Prince Sihanouk

Plea debated

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Cambodian Prince Norodom Sihanouk attacked the Soviet bloc Friday and pleaded with the Security Council to approve a Chinese resolution condemning the Vietnamese invasion of Cambodia.

His jabs at the Kremlin were in response to Soviet and Czechoslovak opposition to letting Sihanouk state his case before the council.

The 15 member council heard three hours of debate on Friday, the second day of the session on Cambodia, and then adjourned until 3 p.m. today.

Agent arrested

HOUSTON (AP) — A former Internal Revenue Service agent was indicted Friday by a federal grand jury on a charge of turning in false income tax returns.

The indictment against Donald F. Scott, 39, alleges he obtained Social Security numbers of three persons employed at a security firm and a cafeteria and turned in income tax returns claiming $10,776 in refunds. The indictment does not allege Scott received the refunds.

Grain purchased

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has bought an additional 625,000 metric tons of U.S. grain for delivery this year, the Agriculture Department said Friday.

Officials said the sales, reported by private export firms, included 400,000 metric tons of corn and 225,000 metric tons of wheat. A metric ton is 2,205 pounds.

Bill introduced

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A bill designed to lower prescription drug costs in Texas was introduced by a freshman state representative Friday, although similar legislation failed to pass the past two sessions.

The bill would allow consumers to buy a drug by its brand name or generic name, said Rep. Ted Lyon Jr., D-Mesquite.

Joblessness up for first time in five months

By MICHAEL DOAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The jobless rate edged up for the first time in five months in December, but 1978 overall was a year of strong employment gains, the Labor Department said Friday.

The unemployment rate increased from 5.8 to 5.9 percent last month because there were not enough new jobs to keep up with the number of people seeking work, the department said.

Total employment increased by 104,000, but the size of the work force, including those seeking jobs, increased by 239,000. The increase was the first since July, when the unemployment rate went up from 5.8 to 6.1 percent.

Secretary of Labor Ray Marshall said the "the unemployment picture is basically unchanged," but pointed to strong improvement over the course of the year.

The number of people holding jobs increased in 1978 by 3.3 million to 95.9 million. At the same time, the unemployment rate declined from 6.3 percent to 5.9 percent.

Marshall called the overall drop "a tremendous national accomplishment. We have been able to create new jobs for nearly 7.2 million more Americans, who are working and contributing their talents to our society."

He said most economists underestimated the administration's ability to reduce unemployment through job-creating programs.

However, many private economists predict unemployment will increase this year as the administration tightens its budget to counter inflation.

"I don't see any marked increase in unemployment," Marshall told reporters.

He said that as other countries' economies grow, the United States will export more products and that will create more jobs.

The department said the unemployment rate declined in 1978 for black and white workers and adult men and women. Out of the 3.3 million new jobs created, 2.1 million went to women.

owever, teen-age unemployment increased during the year, accounting for about one-fourth of the people looking for work.

Following are the unemployment rates for December compared with the rates a year earlier:

—White adult men 3.5 percent, down from 4 percent.

—White adult women 5.1 percent, down from 5.7 percent.

—Black adult men 8.4 percent, down from 8.9 percent.

—Black adult women 11.2 percent, down from 11.4 percent.

—Black teen-agers 34.9 percent, down from 38.3 percent.

—White teen-agers 14.2 percent, up from 12.6 percent.

The labor force — those with jobs or looking for work — grew by 2.8 million during 1978, slightly less than the growth in 1977, the department said.

The average work week in December was 35.8 hours, unchanged from November. Average hourly earnings increased by 0.7 percent in December and by 9.1 percent from a year earlier, about the same as the inflation rate.

When President Carter took office in January 1977, 7.8 percent of the work force was unemployed, and there were 7.5 million persons out of work, Marshall said. The total unemployed last month was about 6 million.

Passengers released; Hijackers holding crew

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — Four hijackers who seized an Air Tunis jetliner and forced it to land here twice released all 75 passengers early Saturday but held eight crew members as hostages.

The hijackers are demanding freedom for two purged Tunisian leaders. There was no immediate report on the condition of the passengers.

The Boeing 727 landed at Tripoli airport the first time to refuel, and after flying over Libya for two hours it returned early Saturday, airport authorities said.

Libya's JANA news agency said food was sent aboard the jet during the refueling stop. Then the plane took off at 1:10 a.m. — 6:10 p.m. EST Friday — after 5½ hours on the ground here. Airports throughout the area monitored messages seeking to locate the craft, but shortly after 3 a.m. it appeared over Tripoli again and came down for a landing. Airport sources said the plane never left Libyan air space.

JANA said the hijackers comandeered the jetliner after it had departed from Tunis, the capital of Tunisia, and demanded freedom for an imprisoned Tunisian labor leader and a former Tunisian foreign minister.

Air Tunis said the 75 passengers included 24 West German tourists heading for a vacation on the island of Djerba. Nationalities of the 51 other passengers were not available but many were believed to be Tunisians.

A Libyan radio report said the Tripoli airport control tower gave permission for the aircraft to land the first time when the pilot reported an emergency, and air controllers did not realize the plane had been hijacked until after it landed.

JANA reported the hijackers demanded freedom for labor leader Habib Achour and Mohammad Masmoudi, who once served as foreign minister under President for Life Habib Borguiba.

Tunisian sources said Masmoudi is not in jail but was barred from leaving the country after he returned about a year ago from self-exile pn Libya and France.

The Tunisian news agency TAP reported the hijackers first headed for the Mediterranean island of Malta, but Maltese authorities refused permission for the plane to land at Valletta airport and it then headed for Tripoli, the Libyan capital.

According to JANA, a hijacker who spoke with Libyan officials was told to either release the passengers or to leave after the plane was refueled.

According to an Air Tunis spokesman in Tunis, the flight had taken off from Frankfurt, West Germany, stopped in Tunis and was en route to the Mediterranean island of Djerba off the south coast of Tunisia.

Conflict in Cambodia won't last much longer, observers indicate

By DENIS D. GRAY

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vietnamese troops and tanks closed in Friday on the few Cambodian units still resisting the blitz by Vietnam and its Cambodian rebel proteges who sent the government fleeing for safety in the countryside or into exile.

Observers predicted the war would be over before Monday with the Vietnamese and the Cambodian rebels in control of the entire country.

Informed sources said Siem Reap and Battambang in northwestern Cambodia — the last reported areas of resistance by Cambodian troops — were either under attack or had fallen. Siem Reap is 140 miles northwest of Phnom Penh, and Battambang is 160 miles northwest of the capital.

Thai intelligence sources said Sisophon, 180 miles northwest of Phnom Penh, had fallen and that Vietnamese tanks were in pursuit of fleeing Cambodian troops on a 31-mile stretch of Highway 6 that leads to the Thai border.

Vietnamese planes bombed Battambang, Cambodia's second largest city, and its airfield, the sources said. It was not certain whether Siem Reap had been bypassed after sharp fighting or taken and whether the famous centuries-old temples of Angkor were already in Vietnamese hands.

Observers speculated that retreating troops of the ousted regime had chosen to take a stand at Siem Reap in order to hold onto Angkor, a symbol of Cambodian nationalism and pride.

As resistance crumbled, almost 400 defeated troops or suspected officials of the ousted regime fled the fighting and crossed into Thailand for transit to China, Cambodia's only ally.

Two Thai helicopters crossed the frontier Thursday and rescued former Deputy Premier Ieng Sary, his wife and daughter and seven other persons. They flew to Hong Kong from Bangkok and then crossed into China by motorcade Friday. Ieng Sary then flew to Peking. The fate of other ousted officials, including Premier Pol Pot and President Khieu Samphan, was not known.

Ieng Sary told The New York Times while en route to Hong Kong that the war was not over and troops loyal to the toppled regime would continue to fight and "win victory." He was quoted as saying Cambodian hatred for the Vietnamese was "even greater than that for the Americans" during the Indochina War.

The Times said Ieng Sary declined to reply when asked the whereabouts of Pol Pot but quoted him as saying Pol Pot was alive and intends to stay in Cambodia "for the moment."

"We do not have so big an army, but we have the people with us," Ieng Sary was quoted. "We will take the weapons we need from the Vietnamese."

Some of the refugees who crossed into Thailand Friday wore watches, a possible clue to their status since only officials of the toppled regime wore them. One soldier who escaped said he saw many dead Chinese during his escape. As many as 20,000 Chinese advisers had been in Cambodia and there was evidence some were still trapped in the country.

Rhodesia drafting new '50s forces'

By MAUREEN JOHNSON

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — White Rhodesian males aged 50-59 will be drafted into the country's hard-pressed military to free younger soldiers for combat duty in the growing guerrilla war, the government announced Friday.

The new draftees, many of whom are grandfathers, have been dubbed the "50s forces." They will serve in special urban guard units for up to six weeks a year.

The older men have been called up because of a recent increase in urban terrorist strikes, a government statement said.

The guerrillas are seeking their own version of black rule for Rhodesia, which is governed by a bi-racial administration that has promised eventual black majority rule.

On Thursday, Prime Minister Ian Smith told a white audience that the war-torn nation does not have enough troops to defend the country against the attacks and that the nation has little hope of long term survival without acceptance of black rule.

The new units will allow younger men now guarding seven major cities to go to rural areas, where the six-year-old war is mainly being fought.

Unofficial estimates indicate that up to 5,000 men would be liable to serve under the draft extension, but medical checks and other reasons for exemption could cut the numbers, sources said.

White, mixed race and Asian men between the ages of 18 and 49 must serve up to six months a year with the white-led security forces, although almost 80 percent of the regular Rhodesian forces are black volunteers.

The military and para-military units depend heavily on the primarily white 35,000 reservists who are called up periodically.

Observers say the callup extension was a setback for the 10-month-old biracial government's official policy of attempting to reduce the military commitment for whites.

This week, the first 1,544 blacks drafted into the security forces were to report for duty, but only 300 showed up.

About 1,085 whites were also drafted, but only two-thirds of that number reported. Military sources said the no-shows had probably left the country, where emigration of the white minority amounts to about 1,500 each month.

A constitutional agreement reached by Smith and three moderate black leaders last March promised black majority rule by April.

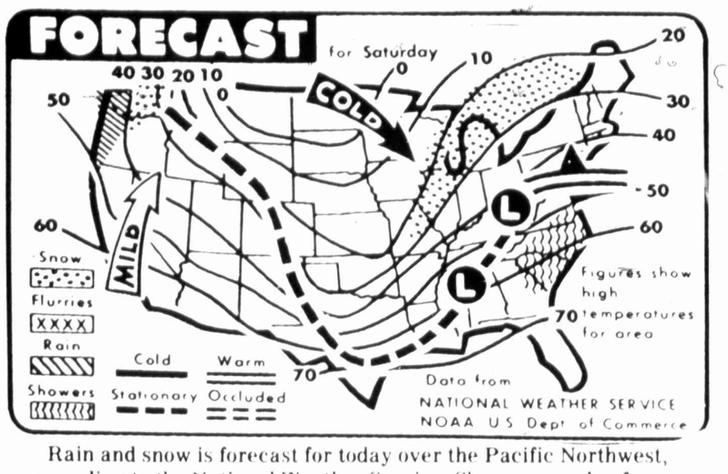

The agreement was not accepted by guerrilla groups, who have vowed to wreck upcoming elections.

The first of the "50s forces" to be drafted will include those men who have just reached 50 and have previously served in the security forces, the statement said.

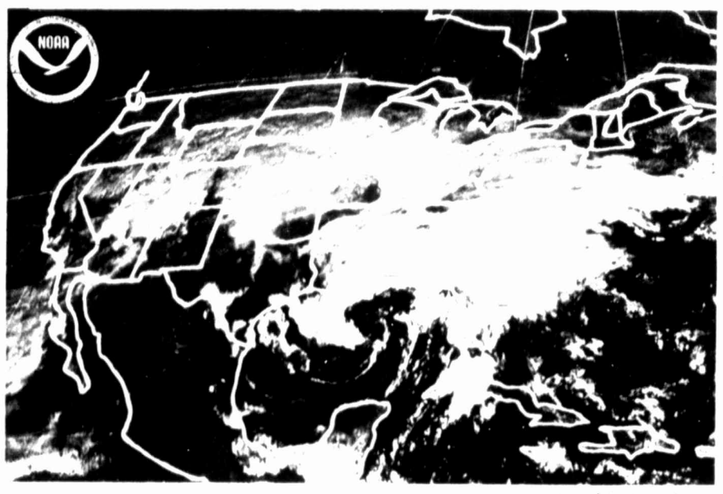

The government also appealed to white Rhodesian men over 59 without military background to volunteer as police reservists. The statement said there would be compulsory registration for them, if necessary.

A spokesman quoted in the statement said many men and women over 50 served as military volunteers stationed at roadblocks and as police patrols in suburbs.

