Sacco-Vanzetti Fight For Life To Go To U. S. Supreme Court

STATE COURTS REFUSE PLEA FOR RETRIAL

Attorneys for Convicted Radicals Employ All Legal Devices

48 HOURS TO ACT

Both Men Scheduled to Die in Chair on August 10

BOSTON, Aug. 8. (AP)—Hope rose in the ranks defending Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti early tonight when a day of legal failure to obtain a stop order on their scheduled electrocution for murder at Charlestown this week was capped by Judge Webster Thayer's decision to take under advisement a petition for revocation of sentence and a stay of execution.

By Universal Service.

BOSTON, Aug. 8.—Attorneys for Sacco and Vanzetti prepared late today to carry the case of the two anarchists who are scheduled to die in the electric chair Wednesday night to the federal courts. That is their only chance of postponing the execution and its a slim one.

RAPID CITY, S. D., Aug. 8.(AP) No eleventh hour action can be expected from President Coolidge in the Sacco-Vanzetti case.

There was some question that the appeal for executive intervention said to have been sent from Boston today had actually reached Rapid City, but it was said that even so, the appeal would be transmitted to the department of justice.

Mr. Coolidge previously let it be known that he considered the case entirely a matter for the Massachusetts courts.

All efforts to get a stay in the state courts were exhausted today. The supreme court denied two petitions. One was for a writ of habeas corpus and a stay of execution and the other was for a writ of error calling for a review of facts as well as law in the famous case.

When those petitions had been denied the attorneys went before Judge Webster Thayer the trial judge who sentenced the condemned men, with a motion for a new trial. This hearing was held behind closed doors at Dedham.

Judge Stands Pat.

Judge Thayer has denied seven previous requests of this kind and the attorneys did not expect him to reverse himself. Those moves in the state courts, however, enabled them to carry the case to the federal courts. If they meet with failure in the district federal courts they will make their last appeal to Justice Holmes of the United States supreme court on the claim that the men never had a fair trial in the state court and hence the constitution of the United States has been violated. The attorneys will have to work fast.

There is little over forty-eight hours before the executioner comes up from Sing Sing to turn on the electricity.

Every precaution was taken today to protect Judge Thayer at Dedham, a small town just 15 miles from here. The judge had a strong bodyguard. State troopers surrounded the court house. Motorcycle patrolmen rode up and down the surrounding streets.

Traffic Diverted.

All traffic was diverted from the nearby highways. No one was allowed in the court house except those involved in the case and newspaper men. The reporters could not get out until the hearing was over to dash to the telegraph office across the street. All who entered the court house were searched for arms.

Excitement broke out this afternoon in Lynn, Mass., where an instrument believed by the police to be a bomb was found in the office of the Security Trust building after the bank had closed for the day. The bank occupies offices in the same building that housed President Coolidge's office staff when he summered at Swampscott a year ago. State chemists have been summoned to open the tin can that is believed to be a bomb.

Edward H. James, the wealthy nephew of William and Henry James, the novelist and the psychologist, today paid a $75 fine for striking a policeman during the riot on Boston common yesterday.

Polack Kills Bride Who Paid His Fare

CHICAGO, Aug. 8. (AP)—Peter Marek, 40, laborer, today slew with an axe the wife who as an immigrant girl 18 years ago worked in a laundry for the money she sent him in Poland for his passage to the United States. While his wife continued to work as a laundress Marek worked as a section hand. They had just saved enough money to buy a home.

Grave Holds Tragic Relic of Royal Romance

THE TINY GRAVE IN TRENTON, N. J., CHURCHYARD WHERE JOSEPH BONAPARTE'S DAUGHTER IS BURIED. ABOVE, "BOW HILL," THE BRICK MANSION IN WHICH THE EXILED KING OF SPAIN ESTABLISHED HIS QUAKER SWEETHEART.

By MARIAN C. MACROBERT
Exclusive Central Press Dispatch To The Record News

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 8—More than two centuries ago St. Michael's Episcopal church was founded in Trenton, N. J. Inevitably the years have surrounded the once restful spot with business premises. Warehouses crowd it, stores environ it, and the peaceful atmosphere of its tiny church yard is violated by the ceaseless roar of traffic.

By the north wall, surrounded by an iron fence, a weather-worn marble monument, surmounted by a dove carved from the same stone, marks the last resting place of a king's daughter. Of the thousands of tourists and other curious visitors who visit the historic old church, few give the inconspicuous tombstone more than a passing glance, yet here is buried the baby girl whose father was Joseph Bonaparte, brother of Napoleon, the Corsican, at one time by virtue of his imperial relationship, king of Spain.

Not Built for a King

There was, the histories tell us, little of his brother's genius for power about Joseph Bonaparte. He was not a strong man. A judge, or an ambassador he might have been, but his stomach for adventure was weak. Napoleon made him first king of Naples, then as his dictatorship spread over Europe, ruler of Spain. When the bubble of Napoleon's might was exploded at Waterloo, Joseph fled to the United States, and in 1818 he established himself at Bordentown, N. J.

Annette Savage was the daughter of a Philadelphia Quakeress who kept a little notion store. Joseph Napoleon, on a visit to the Pennsylvania city stopped in the tiny shop to purchase, according to tradition, so unromantic an article as a pair of suspenders. The impressionable Frenchman's heart was smitten by the little Quaker girl's demure beauty. His queen, Marie Julie Clare, he had left behind in Europe, for her health was regarded as too delicate to sustain the strenuous ordeal of an ocean voyage of those times.

He was, in his mind at least, still a king. He paid imperious court to the little Philadelphia girl. She was swept off her feet. He took her to his home on the Delaware, and showered luxuries upon her. Staid, moral, Philadelphia was shocked, and Joseph Bonaparte was made to understand that his action was considered inexcusable. Then, enraged, he moved to Trenton, leased a great brick mansion called "Bow Hill," and there established his Annette.

The couple lived a life of seclusion, yet there is evidence that the little girl who had conquered a king's heart was not unhappy. The inscription "God Is Love," scratched on a window pane at Bow Hill with a diamond, is still decipherable, evidence of Annette's simple contentment.

Two children were born to this unsanctioned union. Pauline Josephann was the eldest, the second daughter was Charlotte. The household was happy, but tragedy impended. While she was romping with her sister and her mother in the grounds at Bow Hill one day, little Pauline Josephann overturned a marble vase mounted on a high, insecure pedestal. The heavy urn struck her on the head, and she died almost instantly.

This is the reason for the little grave in St. Michael's churchyard, and the simple inscription which marks the last earthly resting place of a king's daughter:

"Erected by a Bereft Mother, to the Memory of a Beloved Child, Pauline Josephann Holton, who Departed This Life, Dec. 6, 1823, Aged 4 years."

Austin Newspapers Have Their Woes For 'Laying Off' Sunday Movie Fight

AUSTIN, Aug. 8. (AP)—The Austin Statesman today devoted about 16 inches of newsprint to an attack on it and the Austin American by the local ministerial alliance, and to an editorial gently chiding the preachers in return, in connection with alleged attempts by certain third parties to obtain Sunday movies for Austin, one of the few Texas cities that does not have them.

The preachers, in a statement approved at today's meeting of their alliance, severely denounced the papers for alleged refusal to print stories of the purported movement to get Sunday shows. The Statesman's editorial declared that the so-called "movement" consists of petitions "addressed to no one" and "carrying only a line and a half of typewritten matter," and that in view of the fact that "the Sunday fight has been brewing off and on for three months, this newspaper did not give enough thought to the movement to dignify it by publication of reports of derelict petitions in the street."

"To us," the editorial continues, "there is no news in the thing until it has been given official attention either at the city hall, courthouse, or other quarters. The alliance will also please note that news of their attack on this paper is being printed and it is evident that the suppression agreement isn't working in this case."

Those words expressed the attitude of Mrs. J. A. Heyman, 802 Grace, Monday when informed by The Record News that her brother, Hubert A. Knickerbocker, would accompany one of the two or three Junker planes soon to fly from Berlin to New York.

Dr. and Mrs. Heyman have just returned from Little Rock, Ark., where they visited her father, Dr. H. D. Knickerbocker, former Wichita Falls minister. Dr. Knickerbocker is now in Chicago and may go on to New York to welcome his son at the end of the trans-Atlantic flight.

TEXAS TECH TO TEACH FLIERS

Plans for Air School at Lubbock Drawn

DALLAS, Aug. 8. (AP)—A modern school of aeronautics will be included as one of the courses offered at Texas Technological college, Lubbock, if tentative plans discussed and approved at a meeting of the board of directors today, are perfected and become operative.

The directors also approved the employment of 25 new faculty members, recommended by W. P. Horn, president, and awarded the contracts for the home economics practice house and the first unit of the agricultural building.

Action on contracts for the engineering building and the greenhouse, for which appropriation of $200,000 and $7500 have been made, will come up September 15.

Seek Flying Field.

The school authorities now are negotiating with the Lubbock chamber of commerce about a landing and flying field for use of the school, Dr. Horn said. He planned to go from the board meeting to San Antonio to consult officers at Kelly field about the course of study and competent instructors. Colonel Lindbergh will be invited to visit the school when he is in Texas. The tentative plan is to start with the ground work of flying and when that has been completed to be equipped to offer actual flying work.

Governor Moody will be invited to visit the school and make an address in September.

The contracts, awarded today went to W. J. McMillan of Lubbock, for the home economics structure, for which $20,000 has been appropriated and to J. W. Maxey of Lubbock for the agricultural building, for which the legislature set aside $13,000.

Next Meeting Set.

The next regular meeting of the board was called for October 27, at Lubbock.

R. A. Underwood, vice president of the board, presided today. Others at the meeting were John W. Carpenter, Dallas; Mrs. F. N. Drane, Corsicana; H. T. Kimbre, Lubbock; C. G. Comegys, McKinney; Houston Harte, San Angelo; Dr. Horn, president of the college, and E. W. Provence, business manager.

ERWIN WILL START FROM DALLAS 6 P. M.

Texas Flier Will Try To Capture Two Big Prizes

ONE HOP TO FRISCO

Frisco-Honolulu-Hongkong Is Schedule for Texas Flier

By Universal Service.

DALLAS, Aug. 8.—Tested and pronounced fit for a non-stop flight across the Pacific ocean, the "Dallas Spirit," giant green and silver monoplane in which Capt. William E. Erwin, world war ace, will attempt to span the distance between this city and Hongkong in three jumps, tonight was being groomed for the take-off to San Francisco which was set late today for 6 o'clock tomorrow night.

The big ship was put through her final paces today by federal air Inspectors P. D. Cramer and E. E. Moulton who pronounced the plane "fit for a trip around the world."

Extra Gas Tanks.

Two extra gasoline tanks were installed in the fuselage this afternoon to comply with the rules of the National Aeronautical association which stipulate that a plane must have fuel capacity of at least 15 per cent above the amount required for the flight to be undertaken.

The extra tanks will bring the fuel capacity of the ship to 519 gallons. It originally was intended to place but 448 gallons aboard the ship.

Captain Erwin decided on a late start after a study of air charts. The charts showed that better flying conditions exist after dusk over the plains of West Texas, New Mexico and Arizona. By flying at night, the flying ace will also have an opportunity to test out his night navigation instruments.

After Two Prizes.

Captain Erwin plans to arrive in San Francisco some time Wednesday morning late. There he will recondition the plane and make her ready for the jump to Honolulu for the Dole prize of $35,000.

Besides the Dole prize for a non-stop flight from San Francisco to Hawaii, Captain Erwin is competing for the Easterwood prize of $25,000 for a three-stop flight to Hongkong.

POSITIONS DRAWN AT FRISCO FOR FLIGHT.

By Universal Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 8.—Seven airplanes were given their gastric juice, their final "shot in the wings," and were ready to go today on their epochal flight to Honolulu for the $35,000 in prizes offered by James D. Dole, Hawaiian pineapple king, who offered the prizes for the first plane to arrive in Honolulu after the starting from San Francisco at one minute past 12 p. m., Aug. 12.

The aviators or their representatives appeared today at the offices of the San Francisco chapter of the National Aeronautical association and drew numbers for their chances.

Bennett Is First.

Lieut Bennett Griffin of Oklahoma was the first number drawn out of a huge waste basket. Following the victory of Lieut. Griffin, the following numbers were called and claimed in the order named: Lieut. Norman Goddard; Charles Pankhurst; John Augsy Peldar, Michigan; Capt. William Erwin; Frederick A. Giles, Detroit; Maj. Livingston Irving, Berkeley; Capt. J. H. Griffin; Art Goebel, Oklahoma; Robert Fowler, Martin Jensen, Honolulu; Frank L. Clark, Los Angeles; Lieut. George Covell; Capt. A. V. Rogers, Los Angeles and John Frost, pilot of the Golden Gate, the entry of the San Francisco Examiner, was last.

Art Goebel of Santa Monica, was the first plane to thrill crowds at Mill field, San Francisco, early today and the thrill of the Goebel plane was hardly over before with a hum of wings such as a thousand blackbirds in a flock, came the landing of the famous Golden Eagle, piloted by John Frost.

Clark May Quit.

This makes seven planes out of a possible 15 here for the start of the air derby on Aug 12. One of the seven, that of Frank A. Clark, may, he admits, be withdrawn. There are, however, others expected late today or tomorrow which may bring the entry list up to at least 10 in what is now called the greatest competitive air race ever instituted.

B. Buckeridge, secretary of the association, announced Monday.

Mexican Governor's Ego Gets Jolt

Citizens Object To Naming Town for Him

By Universal Service.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 8.—Paso Del Macho may be only a dot on the map between the capital and the port of Vera Cruz, but it wants to be Paso Del Macho all the same.

Such is the substance of the complaint filed by a group of conspicuous citizens charging the state legislature of Vera Cruz with cowardice for submitting to the demand of Governor Jara that the little railroad town be named in his honor.

Official ceremonies christening Paso Lel Macho with its new name, Jara, already have been held: But the citizens assert that, whatever may be the governor's estimate of his own importance, he is not of sufficient consequence to have any town, much less Paso Del Macho, named after him.

The citizens assert they will carry their plaint to the national congress, which contains a strong organization supporting the presidential aspirations of former President Alvaro Obregon. As Governor Jara is an outspoken Obregonista, the disrespectful citizens are given small hope.

THE LIGHT MUST NOT FAIL. Be the night inky black or silvery clear—in fair weather or foul . . . the beacon-light above the treacherous shoals shines out to guide mariners safely into port. This tremendous investment in masonry and equipment . . . this religiously faithful service of keeper and attendants . . . serve as surely when only fitfully needed as in the hours of dire necessity. So it is with your gas company. In the summer, far less gas is needed---cooking and heating requirements are at low ebb. But the Lone Star Gas Company maintains the same 21 gigantic compressor stations---the same skilled attendants---the same far-flung network of pipe-lines in August as in December. This colossal investment in materials and personnel is to make certain that you will have dependable gas service at all times. Indeed, such a vital institution is quite as essential as the light-house above the shoals.

