WICHITA MUNY BAND PLAYS TO CROWD SUNDAY

Scores Distinct Hit in Concert at Junior College.

"SHEP," FISK, SING

Brollier Organization Is Dressed as Spanish Dons In Initial Concert.

The Wichita Falls Municipal band scored a triumphal hit with a fair-sized crowd in the Junior college auditorium Sunday afternoon when it appeared in its first public concert here. The crowd, no larger than the law allowed, was nevertheless noisily appreciative of the work the band performed and insistent applause greeted every number.

The band, after a long period of faithful practice, showed itself to be well trained and thoroughly schooled in ensemble instrumental playing. It handled the most difficult numbers with ease and finish; its tone quality was excellent and its co-ordination of the highest. R. A. Brollier, director, and his men in full control at all times and handled them with skill.

All of the selections offered were well received. Sousa's stirring march "The Stars and Stripes Forever," with which the concert was closed, was one of the big hits, as were the other martial airs on the program. However, the less fullsome overtures also went over in excellent fashion.

The popular Wichita Falls soloists, Miss Josephine Fisk, soprano, and Mayor R. E. Shepherd, tenor, each gave two vocal numbers that brought insistent clamor for encores. Miss Fisk, dressed as a Spanish senorita, gave two Spanish numbers, while Mayor Shepherd's numbers with the band accompaniment were of the popular type.

The bandmen were dressed in the Spanish costumes worn on the recent trip to the West Texas chamber of commerce convention at Amarillo.

Tremor Destroys 2000 Rhodes Homes

ROME, June 27.—(AP)—A great earthquake has destroyed more than 2,000 houses in the Island of Rhodes, in the Aegean Sea. The villages of Arkhangelo, Arnima, Apolakkia and Monolitho suffered most severely from the continued shocks.

The island of Rhodes of the Sporades group, in the Aegean Sea, was occupied by Italy during the war with Turkey in 1912 as a base. By the treaty of Sevres, which was signed by the allies and Turks in August, 1920, Turkey ceded Rhodes to Italy.

Rhodes is traversed lengthwise by mountains. It is about fifty miles long and 25 miles across. The population consists largely of Greeks.

U. S. Exports Over Canada Increasing

WASHINGTON, June 27.—(AP) While Canada was increasing her textile imports more than $19,000,000 to a total of $184,762,000 during the fiscal year ended with March, the United States displaced the United Kingdom as Canada's chief seller of these products.

This country, the commerce department announced today, supplied 42.8 per cent of the Canadian imports of textile fibers and manufactured products as compared with 38.7 per cent for the same period last year, while the United Kingdom dropped from 43.6 per cent to 38 per cent.

Golfing Churchmen Wear New Knickers

SHENANDOAH, Iowa, June 27.—(AP)—The first Sabbath golfing experience of the men's class at the Congregational church here was a happy one today. Twenty-five members of the class dashed off to Sunday school after playing a morning round, then attended church in "knickers." There they were welcomed by the Rev. L. A. Lippitt, who does not oppose Sunday golfing. The minister says it is a fine game, for Sunday morning awakening and much better for the church goers than late sleeping.

Kiwanis-Rotary To Mix In Battle For Nursery Fund Today

The arnica bottles have been uncorked; miles of bandages have been prepared; all the ambulances in town have been greased; stretchers have been laid out and various other preparations completed for Monday afternoon's bloody combat at Spudder park.

It all sounds like a flare back from the torrid days of 1918, and while it isn't quite as horrific as the shambles of the war, there's to be plenty of battle and plenty of casualties today when the Kiwanis club and the Rotary meet in conflict on the field of baseball warfare. The massacre starts at 3:30. Proceeds from ticket sales will be applied on the Kiwanis club day nursery indebtedness.

Had An Inspiration.

Some bright young man had an inspiration a few weeks ago and the result was a challenge sent from the Kiwanians to the Rotarians—or maybe it was the other way around. Anyhow, the challenge went out and was accepted. Time and place were decided on, and the ultimate import of the momentous decision will stand revealed today.

The Record News doesn't like to indulge in personalities, and for that reason it refrains this morning from telling the public the exact truth about what will probably happen on the diamond when the Kiwanians and the Rotarians mix. It will, however, be simply represented in the press copy this afternoon, and in Tuesday morning's paper it proposes to give a cold-blooded and impartial account of all that transpires. Armed with that, it will be prepared to wage a fearless crusade of relentless exposure of those so-called business men who undertake to desert the marts of trade and commerce to invade the fields of athletics under the guise of baseball players.

To Get a Kick.

Whatever else happens, today's embroglio promises to give the crowd a maximum of laughs and kicks. No one has been foolish enough to suspect that an official score can be kept, but runs and hits and errors—and what we mean, ERRORS, will be made.

It's all for a good cause, too. The day nursery, sponsored by the Kiwanis club, has been completed and most of the indebtedness paid off. There still remains, however, a little that must be handled and it is to help out on this that the Kiwanians and Rotarians are risking their bones and reputations this afternoon.

TAYLOR SPEAKS AT ELIASVILLE

Approximately 2,000 Turn Out to Listen To Moody Talk.

A crowd of approximately 2,000 people heard R. E. Taylor, Wichita Falls attorney, speak in the interest of Dan Moody's candidacy for governor at Eliasville Friday afternoon.

The Wichita Falls man scored both the Ferguson administration and the Davidson "aspirations," labelling the attack on senate bill 180 by Mr. Davidson as an issue in which the former lieutenant governor did not believe in himself, and which as lieutenant governor he had every opportunity to combat but never chose to do so.

At times during Mr. Taylor's talk there was considerable heckling by persons calling out "Hurrah for Ma," and the like. Hearing a woman make such a remark Mr. Taylor offered to share the platform with her; a similar remark by a man on the outskirts of the crowd during the latter part of the speech however, brought a battery of sarcasm from the speaker, the heckler leaving the crowd in a gale of laughter.

Success attended most of the week-end Moody rallies. S. J. Dotson of Electra having a crowd of possibly 150 at Newcastle Saturday afternoon, Sam Holliday and Neal Powers a crowd of 300 at Crowell Saturday afternoon and 150 at Thalia Saturday night. A good crowd heard a Moody speaker at Munday Saturday afternoon also.

There will be Moody speakers at the picnic to be held at Megargle and Archer City in Archer county, this week, it is announced, and at the picnic at Boyd in Wise county.

AUSTIN, June 27.—(AP)—After being deadlocked for nearly 24 hours, the jury in the Nalle-Yett civil suit for $939, was discharged today by Judge George Calhoun. A mistrial was declared when it was determined that a verdict could not be reached.

Texas Candidate For Modification

NEW BRAUNFELS, June 27.—(AP)—Modification of the prohibition laws to permit light wines and beer is favored by John P. Pfeiffer, democratic candidate for congress for the 14th district.

Opening his campaign here Saturday night, Pfeiffer denounced the Volstead act as unenforceable, and a benefit to bootleggers. He also assailed the tariff and the world court.

The proper remedy for the relief of the farmer, the candidate said, "is the repeal of all laws that tend to class legislation in the sense that they tend to uphold the police."

Toy Gun Causes Damage of $260,000

CHICAGO, June 27.—(AP)—Sparks from a toy pistol in the hands of a small boy today set off a $5,000 stock of fireworks and started a fire that resulted in damage estimated at $260,000 to the "Tribe of K" and its stock store at Gary, Ind., and threatened the lives of seven people. Five small boys were making a pre-Fourth-of-July selection of stock for their celebration when the accident occurred.

"DOUBT BROUGHT BY FERGUSONS"

Moody Declares Distrust Pervades Texas As a Result.

WAXAHACHIE, Tex., June 26.—(AP)—Attorney General Dan Moody charged in an address here Saturday night that administration of affairs under Fergusonism has brought greater distrust in government than ever has existed before in the history of Texas.

He made the statement during an attack on James E. Ferguson who, the attorney general declared, "should be read out of the democratic party."

"My campaign is dedicated to the principle that no person should exercise the power of the office without being accountable to and responsible to the people for the exercise of power," Moody continued after asserting that Mrs. Ferguson is governor in name only. James E. Ferguson, Moody asserted, exercises all the powers of government without being an elected chief executive.

Renews Attack.

Moody renewed his attack on the administration's management of the prison system. "If it has not been on a paying basis, the people of Texas have not been those who profited," he declared.

The speaker also assailed conduct of the educational system of the state. He charged that Ferguson has used the school system to reward political supporters. Also attacked Ferguson's stand on the bond validation issue, declaring that continuance of Fergusonism will deterimentally affect the state credit in bond markets of the world.

Tonight's address closed a heavy week for Moody, who has campaigned though rain and mud during a greater portion of the past six days.

Women Organizing Trades Employes

KANSAS CITY, June 27.—(AP)—With a program concentrating upon the job of organizing women workers into trade unions, the National Women's Trade Union league of America will open its tenth biennial convention here tomorrow morning.

The delegates will be women representing a great variety of trades and occupations, most of them factory workers. There will be, however, delegates from the so-called "white collar" groups, such as teachers, office workers, telephone operators and federal employes in some of the personal service as well as in the mechanical establishments of the government.

CHRIST BEST GIFT OF ALL, THOMAS SAYS

Evangelist Declares No Man Able to Express Benefits.

PERFECT PRESENT

Closing Revival Sees Many Conversions and Re-consecrations.

The revival which has been in progress during the past 10 days under the big tent of the First Southern Presbyterian church across from the Junior college, of which Rev. B. Hall D. D., is pastor, conducted by Rev. Trigg Thomas, D. D., evangelist for the general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States, closed last night, and Dr. Thomas left early Monday morning for Greensboro, N. C., where he will conduct another revival.

There have been many reconsecrations and conversions and several new members added to the church during the revival, and much good has been accomplished.

Dr. Thomas delivered two of his strongest sermons Sunday morning and evening. At 11 a. m. he preached on "God's Unspeakable Gift," and said in part, Christ is God's unspeakable gift. After all that Paul could think or say, and no man in the world's history has been more able to think and speak about Christ than Paul, but no language is sufficient to express the deep feeling in the heart of the great apostle and explain God's supreme gift, so he exclaims in this subject and text "thanks be to God for his unspeakable gift," 2. Cor. 9:15.

It is the gift of God spoken of in John 3:16 and John 4:10 where Jesus revealed himself to the scarlet woman at the well, the gift which is perfect and heavenly even Jesus the gift of gifts. No one could give Christ but God, and no one could become the unspeakable gift but Christ. Therefore salvation is a divine work and gift.

I. What has he been. II. What has he done. III. Will he continue to be?

I. The prologue of John's gospel says the word which is Christ, was God. Therefore Christ has been God from the beginning, "the same yesterday, today and forever." Successive generations pass away but Jesus remains forever the same eternal and unchangeable Christ. As the Messiah of the Old Testament and Christ of the New Testament, he has been the Savior of the world from the very beginning.

The divine and eternal Christ is forever the same in all his attributes. From eternity to eternity he is the theme of the Bible; and he should be the theme of the pulpit. It seems His many preachers, preach everything else in the pulpit and leave Christ and a changeless gospel to meet all the needs of a changing world. There can be no change in Christ and His word, for love and truth never change. People get mad and quit, but Jesus remains forever the same perpetual power of attraction in the world. I join with all people, and love Christ because he was the best man that ever lived, but I love him more because he became my divine savior from sin and from eternal death.

II. What has Christ done? The man of Decapolis, in Mark 7:37 said, "He hath done all things well." This could never be said of any other than Christ. John 1:3 says, "All things were made by Him; and without Him was not anything made that hath been made." Thus he is the source and cause of all creation, in heaven and on earth, and in the most unlimited sense the beginning. He established any preserves the church which

Woman Mayor of Seattle Denies Depression Charge

SEATTLE, Wash., June 27.—(AP)—The administration of Mayor Bertha K. Landes maybe responsible for the departure of some of the city's population but it has nothing to do with the present depression, Mrs. Landes said in an address here last night.

"It is true that some of the population has moved out, but the city is better for its departure," said the woman mayor, who took office three weeks ago. "Certain interests are bound to suffer from this reduction, but it is best in the long run."

Mrs. Landes asserted that there has been a "wave of propaganda to discredit my administration. Business depression started six months ago and the present administration had nothing to do with it.

"The theory that an open town is good for business is false. Looked at merely from the standpoint of dollars and cents, it is wrong. Looked at from any other standpoint, it is more than wrong.

"The time has come in our civic development when personal liberty must be restricted. As cities increase in population it must be restricted more and more."

HOUSTON PONZI REPORT DENIED

Sheriff Insists He "Knows Nothing About" Wizard's Presence.

HOUSTON, June 27.—(AP)—Reports that Charles Ponzi, one-time Boston financial wizard, had been in Houston apparently fleeing the country remained unverified here tonight. Any developments, even the story itself, how Ponzi's trail came to be picked up, likewise were shrouded in official silence.

A circumstantial story that Ponzi might be on a ship bound for South or Central America in an attempt to dodge jail sentences in Massachusetts and Florida hung on conjecture and a dock worker's story that he thought he had seen Ponzi on the Houston water front, Friday.