Iranian universities to reopen

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The Iranian government took a step toward returning the strife-torn country to normalcy Friday by announcing that six institutions of higher learning, including Tehran University, would reopen Saturday for the first time since June.

The university has been a center of anti government agitation in the year of civil unrest aimed at toppling Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi. Iranian state radio appealed to students to cooperate with the government and refrain from organizing the violent demonstrations.

Meanwhile, gangs of anti-shah protesters marched through Shiraz, 275 miles south of Tehran, as imperial troops withdrew and allowed the demonstrators to pour through the streets. The state radio said there were other disturbances "throughout the country" but gave no details.

Civil police in Shiraz said in a telephone interview that hundreds of youths chanted anti-shah slogans but their march remained generally peaceful.

The officials said the protest was smaller than Thursday's when the state radio said six persons were killed as demonstrators attacked the headquarters of SAVAK, the shah's secret police.

Moslem religious leaders in the city appealed to their followers to respect life and property.

The capital, Tehran, was generally quiet except for a few scattered street corner demonstrations. One foreign reporter said he saw one group of youths set fire to a store.

Thousands of residents of Tehran took a holiday Friday, the Moslem holy day, and traveled to parks and ski slopes in the Alborz mountains.

Political observers said they hoped a decrease in violence and the anticipated departure of the shah will give the new civilian government under Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar a chance to salvage Iran from political and economic chaos.

Nine arrested for burglary, drugs

Nine people were arrested Friday night in connection with a burglary at the Continental Bar Thursday and possession of substances thought by officers to be cocaine and hash.

Midland County sheriff's office personnel made the arrests after serving a search warrant about 9:30 p.m. Friday at 1411 Missouri Ave. to search for items taken in the burglary, according to a spokesman for the department.

They recovered all the liquor, beer, glasses and other material reported taken from the bar, the officer said. They also discovered the substances believed by officers to be cocaine and hashish, the spokesman said.

Value for all the items recovered was estimated by officers to be between $4,000 and $5,000.

Other officers on the scene were from the Midland Police Department, Department of Public Safety and the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission.

Officers also confiscated five sheets of photocopied dollar bills, the spokesman said.

The nine arrested were being charged before Justice of the Peace Robert Pine late Friday.

Security extensive for Chaparral Center

Operations of security, law-enforcement and crowd control for activities at Chaparral Center are extensive, according to Midland College officials.

"Although Chaparral Center is a public meeting facility, it is located on a state-supported college campus and, as such, comes under strict regulations," a college spokesman said.

"It is illegal to possess or consume any alcoholic beverage or controlled substance anywhere on the campus. This includes not just Chaparral Center, but all campus buildings, the parking lots and grounds of the campus."

For public entertainment events which draw large crowds to Chaparral Center, both the promoters and Chaparral Center management insist on having uniformed police on duty both inside and outside the building.

For a major concert, such as the Ted Nugent Show scheduled for this evening, there will be at least 20 uniformed Midland police officers as security, MC officials said. These are off-duty officers who are paid for their time.

In addition, there will be more than a dozen "T-Shirt Patrol" personnel at Chaparral Center for additional security and crowd control, officials noted.

"It is our intention to cooperate fully with the laws of the state of Texas and with all local law enforcement agencies at all times at Midland College, whether it involves an activity at Chaparral Center or any of the other campus facilities," the college spokesman declared.

Midland Police Chief Wayne Gideon also said recently he intends to see that all laws are enforced on the Midland College campus, as well as elsewhere in the community.

"We are charged with upholding and enforcing the law, and we will use all the facilities and personnel available to us to carry out this duty. This specifically includes seeing that alcoholic beverages and controlled substances are not possessed or consumed at Midland College, where they are expressly forbidden," Gideon said.

The off-duty police and other persons hired for security purposes are paid by the entertainment promoter of touring shows, the college spokesman said. For locally-sponsored events, such as Midland College basketball games, security personnel are paid by Chaparral Center.

"We want Chaparral Center to continue to be a place for Midlanders and residents of the Permian Basin to come and enjoy the finest in community entertainment and cultural activities," the college spokesman continued. "However, we will not allow or condone the use of any alcoholic beverage or controlled substance in violation of state law or campus policy. Violaters will be arrested and prosecuted to the full extent of the law. In this manner Midland College is very firm, feeling that Chaparral Center is a community facility that should be completely within the law."

Crowd control is a major concern for visiting entertainers, observed the spokesman. Very often, the contract will specify not just the security personnel, but security in and around the stage area, and security precautions which are necessary for dressing rooms and parking areas.

Forecast calling for warmer weather

Midlanders can look forward to warmer tomorrows despite predicted chilly todays, the weatherman said.

Today should be partly cloudy and colder, according to the National Weather Service office at Midland Regional Airport. Predicted high today is the mid-40s, with tonight's low nipping into the mid-20s.

Sunday, however, should produce warmer weather with a high near 50.

Winds today should be from the north at 15 to 20 mph.

The on-again, off-again warming trend kept Basin residents guessing Friday as most area towns reported fair and warm weather.

With no mention of rain in the forecast, the month's and year's total of .06 inches of precipitation is not likely to change.

Record high for today is 77 degrees set in 1957. Record low is a chilly 7 degrees set in 1964.

Huge gas, dust cloud may halt expansion of universe

By HOWARD BENEDICT

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. space satellite has discovered that the universe is enveloped in a cloud of gas and dust so massive that its weight may halt the universe from expanding and cause it to fall back in on itself.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said that if all the matter in the cloud were assembled the mass would be equal to a million-billion suns.

That, the agency said, might be sufficient to "close the universe — to preclude its expanding forever." It added that millions of years might pass before that happens.

Scientists long have pondered whether the universe had enough mass so that its own gravity ultimately would stop its expansion and that it perhaps would begin contracting. Previous calculations showed the known universe did not contain enough mass to do that, but NASA said the gas-and-dust cloud discovery might be the answer.

NASA said discovery of the cloud was a major achievement of the High Energy Astronomy Observatory satellite, known as HEAO-1, which stopped transmitting this week after 17 productive months. The agency said the satellite finally ran out of propellant for its attitude control rockets after sending data for 11 months beyond its planned lifetime.

It gathered knowledge, NASA said, that "may bring fundamental changes in our concept of the universe."

The satellite's instruments recorded gamma and cosmic rays and high energy X-rays emitted by some of the most intriguing mysteries in the universe — pulsars, quasars, exploding galaxies and black holes.

The satellite very early began detecting large amounts of high energy X-ray background radiation emitted by hot gas in intergalactic space — gas that previously was not known to exist.

Continued study of the gas showed that it may have more mass than the mass of all the universe that was known until now, NASA said.

HEAO-1 also discovered nearly 1,200 new sources of powerful X-rays as far out as "halfway to the edge of the universe." That more than triples the number of known X-ray sources in space.

The satellite also located a new black hole candidate near the constellation Scorpius, raising the known total of possible black holes to four. A black hole, in theory, is a massive star that has died and collapsed inward, with its intense gravitational pull sucking in matter with such force that not even light can escape.

HEAO-1 is expected to reenter the atmosphere and burn up in March. But its work is being continued by HEAO-2, launched last November. A third satellite in the series is to be sent into orbit next September.

Escapee returned to Odessa jail

ODESSA — A man sought by Ector County Sheriff's Department for almost 15 months was back in jail here Friday.

Stanley Price Perrin, 24, was brought back to Odessa Friday by three sheriff's deputies who recaputed him in Holliday near Wichita Falls after a stake-out of a mobile home there, according to a spokesman for the Sheriff's Department.

Perrin had been assessed a 14-year prison term for burglary before his escape from the county facility.

The stake-out was the result of information from an informant, the sheriff's office spokesman said.

Court rejects royalty move

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong says Texas' income from oil and gas royalties will not be significantly affected by a recent federal court ruling.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals rejected last Thursday an effort by Armstrong to increase the state revenues by taking the state's royalty gas in kind instead of in cash.

"At the time we began taking our state royalties in-kind instead of in cash several years aog, the purpose was to sell our in-kind gas in Texas for the higher prices being paid on the intrastate gas market," Armstrong said in a statement.

"An additional benefit was that Texans could use their own gas if we took our royalties in-kind rather than in cash."

Now, he said, the new Federal Energy Act has closed the gap between the higher prices on the intrastate market and the lower prices for gas sold on the interstate market.

"That means there's no potential now for us to increase our royalty income by taking our gas royalty in-kind since gas is selling for the same price on the interstate market as is on the instrastate market," he said.

Armstrong said that state royalties from oil and gas on state lands have increased about 40 percent a year.

Davis witness sticks to story

By ROB WOOD

HOUSTON (AP) — A golfing instructor insisted Friday, despite piercing cross-examination, that he met with FBI informant David McCrory last summer and was offered money to call Fort Worth millionaire Cullen Davis and impersonate a police officer.

Harold Sexton, 47, stayed with his story that he saw McCrory, the state's chief witness in the murder conspiracy trial of Davis, at a Sambo's restaurant along U.S. Highway 80 between Fort Worth and Arlington.

In testimony last week, Sexton said the chance meeting was in late July or early August at the restaurant on East Lancaster Street in Fort Worth.

But Sambo's restaurant was closed by fire on May 25 and did not re-open until September.

Under questioning by defense attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, Sexton said he knew of only one Sambo's restaurant on the highway between Fort Worth and Arlington.

There is one Sambo's restaurant in Fort Worth and another in Arlington.

The Highway 80 route in Arlington is called Division Street and in Fort Worth it becomes East Lancaster.

Prosecutor Tolly Wilson, his face red and his voice booming, asked Sexton, "Didn't you learn since your earlier testimony that the Sambo's resturant burned down in May and did not open again until September?"

Sexton answered, "No, I didn't."

Wilson then asked Sexton if he was not changing his earlier testimony concerning McCrory, and the husky, silver-haired witness answered, "I am saying, yes, I met David McCrory in Sambo's on Highway 80. I am telling this court I met David."

Sexton, who testified he grew up in Arlington, said he really never knew the city limit line between the two cties, nor did he know when Division Street turned into East Lancaster.

Wilson, obviously angry, slapped the table and said, "If you tried to float this before a jury in Fort Worth, they would laugh you out of the courtroom."

Sexton replied, "I've been laughed at before."

The witness said he couldn't remember any other structures around Sambo's, but "I turned left into the restaurant."

The prosecution pointed out repeatedly that the East Lancaster address had been mentioned frequently in earlier testimony and that Sexton had made no move to correct. At one point, Sexton said the restaurant, "was on Division, Highway 80, Lancaster, hell, they all run together."

During the meeting with McCrory, Sexton said he apparently had left the impression that his financial condition was not in the best shape.

It was then, Sexton testified, that McCrory made this remark:

"We need someone to place a phone call to Cullen and represent himself as a police officer."

The Sexton testimony is only another of the strange turns and twists in this case, now in the 11th week of testimony. One witness already has been arrested on charges of aggravated perjury. The testimony of another witness possibly will be considered by the grand jury and there is contradictory testimony as to whether a defense witness and a prosecution witness are married to each other.

Davis, 45, is accused of soliciting the murder of Fort Worth Judge Joe Eidson, who once presided over the defendant's bitter, ongoing divorce case.

The defense has argued that Davis was framed by his estranged wife, Priscilla, McCrory, 40, and others.

The Associated Press confirmed reports that the manager of the Sambo's restaurant, Keith Kantor, was in Houston to testify at the trial. Sources said Kantor would testify that the restaurant was heavily damaged by fire in May and it did not reopen until September.

Flaws in lobby laws revealed

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN—Lobbyists are an ever-present influence on the Legislature, but the law which regulates them is a now-you-see-it, now-you-don't affair that combines the strictest registration requirements in the country with some of the weakest enforcement powers.

At the end of December, there were 763 lobbyists registered with the Secretary of State's office, a number that will swell to over 3,000 by the middle of the legislative session because of easily triggered registration requirements.

"Anyone reimbursed for speaking to their legislator has to register," says Terry Goodman of the Secretary of State's Enforcement Division.

"If a citizen rides a bus to Austin to speak with his or her representative and someone else pays the fare, the citizen must register or risk a $2,000 fine or a year in prison or both."

The result of the broad definition of lobbyists has been a flood of ordinary citizens registering during their one and only trip to Austin and then forgetting to comply with quarterly expense reporting requirements of the law.

Last fall, the Secretary of State's office forwarded the names of 122 lobbyists who had failed to file the required reports to the Attorney-General and Travis County Attorney James McMurtry.

Most of the violators represented small, defunct grass-roots lobbying efforts and were not the fulltime, professional lobbyists who were the intended subjects of the law when it was passed in 1972.

When McMurtry received the names and even more serious defect in the law was revealed.

McMurtry told Secretary of State Steve Oakes that he could not prosecute without a formal complaint Oakes responded that while the lobby law required him to forward names, it did not authorize him to file complaints.

the only clean enforcement authority in the law rests with private citizens who are not likely to make a special trip to Austin to review quarterly lobby reports in detail.

