U.S. senator's aide dies as hijack attempt foiled

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — A staff aide to Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., was among four persons killed in an apparent Palestinian attempt to hijack an Israeli airliner at the Istanbul airport, the U.S. Consulate reported today.

The attack Wednesday night ended with the surrender of two Palestinian terrorists. Officials said 26 persons were wounded, two of them American women. The El Al jet flew safely to Tel Aviv.

Officials at the U.S. Embassy in Tel Aviv said the dead American was Harold Wallace Rosenthal, 29. They said he was a former aide to Sen. Walter F. Mondale of Minnesota, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, and was on his way to Jerusalem for a conference on the Middle East.

The other dead were a Japanese, an Israeli and a fourth man believed to have been a Spaniard.

The two gunmen told police they smuggled their guns and hand grenades through the Rome airport, which has been the scene of numerous hijackings and terrorist attacks. In the worst of them, 32 people were killed in December 1973 when five Palestinian commandos shot their way into the airport, firebombed one jetliner and hijacked another.

Transit passengers and their hand luggage are subject to electronic search at Rome, officials said, but suitcases checked through from originating points are transferred to on-going flights on the understanding they were checked at original boarding points.

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin indicated Israel's campaign for tighter airport security has produced no practical results so far.

A spokesman for the Israeli Embassy in Ankara praised the "utmost bravery and extraordinary success" of Turkish police in the Istanbul attack.

The Anatolia agency said among the 26 persons wounded in the Istanbul attack were two American woman in a party of Presbyterian tourists to the Holy Land from Portland, Ore.

The American Hospital said Margaret Shearer, 40, had a bullet wound in the ankle and was "considerably improved." But Miss Shearer's family in Portland said the injured woman was not Margaret but her sister, Nona, who was traveling with her.

Another member of the American party, Lucille Washburn, 52, was bruised on her arms and thighs, a hospital spokesman said.

The pilot of the Israeli plane said he was told the attack was made by four terrorists, but police accounts of interrogations of the two captured Palestinians indicated they acted alone.

The newspaper Hurriyet said the terrorists' plan to hijack the El Al jetliner, which was waiting to load passengers, was foiled when police began searching transit passengers's luggage.

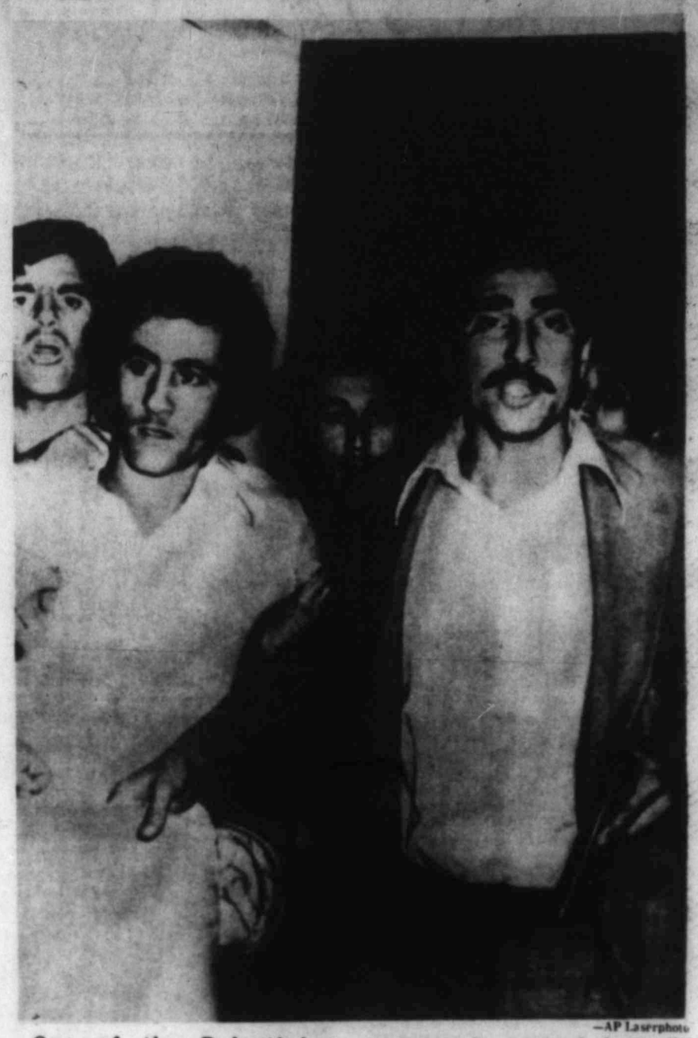

As the two terrorists approached the end of the line before boarding a bus to the plane, they opened their bags, hurled a grenade into the linedup passengers and began spraying the room with submachine guns, police said.

The four died when the grenade blast ripped across the exit gate, breaking windows and causing panic among the crowd. The passengers scattered, seeking shelter behind chairs and under a staircase.

The terrorists took a Turkish policewoman hostage and exchanged shots with airport security police who rushed to the lounge and kept them from reaching the jetliner on the runway about 100 yards from the terminal.

The two Palestinians surrendered after an hour-long standoff and negotiations with Istanbul Gov. Namik Kemal Senturk and other officials.

Police said the dead Japanese was a teen-ager with a gun in his shirt, leading them to believe he was one of the terrorists. But a Japanese travel agency said the man was a 40-year-old travel agent accompanying 10 Japanese tourists who escaped unhurt.

Car Insurance rates hiked 7.1 per cent

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Insurance Board today approved a 7.1 per cent average statewide increase in private passenger automobile insurance rates based on "automatic" deductibles of $200 on collision and $50 on comprehensive coverage.

The new rates will take effect with policies written or renewed Oct. 1.

A policyholder's premium on his new policy or renewal will be calculated automatically on the assumption that he or she will accept a deductible of $200 on collision claims and $50 on claims for comprehensive, which would include glass breakage, theft, fire or hail damage.

There will be a notice on the premium billing to the effect that he or she can have a lower deductible, but at a higher premium, if the policyholder and the company agree to this.

Most automobile policyholders now have coverage that provides full payment of comprehensive claims

Whatever happened to Hadacol Corners

MIDKIFF—Twenty years ago, when I traveled between El Paso, where I was in college, and Abilene, which was sort of my "hometown," it was always good for a grin on the long highway when I passed the marker for "Hadacol Corners."

Hadacol was, of course, the tonic that got very popular in the late 1940's.

But Hadacol Corners is no more, of course. The word is that citizens fell back on the name of a pioneer ranching family of the area when the U. S. Post Office refused to accept the brand name for the local mail designation.

And the guy who started it all—somebody nicknamed "Hadacol" Daugherty—reportedly moved to Midland years ago.

The corners are still here, with a service station on one and the skeleton of a celebrated cafe on another. And only Abilene has more churches per capita; well kept sanctuaries for Baptists, Methodists, Catholics, and Church of Christ are strung out along the highway like pearls.

The commercial community is made up of the service station, the nearby Midkiff Gin, and Whisman Grocery, plus Weepy's Welding and something called the Fashion Hut.

My heart sank when I beheld the closed restaurant, because I had made the trip specifically to sample the Mexican food there, reportedly "the best in the country."

But Mr. Whisman put me at ease; the eatery had been moved about four miles east, opposite the pipeline road and the oil company community.

Eva Clark's cafe wasn't difficult to identify: there were 12 pickup trucks, an El Paso Natural Gas supply flatbed, three sedans, and a Volkswagen choking the parking area and overflowing across the road and down the highway.

As soon as I got inside, I could see why. Ms. Clark serves roughneck proportions of home cookin', and most of the 100 or so chairs were occupied by men with their sleeves rolled up and their forks flying.

I knew the enchiladas were going to be good when the pleasant waitress produced the green chili sauce in a peanut butter jar.

It was.

School officials disappointed, not surprised at Justice action

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

From "not surprised" to "disappointed" are the reactions of Midland school officials to Wednesday's rejection of all three school desgregation plans by the Justice Department.

The Justice Department also left open the issue of whether or not to retain Crockett, Milam and Pease elementary schools in the suit.

"I'm not surprised at their response to J-1, C-1 and C-2 (the three plans). We anticipated the plans we submitted were not as comprehensive as the Justice Department might have wished. But nonetheless we felt the plans did meet the Constitutional requirements in light of the fact that our grades 7 through 12 are fully integrated," board president Joe Dominey said.

He said he is "frustrated" at the lack of a definite ruling on Milam, Pease and Crocket, but "at the same time encouraged that they are unable to find truly concrete evidence that there was any official action by the school district to cause those schools to be racially identifiable."

Dominey said the board probably will not meet to discuss the Justice Department response until its special meeting Tuesday which was already planned to adopt the district budget.

Thornton Hardie Jr., attorney for the school district, said he expects the court to notify both parties of the next step after it has examined the response.

Hardie was optimistic about the possibility of Crockett, Milam and Pease being removed from the case. "The facts do not exist" that would show school district action to intentionally segregate the schools, Hardie said.

Trustee Don Sparks expreased disappointment "that the Justice Department seems to take the position that they have to dig into every little niche to find some way to take ut to court" over the three schools.

"It's obvious (from the response) they have had to work very hard at it," he said.

The Justice Department cited action concerning rural bus routes and boundary changes in the mid-1960s and action by the city regarding housing patterns as possible intentional segregation of Crockett, Milam and Pease and expressed a need for more ti me "to flush out all the facts."

The school board has promised to resist any inclusion of these three schools in any desegregation order.

Schools superintendent Dr. James H. Mailey said the school district is "still in limbo" over the inclusion or exclusion of those achools.

"They haven't disagreed with us. They just haven't agreed to agree with us," Dominey said, and he is optimistic the school district may prevail on that point.

The Justice Department response, which was submitted to federal court Wednesday in responae to a court order by district judge D. W. Suttle, said plans to desegregate Washington and De Zavala elementary schools were "legally insufficient."

It said grades one through six should be included in the plans and also cited secondary problems with both C-1 and C-2.

Plan C-1 would cluster Washington, Travis and South elementary schools' fifth and sixth grades at a re-opened Bunche Elementary School. Plan C-2 would reassign the fifth and sixth grades of De Zavala to Bowie and Houston Elementary achools.

School board members said they would resist efforts to include six grades in the plan, although, Dominey said, the board will not negotiate on those plans until the question of the other three schools is settled.

Wholesale price climb slowed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lower food prices held the climb in wholesale prices to a moderate three-tenths of a per cent during July, the government said today, but there was a signal of possible trouble ahead with inflation.

The Labor Department said the July figures mean wholesale prices are rising at an annual rate of 3.6 per cent, after adjustment for seasonal variations. The July increase was in line with increases of fourtenths of a per cent in June and three-tenths of a per cent in May.

The increase left wholesale prices 4.9 per cent ahead of where they were in July 1975, marking the first time in five months that the year-to-year change has been under 5 per cent.

Farm, food and feed prices were down 1 per cent in July for their first drop in four months. The Labor Department said meat, poultry, fish, wheat, green coffee and egg prices primarily were responsible for the drop. Prices of fresh and dried fruits and vegetables climbed.

A less encouraging signal was shown in the industrial commodities sector, which many economists consider to indicate the basic or long-term rate of inflation. The industrial sector is less volatile than the food sector and depends more on underlying economic factors rather than such things as weather changes which can affect food costs.

Industrial commodities climbed by seven-tenths of a per cent in July, the biggest increase since an identical jump in November. The July increase followed rises of fivetenths of a per cent in June and one-tenth of a per cent in May. Industrial commodities are 6.7 per cent ahead of a year ago.

Terminal improvements win PBRPC nod

By DEBBIE PIERCE

The board of directors of the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission Wednesday approved an application by the City of Midland for $2,299,895 from the Federal Aviation Administration for improvements to the Midland Regional Air Terminal building.

The city has agreed to contribute $2,386,098 toward the project, making the total amount of improvements $4,685,993.

In granting approval to the application, PBRPC directors noted the Terminal building itself would be remodeled to provide second-level departure areas and holding room, second-level parking, pedestrian bridges to serve the proposed parking more area, new second floor offices and needed roof repairs. Of special note, according to PBRPC director of planning Jerry Tschauner, would be the widening of the building's ticketing lobby.

In a somewhat surprise move, PBRPC directors voted to give unfavorable comment to three applications for project mortgage insurance and housing assistance payments at three sites in Odessa.

The firms proposing the applications were Lee-Jackson-Turner, a 100-unit, three-story apartment project at Marless Avenue and 14th and 15th streets; Westview Retirement Facilities Corp., a 125-unit, six-story apartment project at West 16th Street between Harless Avenue and McArthur Avenue; and Manor Crest Apartments Ltd., a 124-unit, one-story, 17-building elderly row apartment project at San Andres Street between West County Road and Santa Monica Drive.

Board member Willie Hammond Jr., also an Odessa city more councilman, told the other directors that the Odessa council had voted unaninously against the three applications, based on their locations. He said the council believed the federal government was trying to decide where minorities could live, but the council felt local governments "should have a say in where these units will go."

He said nothing specific was wrong with the three sites chosen, but other sites should be made available in the city where other elderly live.

Directors unanimously voted to grant unfavorable comment to all three applications.

In other action, PBRPC directors agreed:

— To approve an application by the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation for $265,000 from the Federal Highway Administration for a construction project on FM 3334 in Reeves County, and for $377,000 from the FHA for a construction project on FM 2052 in Dawson County;

— To approve an application by the Ector County Youth Center for $121,346 from the Criminal Justice Division for continued funding of the Ector County Regional Juvenile Rehabilitation Program;

— To approve an application by the Big Spring Independent School District for $185,016 from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare for funding of its 1976-77 Head Start Program;

— To approve authorizing the PBRPC executive director to submit application to the Criminal Justice Division for continuation of PBRPC criminal justice planning at a total cost of $42,179;

— Heard a report on the labor market analysis survey regarding the status of employment and unemployment in the Permian Basin region and the growth of the region;

— Heard a report on the demonstration projeet for a combined effort in the prevention of alcoholism and drug abuse, noting that the broad-based program could take five to 20 years;

— Received bids of $29,382 from General Electric Co. of Lubbock and $39,070 from Motorola of Dallas for 16 ambulance radios for the Emergency Medical Services program, and appointed a committee headed by Gaines County Judge Marcus Crow to award the contract; and,

— Received bids of $198,093.80 from Summers Ambulances and Coaches of Duncanville, $183,340 for a 1976 chassis and $188,340 for a 1977 chassis from Modular Ambulance Corp. of Grand Prairie, and $185,350 from Southern Ambulance Builders of La Grange, Ga., on seven Chevrolets and three Fords as ambulances in the EMS program, with the same committee to award the contract.

Officials disappointed at action

this case since being listed as an intervenor in 1971, said she did not see "how integration of the fifth and sixth grades could be called integration."

She also said, however, that she would like to see at least kindergarten and first grade kept in the neighborhood schools.

Dr. Coleman said she will consult with the other persons who were intervenors in the case before deciding on any action as a result of the Justice Department response.

Roy Marshall, who has formed a committee of persons from the Bonham area, also said he will meet with his group to determine future action.

"I think that we can come up with alternative plans to take to the school board and help the school board come up with an answer," Marshall said.

He said he was pleased the Justice Department did not accept the school district's plans but was not pleased with the reasons given. "I don't think it's in favor of community schools," he said.

Ciro Sanchez, a committee member of an eastside citizens organization said he believes his group should meet. Sanchez also said he would like for his group to help suggest alternative plans.

"I think that any solutions that minorities might have would carry more weight with the government than the school board's plans," Sanchez said.

Trustee Ann Page said she was "surprised and very opposed" to the Juatice Department contention that six grades should be desegregated.

"We think to integrate grades one through six is a massive demand that is really excessive in light of what we've accomplished in the secondary schools," Dominey said.

The Justice Department also questioned the provision that would cluster Washington with Travis South, which it called "naturally integrated" schools.

"They basically are asking that Washington and De Zavala become predominantly Anglo schools. That means the majority of those students currently enrolled in those schools would need to be enrolled elsewhere." Mailey said.

In the C-2 plan, the Justice Department cited the burden being placed entirely on minority students as a possible "second level insufficiency" of the plan.

Board member Johnny Warren said "it is nathematically impossible" to desegregate elementary schools and devise an equitable plan "because of the numbers."

"I sort of felt like they were not going to be favorable to that plan (C-2) because it did not solve the problem of the racial identity of the school," trustee James Ramsoure said.

Ramsoure said he believed plan C-1 was different in that students from other sections would be brought .nto the minority community and he expressed some surprise that that plan had not been accepted.

In response to alternatives suggested by the Justice Department, which included three-way pairing of the three schools involved in C-2, magnet schools and the creation of grade centers, Ramsoure and Mrs. Page said the board will consider the suggestions.

Mrs. Page said no new plans will be presented until "we actually have a hearing."

"We've considered most of these alternatives already and have found that what we proposed were the better alternatives as we see them," Sparks said.

In describing the situation as it stands now, Dominey said, "Although the Justice Department is our adversary, the one we have to convince is the judge."

Duo arrested rifling autos

Midland police were on their toes early this morning as Sgt. Jim McFadden nabbed two men in the act of rifling autos at an apartment complex parking lot in the 4200 block of North Garfield Street.

Sgt. McFadden said he was on routine patrol when he spotted a man shining a flashlight into cars parked at the apartment complex shortly before 5 a.m.

McFadden said he pulled his patrol vehicle behind the two men's auto and made his arrest without incident.

Confiscated were a trolling motor and a citizen's band radio antenna. McFadden said the items were retreived from the men's auto.

Police said another suspect is being sought in connection with the car burglaries.

Both men arrested remained in custody at city jail early today pending charges and setting of bond.

MORE BURGLARIES

Five reported burglaries were being investigated by police early today.

Hand tools valued at $45 were reported taken from Thornton's Department Store in the Dellwood Plaza. Police said entry to the building was apparently made with the use of a ladder.

Danny Rodgers of 206 F St. reported a 1971 motorcycle and a television were taken in a burglary of his home.

Employes at Hogan Park Golf Pro Shop reported a burglary in which a golf bag and clubs valued at $583 were taken. Police said entry was gained by breaking out a window in the building.

Margorie Isacas of 2008 E. California St. reported a burglary at her home in which a television valued at $100 was taken.

Midland County sheriff's deputies were investigating a reported theft of two sets of hand tools valued at $500.

APARTMENTS BLAZE

The old abandoned Belmont Apartments in the 1700 and 1800 blocks of South Colorado Street went up in flames shortly before 6 p.m. Wednesday.

Midland firemen responded to the alarm, but extinguished the fire only after heavy damage was done to the buildings.

Firemen said the blaze was probably set by children playing in the area.

Firemen extinguished four other minor fires Wednesday and early today.

At 6:57 a.m. today, firemen answered a call to the John Welch home at 3514 Michigan St. and helped the residents there extinguish a minor stove blaze that caused heavy smoke damage to the kitchen.

At 10:02 a.m. Wednesday firemen extinguished a trash container fire in the 1300 block of South Mineola Street.

A trash container fire was extinguished at 9:50 p.m. Wednesday in the 1800 block of English Drive.

Firemen quelled a grass fire alongside the Texas and Pacific Rail Road tracks 15 miles west of the city at 7:13 p.m. Wednesday. Firemen said cause of that fire was probably a passing train.

City's zoological society seeks $5 million for new Midland zoo

The Midland Zoological Society Wednesday unanimously agreed to ask the City of Midland to call a $5 million bond election for construction of a new zoo.

The bonds would be realized through general obligation bonds expected to be sold over a three- to four-year period, the society decided.

Funds, however, would not include land acquisition or animals for the 50- to 100-acre zoo proposed by the group.

Roy Kimsey, president of the zoo society, said the group has done everything possible in financing a feasibility study for the zoo and in providing local input on the proposal. "Now we need to get some indicators from the public," he noted.

Recently, the Midland City Council proposed a cut of $27,127 in the zoo budget for the upcoming fiscal year. Kimsey said the budget cut is a signal — "Either we've got to show public appeal for a zoo, or Midland's going to get out of the zoo business," he noted.

Kimsey, zoo director Bob Cooper and zoo board members Budge McDonnold Jr. and Bob Thompson will present the society's proposal to the city Parks and Recreation Commission at 3 p.m. Tuesday. Copies of the feasibility study by Zooplan Associates Inc. also will be available.

Kathy Burleson, another board member, is heading a committee seeking additional donations to complete payment of the $5,500 still due on the study.

Mc Donnold is writing a rough draft of a contract to be between the city and the zoological society if funding for the zoo is approved. The zoo could be operated on land and facilities owned by the city, with day-to-day operation under the direction of the society, he said.

Kimsey said he will write a letter to each of the 1,200 society members urging them to attend the city budget hearing Sept. 14 and provide input for the city zoo.

Early sign-up continuing

Second summer session at Midland College ends today with final examinations for more than 400 students.

Meanwhile, pre-registration is continuing for the fall semester. More than 700 students already have completed pre-registration and have time permits for registration.

Pre-registration will continue through Aug. 24. Registration will be conducted Aug. 25 and 26.

Faculty will have a one-day workshop Aug. 23. Freshman students are slated for a day-long orientation on Aug. 24. Another orientation session is slated for Aug. 27.

Classes will begin Aug. 30, for both daytime and evening students.

Carriers stop strike threat

WASHINGTON (AP) — The letter carriers' union has withdrawn its two-year-old threat of a nationwide mail strike after winning on a key arbitration issue involving a Postal Service efficiency plan.

"The need for costly and hazardous strike action was avoided by the arbitration decision," James Rademacher, president of the National Association of Letter Carriers, said Wednesday.

The Postal Service also claimed victory in the arbitration, citing issues on which arbitrator Sylvester Garrett ruled in its favor.

"This is a very important and crucial occurrance for the Postal Service," a spokesman said. "We plan to proceed with vigor to bring the maximum productivity to the Postal Service."

and a $100 deductible on collision losses.

Charles Edwards, the board's consulting actuary, said he believed that so few would opt to continue their lower deductibles that the 7.1 per cent average premium increase would remain a valid figure.