Sheriff T. A. Binford, when he saw newspaper headlines this morning saying "Ponzi slips through sheriff's net" apparently considered them unfriendly at the moment when he is a candidate for re-election, asserted that he knew nothing about the case and referred inquirers to his deputy, George J. Lacy. Lacy, after reciting that he had requested newspapers not to publish the Ponzi developments insisted he knew nothing of the case. Pressed for Ponzi's probable destination, after he was told Binford had said "he was expected to return," Lacy flatly said "I won't tell you."

If Ponzi is sailing away from Houston on a ship, Binford insists he does not know it.

Mae Murray Becomes Bride Of Georgian

Royal Prince of Small Country Is Third Husband of Film Star.

BEVERLY HILLS, June 27—(AP) Mae Murray, the "merry widow" of the films, today married her prince charming—David Bivaini, a native of the republic of Georgia.

The ceremony, one of the utmost simplicity, was performed at 1 o'clock this afternoon in a church here, but the particular church in which the wedding took place the actress would not divulge.

Rudolph Valentino, screenland's sheik, served as best man, while Pola Negri, under whose wing Hollywood's latest romance developed, was maid of honor.

There will be no wedding trip as the bride is said to be engaged in making a picture which will prevent her leaving the city.

Bivaini, now a film actor, is reputed to have been a prince in what is now the republic of Georgia. He also is reputedly wealthy. He is 27 years old and his marriage today was his first trip to the altar.

Legion to Invest In Government Bonds

AUSTIN, June 27.—(AP)—The American Legion state executive committee in session here Sunday voted to invest the $129,500 received by it from the sale of the legion memorial hospital at Kerrville to the United States government in government bonds, and to use the revenues to aid disabled veterans. The committee named a board of trustees to administer the fund. Mayor Wayne Davis of San Antonio, former legion department commander, was made chairman of this board, and other members named are: Y. D. Mathes, Houston; John C. Townes, Houston; R. L. Robertson, Gonzales; Herbert Davenport, Brownsville; Dr. W. T. Dunning, Gonzales, state commander, ex-officio member.

Dr. Dunning presided at a banquet held by the state committee Sunday night, at which Dr. H. S. Harrington, chairman, and Roy I. Tennant and R. B. Walthall, members of the board of control, were guests of the legion. The board of control in co-operation with the legion, recently negotiated the sale of the legion hospital to the federal government, the state receiving slightly over $1,000,000 as its pro rata, and the legion the $129,500 out of the sale of the hospital.

U. S. DEPUTY IS HELD IN FRAUD

Corpus Official Accused Of Using Mails to "Frisk" Man of Land.

HOUSTON, June 27.—(AP)—W. B. Rachel, deputy United States marshal at Corpus Christi, Sunday was relieved of his commission when placed under arrest on warrants charging him with using the United States mails to defraud in connection with the sale of a 100-acre tract of land near Robstown.

He was arrested by W. H. Myers, chief deputy United States marshal from Houston, who relieved him of his commission immediately after his arrest. Charged jointly with Rachel in the scheme to defraud is M. C. Nelson, Corpus Christi attorney.

Rachel and Nelson are alleged to have sold a tract of land near Robstown to W. G. Jolly and a Robstown physician for $7,500. The land belonged to William Mulholland of New York, the complaint said. Rachel and Nelson exchanged a series of letters among themselves, it is charged, which correspondence was purported to prove their ownership of the land.

The alleged artifice was uncovered after Jolly expended more than $5,000 for improvements on the land, and paid the taxes for 1925. Mulholland in New York mailed the tax money to the tax collector and was notified that the taxes already had been paid. This led to the investigations which culminated in the arrest of Rachel and Nelson.

Rachel and Nelson were arraigned before United States Commissioner J. A. Mount at Corpus Christi Sunday morning. They pleaded not guilty and were released under $7,500 bond each.

Rachel has been deputy United States marshal at Corpus Christi for more than five years.

Aimee McPherson Meets Congregation

LOS ANGELES, June 27.—(AP)—Before a densely massed congregation of 7,500 persons, Aimee Semple McPherson spoke this afternoon at her first regular service at Angelus temple since her unusual disappearance at Ocean park more than a month ago.

The subject of her sermon was "The Conquering Hosts" in which she painted a picture of her plight during her five weeks' absence, recounting how she was kidnapped and held captive in Mexico and how she finally effected her escape.

Ten minutes before the service was opened by Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, the evangelist's mother, Mrs. McPherson made a dramatic entrance. At a signal the entire assemblage rose from their seats and thundered a welcome. The ovation lasted for several minutes. The evangelist showed a marked change from her former fatigued appearance. She told the congregation that she had been in the hands of a beauty specialist so that she may "look like my old self."

I'M THE GINK

I'm the ginkette who meets friends up town and stops in the middle of the sidewalk. We form a group and chatter away. Folks crowd by us with difficulty. We block the sidewalk. If anyone bumps into us or suggests that we move, I am immediately indignant. I have as much right to this sidewalk as anyone. Of course it isn't a question of right, it is a question of courtesy. I haven't that, but I have plenty of selfishness. Let them worry. I don't.

COUNTY OFFICE SEEKERS BUSY

Politics to Break Out Full Fury in the Coming Week

County politics will break forth with all their biennial pre-primary fervor this week, it appeared Saturday. Start of the all-candidate speakings held each year has been delayed two weeks due to inclement weather but with a clear sky Tuesday night the first of the "why you should vote for me's" will be heard at Bellevue park, and the periodical race of the "ins" and the "outs" to remain or become office holders started well on its way.

Of the three organizations in support of the gubernatorial candidates here but one is demonstrating any great activity, the Moody aggregation having initiated this past week an extensive speaking campaign over North Texas and laid out a tentative schedule for rallies both in Wichita Falls and over its trade territory. Women of the city organized Friday morning into a Moody-For-Governor club and plan holding a rally to gain further support sometime within the next few days. It is planned to bring a prominent club woman of the state here for a principal speaker. An effort is being made to bring Pat M. Neff, former governor, to the city to speak in Moody's behalf, also.

Form Davidson Club

The past week saw the formation of a Davidson club here, J. S. Dickey being elected president and other officers named. This club as yet, however, has done little in the way of arranging speaking engagements and rallies, and has announced no definite plans for the future.

Among the district candidates the race between Gwinn Williams and B. D. Sartin, the former of Wichita Falls, for the 13th district seat in congress is probably attracting the most attention. Judge Sartin has taken the stump and is speaking two and three times a day in cities and towns over the district. Both candidates for district attorney, Ben P. Allred, and Joe B. Carrigan, spoke Saturday at the picnic at Eliasville. Campaigning among candidates for posts in the state legislature has in the main taken the form of putting out cards and "personal contact." Neither Roy J. Daniel, or F. G. Swanson, candidates for place 1, district 111, have started a speaking campaign. The same condition exists between candidates for place 2.

Neither Speak

Neither J. D. Parnell or W. D. McFarlane of Graham have spoken in Wichita Falls as yet in the interest of their candidacies for the post of senator, 23rd district. Both, however, have spoken in various parts of the district.

With the conclusion of the work of the county democratic committee last Monday, certification and assignment of places of names on the ballot, and transaction of other pre-primary routine, pre-election matters now have largely shaped themselves into "running" and voting. Four weeks yet remain to the campaigner, and indications were Saturday that every one with a name on the ticket was getting ready to start work in earnest, not to let up until the votes are counted, and in some instances until after the run-off primary in August.

Movement of Air Attack Group Will Be Hurried Through

SAN ANTONIO, June 27.—(AP) Plans for the removal of the third attack group, from Kelly field to Fort Crockett, were being pushed Saturday by Major Frank D. Lackland, who took command of the group Friday afternoon.

Loading of trucks and freight cars was begun Saturday with prospect that the movement to Galveston would begin Monday.

Plans were to leave families of officers and enlisted men at Kelly field until the close of the Fort Crockett C. M. T. C. but word was received from Washington that no funds would be available for meeting expense of the transfer after the close of the fiscal year on June 30.

The transfer to Galveston will be made by rail, motor convey and airplane.

WOMAN HOPES PASTOR IS HURT IN AN AUTO WRECK

NUNEATON, Eng.—Rev. M. A. Dodds, who was injured with his sister when his auto struck a dog and was wrecked, has received the following letter from a London woman:

"You have probably been over many other animals without injury to yourself or your car, and I am afraid, as an animal lover, I must confess I am gratified that on this occasion you did not escape scot free. In common with most of the clergy, you probably believe that animals have no souls, and therefore you are perfectly justified in mowing down any that come your way. If you thought or hoped you could go over him without injury to yourself or your car, I hope you are very badly injured indeed—so much so, that you will never drive a car again and mow down dogs and dumb creatures be cause there it no law to protect them."

The dog was only slightly injured when the auto hit him.

PRAISE FOR WHITMAN

LONDON, June 27.—John Bailey, the English critic, in his new life of Walt Whitman, credits him with being the "most original genius America has yet produced." Of the poet he says:

"He is often a fine artist by a sort of divine accident but he was equally pleased with himself, when it happened still oftener, he was not an artist or a poet at all."

When volunteers were required for a blood transfusion at Royal Victoria Hospital, Belfast, Ireland, recently, a call was sent to Springfield Road barracks nearby, and seven constables at once responded.

Rear-End Rail Collision Brings Death to 15

Fifteen persons were killed and fifty seriously injured when the Cincinnati Limited crashed into the rear of the Pittsburg-Washington Express near Blairsville, Pa. The photograph gives a vivid impression of the Limited after it had plunged through a part of the rear sleeping car of the Express.

SECOND LOVE

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters

John Parrish and Audrey, his rich young wife, quarrel over her frequent references to her wealth and her gifts to him, and they part. Her father, Harry Morton, comes back from Europe, to find that Marcie Allen is a guest in Audrey's home, and that Marcie has been making love to Parrish, who stays at a hotel. Parrish begins to be interested in her. Marcie, young, lovely, is very advanced in her views of women's rights. She proceeds to try to vamp Morton, who laughs at her. As the last chapter ends, he asks Audrey, at breakfast, if there isn't some place else that Marcie can visit, outside Wichita Falls, since Marcie has been ordered from her own home because of her free ideas.

CHAPTER XXIX

Audrey thought for a while, toying with the orange on her plate.

"I'd hate to lose Marcie," she said. She's so full of life and spirits, she cheers me up. Would you rather she'd go away?"

"I'm not so sure,' Morton said slowly. "If she went to the right place, it might—"

Audrey interrupted him. "Has she been trying to stir up your affections?" The shadow of a smile was on her lips.

Morton laughed. "The young lady is frolicsome," he admitted.

"She told me she would 'go after' you," Audrey said. "Is that why you want her to go?"

Morton laughed again. "I'm hardened," he said. "But what I was thinking of was this—with things standing the way they do in this household, it might be better not to have a stranger around all the time."

"I don't know where she'd go," said Audrey. "I never heard her speak of any relatives. But I'll ask her." She was silent a moment. "Poor girl! She's had a rough time, really. No wonder she's so wild. Her father can't understand why a girl should want to do anything but knit and study, and her mother is afraid of her father, and Marcie has spent nearly all her life going from one boarding school to another, and to college—she didn't graduate from the university, but she went there two or three years. She's never had any real home life at all."

Marcie herself came in at this moment, in the gauzy robe that had so embarrassed Parrish. She flitted around the table, so Morton's glance could not help but fall upon her. Marcie eyed him, but he continued to eat, placidly.

"Audrey thinks this robe's disgraceful," she said, sitting down.

"Is it?" Morton inquirred, taking a slice of toast.

"It shows my understandings, she explained.

"Does it?" He broke the toast and took a bite.

"You know perfectly well it does!" she told him.

"You've hurt her feelings—you

"Dear Morton," the note read, "I did my best to interest you. But since I couldn't do it, I'll try another way. You'll know about it later—Marcie."

should have looked," Audrey said.

Morton went on eating, with calm inattention. Later, when they had finished breakfast, Marcie followed him into his study.

"Isn't there any way I can interest you at all?" she demanded.

He looked around with a smile. "You do interest me, greatly," he said.

"Yes—as a specimen." She sniffed. "You look at me as if I were some kind of funny-acting bug."

"Am I to understand that your —er—revealing robe was intended to interest me?"

Marcie sniffed again. "You know why a girl wears a thing like this when there's a man around," she announced, and turning, went out the doors. Almost at once she reappeared. "If you're not interested when I talk to you, and not interested when you look at me, then there's nothing I can do about it, I suppose." Thereupon she marched away again. Morton looked after her with a smile.

Later, he called Audrey, and asked her to get ready to go with him for a drive.

"Almost warm enough for the topics," he said, as they settled themselves in the tonneau of Audrey's car. "Let's go out into the country."

"Daddy," said the girl, as they passed the last outlying fringe of houses, "you heard John and me talking last night. I did everything a woman could, didn't I?"

Morton did not respond at once. "Didn't I?" she repeated.

"Audrey," he said deliberately, "did it ever occur to you that you are selfish?"

"I?" Her tone was one of startled wonderment. "Why, daddy!"