Goodman says that not even her office does that. According to Goodman, the Secretary of State must receive the reports, but is not obligated to review them and because of the large number filed, does not.

Brother Billy's in trouble again

By WILLIAM E. SCHULZ

ATLANTA (AP) — Billy Carter, a beer-guzzling gasoline dealer who's made a habit of making people boil since his brother became president, is in hot water again.

This time he's upset Jews and a national Republican Party leader with purportedly ani-Semitic remarks made during a visit by members of a Libyan delegation, who are in the United States as his guest.

No one seems immune from brother Billy's wit. His targets have included the Carter family, the White House staff and even himself.

He called his cousin, Hugh Carter, "a self-made son-of-a-bitch" after the Georgia state senator wrote about the family, and suggested Hugh belonged in a mental hospital.

Apparently his current troubles do not mark the first time Billy's devil-may-care blend of humor and folk commentary has descended into the minefield of anti-Semitic comment.

AT A BANQUET in Georgia, he said he thought Atlanta Braves pitcher Phil Niekro, the guest of honor, was a "bastardized Jew." He also called him "a Polack."

Billy burst onto the national stage when he left the family peanut business to help brother Jimmy in his 1976 presidential campaign.

"There were about 100 reporters in Plains, sitting down there with nothing to do, trying to cook up stories, and that's how it got started," he said last fall while filming a television movie in California.

After the election and an unsuccessful campaign for mayor of Plains, the president's home town, Billy went on the road as a professional entertainer, reportedly commanding $5,000 or more for appearances.

"I think that most of the things I do tend to offset the image he (the president) has — you know, his position, the religion. I think it gives people the idea that we're just a regular family like everyone else. Besides, there's a black sheep in every family," he said.

HIS ANTICS SOMETIMES might seem to more appropriate for a court jester than a member of America's first family.

Billy judged the third annual World Bellyflop and Cannonball Diving Championships in British Columbia, where he jumped, fully clothed, into a swimming pool — a rose in his teeth and a beer in his hand.

The beer can is his trademark, and a Louisville, Ky., brewery named a new beer for Billy. It was, the label said, "Brewed especially for and with the approval of one of America's all-time great beer drinkers, Billy Carter." But it was a commercial flop.

Last September, Billy visited Libya, where terrorists who killed members of Israel's 1972 Olympic team gad been welcomed as heroes.

When he served as host for the Libyans on a return visit this week, he called them "the best friends I've had in my life."

AT A GEORGIA PRESS conference, Billy was quoted as saying, in urging friendlier U.S. relations with Libya, that "there's a hell of a lot more Arabians than Jews."

It was the final straw for the Atlanta Journal. "The Joke is Over," the newspaper said.

"Billy Carter isn't funny any more. In fact, he's not even just embarrassing any more. He's getting downright dangerous," the Journal said in its lead editorial on Wednesday.

Jewish groups condemned the remarks as "irresponsible, boorish and despicable," and Republican National Chairman Bill Brock said Billy is bigoted and urged President Carter to disavow the statements.

"Mr. Brock is trying to run for president and I think he's full of ----," Billy said at a news conference Thursday. He said his comments were "not intended to be anti-Semitic."

Ironically, one of the first to respond from the White House was press secretary Jody Powell, who Billy said in a recent Penthouse magazine interview "would be better off running a farm."

Said Powell: "Billy is a private citizen. He doesn't make foreign policy for the United States, nor is he, as far as I know, an official or unofficial adviser to the president in that regard."

AND POWELL ADDED: "As far as any remarks that might be anti-Semitic, it is clear that doesn't represent the president's view."

"Ain't no way I could drink as much as they say I do," Billy said once. "Maybe some days I do smoke six packs of cigarettes. Some days maybe I drink 20 to 25 beers — but not every day."

"I've run a business for the last seven years that grosses about $10 million a year," he said. "I'm a damn good businessman."

Postal Service workers angered by foulups delivering paychecks

By JEFFREY MILLS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service, which boasts about its record in delivering mail on time, is angering its employees by widespread foulups in delivering their paychecks.

The national board of the American Postal Workers Union, citing the delivery problem, called Friday for the resignation of Postmaster General William F. Bolger. Board members, consisting of local leaders from around the country, swapped tales of payroll foulups at a meeting here.

The Postal Service had no immediate reaction to the call for Bolger's resignation.

"Some postal workers have literally gone weeks and even months receiving only partial payments or none at all," Emmet Andrews, union president, wrote in a recent editorial in the APWU magazine.

"One of our younger national officers was recently 'retired' by the computer and then 'reinstated' several days later. Another received an incomprehensible 'adjustment' check for 1 cent," Andrews said.

Union spokesman Stan Allen said, "According to our investigation, as many as 300,000 pay adjustments are pending in postal data centers. The foulups involve as much as $100,000."

Because of "systems problems" in Postal Service computer centers, many employees have had to settle for payment of 70 percent of their salary, union officials say. This payment is based on the estimate that tax and other deductions would amount to about 30 percent if it could be figured out. These workers have been promised the exact payment later.

The union members say they have no way to fill out their income tax returns without W-2 forms or any other way of knowing exactly what their tax deductions for 1978 were.

The problems began last spring when the Postal Service altered its payroll system to meet the requirements of the Fair Labor Standards Act.

The change was made necessary by a court ruling that the agency had violated the law in its way of computing overtime pay. The Postal Service was ordered to revamp the system and also to calculate retroactive pay for the previous four years for each of its employees.

Since the mail agency has one of the largest payrolls in the nation — nearly 650,000 employees — this was a major task. Postal unions charge that management did not assign enough people to the task, and that this taxed too heavily the capabiliity of the computers and created a large backlog.

Postal officials have stressed the enormity of the revisions necessary.

Women's groups attack rape charge dismissal

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) — Leaders of three women's groups on Friday denounced a judge who dismissed an attempted rape charge after saying, "If women want the protection of the law, they should quit trolling taverns."

In a non-jury case, Allen Circuit Judge Herman F. Busse on Wednesday dismissed the rape charge against Stephen J. Hanick Jr., 36, of Fort Wayne. The judge found Hanick guilty of a lesser charge of battery on Melody Lehman, 27, of Fort Wayne.

Testimony showed that Mrs. Lehman had known Hanick about three or four months when she accepted a ride home with him from a bar Jan. 6, 1978. Mrs. Lehman said Hanick told her he wanted to stop by his residence to pick up something before taking her home.

She went inside at Hanick's suggestion because it was cold, and the two talked for a while and kissed, the woman testified. She said Hanick then pulled her onto the bed, tore her clothes and threatened to hit her while trying to assault her.

Hanick testified that Mrs. Lehman had permitted him to remove part of her clothing and then went berserk. The clothes were torn while he tried to control her, Hanick said.

In issuing his verdict, Busse compared women who visit bars to meet men as "trolling, trying to get a fish on the end of a hook ... It's like baiting a hook and trying to walk away from it."

He noted that Mrs. Lehman and a friend visited four different bars the night of the alleged assault and said: "Here's a gal with three children out at 3 a.m. She was not concerned about her kids."

Mrs. Lehman said Busse "degraded me with his comments," adding, "As far as I'm concerned, Busse has no right to be on the bench at all."

Joan Uebelhoer, coordinator of a group called Fort Wayne Feminists, said: "I am angered and frightened by Busse's behavior. His comments show why women are afraid to pursue rape cases."

Melissa Ritchie of the city's Rape Crisis Center said her reaction to the verdict and comments was "disgust, rage and frustration." She said women have worked for years to dispel myths about rape, but "this man (Busse) in one fell swoop has just undone all that work."

Karen Bojrab of the Fort Wayne Women's Bureau said, "We have a judge with a rapist mentality (that) women are all asking for it."

State Hospital may receive budget increase

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Big Spring State Hospital will get a 10 percent budget increase over the next two years if legislators adopt a preliminary recommendation made by the Legislative Budget Board.

The LBB recommendation, which serves as a starting point for legislative debate over state budget levels for the next two years, is $20 million, $6 million less than the hospital had requested.

The proposed budget level would require the elimination of 68 jobs.

Outgoing Gov. Dolph Briscoe's budget, not nearly as important in the appropriations process as the LBB budget, recommends a $18.9 million funding level.

The LBB also recommended a 4.5 percent budget increase for the West Texas Children's Home which will require the layoff of three persons.

Rogers named to commission

AUSTIN — Bill J. Rogers of Midland was named Friday to the Texas Motor Vehicle Commission for a term to expire Sept. 1, 1983, Governor Dolph Briscoe's office announced.

North America sets new December snow record

WASHINGTON (AP) — In case you hadn't noticed, the National Weather Service reported Friday that North America set a record for snow cover in December.

Snow covered a greater portion of North America last month than during any previous December in the 13 years that such records have been kept, officials said.

The snow, chiefly in the West and Midwest, extended as far south as northern Mexico, said Donald R. Wiesnet of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

Dr. Irwin Bross, a Buffalo, N.Y., bio-statistician participating in a government-finded study of radiation-induced cancer deaths, Friday accused federal health officials of attempting to cover up the study. (AP Laserphoto)

Cover-up of nuclear study charged

By ANDREW SCHNEIDER

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — A scientist assigned by Congress to aid in an investigation of radiation-induced cancer deaths at nuclear shipyards accused federal health officials on Friday of trying to cover up the inquiry.

"We clearly appear to be in the middle of an attempt to create a serious cover-up," Dr. Erwin Bross told The Associated Press. "I thought it might be happening, but I didn't get the documentary evidence until a couple of days ago."

Bross, a bio-statistician from Buffalo, N.Y., is one of nine scientists asked by Congress to ensure the accuracy and impartiality of a Center for Disease Control study of health problems among nuclear workers at eight military and civilian shipyards.

His charges surfaced one day after the disclosure that Dr. Thomas Mancuso, a leading radiation health detective from Pittsburgh, had dropped out of the program because the government refused to give him full access to Navy records.

The disease center's study was prompted by research by a Boston hematologist, Dr. Thomas Najarian, which indicated that nuclear workers at the Portsmouth Naval Shipyard in Kittery, Maine, were dying of cancer at a rate six times higher than non-nuclear workers. Nuclear workers are defined as those whose job puts them in contact with radioactive material.

Bross' charges of a cover-up focus on the center's alleged failure to follow its mandate that the inquiry be free from government influence.

"The investigation has been stalled at every turn and the team of non-governmental experts that Congress ordered to watchdog the study has been stacked with pro-government people," he said.

"CDC and the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health have been lying..., to Congress, to shipyard union leaders, to everyone," he said.

Bross said he had information to document his charges and would present it later.

Other shipyards involved in the study are located in Norfolk and Newport News, Va.; Puget Sound, Wash.; Charleston, S.C.; Mare Island, Calif.; Pearl Harbor, Hawaii; Groton, Conn., and Pascagoula, Miss.

Philip Bierbaum, director of the disease center project, said he believed Bross misunderstood "a great deal" about the complexity of the investigation, which he said would not be finished until 1982.

Focus on 'one China' popular as reunification progresses

By EDITH M. LEDERER

HONG KONG (AP) — At forums, festivals and tea parties across China, local government organizations are calling for the speedy reunification of Taiwan with the mainland.

The message of the grass-roots propaganda campaign is that the establishment of diplomatic relations between Peking and Washington produced the "opportune moment" for reunification.

Dozens of former officials of Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist government on Taiwan have appealed to Chiang's son, Nationalist President Chiang Ching-kuo, "to discard past grudges and return to the motherland."

The campaign to drum up support for reunification among China's 800 million people is being waged at a time when Peking is redefining — with some startling surprises — what it sees as its future relationshipwith Taiwan's 17 million residents.

Chinese Deputy Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping has astonished China watchers in the past week with pronouncements that he hopes reunification can be achieved this yearEand that Taiwan will be allowed to retain its capitalist economic system, current government and armed forces after reunification.

The Nationalists have rejected all offers from Peking to establish postal, transportation and trade links — dismissing them as "a communist trap." Prime Minister Y.S. Sun urged Peking to "face reality by rejecting Marxism-Leninism, abolishing communist dictatorship and protecting human rights."

The opening salvo in the reunification campaign came Dec. 22 — a week after the surprise announcement that the United States and China would establish full relations on the first day of 1979.

In the final communique of a Chinese Communist Party meeting, China's top leadership said normalization "further places before us the prospect of the return of our sacred territory Taiwan to the embrace of our motherland and the accomplishment of the great cause of reunification."

In the three weeks since the communique was issued, the same theme has been repeated by Taiwanese now living on the mainland, military figures, ranking Communist Party officials and what one broadcast described as "people from all walks of life."

The reunification appeals have been widely disseminated in the Chinese press and provincial broadcasts. On New Year's Eve, Chinese television showed a documentary entitled "Scenery in Taiwan."

