LAY CLEAN-UP DRIVE PLANS TONIGHT

MEETING CALLED FOR COURTHOUSE OPENS CAMPAIGN

CITY OFFICIALS, LADIES AND HEALTH WORKERS TO BE PRESENT

A meeting of representatives of various women's organizations of this city, together with city officials, city and county health officers, and state health department officials, is to be held tonight in the office of Miss Anna Bruckner, county health nurse in the court house, when it is expected that plans will be completed for the launching of a clean-up campaign here that not only will affect tin cans and general refuse from the house, but business houses and personal hygiene of every individual citizen of the city. It was announced Monday by Dr. J. W. Rollo, city health officer. The meeting will begin at 8 o'clock, and although it has not been termed a general mass meeting, all interested citizens has an invitation to attend.

There are certain conditions existing here at the present that if not checked, will result in a very noticeable manner upon the entire city. Dr. Rollo said, in commenting on the business that probably will be brought up for discussion at the meeting. And he explained that he referred not so much to the streets and alleys, although he said they are sadly in need of a thorough cleaning, but to conditions that concern the health and physical being of many of Lubbock's people.

May Start Health Department

It is probable that a health department for the city, separate and apart from other departments, will be advocated and urged upon city officials for in this manner and in this alone can health conditions here be controlled, Dr. Rollo said. He pointed to the fact that an organization of this nature, if given proper co-operation by the public in general, can do more in one month to check the present trend of affairs than could be accomplished by the present method in a score of months.

Many other cities the size of Lubbock, or even smaller, he said, maintain health departments with the city governments, and have met with much success.

CLUBHOUSE MEETS WITH APPROVAL

The Commissioners Court of Lubbock has accepted from the contractor the clubhouse at Slaton erected under county supervision and expense, and the building will be occupied for recreational purposes immediately. It was announced here Monday by County Judge Chas. Nordyke, who, with the four commissioners, inspected the structure.

The club house, built in the west part of Slaton at a cost to the county of approximately $16,000, is one of the most commodious and best equipped buildings of the kind in West Texas and will be devoted entirely to recreational features. It contains an auditorium, reading room, and various other features that mark it as distinct. It is built along lines similar to the club house at the county park on the canyon east of here, but is a great deal larger.

Journal News Reel

Plans for city-wide clean-up drive will be laid at meeting in courthouse at eight o'clock tonight. Former Slaton man returned from Oklahoma on fraud charges. Slaton club house is accepted by county commission. European nations tremble over results of League meeting. Mrs. Rebecca Jane Billeland Fisher, of Austin, Texas, pioneer, is dead and body will lie in state at Capitol. Wave of discussion over prohibition descends on country along with spring. Rains sound prosperity for all of Texas. Another state-highway engineer asked to resign but he refuses to quit post. Judge Harris Bell, Austin, one of principals in sensational bribery case, resigns his bench. Mabel Normand of movie fame, faces scandal again as her name is connected with death of William Desmond Taylor.

RAINS WELCOMED ALL OVER TEXAS

Prosperity Promised As Damp Ground Greets Farmers of Lone Star State

(By The Associated Press)
DALLAS, Mar. 22 (AP)—Sunshine, following bountiful rains of state-wide extent Saturday night and Sunday, was fittingly accompanied today by peasants of prosperity from those who contemplated the soaked ground and what it will mean for wheat, small grains, truck farming and cattle.

East and extreme North Texas apparently were the most favored sections, the fall amounting to nearly three inches in localities, swelling streams for the first time this year. Dalhart, speaking for the Northwest Panhandle section today, says the one inch rain there has given the grain crops an excellent start, while the cattle range is ideal. It has been the mildest winter in years. Cattle are in fine condition, and farmers, ranchers and business men are highly optimistic.

Royalty To Attend Funeral of Dowager

COPENHAGEN, Mar. 22 (AP)—King Hakan of Norway, King Gustav of Sweden and probably the Prince of Wales will be present at the funeral next Sunday of Dowager Queen Louise of Denmark, who died Saturday from a heart attack, superinduced by pneumonia.
King Christian is deeply affected by the death of his mother. Crossing from his palace in the dark at the top of Queen's yesterday, he encountered a group of press photographers. Stopping and shaking hands with each of them he said:
"This is the home of my childhood, which now disappears."
NEW YORK—Miles Kehoe, of Jersey City, helped welcome spring at Coney Island, is the inventor of a new SOS. Waking up and finding himself "manned in the dark" at the top of a big ferris wheel on the deserted beach, he set his handkerchief on fire and was rescued.

LONDON EXPECTS BITTER DEBATES OVER SITUATION

GOVERNMENT OF SWEDEN MAY BE OVERTHROWN, IS ALSO FEARED

(By The Associated Press)
LONDON, Mar. 22—The cabinet held before it today the master of arrangements for the expected debate in the House of Commons tomorrow on the recent break-down of the League of Nations meeting which was to have elected Germany to membership in the league.

David Lloyd George is expected to move for reduction in the foreign office appropriation as a means of calling attention to the alleged delinquencies of Geneva of Sir Austen Chamberlain, the foreign secretary. This procedure is the usual alternative to a direct motion of censure, which, on this occasion, the opposition has decided not to submit to Parliament.

There is nothing, however, at the present moment to suggest a triumph by the opposition, according to political observers. All the indications are that the cabinet and the Conservative party, although they will express disappointment over the failure of the Geneva meeting, will rally to the support of Sir Austen, taking the view that he did all possible to achieve a result which he desired as fervently as anybody else.

Sir Austen, who already had discussed the situation with Primier Baldwin and some of his other colleagues, arranged to report formally on his Geneva mission to the Cabinet today.

Swedish Cabinet Worried

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Mar. 22 (AP)—Sweden's policy at the recent league meetings in Geneva, coupled with the collapse of some of the government's foreign policy, is causing concern.

Baseball Bugs Desert THEY WAIT FOR TICKETS

Fires for Charleston

(By Associated Press)
DETROIT, Mich., Mar. 22—Bonfires which usually warm those hardy souls who brave the night preceding the hour at which tickets for the first American League baseball game to go on sale, were abandoned last night at Navin Field in favor of the Charleston.

When frost began creeping into veins of the 150 men and women who had formed in the box office line at midnight, several began whistling "Yes Sir, That's My Baby," whereupon others began "do their stuff a la Charleston." The first person appeared at the park at 8 o'clock last night. When the box office opened at 8 a. m. today there were 200 in line.

Flashes Of Life

CANNES—The Riviera has seen Helen Wills playing without her poker face for the first time. While she and Henri Cochet were winning the mixed doubles she smiled and laughed. Perhaps the reason was that there were less than fifty spectators or that Henri was in a hurry to get away to see his fiancée.
LONDON—A company that is asking permission to make a film biography of Edward VIII announces it will not do as Americans perhaps might be tempted to do, make a romance of his life, but will treat the subject with absolute regard for the truth.
NEW YORK—Enzo Gligoli, six year old son of the Metropolitan opera tenor, is taking his father's advice to eat plenty of spaghetti so he will be a great singer—when he grows up. He eats so much that mother Gligoli often has to stop him. Enzo is named on a character in La Gioconda which the tenor was depicting when the lad arrived in the world.

Supreme Court Agrees On New Review of Decisions Of Lower Courts

(By The Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Mar. 22 (AP)—The Supreme Court agreed today to review lower court decisions cancelling the oil leases and contracts which Edward Doheny negotiated with Albert B. Fall as Secretary of the Interior.

Involved in the case are the Elkhill naval oil reserves in California and the contract between Doheny's companies and the government by which the oil magnate has constructed huge oil reserve tanks for the navy at the Hawaiian naval base and Pearl Harbor.

Paris Shivers When Springtime Appears

PARIS, Mar. 22 (AP)—The official entry of spring into France was accompanied by a bitter northeasterly wind and frost, which played havoc with the fruit trees which were in premature blossom. Snow fell in many Clermont-Ferrand and Lozere regions, notably at Chalons-sur-Saone, Clermont-Ferrand and Anney, and even the so-called "Sunny South" was visited by a cold rain, signaling the departure of the Riviera's guests.