He lit a cigar before he continued. "You've been so interested in what goes on in your own mind, that you've never tried to understand what goes on in John's."

"I've asked him what he was thinking about, lots of times," she defended.

"Well, this time he told you, and you ignored it. He said that the way you talked hurt him—and you kept right on hurting him."

"But," she said, "it's so silly of him. I can't see that he's so delicate that a few words will hurt him—especially as the words were about kindnesses I had done for him."

"My child," Morton said, seriously, "there's a blind spot in your brain. Until that spot is cleared—until you can see things you can't see now, you're going to be mightily unhappy in this world."

Audrey got out her handkerchief. "Are you going to scold me, too?"

She put the square lace to her eyes.

"I am." He drew upon his cigar, and let the smoke waft slowly from his lips. "Audrey, you're badly spoiled. I spoiled you."

Her shoulders drew up, she sobbed. He patted her upon the arm. "My dear," he went on, "this trouble with John is your fault."

"Oh, oh, oh!" she cried. "Take—take me home!"

"Not now." He smoked until the sound of her weeping lessened. "All your life," he went on, "you have been with me, until you were married. The most important thing in my life was you—and therefore, you were the most important thing in your life. What you were thinking about outweighed anything that others thought about; what you wanted came first. It was my fault—I admit it. I spoiled you because I loved you."

He was silent, as he looked thoughtfully off across the fields, through which they were passing. "A man who has lost his wife, in his youth, and is left with one child, tries to fill his own heart by making the child happy. And in time, she forgets how to make others happy." He was quiet again, while they passed a stretch of rough road.

Audrey laid her head back in the corner of the thick cushions, and stared, white and miserable, at the chauffeur's back.

"When you go married," Morton resumed, "you wanted Parrish to bring you happiness. But you did nothing to bring happiness to him."

"I gave him things," Audrey said, meekly.

"Cheapest thing you could do," her father said. "You didn't give up anything of value when you bought him presents. If you had earned the money, it would have been different. But I gave it to you."

"The one thing he did ask of you—to quit harassing him, you refused to do."

She wiped her eyes. "I don't see how it harassed him for me to talk a little."

Morton tapped her on the knee. "Talk can be more painful than a blow. That is something that women don't understand. Look here."

He turned so he could face her. "You're like a baby, that pokes its finger in its brother's eye. The baby doesn't know it hurts—but the brother does. And sometimes the brother slaps the baby, and the baby howls. That's your situation right now. John defended himself, the best he knew how, and you feel abused. You hurt him, he retaliated, and you're howling."

He looked at her keenly. "Do you get what I'm trying to tell you? John asked only one thing of you—he asked you not to say certain things. You insisted on saying them—for no better reason than that you wanted to. You were selfish, and he went away. Which one of you two was cruel?"

Audrey watched the landscape, as the car turned down a side road. They went four or five miles, Morton waiting for her to speak. At last she put her handkerchief to her eyes again.

"I love him," she said.

Morton put his arm over her shoulders, and drew her to him.

"I'm glad you said that," he told her, pressing her head against him. "It's the only reason in God's world for him to come back again—or for you to reform yourself."

"Am I so bad?" she asked, faintly.

"Audrey, in one way you're good and kind and generous. But you've got to learn to give in, sometimes. You want John to live by your rules—and maybe he has rules of his own he'd like to live by. You've got to respect his wishes—even if it means that you must remain silent when you want to talk. It isn't necessary to say everything that comes into your mind, you know."

She put her arm through his. "Will he ever come back?" she asked, dolefully.

"I don't know." He frowned, in thought. "He is angry at you, too. Maybe after the hurt has worn out, he wil lcome."

"Oh, I hope so." She burrowed her face into his coat. "I'm so terribly unhappy without him!"

It was luncheon time when they returned to the house.

Audrey went upstairs, and Morton wandered into his study to wait for her return. His eye caught a cream-colored envelope, sticking upright by its corner, in the lid of his desk. He opened it.

"Dear Mr. Morton," it said. "I did my best to interest you. But since I couldn't do it, I'll try another way. You'll know about it later.—Marcie."

He read the note over twice, and then thoughtfully tore it up. Calling the housemaid, he asked if Marcie were in.

"She packed her clothes this morning," said the maid, "and went away in her yellow roadster. She said she wouldn't be back."

POLITICAL DEFENDANT PUTS COURT APOLOGY IN RHYME

CHICAGO.—Fined $10 for being drunk and allowed time to pay. Carl V. Schiefen sent the money to court some days after it was due with the following verses:

I'm writing just to let you know
I should have paid some time ago
But on my honor I can state
For this ten bucks I had to wait.

Now, when I need the money most,
There's always friction in the post.
Believe me when I say in rhyme
I'd rather pay than do the time.
The cost of living's my excuse,
So breach of trust there's no abuse.

DOCTOR AND OSTEOPATH IN ROW OVER GIRL IN TRANCE

NOTTINGHAM, Eng.—While the condition of Miss Doris Hinton, who has been in a trance for several months, remains unchanged, a row has developed between the physician attending her and an osteopath who came here from London to treat the girl. The osteopath, Grantham Browne, who has a large London following, declares Dr. W. R. Smith refused even to let him see his patient. The physician, on the contrary, accuses Browne of having acted in an "offensive manner" and asserts that everything possible is being done for the girl.

NO REGRETS

PARIS, June 27. — (AP) — The Paris season, which ends with the running of the Grand Prix de Paris at Longchamps Sunday will die unregretted by few except the coal dealers and the umbrella vendors. Its features mostly likely to be favorably recalled will be the sumptuous entertainments and the opera and the balls given in behalf of charity. But memory of it more certainly will be kept alive by the recollection of the rain, wind and cold from which France suffered worse than any European country.

Redeemed Men Form Real Test of Church, Bash Declares In Sermon Here

"I would not give much for a church in whose membership there are no ex-bartenders, no ex-gamblers, no men who have been saved from sins that ostracise and cast out," Dr. Floyd Allen Bash said in his sermon Sunday morning at the First Christian church. "Redeemed men are the great glory of any church, no matter about their bank account," he claimed, in telling of the many human beings who needed the church but hesitated most to attend fearing they would be out of place.

"The gospel has power to save men who have been drunkards, blasphemers, or gamblers; but the most remarkable conversion is that of one who has many of the satisfactions of life and who feels perfectly at ease," said Dr. Floyd A. Bash in his sermon at the First Christian church Sunday morning.

"In a city mission after the usual testimonies by former drunkards, bums, and thieves had been given, each declaring that his conversion was most remarkable because he had been so bad and now was saved, the crowd was startled by the testimony of a beautiful, cultured girl who said 'my conversion was the most remarkable because Christ saved me from an easy chair.' She had money, friends, culture, ease; yet Christ had saved her from the low life of selfishness and godlessness. The prodigal son thought of home after he became hungry and homesick. Suffering led him to repentance. The fruits of his sin awakened him. There is no easy chair in the portico of hell. Thank God if your sin finds you out and warns you of danger. Pain warns men that they need a physician. A drowning man grasps at a straw. A hurt sinner is ready to turn to a Savior. But the most hopeless group, spiritually, is the easy chair club. Life to them is soft, rich, satisfying. They feel no need for God.

The group oftenest missed by the church is the easy-chair crowd. It is difficult to reach them. Some churches may make a 'selective draft' when recruiting their ranks, but Christ is the author of 'universal conscription' spiritually speaking. His command is "preach the gospel to "every creature" His invitation is "Whosoever will, may come." God commands 'all men, everywhere to repent.' This is an inclusive gospel and a universal Christ. No man is to be missed. Yet there are multitudes of fairly good people who seem to feel no need for God or the church, personally. Their lives have not been wasted in riotous living. No torments of sin trouble them. They are living as though there were no God or church. They are the easy-chair club.

The average church reaches only a small fraction of its potential membership. It reaches few of the very rich or very poor or of the socially unpopular. That means that thousands linger outside the church fellowship in the Easy-Chair of Hindering Circumstances. They feel that the church may be all right but it has no place in their lives. They are not the kind of people the church wants, according to their opinion. They remind one of Zaccheus, the publican, whose business as tax gatherer made him as unpopular as small pox with his Jewish neighbors. But he climbed above hindering circumstances and Jesus met him more than half way by going home with Zaccheus for dinner. Jesus was always going after the man who thought religion and the church were not for him. I would not give much for a church in whose membership there are no exblasphemers, ex-bartenders, who are now good Christian men. Redeemed men are the great glory of any church, no matter about their bank account.

HARRIS BEATS ELECTRICS 7-1

Gabe Allows Only Six Scattered Hits In Fast Game.

Gabe Harris pitched his first game in a Texhoma uniform Sunday afternoon and gave the Wichita Falls Electric company a 7 to 1 drubbing. The game was fast and numerous errors on the field could be blamed on poor condition of the ground.

Harris allowed but six scattered hits over the nine innings, two of which were collected by Dick Gordon. Gerard Boone, Andy Taylor, and Dub Davis each poled out two hits.

Both Harris and Blue fanned seven men and walked but two. Hits were bunched off Blue in the second and eighth for enough runs to win the ball game. Three chain lightning double plays featured the fielding of the contest.

Another double play was well on the way in the ninth by the Electricts. Dub Davis was on second base when Slim Kellogg hit to third and was thrown out at first. Dub started for the plate and Belcher's throw home was in plenty of time to get him, but it struck Kellogg's bat where it had fallen before the plate and took a bad bound past Stanfield. Davis scored with ease.

Singles by Kellogg and Taylor, an error, and a single by Harris gave Texhoma two runs in the second. A walk to Gordon in the fifth, a single by Johnson and a fielder's choice gave Texhoma one more in the fifth.

Singles by Hale, Gerard Boone, and Rabbit Gordon spiced in with a walk to Harris and two errors gave them three more in the eighth.

An error, a single by Blue, and a single by Andree gave the Electrics their only run in the eighth inning.

Stage Set For Trammel Bout With Maywood

The stage is all set for the big Trammel-Maywood fight here tonight at the American Legion arena. An all star card has been lined up with cut prices and all proceeds will go to the National Gaurds of this city. General admission will be 50c, ringside $1, and ringside section number two will cost $1.50.

Both Trammel and Maywood have completed their training for the big fight and both are ready to go. This pair have fought here before, and one of their battles drew the largest crowd yet to witness the fights in Wichita Falls.

Pug Hurmpries, of Lawton, Okla., will tangle with Wildcat Monte, the popular young lightweight of Wichita Falls. This semi-final bout is one that the fans have been wanting for some time and they have their chances at last.

Spike Flannigan, the hard socking left hander who kayoed Tex Ray last week will step over four rounds with the always popular Sailor Murphy.

Trooper Carr wil meet Dale Bowlin again. Carr holds a win over Bowlin and the latter still thinks that it was unearned, and hopes to prove this fact.

Dummy and Battling Sam will tangle up in what should be a hectic colored battle. Both of these duskies are very popular here.

Buffs Beat Steers

HOUSTON, June 27.—(AP)—Except in sixth when Riley's homer followed a pass to Miller, Ken Penner hurled effective baseball, while his hitting was the biggest part of the Buffs' offensive in the 6 to 4 victory the Steers today. Gene Bailey again provided the fielding thrill when he took Miller's line drive off the left field fence with one hand in the fourth, and then relayed the ball to first to complete a double play.

Slim Love relieved Pence in the eighth with second and third occupied and proceeded to fan Corrigan, but Penner's single over short produced two scores.

Waco Bunches Its Hits A: Hudlin Holds Ft. Worth

Cats Beaten 6 to 2 as Kilty Delegation Looks on Dolefully

WACO, June 27.—(AP)—Several hundred Fort Worth fans journeyed to Waco today to witness the Cubs defeat the Cats by a score of 6 to 2. The Waco team bunched two home runs and two doubles in the fourth inning, for four runs. Boggess' homer came with none on, followed by doubles by Shires and West and Pratt scored West ahead of him with a homer. The visitors outhit the Cubs, but Hudlin, Waco's kid pitcher, kept them well scattered. Stormy Davis ended the game with a leaping one hand catch of Konetchy's drive against the left field fence.

BEAUMONT, June 27.—(AP)—A cluster of Exporter hits after a base on balls gave Beaumont a 4 to 1 victory over Shreveport today when Hovlik bested Adkins in a fine mound duel that lasted but an hour and 35 minutes. Kearns' homer in the third was the Sports' only run. He was the only visitor to reach third base and only one other reached second, a passed ball following a single to center by Taylor in the sixth. The Exporters fielded brilliantly behind the veteran curve ball artist and he had quite an edge over his younger rival.

CINCINNATI, June 27.—(AP)—Four Pittsburgh pitchers were hammered for 18 hits today and Cincinnati won from the Champions, 16 to 0. Aside from the heavy batting of the league leaders, a triple play by Emmer, Dressen and Bressler was the most specacular feature. Donohue, who was knocked out of the box in less than an inning at Pittsburgh a few days ago, held the [illegible] six scattered hits. Score:

Japan Netsters Best Filipinos

SAN FRANCISCO, June 27.—(AP) Japan's Davis Cup team made a clean sweep of its five matches against the Philippines by taking the remaining two singles matches today.

