty in San Francisco two months hence, is expected to state that the United States will consider an attack on Australia and New Zealand from any quarter dangerous to the peace and security of this country. The treaty might well be the nucleus of a future pact embracing all of the Pacific area.

DOWN ON THE FARM

Belief That Truce Not a Cure-All

Speaking at Louisville, Allen B. Kline, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, said that truce in Korea would not be an immediate cure for all problems.

Kline told a general session of the Southern Farm Bureau Training School that the country had two main objectives—to avoid a third world war and preserve the American way of life.

The farm chief said that the American chief said that "individual initiative with appropriate restraints."

"Inflation has yet to be controlled," he said, "if our way is to be preserved. Even if there is a third world war, we might lose it if we devise a program we can't pay for." He said the bureau favors pay-as-go taxation.

GOLDEN AGE OF MUSIC

United States Is Most Musical
Nation in History of the World

America is beginning a Golden Age of Music.

This is now the most musical nation in the history of the world; and the trend is typically American, growing out of the people themselves instead of patronage by an upper class.

Some of the signs of our musical renaissance are obvious and pervading. More than 96 per cent of our families own radios that pour forth music of various sorts at the flick of a switch. More than 15,000,000 homes have phonographs and records. Every motion picture has music as a backdrop, with the musical film the most popular of all types. In the theater, plays like "Oklahoma," "South Pacific" and "Guys and Dolls" are the record-breakers. In restaurants, offices and hotel lobbies music is piped in to entertain and to relieve monotony.

But the more significant signs that music is coming to have a basic place in our way of life are in the private lives of the people. There are today more adults learning to play instruments, taking part in community orchestras and choruses, joining in music festivals and events than there have been for many years. The number of children who are learning to play instruments in our schools is at an all-time high. Musical colleges report that the number of students preparing to teach music surpasses the proportionate increase in enrollment in other subjects. Attendance at concerts and other musical performances is breaking all records, particularly in the smaller cities and the small towns where such fare was scarce indeed just a few years ago. According to the American Music Conference, there are more than 700 community symphony orchestras in cities of all sizes, including one in Mountain Lakes, N. J.—population 2,500.

In adult recreation, music is playing an ever-increasing part. YMCA's and YWCA's in many cities are offering class instruction on various instruments, and service clubs and other groups put on periodic sings, musical events and concert series. Music appreciation is rising toward the top of the list of things many adult organizations are offering their memberships.

The bright fact is that the American people are making music for themselves—a bright fact because throughout history music has been one of the greatest forces for happiness, stability, and harmony among men.

This trend is putting the piano, the organ and the harp back into the home, and the instrument case back into the hands of our children.

THE MUSIC CLUBS and their unifying organization, the National Federation of Music Clubs, have brought music into the lives of thousands of committees and have encouraged young musicians to follow the art seriously. Service clubs like Kiwanis International, Rotary and Lions have helped bands and orchestras, provided scholarships, put on music festivals, added singing to their own programs and otherwise helped make us music conscious. The National Congress of Parents and Teachers' music committees have been behind much of the sharp increase in opportunity for music offered in the schools and for growth of music in community affairs.

In rural areas, the 4-H, extension departments of state universities and other groups have been influential, and in the adult field the YMCA and YWCA have made music prominent in their activities and offered classes on various instruments.

Though it is less than four years old, the American Music Conference has had an important part in the current boom. Financed by various branches of the music industry as a public service, AMC is devoted entirely to helping more people get the benefits of music. Much of the tremendous increase in material about music appearing in newspapers, magazines and radio is AMC inspired. Its films and literature are helping to keep the trend moving. Its small field staff is carrying know-how on organization, techniques and materials to cities and towns in all parts of the country. Contributing its services to organizations, school systems and anyone else who wants help to advance music, AMC has increased the effectiveness of many other agencies and has given the total movement a new spark and acceleration.

Much of the credit, too, must go to the music industry. It has found that in this country the way to progress is through service. Both through their contributions to AMC and music educators and by introducing improved products, the manufacturers, distributors and merchants have been instrumental in making music more at home in millions of homes.

CHARLOTTE MANSON is one of the daytime radio's foremost actresses, but at night she's a sales-lady, though not for hire. Best known as leading lady in the CBS "King's Row" series, in private life she is Mrs. Dick Brown, wife of the popular radio and television singer, and her self-appointed job is in his behalf. At least three nights a week she visits several of New York's top

Tim Holt is forsaking cowboy roles temporarily; he was so good in "His Kind of Woman" that Howard Hughes has asked the RKO staff to find a good dramatic vehicle for him. Holt has won critical acclaim in all his straight assignments.

Congress As Prodigal With Tax Money As Truman

By Wright A. Patterson

FOLLOWING the close of four years of civil war our national debt amounted to two billion, two hundred million. That had been reduced to one billion at the start of World War I. At the close of World War I, our debt was 25 billion, 200 million. We had reduced that to 19 billion, 600 million by 1929. That total of 19 billion represented $771 for each American family. By 1939, with no war, but the New Deal to finance, our national debt had increased to where it represented $1,165 for each family. In 1950, our national debt amounted to 257 billion, 400 million, a total for each family of $6,788.

With such a financial condition facing us, with a debt burden and taxes higher than at any time in our national history, congress continues to spend money "like a drunken sailor." Only recently, the senate voted an authorization for an Arizona irrigation project, the total cost of which will amount to considerably more than two billion dollars. That irrigation will benefit less than 30,000 farmers, for which all the people of all states will be taxed to an extent of nearly $3,000, to be added to the $6,788 each family is now slated to pay.

That is not the kind of economy candidates for both the senate and house promised the voters before the last election, when economy was an issue in the campaign, but it represents the kind we are getting. The senators who voted for authorization for such a project should not be allowed to go back to Washington. A two-billion-dollar project that would benefit 30,000 Arizona farmers, but would seriously endanger the water supply of close to 5,000,000 people in southern California, who have at tremendous expense to themselves carried the water of the Colorado river through the mountains and over the deserts that they might live, should be voted down. Now the senate proposes to give away that water to 30,000 Arizona farmers at a cost to the families of all states of $3,000 per family.