He said the typical policyholder would save $48 on his coverage with the automatic higher deductibles compared with what he or she would pay for continued use of the full comprehensive and $100 collision options.

The insurance industry had sought an average 27.9 per cent increase and the board staff had recommended a 19.3 per cent average increase, both based on continuing the existing pattern of deductibles.

An insurance industry spokesman said that while the industry felt the increase was too low, there was no plan to challenge it in court.

Actual premiums paid will vary widely from the statewide average, depending on a driver's age, driving record, home town, make and model of car and the uses to which it is put.

Ceiling raised on workmen's compensation

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Insurance Board announced today it has boosted the weekly payroll limitation for determining a business' workmen's compensation rate from $200 to $300 per worker.

"This is a major victory," an insurance industry spokesman said.

Industry representatives had sought for years, with opposition from the Texas Association of Business, to raise the rate base. The insurance industry had said the $200 limit had kept premiums unreasonably low as actual wages had increased.

The increase in the limit will take effect Jan. 1, the date on which the board expects to put a new manual of workmen's compensation rates into effect. A hearing probably will be held in November.

The board also ordered a 5.5 per cent rate increase, effective Sept. 1, to cover automatic increases in workmen's compensation benefits that will take effect on that date. The legislature tied workmen's compensation benefits to changes in average wages.

Enjoy summer fast -- it's just about over

Hot, dry weather continues to linger over the Permian Basin, making the last few weeks before school starts enjoyable for swimming and other outdoor sports.

Andrews, Lamesa, Crane, Stanton, Midland, Rankin, McCamey and Big Lake all reported clear skies, no wind and warm morning temperatures.

The weatherman said skies will be fair through Friday. Tonight's low should be in the upper 60s, with Friday's high reaching the middle 90s. Winds will be from the south at 10-20 mph tonight..

Although some of the top temperatures dwindled a bit Wednesday, it was still browmopping weather across Texas today, and no letup was in prospect through the weekend.

Occasional showers tapered off after falling near the coast and in part of the Texas Panhandle during the night. Corpus Christi measured .97 inch of rain before midnight.

A weak cool front stalled across the High Plains was expected to drift a little farther east and start breaking up. Forecasts promised the heat wave would stretch into Monday at least. Chances were seen for a few showers or thunderstorms in most sections by Saturday or Sunday.

Thermometers climbed as high as 105 degrees Wednesday at Wichita Falls. The mercury hit 102 at Presidio and 100 at Abilene. Galveston on the coast and Marfa in the far west were the coolest spots with highs of 87, The Associated Press reported.

Readings near dawn today varied from 81 at Galveston down to 63 at Dalhart in the Panhandle.

Mishap injures man, kills goat

Hospital officials said Boone received minor cuts and bruises from the accident.

Department of Public Safety spokesman said the goat was killed.

Texas Highway Patrolman Woody Jackson of Midland said in his report that Boone was traveling east on the north service road alongside Interstate 20 when the goat ran in front of his motorcycle. Boone was thrown from the motorcycle, Jackson said.

Oilfield mishap kills Lamesan

LAMESA — A Lamesa oilfield worker who dragged himself to his pickup truck to radio for help following an accident died an hour and a half later in the emergency room of Medical Arts Hospital.

Claude Mason Pinkerton, 39, died shortly before 11 a.m. Wednesday from injuries suffered in the mishap near Cedar Lake, 27 miles west of Lamesa.

Both his legs were crushed by 500-pound weights of a pumpjack he had been lubricating. Justice of the Peace Richard Nelson ruled the accidental death was due to shock and multiple bruises to his legs.

The accident apparently occurred when Pinkerton was hammered by the pumpjack when it turned on automatically while he was working at the bottom of it.

Funeral services are being directed by Branon Funeral Home of Lamesa.

Club sets playday

The Midland County 4-H Horse Club will hold its monthly playday Saturday at 10 a.m. Events will include showmanship at halter, western pleasure, horsemanship, poles, barrels and flags. The playday will be held behind the County Exhibit Building on east U.S. 80.

Postmaster discusses Postal Service problems

D. E. Holster, Midland postmaster, told members of the Downtown Lions Club Wednesday that free enterprise will remain a potent force in the nation, but a nationwide system of mail service that is a government agency is still the best answer.

Speaking at the weekly noon meeting at the Hilton Hotel, Holster said Congress and the public want fast, regular mail deliveries to crowded cities, small towns and isolated farms, but they also want cheap stamps, efficient operations and deficits.

Holster listed several government agencies that serve only certain segments of the population, but he said only the U.S. Postal Service serves all the people.

"When you potentially serve every citizen, you are vulnerable to a few complaints — take my word for it," he said.

Commenting on proposals that private enterprise be allowed to handle the mail, Holster said that several firms would have to be used, which would result in much confusion.

Many of the reasons for delay of the mail, Holster said, is not the fault of the postal service.

"If a flight is cancelled or over-flies a scheduled stop, or if a truck breaks down, then the postal service gets the blame," he said.

"Not all of the delays are the fault of the postal service."

David Holster

Speaking on the Midland post office as a "Management Sectional Center," Holster said the Midland office serves 64 other offices covering an area of 34,000 square miles.

"We process all the outgoing mail for this area and, because of this, Midland is the smallest city in the U.S. with a 12-position lettering sorting machine capable of processing 42,000 pieces of mail per hour," he said.

An average of 500,000 pieces of mail go through the Midland office a day, Holster said.

City's jobless rate is lowest within Texas

Midland has the lowest employment rate in the state, according to information released by the Texas Employment Commission.

Midland had an unemployment rate of 3.4 per cent of the total labor force in June, the employment commission said.

The commission reported that 1,240 persons were unemployed here in June while 1,110 were jobless in May.

Odessa's unemployment was 3.5 per cent in May and 3.7 per cent in June, the commission said.

Kansas sniper kills two, wounds seven

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — An 11-minute hail of sniper bullets from the top floor of a Holliday Inn raked shoppers and workers in Wichita's downtown area, killing two persons and wounding seven.

The gunfire on Wednesday from the top of the tallest building in Kansas ended when five police officers fired a volley of shots through a wall, wounding a 19-year-old man armed with two rifles.

The man, identified as Michael Soles of Sand Springs, Okla., was under guard at a hospital. He was reported in fair condition with leg wounds. Charges were expected to be filed today.

Victims of what witnesses said was apparently random firing from the 26th floor of the Holiday Inn Plaza included workmen and office workers, shoppers, teen-agers waiting to buy tickets to a rock concert and a news photographer who had rushed to the scene.

Dead were Joe Goulart, 56, a free-lance photographer killed when a bullet smashed through the windshield of his car less than a block from the hotel; and Elmer W. Hensley, 57, a glass company worker, who died after he was struck in the back by a bullet as he stood on the roof of an adjoining building.

One of the seven persons wounded was in critical condition and two were listed as in serious condition.

Soles was described by relatives in Oklahoma as a "deeply religious boy" who had no history of trouble. A welder by trade, he had gone to Wichita several months ago seeking work, they said.

Friends and neighbors in Wichita described Soles as friendly and personable, a chunky, red-haired young man who helped one man fix his car and was a babysitter for the children of the minister with whom he was staying. The minister, the Rev. Timothy Hutton, would not talk with reporters.

Scores of police converged on the Holiday Inn within minutes of the first shooting report at 2:54 p.m. Wednesday. Shots were already raining down on the street as police opened fire. Bullets spattered buildings and streets during a light drizzle.

"I must have heard 30 or 35 shots," said Dan Bachmann, an attorney in a neighboring building. "Then I saw him (the gunman) throw down what appeared to be two rifles. The next thing I saw up there were two or three police officers."

Among the seven wounded was Mark Falen, 23, a bank loan officer, who was in critical condition with a neck wound he received while walking to his office.

In serious condition were Arnold Merritt, 51, another glass worker who was hit in the chest and knee, and Denise Guseman, 16, of Derby, Kan., who was hit in the neck.

Penny Guseman, 17, sister of Denise, was treated and released after receiving superficial wounds on her right arm and left leg. Also released were Janice Goodwin, 14, Chris Hoy, 24, and Larry Ade, 25, of Augusta, Kan.

At least two other persons were injured by flying glass during the shooting.

Witnesses said later they had seen a man carrying two weapons, identified as a 30-30 boltaction rifle and a .22 caliber semiautomatic with a telescopic sight, from a car to the hotel.

Riots claim 23 more South Africa blacks

CAPETOWN, South Africa (AP) — Tension mounted again today in Cape Town's black townships, where police said 23 blacks were killed in rioting Wednesday night.

Police Commissioner Gert Prinsloo issued the casualty report, correcting an earlier police report that 33 had been killed. He said 70 persons were seriously injured, but he did not know how many of the dead or wounded were hit by police gunfire.

It was the first serious outbreak of violence in the southern part of South Africa since the black upheaval against the white minority government's apartheid policy of racial separation began in mid-June in the Johannesburg area, 800 miles to the northeast.

The deaths in Cape Town brought to at least 212 the number killed since the first riots in Johannesburg's Soweto township. Thirty-four deaths have been reported in the past week.

The main trouble spot today was Guguletu township, north of Cape Town. Police were called in after several stone-throwing incidents but there were no immediate reports of further casualties.

Police armed with automatic weapons huddled around small fires at roadblocks guarding entrances to the townships. Officials said buses packed with workers were running normally.

Riot police fought pitched battles with mobs that burned buildings, looted liquor stores and attacked cars in the Langa and Guguletu black townships just north of Cape Town. The trouble started in the Cape Town ghettos when schoolchildren left their classes to protest the inequality between the white and black school systems.

The students began marching from school to school, calling for the other students to join their protest.

Second Mars probe seeks landing site

By RICHARD SALTUS

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The second Viking probe has begun its hunt for a safe place to touch down in a region of Mars that appears more hazardous, but more interesting, than Viking 1's landing place.

From its orbit around Mars, Viking 2's cameras are searching for a smooth site in the planet's northern latitudes. Scientists hope the environment there might be more suitable for the existence of Martian life forms.

Ninety-six photographs were taken Wednesday, but they were mainly for calibrating and focusing the twin cameras.

Viking 2 is in an orbit that will bring it over different spots each day for photo-taking. This way it will be able to look at the three widely separated search areas during August.

A heat-sensing instrument is also being used in the site search because the roughness of terrain can be reckoned from a pattern of temperature changes on the surface.

Some of the potential landing areas have been photographed. Generally they appeared cratered and cracked, and even the smoother locations have protrusions that one scientist called "measles."

None of the potential landing areas for Viking 2 look as safe as the Viking 1 landing area. After the Viking 1 lander had safely touched down, the area was found to be strewn with boulders that could have wrecked the craft.

Meanwhile, researchers at Viking mission headquarters here reported Wednesday on some photos taken by Viking 1's mother ship, still in orbit about the planet. They said the photos are considered the first clear evidence of Martian ground fog.

Dr. William Baum said the photos showed that water held in Martian soil, perhaps as permafrost, is given off into the atmosphere in the early morning and hangs as fog.

The importance of this process is biological. Some scientists think Martian organisms could have learned to use the very tiny amounts of water available near the surface for life. They have speculated that the organisms could pump the water vapor from the air or that the melting permafrost might exist temporarily as water on the surface.

In any case, the amount of water would be incredibly slight. At its wettest, Mars is drier than the driest deserts on earth.

Viking 1's life-search experiment had no new findings to report Wednesday, but the mechanical arm that had jammed in the middle of acquiring a soil sample last week was commanded to dump its load into a hopper of the lander's automated laboratory.

An important organic analysis of Martian soil was to be carried out today by the robot laboratory, with results due by Saturday.

Levi may dismiss charges

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A federal judge has granted another delay in pretrial conferences and set an Oct. 4 trial date in the federal perjury-conspiracy case against former Sen. Edward J. Gurney.

But the prosecutor said at a 15-minute hearing in U.S. district court Wednesday that Atty. Gen. Edward Levi is considering dropping the charges.

The attorney general and his aides are analyzing a recent 27-page opinion by federal Judge George Yound and previous trial transcripts "to determine whether the government is going to proceed with this trial or the indictment will be dismissed," U.S. Justice Department lawyer Vincent Alto told Young.

Luby's and Fisherman's Wharf...

A seaworthy pair. You'll see.

When people in San Francisco think of good fish, they think of Fisherman's Wharf. But when people in Luby's cities think of good fish, they naturally think of Luby's.

That's because every Luby's Cafeteria is known for its mouthwatering selections of tender fish entrees—flounder, gulf trout, redfish and catfish, to name a few.

Then there's our pride and joy of the fried fishes—tender, moist Icelandic haddock dipped in a savory seaman's batter.

FBI chief unveils major review

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI Director Clarence Kelley is launching a major review of policies for recruiting, using and paying informers.

"I am not satisfied that our present program ...best meets our needs," Kelley said in announcing the project Wednesday. "I am not satisfied that we have sufficiently explained to the American people the necessity for having sources."

At a news conference, Kelley said he could not state flatly that FBI agents and informers have stopped burglarizing homes and offices of American citizens.

"I wish I could say categorically, unquestionably, that this is not going on," Kelley said. "I will say, however, that I feel that it is not being done. I can also say if I determine it's being done now, I will take action."

Kelley said he was deceived by FBI officials when he said last year that there had been no FBI burglaries since 1969. Six weeks ago, he said there had been burglaries as recently as 1973.

"I can no longer make categorical, sweeping statements," he said.

Kelley is initiating the review of the informer policy following reports that FBI informers have committed crimes, including burglaries, to gather information and sell it to the FBI.

The Justice Department currently is investigating whether a Denver informer, Timothy Redfearn, broke into the Socialist Workers party office there and carted away scores of documents only six weeks ago.

During various investigations and lawsuits over the past two years, informers have claimed they committed crimes or encouraged violence while working for the FBI. The FBI has disputed some of the accounts.

An FBI spokesman said Kelley has not yet appointed the special task force that will make the internal review on informants, but the membership will be drawn from several divisions of the agency.

"They will go into how we recruit them, how we develop them, how we use them, the whole ball of wax," the spokesman said. "It will be a massive job. They will probably review every informant file."

FBI officials refuse to estimate how many informers they have. The FBI spends about $3.5 million on informer operations. Officials have said $50 to $100 would be a typical onetime informer payment, but some have been on weekly retainers as high as $400 for short periods.

Program wins accreditation

ODESSA — The radiologic technology program at Odessa College has been granted full accreditation without qualification by the American Medical Association's Council on Medical Education.

Notification of the accreditation came to Dr. Philip Speegle, OC president, From the AMA.

The accreditation came after a recommendation of the Joint Review Committee on Education in Radiologic Tecology. The committee had visited the campus and studied the program, college officials said.

OC's radiologic technology program already had accreditation with qualifications and had been granted provisional accreditation in the late 1960s, according to George Sivertson, director of the program at OC.

Students who graduate from accredited programs can take the national registry exam to become registered radiologic technologists.

Through the two-year training program at OC, students learn the skills needed as X-ray technologists. The college conducts the program in cooperation with Medical Center Hospital and students have classroom work, as well as practical experience at the hospital.

This fall, about 20 students will be enrolled in the radiologic technology program at OC and the class is already filled.

Center schedules CPA review

A certified public accountant (CPA) review course will be offered by the Permiam Basin Graduate Center beginning Aug. 27 and 28.

The course is being offered through the center by the staff of the CPA Review Program at Texas Tech University. The review sessions will be Friday nights and Saturdays for 10 weekends.

The sessions are not designed to be a substitute for regular university courses, but are intensive review sessions to guide the CPA candidate in his preparation for the November, 1976, examination.

Twelve hours of review on federal income tax will be Oct. 1 and 2 and are open to practicing accountants who desire a refresher course.

Fee for the complete program is $395 with individual sessions priced separately. Classes will meet at the center's classrooms in Gihls Tower East.

College adds new courses

Eight new physical education courses will be added to the Midland College curriculum this fall, according to athletic director Chester Story.

Handball and racquetball courses will be offered for credit, with the cooperation of the Midland YMCA. Facilities and instructors will be furnished by the Central YMCA, Story said.

Other courses that will be included for physical education credit are: volleyball, badminton, drill and dance, modern dance, personal health and hygiene and techniques of teaching women's team sports.

"We are attempting to expand our offerings into more areas desired by the community, with a particular emphasis on the life-time sports and leisure activities," Story said.

Pre-registration for Midland College's fall term is now underway. Persons interested should visit the office of student services in the administration building, or call 684-7851. Registration is set for Aug. 25-26 with classes starting on Aug. 30.

Forsan starts new programs

FORSAN — The Forsan Independent School district will introduce to the state of Texas two new programs this fall.

The creation of an occupational versatility shop program has caused registration in shop courses to rise from the usual 25 or 30 to 104 this year, schools superintendent J. F. Poyner said.

In the elementary schools, students in kindergarten and first and second grades will begin using the Hawaii English Program, a comprehensive language arts study, Poyner said.

The shop program provides individualized curricula for students in a wide selection of subjects, including small engine repair, welding, woodworking, crafts, upholstering, drafting, photography, finishing and leather, Poyner said.

He said students may select a project in the area he chooses and learn the skills necessary to complete the project. He called the program one of "student responsibility." Students may register for the course as many years as they choose.

The school district hopes to expand the language arts program to third, fourth and fifth grades next year. Poyner said district personnel attended a four-week workshop in San Jose, Calif., this summer to learn how to teach the program.

Forsam is the first school district in Texas to use either of the new programs, he said.

The district expects a total enrollment, in all grades, of approximately 460 this year, about the same as last year, Poyner said.

Food stamp picture undergoing changes

By ANN BLACKMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The proportion of elderly persons buying food stamps dropped during a recent survey period while the proportion of younger, unemployed purchasers increased, the government reports.

A new Census Bureau study on social and economic characteristics of families participating in the federal food stamp program shows that in July 1975 about 17 per cent of households buying food stamps were headed by persons 65 or older, compared to 24 per cent in May 1973.

At the same time, the food stamp households headed by persons under 35 increased from 30 to 39 per cent, the report shows.

John Coder, a statistician in the Census Bureau income branch, said, "There is no question that some of the increase (in food stamp use by those under 35) is because more of them are unemployed."

Coder added that another reason why the proportion of food stamp purchasers dropped may be because there were substantial increases in Social Security payments in 1974. That would have raised the monthly incomes of persons 65 and older, meaning some of them would have qualified for fewer stamps.

A household's eligibility to buy food stamps is based on monthly, not annual income. For this reason a household with a relatively high annual income may be eligible to purchase food stamps if its monthly income drops below a certain level.

For example, the report shows that while 60 per cent of those households purchasing food stamps had annual incomes below $4,000, there were 5 per cent with annual incomes of $10,000 or more.

The government defines a household as a person or group occupying a single room or group of rooms constituting one housing unit.

Food stamps are coupons that can be purchased by economically needy households and redeemed for more than their purchase price at retail food stores. Eligible persons, such as those on welfare, can purchase for about 40 cents a coupon worth $1 at grocery stores. The federal government picks up the other 60 cents.

Other aspects of the report show:

—About one in five black households — or 1.6 million — purchased food stamps in July 1975.

—About one in 25 white households — or about 2.8 million — purchased food stamps during the same time period.

—About one in seven Spanish households — or about 423,780 — purchased food stamps in July 1975.

—More Southerners purchased food stamps than persons from any other region of the country. About 8 per cent of all Southern households purchased food stamps, compared to about 6 per cent nationwide.

The report shows 4.4 million of an estimated 71.4 million households purchased food stamps during July 1975. It said this is about 42 per cent higher than the 3.1 million households buying stamps in May 1973 when the first Census Bureau food stamp survey was taken. The jobless rate in May 1973 was 5 per cent. It was 8.4 per cent in July 1975.

The Census Bureau says the main reason for the increase is that an amendment to the Food Stamp Act expanded the program to the entire nation in 1974. But the report adds that higher unemployment and food prices in late 1974 and early 1975 also contributed to the increase.

Roy Acuff back on job

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Roy Acuff, the "King of Country Music," has returned to the Grand Ole Opry stage after a four-month absence to recuperate from a heart attack.

"You know, I don't think anything could hurt me as bad as if I couldn't ever work the Opry again," Acuff said Wednesday after the Opry matinee. "I'd have to leave town — just get in my car and start going."

Acuff confessed after the first of two shows to having been "nervous, in need of experience and without the strength I'd like to have."

But on stage he seemed his old self — yoyo tricks and all.

Acuff told the audience that "if the management wanted him," he would be back this weekend for the regular Opry shows.

Family plans lawsuits in Dallas jail slaying

DALLAS (AP) — Relatives of a 20-year-old inmate found slain in the Dallas County Jail said Wednesday they plan to file law suits against the county and all parties connected with the killing.

Mrs. Margaret Lacy, the mother of the slain man, Kenneth N. Coppinger Jr., and Charles Edward Shipp, his half brother, said their family is preparing to take legal action against the county because of what they said was gross negligence in the arrest of Coppinger.

Coppinger was jailed on a warrant mistakenly issued because authorities believed a driving while intoxicated charge against his father referred to the younger Coppinger.

A county probation officer said it was "our mistake" when they jailed the younger Coppinger on a warrant issued July 27, charging violation of probation on a statutory rape conviction.

"We regret that the boy lost his life and feel to some degree responsible," said Dallas County Adult Probation Officer Waylan D. Vernon.

Police said Coppinger was beaten and stabbed to death in a jail cell Sunday night, approximatley two hours after his arrest.

Six Dallas County Jail inmates are being questioned about the killing, police said.

AmVets undeterred by 'legion disease'

He came anyway, as did AmVets members from across the country, undeterred by the 27 deaths from a still unidentified disease that followed an American Legion convention here last month.

The AmVets national executive director, Leon Sanchez, said attendance when the convention opened Wednesday was slightly ahead of last year even though the AmVets are staying at some of the same hotels used by the legionnaires.