FOR Sour Stomach PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

Hereafter instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

Better Than Soda.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. Besides, it neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges this souring waste from the system without purging. It is far more pleasant to take than soda.

Try a 25c Bottle.

Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drug store. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

CREDIT

Is One

Of Your

Intangible

ASSETS

Just what are a man's intangible assets? Well, they are much the same as those that any business of standing is proud of and guards jealously.

There's a man's character, the kind of a man he is. There's his word, honorable or worthless, an asset if he keeps it inviolate. There's his ability. There's his personality. NOW ADD ANOTHER—THERE'S HIS CREDIT.

Good credit, a reputation, backed by a faultless record, for paying every bill and paying it when it is due, is an invaluable asset to every man. Good credit will help him all through life, will aid him in getting ahead, will make his life more pleasant. Think what an A-1 credit rating is to a business—then realize it means as much to an individual.

But a bad credit rating is a real liability, a cloud hanging over a man's reputation, hindering him and forever making trouble.

Keeping credit an asset isn't hard. Don't spend more than you can afford. Don't buy more than you can pay for PROMPTLY. Pay every bill when it is due. It's worth it.

EDUCATING FATHER

By DR. REED

Teach Him to Do His Share in Training Baby

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D., Former President of the American Medical Association.

YOU, whether you are a father or a mother, whether you are innocent or guilty, cannot but be interested in what a father may and ought to do by bringing himself up to the point of helping to bring up his children.

There, for instance, is the bad habit of unnecessary feeding of children at night.

Recently, in a speech, Dr. D. H. Geffen held the fathers, some fathers, responsible for this vice. He accused them of growling if their nights were disturbed, and of crying out "Give the brat a feed to keep it quiet." A roar of laughter went up, but despite the merriment the point of the argument struck home.

He spoke of the evils of the comforter, and explained how breast feeding prevented consumption and rickets, which were easy to forestall and disastrously expensive to cure.

What interested the fathers most was a demonstration of how to make a cot for a baby out of a banana crate. This is something practical, which a father can make for his own child before it is born. A discussion on the home-made cradle led naturally to the subject of the necessity for putting a child to sleep alone.

Dr. Geffen insists on the importance of humor and an appeal to the fathers' sense of the ridiculous. They can attend better if they are amused as well as instructed.

In further lectures he has spoken to them on infant feeding, epidemic diarrhoea, infectious diseases of children, tonsils and adenoids, vaccination, etc., and has always found them attentive and interested. He allows half an hour at the end of each talk for the asking and answering of questions, and finds that the fathers have plenty of inquiries to make.

But here is an interesting point: The questions a father asks are nearly always about his own child. It is for this reason it is most important that the talk should be given by the centre doctor, who knows all the children and is actually treating them. This makes for a far more interested gathering, and a greater feeling of general friendliness. He makes a great point of this, because he believes that the perfect centre should have a regular evening session, at which every father, as well as having a lecture and asking questions, can speak to the doctor privately about his own child.

At the end of the first lecture there is nearly always one of the audience who will get up and suggest the formation of a fathers' club. This should be encouraged in every way.

The routine of an ideal fathers' evening would be much as follows:

1. Half an hour's talk to the fathers.
2. Half an hour's questioning and discussion.
3. Interval for tea and coffee.
4. Practical carpentering, at which a skilled carpenter should, if possible, be present to demonstrate the making of cheap baby furniture.
5. During this demonstration the doctor sits in his room and holds private consultations with the fathers about their children. Smoking is allowed all the time.

To enlist the sympathy of the fathers in the maternity and child welfare movement will mark a great step forward toward the creation of a healthy race.

But, dear little overworked mother, get "father" to go. It will help you to "bring him up."

SWEET SUMMER -:- Like a Lovely Lady, She Blossoms Into Beauty -:- Drawn By DOROTHY FLACK

SUMMER! June, July, August! Youth, Maturity, Age! Can't you see the picture unfold before your eyes? June, like a shy young maiden, hesitant, palpitating—her eyes full of wonder, her heart full of dreams; filling her arms with the gold and white of the daisies so symbolic of her own fresh innocence and wide-eyed wonder; twining a wreath of the fragrant primroses through her wind-blown tresses. And thus she walks toward July and the fulfilment of the promises she so shyly made in her youthful loveliness. Rich in the secure knowledge of her mature charm, she holds sway over the hearts and destinies of her many lovers until the first days of August find her seeking the rest and peace she so richly deserves. And the flaming bravado of the early Fall flowers finds her sinking to rest amidst the fading glory of her own Summer blooms.

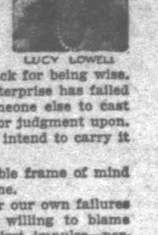

Three short Summer months! Each lovlier than the last; each dear to the hearts of all; each the friend of Romance and the fulfillment of her dear dreams of Youth.

Don't Blame Others For Your Failures In Life

By Lucy Lowell

MOST of us are all too ready to blame the other fellow for our own failures.

"If I hadn't listened to him I never would have got into this trouble," is a phrase that you hear often enough.

LUCY LOWELL

What it really means is this: "If things had gone right I'd be satisfied; I'd even reach around and pat myself on the back for being wise. But since the enterprise has failed I must have someone else to cast the burden of poor judgment upon. I certainly don't intend to carry it myself."

Not a very noble frame of mind but a common one.

And it isn't for our own failures only that we're willing to blame others. It's a first impulse—perhaps human but one which would save much embarrassment and no end of disagreeableness if it were controlled—to lay accusation upon the person at hand.

A woman coming out of a shoe shop the other day discovered, suddenly, that she had lost the purchase she just had made. Looking about in the crowd she saw a man moving rapidly away, under his arm a box in the identical wrapping that had been around her own box.

Obeying that first impulse, she ran after him and accused him of having stolen her shoes. Since his amazement looked to her like guilt, she demanded that someone in the crowd which gathered call ar officer.

"Wait a minute, Madam," he said. And opened the box. In it there was a pair of men's shoes, very different from the satin pumps she had bought.

At that moment a clerk came running out with her parcel. She had left it behind her in the shop.

The crowd laughed and the woman blushed. It will be some time before she carelessly places blame again.

It always is best to be sure the other fellow is blame-worthy before you accuse him. Even then it often is a good idea to keep silent.

HINTS FOR THE HOUSEHOLD

GREASE stains on a stove should be wiped off immediately with newspaper. Before cleaning the stove, rub the stain with a cloth dipped in turpentine.

New kid gloves are not likely to split when first put on if they are placed between the folds of a damp towel for an hour or two before they are required. The dampness softens the gloves and allows them to stretch more readily.

After using a scrubbing brush, rinse well and turn it on its side to dry. The brush will wear better if the bristles are not always wet, and if they are not allowed to get sodden with water they will not bend so much when in use.

After washing blankets, double lengthwise over the line, hanging with the stripes verticle, so that the color does not run out of its own lines. When partly dry, reverse. Shake well when dry to raise the nap.

Suggestion as a Power in Child Training

By L. Lamar Matthews.

ONCE there was an ignorant woman who was going off to spend the day, leaving her children at home. She admonished them about this and that, telling them what to do and what not to do while she was away. After she had exhausted her list of dos and don'ts she started out the door. Then she thought of something else and turned back for her last parting injunction.

L.LAMAR MATTHEWS

"Now, children," she said, "don't put any beans in your nose, while I'm gone."

The children had never heard of stuffing beans in the nose, but, after their mother suggested it, they naturally wondered how it would feel and just why she objected to the idea. So they immediately hunted up some dried beans and each child stuffed two beans into his little nose.

That is a very old story, so old that young mothers of this generation perhaps have never heard it; but in your grandmother's day people used to say, "You are just putting beans in his nose," when they meant that you were suggesting some outbreak that would otherwise not have occurred to a youngster.

That sounds very foolish, in the telling, but the fact remains that grown-ups quite often suggest all manner of delightful misdemeanors to little folks in this same, senseless manner.

Bobby starts to the corner grocery on an errand, just after a hard rain.

"Now Bobby," his mother shouts after him, "don't you go wading in water with your shoes on."

Bobby had lost sight of those nice, sloppy puddles of water, and he would have gone straight to the store and back without so much as sticking the toe of his shoe into the water if his mother had let him alone. But the first little pool of rain water he sees tempts him, the second one allures him, and the third one proves his undoing.

Mary, in her early teens, sits in quietly on the dinner table conversation. Finally the topic drifts around to modern evils, and somebody wonders "what girls of this day are coming to."

Then suddenly father turns upon Mary and says in threatening tones:

"Just you ever let me catch you letting a boy kiss you."

Mary has had neither the opportunity nor the inclination heretofore to let any boy kiss her. But now that her father has mentioned it, the suggestion begins to intrigue her. The next time she goes out she takes a little more pains than usual with her appearance. After a number of unsuccessful attempts she finally manages to achieve that come-hither look in her eyes. And before the season is over—if Mary is pretty—she is quite apt to provoke some boy into kissing her.

One of the most worthless young men I know came up under a shower of don'ts. Every time he entered the house his mother or his sister began shrieking don'ts at him. It never occurred to them to invent something for him to do that would be pleasant and profitable.

"If you keep on at this rate," they told him, "you will be loafing around the corner drug store with the rest of the bums before you are much older."

And that's exactly what he was doing long before he was grown.

Suggestion is one of the most powerful and one of the most convenient forces that parents can use in training their children. The more subtle the suggestion the more effective it becomes. Keep quiet about undesirable practices, and use the power of suggestion to present ideas that will benefit your child.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

Sailing ships to the number of thirteen are racing from Australia to Ireland, via the Cape, laden with wheat. The first vessel arrived in Queenstown, having made the voyage in the fast time of eighty-eight days. A modern liner, traveling through the Suez Canal, would do the same trip in six weeks?

Pipes available for smokers range from midgets weighing only three-quarters of an ounce and specially made for women, to "library pipes" holding two ounces of tobacco at one filling. The latter cost about $18 each, and briars a century old are used in their manufacture?

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis.

FRIENDS come, friends go; the loves men know are ever only fleeting.
In song and smile a little while we read their kindly greeting.
With warmth and cheer they linger near, the friends we fondly treasure,
Then on a day they drift away, a loss no words can measure. This much we know: friends come, friends go, as April's gladness passes, as sun and shade in swift parade paint change on meadow grasses. And though we grieve to see them leave, in thought we still enfold them, in memory's net we keep them yet and thus can ever hold them. They come, they go, these loves we know, life's tides are ever moving; but year on year they still seem near, so great the power of loving!

When Manners Are Correct

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

An Evening Wedding

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:
Will you please answer the following questions regarding a wedding to be held at 7:30 p. m. in a hotel:

1. What is the usual procession of the bridal party?
2. Is it necessary to have ushers for the bridesmaids?
3. How many bridesmaids does one usually have?
4. Who pays for the bridesmaids' bouquets?
5. What is the correct outfit for the bride and groom?
6. Is it necessary to have flower girls and a ring bearer?
7. Can the bridesmaids wear white?
8. Must the attendants wear full dress suits? S. G.

USHERS first, two by two. Then bridesmaids, two by two. Maid of honor or matron of honor, walking alone. Last, bride and her father.

2. No. Nowadays ushers and bridesmaids do not walk together, either in the processional or the recessional. Neither does the maid of honor walk with the best man, for he does not take part in either the processional or the recessional.

3. There is no definite number of bridesmaids that is correct. There may be none, or two or four or six or eight. There should be an even number, since they walk together.

4. Usually the parents of the bride provide the bridesmaids' bouquets.

5. White dress and wedding veil for the bride, and full dress for the groom.

6. No, it is not necessary to have flower girls and a ring bearer. Indeed, the usual wedding now does not have these attendants.

7. The bridesmaids may wear white, if the bride wishes, and it is being done sometimes this season. However, the colors of the bridesmaids dresses form a charming background for the white of the bride's dress.

8. Yes, the gentlemen at an evening wedding, whether of the wedding party or the guests, wear full dress out of compliment to the important occasion.

Introduction Forms.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:
1. Is the gentleman introduced to the lady, or vice versa? Will you give me an example, please?
2. How would you introduce a young man and an elderly lady? An elderly man and a young lady? MRS. F.

A GENTLEMAN is introduced to a lady. An excellent formula, really the best, is: "Miss Lady, may I present Mr. Gentleman?" If you feel that the word "present" is too formal—although it really isn't formal—you may substitute the word "introduce." Or for the usual introduction, you may mention only the names, "Miss Lady, Mr. Gentleman."

And all this is true even if the gentleman is a very old and distinguished gentleman and the lady is a very young lady.

Formality.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:
Will you please tell me if I should give a gift to a boy who sent me an announcement of his graduation from high school. PUZZLED.

IT is not necessary. Write him a friendly note of congratulation and best wishes.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

Folly's Daughter

A Thrilling New Mystery of New York Night Life

By Ann Lisle

Folly Appeals to Mac

WHEN Folly Duane went to MacNeil Shannon she wasn't quite sure which of two plans to pursue. Perhaps the wisest way to handle him was to tell him just how fond she thought Jill really was of him and then trust his generosity to suggest the next step. Or it might be that she ought to save Jill from her infatuation and still — keep Shannon in the family. She would see . . .

ANN LISLE

She thought she was seeing. So, she said gaily:

"What a wonderful office! No wonder the child said you had everything and wondered if she worked hard could she get anywhere near as far ahead in the world by the time she was—"

"Old, like me?" he finished, gravely. But there was a twinkle in his eyes.

"Yes." She spoke with a suggestion of shyness, of reticence, and then she added with a rush, "Seventeen thinks thirty is infinitely old. Jill makes me dread my next birthday."

"Be permanently twenty-nine," he suggested. "That is a charming age for a lovely young woman who—doesn't look it."

She laughed. "You flatter."

"Possibly not," he said gravely. "But whatever I am to do—must be accomplished in short order. You said half an hour would serve. I have only about a third of that. My advertising specialist and his charming wife are coming to lunch with me. Shall we get ahead?"

"I hardly know where to begin."

"Perhaps I might help you. Our lovely little Jill is shy—independent—hates to ask favors—"

"How well you know her!"

"She is crystalline. And normal. And eighteen in a month. I believe."

"You do know her! Did you see her often?"

"Not very," he said grimly.

"I want advice more than anything else. Ten minutes doesn't give me a chance to scratch the surface of what I have to say. I don't know how to manage her. She is so badly equipped to face life. I've worked so hard to get her started right. And I'm not strong. I have a—weak heart—"

Did he smile? Folly stopped short and opened her blue eyes to the widest. She quivered her nostrils a bit, worked her throat and presently two tears were moistening her eyes, just enough without dropping down and streaking her cheeks with mascara.

"Jill doesn't confide in me, enough," she managed at last. "I'm frightened about her. She is lovely and—emotional. If she were really interested in a man like you, I wouldn't mind. I'd know that what he taught her would be good for her in the end. Oh, I wonder if you understand."

