Escapee caught

BIG SPRING — A man who escaped one year ago from a Texas state prison has been arrested in Florida. Travis Dale Gray, 31, of Big Spring was taken into custody Thursday at a St. Petersburg, Fla., apartment complex investigators said. Gray escaped from the Price Daniel prison unit in Snyder on June 20, 1990. He was serving a 40-year sentence for the June 1988 drowning death of his wife, Tammy, in Lake Colorado City. Gray awaits extradition to Texas.

Letters sought

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Postal Service announced Friday that it wants to publish a collection of correspondence from the Persian Gulf War and asked Americans to submit photocopies of cards and letters. "The Letters of Desert Storm" will include letters between troops and their families, as well as a selection of letters from troops in wars back to the Civil War. Anyone with a letter to share should send a copy, along with his name, address and phone number, to Letters of Desert Storm, U.S. Postal Service, 475 L'Enfant Plaza, SW., Washington, 20266-1991.

Leadership award

LOS ANGELES — When the Simon Wiesenthal Center wanted to honor somebody with its National Leadership Award at Sunday's dinner with President Bush, actor Arnold Schwarzenegger was an obvious candidate. The star of such films as "Twins" and "Terminator" has long been a supporter of the center dedicated to the study of the Holocaust. But in selecting Schwarzenegger, the center named after a Nazi hunter had to address some delicate issues. "Arnold: An Unauthorized Biography of Arnold Schwarzenegger" by British author Wendy Leigh claims Schwarzenegger's father, Gustav, was a Nazi and that Schwarzenegger was a supporter of Austrian President Kurt Waldheim, who has been accused of covering up his role in the German army during World War II. The center, which expects to make more than $1.4 million for its new Museum for Tolerance from the dinner, decided the book's statements really didn't matter.

U.N. to inspect Iraq

■ Experts to tour nuclear sites.

N.Y. Times News Service

UNITED NATIONS — U.N. officials said Friday that they had intelligence information indicating that Iraq had tried to mislead the United Nations by understating its nuclear weapons program and the amount of weapons-grade nuclear material it possesses.

As a result, the special commission appointed by the Security Council to oversee the destruction or removal of Iraq's chemical and biological weapons and its nuclear weapons materials has ordered its experts to make new inspections of undisclosed nuclear sites in Iraq next week.

These inspections were ordered after the United States provided the commission with fresh intelligence from an Iraqi nuclear scientist who defected over a week ago to American forces occupying an enclave in northern Iraq.

In Washington, government officials who follow the Iraqi nuclear program said the defector had said that

Smith's assets exceed $1 million

■ Congress files financial disclosure statements.

Reporter-Telegram Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Republican Lamar Smith is easily the wealthiest lawmaker in San Antonio's congressional delegation, with assets totaling at least $1,066,010 and a 1990 income of at least $235,619, according to financial statements released Friday.

The lion's share of Smith's wealth comes from mineral royalties derived from his share

Richards continues to boost image of Lone Star State

By Susanna McBee and James R. Owen

Hearst News Service

WASHINGTON — Texas Gov. Ann Richards vowed Friday to devote "90 percent of my time selling Texas" in order to make the Lone Star state a "frontrunner" in world trade.

Addressing a crowd of Texans, Washington political figures and foreign ambassadors at a National Press Club reception here, Richards said that "making friends and acquaintances around the world is one of the ways Texas is going to be a frontrunner in the international competition of the 1990s."

The governor, who is in the nation's capital to take part in its 12-day Texas Festival, pledged that "as soon as we fix a budget and a revenue shortfall in the Texas legislature this summer, I intend to spend at least 90 percent of my time selling Texas."

Richards thus prepared to join a long parade of governors who spend considerable time promoting their states' goods and services around the world.

Later, Richards joined an invited group of 1,200 for a party on the Mall, adjacent to the Reflecting Pool near the Lincoln Memorial, for a tantalizing array of Tex-

Coroner to test theory Zachary Taylor murdered

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The crypt of Zachary Taylor will be opened Monday to test an author's theory that the 12th president of the United States was assassinated with poison 141 years ago.

The U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs granted approval Friday for Jefferson County Coroner Richard Greathouse to open the crypt in the Zachary Taylor National Cemetery, which contains the remains of Taylor and his wife.

Clara Rising of Holder, Fla., who is gathering information for a book on Taylor, planned to be present when Greathouse removes a sample of Taylor's remains for analysis.

Greathouse plans to see if there's any trace of poison through the analysis of a piece of hair, fingernail or bone.

Dr. William Maples, a forensic anthropologist at the University of Florida in Gainesville who specializes in skeletal remains, also is expected to be on hand Monday. He believes Taylor's symptoms were consistent with arsenic poisoning.

History books would have to be rewritten should Taylor's death be confirmed as a homicide. Abraham Lincoln, the nation's 16th president, is regarded as the first American leader to be assassinated.

But another expert who wrote a recent book on Taylor believes there's little

Pilot from Florida donates electric Citicar to CAF

By Ed Todd

Staff Writer

Walt Bugeski missed out on flying fighters and bombers, especially the B-17, during the war. That was his airplane, the old Flying Fortress.

"I would have loved to have flown the B-17. That was my baby."

Instead, he ended up instructing in ground-anchored Link trainers — simulated cockpits designed for training pilots in instrument flying without leaving the ground.

For most, it was monotonous. Today, Bugeski, 72, has yet to fly in a World War II bomber or fighter, but he hasn't given up.

This week, Bugeski, a Confederate Air Force "colonel" from St. Augustine, Fla., and his wife, Adele, drove to Midland to visit the CAF headquarters at Midland International Airport and to visit their daughter, Charlene Bunnell, and her

Ironworkers unfurl 'Great American Flag'

By Harry F. Rosenthal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The world's biggest flag — so big it took hundreds of people to unfurl — got a day in the sun this Flag Day. But you needed a bird's-eye view to see Old Glory in all its out-sized glory.

With the aid of a crane, ironworkers pulled "The Great American Flag" from its trailer, literally by dawn's early light, and spread it half its width near the base of the Washington Monument.

In mid-morning, 250 tourists and a large contingent from Evansville, Ind., where the flag was stitched together, tugged mightily at the top edge and laid it out completely. It was the flag's first public display here since 1983, when it was presented to the government.

This flag did not wave over the home of the free and the brave. It is too big.

Engineers once batted down an idea of using the monument for a flag pole by saying the flag could topple the shaft.

Spectacular on the ground, the view of the flag was best from the top of the 555-foot Washington Monument.

So far the saga of the flag has been one of neglect and disappointment, but Richard Austin, head of the General Services Administration, said that is about to change.

"We at GSA are committing now to

Teacher gets students wound up over rubber-band project

DETROIT (AP) — Sixth-graders at a suburban school stretched their math skills while creating a 64-pound ball of rubber bands. They called it "M.C. Bander."

Cami Penegor, a math teacher at Pierce Middle School in Wayne County's Redford Township, got the ball rolling last fall as a class project. She asked her 140 students to come up with 1 million rubber bands.

They reached only 7.7423 percent of that goal. But the project nevertheless began taking on a life of its own as the 77,423 rubber bands were knotted together and wrapped around a golf ball.

"Having M.C. around made math easier and a lot more interesting," said Jenny Priskorn, 12. "You could imagine better just how big numbers really get."

Penegor said she used the ball to teach everything from geometry to metric measurement. "You'd never think a bunch of rubber bands would make a difference in a classroom, but M.C. Bander bonded us together this year," she said.

The ball will be donated next month to the Gallery of Unusual

Pastimes in Ripley's Believe It or Not Museum in Niagara Falls, Ontario.

"It's fabulous," museum spokesman Edward Meyer said Wednesday.

IRAQ: U.N. experts to inspect nuclear sites

(From 1A)

Iraq had eight primary sites for nuclear research and development, three of which were bombed extensively during the American-led campaign in the Persian Gulf war.

Most of the the defector's reports remain unproven and will require additional research, the officials said.

U.N. officials said they had been told that the Iraqi defector reported that Iraq has been trying to manufacture weapons-grade uranium using an old-fashioned technique called magnetic isotope separation, which the United States experimented with but abandoned while it was developing the world's first atomic bomb at the end of World War II.

A plant for this purpose was said to be situated in a secret underground site in the mountains not far from the northern Iraqi city of Mosul.

The defector also asserted that there were several other secret nuclear sites unknown to outsiders, officials here said.

A U.S. official, citing intelligence reports, said Iraq's nuclear weapons program had nevertheless been judged by analysts to have been more primitive than many feared.

Some of the eight sites may have been spared extensive bombing because they were not regarded as critical to the nation's nuclear-weapons effort, an official said Friday.

Still, he said, "it's a very major concern that we didn't find all the sites" for nuclear and chemical weapons research.

Under the terms of Security Council Resolution 687 setting out terms for lifting economic sanctions against Iraq, the Baghdad government is required to provide inventories of all its weapons-usable nuclear material as well as its chemical and biological weapons and its ballistic missiles to the special commission, which will then remove or destroy them.

SMITH: Congress files reports

Members of Congress take advantage of a provision that allows them to use broad ranges. Thus, an asset worth $25,000 would be categorized only as somewhere between $15,000 and $50,000.

In Smith's case, his total financial worth was reported to be at least $1,066,010, but it was listed at a maximum of $1,291,000. Smith's 1990 income was reported in the range between $235,619 and $1,214,700.

Income included his House salary for 1990, which was $96,600, honoraria from speaking and writing fees and other income such as dividends and interest.

Most of Smith's income last year came from his oil and gas royalties, the sale of livestock, and an extensive stock portfolio, consisting primarily of blue-chip holdings such as General Electric, AT&T, IBM and Procter & Gamble.

Democrat Albert Bustamante listed his financial assets as ranging somewhere between a minimum of $349,012 and a maximum of $863,000. Bustamante reported his 1990 income as between $154,114 and $226,500.

Most of Bustamante's income apart from his House salary and honoraria came from interest-bearing bank accounts, rent on a ranch home he owns in Hondo as well as gambling profits ranging between $201 and $1,000.

Smith took no honoraria for speeches or appearances from any groups last year, and listed no gifts other than videotapes from the acclaimed Civil War documentary series broadcast last year on public television, one set from the San Antonio PBS station and another set from General Motors, totaling $240 in all, Smith's disclosure form showed.

Democrat Henry B. Gonzalez continued his long record as one of Congress' least affluent members in 1990, listing total personal assets of at least $16,002 but no more than $65,000.

Gonzalez, who chairs the powerful House Banking Committee, accepted no honoraria for speeches last year, and took no free travel.

Other than his House salary of $96,600, Gonzalez listed only bank interest income ranging from a minimum of $1,001 to a maximum of $2,700.

FLAG: Stars and Stripes weighs seven tons

next year displaying this flag here again and each year thereafter," he said. He also announced that a schedule is being drawn to take the flag across the country for special events.

The Great American Flag isn't just another collection of Stars and Stripes.

It is big enough to cover a football field and most of its bleachers. It is so big you could wrap two space shuttles in it or harvest 250 bushels of corn from under it. It is so big that its stripes are 16 feet broad and its stars 13 feet bright.

Measuring 411 feet in length and 210 feet in width, it is the world's biggest flag, according to the Guinness Book of Records. It weighs seven tons.

On the Mall Friday, the flag didn't attract much attention. The event, organized by Sen. Dan Coats, R-Ind., was not well publicized and drew mostly tourists already in the area.

Len Silverfine, the PR man who fired up people and scrounged for money to get the flag made in 1980, was at odds with the GSA and didn't come to the display.

"I've really been pushed out of this thing," said Silverfine, who runs a public relations-advertising firm, the Big Idea Co., in northern Vermont. "I've never received an invitation, although I was called the other morning and told it was in the mail," he said in an interview Thursday.

Behind the dispute is a question of who gets the blame for allowing the flag to become mildewed and smelly after it was washed by large numbers of volunteers in Humboldt, Tenn., last March — at Silverfine's request.

Silverfine said GSA took it away wet, despite protests. The GSA's Katherine Gaddy said Silverfine had already exceeded his allotted time for having the flag out.

In any case, the flag was rescued by the Marine Corps in Quantico, Va., which spread it out over a parade ground to allow it to dry. The flag sparkled Friday.

The Ironworkers International Union has been involved in all of the flag's outings except a disastrous one in which it became torn and soiled by being improperly hoisted.

"We have a strong feeling of patriotism and strong backs," said Billy Joe Walker, who was directing the flag unfurling for the seventh time.

Flag Day commemorates the adoption by the Continental Congress in 1777 of the Stars and Stripes as the U.S. flag. Silverfine's flag history goes back to the Bicentennial in 1976, when he wanted a big, big flag to welcome the tall ships to New York harbor.

"When this flag was conceived in the mid-70s, the best you can say is that the majority of the population was sort of indifferent to the flag," he said. Of the flag unfurled Friday, he added, "It's tough to be indifferent to a flag that's 411 feet long and 210 feet high."

The 1976 flag was hung from the Verrazano Narrows Bridge in New York. What so proudly they hailed at the twilight's last gleaming was torn to shreds by the wind.

Undeterred, Silverfine began anew, raised money and got volunteers at Anchor Industries in Evansville, Ind., to sew up another "Great American Flag." This one, made of the same polyester found in the grass catchers of lawn mowers, is 20 percent larger than the first one, which was made of nylon.

"Big, colossal, gargantuan things have a way of capturing people's imagination the way normal-size objects cannot," he said.

To make his point, he said a one-eighth-scale model of the Statue of Liberty stands on an island in the Seine River in Paris — but few people know it.

Mosbachers accept plane trips.

QEII cruise, documents show

WASHINGTON (AP) — Commerce Secretary Robert Mosbacher accepted plane trips to Europe and the Caribbean and a cruise on the Queen Elizabeth II from an investor, a business group and others last year, financial documents released Friday show.

The State

Mosbacher's wife, Georgette, earned $11,000 in speaking fees in 1990, according to the financial disclosure statement.

Mosbacher, a Houston native and an oil multimillionaire, along with his wife sailed on the British luxury liner last October from New York to Tangiers, Morocco, and Southampton, England, the statement shows. The five-day trip, valued at $5,500, was paid for by the Young Presidents' Organization, a business group based in Irving, Texas.

Both Mosbachers spoke at seminars during the cruise, which was part of the group's university education program, Elaine Vitt, spokeswoman for the group.

The Young Presidents' Organization, which describes itself as an educational group composed of corporate presidents and chief executives under 50 years old, also paid $1,000 for Georgette Mosbacher's return flight from London to New York.

Mosbacher, a close friend of President Bush, raised more than $25 million for Bush and other Republican candidates in the 1988 campaign. He is expected to be named the general chairman or finance chairman of Bush's re-election campaign, administration sources told The Associated Press this week.

It is legal for Mosbacher and his wife to accept the trips, but some critics contend they should not.

"It is inappropriate for public officials to travel at the expense of private interests, and particularly private interests that have business before those officials," said David Eppler, an attorney for Public Citizen, a consumer advocacy group.

A Commerce Department spokeswoman said it is "entirely appropriate" for public officials to travel at the expense of individuals, companies or associations if the trips don't involve a conflict of interest.

"We feel very strongly that every action we have taken is in strict compliance with the appropriate rules and regulations," said the spokeswoman, Marci Robinson. "The secretary is allowed to accept personal gifts when properly disclosed from longstanding, close personal friends."

In February 1990, investor and real estate developer Saul Steinberg flew the Mosbachers from New York to Vienna, Austria. Georgette Mosbacher's round-trip air fare cost $5,600, according to the disclosure form. Steinberg, the president of Reliance Group Holdings, was a big contributor to the Republican Party during the 1988 campaign.

During the trip, Mosbacher had official meetings with the Austrian economics minister and other senior officials, but he also went to a Viennese ball and an art museum. He paid all of his and his wife's expenses in Vienna, according to Commerce Department officials.

The Mosbachers were guests in April 1990 on a boat owned by Donald Bren, a businessman from Newport Beach, Calif., who flew them from Washington to the Caribbean island of St. Lucia. The cost to Bren for the week: $2,700.

Mosbacher also has accepted help from Republican contributors and corporate sponsors in his official travel as commerce secretary. He has flown to at least 30 official meetings on corporate and private planes owned by campaign contributors, former business associates and companies that could be affected by Commerce Department programs, according to separate travel records released recently by the department.

Brooks one of state's richest lawmakers

By James R. Owen

Reporter-Telegram, Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Rep. Jack Brooks, Democrat of Beaumont, again ranked as one of Texas' wealthiest lawmakers in 1990, with assets totaling at least $3,689,029 and an income last year of at least $247,313, according to financial records released Friday.

It is difficult to measure a House member's precise annual income or net worth from the annual disclosure forms because the forms require only broad ranges of reporting. Thus, an asset worth $25,000 would be categorized only as somewhere between $15,000 and $50,000.

Brooks reported his holdings last year as ranging between a minimum of $3,689,029 and a maximum of $5,960,000. Brooks, who chairs the House Judiciary Committee, also reported 1990 income of between $247,313 and $1,218,700, including his House salary, directors' fees, interest and dividends.

Brooks reported no income from honoraria, articles or appearances, and he accepted no gifts or reimbursements for travel, lodging or expenses, according to his 1990 financial disclosure form.

Brooks earned a total of $10,150 in director's fees at banks in the Texas communities of Groves, Silsbee and Lumberton.

Stock and interest-bearing accounts in those same banks were Brooks' most valuable assets, his report indicated, providing him with dividends and interest.

His holdings in the First of Groves Corp. were Brooks' single most lucrative asset, worth more than $1 million and yielding him between $100,001 and $1 million in dividends last year. Brooks also listed considerable real estate holdings in Texas.

Child beating suspect free; mom remains jailed

AUSTIN (AP) — A man accused of fatally beating a 2½-year-old boy has been released on bond while the child's mother remains in prison for failing to stop the beating death.

Women's rights advocates say they are appalled but not surprised.

Gerald Christopher Zuliani, who has been accused of fatally beating Christopher Wohlers, was freed on bond last month.

Zuliani's former wife, Robbi Boutwell, mother of Christopher Wohlers, is now serving a prison sentence for failing to stop the beating of her son.

"The way our justice system works, it's just really not a surprise," said Anna Belle Burleson, chair of the Formerly Battered Women's Task Force of Central Texas. "Our criminal justice system takes care of our criminals, and legally that's his right to get bailed out."

"I'm frightened for the women and children of Central Texas," Ms. Burleson said. "Most of these guys don't go to jail. They just go from one relationship to another. They can't live without a woman to take care of them, and there's nothing to stop him from treating another woman that way."

Christopher Wohlers was slammed repeatedly against a wall and floor on Jan. 2, 1990, investigators said. He died of head injuries the next day.

The case drew national attention when Ms. Boutwell, 25, was charged.

Ms. Boutwell and groups who supported her said she should not have been charged in the case because she was too traumatized from years of abuse to protect Christopher.

Ms. Boutwell pleaded guilty last fall to a charge of failure to prevent child abuse, and was sentenced to five years in prison, a one-year term in the Travis County Jail and 10 years of supervised probation.

Zuliani, 25, was charged with injury to a child and spent more than a year in the Travis County Correctional Complex at Del Valle waiting for trial. He was released about six weeks ago when he posted a $50,000 surety bond.

The first trial for Zuliani was declared a mistrial last October after jurors were accidentally given a confession written by Zuliani describing how he beat the boy. That confession had not been presented as evidence at the trial.

A second trial was set for June 24, but Zuliani's lawyers have filed an appeal with the 3rd Court of Appeals.

Defense lawyers Jim Sawyer and Patrick Ganne put up the bond for Zuliani.

"It will be a year or two before he is tried, and if he is found not guilty, he would have been in jail three years by then. That's not justice," Sawyer said.

Son questioned in shooting deaths of father, step-mother

HOUSTON (AP) — A 20-year-old college student is being questioned about the slayings of his father and stepmother in their comfortable West Houston home.

Police say they have no suspects, but have questioned Jordan Mueller, who reported finding the bodies of his father, William A. Mueller, 45, and stepmother, Renee, 29, in the couple's upstairs bedroom early Thursday.

The nude bodies had been shot several times in the chest and bludgeoned in the head, police said. A .22-caliber rifle and a sledgehammer were found near the bodies.

Jordan Mueller, who was not at home the night of the slayings, was dropped off there by his mother Thursday morning to pick up some clothing, police said. Friends and neighbors said Jordan Mueller had been thrown out of the house last week by his father and stepmother.