Sanchez said he expected about 2,000 AmVets (American Veterans of World War II-Korea-Vietnam) to attend before the convention ends Sunday, but some apparently have been frightened away.

"We expected 30 other AmVet members from Connecticut to come here, but 19 of them backed out," said Scotty MacKenzie of Bethany, Conn. "They said they weren't coming until they found out what caused the disease."

What caused the outbreak of "legionnaires disease" is still a mystery. Medical researchers now are concentrating on poisonous substances to which persons connected with the state Legion convention July 21-24 might have been exposed.

Researchers in Philadelphia on Wednesday tried to piece together clues by examining the activities of those who attended the convention.

In Connecticut, meanwhile, a team at the University of Connecticut Medical School tested tissue samples from the victims to find out if nickel carbonyl poisoning may have caused the outbreak.

Nickel carbonyl is used in making plastics, petroleum products and synthetic rubber. It is very toxic even in small quantities and produces symptoms similar to those reported by victims of the Legion outbreak.

And in Pittsburgh, Allegheny County Coroner Cyril Wecht said Wednesday he had found evidence of a poisonous substance often used in antifreeze in the bodies of two of the victims.

He said crystals found in the kidneys of the victims indicate they may have ingested ethylene glycol or diethylene glycol. Four ounces of either of the similar compounds would be fatal, he said.

No new cases of the disease that struck the legionnaires have been reported in more than a week, and there has been no evidence of contagious spread. Nonetheless, AmVets officials arranged to have a doctor on call at the Veterans Administration Hospital.

Mosquitoes spread virus

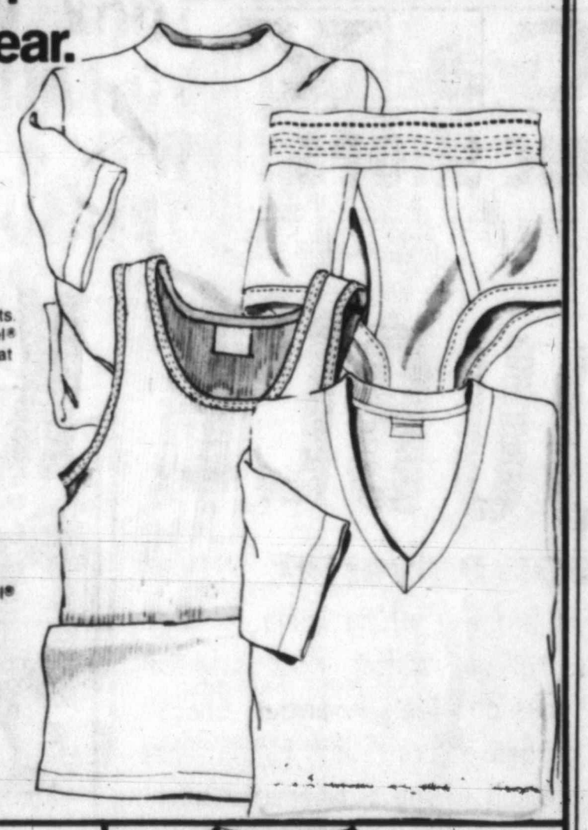

HOUSTON (AP) — Bob Bartnett, director of the Harris County Mosquito Control District has confirmed the upread of virus carrying culex mosquitoes and has advised city residents to stay in their homes at night.

Bartnett said Wednesday that the mosquitoes, bearing St. Louis encephalitis (SLE) have been discovered in four new sections of the city.

Bartnett said county residents should limit outdoor activities after dark because culex mosquitoes almost always bite at night.

Raymond Burr chef international

Celebrity Cookbook

LOS ANGELES — Raymond Burr is more than a casual cook. "I'm cooking all kinds of things these days. Today, it's stuffed artichokes in an Italian sauce," he said, identifying the tantalizing aroma wafting in from the kitchen.

Ray has mastered the art of cooking in quantity. "It's necessary," he says, "when my Fijian family is in residence." He has a special affinity for the Pacific island nation and for its inhabitants, and, as often as not, there are a dozen or more Fijian students living with him while they ar studying at various schools and colleges. The young Fijians usually return to their native islands and put their educations to work there. Whenever he gets a chance, Ray visits Naitauba, the island paradise he owns. Naitauba is three and a half miles long and features a volcano, mountains, and acres of coconut, teak and pine trees. One of Ray's many sidelines in the flourishing orchid business he has developed in the Fiji Islands and the Azores.

This gentle giant of a man really loves to cook. His artichoke creation comes from south of Rome, "an area where, because the people can't afford meat, they use plenty of cheese." Ray's sauce is rich in vegetables and herbs as well as cheese. The artichoke stuffing is made with four different kinds of cheese: Parmesan, provolone, ricotta and Fontina. "This particular recipe is extremely intricate and requires a two-day preparation. When we cook in this house, we cook something for today and something for tomorrow. For example, the celery I put in this stuffing was the same stuffed celery I had left over from yesterday. This is a nice way to use leftovers and marry the remains!" he said, with a laugh. "If we have any ledtover stuffing from the artichokes, we'll make it into ravioli in a day or two!" The artichokes he showed me were so huge, six of them filled a roasting pan big enough to cook a large roast or fowl.

Ray would like to write his own cookbook one day. "But I'd need someone who would sit in with me while I cook, take down measurements and transfer them into recipes. I don't have that kind of time!"

He has apparently unlimited energy and thrives on activity. He has just completed a pilot for NBC called "Kingston," in which he plays the role of a newspaperman. "I'm looking for satisfaction in my work. There are many things I'd like to do before I become decrepit." His plans include projects for the island, making movies, and doing some theater. He would consider doing another series only "if it can be donw within a certain time span." He's currently working on a TV documentary based on Italian painter Pietro Annigoni. "Annigoni is the only man alive who does church paintings and frescos as they were painted 400 years ago. He's a great painter and very controversial. He does not believe that the church and Christ are one and the same thing, yet he does the greatest church paintings! It's very interesting to see a man who claims to be a non-believer but who, at the same time, paints his life out for free in a church somewhere!"

Raymond is expert at creating quick gourmet delights, and likes to cook for his friends. "There's always a way to create a dish using something a person has an aversion to, even if it's something like snails or mushrooms, if you disguise it properly," he said slyly.

He is particularly fond of cooking with sour cream. "I make a wonderful fettuccine. Mine is similar to fettuccine Alfredo, except I use sweet butter and sour cream for the base. I toss it with cracked black pepper and the result is delightful!" He sometimes makes his own fettuccine and ravioli, but usually gets his pasta from a good local Italian market, where "the pasta is good and the attitude of the owner is even better!"

His friends clamor for his Caesar-type salad, which he makes with a sour cream dressing and without the usual anchovies. "Put oil and sour cream in a bowl, add garlic and onion, stir in lemon and white vinegar. Add a dash of Tabasco and let it sit for an hour. Make your own croutons, toss with dressing and romaine greens. It's great, great salad!"

He often serves fish dinners. The other night, he concocted a gourmet's delight with filet of sole, bay shrimp and crab in a cheese sauce. He enjoys fish soups, either a Boston chowder or an oyster stew. "Frozen clams shorten cooking time and make an excellent chowder," he said. In all of his cooking, he is fussy about using only the best quality ingredients, and he takes great care in the preparation.

In all of his cooking, he is fussy about using only the best quality ingredients, and he takes great care in the preparation.

More than anything else, Ray treasures old friendships. "There are many acquaintances, business or otherwise, in our lives, but we never have too many true friends." He expects little from his friends, with the exception of one or two people. "Let's say I hope, but I don't expect, anything from most people, because I don't like to get disappointed."

RAYMOND BURR'S CLAM CHOWDER

Serves 6

4 or 5 strips lean bacon, cut in large pieces
3 onions, peeled, sliced
salt, freshly ground black pepper to taste
1 quart clams, chopped, with liquor
1 large bay leaf
1 quart half and half (light cream and milk)
plus 2 tbsps. butter
4 boiled potatoes, peeled, diced

Saute onion until golden. Add salt, pepper to taste. Drain clams and reserve. Add clam liquor to cooked onion with butter, half and half and bay leaf. Add potatoes, cook gently 20 minutes. Wash clams carefully, discarding any bits of shell. Add clams to stock, cook 10 minutes. Add bacon. Taste to correct seasonings. Remove bay leaf before serving. Serve piping hot, with crusty Italian bread.

RAYMOND BURR'S ROMAINE SALAD WITH SOUR CREAM DRESSING

Serves 6

8 cups torn romaine greens
¼ cup vegetable oil
¾ cup dairy sour cream
½ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. garlic powder
⅛ tsp. onion salt
Tabasco to taste
1 tsp. white vinegar
1 tsp. fresh lemon juice
½ cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese

Wash romaine thoroughly, dry carefully on paper towels. Tear into bite-size pieces; refrigerate in tightly sealed plastic bag until crisp. Combine oil and sour cream in small mixing bowl. Add salt, garlic powder, onion salt and Tabasco to taste. Combine vinegar and lemon juice; gradually stir into oil-sour cream mixture. Stir in half the Parmesan cheese; let mixture stand about 1 hour. To serve, place greens in salad bowl with remaining Parmesan cheese. Toss lightly with salad dressing until greens are well coated. Add croutons, toss lightly. Serve at once.

AFTERTHOUGHTS: follow directions exactly as given so dressing will not curdle. Add finely grated lemon for extra tang.

ROUTONS

Makes 2 cups
2 cups bread cubes cut in ½-inch pieces
¼ cup sweet butter
¼ cup vegetable oil
⅛ tsp. garlic powder
salt to taste

Use fresh or dry white bread. (French or Italian bread gives a distinctively delicious flavor to croutons.) Melt butter and oil together over low heat. Add garlic powder and salt. Stir in bread cubes, allowing them to oak up as much oil as possible. Toast until golden brown in preheated 250 deg. F. oven about 1 hour (longer if fresh bread is used), turning several times.

Freeway flowers low in producing highs

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — In the past, drug fanciers in search of legal highs nibbled nutmeg, fired up an occasional banana peel or smoked Scotch broom, the yellow blossom which grows beside freeways.

The highs from these vegetable products were, by most accounts, rather low. But a new "organic highs" market has sprung up as a result of the natural foods fad, fear of contaminated psychedelic drugs and the law helping to build a new business in "legal grass."

LSD, cocaine and marijuana remain available, but "the demand is here" for legal substances which affect the senses, according to Jewell Day, a Sonora businesswoman who deals in herbal highs.

"A lot of people who use marijuana and other drugs now want legal highs that don't damage their brains."

Through her mail order firm, Mrs. Day pushes products like kava root, goto kola, and "legal grass" — a concoction of hops, damiana leaves, Korean ginseng, lobelia and yohimbe bark.

She says she has filled 4,000 orders a month since buying the business six months ago.

"Legal grass" sells for about $2.50 an ounce, compared to the current street price of about $10 an ounce for real pot.

In addition, herbal highs can be had without fear of being busted.

Most of the ingredients do not appear anywhere on the state or federal Controlled Substances Act which defines dangerous and illegal drugs.

Albert Habib, assistant special agent in the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration office here, says he can't visualize cracking down on a damiana leaf deal.

The clientele for organic highs is "mostly upper middleclass, self-realized human beings with an awakened consciousness," according to Dr. Michael Gerber, a Mill Valley physician who provides a variety of herbal recipes.

Do such substances actually produce a high? Some do, some don't, according to the director of a laboratory that analyzes drugs.

"There are a lot of medicinal plants that are psychoactive. They just haven't gotten around to listing them as illegal substances — but they probably will," says Carmen Heliston, head of the Pharmchem Foundation in Palo Alto.

Ms. Heliston, who prefers that designation, says baby woodrose seeds contain lysergic acid amides, substances similar to LSD that can produce "sensory enhancement." Ginseng root, on the other hand, doesn't do much in the way of altering consciousness.

Coffeeberry has no thorns

The jojoba or coffeeberry plant is an evergreen found in the Southwest deserts and is one of the few desert shrubs without thorns.

It is one of the most important food plants for wild and domestic hoofed animals. Not only the leaves and twigs are eaten, but the ripe nut of the plant is rich in oil and protein.

Candy ancient

Candy has been known since ancient times. Drawings on Egyptian tombs showed various steps of candymaking. Barley sugar and Marzipan or Turkish Delight are two of the oldest candies known. Marzipan is still popular today.

CREAMY CORN PLUS

One of our happiest combinations.

3 medium or large ears corn
2 medium (1 pound) yellow squash, coarsely grated
3 tablespoons butter
salt and pepper to taste

With a sharp knife cut off only the tips of the corn kernels; with the back of the knife scrape off the remaining pulp and juice leaving the fiber behind; or use a corn grater to obtain this "creamstyle" corn.

In a 10-inch skillet heat the butter; stir in the corn and squash; simmer, covered, about 15 minutes. Reduce the thin liquid in the skillet by cooking briskly and stirring. Add salt and pepper.

Perceive as threat

According to research studies regarding the marital satisfaction of working wives, when women join the labor force involuntarily, couples experience greater marital unhappiness. The men perceive it as a threat to their ego and ability to provide for their family—women, however, feel the main effect is the decrease in sociability with their husbands.

Summer is a great time to try domestic versions of Italian cheeses. U.S. dairymen turn out a wide range of import-type cheeses that are just as nutritious and delicious and usually less expensive than the foreign varieties.

American, Parmesan, Romano, mozzarella and ricotta have a place in country cooking, especially in these Italiano-style entrees. The zucchini torte is almost quiche-like in texture, using two kinds of cheeses with sour cream, bacon and eggs.

The lasagne rolled spiral fashion has a new look and a fabulous pesto cheese filling to boot.

(Frozen pesto, a butter herb sauce, can be found in the frozen food section at the supermarket.) The hearty cheese polenta with a beef and herb sauce is easy to make and will be sure to make a difference at the dinner table.

All the natural cheeses used in these recipes have unique characteristics all their own. Mild, semisoft Monterey Jack is the most popular variety, widely used in cooking and eaten as is. In Italian restaurants it is often served as dessert with fruit and crackers.

Parmesan and Romano are hard-grating cheeses with sharp pungent flavors. They're usually used as seasonings and sprinkled onto other foods.

Unripened mozzarella, the pizza cheese, is creamy white with good texture and delicate flavor.

Ricotta, too, is unripened, but it is very soft and very similar to cottage cheese.

CHEESE AND ZUCCHINI TORTE
1 cup flour
Salt
One-half tsp. anise or fennel seed, crushed
6 tbsps. butter
2 cups grated Monterey Jack cheese
6 slices bacon
1 small onion, chopped lic, minced
1 lb. zucchini, sliced one-fourth-inch thick
6 eggs
1 cup dairy sour cream
One-half tsp. thyme
Three-fourths cup grated Parmesan cheese

Mix flour, one-half teaspoon salt and anise seed. Cut in butter. Mix in one-half cup Jack cheese and work into dough. Press against bottom and one and one-half inches up sides of eight-inch springform pan. Prick with fork.

Bake in 350-degree oven 15 minutes. Meanwhile, fry bacon until crisp. Drain on paper towels. Discard all but two tablespoons bacon fat from pan. Add onion, garlic and zucchini to skillet. Saute over medium-low heat, stirring often, for 10 minutes.

Beat eggs with sour cream, thyme and one teaspoon salt. Add zucchini mixture and remaining one and one-half cups Jack cheese. Mix in Parmesan cheese and crumbled bacon. Turn into baked pastry shell.

Return to 350-degree oven and bake 55 minutes or until top is golden and center is softly set. Let stand five minutes then remove pan sides. Serve warm. Makes eight servings.

CHEESE AND PESTO LASAGNE
8 lasagne
Boiling salted water
1 (4-oz.) container frozen pesto sauce
One and one-half cups freshly grated Romano cheese
One and one-half cups ricotta cheese
1 cup chopped mushrooms (optional)
2 tbsps. minced parsley
One-half tsp. salt
One-half tsp. pepper
One-half tsp. basil
One-eighth tsp. nutmeg
1 small clove garlic, minced
1 (8-oz.) can tomato sauce

Drop lasagne into boiling salted water. Boil gently 12 minutes or until tender. Drain. Rinse with cold water.

Mix thawed pesto, one and one-half cups Romano, ricotta, mushrooms, parsley, salt, pepper, basil, nutmeg and garlic. Place lasagne flat on table. Spread about one-third cup filling on each lasagne.

Roll up, enclosing filling inside. Place lasagne spiral side up in shallow baking dish. Pour tomato sauce on top. Sprinkle with remaining one-fourth cup Romano cheese.

Bake uncovered in 400-degree oven 25 minutes or until hot. Makes four servings.

CHEESE POLENTA
One and one-half cups yellow cornmeal
Two and one-half cups milk
Three-fourths tsp. salt
Three-fourths tsp. marjoram
One-fourth tsp. rosemary, crushed
1 cup grated mozzarella cheese
Three-fourths cup grated Parmesan cheese
3 tbsps. butter
Beef Herb Sauce

Mix cornmeal with one cup cold milk, salt, marjoram and rosemary. Heat remaining one and one-half cups milk until it just comes to boil. Stir in cornmeal mixture all at once.

Cook, stirring over low heat, until very thick, about one minute.

Stir in cheese and butter until melted. Turn into greased five-cup mold. Bake in 350-degree oven 20 minutes. Loosen top edges. Invert polenta onto plate. Spoon Beef Herb Sauce around mold. Makes four or five servings.

BEEF HERB SAUCE: Saute one-half pound lean ground beef with one minced, large clove garlic until browned. Stir in one eight-ounce can tomato sauce, two tablespoons minced chives, one-fourth teaspoon salt and one-eighth teaspoon pepper. Heat through.

Cheese and zucchini torte, cheese and pesto lasagne and cheese polenta take full advantage of U.S.-made Italian-style cheese. All have unique characteristics, all promise a new look and hearty taste, as well as appealing to food budget considerations.

Cop a clown in Cleveland

CLEVELAND (AP) — Sgt. Edward Malloy, a Cleveland policeman for 18 years, performed as a clown in a circus recently.

Malloy got the chance to play a clown when he made a successful bid on a clown-for-a-day job offered in a fund-raising campaign on local television.

"It was just something I thought I'd like to do," said the 41-year-old bachelor. "There was no special reason."

Malloy went all out for his night in the spotlight. He received six free tickets for the circus, but bought 27 more, spending a total of $142. And that's in addition to $95 he paid for the bid.

Organization efficiency key

COLLEGE STATION — Concentrate on convenience and accessibility in placing kitchen appliances for "fastest action," Mrs. Lillian Chenoweth, a family resource management specialist, says.

She is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"Consider how often various small appliances are used — some might see more frequent use if they were easier to get out and put away.

"When doing a major kitchen cleaning, reorganizing or remodeling, try to find as convenient a spot as possible for each kitchen aid. Ideally, small appliances should be stored where or near where they are used — especially those frequently in operation, such as toaster, coffeemaker or can opener. The next best storage area is an easily accessible shelf or cabinet," she advised.

Wall hooks or pegboard can be one solution to keeping some small appliances handy, without using counter space.

DEAR ABBY

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My son David, 18 and Pam, his girlfriend, 16, came to us saying they wanted to marry because Pam was pregnant. We met with Pam's parents who agreed to the marriage, providing David could support Pam and the expected baby.

David tried to enlist in the Air Force but was told he needed the equivalent of a high school diploma (he had quit in his junior year), so he got some books from the library and studied for the exams he had to pass to get into the Air Force.

He passed the exams, and the kids were married at a little church wedding. David then went to Texas for his basic training. After one week, he was sent home with an honorable discharge. They said he was "unable to cope with military life."

This was a terrible blow to all of us. David and Pam are living with us now, but we can't keep them indefinitely. Pam's parents have been very good to the kids, but say they can't live with them. David has looked everywhere for work, but because he has no skills, he can't get a job. He is so discouraged. There is talk of their separating and Pam's going home to her parents.

There must be a solution, but what? If Pam leaves David, I don't think he could survive the blow. What should they do?—DESPERATE MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Urge David to inquire into the nearest vocational-technical school where, in a relatively short time, he can acquire a compensable skill. If you and Pam's parents can assist for a year or two longer, perhaps the marriage can be saved. If the kids are willing to try, can't you?

DEAR ABBY: I am a woman who has been in the business world for many years. I have been told that I "think" like a man.

Should a woman take that as a compliment?—THINKS LIKE A MAN

DEAR THINKS: Only if she thinks a man's "thinking" is superior to that of a woman's.

DEAR ABBY: How do you tell a policeman that he has rights just like any other man?

Abby, this policeman I'm in love with says that he loves me but he will never marry again (he's divorced) because he can't expect a woman to sit home worrying about whether he will make it home that night or not.

Abby, I realize that his work involves a lot of danger, but I'm sure I can handle all the problems connected with it.

A policeman needs a good woman to come home to after a hard day's work, and I want to be his woman, but he won't let me.

He wants to continue seeing me, but he tells me not to expect marriage because he loves me too much to marry me.

Does this make sense?—LOVES A COP

DEAR LOVES: I don't buy it. If it's marriage you want, don't waste any more time on him.

'Architect' builds replica

RIDGEWAY, Va. (AP) — Although he's never seen the real thing, 17-year-old Jeff Thompson has built a replica of Monticello, Thomas Jefferson's home in Charlottesville, Va.

The project, which used some 2,500 tiny bricks and took 95 hours over a six-month period, won $50 first prize in a high school bicentennial contest. It has been displayed in area schools and in the lobby of a local bank.

"I wanted to do some sort of historical project," the youth says. "I had always been interested in Monticello and Thomas Jefferson, so I decided to recreate the house. And I thought it would be a good way to learn a little more about how homes are built."

Before starting the 3-by-5-foot replica, he studied plans and pictures of the famous house. He then made a cardboard frame and glued it to a plyboard base. For the bricks he rolled out Play-Doh modeling compound "very thin, just like dough for a pie shell," and then sliced out individual bricks with a knife. He painted them with orange-red enamel and added a light coat of "antique" finish "for an old look." Some 10 pounds of the modeling compound were used for the bricks.