CHURCHMEN TAKE DRY DISCUSSION UP WITH PEOPLE

DIGNITARIES TURN EARS TO PROBLEM FACING NATION'S SENATE

(By The Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Mar. 22—A flood of prohibition discussion has come with Spring. But unlike the balmy nature of the opening of the new season, there was nothing mild in the views on the question set forth today as a result of a busy week-end of speeches and statements in vari-ous forums.

The hopes of the wetters rose a bit when Emory R. Buckner, who, since leaving the law firm of Ellis Root to become Federal Attorney in New York City, has made an extraordinary drive to enforce the Volstead Act by padlock, suggested that the law be modified to permit each state to define intoxicating liquor.

Address Made in Church
Mr. Buckner's suggestion was made in an address at St. Paul's Episcopal Church. A similar solution of the government problem was proposed in a statement in New York by William H. Hirst, formerly counsel for the Brewer's Association.

The board of temperance and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal church, in a statement at Washington, discouraged results of newspaper straw votes and asserted that the dries were ignoring them. The best referendum on prohibition, said the board, were congressional elections which dries had won "with monotonous regularity by overwhelming majorities."
In New York, the Reverend Dr. James Empringham, national secretary of the Church Temperance Society, which recently came out for modification of the Volstead act, 1919 of dispensing himself and visiting speakers where liquor could be bought.

SLATON MAN HELD IN FRAUD CASE

Walter Kemp, former resident of Slaton, is held in the county jail here following his arrest by Oklahoma authorities last week at Antlers on a charge of fraudulent disposition of mortgaged property in connection with an automobile deal at Slaton last year. Sheriff H. L. Johnston returned Sunday, with the prisoner after driving approximately 1,500 miles, and he will be held subject to action of the grand jury which convenes here April 5.

Kemp had been missing from Slaton since last June, when the charge was filed against him. He was located by the Sheriff's department here thru the aid of Oklahoma authorities, and was taken into custody last week. The prisoner has expressed the belief that he can make bond, but no steps toward this end had been announced early this afternoon.

Loyalty of Worker Costs Him His Life

IOLA, Kans., Mar. 22 (AP)—Thurlow W. McCullough, 31, telegraph operator at the Santa Fe station here, paid with his life for loyalty to his company early today. Rather than to turn over railroad cash to a masked bandit, McCullough exchanged shots with the robber and when the operator's gun was empty he turned to a telephone to call police. The bandit then shot McCullough through the head and heart, killing him instantly and escaped with about sixty dollars taken from the cash drawer.

Good Evenin'

The announcement of a government chemist that only one bottle of bootleg booze out of a thousand is liquor ought to do some good in enforcing the prohibition laws.

REVIVAL OPENS AT FIRST METHODIST CHURCH

Opening a two-week revival, which closes on Easter Sunday, Rev. D. E. Donk, presiding elder of the Lubbock District of the Methodist Church, preached in large crowds at both morning and evening services at the First Methodist Church Sunday. He will preach during the two weeks and H. W. Richardson will have charge of the music.

Taking as his text in the morning, "All things work together for good to them that love God," Rev. Donk said that God did not promise to do things as mortals might desire if they believed his promises, but that God's promise was of eternal life and that, in the end, all things would work out for good, if one believed his promises.

"It is foolish to question the ways of God," he said, because God does many things which look unnecessary from a human viewpoint. In illustrating his point, he told the story of Lazarus' death and resurrection through Christ. It seemed foolish from a human viewpoint for Jesus to let Lazarus die when he loved him and then later bring him back to life, he said.

God sees the possibilities of youth and he will do his part in bringing good to all men if the men will do their part, he concluded his sermon. The text for his evening sermon was taken from Psalm 119 and his theme was on the possibilities of human intellect and thought. One should study his possibilities and make haste in doing what he can for God with his powers, he said.

All of the inventions and hurries of modern life are the product of some man's thought, he explained, saying that the greatest unexplored field of thought is the possibilities of human intellect. Man is all powerful on earth and he should not waste his energies, but should do all in his power for God, the preacher said.

Kangaroo Group To Be Served Dinner

Former students of Austin College are planning a dinner for members of the Kangaroo Glee club and orchestra who are to appear in concert at the Tech Pavilion Tuesday evening. A group of the Austin college exes met Sunday afternoon at the home of Gaston Hallam and planned to have the dinner at 6 o'clock provided it does not interfere with plans of the musicians. Dr. W. T. Read, of the Tech, is in general charge of arrangements. There are about 18 former students of Austin College in Lubbock.

Menus for the Family

BY SISTER MARY
Breakfast—Canned peaches, cereal, thin cream, creamed dried beef with rice, graham toast, milk, coffee.
Luncheon—Split pea soup, croissants, fruit puff puddings, milk, tea.
Dinner—Roasted sirloin steak, French fried potatoes, beet greens, peach salad, maple meringue, sponge cake, whole wheat bread, milk, coffee.
The peach salad is a variation of that old standby of a pineapple salad. Instead of filling the cavity of the pineapple slice with cream cheese combined with nuts a peach is used and a ball of the cheese mixture placed in the cavity where the stone was removed. The fruit of course should be well chilled before stuffing and a light well-seasoned salad dressing used to mask the peach.
Creamed Dried Beef With Rice
One-fourth pound dried beef, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 1/2 cups milk, 2 tablespoons grated cheese, 1 teaspoon pepper, 2 hard cooked eggs, 2 cups boiled rice.
Melt butter in frying pan. Add dried beef pulled into small pieces and cook until the excess fat has been removed. Add flour over meat and stir with a fork until perfectly blended. Slowly add milk, stirring constantly. Add cheese and cook until cheese is melted. Add chopped whites of eggs. Pour this mixture over hot boiled rice arranged on a hot platter. Sprinkle with yolks of eggs rubbed through a sieve.

Good Attendance At Opening of Revival Services On Sunday

Excellent crowds were in attendance at the beginning of pre-Easter revival services at the First Christian, First Methodist and Cumberland Presbyterian Churches yesterday. These services will continue through Easter Sunday with morning and evening services at the Christian and Methodist Churches and evening services at the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. Revival services will open at the First Presbyterian Church next Sunday.
Rev. Milo Atkinson, evangelist of Wichita Falls, is preaching at the First Christian Church, assisting Rev. W. P. Jennings, regular pastor. Mrs. Vera Harmon Trent is conducting the song services. Rev. D. E. Donk, presiding elder of the Lubbock district, is preaching at the First Methodist Church, and Rev. K. I. Ingram, pastor, is preaching at the Cumberland Presbyterian Church.
Evening services will be at 7:45 o'clock each evening except Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week when they will begin at 7:30 o'clock in order that members of the congregation who desire may attend the music festival numbers at the Tech. The Cumberland Presbyterian services will begin at 8 o'clock each evening except during the music festival.

Von Rosenberg-Smith Wedding On Sunday

Miss Lucie Mae Smith, daughter of Mrs. Maude Smith, of Broadway, and Wesley Von Rosenberg, son of Paul Von Rosenberg, 1082 Avenue N, were married at 4:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the home of her mother. They are living at 1514 Avenue K.

PROFESSOR SAYS PAPER CAN BE SALVAGED

CORNELL MAN FINDS NEW WAY TO REMOVE INK FROM NEWSPAPERS

(By the Associated Press)
ITHACA, N. Y., Mar. 22.—Dr. F. H. Rhodes, professor of industrial chemistry at Cornell University, has evolved a successful process for removing the ink from old newspapers so that they may be turned back into newsprint.

The recovered paper, Professor Rhodes says, is as durable as the original. "We have found two agents that will make paper as white as the original, and one gives a whiter paper," he declared today.

The process affects no marked change in the nature of the pulp, but there is a loss of about ten percent. The discovery will solve to a great extent the serious problem of the diminishing supply of wood pulp, Dr. Rhodes believes.