That is spending on a scale that neither the New Deal or the Fair Deal have suggested, and it came directly from the senate without a recommendation from the President. It was not a partisan measure. It was voted for by both Democrats and Republicans.

Fortunately that was only an authorization. The Senate cannot inarguably appropriate legislation as that must start in the house. And it is not believed that such an appropriation has any chance of passage in the house. Such an incident, futile though it may be, demonstrates that the spending privileges cannot all be laid to the President. Some of it must be attributed to congress, and there both parties must assume a portion of the blame.

That would-be Arizona expenditure is but a large sized sample of the utterly unexplainable and needless expenditures made by Washington. A careful check of the voting in both senate and house will demonstrate that those who are loudest in their demands for economy will, at times, be found supporting appropriations for things we could get along without. Among such things is the central California Valley reclamation project of no value to any one other than the people of California, but being paid for by the tax payers of all states. Senator Knowland's denunciation of that Arizona project was but a case of "the pot calling the kettle black." Can we not have an end to all such needless federal government expenditures?

While under the set-up of the legislative branch of the government, it is not possible for the senate to inaugurate either tax or appropriation legislation, the senate can, when it will, stop such legislation, when passed by the house. Senator George (D., Georgia), as chairman of the tax committee of the senate, has refused consideration of the house tax bill, until the house has cut from its appropriation not less than six billions of peace time expenditures.

At the end of a year the "little" war in Korea had resulted in more casualties, than the first year of the "big war" with Japan. The "war" cry no longer gives us the shivers.

WOMAN'S WORLD

Here's How to Make Laundry More Pleasant, Less Work

By Erta Haley

DOING the family wash is one of the most exhausting jobs that the homemaker encounters every week. True, it may not be as exhausting as was grandmother's, with chopping the wood to heat the water as well as the iron, but still, it takes a big chunk of time out of every week.

It's not impossible to cut the time spent on it in half, as many women have found; and it's even more wonderful to find you have an extra two hours a week for leisure that were formerly spent in laundry work.

Summer laundry is especially heavy with its many changes of clothes, many of which can be home-laundried rather than cleaned. The best way to approach the problem is to study it from the point of view of what makes the task difficult, and then start making your self comfortable. Is it hanging the wash which tires you? Is ironing hard on your feet? Do you get bored with a lot of flat pieces to iron? These and many other parts of the laundry chore all offer individual problems. Study them from your own needs and make the necessary adjustments. Soon, with comfort and convenience installed, you'll be able

Beach Ensemble

An ideal outfit for picnics and sun sessions is this three piece ensemble which you can make at home easily. The sun suit is two-piece, made of plain denim, teamed with a striped denim boxer jacket. The shorts have drawstrings at either side to insure snugness and the top has matching shirrs in front. To eliminate shrinkage at laundering which would ruin fit, it's wise to use a sanforized cotton.

kitchen table also will work for this job.

Store soaps, bleaches, brushes and stain-removing kit above this space. Below working level, you may have bins for sorting the clothes.

Next to the preparation center is the washing which may include machine and tubs. Next to this, the drying center is best so the clothes can be put in a dryer or racks. Racks drawn from the ceiling when keep comfortable while ironing.

needed are good space-savers and easily constructed by home carpentry.

From the drying center you move the clothes to the sprinkling table where you may also fold those pieces which need no pressing.

The next center is that for ironing which includes the board and stool, clothes rack for finished pieces that need further drying after pressing and a counter for finished, folded pieces.

Check the laundry space for these other conveniences that make the work easier; an easy-to-clean, moisture resistant floor, good lighting (natural light, when possible), adequate ventilation, light walls, elbow height outlets for all appliances to save stooping and bending, nearness to the telephone (to save steps), a radio, if music makes your work more pleasing, and ready access to out-of-doors if you dry outside.

How to Wash Clothes Properly

Whether you use an automatic or non-automatic washer, the basic directions are the same. Separate the clothing into white and colored clothes, as well as those which are lightly and heavily soiled.

Any stains or heavy soil should be treated before the clothes are put in the washer. Clothing may be soaked before being put through the washer so as to get out surface dirt, and also to permit the suds to penetrate the fabric more readily.

Clothes should never be soaked for more than 30 minutes, as their fibers will only re-absorb the dirt in the water after it has been loosened. Letting the clothes stand in water for long periods such as overnight will also weaken the fibers.

Always wring the dirty water out of the clothes before putting them into the washing machine.

Never overload the washing machine if you want efficient operation. It's also wise to put in some small items with the large ones, instead of running all large things together so as to allow for free circulation of water and suds.

Save Your Energies In Hanging Clothes

Hanging clothing on a line indoors or out requires bending and stretching and saps energy when time and labor-saving devices aren't utilized fully. The clothesline should be placed at the right height for the person who uses it. Six feet in height is about right for the average woman, but it can be several inches higher or lower depending upon what is comfortable.

Bending down to a basket sitting on the ground for each item of clothing to be hung, then up again to the line may be excellent exercise, but it's one of many things that makes laundry day exhausting. A portable table on which the basket fits is a good work- and time-saver. Baskets on wheels of the proper height are also good for this task.

Before hanging clothing, arrange articles in the basket to save time in actual hanging, and also sorting the clothing later. Have all sheets together, all handkerchiefs, dresses, shirts, towels and other items in stacks. Shake out each piece before hanging to prevent wrinkles which take time to iron.

Make Ironing Day Cool and Easy

Sprinkling properly helps you cut off hours on ironing time. First, dampen garments as evenly as possible so the whole piece takes the same temperature, and one spot does not need more ironing and heat to dry it, than another spot.

Most women also get their clothing too damp, and excess dampness requires more ironing to dry it. With a soft spray or sprinkler you can get even dampness and not too much of it. Wrap clothing in plastic-lined basket or in sheets of the same material to avoid drying it out.