Planets conspire behind her back

By ERMA BOMBECK

According to one of the world's foremost astrologers, this is my year to become President of the United States.

This came to my attention when I read that Sen. Edward Kennedy and I were born a day apart and he was given a five-star rating, the highest of any of the other presidential contenders.

There's a catch to it. We both have to get off our cusps and work for it against some odds. Is that the story of my life? I don't know about Sen. Kennedy, but I never get anything for nothing. The sun never rises on my sign. My planets are always conspiring behind my back. And my destiny always reads like it's been out in the natal sun sign too long.

I don't like to sound bitter but other people get all the good signs. Their horoscopes always read, "Popularity and untold wealth will haunt you. There's no getting away from it." Or, "You are irresistible to every sign in the zodiac. Give in and enjoy."

Not mine. They always warn, "There is a chance for companionship around the 15th of the month, but it is a slim one. Your boring image can be lessened. Perhaps writing a check to someone who will sit with you."

Usually the people born under my sign are Martin Bormann and Anne Boleyn.

It's not nice to name names, but if my mother had held on just a little longer — a good month and a half — I'd have been a different person. As it is, I am basically weak and insecure and tend to go along with whomever is around me. When I ask someone for the time of day and they give it to me, I always reset my watch. It never occurs to me that I could be right.

Whenever I buy a weekender outfit with the jacket, slacks and skirt, I spill catsup on the jacket.

I never buy L'Oreal for my hair. I never figure I'm worth it.

Take today. I read through all the other zodiac signs and my body quivered for what I knew was in store for them. Mine? Same old melody. "The potential for a bright day is there, but you will have to work on it. Don't become discouraged by others who take advantage of you."

I don't think I could handle the presidency. Only one other fella on my cusp did it — George Washington — and then the poor devil had to bite the bullet with wooden teeth.

I'm not sure it's worth it.

Enzymes essential

MAMARONECK, N.Y. (AP) — Enzymes, the tiny protein molecules which speed up chemical reactions, are found in all living organisms. They are essential to virtually all vital bodily processes in human beings, such as the digestion of food.

As an example, doctors have found that before milk and milk products can be properly digested — absorbed by our bodies and used as fuel — lactose, a large sugar molecule found in milk, must be broken down and converted to smaller molecules. This is accomplished by an enzyme called lactase.

Schools draw more students

Midland's four private schools are preparing to open this fall to a total of about 1,200 students.

St. Ann's School expects approximately 200 students, up from about 175 last year, Sister Martha Ginaine, principal, said.

St. Ann's first floor has been carpeted since last year, providing more learning resource areas for students. The first day of school will be Aug. 30 and the school will follow the Midland public school schedule, except for a different in-service day in March.

Midland Christian School's anticipated 350 to 400 enrollment will push it to capacity, Wiley Brown, principal, said. The school will use two frame houses adjoining the school building as temporary classrooms this year.

Brown said he thinks the school will expand within a year and a half and build on the property where the houses now are. The school may expand to include high school in addition to the present pre-school through ninth grade offerings.

Aug. 30 will be the first day of school at Midland Christian.

Hillander School will start Sept. 7 but otherwise will follow the puclic school calendar with the exception of omitting in-service holidays.

Mrs. Fred Sides, principal, expects an enrollment of 350, up from last year's approximately 300 students.

Trinity School also begins Sept. 7. Its new headmaster is P. D. Peterson who comes to Midland from Brooks School in North Andover, Mass.

Peterson said he expects the school to break ground for a new gymnasium some time this year.

MC explains veterans' act

For more than 400 students each semester, the "GI Bill" is the passport to education at Midland College as they seek an associate degree or job-improvement training.

Yet many military service veterans are unaware there is a state program to assist Texas residents whose GI Bill benefits have expired, college officials say. The Hazelwood Act pays tuition costs for all veterans. The only requirement is that applicants must have been Texas residents before they entered the service and must now be Texas residents.

The Hazelwood Act tuition scholarship is becoming increasingly important for many veterans who have exhausted their GI Bill benefits, according to college officials.

The original GI Bill, which provides funds for tuition, fees and books and some living expenses, was approved by Congress toward the end of World War II to assist returning military service personnel with the cost of obtaining a college education or specialized training. Through the years, the benefits were extended to later military service personnel while cutting off those who had been eligible earlier.

June 1 was the cut-off date for elegible veterans who were discharged between Jan. 31, 1955, and June 1, 1966. For those eligible veterans discharged after June 1, 1966, the cut-off date is 10 years from their date of separation from active duty. However, a nine-month extension was authorized by Public Law 93-508 for those who were already enrolled in college.

Veterans who have questions about their educational benefits are urged to contact Kathy Lea, veterans' coordinator, or Ron Booth, veterans' representative, at the Midland College administrative offices.

Stanton co-op receives loan

Wes-Tex Telephone Cooperative, Inc. in Stanton will receive a $1.91 million low interest Rural Electrification Association loan, Congressman George Mahon announced Tuesday.

The 2 per cent interest loan is made at the special interest rate because of low subscriber density and low gross revenue per mile of line.

The area served includes Martin and Midland counties.

Purpose of the loan is to finance facilities to connect 47 additional subscribers, to construct 55 miles of new line, to finance systems improvements and to upgrade services in Ackerly, Garden City, Lomax, Luther, St. Lawrence and Vincent exchanges to one-party lines.

Young, wealthy women not successful gardeners

By JOHN GETZE
The Los Angeles Times

How's your fern?

If you're a woman under 30 years of age with an annual income of more than $20,000, it's probably getting ready to die.

That, at least, is one interpretation of a recent survey conducted by Field Research Corp. for Venturi, a Burlingame, Calif.-based maker of plant food. The California survey found that the owner's age, sex and yearly income are factors in whether a house plant survives.

Youth, women and big incomes, it seems, may be more dangerous than aphids.

Among persons whose annual income was less than $7,000, plant deaths were reported by 60 per cent of those surveyed, while 74 per cent of those with incomes above $20,000 reported plant losses.

Similarly, 72 per cent of the women surveyed said they had lost house plants in the last year, while only 67 per cent of the men reported losses.

The survey also indicated that persons over 60 years of age lose only half of the plants that persons under 60 do. Californians between 18 and 29 had the highest (plant) mortality rate.

Notes Wes Myers, Venturi's vice president:

"Dead plants were evenly distributed between those Californians with and without high school diplomas, and those with and without college degrees, so we must assume that education isn't a factor."

Using a sampling of 1,134 households, the survey found that 76 per cent of California's families either bought or were given indoor plants in 1975 — representing an investment of $162 million.

Losses last year were estimated at about $15 million.

"Certainly those of us involved with growing, distributing and selling indoor plants and associated products need to do a better job of educating young plant buyers," adds Myers. "If we don't; if they become discouraged and stop acquiring plants, this will be reflected in the industry within a few years."

Myers suggested that the horticulture industry begin labeling plants with information on care and feeding, since the survey found that 83 per cent of the plants that died were missing any such aid.

The survey was conducted in California, Myers says, because of its large population base and because its 7 million households represent about 10 per cent of the nation as a whole.

Another reason, one source suggested, was that California was the only state where Field could find enough weirdos to answer questions about plants.

Smuggling still big business in Southeast Asia

By GEORGE McARTHUR
The Los Angeles Times

BANGKOK — In the rough border areas of Burma, smugglers still find elephants pretty handy. In Thailand, they travel in armed convoys escorted by corrupt cops.

Apart from farming and fishing, smuggling in one form or another is probably the biggest money-maker and employer in this part of the world. It survives even in Laos and South Vietnam, where the new Communist leaders are attempting to impose revolutionary morality.

In Laos the authorities wink at oil smuggled in from Thailand. A recent arrival from Saigon said fresh American cigarettes are again on the open market. The price is $8 a pack at the legal rate, about $1 on the black market.

WHILE SOUTHEAST ASIA has always been hospitable to smugglers, that hardly makes the area unusually shady. The Mediterranean has lots of fast boats dodging the tax people. Arab dhows get dazzling amounts of illegal gold into India. American customs officers confiscated $400 million worth of contraband last year — and they missed a lot more.

Still, in the changing nature of such things, Southeast Asia is where much of the action is today. Virtually anything movable is fair game. There is the glamor stuff: jade, rubies, 1,000-year-old antiques. Cigarettes and whiskey are bread-and-butter for organizations working out of Singapore and Borneo. Girls go from Thailand to Hong Kong.

Every Asian government tries to control the rice trade — and the smugglers get richer every year. The same with sugar.

A steady trickle of stone heads from Cambodia's ancient Angkor Wat continues to reach dealers in Bangkok, who also sell great numbers of fakes. The fakes have created an interesting sideline in smuggling. Many are made in Burma and are then smuggled into Thailand where, in theory, they would have to be smuggled out again to be genuine.

There is always gold, which moves mainly in small bars stitched into vests. A good courier can get through an airport carrying about 75 pounds without staggering. This kind of thing accounts for well over $1 billion a year.

With gold it is often impossible to tell where the legal trade ends and smuggling begins. There is, for example, something known as the "Macao shuffle," which moves illegal gold from Hong Kong to Macao back to Hong Kong, where it suddenly becomes legal.

Singapore has what is known as a "re-export market" and most of the gold bought there ends up in Indonesia — flown in by government airline pilots — where it is illegal.

GOLD AND CIGARETTES and the like are more or less expectable. But elephants? Teakwood logs weighing a ton or more?

Burmese smugglers use the elephants to smuggle the teakwood into Thailand, where the price is far better. Since there is an elephant shortage in Thailand, the Burmese frequently sell the elephants, too — a young bull brings $5,000 or more.

The Burmese often sneak down and steal the elephants they have just sold. The Fourth Police Zone of Thailand has an elephant anti-theft command, which is ineffective.

Apart from the occasional big raid which is well publicized, with pictures of customs agents posing alongside cases of French brandy or American cigarettes, smugglers seldom get caught. Those who do seldom get more than a wrist slap.

Both Indonesia and Thailand are engaged in crackdowns. No visible results have been seen in Thailand. Word of the crackdown in Indonesia spread quickly enough to enable 50 businessmen to get away on timely vacations.

The Indonesian crackdown, according to published reports, caught a backup of some $30 million worth of goods in Singapore warehouses in two months. This would indicate that something like $180 million in contraband moves from Singapore to Indonesia each year.

Actually, that figure is ridiculously low, although smuggling is hardly the sort of activity that produces reliable statistics. A Singapore newspaper said the backed-up goods awaiting shipment to Indonesia amounted to $200 million.

Singapore is only slightly embarrassed to be the chief beneficiary of all this. Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew has built his city-state into the fourth busiest seaport on earth. He advocates free trade and few questions.

When the present heat diminishes in Indonesia — as it certainly will — the warehoused stocks in Singapore will move to Indonesia and much of it will disappear. For example, a cargo of 10,000 tires arrives in Jakarta. The customs officer is persuaded to drop one zero. Presto, 9,000 tires vanish. No customs fees.

This is called technical smuggling and it accounts for a considerable amount of trade in Southeast Asia. It distorts statistics in an area where figures are already suspect.

"Practically all trade figures in Southeast Asia are estimates," according to a ranking economist whose job requires him to produce "official" figures for such things as United Nations bulletins.

The tin mining industry is a good example. The vagaries of prices and quotas set by the International Tin Council create opportunities that local smugglers find irresistable. Tin moves by the boatload from Burma to Thailand to Malaysia. No customs or export-import duties and few records.

With variations, the same is true of rubber, tungsten, timber and rice. For years, Thailand has artificially held down rice prices with the predictable result that large but unknown amounts are smuggled annually into Malaysia. There was a noisy example early this year when 13 heavily laden trucks crashed through a Malaysian customs barrier and outran the police in a nighttime chase. Only one truck was taken, and the driver of that got away. There was no indication that customs officials on the Thai side even questioned the departing truck drivers.

The Thai-Malay border, however, is tightly controlled compared to the Thai-Burmese border, where there is only one legal crossing point along the entire 1,000 mile run through jungles and mountains. Western diplomats in Burma estimate that there are about 25 "significant" insurgent groups along that border. Virtually all of them support themselves by smuggling or protecting or taxing others who do. The trade is based mostly on opium from the so-called Golden Triangle, but it also involves guns, jade, rubies, teak, elephants, and, of course, Japanese motor scooters and transistor radios.

MANY ECONOMISTS have recommended that lowered and realistic tariffs would sharply curtail smuggling. In effect, this is what Singapore's Prime Minister Lee has been urging on his colleagues in ASEAN — the Association of Southeast Asian Nations which is made up of Singapore, Indonesia, Malaysia, Thailand and the Philippines. So far, the Indonesians have headed off all such schemes.

"They keep talking about creating a free trade zone and they won't recognize that they have one already," an American economic expert said. "What screws everything up is that the smugglers are getting the money instead of keeping it in regular trade channels, where it would strengthen all the economies out here."

Bentsen tells mailmen he supports subsidy bill

HOUSTON (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, supporting a postal subsidy bill, has told delegates to the National Association of Letter Carriers (NACL) convention, if the federal government can put a space ship on Mars, it should be able to deliver the mail on time.

Delegates to the NACL convention nominated Joseph Vacca, executive vice president of the union, and Vincent Sombrotto, president of the New York City Branch 36, for president of the 240,000-member organization, in other action Wednesday.

"If they can send the Viking to Mars, they can pick up a letter in Muleshoe, Tex., and deliver it to Houston on time," Bentsen told the 6,000 NACL delegates.

"The postal subsidy bill isn't going to solve the problem but will keep the postal service afloat while we analyze the problem," Bentsen said. "I also oppose any crippling amendments to that bill."

The subsidy would provide $500 million in appropriations for the postal service in 1977 and again in 1978. The measure is sponsored by Senate Post Office Committee Chairman Gale W. McGee of Wyoming.

"I'm with you and will fight for you in the Senate," Bentsen said. "We can bring the American people the kind of postal service they deserve."

Election of the organization's new president will be conducted by mail, beginning this month. Results will be announced in October and the officers installed for a two-year term next January.

Vacca represents the union's current administration in the race against Sombrotto, who claims the union leaders of being too soft with management.

Hit your partner as hard as you can

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

The first step in training a mule, according to the old story, is to hit him as hard as you can with a club. The idea is to attract the mule's attention. reat your bridge partner the same way; and if you can't hit him with a club, try a heart, diamond or spade.

Opening lead — ♣ Q

East took the ace of clubs and switched to the king of hearts. West played the six to encourage a continuation, and East duly led the queen of hearts.

West wondered what to do. It would be foolish to overtake with the ace if South had the doubleton in hearts.

West therefore played a low heart on East's queen. No matter what East did next, South could draw trumps and run the diamonds to get rid of his losers.

UNUSUAL PLAY

East should have attracted West's attention by returning the queen of hearts (instead of the kings) at the second trick.

When the queen of hearts won, East could continue with the king of hearts. This unusual method of playing the hearts would surely attract West's attention.

If West saw that something unusual was going on in hearts he might see that he was expected to do something unusual himself. If so, he would overtake the king with the ace of hearts and return a heart for East to ruff.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold: SAQJ73 H983 DQ4 CK52. What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass. You have 12 points in high cards and 1 point for the doubleton, enough for a borderline opening bid if you liked the hand well enough. In this case you are doubtful about counting full value for the doubleton queen. You would bid if you had K-Q-x in one minor suit and two low cards in the other

War offers some hope

The war in Lebanon has diverted attention from the Arab-Israeli confrontation which has dominated the Middle East for a generation. It also has given the impression — and probably a false one — that Israel can breathe easier about its future because of disunity and strife within the Arab world.

The longer the war goes on, the more likely it seems that Christian and Moslem interests will accept a partition of the country as the only means of satisfying their political aspirations. While this might provide a basis for a cease-fire that gains more support than any formulas tried so far, it would by no means guarantee a stable relationship among Arabs in that part of the Middle East.

For one thing there is no assurance that two states carved out of the present Lebanon would be economically self-supporting. Moreover, a Moslem state would remain a sanctuary for Palestinians bent on retrieving lands occupied by Israel or doing away with Israel altogether, without the restraints imposed by the old Lebanese government. This could trigger an attempt by Israel to occupy some Lebanese territory to establish a more "defensible" northern border, a la 1967.

The Arab-Israeli confrontation, then, is still the predominant issue in the Middle East. While the Lebanese war has pitted Arab vs. Arab, it has not changed any of the facts behind the Palestinian question, nor has it affected the issue of Israeli occupation of Arab territories.

What the Lebanese war may have accomplished is to demonstrate to the Arabs how dangerous it is to let the Palestinian issue fester within the Arab world with no movement toward negotiations with Israel that might resolve it. It is the extreme position of the Palestine Liberation Organization toward Israel that has blocked such negotiations. It is the militancy of the PLO that finally broke down the Christian-Moslem formula for power-sharing in Lebanon. It is the diehard stance of Palestinian forces in Lebanon that has prolonged the civil war.

There is reason to hope that a commitment to more responsible leadership may emerge from the clash of Arab interests over Lebanon. Egypt has made an alliance with Sudan in an obvious effort to contain the fanatic Muammar Al Khadafy of Libya, a main source of support for the PLO. Syria's President Hafez Assad has risked his standing with his Arab friends to try to prevent a PLO-dictated solution in Lebanon.

It's not out of the question that a Geneva conference on the Middle East can be recovened with the Arab delegations willing to compromise on the issue of representation of the Palestinians. No longer is it a foregone conclusion that the PLO, with its all-or-nothing demand to absorb Israel into a Palestinian state, must be heeded at Geneva.

President Ford and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger regard a new Geneva conference as the next logical step in his Middle East diplomacy. Since Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter subscribes to the same approach, there is no reason for a U. S. initiative in this direction to remain in limbo pending our November election.

The United States has been considered the only "honest broker" in the Middle East. The Lebanese war itself has remained outside the bounds of our diplomacy, but it may have hastened the time when Arabs and Israelis are ready to call on the services of that trusted broker.

Reds face tough job

Yes sir, here's another one for the books.

Soviet officials are blaming Canadian hostesses for the fact that some athletes from behind the Iron Curtain didn't want to go home after the Montreal Olympics were over.

Why blame the Canadians? The Russians should have expected a few defections when so many of their people had spent two weeks in a free society, especially in a city putting its best foot forward to show Olympic visitors a good time.

Instead, the Russians should be considering what they might do to arouse a similar impulse to defect among athletes from free countries who visit Moscow for the 1980 Olympics. It just could be that they are training some persons for that purpose. The problem is whether they can find any hostesses talented enough to persuade an Olympic star from the West to chuck everything and hang around for a Moscow winter.

ART BUCHWALD

Free medical advice offered by Hopewell

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — If you ask Americans what bugs them the most besides death and taxes, they will usually answer, "the high cost of medical care." It has become the major domestic issue in the country, and almost everyone you talk to is furious about it.

I say almost because my friend Hopewell claims he has solved the problem, "The reason people are paying so much for medical care is that we are not making use of all the trained people in our own families who have as much experience as any doctor."

I looked perplexed.

"In my family we have specialists in every division of medicine, and they make house calls even when you don't want them to."

"I still don't understand."

"Last Sunday my Aunt Hilda and Uncle George stopped by the house on their way to visit some friends. Uncle George had a heart attack about two years ago so he considers himself in a class with Dr. De Bakey. I was complaining about slow circulation in my tennis arm. Without even examining me he said, 'I'd recommend a bypass operation.'

"Aunt Hilda said, 'Either that or open-heart surgery. My nephew by marriage had open-heart surgery last year and he's doing very well. Let them implant a Pacemaker and you'll feel like a new man.'

"But Uncle George was adamant. 'Bypass is better. I wouldn't be here today if it wasn't for my bypass.'

"Maybe I should have a third consultation with a doctor?" I suggested.

" 'Go ahead,' said Uncle George, 'if you want to waste your money. But he'll only tell you the same thing.' "

I told Hopewell, "You saved yourself a $50 visit to a cardiologist."

"Exactly. My mother, on the other hand, is a regular faith healer. She calls me up on the phone and she can tell just from the sound of my voice when something is wrong. 'What is it, son?' she'll ask.

"I'm very depressed," I'll tell her. "Becky just smashed in the front end of my car.

" 'It isn't Becky who made you depressed. You're suffering from male menopause.'

"How do you know?" I'll ask her. "Your father was the same age when he got depressed. The thing to do is just get through the day. I'll call you tomorrow and we'll talk about it some more.' "

"Anybody else would have had to lay out a bundle to a psychiatrist," I told him.

Hopewell agreed. "I have a brother-in-law who has back problems. He goes to a doctor. But if anybody else in the family has back problems we call him. One of my sisters-in-law specializes in sinus problems. All you have to do is hint you have a problem and she'll not only prescribe the medicine but she'll deliver it within the hour.

"My sister went to Mexico last year so she knows everything about intestinal illnesses, and I have a cousin Freddy who always watches Marcus Welby on television and can look at anybody in the family and know immediately if he or she is suffering from a vitamin deficiency.

"I had a kidney stone last summer," Hopewell said, "so if anyone is having kidney problems they call me.

"My wife knows all about high blood pressure and my aunt Phoebe deals mostly with female disorders."

"You've got a Johns Hopkins Medical School right in your own family," I told Hopewell.

"Every family does. The trick is when you go to the doctor ask a lot of questions, and then file away the information so you can help all your relatives. You can't imagine how much money you can save in medical bills. I have a brother who goes to a psychiatrist once a week. A month ago I called him up and told him about a dream I had in which I was stuck in a cave and taxis kept going by, but not one would stop for me. He told the shrink the dream as if it was his own, and then called me up the following day and said, 'You forgot to pay your telephone bill.' I saved $40 on one lousy dream. With a family like mine, who needs Medicare?"

WASHINGTON MERRY—GO—ROUND

By JACK ANDERSON with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — Ex-President Richard Nixon's infamous plumbers, so named because of their efforts to plug White House news leaks, wound up their nefarious works with an investigation of congressional leaks.