At a typical forum sponsored by the Kiangsi Communist Party and broadcast over the radio, provincial counsellor and noted sportsman Chang Yu-ling said: "Since my change of heart 30 years ago, the party and the government have shown meticulous concern for my work and livelihood. I hope that my old friends and old colleagues who are now in Taiwan will recovnize the situation and suit their actions to the times. I also hope that the Taiwan authorities will place national interests paramount, discard old grudges, make prompt decisions at the right moment and make valuable contributions to accomplishing the great cause of the unification of the motherland."

Another pitch purportedly was made by a group of ex-Nationalist army officers who were quoted by China's domestic news agency as saying Taiwan could save money on imported oil after reunification because "petroleum resources are rich on the mainland."

Texans still not working

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) — Local issues kept nearly 3,500 oil and chemical workers off their jobs Friday despite a contract agreement between Gulf Oil Corp. and the bargaining committee of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers union.

Larry LeBouef, chairman of the 150-member Gulf office workers group of OCAW Local 4-23, said the issues revolved around job security, including transfer of work and performance of craft work by supervisors.

LeBouef said no further talks were scheduled. "We expect a meeting, possibly for clarifications of the new, two-year contract."

About 3,000 of the idled work force are employees of Gulf's large refinery complex here. The other striking OCAW workers are at a nearby Atlantic-Richfield polymers plant.

Gulf spokesman Jim Gatten said that normally, efforts are made to have local issues settled by the time national issues are agreed upon. "That isn't the case this time," Gatten said.

He said that under the circumstances, the 3,000 workers at the refinery could approve the contract and still remain idle because of the strike by the clerks. "This will be up to the union membership," he said.

The Gulf agreement sparked little reaction from other major oil companies in Texas.

A spokesman for Houston-based Shell Oil said, "We are aware of the specifics of the Gulf and Amoco offer and are presently studying it."

The Gulf contract could serve as a model for others involving 50,000 workers nationwide.

U.S., Turkey agree on prisoner exchange

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Turkey have agreed on a treaty that will allow Americans in Turkish jails to be returned home, the State Department announced Friday.

Department spokesman Hodding Carter said five Americans are in jail in Turkey, all for drug-related offenses. Officials said they did not know how many Turks are in U.S. prisons.

Carter told reporters that a series of steps remain before the Americans can be released. The agreement was reached on the visit this week of Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher to Ankara.

A formal prisoner-exchange treaty must still be ratified of the kind that the United States already has with Canada, Mexico and Bolivia. Another such treaty was signed with Panama on Thursday.

Americans in Turkish jails will be returned to the custody of the U.S. attorney general, Carter said. Each will get a review of his case by a parole commission to determine how much longer he will have to serve in this country.

Carter said representatives of the United States, Britain, France and West Germany will meet in Bonn next week or the week after to discuss Turkey's critical economic problems.

He said no sum has been agreed internationally on aid for Turkey but that U.S. help would amount to some $300 million.

BRIDGE

Mysterious finesse just correct bridge

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

"What is the right way to tell a player to keep his eyes on his own cards?" a correspondent asks. "One of the players in our regular game wins all the time, often by taking strange finesses that no honest player could possibly try."

"The crook won the first spade in dummy and led a diamond. I played the eight and almost fell out of my chair when our friend took a finesse with the nine!

"He won the first 10 tricks and never even blushed over that weird diamond finesse. What would you say to a man like that?"

I would say: "Congratulations! Beautifully played!"

If declarer plays the ace and king of diamonds he must then give up a diamond to the queen. Back comes a heart, and the defenders take five heart tricks.

AVOIDS DISASTER

South must avoid this disaster by keeping East out of the lead. If the weird finesse with the nine of diamonds loses, only two diamonds will be left; and South can later pick them up with the ace and king. If the nine of diamonds wins, so much the better.

Don't complain about a mysterious finesse. It may simply be the right play.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with the one heart, and the next player passes. You hold: S-42; H-QJ1093; D-Q108; C-983. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two hearts. Despite your excellent support for the heart suit itself you aren't strong enough for a jump to four hearts.

Inventions make jobs for people

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two inventions patented in November helped create new industries that employed hundreds of men and women, according to a study by Intellectual Property Owners, Inc. (IPO), a non-profit group dedicated to preserving the patent system as an incentive to innovation and creativity.

The first clock factory in the nation was founded in 1800 when Eli Terry switched from making hand-crafted clocks to mass production by using water power to drive his machines. This method helped him turn out 10 to 20 clocks at a time.

Some 100 years later, on Nov. 11, 1930, Nobel physicist Albert Einstein and Leo Szilard obtained a patent for producing refrigeration. This led to the first gas refrigeration system produced in the United States.

The Christian religion and the English language have one great thing in common. They let us grow at our own pace.

Take the word CARE in our language. If you want, it simply means being aware of another person's problems. Or it can mean devoting one's skill and concern to the well-being of another. Or it can mean feeling and understanding for another with whom we share life's opportunities and frustrations.

Our religion, like our language, allows time for us all to grow. It recognizes that caring for one another is just one of the areas in which it takes folks a while to appreciate our dependence on each other—and on God.

One thing is sure. At every level of human experience we learn to care for one another because God cares for us.

Worldwide Church of God has distinctive doctrines

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religious Writer

The Worldwide Church of God, beset by recent turmoil and last week put under temporary state receivership after California's attorney general accused its top officers of large-scale pilfering of church assets, has its own distinctive brand of doctrines.

They differ in many ways from historic Christian teachings of mainline churches.

The church's founder and still its ruling head, 86-year-old Herbert W. Armstrong, an advertising man who became a radio preacher in the late 1920s, devised the church's special code of beliefs, holding that it is the "one true church" and that he is the only true apostle since the first century.

Other churches were renounced as false and corrupt.

On some occasions, Armstrong has set dates for Christ's second coming at the end of the world, but has withdrawn the predictions when the time approached and they didn't take place.

The apocalyptic forecasts, the latest for 1975, sometimes reportedly have influenced followers to ignore planning or saving for this present life.

The church originally was called the "Radio Church of God," but its corporate name was changed to the present one in 1968. Unlike most Christians, the church's members observe Saturday as the sabbath and adhere to Old Testament dietary laws.

Armstrong held that the Anglo-Saxons of England and the United States, not the Jews, are the "true Israelites" who would come into the heritage of Abraham.

This teaching lately "has been de-emphasized but not repudiated," writes the Rev. Joseph Martin Hopkins, a New Wilmington, Pa., religion professor who has done special studies of the California-based church.

Hopkins, in a recent article in the fortnightly Christianity Today, notes that several of the church's teachings have been modified in recent times, including its new policy of admitting outsiders to services.

Voting in political elections, formerly condemned, was removed from the "sin" category in 1976.

The church also abandoned in 1974 its requirement that divorced, remarried persons who join the church must break up their second marriages, which were branded adulterous.

The church opposes medical surgery, except for "repair," as Armstrong phrased it, of setting broken bones and suturing wounds, teaching dependence on God for healing.

Rejecting traditional Christian concepts of the divine trinity, the oneness of Father, Son and Holy Spirit, the church teaches there is a God and his son, Jesus.

The church's large-for-its-size income of about $70 million a year comes mostly from its 70,000 members who are required to tithe — contribute 10 percent of their annual income to the church.

The church also urges a "second tithe"' of another 10 percent in addition, and a "third tithe"' every three and a half years for "widows and orphans."

Hopkins says the "'multiple tithes" often imposed heavy burdens on low-income members, but church officials say there recently has been less insistence on "second" and "third" tithes.

Pope John Paul II makes indirect assault on U.S. — Soviet conflicts

By SAMUEL KOO

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II on Friday indirectly accused the United States and the Soviet Union of exploiting regional conflicts "to ensure power over the world."

The Polish-born pontiff, speaking in French in an address to the diplomatic corps,, expressed particular concern over the turmoil in Iran and the Vietnamese conquest of Cambodia.

Although he did not single out individual countries, it was clear he was referring to superpower rivalry when he said the world is split "by ideological divisions linked to various state systems."

"We follow the dramatic events of Iran and we are very attentive to the news from Cambodia and all the populations of Southeast Asia who have already been so tried," the pope said.

The United States has backed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi in Iran and has warned foreign governments not to interfere in that country's internal problems. Russia backs the Vietnamese and the Cambodian rebels who ousted the Cambodian regime last weekend.

"One cannot transform a search for solutions into a fighting program to insure power over the world," the pope said. "Searching for justice is the main sign of our times."

He listed respect for human rights as the biggest world problem and said it requires "concerted action by governments and all men of good will."

The pope called for a global effort to deal with the problems of nourishment, health, international economic cooperation, arms reduction and the elimination of racism.

The 58-year-old pontiff again expressed concern for Lebanon — "a country torn by hatred and destruction" — Northern Ireland and the Middle East.

Vatican observers said the papal statements also appeared to be aimed at the upcoming Latin American bishops conference in Puebla, Mexico, where the pope is likely to face challenges from those advocating the Marxist-influenced "theology of liberation."

More than 250 bishops from the world's most overwhelmingly Roman Catholic countries are expected to attend the two-week conference to be opened by the pope Jan. 27. The theme is: "Evangelization in the Present and the Future of Latin America."

The pope said the Vatican's mediation effort to defuse a long-running feud between Argentina and Chile has "already achieved positive and precious result." The Argentine-Chilean dispute involves owernship of 10 islands in the Beagle Channel and 48,000 square miles of ocean around them off the tip of South America. Both countries put their forces on alert last year when mediators failed to find a solution.

In an obvious reference to the communist world, including his native Poland, the pope appealed for greater religious freedom.

Rigors of pastoral training questioned

DENVER (AP)—The training United Methodist ministers receive often produces pastors who are at home in the intellectual environment of "academia" but not at home in the commonly small congregations they later serve, says the church's Board of Discipleship.

Its study, presented by Bishop Edward L. Tullis of Columbia, S.C., at a consultation on the ministry, questioned whether the church should spend a minimum of seven years in training of pastors in a denomination whose average congregation has a membership of 150, of whom an average 76 attend on Sunday morning.

RELIGION

NEW YORK (AP) — An Episcopal woman priest says that the sexual identity of God is both male and female.

"We can't know what God looks like, but we know at least that God is fully male and fully female," the Rev. Ann Coburn writes in McCall's magazine.

She says that the Book of Genesis offers the "single most important description of the image of God" and that image is "male and female" as specified in the passage reading:

"God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female he created them."

TOKYO (AP) — A study by four Japanese Lutheran bodies and the Lutheran World Federation finds that by far the most often cited immediate cause of a person's attending a church is a "personal invitation."

About 52 percent of the newcomers to church services cited that reason, with the next most important reasons in this order:

Connections with a church school or organization, 14.3 percent; nearness of a church, 13.2 per cent; curiosity or interest, 10.3 percent; worrries and troubles, 8.3 percent.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Rev. Andrew Leigh Gunn, after three years as executive director of Americans United for Separation of Church and State, has resigned to return to the ministry in the United Methodist Church. A search committee is looking for a successor.

SHAWNEE, Okla. (AP) — The Oklahoma Baptist University chorale has cancelled scheduled appearances this month in Taiwan on advise of Southern Baptist missionaries there who voiced fear that the group's appearance might prompt demonstrations against President Carter's decision to break diplomatic relations with Taiwan and establish them with communist China.

NEW YORK (AP) — The Henry Luce Foundation has made a $100,000 grant to the United Presbyterian Church's major mission fund to use for a project to recruit more black United Presbyterian ministers in the southeastern part of the country.

The church has reported a shortage of black ministers in that area.

The foundation was established in 1936 by the late Henry R. Luce, a founding editor of Time, Inc. and an active Presbyterian layman, as a tribute to his father, Henry Winters Luce, who was a Presbyterian missionary in China.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Deaconesses in the Lutheran Church in America, numbering about 150 women, will take control of their own affairs for the first time Feb. 1 under new bylaws they have approved.

They've been governed in the past by a church board they didn't elect, but they now will take over that authority through their own assemblies.

Iowa choir group to be in Stanton

STANTON — The Graceland Choir, a select ensemble of 40 voices from Graceland College in Lamoni, Iowa, will present a special concert in Stanton Monday night.

The program, scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Stanton High School auditorium, is sponsored by the Stanton Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints and the public is invited to attend.

The Graceland Choir is one of three vocal ensembles at Graceland College and annually presents a variety of musical programs at home and on tour. The choir's current tour is taking it to such Texas points as Wichita Falls and El Paso, in addition to Stanton, and to such other cities as Vista and Los Angeles, Calif., Tucson, Ariz., Albuquerque, N.M., Independence, Mo., and Elkhart, Olathe and Pittsburg, Kan. The Monday night concert here will include music of four centuries and will feature works by such musical masters as Palestrina, ASweelinck, Handel, Brahms, Nofrman Dello Joio and Berger. Hymns, spirituals and secular songs also will be presented. Dr. Donald L. Breshears, director of choral music at Graceland College, is director of the choir.