The laboratory cost is a fraction of a cent higher per pound than the present price of newsprint, due largely to the high cost of the newspapers used. Professor Rhodes now is engaged in perfecting details such as the determination of proper temperatures, consistency of the pulp, and quantity of chemicals used. A method of removing the ink from book and magazine paper has been in use for some time, but processes for reclaiming used newspapers have proved too expensive or the converted pulp was not of proper quality or color.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 22.—A Supreme Court review was granted today in the case involving the validity of leases under which the Prairie Oil and Gas Company is operating land in Tulsa, Oklahoma, belonging to Edward C. Twiss and others.

'MOTHER OF TEXAS,' MRS. JANE GILLELAND FISHER, OF AUSTIN DIES AT HOME ON SUNDAY NIGHT

ANOTHER PIONEER OF LONE STAR REPUBLIC GOES OVER THE HILL; AUSTIN BOWS ITS HEAD IN SORROW FOLLOWING HER DEATH

(By the Associated Press)
AUSTIN, Mar. 22.—The body of Mrs. Rebecca Jane Fisher, 94, "mother of Texas," who died here Sunday night, will lie in state in the Senate Chamber of the State House. The body will be placed on a bier Tuesday in the famous hall, adorned with paintings of historical events which painted before this Texas pioneer's eyes.

The Texas flag flew at half-mast in honor of this famous woman who lived to see the 50th anniversary of the Texas declaration of independence from Mexico, March 2, 1836. "The body will lie in state from 10 A.M. Tuesday to 2 P.M. and at 3 o'clock services will be held. Place of interment has not been decided upon.

AUSTIN, Mar. 22.—Death last night removed another of that rapidly thinning band of Texas pioneers, whose life span reaches back to the time when this state was a republic.

Mrs. Rebecca Jane Gilleland Fisher, affectionately known as "the mother of Texas" on account of her long life and service in this state, died here at the patriarchal age of 94.

Born in Philadelphia in 1831, she came to Texas with her parents when still a child, settling in Galveston and later in Refugio county. Her parents met death at the hands of Indians and she and her brother William were carried away captives.

Indians Wound Children
Pressed by a band of savages, the Indians wounded the children and left them for dead, to be later picked up and revived by their rescuers. Mrs. Fisher told the story of this adventure on her last birthday, recalling the 86 year old incident with remarkable clearness of memory.
After being reared by relatives, the young pioneer was married in 1846 to the Rev. Orceutt Fisher, a Methodist minister. The latter filed his estates in Texas and California. They returned to Texas from the coast in 1852, settling in Austin. Dr. Fisher died a number of years ago.

SMARTNESS TO BE DEPLORED SAY OFFICERS

GANG IS ROUNDED UP BY SPECIAL DETECTIVES

(By the Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Mar. 22.—The activities of three hundred detectives under the personal direction of Police Commissioner McLaughlin today resulted in alleged confessions to several major crimes of the past year by members of a gang of seven men and one woman, rounded up following a lucky arrest on suspicion early Friday morning.

A confessed murderer was held without bail; four confessions in jewelry robberies totaling $200,000 in loot were made to the police, clearing up several baffling mysteries; leads to solutions of other crimes were in evidence and an untapped mine of information awaited further investigation; all because two detectives in a police car were suspicious of three men they saw leaving a supper club.

Richard Reece Fittmore, called the leader of the gang by the police, Leon Kramer and his brother Jack, both of Philadelphia, and Anthony Polidino of Brooklyn, admitted their parts, the police said, in a $200,000 robbery at 48th Street and Fifth Avenue, this city, last January.

INDIAN CASE APPEALED
WASHINGTON, Mar. 22.—The Department of Justice decided today to appeal from a decision of Federal Judge C. C. Johnson, holding that Federal government was without jurisdiction in the case of William K. Hale and John Ramsey, charged with the murder of wealthy Osage Indian.

Smartness in its usually accepted and literal sense means keenness and versatility of the mind to grasp readily and without any problem brought to hand, but in the lingo of police officers, an entirely different construction is put on the word which is the effect that smartness on the part of law violators toward peace officers is to be deplored.

An instance of such a case was indignantly impressed upon the minds of traffic law officers here Sunday when two young "jellies," thinking more of their appearance and personal liberties than they apparently did of their own lives or the lives of possibly more than a score of innocent citizens, determined that they would flaunt traffic laws to the wind with the result that they were halted after considerable effort on the part of officers in a made 40-mile an hour chase up Main street here.

After the two more brought to a halt, the modern-day "jelly bean" smartness began to crop out in all its fury as the youths replied in a very impertinent manner to questions of officers. And as has sometimes been the case with big-headed officers who wish to give law violators every advantage of the situation as far as possible, they paid very little attention to the youths except to extra from them a cash appearance bond which they admitted later was far too small and allowed them their free dom.

One of these officers, however, remarked later in a conversation that if the little play were to be enacted over again, a much more severe penalty would be meted out. In fact, he rather regretted that he had not brought the youths to the city bastille, which could have been done under the law to lay out their "smart" spell behind the iron bars.

"Such is the life of a peace officer though," he remarked as he passed on from the subject.

BILL IS PASSED

WASHINGTON, Mar. 22.—The $72,000,000 independent office bill carrying $42,000,000 for the Veterans Bureau and $30,000,000 for the shipping board was passed today by the senate. It goes now to conference to smooth out differences between and house provisions.

FIRST FLIGHT OF GOLF TOURNEY ON MUNICIPAL COURSE WILL GET UNDER WAY WEDNESDAY EVENING

First flight Lubbock Municipal Golf Association's qualifying tournament to be played Wednesday, March 24, under the supervision of Lee Duggan, J. O. Smith, Martin Hart and Buddie Stewart, tournament committee. The following players have qualified to enter the tournament: the two winners of which will represent the association and Lubbock in a match play to be played against Charlie Quail and Jimmie Samson of Post; Germany, 72; J. O. Smith, 72; Lee Duggan, 72; V. E. Wilson, 74; E. B. Adcock, 74; E. S. Stewart, 76; Floyd Bowen, 84; Ross McWhorter, 80; N. Joyce, 87; N. H. Carter, 85; Joe Dick Slaughter, 88; John Jarrott, 80; Herbert Stubbs, 74; L. H. McLarty, 72. Fourteen players have qualified, whereas the tournament provides for a maximum of sixteen players, and the last two positions will remain open until Tuesday night for any two players submitting the lowest score, and these two players will be included in the tournament to begin Wednesday.

Wednesday flight will be played the following pairing, all pairs to play 18 holes, and strokes to be registered at Bowen's, for the purpose of pairing for Thursday's flight.

Germany and Slaughter; Smith and McWhorter; Duggan and Carter; Stewart and Joyce; Adcock and Stubbs; Wilson and Jarrott; Bowen and McLarty. Should any player of a pair forfeit, the remaining player is requested to play 18 holes either alone or under competition and register his score for the purpose of pairing.

Each player is requested to get in touch with his playing partner and arrange time for Wednesday's play.

TRAILING THE BIG LEAGUERS

BY BILLY EVANS
MANAGER LEE FOHL of the Boston Red Sox is an optimist.

In baseball an optimist manager is one who after finishing in last place, still smiles and can see better things ahead.

"Sure! It's going to be a better team than last year," remarked Fohl when I queried him as to the outlook.

"No doubt there are some unkind folks who will discount that statement by saying the club couldn't be any worse.

"I am going to get better pitching. I believe I am conservative when I say it is going to be at least 25 per cent better than last season. That should help a lot."

"I am banking on my 'Big Three,' Ehmke, Ruffin and Wingfield, to keep the club out of last place.

"Ehmke has always been one of the best pitchers in the American League. There isn't an opposing batter in the organization who relishes hitting against Howard."

Fred Haney, who did some mighty good work for Cobb at Detroit, and Chester Fowler, with Minneapolis last year and who has been up before with Cincinnati, will fight it out for third base.

REGARDLESS of who wins the berth, the Sox will be better fortified at that position than in years. Haney will be hard to beat. In that case Fowler may be used at short.

Emmett McCann, who starred at Portland in the Coast League last season and who was dug up and tried out by Connie Mack some years ago, is the probable choice for second.