Takeicha Harada, the Japanese ace, disposed of Guillermo Aragon in straight sets, 6-2, 6-3, 7-5, in the second match of the day but Sekio Towara had more trouble with the other Aragon brother, Francisco, in the opener. This match went the full five sets and the Japanese pulled out a victory only after the Filipino had tied the match at two sets all, and was threatening to take the deciding set. The score was 6-2, 8-6, 4-6, 1-6, 7-5.

In the doubles match Yaharada and Tawara defeated the Aragons on Friday Harada beat Francisco Aragon, and Tawara triumphed over Guillermo.

France Considers Debt to America

PARIS, June 27.—(AP)—Premier Briand, after a cabinet meeting this morning said to the Associated Press:

"The Washington debt agreement will be brought before the foreign affairs and finance committees of the chamber of deputies. The government then and not until then will take a position as to ratification."

A redoubled barrage against ratification of the debt agreement is laid down in editorials by both the conservative and radical papers this morning.

The Matin and Le Journal are practically alone in defending ratification.

It'll Take "Miracle" Spurt to Head Off the Yanks

The New York Yankees have a bigger lead in the American League race this year than the Phillies had over the National Leaguers in 1914. The lowly Braves, however, nosed out a victory through the "miracle man" efforts of Manager George Stallings. Can Connie Mack, Tris Speaker, Eddie Collins or some other pilot in the A. L. pull another "miracle" stunt?

THE BIG SWEDE
Too Much for British Champ, Seeks New Worlds

Mr. Harry Persson, heavyweight champion of Sweden, England and outlying precincts, may consider any offers to come to the United States to show his wares. Knowing what several European stars have collected for their efforts—regardless of their ability—Persson would be foolish to turn a deaf or cauliflower ear, as it were, to such offers.

Persson's recent victory over the English champion, Phil Scott, in the battle that gave the Swedish heavy the British crown, was interesting for the simple reason that it once more dashed whatever hopes British boxing lovers had that they might have a real fighter in their midst.

The fight was slated to go 20 rounds. Persson sunk in Scott in the eleventh. Persson outhit and outboxed the Britisher, according to reports.

One big fight looms ahead of Persson in Europe and it may be that he will seek that battle before coming to the U. S. That is a meeting with Paolina, Tiger of the Pyranees. The match undoubtedly will draw. While Paoline has shown no marked ability—weighed with American heavies—he has attracted much attention. His fight with the German heavy champ, Hans Bheitenstraatter, some months ago indicated clearly that he has much to learn in ring generalship and general technique.

If this battle between the "Tiger" and Persson is steamed up properly the winner can come to the U. S. and make a haul. Not because of his ability but because of the sad state into which the heavyweight branch of the game has fallen in this fair land.

HEAVY SHOWER FORCES TEAMS TO IDLE DAY

Playing Field at Santone Flooded by Morning Downpour.

SAN ANTONIO, June 27.—A heavy morning rain that flooded the playing field forced a postponement today of the game between the Bears and Spudders. Umpires, after looking over the ground at noon, concluded it would be in no condition for use and accordingly announced the postponement.

A double-header will be played Monday afternoon, it was announced shortly after the decision to dispense with today's game.

MARSHALL, June 27.—(AP)—Red Schilling bested Burleson in a pretty hurling duel Sunday and the Snappers made it two in a row from the Hunters by a 4 to 3 score. With the score tied in the eighth Steel Bauer lifted one of Burleson's shoots over the left field fence for the winning run. A great one-hand running catch by Alabama Jones in the ninth saved the day for the Snappers, while Eli Harris, Hunter second baseman, also featured with a difficult fielding chance.

No. 25 For Babe

NEW YORK, June 27.—(AP)—The New York Americans made it three straight over the Red Sox today by winning, 7 to 1, Babe Ruth lifting his 25th home run of the season into the left field bleachers in the seventh inning. None was on base. Ruth is three games behind his 1921 record Tony Lazzeri hit his 11th homer with Pascal aboard in the eighth. Score:

Snipe Connally stepped from the train in Wichita Falls Sunday afternoon about 1 o'clock and pitched the Panhandle Longhorns to a 5 to 3 victory over the Gulf Production team later in the afternoon.

Connally allowed but five hits, all of which were gathered in the last two innings. For the first seven innings the Gulf club went hitless. Waller paved the way to victory in the seventh hinning with a home run with two mates on the runways.

RING CROWNS ARE AT STAKE

Three Champions to Risk Titles in Bouts During Present Week.

NEW YORK, June 27.—(AP)—Three pugilistic diadems, the featherweight, light weight and welterweight crowns, will be dangled before the eyes of challengers this week in Hartford, Conn., Chicago and Newark, N. J., as the high spots of a week of feverish activity in boxing circles.

Louis (Kid) Kaplan of Meridian, Conn., featherweight pride of the nutmeg state, will defend his 126-pound title against Bobby Garcia, U. S. army champion at Hartford, tomorrow night in a 15-round match, referee's decision.

Pete Latzo, newly crowned king of the welters, will step into the ring at Dreamland Park, Newark, N. J., Tuesday night against Willie Harmon of New York in a 12-round, no-decision contest. This contest has been postponed by rain.

Chicago will inaugurate boxing under its new control Saturday with a lightweight championship contest between Rocky Kansas of Buffalo, N. Y., and Sammie Mandell of Rockford, Ill. It will be Kansas' first defense of the title he won from Jimmy Goodrich, in Buffalo, last December.

The headliner at New York will be fought Thursday night when Mike McTigue, former world's champion in the light heavyweight championship class, will meet Johnny Risko, rugged Cleveland heavyweight in a 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden.

Frederick Takes Oklahoma Title

FREDERICK, Okla., June 27.—Tank Horton gave the Frederick boosters practically a cinch in the first half of the race in the Cotton Belt Baseball association of Southwest Oklahoma when he tripled in the ninth in a hectic rally of the Frederick club Sunday afternoon.

Tipton led 2 to 1 until the last half of the ninth inning when the Frederick club shoved over two runs to win the game 3 to 2. Horton started the trouble with a triple, scoring Faulkner with the tying run. Brannon flied to left and Horton flashed over the plate with the winning run. Over 1,200 people witnessed the game, the largest baseball crowd ever gathered in Frederick.

Craterville defeated Snider, 7 to 5 at Snider while Parker blanked Chattanooga in a brilliant hurling duel with Templeton, Davidson winning 3 to 0.

EVILS OF THE PRIMARY SYSTEM

NOW the state bar association through T. W. Davidson, its president, has appointed a committee to draft a program of procedure in the Texas courts and law reform, to put this program in workable order before the next session of the Texas legislature. In announcing the personnel of the committee, the president of the state bar association issued a statement. He declared it necessary to take the judiciary out of politics and he gave the reasons why the judiciary should be taken out of politics. In days of old T. W. Davidson and many of the lawyers of Texas were champions of the primary nominating system. Now it is recommended that in the nomination of judges the people should get away from the primary system. This is an oft told tale:

"Many of our reversals and delays are caused by an inexperienced court, either on the trial bench or on the appellate bench. This incompetent judge is often one of the very best of men. He is a good hand shaker and a better mixer among the people and more adept in politics than his opponent, hence he was elected, not because of his qualifications as a jurist, but because of his admirable nature or vote getting quality, maybe because he was an anti prohibitionist, according to the complexion of his district. Again, in our heated political campaigns, the governorship and the United States senatorship overshadow the other state races and not one voter in 10 knows anything of the various candidates for the higher courts. He either guesses them off or asked the first men to tell him about them that comes along."

This is the gospel truth. A ready hand shaker and a good mixer may know less laws than the court house janitor, but this does not prevent his election to the district bench. Then the statement calls for direct action, a change in the primary election system, a return to the convention system of the fathers. It would be well for all men and women voters to read and digest the following:

"There was an adage of our fathers that the office should seek the man and not the man the office. This old proverb has disappeared under the modern primary election methods. The best lawyers of Texas can earn more in private practice than they can by holding office. They will not leave a practice that pays them twice or three times as much as a judges salary to get out and run for a place on the bench. The only way to secure these men to draft them You can't draft them through a primary election. Any attempt to drafting would even be disasterous. All his opponents would have to say is that this man represents the clique and I represent the common people, forgetting that the common people, the litigants themselves, are interested in having capable judges and speedy trials and ready termination of court action. Let the judges be selected by a convention or by a delegated body of men, and in their representative capacity let them look over the field of available men and draft them for service for the state, one of the highest and most honorable of all places, the bench of our state. If this program or something better is put forward by the bar of Texas and seconded by the press we shall accomplish something really worthwhile."

A just judge is the noblest work of God, and to be a just judge, a man of the judiciary must be fearless, upright, learned and merciful. It is justice that is sacred and not the judge. There should be one law for all, rich or poor or white or black or red or yellow. President Davidson should have said in his statement that when the people have a judge or judges who are above the voice of the mob, who track the constitution and the law, who have made records as learned and courageous and upright jurists, they should be retained on the bench all the years they are willing to serve. It is for the bar of Texas, the lawyers of Texas, who believe in courts of high integrity and learing, to uphold the hands of those who have been weighed and not found wanting when election time comes.

WURZBACH UNAFRAID

IT was at Waco that Farmer Jim threatened, if the hecklers did not let him alone, to phone to Austin for a ranger body guard. It was at San Antonio that Harry Wurzbach's friend, after a riot, insisted that Wurzbach should be given a body guard.

This did not appeal to the only republican member of congress from Texas. He rejected the proposal and shot this wad at his opponent, "I'm not afraid of anything or anybody else in San Antonio and I won't permit a body guard."

Why should he permit a body guard? His grandfather came from Germany to Texas when Texas was a wilderness. His father was a gallant confederate soldier. Why should the third in the line of Wurzbachs tolerate a body guard? Why should he need a body guard?

Men who play the political game, according to the rule, never stand in need of body guards or ranger protection or the protection of six-shooter friends. This is a civilized country. Men who carry civilized tongues in their heads, usually get by without inviting trouble.

A man is a man for that and a gentleman is a gentleman all the time. There is only one way to play the game—according to the rules of the game which are the rules laid down by civilized society.

GETTING READY FOR FUNERAL

DOWN in the fourteenth congressional district the followers of National Committeeman Rene B. Creager and the followers of Congressman Harry M. Wurzbach are getting ready for a republican funeral. They have split the old party of the elephant into fragments. They are fighting like kilkenny cats. They have barred the brother in black from their councils but they will permit him to vote the republican ticket on November election day.

A campaign manager for the congressman had his nose glasses driven into his face by a Creagerite, and another Creagerite, who was less fortunate, was about to be thrown from a second story window into a pile of soft cement when two or three sympathetic women saved his life. This was not all. Another Wurzbach campaign manager was beaten into a comatose condition by a Creagerite, and the assailant used a milk bottle as a weapon.

It is said the gentle Harry had a narrow escape from being pistoled to death while a battle royal was on for control of the Bexar county organization and its machinery. There will be eighteen democrats elected to congress from the eighteen districts of Texas this year. This is the present day program.

BROOKHART AN EASY VICTOR

COL. SMITH WILDMAN BROOKhart won a senatorial nomination in Iowa at a total cost to the Brookhart bank account of $1,489.88. Brookhart was fortunate. He admits that in many counties of the state the expenses of the campaign were taken care of by farm and labor committees where the candidate had speaking dates.

Colonel Brookhart had the farmers behind him. He had the labor unions behind him. He had the organization of rail employes behind him. It was not necessary for him to dig up.

Corn is cheap in Iowa. Its grower thinks he should receive a high price for the commodity. This is one of the reasons why he voted for Brookhart. If corn had been selling for a fancy price per bushel, the corn grower would have voted for Cummins. It was really a question of the price of corn.

It is diferent in Pennsylvania where the John S. Grundys declared that whatever the cost a business man should be made the governor of the state.

And the Grundys won. It cost them millions and in the mix-up they lost a senator.

IN THE LAND OF THE FREE

CECIL SMITH of Grayson county is a brilliant lawyer and democrat leader. He is a member of the state executive committee and at the Wichita Falls meeting was one of the 18 of the 31 members who voted for the resolution of endorsement of the state administration.

Mrs. Cecil Smith is widely known in the ranks of the club women of Texas. She is a gifted writer, a most eloquent speaker, a humanitarian and ever in the vanguards of the feminine welfare workers of the state.

When the red-headed candidate for governor visited Sherman on a speaking engagement Mrs. Cecil Smith was one of a goodly number of representative Grayson county democrats who occupied a seat on the platform.

And this it is that the laugh is on the Hon. Cecil in the political circles of the state. Mrs. Cecil worships her own God and votes her own ticket. This is as it should be.

TEAXS WHEAT CROP

DALLAS and Fort Worth bankers have advanced $3,000,000 for the handling of the wheat crop of the Texas and New Mexico Wheat Growers association. This association will handle 5,000,000 bushels of wheat, and have 150 small elevators under contract for storage space. Cooperation appears to be the thing.