Their purpose was to embarrass Nixon's detractors by portraying them as security risks. Instead, the plumbers found Washington so porous that they couldn't sort out all of the leaks. It was "difficult to prove," reported one of their investigators, that any given "leak came from the Hill."

The plumbers' secret findings have a special significance today in light of all the excitement on Capitol Hill over leaks. The House Ethics Committee, suddenly more concerned about leaks than ethics, has invested $150,000 to find out who leaked a House report to CBS newsman Dan Schorr.

Earlier, the committee stopped short of condemning Rep. Michael Harrington, D-Mass., for an alleged leak. And now the Justice Department is investigating Rep. Robert Leggett, D.-Calif., for allegedly leaking classified information to the South Koreans.

All this has got investigators chasing in dizzying circles. For Washington is a Yellowstone of leaks, bubbling here, spouting there, spraying out suppressed information.

The White House plumbers discovered three years ago that government information channels would spring leaks faster than anyone could plug them. The plumbers started out to investigate the leaks on Capitol Hill. Chief plumber David Young sought the help of the Pentagon. He contacted Fred Buzhardt, then the Defense Department's general counsel, who assigned Pentagon investigator W. Donald Stewart to ferret out the security risks in Congress.

Stewart reported back on Feb. 13, 1973, that Capitol Hill was a sieve but that many of the leaks originated in the downtown government agencies, including the Pentagon and the White House.

On the Hill, he found classified documents stored in ordinary cabinets, transmitted without the regulation double envelopes and scattered around offices for any visitor to see.

The Secretary of Defense hasn't given adequate instructions, Stewart suggested, "detailing what can be given or cannot be given to members of Congress or the procedures for transmitting classified documents."

No central index was kept at the Pentagon, he added, to show what classified information had been distributed to congressional offices. As a result, the military brass had no idea what classified data was loose on the Hill.

Stewart found that government agencies often shower congressmen with classified information they don't want. "Many situations arise," he reported, "where members of Congress desire to 'dump' unwanted classified material on military liaison officers on Capitol Hill."

In a lengthy memo, Stewart cited a number of lax security practices in Senate offices. But invariably, he found that leaks had their beginning in the State Department, Defense Department or White House.

For example, he investigated a New York Times leak on July 23, 1971, about the arms limitations talks. He reported that the New York Times correspondent, William Beecher, had been referred by a State Department source to the office of Senator Henry Jackson, D-Wash.

The FBI, joining in the probe, spoke to two of the senator's employees. They admitted discussing the subject with Beecher but denied revealing the classified details.

Observed Stewart: "Circumstantial evidence would tend to point the finger at Sen. Jackson, as we had learned that a State Department briefing was held in his office on subject matter with him prior to the publication." But there was no proof.

Stewart also suspected that the Senate Foreign Relations Committee had leaked information to reporters about U.S. bases in Spain. But before he could question the suspects, he was headed off by William Macomber, then an Assistant Secretary of State.

According to Stewart's memo, Macomber declared emphatically that then-Foreign Relations Chairman William Fulbright, D-Ark., "would not look favorably on such interviews." The investigation was halted in its tracks.

Stewart also failed to establish that his leading subject, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., leaked stories to the press about the spiraling costs of producing the Air Force C-5A transport plane.

But Stewart learned that the information came from some confidential charts that had been slipped to Proxmire by a person identified only as "hostile toward the Air Force."

Of course, the government uses the classification system to censor embarrassing news, which officials don't want the people to read. The government has the authority to classify embarrassing facts, the ability to shut off channels of information and the power to intimidate sources who could tell the truth.

All these are on the side of the government. Often leaks are necessary to expose corruption and wrongdoing, waste and inefficiency, mismanagement and miscalculations.

Nick Thimmesch

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Carter was in here for a visit this week, moseying around Congress and a fund-raiser, and sometimes talking like he was President already. He asks, counsels, opines, but denies he is interfering with the legislative process, and everybody winks.

This Congress is of Democrats, by Democrats and for Democrats, and shall not perish. Speaker Carl Albert and the Democratic congressional leaders, sans Wayne Hays, met with Carter as though he is the President-in-Waiting. The mood is why can't it be Jan. 20, 1977, already?

What Jimmy Carter-in-waiting wants most from Congress now is a post-card voter registration law. The bill has been passed by the House, but the Senate won't get at it for another 10 days.

Carter is panting for the bill to become law quickly, so that legions of Democrats can be registered and prodded enough to roll up a huge mandate for the Democratic nominee. He has pushed Speaker Albert hard on this legislation, though he is too coy to say so in public.

But opponents of the bill won a modest victory this week when they voted to drop the provision allowing for mass mailings of registration forms every two years to all eligible voters in the republic. Instead, the legislation, as it now stands, provides that the post cards be distributed for mailing in, even in bundles by concerned citizens' organizations — could they be called "special interest" groups?

Now if any measure invites fraud, it is postcard voter registration. But this Democratic Congress, wearing its Watergate Victory ribbon and its shiny halo, is quite willing to mail out as many as 140 million of these forms, and hope that the public responds with a massive show of honesty.

The chief Republican opponent of the post-card enterprise is Rep. Bill Frenzel of Minnesota, who said: "Jimmy Carter ought to start reading bills before he starts running around and recommending them. If he knew what was in this bill, I don't think he would have asked for it."

Frenzel argues that this bill will only create another tentacle in the bureaucratic octopus (The Voter Registration Administration), and that if states want post-card registration, fine let them have it. The first authorization to administer the law would be for $50 million, and would increase every two years.

Carter looked into other legislative matters when he was here. Rep. Brock Adams (D-Wash.), chairman of the House Budget Committee, presented him with a printed text of federal budget options. Carter has already expressed an interest in the celebrated "sunset" legislation which would automatically close federal programs after four years unless Congress renewed them.

Carter is also interested in a bill introduced by Democrat Jack Brooks of Texas, which would boost the current $900,000 budget for presidential transition to $3 million — $2 million going to the President-elect, and $1 million to the retiring President. Carter wants that one passed, too.

After meeting with Ralph Nader last weekend, Carter challenged President Ford to veto a bill creating an Agency for Consumer Advocacy. Now since Carter says he wants to cut the government from 1,900 to 200 agencies, this means he wants to cut it from 1,901 to 200. Mr. Ford is against the consumer bill, saying it would just add another layer to the bureaucracy.

Some six weeks ago, in Pittsburgh, Carter let it out that he might ask Congress to give him the power to reorganize the federal bureaucracy before his inauguration. This request assumed: (1) Carter would be elected. (2) Congress would fall down in front of him. (3) President Ford would suffer it all.

But Carter said later that he really shouldn't have said it, and that he was sorry he brought it up.

Finally, The Washington Post has revealed that Carter already has a shadow government at work, planning both the transition and takeover of what President Ford now governs. Carter has consummate confidence. Only the campaign and the election stand in his way.

Most cuts in services being accepted by public

The Los Angeles Times

NEW YORK — Because the Detroit Institute of Fine Arts let go 22 of its guards, it can now open fewer than half of its 101 galleries.

In St. Louis hospitals, preventive maintenance has been stopped and repairs are done only when something breaks down.

Fairfax County, Va., will begin charging for textbooks when school opens next month.

These examples illustrate an important trend sweeping the nation. Rich or poor, big or small, states, counties and cities are trimming budgets by reducing services.

Public reaction, according to officials in a number of cities, ranges from apathy to a little grumbling.

"The public is apparently beginning to accept them (cutbacks) as inevitable and necessary," said a spokesman for Wayne County, Mich.

Everything from garbage collection to fire protection, from street paving to after-school sports, is facing the ax. Many of the services being cut are things that citizens had come to take for granted.

"With the exception of a few financially untroubled cities in the South, such as Houston," said Thomas Muller, director of land use evaluation of the Urban Institute, "government officials everywhere are realizing that they must either reduce spending or increase taxes, and higher taxes are not palatable right now. So the question is: 'Where do we cut back?'"

New York City's fiscal crisis has made headlines around the country and the things its citizens are having to do without have become well-known. School days are shorter, museums and libraries have cut back hours and operations, police are making fewer arrests, and free language lessons for immigrants have been discontinued.

Residents of other communities are experiencing similar cutbacks.

In Detroit, all athletic programs will be cut out when school opens in the fall; first graders will be put on half-days (three hours), a move that educators say will have serious longterm effects on the children, and 15 schools will be closed down.

Wayne County, Mich., has eliminated a successful crime-fighting operation — the sheriff's helicopter patrol. The sheriff used to operate two helicopters to spot crimes in progress on highways and, in cities and parks. Total savings from the cut — $200,000.

In most cases it is not that fewer dollars are being spent for services but that inflation has reduced the dollar's buying power. And there are places where cutbacks were necessary in any case.

In some places, deeper cuts could not be made in services or maintenance, so new buildings and other capital improvements have been deferred or canceled.

Some of the cutbacks are said to be shortsighted — false economies that will cost more in the long run.

Such may be the case in Buffalo, where the streets are beginning to deteriorate. Complete resurfacing had been programmed for every 30 years, but present resources allow only a 54-year cycle. And a program to modernize part of the street-lighting system has been abandoned, not because of the initial cost, which would have been financed by bonds, but because of maintenance cost.

Not all the communities are shortsighted. Overland Park, Kan., has enlisted the aid of a committee of half a dozen businessmen to suggest money-saving ideas. One idea they came up with: killing the planned purchase of a $25,000 microfilm machine that would help the city retain its records.

"We'll just throw the junk out," said a spokesman in the city manager's office.

On the other hand, the committee also suggested that more funds be spent on preventive maintenance in city buildings. Cleaning rugs, for instance, could make them last as much as 10 years longer, it said.

Even the most affluent communities are having to bite the bullet.

Fairfax County, besides charging for school books, has cut out after-school playground programs. And that's in a county that has the highest average annual family income in the nation — $23,000.

Many of the services that are being cut could have been continued with higher taxes. But there has been heightened resistance by citizens to increased public spending and higher taxes. The only place they can directly oppose such increases is the local level.

Opposition to local tax proposals has stiffened greatly since the early 1960s. According to a national study, the percentage of proposed school bond issues approved in elections dropped from 72.4 per cent in 1962 to 51.4 per cent last year.

The nadir of support for new borrowing may have been reached in November of 1975 when — by value — 93 per cent of all bond proposals submitted to the electorate were rejected.

In the town of Mamaroneck, N.Y., voters rejected an increased school budget last spring. The school board warned parents that without the new money, all interscholastic sports would be eliminated, along with most community use of schools, and that there would be no more school field trips.

The parents also were told that they would have to pay $27 per student for school supplies, while the tax increase would be only $2 per $1,000 of their real estate's assessed value.

The budget was approved the second time around.

Some taxpayers believe that they should not be paying for services they are not getting. They argue that services should be paid for only by those benefiting from them. Thus, some communities are requiring residents to pay a so-called "user tax" for the services they get.

Rio Rico awaits decision

HARLINGEN, Tex. (AP) — A U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service judge is expected to rule next month on citizenship for residents of Rio Rico, who have been described as "forgotten Americans."

Judge Carl Craig of Houston presided today at a brief hearing and said he will make a ruling after reading briefs submitted to him by lawyers for the residents of Rio Rico and the federal government. The ruling is expected in late September or early October, Craid said.

Rio Rico, is a small village south of Mercedes that was originally located north of Rio Grande until a man-made canal moved the path of the river between the United States and Mexico.

In 1906, an irrigation company built a large pumping station on the Rio Grande. A small canal was cut between two points on the river to facilitate operations at the pumping station.

Eventually, the canal became the Rio Grande's main course, cutting Rio Rico off and leaving it in Mexico on the south side of the river.

Laurier B. McDonald, an Edinburg lawyer who represents the 130 residents of Rio Rico, said that if the river course change had resulted from natural causes, the people of Rio Rico would have been residents of Mexico. Since the river course change resulted from an artificial cause, McDonald said he believes the residents should be U.S. citizens with all rights and privileges.

"These people should rightfully be American citizens, but by some quirk in the bureaucratic system, they have been forgotten," McDonald said.

If the trial judge rules in their favor today, McDonald predicts it will still be a long legal battle before their citizenship if finally determined.

Citizenship for the residents of Rio Rico may be a topic of conversation at an upcoming meeting between President Ford and President Luis Echeverria of Mexico, McDonald said. He said that meeting may be held in either McAllen or Reynosa, Mexico, next month.

Transsexual awaits decision

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. Open tournament committee volleyed the volatile problem, using a hot potato instead of a ball. A spokesman for the women players tried to quiet the tennis racket by discussing genetics. And as the sun set over the puzzled sport Wednesday, it seemed no progress had been made on the matter of a male transsexual trying to play professionally with—or against—female tennis players.

The tournament committee adjourned Wednesday without deciding to accept the application of Dr. Renee Richards— who as a male was known as Dr. Richard Raskind—for the women's competition at Forest Hills next month. All it would say through a spokesman is that "all entrants will be advised by Aug. 20 as to whether or not they've been accepted to compete in the tournament."

Dr. Richards already has been accepted to compete—as a woman—in the South Orange, N.J., Tennis Week Open which starts Aug. 21. That tournament's director, Gene Scott, said that he has received "a gynecological affirmation that she is a woman."

That affirmation was not sufficient for the Women's Tennis Association. WTA Executive Director Jerry Diamond said Wednesday that "women's tennis is for women. If she can pass the IOC (International Olympic Committee) test that she is genetically a woman, then she can play women's tennis."

It appeared, however, that the 6-foot-2 Dr. Richards would not pass such a test. "The physicians we've talked to say that a man has greater strength than a woman," explained Diamond. "If you have a 6-foot genetic man and a 6-foot genetic woman, the man is stronger than the woman. What they do to themselves is irrelevant."

And though Richard Raskind is now Renee Richards, chromosomes remain his genetic fingerprints. Doctors say the test will show Dr. Richards to be a man, despite appearance to the contrary.

"It's not a matter of discrimination," said Diamond. "If she can genetically prove it (her womanhood), we won't argue. If Renee Richards wants to challenge all the women's entrants at Forest Hills, they'll all have the chromosome test. If they don't pass, they won't play, either."

Meanwhile, Dr. Richards claimed in a statement released through World Tennis magazine that she now is recognized as a woman "in the eyes of the law."

She is recognized, also, as a very good tennis player. "I knew Dr. Richard Raskind as a brilliant surgeon, an outstanding tennis player and a terrific sportsman," said Gene Scott. As Dr. Richards last month, the 41-year-old Renee beat the 21-year-old top seed Robin Harris to win a women's singles title at the La Jolla tennis tournament.

Whether she will be allowed to try at Forest Hills will be settled by Aug. 20.

Girls cage slate draws attention

By BOB DILLON
R-T Sports Writer

BIG SPRING — Girls basketball for this coming year, took up most of the time Wednesday during a routine District 5-4A Executive Meeting.

Scheduling problems came up as some of the schools wanted a full slate of junior varsity girls games of replace the boys sophomore contests.

This brought objections from Midland, Odessa and Big Spring who didn't want to make a senior eligible the first year while Abilene was wanting to play senior girls in its program.

A motion was set by Audrey Gill, Midland High School Principal, to set up a senior varsity schedule with games starting at 4 p.m. before the boys JV and varsity games, but it failed by a 4-3 vote with one principal abstaining and the issue was tabled until the December meeting.

Abilene Cooper was named the host for the 1977 spring meet with the track meet set for Friday, April 15, at the Abilene Christian University all-weather track.

Schedules in football, volleyball, basketball, baseball, tennis track and golf along with swimming were approved for the 1976-77 school year with San Angelo to again host the district Cross Country Meet the Wednesday before Thanksgiving.

Roy Ivey of the San Angelo Standard Times was named the 1976 statistician for the football season by the committee while the District Sportsmanship Award was dropped since it has not been awarded for more than five years. All attending felt that the award had little meaning anymore.

Eligibility cases came up with no schools presenting any new names to be considered.

Hopkins along with DeWitt Jones, former assistant at Lee and Midland, was introduced to the meeting. Jones is the new Abilene High head man. Dick Winder returns to Odessa High after a three-year absense and Don Robbins returns to Big Spring after coaching in the college ranks at Idaho for several years.

Rally in ninth gives Cubs win

AMARILLO—Bill Huisman helped the Midland Cubs end a two-game losing streak here Wednesday night with a key two-run triple in the ninth inning, which gave the Cubs a 6-4 victory over the Amarillo Gold Sox.

The Gold Sox held a 3-2 lead heading into the ninth when the Cubs exploded.

Bob Hrapmann opened the inning with a walk, but the Gold Sox got two outs before Mike Bernal walked Mike Umfleet to keep the Cubs alive.

Ed Putman singled to score Hrapmann, an Huisman followed with his triple for two more runs. Earl Chew later singled to score Huisman for the final 6-4 margin.

Lin Hamilton staked the Gold Sox to a 1-0 lead in the second with his ninth homer of the season, but Midland tied it in the third on Joe Hernandez' run scoring single.

THE GOLD Sox got four hits and two runs in the bottom of the third for a 3-1 lead, but again, the Cubs cut the margin in the fourth when Mike Gordon plated a run with a double to left center.

That's how the game stayed until the ninth when the Cubs pulled out the victory.

Wayne Doland, now 12-6 on the year, went the distance for the Cubs. He gave up nine hits in the victory.

U.S. defends disabled title

TORONTO (AP) — The United States successfully defended its men's basketball title Wednesday, defeating Israel 5946 in the final event of the fifth Olympics for the Physically Disabled.

The basketball triumph gave the Americans a total of 145 medals—best among 38 countries taking part in the eightday competition.

The U.S., which beat Israel by one point in taking the 1972 basketball crown, wound up with 62 gold, 38 silver and 45 bronze medals.

The Netherlands was next in the gold rush with 45, most of them in swimming. Israel had 38 gold, West Germany 35, Britain 34 and Canada 25.

In the overall medal standings, Britain was second with 120 followed by West Germany with 94, The Netherlands with 87, Canada with 86 and Sweden with 82.

France won the bronze medal in men's basketball with a 55-39 triumph over The Netherlands.

Art Shell to return to Oakland lineup

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (AP) — Offensive tackle Art Shell, who last week missed his first game since joining the Oakland Raiders, should be ready to start Friday night in New York against the Jets, it appeared Wednesday.

Reggie Jackson, Orioles resume fat contract talks

BALTIMORE (AP) — It's not necessarily so, says Reggie Jackson, that he won't be playing with the Baltimore Orioles beyond the 1976 season.

"Many people here are calling me gone," Jackson said, "so I am working from two strikes all the time. But I am still here and not necessarily gone.

"I would say that I can probably be signed before the end of the season. That, at least, would give an indication that I am entertaining the thought."

Jackson's comments were made prior to Wednesday night's game against the Minnesota Twins, a few hours after General Manager Hank Peters resumed contract talks in Arizona with Jackson's business partner-adviser, Gary Walker.

In a telephone conversation from Phoenix, Peters indicated he detected an attitude of compromise.

"I think now we are in a position where we can talk in more realistic terms," Peters said, "rather than a position in which the terms were totally unacceptable."

Jackson, playing the current season without a standard contract after being obtained in a trade with the Oakland A's, was given a raise to an estimated $190,000 after holding out for a month.

He has indicated he would like to play in New York or on the West Coast, for an estimated $300,000 annually over a five-year contract.

But Peters said he and Walker also discussed factors other than money, and Jackson said that was good news.

Whether or not he chooses free agency status at the end of the season, Jackson said, "depends on factors other than money."

One of those factors, he said, would be the Orioles coming to terms with yet unsigned second baseman Bobby Grich, and pitchers Wayne Garland and Ross Grimsley.

"If they don't sign Grich, Garland and Grimsley," Jackson said, "there is not much I can do. It makes no sense to stay here and finish fifth."

Although he has missed 24 games because of the holdout and injuries, Jackson is tied with Lee May as the club leader with 19 home runs and 64 runs batted in.

"I would like to see them all sign," Jackson said of the other three players, "because I believe this is a club that can win pennants in the future if they make a trade and sign just one outstanding free agent."

"But if the Orioles lose Grich, Garland and Grimsley," he said, "they become a fifthplace club. I'm not interested in that. And without me, they finish sixth. So, I don't have any value, unless they sign the rest."

Lisa Johnson pulls upset over Howe

MODESTO, Calif. (AP) — Lisa Johnson of Buena Park, Calif. upset medalist Lauren Howe of Colorado Springs 1 up Wednesday in the first round of match play in the 28th USGA Girls Junior National Golf Championship at the Del Rio Golf and Country Club.

The 16-year-old Miss Johnson then went on to a second-round victory as the field of 120 that began play Monday was cut down to eight for Thursday's quarter-final matches.

Miss Johnson carded 82-80— 162 in two qualifying rounds. Miss Howe, 17, shot 71-75—146 to lead the field by seven strokes and enter match play a clear favorite.

"I expected to maybe last 16 holes," Miss Johnson said. "But when we came to the 18th tee and the match was even, I said 'I'm going to beat Lauren Howe.'"

Brewer bat halts game

By The Associated Press

Jerry Reedy's potent bat literally stopped Thursday night's Texas League game in El Paso—but didn't end it.

El Paso was leading 6-3 and there were two out in the seventh inning when Reedy strode to the plate for the visiting San Antonio club. Next thing anybody knew, Reedy lashed a shot to the right of the foul line, hit a power line and broke it.

There was loud pop and off went the lights. Result: Game suspended. It will be completed before the one scheduled tonight.