Police said they found no sign of forced entry to the home, but cabinet doors and drawers had been thrown open in some rooms and the contents scattered. But police said nothing appeared to be missing.

Mueller was a self-employed computer systems consultant, while Mrs. Mueller worked for Conoco.

Neighbors said Mueller had lived at the home about eight years with Jordan, and an elder son, Brandon, who had moved out on his own a few years ago.

Neighbors said William and Renee Mueller were married in 1989.

Jail inmate escapes, returns with liquor

CUERO — A DeWitt County Jail inmate was only gone a few minutes, but when Charles Lassman Jr. returned with 29 bottles of booze, it caused a commotion.

Lassman, 17, squeezed through a narrow construction hole in the jail roof about midnight Wednesday, officers said. The building is being remodeled and enlarged.

Officers said Lassman apparently broke a window at nearby Jackie's Liquor Store and scooped up as much as he could carry back to the cell he shares with a dozen other prisoners. Lassman, who is awaiting trial on aggravated robbery charges, was back within 15 minutes, in time for the night bed check.

Store owner Glatha Clark said eight bottles of brandy and 20 bottles of peppermint and margarita schnapps were missing. She said inmates may have noticed the store, which had no burglar alarm, and regarded it as an easy target.

Deputy Rick Loosier said there still remains the mystery of if Lassman took those 29 bottles, how did he get them all up to the roof of the jail and inside?

Attorneys: Parolee acted in self-defense

DENTON — Attorneys for a parolee charged in the death of a University of North Texas professor are expected to argue during next week's trial that the ex-inmate was acting in self-defense.

Edward Roberson, 32, was charged with capital murder in the slaying of Jack Starling, 52, chairman of the marketing department at UNT's business college. Roberson's trial is scheduled to begin Monday.

His attorneys say they will argue that Roberson killed the professor in self-defense after resisting sexual advances.

Police said evidence indicates the two men may have met once previously. Investigators would not elaborate.

When Roberson was arrested, he admitted killing Starling and told detectives the professor had attacked him with a knife after he resisted a sexual advance.

Resolution honors Boy Scouts' anniversary

IRVING — The Senate and House have passed a resolution honoring the 75th anniversary of the Congressional Charter of the Boy Scouts of America, based in this Dallas suburb.

The resolution, sponsored by Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., and Democratic Rep. John Bryant of Dallas, recognizes the contribution the group has made to more than 81 million young people across the United States, the Boy Scouts said in a prepared statement.

The resolution was going to President Bush for his signature. The Boy Scouts of America was the first youth organization chartered by the Congress. President Woodrow Wilson signed the legislation in June 1916.

Among the current members of Congress, 395 have been Scouts or Scout leaders. Bryant and Bradley are among 10 senators and 25 Congressmen who are Eagle Scouts, the highest rank attainable in scouting, the organization said.

Someone deposits dead goat near ATM

MAUD — An unusual deposit near an automated teller machine is being investigated by Bowie County sheriff's deputies. Somebody left a dead goat inside a building that holds the cash machine.

The creature was discovered Friday morning when someone stopped at the teller machine to make a deposit, authorities said.

Law officers say vandals tore the two glass doors off their hinges and left the goat inside. No arrests have been made. Maud is about 20 miles west of Texarkana.

Livestock sales nearly double, Perry says

AUSTIN — Texas livestock sales over the first five months of this year are nearly double the amount from the same period last year, officials said.

"Texans produce the best livestock anywhere, and demand for good Texas livestock is skyrocketing," Texas Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry said.

From Jan. 1 through May 31 of this year, 338,412 head of Texas livestock were sold for $32.9 million, Perry said. He said that last year during the same period, 183,662 head of Texas livestock valued at $17.2 million were sold.

Plaque to be dedicated to people with AIDS

DALLAS — The Dallas Park Board on Thursday unanimously approved a plaque dedicated to people with AIDS in Oak Lawn, the center of Dallas' gay community.

The action comes almost one year after a plaque honoring the fight of gay men and lesbians against the acquired immune deficiency syndrome was rejected by the board.

The new plaque has no direct reference to gays and lesbians because of an agreement between the board and the Dallas Tavern Guild, to which many gay bars in the area belong. The board wanted a more generic statement written on the plaque.

It now cites the "AIDS community of Dallas," and will be placed at the base of a 20-foot cedar tree at Lee Park in Oak Lawn near downtown. A formal unveiling of the project will be Dec. 1, said Alan Ross, guild executive director.

"With today's momentous confirmation, you have lighted the path for the uneducated and misinformed," Ross said.

Saddam Hussein's son back in favor after exile

N.Y. Times News Service

BAGHDAD, Iraq — When a new newspaper edited by Uday Hussein hit the streets of Baghdad a few months ago, Iraqis knew for sure what they had sensed for a while — that President Saddam Hussein had finally rehabilitated the errant son he once accused of killing his bodyguard and whom he threatened to bring to public trial.

Yet now that the newspaper — Babil, meaning Babylon — has settled into its niche in the controlled Baghdad press as a supposed independent, some have come to wonder what kind of impact the president's son is planning to make in the ambiguous world of Iraqi journalism.

His comments, sometimes, jar with those Iraqis sensitive to what outsiders might think about them.

The other day, for instance, the newspaper carried a long account of an address the president's son gave to journalism students here. When the students asked why he had called the newspaper Babil, he replied, according to his newspaper, that for one thing "the Jews have a complex about Babylon because it was built on their corpses."

The other reason, he said, was "that it is a symbol of Iraqi civilization."

The 28-year-old son has also printed paeans of praise to his father, saying the president's concern for the nation is such that he "wipes the mucus from the noses of the children" — strange flattery even by Baghdad standards. And he has remonstrated with those who take issue with the security that surrounds himself when, in his other capacity as chairman of the National Olympic Committee, he attends a soccer game.

At one recent match, an official here said, spectators went through five body searches to enter the park.

The fans' complaints about the intrusion, Babil said, were tantamount to hostility to the government itself.

Perhaps more mystifying is the role Babil has started to play in the arcane politics of personality that surround Saddam.

In one instance, the son took issue with a decision by the powerful defense minister, Hussein Kamel Majid — his brother-in-law — to close down an officers' club.

Soviet ministry proposes arms for citizens

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union used to contend that under Marxism-Leninism, anti-social behavior would wither away. Now it is so worried about crime that it wants to let citizens arm themselves with stun guns and tear gas. Admitting it needs help to protect people from criminals and their flourishing arsenals, the ministry on Friday proposed legislation allowing possession of the non-lethal weapons, the state news agency Tass reported. "Despite the fact that the number of weapons legally available to the country's residents is rather high, ... law enforcement agencies admit that they cannot ensure the full safety of citizens," Tass paraphrased ministry official Eduard Kalachev as saying.

Kalachev, head of the ministry's department for maintenance of public order, told a conference of Soviet law enforcement agencies that more than 3,000 crimes have been committed with a firearm this year.

No comparison figures were given, but officials last year had reported 5,000 such crimes as of November 1990, according to a report at the time by the newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda.

Kalachev said there are nearly 4.7 million legally registered firearms in the country of 289 million people, including 3.5 million hunting guns and 1.1 million combat guns in possession of various government agencies, Tass reported.

Kalachev said more than 15,000 legally registered firearms, including more than 150 machine guns, are missing from government arsenals.

Nicaragua suggests trade as reparation

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — Nicaragua said Friday it would accept U.S. trade concessions instead of the war reparations that Washington is ordered by the World Court to pay for supporting the Contra rebels.

The turnabout announced by Nicaraguan Foreign Minister Enrique Dreyfus Morales could defuse a legal battle in the court, the legal arm of the United Nations.

In 1986, the court condemned U.S. support for efforts to overthrow Nicaragua's Soviet-backed Sandinista government and ordered Washington to pay reparations for the destruction of Nicaraguan property.

The United States has boycotted all World Court proceedings on Nicaragua's claim, saying the body has no jurisdiction in the case.

But the centrist government of President Violeta Chamorro, who defeated the Sandinistas in elections last year, asked for a postponement of a hearing that was to have decided the size of the reparations demand.

Azerbaijan names Amoco for work on offshore field

MOSCOW (AP) — The American petroleum company Amoco will help the republic of Azerbaijan and the Soviet Oil Ministry develop a huge offshore oil field in the Caspian Sea, Tass reported Friday.

Amoco of Chicago was chosen over the Los Angeles-based Unocal and a joint bid from British Petroleum and Norway's State Oil Co., the official Soviet news agency said.

Tass said the oil field "is regarded as the largest in the country." It did not give any figures.

"This decision is substantiated by the fact that Amoco has amassed vast experience in international cooperation (and) possesses advanced facilities and technology for offshore oil and gas extraction," said Boris Nikitin, first deputy minister of the national Oil and Gas Construction Ministry.

The Soviet Union is the world's largest oil producer, and exported oil is a key source of foreign currency earnings.

U.N. force in Iraq has no money, cars

AMADIYAH, Iraq (AP) — The U.N. police force created to protect the Kurds and those trying to help them has run out of money and lacks vehicles and walkie-talkies, U.N. officials said Friday.

By this weekend, a force of 500 officers was supposed to be working in Iraq, protecting U.N. buildings and personnel and well as the Kurds. So far, less than 60 officers have arrived because of money problems, the officials said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

The United Nations has received only $3 million of the $32 million earmarked for the program, they said, suggesting the police program might be canceled if money isn't made available quickly.

Timing is considered critical, because on Saturday, allied coalition forces will complete their withdrawal from Dohuk, the first city vacated by allied troops occupying northern Iraq.

Ironically, Iraq has contributed more than any other country — 1 million dinars, or about $200,000 on the black market — for U.N. programs in Iraq that were motivated by the desire to protect the Kurds from Iraqi brutality.

American soldiers in Dohuk said Friday they worried about what might happen to the Kurds, who fear Saddam Hussein's wrath.

The mood was glum as soldiers packed crates onto trucks, took pictures with Kurdish friends and prepared to go home.

"We're just real frustrated right now," said U.S. Army Sgt. Pat Rose, 37, of Little Rock, Ark., who worked in Dohuk for the last three weeks.

"We want to do something but we can't," she said.

Pippen's raise?

CHICAGO (AP) — Scottie Pippen has signed an $18 million, five-year contract extension with the Chicago Bulls, a published report said Friday.

The deal was signed in Chicago last week after Game 2 of the NBA Finals, the Chicago Tribune reported.

It had to be signed before midnight of the last game of the NBA finals in order for the team to use the money available under their 1990-91 salary cap, the Tribune reported. After the finals, any salary agreement counts for the next year.

Bulls officials would neither confirm nor deny the report.

Pippen's $18 million will be spread out over this past season, the next two seasons, for which Pippen is already under contract, and the five after that, the Tribune reported.

Pippen was scheduled to earn about $765,000 this season and $1.1 million and $1.25 million over the next two seasons. Under the contract extension, Pippen's pay went to $2.7 million a season for this season and the next seven.

Payne Stewart flips his putter in the air after missing a birdie on the 10th hole during the second round of the U.S. Open. Stewart holds the lead entering today's third round.

Pained Payne slips into lead

■ Stewart posts a solid 70 to take a slim lead over the injury-plagued U.S. Open field.

Associated Press

CHASKA, Minn. — It seems only fitting that in this, of all the 91 U.S. Opens ever played, the leader should be among the walking wounded.

Payne Stewart, wearing a back brace in deference to an ailment that shelved him for much of the season, slipped into sole control of the lead with a solid 70 Friday as the injury toll continued to mount.

One day after a lightning storm took the life of one man and sent five others to hospitals, two spectators were treated and released from hospitals after the collapse of a stairway leading to bleachers at the ninth green.

And Australian Greg Norman put himself on the injury list, complaining of a hip problem and pain in his legs.

Norman, attempting a recovery from a self-diagnosed case of burnout, withdrew after playing nine holes of the second round and said he would not compete again until the British Open next month in Southport, England.

Stewart played in the same threesome with Norman and said "I was surprised" when the troubled star said he was withdrawing.

"If you know Greg, you know he's a pretty fit guy," Stewart said.

But Stewart would not be at all surprised if the same thing happened to him.

"My back could go out at any time," he said of the injury that put him on the sidelines for 10 weeks earlier this season.

Bleachers collapse as Hazeltine hex continues

Associated Press

CHASKA, Minn. — A Hazeltine hex struck the U.S. Open again Friday when a bleachers staircase collapsed and injured 10 spectators.

The crash at the ninth green, just as Greg Norman was lining up a long putt, happened one day after one man was killed and five others hurt by lightning near the 11th tee.

The stairway injuries were all minor, but the accident was yet another stroke of bad fortune at a course that first gained national attention 21 years ago for being reviled for its design.

Some players called the 1970 Open the worst ever, and redesigning the course for this tournament cost more than $1 million. But changing the course did nothing to change Hazeltine's luck.

Eight years ago, when the U.S. Senior Open was played here, golfer Robert Grant died of a heart attack.

This week, after three days of perfect weather during the practice rounds, the golf gods are wreaking havoc on the course.

Lightning factor in decision threw two no-hit innings, the lightning show began as a prelude to the oncoming deluge, causing Angel public address announcer Barry Sykes to ask the crowd to clear the stands.

With towering light standards acting as lightning rods for Angels Stadium's all-metal general admission grandstand, Sykes had one thing on his mind — Thursday's lightning-induced death of a fan at the U.S. Open golf tournament in Chaska, Minn.

"That's exactly what was on my mind," was all Sykes had to say.

One million cheer Bulls

Associated Press

CHICAGO — High noon in Chicago Friday was high time to honor the NBA champion Bulls as an estimated one million fans danced, cheered and sang their appreciation.

The Bulls logo adorned sweats, T-shirts, license plates, flags and banners. There were life-sized portraits of Michael Jordan and his teammates.

If it could be worn or waved, it was there as Chicagoans spilled into the streets around downtown's Grant Park for a rally in the team's honor.

Fans young and old climbed trees, stood on cars and rode on shoulders to get a glimpse of the Bulls, who won the first NBA championship in the franchise's 25-year history and brought the city its first sports title since the Bears won the Super Bowl in 1986.

"Yeah! This tastes so nice, we gotta do it twice," guard Craig Hodges told the cheering sea of red and black, the team's colors.

The crowd, estimated at one million by the Chicago Police Department and the Mayor's Office of Special Events, was packed shoulder-to-shoulder in 89-degree weather. The throng had little patience for the dignitaries, booing Chicago Mayor Richard M. Daley briefly while waiting to hear from the players.

The biggest cheers, of course, were for Jordan, MVP of the championship series and the regular season.

"Let's hear from superman," shouted emcee Johnny "Red" Kerr, a Bulls TV commentator.

"It's been a long struggle — and

HAMBURG, Germany (AP) — Bjorn Borg believes his game will soon improve so much that he will be able to beat Boris Becker and other top tennis players.

In an interview to appear in next week's magazine Der Spiegel, Borg said he plans to play 10-15 tournaments a year.

Borg said his game will soon become "as good as it was a decade ago, and then I could also beat Boris Becker."

But, Borg said, his aim was "to play for myself and not for the rankings."

Borg, winner of five consecutive Wimbledon singles titles, retired in 1983, and is attempting to return to the game at age 35.

His comeback suffered a setback when he was beaten in the first round of the Monte Carlo Open in April by Jordi Arrese.

Since then, Borg has been working with former Italian stars Adriano Panatta and Paolo Bertolucci. He has also given up his outdated wooden racket in favor of a modern one.

McEnroe propels U.S. to Davis Cup lead

American team one victory shy of semifinal match against Germany

Associated Press

NEWPORT, R.I. — John McEnroe weaved some of his old green magic Friday and gave the United States a 2-0 lead over Spain in one of his favorite tournaments, the Davis Cup.

McEnroe, mixing sharply placed volleys with delicate passing shots and drop shots, crushed inexperienced Tomas Carbonelli 6-3, 6-2, 6-1 on the grass of the Newport Casino on the opening day of the quarterfinals.

Brad Gilbert also took advantage of the surface to open the day with a harder 6-4, 6-4, 6-2 victory over Emilio Sanchez.

Both victories were expected, and the Americans can build an insurmountable 3-0 lead in the best-of-5 matches if Rick Leach and Jim Pugh can continue form in doubles Saturday against Sanchez and Sergio Casal.

The reverse singles matches are Sunday.

A victory would send the defending champion Americans into the semifinals against Germany in September. The final is in December.

McEnroe, who loves to play for his country, had everything going for him. A three-time winner on the grass at Wimbledon and ranked 14th in the world, he was playing a Spaniard who seldom plays on the surface and was also making his Cup debut as a substitute for injured Sergi Bruguera.

more effective on grass. I don't have to hit with as much pace," said McEnroe, who doesn't hit as hard as the young Americans who have moved ahead of him.

for a winner. His momentum forced him to leap over a chair and a 2-foot-high barrier, and he wound up facing the crowd a few feet away. Exhilarated, he pumped his fist to the cheers.

Gilbert, the U.S. first-round hero with two singles victories against Mexico, also took advantage of the grass and Sanchez' inexperience on it.

He broke Sanchez twice in the first five games, using three passing winners.

Sanchez, No. 12 in the world, five places higher than Gilbert, used two offensive lobs in the sixth game to break back.

But Gilbert lost only one point on his next two serves to close out the set.

Sanchez acknowledge he had trouble getting in proper position to hit on the grass.

"You have to be sure when to play the ball, and when the ball comes, I had doubts," he said.

Sanchez had his best chance in the second set after breaking to pull even at 3-3 and then holding serve for his only lead, 4-3.

His forehand passing shot put Gilbert down 15-30 on serve, but Gilbert pulled his game together, volleyed to pull even and then whacked two overhands to save serve.

'Certain shots that I hit are more effective on grass. I don't have to hit with as much pace.'

— John McEnroe

No. 6 in the world.

After splitting the first four games, McEnroe was never in trouble.

"At the beginning, I felt I could play close," Carbonell said after his first-ever meeting with McEnroe. "But he started to play better and better."

"His first volley was so good, I was always in trouble."

"He has many shots no one else has. He's always surprising. He waits and waits, and then hits a crosscourt shot. He plays a little magic."

McEnroe broke Carbonell for a 3-2 lead in the first set with four passing shots, including a perfectly placed crosscourt touch backhand.

"Certain shots that I hit are

Carbonell had a chance to break back in the next game after going ahead 15-30, but McEnroe had an ace and two volleys to save serve.

With McEnroe controlling the net, Carbonell never had another chance in the set, and was broken again in the ninth game when he couldn't handle a McEnroe drop shot.

McEnroe used another running forehand passing shot, delicately placed, to break again for a 2-0 lead in the second set.

Carbonelli fought back to 3-2 with his only service break, but McEnroe broke right back on three more passing shots, and then easily served out the set.

The last set took only 29 minutes, highlighted by McEnroe's running backhand passing shot

Little League president says 42 nations to play

Associated Press

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. — Little League's 1991 tournament will open on Aug. 20 with Latin American players facing a team from Asia, which has produced a world champion 19 times in the past 24 years.

Little League president Creighton Hale said 42 countries have teams competing this year, including those in a new league in Moscow. Kuwait's teams haven't been restructured since the Persian Gulf War, he said.

Also on the first day of the tournament, the United States Eastern champion will play the Central champion. The U.S. South will play the U.S. West and Canada will play Europe Aug. 21.

Semifinals are scheduled for Aug. 22 and the title game will be played Aug. 24.

"We guarantee weather just like this," Little League spokesman Steve Weller said, referring to the blue sky.

Last year's series had six games delayed by rain. The title game was delayed one day.

Three Trojans acquitted of sexual assault charges

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three University of Southern California football players were acquitted of charges they sexually assaulted a graduate student in a dormitory room.

A Municipal Court jury acquitted them of the misdemeanor charges after three days of deliberation.

The verdict was reached Thursday evening. Judge Edward Ferns withheld announcing the verdict until Friday, said Ted Goldstein, a spokesman for the city attorney's office.

Tailback Michael Jones, 19, of Panorama City, linebacker Willie McGinest, 19, of Long Beach, and cornerback Jason Oliver, 19, of Bakersfield, all freshmen, were charged with false imprisonment and battery. Oliver also was charged with a sexual battery count.

The athletes hugged each other as a court clerk read the verdict.

"This has been a long, tedious ordeal," Jones said of the five-week trial.