The Toonerville Trolley That Meets All The Trains

PROLOGUE —by— Michael Arlen

"Oh, have I to watch him die!" cried the young Princess, and was suddenly made to stare incredulously at the youth beside her, for he had whispered in accents of triumph:

"By heaven, I've got an idea, a marvelous idea! You want to be happy, Princess? Then come with me! Come, we will dance through the crowd to the door and then we will see about my plan."

"But what is it, what is it, why do you keep me in such suspense? Ah, you are cruel!" sighed the Princess Baba. "But you certainly do dance very well. Oh, how I love dancing! But are you sure this is the nearest way to the door? It is so very crowded that I can't see it, but how well you guide, almost as well as you kiss a lady's hand! But quick, quick, to the door!"

"I am doing my best, Princess, guiding you through this crowd. It is amazing how generously middle-aged people dance these days, denying their elbows and feet to no one who comes near them."

"But my lover dies—the door, the door!" cried the Princess Baba.

"And by heaven, through it!"

"And now your plan?"

"Ah, you may well ask!" laughed our hero.

V.

The tall figure of Lord Quorn lay crumpled and inert where he had fallen against the tree -trunk. Only his eyes retained the magic gift of life, and they looked upon the scene with sardonia resignation. Who shall describe what thoughts then passed through the dying gallant's mind? He was mortally wounded.

Count Rupprecht lay stretched on his back a few yards away, the grass about him soaked with the blood that flowed from his pierced lung. He was dead. Above him stood the Duke, silently. Mr. Woodhouse Adams was on his knees beside his dying friend.

"You got him, anyhow," said he. "He'll never know Christmas from Easter again."

"Fluke," sighed Lord Quorn. "I always had the luck."

"Luck, do you call it," cried his friend, "to be killed?"

"It is better to be killed than to die," said Lord Quorn faintly.

His Highness called grimly: "Ho, there! Ho, page!"

"Altesse!"

"Boy, go tell the Princess Baba the issue of the duel. Do not spare the truth. Count Rupprecht lies dead in defense of her honour and the honour of Valeria; and Lord Quorn will shortly be answering to God for his sins. And further tell the Princess that she is permitted to say farewell to her lover. Begone!"

"Thank you very much," sighed Lord Quorn.

But the page was not gone above a moment before he was returned, saying breathlessly:

Altesse, I bear this message from the Platinum-Stick-in-Waiting. The Princess Baba was seen leaving the house a few minutes ago in a hired vehicle, and with her was a young gentleman with an unknown face and utterly devoid of decoration. Her Highness left word behind her with the attendant of the Gentlemen's Cloak-Room to the effect that she could so little bear to await the issue of a duel in which her heart was so deeply engaged that she had eloped with one who would understand her grief.

"Good!" sighed Lord Quorn into the livid silence.

"What's that you say!" snapped the Duke.

"I was merely thanking my God, sir, that I die at least convinced of the truth of what I have always suspected, that nothing in this world means anything at all."

"Except, of course, dogs and horses," said Mr. Woodhouse Adams, and that will do well enough for the end of the tale of the hand and the flower, which is called Prologue because nobody ever reads a Prologue and how can it be anyone's advantage to sit out so improbable a tale without accompaniment of a Viennese waltz?

As for our hero and his darling, there are, naturally, no words to describe the happiness they had in each other. It was not long, however, before the young writer ceased to be a writer for there was no money in it; but with what his young wife made by selling the story of her elopement for to make a musical-comedy they opened a night-club in Golden Square called Delight is My Middle Name and lived happily ever after, the whilom Princess Baba making a great name for herself as a dancer, for she was all legs and no hips and her step was as light as her laughter and her laughter was as light as the breath of Eros.

In conclusion, may he who is still young enough and silly enough to have told this tale be some day found-worthy to be vouchsafed that which will make him, too, live happily ever after in peace and good-will with his heart, his lady and his fellows; and may the like good fortune also befall such youths and maidens as, turning aside for a moment from the realities of life, shall have read this story.

Mexico Prohibits Foreign Curreny Being Circulated

WASHINGTON, June 27.—(AP) President Calles has issued an executive order forbidding the importation and circulation in the interior of Mexico of foreign bank notes and of foreign currency in general, except gold.

Notice of the order, which was signed June 16, was received today at the state department in cables forwarded by Ambassador Sheffield at Mexico City. Mr. Sheffield gave no explanation, but other reports have indicated that recent issues of Mexican bank notes have not been popularly received. American and other foreign notes being preferred by the general public.

Questions From the World of Love Answered by a Noted Authority

If You Never Invite Yourself for a Visit, if You Never Make a Free Roadhouse of Your Frineds' Country Homes, if You Can Fall in With The Food And the Plans of Your Hostess, You'll Be One of Those Rare Birds, a Truly Welcome Guest.

Here are a few don'ts for the summer visitor: Don't be a self-invited guest. Chief among the social pests upon whom we would like to use some peculiarly potent and fatal insecticide are those who write us that they are pining for a breath of sea air, or longing to rest and relax in the country, and would like to come and spend a few days with us.

All normal means of communication are still open. The postoffice, the telegraph and the telephone are functioning as usual, and you may be very sure that if any of your relatives or friends pine for your society and desire a visit from you they would have no difficulty in communicating the fact to you.

Don't surprise even your neatest and dearest by dropping in upon them without warning. A surprise is always a boomerang that annihilates the perpetrator by insuring her a frosty welcome.

Nobody in the world loves anybody else enough to want to have all of their plans and arrangements upset by the sudden descent upon them of an unexpected guest.

There are a thousand domestic contingencies that make us loathe the sight of the person who comes at an inopportune moment, whom we would be glad to see on some auspicious occasion. No amount of affection enables us to greet Aunt Sally or Cousin Sue with anything but a sickly smile when they pop in on us when the cook has just left in a huff, or the baby has the measles, or the house is jammed to the roof.

Don't forget when you are asked to pay a visit than an invitation is nontransferable, and is intended only for the use of the individual to whom it is issued. It does not include the other members of your family, and it most particularly doesn't include your children. Neither does it include your pet poodle.

Possibly there are good Samaritans who are heroic enough to invite a mother with children, or a woman with her pets, to pay them a visit. But creatures of this high, heroic mold, martyrs craving suffering, are as scarce as hen's teeth, and are not to be taken for granted. Most people would rather have a spell of sickness than a week-end visit from a mother with children, or a woman who talks baby talk to a Pekinese, so don't take along your encumbrances unless it is so stated in the bond.

Don't, when you are making a motor trip ,arrange your schedule so to spend the night, or arrive at lunchtime, with friends. Of course, this materially lightens the cost of your outing by saving the hotel bills, but it is rough on your involuntary hosts. If you could even dimly apprehend what the Jones' are thinking when they see you drive up to their door just at dusk with a car full of people, half of whom they have probably never seen before, you would push on to the next town if it took your last gallon of gasoline, for they are despising you as you deserve for the cheap grafter that you are.

If you will observe, you will see that the first year that people own a country place they are wildly enthusiastic about it. The second year they are non-committal, and third it is for sale. The reason for this decline and fall off in love for the great free spaces is because every one who lives along a motor road is forced to keep a free roadhouse. There is no other way in which you can endear yourself to your friends as by passing them by, unless they have specifically invited you to park in their guest room at a certain specified time.

GENERAL RETIRES

WASHINGTON, June 27.—(AP)—Major General Harry Taylor, who has supervised the expenditure of more than half a billion dollars during the years of his consecutive service as assistant chief and chief of army engineers, passed today to the retired list after 42 years of active army service.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

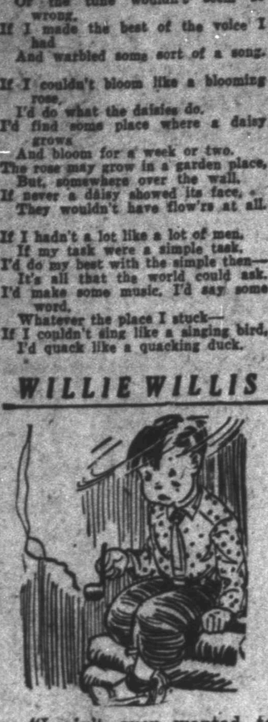

By Douglas Malloch
IF I COULDN'T SING

If I couldn't sing like a singing bird,
I'd quack like a quacking duck;
I wouldn't envy the rest I heard
And talk of my awful luck.
For my luck, at that, wouldn't look so bad,
Or the tune wouldn't seem so wrong,
If I made the best of the voice I had
And warbled some sort of a song.

If I couldn't bloom like a blooming rose,
I'd do what the daisies do.
I'd find some place where a daisy grows
And bloom for a week or two.
The rose may grow in a garden place,
But, somewhere over the wall,
If never a daisy showed its face,
They wouldn't have flow'rs at all.

If I hadn't a lot like a lot of men,
If my task were a simple task,
I'd do my best with the simple then—
It's all that the world could ask.
I'd make some music, I'd say some word,
Whatever the place I stuck—
If I couldn't sing like a singing bird,
I'd quack like a quacking duck.

What Do You Know About It?

DAILY SCIENCE SIX

1. What kind of an animal is a toad?
2. What are the stages in the life history of a toad?
3. Do toads cause warts?
4. Is there any poison in a toad?
5. How old may a toad live to be?
6. How does a toad drink?

Answers to these questions, in tomorrow's Record News.

New Clothes For the Toad

It is nothing unusual to see a toad in what is obviously a new skin, still wet and glistening and almost with a price tag on it. This is because the whole process takes but five minutes and one might watch a toad for days and be away for a short time and miss the spectacle. The skin splits down the back and along the fore and hindlegs in about the way that a coat is sewed together by seams. The toad hunches himself out of the arms and legs of the skin and wriggles free from the breast. The only place that remains attached is at the mouth, so the toad draws it in and thriftily swallows the whole skin.

Now what do you know about that?

Answers to Saturday's Questions:

1. The butcher bird or Shrike captures other birds and impales them on a thorn to eat them at leisure.
2. Passenger pigeons are not found anywhere now, being extinct.
3. Barnyard pigeons are not native birds, but European.
4. The commonest of our native pigeons is the mourning dove.
5. Cuckoos build very poor nests and sometimes no nest at all, even laying eggs in other birds' nests.
6. Cuckoos are of a different and unrelated family from doves and pigeons.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

BY MARY BLAKE

CANCER

Today's planetary aspects are favorable and remain so until shortly after noon. They then undergo a very decided change and become distinctly adverse, without and stimulating vibrations. The good time is altogether too short for the accomplishment of anything of great value, although nothing will be lost, and much might be gained by taking the initiative steps for the launching of any new undertaking, in which you may be interested. In the afternoon, only routine work should engage your attention, and much concentration will be needed if even this has to be done well. Above all poise must be established.

Children born today will, according to the signs, need much careful nourishment during infancy, in order to enable them to successfully overcome the many ailments to which they will be subjected. None of them need cause alarm, if proper precautions be taken. After weathering the infantile period, they promise to develop along physically normal lines and attain, in due course, a vigorous adulthood. Their dispositions will, in early childhood, leave much to be desired as they will be peevish, quarrelsome, and unattractive. As time goes on and their reasoning powers develop themselves, they will take a fumble to themselves and, of their own volition, eradicate from their make-up all its unpleasant features.

If today is your birthday, you are volatile, romantic and light-hearted. It is very difficult to discover you in a downcast mood, and cares or responsibilities do not apparently trouble you as they do others. You are, of course, resourceful and possess the happy knack of always finding a way out. As a friend, you are constant and loyal, and have never been known to repudiate even in thought and much less in action, the obligations that friendship entails. As a lover, you are very demonstrative, but are more romantic than enduringly affectionate. Unless your love interests can furnish you with a permanent series of thrills, you tire, and are then ready to seek some fresh field for the satisfaction of your desires. Your intellectuality is of a high order, and you frequently surprise your associates with flashes of thought that show a depth of mentality for which you do not generally receive credit. You are as enthusiastic at work as you are at play, although no one task or recreation can hold your dirided attention for any length of time.

FROM A COUNTRY QUEEN.

Dear Editor:
I think I am
The girl for whom you're looking.
Last summer, at the County Fair,
I won first prize for cooking.
I am a corn-fed country girl;
Complexion? Cream and peaches!
I practice all the virtues that
The village parson preaches.

I wish again to emphasize
The fact that I'm a dandy
At making anything from pies
To bread, or tarts, or candy.
I know exactly how to roast—
I mean meat, not a hubby;
As long as you'll eat, I don't care
If you are tall or stubby.

As though these halting, loving lines
You rapidly are scanning,
Just keep in mind the further fact
That I am good at canning—
So I can wed at any time!
I also do preserving;
Why not let me preserve you, too?
Yours lovingly,
Nan Irving.

Beth: Slow down the airship a little, Rudie. Those darned propellers are making so much noise I can hardly hear what Claire is saying about the Smith-Joneses. You knew them, didn't you, dearie?

Rudie: Oh, yes, and I thought Mrs. Smith-Jones was perfectly horrid. And you know that daughter of hers. The one with the silly——

Jean: I'll bid two hearts. Oh, yes, I knew her—lend me your lipstick, Beth. You know Medford was engaged to her for a long time, but—shue off the engine, Rudie! I have a VERY choice bit of scandal!