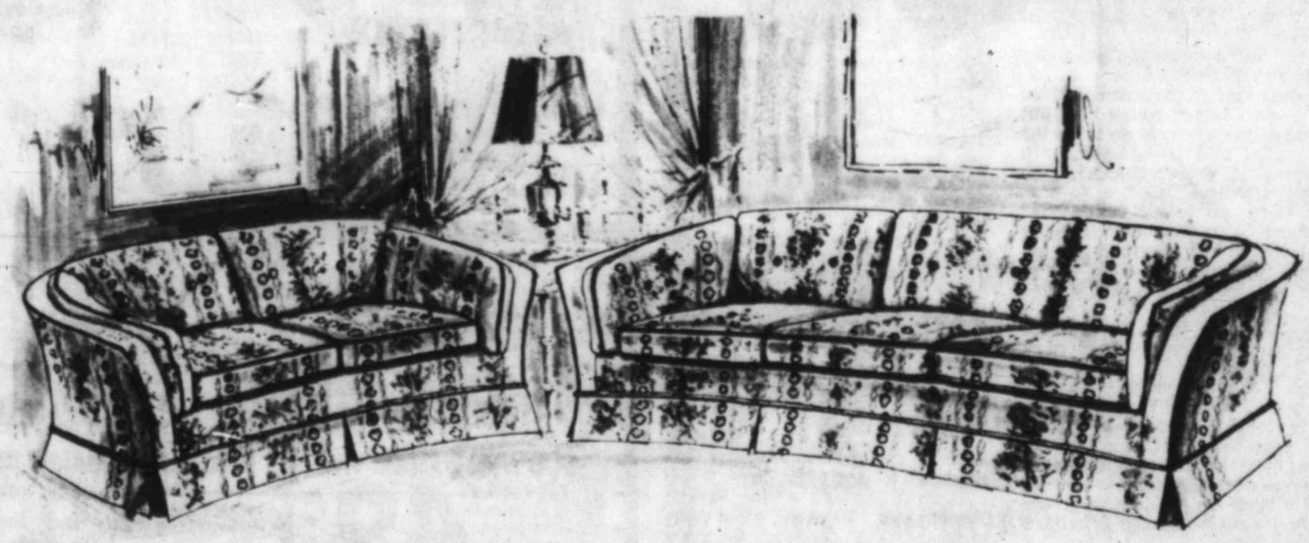

Things were less spectacular elsewhere around the league. Jackson nipped Shreveport 8-7 in 10 innings and broke out of their tie for the lead in the East Division.

Giants narrowly nip Jets, 16-14

NEW YORK (AP) — John Mendenhall, the New York Giants' defensive tackle raced onto the field and jumped high in the air, giving the victory sign over and over, as a salute to George Hunt's third field goal, which had just beaten the New York Jets 16-14 Wednesday night.

Hunt's game winner came from 34 yards out with a mere 16 seconds left on the clock— and it meant nothing in the standings of the National Football League. But to Mendenhall and the Giants, it was bragging rights for the entire season.

"We proved we are better than them," said John. "This team is going to be alright this year and beating the Jets is still a big thing."

FROM THE air of gloom in the Jets room, they agreed that winning, even in preseason, against their cross town rivals was important.

"Both teams played well," said Giants Coach Bill Arnsparger. "New York may have two good teams this year."

Hunt, who had missed repeatedly in 1975 on field goal and extra point attempts, redeemed himself, with three for four, hitting on shots from 23, 37 and 34 yards, and missing on a 32-yarder which hit the right upright.

"We timed things tonight. I got my kicks off in 1.3 seconds. When they take as long as 1.4, it means you run a big chance of being blocked. After last year we worked long and hard to tighten up coordination between the line and myself. This is gratifying."

FOR THE Giants, the victory was a morale booster, and they raised their record against the Jets in pre season play since 1969 to 5-2-1. They split two regular season games, with the Jets winning the last one, in 1974, in overtime.

For the visiting Giants, it was a first. Yankee Stadium, their home from 1956 through the first part of the 1973 season, was a foreign field, as the Jets were the home team.

"It was funny going to the visiting dressing room," said Ray Wietecha, an assistant who played on the Giants championship teams.

THE SERIOUS nature of the contest was shown by the fact that Arnsparger and Jets Coach Lou Holtz left their regulars in most of the game. Only Joe Namath (10 of 24 and 116 yards) and Craig Morton (19 of 32 and 211 yards) worked at quarterback.

After the Jets had seemingly scored the winning TD, with just 2:12 left via a seven-yard Namath pass to rookie running back Lou Giammona, the Giants roared back to win the game. Starting on their own 29, they reached striking distance for Hunt.

"Morton did a terrific job on that drive," observed Namath. "I thought we had it. The TD pass to Giammona was a busted play. The pass was intended for (Jerome) Barkum, but it hit a Giant and Lou made a diving catch."

NAMATH HAD driven the Jets 61 yards in 12 plays to set up the score, with Ed Marinaro doing most of the work. The ex-Minnesota running back got 95 yards in 18 carries.

"I never was called upon this much in Minnesota. I don't know how much I can play on Friday (when the Jets meet Oakland in New York), but I'll give it my best. Usually it takes until Wednesday to recover from a Sunday game."

Top seeded Jimmy Connors showed this type of action in the U. S. Open Clay Courts net tournament Wednesday. He clowned with the crowd (top) while winning, but midway through the second set he began to lose to Australian Colin Dibley with apparent back pains (bottom left). He came back to his old form in the third set (bottom right).

Manuel Orantes says he will win Clay title

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Manuel Orantes says he's confident he'll retain the U.S. Open Clay Court Tennis Championship being played here this week. And he has served notice he means to successfully defend the U.S. Open title he won at Forest Hills, N.Y., last year.

But the Spanish player with the ready smile admits his task won't be easy — not with the streaking Jimmy Connors waiting in the wings along with clay court specialists Guillermo Vilas, and Mexican star Raul Ramirez.

"He's getting better on clay," Orantes said of Connors, formerly regarded as a player who excels on a fast surface.

"Everybody's getting better. There are just so many tournaments being played on this surface that was bound to happen."

But Connors wasn't exactly sparkling in his opening round match here Wednesday night against Australian Colin Dibley, a man known more for his serves then for his all-around game. Connors escaped with a 6-4, 6-7, 3-0, victory when Dibley was forced to withdraw because of cramps.

Orantes, for that matter, didn't blow his opponent off the court either — at least not in the first set. Little known West German Frank Gebert led the defending champion, 4-2, in the opening set.

Orantes, however, made up the service break in the next game after Gebert made a pair of volleying errors and then double-faulted twice in succession. He won only one more game.

"He was very relaxed. He was taking chances, and the ball was going in for him," Orantes said of his opponent's early success. "It was difficult for him to keep playing like that. I tried to put more pressure on him."

Cliff Richey, once regarded as one of the premiere clay court players in the world, had more than enough pressure from Vilas, the Argentinian ace. Combining flashing forehands and backhand ground strokes with deftly placed drop shots, Vilas sped to a 6-1, 6-2 triumph.

All told, it was a very good day for the seeded men players in the $157,000 tournament and a very bad day for the women seeds.

Casey Converse tips Olympic medalist

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — When Casey Converse hit the wall first in the men's 400 freestyle in the AAU National Swimming Championships here, he reached over to hug teammate and double Olympic gold medal winner Brian Goodell.

"I told him winning the national championship is nothing like winning a gold medal," said the 18-year-old Converse, who is swimming for the Mission Viejo, Calif., Swim Club.

All the swimmers who competed Wednesday night in the opening of the four-day championships agreed the mood here is very relaxed from the Olympics. And the times are reflecting that.

THREE MEET records fell. But none approached the world marvels that fell so frequently in Montreal.

"It's awful hard coming back to a meet after the Olympics," admitted John Naber, who won the 200 backstroke in 2:03.73, over 4½ seconds slower than his world record time of 1:59.19.

"I gave it 100 per cent," said the 6-foot-6 crowd favorite. "I'd be embarrassed to say anything else."

Converse, a member of the U.S. Olympic team, failed to make the finals in Montreal. Goodell won the event in record time.

"After I missed the finals, I wanted to show the folks back home I can swim," said the 18-year-old Converse, who plans to attend Alabama in the fall. Converse won in 3:54.65 and Goodell had 3:57.00.

She lowered the mark again in the finals with a time of 1:01.76.

"I hurt really bad after the morning run," she laughed later. "I just wanted those roses," she added, referring to the bouquet of red roses presented to the winners.

"I never had roses. I was psyched when I found out they gave out roses," she said.

SHIRLEY BABASHOFF, America's top woman swimmer, has scratched from all events here.

"I think Shirley's a little down," Boglioli said. "When she would come in second at the Olympics, the press would ask her questions like how does it feel to be at the bottom. That's tough for anyone to take."

Two Santa Clara, Calif., swimmers, John Hencken and Linda Jezek, also established new AAU records. Hencken broke his 1974 record of 1:04.38 with a clocking of 1:04.36 in the 100 breastroke and Jezek swam the 200 backstroke in 2:17.33.

The old mark of 2:18.11 was set by Cheryl Gibson in April.

The 22-year-old Hencken, who set a world mark of 1:03.11 to win the gold medal at Montreal, said, "I didn't expect to go that fast. I've been sick for a week with a cold and I haven't done that much since the Olympics."

STILL, HENCKEN thought the pace would be better in some of the events here.

"I expected to see faster times. Of course, not everybody showed up," he said.

"I'm a little surprised," said the 16-year-old. "I really came here for the 100. That's what I was really after here."

Other winners were Dawn Rodighiero of Mission Viejo in the women's 100 breaststroke (1:14.64); Rebecca Perott of New Zealand in the 400 freestyle (4:17.60); and Greg Jagenburg of Newtown Square, Pa., in the men's 100 butterfly (55.72).

UTICA, N.Y. (AP) — Scott LeDoux is "the other guy" in Saturday's heavyweight boxing match with former world champion George Foreman.

Utica Mayor Edward Hanna says the fight between Foreman and "the other guy...what's his name..." will give this economically depressed, upstate city a morale boost.

To show his support for the fight, the mayor attended a promotional luncheon and presented Foreman with a key to the city and an official proclamation.

Later, the mayor had an aide give a key to Foreman's opponent.

LeDoux says all the attention given to Foreman doesn't bother him. But the young pro says he hopes to use the nationally televised fight with Foreman to project himself into boxing's limelight.

"I know the crowd will be for Foreman. I mean, who is Scott LeDoux? They've never heard of me before. They probably expect me to come out there in boots and a pick axe."

Le Doux made the trip east from Minneapolis with an 18-3-1 record in his 2½ years as a professional. LeDoux, 27, claims he is a stronger opponent for foreman than most people realize, Eleven of his victories have been knockouts, and LeDoux claims he has never been knocked off his feet as a professional boxer.

"If I fight my fight, I think the ability I have is enough," LeDoux said.

LeDoux has beaten such fighters as Larry Middleton, Ron Stander and Rodney Bobick. He has lost to Duane Bobick, John Dino Dennis and Cookie Wallace. He has lost his last two fights.

Foreman, 27, will be stepping into the Utica Memorial Auditorium ring coming off an impressive victory that sent Joe Frazier into retirement. The only blemish in his 43 fights has been a loss two years ago in Zaire when Muhammand Ali took the title away from him.

Foreman says he sees the fight with LeDoux as a way of keeping himself ready for another title fight.

"Right now, the whole world is LeDoux and the championship," Foreman told reporters when he arrived here. "By fighting LeDoux, I'm keeping the tools greased all the time, so when a shot comes along, I'll be ready."

LeDoux says he is better trained and more able to go the distance than Foreman.

"My later rounds are my best rounds. I'm at my best after the fifth round. I don't lose any punches because I train too hard," LeDoux said.

"Foreman will come out storming, that's the only way he can. He doesn't train enough and he doesn't know how to box. If not before, it's going to be my fight after the fifth round," LeDoux said.

Fidrych hugs Horton after game winning blow

By The Associated Press

They had a party for Mark Fidrych at Tiger Stadium and Willie Horton was the guest of honor.

Fidrych, the zany, mop-haired rookie right-hander with the live fastball, will turn 22 Saturday and 36,523 fans turned up Wednesday night to help him celebrate. Horton didn't get into the act until the ninth inning, but that was just in time to belt a pinch-hit home run for a 4-3 Detroit victory over the Texas Rangers.

"When he hit that ball I could have kissed him," said Tiger Manager Ralph Houk, not usually the kissing type.

FIDRYCH GAVE Horton a bear hug after he crossed the plate as the fans roared.

"When he hit that I felt so happy for him," said Fidrych. "He needed that. He hadn't hit a home run in a long time."

Tiger fans, who haven't had much to shout about in recent years, chanted and cheered long after the game ended until Fidrych and Horton returned from the clubhouse to take a bow.

Even losing manager Frank Lucchesi was caught up in the excitement that Fidrych generates. "He is what we need in baseball," said Lucchesi. "Not lawsuits."

FIDRYCH, 13-4 with a league leading 1.97 earned run average, has done more for the Tigers than win ballgames. In the last 10 games he's pitched, 424,657 fans have come to the ballpark. He hasn't appeared before a crowd of less than 30,000 in that span.

Fidrych was not at his best Wednesday night, surrendering runs in the second on a pair of singles and a passed ball, in the fourth on a homer by Mike Hargrove and in the seventh on a single by Gene Clines.

But the Tigers kept pace as Rusty Staub knocked in a pair of runs with a single and a home run, and Alex Johnson singled in another.

THAT MADE it 3-3 going into the ninth. Enter Horton, who has been benched lately for light-hitting.

"I've been hurt all year and people don't realize it," said Horton. "I could be on the disabled list but I am here because the team needs me."

Fidrych will not start again for another four days or so but he'll be busy enough trying to wade through the 20 or more birthday cakes he's received from admirers.

"I want you guys to be sure and thank everybody who sent me cards and birthday cakes," he told reporters Wednesday night. "I want that to be in your stories tomorrow."

Yankees 5, Royals 3

Fred Stanley's two-run triple highlighted a five-run first inning that carried New York to victory. A single by Willie Randolph, a sacrifice fly by Mickey Rivers and a throwing error by Kansas City first baseman John Mayberry accounted for the other Yankee runs. Doyle Alexander, 7-8, won it with relief help from Sparky Lyle who picked up his 20th save. Amos Otis hit a two-run homer for the Royals.

Angels 2, Red Sox 0

Left-hander Frank Tanana stopped Boston on two hits— singles by Dwight Evans and Rick Burleson—to raise his record to 14-8. Tanana struck out 10 batters and walked just one as the Angels vacated the cellar in the AL West. Dave Collins rapped a pair of doubles and Bob Jones had two runscoring singles for California.

Indians 4, White Sox 3

Rick Manning's run-scoring single in the 10th inning won it for Cleveland. Tommie Smith drove in two runs with a homer and a single, and Jim Kern, 8-5, was the winner in relief. Jack Brohamer had three hits, including an RBI triple for Chicago.

Twins 2, Orioles 0

Bill Singer snapped a personal five-game losing streak with a five-hitter for Minnesota. Dan Ford knocked in both Minnesota runs with a single and a sacrifice fly. The Orioles, who saw their win streak ended at four games, dropped 9½ games behind front-running New York in the AL East.

A's 8, Brewers 5

Bert Campaneris had four hits, scored twice, drove in a run and stole a base as Oakland moved within 8½ games of front-running Kansas City in the AL West. Don Baylor added a two-run homer and Mike Torrez evened his record at 10-10 for the A's. Milwaukee got all its runs in the ninth, two on a home run by Gorman Thomas, before reliever Rollie Fingers put down the rally.

Chicago blows safe 9-0 lead

By The Associated Press

When the wind is howling at Chicago's Wrigley Field, as it was Wednesday, no lead is safe.

"In the second inning, when we trailed 9-0, I told Morgan to mark one in the right-hand column—the loss column—for us," said Anderson. "There was no way we were going to win this game.

"But Joe told me I was out of my mind—when you play in Wrigley Field, you always have a shot."

THE REDS, trailing the Cubs 9- 0 and 10-1 in the early going, came back with their best shot. Two runs in the sixth on a Tony Perez homer. Four more in the seventh—three on a homer by Johnny Bench. One in the eighth on an RBI single by Bench. The gap was down to 10-8.

Then, in the ninth, Ken Griffey cracked his sixth homer of the year, a dramatic, two-out, two-run shot that brought the Reds even.

By the 10th, though the score was tied, the outcome was virtually assured. Three Reds runs, aided by a pair of Cub errors, capped the comeback.

"WITH THE wind blowing out in Wrigley Field, it's such a hitters' paradise that I'd really rather be behind than have a big lead," said Anderson, who got his wish as Steve Swisher drove in four runs with a single and a pair of triples—one in a seven-run second inning that featured eight consecutive hits—as Chicago built a 10-1 lead.

Perez belted his 13th homer of the season in the sixth for two runs. In the seventh, Bench belted his 11th of the year—a disputed shot hat curled around the left field foul pole—for three runs and Cesar Geronimo added a run-scoring double. Bench's RBI single in the eighth set the stage for Griffey's dramatic homer.

TWO ERRORS helped Cincinnati finish the Cubs off. Bench opened the 10th by reaching first on shortstop Mick Kelleher's error. He went to second on Tony Perez' single, then gave way to pinch-runner Ed Armbrister. On an attempted pickoff, first baseman Pete LaCock threw wildly to second, allowing Armbrister to score the go-ahead run. Dave Concepcion's single and Doug Flynn's triple accounted for the final two runs.

It was the second time this year the Cubs have blown a huge lead. On April 18 they were ahead of Philadelphia 13-2, only to lose 18-16.

"The game for all practical purposes turned around in the seventh inning when the umpires awarded Johnny Bench a three-run homer," complained Cubs outfielder Rick Monday. "Everbody in the ballpark saw the ball go foul."

"I hope we haven't lost our momentum in winning 13 of our last 18 games," said Cubs Manager Jim Marshall.

Phils 4, Braves 1

Philadelphia snapped a 1-1 tie with a pair of runs in the fifth, thanks to two throwing errors by Atlanta third baseman Jerry Royster.

Garry Maddox doubled with one out. Mike Schmidt hit a grounder to Royster and was safe when the throw hit Maddox trying to get back to second. Greg Luzinski then grounded to Royster who tagged Maddox, but threw wildly to first allowing Schmidt to score. Luzinski scored on singles by Jay Johnstone and Tommy Hutton.

The Phillies now lead the second-place Pittsburgh Pirates in the NL East race by 14½ games—their widest margin of the season.

Dodgers 2, Pirates 0

Ron Cey belted his 18th homer of the year to back the five-hit pitching of Rick Rhoden, who struck out four and walked three in raising his record to 10-1. After Rennie Stennett doubled in the first inning, Rhoden did not allow a Pittsburgh baserunner beyond first until the ninth.

Mets 2, Padres 1

Mike Vail drove in both Mets runs with a first-inning double and Jon Matlack and Skip Lockwood made them stand up by combining on a seven-hitter. Matlack got his 12th victory and Lockwood his 13th save.

With the Mets nursing a onerun lead, Lockwood entered the game with Willie Davis on first and Enzo Hernandez on third and none out in the eighth. After Davis stole second, Lockwood threw a called third strike past Dave Winfield. Then, after walking Mike Ivie to load the bases, Lockwood struck out Tito Fuentes and Willie McCovey to end the inning.

Expos 9, Giants 3

Tim Foli belted a two-run double to key a six-run outburst in the sixth inning which broke the game open for ontreal. Larry Parrish, Del Unser and Woodie Fryman had run-scoring singles and Gary Carter, who homered earlier, drove in a run with a triple in the big inning.

Astros 8, Cards 1

Larry Dierker, 12-10, scattered nine hits for Houston, which scored three runs in the third and four more in the sixth. Wilbur Howard's run scoring triple was the key blow in the third and Ken Boswell's two-run double highlighted the seventh.

Roger, Clint exchange blows during practice

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Roger Staubach and Clint Longley, battling for the No. 1 quarterback spot with the Dallas Cowboys, have traded fists off the practice field.

Staubach was on top when teammates pulled him and Longley apart following a short exchange of blows after a training session.

"No big deal," the normally relaxed Staubach said after the fight Tuesday. "It was just the frustration of five weeks of training camp." And perhaps the two consecutive preseason losses by the National Football League team.

Longley, a substitute quarterback who hunts rattlesnakes, likes fast cars and is known on the field as the "Mad Bomber," quipped after the scuffle:

"It's a new form of conditioning. We do it after running sprints and before lifting weights. We get so little contact, we decided to roll over and push each other. We probably could fight for hours and not hurt each other."

Assistant coach Dan Reeves said Longley and Staubach went at each other behind a baseball dugout shortly after a passing drill during which the pair snapped at each other.

"I knew they had exchanged words," Reeves said. "Then they started walking off the field. I saw them going toward the water and thought they were going to get a drink. Then they went behind the dugout. I saw Clint swing and I started running over there. I couldn't see anything else, but when I got there Roger was on top of him."

Staubach and Longley shook hands after the incident.

"As far as I am concerned the whole thing is over," Staubach said. "Clint is doing a super job. I just want to forget the whole thing."

Head Coach Tom Landry dismissed the incident: "I've never even inquired about it. They were on the field working hard, and sometimes tempers flare. As long as it stays on the field, I don't worry about it."

During the passing drill Staubach fumbled a snap as Drew Pearson ran a pattern. Longley, standing nearby with a football, threw a pass to Pearson, who had pulled up. Witnesses said Longley then made a comment about Pearson and Staubach made a comment about Longley. The two then went behind the dugout.

The Cowboys play the Denver Broncos in Dallas Saturday. Staubach and Longley will alternate as quarterbacks. Staubach will start.

Crenshaw says pressure mounting for PGA meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leading money winner Ben Crenshaw refuses to take seriously the prediction of many observers that he is the man to beat in the 58th PGA Golf Championship, starting today.

"If I won, I would feel like I stole it," the young Texan said bluntly.

As he prepared to tee off against 139 professional rivals, the 24-year-old tour fledgling found himself confronted with all sorts of pressures—topping the year's money list with $213,201, hailed as the future super star and headlined in Washington papers as the pretournament favorite.

"A lot of people are getting itchy for me to go out and win a major tournament," he said. "The way I'm hitting the ball and the way the other guys are hitting the ball, I don't deserve it.

"It's as simple as that. I am not hitting enough fairways. I am not hitting enough greens. When I go out to play, I figure I've got to bale a lot of hay."