KATHLEEN NORRIS

It's Time That Parents Awaken

ANOTHER SCANDAL concerning teen-agers and drug-taking has broken loose in my native city of San Francisco recently, and the fathers and mothers of a certain group of high-school students are in the usual state of amazement and anger.

"Why on earth can't the authorities protect our children from this fearful thing?" they demand. And then, "How do they get it? Who gets it for them?"

Meanwhile, the guilty youngsters, with shamefaced pride, admit that they have been buying and consuming habit-forming poisons, and the two oldest members of the group, boys of 17, assert with winning frankness that drug-taking makes the girls more amenable to sexual approaches. All this on our front pages this week.

Now I would like to counterpose two other questions to the two mentioned above. I would like to ask, first, what sort of parents are so delinquent that their children haven't been efficiently warned against marihuana and heroin, and second, where do the children get the money for drugs? Drugs are preposterously costly, because of the dangers of illicit peddling; 20 dollars do not go far in supplying even one addict. Where do those dollars come from?

Great Problem

Well, it's a great problem. What if all barriers were removed from the sale of these drugs? I am not advocating this but if such a proposal were made to end, once and for all, the smuggling and secrecy, much of the temptation of certain thrill-seeking teen-agers to violate the law would be removed, and it would certainly startle American parents into a state of mind where they themselves would have to strike at this evil at its very roots. Certain mental conditions and even physical illnesses are remedied by the shock, and a proposal of this kind from a serious source would certainly be a shock.

... boys of 17 ...

The uproar unrestricted drug traffic would cause in this nation would make men and women realize that children are children, and they get their morals and their money from their parents. To turn a thousand rattlesnakes loose in a small country town would be to put every parent on the alert, and to subject every youngster to a drilling in self-protection that he never would forget.

And in the same way, when American parents decide that their children shall have neither the money nor the inclination to dump lethal poisons into their clean young bodies, then and then only will the dead peddlers be done out of their criminal racket.

Protect the Young

We save the fingers of our babies from matches, from the pink pills with the death head on them. We save them from violent childish rages, from gluttony, from physical and mental uncleanness, we save their teeth, their skins, we fight laziness and selfishness and dirty fingernails. We study expensive books on the subject of youthful jealousies and fixations.

But only to the extent that they trust us and believe us are our efforts successful. Children are, of course, born with trying personal habits, with no sense of the sacredness of truth or of the possessions of others; they snatch, they hate, they spit, they kick, they scream, they lie, they steal. We coax and scold and train them to do better. The example of good parents, the counsel of a reasonable father, the serious warning of an intelligent mother—these are all they need to make them regard the filthy business of dope-peddling for what it is.

The child's protection is at home. But to the young man or woman the moment comes when that protection must be transferred to his own soul and mind. If then his tendency is toward weak, childish indulgence in what he has been told is dangerous and injurious, why, the more's the pity! But this matter should be strictly up to his parents primarily, and to himself as he grows into adult life.

Fort Benning Trains Rangers

Guerrillas Are Taught Old Frontier Tactics

INFANTRYMEN call Fort Benning mother of the army. But when the "mad minute" is staged at Benning, "mother" becomes a thing of fury and flame.

Grimy and resolute, high-booted paratroopers, G. I. riflemen, lieutenants and captains learning how to take an enemy hill inch forward under barbed wire in red Georgia clay. Every howitzer, tank, mortar, machine gun, flame thrower and bazooka on the range roars into rapid fire at the same time. The "mad minute" is the thundering climax of the training of U. S. fighting men at the Army's famed infantry school at Fort Benning.

United Nations commanders look to pine-covered Georgia hills for trained guerrillas who can creep behind enemy lines to spread panic, sabotage and death. Fort Benning is now the home of an army branch with a venerable name—the Rangers.

Tough volunteers for crack Ranger companies are relearning an old American specialty—frontier fighting. Chief of Staff Gen. J. Lawton Collins has described their training as a throwback to oldtime tactics used by Indian fighters.

The Declaration

HAVING celebrated the 175th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence this month, this column wonders how many of us got out our copy of that immortal document and read it through. Do you even have a copy of the Declaration of Independence?

When Thomas Jefferson penned the declaration of principles as set forth, and the long list of the acts of tyranny and despotism against which the colonies proposed to rebel, he actually set forth no new principle of government or democracy, and actually no tyranny which had not been practiced by other tyrants before King George. What Thomas Jefferson did do was to justify before all mankind the step the colonial government was taking and to progress in one instance upon the old English law which had long guaranteed "life, liberty and property." The second and all-important paragraph of the declaration starts:

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness—that to secure these rights governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed . . ."

Jefferson's substitution of "the pursuit of happiness" for "property" marks the only break away from the old Whig doctrine and simply means that Jefferson took a broader, more liberal view of what constituted the real desires of men.

It is upon this clause, or departure by Jefferson from the old order, that liberal students and statesmen and government historians hang the theory that it is the duty of government to give to men, in the pursuit of happiness, those things he needs to make him happiest—his right to worship as he pleases, to work when and where he pleases, to speak and write as he pleases, to be free in body and spirit, to have liberty in its truest and broadest sense.

Happiness Is the Goal

John Adams, a compatriot of Jefferson, also saw eye-to-eye with Jefferson when he wrote: "Upon this point all speculative politicians will agree, that the happiness of society is the end of government, as all divine and moral philosophers will agree that the happiness of the individual is the end of man. From this principle it will follow that the form of government which communicates ease, comfort, security, or, in one word, happiness, to the greatest number of persons, and in the greatest degree, is the best."

Duty of Government

And it is upon this clause of "the pursuit of happiness" that modern liberals in government declare it is the duty of government to give to its people such security as guarantee of bank deposits; guarantees against fake stocks and fake bonds; that is, it is the duty of SEC today; such ease and comfort as unemployment compensation, old age pensions, maternal and child welfare and aid; aid to the needy, minimum wage laws, farm parity laws, protection against inflation and equally against deflation and depressions, just civil rights laws; the means to own homes and farms and business, and other security measures which are on the statute books today to give men a better chance for that "pursuit of happiness."