Rudie: That's the North Pole down there, girls! Look!

Beth: I can't help it! Don't interrupt that way, Rudie! What was it about the Smith-Jones girl, dearie?

German Soldiers Work as Relief in Flooded Districts

BERLIN, June 27.—(AP)—Twenty thousand troops, one-fifth of Germany's entire regular army, were under relief service orders today to repair the damage done by the worst floods in Germany in a century.

Fifteen dead have been counted.

Every able-bodied civilian available along the Elbe and Oder rivers labored to prevent new breaks in the levees. The city of Madgeburg was on guard against a new and more serious rise in the Elbe river which would imperil railway communication with Berlin.

Lowland inhabitants of the Elbe valley in northern Prussia kept watch on the hillsides for beacon fires warning them of any breaks in the dams.

Approximately 100,000 acres of cultivated lands were under water and some villages near Halle were entirely surrounded and depended upon food dropped from airplanes for subsistence.

A total of 5,701.37 acres will be put up for bidding of the oil men interested. The lands are located in Pottawatomie, Seminole, Lincoln, Payne and Creek counties.

DEPORTMENT TAUGHT BY WIRE

There was a so-called financial wizard who advertised to give lessons by mail which would enable patrons to prosper in their speculations. If by any chance an investment made under his advice did go wrong the customer was at once to communicate with him for further guidance; thus ran the promise of his published announcements.

A subscriber down in the southwest found himself in difficulties as a result of following the directions for playing the grain market as laid down by the expert. He wrote a letter to this effect:

"You told me if I got into trouble I was to communicate with you and you would tell me how to act. Well, I done just what you said about buying winter wheat and I am now busted. How shall I act? Please wire."

By wire promptly came back the answer:

"Act like you are busted!"

San Antonio Shrine To Invade Valley

Hall, potentate of Alzafar Temple, nobles of the mystic shrine, a delegation of eight nobles of the San Antonio temple will leave next Thursday morning for a six-day automobile tour of gulf coast and Rio Grande valley points for fraternal and fellowship visits with members of the order.

The travelers will reach Corpus Christi Thursday evening and will spend the night there. San Patracio and Nueces county nobles will tender the San Antonians a fish banquet that night.

The tour of the magic valley will begin Friday morning when the party reaches Edinburg about noon of July 2. Other places to be visited are McAllen, Brownsville, Matamoras and Kingsville.

EVILS OF THE PRIMARY SYSTEM

NOW the state bar association through T. W. Davidson, its president, has appointed a committee to draft a program of procedure in the Texas courts and law reform, to put this program in workable order before the next session of the Texas legislature. In announcing the personnel of the committee, the president of the state bar association issued a statement. He declared it necessary to take the judiciary out of politics and he gave the reasons why the judiciary should be taken out of politics. In days of old T. W. Davidson and many of the lawyers of Texas were champions of the primary nominating system. Now it is recommended that in the nomination of judges the people should get away from the primary system. This is an oft told tale:

"Many of our reversals and delays are caused by an inexperienced court, either on the trial bench or on the appellate bench. This incompetent judge is often one of the very best of men. He is a good hand shaker and a better mixer among the people and more adept in politics than his opponent, hence he was elected, not because of his qualifications as a jurist, but because of his admirable nature or vote getting quality, maybe because he was an anti prohibitionist, according to the complexion of his district. Again, in our heated political campaigns, the governorship and the United States senatorship overshadow the other state races and not one voter in 10 knows anything of the various candidates for the higher courts. He either guesses them off or asked the first men to tell him about them that comes along."

This is the gospel truth. A ready hand shaker and a good mixer may know less laws than the court house janitor, but this does not prevent his election to the district bench. Then the statement calls for direct action, a change in the primary election system, a return to the convention system of the fathers. It would be well for all men and women voters to read and digest the following:

"There was an adage of our fathers that the office should seek the man and not the man the office. This old proverb has disappeared under the modern primary election methods. The best lawyers of Texas can earn more in private practice than they can by holding office. They will not leave a practice that pays them twice or three times as much as a judges salary to get out and run for a place on the bench. The only way to secure these men to draft them You can't draft them through a primary election. Any attempt to drafting would even be disasterous. All his opponents would have to say is that this man represents the clique and I represent the common people, forgetting that the common people, the litigants themselves, are interested in having capable judges and speedy trials and ready termination of court action. Let the judges be selected by a convention or by a delegated body of men, and in their representative capacity let them look over the field of available men and draft them for service for the state, one of the highest and most honorable of all places, the bench of our state. If this program or something better is put forward by the bar of Texas and seconded by the press we shall accomplish something really worthwhile."

A just judge is the noblest work of God, and to be a just judge, a man of the judiciary must be fearless, upright, learned and merciful. It is justice that is sacred and not the judge. There should be one law for all, rich or poor or white or black or red or yellow. President Davidson should have said in his statement that when the people have a judge or judges who are above the voice of the mob, who track the constitution and the law, who have made records as learned and courageous and upright jurists, they should be retained on the bench all the years they are willing to serve. It is for the bar of Texas, the lawyers of Texas, who believe in courts of high integrity and learing, to uphold the hands of those who have been weighed and not found wanting when election time comes.

WURZBACH UNAFRAID

IT was at Waco that Farmer Jim threatened, if the hecklers did not let him alone, to phone to Austin for a ranger body guard. It was at San Antonio that Harry Wurzbach's friend, after a riot, insisted that Wurzbach should be given a body guard.

This did not appeal to the only republican member of congress from Texas. He rejected the proposal and shot this wad at his opponent, "I'm not afraid of anything or anybody else in San Antonio and I won't permit a body guard."

Why should he permit a body guard? His grandfather came from Germany to Texas when Texas was a wilderness. His father was a gallant confederate soldier. Why should the third in the line of Wurzbachs tolerate a body guard? Why should he need a body guard?

Men who play the political game, according to the rule, never stand in need of body guards or ranger protection or the protection of six-shooter friends. This is a civilized country. Men who carry civilized tongues in their heads, usually get by without inviting trouble.

A man is a man for that and a gentleman is a gentleman all the time. There is only one way to play the game—according to the rules of the game which are the rules laid down by civilized society.

GETTING READY FOR FUNERAL

DOWN in the fourteenth congressional district the followers of National Committeeman Rene B. Creager and the followers of Congressman Harry M. Wurzbach are getting ready for a republican funeral. They have split the old party of the elephant into fragments. They are fighting like kilkenny cats. They have barred the brother in black from their councils but they will permit him to vote the republican ticket on November election day.

A campaign manager for the congressman had his nose glasses driven into his face by a Creagerite, and another Creagerite, who was less fortunate, was about to be thrown from a second story window into a pile of soft cement when two or three sympathetic women saved his life. This was not all. Another Wurzbach campaign manager was beaten into a comatose condition by a Creagerite, and the assailant used a milk bottle as a weapon.

It is said the gentle Harry had a narrow escape from being pistoled to death while a battle royal was on for control of the Bexar county organization and its machinery. There will be eighteen democrats elected to congress from the eighteen districts of Texas this year. This is the present day program.

BROOKHART AN EASY VICTOR

COL. SMITH WILDMAN BROOKhart won a senatorial nomination in Iowa at a total cost to the Brookhart bank account of $1,489.88. Brookhart was fortunate. He admits that in many counties of the state the expenses of the campaign were taken care of by farm and labor committees where the candidate had speaking dates.

Colonel Brookhart had the farmers behind him. He had the labor unions behind him. He had the organization of rail employes behind him. It was not necessary for him to dig up.

Corn is cheap in Iowa. Its grower thinks he should receive a high price for the commodity. This is one of the reasons why he voted for Brookhart. If corn had been selling for a fancy price per bushel, the corn grower would have voted for Cummins. It was really a question of the price of corn.

It is diferent in Pennsylvania where the John S. Grundys declared that whatever the cost a business man should be made the governor of the state.

And the Grundys won. It cost them millions and in the mix-up they lost a senator.

IN THE LAND OF THE FREE

CECIL SMITH of Grayson county is a brilliant lawyer and democrat leader. He is a member of the state executive committee and at the Wichita Falls meeting was one of the 18 of the 31 members who voted for the resolution of endorsement of the state administration.

Mrs. Cecil Smith is widely known in the ranks of the club women of Texas. She is a gifted writer, a most eloquent speaker, a humanitarian and ever in the vanguards of the feminine welfare workers of the state.

When the red-headed candidate for governor visited Sherman on a speaking engagement Mrs. Cecil Smith was one of a goodly number of representative Grayson county democrats who occupied a seat on the platform.

And this it is that the laugh is on the Hon. Cecil in the political circles of the state. Mrs. Cecil worships her own God and votes her own ticket. This is as it should be.

TEAXS WHEAT CROP

DALLAS and Fort Worth bankers have advanced $3,000,000 for the handling of the wheat crop of the Texas and New Mexico Wheat Growers association. This association will handle 5,000,000 bushels of wheat, and have 150 small elevators under contract for storage space. Cooperation appears to be the thing.

The Toonerville Trolley That Meets All The Trains

PROLOGUE —by— Michael Arlen

"Oh, have I to watch him die!" cried the young Princess, and was suddenly made to stare incredulously at the youth beside her, for he had whispered in accents of triumph:

"By heaven, I've got an idea, a marvelous idea! You want to be happy, Princess? Then come with me! Come, we will dance through the crowd to the door and then we will see about my plan."

"But what is it, what is it, why do you keep me in such suspense? Ah, you are cruel!" sighed the Princess Baba. "But you certainly do dance very well. Oh, how I love dancing! But are you sure this is the nearest way to the door? It is so very crowded that I can't see it, but how well you guide, almost as well as you kiss a lady's hand! But quick, quick, to the door!"

"I am doing my best, Princess, guiding you through this crowd. It is amazing how generously middle-aged people dance these days, denying their elbows and feet to no one who comes near them."

"But my lover dies—the door, the door!" cried the Princess Baba.

"And by heaven, through it!"

"And now your plan?"

"Ah, you may well ask!" laughed our hero.

V.

The tall figure of Lord Quorn lay crumpled and inert where he had fallen against the tree-trunk. Only his eyes retained the magic gift of life, and they looked upon the scene with sardonic resignation. Who shall describe what thoughts then passed through the dying gallant's mind? He was mortally wounded.

Count Rupprecht lay stretched on his back a few yards away, the grass about him soaked with the blood that flowed from his pierced lung. He was dead. Above him stood the Duke, silently. Mr. Woodhouse Adams was on his knees beside his dying friend.

"You got him, anyhow," said he. "He'll never know Christmas from Easter again."

"Fluke," sighed Lord Quorn. "I always had the luck."

"Luck, do you call it," cried his friend, "to be killed!"

"It is better to be killed than to die," said Lord Quorn faintly.

His Highness called grimly: "Ho, there! Ho, page!"

"Altesse!"

"Boy, go tell the Princess Baba the issue of the duel. Do not spare the truth. Count Rupprecht lies dead in defense of her honour and the honour of Valeria; and Lord Quorn will shortly be answering to God for his sins. And further tell the Princess that she is permitted to say farewell to her lover. Begone!"

"Thank you very much," sighed Lord Quorn.

But the page was not gone above a moment before he was returned, saying breathlessly:

Altesse, I bear this message from the Platinum-Stick-in-Waiting. The Princess Baba was seen leaving the house a few minutes ago in a hired vehicle, and with her was a young gentleman with an unknown face and utterly devoid of decoration. Her Highness left word behind her with the attendant of the Gentlemen's Cloak-Room to the effect that she could so little bear to await the issue of a duel in which her heart was so deeply engaged that she had eloped with one who would understand her grief.

"Good!" sighed Lord Quorn into the livid silence.

"What's that you say!" snapped the Duke.

"I was merely thanking my God, sir, that I die at least convinced of the truth of what I have always suspected, that nothing in this world means anything at all."

"Except, of course, dogs and horses," said Mr. Woodhouse Adams, and that will do well enough for the end of the tale of the hand and the flower, which is called Prologue because nobody ever reads a Prologue and how can it be anyone's advantage to sit out so improbable a tale without accompaniment of a Viennese waltz?

As for our hero and his darling, there are, naturally, no words to describe the happiness they had in each other. It was not long, however, before the young writer ceased to be a writer, for there was no money in it; but with what his young wife made by selling the story of her elopement for to make a musical-comedy they opened a night-club in Golden Squire called Delight is My Middle Name and lived happily ever after, the whilom Princess Baba making a great name for herself as a dancer, for she was all legs and no hips and her step was as light as her laughter and her laughter was as light as the breath of Eros.

In conclusion, may he who is still young enough and silly enough to have told this tale be some day found worthy to be vouchsafed that which will make him, too, live happily ever after in peace and good-will with his heart, his lady and his fellows; and may the like good fortune also befall such youths and maidens as, turning aside for a moment from the realities of life, shall have read this story.

Mexico Prohibits Foreign Curreny Being Circulated

WASHINGTON, June 27.—(AP) President Calles has issued an executive order forbidding the importation and circulation in the interior of Mexico of foreign bank notes and of foreign currency in general, except gold.