CRENSHAW PLAYED his final practice round with two other of the most formidable young lions—Jerry Pate and George Burns III—and the recognized king of the game, Jack Nicklaus, winner of 16 major crowns.

The former All-American from the University of Texas acknowledged that he still experienced butterflies in his stomach when he stepped up on the tee with the Golden Bear.

"I enjoy playing with Jack," he said. "I look up to him. I always will. I admit I am in awe of him every time I see him tee up the ball. Some day in the future I may be able to accept him on even terms. Not now. I can't match him day in and day out. I don't have it yet."

Out of the tough Texas proving ground that produced such fairway greats as Ben Hogan, Byron Nelson, Jimmy Demaret and Lee Trevino and cut from the same bolt of cloth, Crenshaw has measured up to all expectations except one—he has not yet won a major championship.

OFF TO a strong start, he has turned this into one of his finest years. He won the Crosby and Hawaii tournaments on consecutive weekends, finished second in the Masters as well as Pleasant Valley and Westchester and tied for eighth in the U.S. Open at Atlanta.

He has finished in the top 10 in 12 of 23 starts, his total prize money of $213,201 exceeding that of second place Hubert Green by almost $25,000. Nicklaus, with only one tournament victory, has won $152,019.

People who make a study of stars—the human kind who swing golf clubs—have marked young Crenshaw for certain greatness. Many are dubbing him "the new Ben Hogan."

Already he has shown a maturity and mental toughness well beyond his years.

A STRONG-FACED youngster with a crop of copper-colored hair that falls over his ears in a Prince Valiant style, he walks the fairways with a stiff-legged Western gait as if he might be wearing boots.

The shoulders of his stocky 5-foot-9, 163-pound frame are always hunched forward and his eyes rarely stray from the line that leads to the green. He resembles a cowboy who has just tied up his horse and is going in to shoot up the Red Garter Saloon.

Yet he remains one of the most modest, considerate and upretentious pros on the tour. To him, everybody is "Mister."

"Tuesday was actually the first time I had seen the course," Crenshaw said. "I didn't get to play Monday. I always consider the first two days reacclimation days.

"They key to this course is driving the ball. The holes are so long. There's only one drive and pitch hole on the whole course, and that's number eight. It's tough to reach the green out of the rough."

THE SCENE of the 58th PGA is an arduous, demanding test measuring 7,054 yards and playing a par-70. It was on this course that Ken Venturi, playing in suffocating heat and gulping pills to keep him upright, won the U.S. Open in 1964 with a score of 278.

Most of the pros figure that a similar score could win here this weekend.

In addition to Nicklaus and Crenshaw, advance favorites include Jerry Pate, 22-year-old rookie who won both the U.S. and Canadian Opens this year; hard-luck John Mahaffey, who has seen the last two U.S. Opens slip from his grasp; long-hitting Tom Weiskopf; Tom Watson, and comebacker Lee Trevino.

ARNOLD PALMER, a never-say-die 46, is trying again for the title he's never won—playing on a special PGA invitation—and South Africa's Gary Player is attempting to salvage a mediocre season in his final U.S. appearance of the year.

Nicklaus termed Congressional "a bogey course."

"There will be a lot of bogeys but I don't think there will be many high numbers like sevens and eights," the all-time leading winner said. "It's a course that will simply grind you down, exhaust you physically and mentally.

"What you will need this week is patience."

Crenshaw readily agreed.

"I don't see any outsider winning here," the Texan said. "There are too many full-blooded shots you have to hit out there—long irons. That's why I don't think too much of my chances. Basically, there's too much looseness in my swing. I got a long winter of work ahead of me."

Player's water game faces PGA

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gary Player, the South African bantam, has has had his troubles on the American pro golf tour the past two years. In a last attempt to change things around this year, he's already seen too much water.

Player, now in his 40th year, has won 18 titles and well over $1 million on the U.S. tour but has been winless in his last 30 tries. He hopes the course of events can change in the 58th PGA championship beginning today.

"I've been practicing very, very hard," said Player after a practice round Wednesday. "I guess everybody gets them but I've never run into a really bad spell like I'm in now."

IN 15 tournaments in 1975, he tied for the title in the Tournament of Champions event but lost on the extra hole to Al Geiberger. He has entered 15 tourneys before the PGA this season but hasn't finished in the top 10 since Jacksonville in March. In recent weeks, the two-time PGA winner's highest finish was an embarrassing tie for 38th in the B.C. Open several days ago.

The 5-foot-8, 180-pound Player was happy with the practice round—he shot an even-par 70— but was displeased with the finale as he left the 18th green to return to the clubhouse.

A GROUP of youngsters attempted to get his autograph and, despite his pleadings, managed to crowd him to the point that he was forced into the lake surrounding the green.

"I can laugh about it now but it wasn't funny at the time," he said. "I told them they were going to push me in, but they did it anyway."

Player was quite unhappy about the incident as he stood knee deep i the water, with his white trousers soaked with mud. A friend had to lend him a new pair of trousers and he had to buy a pair of socks to perform in an exhibition after the practice round.

ON THE condition of the Congressional Country Club in nearby Bethesda, Md., Player had nothing but compliments, pointing out that on long courses such as Congressional he won his major titles which include the PGA in 1962 and 1972, two Masters, one U.S. and three British Opens.

"It's in great shape," he said. "It plays long but the greens are in good shape and the water comes into play. Having the PGA in Washington is a super idea. It's a marvelous city with a tremendous tradition."

Player disputed another former PGA champion Lee Trevino who said there will be scores of 10 and 12 under par-280. "I think par will be broken but not with scores like that," he said. "A 276 maybe, but nothing like 10 or 12 under."

Cincinnati sets sights on attendance mark

CINCINNATI (AP) — Success sells—and so are Cincinnati Reds tickets.

Despite having the second smallest fan market among major league teams, the Reds can break baseball's all-time attendance record by averaging 40,000 fans per game for their last 26 home games.

Running 290,000 ahead of last year's pace when they drew 2.3 million, Cincinnati is within striking distance of the 14-year mark of 2.7 million set by the 1962 Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Reds have attracted 1.7 million fans so far and figure to top the two million mark for the fourth straight year in the upcoming 13 game home stand beginning Monday.

Stoeber says the Reds are currently averaging 35,800 per game and would need to draw a million fans for the last two months of the season to break the Dodger record.

The New York Mets of 1970 and the Cleveland Indians of 1948 ranks second and third on the all-time list, drawing more than 2.6 million.

The Reds are currently No. 2 in attendance behind the Dodgers for this season, but could dethrone Los Angeles with a strong finish.

The Dodgers, at 1.9 million, hold a 200,000 fan edge over the Reds. Philadelphia is third with 1.6 million and the New York Yankees are fourth at 1.5 million.

"We have an outside chance," said Stoeber. "Even though crowds drop a little later in the season because of school starting up again, we drew 513,000 in August last year and 304,000 in September."

Cincinnati is 240,000 shy of going over the two million mark for the fourth straight year, an accomplishment that Stoeber says is "a heck of a feat."

"Baseball is really a tradition here, being the home of the first pro team and all," said Stoeber. "We get 50,000 for opening day every year and the city turns out to make it a real gala event."

The Reds sold a remarkable one million advance tickets before the season started.

"There are too many factors to pinpoint our success to one thing," said Stoeber. "For one thing, the Reds have a team with real appeal, but just having a winning team doesn't necessarily mean you will draw well. Oakland won three straight World Series and only drew a million a year and Baltimore was the same."

A modern stadium with easy access has helped too, along with a near perfect rainout record. Since moving into Riverfront Stadium June 30, 1970, the Reds have not been rained out in 493 dates which include exhibition and postseason games.

TOWSON, Md. (AP) — Baseball star Brooks Robinson's house has been ordered sold to pay off nearly $250,000 owed to a Pennsylvania bank by the Oriole third baseman's sporting goods business.

Baltimore County Circuit Court Judge Edward A. DeWaters Jr. also ruled that the house of George A. Henderson, Robinson's business partner, also be sold in connection with the debt to National Central Bank and Trust Co. of York, Pa.

The bank filed a mortgage foreclosure suit Wednesday naming both men and their wives as having personally guaranteed repayment of a 1974 loan taken out by Brooks Robinson Sporting Goods, Inc., to open a new store in York.

According to Henderson, the firm has already given the bank a step-by-step payment plan to the bank for the remainder of the loan. He also said the debt was $100,000 less than the bank's claimed total of $249,585.23.

Henderson discounted the possibility that the two houses would be sold because he said the bank had extended the due date for the final payment to Aug. 6.

In the suit, the bank alleges that the final payment was due April 13. Gerald S. Klein, the lawyer for the bank, refused to comment on the suit.

The court action was the latest in a series of moves by the bank against the Robinsons and Hendersons since March, 1975, when it sued for repayment of the same loan, then totaling $288,453.

Gawkers make Ali leave

PHOENIX (AP) — Heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali, absent without leave from his Michigan training camp, was believed hiding out near Springerville in northeastern Arizona today.

The normally loquacious champion appeared at Phoenix Sky Harbor Airport near midnight Tuesday in the company of two men. But he told the clerk at a car rental agency only that he would be "driving to Springerville."

The agent said Ali's staff told him the champ had "taken a one-week vow of silence and headed for the desert." The move was a surprise to him, the agent said.

Robin Stadmiller, 23, night manager of National Car Rentals, checked out the car to Ali and his two companions.

"He was surrounded by people, signing autographs and shaking hands," said Miss Stadmiller. "He was very polite, very nice and very quiet.

She said Ali would not give a Phoenix address.

"I wasn't about to question him," she said. "They said they would have the car for a month or so."

Southern Methodist inks JC cage star

DALLAS (AP) — Tracy Scheibel, a 6-foot-8 junior college transfer from Paris, has signed a letter of intent to play basketball at Southern Methodist University, it was announced Wednesday.

Scheibel will have three years of eligibility. He averaged 13 points and 10 rebounds per game last year as a freshman. He averaged 19 points and 10 rebounds as a senior at Dallas Skyline High School.

"He is a good shooter," said SMU Coach Sonny Allen. "He has good speed and will play both the forward and the pivot positions. He will give us depth inside."

Orioles recall Mike Flanagan

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Baltimore Orioles recalled lefthanded pitcher Mike Flanagan from Rochester Wednesday night and optioned outfielder Andres Mora to the International League team.

Flanagan, 24, was with the Orioles through July 2, when he was optioned to Rochester after posting an 0-3 record in 10 appearances. After losing his first start with the Red Wings, he has won six straight and has gone the route seven consecutive times.

Monzon cancels trip after visa denied

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — World middleweight champion Carlos Monzon of Argentina, sentenced last week to a jail term for beating up a photographer, cancelled a trip to Miami Wednesday after he was denied a visa to enter the United States.

A U.S. embassy spokesman confirmed the visa was denied and sources close to Monzon said he cancelled reservations on a flight to Miami scheduled to leave Wednesday night.

Monzon, 33, was going to spend a few days in Florida before traveling to Rome to take part in two movies.

Although the embassy did not say why the visa was denied, diplomatic sources said it was because of a 1½-year jail sentence against him handed down by a provincial judge last Aug. 3 for assault and battery charges.

Hockey stars seek club

TORONTO (AP) — Hockey stars Bobby Orr and Phil Esposito have shown an interest in buying the debt-ridden Boston Minutemen, a spokesman for the North American Soccer League team said Wednesday night.

Road Secretary Pete Donovan said the team, playing its games in the Boston suburb of Quincy, Mass., has been averaging only 1,500 fans a game, with a low of 403 paying customers for one game.

He said oil promoter John Sterge, sole owner of the team, is prepared to sell.

"Don't be surprised if the franchise is sold to Bobby Orr and Phil Esposito," he said. "These two guys are well-respected in the Boston area and have a lot of business commitments there.

"I learned about their interest a couple of days ago and I'm sure if they took over the club the interest would grow. After all they both played hockey for the Bruins."

City buffs first to see 'Graduate

Midland theater-goers will be behind Washington, D.C. audiences, but ahead of Broadway play-goers, in seeing "The Oldest Living Graduate."

The celebrated new play by Dallas playwright Preston Jones, one of the stage works making up his "Texas Trilogy," will open a special, four-performance run at Midland Theatre Centre Friday night. Repeats are scheduled Saturday night and Aug. 20 and 21. Reserved seat tickets for the four presentations are on sale daily at the box office, 682-2544. The tickets are $4.

"The Oldest Living Graduate" and companion plays in the trilogy, "The Last Meeting of the Knights of the White Magnolia" and "Lu Ann Hampton Laverty Oberlander," had premieres two years ago at Dallas Theater Center, where Jones is playwright-in-residence as well as a member of the resident actors company. "Knights of the White Magnolia" has had several productions in the Southwest, including those at Midland Community Theatre and Houston's Alley Theatre. "The Oldest Living Graduate" and "Lu Ann Hampton Laverty Oberlander" have until now been less widely seen.

The "Texas Trilogy" had a highly-successful limited run at Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C., in early summer, and resumed performaces there last weekend to accomodate heavy ticket demand. The three plays are scheduled to move to Broadway in mid-September, probably into the Broadhurst Theatre on West 44th or the Plymouth Theatre on West 45th, under the aegis of theatrical producers Robert Whitehead and Roger L. Stevens.

Playwright Jones and the producers are letting Midland Community Theatre have "Oldest Living Graduate" royalty-free for the special production here this month, proceeds from which will go to the building fund for MCT's planned new Theatre Centre complex on West Wadley Avenue.

Jones has accepted MCT's invitation to be a guest at the opening performances of "Graduate" this weekend, and he will be honored at a gathering in the Midland Petroleum Club Saturday evening, before the start of the second performance of his play at 8:30 p.m.

MCT's "Oldest Living Graduate" has been designed and directed by Art Cole, who also staged and directed Jones' "Knights of the White Magnolia" when MCT produced it in the spring of 1975. That production played to full houses consistently.

Two of the cast members of MCT's "knights of the White Magnolia," Charles Sutton and Gary Askins, also have roles in the upcoming "Oldest Living Graduate." Other cast members include Mike McLaren in the pivotal role of Col. J. C. Kinkaid, Bill Shaner, Coila Morrow, Douthea Shaner, James Buchanan, Craig Stanford and Kathy Kerth.

Newsday

NEW YORK — If a television network ever decides to do a show about a television network, it might try to portray the knock-down, drag-out fight being waged by ABC these days.

The 97-pound weakling of the air waves is continually flexing its muscles and kicking sand in the faces of NBC and CBS.

When did ABC start to get so scrappy? How did the inferiority-complex network, usually a distant third, wind up the second season of this television year in first place? How come every time you turn around, ABC looks more and more like a network Napoleon trying to shift the balance of power on America's screens?

January, 1975. After a 23-year sleep, ABC wakes up to early morning network television and launches "AM America," a flop, later turned into "Good Morning, America," a moderate success which has been edging up slightly in the ratings. At the same time, NBC's "Today" has experienced some slippage despite the fact that it still holds a giant lead over the ABC rival. ABC spent $3 million on research before embarking on its early morning campaign and committed $5 million a year to the show.

Spring, 1975. ABC hires wonder programmer Fred Silverman away from CBS, where, for 13 years, Silverman's magic touch in picking hit shows has kept CBS looking first-rate on the Nielsen charts. Silverman says he was won over by the challenge of working for another network. Silverman also is attracted by an ABC offer it's hard to refuse: A $250,000-a-year salary, stock options and other fancy fringe benefits.

April, 1975. ABC hires NBC's celebrated interviewer, Barbara Walters, away from NBC at a record $1 million a year. Some people interpret this as a double play: Bring Walters and all her fans over to ABC and deprive "Today" of its star.

Those are some of the major maneuvers in the military-like battle ABC seems to be waging against CBS and NBC these days. But there are other matters that must be disturbing to the big guys.

In the last few months, six affiliate stations have switched or announced their intention to switch over to ABC — KGTV in San Diego; KXLF in Butte, Mont.; KPAX in Missoula, Mont.; KRGV in Weslaco, Tex.; KEVN in Rapid City, S.D., and KIVV in Lead, S.D.

On the programming front, ABC is getting into CBS' act as the leading comedy network. It has even created its own laugh czar, naming Marcia Carsey vice president for prime-time comedy program development.

The challenges are becoming apparent. Nancy Walker, a big personality on CBS' "Rhoda," will be on the other side of the street in September with her own Tuesday night ABC show, challenging "M-A-S-H" on CBS and "Police Woman" on NBC. Comedian Tony Randall premieres in his own show the same night, right after Nancy Walker. Randall faces "One Day at a Time" on CBS and the second half of "Police Woman" on NBC.

In sports, where ABC has long been the biggest jock on the network block, ABC continues to assume a menacing posture. Memories of its winter Olympics-ratings blockbuster are still fresh as it keeps leading the pack with summer Olympic coverage.

The sweet smell of success at ABC, however, is as ephemeral as yesterday's eau de cologne. Nothing in videoland is ever more than half-safe and by the time ABC is through congratulating itself, things could go sour.

After all, in 1964 the network made it to first place in the prime-time ratings for two months.

Paintings in all media and sculpture whose weight does not exceed 500 pounds will be accepted for the exhibition. Artists will be limited to two entries each. Works must be original and must have been completed during 1975 or 1976. Works previously exhibited at the Arkansas Arts Center will not be eligible. A handling fee of $5 is required with each entry.

Karp, as juror of the show, will recommend a $1,000 Grand Award in the exhibition, and an additional $3,000 in purchase awards. The upcoming exhibition is being presented with the assistance of grants-in-aid from the National Endowment for the Arts through the Arkansas State Arts and Humanities Council.

All entries must reach the Arkansas Arts Center between Sept. 13 and Sept. 24.

Midlanders act as directors

Eight city residents are beginning three-year terms on the board of directors of the Midland Symphony and Chorus Association, the Midland "arm" of the Midland-Odessa Symphony and Chorale.

The new directors, elected at the association's annual meeting, join more than two dozen other local residents on the association board. The new directors, some of whom were reelected, include Mrs. Roger Allen, Harry W. Clark, Ted Collins Jr., R. E. Hagan, Mrs. Robert B. Holt, John D. Ochsner, Mrs. M. B. Wisenbaker and Clarence Scharbauer III. Heading the Midland association as president for the 1976-77 year is Russell Neisig.

The Midland-Odessa Symphony's new season now is being planned. The season will begin with a pair of concerts in October which will feature famed guitarist Carlos Montoya as guest performer. Season ticket sales campaigns will begin in both Midland and Odessa in September.

Woman leaves on tour

ABILENE — Mrs. Paula Turney Edwards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Billy Turney of 2408 Baumann St., left Abilene Tuesday for a three-week concert tour of the Soviet Union with the Hardin-Simmons University Concert Choir.

The tour, sponsored by the Friendship Ambassadors Foundation, will include Moscow, Leningrad and Latvia.

Man with campanology degree a real bell-ringer

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Concertist Karel Keldermans' name rings a bell only in the more esoteric circles of American musicology. But his accomplishment reverberates through its annals.

Keldermans is the first person to earn a master's degree from a college in the United States for campanology and carillon performance. In simple terms, that's bell ringing.

After two years' study abroad, he returned home a few weeks ago to accept his degree from Sangamon State University and a post as chief carillonneur for the Springfield Park District.

Just to keep the record straight, there is one other person with a master's degree in theoretical campanology from a U.S. college, but it's not in carillon performance. And the University of Michigan offers a bachelor's degree, but no master's program.

Keldermans' studies, supervised by Sangamon State in a course he designed himself, covered the art of bell playing from casting to clapper.

"It's like studying any other musical instrument," he said in an interview. "You have to know things like harmony, theory, how to read notes and count time. I also studied theoretical stuff — how bells are cast, the mechanism, techniques, the types of keyboards. The paper I did was on comparing the foundry techniques of the 16th century with the 20th century."

Carillons got their start in Belgium, Holland and northern France in the 1400s. "Actually it developed out of about two or three bells that were hung in city halls to warn the city of fire, flood or invasion," Keldermans said. "Then somebody got to messing around with them. About 1450 they decided to add a keyboard."

Over the years the instrument died out. Generals like Napoleon found the bells a good source of brass cannon and the instrument was expensive.

"It's really revived," he said. "It wasn't until this century that they discovered how to cast bells like they used to. It really got started up again in Belgium around 1900."

Keldermans began to study the carillon in his teens under his father, a Belgium-born carillonneur of 40 years' experience. Despite the instrument's massive size, one doesn't need a lot of muscles to play.

"You play it with your little finger," Keldermans said. "You've got your hand in the form of a fist. It's just a flick of the wrist. Your little finger is the only thing that hits the keys. If you know how to play correctly, it doesn't require any strength."

Unfortunately there is not enough money in carillon concerts to support a fellow and his family. So Keldermans must work another job.

He's employed by the largest producer and consumer of bells in the world, the telephone company.

Tandy division closing down

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — A division of Tandy Industries, the Tulsa-based Tandy Homes, has been sold and the new owner plans to liquidate the multi-million-dollar, five-state operation, officials said Tuesday.

The new owner is Don Hanson, who bought another Tandy subsidiary, Tandy Acceptance Corp., about a month ago, company officials said. No purchase price was reported.

Some 43 sales and office personnel will be laid off in the Oklahoma division of Tandy Homes, which reported about $6 million in new home sales last year.

Wing-walking exciting, but not for fainthearted

By PATRICK CONNOLLY

DETROIT (AP) — Wingwalking is an unforgettable way to get a big breath of fresh air.

It's like standing on top of a ladder while somebody shakes the legs. But the ladder is high enough to reach the windows of an 80-story building — and sways.

It seems easy when you watch 22-year-old Steve Trevor, a soft-spoken premed student at the University of California in Irvine, dangling from the wing by his hands and feet and turning upside down as part of his regular act.

The pilot of the act, Joe C. Hughes, 44, of Huntington Beach, Calif., said of Trevor: "I know every one of his moves. If anything ever goes wrong, I'll pull back the stick (sending the plane into a vertical climb) and he'll fall into the cockpit."