USC coach Larry Smith said in a statement that he was pleased with the ruling. The students will remain active members of the football team pending a review by the university's student conduct panel, Smith said.

"The three players contended all along that they were innocent and I'm pleased that the court found that to be the case," Smith said.

Burrell sets standard in 100-meter dash with 9.90

N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — Leroy Burrell, the world's fastest human the last two years, stamped his title in gold plate Friday by setting a world record in the men's 100-meter dash at the Mobil national track and field championships on Randall's Island.

Burrell's time, built on a blazing start that gave him a lead within the first 10 meters, was 9.90 seconds. It lowered the mark set by Carl Lewis, 9.92 seconds, in the final of the 1988 Olympics in Seoul, South Korea.

Lewis, a friend and teammate of Burrell on the Santa Monica Track Club, was second in 9.93 seconds. By finishing third, in 10.00, a personal best, Dennis Mitchell joined them as members of the United States team that will compete in the world championships, nine weeks from now in Tokyo.

"It's hard to explain how I feel," Burrell, 24, said after a victory gallop around the infield of Downing Stadium, whose track is considered to be fast. "I'm so overwhelmed by the whole thing. It's like going to the party of all parties. You don't think anything can improve on it. It was just a great party for me."

In the weeks leading to the final, the race was widely expected to become a showdown between Lewis and Burrell, who have competed against each other at 100 meters eight times since 1986, with Lewis holding a 6-2 advantage in finishing placements. They are 2-2 in the last four meetings.

This early in the outdoor season, it was difficult to see this kind of race coming, especially the way Burrell exploded from the starting blocks in a tailwind just inside the legal limit for record purposes.

In its quickness, if not style, his start was reminiscent of the way Ben Johnson of Canada used to leave the blocks, his jack-rabbit jump powered by muscular arms and legs, which gave him leads almost instantly.

In the 1987 world championships in Rome, where Johnson set a world record in 9.83 seconds, his reaction time — how long it took his feet to leave the blocks — was .129 of a second. Burrell's was .117.

But a year later, in the Seoul Olympics, the world learned now Johnson had gained his advantage, through the use of performance-enhancing drugs.

By failing his drug test, his gold medal was withdrawn and his apparent world record of 9.79 seconds wiped out, leaving Lewis the winner and, ultimately, the record-holder for finishing second. Johnson's mark in Rome was nullified nearly a year after the Olympics.

Lewis, after congratulating Burrell, made a point of explaining how his training partner had come by his accomplishments.

Leroy Burrell, center, raises his hand in victory as he smashes a world record in the men's 100 meter dash Friday in New York.

Burrell ran a 9.90, breaking the record of Carl Lewis (46), who set the previous mark in the 1988 Olympics with a 9.92.

California's Finley is straw that stirs Angel pitching drink

By Tim Brown
Los Angeles Daily News

BOSTON — There are no numbers that do justice to Chuck Finley on this Sunday morning.

He is settled before his locker, deep inside an oversized, cement Cadillac convertible they call a SkyDome, with Raisin Bran in his teeth and two or three days' worth of shrunken hair on his chin.

His baggy brown suit includes no neck tie, which seems fine. Putting Chuck Finley in a tie is like blow-torching the tail fins off the Caddy.

A California Angels teammate hovers by and briefly places several calloused fingers on Finley's right shoulder.

"Harv."

He saves the victories.

"Chuck."

He creates the opportunities.

It is before noon, early by ballplayers' standards, and 48 very bleary eyes search wearily for grinds inside coffee cups. Their workday doesn't normally include 8 o'clock wake-up calls.

But Finley's eyes are as bright and perfect as the ring on his finger. The gold ring that says he is a major-league All-Star. The demeanor says, "Nah." The ring says "Maybe."

The eyes say, "You better believe I can take this baseball in my left hand and throw it by you. Believe it, pal."

It is the strangest thing. This man before you, this overgrown bayou beanpole, this personality that disarms clubhouse before 5 p.m., possesses a weapon that begs to tear your lineup's heart out.

Finley, who pitches tonight at Fenway Park against the Boston Red Sox, is a conundrum with a forkball. An 18-game-winning riddle. An All-Star enigma.

And he is different for the worst reason. He is different because he is good-natured and warm and personable and darn good at what he does, which means cranking up forkballs into the mid-80s and boring holes into strike zones.

Finley has not changed. Not since he won two games and lost seven in 1987. Or since he lost 15 times in 1988.

Not even since winning 44 games in the past 2½ seasons, including 10 in the first two months of 1991.

He hasn't changed. He probably couldn't.

"I don't think he could," Angels teammate Bob McClure said. "Like, his girlfriend buys his clothes for him. And I told him, 'Thank God. You were looking pretty ragged in that polyester.'"

"He's just such a geek."

McClure laughed when he said it. It might not have been OK to be a geek in gym class, but it's welcome in the Angels' clubhouse, where it's hip to be square and some feat to be a geek.

Finley is disarming. Following the occasional loss, he self-deprecates with staggering wit and charm. He will contend that he is happy: Happy that a line drive did not find his forehead, that a screamer left his limbs intact, that his throat is sans seams.

"I just try not to let the game affect my personality," he said, "and affect the way I treat people."

Said his manager, Doug Rader: "He's a very solid human being. And because of that, good or bad, he's very resilient. When he's successful, he's very gracious. When he's not successful, he can ride through tough times."

Those, of course, have become rare. He was the American League's first pitcher to compile 10 victories this season — ahead of Roger Clemens, Dave Stewart, Dave Stieb, all those guys. His 83 strikeouts are third, a few behind Nolan Ryan and Clemens. Many of his wins have come after Angels losses. He seems always to be pitching following a loss.

All this, and Finley has yet to find that extra bit of giddy-up that shrunk his ERA to 2.40 last season. However, the beefed-up Angels have scored runs for him and Finley won't quibble over his 10-2 record.

He is a simple man. Winning ballgames is a concept broken down into the simplest terms.

"I think last year I hit a groove a little bit earlier than I did this year," said Finley, who began 18-6 in 1990 before losing his last three starts. "I threw a lot of games early in the season. Now I'm starting to get the feel for it again."

He's beginning to get the touch and the league already has spotted him 10 wins.

"Yeah," he said, grinning. "I've been fortunate to pitch on the right day and (the Angels) have scored a ton of runs for me, which makes it easy."

"The bottom line," he said, "is winning. Would you rather have a 2.20 ERA and be 4-11, or 11-4 with a 3.5?"

The question was rhetorical. So it seems, is his pitching.

Finley does not demand answers for what he does. His forkball plummets. His fastball zips. The catcher catches. The batter misses.

It is really so simple. Rhetorically speaking, why clutter such things with unnecessary answers?

Finley expects to win, expects to compete. When it happens, it is very nearly ordinary.

"Chuck, to me, baseball-wise is like Clemens," said McClure, the staff's pitching guru. "He's the type of pitcher you know is going to keep you in it. Head-wise. Physically-wise. He's a step above, mentally, other pitchers. Why, I don't know. Like Stewart, those guys always find a way to win."

"He's a sharp guy. Someone like that, you don't meet them very often. Real forceful. I think that's why he wins. Not just his stuff, but his personality. The way he is."

Phillies' Hayes out for season with broken wrist

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Outfielder Von Hayes of the Philadelphia Phillies broke his right wrist Friday night when hit by a pitch from Cincinnati's Tom Browning and is out for the rest of the season.

Hayes, who in the last week has been rumored going to Cincinnati for infielder Mariano Duncan, was batting in the sixth inning when a Browning pitch broke the ulna bone in the wrist.

Hayes went to first base after he was hit, but was removed and sent to a hospital when the Phillies took the field for the seventh.

D.J. Dozier plows into Mets' Class AA system

By Kelly P. Kissel

AP Writer

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. — Minnesota Vikings running back D.J. Dozier doesn't think much about football, or its six-figure salary, these days.

He's too busy turning around a childhood dream.

Dozier, who took a back seat to Herschel Walker in the NFL, is playing Class AA baseball for the Eastern League's Williamsport Bills, a New York Mets farm team based in the hometown of the Little League World Series.

"If I'm more consistent, I can move on," said Dozier, who was batting .407 during a recent two-week hot streak. "You have your good days and bad days, but if you're consistent, the bad days don't seem so bad and the good days hopefully will get better."

Growing up in the Tidewater region of Virginia, Dozier, as a Little Leaguer, dreamed of one day playing ball in Williamsport, where each summer the Little League World Series is held. Now that he's here, he wants to go home, play for the Class AAA Tidewater Mets and move up to the big leagues.

"Mentally, I'm not even thinking about football. I'm here playing baseball and that's all I have to be concerned about," said Dozier, drafted by the Vikings in 1987 after a successful college career at nearby Penn State.

If Dozier isn't thinking about football, others are. The Mets will keep on hold any plans to move him to Tidewater until they're assured Dozier will stick with baseball through the end of the season.

"The biggest decision in the next 30 days is going to center around football," said Larry Hunsicker, Mets director of baseball operations. "If he makes the decision to play baseball, that makes the move (to Tidewater) more likely."

There is little sense in making room and disrupting the Class AAA team otherwise, he said. "Two weeks at Triple-A probably doesn't do him any good anyway."

Unlike Bo Jackson, drafted both as a football player and a baseball player, Dozier signed with the Mets as a free agent. The team has very little money invested in Dozier and their contract allows him to play football.

Dozier, at present, doesn't have a contract with the Vikings, but the National Football League team is interested in retaining his services.

"We want to re-sign him and we feel he's a talented football player who theoretically could be a starter here," said Vikings vice president Jeff Diamond.

But in four years at Minnesota, Dozier hasn't yet accumulated 1,000 yards in rushing and pass receiving combined. He has rushed for 643 yards on 163 carries and caught 32 passes for 298 yards.

In a half-season of work last year, he carried six times for twelve yards. His only pass reception was a 12-yarder — from Walker.

On the baseball field this year, Dozier started sluggishly but rebounded to improve his batting average to .282 through 48 games. He also had scored 33 runs, hit five home runs, four triples and nine doubles. He also had 20 RBI and 21 steals in 25 attempts.

Last year, Dozier was a Class A all-star at Port St. Lucie, Fla., of the Florida State League, but finished the season with the Class AA Jackson Mets of the Texas League. Jackson moved to Williamsport during the off-season.

"It's just a matter of time before he moves up again," said Bills general manager Skip Weisman. "But if one looks only at the money, it's not clear that Dozier will stay with baseball. The average Class AA baseball player makes around $1,500 a month. Dozier, while considered an above-average player, isn't close to the salary he can get from football."

"While we would like to have him playing baseball full-time, in all good faith I will respect his decision because of the finances," Hunsicker said. "If we were able to compensate him near the degree that football can, I would feel differently."

But Dozier says finances alone won't dictate what he does. He seems to have genuine contempt for the Vikings, which traded for running back Herschel Walker and passed over Dozier as the team's star.

"I don't think my ego has anything to do with it. I enjoy playing both sports and I'm taking advantage of a unique opportunity," he said.

But as far as the Vikings are concerned, "I still want him." And the Mets want him, but want him soon. Time is running out for the 25-year-old.

"The next couple of years are important to him baseball-wise," Hunsicker said. "He knows that concentrating on baseball full-time is going to expedite his career in baseball."

Baseball's longest stoppage just a faded memory

By Ronald Blum

AP Sports Writer

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — Ten years ago Wednesday, they put the bats and balls away and the fields of dreams went silent for 50 days.

No runs. No hits. Only errors by lawyers. The Boys of Summer went home, deadlocked with a management intent on stopping the escalation of player salaries. And in the end, owners really didn't accomplish anything.

"The lesson from 1981," Donald Fehr said this week, "is that if the owners want to provoke a strike, it's not very hard."

It became the longest stoppage in baseball history, chopping the season in half like two one-act plays. The statistics became meaningless, the semi-pennant races tedious.

It was baseball at its worst. For some, the pain will never go away.

"I still have scars from 1981," Milwaukee Brewers owner Bud Selig said during last year's lockout, his voice cracking with emotion.

The money seems so minuscule now. The average salary then was $185,000 and Dave Winfield of the Yankees was the highest-paid player at $1.5 million. But owners were going to draw their line in the sand. They were going to get compensation for free agents.

"There are two things that will always be true in baseball," Fehr said. "There will never be enough pitching and there will always be cries of poverty."

Fehr, now the union's boss, came to prominence during the strike as one of the two lawyers at the side of Marvin Miller, the executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association. When the strike began, Miller removed himself from the bargaining table and left Fehr and Peter Rose in the spotlight.

The strike had been building for more than a year. Owners were still having trouble coming to grips with free agency and the end of the reserve clause. A last-minute agreement averted a strike in 1980, but left open free agent compensation to a study committee and allowed owners to unilaterally implement their plan the following year.

The only option for the players was to strike, and they did on June 12 after a federal judge denied an injunction that would have extended the deadline.

"Once that decision came down, the strike was a foregone conclusion," Fehr said.

Management's negotiator was Ray Grebey, who seemed nervous around players and stiff when talking before microphones. He tripped over himself when reading news releases and was routed by Miller and Fehr in the battle for public opinion.

"I have a lasting impression of the horrendous and relentless press coverage, which I think significantly affected the negotiations," said Grebey, now senior vice president of the Trump Shuttle. "It made it significantly more difficult for both sides to act rationally in a problem-solving mode."

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn disappeared publicly during the walkout, but worked the telephones. He didn't attend any of the bargaining sessions at the Doral Inn in New York, leading to the impression he was uninvolved.

Owners had purchased $50 million in strike insurance, a payment of $100,000 for each game missed starting 13 days after the walkout and running through July 20. As soon as the insurance ran out, management's solidarity broke down.

"There was a total internal collapse within the ownership in the last twenty days, and the interne-cine warfare was as bad as anything," Grebey said, adding "the backstabbing began a little before" the insurance ran out.

New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner and Baltimore Orioles owners Edward Bennett Williams pushed hard for a settlement. Following an owners' meeting at the Citicorp building in Manhattan, Texas Rangers owner Eddie Chiles waived a white bandana of surrender.

Finally, after an all-night meeting at the law firm Willkie, Farr & Gallagher, American League president Lee MacPhail negotiated a settlement similar to the union's original proposal. Compensation would come from a pool of players, not from the team signing a free agent.

The system wasn't liked by anyone — the biggest move was when the Chicago White Sox claimed Tom Seaver from the New York Mets. The entire structure was dropped by management in the 1985 negotiations.

So, in essence, owners got nothing for trying to hold the line. Now, the average salary is $897,000. The highest-paid player is Darryl Strawberry of the Los Angeles Dodgers at $3.8 million. There seems to be no end to the escalation of salaries and revenues. Grebey sees it differently.

"I didn't achieve what I wanted, but I got a little bit done."

Now, the 1981 strike is just a blip in the timeline. The boredom and emptiness of that summer have drifted into the memory, which tries to suppress the bad thoughts.

There was a lot of yelling and screaming that summer. That's all most people really remember.

Continuance granted for Martina during Wimbledon

Associated Press

FORT WORTH — Martina Navratilova won't have to appear in Fort Worth for a deposition during Wimbledon, after all.

On Friday, attorneys for Navratilova were granted a continuance for a deposition requested by the tennis star's former companion.

Judy Nelson contends in a lawsuit against Navratilova that the tennis player has not lived up to terms of a 1986 agreement providing that if they split up, they would divide assets accrued since they began living together in July 1984.

Navratilova sent Nelson a letter in April dissolving their relationship.

Nelson's attorneys had asked that Navratilova appear in Fort Worth on July 2 for the deposition. Navratilova, however, will be competing June 24-July 7 at Wimbledon and wanted the hearing delayed until after the tournament.

Navratilova's attorneys were ordered by senior visiting Judge Harry Hopkins to produce the deposition between July 16 and Aug. 2, said court coordinator Anita Hackett.

The parties will have until July 1 to agree on when the depositions will be taken, Hackett said.

Navratilova's attorneys also were granted a continuance on a hearing for a motion asking the court to appoint a receiver to protect the couple's assets until the case can be heard.

"Both parties announced to the court that they reached an agreement to continue the show-cause hearing," Hackett said, reading from a prepared statement.

The statement said that Navratilova's motion for continuance be granted without condition and that Nelson's application for receivership and a temporary injunction set for June 20, 1991, be continued without condition until September 1991.

Navratilova's attorney, Mike McCurley, filed a motion Monday to have Nelson's lawyer, Jerry Loftin of Fort Worth, removed from the case. McCurley charged that Loftin once represented Navratilova and Nelson simultaneously.

Valenzuela hits disabled list

Southpaw surprised by discovery of health problems

Associated Press

ANAHEIM, Calif. — The agent for Fernando Valenzuela said his client was surprised to find out about a possible health problem after signing with the California Angels.

The 30-year-old left-hander was placed on the 15-day disabled list on Thursday with plans announced for further testing to determine why abnormal blood flow was detected in the area of his heart.

The former Dodger was struggling in his comeback bid, but was surprised when told of the results of a follow-up exam to his pre-signing physical with the Angels.

"Fernando feels nothing at all different," Tony De Marco said Thursday. "He was very surprised because he feels fine, but he agrees to go on the DL so they can make sure where those irregularities come from."

Angels spokesman Tim Mead said that a physical conducted two weeks ago found "possible cardiac changes" in Valenzuela.

Valenzuela was still signed to a one-year contract with an option for 1992. He started two games but lost both, giving up nine earned runs in less than seven innings.

The medical concerns galvanized Thursday when the left-hander underwent another test.

"The exam ... showed an abnormal cardiogram," Mead said, adding further testing was to be done immediately.

De Marco said Valenzuela would not comment until he knew exactly what his condition was. Valenzuela did not mention the results of the initial physical Wednesday after the Angels' 80 loss to Milwaukee, in which he allowed three walks, five hits and five runs in 1 2-3 innings.

Expos edge Braves, cool off Tom Glavine

Associated Press

MONTREAL — Gilberto Reyes' run-scoring pinch single in the seventh inning broke a tie as the Montreal Expos beat Tom Glavine and the Atlanta Braves 2-1 Friday night.

The Expos prevented Glavine from taking over the major-league lead in wins despite managing only five hits off the left-hander in seven innings. Glavine fell to 10-3.

Mark Gardner (2-3) gave up four hits in seven innings to win in Montreal for the first time since last Aug. 28. Tim Burke pitched two-thirds of an inning and Scott Ruskin finished for his fourth save.

The Expos went ahead in the seventh when Spike Owen doubled with two outs and Reyes, batting for Gardner, followed with a single.

The Braves took a 1-0 lead the first inning when Ron Gant hit his 12th home run of the season with two outs.

Montreal tied it in the fourth inning against Glavine, 2-7 lifetime against the Expos, when Tim Wallach led off with a double, went to third on a wild pitch and scored on Mike Fitzgerald's bouncer to second base.

Astros 4, Mets 1

NEW YORK — Houston roughed up New York relief ace John Franco for the second time this week as Steve Finley's RBI single sparked a three-run ninth inning to give Houston a victory over the slumping Mets.

New York has lost three straight games, scoring only four runs. Franco fell to 1-6.

Franco, who blew a lead Monday night in a loss at Houston, gave up all three runs in the ninth inning on four hits.

Mike Capel (1-1), who pitched two innings of scoreless relief after replacing starter Pete Harnisch, was the winner and Jim Clancy got the last three outs for his second save. The three Houston pitchers combined on a four-hitter.

Rafael Ramirez, pinch hitting for Capel, hit a one-out double in the ninth and Finley followed with a single to snap a 1-1 tie.

Eric Yelding doubled, sending Finley to third and Craig Biggio was intentionally walked to load the bases. Pinch-hitter Mark Davidson then delivered a two-run single.

Harnisch, who beat the Mets 1-0 with 11 strikeouts last Sunday, was lifted for a pinch hitter in the seventh with the score tied 1-1.

Two innings later, David Cone left the game after throwing 141 pitches. The right-hander gave up the one run on seven hits, while striking out nine.

Reds 4, Phillies 2

PHILADELPHIA — Tom Browning gave up two runs and seven hits in 8½ innings for his fifth win in his last six starts as Cincinnati beat Philadelphia.

Browning (9-4) struck out four and walked two in pitching the surging Reds to their fifth victory in the last six games. Rob Dibble got the last two outs for his National League-leading 17th save.

The Reds snapped a 2-2 tie in the eighth off Terry Mulholland (6-6), who is 0-5 lifetime against Cincinnati. Bill Doran opened the eighth with a double and advanced to third on Hal Morris' bunt single.