Shortstop, the most important position on a ball club, is the least settled of the Red Sox problems. It would be taking a long guess at this time to name who would play the spot at the opening of the season. Shortstop is Lee Fohl's biggest puzzle.

The outfield will be much the same as last year. Flugstad is the only outfielder sure of a berth. He will play center.

Back of the bat Alex Gaston, once with the Giants, should improve the catching. The youngster Stokes is about ready.

The Boston Red Sox must be built up and it's a large job. Both President Quinn and Manager Fohl realize it. It is certain to be an improved team over last year. To finish sixth would be quite an achievement.

Around The Lot In Major Leagues Training Camps In South And West

CHICAGO, Mar. 22.—The old adage that all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy applies to baseball as well as any other line of endeavor. At any rate the boys in the spring training camps are getting a little taste of fishing, golf and other pastimes as well as intensive drill on the diamond.

The Boston Braves took a Sunday off at Saint Petersburg, Fla., fishing and snatching the golf ball instead of horseshoe. Out on the West Coast, Pilot McKechnie of the Pittsburgh Pirates thought up another interesting scheme of entertainment. Declaring that his team had worked hard ever since arriving in camp and that recreation would do them good, he declared a holiday today and planned to take his men to the ranch of a friend near Paso Robles, Cal., where a jackrabbit hunt and a barbecue was scheduled. But the Pirates started the day with the memory of a double defeat at the hands of the Mission Berris at San Francisco Sunday still in mind.

Records so far show that Cleveland players have made a poor showing against pitchers for Cincinnati, the Giants and Brooklyn. A higher quality of pitching is needed or the Indians have had enough batting practice, sport writers have observed at Lakeland.

Rained out at Fort Worth, where they were to have played an exhibition game, the Chicago White Sox were back at their Shreveport camp today ready for further drill.

The Chicago Cubs will loaf today but tomorrow they are scheduled to battle a San Francisco team. They

PITCHING LOOKS BETTER

"RUFFIN, I would say is the most improved young pitcher in the circuit. He has all the stuff in the world and needs only experience. He improved 100 per cent last season.

"Wingfield, if he can continue the fine work of last fall, must be considered a most valuable asset.

"Then there is Paul Zahniser, who started slowly last year because he was late reporting and not in the best shape. If he comes through for me I will have four dependables.

"Of course, I am looking forward to improvement in all other departments, but of the pitching I am positive it is certainly going to be better than last season.

As I watched the Red Sox work out down south I could see the logic in Fohl's line of reasoning relative to his pitching. It should be much better and the team should prove more formidable because of it.

However, as Fohl frankly admits for the club to start to get anywhere the infield must be welded together.

At present, Phil Todd at first base is perhaps the only certainty in the Red Sox inner combination.

They have a six game schedule with teams in the Golden Gate vicinity.

Pat Harrison Raps GOP Administration

WASHINGTON, Mar. 22. (AP)—The Coolidge administration "has gone back to secret diplomacy behind doors and under dark lanterns," said Senator Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, today in the senate.

Referring to the present visit of Ambassador Houghton and Minister Hugh Gibson and statements attributed to them regarding conditions in Europe, he charged the Ambassador to Great Britain with starting a "subtle propaganda" to tear up the work other men are trying to do. Then he broadened his inquiry to include Secretary Kellogg, saying he feared there had been some connivance among "Careful Cal," "Nervous Nellie," and "Gloomy Gus" in connection with the incident.

FOREST OF 20,000 CHINESE ELM TREES PLANTED AT STATE FARM HERE, SUPT. DON L. JONES STATES

A forest of 20,000 normal Chinese Elm trees has been produced at the State Experiment Farm here on a plot of ground not more than six by eight feet in area by Don L. Jones, manager of the farm, and his assistants, and the forest is being ravaged this week for trees to replace those taken from the farm to be planted on the grounds of the Technological College.

These trees, in a very few years, will grow to a height of 20 to 30 feet, although they now measure about 6 inches high on an average. They were produced from seed imported from China last year and planted on the farm. The miniature forest is made up of 20,000 seedling elms.

Other Trees Growing Too

A number of other miniature forests are growing at intervals in a hot bed area of the farm. Arizona Cypress, which has been transplanted into tiny pots and look for all the world like the decorative Christmas trees sold each December, will grow several feet before another winter. They have sprouted from seed since last fall when they were planted on the farm.

A short distance from the beds, larger trees, most of them seedlings, have been transplanted. These are plants which have been found to thrive here and will be sold to citizens of this territory. Evergreens are the principal trees and shrubs in the group, although these are a number of other plants. Dog wood, which is excellent for shrubbery here, is there in quantities. There are several walnut trees and three kind of maples: the hard, soft and the silver leaf maples.

COTTON YIELD IN 1925 GREATEST

WASHINGTON, Mar. 22. (AP)—More bales of cotton were produced in the United States from last year's crop than in any year before in history, although in quantity of lint cotton the crop ranks second in size, having been exceeded in 1914.

Final ginning figures for the 1924 crop announced today by the census bureau, placed the crop at 16,102,586 running bales as compared with 15,945,849 in the record crop of 1914. Reduced to contain 478 pounds of lint cotton, the 1925 crop was 16,985,565, or 7,689,590 pounds of lint, compared with 16,134,930 equivalent 500 pound bales in the 1914 crop.

The value of the crop was not announced but unofficial calculations, based on the farm price of lint on December 1, placed it at $1,359,490,999 which is lower than the lint value of the 1923 and 1924 crop but more than double the lint value of the 1914 crop. The value of the crop's cotton seed is not included but it likely will run somewhere around $200,000,000.

Pessimism is Heard

While some exceptional favorable reports are coming out of some of the camps, a bit of pessimism is being registered at a few. Connie Mack has been viewing the work of the Philadelphia at Post Myers, Fla., with a gloomy eye and released the observation that the Athletics looked bad as when they dropped twelve games in a row last year. They must wake.

Hold outs are also giving little concern to some managers. Henline and Harger of the Phillies are still missing from the Bradentown round-up of talent, holding up for more salary, but manager Fletcher says he is making plans for the season without them. Another seeker for a heavier stipend is Bill Terry of the Giants, who wires his desire to Sarasota from Memphis. Otherwise the daily record of pre-season baseball endeavor was a mixture of routines.

When You Trade Your Car—

Ford owners are continually being approached by automobile salesmen who wish to "accept" Fords as part payment on more expensive cars.

It is perfectly logical that automobile dealers everywhere should be eager to trade with Ford owners. The Ford is the most popular automobile in the world. No other used car is so easy to sell as a used Ford — because everyone has confidence in Ford quality. And it is not expensive to re-condition, since Ford replacement parts are lowest in price.

Most automobiles carry greater discounts to dealers than the Ford — another reason why other dealers may offer the Ford owner a larger trade-in allowance.

But when you come to buy a new car, bear these facts in mind:

The amount of the trade-in allowance you can get is not the most important thing for you to consider. The big thing is the difference you have to pay. And remember, that the higher priced car will not be so easy to dispose of when you come to trade it in.

If you wish to trade your Ford for a new automobile, stick to the car that you know to be dependable, useful and economical. Go to your Ford dealer!

He will give you a fair and liberal allowance for your present Ford and will gladly arrange payment of the balance to suit your convenience.

When the deal is over, and you have your new and improved Ford, you will have the satisfaction of knowing positively that you took advantage of the greatest automobile value the world has ever seen — and saved a lot of money, too.

PREPARE FOR WAR

The Board of City Development, backed by influential citizens personally, will stage a fight, if necessary, before the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington in an effort to have that body disregard the recommendations made before it recently, by Examiner E. C. Boles, in regard to South Plains rail extensions.

Probably members of the Interstate Commerce Commission do not know it, but Mr. Boles' recommendations have met with little favor in West Texas. One good thing about it, however, is that although the august members of the commission may not know that the examiner's recommendations are inadequate, they'll know it pretty soon.