No Jefferson Today

There is no Jefferson on the nation's horizon today. There is a dearth of leadership in high places. There is confusion and intolerance, and much evidence of avarice and greed and a lack of self-discipline among our people. There is great controversy concerning our government. If the Declaration of Independence were being written today, would we as a people step up to the table and sign, after reading that last paragraph: "And for support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor." That is the kind of unity this nation needs today.

Reds Agree to Talks

The Russians' acceptance of an invitation to discuss West Berlin trade took the western powers by surprise. It was the first time in two years that the Russians had agreed to discuss Berlin economic matters. Meanwhile, a new air of friendliness crept over touchy Berlin when Soviet officials attended the July 4th reception given by Maj. Gen. Samuel Mathewson, high point of the American community's celebration of Independence Day.

MIRROR Of Your MIND

Childless Couples Can Be Happy

By Lawrence Gould

Is a childless marriage bound to be unhappy?

Answer: Certainly not. The larger percentage of divorces among childless couples seems to have three main factors: (1) the fact that such couples feel more free to separate if they wish to; (2) the lack of a common interest to hold them together, and (3) the self-centeredness which most often leads to a deliberate refusal to have children. But two people who sincerely love each other can find many interests in common besides children, and all couples need such interests when their children grow up. Marriage itself is a bigger, more enduring thing than parenthood and need not be dependent on it.

May childbirth be too painful?

Answer: Yes, says Dr. Helene Deutsch in her book, "The Psychology of Women." The modern obstetrical technique known as spinal or "caudal" anesthesia leaves the mother free from pain and able to observe her child's birth as impersonally as if it were happening to someone else. But "something is missing"—there is little or no sense of achievement. "From the psychological point of view, this type of delivery has the advantage of happy reunion with the child and freedom from the aftermath of narcotics. But the absence of feeling of accomplishment is very marked," though "the woman usually does not realize this till later."

Does old age mean "decline"?

Answer: Not in all respects, by any means, says Dr. Edward J. Stieglitz, noted pioneer in geriatrics (study of old-age diseases). Powers of endurance, judgement and ability to understand may increase with age—the main question is how we can make the aging person feel that it is worth his while to remain active and interested. Clinical experience shows that there is more danger of the average older man or woman wearing out from disuse than from being over-active. Aging people need love and affection, but they need still more to feel that they are "needed" and that—as is generally true—they can still do some kinds of work "as well as ever."

Lazy Thyroid Can Cause Slowness

By Dr. James W. Barton

ONE OF THE TRAGEDIES that occurs to some parents is finding that their child is mentally defective. It is suspected that in many cases this is due to lack of activity of the thyroid gland in the neck, and use of thyroid extract has proved helpful.

In the American Journal of Diseases of Children, Dr. A. Topper reports the following: "Of 20 cretins, hypothyroids (children born with underactivity of the thyroid gland) for one to 25 years. There were six boys and 14 girls. Only one of the children had developed hypothyroidism after birth. Dried thyroid gland extract had been given for them. The individual dosage varied from case to case and from time to time. Psychiatric or mental tests revealed that seven remained mentally defective despite adequate treatment. Why some cases improved mentally and others did not, despite sufficient doses of thyroid extract, was thoroughly investigated by studying the brain waves in these seven patients and on six who had reached a normal level of intelligence. Five of the seven who had remained defective showed abnormal brain waves, whereas the six who had reached a normal level of intelligence had normal brain waves.

Dr. Topper believes that when these studies are made in infancy they can be of great importance to the physician and parents, as no amount of thyroid extract can help the cases in which the brain waves are not normal, whereas if the brain wave test—electroencephalogram shows a normally functioning brain, persistent and adequate treatment by thyroid extract can bring about normal mentality even when the child was born with an under-active thyroid gland.

A SOOTHING DRESSING MOROLINE

Mrs. Mayo

It is difficult to properly describe the way that you feel, and nobody can fully understand just how miserable annoying aches and pains can make you unless they have had these troubles. Mrs. Leona Mayo, 12505 Bennington Ave., Cleveland, Ohio, knows what it means to suffer from annoying aches and pains and lack of appetite. But she doesn't suffer any more, for Mrs. Mayo took HADACOL and HADACOL will help you, if you have those annoying aches and pains due to a deficiency of Vitamins B, B₁, Niacin and Iron in the system.

Here is what she says: "I had suffered aches and pains and couldn't seem to find the right remedy for them. I heard of what HADACOL did for many people, so I thought I'd try it. After the first bottle I noticed the difference. I've got a good appetite, and seem to be gaining weight after taking a few more bottles. I am on my 10th bottle and will continue to take HADACOL. Thanks to HADACOL for such wonderful results."

HADACOL makes it possible to actually relieve the REAL CAUSE of those nagging aches and pains when due to the lack of Vitamins B, B₁, Niacin and Iron in the system.

Make Laundry Center More Efficient

Anyone who has ever tried to do laundry work at the kitchen sink, then shifted to the basin in the bathroom, and thence to the basement knows how wearing it is. Then, too, if you shift ironing from kitchen to living room or dining room, this is time-consuming and full of waste motion.

No matter how limited the living quarters, laundry should be done in an allotted space. The perfect arrangement is a laundry-utility room, but when it's not possible, you might see what can be done with a back porch, an infrequently used pantry, or even a portion of the kitchen.

Plan the laundry space to move clothes from one step to another smoothly. The preparation center is first where you can sort clothes and remove stains. A good height is 34 inches, and width should be 24 inches to 30 inches. An old marble slab gives good surface for sorting clothes, and may also be used for scrubbing heavily soiled pieces or removing stains. A porcelain-topped

Emil Opines About War and Peace

By H. I. Phillips

Dear Babe:

Well I see where Malik, the editor of "Untrue Stories," says there should be no trouble ending this Korean hassle and I guess this means more fighting than ever as there is no proof yet that he is standing rightside up. Nothing makes a G.I. feel less certain of a short war than word that Jake has a peace proposition. My hunch is that all it will lead to is a rush call for more interpreters and a resumption of them consecutive translations of fresh abuse. If I am a good guesser he will be all for peace, if the U.N. will bug out fast, sign a statement admitting there were never any Red Chinese or Russians in Korea and make a complete confession.