Notice of the order, which was signed June 16, was received today at the state department in cables forwarded by Ambassador Sheffield at Mexico City. Mr. Sheffield gave no explanation, but other reports have indicated that recent issues of Mexican bank notes have not been popularly received, American and other foreign notes being preferred by the general public.

Questions From the World of Love Answered by a Noted Authority

If You Never Invite Yourself for a Visit, If You Never Make a Free Roadhouse of Your Friends' Country Homes, If You Can Fall in With The Food And the Plans of Your Hostess, You'll Be One of Those Rare Birds, a Truly Welcome Guest.

Here are a few don'ts for the summer visitor: Don't be a self-invited guest. Chief among the social pests upon whom we would like to use some peculiarly potent and fatal insecticide are those who write us that they are pining for a breath of sea air, or longing to rest and relax in the country, and would like to come and spend a few days with us.

All normal means of communication are still open. The postoffice, the telegraph and the telephone are functioning as usual, and you may be very sure that if any of your relatives or friends pine for your society and desire a visit from you they would have no difficulty in communicating the fact to you.

Don't surprise even your nearest and dearest by dropping in upon them without warning. A surprise is always a boomerang that annihilates the perpetrator by insuring her a frosty welcome.

Nobody in the world loves anybody else enough to want to have all of their plans and arrangements upset by the sudden descent upon them of an unexpected guest.

There are a thousand domestic contingencies that make us loathe the sight of the person who comes at an inopportune moment, whom we would be glad to see on some auspicious occasion. No amount of affection enables us to greet Aunt Sally or Cousin Sue with anything but a sickly smile when they pop in on us when the cook has just left in a huff, or the baby has the measles, or the house is jammed to the roof.

Don't forget when you are asked to pay a visit than an invitation is nontransferable, and is intended only for the use of the individual to whom it is issued. It does not include the other members of your family, and it most particularly doesn't include your children. Neither does it include your pet poodle.

Possibly there are good Samaritans who are heroic enough to invite a mother with children, or a woman with her pets, to pay them a visit. But creatures of this high, heroic mold, martyrs craving suffering, are as scarce as hen's teeth, and are not to be taken for granted. Most people would rather have a spell of sickness than a week-end visit from a mother with children, or a woman who talks baby talk to a Pekinese, so don't take along your encumbrances unless it is so stated in the bond.

Don't, when you are making a motor trip arrange your schedule so to spend the night, or arrive at lunchtime, with friends. Of course, this materially lightens the cost of your outing by saving the hotel bills, but it is rough on your involuntary hosts. If you could even dimly apprehend what the Jones' are thinking when they see you drive up to their door just at dusk with a car full of people, half of whom they have probably never seen before, you would push on to the next town if it took your last gallon of gasoline, for they are despising you as you deserve for the cheap grafter that you are.

If you will observe, you will see that the first year that people own a country place they are wildly enthusiastic about it. The second year they are non-committal, and third it is for sale. The reason for this decline and fall off in love for the great free spaces is because every one who lives along a motor road is forced to keep a free roadhouse. There is no other way in which you can endear yourself to your friends as by passing them by, unless they have specifically invited you to park in their guest room at a certain specified time.

GENERAL RETIRES

WASHINGTON, June 27.—(AP)—Major General Harry Taylor, who has supervised the expenditure of more than half a billion dollars during the years of his consecutive service as assistant chief and chief of army engineers, passed today to the retired list after 42 years of active army service.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

By Douglas Malloch

IF I COULDN'T SING

If I couldn't sing like a singing bird,
I'd quack like a quacking duck;
I wouldn't envy the rest I heard
And talk of my awful luck.
For my luck, at that, wouldn't look so bad
Or the tune wouldn't seem so wrong,
If I made the best of the voice I had
And warbled some sort of a song.

If I couldn't bloom like a blooming rose,
I'd do what the daisies do.
I'd find some place where a daisy grows
And bloom for a week or two.
The rose may grow in a garden place,
But, somewhere over the wall,
If never a daisy showed its face,
They wouldn't have flow'rs at all.

If I hadn't a lot like a lot of men,
If my task were a simple task,
I'd do my best with the simple then—
It's all that the world could ask.
I'd make some music, I'd say some word,
Whatever the place I stuck—
If I couldn't sing like a singing bird,
I'd quack like a quacking duck.

What Do You Know About It?

DAILY SCIENCE SIX

1. What kind of an animal is a toad?
2. What are the stages in the life history of a toad?
3. Do toads cause warts?
4. Is there any poison in a toad?
5. How old may a toad live to be?
6. How does a toad drink?

Answers to these questions, in tomorrow's Record News.

New Clothes For the Toad

It is nothing unusual to see a toad in what is obviously a new skin, still wet and glistening and almost with a price tag on it. This is because the whole process takes but five minutes and one might watch a toad for days and be away for a short time and miss the spectacle. The skin splits down the back and along the fore and hindlegs in about the way that a coat is sewed together by seams. The toad hunches himself out of the arms and legs of the skin and wriggles free from the breast. The only place that remains attached is at the mouth, so the toad draws it in and thriftily swallows the whole skin.

Now what do you know about that?

Answers to Saturday's Questions:

1. The butcher bird or shrike captures other birds and impales them on a thorn to eat them at leisure.
2. Passenger pigeons are not found anywhere now, being extinct.
3. Barnyard pigeons are not native birds, but European.
4. The commonest of our native pigeons is the mourning dove.
5. Cuckoos build very poor nests and sometimes no nest at all, even laying eggs in other birds' nests.
6. Cuckoos are of a different and unrelated family from doves and pigeons.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

BY MARY BLAKE

CANCER

Today's planetary aspects are favorable and remain so until shortly after noon. They then undergo a very decided change and become distinctly adverse, without and stimulating vibrations. The good time is altogether too short for the accomplishment of anything of great value, although nothing will be lost, and much might be gained by taking the initiative steps for the launching of any new undertaking in which you may be interested. In the afternoon, only routine work should engage your attention, and much concentration will be needed if even this has to be done well. Above all poise must be established.

Children born today will, according to the signs, need much careful nourishment during infancy, in order to enable them to successfully overcome the many ailments to which they will be subjected. None of them need cause alarm, if proper precautions be taken. After weathering the infantile period, they promise to develop along physically normal lines and attain, in due course, a vigorous adulthood. Their dispositions will, in early childhood, leave much to be desired as they will be peevish, quarrelsome, and unattractive. As time goes on and their reasoning powers develop themselves, they will take a tumble to themselves and, of their own volition, eradicate from their make-up all its unpleasant features.

If today is your birthday, you are volatile, romantic and light-hearted. It is very difficult to discover you in a downcast mood, and cares or responsibilities do not apparently trouble you as they do others. You are, of course, resourceful and possess the happy knack of always finding a way out. As a friend, you are constant and loyal, and have never been known to repudiate even in thought and much less in action, the obligations that friendship entails. As a lover, you are very demonstrative, but are more romantic than enduringly affectionate. Unless your love interests can furnish you with a permanent series of thrills, you tire, and are then ready to seek some fresh field for the satisfaction of your desires. Your intellectuality is of a high order, and you frequently surprise your associates with flashes of thought that show a depth of mentality for which you do not generally receive credit. You are as enthusiastic at work as you are at play, although no one task or recreation can hold your divided attention for any length of time.

Successful people born this date are:

Thomas W. Waterman, lawyer.
Samson Talbot, educator.
Lyman J. Gage, financier.

FROM A COUNTRY QUEEN.

Dear Editor:
I think I am
The girl for whom you're looking.
Last summer, at the County Fair,
I won first prize for cooking.
I am a corn-fed country girl:
Complexion? Cream and peaches!
I practice all the virtues that
The village parson preaches.

I wish again to emphasize
The fact that I'm a dandy
At making anything from pies
To bread, or tarts, or candy.
I know exactly how to roast—
I mean meat, not a hubby;
As long as you'll eat, I don't care
If you are tall or stubby.

As though these halting, loving lines
You rapidly are scanning.
Just keep in mind the further fact
That I am good at canning—
So I can wed at any time!
I also do preserving;
Why not let me preserve you, too?
Yours lovingly,
Nan Irving.

IF THE NORTH POLE EXPLORERS HAD BEEN WOMEN!

(Imagined by Francis Merstein)

Beth: Slow down the airship a little, Rudie. Those darned propellers are making so much noise I can hardly hear what Claire is saying about the Smith-Joneses. You knew them, didn't you, dearie?

Rudie: Oh, yes, and I thought Mrs. Smith-Jones was perfectly horrid. And you know that daughter of hers. The one with the silly——

Jean: I'll bid two hearts. Oh, yes, I knew her—lend me your lipstick, Beth. You know Medford was engaged to her for a long time, but—shue off the engine, Rudie! I have a VERY choice bit of scandal!

Rudie: That's the North Pole down there, girls! Look!

Beth: I can't help it! Don't interrupt that way, Rudie! What was it about the Smith-Jones girl, dearie?

German Soldiers Work as Relief in Flooded Districts

BERLIN, June 27.—(AP)—Twenty thousand troops, one-fifth of Germany's entire regular army, were under relief service orders today to repair the damage done by the worst floods in Germany in a century.

Fifteen dead have been counted.

Every able-bodied civilian available along the Elbe and Oder rivers labored to prevent new breaks in the levees. The city of Madgeburg was on guard against a new and more serious rise in the Elbe river which would imperil railway communication with Berlin.

Lowland inhabitants of the Elbe valley in northern Prussia kept watch on the hillsides for beacon fires warning them of any breaks in the dams.

Approximately 100,000 acres of cultivated lands were under water and some villages near Halle were entirely surrounded and depended upon food dropped from airplanes for subsistence.

DEPORTMENT TAUGHT BY WIRE

There was a so-called financial wizard who advertised to give lessons by mail which would enable patrons to prosper in their speculations. If by any chance an investment made under his advice did go wrong the customer was at once to communicate with him for further guidance; thus ran the promise of his published announcements.

A subscriber down in the southwest found himself in difficulties as a result of following the directions for playing the grain market as laid down by the expert. He wrote a letter to this effect:

"You told me if I got into trouble I was to communicate with you and you would tell me how to act. Well, I done just what you said about buying winter wheat and I am now busted. How shall I act? Please wire."

By wire promptly came back the answer:

"Act like you are busted!"

San Antonio Shrine To Invade Valley

Hall, potentate of Alzafar Temple, nobles of the mystic shrine, a delegation of eight nobles of the San Antonio temple will leave next Thursday morning for a six-day automobile tour of gulf coast and Rio Grande valley points for fraternal and fellowship visits with members of the order.

The travelers will reach Corpus Christi Thursday evening and will spend the night there. San Patracio and Nueces county nobles will tender the San Antonians a fish banquet that night.

The tour of the magic valley will begin Friday morning when the party reaches Edinburg about noon of July 2. Other places to be visited are McAllen, Brownsville, Matamoras and Kingsville.

URGE ABATTOIRS.

AUSTIN, June 27.—(AP)—Municipally owned and controled abattoirs are urged for Texas cities by the state board of health, for economy, sanitation and inspection of animals. Orange, Port Arthur, Brownsville, Harris, Wichita Falls, Beaumont and Laredo are Texas cities having municipal abattoirs.

HASKELL

MRS. S. R. RIKE HOSTESS.

The Woman's Missionary society of the Methodist church meets only every two weeks during the summer months, instead of each Monday afternoon, which is the custom during the rest of the year. Last Monday was the time of the meeting and the society met in the home of the president, Mrs. S. R. Rike with 40 ladies present. The continuation of the Bible study was directed by the general director, Mrs. Chas. Parsons, who makes a splendid teacher because she is a splendid, conscientious Bible student. She received many words of praise and appreciation from members present. The meeting was then turned over to the president, who held a short business session, at which time all officers made reports, and the secretary, Mrs. W. A. Kimbrough read the minutes of the meetings of the past month. Mrs. S. R. Rike was elected delegate and Mrs. F. G. Alexander alternate to the district meeting to be held in Seymour next week. LOWERY-BRITTAIN

A wedding of much interest to a large circle of friends occurred at 8 o'clock on Tuesday morning at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. B. M. Brittain, when her daughter, Miss Ethel Britain was united in marriage to Dr. R. K. Lowery in a quiet home wedding with only members of the family and a few close friends present. Rev. J. M. Fuller pronounced the marriage vows, using the ring ceremony and said before a beautifully improvised altar a double arch, festoned with vines and set with shasta daisies which it gave it beauty, banked on either side with tall floor baskets filled with summer flowers and carnations, ferns were used as an attractive background.

Miss Thelma Dickson sang Cadman's "At Dawning," as a pre-nuptial solo, accompanied by Mrs. G. A. Buie, at the piano. Mrs. Buie, who is a sister-in-law of the bride, also played the wedding march. The bride was attended by a niece, Miss Frances Buie and was attired in a lovely travel dress of georgette in midnight blue with printed inserts wearing accessories to harmonize and carried a shower bouquet of white rose buds and lilies of the valley. After happy congratulations for a honeymoon of two weeks visiting the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Lowery of Marlin, and other place of interest. CHRIST BEST is his body to represent his kingdom on earth. He is the life of the church. He is the source of all life and there is no real power in any life without Him. He made of himself a vicarious offering for the sins of the world and is the author of all blessing enjoyed.