"Not quite," he told her. "I think we'd better get this a bit clearer."

"I can trust you? You don't think I'm a nuisance?"

"Shall we smoke and send out word that we can't be disturbed for another fifteen minutes?" he asked. "Shall we say we are—in conference?"

"Oh, would you?"

Folly just breathed it. But her smile was satisfied. She felt that the charm had not waned, that he was beginning to come under her spell. And when a little more time had been assured her she leaned forward, shadowing her face with the hat, holding out her lovely, fine white hands and saying in her huskiest little voice:

"She's young. She's fickle. Every man she meets makes an impression on her, in passing. I'm so afraid it will be the wrong one. I've nobody to help me. Women were never my friends. Isn't that cruel."

"But not surprising," he smiled. "Women never like another woman when men like her—too well—"

"Oh, you've touched on the crux of it," she murmured. "That's it. I've nobody to turn to. Men like me too well or not at all. So I've nobody to count on, nobody to advise me, and a young, ardent untrained, ignorant, lovely young girl ten years my junior to bring up. I don't know what to do. I don't know where to turn. And I've an obligation to see her through."

"Why?" he demanded. "Why should a lovely young creature of—permanently twenty-nine, wasn't it, be burdened with a girl who is no blood kin of hers?"

He waited for the answer. When it came it repeated what Jill had told him.

"Her poor, little mother trusted me. She had nobody else to trust. I've got to see Jill through. I can't do it alone. I thought that if I came to you, you might help. Something here told me." She put her hand to her heart. "Was that something right? Will you help me? Do you want to put me out and never be bothered by me again, or was my heart right to send me to you?"

MODISH MITZI

By JAY V. JAY

Of course, not really the last frocks of summer. Merely the latest frocks of summer and their lateness is not to be confused with tardiness. Mitzi's has short tight sleeves which are new. Polly's has a bolero blouse made of scallop-edged lace. Both have wide girdles.

The Goofer is sitting in lonely contemplation. Yes he saw Mitzi and Polly, but didn't join them. Something must be radically wrong with the Goofer, but when Aunt Sophia in a satin frock most smartly made of black and white asks him what is wrong he replies in a simple gloomy fashion—

"Nothing." Nothing is wrong with the Goofer! That was such an alarming report that Mitzi herself came to investigate. Mitzi has had time to change her dress which is lucky because you will want to look at it closely. It has short pleated cape in back and a yoke in front that is made by rows of pin tucks. The skirt is made of tiers of finely tucked flounces. Perhaps the gown helps her to discover that the Goofer feels life is futile and he is a complete loss to humahity and, in short, to find out that the goofer has a birthday here again.

Tomorrow—The Between-Frock Season.

There Is Such a Thing As Girl Showing Too Much Self-Sacrifice

Dear Miss Dix:—For the last ten years I have devoted my entire life to my mother and father, not having any company or entertainment of any kind. My father has recently died and now my mother absorbs all of my time. There are other children in the family, all grown and married, and they make no effort whatsoever to entertain my mother. They don't even take her out in their cars. Sundays and holidays I am supposed to plan for my mother's entertainment and never make an engagement with young people. It isn't that I don't want to shoulder my share of the burden, but I think that the others should help. It isn't a question of money whatever, but just entertainment. At the rate I am going I will become a withered old maid without ever having had any of the pleasures of life, or any chance to marry and establish myself. What should I do? G. M. C.

Answer: The first thing you should do is to call a family council and put your problem squarely before your sisters and brothers. Remind them that their duty to your mother is just as great as yours, and tell them that you have decided not to be the victim any longer of their selfishness, and that in the future they will have to take turns in taking care of mother.

Perhaps they have never realized what an unjust deal they are giving you, or that they are cutting you off from all the pleasures of youth and all the opportunities it offers, by tying you to an old woman's side. It may be that they need only be roused to a sense of their duty to do it.

But I doubt this, because in nearly every family most of the children dodge their responsibility to their parents, and leave the care of them to some one member.

By what process the family goat is elected for the sacrifice no one ever knows, but John gets married and sets up his own home, and Jim goes off to a city seeking his fortune, and Mary takes unto herself a husband, and Sally espouses a career that takes her to distant places, and poor George is left at home to support mother and father, and Jane waits on them through weary years.

And it doesn't occur to John and Jim that they should chip in for the old couple's support, nor to Sally and Mary that they should take father and mother into their homes for long visits and thus lighten George's and Jane's burden and keep it from crushing them. For the load that is divided out between many shoulders is light on them all.

Of course, children owe a great duty to their parents, but they do not owe the sacrifice of their entire lives to them, and I think there is no problem to which we bring more mawkish sentimentality than we do to the treatment of old people. I know of nothing more pitiful than the thousands of good and conscientious women like yourself who have made martyrs of themselves uselessly, simply to gratify the whims of selfish and senile old parents.

I ask you in the name of common sense why you should deny yourself all the pleasures of youth and make a slave of yourself just to entertain your mother? Why is it more important that she should be amused than that you should be amused? Why is it worse for her to be left alone sometimes than for you to be kept away from the parties and dances that you would like to go to?

She is old. You are young. She has lived her life. You have yours yet to live. If she keeps you tied to her apron string, she cuts you off from marriage, or from following some career, and that is a cruel thing to do and a high price to pay for the pleasure of your society.

Old people are almost invariably selfish and self-centered and tyrannical. They will take all that they can exact from their children, and the children have to defend themselves against them or else be crushed. Old people get childish and they have to be treated like spoiled children and controlled when their demands are unreasonable.

Our duty to our parents demands that we love and cherish them, that we show them affection and try to make them happy and contented, but it does not demand that we needlessly sacrifice ourselves for them and let them deprive us of all pleasure and happiness.

There is reason in all things. Even in being a devoted daughter.

What you need, Miss G. M. C., is more backbone in dealing with your sisters and brothers and with your mother. DOROTHY DIX.

• • •

Dear Dorothy Dix:—I am engaged to a young man of 26 who lives with his mother alone, and who says that he is too comfortable at home to get married. His mother waits on him hand and foot. I love him very much, but I don't think he loves me or he would be a little more considerate of my feelings. TILDA.

Answer: The young man is capable of only one supreme passion, and that is for himself. He will never love you or any other woman one-millionth part as much as he does himself, and he will always sacrifice any woman who comes his way to his ego.

You will find no happiness in marriage with him, so you will be wise if you break off your engagement. There is no other man in the whole wide world who makes as bad a husband as mamma's darling.

No wife can possibly compete with a mother in spoiling and petting and pampering a man. She would always run a bad second, and if she is wise, she leaves mother the undisputed possession of the monstrosity of selfishness that she has created. DOROTHY DIX.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

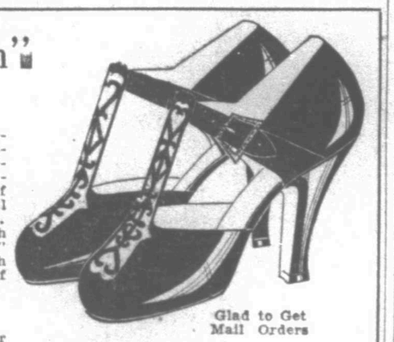

Mrs. Annie Kwinski of 526 1st Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis., writes that she became so weak and rundown that she was not able to do her housework. She saw the name Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the paper and said to her husband, "I will try that medicine and see if it will help me." She says she took six bottles and is feeling much better.

Mrs. Mattie Adams, who lives in Downing Street, Brewton, Ala., writes as follows: "A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and since taking it I feel like a different woman."

With her children grown up, the middle-aged woman finds time to do the things she never had time to do before—read the new books, see the new plays, enjoy her grandchildren, take an active part in church and civic affairs. Far from being pushed aside by the younger set, she finds a full, rich life of her own. That is, if her health is good.

Thousands of women past fifty, say they owe their health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

It Never Phased David

THAT message from the Black Hills never phased David Lawrence. He knew it was coming all the time. He had read the mind of the president months before the wires carried the story. "It is the logic of the situation. It is paving the way for the renomination of Calvin."

Samuel G. Blythe is another man who knew all about it. He is a mind reader. First he peered into the dark caverns of the Coolidge heart and read what was coming. Then he peered into the womb of the future and verified it.

Now Samuel says it is all over but the shouting. Coolidge will be renominated; Coolidge will be reelected. David and Samuel are wise men. They could have scooped the reading world, but innate modesty cramped their fingers and the dictates of well regulated consciences paralized their typewriters.

A periodical of wide circulation is the Saturday Evening Post. Samuel, who has been playing the political writing game for 40 years, is the political editor of the Post. His editorials are all signed articles.

Samuel timed his latest contribution to political literature to follow directly in the wake of the president's Black Hills mystery missive.

Are the master minds of big business the master jockeys of the American political world? Or is the president doing the jockeying for them?

Control of Texas Rivers

THERE is going to be a battle royal fought out in Texas. On the one hand all the people interested in irrigation, either now or in the future, are marshalling their forces. On the other hand powerful combinations of capitalists seeking the control of Texas rivers and flood waters for light and power purposes, are well entrenched and ready for the battle or series of battles.

This is the electric age. For millions of years the rivers and streams of Texas dumped their waters into the Gulf of Mexico. Now water control is getting to be a paramount issue in the territory where the longhorn steer was monarch of all he surveyed until his passing.

The bison made his last stand in the upper Panhandle; the wild horse became a polo pony and the wild men were shot out of existance.

Now ranches and farms are to be electrified; now the electrification of steam rails is in sight. Now all the machinery in city and country has electricity or gasoline to propel it. There is a new civilisation, and the man who has any doubt of it belongs in the cemetery or in an asylum for the insane.

Some day the people may electrify the constitution of Texas which was made away back in the ox-cart period of civilization and appears to be as sacred to the people as the sacred cow of India is to the followers of one of the East Indian Gods of antiquity.

Ready For Open Season

GOVERNOR MOODY has been given an expensive rifle and case for it by 12 friends in Dallas. Yes, the gun is of the latest model, beautifully finished and in a case trimmed in silver. Murrell L. Buckner was the chairman of the committee of 12. There is a gold plate on the stock of the gun carrying the names of the doners.

It is announced that the governor is a marksman of merit and could qualify on the range; that he is an ardent deer hunter and the rifle will receive its first baptism in the filed next November. Former Mayor Sawnie R. Aldridge was one of the 12 who made the present. He was a North Texas campaign manager for the governor in his campaign against the Fergusons and Lynch Davidson.

Dallas county has more than 60,000 qualified voters. Less than 6,000 rushed to the polls to vote for or against the amendments. Less than 700 voted for the amendments. Politics is a funny game. In Dallas county the voters or rather a vast majority are opposed to change in the constitution. They said it by their nonactivities.

Less than 125,000 voters participated in the slaughter of the amendments. There hasn't been a regular riot in Texas on the amendment issue since the pro amendment was submitted to the voters of Texas. Then the ladies and the preachers shelled the woods and the outpouring was something terrific.

McCloskey Has Scheme

COUNTY JUDGE Agustus McCloskey of Bexar favors an elective state highway commission and a state bond issue of $100,000,000 as a revolving fund for state highway construction.

His viewpoint is that the idea of a bond issue cared for from the gasoline tax is the most feasible highway construction plan yet proposed, but he doubts its popularity with the people with an appointive highway commission.

What Texas should do, according to McCloskey of Bexar, is to vote a statewide bond issue and complete its state system of highways in the shortest possible length of time and give the present generation, "which is already paying the tax, an opportunity to enjoy the use and benefit of the system."

McCloskey of Bexar appears to be for the people now on earth. Has he forgotten what happened to the constitutional amendments?

"A Yankee Trick"

JOHN KNOTT of the Dallas News is one of the cleverest cartoonists of the country. His political conceptions have given him a nationwide reputation. His latest is "The Old Democrat Analyzes It." Of course, the old democrat is a typical colonel of ante-bellum days. He is reading the first page of a newspaper. He focuses his gaze upon these words, "I do not choose to run for president in 1928."

There is a startled look in the eyes of old democrat. Disgust is spread all over his face. This is his verdict, "A Yankee Trick."

It is a telling cartoon, and yet the statesman known as Cautious Cal may put it over. He has all the republican politicians up in the air. He has all the federal office holders glued to their seats. He has big business on the hip.

This son of Vermont and adopted son of New England is more than cautious. He is cunning. He is evasive. He is molelike in his methods. He never makes a frontal attack. Now watch him perform until the month of June, 1928. In that month the national convention of his party will be held.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By BURTON RASCOE.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8, (EFS)—The high price of liquor is a great strain on college boys. From time to time they invent semi-palatable concoctions which produce the desired effect at little cost. The most potent of these is known as dynamite and is composed of applejack and raw grain alcohol. And it is rightly named, judging from its immediate and all powerful effect. Another is called battle-ax. Its ingredients include two parts raw alcohol to one part water and one part corn syrup.

* * *

The latest slang formula is: "Didn't miss," meaning a ready grasping of an opportunity. As for instance when the waiter asks the blond hostess in the night club if she got anything out of the fat old boy who just left, she replies, "I didn't miss."

* * *

It was a dignified policeman patrolling a beat on Sixth avenue in the Forties. An old lady approached and explained that she was a bit hard of hearing. She had an appointment to meet her daughter from Brooklyn in front of the Hippodrome and had been waiting there for some time with no results. So she wondered if the officer wouldn't call her daughter at her home to see what was delaying her. Her deafness prevented her from making a telephone call.

The affable officer consented. He entered a nearby drugstore, called the apartment in Brooklyn and found that the lady of the house had departed. His detecting instincts aroused, the cop questioned a young boy who was there alone and the youngster happened to know that his mother had gone to meet his grandmother, not at the Hippodrome but at the Paramount theater.

Just how the old lady had heard "Paramount" as "Hippodrome" I am at a loss to understand. But in any event, the cop, so the story goes, came out and told the old lady what he had learned. He had some difficulty making her understand but at last she got it and marched off with a pleasant nod toward the Paramount, where, it is generally hoped she met her daughter.

Reginald Denny, the movie star, arrived in town the other day on his way to England. While here, his press agent, to prove that the last thing he desired was publicity, sent out at least one thousand words of explanation as to just why Mr. Denny wanted no notice. And after most of the papers sent reporters to interview him, and all of the sheets ran stories about his arrival, no doubt he departed thankful for the thought that he had come through the city modestly and quietly, as becomes a motion picture star.

Sally's Shoulders

© by BEATRICE BURTON, Author of "HER MAN" "HONEY LOU" "THE HOLLYWOOD GIRL," ETC.

"Listen, I've got to have some money quick," he whispered.

READ THIS FIRST:

SALLY JEROME, pretty and clever, is the prop and mainstay of her family in the absence of her father, who has not lived with her mother for nine years. The family consists of MRS. JEROME; the twins, BEAU and MILLIE; and Sally herself. Mrs. Jerome enjoys poor health, so Sally does the housework mornings and office-work for grouchy MR. PEEVEY afternoons.