The U.N. says the Korean war is a year old. It is nuts. If I am any judge of time I have been over here at least ten, coming eleven. My sarge says it began just after the Chicago fire. I came over here as a boy and I am now two full grown men. You have to be at least two men to stand it. A guy named Humblot got world fame because he crossed the Alps. What of it? It was only a one-way trip. I have been up and down more mountains than he ever seen, and on the double. I not only been up and down and back and forth but around and under tougher hills than Hannibal ever heard of. The first thing I do when I get out of here and arrive home will be to sit on an escalator for a week's ride with my shoes off.

At last we got the Chinese on the run. When they open attacks with bugles, drums and yells it now scares them more than it does us.

Still it seems strange to be fighting Chinamen. All my life I never even got into an argument with one. But I guess the Commie leaders and Stalin have convinced them that America is out to annex China to Manhattan Island, using a new George Washington Bridge. I took a prisoner who said he was sold on the argument that no G.I. would be happy until he owned a town house in Peking and a country place in Foochow.

Join the navy and see the world. But join the army and see more of it often. A world atlas should be compulsory G.I. equipment so he can always get some idea where he is and where he may go next. I paid little attention to geography in school as all I was expected to do was to be able to bound Brooklyn and name the largest river in the U.S. In today's army you got to bound Tibet, Afghanistan, Iran and Saudi Arabia and also know rivers all over Asia and Africa personally.

What's new back home? I hear Acheson was surrounded and slightly wounded but escaped the Senate committee and that Omar Bradley's new book broke out of a dangerous pocket. Is it true Louis beat Savold and is now entitled to a championship fight with Jack Sharkey or Old Man River? Also please confirm a story that the White Sox have been making trouble and that Andy Pafko is now with the Bums.

Love and kisses, Emil.

SPORTS

The Pass Ziggy.
—The bases on balls hot shots are John W. (Ziggy) Sears, who drew 743 passes in 10 years, and Eddie Lake of Houston who waited in free trips 153 times in 1930.

—Charles C. McDonald of Wichita Falls batted out 11 consecutive base hits in 1921 and in 1937 Tony York reached first base 14 consecutive times on hits and bases on balls.

—J. C. (Nig) Clarke on June 15, 1902, clouted eight consecutive home runs. It also gave him the record for most runs in a single game and for most runs batted in.

—Gene Rye of Waco, on Aug. 6, 1930, hit three consecutive home runs in one inning off three different Beaumont pitchers.

Port Worth holds records for both extremes at leaving men on bases. In 1920 the Cats established the low mark of 867 and in 1929 left stranded 1,461 disappointed baserunners, a record still unequaled.

—Lee Stebbins, former Fort Worth star, once played nine innings at first base without a fielding chance. The game went 10 innings and Lee had only one putout.

—The record for fewest errors by second-basemen for a season is held by William (Chick) Knaupp of Shreveport. In 1919 he committed only 18 miscues. One, not behind him in the books is Jake Atz for his season at Fort Worth in 1915. Jake made 19 errors.

—Carey Slep of Houston once played 45 games (276 chances) at second base without making an error. This was in 1933.

—The 1923 Fort Worth team was the victim of three triple plays.

—Highest average of games won, five or more years, belongs to Joe Pate, who in 13 seasons won 193 games and lost 91 for a mark of .669.

'Dem Bums' Classiest Nine in Play

By GRANTLAND RICE

SOME four years ago, back in the early winter of 1947, two eminent baseball diagnosticians, Harry Salsinger, the Detroit historian of sport, and Toots Shor, were discussing the two pennant races.

"They were talking about the Dodgers," Shor said. "There will be little to it in the National League for some time to come but the Dodgers," Salsinger said.

"Very little to it," Toots replied. "They have all the ballplayers they need and they have others coming on just as good."

"It is the list of young players coming on," Salsinger said. "This Dodger team is almost sure to get stronger and stronger. By 1950 or 1951 it will be at its best, hard to beat for several seasons." Shor agreed fully.

The Dodgers won in 1947. They won again in 1949. They should have won easily in 1950. Now, as Messrs. Salsinger and Shor said four years ago, they are approaching a new peak.

Mr. Rickey built much too well for the remainder of the National League race. Especially his Pirates, who are currently far behind the Dodgers.

It isn't only for 1951 that this dark Brooklyn shadow will hang over the rest of the league. This thing might go on for several campaigns, as it did for the Yankees some years back when they won six out of seven consecutive pennants.

I can't see how any other team can get enough extra help or added strength to move within a furlong of the N.L. leaders. They had all the best of it until they added Pafko and Schmidt, and this merely added crushing strength on both the offensive and defensive side.

Recently the Dodgers—moved through a heavy batting slump, yet they kept on winning with better pitching than anyone looked for, plus the long hit needed in a pinch. Only overconfidence or sheer laziness can stop this squad.

Grantland Rice

Sam Parks won the U.S. Open at Oakland in 1935 with 299. Par at Oakland is 73. So the last two winners there needed an average of 8 over par. After all, 287 was good enough to win or tie at Oakland the stroke-saving wedge was just coming into use.

According to Armour the wedge means a saving of 2 strokes a round, or 8 strokes in a 72-hole test.

Oakmont, the dream terror of Bill Fownes, is a magnificent test for either match or medal play, but its main pressure comes from the medal side.

Merion and Oakland Hills are the two toughest courses the Open has known in recent years. But neither is quite up to Oakmont with its rugged bunkers and its slippery greens.

In match play Oakmont lends itself to birdies as well as to bogies.

Waiting For The Punch

Years ago Stanford had seven men who deserved to make any All-American team. Among them were Keith Topping, Benes Hamilton and Bobby Grayson.