Local citizens, armed with facts, will invade Washington, if necessary, and wage a fight to get the needed rail extensions and should the battle cry be sounded it is up to Lubbock, as a city undivided, to stand behind her personal representatives.

The way things look now such a fight will be necessary. There is an old adage which advises "In time of peace, prepare for war." This is peace time, although a rather uneasy peace time, at that, in West Texas rail circles. Yet there never was a time when the old saw was in better taste.

JAZZING UP OUR COURTS

In Philadelphia a dog has been acquitted of the murder of a kitten. After a solemn court trial, which included an autopsy on the defunct cat, it was decided that a motor car, which was the guilty party and the dog was formally freed. It had been necessary to examine the cat in order to perform the autopsy.

We gather from dispatches that this was a regular court proceeding, carried out with all the solemnity and dignity befitting the great occasion.

Peanut proceedings of this sort are one of the principal reasons why some of our courts are not held in the awe and respect they are entitled to.

When courts busy themselves about the trial of a dog for the murder of a cat it is little wonder that human murder stalks almost unrebuked through the land, and highwaymen ply their trade in comparative security.

Or perhaps the dog's owner was the one really on trial for harboring a vicious animal, and the whole proceeding was jazzed up as a dog trial by a sensational press. We have such a thing as a sensational press, you know; the sort that will make a proper judicial proceeding seem ridiculous in order to give the great army of jaded readers a momentary thrill.

STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER

GOVERNOR RITCHIE FAVORS DRY LAW MODIFICATION

By CHARLES P. STEWART NEA Service Writer.

WASHINGTON—In the belief that Governor Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland is due to figure increasingly in the news for some time to come, I chased over to Baltimore the other day to find out for myself how he looks, talks and behaves generally. He does all three admirably.

Governor Ritchie, in short, has a charming personality. He's a big man physically, he obviously has brains and he's gentleman all over, somewhat of the southern type.

It was a tradition, prior to Ritchie's regime, that governors of Maryland had only one term apiece. Ritchie's had two and now he speaks a third. It's his for the asking, on Maryland's part. This speaks well, and correctly, for his gubernatorial record.

Governor Ritchie is best known as a wet.

Well, he is in favor of modifying the Volstead law. But not, he says, because he's wet. He's in favor of it because he thinks the cause of temperance was gaining ground up to the time prohibition was enacted, and, in his opinion, absolute prohibition gave it a bad setback, and since then things have been getting worse and worse.

He wants modification, not as a wet measure, but as a temperance one.

However, his advocacy of prohibition modification is only incidental to his main issue, which is—State rights.

YELLOW STUB

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Jimmy Rand, 25, a business man, found a note pinned to a cheap hotel in Grafton. Police find a woman's handkerchief and the stub of a yellow theater ticket.

Jimmy Rand, his daughter, breaks her engagement with Barry Colvin, because of the "disgrace."

Jimmy meets and falls in love with Mary Lowell. Later he encounters Olga. She faints at hearing police want her for murder.

Mary, out with Samuel Church, a wealthy lawyer, sees Jimmy lift Olga into a taxi and misunderstands.

Olga tells police the stub might have come into possession of a man who "picks her up" two nights before the murder. Jimmy receives mysterious warnings to save Cleveland and later is attacked by two men, but escapes.

With Jimmy and Mary estranged, Church gets Mary's promise to marry him. Jimmy and Olga, out one night, see a man they both recognize—she as the man who got the stub, he as one of his assailants. The man escapes, but they identify him by his police photo as the Jensen.

Barry Colvin tells Jimmy that Mary Lowell has broken with Sam Church. They are walking along the street. They see Mary Lowell approaching. Just as Jimmy is raising his hat he spots a familiar figure running for a street car. He watches the suddenly and runs like a mad man.

Jimmy, walking with Barry, suddenly sees Kid Divis, a known intimate of Jensen, boarding a street car. He runs in pursuit, swings aboard the car. When Divis gets off, at the end of the line, Jimmy follows him through lonely streets and dimly fog. He sees Divis enter a house, and, after the door closes behind him, he approaches the house himself.

found himself at the front basement window. He peered at the darkness within, but saw nothing, and the silence was oppressive and fearful.

Slowly he made his way around to the side—the side whence he had seen the light shining down the road. The light was still there, casting a dull glow through a drawn shade. Jimmy bent down and looked.

He thought, "If anyone comes between the light and the window, I'll see his shadow."

He could detect a low murmur of voices, but they seemed far away. And no one moved between the light and the window. There was just that dim, unfriendly glow through the shade.

He strained forward, listening, and suddenly he thought he heard a voice rising on a note of anger. And, while he listened, the voice ceased. There was a brief silence, and then from the room came the sound of a woman's scream.

He checked the cry that sprang to his own lips. The voice was Olga Maynard's.

He turned around helplessly. Should he run for assistance, or should he try to enter the house alone? Would it do any good? It seemed so foolhardy, and yet—God!—Olga had cried out for help. She needed him.

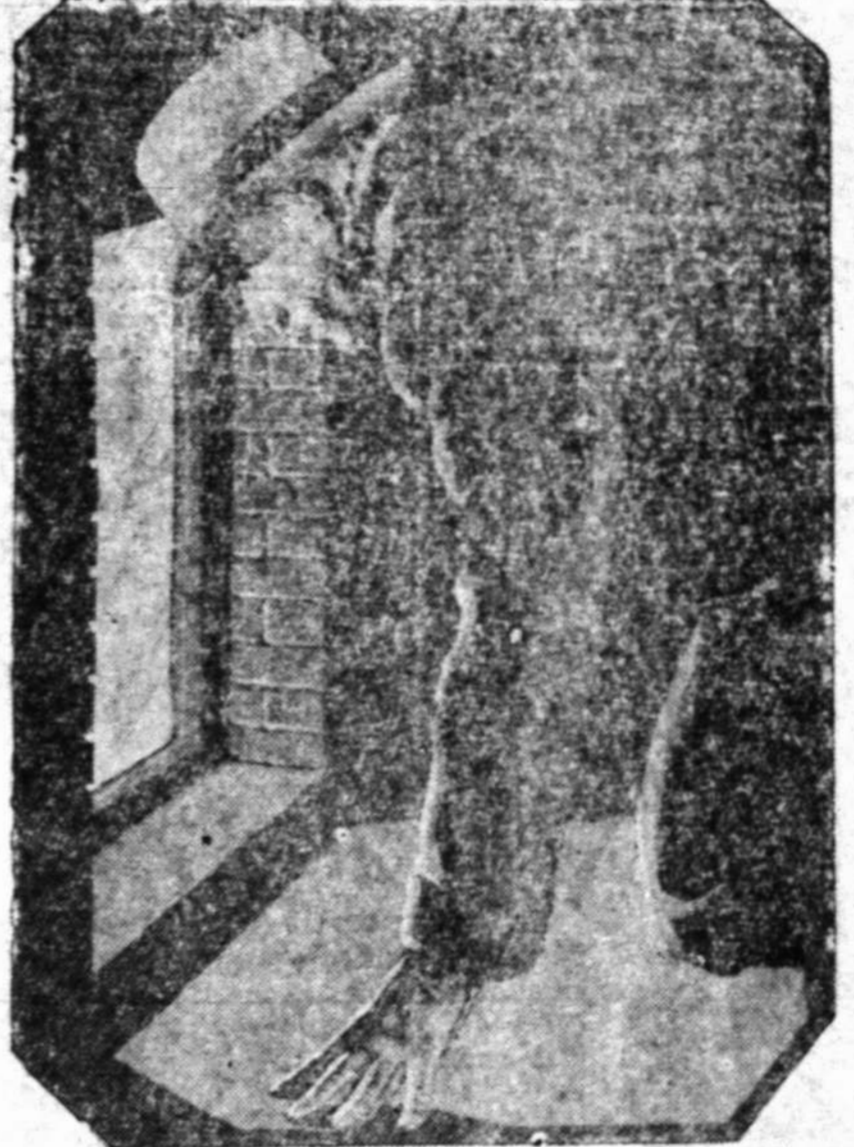

As if in answer to his question, the cry came again. This time it was not a scream, but a low moan.