Barry Larkin then singled in Doran, chasing Mulholland for Roger McDowell.

Giants 3, Pirates 2

SAN FRANCISCO — Willie McGee, who earlier extended his hitting streak to 18 games, homered with one out in the eighth inning to give San Francisco a victory over Pittsburgh.

McGee drove a 2-0 pitch from Zane Smith (7-5) over the right-field fence for his fourth homer of the season. Smith gave up eight hits in eight innings.

Francisco Oliveras (2-2) worked the eighth, striking out two, for the victory. Dave Righetti pitched the ninth inning for his seventh save.

The Pirates, atop the National League East with a 36-21 record, fell to 1-3 against the Giants this season who are in last place in the West.

Mike Wilkerson's run-scoring single and Smith's RBI-double in the Pirates fourth tied the score 2-2.

Minnesota makes it 13 in a row

Associated Press

CLEVELAND — The Minnesota Twins won their team-record 13th straight game Friday night, beating the Cleveland Indians 7-0 on Shane Mack's grand slam and five RBIs.

The Indians were shut out for the third straight game, matching a club mark and one shy of the major league record.

Jack Morris (8-5) won his fifth consecutive start as the Twins surpassed their previous record streak of 12 straight wins in 1980. Morris pitched three-hit ball for seven innings and improved to 29-9 lifetime against Cleveland.

Mack hit his first career grand slam, doubled and singled. He set a career-high for RBIs, and is 11-for-29 during the Twins' surge. Kent Hrbek added his sixth home run.

The Indians have only eight hits in their last three games. They went 23 innings without getting a runner past second base until Mark Lewis reached third on a wild pitch in the sixth.

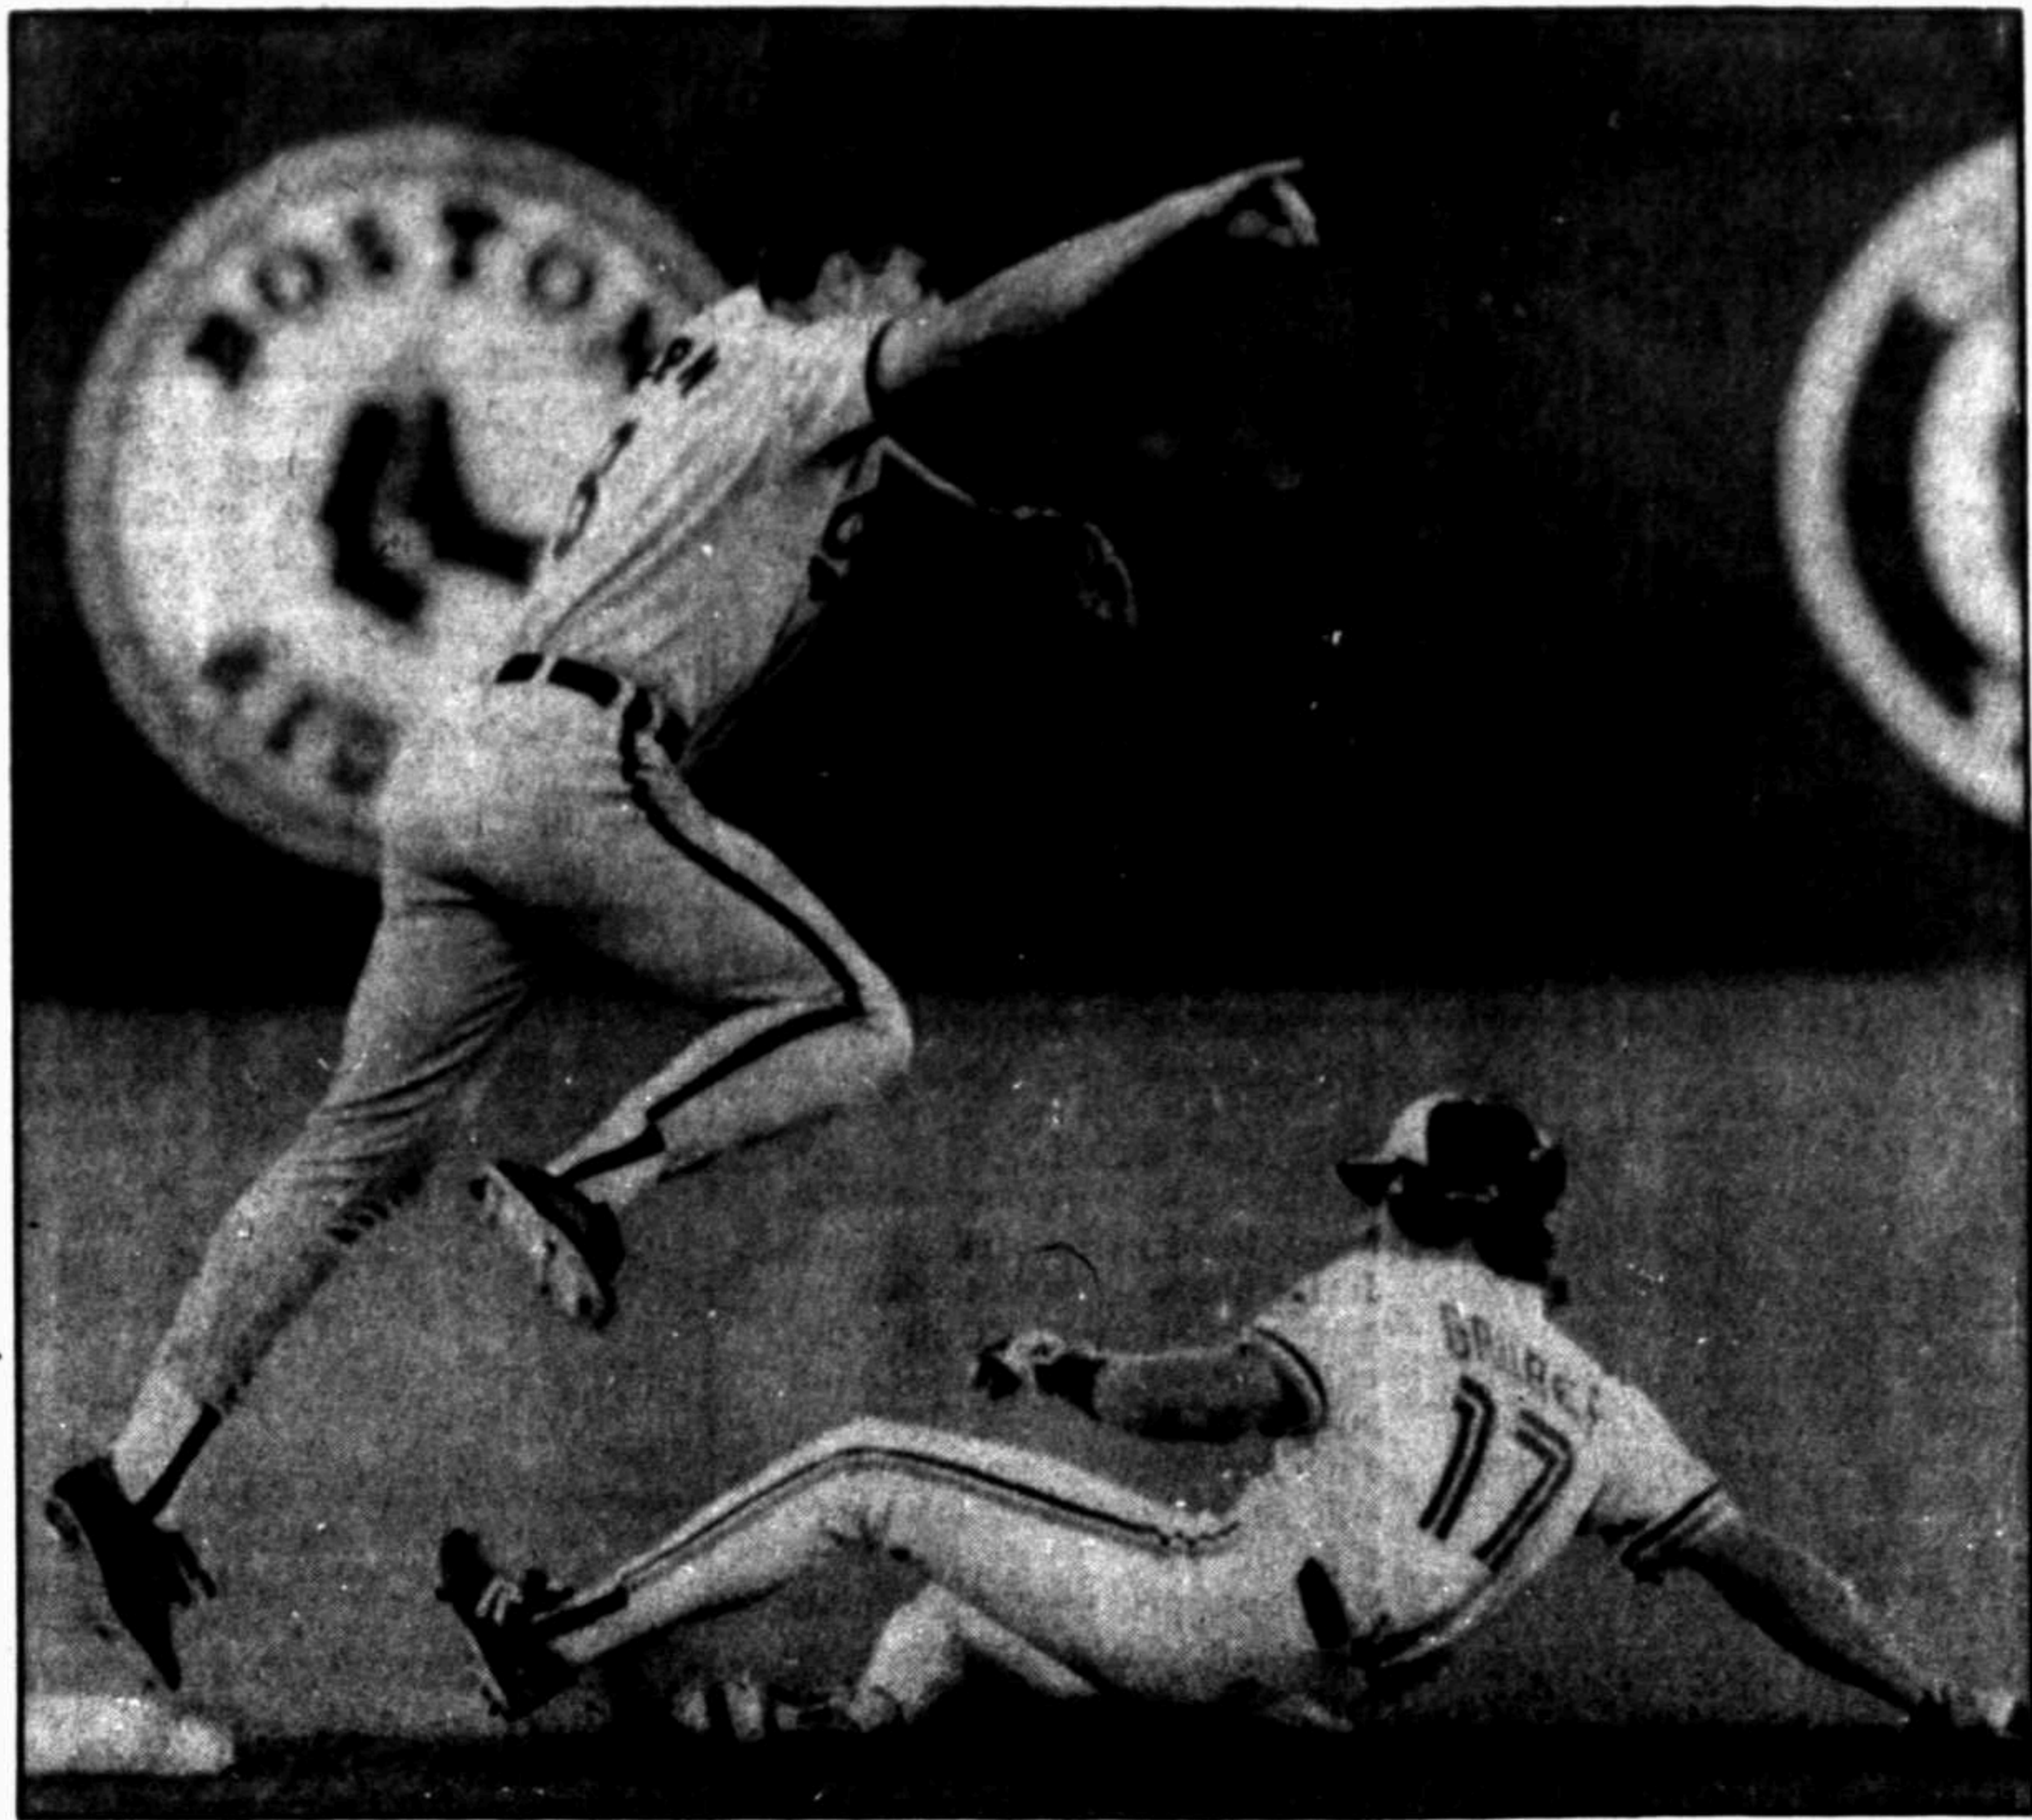

Cleveland has been held to two runs on less in 11 of its last 12 games. The major league mark of four consecutive shut-outs in shared by several teams in both leagues.

Rangers 8, Yankees 4

ARLINGTON — Jeff Huson hit a three-run homer during a seven-run first inning, and Jose Guzman won for the first time since 1988 as Texas beat New York.

Huson's first major league homer in 628 at-bats sent Texas to its fourth straight victory. The Rangers were swept in a three-game series at New York last weekend.

Guzman, once regarded as one of baseball's top pitching prospects, had not won since Aug. 22, 1988, shortly before sustaining a rotator cuff injury. He was released by the Rangers in spring training, re-signed with their Triple-A team and was recalled on May 21.

Baltimore's Cal Ripken jumps over Kelly Gruber of Toronto.

American

Guzman (1-2) gave up three runs on nine hits in seven innings. Matt Nokes hit a two-run homer and Kevin Maas also homered in the sixth inning.

Rookie Wade Taylor (2-1) got only two outs and was charged with seven runs. He allowed four hits, walked two and hit a batter.

Jays 9, Orioles 1

TORONTO — John Olerud homered, tripled, doubled and drove in four runs as Toronto Blue beat Baltimore, handing the Orioles their sixth straight loss.

Kelly Gruber and Mark Whiten also homered as Toronto won its third consecutive game. Todd Stottlemyre (7-2) scattered eight hits in eight innings.

Gruber hit a two-run homer, his fourth of the season, in the first off Jeff Robinson (3-6). One out later, Rance Mulliniks drew Robinson's second walk of the inning and scored on Olerud's double.

Whiten made it 4-0 in the second when hit his second home run of the season. Olerud connected for a two-run homer in the third.

White Sox 9, Royals 3

CHICAGO (AP) — Frank Thomas drove in five runs with a homer, two doubles and a single Friday night, sending Chicago over Kansas City.

Thomas put Chicago ahead with a three-run homer in the fifth inning that made it 5-3. The White Sox ended a three-game losing streak.

Red Sox 9, Angels 4

BOSTON — Ellis Burks' three-run homer capped a seven-run rally in the seventh inning, lifting Roger Clemens and Boston over California.

Clemens (9-3) gave up two earned runs on eight hits. He struck out seven and walked none in his third complete game.

Tigers 5, Mariners 1

SEATTLE — Rookie Dan Gakeler pitched two-hit ball for 7 2/3 innings for his first major league victory and Skeeter Barnes homered in his first at-bat of the season as Detroit beat Seattle.

Gakeler gave up a drag bunt single to Greg Briley with two outs in the third inning and a run-scoring single by Alvin Davis with two outs in the eighth.

Disgruntled Barrett leaves Padres

Associated Press

SAN DIEGO — Second baseman Marty Barrett cleared waivers after his 20-day rehabilitation period ended and has opted for free agency rather than accepting an assignment to the San Diego Padres' Class AAA farm team in Las Vegas.

And, like other disgruntled former Padres, he took a shot at manager Greg Riddoch.

"He tries to come off real friendly and have a family type atmosphere, but I'm working my butt off down here in rehab and I never got one call from him," Barrett said Thursday from Las Vegas.

Riddoch, however, said Barrett didn't fit into the team's infield plans.

Riddoch said Tim Teufel, Paul Faries and Jose Mota all have more versatility in the infield than Barrett. Faries is on a rehabilitation assignment. When he rejoins the team, another infielder will have to be dropped. Faries has started at both second and third, and Mota, who has started 10 games at second, can back up shortstop Tony Fernandez.

Riddoch also said the right knee injury Barrett sustained in 1989 while with the Boston Red Sox has limited his effectiveness. Barrett started two games at second and two at third.

"When we made the trade for Teufel, it pretty well shut the door on (Barrett)," Riddoch said.

Sale of Astros not based on perks

Associated Press

HOUSTON — City officials said they don't think they'll have to offer any enticements to keep the Houston Astros from moving to another city, unlike what they did in 1987 when the Houston Oilers threatened to move to Jacksonville, Fla.

Astros owner John McMullen has asked the major league ownership committee for permission to offer the team to out-of-town buyers who could move the Astros to another city.

"He (McMullen) already has the perks," Houston Mayor Kathy Whitmire told The Houston Chronicle Thursday. "What that was all about with the Oilers was McMullen. They were trying to get perks out of him. He was the guy who had the lease."

McMullen heads the Houston Sports Association, which leases the Harris County-owned Astrodome stadium. The Oilers' threat to leave town resulted in a $60 million renovation of the Astrodome that increased its seating capacity to 60,000 and provided a concrete surface beneath the AstroTurf.

"It's just the same old story," said Harris County Judge Jon Lindsay, who spearheaded efforts to keep the Oilers. "I'm not worrying about that now."

Whitmire said she has no plan for keeping the Astros but hopes the team doesn't try to leave.

"I'm surprised, because I thought that his role with HSA, his having the lease on the Dome, would cause him for financial reasons to want to keep them in town," Whitmire said. "It disappoints me and I hope he won't do it."

McMullen has refused to discuss his plans but issued a statement Thursday saying he still wanted to keep the team in Houston. He says, however, there are no viable offers within the city and attendance is down.

"Obviously, I'm hoping to have the support and backing of the community," McMullen said in the statement. "But there are 72 luxury boxes in the Dome and all of them are sold for football. We have nine (sold) for baseball.

"Our attendance has been weak. We had a pretty good team through most of the 1980s, and we won more games, I think, than any team except the Dodgers, Cardinals and Mets. But our attendance was still weak."

McMullen is seeking $95 million for the Astros. Financial World magazine recently valued the team at $92 million and a Houston group headed by attorney Jeff Love is believed to have offered $85 million. Robert Onstead, a member of a local group trying to buy the team, said, "Naturally, we're concerned about it but our hands are tied on discussing it because of the confidentiality agreement we signed.

"We have to live by our agreement. But in all honesty, I think all the facts will come out in time. He's going to try to get the best possible offer for his product. That's the American way. It's just good business."

Houston's attendance has declined in each of the last two seasons. The Astros drew 1,834,908 fans for an average of 22,364 at 82 home dates in 1990. Last year, attendance dropped to 1,310,927.

Martin earns pole for Champion 500

Associated Press

LONG POND, Pa. — Mark Martin won his third pole of the season as the fastest among 17 drivers who broke the track qualifying record Friday for the NASCAR Champion Spark Plug 500 stock car race.

Martin's lap of 161.996 mph came as radial tires debuted on the 2 1/2-mile tri-oval at Pocono International Raceway.

So many drivers broke Alan Kulwicki's 3-year-old record of 158.806 mph that two — Sterling Marlin and Hut Stricklin — didn't even officially nail down starting spots.

Only the first 15 positions were set for the Sunday race. An optional qualifying round Saturday determines the full lineup of up to 40 cars.

Midland's Bobby Hillin Jr. turned in a top lap of 158.565, 22nd overall in Friday's qualifying.

Kulwicki, who like Martin will be in a Ford, will start second. Ernie Irvan and Ricky Rudd, both in Chevrolets, are on the second row.

"The tires are just faster. Over a second faster. It makes everybody go a second faster than they would on the other (bias-ply) tires," said Martin, who also won the pole here last July, when he finished sixth in the race.