Yet they kept winning games by a field goal. "We knew we could win any time we felt like it," Topping told me. "So we'd fool around and finally someone would say: 'Aw, let's kick a field goal.'"

The Test of Oakmont

Oakland Hills, always a first-class test, was souped up for the recent U.S. Open.

Apparently it is impossible to soup up a course beyond Ben Hogan's play. But no one has to soup up Oakmont, a bunkered fortress just outside of Pittsburgh, where the P.G.A. holds championship at match play.

Think of Brother

Lesson for July 29, 1951

THE Christians in the city of Corinth were bothered about a number of things. One of them never bothers anybody any more, and yet, strange as it seems, it throws a light on some of the hottest problems a Christian meets.

Dr. Foreman

The Corinthian problem was beef-steak. We have a problem with that too—that is, how are we going to pay for it? That wasn't the Corinthian problem.

This was away back in Roman times. Every city had its temple where sacrifices were made to the gods. Sacrifices were of all kinds, from flowers to cattle. It was considered rather wasteful, after killing a big bull, to throw the carcass away, so after the ceremonies at the temple, the rose-garlands would be taken off the beast's neck, and the animal would be hauled away to some butcher's shop, where it would be cut up into roasts, steaks and what not, and sold over the counter just like any other meat.

Now some of the Christians began to worry over their meat supply. Suppose I buy a steak in the market (one would ask) and suppose that steak came from a bull or a cow that has been killed as a sacrifice to one of these heathen gods? Won't that make me guilty of idolatry?

Your Conscience May Be Clear, but—

SO they wrote to the best man they knew, their old evangelist and pastor, the man who had converted them to Christ and organized their church, the Apostle Paul. They asked him about this and other things; and what we call "1 Corinthians" is his answer.

You might think this beef-steak problem trivial, but Paul never handled a trivial problem in a trivial way. He approached the problem in this way: Meat is only meat, he said; it certainly wasn't the bull's fault that he was part of a heathen ceremony. As for the butcher, he paid good money for the animal, in a perfectly respectable business transaction. Then where was the sin in eating such meat?

But wait a minute. Suppose you are dining out, and you happen to know where the meat came from, and everybody at the table knows, and somebody at the table isn't very clear-headed, and when he sees you eating the meat, thinks you must be approving of heathen sacrifices; that's what?

Or perhaps, some one else is less enlightened than you; eating such meat seems quite wrong to him, but when he sees you eating it, he may (just to be polite) follow suit, and yet his conscience, not being an educated conscience like yours, will hurt him all the same. So what you do quite freely and rightly, causes another man to go against his conscience.

Think of Your Brother!

NOW, then, Paul says: "If what I eat makes my brother fall, I will never eat meat again, rather than make my brother fall." (American translation.) There you have the Christian principle.

The important question is not, "Is it any harm?" but, "What effect is this going to have on other people?"

We have seen that the basic Christian principle in all human relationships is the importance of personality. If an act, even a harmless and blameless act, hurts persons—makes them sin, makes them go against their own conscience, then the Christian's rule is at once: Don't.

The rightness or wrongness of a thing is not all in the thing itself; it comes from its effects on persons. Now apply this to some of our own problems of social living. Is drinking alcoholic liquor a sin? Is the use of tobacco sinful? Is dancing wrong? (—to name a few.)

Let us suppose, for the sake of the argument, that you are not harmed by such things yourself. It is a fact, however, that some people are harmed by them. Now suppose your act, which is quite harmless to you and done with a clear conscience, influences another and perhaps weaker person to indulge in something harmful to him? Then a Christian will say, as Paul said: If this thing makes my brother fall, I will never do it again. Which, after all, is more important to me, my own freedom or my brother's character?

Science May Soon Give Man Longer Span of Lifetime

CHICAGO, Ill., June 8—Science will eventually be able to greatly delay the aging process in man and further increase his life span, a former University of Chicago professor predicted.

Speaking at Northwestern University's Centennial Conference on "Problems of an Aging Population," Dr. Anton J. Carlson said he does not foresee "rejuvenation" either in the popular or in the quick medical sense, but expects "intensive research to teach scientists how to better care for and operate the living machine."

Dr. Carlson, Hixon Distinguished Service Professor Emeritus of Physiology at Chicago, reported that man's hereditary constitution and the stresses and strains of living are the factors that determine how long he will live. He defined stresses as faulty diet, infections and other accidents in the life of the individual.

Many Unknown Problems

The former University professor said that science does not yet know to what degree the aging process is due to genetic constitution or to the accidents of living, such as poor eating habits, overwork, laziness, gluttony, etc.

"The slowing up of the organ systems of the body is on the whole so gradual that it becomes practically impossible to separate the factors of aging from the factors of impairment due to the accidents or disease."

Dr. Carlson told physicians and social scientists attending the fourth of six Northwestern Centennial Year conferences that "if now longer life or longer abundant life is the desired goal... we must obviously reduce the production of those (persons) with less than optimum hereditary potentials, and provide optimum data and optimum environment for the others."

Tissues Dry Up

Age changes in man appear at different age levels, he declared, and come at different age levels in the organ systems of the individual.

The progressive age changes begin with gradual drying up of body tissues, gradual retardation of cell division and tissue oxidation, continue with cellular atrophy and lessening of tissue elasticity, and end with progressive degeneration and atrophy of the nervous system.

Dr. Carlson cautioned that underweight and obesity both shorten the life span. He said the prevention of obesity in all people past thirty is imperative in longer life expectancy.

Major Crime Is Committed In U.S. Every 18 Seconds

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Just how bad is the crime situation in the United States? According to the yearly report turned in by Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, a major crime was committed somewhere in America during every 18 seconds.

The crime volume increased 1.5 per cent for the year and all individual offenses, save one, contributed to the rise. Surprisingly, robbery was the single offense that did not top the preceding year.

Every five minutes in 1951 someone was feloniously assaulted or killed. An average of 146 persons were held up and robbed every day, and the stolen car ratio was 468 for every 24 hours.