"God help me!" he cried. "I'm going in," and he ran as swiftly as he could around to the front entrance.

Before the door he paused. Should he try to rush boldly in—maybe by breaking a window—and trust to the value of a surprise attack? Or should he try by stealth?

"Hurry, hurry. Do something," his voice was a desperate whisper. He cautiously tried the knob of the door that had opened in answer to Divis' knock. He was somewhat surprised to find that it turned. Divis had not locked the door behind him.

He stealthily turned the knob all the way, and then, with a silent prayer that the door swing open without betraying quickly, he slowly pushed

There was a brief silence, and then from the room came the sound of a woman's scream.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XLVII

Jimmy, a gloom-shrouded figure in the fog, his pulses racing madly—whether from fear or excitement he did not know—slowly approached the house where he had seen Kid Divis disappear.

He stood now just in front of it. A short flight of steps led up to the front door, another short flight down to the basement entrance.

It was the basement entrance which Divis had used and Jimmy made his cautious way down the steps. He stood just outside the door, his car pressed against a panel. But he heard nothing and for a brief second he debated whether to try the door and see if he could slip in unobserved and unseen.

But he had a change of mind. "Better look around first," and his voice, a low whisper, was eerie-like in the fog.

Again he was suddenly cold. His blood-running chill. An involuntary shiver shook him as he stood in the basement entrance, trying to decide on some plan of action that would enable him to see inside the house without himself being discovered.

Fleeting memories came of boyhood nights before the fire with thrilling detective fiction. Surely, he thought, none of it was more hair-raising or perilous than this—and this, strangely, was real life. It was impossible, and yet it was true.

He knew, instinctively, that inside this house was the secret to those mysterious warnings he had received; to Olga Maynard's fate; to Jensen's whereabouts; even to his father's murder.

"If only this place wasn't so far from nowhere," he complained. "Foolish to try anything alone. Even more foolish to take the time to get police out here. They might clear out."

It open until there was enough space for him to push his body past. Carefully he closed it behind him, felt the latch click home with only a faint sound, and stood in semidarkness in a hallway.

To his left, the door swung open, was a lighted room. Jimmy judged that it might be a living room or, more probably, one of those old-fashioned basement "parlors."

Just ahead of him, and to his right, was a flight of stairs with thin carpet nearly worn through. And a little farther down the hall, and to his left, a door stood ajar, letting a broad beam of light sift into the darkness.

He judged it was the room through whose window he had first seen the light and outside which he had just been listening. He heard voices—man's heavy bass, another man's voice, higher pitched.

He had heard that first one. It was Jensen. And he heard the labored, catchy breathing of a woman trying to suppress her sobs.

Then, carefully, his hand supporting him against the wall, he tip-toed down the hall and peered into the room, taking pains to keep clear of the beam of light.

There, sitting in a chair, his back to the door, was Kid Divis. He had taken off his coat, but his cap still perched on the back of his head. Directly opposite Divis was Olga, likewise sitting in a chair. Her head was down on her breast. Jimmy could not be sure, but he thought her position indicated she was held in the chair, possibly by a rope around her arms.

And Jensen was standing. He held in his hand a heavy glass tumbler, half filled with whisky, or what Jimmy took for whisky. He drained it and set it down. He turned to Olga, his face brutal with drunkenness.

"Stop your sniffing," he growled. He raised a heavy paw threateningly. Jimmy stiffened. If he should strike her he would cast everything to the winds and rush blindly in. It was more than he could bear.

But Jensen changed his mind. His hand fell to his side and he shrugged, bowed himself another drink.

"Go easy, Ike," said Divis. "Ain't ya had enough yet?"

"Aw shut up," came from Jensen, thickly. "I make me sick."

Jimmy retreated slowly along the wall. He found himself again before the door that opened on the living room. His foot—luckily, it made no noise—came in contact with a small object on the floor. He reached down for it, half groping, for he could not distinguish it in the darkness.

He picked it up, and to his touch it felt like a heavy, round metal knob, with a crudely fashioned handle. Holding it up toward the light that sifted from the other room, he beheld what apparently was the broken-off end of a heavy brass rod.

Then he carefully set it down again and pulled off his overcoat and hat. These he laid on the floor just inside the front room. He picked up the broken rod again and held it firmly in his right hand.

He stood there in the hall, wondering what he should do—what he COULD do. He wished for Lieutenant O'Day's powerful presence. Strange thoughts flashed through his mind.

He crossed the broken rod more firmly. From the room came Jensen's drink-thickened voice again, his words an indistinguishable blur as they floated through the hall.

Then another sound—from upstairs. He jumped nervously. Loud and clear it came to his ears, the ringing of a telephone bell. It sounded strangely foreign to this old house. It came again, an insistent, long ring.

He heard a chair scrape on the room where he had seen Jensen and the other. Then Jensen's voice: "Damn telephone. Naw, sit still, Kid. I'll answer it."

Probably the big fellow wanted to talk to me. Damn nuisance, the phone's upstairs. Jimmy heard Jensen's heavy footfalls, saw his shadow move out into the hall and lengthen fantastically on the carpet.

He stepped quickly into the friendly darkness of the front room. Should he swing the rod and Jensen pleased to go up the stairs? Swung at his head with all his might and then leap madly in at Divis?

He decided against it. There was that telephone call. He wanted to know who was calling—where Jensen had referred to when he spoke of the "big feller."

He stood where he was and let Jensen pass. He could have taken less short steps, but he touched him as he turned to mount the stairs. A sudden plan flashed through his mind as he saw Jensen's broad back moving upward.

He waited until the man had reached the floor above, heard him grunt "hello" into the phone, then his muscles taut, his nerves tense, he set off in a lunge toward the lighted room.

Divis was still seated in the chair with his back to the door, his feet comfortably propped on the bare table. He was sipping slowly from the heavy tumbler that Jensen had been using.

As silently as a cat Jimmy moved. He could still hear Jensen's voice, muffled by the distance, at the phone. And now he stood framed in the doorway. There was Olga, her head scooping wearily. She was tied in the chair, Jimmy saw. He took one cautious step toward Divis and saw Olga suddenly look up, saw the frozen horror on her face as she beheld him.

And Divis—Divis saw it, too. He set the glass down on the table, slowly moved to turn his head.

And then Jimmy sprang forward, raising the hand that held the broken rod.

With Our Contemporaries

ALL WRONG

A speaker before a spartan's dinner at New York the other night remarked that "if every man, woman and child in the country had a sport bunny there would be no need for any police forces anywhere."

That statement was about as far wrong as a short statement like that could be, and it's quoted only because it's characteristic of so much of the balmy thinking that goes on nowadays.

Sports are fine things for those who indulge in them, but they don't exactly broaden the mind, remove prejudices and enable people to think for themselves. And those are the things we need before we can talk of abolishing police forces.—Abilene Reporter.

STATE AID

According to Mrs. Annie Baker Gooch, county superintendent of schools twenty-three of the rural schools of this county will receive a total of $9,892 from the state aid fund of the State Department of Education during this year. J. E. McClung, inspector for the State Department of Education, spent last week in this county visiting the various schools that had applied for aid from the state. Twenty-nine schools of the county made application for this help, but six of those asking failed to measure up to the requirements.—Dawson County Journal. (Lamesa.)

MULLICAN DECIDES UNIQUE CASE IN CROSBY CO.

A case involving funds allotted for highway purposes in Crosby county, which grew out of circumstances similar to those surrounding the recent long court battle over certain contracts in Archer county, Texas, was heard in district court in Crosby county before Judge Clark M. Mulligan recently, and it is believed that this case is the first and only one of the kind since litigation was started in the Archer county case.

And almost simultaneously with the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the Archer county case, Judge Mulligan handed down a decision in Crosby county coinciding in almost every particular with the Archer county decision, in which the Archer county road district was refused a new trial against the Attorney General of Texas or any other state in the matter of federal and state aid in road districts.