Martin's 55.557-second lap edged Kulwicki's 55.585, or 161.914 mph, for the pole. Both used overdrive transmissions in their qualifying runs, unlike their closest challengers.

"Man, a couple hundredths of a second on this track is nothing," Kulwicki said. "I can't complain, though. That was pretty quick."

Both shattered the 56.673-second lap Kulwicki ran in qualifying for the June 1988 race here, but Martin wasn't surprised with the beating drivers gave the old record.

"I still say that the pole on the bias-ply tires would have been a 56.80," Martin said. "If you want to make a big deal about how fast all the cars did, then it's the radial tire."

Pocono is the ninth track on the circuit for Goodyear to introduce a radial, first used in a Winston Cup race at North Wilkesboro, N.C., in April 1989. Goodyear spokesman Bill King said the tires allow better braking and handle better in turns to let the driver get on the gas more quickly.

"Effectively, what a radial does is it allows the driver to lengthen the straightaway," King said.

He said the effect is accentuated at Pocono, which has slower turns and longer straightaways than many superspeedways.

"It's the most dramatic performance increase we've seen and probably will be," he said.

Martin said the tire could be important at Pocono during the race because they "will reduce punctures to virtually nothing, which has been a big problem here. I think it will make the show better."

The pole comes at an opportune time for Martin, who after challenging Dale Earnhardt for the title a year ago got off to a tough start this year.

He finished fifth and ninth in his last two races. Last Sunday, at Sonoma, Calif., he was spun by Tommy Kendall while going for the lead with two laps to go.

"This makes it feel a lot better," Martin said. "We've had a little bit of a frustrating year. We started off the year not really good."

"You can't expect to win the first race you run good in," he added. "Then you have to wait your turn, sometimes 10, sometimes 20, sometimes 40 races."

Giants ink WLAQ QB

Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — The New York Giants announced Friday they have signed quarterback Mike Perez of the Frankfort Galaxy of the World League of American Football.

Perez, a 6-foot-1, 210-pounder from San Jose State, was originally a seventh-round draft choice of the Giants in 1988. He appeared in one preseason game and spent the rest of that year on injured reserve and was then released during the 1989 preseason.

With Frankfurt this past year, Perez was the sixth-ranked quarterback in the league, finishing with 171 completions in 357 attempts for 2,272 yards and 13 touchdowns.

The Giants already have two quarterbacks that have each won Super Bowls, Phil Simms, in 1987, and Jeff Hostetler, in 1991.

Terms of the contract were not disclosed.

Atlanta, USOC reach accord

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP) — The U.S. Olympic Committee and organizers of the 1996 Atlanta Olympics completed six months of negotiations Friday by signing a joint marketing agreement that could be worth up to $700 million.

The contract divides the money to be generated by the sale of corporate sponsorships and licensed merchandise connected with the Summer Games in Atlanta.

Billy Payne, president of the Atlanta Committee, said the package will be worth at least $600 million. That does not include lucrative television rights fees, which have yet to be negotiated.

Payne said ACOG will get roughly 70 percent of the money covered by the contract, with 30 percent going to the USOC. That breakdown varies on some specific items, such as the sale of Olympic coins — which will be split 50-50.

Officials of both ACOG and the USOC said the agreement would set a precedent for future Games. "This is the first time a real partnership has been formed and there is one marketing entity," said USOC president Robert Helmick. "It was a totally different situation in Los Angeles."

At the 1984 Summer Olympics in Los Angeles, Helmick said each sponsorship or merchandising agreement had to be handled individually. The Atlanta contract simplifies that process, he said.

"The big story here is that the sponsors can count on a joint-marketing plan," said Andrew Young.

Warrant issued for drug lord Escobar

BOGOTA, Colombia — A judge issued a warrant for the arrest of drug lord Pablo Escobar in the 1989 assassination of the leading presidential candidate, a television report said Friday.

Escobar, the leader of the Medellin cocaine cartel, now faces at least three murder charges.

He has promised to surrender in exchange for leniency, and a special jail cell has been readied for him on the outskirts of Medellin.

It was unclear Friday whether the new charges against him would affect his plan to surrender.

The warrant was issued by one of the special anti-narcotics judges whose identities are kept secret, the program Noticiero de Las Siete reported. The program was created after scores of judges were killed by traffickers in recent years.

The report said Escobar was charged with planning the killing of Luis Carlos Galan, a senator who was leading the presidential race at the time of his death. He was shot at a campaign rally outside Bogota on Aug. 18, 1989.

The killing sparked a government campaign against drug traffickers. The campaign ended last year, when President Cesar Gaviria promised not to extradite to the United States drug traffickers who surrender and confess to at least one crime.

Escobar is also charged in two other murders. Authorities claim he has ordered the slayings of hundreds of people seen as obstacles to his drug business, especially police officers and judges.

Rallies mark anniversary of crackdown

BUCHAREST, Romania — About 1,000 anti-government demonstrators took over the capital's main University Square on Friday for a second day of rallies marking the violent crackdown on protests from June 13-15 last year.

Protesters shouted slogans against President Ion Iliescu and the National Salvation Front, which has run Romania since the December 1989 anti-Communist revolution. The Front first ruled provisionally, then as an elected government.

Hundreds of protesters also rallied against the government in Timisoara, an opposition stronghold about 280 miles west of the capital.

Violence broke out in Bucharest last year when police tried to clear the square, which protesters had blocked for two months to demand Iliescu's resignation on charges he was a crypto-Communist. Six demonstrators were shot and killed during an attack on police headquarters.

Strike shuts down French newspapers

PARIS — A printers' strike shut down France's national press Friday and a separate walkout closed one state-run television channel and disrupted programming on the other.

Hundreds of printers, technicians and teletype operators joined the 24-hour strike. Marchers in the capital carried banners demanding pay raises and protection against job cuts.

The strike was prompted by the prestigious Le Monde's plans to trim its work force and reduce some salaries by 1 percent. It and the other national newspapers affected by the walkout print a total of more than 2.5 million copies a day.

The strike also prevented the French news agency Agence France-Presse from distributing news to its subscribers in France.

Employees of the Antenne 2 and FR3 television networks also staged a one-day strike to protest a proposed restructuring. Management has said the two channels might be merged in the next three years.

FR3 went off the air altogether, while Antenne 2 cancelled its morning and midday news programs.

France warns Americans not to patronize

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia — French President Francois Mitterrand closed a meeting that has seen a clash of views over Eastern Europe's future by warning Friday against undue American influence in rebuilding the region.

Mitterrand's remarks at a three-day conference on his proposal for a European confederation were at odds with those of Czechoslovak President Vaclav Havel, who is promoting a strong American role on the continent.

"Our North American brothers are always welcome," Mitterrand said.

"They are in fact the sons of Europe" but shouldn't "try to become its fathers," he said.

Mitterrand spoke to some 150 intellectuals and former government officials attending a meeting aimed at forming alternatives to NATO, the European Community and other security and trade groups.

Jewelry stolen from bishop's body found

CAMDEN, N.J. — A homeless man and a 13-year-old church worker who mourned a bishop revisited the body in the night and swiped a sacred gold cross and ring as he lay in state, authorities said Friday.

The jewelry was recovered Friday. The ring and the chain that held the cross were found at a pawn shop, where they had been sold for $425.

The cross was found at the house of the homeless man's sister. It was missing a gem and a splinter that Roman Catholics believe came from the cross on which Jesus was crucified, police said.

The theft was discovered early Thursday as Camden Diocese officials prepared a Saturday funeral for retired Bishop George H. Guilloyle. Guilloyle, who died Tuesday at age 77, was spiritual leader for about 375,000 Roman Catholics in southern New Jersey for 21 years until he retired in June 1989.

Two arrests made in Gandhi assassination

NEW DELHI, India — Investigators arrested two more suspects late Friday night in the May 21 assassination of former Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi, United News of India said.

The suspects, identified only as Nalini and Murugan, were apprehended on a bus near Madras, capital of southern Tamil Nadu state, the news agency said. It did not say what role the two might have played in Gandhi's death.

On Wednesday, S. Bhagyanathan and his mother, Padma, 49, a nurse in a Madras hospital, were arrested and are being held for questioning. They were said to have sheltered Gandhi's assassin in their home in Madras.

Gandhi, leader of the Congress Party, was killed at an election rally by a suicide bomber in Sriperumbudur, 25 miles southwest of Madras.

The assassin has been identified by her nickname, Thanu. She and suspected accomplices were photographed minutes before she detonated plastic explosives strapped to her waist killing Gandhi, herself and 16 others.

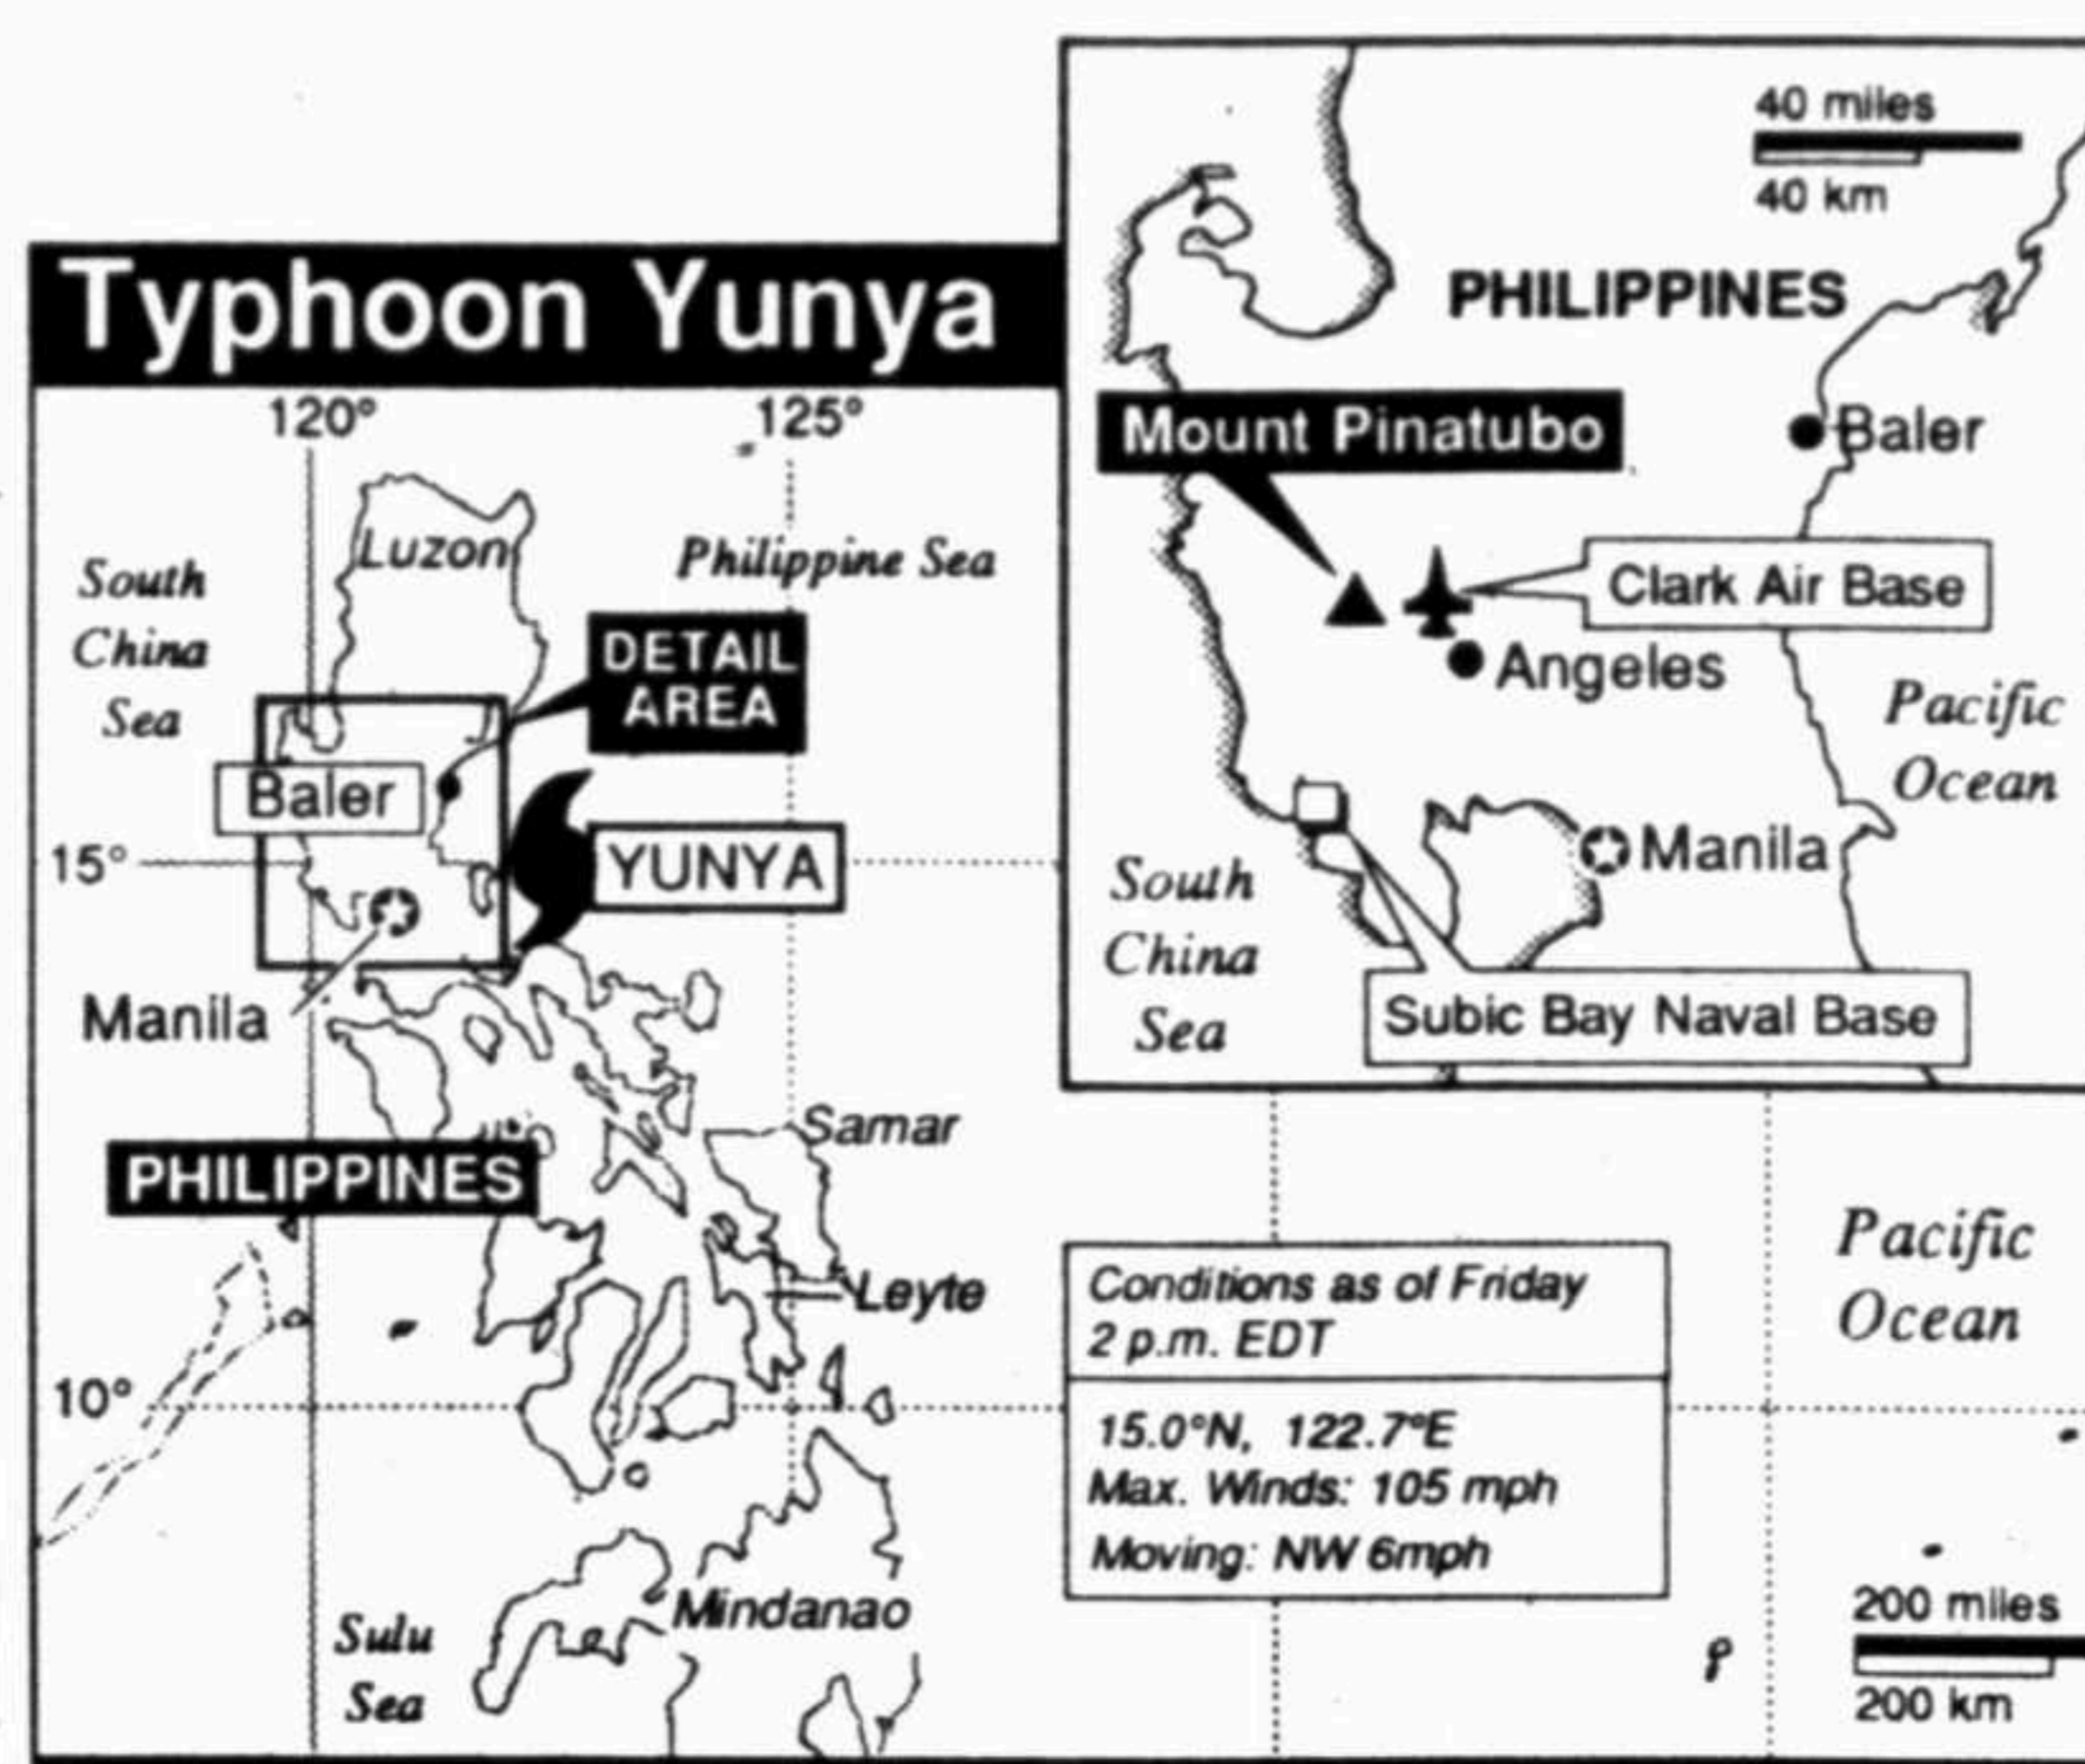

Nalini, Bhagyanathan's sister, was photographed the day of the killing in the company of another alleged conspirator. Both are believed to have been part of a backup squad to kill Gandhi in case Thanu failed or lost her nerve.

Another suspected accomplice was posing as a journalist. Some Sri Lankan officials claim he is actually a senior officer of the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam, a guerrilla group fighting for Tamil independence in Sri Lanka.

The photographs of the suspects were taken by Hari Babu, an amateur cameraman. He died in the explosion but the film in his camera remained intact. Babu's photographs have provided most of the leads in the investigation.