In the flat below, the Jeromes lives young TED SLOAN, an automobile salesman, who wants her to marry him and keep on working. But only man in whom she is truly interested is JOHN NYE, whose real estate offices are just across the hall from Mr. Peevey's.

Nye hires the siren Millie as his stenographer-secretary after Sally has refused the place because Millie was out of work and needed a job. Shortly after Millie starts working for him he becomes infatuated with her, and Sally is both heartsick and jealous.

Millie and Beau rarely give Sally any money for the upkeep of the home. Occasionally a check comes from the absent father, and once in a while either Beau or Millie pays $10 as "board" money. But most of the burden falls on Sally.

Suddenly, however, Beau blossoms out with many new clothes and a surplus of money. Sally becomes suspicious because Beau works in a bank and has always been light-fingered. Ted Sloan tells Sally he gave Beau a check for $10, but Sally knows Beau had much more extra money than that, having spent twice that easily one night buying liquor for a party given by his girl, MABEL WILMOT.

On a Saturday night Sally goes dancing with Ted while her mother and her spinster aunt, EMILY JEROME, are at a movie. Ted tries to make love to her, and when she repulses him, shows her how Beau altered his check to $110 instead of $10 and adds that he could send Beau to jail for doing it, but will tear up the check if Sally will promise to marry him. Sally leaves him at the dance palace and walks out, angrily telling him that she will get the money for him somehow or other that very night.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XVIII

Outside the Blue Lagoon an autumn storm was raging. Rain was coming down in sheets, and a cold high wind howled and tore about the streets.

Sally shivered as she stepped out into the streaming darkness and started along the wet, gleaming sidewalks. The downpour drenched her silk coat and thin dress in no time, but she put her head down and struggled on towards the street car line at the corner.

She had no notion of where she was going or what she was going to do. Her thoughts were as wild as the weather itself. . . . Beau had stolen more than $100 from Ted Sloan, and Ted could send Beau to prison! . . . . Somehow that money must be found, and be paid back to Ted tonight. Every nickel of it! . . . . But where was it to be found? Where? Especially at this time of night.

"I don't think that Ted would really turn Beau over to the law," Sally told herself, sensibly. "I'm sure he would not go that far—and yet he might. You never can tell what people will do when they're angry."

And Ted surely had been insanely angry back there among the golden lights and the haunting music of The Blue Lagoon.

"Yes, I've got to get the money," Sally finally decided, remembering his white face and the look in his eyes as he handed her the two checks—the pink one and the blue one." But where to get it—that's the question."

She racked her confused brain as she went along, chilled to the bone and buffeted by the wind—and hardly conscious that she was cold and wet and shaking all over.

She reached the corner and saw a street car coming along through the rain like a lighted ship on a stormy sea.

Just as it slowed down to stop Ted's little car skidded around the corner and stopped beside the curb. He called to her. His words came to her in snatches above the rush of the wind.

"Hi, you!—can't be out on a night like this—must be losing your mind—talk this thing over sensibly—" and so on.

Sally paid not the slightest bit of attention to him.

With the tail of her eye she could see him leaning out of his wet little car, waving his arm as he yelled into the wind. Then, just as the street car slid to a stop and she started towards it, he jumped out.

But Sally was too quick for him. In the twinkling of an eye she was on the platform, with the door closing behind her. She had escaped.

There were only half a dozen people in the car and all of them stared at her sodden clothes and dripping hair.

Sally did not even see them, so wrapped up in her own gloomy thoughts was she. She barely saw the conductor when she leaned towards him across the fare box and spoke to him.

"Tell me—you pass E. 85th street, don't you?"

"Yes, lady." He nodded, looking her up and down, curiously.

"I'll get off there. Let me know when we come to it, please," said Sally, her troubled eyes on the windows with the darkness and the rain behind them.

It was perfectly clear to her all at once where she was going for that money.

Not to Aunt Emily, who would demand to know what that money was to be used for. Not to John Nye, who would probably lend it to her because of his affection for Millie.

Sally was not going to either of these people, but to Mr. Peevey! She had made up her mind to go to him, almost without thinking. It just seemed to her that some inner voice had suggested him to her as her "best bet" in this trouble that had swooped down upon her like a hawk upon some helpless prey. Afterwards it seemed to her that the thought of him had been a direct answer to prayer.

Every now and then we poor struggling human things do something without quite knowing why we do it. Afterward, when it turns out to be the very thing we should have done, we give all the credit to luck or chance.

"It was a just fate," we say . . . But really wasn't it God? Who knows?

At any rate that night Sally Jerome had an odd feeling that she was doing something that she had done before when she knocked on the door of Mr. Peevey's house on E. 85th street.

Her heart beat wildly as she did it. Mr. Peevey was always so cross when his lunch was late that she could imagine how furious he would be if he were rudely wakened from his sleep.

She waited for a minute, and then rang again. Almost at once a sharp light flashed on within the house, and through the glass pane in the door Sally could see Mr. Peevey coming down the stairs.

He was in a red bathrobe and his thin hair stood up all over his small head. He looked positively murderous.

"Yeh? Who's there?" he asked, sharply, opening the door a tiny crack and putting one eye to it, as if he expected nothing less than a burglar or a cut-throat at that hour of the night.

"It's Sally Jerome." The girl's clear voice came out of the darkness bravely. "I've come to you for help, Mr. Peevey."

At that he opened the door, and she stepped into the warmth of the hall, blinking a little in the light. "I want a hundred dollars—now—tonight," she said, and it seemed to her that she could say no more.

Her courage suddenly had deserted her and left her weak and horror-stricken . . . Why, what crazy thing was this she was doing? Coming to Mr. Peevey, of all people, for money! . . . Why hadn't she gone to Aunt Emily? Surely Aunt Emily would have lent her the money rather than see Beau turned over to the police! . . . And, anyway, why couldn't she have thrown herself on Ted Sloan's mercy; begged him to give Beau the chance to make good his bad check?

"Peevey'll never part with a dollar of his without getting the whole miserable story," she thought and she knew she never could tell it to him. Never!

"A hundred dollars," he was saying now, and his voice was oddly gentle. He stood looking at her, with his head on one side, a grotesque little figure in his long red robe.

His old eyes took her in. Took in the white face, the drooping mouth, the look of downright misery in the blue eyes that usually were so full of the joy of living. He saw that something had gone all wrong with Sally.

"Why, yes, I guess I've got that much money in the house," he said, quietly. "How will you pay it back? Two dollars a week?" He looked after his own interests even when he was being a good Samaritan.

"I'll pay it back any way you want it back!" cried Sally. "Only let me have it—" He started up the stairs while she was still talking to him.

It came to her again as she stood there waiting for him to come back that she had lived through this scene before. It seemed to her that she had known all along that this would happen—that somehow or other, he would make everything all right if only she went to him. Her courage came back to her in a rush.

But when he had counted out five $20 bills into her hand, and she was out in the noisy darkness once more, it all seemed like a dream.

"I don't know why I went to him. I must have been crazy!" she said to herself. "And he certainly must have been out of his mind to lend it to me. Without even asking why I wanted it! . . . . Without even the scratch of a pen to show that I had it from him!"

Months later she understood just why he had let her have it. But not then.

Feeling as if some miracle had happened to her, she reached home and unlocked the door of the flat.

The living room was in darkness, but from the rear hall came a dim shaft of light.

As Sally entered the dining room she could see Beau standing at the telephone. He was saying something that she could not make out. Then as he saw her he banged the receiver upon its hook and came toward her.

"Come on in here! I want to talk to you," he whispered hoarsely, and Sally turned back into the livingroom and switched on a lamp.

"Sit down," Beau went on, in that same hoarse whisper, and she dropped down into a chair.

In the light she could see that his blue eyes had a wild look in them, and there were sharp little lines that went from his nose to the corners of his mouth. Beau looked 10 years older than he had ever before, in all his lazy-happy-go-lucky young life.

"Listen, Sally," he said, not looking at her. "I'm in a heck of a mess—I've got to have some money, and I've got to have it quick!

He shook a cigarette from a dirty little paper packet and pasted it on his lower lip. While he was lighting it, Sally spoke to him.

"Beau, I've known you were in trouble," she began, and opened her handbag with cold, stiff fingers. "I've been so worried—"

"Yes, and you'd just better be worried," he took her up, "because I'm just about two inches this side of the county jail. Now, listen, this is what I did—"

"I know what you did! I know all about it!" Sally interrupted him eagerly, "and tonight I promised Ted Sloan you'd give him back that hundred and 10 dollars! —Here it is. You take it right downstairs to him! Never mind if you have to get him out of bed! Just give it to him—that's all!" She began to cry now that everything was settled and Beau was out of danger.

She crushed the bills into his hand, and ran out of the room, blinded by her tears and shaking from head to foot.

Fifteen minutes later, when she had hung up her wet clothes and put on a warm flannel kimono, she went back to the living room.

Beau was not there.

She opened the door that led into the hall and listened. No sound came from the lower floor . . . Beau must have given the money to Ted and then gone straight to his own room to bed.

But the door of his room stood open, and there was no light in it.

"Beau," Sally whispered, standing in the doorway. "Beau, are you there?" There was no answer.

She stepped inside and pressed the button that controlled the light. They flashed up.

(TO BE CONTINUED)

I waited patiently for the Lord; and he inclined unto me, and heard my cry.

He brought me up also out of an horrible pit, out of the miry clay, and set my feet upon a rock, and established my goings.

And he hath put a new song in my mouth, even praise upon our God; many shall see it, and fear, and shall trust in the Lord.

Blessed is the man that maketh the Lord his trust, and respecteth not the proud, nor such as turn aside to lies.—Psalm 40:1-5.

LEARNING FROM THE ESKIMO

Again, some dietetic lessons come to us from the land of the frozen north. The doctor who traveled with the McMillan expedition in Greenland and Labrador was surprised to find that the Eskimo does not suffer from such deficiency diseases as scurvy or rickets, nor does he have hardening of the arteries, blood or skin diseases. This is remarkable in view of the lack of vegetables of any kind.

The Eskimo baby is nursed until it is 4 or 6 years of age, by which time he has a good set of teeth with which to begin eating meat. From that time on his diet consists of red meats, the flesh of land and sea animals, waterfowl and fish. Most of the meat is eaten raw, as there is little chance of cooking. Quite an amount of fat is eaten, but the lean parts of meats or fish are really preferred.

The Eskimo is exposed to the most severe weather, and often goes without food for long periods of time, but this high protein diet seems to keep him in excellent condition.

Many diseases were found among the Eskimos in those parts of Labrador where civilization has introduced civilized cooking. Right here is the most important point we can gather from the results of these recent investigations. While meat furnishes an excellent kind of food for a mono diet, when starches are added to the meat diet, all manner of disorders develop. This is because the mixture of starch with meat makes a bad combination from a dietetic standpoint. Digestion of the meat is interfered with and thus the Eskimo who eats starch and meat together does not get the full value of the protein which he could completely digest and assimilate if the meat were used by itself.

Most of the toxins which develop from meat eating should really be blamed upon the indiscriminate mixture of starches with meats. Of course, it is not wise for those of us living in temperate climates to consume as large a quantity of meat as would be advantageous to the Eskimo, but it is well to remember that when meat is used it should be eaten by itself or in combination with the leafy green vegetables.

Many are theoretically opposed to meat eating, but still occasionally waiver from their idealistic stand and slip in a slice of roast beef. Next time any of you do that, try eating a green vegetable salad with the meat in place of starchy foods and you will be surprised how well it seems to agree with you.

Questions and Answers

QUESTION: D. B. Writes: "I have heard a great deal about your work and success. Would it be possible for you to give me any diet to cure an over-active thyroid? I am not able to work at present on that account."

ANSWER: An over-active thyroid simply means an irritated thyroid. It is first essential to remove all irritating toxins from the blood and then go on a careful diet which does not produce any more glandular irritation. The complete treatment for such trouble cannot be given in the short space allowed in this column, so if you will write to me again, giving your name and address, I will send you more complete instructions.

QUESTION: C. J. writes: "Will you please tell me the best way to cleanse and purify the system?"

ANSWER: Fast on some kind of fresh fruit for four or five days, then follow a restricted diet for several weeks, using at least one enema daily to assure proper cleansing of the bowels. More detailed advice will be sent upon receipt of your name and address.

CADET FAILS TO GET THRILL

First Aid for Princess Doesn't Excite Him

NEW ALBANY, Ind., Aug. 8.(AP) Newland Dep Knight of New Albany, former cadet at Culver Military academy, "cannot see that there was much chivalry" to his playing "knight errant" to Princess Ileana of Rumania when she fainted at Rossville, Ind., on her tour of the United States with her mother, Queen Marie, last winter.

Knight's act of succoring the the princess was related by Queen Marie in dispatches from Rumania. The queen said the princess was "quite overcome by the manliness, tender care and chivalry which was shown by the young student.

He Rubbed Her Feet.

"We administered aid any one would give a person who had fainted," Knight said. "All that I did was to rub her feet and ankles. When she regained consciousness she expressed surprise that she had fainted and wondered why she had done so.

"Nothing romantic ever came of it. About three weeks later I received a picture of the princess and a typewritten letter signed by her thinking me for my attentions. I did not reply to the letter and I do not believe I had any romantic ideas about the incident."

The incident occurred while the princess with Knight, Col. Calvin P. Chambers of Culver, Miss Marr, the princess' English tutor, and the chauffeur were en route from Chicago to Indianapolis. A blinding snow was falling and the princess, who was driving, crashed into a truck at Grant Park, Ill.

Accident Upset Her.

The accident upset her and on reaching Rossville she complained of being ill. The party went into a drug store where the princess fainted. She was carried upstairs to a doctor's office. The doctor being out, Miss Marr and Knight administered first aid.

NOW'S THE TIME

Although turned back in their tenth defeat Monday at Shreveport in 15 starts on the road, the Spudders remained six games in the league lead, Houston losing to Waco. One more afternoon in foreign territory, then the Williams battalion returns to the home hearth, quite a bedraggled outfit, but still leaders of the circuit.

* * *

Spudder enthusiasts gave the players a fine reception on their last return from abroad. A thousand or more fans turned out at midnight to greet the boys when they came back from a highly successful tour of the league. That was nice and the like, but when they blow back in Wednesday after the most unsuccessful jaunt of the year——that is the time Wichita Falls fandom should do some REAL boosting.

* * *

The club needs the city's support now. As long as Williams and his men were winning, it didn't matter so much, that moral backing. But with the athletes in their toughest slump yet, every man-jack ought to hustle out to the orchard Wednesday afternoon and give the boys the figurative hand clasp and pat on the back.

* * *

FANS WON FOR BUFFS

The Spudders return with the spirited Houston team Wednesday for a three-game series. The Spudders last week went down in three at Houston. Houston fandom takes the credit for that triple setback of the league leaders. Houston fandom turned out 12,000 for the three days, cheered the home guards and razzed the Spudders.