The Supreme Court decision in the Archer county case handed down February 3, and on February 3, Judge Mulligan handed down his decision in the case of Geo. L. Simpson and Co. of Dallas vs Crosby county, involving $25,000 loaned by the plaintiff company to the defendant for highway work. Crosby county had spent approximately $6,000 of the $25,000, and the balance was then in a bank at Crosbyton.

Judge Mulligan's decision, under the ruling of the Supreme court, was that the county should return to the bonding company the $25,000 then remaining in the bank, and that the county should have judgment for the $2,000 already spent.

Explaining the judgement for the county, Judge Mulligan said the Supreme Court had held that the Legislature had no authority to delegate to the County Commissioners Court the power to organize road districts, and that therefore the road district had never in fact existed, because it had never contracted for it, and therefore, the contract in effect was null and void so far as the funds on hand at that time were concerned, but that since the county had spent the $6,000 which had gone into soil, labor, material, etc., for road purposes, and that there is no county fund out of which the money might be secured the county then could not be held responsible for the amount already spent.

AVIATION SCHOOL HAS ENROLLED 4 STUDENTS

Four students have enrolled in the Lubbock Technical School of Aviation, being established here by James E. Cole and Dr. B. O. Hendricks, and are now building a plane which is known as "Maiden Lubbock" when it is completed. A new class is to be started by the men next month.

Students in the school do all the work of building under the direction of Mr. Cole, who served in the air forces during the World War and has been conducting an aviation school since then. This building enables them to learn the fundamentals of construction. They are taken on flights by Mr. Cole during the time in which they are learning the ground work of aviation.

The plane, which is being built, is 21 feet long with wings 29 feet wide. The speed will be at least 125 miles an hour under ordinary conditions. This plane is being especially built for the altitude of the South Plains. Mr. Cole said, and will be used for cross country flights rather than in teaching the students to fly. Another plane is kept here for the later purpose.

The same type of plane that is used in low altitudes is not adapted to high altitudes because of the difference in the weight of the air. Shorter and thicker wings are used here. When in altitudes where the air is heavier, the wing does not affect flying very much as one can usually fly above the storm. Mr. Cole said the wind is in stratus and if the storm near the ground happens to be a head wind, one may go above it and find a tail wind—one going in the other direction. Where two stratus meet, there is a bump in the atmosphere that gives the considerable jolt, he said. The air pockets are not as bad on a windy day as on a sultry one, he said.

The students in the school are Cecil Flynn, Dan Jenkins, Leona W. G. Hendrix and Sgt. Ralph Collins.

Last Lyceum Number At High School To Be Given Saturday

Marshall Louis Mertins, often referred to as the "Poet of the Commonwealth," is to appear at the high school auditorium at 8 o'clock Saturday evening as the last number of the lyceum course sponsored this year by the Parent-Teacher association of the Senior high school. Mr. Mertins' lecture, "The Gold at the Rainbow's End," is made up of humorous stories, funny incidents and original poems which illustrate the points in his talk. He is said to have a sense of humor that enables him to tell a humorous story, coin an epigram or discuss a funny incident so that the audience bursts forth in unrestrained laughter. His humor is said to come forth at unexpected moments, driving home truths that might otherwise fall short of the mark.

His serious articles on economics, politics and religion have been published in some of the leading quarterly reviews of the English-speaking world. For years he has written for the Kansas City Star. He has also contributed to Collier's, Munsey's, the Crowell publications and more than 25 other magazines.

HOCKLEY COUNTY SEAT SHOWING GROWTH

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE IS BEING REORGANIZED; NEW PEOPLE THERE

The town of Levelland is like the old gray mare, only different. Levelland ain't what she used to be—she's better—and then some.

Levelland, county seat of Hockley county now has a citizenry of approximately 1,500 persons. W. D. Cope, contractor and president of the Levelland chamber of commerce, told the Daily Journal while on a recent visit here, and according to Mr. Cope, there are newcomers arriving every day.

At the present time Levelland people are working on a petition to incorporate their city and place it under the commission form of government, as soon as the petition has sixty signers a special election will be called and the matter voted on by the taxpayers. The chamber of commerce is behind the move and there is every indication if success, it is said.

The chamber of commerce has recently been reorganized and the plan being followed now is to have every citizen of Hockley county a member of the organization. A diversification campaign is being waged by the chamber of commerce at the present time and there is every indication that the farmers of the county will profit by it, Mr. Cope stated.

OPEN NEW BUSINESS

Stocks And Money WALL STREET REPORT NEW YORK, Mar. 22. (AP)—With the stock market's technical position strengthened by last week's re-adjustment, prices worked moderately higher as trading was resumed.

Active covering gave further impetus to the advance and prices surged rapidly upward throughout the first half hour. Buying of Standard rails and industrials boomed when the opening gains failed to invite the use of professional offerings.

General Electric rallied almost five points and Allied Chemical, Woolworth, Mack Trucks and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe from 3 to 3 1/2. United Railways and Improvement soared 3 points to 75. Oils and motors shares continued to make headway with Pan-American "B" Hudson and General Motors extending their gains to two points each.

High grade carriers, such as Atchafalaya, New York Central and Delaware and Hudson also were in the forefront of the advance. Foreign exchanges opened steady, with French and Belgium francs rallying slightly and demand sterling holding at $4.85 1/2.

DIVIDEND DECLARED NEW YORK, Mar. 22. (AP)—The Texas Oil and Land Company has declared an extra dividend of fifteen cents a share and the regular quarterly dividend of five cents both payable April 24 to holders of record April 1st.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE NEW YORK, Mar. 22. (AP)—Foreign exchange steady. Great Britain 4.85 1/2; cables 4.81 1/2-1 1/2; 90-day bills on banks 4.81 1/2-1 1/2; France, demand 3.52 1/2; cables 3.52 1/2; Italy, demand 40 1/2; Germany 23.90; Tokio 45 1/2; Montreal 91 21-22.

Grain Markets CHICAGO REPORT CHICAGO, Mar. 22. (AP)—Foreign buying of future deliveries of wheat here together with unexpected higher quotations at Liverpool gave an early upward lift to the Chicago wheat market today. On the advance here, however, commission house selling increased, and with the Minneapolis

Cotton Markets

NEW YORK COTTON NEW YORK, Mar. 22. (AP)—The cotton market opened steady with prices in response to rather disappointing Liverpool cables, but very soon steadied.

The market which should be fairly active at the start, became quiet later in the morning, but held generally steady on some further covering or commission house buying. May sold up to 18.58c and October to 17.45c with the active month showing net advances of about four to seven points at mid-day.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON NEW ORLEANS, Mar. 22. (AP)—The cotton market opened steady notwithstanding lower Liverpool cables than here. March started one point down, but later months opened 2 to 4 points up, prices being sustained by the bad weather in the cotton region.

Prices eased off several points after the call but soon rallied again on the weather outlook. May trading up to 17.94c, July to 17.56c and October to 16.75c, or 6 to 7 points above Saturday's close. At the end of the first half hour the market was steady and disposed to improve.

Trading continued light all morning but prices were supported by the unfavorable private reports from the interior as to backwardness of the crop preparations due to the rain. The market gradually advanced until May traded at 18.00c, July at 17.35c and October at 16.95c, or 11 to 12 points up from the initial lows. While prices were sustained by the bad weather there was little disposition to buy owing to the bearish statistical situation and the absence of spot demand. At the noon the market was steady at near the highs.

NEW YORK FUTURES NEW YORK, Mar. 22. (AP)—Cotton futures opened steady. May 18.60c; July 18.05c; October 17.47c; December 17.18c; January 17.12c.

success. These include San Angelo, Longview, Marshall, Corsicana, and others, and since initiation of this method of controlling disease, health records of these places show beyond a doubt that the system is worth while. The department includes installation of a laboratory where foods of various kinds are tested periodically, and include also physical examination by each individual who handles these foods. Inspectors in the various departments are provided to keep in close touch with the situation, such as water and sewer inspectors, milk, meat, and many other things that are recognized as disease carriers.