Graceland College, founded in 1985 under auspices of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, is a four-year liberal arts college with a current enrollment of approximately 1,200. The students come from 42 states and 14 foreign countries.

Roots of male priesthood traced in new publication

LONDON (AP) — Agitation for women priests in the Church of England, mother church of the worldwide Anglican Communion which combines both Catholic and Protestant qualities, is being pushed in a new book.

It was written by a vicar's wife who died nearly a year ago.

Her posthumously issued work, "Sharing a Vision," asserts that the tradition of a male-only priesthood stems from Old Testament times and Jewish revulsion at Cananite pagan rites involving sexual orgies. Canaan, which became Palestine, was the promised land of the Israelites.

The prohibition of women priests "has continued to this day when all but the historians have forgotten that Cananites existed," wrote Deaconess Phoebe Willetts, a lifelong campaigner for women's rights who completed her manuscript shortly before her death from cancer last February at the age of 61.

Her book appeared a week before a scheduled meeting of a Church of England leadership committee to discuss what to do next about the controversial women priests question. The church's general synod last November rejected a move to ordain women when a majority of clergy voted against it, although most bishops and laity voted for it.

The Church of England cradled the worldwide Anglican Communion of 65 million members in 24 national branches. Only the U.S. Episcopalians and Anglican churches of Canada, New Zealand and Hong Kong recently have begun ordaining women.

The innovation has caused strains and much debate in various national branches of the church.

Mrs. Willetts and her husband, the Rev. Alfred Willetts, rector of the Church of the Apostles in Manchester, defied ecclesiastical authorities in 1977 by inviting the Rev. Allison Palmer of Washington, D.C., one of the first American women priests, to lead Holy Communion in their church.

The Willetts were publicly reprimanded by their bishop. Shortly before her death, Mrs. Willetts restated her disobedience by co-celebrating Holy Communion with her husband. Canon law of the Church of England forbids women to officiate in that sacrament.

Rebels extract revenge with overtime victory

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
R-T Sports Writer

When the Midland Lee Rebels face the Odessa Permian Panthers in any sport, fans with heart problems better not attend.

Everyone remembers the Permian Basin Super Bowl football shootout between these two competitive schools last fall, and another unforgettable drama was played out in the Lee High gym Friday night. This time, however, it was the Rebels who rode to victory 54-51 in overtime as has come to be expected. It wasn't easy, but then again, it never is.

This one was destined to go the extra count from the very beginning as the two teams locked horns, heads, feet and arms for a full 35 minutes of play. The Rebels held leads 11 different times while Permian led eight times. The game also saw 12 ties.

Ironically, Lee's 54-49 five-point margin in the overtime period was the largest lead of the night by either team, and that was with 12 seconds left. Both Lee and Permian had four point margins earlier in the contest.

"It was just like old times," said an elated Lee Coach Paul Stueckler, referring to the past when every District 5-4A game seemed to be a war. "I thought our kids played with a lot of spirit, and we are just glad to win a game like this. It was a super game for everyone involved. The only trouble is we have to get on the bus and do it all over again Saturday against Cooper."

Lee is now 3-1 in the district race and 12-10 on the year while Permian fell out of the first half chase with a 2-3 district mark. Lee will face Cooper in Abilene today at 8 p.m. Cooper is 4-0 in league action, so this will be another big test for the scrappy Rebels.

Lee's Mike McGaha, who had missed three straight free throws in the fourth quarter, sank one with 16 seconds left to send the game into overtime at 47-47. Then the Rebels just sat back and let Ernest Merritt go to work.

Merritt, who started slow with no points in the first quarter, came on to finish up with 24 points. His six straight points in overtime, four at the charity line, sewed up the contest. Lee scored seven unanswered points in the overtime to decide the thriller. Merritt also scored 10 points in the fourth period after the Rebels had a three for 13 shooting eye in the third period.

Lee hit only 17 of 54 shots from the field while Permian hit 21 of 48, but despite the lack of consistency, the score stayed close and was a nail biter from start to finish.

Permian's Brad Kerley kept the Panthers in the hunt all night with 23 points and Scott Wynn added 10 more.

The Lee junior varsity also produced another frantic victory over Permian with a narrow 55-52 see-saw win. Tim Walker paced the win with 13 points while David Keys added 12. Lee's JV is now 14-4 on the season and 4-0 in district play.

Cold-shooting Bulldogs knock off Odessa, 62-50

By BOB DILLON
R-T Sports Writer

ODESSA—Midland will take them anyway they can get them.

And that's just about the way it was Friday night as the Bulldogs took a 62-50 victory over the Odessa High Bronchos in a District 5-4A basketball game in the OHS Fieldhouse.

With season leading scorer Charles Johnson on the bench with five fouls in the third period, Coach Don Humphrey's Purple Pack overcame mistakes and cold shooting to chalk up their 16th win in 24 games, but more important, won their fourth 5-4A game in four starts to set up tonight's makeup game with the Abilene Eagles in the MHS Gymnasium. That game will start at 7 p.m. instead of the usual 8 p.m. starting time with the junior varsity contest set for 5:15 p.m.

Midland only led, 12-11 at the end of the first period, but came roaring back to outscore the hustling Bronchos, 20-10, in the second period for a 32-21 lead at halftime.

With only a lead of 21-18, Humphrey inserted Archie Booth, Michael Feldt and Darrin Matlock into the game and the three substitutes responded with 11 points that help give the Pack a little more breathing room at intermission.

ODESSA MADE things interesting in the first period, thanks to some clutch shooting by Alfred Rodriguez, a 5-foot-10 inch senior guard and Danny Wright who wound up the game's leading scorer with 17 points.

Sophomore Herbert Johnson, Midland's promising 6-7 center, only had two points at halftime, but he began to find the range and dumped in four baskets in the third period as the Pack led 48-35, going into the final eight minutes of play.

In fact, it was more or less the Johnson-Wright Show in that third quarter as both athletes connected for eight points.

Charles Johnson left the contest with 28 seconds left in third period and only six points, but he still contributed to the victory.

Walter Bryson and Herbert Johnson led the attack for Midland with 12 points each, but the Bulldogs had 10 players in the scoring column for a team victory over the stubborn Red Hosses.

Besides Wright's 17 points, Rodriguez added 11 more as the Bronchos fell to 3-14 on the year and 0-4 in league play.

MIDLAND HIT six of 13 free tosses and one of those was a technical on the Odessa High bench in the second period when things got hot and heavy.

Bob Hester, 6-6 senior center, fouled out of the game for the Bronchos with 7:36 left in the third period, and he like Johnson, only had six points.

Odessa managed to outscore Midland, 15-14 in the final period, but it was too late by that time.

Tim Spirling just missed scoring in the double figures for Midland with nine points, but some key rebounds.

Odessa didn't fare too well at the free throw line, only cashing in on four of 11 charity tosses, but Wright and Rodriguez made things intersting at times although the closest after the first period that OHS was going to come was five points in the second period and 38-31 early in the third period when Wright waxed hot with his four baskets.

MIDLAND'S BULLPUPS captured their 17th win in 18 outings by taking a 68-57 win over the Odessa High JV in the preliminary contest.

Paving the way for the Bullpups were Perry Bolger, Dexter Peterson and Pat Hickey with 17, 16 and 11 points, respectively. High for OHS were Rayford Wright and Junior Cobos with 19 and 17 points.

Dickey, Florida settle contract

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The University of Florida reached a contract settlement with fired Coach Doug Dickey, attorneys said Friday.

University attorney Tom McDonald said Dickey will be paid $97,375 on his contract, which would have expired April 3, 1982. McDonald said revenues from Dickey's television program were not included and said the estimated value of the remainder of Dickey's contract, with other fringe benefits figured, was $175,000.

McDonald said the settlement officially terminated Dickey's employment with the university. Dickey was "merely relieved of his coaching responsibilities" on Dec. 2, after his ninth season as Gator head coach.

The settlement also frees Dickey to accept an assistant coaching job at University of Colorado. An announcement is expected soon.

McDonald and Dickey's attorney, Henry Gray, negotiated all week in Gainesville, Fla., before coming to Tampa on Friday and coming to an agreement.

Chuck McGill scored seven points and grabbed a game-high 13 rebounfs while Tim Shelby and Tate had five assists each and Mayfield and Carl Lee Runnels had four apiece.

Tony Colunga with 14 and Dennis Bradford with 16 points led McMurry. Bradford, a former Abilene Cooper player, didn't even play the first half.

The win leaves MC with a 12-4 record.

Trevino closes in on Bob Hope lead

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — John Mahaffey retained the lead with a round of 71, but Lee Trevino, expermenting with a new putting technique, moved into strong contention Friday in the third round of the $275,000 Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic.

"I really think in the near future I'm gonna get lucky and win one out here," said Trevino, who never has won in California.

Mahaffey, who won the PGA and World Cup titles last year, had what he called "a sloppy round, but I got away with some things. You're going to have a sloppy round somewhere almost every tournament. I just hope I got it all over with."

His 1-under-par effort came in warm, sunny weather at Indian Wells, one of four desert courses used for the first four rounds of this 90-hole, five-day marathon, the first event on the PGA Tour this season. He had a 54-hole total of 203, 13 shots under par.

Leonard Thompson and Keith Fergus were a single shot back at 204. Fergus shot a 68 at Bermuda Dunes and Thompson had a 69 at La Quinta.

Trevino, a five-time runnerup last season, was at 205, two off the pace after a 66 at La Quinta. His round included six birdies and an eagle-3.

And, Trevino said, he has a definite advantage. Playing in the "A" group, he has his next two rounds at Indian Wells, probably the easiest of the four courses. Mahaffey plays his next two at Bermuda Dunes and Indian Wells.

"IT'S A big advantage if you can get in the hunt, like I did, playing La Quinta and Tamarisk and Bermuda Dunes," Trevino said. "Then you're looking at consecutive rounds at Indian Wells and you can kind of get the feel of it."

Art Wall, the 55-year-old National Seniors champion who held second place through two rounds, slipped to a 73 at tough Tamarisk — despite pitching in for an eagle-3 — and was 2 shots back of Trevino at 207. Wall was tied with Tom Purtzer, who shot 70 at La Quinta.

Two more strokes back at 209 were Jack Nicklaus, Grier Jones and Orville Moody. Jones had 71 at Indian Wells, Nicklaus 69 at La Quinta and Moody 68 at Tamarisk.

Eagles, Cougs post 5-4A wins

Abilene High and Abilene Cooper both took victories Friday night in the District 5-4A basketball chase, but both had a rough time before pulling out one-point victories.

Cooper survived Big Spring, 49-48, when Mike Anderson hit two free throws with 1:56 left in the game. Big Spring's Mark Poss had 27 points in the game. Abilene Cooper is now 11-10 on the year and 4-0 in loop action while Big Spring fell to 6-14 and 1-4.

Abilene High survied San Angelo, 56-55, after almost blowing a nine-point lead late in the game. Reggie Thomas has 18 points and David Russell had 13 in the win for the Eagles. Abilene is now 12-10 on the year and 3-1 in district while San Angelo fell to 11-10 and 0-4.

Big Spring (48):
J. Rubio, 1-1-3; Y. Rubio, 1-2-4; Poss, 11-5-27; Grant, 5-4-14. Totals: 18-12-48.
Abilene Cooper (49):
R. Cruse, 1-0-2; Williams, 1-0-2; Anderson, 3-2-8; G. Cruse, 8-0-16; Stuard, 6-0-12; Orr, 3-3-9. Totals: 22-5-49.
Abilene High (56):
Boynton, 0-2-2; Caballero, 3-0-6; Cummings, 3-1-7; McGee, 2-2-6; Russell, 6-1-13; Sparks, 2-0-4; Thomas, 8-2-18. Totals: 24-8-56.
San Angelo (55):

JIM MURRAY

Whatever became of Miller?

Los Angeles Times Syndicate

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. — Once he was as at home in the desert as a diamond-backed rattler. They called him "Cactus John." As soon as he saw a tumbleweed8, he knew he was going to shoot 62. He was the tour's Gila monster.

No one ever hit a golf ball with more purity. He won an Open at Pittsburgh and took the British Open in the spray-laden winds off the Irish Sea. He played some of the most brilliant golf ever seen at Augusta, Ga.

But in the desert, Johnny Miller was Hogan-and-Hagen combined. He never missed anything under 25 feet on a green; he whistled irons through the dry desert air. If it had palm trees around it, he eagled it.

He had this great shock of golden locks, he was as slim as a 1-iron. Clothing manufacturers fought to get his picture in their slacks and sweaters. He didn't drink, smoke, chew or swear. He tithed, never went to an X-rated flick in his life. He was Lochinvar and Lancelot.

Nothing could go wrong with that swing. He thought 30-foot putts had to drop. He shot a 63 in the U.S. Open, and every monocle in the USGA, not to say the Royal and Ancient, popped out.