* * *

There is very much to this "moral support" stuff. There is little reason to doubt that had the Houston team not been playing on its home diamond and inspired by thousands of leather-lunged backers, it would have come up on the short end of at least two of those three victories it registered by one-run margins.

* * *

The Spudders given the same kind of backing in Wichita Falls, cheered instead of knocked, should be able to shake off their slump and take two of the impending three contests with the Buffs.

* * *

CRUICAL SERIES

Never before in the history of the Wichita Falls franchise has there loomed a more important series than the Houston-Wichita Falls clashes this week. This series is quite liable either to make or break one of the two contenders. Should the Buffs triumph, the sledding indeed will be tough for the Wichita Fals team the remainder of the way. Should Wichita Falls win, its players will be given the necessary momentum on the comeback road to increase that lead over the rest of the loop to such a distance that any possible disaster on the next road trip will fail to knock them from their perch. A loss for the Buffs, although it would not put them completely out of the race, would tend to dishearten them and slow them down considerably in further drive for the championship crown.

* * *

You can take your choice: Ride with the razzberry boys and cheap sports who are ever ready to clout a guy when he is down. Or ride with the true blue type and give a helping hand to the battler who is down but not out, by easing over to the orchard and cheering the gang across in this crucial (for, it really is CRUCIAL) series with the Buffs.

* * *

Notice where Lamble got mad or something yesterday and tried to beat Shreveport almost one-handed. Lapping Lucy laced four safeties in five trips.

* * *

THEY'RE GRIDDING AGAIN

Football is back, if not in reality in spirit. Many aspiring gridsters can be seen any afternoon tossing the pigskin about and jogging through conditioning exercises. Leo Baldwin, from whom Texas university expects much this fall, already has started hurling the oval around at Cedar park with Uncle Joe Smith. Curtis Beaty, a promising piece of varsity material himself, is working away with Marconi Hobbs, last year Coyote star, at Westmoreland. Beaty and Hobbs are lifeguards at the big swim center. Between life-saving chores they find time to heave a few passes and boot some spirals. Both are in top shape right now after a summer of athletic outdoor pursuit.

* * *

They've told you a lot about the swimming facilities at Westmoreland, but did anybody ever tell you about the fish out there? Yessir, you may take it as you wish, but there are crappie in that artificial aquatic playground as long as from your elbow to your hand. A sharp diver almost any time is liable to come up with a big fish in either paw. There isn't any authentic record of anybody having snagged a crappie in Westmoreland barehanded, but I've seen lifeguards pull in pretty neat catches with hook and line.

SPORTS SHADE SPUDS, 9 TO 6

Brilliant 9th-Round Rally Fails to Turn Tide

SHREVEPORT, Aug. 8.—Bunch hits including homers by Adkins and Gill gave the Sports the first game of the series with the Wichita Falls Spudders here today 9 to 6. A five-run rally in the ninth saved the visitors from a one-sided defeat. A double header is billed for Tuesday.

Lamb led the Wichita Falls attack with four hits. Griffin contributed a home run.

The hitting was almost even, Shreveport polling 14 safeties off Kiefer and Steengrafe, while the Spudders hit 13 on Adkins' delivery.

Sports Start Early

Shreveport got away to a two-run lead in the first inning which Wichita Falls was never able to overcome. Harris hit to LaFayette and was safe at the bag when Kiefer dropped LaFayette's toss. Taylor forced Harris at second, Mann to Turgeon. Gill tripled to center scoring Taylor and a moment later he crossed the plate on a sacrifice fly. Distel ended the round by flying to Jenkins.

Again Shreveport scored their runs in a pair when two were scored in the fourth inning. Woehr's hit to short and was safe on Mann's error, Hayworth sacrificed, Kiefer to LaFayette. Adkins then larruped one over the left field wall and Woehr's scored ahead of him.

Wichita Falls scored their first run in the seventh inning. Pete Turgeon popped to third. Swenson doubled to left. Tobin singled to left and Swenson stopped at third base. Steengrafe beat out an infield hit to third, filling the bases. LaFayette forced Steengrafe at second, first to short and Swenson scored. Mann flied to right.

The Sports grew rougher in the seventh round and slammed out three tallies. Gill opened the round with a single to left. Moore was hit with a pitched ball. Kilduff sacrificed both runners up another step. Distel doubled to center scoring Gill and Moore. Woehr's hit to short and Mann threw late to third after Distel and all hands were safe. Hayworth forced Woehr's at second and Distel scored. Adkins giggled to center sending Hayworth to second. Harris fanned.

The Sports scored two more in the eighth inning just to ice away the game. Taylor started the round off with a single to left. Gill then continued his sensational hitting with a home run over the right field wall scoring Taylor ahead of him. The next three men were easy outs.

We Score In Ninth

The Spudders had one big round and this came in the ninth when a five-run rally fell three short of a tie. Swenson grounded out short to first. Tobin walked. Pug Griffin went into the game in the role of a pinch hitter and hit a home run over the left field barrier scoring Tobin ahead of him. LaFayette grounded out second to first. Mann was safe on Woehr's error. Fitzgerald beat out an infield hit to short sending Mann to second. Lamb singled past third filling the bases. Jenkins doubled against center field fence scoring Mann, Fitzgerald and Lamb. Turgeon then cut off the rally with a fly to left.

Dempsey Leaves For East Sunday

By Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 8.—Jack Dempsey, accompanied by his wife, Estelle Taylor, the film actress, will leave for the east Sunday night to start intensive training for his bout with Gene Tunney at Chicago on September 22.

Dempsey will travel on the Union Pacific, stopping off a day in Salt Lake City to see his mother, and stopping three hours in Denver, from where he will proceed direct to Chicago. Training quarters will be selected by Leo Flynn, probably in or near Chicago.

Mrs. Dempsey will be accompanied by a nurse, according to present plans. She is convalescing from a severe illness, and her physician has forbidden interviews enroute.

DELANEY TRIES AGAIN

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.(AP)—In a second attempt to gain a foothold in the heavyweight ranks Jack Delaney will engage in a 15-round battle with Paolino Uzcudin, the Spanish wood chopper, next Thursday night here.

Society of Game Wreckers May Set New Modern Record

The New York Yankees are not only destined to win the American league bunting this year but in doing so seem set to produce some new records for the book.

First of all the Society of Game Wreckers may set a new modern record for the percentage of games won during the season. The team is rolling along at a clip slightly above the .700 average. The highest percentage for a season on record is the mark of the old Chicago Nationals, made in 1880, when they won .798 per cent of their games. The best modern record is .691, set by the Boston Red Sox machine in the campaign of 1912.

The Yankee machine of 1921 set the record for long hits poled out in a season with a total of 506 extra-base blows. So far this year they have lammed out over 330, with better than a third of the season to go.

Ruth, Gehrig et al have a chance to beat the record for the number of extra bases registered on hits. The mark is 861, also a Yankee record. The Hugmen have run their list of extra base wallops close to the 600 mark.

The world's record for home runs scored by a club in a season was set back in 1884 by the Chicago Nationals—140. The Yankees came within nine of that mark in 1921 and now have about 100 to their credit for the present season's efforts.

The St. Louis Americans set the present record of 2462 total bases for a year's schedule. The Yanks have turned in over 1400 to date, but will have to hump to beat the record of the Brownies.

Of course Ruth and Gehrig are breaking all records for the "two most prolific home run hitters on any club." They have turned in over a total of 60.

Ruth long ago hung up a new lifetime home run record and is adding to it daily almost.

Both are shooting at Ruth's "runs driven in" record which he set in 1921 when he shoved over 178. Gehrig leads the Bamb in this race.

Gehrig also has a chance to better the record for the number of base hits by one player in a season. Sisler set the record in 1920 with .257. Lou has a few over a hundred to collect to beat that mark.

He is also flirting with the total base record for an individual—457, set by none other than George Herman himself in 1921.

GIRL MANAGES FIGHT PROMOTION FOR TEX

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.(AP)—A flyweight—and a girl at that—is the real manager of the heavyweight championship fight between Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey during the absence from Chicago of the real promoter, Tex Rickard.

She is Naomi Lowensohn, 21, and weighing a mere 100 pounds. Miss Lowensohn is Rickard's private secretary. Her duties involve the sale of more than 150,000 tickets. Two years ago she never had seen a boxing match. Today she said "it's the most fascinating thing in the world."

Sports Done Brown

By NORMAN E. BROWN

There is talk of the apparent necessity of breaking up the New York Yankees to protect the other clubs of the American league financially and the league itself against National league competition in cities where both leagues are represented.

Those who have broached the subject point out that such a move may become a matter of self-protection for the Yankee owner, Colonel Ruppert, as a decline in the attendance at the Yankee stadium already is noticed.

Were such a plan entered into earnestly and sincerely the Yankees would be forced—as the first step—to dispose of either Babe Ruth or Lou Gehrig. These two men, together, form virtually the bulwark of the Yankee team. Any other changes in the Yankees lineup would be of minor importance, as far as strengthening the playing and drawing power of other clubs were both of these men to be retained.

That is, any other changes that could possibly be made.

Consideration of the possibilities of such a proposed "shakeup" brings many interesting angles up. For instance, the case of Tony Lazzeri.

Ruth and Gehrig share the spotlight of fame around the circuit and the headlines at home. But the most popular man on the ball club today, in the opinion of many New York scribes, is Lazzeri, of second base and the Pacific coast.

Lazzeri's likeable personality, his reticent manner, his sterling play last season—his first year up, his losing battle with Grover Alexander in the grand finale of last year's world series, and his nationality all help to make him a popular favorite.

Ruth is an institution. He is recognized as king and a power on the team, but New York fans have grown somewhat used to him.

I think New York fans could be told that Ruth, perhaps, had to go to help baseball. But a possible disposition of Lazzeri in such a shakeup, I believe, would draw the wrath of the fans.

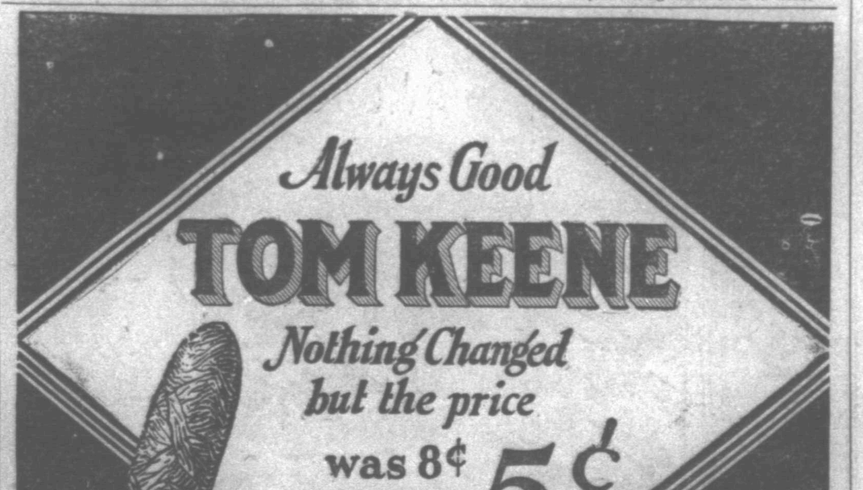

New York wants to "raise" Lazzeri, if you will. The fans already call him theirs.

As far as Ruth and Gehrig are concerned it is within the range of possibilities that Col. Ruppert would consider disposing of one of them — were sufficient pressure brought to bear.

Ruppert realizes that he will be faced next season with the problem of paying Gehrig a salary commensurate with his home run hitting proclivities. Babe Ruth draws a salary of $70,000 a year. Gehrig, at this writing, is topping Ruth in the maddest home run race in baseball's history. Gehrig rightfully will demand some readjustment of his salary. And it shouldn't be a modest request.

If Ruppert finds himself facing decreasing gate receipts next season because of the runaway race the Yankees are making he may ponder deeply the matter of reducing his payroll.

You can bet your hat that any move the colonel makes will be prompted mainly by a desire to protect the gate receipts of his ball club. He is a shrewd business man and well aware that the other moguls aren't as much interested in protecting the Yanks as they are in replenishing their own larders.

BEAUMONT, Aug. 8. (AP)—San Antonio walloped the Exporters 9 to 8 today, each team staging a rally of five runs in the seventh inning. Two of the Exporters runs in the seventh were forced across the plate by Galloway who pitched to one man and walked him, and by Sep Good, who walked Pinch Hitter Joe Burns to force in a tally but who settled down in the eighth and ninth innings. Edwin Olle hit a home run inside the park with the bases loaded in the seventh. The score:

Spudders Book Twin Bill Today

They Return With Houston Club Wednesday

Still fighting, although no doubt pretty tired, your muchly-buffeted Spudders go after Shreveport in Louisiana Tuesday afternoon twice. After the double bill this afternoon, the Spudders jump back to Wichita Falls Wednesday to open a three-game series with the Houston Buffs.

About the best suggestions you could make for the pitching picks this afternoon would be Payne and Fussell. If you don't like that, then put Williams and Steengrafe in there for a few innings. The staff has been shaken up a bit lately with several of the boys not getting their full rest. But George and Fred look like the probable starters.

COWS 7, CATS 2.

FORT WORTH, Aug. 8. (AP)—The Fort Worth Panthers failed to solve the offerings of Tiny Owens to any great extent Monday afternoon and the Dallas Steers won the opening game of the series, 7 to 2. Denny Burns started for the Panthers but went out in the sixth in favor of Williams, who finished. Four runs were scored by the Steers in the sixth to chase Burns. Berry of the Steers had a perfect day at bat with four hits, one of which was a double. The score:

TUERO TURNS BACK HOUSTON

Waco Plunks Buffaloes by 4 to 2 Score

HOUSTON, Aug. 8. (AP)—Oscar Tuero turned back the Bison batters Monday afternoon while his mates pecked away at Ken Penner until they drove him from the mound, and Waco scored a 4 to 2 victory over Houston in the opening game of the short series. Johnny Kane, Buff short fielder, leading hitter for the homelings, got three hits in his first three times to the plate.

REED SOUR ON JACK GORMAN

Finish Brawl Scheduled in Ross Arena Tonight

There may be fair weather over the rest of Wichita Falls and north Texas Tuesday night but one section, the Ross stadium, is going to be a storm center right, if advance stories are correct.

For when Mike Reed, the boisterous Bulgar, and Jack Gorman, San Angelo's mat meteor, clash in the feature bout of the weekly wrestling show tonight at the stadium, fandom will sit in on a regular tornado. That is, if both men keep their promise. Gorman has declared he is going to rush Reed from the start and if he can't out-wrestle him expects to outfight him. Reed says he will stop Gorman in quick order and that all he asks is to be let alone by the police and the referee.