Gandhi acted as a mediator in the Sri Lankan civil war when he was prime minister in 1987. Indian troops intervened in the war for more than two years.

Volcano, typhoon threaten Philippines

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Mount Pinatubo was rocked by a series of thundering explosions Saturday that hurled a cloud of ash and gas more than 12 miles high and lit up the night sky with rivers of incandescent debris.

A strong typhoon roared toward the Philippines from the Pacific, raising fears that heavy rains could unleash landslides down the ash-covered slopes of the 4,795-foot tropical volcano.

Meanwhile, President Corazon Aquino dismissed a British newspaper report that the Americans warned her of possible radioactive contamination if the volcano damages nuclear storage sites at Clark Air Base, which was abandoned last Monday by nearly 15,000 Americans.

At least four people have died, four are missing and 24 injured since Pinatubo began erupting Sunday after being dormant for six centuries, officials said. About 84,000 people, including the Americans, have been evacuated.

Police said 12 people have been arrested for looting at Clark.

Five explosions shook the mountain early Saturday, showering ash over a wide area and providing scientists and reporters a spectacular pre-dawn display of nature's fireworks against a backdrop of lightning and rain.

On Friday, eight thunderous explosions shot a cloud of ash and steam nearly 19 miles high. New explosions shook the mountain early Saturday.

Friday's eruptions hurled ash over Clark, 10 miles east of the volcano, and Subic Bay naval base, 25 miles to the southwest, where the Clark personnel are being temporarily housed.

At Subic, base spokesman Robert Coble said generators there had to be shut down from time to time late Friday and early Saturday to clean out volcanic ash.

plunging the base into darkness. "It's been drizzling," he said. "We're just trying to cope. It's very, very dark because of ash and rain."

Local civil defense officials said landslides destroyed two bridges in Santa Fe, southwest of the volcano, and trees and abandoned huts were washed away in Castillejos, also to the southwest.

Temperatures in local rivers were rising because of the volcanic debris, officials said. The volcano's fallout made Olongapo look "like nighttime" in midafternoon, Associated Press reporter Louella Vizcocho said by telephone.

At Clark, the 1,500 U.S. troops left behind to guard the installation donned goggles and surgical masks and prepared to abandon the base. But they decided to stay after the danger passed.

After sunset the volcano spewed two streams of orange, glowing material from its crater in what scientists thought was the first appearance of lava during the week-long eruptions.

"It's very beautiful," ABS-CBN reporter Vic Lima said in a report from the scene. "There's a stream of orange flow on the two sides of the volcano."

Later, Raymundo Punongbayan, director of the Philippine Institute of Volcanology and Seismology, said the glow was actually an "incandescent pyroclastic flow," hot gases, stones and ash that travel at high speeds and are an even greater threat than lava.

The institute said Friday's blasts were all part of a single eruption, the largest since Mount Pinatubo awoke Sunday from a 600-year slumber.

Typhoon Yunya, meanwhile, was bearing down on the eastern coast of Luzon island, which includes Mount Pinatubo. It was expected to hit land around noon Saturday near Baler.

Religious homosexuals seek changes

By Richard Vara

HOUSTON (AP) — During the growing years that most girls are discovering boys and romance, Carolyn J. Mobley painfully was discovering romantic feelings for other girls.

"I was in a very religious family," said Mobley, who will be ordained next year in the Universal Fellowship of Metropolitan Community Churches.

"My grandfather was a Baptist preacher. My mother was very involved with the church. To be 14, 15 and 16 and really discovering that I had sexual feelings for other girls was quite disconcerting."

Like many other religious homosexuals, Mobley intently prayed for God to change her sexual preference. "It never happened," she said.

She remained celibate until she graduated from college in 1971 and worked as a children's religious educator in Orlando, Fla. "I had relationships with two or three women — and also one man at the urging of my mother."

Today, Mobley is very comfortable with her homosexuality. She believes she will enter heaven because of her faith in Jesus Christ. Her lesbianism she regards as a "gift from God."

Mobley, an intern/pastoral assistant at Houston's Metropolitan Community Church of the Resurrection, is a member of a small Christian denomination that celebrates gay and lesbian lifestyles. The non-denominational Houston church has about 350 members with 36 ministries. Houston is one of the larger churches in the 22-year-old denomination, which has about 35,000 members in 250 churches in nine countries.

Active homosexuality is still rejected by most Christian denominations. That rejection is provoking angry confrontations as gay rights activists seek more than tolerance. They are insisting that denominations reverse centuries-old doctrines and ordain openly homosexual men and women.

The United Church of Christ and the Central Conference of American Rabbis (Reform) have relaxed the ban on ordaining active homosexuals. Other denominations are considering the move.

Presbyterians are considering a proposal to ordain practicing homosexuals and bless gay unions during their General Assembly this week in Baltimore. That proposal is among several in a controversial sex study recommending sweeping changes in traditional sexual morality. A vote on the report is expected Monday.

The Episcopal General Convention, meeting in Phoenix in July, will consider a study committee recommendation to permit bishops to ordain active homosexuals.

An acknowledged lesbian was ordained an Episcopal priest at the Church of the Epiphany in downtown Washington Wednesday despite objections from some parishioners. Elizabeth Carl, a Methodist-reared native of Houston, received a divinity degree from Union Theological Seminary in New York last year. She will spend much of her part-time priesthood counseling the elderly as well as visiting the sick.

Bishop Ronald H. Haines, who ordained Ms. Carl, 40, said a 1979 resolution of the church's General Convention expressed a majority view of church bishops and deputies against ordination of a gay priest, but that resolution was not adopted as a canonical direction, leaving the decision up to the discretion of the local diocese.

The General Conference of the United Methodist Church, meeting in Louisville, Ky., in 1992, will consider the report of an appointed Committee to Study Homosexuality. Although the committee has not completed its study, the majority of panelists voted informally to recommend the church change its view that homosexuality is incompatible with Christianity. But so far the Methodist committee has left untouched a prohibition against ordaining "self-avowed practicing" homosexuals.

Quirks, peculiarities found in religious data

NEW YORK (AP) — Puzzles and peculiarities abound in information turned up these days by surveys of religious conditions in America.

Like these quirks: Most people say they read the Bible regularly, but are uncertain about its features. For example, less than half know who delivered the Sermon on the Mount. (Jesus did.)

Churches and synagogues are rated the most capable among institutions in solving community problems, but clergy are ranked at the bottom of the scale on how much they should be paid.

Sixty percent of Americans attended church last Easter, but a fourth of them didn't know what the occasion signifies. (It celebrates the resurrection of Christ.)

Despite churchly laments about moral relativism and loss of a sense of right and wrong, 85 percent of Americans agree that there are clear moral guidelines of what's good or evil that apply to everyone.

Three-fourths believe in heaven, and most think they're going there, while 60 percent believe in hell, but only 4 percent see much chance of going there.

These are among curiosities found in recent surveys by the Gallup organization, usually of about 1,200 adults, and summarized by its Princeton Religion Research Center in its monthly "Emerging Trends."

But one of the oddest findings of all came from an enormous survey of 113,000 adults about their religion by the City University of New York Graduate School.

It found that the "melting pot" image still applies to religion in America, with most newcomers blending into the Christian and Jewish faiths that include almost 90 percent of American adults.

In recent years, sociologists and others had largely discarded the melting pot thesis regarding absorption of American immigrants, speaking instead of a new "pluralism" and "ethnicity."

But the new survey issued in April, described as the most comprehensive profile yet assembled of the religious composition of America, found that newcomers, whether Arabs, Vietnamese or other Asians, are mostly Christians.

"Most immigrants are in the mainstream of the Judeo-Christian culture," said sociologist Barry A. Kosmin, who directed the study. He said many were schooled by overseas missions prior to coming here.

It had been widely assumed that recent immigration had splintered the U.S. religious scene. But the figures, collected through nationwide telephone interviews over a 13-month period by the ICR Research Group of Media, Pa., found that 86.5 percent of the population is Christian and 1.8 percent Jewish.

Where variety showed up was in the many kinds of Christians, the denominational diversity that historically has typified the U.S.

Most of the others either said they had no religion — 7.5 percent — or declined to identify their religion — 2.2 percent. Other faith groups, such as Muslims, Buddhists and Hindus, each numbered only a fraction of a percent.

In the recent Gallup surveys, 82 percent of Americans say they believe the Bible is either the "literal" or "inspired" word of God, and more than half of them read the Bible at least monthly.

But half of them couldn't name any of the four Gospels of the New Testament. The other half could name at least one. (The four are Matthew, Mark, Luke and John.)

Christian seminaries reinforce basic ideas

By George W. Cornell
AP Religion Writer

Viewed from the sidelines, the church household sometimes appears in disarray, rife with assorted, competing theologies. But a scholar has examined its training centers and found they're regaining steadiness.

Although diversities swirl in the seminaries that shape the shepherds of the faith, the Rev. Gabriel Fackre has discovered a resurgent accent on the basics.

It's a "motif of retrieval," says Fackre, a theologian at Andover Newton Theological School in Newton Centre, Mass.

He says seminary professors are emphasizing "that we are, and should be, about the business of recovering the theological heritage. The period of cafeteria theology ... seems to be over."

Fackre recently queried fellow systematic theologians in mainline Protestant, evangelical and Roman Catholic seminaries about the state of their discipline.

He received 137 responses from 91 institutions, nearly half the approximately 200 seminaries and divinity schools in the country. And they broadly registered an increased stress on Christian rudiments.

"There's a recovering of the classical Christian faith," he said in an interview. "This is clearly the refrain among teachers of basic theology. Denominations have been perceived as theologically incoherent, but the sign of the times is to get back to the foundations."

"It's not just a retreat, but a recovering of church identity rather than letting it be lost in values of the culture. It doesn't mean losing touch with contemporary issues, but having content as well as context."

Fackre, 65, a United Church of Christ scholar, said his findings run counter to recent impressions given by news media and some magazine articles.

He said seminaries are often portrayed as a mishmash of partisan theologies such as feminist, world pluralist, ecological or native-religion causes pushed by a "highly experiential, post-Christian profession of near agnostics."

"I want to tell you that's not what's happening in seminaries," he said. "But it's a widespread impression. Mainline churches and seminaries are seen as accommodating values of contemporary society, whatever they might be."

While such tendencies may show up among university academics, teaching objective religious studies without church commitments, Fackre said, "it does not represent what's happening in seminaries."

"The problem is the public thinks so," he added. "We get tarred with the same brush."

Summarizing his findings at a recent American Theological Society meeting in Princeton, N.J., Fackre said "media cliches and sweeping indictments" of current theology teaching bear little resemblance to the facts.

He disputed implications that such teaching had traded classical beliefs for "assumptions of modernity" and the "latest fads."

He also called it a "misrepresentation of the first order" to depict seminary professors as bypassing church worship and holding "post-Christian positions" diverging from tradition.

However, Fackre said, a main characteristic of seminary teaching is the diversity in particular approaches, offering "the potential for mutual enrichment by the diversity."

However, without conversation between them and shared insights, he said, "We could be in for a period of theological balkanization ... armed camps firing away at each other."

Nevertheless, he said, "all across the spectrum" of diversities, the most visible tendency in seminaries is to shore up fundamentals, shown both by responses of teachers and the outline of courses.

The "teaching corps, whatever their own theological persuasion, want their students to know 'the tradition,'" he said. "It is a note struck everywhere."

He said motives for it vary from worries that the heritage has been diminished to concern for keeping "the message" on par with the "situation" to radical innovators saying students need to know past formulations in order to appreciate new ones.

Along with their stress on reinforcing classic concepts, he said that virtually all the respondents indicated efforts to interpret doctrine in light of today's conditions.

That's called "contemporaneity" — looking at Christian tenets in connection with present times and locale.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

■ Seminary offers class

The West Texas Extension Program of Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary will be offering the class "Ministry of Education in a Particular Church" in Midland this summer, Aug. 11-22.

Nelson

Pre-registration has started and will continue through July 22. Director of the program is the Rev. A.J. Moreau. The Rev. Dr. Ellis Nelson, research professor at APTS, will teach the course. Nelson is a graduate of Austin College, APTS, the University of Texas, Austin and Columbia University.

This course is structured to provide students the opportunity to investigate the character and significance of Christian nature. It begins with a study of the peculiar role of the local congregation as nurturer of its members in the faith. Subsequently, students examine resources for the educational efforts of a community of faith, study methods of education particularly appropriate to those efforts and seek to gain insight into the ways in which the efforts must take different forms with persons of different ages and backgrounds.

The classes will meet at Trinity Presbyterian Church, Sunday through Thursday from 7 to 10 p.m. for 30 class hours. These courses may be taken either for full credit as a special student of the seminary or for audit.

For registration information, contact Moreau, P.O. Box 5111, Midland, 79704, or 682-2514. Housing arrangements can be worked out for those needing it.

The West Texas Extension Program began in the summer of 1989 to meet the need for quality graduate theological education in West Texas. Additional courses will be offered in the fall and spring.

Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary is a seminary of the Presbyterian Church U.S.A., located in Austin. The seminary has been educating people for the Christian ministry since 1902. It is fully accredited by the Association of Theological Schools of the U.S. and Canada and by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

■ Outreach program set

Hollowell United Methodist Church will sponsor SCOPE Summer Children Outreach Program Experience from 8:30 a.m. to noon Monday through Friday and June 24-28 at Washington Park.

SCOPE is a Christian Day Camp for children kindergarten through sixth grade. Theme for this year's SCOPE program is "Being a Good Neighbor."

The SCOPE program is designed to build character, self-esteem and an appreciation of diverse cultures.

A nominal fee, based upon family member participation, will be charged. For more information call the church's pastor, the Rev. Hadley Edwards, 682-3240, or Marie Williams, 682-2627.

■ Church joins mailing

Members of Main Street Church of Christ have agreed to be involved in what the Church of Christ is calling the largest mailing in U.S. history.

The One National Under God campaign features an eight-page brochure as the centerpiece of the "One Nation Under God" project.

The history making mailing, expected to number about 102 million pieces, is part of a national campaign effort by Churches of Christ to present the gospel to the entire nation," said spokesman Alfred Johnson of Midland. "The Christians at the Main Street Church are committed to the campaign, and will do follow-up work in it next year."

The magazine-size brochure focuses on the problems affecting individuals and society in America, such as drug abuse, pornography and family difficulties.

A toll-free number will be included so that individuals can request a free Bible study course by mail.

Brown Printing of Waseca,

Minn., has been contracted to print the 102 million, four-color brochures. ADVO of Fort Worth will distribute the mailing.

Because of the anticipated growth in the number of U.S. households, this mailing will be larger than the 1990 Census Bureau mailing or the recent U.S. Postal Service mailing, according to ADVO.

Plans call for the brochure to reach every household in the country by the first week in July.

■ Parables theme set

"Treasures from Jesus' Parables" will be the theme of Vacation Bible School at the Westside Church of Christ, 4410 W. Illinois Ave., Monday through Friday. Hours are 9:30 to 11:30 a.m.

The school is open to children age 3 through 6th grade. Puppet friends will perform daily. Children will have the opportunity to hear Jesus' parables, sing and engage in Bible drill.

For more information or to secure transportation call 694-3614 or 699-7233.

■ Graduate joins church

David Wayne Robertson has joined the Christian Church of Midland, 2608 Neely, as the associate pastor.

Robertson

Robertson comes to the church as a 1991 graduate of Dallas Christian College, where he received his bachelor of science in pastoral and youth ministries. During his college years, he served as a recruiting student for DCC, participated on specialized summer teams and was a member of the school basketball team.

He is the son of Jon and Orlean Robertson of Eagle Pass. Robertson is a native of Eagle Pass where his father serves as the academic dean of Colegio Biblico.

His activities in the Christian Church will include youth activities, teaching and special events.

■ Summer camp to begin

Mount Calvary Missionary Baptist Church, 303 E. Shandon St., is holding summer camp Monday through Friday.

"Camp Can-Do" begins at 6:30 p.m. and includes, among other activities, a puppet named "The Bear," Bible study, crafts, learning activities and music.

The Vacation Bible School, which runs from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m., is being offered for age 2 through teens. Director for the school is Mrs. Loner Griffin.

To register call the church office, 682-4931, 684-4672 or 684-4843. The church's pastor is the Rev. Robert E. Lathan.

■ Potter's revival set

ODESSA — The Potter's House, 3607 N. Dixie, is conducting a revival at 7 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Guest evangelist is Rick Swicegood, former pastor of The Door in Midland. Swicegood has recently returned from Hong Kong and Europe.

For more information or for a ride call 550-7202. A nursery will be provided.

■ Bible School classes set

Cornerstone Christian Fellowship is holding its Vacation Bible School from 9 to 11 a.m. Monday through Friday.

The school is designed for ages 3 through 6th grade. The theme for this year is "I can do all things through Christ who strengthens me."

For more information call Sarah Schuessler, 683-4910 or 683-1535.

■ Spirit Wind to perform

Spirit Wind 1991 will perform at St. Luke's United Methodist Church, 3011 W. Kansas Ave., during the 8:30 and 10:50 a.m. services Sunday.

The choir, a select group of United Methodist senior high youth from the Panhandle and West Texas area, is the Northwest Texas United Methodist Annual Conference Youth Choir. The students have been selected from the more than 170 who auditioned in Lubbock, Amarillo, Abilene and Midland in January. They represent communities and churches of all sizes.

For the 10th year, Spirit Wind is directed by Bert W. Bostic, director of program and music at Midland's St. Luke's United Methodist Church. Jon Johnson, director of music for the First UMC at Leveland, has co-directed the choir for the past three years. Debby Vester, music assistant and organist at Midland's St. Luke's UMC, is the accompanist for the choir.

This year's concert includes music focused on the liturgical or church year from Advent to Pentecost. Music by composers such as Gilbert Martin, Jane Marshall, John Stainer, Lloyd Pfautsch and John Rutter will be performed. The program will begin with a setting of a Shaker tune "Followers of the Lamb" by Phil Dieterich. Also on the program is a section of spirituals and two very contrasting musical settings of Psalms.

This year's tour will include 14 performances in West Texas and the Panhandle.

Midland youth who are members of the group are Tiffanie Adams, Ryan Bromm, Sherry Butler, Chana Castle, Sara Dammann, Amy Erdwurm, Natasha Eustace, Joe Gault, Kristin Gerhard, Jeff Gideon, Natalie Gilley, Kelly Gromes, Shirley Harp, Steven Jeffcoat, Amy Johnson, Eric Keathly, Tina Keathly, Ginger Looney, Rusty Looney, Bill Lout, Robert Noble, Kristina Sanchez, Rachel Sanchez, Angel Strumpher, Jerri Talent, Teresa Talent, Mark Templeton, Shannon Timmermann, Blake Tubbs, Brandi Tubbs, Stan Wyllie and Wendy Wyllie.

■ Church sets celebration

Sunday is "New Life Celebration" day at Golf Course Road Church of Christ.

On this day, the church recognizes all children born into the church family during the last 12 months.

Service time is 10 a.m. No early service will be held. Bible classes begin at 9 a.m.

In addition, the Sunday 6 p.m. service is "Pack the Pulpit" night.

For this service, families are asked to bring bags of canned goods and other packaged items to restock the nearly empty shelves of the church's benevolent house. This ministry of the church is directed by Gary Glasscock and Kyle McGraw.

■ Health quest sets tone

BOSTON, MASS. — "Humanity's Quest for Health" set a distinct tone for the 96th Annual Meeting of members of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, held here in early June.

First Church of Christ, Scientist, Midland, is one of 2,600 branches of the Boston-based Mother Church. Branch churches are located in 68 countries around the world.

Helping society find solutions to health care challenges including the well-being of children and families was a primary concern at the meeting.

Many people are searching for fresh solutions to pressing health care issues. Yet, hardened stands by organizations as diverse as those representing doctors and atheists, resist religious alternatives to conventional medicine.

Growth in church attendance and increased interest in Christian healing run counter to efforts by special interest groups to reject healing through prayer.

Many of the activities of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, this past year were focused on the welfare of children and the restoration of strength to families.

■ Appointees named

A total of 43 appointments, including a new district superintendent, were announced this month during the Northwest Texas Annual Conference of the United Methodist Church.

The Rev. Rex L. Mauldin, who served four years as conference council director, replaces William R. Fleming, who served five years as district superintendent. Fleming retired in January after serving 44 years in the ministry.