Hoover's Uniform Crime Reports for 1950 was compiled with the aid of 5,211 police agencies, but federal crimes and others, such as arson and embezzlement, were excluded, making the estimated total a conservative one.

One disturbing element of the statistics pointed out that, although urban crime remained about the same as 1949, rural crime showed an increase of 4.4 per cent. Also alarming was the fact that arrests of males under 21 increased 6.9 per cent. The predominant age among all persons arrested was 21 years.

Police were most efficient recovering stolen autos, returning 92 per cent.

Fire Company Shoots Works In Seeking Danger Source

NEWVILLE, Pa.—Chief John Bender and his firemen have a reputation for getting to the scene when called in a hurry.

One night recently the chief jumped from bed at 4 a.m. to answer an out of town alarm.

By the time he reached the fire station the tall lights of the fire wagon were disappearing up the street. Bender commanded a car and took off in pursuit, catching and passing the truck on the highway.

"Step on it," he remarked to a fellow fireman. "Must be a lulu by the bright glow."

The two vehicles raced through the night until the glow became more distinct, became a line of flame and then a semicircle. The chief flagged the fire truck to a stop.

The eager firemen had been racing toward the moon.

Mother Nature Need To Modern Inventor Not Take Back Seat

WASHINGTON—In this modern age scientists are always coming up with something to amaze the layman. Students of nature, Mother Nature, that is, will tell you that she outdid them all a long time ago. In fact, she set the pattern for them to follow.

The lowly bat, for instance, has been around for ages and eons. Brother bat being blind, nature saw fit to equip him with a special radar-like equipment. As he flits through the air he emits supersonic signals that bounce off walls, trees and other objects to guide his flight on the darkest of nights.

The eagle, who must prey upon ground animals for the major part of his food supply, has a set of eyes that puts our modern binoculars to shame and enables him to spot a hiding animal from the highest altitude.

The ambitious little ant has a special sense that directs him to a new food supply, and can find its way back to the ant colony and return with reinforcements.

Direction also plays an important role in the life of a migrating plover. Unerringly, he takes off yearly from the shores of Alaska and comes to rest on the beaches of Hawaii.

With commendable foresight, Mom Nature endowed the world's smaller creatures with special abilities for self preservation and food procurement. Many species of plants set traps for their prey, netting insects, and, in some parts of the world, even animals in their clutches. The lowly skunk has a great defensive weapon in his gas attack. Many other apparently defenseless animals are equipped with ears that catch sounds far behind normal range, thus enabling them to take shelter. The electric eel, living in a sea filled with terrible denizens of the deep, shocks them all with his built-in voltage.

Name almost any invention of civilization, and you can find a parallel in nature's realm. Perhaps that's where the idea came from, in the first place.

Age changes in man appear at different age levels, he declared, and come at different age levels in the organ systems of the individual.

Tugboat Crewmen Baffle Alabama Police Officer

MONTGOMERY, Ala.—This Alabama town believes in Southern hospitality, just like the rest of the south. They don't approve of loitering, however, which probably may be said the cause of this recent incident.

Patrolman M. E. Furr noticed two men hanging around and felt it his duty to investigate. One of them could hardly blame him for being suspicious when they told him they were waiting for a tug to pick them up. A tugboat hadn't been seen this far up the Alabama river in 30 years. They were told to hit the road. Two days later the tug R. Thomas McDermott steamed up the river to Montgomery and reported two missing crewmen.

British Air Experts Note Method to Curb Fatalities

LONDON, Eng.—A few British experts believe they have come up with a way to cut down the number of casualties in airplane crashes. They want to rearrange the seats and have air passengers ride backwards.

Walter Tye, chief technician of the British air registration board, points out that casualties usually result from passengers being pitched violently forward. If the backward seating arrangement were put into effect, he believes, the maximum shock would be absorbed by the cushioned seat backs.

Tye holds the belief that with reversed seats, "in any crash where the fuselage of the plane remains in one piece, it is almost certain that many casualties could be avoided." The fuselage remains intact in the majority of airplane crashes.

Experiments in backward seats have been tried satisfactorily in troop carriers.

One hitch might prohibit the success of the program. The passenger's attitude. It is a trait of human nature to prefer to see where one is going, rather than where one has been.

Chicago Bandits Modernize To Meet Changing Times

CHICAGO—Hijackers are going modern!

Four bandits, using walkie-talkie radios to keep in touch with one another, kidnapped a truck driver and a truck loaded with a $50,000 cargo of lingerie.

The driver, Joseph Kolodzy, and his helper, Leo Goody, both of St. Joseph, Michigan, were driven about in an auto for over three hours, before being released in suburban Cicero.

Kolodzy said that the hijackers had two portable radio receivers—walkie talkies of World War II fame—to keep in contact with each other, one radio in the auto, the other in the stolen truck.

Two of the bandits, armed with automatic pistols, forced the two truck drivers to lie on the floor of the auto, and to divulge information as to the operation of the truck and the whereabouts of the "traveling papers" for the cargo, and relayed the info to the truck.

Contrasting Flavors, Textures Will Keep Menus Interesting

A MEAL THAT'S LIVELY with color, exciting because of some soft foods, some crisp and crunchy, some tart and spicy while others have a subtle sweetness can keep appetite interest high.

Homemakers who want to keep their families looking forward to mealtime no matter what the weather plan menus with such rules in mind.

Consequently menus never become dull, and it's easy to have nutritionally adequate foods not only served but eaten also.

It's fun to see what ingenuity can be used in combining foods for interesting menus. Here's a broiled cheese and rice combination that is proud to appear at any dinner table after a quick trip to the broiler. Dessert and salad courses are combined in one with a watermelon salad bowl, which offers fresh fruit with its crisp texture, an excellent contrast to the soft-textured foods of the main dish.

Broiled Cheese-Rice Platter (Serves 4)

- 1 1/2 cups cooked rice
- 1 cup chopped, cooked, drained spinach
- 1 1/2 cups cheese sauce
- 4 slices tomato

Arrange rice on 10-inch oven platter. Pour half of the cheese sauce over rice. Cover with spinach. Pour remaining cheese sauce over spinach. Place slices of tomato on top. Bake in a hot (450°F.) oven, about 10 minutes or until heated. Broil, 4 inches from heat, until cheese is lightly browned, about 2 minutes.