He made $353,021 in one year, and that was only the tip of the iceberg. He didn't even have to practice. All those 61s and 62s were in there some place. He'd throw his club if he made a mere par. He won 17 tournaments, and nine of them were in places where the buffalo used to roam.

AND THEN Johnny Miller disappeared. At least, THAT Johnny Miller did. He went from leading money winner in 1974 to second-leading money winner in 1975 — and last year he was 111th. Rabbit country.

The man who once won a desert tournament by 14 shots suddenly needed strokes from guys he beat by that much.

The man wearing Johnny Miller's clothes and swinging Johnny Miller's clubs is a clumsy forgery of the artist who used to chase Jack Nicklaus down to the wire at Augusta or who beat back Nicklaus and Sevvy Ballesteros at Royal Birkdale.

It was a case for Sherlock Holmes. You figured the real Johnny Miller was in a dungeon somewhere. The real Johnny Miller didn't even know how to count to 78 on a golf course. You half-expected when this fraud went home at night, the first thing he did was take off his blond wig and blue contact lenses and push some food under the door to the real Johnny Miller chained to a bed.

The one thing you can't counterfeit is a golf swing. It's like a fingerprint or a voice track. It comes one to a customer. The real Johnny Miller had a swing you could pour on ice cream. This one came in sections, a three-piece horror that kept squirting the ball off to the right. The real Johnny Miller never stood under a tree in his life. This one wasn't even sunburned.

In marathon running, they call it the "wall of pain." It is the sudden vise that grips the breathing apparatus 5 miles from the finish, and only the doughtiest plunge through it. It is a small death.

Golf has its "wall of pain." It usually hits precocious young stars on or about their 300th tournament or 30th birthday. It grabs the best — Hogan Littler, Venturi, probably Harry Vardon himself. Even Nicklaus had his dry spells.

Sometimes it is something simple — like getting rid of a hook as Hogan did, or fighting the putting yips as Venturi did, or simplifying the swing again as Gene Littler did.

Sometimes it can't be cured short of psychiatry. Sometimes it's a simple function of age. In Miller's case it would seem to be terminal if it doesn't unhand him this year. A man plays his best golf in his 30s, not his worst. Johnny Miller seems in the grip of a giant unseen presence who tilts his clubhead only a millimeter. Just enough to change 62s into 78s.

IT WOULD be only natural to expect the missing game to return to one in the surroundings where it flowered in the first place. And, this week, Johnny Miller returned to the place where he was last seen winning back-to-back tournaments by 21 under par and 16 under — the Bob Hope Desert Classic. He shot a 66 in a satellite collegians' tournament Monday. Then, he posted a 70 opening round at the Hope itself. Was "Cactus John" back?

The next day, the pain returned. Miller was playing the hardly testing Indian Wells 18, the easiest track in the desert tournament. He managed to steer it out in 1-under-par 35. Then, he birdied No. 10.

That was the good news. Then, he shot a triple-bogey 7 on No. 12, a bogey at 17 and a bogey at 18. Johnny Miller had a 74. Johnny Miller was 12 shots off the lead after only two rounds.

This is the place where Johnny Miller last won a tournament. If there was any magic left, this is where it would surface. This is where Johnny Miller made his first million in golf. This was the kind of golfing climate where he once beat John Mahaffey by 9 shots. This is the kind of wind and sand where he once fired 23 consecutive rounds of par or better.

But, on this afternoon, while John Miller was shooting sevens and sixes on the back nine, another young blond player who came successfully through his wall of pain, John Mahaffey, was shooting seven consecutive birdies, a near record, and two consecutive 66s.

Whatever Miller had is not to be found in the cactus again this year. It's as lost as the Dutchman's Mine, as hard to pan for as placer gold. If the real Johnny Miller is not putting notes in a bottle marked "Help!" then the one playing on the tour is going to see his handicap go up. If anyone knows the whereabouts of Johnny Miller's golf game, phone or wire collect or go see him personally. You'll find him in the rough.

Krivacs, Moore riddle Arkansas for Horns

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Texas rode the shooting of Jim Krivacs and John Moore and the tough inside play of Ron Baxter to a 66-63 upset victory over 10th-ranked Arkansas Friday night.

The Southwest Conference victory enabled the Longhorns to improve their league mark to 3-1 and their overall record to 9-4.

Krivacs scored 21 points and Moore added 17 points and was 7-for-7 from the field.

Baxter, who sprained his ankle against Houston Monday night, limped onto the court after 10 minutes of play and brought the Longhorns to life with 11 points and 11 rebounds.

The loss was the first in three SWC games for Arkansas and followed 10 consecutive victories this season. The Razorbacks had not lost at home in 35 games dating back to a one-point loss to Southern Methodist in January 1976.

The Longhorns reeled off 10 straight points midway through tthe first half as Krivacs, Moore and Dave Shepard worked free from 15 to 20 feet.

Shepard ended the spree with a layup at 11:14 of the first half to give the Horns a 19-10 lead.

Sidney Moncrief, who had 22 points, paced an Arkansas rally late in the half that cut the Texas lead to 38-32 at intermission.

Big 8, Pac 10 clash in bowl

SEATTLE (AP) — After a week of sightseeing and trying to impress the pro scouts in practice, seniors from the Big Eight and Pacific-10 conferences will get down to business Saturday night in the college all-star football game called Challenge Bowl II.

A crowd of between 25,000 and 30,000 is expected in the Kingdome for the 6 p.m. PST game that will be televised nationally (Mizlou Sports Network).

For the players, the game offers a chance to experience professional coaching and show their stuff in one of the last postseason games before the National Football League college draft.

For spectators and TV viewers, the contest offers a new regulation providing that if a team is trailing by at least eight points, it will receive the kickoff after every score. The "Hula Bowl rule" provides that the team on the short end of the score, regardless of the margin, receive the kickoff after every score.

The Big Eight seniors will be coached by Bud Wilkinson and his staff from the St. Louis Cardinals. Tampa Bay Buccaneers Coach John McKay and his staff will coach the Pac-10 squad.

Wilkinson's first message to would-be pro quarterbacks: "The NFL teams with mobile quarterbacks are the teams that win."

His signal-callers include Tom Sorley of Nebraska, Dan Manucci of Kansas State, and Thomas Lott of Oklahoma. Lott, however, seems more than satisfied to be playing at running back.

"I'd rather be a running back than a quarterback," Lott said. "I got very frustrated at times at quarterback. For one thing, you don't get to carry the ball much."

Not much compared with teammate and Heisman Trophy winner Billy Sims, perhaps, but Lott's 577 yards in 111 carries was more than any other quarterback in the conference.

The Pac-10 offense features UCLA running back Theotis "Bigfoot" Brown and quarterbacks Charlie Young of California and Jack Thompson of Washington State, the "Throwin' Samoan" who holds the all-time NCAA career passing mark.

Brown, for one, isn't sold on the "Hula Bowl rule."

"I don't like it," said Brown, who helped the West build a 24-0 lead over the East in the Hula Bowl, then spent most of the fourth quarter on the bench watching the East take kickoff after kickoff and eventually winning 29-24.

Leading coaches seem to favor football playoff

Louisiana State football coach Charlie McLendon, for one, opposes any national football championship playoff, warning his colleagues that they will "be digging their own graves."

The NCAA Extra Events Committee has been investigating the possibility of activating the long kicked-around playoff at the annual NCAA convention in San Francisco this week.

It would involve the winners of the four established major bowls, which admittedly might force the bowls to revise their present selection system.

WHEN ADVISED that such distinguished contemporaries as Notre Dame's Dan Devine, Penn State's Joe Paterno and Alabama's Bear Bryant favored a playoff, McLendon shrugged off their endorsements. "Did they have a choice?" he asked and then answered, "No, if they hadn't come out for it, they'd have been chastized. I just don't think anybody realizes the amount of pressure a playoff would generate to the coaches and the players. Instead of 14 bowl winners, you would have only one."

Paterno and Bryant have never made any secret about their feelings toward playoffs. Both have had unbeaten teams or contenders that have suffered for lack of a playoff when the final polls leaned to other teams.

ARKANSAS' LOU Holtz is so much in favor of a playoff that he came up with a plan of his own last year, a rating system based on won-lost record and the strength of the schedule played by opponents.

TED BATTLES
BATTLE SCENE

The Holtz Plan (which actually is in effect for high schools in a few states) would advance four teams to the playoffs AFTER the bowl games.

Teams would accrue points during the season, including bowl games, as follows: 10 for every win, five for every game you opponent wins and two points for each game your opponents' opponent wins.

Holtz applied it to the 1977 season and while Arkansas made a case for itself in the No. 1 sweepstakes with the emphatic 31-6 win over favored Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl, the Razorbacks wouldn't have qualified for the playoff under the Holtz Plan.

IN HIS post Cotton Bowl press conference, Devine left no doubt as to his sincerity in favoring a national championship playoff.

The subject was broached when writers asked who he thought deserved it after Alabama's win over Penn State and USC's victory over Michigan in other bowls.

Devine was reluctant about engaging in a controversy, asking instead, "Do you want the diplomatic answer or the truthful answer?"

Of course, everyone wanted the truthful answer, so he reverted to diplomacy. "There are two teams under our present system that deserve consideration for No. 1, Alabama and Southern Cal, although not necessarily in that order. I think the people who have to vote have to decide."

Devine was asked what he thought about the situation in which Alabama beat the No. 1 team, but was beaten by Southern Cal earlier in the year.

Devine, still the diplomat, responded, "I'm a poor one to talk about this because we won the national championship kind of the way Alabama did last year when we defeated No. 1 Texas. But it was a little different in that we hadn't lost to the No.2 team.

"I don't want to say anything that would detract from a great Alabama team and great coach and I don't want to say anything that would detract from a great Southern California team. That's one reason we should have a national playoff for the championship."

Someone interjected Oklahoma into the picture by asking, "What happens if Alabama beats Nebraska, the only game it lost." Devine quickly agreed the Sooners probably had grounds for a No. 1 claim.

"Well, they'd have a legitimate right to claim it too, I guess, although Alabama beating the No. 1 team...that's why we need a playoff."

Patriots, er, Buffs' coach awaits fate

BOSTON (AP) — Chuck Fairbanks performed recruiting duties for the University of Colorado, although he still is under contract to the New England Patriots, and the National Football League coach will learn Monday whether he will be set free to return to the college ranks.

At a day-long Federal Court hearing, Fairbanks conceded Friday that he has carried out duties for the university, even though his Patriots' contract has four years remaining.

U.S. District Court Judge A. David Mazzone, who presided at the hearing on the Patriots' suit to bind the coach to the NFL team, issued a scathing indictment of Fairbanks, even though he withheld a ruling on the request for a preliminary injunction until Monday.

"This court cannot accept his (Fairbanks) idea of a contract," said Mazzone. "Perhaps it's custom, maybe it's the state of the art in coaching and college athletics to walk away from a contract at any time despite clear written intent."

MAZZONE GRANTED a restraining order on Jan. 3, preventing the university from allegedly inducing Fairbanks to break his Patriots' contract of about $150,000 per year.

A battery of lawyers for the university, its Regents and officials, and football boosters insisted that Fairbanks had not, in fact, been induced.

"Alarmingly little effort has been made to convince Chuck Fairbanks to come to Colorado," said University Athletic Director Eddie Crowder.

However, Patriots owner William H. Sullivan Jr. earlier filed a motion for contempt against the defendants — who do not include Fairbanks — for supposedly encouraging Fairbanks to carry out recruiting duties while on the New England payroll.

During two hours of grilling by Patriots lawyer John Blish, an occasionally angry Fairbanks conceded that since Dec. 13 — and even as the Patriots prepared for the NFL playoffs — he made telephone calls to prospective Colorado recruits and hired two assistant coaches, Gene Hochevar and Jerry Pettibone.

Chuck Sullivan, a lawyer and son of William H. Sullivan, said the NFL team wasn't aware of Fairbanks' recruiting activities until it took a deposition from the coach Jan. 9.

Recruiting activities by Fairbanks after Jan. 3, when the temporary restraining order took effect, would violate a court order and subject the university to a comtempt charge if it is proved the school told Fairbanks to make the telephone calls.

The contempt issue was not raised in open court, although Chuck Sullivan told reporters it may be taken up later.

Meanwhile, Fairbanks revealed in testimony that he has been offered a Colorado salary of $40,000-$45,000, $5,000-$10,000 in expenses, $90,000 in television and radio revenues, additional money for "motivational seminars," and a $250,000 life insurance policy with premiums paid by the Colorado Boosters Club.

CROWDER TOLD Mazzone that unless a football coach is hired by Feb. 21 — the deadline for assigning of letters of intent by prospective recruits — Colorado would effectively be writing off one year of its rebuilding program. However, the athletic director added later that there is no deadline after which Fairbanks will be dumped as a prospective coach.

"We have a desire to retain Chuck Fairbanks and we have a moral commitment to him," said Crowder.