Reed Pretty Sore

This pair of grapplers hooked up in a handicap match here last week in which Reed was to throw Gorman twice within an hour or forfeit his end of the gate receipts. Reed forfeited, because Gorman won a fall in 35 minutes of vicious struggling. Reed says he was gypped by the referee and given a mis-deal all the way around. "But just lemme alone and I'll finish him Tuesday," says the Bulgarian.

Gorman and Reed are to step to a finish, two falls out of three, New York commission rules. First match starts at 8:15 o'clock.

Speed and Science

Yaqui Joe, the Indian speedster, tackles the ambitious Bobby Sandow of Seattle in a finish match, also. Sandow hopes to outspeed the Redskin and if failing in that, to beat him with superior strength. Sandow is rated every bit as powerful as the rugged Charley Grip although weighing 10 to 12 pounds less than Grip. The coast battler will go into the arena weighing about 140 pounds. Yaqui Joe is expected to weigh around the 145-pound mark, perhaps a pounds or so over.

The card looms as one of the most colorful of the current season. In the Reed-Gorman match fandom will satiate itself on the rough stuff and hurly-burly kind of battling with a flavoring of scientific work. The Yaqui-Sandow match may develop the rough element but on the whole stacks up as an exhibition in which speed, science and strength will play the major roles.

Optimists Trim Roaring Lions

Scorer Unable to Win for Bengalian Outfit

The Optimists Giants stuck it on the Lions club Yankees Monday afternoon at Katy park, 16 to 6, in a titanic baseball struggle for the supremacy of the civic club league. Gate receipts were divided equally between the warring aggregations to be used in furtherance of "boys' work."

As James Lyle puts it, "The best club lost!" Lyle, an enthusiastic Lion, was scorekeeper but couldn't win for his team. He says he was intimidated by a squad of Optimists who threatened to throw him out of the park if he "crooked" them.

There were razzberries for the police department when Commissioner Roy Carter muffed a chance in left field that he should have caught in his hip pocket.

Curd "Big" Star.

Bailey Curd, Lion center fielder, was the largest reason for base hits driven out by the Optimists. The rotund Curd couldn't run fast enough to catch any flies. On the one great chance he had to stop a scoring rally, he got his feet tangled in the weeds and fell on his face just as the ball hit his hands. The drive went as a base hit for Ira Brown who should have scored on the blow, but this also quite rotund gentleman ran himself out of breath half way around and had to call time out for recuperation.

James Allred, the barrister, played an eloquent type of ball, if you gather the inference. Allred is an Optimist. He caught a long fly at one stage and cut off two runs.

Handsome Arbiter.

Bill Hoehn, whose greatest claim to fame is he resembles Dutch Mantell and Charley Grip at the same time, did the umpiring and wasn't killed.

There were many noble athletic celebrities included in the two line-ups. Some of the great men who performed with the Optimists were Ira Brown, catcher; Lightsey and Jim Hanks, pitchers (7); Kendall Faulk, also a pitcher (7); W. B. Reaves, first base; Wear, second; Randle, third; Chick Nolen, short; Skinny Murph, left field; Friberg and Allred (not at the same time), center field; Huffhines, right field.

AND WHY

The real reason the Lions lost: That eminent bar athlete, Joseph S. Dickey, didn't know they were going to play, hence was not present at the festivities. The great man when interviewed by The Record News stated, "Mr. Coolidge has resolved NOT to run for a FOURTH term. Now, what has that got to do with it?" With this, he threw the reporter down the back steps.

HORNSBY "FLOP" AS GIANT RIVAL OF RUTH

McGraw Proves That There's Only One "Babe"

There is no counter attraction for Babe Ruth. John McGraw found that out.

It cost him what is estimated at from $275,000 to $300,000 to find it out.

He put over the biggest baseball deal in history in a vain effort to "promote" a counter irritant. He traded Frankie Frisch, brilliant young infielder, and Jimmy Ring, a pitcher of world's series fame, for Rogers Hornsby, manager and star infielder of the first world's championship team St. Louis ever had and the greatest batter in the National league. And with but one end in view—to coax some of the thousands of Yankee fans to the Polo Grounds to watch the Giants.

Hornsby came. He saw.

The New York fans saw him, too.

But to a man they are swearing their allegiance to Babe Ruth—Behemoth of Swat—the greatest home run hitter the world has ever known.

The Giant attendance swelled momentarily. Yankee fans went to the Polo Grounds a few times to see Hornsby in action—as they would to take in any appearance of a notable. Having seen him once they went back to Babe Ruth.

This is no wild statement of fact. The relative attendance at the Giant park and the Yankee stadium proves it.

True the failure of the Giants, with the added strength of Hornsby at bat and afield, to step into the vanguard of the pennant scramble and stay there killed some of the interest in the team. But this failure in itself explains the greatness of Ruth—and the reason for his popularity.

Babe Ruth, ever since the day in 1919 when he first sprang into fame as a home run hitter, has been a magnet. His own personal popularity, the mighty power of his drives, clicked the turnstiles of the Yankees through fat days and lean.

Ruth the Barometer.

The Yankees, winning or losing, were an attraction—because Babe Ruth was in the lineup. When he was forced out of the game through illness this was more apparent.

And, in addition to adding his bat to the offensive strength of the team, Ruth has seemed to add the "spark" to the team's play. As the Babe has gone so have the Yankees fared.

By some odd appeal to the ordinary emotions Ruth was a drawing card in the days of his wildness, when his overt acts drew the wrath of the baseball powers and the censure of the critics. The fans went to see him play—to ride him—in those days.

Babe Ruth Lacing One Out and—At Right, Hornsby.

Ruth was Ruth.

And still is.

The only man in baseball today who might rival him as a gate attraction is Lou Gehrig—his own teammate. And Ruth unintentionally has profited by Columbia Lou's rise to fame. The Babe's enthusiasm over Gehrig's showing has made the Babe more popular than ever—his magnanimity, if you will.

Hornsby Just Plays Part.

Meanwhile Hornsby has become but an individual in the Giant line-up. True he is the star attraction of the team. But set apart from the team he cannot be classed as a "drawing card" of any magnitude. There are many reasons for this. The main one is, however, the lack of personality—a popular appeal—which Ruth has apart from his home run hitting.

Hornsby tops Ruth in some departments of the game—base stealing, for instance.

Also in sacrifice hits.

The two run neck and neck in the total number of base hits.

Ruth leads in hitting percentages but by a substantial margin.

But these departmental averages have little to do with the relative drawing powers of the two.

Hornsby is just a great ball player.

Babe Ruth is a national institution.

And will be after the passes the crest.

Fans will go to see the Babe who was.

McGraw tried and lost.

There is no counter attraction for Ruth.

BRITISH POLO OUTLOOK GOOD

English Should Give U. S. Club Hard Fight

By HERBERT REED
Universal Service Polo Expert.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—English polo prospects looked up considerable in the course of the week, although the Britons still face several trying problems.

Not the least of these is the final settlement of the two forward positions, and just how much of the genet ul-hip can be properly turned over to Captain Roark if he is still to play the pivot position on the team.

Roark's coaching in action has been so far rather intensive than explicit. The criticism that might be made of it is that it runs along the line of "why in blazes weren't you there?" rather than the more useful method of telling the offending player exactly where he should have been and why.

Just at this stage I should say of the great Irish player that he has not yet fitted in, although perhaps he has stirred up his teammates considerably.

Distance Feeding.

One expected brilliant individual play from Roark, and great, long distance feeding strokes, which he has produced, but I do not think the team play has improved appreciably since his advent, since it was already close to perfection. An idea of just how good it must have been in India is gained from the ease and smoothness with which Captain Pert and Captain Dening moved into the two forward positions in place of Captain George and Major Williams, both unmistakably fine players. Pert, for instance, I consider a much better No. 1 than do most other judges. His strokes are not as spectacular as those of the others perhaps, but when he is in front of the goal his accuracy in picking up and scoring with feeding strokes is really uncanny.

Shot Spoilers.

In one respect the British team is really very far ahead of us. They are shot spoilers of the first class, every one of them. In the few games and practices they have held so far I have seen more expert mallet hooking of the quite legitimate order than one is apt to find in an entire American tournament. Also when it comes to stealing the ball out of the melee or from the throw-in all the visiting players are experts. And with their fast-starting ponies they are very dangerous in this respect. The English mallet heads are well adapted to this close work, for some of them have flat surfaces at least half the length of the head. This helps the short nursing shots that set the ball up for the full drive.

Perhaps the most notable and steady improvement has been on the part of Major Atkinson at back. His backhand strokes in the last game played were frequently worthy of Milburn himself, and he came through very handsomely as a scoring threat. The Englishmen are coming along quite well, and from the two problems mentioned should satisfy their supporters.

Texas Polo Star Crippled By Fall

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.(AP)—Suffering from a possible fracture of the skull and with his left side paralyzed, Fred Roe, Texas banker and rancher and a member of the United States international polo squad, was in a hospital today, the victim of a fall from his pony during a practice match.

Roe was crushed and knocked unconscious when his pony stumbled and fell at Fleischmann field yesterday.

The accident put Roe out of consideration as a possible substitute for the international team that will defend the Westchester cup against the British army in India four next month. He was playing against an American army team when the fall occurred.

GETZ TO GET FORMAL PERMIT FOR DEMPSEY-TUNNEY BATTLE

Ticket Price Scale at $40 Top to Be Placed Before Illinois Commission for Its Approval

BY HARRY MACNAMARA
Universal Service Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—Promoter George F. Getz, the big dealer in coal and box-fights, will be given sanction by the Illinois state athletic commission tomorrow to stage the Dempsey-Tunney heavyweight championship combat at Soldier Memorial field, Chicago, on the night of Thursday, September 22 it was learned tonight.

At the same time, his application for a ticket price scale of $40, $30, $25, $20, $15, $10 and $5, all prices to include war tax, will also be approved.

Getz's formal application for September 22 as the date for the big brawl was received by John C. Righeimer, chairman of the commission, today.

To Ask Okeh

The "big dealer" will file his application for the approval of the ticket price scale tomorrow at the regular weekly meeting of the ring board in the Transportation building. Righeimer and Paul Prehn, the other active members of the commission, will attend the meeting. It is a well known fact that both of them are ready to approve the date and the ticket price scale.

"Big Dealer" Getz spent a busy day today. In the morning, he journeyed out to Soldier field, accompanied by "Tex" Rickard, Righeimer and a flock of architects to give the arena the "once over." Draftsmen have perfected two sets of plans for the reconstructions of the battleground but the official working plan has not yet been agreed upon.

Getz Has Parley

In the afternoon Getz conferred with Righeimer again and also attended another session at the Congress hotel with Rickard's ticket experts. The tickets will not be printed until after the official working plan has been agreed upon. "Big Dealer" Getz also found time to file his bond of $200,000 with State Treasurer De Forest F. Kinney, which must be approved before his promoter's license can be officially granted. This will also be done tomorrow by the commission.

After tomorrow's session of the commission, Getz will be asked to round up Dempsey and Tunney for the purpose of signing a new set of articles, this time with "the big dealer" himself. This line of procedure will be necessary in order that the Illinois state code can be conformed with. No difficulty is anticipated in this matter because both Tunney and Dempsey will be produced in due time by Mr. "Tex" Rickard.

Rickard to New York.

Rickard left today at noon for New York to attend the Delaney-Paulino bout scheduled for Thursday night at the Yankee stadium. The Delaney-Paulino bout will be the last that Rickard will promote in the east until after the big brawl here. Immediately after the Delaney combat, Rickard and his entire staff of experts will come to Chicago to remain until after Tunney has either lost or successfully defended his title.

Just before leaving for New York, Rickard received a wire from Dempsey in which former champion stated that he would leave Los Angeles August 15 for Chicago and arrive here August 18. He expects to begin intensive training the day following his arrival.

Leo P. Flynn, Dempsey's current manager, is expected here tomorrow or Wednesday to make arrangements for a suitable training camp.

Billy Gibson, Tunney's manager, is also expected here this week to make arrangements for the champion's training camp. No definite word has been received yet as to just when Tunney will arrive.

Girl Bosses Job.

Following Rickard's departure for New York, Miss Naomi Loewenson, his secretary and ticket wizard, assumed command of the fight headquarters in the Congress hotel.

Applications for tickets will receive consideration in their order of receipt. The distribution of the tickets was at first scheduled to begin August 15 but Miss Loewenson stated today that she did not believe that it would be possible to begin mailing the pasteboards out before August 20. The tickets will be sent by registered mail to the purchasers.

J. B. CRUMMEY

SPORT SHOTS

In addition to setting various team and individual records the New York Yankees of this year may also go down in history as the major league club ever to wreck another.

This the Hugmen have literally done.

Following the fourteenth consecutive defeat suffered by his team at the hands of Ruth-Gehrig & Co., the other day Owner Phil Ball of the St. Louis Browns closeted Manager Howley and himself and decided that the 14 lickings in a row had proved one thing conclusively—something that the two had suspected for some time. That was that the St. Louis entry in the American league is a hopeless conglomeration of ball players of varying ages and ability, which never will amount to anything as now composed.

Those 14 trouncings weren't just defeats. They were routs.

The reorganization of the team is to be thorough. Once more it is stated that George Sisler is to be let out—at the top price, of course. The pitching staff will probably be thoroughly rennovated. Earl Wingard and Wallie Stewart will have a fighting chance to hold on. Wallie Gerber, veteran shortstop, will go on. Bill Mullin, third baseman, may be kept. Harry Rice is the only member of the outfield that has a chance to stick.

* * *

One of my fellow conspirators, remarks that the Boston Braves—the Miracle team of 1914—broke up the famous Athletic team of Connie Mack's. The White Elephants were disbanded following the four straight defeats handed them by the Hub team, but Connie Mack had planned before that to break up the combination—sell his stars at whatever he could get, and rebuild. The famous team had swept through the field with such deadly precision for several years that the home interest had died. Mack knew that many of his main stars were starting on the down grade and decided to realize what he could on them.

The Boston Red Sox team was wrecked some years ago through the selling and trading of its leading members to the Yankees. This was not due, however, to the poor showing of the Sox team but to the efforts of Harry Frazee, theatrical man, to realize ready cash from the club, which he had purchased. The club was heavily mortgaged and the various deals were made when he was "caught" short" on these mortgages.

TOBACCOS which are made both for rolling cigarettes and for pipes are cut fine . . . you might say they are fine for cigarettes but too fine for pipes. For the finer the cut, the faster (and hotter) it burns.

A WORD ABOUT LOADING YOUR PIPE: Instead of pouring Granger in as you would a granulated cut, put in a third of a pipeful, press it down firmly, then another third; then heaping full. Light it around the edges as well as in the middle . . . and you're all set for a long, cool smoke . . .

YATES SHALLOW POOL IN PECOS CALLED LARGEST IN WORLD

MILE ADDITION MADE MONDAY

McMan-Marland Test Has 600 Feet Oil

Special to The Record News.