Death Provides Sanclty

Conviction of sin, repentance unto life and pardon of guilt come directly through Him. His death provides for the sanctification of the heart, for he has originated salvation and he freely gives it. He is distinguished from every being as the God-Man who has gained His capital supremacy by His agony on the cross. This is the difference between Christ's salvation and all other so-called human salvations. He is a proof of the Father's interest and love. In no sense can it be said, we have purchased Christ with our own merit. If God had given a million worlds or all of the angelic hosts He would have given less because Christ made heaven glorious and forever met all the needs of earth. The glory and sorrow and love of Christ "passeth knowledge," for He has met all the needs of man and will "continue to be" and meet man's needs forever. Christ will ever be the lamb of God, slain from the foundation of the world whose "shed blood cleanseth from all sin." Accept this gift and satisfy God and your own heart.

At 8 p. m. Dr. Thomas preached on "the value of the soul" Matt. 16:26 "for what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?" The evangelist said in part, these are the words of Jesus Christ, creator and savior of the world, who is more able than any other, to determine that the soul is worth more than the world and all things in the world. Yes, he did more, he paid the high price of his own precious blood for the redemption of the soul. Surely then, he knew its value.

Your soul is the only possession you have which cannot cease to be. It must exist either in heaven or hell throughout all eternity, for Jesus says so. Every person has a soult of the greatest value, is the truth of Scripture.

What is the soul, whence its origin, faculty and value? The Bible teaches that the soul is distinct from the body; a thinking, immortal substance, and capable of living separately from the body in another world. Matt. 10:28 says "fear not them which kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul; but rather fear Him which is able to destroy both soul and body in hell." Luke 16 says the soul of the rich man was tormented in hell while the body lay buried on earth.

The soul has continued existence after death because God wills to preserve it. Paul declared that death would be gain to him, because when absent from the body, he would be present with the lord.

As to the origin of the soul, it came immediately from God. In Genesis 1:26 God said, "Let Us make man in our image, after our likeness. Surely it was the soul of man instead of this earthly body which bore the divine resemblance. As to faculty, the soul is capable, by divine grace of knowing God, of being renewed in His Holy image, of paying him cheerful service, and of enjoying him forever in a better world. Yet it is the devil's business to tempt and destroy the soul in hell. Thus heaven and hell contend for the soul. This life is only a temporary one. We shall all soon go into eternity and begin a state of being that shall never end. He that soweth to the flesh shall reap hell, but he that soweth to the spirit shall reap heaven.

Thus eternity stamps infinite value upon the soul, which is the reason for the comparison made by Christ between one single soul and the whole wide world. Many are in danger of losing their souls, for the soul can be lost forever. The soul cannot be lost by ceasing to be, for being immortal in its nature that is impossible. Yet how gladly would a lost soul cease to be if it were possible. But for a soul to be lost, means for it to be lost to that happiness here and hereafter which is suited to its nature. It is to lose all the pleasures of true religion, the consolation that is in Christ, the comfort of love, the peace that passeth all understanding, and the joy of the Holy Spirit, which is unspeakable and full of glory. The truly religious person is the only happy person, because his precious soul is saved. When you choose to reject Christ and his church and live to the end of this life in sin, you choose hell. Why do you thus choose? When you choose to accept Christ and the church and live right to the end of life, you choose heaven, which is a sensible choice.

How awful is the word lost as it refers to the future and eternal world.

All who reject Christ and neglect the gospel and the church are lost forever. "If our gospel be hid, it is hid to them that are lost." The devil "hath blinded the minds of them which believe not, lest the light of the glorious gospel of Christ, who is the image of, God, should shine unto them."

The whole world can make no amends for the loss of your soul.

No one, in this limited lifetime, could even see, and certainly could not gain all the world. But suppose you have more oil than all others combined. Suppose you have every desire accomplished, every sense gratified. Solomon seemed to have had all this and more, and yet it was all vanity and vexation of spirit. You may have the best of everything and be the richest person in the world, in fact have all that the world has to offer, but his cannot be exchanged for your soul. Surrender, and accept Christ as your savior, serve him in the church, and you will be rich here and hereafter. God help you to meet me in the Father's great home above.

Glenn Hunter In Most Appealing Picture in Career

Circuses have their clowns, society has its lions, and every college has its boob.

There has probably never existed any college campus at any given time on which there did not stroll one very green individual who was the butt of all sophomoric jokes and the victim of every hazing expedition staged.

When Joel Martin went to college he felt that the world was his. His local paper has called him the town's brightest and most enterprising youth, and he had a sneaking suspicion that he was. He wore a brand new mail order, suit, something quite beyond the conception of anyone in his neighborhood, and he felt like a combination of Beau Brummell, Dick Whittington and Ty Cobb, the last by reason of his intense enthusiasm for baseball.

But what a fall green young Joel Martin had coming to him. He hadn't considered the sophomore class. It marked his entrance with joy, and dubbed him college boob as soon as he appeared in their midst.

The consequent comic situations and situations, too, with considerable heart appeal make "The Pinch Hitter," Glenn Hunter's latest starring vehicle for Associated Exhibitors, one of the most enjoyable pictures thown at the Palace theatre for a long time.

AUSTRIAN AS WAR HERO MARRIES 7 FRENCH WIVES

PARIS. — Antov Barzycka, who lived in France for five years and posed as a war hero under the name of Armand Barzier, has fled to Austria, his native land, leaving behind him seven romantic French women who call him husband. In his departure he was just one jump ahead of a detective trying to arrest him for swindling a woman who suspected he was not what he claimed and refused to marry him. The other women were won by the stories he told of his prowess in battle and they are all mourning the loss of money and jewels he carried away with him.

Pride and Growth in City Is All Well and Proper, Judge John Kay Declares To Sunday Bible Class

A pride in growth and progress is all well and proper Judge John R. Kay told his Bible class at the Strand theatre Sunday morning. His remark was in the form of a commentary on the increased bank clearings and building records as compared in Sunday morning papers.

There were 200 present at the Sunday morning service.

Judge Kay's address follows:

When we go down to the Union Station to go on a journey we learn that there are some things that the baggageman will accept and check through as baggage, and some things that he will utterly reject. It is so in life. When man takes his journey out of this world into the next world there are some things that he can take with him, but they are not material things. Here, we go grasping, and hunting, and praying, and working for material things, trying to do what Robert Burns called 'gathering,' when we can't take the smallest grain of sand that blows about the desert, away from here with us. All that we can take away with us is the record of whatever good we have done, whatever character we have builded up the kind of religious life that we have lead, and the manner in which we have treated our fellowmen.

Now, the philosophers tell us, especially the psychologists, tell us that we are just a little bundle of nervous energy, directed and controlled by chemical reaction, and our behavior results from whatever we had for breakfast, and that there is neither good nor bad, except that particular measure of good and bad that each generation adopts for itself. That would be a pretty good doctrine, if we were going to stay here always. But, when you take the philosopher and the psychologist down to the grave yard and say: "What about this cemetery, Brother?" When you lead him into the presence of a man whose vows are shattered, when you show him sin, and shame, and suffering, he makes no answer and has none: and, only religion, the Bible, and God has an answer for these things.

Now, it was said of Abraham that he was to be a blessing to the world. Abraham had lots of cows. I don't know who got his cows. The hillsides were lined with his sheep. I don't know who got them, and goats, and camels; but, it was said to him that, "You shall be a blessing to other men."

Now, that, I think, was the biggest thing that was ever said to anybody. "Abraham, you are going to do the world some good. Men are going to call your name great and men are going to acknowledge that you have been worth something in their lives," and that's the reason that his name lives in history, and in song, and in a story.

It is a right strange thing to read about these old-time patriarchal men. We are so likely to overlook much that is in the Bible, because the Bible is a book of under-statement, and not over-statement. It says that Enoch walked with God, and that Moses talked with God, and that Abraham was the friend of God. Is He your friend? Do you walk with Him and talk with Him, as these men did? Can a man rise up in his place and say that "God is near and dear to me and is my friend!"

So, Abraham went out into a new country to become a blessing to his race and to the world. How did he do it? Not in material things, not in the sense of government and politics, not in agriculture, but through all the years, from generation to generation, it was Abraham's people that carried, whatever they went, the ark of the covenant, and the belief in God. It was Abraham's people who kept the sacred fire of religion burning, weak, sometimes, flickering the light was, sometimes, but always burning, and became, at last, the people of the Master.

If you were going out into a new country, what would you want to take with you? Abraham was moving over there to a place he had never seen. What would you want to take? I don't know what you would want to take, but I know my own heart. I would want to take the same system, the same plows and threshing machines, and banks the same Justice of the Peace, the same kind of money, and the same crowd of fellows that I have been with here. But, Abraham took over there with him the worship of God, and he hadn't more than landed in that country until he built an altar of stones and there was seen rising up, the smoke of his sacrifices to his God. Taking God with him, he took everything. Failing to take Him, he took nothing. Now, that's the reason that he become a great man.

We talk about success. We have got one magazine in this country, I think, called "Success." That's a peculiar word. Sometimes on the street, you will hear them say: "Old Bill is dead. He died down here last week," and the man who is the listener, says: "How much did he leave?" I don't know how much he left, but you can rest assured that he left all that he had. You can't fix the things of this world to take.

Once in a while, a man goes into a lawyer's office and says: "I want my will written." "All right, Colonel, how do you want to fix it?" Because, if he is the right kind of a lawyer, he don't make his will for him, he just writes it. He says: "Well, I want to fix it so nobody can get this stuff away from these children." Then the lawyer says to him: "Look here, Brother, if you don't make the kind of will that the jury thinks you ought to have made, they will break it for you. You can't fix anything." Abraham, also, didn't try to do that. There is nothing fixed here, nothing not even the granite rocks to the mountains.

Faith Is Growth.

Now, Abraham did one thing that was the very law of life. He kept growing. I was looking over the advertisements in the paper this morning, of people who want you to buy your automobile from them, handling buggies, all kinds of business. I like to read those things. You know, people say that they don't read the advertisements, but they do. These fellows wouldn't pay to put them in, if they didn't and nearly every business in town that I was reading about was telling about how much bigger they had got, and how the business had been growing. The paper printed about how the bank clearings here had advanced, and how the building operation had grown over last year, and humanity was just shining in that paper this morning, showing how that we take a pride in growing. It is natural. It is right. It is all right. Do you grow? That is the law of life. A man ought to be, each week, a little better man, than he was the week before, a little stronger man, a little stronger man, a little surer, a little more surefooted. I expect there was something in the paper about their spiritual growth. I don't know about that. I didn't get that far in reading it. But, I want to say to you that our spiritual growth, our growth in righteousness, is our real growth.

It has always been my doctrine that a community, a town, had a character like people. You can tell by reading the paper what kind of a community you are. I don't think there is anything as much of an index to a community as the newspaper. Read the paper and you get a true reflection of yourself. If Mrs. Jones won the coffeepot at the bridge party Thursday evening, its all right for the paper to print it because it is news, and that's what happened, and she got the coffeepot. I am not talking about whether that is wrong or not. I don't know. And, if some of the stewards of the Methodist church were at the prayer-light, the paper ought to print their pictures sitting around the ring. But, it is true that it wouldn't go to very much length that way, of a system, they can't catch him at anything. But, a newspaper reflects the growth of a community and the ideals of a community.

Are We Growing?

Is Wichita Falls growing, in your sense? I think it is. I didn't come here, this morning, to throw any roses at my own people. I believe that there is as much of charity, and of kindness, and of real religion, and of love for your fellowmen, here, as there is in any community of America. So often, and so often, I have seen our people pour out their money for the benefit of those that needed it. I am saying to you, that this is a great community to live in, but we ought to keep growing.

Abraham didn't stop when he built that altar. You know, once in a while when a fellow joins the church, he thinks he has got it all fixed, and has a free ticket right into the new Jerusalem. Abraham kept on working, building altars, teaching his people, planning, living on, and on, and on. Some of our old Methodist brothers, I used to hear them get up and say: "I got religion away back here in Bush Arbor in 1866," and, so far as anybody knows, that was a complete record. That is not the kind of religion that you need in this world. The kind of religion that you have got to have is one that you live seven days in the week, helping you, and helping other men.

I don't think a man ought to proclaim his religion too much. I don't think he ought to hold his skirts about him as one fellow in the Bible said and say: "I thank God that I am not as other men." I think he ought to live such a life, and treat other people so that everybody will know that he has got religion. That is his having to stop and tell it. Everybody knows can tell about you and about me. A man writes his history every day, and publishes it every day. It is like one of these continued stories running in the paper.

Once in a while, some fellow writes his autobiography, or some fellow writes for him his biography. Then for the ordinary man, living in the neighborhood he lives, biography is written each day to day and is known of all men.

Now we can't [illegible] be as great as Abraham, but we can follow in his footsteps, live up to his great example, become, as he was, the friend of God; and, the best way to become the friend of God is to become the friend of men.