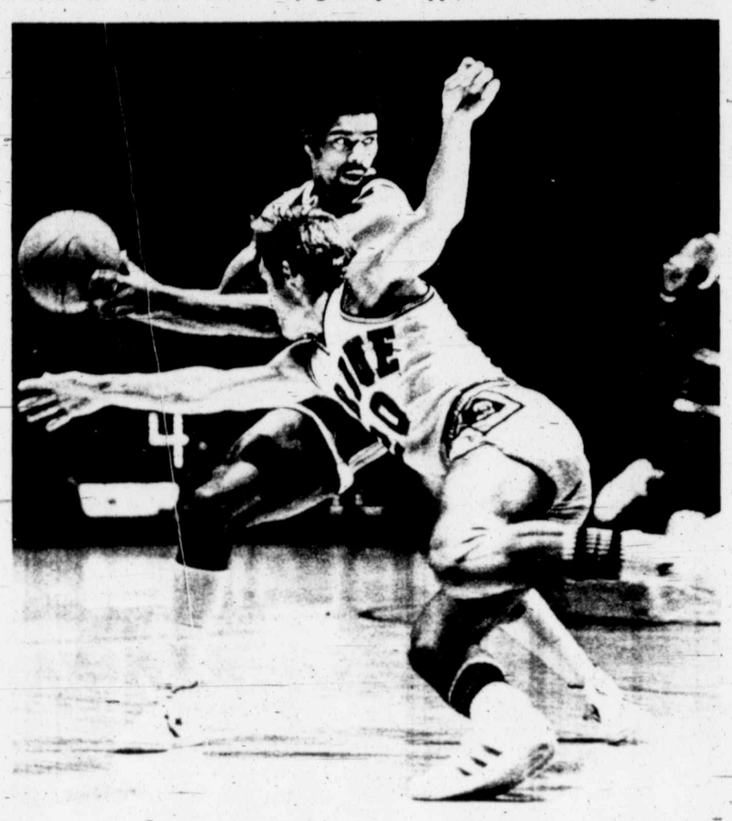

He added, however, that several other college coaches have been considered for the job, vacated when Bill Mallory was fired in November.

William Sullivan filed suit two days after the Patriots were eliminated by Houston in the playoffs and after it became apparent that Fairbanks would not withdraw his interest in the University of Colorado.

The coach testified Friday he accepted the Colorado job prior to the Patriots' regular-season game in Miami, although he temporarily removed himself from consideration after William Sullivan slapped him with a suspension for violating his contract. This enabled Fairbanks to coach the Patriots in the playoffs.

But Fairbanks revealed Friday that he has been considering quitting the NFL team "ever since my first week on the job."

"I have been looking for alternatives, with nothing specific in mind," the coach said. "I had become aware that pro coaching was a temporary situation in my life because of the insecurities involved. I had an unhappy family.

Bruce's appointment at OSU protested by NAACP leader

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Rudy Hubbard, a black coach at Florida A&M, should have been the first choice for the Ohio State University football coaching job, contends the leader of a black organization.

"We're sick of it," said Tom Fullove, president of the Columbus chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Fullove interrupted a news conference Friday announcing the selection of Earle Bruce to replace the legendary Woody Hayes. Bruce is a white coach from Iowa State University.

"I don't think your record is that good," Fullove told Bruce, 46-34-0 in seven college seasons. "The coach we wanted to push (Hubbard) has a far better record than yours. He's only lost two games in the last two years.

"We want you to know we're going to show opposition to your appointment."

BRUCE DID not reply to Fullove and a question-and-answer session with the news media resumed.

Afterward, Fullove said, "We're trying to hurt this coach here. It's the second time a black has been bypassed. We went along with the basketball appointment."

Fullove, who says he represents 3,000 NAACP members in Columbus, said Joe Roberts, a former Ohio State star and assistant coach in the pro ranks, should have had the Buckeyes' basketball coaching job three years ago when Eldon Miller was named.

Roberts is black and Miller white.

Fullove said the NAACP plans no lawsuit and will not directly tell black high school athletes not to come to Ohio State. "We just wanted to let them know our feelings," he said.

Ohio State currently has two black assistant football coaches, Bill Myles and Mickey Jackson, and one black assistant in basketball, Gerry Sears.

HOWEVER, THE Big Ten Conference school has only one black who is a head coach, Mamie Rallins in women's track and cross country.

Dick Delaney, a black who serves the school as an assistant athletic director, was upset at Fullove's remarks and said Hubbard was interviewed for the Buckeyes' job.

"Bruce did a helluva job by not saying anything. It was an introduction of Bruce, not a press conference for Fullove," said Delaney.

Ohio State Athletic Director Hugh Hindman said of the NAACP stand, "That's the first I heard from Tommy. I was not contacted by them. We had a very thorough and successful screening process. I won't go into individuals."

Hubbard remains cool at A&M

MIAMI (AP) — Florida A&M Coach Rudy Hubbard, passed over for the Ohio State coaching job he sought, said Friday he felt "very comfortable" that the selection of Earle Bruce was handled fairly.

Bruce's Iowa State record was 36-32-0. Hubbard coached Florida A&M to the Division I-AA national championship this season. The Rattlers were 10-1 in the regular season, then won two playoff games despite the loss to injury of their dominant offensive player, tailback Ike Williams.

He has a 42-11-2 record since taking over the traditional predominantly black power.

Indians withdraw from North bidding

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Indians have withdrawn their offer of a one-year contract to free agent outfielder Bill North.

Gabe Paul, president of the American League team, said, "I just got sick and tired of waiting. This thing has gone on so long that I told them to forget the whole thing."

Paul said he made North the offer of a one-year, $100,000 contract through his agent, Gary Walker, in November. Last week, Paul set a deadline of the middle of this week for Walker and NorthCto accept or reject the offer, but nothing happened.

Senior Bowl shows off 66 prime collegians

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — For pro football fans already looking to next season, the 30th annual Senior Bowl game on Saturday will showcase 66 top college seniors, many ripe for the pro draft, in what amounts to their professional debut.

Some 250 representatives of the National Football League, including 19 head coaches, have been watching the North and South squads work out this week.

Final scouting notes will be scribbled down when the game, televised by the Hughes Network to various parts of the country, kicks off at noon.

"There is no telling how many players have come here low on the draft list and left a high pick," sayd Senior Bowl General Manager Rea Schuessler.

SEVERAL potential NFL quarterbacks will suit up for the game. Included are record-setting passers Steve Dils of Stanford and Ed Smith of Michigan State for the North. For the South, the quarterbacks are Jeff Rutledge of Alabama and Steve Fuller of Clemson.

City's settlement center eases court's heavy load

By LEE MITGANG
AP Urban Affairs Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — It was the kind of case the already overcrowded courts could do without.

A young Atlanta man had bought $400 worth of living room furniture on an installment plan and fell behind on his payments. The merchant promptly filed suit.

Most prosecutors and judges — worried about more serious cases — want no part of these hassles between store and customer, neighbor and neighbor, husband and wife — where tempers can flare beyond reason and sometimes turn on the petty.

Still, these arguments wind up in the courts, disputes over a neighbor's dog trespassing on a lawn, a shoving match in a bar, something bought in a store and not paid for on time.

BUT IN ATLANTA and about 20 other cities across the nation, an alternative to a court battle-royal has been spreading recently: community dispute settlement centers.

The idea is simple and goes back to the days when personal disputes were usually settled not by a judge and jury but by a respected elder in the community, like a parish priest.

An individual who has a dispute with someone brings his complaint to the police, a Better Business Bureau office, a prosecutor or a judge. He may be thinking of suing or demanding that someone be arrested — or be threatened with arrest himself.

In any case, the agency hearing the dispute decides that the problem might be solved far more quickly, fairly and inexpensively if both sides can agree to sit down together and reason out an agreement.

THE OPPONENTS ARE referred to one of these dispute centers. They can bring their lawyers if they wish, but if not, the dispute could potentially be settled at no cost at all.

"Even when you have a good small claims court, a judge can listen for five minutes and decide one person is liable. But to get at the underlying problem, people still have to sit together and work things out," says John Beal, an attorney for the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, which is spending $600,000 to finance Neighborhood Justice Centers in Atlanta, Los Angeles and Kansas City, Mo.

The young man defaulting on his furniture payments — whom the center did not identifyn — managed to persuade the merchant to work out the dispute at Atlanta's center. He agreed to pay off his debt over a nine-month period, and the store agreed not to charge any penalty.

The centers now springing up work in different ways. Atlanta, for instance, uses voluntary mediators representing a cross-section of race, sex, age and economic background. They mediate disputes and suggest solutions, with a legally binding contract the hoped-for outcome. But unlike some centers, such as ones in San Francisco or Rochester, N.Y., the Atlanta program draws the line at arbitration — forcing the parties to agree to something.

MEDIATION DOES NOT always succeed. Atlanta merchant Dale Dasher and customer Joyce Scurry, for instance, tried for half a day recently to settle a $21 argument over a man's suit bought on time. Mediator Charlie Phillips could not get them to agree and forcing a solution was out of the question. So the two probably will wind up in court.

More typically, the parties will agree to a settlement. The Atlanta center has handled 1,479 cases since last March with settlements in more than 80 percent, says center director Linwood B. Slayton.

The center in Kansas City has solved all but 37 percent of the more than 500 cases it has handled since March. And an older program run by the Columbus, Ohio, city attorney's office since 1971 boasts a success rate of over 90 percent when both parties agree to appear.

The justice programs are supposed to be voluntary and confidential. Neither side has to de)l with the other out of court, and what is said in mediation cannot be used against anyone in court later.

"About once a month the confidentiality is tested," says Larry Ray, a Columbus assistant city attorney. A lawyer, for instance, will try to subpoena records or people involved in mediation. So far the confidentiality of such mediation has been upheld in several state court cases, though the issue has not reached the U.S. Supreme Court.

WHETHER THE JUSTICE centers are entirely voluntary is not so clear-cut. Ray, for instance, will offer mediation as an alternative to a criminal charge — an offer that can be pretty hard to refuse. Or the mediator, in handling a dispute, might privately tell one party he does not stand a chance in court and had better accept a settlement.

Despite the potential civil rights questions, the centers appear to have support from those who have used them and from national and local bar associations, which have helped finance some. The New Jersey court system is promoting dispute centers, and in other states centers have gotten support from private groups such as the American Arbitration Association and the American Friends Service Committee.

The recent spread of the centers, particularly in states like Florida where eight cities now have programs, is at least partly a reflection of Attorney General Griffin Bell's and Chief Justice Warren Burger's support for neighborhood justice centers.

Tumor located during surgery

By NORM CLARKE

LOS ANGELES (AP) -- John Wayne, the American film legend who has been one of Hollywood's biggest stars for a half-century, underwent more than nine hours of cancer surgery Friday during which doctors removed his stomach, said a hospital administrator.

"His current condition is satisfactory. His prognosis is excellent," UCLA Medical Center administrator Bernard Strohm told a news conference.

"During the removal of John Wayne's gall stones and gall bladder an unusual type of low-grade malignant tumor of the stomach was discovered, and it required a more extensive operation for its complete removal," Strohm said.

"There are many, many people in this world without stomachs who function very well," Strohm said.

Wayne will be hospitalized for an indefinite time, he added.

The announcement ended a tense vigil during which the medical center was deluged with hundreds of telephone calls from well-wishers, including Queen Elizabeth, Queen Juliana of the Netherlands and Sen. John Warner, R-Va., and his actress wife Elizabeth Taylor.

It was the second cancer operation for Wayne. Fifteen years ago, one of his lungs was removed because it was cancerous.

The 71-year-old Wayne, one of Hollywood's biggest stars for half a century, had been scheduled for gall bladder surgery Friday, a procedure that normally takes about two hours — the second major surgery for Wayne in a year.

The operation began at 7:45 a.m. PST and ended shortly after 5 p.m. PST, said medical center spokeswoman Bonnie Whitham.

Wayne's three sons — Michael, Patrick and Ethan — were standing vigil at the hospital. Flowers from well-wishers began arriving early in the morning, and the hospital switchboard was deluged with calls from well-wishers for Wayne — known affectionately as "the Duke."

"At times it's been overwhelming," said Strohm.