The first lesson is that before you learn to wing-walk you must learn to wing-crawl, which you do by clambering through a maze of wires and struts to the top wing of Hughes' red and white biplane.

You jam your feet onto two small metal platforms covered with leather footholds, which don't appear much more substantial than the grips that held your feet to rollerskates.

The small of your back leans against a hand-size metal brace. A thick canvas belt, which is connected to a metal bar protruding from the wing like a lightning rod, is tightened around your middle. The belt is your lifeline.

What do you wear to a wingwalk? The same clothes you wear to the office with the addition of a leather aviator helmet and goggles, which sit askew over eyeglasses.

Encouraging you to wave to onlookers, Hughes taxies to the runway, idles the throbbing engine briefly, then kicks on the power. For showmanship, he blows a burst of pink smoke from under the fuselage and barrels down the runway.

From toes to scalp, all your muscles tighten into a bodylength grimace. You almost forget to wave.

The thunder of the propeller and the force of the shove of air against the body at 85 miles an hour are the first surprises. You instinctively brace against the hand-size piece of metal bar in your back, and hope it doesn't break for the first time.

Then the bumping of the runway surrenders to the thumping of your heart and the plane leaves earth.

Hughes circles the airport at about 800 feet and then rapidly descends for a buzz of the field. Your stomach is doing very well — it probably is only 50 feet behind you.

At mid-runway, Hughes yanks the stick and catapults the plane almost vertically back to 800 feet, much to the surprise of the beginner's circulation system.

But after the first pass, the flight seems secure. You forget the engine's roar. The wind in your face feels good. Your lifebelt is still as tight as it was when they strapped you in and the metal brace presses comfort because you wedge it in deeper and deeper.

You aren't wing-walking but "wing-standing." For a few moments as you watch the freeways, sky, skyscrapers, homes and clouds, the world is a peaceful place and it is a nice day for flying.

Hughes banked evenly and slowly to the left again, lined us up with the runway, went in and touched down without a bump.

The pilot with the handlebar moustache has worked with three professional wing-walkers and with other amateurs.

"Have you ever wingwalked?" he was asked.

"Not on your life. There aren't enough pilots I'd trust," Hughes winked. "I'm no dummy."

Letter carriers cite hazards of mail delivery

The Los Angeles Times

HOUSTON — Your friendly letter carrier is rebelling against that tradition that says he will deliver the mail despite snow, rain, heat, gloom of night and a few other hazards you probably haven't heard about.

"Do you realize that people are shooting at us today if we don't deliver their welfare checks on time?" said James H. Rademacher, head of the powerful 200,000-member National Assn. of Letter Carriers.

"We have more hazards than FBI agents!" he said. "I mean people are literally shooting at us. People are trying to drag us into court because we sprayed their dogs, on grounds of inhumanity."

"Did you know the chill factor in North Dakota is often 50 degrees below zero, and we have to deliver the mail in that?" Rademacher asked.

Donald Bobo of Royal Oak, Mich., a letter carrier, said, "Last November I was making my appointed rounds when I slipped on ice and fractured my ankle."

Bobo, one of 4,600 delegates here for the association's 50th annual convention, added, "I call my superiors and complain about hazardous conditions and they say 'deliver the mail.' And if I don't, there is always the threat of a reprimand on my record and maybe even the loss of my job."

The National Assn. of Letter Carriers represents city letter carriers across the United States. Although there are other unions of postal workers, it is the only union of the letter carriers.

Richard Wray, who delivers the mail in Houston, said that during a recent ferocious electrical storm in the city, letter carriers in his part of town were calling in complaining of lightning and flooding, but their supervisors told them: "Deliver the mail."

Wray said heavy flooding in the eastern part of the city "brings out the snakes, water moccasins and all the rest" and delivering the mail under such circumstances can be trying indeed.

"Some of our men and women deliver mail with water up to their knees," he complained.

Al Long, a lettercarrier from Salinas, Calif., cited the hazard to letter carriers of smog and flooding in Los Angeles, and one of his colleagues, Lois Broadman of Fremont, Calif., said "dogs and postal supervisors" constitute the greatest threat to letter carriers in that state.

T.E. Belcher delivers letters in Jacksonville, Fla. He said, "Sometimes the temperatures in the afternoon get up to 99 degrees. It's no fun to carry the mail in that kind of weather."

Male or female, letter carriers must carry a load of 35 pounds plus the five-pound leather satchel.

For the third time in six years the letter carriers, by way of their union meeting here, supported a resolution indicating that they have reservations about having to make their appointed rounds in snow, rain, heat or gloom of night.

The resolution, approved in committee, which is tantamount to convention approval, stated in part: "Whereas: It is public knowledge and proven by National Safety Council research that walking outdoors in an electrical storm constitutes great bodily hazard, particularly when walking under trees; be it resolved:

That the next contract provide for the right of the letter carrier to determine whether weather conditions are detrimental to the continuation of his assignment."

Contracts must be negotiated with the U.S. Postal Service management, and thus far the letter carriers have been unsuccessful in incorporating the resolution into one.

The popular slogan regarding mail delivery: "Neither snow, nor rain, nor heat, nor gloom of night stays these couriers from the swift completion of their appointed rounds," appears over the entrance to the main Post Office in New York City.

It is not the slogan of the Postal Service. The old U.S. Post Office Department, and the present U.S. Postal Service, have never had a slogan. The motto was placed there in 1914 by William Mitchell Kendall, a member of the architectural firm which put up the post office building on 8th Avenue.

By TIM SHEPARD
Copley News Service

A nuclear engineer regarded as a leading authority on nuclear fuel reprocessing and radioactive waste disposal says the United States has the technical ability to handle any problems associated with the uranium fuel cycle.

"We don't have technical problems," said E. Linn Draper Jr., director of the Nuclear Reactor Laboratory at the University of Texas at Austin. "We only have institutional problems."

By institutional, Draper said he meant regulatory and economic difficulties.

Nuclear fuel assemblies have to be replaced after about half of the uranium in the assemblies has been burned during the process of fission.

To recover the remaining uranium d the plutonium manufactured in the fission process, the spent fuel assemblies will be sent to reprocessing plants.

There, the entire assembly will be melted down and the usable uranium and the plutonium separated from the radioactive wastes.

Current plans call for the reprocessed uranium and plutonium to be burned in commercial power plants and the wastes to be disposed of in federal depositories.

Draper said that reprocessing spent fuel from nuclear power plants was important both from the point of view of stretching out nuclear fuel supplies and minimizing the problems and the amount of radioactive wastes that must be disposed of safely.

"We know we can do it," said Draper in an interview. "The government has reprocessed 90 million gallons of spent uranium fuel in the weapons program and from nuclear submarines."

The nuclear authority said that it will be far more expensive to reprocess spent fuel commercially than originally anticipated.

"This is because regulations regarding the transportation of reprocessed fuel have changed," he said. "The Nuclear Regulatory Commission requires reprocessed fuel to be solidified."

This regulation has placed in doubt the opening of the only commercial reprocessing facility in the United States, the Barnwell Nuclear Fuel Plant in South Carolina.

"They already have spent about $250 million on Barnwell," said Draper. "It is estimated that it will cost another $500 million to develop the solidification."

Draper said Barnwell has asked the government to participate in the cost of the solidification.

"I don't think they will go ahead without government participation," he said.

Draper said Barnwell, if it is placed in operation, would be able to handle the reprocessing for between 30 and 35 nuclear power plants.

"We are going to be needing 20 to 40 new reprocessing plants before the end of the century," he said.

"Each of them will cost about as much as a 1,000-megawatt nuclear power plant — about $1 billion."

Draper said that the reprocessing plants will add 40 per cent to the supply of nuclear fuel. Without them, enrichment costs will be increased by 30 per cent and the problem of nuclear waste disposal will be increased by 600 per cent.

"Our government should be in the reprocessing business and do it so cheaply that if a Third World nation decided to do their own fuel reprocessing, there would be no question as to their motivation," he said. "We would know that they were seeking plutonium for military reasons."

Draper said the federal government already has established that it is technically possible to solidify nuclear fuel wastes. He said he did not have any cost figures.

"Whatever the costs of the fuel cycle, they are not going to play an important role in the total costs of generating electricity by nuclear power," he said.

Discoveries complete in Glasscock, Garza

Traverse Corp. of Traverse City, Mich., completed its No. 1 Tuffing, et al, as an Ellenburger oil strike in Garza, seven miles southeast of Ellenburger oil pay in the Rocker A field.

It was completed for 41.76 barrels of 38-gravity oil and 11 barrels of water per day, with gas-oil ratio too small to measure. Production is through perforations at 7,947-7,948 feet. Amount of treatment was not available. Total depth is 8,022 feet.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of section 10, block 6, H&GN survey, 14 miles southeast of Post.

GLASSCOCK DISCOVERY

John L. Cox, Midland, No. 1 O'Barr has been completed as a Wolfcamp gas strike in East Glasscock County, 12 miles northeast of Garden City.

It had an absolute open flow potential of 1.840 million cubic feet of gas daily, producing through perforations at 7,608-7,626 feet.

Drilled to 8,520 feet, it has 4½-inch casing set on bottom.

Originally drilled by Jack Fisher, it was plugged and abandoned in 1966 at 8,060 feet.

Drilling pact inked

HOUSTON — The Western Co. of North America announced today that a contract has been signed for its semi-submersible drilling vessel, "Western Pacesetter I," to work for one year for Phillips Petroleum Co. in the North Sea. The contract contains an option for an additional year's work.

The rig is expected to commence working prior to Sept. 1. The rig has been employed by several companies in the North Sea since Sept., 1973.

Revenues show gain

FORT WORTH — American Quasar Petroleum Co. has announced consolidated revenues for the firm increased 22 per cent during the six months ended June 30, over earnings for the like period a year ago.

Earnings were $8,073,000, as compared to $6,640,000 for the first half of 1975. The increase was attributed to higher prices for the sale of oil and gas, gas liquid sales from the company's gas processing facilities in Wyoming and Utah, production from certain Canadian properties which previously had been shut in, and increased management fees received from limited partnerships.

Oil and gas production volumes declined for the six-month period in 1976, when compared to the same period in 1975. The crude oil production declined primarily due to the normal production decline of a single well in Wyoming. Natural gas production declined primarily as a result of decreased demand by company's primary purchaser of natural gas and operational maintenance requirements and production rate declines on certain producing wells.

Film describes American life

NEW HYDE PARK, N.Y. (AP) — A new educational motion picture, "People," says Americans are mobile, restless and willing to bet on the future. They also carry 300 million credit cards.

The film is part of the American Enterprise series of five films that is available, free of charge, for screenings by school and community groups through Modern Talking Picture Service, 2323 New Hyde Park Road, New Hyde Park, N.Y., 11040.

Gus Edwards of Abilene plans No. 1 George H. Moore, a 7,500-foot venture in Cottle, four miles southwest of Paducah.

Knox Industries, Inc., Midland, plans No. 4 Morrison as an 8,000-foot prospector in Kent, one location north of the Lyn-Kay field.

TULSA — The board of directors of Parker Drilling Co. has declared the company's first common stock dividend. The cash dividend of 5 cents per common share will be payable Oct. 1, to shareholders of record Aug. 31.

Robert L. Parker, president and board chairman, said the declaration of the dividend by the board was indicative of the company's consistent record earnings in recent years. It is the board's intention to distribute a portion of the firm's income to shareholders through a cash dividend.

More jobs in offing

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — A state study estimates creation of 16,250 jobs in Louisiana as a result of the Louisiana superport off the Lafourche Parish coast by 1980, its first year of operation.

The deepwater terminal, designed to serve tankers too big to reach existing inland facilities in Louisiana, will be capable of pumping ashore millions of barrels of crude oil daily.

The study called the superport "one of the most important economic developments in the history of the state."

Louisiana's Offshore Terminal Authority financed the 346page study. Executive director Shepard Perrin Jr. said it was ordered by Gov. Edwin Edwards to determine the impact of the facility.

The report said a proposed port off the Texas coast would add 788 jobs by 1980 in the Lake Charles area.

The study found that refining capacity would go up 554,500 barrels a day by 1980, and petrochemical capacity would jump by 7.4 billion pounds a year.

In terms of income, the Louisiana superport can be expected to add $169 million a year by 1980 in Southeast Louisiana, and a decade later will increase by $33.4 million in Southwest Louisiana, the report said.

Increase predicted

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, the Saudi oil minister, said this week he thinks the price of crude oil will be increased for 1977 but said his country will resist pressure for a "very drastic" hike being urged by some countries.

"I think it is premature to talk now about the percentage," he told reporters. "It depends on a variety of factors, including the economic recovery in the West."

"But we are not going to slaughter the hen that lays the gold eggs," he stated. "There is a limit to what we can do. And I think we see that limit a little bit clearer than others," a reference to the 12 other members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC).

The current benchmark price for oil exported by OPEC members is $11.51 for a 42-gallon barrel. That price has been in effect since October 1975. OPEC oil ministers considered a hike when they met on the Indonesian island of Bali in May but decided against it.

Saudi Arabia, the world's leading oil exporter, is considered somewhat a dove among OPEC members on the question of prices. With a small population and plenty of oil wealth, it has often tangled with Iran and other so-called hawks over the size of increases.

Sterling gets test

Anadarko Production Co., Tulsa, has scheduled No. 1-B E. Horwood as a ½-mile northeast stepout to the one-well Horwood (Canyon) field of Sterling County, 14 miles south of Sterling City.

Location of the test, slated to 7,500 feet, is 467 feet from south and 1,800 feet from east lines of section 48, block A, GC&SF survey.

The discovery, the firm's No. 1 E. Horwood, finaled June 17, for 210 barrels of 43-gravity oil and 18 barrels of water per day, through perforations at 7,157-7,306 feet.

PECOS TEST

Texaco Inc. will drill No. 1-D Pecos Fee as a ⅜-mile southwest offset to the five-well Wolfcamp gas area of the Gomez field of Pecos County.

Drillsite is 660 feet from south and 859 feet from east lines of section 25, block 48, T-9, T&P survey, 13 miles northwest of Fort Stockton. Planned depth is 12,000 feet.

Buckley says he's available

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Sen. James L. Buckley of New York is reserving the option of a third-man presidential candidacy, leaving Republican National Convention strategists for President Ford and Ronald Reagan to argue over which side would suffer if he ran.

GOP platform draftsmen worked through a sweltering night into early morning hours today, trying to fashion planks that both the Reagan and Ford camps could buy without a fight. Reagan's manager said he wasn't looking for platform trouble, but was ready for contests on the convention floor if necessary.

The close race was reflected in a platform subcommittee vote on the Panama Canal issue. By an 8 to 8 tie vote, a foreign policy panel rejected an attempt by Reagan backers to require that the United States maintain sovereignty over the canal.

Instead, by a 9 to 7 vote today, it adopted language accepted by the Ford administration which said U.S. negotiators should not give up any territory rights needed to protect U.S. security.

The Reagan campaign also readied its forces for a Saturday drive to undo a Ford-backed rule binding delegates from 18 states to vote in accordance with the outcome of presidential primary elections.

And, on a hundred-degree day Wednesday, the Buckley maneuver turned up the political temperature.

A Ford lieutenant tried to talk Buckley into renouncing presidential candidacy. Richard Rosenbaum, the New York GOP chairman, did so with a less-than-subtle suggestion that Buckley might suffer political damage at home, where he is running for re-election to the Senate.

John P. Sears, the Reagan manager, said that the challenger had not tried to encourage or dissaude any potential rival entry into the race for nomination. He disclaimed any involvement in the Buckley move.

Nonetheless, it appeared to mesh with a Reagan convention strategy built around maneuvers designed to keep the Ford organization off balance.

Furthermore, the fact that the move came from the Republican right, from a senator originally elected as a Conservative party candidate, led to speculation that Reagan forces were somehow involved. Buckley said he had been urged to consider candidacy by Republicans aligned with both Reagan and Ford, but he would not identify them.

"I am not a stalking horse," he told a New York news conference. "My only purpose would be to deadlock the convention on the first ballot and thus give all of the delegates a chance to later vote the way they want to.

"I am concerned because many delegates feel they are locked in by the rules and must vote for one candidate even though they prefer the other," Buckley said.

That would fit neatly with the Reagan effort to block the rule binding delegates from the primary states. Sears said the Reagan camp has not encouraged any Republican to vote in defiance of legally binding instructions from his state, or to abstain on a first convention ballot so as to avoid voting for Ford if he personally preferred Reagan.

He said a convention rule binding primary delegates could lead to court challenges after the nomination. Sears said the Reagan camp will press its opposition in the convention rules committee on Saturday and on the floor if necessary.

The Associated Press count of delegate votes put Ford at 1,105, 25 short of a nominating majority; Reagan at 1,032; with 122 uncommitted.

Sears said Reagan will have more than 1,140 votes on the first ballot. Sen. Robert P. Griffin of Michigan, Ford's floor manager said the President now has about 1,135.

That, of course, reckons without Buckley, who indicated he will decide this weekend whether he really will run.

It is doubtful Buckley could have his name formally placed in nomination, with the nominating speeches that herald major candidates. Republican rules require that a candidate demonstrate majority support in at least five delegations to be so entered. But nothing in the rules would bar delegates from voting for a candidate not formally nominated, and a relative handful could be crucial in the close Republican contest.

"There is a visceral feeling that the field ought to be broader," Buckley said. "The convention ought to be consulted and not dictated to."

The White House announced that President Ford will fly to Kansas City Sunday night, and will meet with delegates and party leaders to discuss possible vice presidential candidates. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Ford and 62 staff members. Reagan also is due in Kansas City on Sunday.

Carter renews reform pledge

ATLANTA — Jimmy Carter, charging the government has failed to act on the lessons of Watergate, said Wednesday he intends to "take a new broom to Washington and do everything possible to sweep the house of government clean."

In a wide-ranging speech to the American Bar Association national convention here, the Democratic presidential nominee outlined a program to "reestablish confidence in the American system" that included:

—Full disclosure by "major officials" of all business and financial investments and a ban on "gifts of value" to all public officials.

—Appointment of judges, diplomats and other top officials "on a strict basis of merit" and removal of the attorney general "as much as humanly possible" from politics.

—Judicial, not presidential, appointment of a special prosecutor or preferably prosecutors on a case-by-case basis — a major departure from the compromise reached recently by the Ford administration and Senate Democratic leadership to create a permanent presidentially appointed special prosecutor.

—"Minimum secrecy within government ...matched with maximum privacy for private citizens," along with stronger efforts to disclose and control the activities of lobbyists.

—Public financing of congressional as well as presidential campaigns.

—Government action to encourage more public participation in government, including "universal voting registration for elections and the strengthening of citizen advocacy groups."

Elimination of "tax inequities" and the "sweetheart arrangement" between government agencies and the industries they regulate and a crackdown on international corporate bribes by prosecuting the people who make them.

Carter has made many of the proposals before but, in lacing them togethter with his philosophy of "rigid high standards" in the administration of law, he appeared to be putting strong emphasis on the issue of justice — with all its Watergate implications — for the full campaign.

In tones reminiscent of the now " lecture he delivered to the Georgia legal profession as governor in 1974, Carter, a non-lawyer, told his listeners that they, like politicians, are in "great disfavor" for failing to produce a "lack of a workable system of justice in the broadest sense."

Said Carter: "A combination of unwise and impractical rules and procedures, lack of effective management of cases and increasing caseloads has almost made it impossible for the poor and middle American to afford the judicial system. Now even the wealthy citizen and big business are finding the price of justice too high to pay."

The law, like government, is slow to accept change and innovation, Carter said. He is urging the lawyers to "think grandly of your role as attorneys in providing equal justice for all" and pledged that, if elected, "I will be an eager partner with you."

Carter, a farmer and nuclear engineer who frequently got applause from his primary campaign audiences when he noted that he wasn't a lawyer, was warmly applauded by the lawyers. Some interrupted his speech to applaud his pledge to "take a new broom to Washington," his charge that influential criminals are rarely punished and several of his specific proposals for governmental reform.

Carter, who is a Naval Academy graduate, opened his speech by reciting the honor code of the military academies, "We will not lie, cheat or steal, nor tolerate among us those who do." Not only should the code not be watered down for cadets in the wake of current cheating controversies, he said, but it should apply to public officials as well.

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING CORRIDOR (LOCATION) AND DESIGN (COMBINED HEARING)

The State Department of Highways and Public Transportation will conduct a public hearing on September 16, 1976, at 7:30 P.M. in the Midland-Odessa Symphony Chorale Building at Midland Regional Air Terminal, at Midland, Texas for the purpose of discussing the development of a north inter-city route between Midland and Odessa. The proposed route will extend from the northeast part of Odessa to the northwest part of Midland crossing Farm to Market Road 1788 approximately four (4) miles north of U. S. Highway 80.

The proposed highway project contemplates the construction of a four-lane divided facility throughout the limits of the project and will be developed in various stages of construction. Access to the ultimate expressway type facility will be controlled by locating interchanges at highway routes with continuous roads throughout the limits of the project. A minimum of 400 feet of right of way will be required for the development of the project which will follow a new location.

Maps and other drawings showing the proposed route location and geometric designs that are under consideration, will be displayed at the hearing and together with environmental studies and any other available information about the proposed project, are on file and available for public inspection and copying at the Resident Engineer's Office at 2701 Elizabeth Street, Midland, Texas. Also, the drawings showing the proposed geometric design have been placed on file with Midland and Ector Counties and the Cities of Midland and Odessa.

The State's Relocation Assistance Program, the benefits and service for displacees, and information concerning the relocation assistance office will be discussed. Tentative schedules for right of way acquisition and construction will be discussed.

All interested citizens are invited to attend this public hearing. Verbal and written comments from the public regarding the project are requested. Comments may be presented either at the hearing or within 10 days after the hearing. Written statements and other exhibits may be submitted to the Resident Engineer's Office at 2701 Elizabeth Street, Midland, Texas, but must be received not later than ten (10) days after the public hearing.