SAN ANGELO, Aug. 8.—Extension of the Yates field in Pecos county was indicated Monday as McMan and Marland well, almost a mile northwest of California-Yates No. 1, had 600 feet of oil in the hole and was in gray lime at 1265 feet. There was some gas showing picked up from 1237-41 feet.

If a producer, the well will mark a mile extension to the field, making it the largest shallow sand area in the world.

This sector, in fact, thus takes on greater interest than in Crane where the Gulf's No. 2 Waddell opened an entirely new field. It is understood to be drilling in, after making 30 barrels hourly from 3222 feet, establishing it as a good producer. Interest of the big oil companies in the area is minimized in that the well is in the midst of 59 sections, all owned by the Gulf.

Winkler County.

Winkler county furnished added production when the Pure Hendrick's No. 1 commenced flowing, 220 barrels per hour with 2837 the depth of the hole. In the same area, the Texon Hendrick's No. 1, which last week was reported to have gotten a showing of oil at 2637 feet, had drilled deeper during the week without increasing the oil showing. The Pure well is a northern offset to the Gulf's No. 1 Hendricks, the biggest producer in the field. The Texon well is a half mile north of the discovery.

Marland's Murchison No. 1 Hendricks, 2310 feet from the south line and 330 feet from the west line of section 35, block B5, got the big gas at 2425 feet. Slow progress is being made.

Production Pinched.

Pecos county production continues pinched to around 5000 barrels daily, the Mid-Kansas and Transcontinental No. 5A Yates being pinched to 1307 barrels Friday for the first time after it had drilled to 1275 feet and been producing at the rate of 100 barrels an hour. It is an offset to the Smith Taylor well and is the eleventh producer in the field. The California Yates No. 1 remains shut in to around 700 barrels. Only the 7A Yates of this company is near the expected pay, it being at 1100 feet. The Marland Yates 1A is at 842 feet, offsetting the riverbed well, which is producing 175 barrels daily.

NEAR CHANNING

The Deep Rock Oil company, Sam Vander Welde, J. Ben Ross and L. C. Cardiff No. 1 Lyman & Balfour, in section 9, block 2, of G. & M. survey, near Channing, in southeast Hartley county, is still shut down at 3670 feet. The 6 5-8-inch casing has arrived there and is being hauled out to the well. There are considerable cavings in the hole, which is uncased from 2410 feet. Gas was had around 2915 feet, and an oil show was found from 3648 to 3650 feet.

COLEMAN COUNTY

Roth and Farot No. 1 Lewis, Coleman county, Texas, a wildcat, has 750 feet of oil in the hole with no gas from the sand, 1066 to 1078 feet. It will be shot.

ANOTHER GAS SHOWING IN FOARD COUNTY TEST

Fain-McGaha and Roxana Petroleum corporation are underreaming to set pipe on another gas bearing sand in their No. 1 Matthews, two miles north of Thalia in eastern Foard county. The new showing is at 1660 feet and the gas is estimated at 1,000,000 cubic feet daily. This well's record to date is as follows: Million feet gas at 855; two million feet gas at 1370 feet; some gas and 55 barrels of oil at 1490 feet and the present showing. The test is in G. C. & S. F. survey.

HUMBLE WELL ON PUMP

Humble Oil and Refining company pumped 49 barrels of oil and 10 of water from its No. 1 Castleberry, Wilbarger county wildcat, in pumping the head off Sunday, but officials say they still do not know how much confidence to put in the test. Sand is at 1535-40 feet. Location is two miles southeast of the South Vernon pool, section 67, block 14, H. & T. C. survey.

SOUTH OF THE CITY

Duncan and White have brought home the bacon. Wichita Falls' much touted "suburban" oil pool is now a reality. Just seven miles southwest of the city limits, Duncan and White's No. 2 Nitsche is being completed in the 750-foot sand as a 25 barrel producer and is showing very little water as was the case with No. 1. The well is in block 2, Denton county school land, and just a short distance south of the Seymour road pavement.

SOUTH OF OLNEY

Roxana Petroleum corporation and Gwynn are pulling pipe at their No. 1 McClure, located one mile south of Olney in north Young country. Depth of the test was 1106 feet.

NORTH OF MUENSTER

Magnolia Petroleum company is ready to drill in its No. 1 Andress, a southwest offset to No. 1 Alice Johnsen, the gas well. The Andress test is located in the Bartlet Anibal survey.

Magnolia's No. 1 Stacey, northeast of the gas well, and in the Jonathan Clark survey, is drilling at 1955 feet.

Roxana Petroleum corporation's No. 4 Walterscheid, in the Muenster pool proper, has 300 feet of oil in the hole from 1716-27 feet and will be given a light shot.

NORTH OF THE CITY

Ascot Oil company is drilling below 1000 feet in its No. 2 Dr. Tyson, located in the Walter Harvey survey, and two miles north of Wichita Falls. No. 1 was a junked hole at 1760 feet.

SOUTHWEST ARCHER

Stanley MacGregor and Panhandle Refining company have an estimated 100-barrel well in their No. 1 Farmer in southwest Archer. The well was standing with 1040 feet of oil in the hole from sand at 1482-83 1-2 feet. It is located in the northwest corner of the west 20, south 80, west 160 acres, block 3, north Anderson ranch subdivision. It is a wildcat and apparently has opened up the real production on the Farmer ranch.

East of this well, Roxana and Alexander and Barnes are drilling at 600 feet in No. 1 Farmer, block 3, north Anderson ranch.

The Sun Oil company controls all surrounding acreage with the exception of a few small blocks.

IN THE PANHANDLE

A. M. Lloyd, a geologist with the Sun Oil company, is in Amarillo for a few days.

HODGE ON VACATION

H. P. Hodge, head of the Magnolia Petroleum company's land office in Wichita Falls, is in Chatfield, Texas, his old home, for a vacation.

PANHANDLE'S GUSHER

Panhandle Refining company's No. 7 McCluskey, Young county, flowed 5264 barrels Sunday. No. 20 did 300 barrels and the lease 5619 barrels. The figure for No. 7 was a peak.

Seminole Declines Only 5000 Barrels On First Day of Plan

TULSA, Aug. 8.—Although proration was in effect in the greater Seminole area yesterday, the production decrease was less than 5000 barrels.

Under the agreement adopted last Tuesday, to go into effect Friday morning, production in the Seminole was to be cut to 450,000 barrels.

Production figures issued for the 24-hour period ending Friday morning at 7 o'clock totaled 501,389 barrels. Yesterday morning at 7 o'clock, 24 hours after proration, the production was 496,340 barrels. The reduction following proration was 5049 barrels.

Proration figures for the operators were issued to them last week by Umpire Ray Collins and his staff of assistants. Seminole operators here yesterday said they were carrying but the umpire's instructions, which provided for cutting slightly more than 10 per cent.

Several reasons were advanced by oil men why the decrease was only 5000 barrels when 50,000 barrels were expected. They explained Collins and his staff were too busy to put their program in full operation in one day and that the companies could not curtail the output to the required degree in one day.

Cotton--Stocks--Latest Market Quotations--Grain--Cattle

Cotton

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8. (AP)—The government report estimating the condition of the cotton crop as of Aug. 1, at 69.5 and the indicated crop at only 13,492,000 bales, was far below expectations and was followed by a jump of two cents a pound in the cotton market today. The advance was checked at 19.22 for December by the operation of the maximum daily fluctuation rule, but there seemed to be comparatively few sellers at that figure and buying orders were in evidence right up to the close, which was at the limits on all positions, with the final tone strong at net advances of 183 to 187 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of two points to a decline of three points. There was a little buying on relatively steady Liverpool cables, but more favorable weather advices promoted realizing or liquidation and the market eased off during the early trading. October declined to 16.95, December to 17.22, and March to 17.50, or within a point of the low prices touched on the reactions of last week. The market steadied at these figures when trading was suspended to receive the government report.

The official crop indication was about a million bales below the average of the recent private reports, while the condition figures were also well under the private figures and fell slightly below the condition reported at this time last year. There was a general rush to buy when the market reopened, but except for realizing there seemd to be no cotton for sale with every month closing 200 points above the low level of the morning. December, closing at 19.22, was within 1-7 points of the season's high record established on July 26. The advance in Liverpool was even sharper than in the local market, and the strength there naturally encouraged the holding of long contracts for still higher prices locally.

While there were many buying orders reported in the market, the actual volume of business during the afternoon was restricted by the comparative scarcity of offerings. Today's advance was the first to bring the maximum fluctuations rule into play since September, 1924. Exports today 4167 bales making 73,856 so far this season. Fort receipts 10,803. U. S. port stocks, 895,847.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 8. (AP)—Following publication of a disappointing government report cotton prices soared 200 points above the lows made just prior to the issuance of the figures. The rise was the limit allowed by the local cotton exchange. October rallied from 16.84 to 18.84 and closed at the latter figure, a gain of 183 points for the day. The general market closed at a net advance of 183 to 187 points.

Liverpool cables were better than due at the opening and first trades showed gains of 4 to 8 points. Prices eased off in the first hour on good weather in the belt and December dropped to 17.10, 10 points under Saturday's close. The market then gradually improved and just before trading was suspended to receive the government figures December had rallied to 17.26.

The government made the condition average 69.5 and the indicated yield 13,492,000 bales, which was about 1,500,000 bales fewer than the trade expected. Immediately after the resumption of trading all months soared 200 points, with December at 19.10. As the rise was the limit allowed by the exchange trading in these months was automatically suspended.

As there were great volumes of buying orders in the market and a general lack of selling orders trading was virtually at a standstill and the market hung at the top for the remainder of the season.

Exports for the day totaled 4172 bales.

Market Takes Short Selling In Good Style on Wall Street Profit Taking Wave Monday

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, August 8.—Stocks were under additional pressure today but the market acted according to Hoyle by taking the short selling and profit-taking in good style. Banks called $15,000,000 in loans but there was plenty of money to be obtained at 3 3-4 per cent.

The sensation in Wall street was the $10 advance in cotton on the government crop estimate which placed the yield at 13,492,000 bales. This was considerably less than the trade expected. Private figures placed the yield at 14,500,000 bales. There was a rush to buy when the official figures were known and the market soared the limit of 200 points—two cents a pound or $10 a bale. The 200 points is the limit of an advance for one day under the trading rules of the cotton exchange.

Cotton went up just as this column has been predicting for two weeks. It was pointed out here that the boll weevil was eating up cotton at a rapid rate; that in some parts of the belt there was too much rain and in other sections drought had developed; also that the Texas production would fall materially short of the 1926 yield.

Wheat soared five cents a bushel on Canadian crop reports. Frost occurred in the northwest wheat belt and there were reports of black rust. Corn advanced 3 cents a bushel. It was a big day in the commodity market.

General Motors went down, accompanied by Du Pont. Reports in the street are that directors of General Motors will vote to split the stock two-for-one and place the shares on a $5 annual dividend basis. This would be at the rate of $10 on the present share. Directors, however, may see fit to declare extra dividends from time to time as earnings warrant. One division of General Motors not yet heard from is Yellow Truck. Directors of General Motors plan to make the company the largest in its field, manufacturing all sizes of trucks and busses and within a few years this division of the motor business should prove gratifying in the way of earnings. People who hold Yellow have put it away.

Reynolds featured the tobaccos by rising two points. American Tobacco was higher and Liggett & Myers held firmly. Lorillard held its ground well. A purchase which is considered a rare stroke has just been made by the Lorillard company in acquiring 7,000,000 pounds of the choicest and finest old southern bright tobacco, aged for three years. The tobacco was bought from the British American company and indicates friendly relations between the two concerns.

Bethlehem Steel was the strong feature. The stock is being worked by a powerful New York, Philadelphia and Chicago clique that anticipates dividend action and large orders for armored plate from the government because of the collapse of the Geneva conference. Strength of Submarine Boat was due to reports that the company would receive large orders from the Japanese government. Other strong issues were Sterling Home Products and American Home Products which went higher on increasing business and the belief that Sterling, which owns American, will acquire a large stock interest in one of the big British companies.

Madison Square Garden is being accumulated because of the success of the banking interests which have taken what is rumored to be full control of the garden. The banking interests have tied up in contracts the principal events at advantageous terms to the Madison Square Garden company. They are planning to have a circuit of these amusement places throughout the United States, principally in Newark, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, St. Louis and Buffalo.

The bankers have tied up one of the principal events of the winter—hockey—which was a phenominal success last year. This assures the Garden a big return when in former years the place was idle. Hockey starts in October and runs until March and the attendance at principal events runs from 16,000 to 18,000 persons. Buying of the Garden stock also is based on the successful management of the last big fight and the profits to be derived from the next championship meeting.

Atchison receded following the I. C. C. valuation placed on the property which some thought would prevent consideration of a stock dividend.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.(AP)—Frost damage of serious magnitude reported done to Canadian grain brought about a mad scramble of buying here today. Wheat went skyward 6 cents a bushel in some cases, corn and rye 5 cents, and oats 3 cents. Many high price records for the season were smashed.

Closing quotations were greatly unsettled in all the speculative pits, with wheat 5 to 5⅝c net higher, corn 2½ to 3⅝c up, oats showing ¾ to 2c advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 45c.

In the wheat market especially, trading broadened out on a big scale, and prices finished but little below the topmost level reached. With temperatures in Canada reported as low as 22, and with messages at hand indicating that heavy damage had taken place over a wide area, all other factors were virtually lost sight before the day was over. Announcement of an increase of 9,902,000 bushels in the United States wheat visible supply was altogether ignored.

Possibility that frosts will extend downward into the corn belt did much to increase demand for corn. Meanwhile, unfavorable crop reports from leading corn states were unabated.

Oats and rye were influenced both by the action of wheat and by adverse field reports from the northwest.

Provisions went higher with grain and hogs and because of a violent upturn in the market for cotton oil.

NEW CEMETERY LAW FOR CITY

Ordinance Passed by Council on First Reading

An ordinance prescribing regulations for the upkeep of graves in cemeteries owned by the city of Wichita Falls was passed Monday night on its first reading by the city council.

The ordinance was prepared by Thelbert Martin, city attorney, on request of A. W. King, park and sanitary commissioner.

Fines totaling $2279 were collected by the corporation court during July, according to a report presented to the council by R. M. Hurst, clerk of the court.

The report showed that 522 cases had been brought to trial in the court, all except 49 resulting in convictions. Three prisoners escaped from the city jail during July, the report set out.

Payment of $574.63, one half of the cost of maintaining charity patients at the Wichita General hospital for July, was authorized by the council. The county government pays one half and the city one half.

Hearing on a project for the paving of Sunset Drive, from Kings Highway to Tulna Lane, was ordered closed. An ordinance for the paving of the street will be presented on its first reading at the next council meeting.

Projects calling for the paving of Bluff, from Second to Sixth, and Warren, from Burnett to North Travis, were cancelled by the council due to the protests against the paving filed by property owners.

Hearings on the paving of Kings highway from Polk to Block No. 1, were deferred by the council for two weeks.