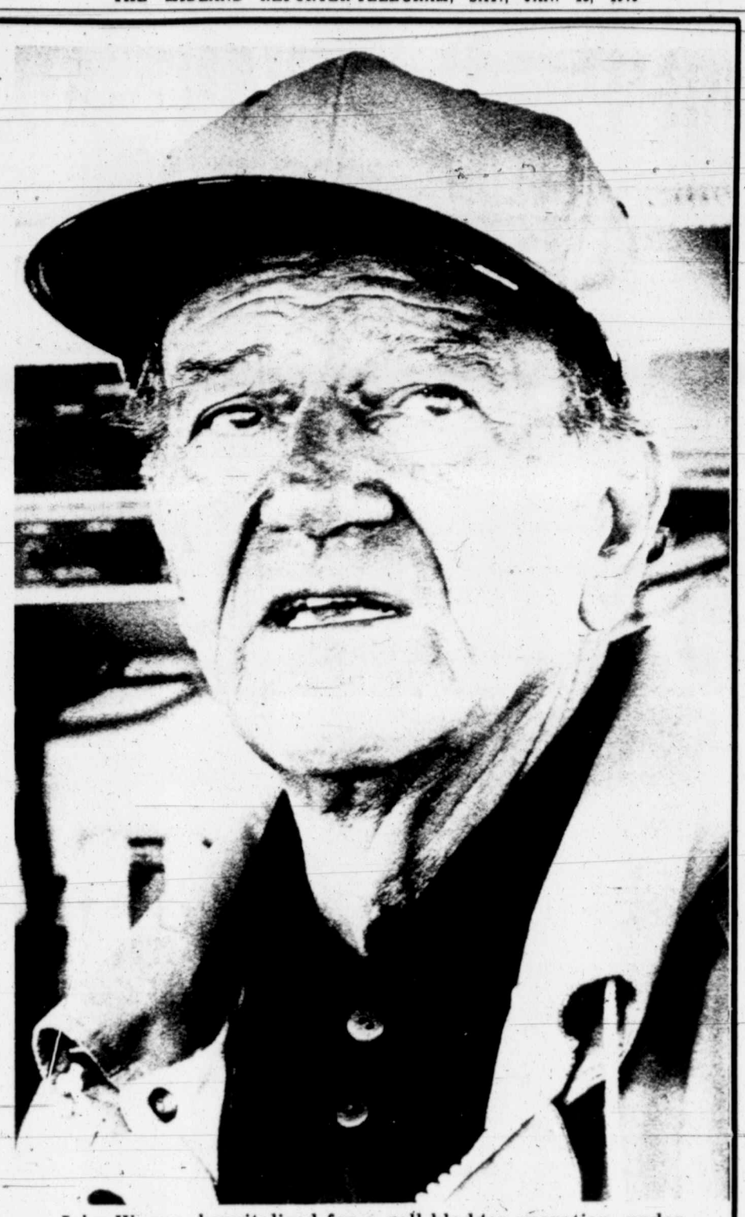

"So many crazy ladies have been calling it's amazing," said Miss Whitham. "When we had Freddie Prinze here, we had a lot of calls from adolescent girls. Calls today are from 50- and 60-year-old women. They just want to say they're praying for the Duke and love him."

The 71-year-old veteran of Westerns and war movies entered the hospital Wednesday for elective surgery.

Wayne reportedly has had a gall bladder problem for some time. A hospital spokeswoman described the Academy Award-winning actor's condition Thursday as good after a series of preliminary tests.

A doctor, who is not treating the star, said the operation generally would be regarded as a serious procedure due to Wayne's age and medical history. His 72nd birthday is May 26.

Hollywood's box office king overcame lung cancer in 1964, but had one lung removed. He has been recuperating from open heart surgery last April in Boston.

Jurors selected

WASHINGTON (AP) — A jury of seven women and five men was selected Friday for the trial of three Cuban exiles charged with participating in the 1976 assassination of former Chilean Ambassador Orlando Letelier and the murder of a co-worker.

They were selected after four days of questioning potential jurors. In addition to the 12 jurors, six alternates — four women and two men — were chosen to hear the case and be prepared to replace any of the original panel members if necessary.

U.S. District Judge Barrington D. Parker has ordered the jury sequestered for the trial, which is expected to take at least a month. Opening arguments in the case are likely to begin Monday.

Earlier, both the prosecution and defense listed witnesses they expect to call in the case. The defense list includes former CIA Director Richard Helms and U.S. Ambassador to Chile Georgz W. Landau.

The prosecution list includes Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D.; Landau; Letelier's widow, Isabel; and Michael Moffitt, whose wife Ronni was killed along with Letelier when Letelier's car was blown up on a Washington street Sept. 21, 1976.

The government witness list also includes Michael Townley, the chief prosecution witness who already has pleaded guilty in the case and has admitted planting the remote-control bomb under Letelier's car.

Letelier was the ambassador to the United States from 1971 through 1973, serving the Marxist regime of Salvadore Allende, who was killed in a 1973 military coup. Letelier was imprisoned by the military junta that seized power, and upon his release became an internationally known critic of the ruling regime.

The government indictment charges two of the three Cuban exiles on trial — Guillermo Novo Sampol and Alvin Ross Diaz — with conspiracy to murder a foreign official; murder of a foreign official; first-degree murders of Letelier and Mrs. Moffitt, and murder by use of explosives. All these charges carry maximum life terms.

Guillermo Novo and his brother Ignacio Novo Sampol, the third defendant, are charged with lying to a grand jury with maximum punishment a five-year prison term and a $10,000 fine.

Ignacio Novo is charged with failing to tell authorities about the crime after it occurred. The charge carries a maximum three years in prison and a $500 fine.

All three defendants have pleaded innocent to all charges.

A federal grand jury also has indicted three agents of Chile's former secret police agency — DINA — and two other Cuban exiles as being part of the assassination plot.

However, the three former agents are still in Chile awaiting an extradition decision by the Chilean Supreme Court and the two remaining Cubans are fugitives, subjects of a nationwide FBI manhunt.

U.S. to help Israeli oil shortage

By STAN BENJAMIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. government officials are preparing plans to help Israel replace oil cut off by Iran, which previously supplied nearly two-thirds of Israel's petroleum needs.

Knowledgeable government sources, asking that they not be identified, said Friday that Israel has not yet requested emergency help promised by the United States in a 1975 agreement in which Israel agreed to partial withdrawal from the Sinai.

But one source said Israel is "having a terrible time getting oil" on the world market because potential suppliers are afraid of retaliation by anti-Israel Arab oil nations.

Another government source said of Israel's oil problems: "Our contingency planning is quite advanced."

U.S. Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger said last week that the United States would honor the 1975 commitment to help the Jewish state find new oil suppliers in an emergency or, if necessary, to ship oil directly from the United States.

Iran's oil production has been halted by strikes connected with the political turmoil that brought to power a new Iranian government headed by Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar.

U.S. sources said Israel has been able, so far, to withstand this loss of Iranian oil by tapping its own substantial oil stockpile and seeking other suppliers.

But Bakhtiar told his Parliament on Thursday that Iran would no longer sell oil to Israel or to South Africa because of solidarity with Israel's Arab opponents and objections to South Africa's racial segregation policies.

Bakhtiar's pledge threatens to cut off permanently some 80,000 barrels a day of Israel's oil requirements, which total some 150,000 barrels daily, the U.S. sources said.

Officials would not say exactly what the United States would do if Israel asks for help.

But sources indicated the probable first step would be an effort to persuade non-Arab oil-producing nations or companies to sell more oil to Israel.

They indicated U.S. backing might counterbalance some of the reluctance by oil suppliers to anger the Arabs.

Schlesinger said publicly that if necessary the United States may consider shipping Israel some of the oil produced on Alaska's North Slope, now classified as "surplus" on the West Coast.

Congress barred exportation of Alaskan oil, and the surplus has been shipped through the Panama Canal to refinery centers along the Gulf of Mexico. But energy planners are known to be reviewing the possibility of a partial legal exemption under existing law which might permit shipments to Israel.

Israel's entire 80,000-barrel daily oil deficit would amount to no more than about 20 percent of the "surplus" oil now flowing from Alaska.

Measured against the United States' oil consumption of nearly 19 million barrels a day, Israel's requirement is "relatively peanuts," a government source commented.

While some Alaska oil is "surplus" on the West Coast, its originally intended market, it is not "surplus" to the United States in general, which now imports some 40 percent of its oil and is seeking to reduce these imports and the dollar-drain they cause.

Thus, if 80,000 barrels of Alaskan oil were diverted daily to Israel, it would somehow have to be replaced in the United States' total supply.

Transaction made for benefit of customers, executives testify

Any action to overturn a 1976 transaction between Texas Electric Service Company and Texas Power & Light will nullify an agreement made solely to save customers money and provide them adequate fuel supplies, executives of both companies have told the Public Utility Commission.

The transaction was made for one reason only—to benefit the 1.1 million customers of the two companies, the said. Stockholders made no profit whatsoever from the agreement. TESCO Vice President E. D. Scarth and TP&L President Robert K. Campbell said in testimony prefiled Friday with the PUC.

The PUC has scheduled a hearing for February 20 to look into the transaction, in which part of TP&L's share of two jointly-owned lignite generating units and lignite fuel reserves was transferred to TESCO.

Several other transactions among the subsidiary companies of Texas Utilities will be reviewed, including interest charges, settlement of a dispute with the Westinghouse Corporation involving nuclear fuel, depreciation of various facilities, transfer of research projects from one company to another and fuel costs.

TESCO repaid TP&L for its costs invested in the generating units and fuel. TESCO also agreed to transfer to TP&L a supply of electricity generated by some of TESCO's low-cost gas. The gas is to be delivered over a three-year period from 1978-1980.

Each company faced separate problems that were solved by the transaction, executives said.

TESCO's low-cost gas contracts, both signed more than 15 years ago, expire in 1980-81, Scarth said. This meant that when the two contracts terminated, TESCO's cost of fuel to replace the expiring contracts would take a substantial jump by a factor of up to 500 percent, Scarth noted.

Meanwhile, TP&L faced its own serious difficulties, posed by the financial burden in building generating plants that use lower-cost lignite fuel and by its declining financial condition.

"TP&L's financial condition was deteriorating," Campbell said. "TP&L's financial condition in 1975 was the poorest in its history."

TP&L owned 60 percent of the third and fourth lignite generating units to be built at the Martin Lake plant near Henderson. The plant is owned by TP&L, TESCO and Dallas Power & Light, all subsidiaries of the Texas Utilities Co.

"TP&L simply could not afford to continue its full 60 percent interest in these units and maintain the construction schedule then in effect," Campbell said.

On the other hand, Scarth explained, TESCO needed the energy from the lower-cost fuel available from Martin Lake to offset the impact on its customers due to the expiring gas fuel contracts.

To prevent a "significant and abrupt" increase in fuel consts to its custoemrs, TESCO needed to avoid delaying construction of the two units and if possible obtain the additional lignite generation. Therefore, Scarth said, TESCO negotiated with TP&L to transfer 25 percent of its share of Martin Lake 3 and 4 to TESCO at cost.

However, it was agreed that to offset the effect in later years that the loss of 25 percent would have on TP&L customers, TESCO would transfer at cost a supply of electricity generated by some of its low cost gas to TP&L to be delivered over a three-year period.

The agreement worked to the benefit of both companies' customers, Scarth and Campbell said.

Officers to be installed

Sam E. Hilburn of Midland and Hal Burnett of Alpine tonight will install officers of the Alpine Commandery No. 90, York Rite Masonry, in the Masonic Temple at Alpine.

TESCO testimony prefiled for hearing set in February

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas Electric Service Co. defended its transactions with sister utility Texas Power & Light Co. Friday in testimony filed with the Texas Public Utility Commission.

The commission has scheduled a Feb. 20 hearing to probe virtually all deals between operating companies in the Texas Utilities system.

John Bell, commission general counsel, has said TESCO's sale of electricity to TP&L in exchange for ownership in the Martin Lake power plant appears "patently illegal." The electric power involved was generated from TESCO's cheapest natural gas supply.

Dallas Power & Light also bought an interest in the plant from TP&L, but not in exchange for electricity.

The three operating companies — TESCO, TP&L and DP&L — jointly filed testimony in the case.

"The transaction was made for one reason only — to benefit the 1.1 million customers of the two companies," TESCO said in a news release accompanying the testimony.

"TP&L's financial condition was deteriorating," TP&L President Robert K. Campbell said in written testimony. "TP&L simply could not afford to continue its full 60 percent interest in these units and maintain the construction schedule then in effect."

DP&L vice president Max Tanner defended his company's purchase of additional shares in the plant, saying the deal was beneficial to customers of all companies.

Bell has said customer refunds may be ordered in the case. But the companies in written testimony bristled at that idea.

"Any attempt to order such 'refunds' would be unlawful and impermissible under the principle prohibiting retroactive rate-making," the companies said. Refunds "would in effect constitute an unlawful and unauthorized penalty not prescribed by law."

Furthermore, the companies said, "Electric customers have no standing to complain of transfers, sales or reallocations of properties of energy since they acquired no interest, legal or equitable, in such properties."

Midlander sentenced

A Midland man was assessed a life sentence Friday after being convicted in 238th District Court of robbery of a residence.

A jury found Ruben Perez Garcia Jr. guilty of the offense after a trial which began Thursday.

District Judge Vann Culp assessed the sentence, under a provision of state law which provides for life imprisonment for repeat offenders. Garcia had been convicted of two other crimes.