The 82nd annual conference was held at Polk Street UMC in Amarillo. Bishop Louis W. Schowengerdt presided.

The Abilene and Pampa districts had the most new appointments, with 11 each. The other districts and their number of changes include Amarillo, six; Big Spring, four; Lubbock, six; and Plainview, five.

Changes in the Big Spring District, which includes Midland, are:

—St. Mark's U.M.C. has the Rev. Harrell Stephens as its new pastor. He replaces the Rev. Earl E. Ball, who served four years. Ball transferred to the New Mexico Annual Conference from the Northwest Texas Annual Conference effective June 1.

—Colorado City, St. Luke-Dorn UMC, lay speaker Lloyd Johnson is the new pastor. He replaces the Rev. Jonathan Farris, who served three years. Farris has been appointed to the National Association of United Methodist Scouts.

—Snyder, Union-IRA, new pastor to be selected to replace John Hedrick, local pastor, who served two years.

—Fluvanna, Paul Crow is the new pastor. He replaces the Rev. John J. Abendschan, retired supply, who served three years.

In addition, the Rev. Bill H. Weir is taking a sabbatical leave from First UMC, Midland.

■ Special program set

The Unitarian-Universalist Church, Midkiff at Neely, is presenting a special program at 9:45 a.m. Sunday.

The program, which will be presented by Travis Beckham, is entitled "Art, Religion and Politics: Is Art Just Another Business or Can It Help Us to a New Spirituality?"

The public is invited to the hour-long presentation.

Saint whose quick gun saved town proposed as patron of handgunners

By George W. Cornell
AP Religion Writer

A band of marauders had invaded the town, looting its homes and stores, abusing the villagers. But a young man of grit and skill with a pistol came to the rescue and put the ruffians to flight.

St. Possenti

A vintage tale of the American West? No, it's about a Roman Catholic saint, and although private handgunners now are in some disrepute, he's being touted as patron saint of handgunners.

"That may seem an anomaly to some people," said John M. Snyder of Arlington, Va., a defender of bearing arms and promoter of the special designation of Saint Gabriel Possenti.

"It runs counter to the way a lot of people think these days, but one of the things I hope to accomplish is to straighten out that thinking," Snyder added, attributing it to "preconceived notions and prejudice."

With regulation of handgun purchases at issue in Congress and elsewhere, Snyder said handgunns can be used "for very good purposes. It all depends on the individual who's using them."

Snyder, public affairs director of the Washington-based Citizens Committee for the Right to Keep and Bear Arms, pointed to the case of Possenti, and added in an interview:

"The saint rescued an entire village because of his proficiency in the use of a handgun. He showed tremendous courage and real Christian charity." Possenti, canonized in 1920 by Pope Benedict XV, was born in 1838 in Assisi, Italy, son of a wealthy government official. Accounts say the boy was a rambunctious teen-ager who gambled, hunted, and was an expert horseman and crack shot.

But he vowed to become a priest after an almost fatal illness, and despite objections from his father, entered a Passionist monastery at Isola, Italy, for theological studies.

There, in 1859, the accounts say that about 20 armed renegades seized the village, ransacking and setting fire to buildings, terrorizing villagers, some of whom fled. The rampaging could be seen from the hilltop monastery.

Possenti, by then a prayerful, serious student of 21, obtained permission from his superiors to help. As he hurried into the village, he confronted a drunken raider, dragging away a young girl.

The brawler made a sneering remark about such a young monk being alone. Possenti moved swiftly, jerking the man's pistol out of his holster and threatening to shoot if he didn't release the girl.

As a second renegade approached, Possenti trained the pistol on him, ordering him to drop his gun, which the startled man did. The commotion brought the rest of the gang on the run.

Their leader, eyeing the situation, scoffed that no lone monk could rattle his crew. Just then, a lizard darted into the street, and Possenti, with a quick flick of his weapon, shot the animal through the head.

Turning his pistol back on the leader, Possenti ordered the whole bunch to drop their arms. His fast sharpshooting had shocked the marauders, who promptly did as told.

Possenti made them give up the loot they had taken and put out the fires, afterward marching them out of town at gunpoint.

"This young man, because of his handgun marksmanship, saved an entire village from what today would be called terrorists," Snyder said. "He obviously had tremendous faith in God and real convictions."

Snyder, 51, a former Jesuit seminarian who switched to Georgetown University where he got a master's degree in government, is a longtime gun fancier and formerly worked for the National Rifle Association.

In a period when availability of handguns has come under increasing criticism, Snyder worked four years ago formed the St. Possenti Society to work at getting Possenti named the patron saint of handgunners.

The aim "is to promote knowledge and recognition of St. Possenti and study of the historic, theological and philosophical basis of the doctrine of legitimate self-defense," Snyder said.

He said his citizens' group opposes legislation, now before the Senate, that would require a waiting period in handgun purchases so that police could check the buyer's background.

He said computerized data could be checked instantaneously. "If you're threatened or in danger and need a gun, you can't get it by waiting," he said. "You, as an innocent, could be jeopardized by such a law."

Force, he said, is sometimes essential to uphold justice. Otherwise, "bullies would run everything." Anyone not realizing that, he said, "has a limited comprehension of reality. They don't understand the world as it is. It's pompous panderism from pacifistic pruneheds. Some ecclesiastics are out of touch with reality."

To get Possenti named patron of handgunners, Snyder said the Vatican has advised him about procedures, and the next step is to get bishops behind the proposal for papal action on it.

St. Mark's to welcome minister

St. Mark's United Methodist Church, 1701 N. Main St., is welcoming its new parsonage family during the 10:45 a.m. service Sunday.

Stephens

The Rev. Steve Stephens comes to St. Mark's from St. Paul UMC in Abilene where he served as associate pastor. He is a native of Abilene and has served as pastor in United Methodist churches in Grants, N.M., and Farwell. He is currently working toward a doctorate of ministry degree at Perkins School of Theology at SMU.

His wife, Leesa, a native of Friona and a graduate of West Texas State University, has been a teacher for 11 years.

Their children are Hanna, 7, and Trey, 4.

Former pastor to speak Sunday

Staff Report

The Rev. R.I. Stewart will be ministering Sunday at Calvary Assembly of God, 908 S. Johnston.

Service times are 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Stewart is a former pastor of Midland's First Assembly of God.

Judge delays Smith rape trial gag order

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. — A judge held off Friday on a gag order in William Kennedy Smith's rape trial and a prosecutor told the judge the Kennedy family was trying to sabotage the trial. Circuit Judge Mary Lupo listened to two hours of arguments but said she will rule later on the defense motion for a gag order. She set a June 19 hearing on a defense request to dismiss the charges against Smith, which was based on alleged misconduct by prosecutors and state-generated prejudicial publicity. Moira Lasch, assistant Palm Beach County state attorney, argued against a gag order and told the judge motions on behalf of Smith were intended to lure her into "built-in appellate errors" they could use to appeal an unfavorable trial verdict. A Smith attorney accused Ms. Lasch of trying to put Smith's uncle, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., on trial. Smith, 30, faces an Aug. 5 trial on second-degree sexual battery and misdemeanor battery charges stemming from a woman's claim he raped her at his family's Palm Beach estate March 30. Martin Reeder, leading attorneys for news organizations opposing the gag order, offered the judge language for a less sweeping order than she had outlined a week earlier. Smith's attorneys indicated they would likely accept a modified gag order, but Ms. Lasch said she refused to bargain with what she called her basic rights.

Two cities honor veterans of Gulf War

American flags mixed with protest banners Friday at a Gulf War victory parade in California, while retired Army Lt. Gen. Thomas W. Kelly told returning troops in Oklahoma City "tinhorn dictators" around the world took notice when allied forces routed Iraq's war machine.

About 15,000 people turned out in Oakland for the first victory parade since 1919, when the city welcomed home World War I doughboys.

Soldiers, sailors and Marines marched down the mile-long parade route, accompanied by an M-1 tank, a Bradley Fighting Vehicle and an M-109 howitzer. As the armor rolled along, FA-18 attack jets zoomed through the hazy sky.

"I'm here to show support for all of them, but particularly my nephew who is still over there," said Mariam Brown, 53, of San Leandro.

Several hundred anti-war protesters waved banners and signs. About two-dozen were arrested for "minor infractions" such as blocking roadways, police Lt. Chris Wraa said.

Scott Bohning, 31, of Berkeley was booked for resisting arrest after he jumped into the parade line and waved what appeared to be an automatic weapon, Officer Victor Woods said. The gun turned out to be a toy.

"Fascist mass murderers!" Bohning yelled at the passing parade as his hands were manacled behind his back, his finger bleeding. One of the protesters, Hilda Gowan, 77, of Berkeley said the government had no business waging war when it "can't take care of the homeless and has no national health plan."

In Oklahoma City, a red, white and blue spectacular at the Capitol welcomed returning troops.

The tone was set by Kelly, the officer who conducted the daily televised briefings from the Pentagon during the Gulf War. "Saddam Hussein went from having the fourth largest army in the world to the second biggest army in Iraq," Kelly told the cheering audience of about 6,000.

And, Kelly added, "Don't you think the other two-bit tinhorn dictators of the world didn't notice what was going on."

Columbia lands after Spacelab mission

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. — Shuttle Columbia, its crew and critters swooped to Earth on Friday after a Spacelab mission to help future astronauts endure zero-gravity during long space flights and trips to other planets.

"Now that was a great mission," space shuttle program director Robert Crippen declared after Columbia completed its nine-day, 3.8-million-mile flight. "Machines don't fly any better than that."

The shuttle touched down under sunny Mojave Desert skies at 8:39 a.m. after carrying seven astronauts, the Spacelab experiment module, 29 rats and 2,478 jellyfish around the Earth 146 times.

Twenty-six minutes later, the astronauts walked into a 49-foot-long "people mover" to take them to quick medical checkups. In the vehicle, the astronauts reclined on plush chairs so doctors could measure their vital signs before they fully recovered from weightlessness.

The astronauts were in good condition and the orbiter appeared "in superb condition," Crippen said.

Shuttle Commander Bryan O'Connor, pilot Sidney Gutierrez and mission specialist Tamara Jernigan left on a flight to Houston about six hours after Columbia landed.

Two New Mexico teens face murder charges

Two New Mexico teen-agers have been charged with murdering a woman in a Los Angeles-area beach restroom and stealing her car so they could return to their home state.

The charges were filed Friday in Malibu, Calif. Municipal Court. Authorities are seeking to extradite Michael Loretto, 17, and Guillermo Bustos, 16, in the May 28 killing of Jacqueline Kirkham, 43, to get her purse and keys to her red Nissan 240SX. The victim was a resident of the Los Angeles suburb of Northridge. She was killed at Zuma Beach, a popular recreational area near Malibu.

The two murder suspects, along with Jason Alexander, 17, were arrested the week following the slaying after Kirkham's car — which they were trying to sell — was found wrecked in the mountains near Santa Fe, N.M.

The teens are residents of Pojoaque, N.M. Loretto and Bustos, in custody in New Mexico on probation violations, were charged in Malibu Municipal Court with murder with special circumstances, including lying in wait and committing a killing during a robbery, said Los Angeles County Deputy District Attorney Harvey Giss. They also are charged with second-degree robbery.

The special circumstance makes them eligible for a sentence of life prison term without possibility of parole if convicted in an adult court, Giss said.

Alexander was not charged in the slaying.

Governor says he will veto abortion bill

BATON ROUGE — Gov. Buddy Roemer said Friday he will veto a strict anti-abortion bill that was overwhelmingly approved last week by the Louisiana Legislature.

Roemer had met with advocates from both sides of the abortion issue and had lunch with abortion rights activists at the governor's mansion before the announcement.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Sam Theriot, D-Abbeville, could imprison doctors who perform abortions for one to 10 years and fine them up to $100,000. Its backers hope it will be used to overturn the 1973 Supreme Court decision that established abortion rights.

Roemer vetoed similar legislation last year because it didn't allow abortions for victims of rape or incest. Theriot's bill does.

The governor's floor leaders tried to persuade lawmakers to liberalize rape and incest provisions and to allow abortions in cases where fetuses are so badly deformed that they wouldn't live long past birth.

Theriot's bill allows abortions for rape and incest victims in the first 13 weeks of pregnancy. But, to get an abortion, rape victims would have to have sought medical attention within five days of the rape and reported the crime to police within seven days of its occurrence.

Rostenkowski retains speaking-fee lead

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Ways and Means Chairman Dan Rostenkowski raked in a congressional record $310,000 from speeches last year, according to financial disclosure forms released Friday. Most other lawmakers also earned outside income to supplement salaries of nearly $100,000. Among the perks of office: Dozens of lawmakers reported receiving free videotape copies of "The Civil War," the acclaimed public television program. Courtesy of General Motors.

Rostenkowski, D-Ill., whose position as chairman of the House's tax-writing committee makes him much in demand, gave more than 90 percent of his speech fees to charities of his choice to get down to the limit of $26,850 that rank-and-file House members are allowed to retain.

His total surpassed the old record, $285,000, which he set last year.

Rostenkowski's speaking fees easily outdistanced everyone else in Congress, including Speaker Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., who received $30,000 for 17 speeches and kept it all. Republican Leader Bob Michel, R-Ill., was paid $56,650 in honoraria and donated $27,650 to charity.

In the Senate, GOP Leader Bob Dole earned the most in speaking fees, receiving $78,100 for 43 speeches and three newspaper articles. The Kansas Republican kept the maximum allowed by law and donated the rest to charity.

Rostenkowski, D-Ill., whose position as chairman of the House's tax-writing committee makes him much in demand, gave more than 90 percent of his speech fees to charities of his choice to get down to the limit of $26,850 that rank-and-file House members are allowed to retain.

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, was paid $40,000 for 20 speeches and gave $10,000 of it to charity, according to his disclosure form.

The Senate allows party leaders to keep $30,409, other senators $27,337. In the House the limits are $29,850 for leaders, $26,850 for everyone else.

House Majority Whip William H. Gray, D-Pa., was paid $75,000 in honoraria and gave $48,500 to charity.

But you didn't have to have a big title. Even a relatively obscure lawmaker such as Sen. Kent Conrad, D-N.D., made more honoraria than he could legally keep, and many others lectured or wrote articles for extra money.

Common Cause, a group which lobbies for tighter government ethics, calculated that the 67 senators who reported accepting honoraria last year received more than $2 million and gave less than a third to charity. House totals were not available by late Friday.

Most senators made slightly less than $68,000 in congressional salary last year. For most House members, official pay was slightly more than $96,000.

For the House, 1990 was the last year lawmakers could keep outside speaking fees, which are often the target of criticism. Starting this year, all must be donated to charity.

The Senate, meanwhile, is gradually reducing the amount senators can pocket and several members have been attempting to win approval of an immediate ban.

In 1990, free travel, often to exotic locations, and other gifts were widely accepted.

For example, Rep. Rod Chandler, D-Wash., and his wife enjoyed a nine-day, $15,000 visit to Australia as guests of the Australian Meat and Livestock Board. Rep. John Porter, R-Ill., traveled to Brazil, Puerto Rico, England, Bermuda and the Soviet Union at others' expense.

Rep. Barbara Vucanovich, R-Nev., got a trip to Paris with her husband from Republicans Abroad, a group of party faithful living overseas.

Many lawmakers listed golf trips to warm locales during cold months, and often earned a big honoraria to boot.

But not everyone. Rep. Don Young, R-Alaska, spent three days in Cleveland in February courtesy of BP America. The oil company paid him $400 for a speech there, well below the $2,000 Young usually commands.

Lawmakers accepted gifts of paintings, clothing, and sports equipment. Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, received a $285 Smith & Wesson commemorative pistol.

The most widely accepted gift was the nine-volume video program, "The Civil War."

Lawmakers' estimates of the value of the gift were all over the lot. Rep. Vucanovich, R-Nev., listed $135; Mitchell, $225, and Dole, $385. Rep. Pat Williams, D-Mont., said it was worth $180 and he donated his to Flathead High School in Kalispell, Mont.

The tapes cost General Motors $70 dollars each, according to company spokesman Bill Noack.

The financial disclosure forms do not provide specifics, only ranges within which members must report their income and wealth. So it's nearly impossible to tell just how rich someone like Sen. Jay Rockefeller, D-W.Va., might be.

Cable accident disrupts phones, news services

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tens of thousands of capital-area telephone circuits, including some serving the Pentagon and two major news services, were disrupted on Friday when a contractor severed two fiber-optic cables in a Virginia suburb.

United Press International's news delivery to the United States and Canada and parts of The Associated Press's broadcast service, AP Network News, were knocked out for hours by the apparent accident, which occurred at 9:30 a.m. EDT.

Some telephone service at the Pentagon and hundreds of residential and business phones in the Washington area also were disrupted, according to Ellen Fitzgerald, a spokeswoman for the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., a Bell Atlantic subsidiary.

She called the incident a "true catastrophe."

UPI spokesman Milt Capps said the Washington-based news service lost its ability to deliver news to all of its customers in the United States and Canada, although international transmissions were not affected. He said the organization expected a full resumption of service by evening.

Greg Crowley, engineering manager for AP Network News, said the service lost its high-tech digital audio link to 135 radio stations and radio news networks across the country. Altogether the AP network serves more than 1,000 broadcast facilities. Those not on the digital link were unaffected.

GAO report blames WIPP delay on DOE

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — A General Accounting Office report predicts environmental problems at the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant will delay its opening for several years.

The GAO report released Thursday in Washington, D.C., blamed the U.S. Department of Energy for delays in opening the nuclear waste repository near Carlsbad.

It said energy officials didn't even try to start meeting stringent safety standards until 1989, eight years after work began on the site.

The report cited safety concerns in storing the waste that were raised by rockfalls from the ceilings of WIPP chambers.

Plutonium-contaminated waste from the nation's defense industry would be buried in WIPP, which was excavated from ancient salt beds 2,150 feet underground southeast of Carlsbad. The repository has yet to open, pending resolution of safety and environmental concerns and the withdrawal of land around the site from public use.

Also on Thursday, Rep. Mike Synar, D-Okla., said the DOE still needs to solve problems before beginning tests at WIPP.

It would take a "real leap of faith" to support DOE's plan to begin tests at the site late next month, he said.

Synar said tests could be conducted above ground at national laboratories.

He also said the first test at WIPP is not ready to go.

Bush before

WASHINGTON - President Bush said today to see the Soviet Union as a genuine economic reformer before the leader of the world's wealthiest countries requests a new aid package.

The heads of the State Department's Group of 77 in London on Monday to hear Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Kozyrev and to hear Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Kozyrev.

One plan was drawn up by a Harvard professor and a reformer with the president has endorsed the plan, calls for a phase-out of private economic aid, support for a $35 billion aid.

"I think we have a package" Bush said on board Air Force One to California.

"After all the tags, I think we have a package" Bush said on board Air Force One to California.

Bush has taken in recent weeks to U.S.-Soviet trade credits to encourage American companies to buy American goods expected to grant the Soviet trading status to several countries.

But he made those gestures support for a "package" of foreign aid to help the collapsing economy.

Bush seeks reform before aid package

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush said Friday he wants to see the Soviets move toward genuine economic reform before the leaders of the world's wealthiest countries consider a request for a multibillion-dollar aid package.

The heads of the seven industrialized democracies, known as the Group of Seven, will gather in London one month from now to hear Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev explain what he wants from the West.

One plan being circulated was drawn up by a group of Harvard professors and a Soviet reformer with Gorbachev's encouragement. But the Soviet president has never formally endorsed the proposal, which calls for a phased transition to a private economy over a six-year period, supported by $20 billion to $35 billion in annual Western aid.

"I think we need a reform package," Bush told reporters aboard Air Force One en route to California for the weekend. "After all the stories and price tags, I think there's a recognition on all sides that the best way to assist the whole reform process is to move to reform itself, and then we'll see what happens."

Bush has taken several steps in recent weeks to improve U.S.-Soviet ties, including a guarantee of $1.5 billion in bank credits to enable the Soviets to buy American grain, and he is expected to ask Congress soon to grant the Soviet Union equal trading status with most other countries.

But he made clear on Friday those gestures don't constitute support for a "megabuck package" of foreign aid to prop up the collapsing Communist-run economy.

"The reforms have got to be detailed a bit more before blank checks are written," the president said. "And even then it would be difficult. We're not rolling in cash."