City's Responsibility —On account of the fact that Lubbock is the home of one of the state's largest educational institutions, the city should feel a great responsibility in this connection. Dr. Rollo said, for hundreds of young people come here annually to the college or high school, and they may either bring disease with them, or contract disease after they arrive here.

Under the present system, he continued, the health official is virtually helpless, for he has no organized effort behind his plans. Various means have been suggested as to how such a department could be financed except through appropriation by the city commission, the most logical one of which possibly is the levy of a tax on the city mains which would allow approximately $1,100 per month. With this amount, the work could be carried on in a manner that is efficient and will have results, according to Dr. Rollo.

All citizens interested in health conditions of the city are urged to attend the meeting tonight, but especially is it urged that each civic club have a representative.

ment's projected social reforms has brought predictions among the non-socialistic parties of a cabinet crisis and the overthrow of the government in the near future.

Foreign Minister Under went to Geneva backed by the opinion of Parliament that Germany should be elected to the league forthwith.

It is thought possibly that this stand might result in adjournment of the league assembly was foreseen. The sacrifice of Sweden in the league council met with condemnation from many prominent men of all parties, who declare the gesture ridiculous, as it did not serve its purpose.

Stressmann Gives His Idea —BERLIN, Mar. 22. (AP)—The League of Nations has been plunged into a grave crisis by the break-down of the League negotiations for Germany's election, Foreign Minister Stressmann declared in a governmental statement to the Reichstag today.

Germany, he said, reserves the right to withdraw her application for entry into the league in the event the decision of the new commission regarding reconstruction of the council does not correspond with Germany's expectations. He frankly criticized the obstructionist tactics employed by certain powers at Geneva in keeping Germany from the council seat promised her at Locarno.

Outcome is Deplored The outcome of the negotiations must be deeply deplored because the chief mourner after all is the league itself, he said. Repeating to a reproach because the German delegation had not left Geneva the moment the council membership question no longer conformed with the promises received with the promises received by Germany at Locarno, Dr. Stressmann said: "Such a departure unquestionably would have called forth cheap laurels for the German delegation at home, but at the expense of our prestige in the eyes of the rest of the world. We could not afford to offend the League of Nations because the attitude of several powers in it seemed incorrect. As it was we left Geneva without a single power there justified in blaming us for the unsatisfactory result of the conference.

War Troubles Aired "Before and during the war we frequently made the mistake of underestimating the importance of public sentiment as a world factor. If that was a mistake at the zenith of our power, it would have represented nothing less than a crime in our present situation. "The entire attitude of the organs of the League of Nations reflected a wish for peace with the German nation. To respond to such sentiments with an abrupt departure would have been a political blunder."

Germany Wants Equal Terms Germany, he added, must continue to strive to enter the league on equal terms with the world powers, even if the league be nothing but a new diplomatic instrument for furthering the special interests of nations. Fortunately, however, Germany's interests were identical with the league ideals, and she had no intention of prosecuting any kind of policy of might or of balancing of powers.

Prohibition Cases Set For April 5th WASHINGTON, Mar. 22. (AP)—The senate prohibition sub-committee reported today that beginning April 5 that it would start hearings, continuing two weeks, the first week to be devoted to the wet and the second to the dry.

commercial traveler, an analytical chemist and a vagrant. He spoke at St. Luke's Episcopal Church. Calls for charity in his district have virtually disappeared, he said, since the law went into effect.

Eulogies Prohibitionist In Portland, Maine, at memorial services for General Neal Dod, "father" of the Maine prohibitory law, passed in 1855, Dr. Ernest H. Cherrington of Westerville, Ohio, general secretary of the World League against Alcoholism, said that considering the difficulties, greater progress has been made in the first six years of prohibition than with any similar effort at enforcement of an important federal constitutional amendment.

Wilson Credits Prohibition Dr. Clarence True Wilson, secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance and public morals, in an address at Berwick, Pa., credited prohibition with saving America from the evils of post-war depression suffered by European countries.

At Phoenix, N. Y., Arthur J. Davis, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League urged New York Republicans to "get in line with the national party" by enacting a state law, and said that Empire state Republicans were in danger from "competing with Tammany bidding for beer votes."

In Washington the senate judiciary committee is to decide this week whether to hold hearings on modification bills. A sub-committee favors hearings, which if given final approval, will start about April 10.

Walsh Opposes Committee. Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, alone opposed the rain of a sub-committee of five in favor of open hearings. The sub-committee will conduct the hearings, giving six days to the wet and an equal length of time to the dry.

No date has been set for the hearings which will be confined to five modification measures now behind the committee. One would amend the 18th amendment so that states which were wet before the prohibition amendment, would again be wet, with the government manufacturing, selling and distributing liquor.

Would Legalize Beer. Three of the other four measures proposed to legalize beer, one for four percent beer, one for 2.75 percent beer and the other for the "non-intoxicating in fact." The fourth would remove the restrictions on prescription whiskey.

Senator Mans, republican, Colorado, is chairman of the sub-committee and the other members are Goff, West Virginia, and Harrell, Oklahoma, republican and Reed, Missouri, and Walsh, Montana, democrats.

ANNUAL REPORT ON FEED LAW NOW AVAILABLE

The Twentieth Annual Report of The Feed Control Service of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station of its administration of the Texas Feed Laws, has been published in Bulletin No. 318 which is now available for free distribution on request made to B. Youngblood, Director, College Station, Texas. The Texas feed law, designed primarily to protect purchasers of commercial feeds against adulteration and inferior articles, was enacted by the legislature in 1905. During the year ended August 31, 1925, inspectors visited 9,969 farms in 1,450 towns and cities and secured 1,518 official samples for chemical analysis and microscopic examination. The report shows to what extent feed manufacturers are complying with the law and shows a relatively small number of irregularities detected. Feed dealers and consumers are advised to carefully study this bulletin in order to become familiar with the official definitions of feedstuffs and standards adopted and to purchase feed from firms which make shipments according to law and maintain their guarantee in every respect.

A new feature of this report is a list of tentative chemical standards for four of the principal special-purpose mixed feeds which have been made in order that mixed feeds not suitable for the purpose to be served, may not be sold under misleading names. Tentative standards were accordingly devised for cow and dairy feed, horse and mule feed, hog feed and laying mash. Other special-purpose mixed feeds will have standards provided as soon as their use becomes extensive enough to justify such action.

BOSTON—J. Scott Skinner, 53, of Aberdeen, Scotland's best fiddler and John Wiseman, 76, of Ranney Bay, who thinks he is unsurpassed in Ireland, have come to up American old-timers in a contest at Lewiston, Maine. At the pier they were greeted by bagpipes and no harps.

France Restless As Vacation Is Talked

PARIS, March 22. (AP)—The prospects that Parliament will adjourn for the Easter vacation without having solved the nation's financial problem caused such uneasiness in business circles today that the franc declined to a new low record. It was quoted at 25.32 to the dollar and 137.45 to pound Sterling as importers rushed to buy American and British exchange to cover 6,000,000 due coming in the next few weeks.

'Cyclone' Davis Not To Run For Governor
SULPHUR SPRINGS, Tex., Mar. 22. (AP)—A rumor current in Austin Saturday to the effect that "Cyclone" Davis of Sulphur Springs would be a candidate for governor of Texas was set to rest tonight by Mr. Davis. He said that he would not be a candidate for governor but would support Lydon Davidson because of latter's "fine record as a prohibitionist."

Great Gas Well Is Tapped In N. Mexico
ROSWELL, N. M., Mar. 22. (AP)—What is believed by oil men to be the largest gas well ever tapped in New Mexico, blew in last night in Lea County, with estimated production of between 15 and 20 million cubic feet daily. Drills and tools were blown from the hole which now is spraying oil over the top of the derrick. The well is 25 miles east of the Artesia field.

Bank Robber Makes Getaway From Jail
OKLAHOMA CITY, Mar. 22. (AP)—Big Jim McGraw, notorious bank robber, escaped yesterday from the state reformatory at Granite. Some bent iron bars were found in his cell, but officials at the reformatory do not know the details of how he got away. To escape he was obliged to climb over the outer wall of the prison.