Watermelon Bowl Salad

- 1/2 watermelon
- 2 cups cantaloupe balls
- 1 cup pineapple wedges
- 1 cup blueberries
- Cream cheese
- French or other salad dressing.

With a ball cutter, remove the center from half of a short, thick watermelon. Toss the watermelon balls together with the cantaloupe balls, pineapple wedges and blueberries. Place the watermelon bowl on green leaves on a round chop plate and fill it with mixed fruit. Around the base of the melon, arrange groups of cream cheese cubes. Serve with French or other dressing.

A MENU THAT MATCHES

season and is full of contrast in texture and color is a broiled crabmeat and tomato sandwich. Pair this with green cabbage salad put together with sour cream dressing. A tangy lemon dessert completes the menu:

Broiled Crabmeat-Tomato Sandwich (Serves 4)

- 8 buttered slices of bread (crusts removed)
- 1 6-ounce can crabmeat
- 2 medium tomatoes
- Cheese sauce

Place one slice of bread in the bottom of each individual casserole dish. Spread with flaked crabmeat. Top with tomato slice and another slice of bread. Pour hot cheese sauce over each sandwich. Place under broil and broil for 7 to 10 minutes or until bread is heated through and nicely browned. Serve immediately.

Liver Loaf slices nicely and has an interesting texture, as well as good color contrast when teamed with tiny pickled beets. Any type of liver may be used for this richly nutritious and appetite-satisfying main dish.

LYNN SAYS:

Here are Foods For Out-of-Doors

When you're eating out, fix kabobs, those tempting tidbits on skewers. Cook them over coals, or broil them in the oven before bringing out to eat.

Sausage makes a tasty kabob when you form the meat into balls and alternate with chunks of apples and cubes of onion.

Oysters rolled in bacon make an excellent first or main course when they're broiled on skewers.

LYNN CHAMBERS' MENU

- *Liver Loaf
- *Tiny Pickled Beets
- *Peanut Muffins
- *Fresh Pineapple-Banana Salad
- *Lemon Crumb Crunch
- Beverage
- *Recipes Given

You may serve a half watermelon filled with pineapple, blueberries and melon balls as a salad-dessert for dinner, or as a main course salad for a luncheon. Fresh fruit flavors and colors in this type of salad offer cool satisfaction for warm day meals.

LIVER LOAF is a nutritious menu brightener made of ground liver seasoned with a sly hint of onion and blended with egg and milk to come out of the oven a smoothly-satisfying meat loaf. Serve with pickled baby beets and peanut muffins for a menu that's thrifty and properly contrasted.

*Liver Loaf (Serves 6)

- 1 pound liver
- 3 cups enriched bread cubes
- 1 cup milk
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 2 tablespoons minced onion
- 2 eggs
- 4 tablespoons melted shortening

Pour enough boiling water to cover over liver and let stand for 10 minutes. Remove from hot water and put through meat grinder, or cut into small cubes with scissors. Pour milk over bread cubes and let stand for 5 minutes. Add salt, pepper, onion, beaten eggs, shortening and liver. Mix thoroughly. Pour into greased, paper-lined pan. Bake in a moderate (350°F.) oven for 1 hour.

Peanut muffins can be made by adding 1 cup chopped peanuts to your favorite recipe or muffin mix.

Sour Cream Dressing (Makes 2 cups)

- 1 egg yolk
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1 tablespoon flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1/2 teaspoon paprika
- 1/2 cup water
- 1/2 cup vinegar
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 1 cup soured cream

Beat egg yolk with spoon in top part of double boiler. Mix dry ingredients and add to egg yolk. Mix well. Add water, then vinegar and cook over hot water until thick, stirring constantly. Add butter, Chill. Fold in soured cream just before serving. This is excellent for shredded green cabbage.

Plastics Ancient

Plastics are generally considered rather new, but their use goes back well over 100 years. First there was the use of natural resins, gums, shellac, and ceiling-wax. In 1846 cellulose nitrate began to be produced. Progress has been steady in the past century until now, if this were not known as the Atomic Age, it might well be called the Plastics Age. Today's plastic spectacle frames, with their rich variety of styles and colors, are a good example of why plastics are popular.

Moss Menace

Lack of fertility, poor drainage or both cause moss in some lawns. Fertility deficiency is corrected by raking away the moss and fertilizing the bare spots liberally with a special lawn food. Where water gathers because of faulty drainage, this moss-causing factor can be ended by changing the grade. If surface drainage is good but seepage water saturates the subsoil it may be necessary to install tile to end the difficulty.

Cleaning Brushes

The painter who neglects to clean his brushes after they've been used doesn't deserve much sympathy; but at least he deserves a tip on how to recondition his brushes the next time they have to be used. Fill up an old can with vinegar, stick the brushes in it, and put it on the stove until it boils for ten or fifteen minutes. This may cause falling bristles in inferior quality brushes; but it will soften them up considerably, and a good washing should complete the reconditioning.

CLASS TEACHING (Con'd)

I. The Bible Tells of Classes.

A. Nehemiah 8:1-8.

B. Jesus was brought up and trained one of those schools. Read Luke 4:16—Jesus said in John 18:20 "I ever taught in the Synagogue and in the Temple." Thus by divine authority the teaching of the Bible in schools is established. To argue against this is to argue against a demonstration.

C. There were more than 400 synagogues in Jerusalem. Jesus, by teaching in synagogues, endorsed the synagogue method of teaching and arrangements for the same. It takes a greater stretch of the imagination to deny simultaneous teaching in 400 Synagogues, than it would to imagine thousands of people drinking from the same cup.

D. Acts 5:20, 21, 25, 42 all tell of a class teaching program being carried on.

II. Teach is commanded—It Cannot be ignored.

1-Matthew 28:18-20

2-2 Timothy 2:2

3-Hebrew 5:12