Asked if his Group of Seven partners agree, Bush replied, "I don't think there are big divisions in the G-7 on this." Germany, however, has been more generous toward the Soviets than the United States, and Italy and Canada have been quite supportive. Japan, which has never formally ended World War II hostilities due to a territorial dispute, is least enthusiastic about extending aid to the Kremlin.

One administration official said Bush and his subordinates have sought to make clear to the Soviets in numerous recent meetings, both in Washington and Moscow, that the Kremlin's current anticrisis program won't work and that the Soviets must move toward fundamental economic reform.

"As they do that — and only as they do that — are they going to be able to think about the kinds of sizable Western assistance that they are interested in getting," the official said, speaking on condition he not be identified. "That is not to say they would get it then. But from our point of view, they would and should get more if they're embarked on a serious reform program."

Despite years of reform talk and what critics refer to as half-measures, the Gorbachev regime has yet to come to grips with such fundamental issues as the ownership of private property, lifting of price controls, adopting an anti-inflationary monetary policy and making the Soviet ruble convertible on world currency markets.

Constitution is ally of would-be senator

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — John S. Trinsey Jr. acquiesces with a grin to being colorful, even grandiose — a man with big ideas that don't always work. But his latest plot to run for U.S. Senate turned out to be a real zinger.

It began when Trinsey pulled out a copy of the U.S. Constitution brought home from school by one of his children. His reading of the 17th Amendment has thrown Pennsylvania politics into turmoil.

The amendment says only voters can pick someone to fill a U.S. Senate vacancy. Pennsylvania is in the midst of filling just such a vacancy — created when Republican Sen. John Heinz was killed in an April 4 helicopter crash.

Trinsey, a 64-year-old developer, cellist and one-time Olympic rower, pulled off a legal and political coup when he challenged plans for a special election to fill Heinz' seat. Among other things, his challenge may have derailed the plan of U.S. Attorney General Dick Thornburgh to move to the Senate.

State political leaders thought little about the handwritten petition Trinsey filed in court that challenged the state's 1937 U.S. Senate succession law.

But on Monday, Judge Edward Cahn declared the law unconstitutional, and the state's political establishment took notice.

"They thought it was a joke," Trinsey said, unable to keep the glee from his voice. "Nobody's laughing anymore."

The law had given party leaders, rather than voters, the power to select nominees for a special election to fill a vacant Senate seat.

That left Trinsey out of the running because he had no influence with either party. His only stint in politics was as a township supervisor in the 1960s.

He also isn't a lawyer and hasn't been to college, except for a year playing the cello at a conservatory.

But he can read the Constitution, which was enough to temporarily, maybe permanently, stymie Thornburgh's plan to run for the seat. The former two-term Pennsylvania governor now says he may not run at all if things aren't straightened out soon. State Attorney General Ernie Preate Jr. on Friday appealed the federal court ruling and asked the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals to hear the case quickly.

"It is our goal to overturn Judge Cahn's decision and reinstate our state law in time to allow the scheduled November election to go forward," Preate said.

Trinsey's goal is to win the GOP nomination.

"I know that if I believe in something I have a chance of getting it no matter what," Trinsey said. "I wouldn't go into a race that I didn't think I could win."

A separate appeal was filed on behalf of Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., the Republican State Committee and several prominent state Republicans.

Meanwhile, the Democrats, led by Gov. Robert P. Casey, are playing into Trinsey's hands. Casey appointed his Labor and Industry Secretary, Harris Wofford, to serve as the interim senator, a position the Constitution endorses.

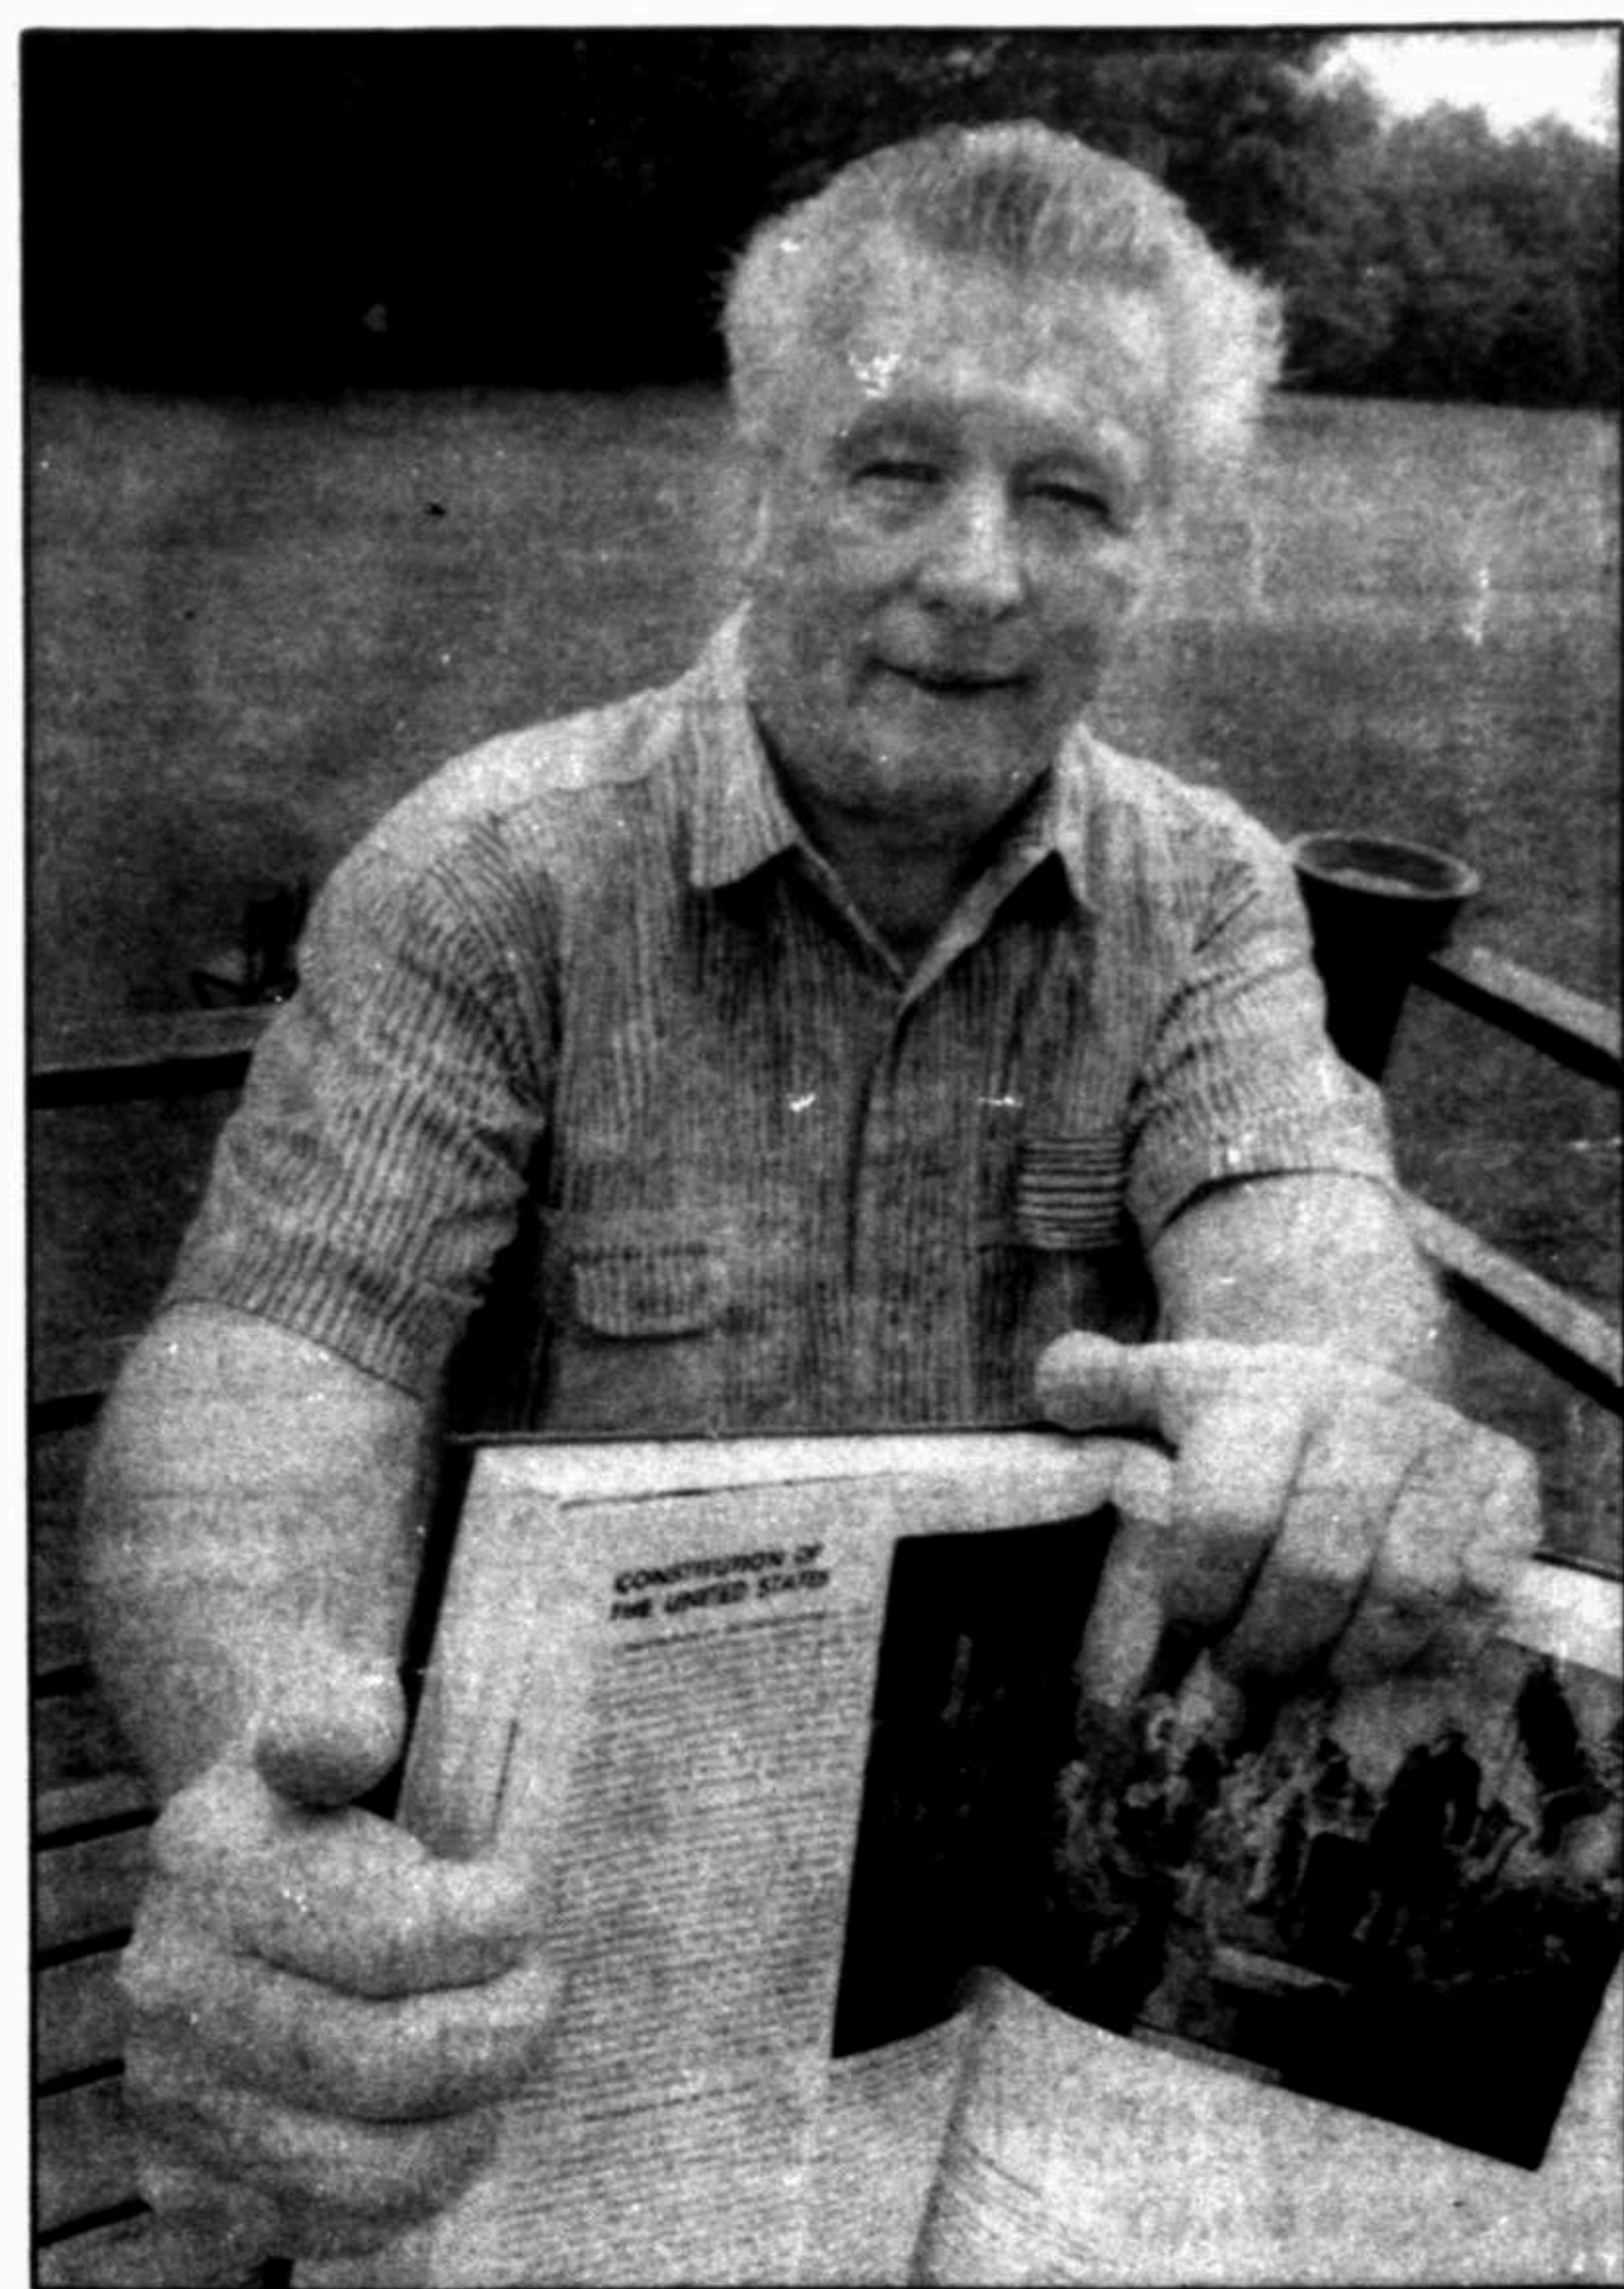

With Wofford in office, Democratic lawmakers are in no hurry to act on the judge's suggestion that they pass a law to hold a primary election and then a general election for the Senate vacancy. Each day and week of inaction decreases the chance that Thornburgh will still be in for the easy victory he had expected.

Whoever wins the special election will serve out the rest of Heinz' term, which expires in 1995.

Trinsey refers frequently to his rowing career as he tries to explain what took him into federal court. He began rowing under the coaching of John B. Kelly Sr., the father of the late Grace Kelly, while attending a Catholic high school in Philadelphia.

Trinsey made the 1948 Olympics team, along with Princess Grace's brother, John B. Kelly Jr.

"All the things that I learned on the river have kept me going all these years," Trinsey said. "Mr. Kelly would never demand that you won a race. But if you didn't give every single thing you had, plus more, you couldn't look him in the eyes."

AP Laserphoto

John Trinsey Jr., at his Royersford, Pa., home Tuesday, displays his encyclopedia's listing of the U.S. Constitution he used to argue that Pennsylvania's U.S. Senate succession law was unconstitutional. When a federal judge recently agreed, a special election for the office was thrown into turmoil.

Over the years, Trinsey kept moving up in construction and started his own remodeling business. He was also building his reputation as a man of many ideas, some good, some not so good.

Dame Peggy Ashcroft dies

LONDON — Peggy Ashcroft, the grande dame of Britain's stage who became an international star only in later years when she appeared on film and in television, died Friday. She was 83.

"She was the greatest actress of her generation — the undisputed leading lady of the golden age of Olivier, Gielgud, Richardson and Guinness," said the director Sir Peter Hall.

Dame Peggy died at Royal Free Hospital, where she had been since suffering a stroke on May 23. She never regained consciousness.

Dame Peggy was an exemplary Shakespeare heroine as Beatrice, Juliet and Cleopatra, but she shone equally in modern plays like Samuel Beckett's "Happy Days" and Edward Albee's "All Over."

Actress Diana Rigg remembered her as "a quite wonderful woman and actress, which were indivisible in her case."

Sir John Gielgud, her partner in many memorable productions, recently praised her as the most "unactressy" of actresses — "so direct and without artifice."

After retiring from the stage in 1982, she found a new public worldwide, winning an Oscar for the 1984 film "A Passage to India" and an Emmy nomination for her performance in television's "The Jewel in the Crown."

Perhaps her greatest stage triumph was with the Royal Shakespeare Company in 1963, playing the mad, bloodthirsty Margaret of Anjou in "The Wars of the Roses," in which she aged a lifetime over 10 hours.

Dame Peggy began her professional career in 1926 and went on to appear opposite most of the best actors of her day, including Michael Redgrave, Wendy Hiller, Peter O'Toole, Alec Guinness and Paul Robeson.

The actress was married and divorced three times: to actor Rupert Hart-Davis in 1929, Russian director Theodore Komisarjevsky in 1934 and lawyer Lord Jeremy Hutchinson in 1940.

The third marriage lasted 25 years, and produced two children: a son Nicholas, who lives in Canada, and a daughter Liza, who lives in France.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

LOS ANGELES — Jaime Escalante, the calculus teacher whose coaching of inner-city students inspired the movie "Stand and Deliver," says he is leaving Garfield High School when the school year ends next week.

Escalante cited differences with his colleagues and a desire for "a change of scenery" as reasons for leaving his 17-year post at the East Los Angeles school. He is going to a similar job in Sacramento.

"I am going to teach. That is the only thing I can do," he said.

His successful work with poor Hispanic students at Garfield High was chronicled in the 1988 film.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Country music star Randy Travis and longtime companion Lib Hatcher were married last month in Hawaii, an aide said Friday.

They were married May 31 at a home they own in Maui, said Travis spokeswoman Evelyn Shriver.

Hatcher, 49, is Travis' manager and has often been seen seated next to the 32-year-old singer at nationally televised awards shows.

She has been married once previously. Travis had never been married.

The two acknowledged earlier this year that they have lived together for 12 years.

JESSUP, Md. — Olympic track star Wilma Rudolph will be listed in the World Book Encyclopedia for the first time thanks to some indignant elementary school pupils.

Rudolph set world records in the 100-meter and 200-meter races and anchored the winning American 400-meter relay team in the 1960 Olympic Games in Rome. She was the first American woman to win three gold medals in the Olympics.

She now lives in Indianapolis, where she established the Wilma Rudolph Foundation to help disadvantaged young people.

A fourth-grade class at Jessup Elementary School wanted to do a project on the woman who overcame bouts with double pneumonia, scarlet fever and polio to develop into a championship runner, but found she wasn't listed in the book.

"It wasn't fair. All the other famous people were in there," said Christopher Whipple, 10.

The students collected signatures for a petition and wrote the publisher after their teacher, Irma Thompson, said she told them "there are ways to show their feelings besides getting angry."

A 25-line biography of Rudolph will be included in the 1991 edition, wrote back Mary Norton, director of research and library services at World Book.

"We at World Book take great pride in keeping our encyclopedia as accurate, current and comprehensive as possible," she wrote.

WEEKLY & MONTHLY INCOME
 The Midland Reporter-Telegram has an opening on one of its few "special allowance" routes. This larger route receives a $50 check each Friday, in addition to the regular monthly route profits. The route is in the Washington Park area.

As with all newspaper distributorships, this opportunity requires a 7 day a week commitment (when you go out of town, you must arrange to substitute for yourself), and is early morning work.

Newspaper distributorships provide great supplemental income for housewives/ mothers, senior citizens, college students, and any adult wanting to "moonlight!"