Payment of $29,667.46 to the J. E. Morgan Construction company for work completed on the municipal auditorium was authorized by the council.

In the absence of W. E. McBroom, city clerk, the minutes of the meeting were recorded by Jack Irvine, assistant city clerk. The session was attended by Mayor R. E. Shepherd, A. W. King, park and sanitary commissioner; P. B. Curd, water commissioner, and Roy E. Carter, fire and police commissioner. Due to absence on vacations, Dral Jones, finance commissioner, and J. W. Hunt, street commissioner, were not present.

CLAY TO HAVE BIG EXHIBIT

County Aranging Display For T-O Fair

Clay county is planning for a big exhibit at the Texas-Oklahoma fair, October 1 to 6, according to information received Monday by Secretary R. E. Shepherd of the fair association, Clay County Agent R. G. McNeil is busy gathering the necessary crops for the exhibit and the display is expected to be one of interest.

Hardeman county has already made application for entering an exhibit. Mr. Shepherd is very much encouraged over the prospects for having the greatest number of exhibits this year that have ever been shown at the fair.

An aggressive advertising campaign for the fair will begin Wednesday or Thursday, Mr. Shepherd announced. The little red automobile with fair signs painted all over it, will begin touring the country at that time. Window cards will be distributed in probably one hundred towns in the Wichita Falls trade territory. Bill board signs will also be posted.

Man and Wife Must Stay In Jail Until They Take Jobs Offered Them

"And then they wonder why social workers get grey hairs in their head!"

So thought Miss Myrle Nealy, welfare council official, emerging from a hectic session of corporation court Monday morning, wherein she had "done her best to get the husband of a family to go out and make a living for his kiddies."

But the husband didn't play that way, and after filing of charges of vagrancy against the husband and the wife both were remanded to the city jail.

In the meantime the welfare council will try to find jobs for both, and if the family wants them when they are found, both will be released. This is only one among many cases that are being handled at the present by the welfare council, Miss Nealy said.

Labor to Send Out Invitations to Big Labor Day Celebration Here

Labor Day committees met in the Labor Temple Monday evening at a special Labor Day meeting and reports from the several committees were received and approved.

The invitations committee reported that the letters of invitations were being addressed and would be in the mail on Tuesday. The body voted to extend through the press an invitation to the merchants and industries of the city to participate in the Labor Day parade, so that if for any reason any friends of organized labor did not receive a personal invitation they would accept the invitation extended through the press.

The grounds committee reported that several parks had been visited and eliminations made, leaving two parks open for selection. The committee meets again on Tuesday night, when final selection of the grounds for the picnic will be made and the park selected will be announced after this meeting.

Special attention was called to the committees again that no solicitations of funds outside the Central Trades and Labor Council would be made, and no cash donations would be asked or accepted.

Reports from several organizations that the members had voted to walk in the parade and wear the uniform of their respective crafts was enthusiastically received, as was the report that floats were being prepared.

"It was voted last meeting night to have the marshal of the day and his aides ride gray mules. However no official committee has been appointed to secure these mules, and it remains to be seen whether or not the action will be carried out," one labor official said.

12,800 Names on Jury Wheel When Completed

Filling of the Wichita county jury wheel was completed Monday. Approximately 12,800 names were placed in the wheel.

The wheel is filled once each year, under the direction of a committee composed of district clerk, county clerk, county tax assessor and county tax collector. The names for the wheel are obtained from the county tax assessment rolls.

In 1926 there were only approximately 12,000 names placed in the wheel, making an increase of 800 for 1927.

The case was prosecuted by John Humphrey, assistant county attorney.

GIRLS TRICKED TWO MEN HELD

One Pays $25 Fine for All-Night Trip

Investigations over a period of three days by Miss Myrle Nealy, welfare council official, and Officers Natt McKelvey and G. W. Wright resulted Monday morning in the arrest of two Wichita Falls men in connection with a series of escapades in which several girls under 20 years of age have been inveigled into all night trips to surrounding communities through false statements.

The two men use as their ruse a pose that they have located jobs in nearby towns for the girls, Miss Nealy said, and arrange trips, mainly at night, to see their prospective employers.

Their last trip was made Saturday night, when it was reported to Miss Nealy that they had told two Wichita Falls girls who were out of employment that they "had found good jobs for them in Burkburnett," and asked them to go and "make final arrangements." Arriving at Burkburnett they found no such employer, and the girls in defending themselves from alleged improper advances, threatened to report them to police. The men were reported to be riding in a small car.

After investigations by Assistant District Attorney E. F. Fruechte, charges of aggrevated assault were filed against both in the county court at law. One paid a fine of $25 and costs; the other is being held in the county jail to await trial, which probably will be set in September.

Bond was Set at $750

The two men are alleged to have been practicing the ruse over a period of several months, and a long list of girls' names was found in the possession of one of the men on his arrest late Sunday night by Officers McKelvey and Wright, it was reported. Recently they had phoned girls from a local filling station, pretending it was their "office."

Young girls of the city, especially those dependent upon themselves, are warned to beware of such schemes, and to report any suspicious telephone calls to police headquarters, J. E. Glenn, chief of police, said.

Berlin Planes To Hop Saturday

so much danger," said Mrs. Heyman. "There is some danger, isn't there?"

Mrs. Heyman asked assurance that she would receive the paper each morning to follow developments on the flight as presented by her brother.

Knickerbocker has never lived in Wichita Falls although his father, Dr. Knickerbocker held a pastorate here several years, moving four years ago to Dallas and just recently to Little Rock. The correspondent will be the first trained newspaper man to make a transoceanic flight.

DESSAU, Germany, Aug. 8. (AP)—The trans-Atlantic hop-off of the two Junkers planes Europa and Bremen has been postponed until Saturday, it was announced today by Director General Gotthard Sachsenberg of the Junkers works.

"I am sorry to say that we cannot start before Saturday as the weather is unfavorable," he said. "We have decided to use the time for adding a number of technical improvements further insuring the success of the flight. These will not be finished before Friday night."

The only American in the expedition, Hubert R. Knickerbocker, who will go in the Europa as representative of the Hearst publications by general agreements, proved to be the best pupil at today's school for receiving wireless signals. The pilots confess that they had forgotten most of their knowledge.

The rubber boats which will be carried on the flight were tested today. They can be inflated in three minutes and can carry 1100 pounds.

LEVINE AND DROUHIN SETTLE TROUBLES.

PARIS, Aug. 8. (AP)—With three French planes, two German expeditions and one English plane virtually ready to hop off for a westward flight across the ocean and waiting only for favorable weather, Charles A. Levine and Maurice Drouhin, the French flier today patched up their differences to the extent of signing a new contract for the return flight of the Columbia.

The signing of the contract gave the Columbia a good chance to be the first to make the crossing since the ship, which already has the distinction of having flown from New York to Germany, is tuned up and ready to take off the minute the weather is favorable.

The Columbia's motor which has been run only 100 hours, one-third of its normal life, is reported to be in perfect condition by "Doc" Kincade, the Wright motor expert.

The French expeditions, which are hustling to be the first to get into the air, are led by Dieudonne Coste, Leon Givon and Sub-Lieutenant Paul Tarascon. Coste, whose flight was denied official sanction several days ago because of the absence of floats on his plane, now is being given permission by the ministry of war to attempt the hop.

FLIER GETS THRILL

Setting of Wichita County Tax Rate Postponed Until Tuesday

Due to the absence of H. H. Haynes, county commissioner, the official setting of the Wichita county tax rate for 1927, scheduled for Monday, was deferred until 1:30 p. m. Tuesday by the county commissioners court.

The state law provides that every member of the court must be present when the tax rate is set. A few weeks ago the court unofficially announced that the rate would be 80 cents per $100 valuation for 1927.

Commissioner Haynes was unable to attend the Monday meeting due to the serious illness of his son.

All bids for the drawing of a county map were rejected by the court. Opening of bids for the supplying of gas to county buildings was deferred until Aug. 15.

U. S. Cotton Forecast Indicates Crop Far Under 1927; Price Leaps $10 Bale

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8. (AP)—The boll weevil menace is the outstanding factor in the cotton situation this year, the department of agriculture said today in announcing that indications at present pointed to a production of 13,492,000 bales. This total would be smaller than any crop since 1922 and 4,500,000 bales less than last year's record crop.

On the weather during the remainder of this month and the first half of September will depend whether the crop will be larger or smaller than that now indicated, the department said. Hot, dry weather would tend to lower the weevil hazard and correspondingly enhance the production outlook but cloudy and rainy days would tend to make the menace increasingly serious, its experts said.

Infestation of weevils is the heaviest since 1923, and is three times as heavy as at this time last year, with Georgia suffering most from the pest.

In arriving at its figures of indicated production, the crop reporting board made allowances for average abandonment of acreage, for weevil damage and for average weather conditions for the remainder of the season.

COTTON PRICE LEAPS UP $10 PER BALE.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8. (AP)—Exciting bidding on the New York cotton exchange which today followed the publication of the department of agriculture report indicating a cotton yield of about 1,000,000 bales short of expectations, and 69.5 per cent of normal, sent prices soaring 200 points, or $10 a bale, the full one-day limit permitted under the rules of the exchange. After the limit was reached, trading quieted down.

The government announcement, totally unexpected, caught the market also devoid of cotton news. A 20 minute recess had been called to receive the report, and when trading was resumed an uproar broke out as traders shouted their buying orders. On the frantic rise, October cotton leaped to 18.84 from 16.84, while December spurted from 17.17 to above 19.10.

Little Cotton Offered.

Even at the day's top price, many traders were unable to execute buying orders received from their customers as little cotton was offered for sale. This was due to recent heavy liquidation which had practically eliminated speculative long lines.

The rise in cotton was accompanied by an advance of 58 to 83 points in the price of cottonseed oil, due to the government's report, and to a sharp increase in lard quotations. Trading was the largest over any single day in recent weeks, totalling around 52,000 barrels. Much of the buying was for southern and western accounts.

PET KILLS CHILD

Old Horse Tramples Its Tiny Child Owner To Death

HUNTSVILLE, Ark., Aug. 8. (AP)—Price McCloud, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett McCloud, is dead, a victim of his pet. The child was trampled to death by a horse too old to work, but kept because of the love the little boy had for it.

While playing yesterday Price advanced toward the horse which was grazing nearby. The animal charged him, knocked him down and pawed him. Price's parents rescued him, but he died soon afterward.

KIWANIS PICK 3 DELEGATES

Club to Be Represented at State Meeting

The Kiwanis club luncheon Monday at the Kemp hotel was not exactly a "secret session" but as it developed, it was a session of secret telling. C. J. (Joe) Pate in making the principal talk told of some of the inside facts concerning the profession of architecture and Miss Zo Frizzell, entertainer de luxe, cupped her hands to her lips and whispered some startling things about Bill McKemie, the John Gilbert of the club.

Miss Frizzell is a blues singer and Miss Blanche McMicham plays her piano accompaniment. They are headliners with Honey Hank Harris' crowd now playing at the Mission theater. Miss Frizzell sang a couple of blues numbers and then asked for a "real nice man" to assist her in a skit and naturally McKemie was elected.

As everything said in the skit was purely confidential, Miss Frizzell asked that the Kiwanians keep it to themselves. There was something or other said about "great big, beautiful brown eyes."

Mr. Pate used as his subject "Architecture" and explained the relations between the architect and client as well as the qualities embodied in an architect's ideals.

Mr. Pate's advice to prospective builder's is to employ an expert, competent and reliable architect.

"The idea of employing an architect on the basis of low cost is wrong. It is unsafe and uneconomical and the builder should be sure that his architect is worthy of his confidence," declared Mr. Pate.

The following delegates to the state convention of Kiwanis clubs at Corpus Christi were elected: J. L. Jackson Jr., J. N. Sherrill and Grover Bullington. Alternate delegates elected were Dr. C. W. Castner, Walter Nelson and Jimmie Williams.

Miss Nealy dropped in, recognized the lad as one she had helped in the past, who had been released from a reformatory, was unable to find his parents, was willing to work but could find nothing to do, and who confessed that he had stolen the package to ward off starvation.

RAIDERS GET BOOZE HAUL

110 Gallons of Whiskey Seized Here

Officers of the sheriff's department and the city force shook off a week's lethargy about 10 o'clock Monday night, confiscated over 110 gallons of corn liquor, 100 bottles of cold beer, arrested three men and a woman, and unearthed one of the most intricate liquor traps ever seen here, in a raid on a home in the Hillcrest addition. In the home lived a former deputy sheriff from Oklahoma and his son, who rented the house and garage from the third man who was arrested. They denied knowledge of the hidden liquor, which was secreted in behind a dummy rear wall of the garage. The woman in the case was a friend of the former deputy's son, who arrived at the scene with her escort just as the raid had begun.

Nine Barrels Found.

The whisky was contained in nine barrels and several dozen half gallon jars, all of which were stored in the hidden cache. This latter is the prize of them all. The officers entered the garage and saw a solid wall in the rear. But officers of the sheriff's department in their investigations found that if one pulled a secreted rope, located on the top of a rafter, a trap door would open, disclosing a storehouse about two feet deep in the rear of the 16-foot garage.

The owner of the home was arrested first. His son arrived, and both he and his escort were arrested by Officers McKelvey and Wright. The owner was carrying a pistol at the time of his arrest.

Liquor Seized.

The liquor was taken to the sheriff's office, and the alleged owners were lodged in the county jail. Charges will be filed Tuesday.

Sheriff W. G. Bralley was accompanied on the raid by Deputies Warren Belcher, Gant and Dick Morris, and Officers McKelvy and Wright of the city force.

Mosquito Bite Sends Maricle to Hospital

Postmaster O. P. Maricle was on the road to recovery Monday after suffering three days with an infection on his left ankle, caused by a mosquito bite received several days ago. Mr. Maricle was confined to his home Sunday and part of Saturday. The infection was treated at a hospital and Monday he was walking with the aid of a crutch.

Mr. Maricle said that he attributed the infection as much to the fact that he was wearing black socks as to the mosquito bite. Several days ago, he said, the screens on the federal building were removed for a short time while being repaired and mosquitos bit him on the ankle.

He inadvertantly scratched the "bites" which became infected by contact with the dye in his socks, Mr. Maricle said. Late Friday the ankle became infected.

Postoffice Team Plans Comeback at "Sluggers"

Between assorting letters and parcels and replaying the ball game of Saturday with the court house team, employes of the Wichita Falls postoffice Monday were agitating a resumption of hostilities on the diamond with the court house crew.

The court house sluggers came off with the long end of a 13 to something score but the Mailers contend that is not their chief reason for wanting another game.

Postmaster O. P. Maricle was confined to his home with an infected ankle and Superintendent of Mails O. K. Johnson was unable to be in the grandstand. Several other postal employes were not at the game.

It was believed that if the Mailers get their full strength of rooters on deck the score will be in their favor. The Courthouse Sluggers, the victors, Monday were applying liniments and saying little.
