NOBODY'S BUSINESS

BY JULIAN CAPERS JR.

Austin.—The first called session of the 44th legislature wrote finis to its inglorious record of final enactment of only one major piece of legislation, and was promptly recalled by the governor for a second 30-day try at the job at a cost of another $100,000 to the taxpayers. The chain store tax bill virtually the sole accomplishment of the solons in a month of "work"—is so badly patched up that it is full of legal holes, and must be fought out all over again, as amendments to make it proof against court attacks are submitted.

Some value doubtless attaches to the long-drawn-out debate and committee wrangles over liquor regulation. fee officers' salaries, and old age pension. Whether the legislature can capitalize this and utilize it to speed enactment of these and important tax measures to finance the pensions during the second special session remains to be seen.

Three significant developments occurred last week in the Texas oil situation. They were:

1. The house hot oil investigating committee wheathered a stormy three-hour debate and came out with its life prolonged to April 1, 1936, and a $10,000 fund to make a thoro probe of reported abuses in the industry. The house flatly instructed its probers to make its witnesses to be represented by counsel with the right of cross-examination and with a warning to go after major companies and not confine its probe to a few small operators.

2. General improvement in market conditions of the oil industry whose normal prosperity means millions of dollars weekly to thousands of Texans. War activity in Europe is credited with increasing foreign demand which has firmed American crude markets.

3. Holding of second successful session of the interstate oil states compact commission, where further unanimous steps were taken by representatives of the oil producing states to regulate their oil business under heir own constitutional powers. This significant statement was made by Tom Anglin, representing Oklahoma on the commission:

"Other oil producing states are amazed at the wonderful achievementsof Texas in its fair patriotic efficient and honest regulation of oil production. All of us can well emulate the example set by Texas. which is a tribute to that state's railroad commission and especially its chairman, Col. E. O. Thompson. We all look to him as the ablest oil regulation administrator in the land."

Thousands of unemployed citizens and dozens of communities in Texas, are looking squarely to the engineers department of the Texas highway commission to see that Texas does not lose any of the $23,000,000 allotted for extra highway and grade crossing elemination in the state. To get all these job giving millions, the highway engineers must complete plans and let contracts by July 1, 1936. A howl of protest will go up from every community that fails to realize its share if the time limit is permitted to cheat them of their part of this highway work.

Realizing they are on the spot the engineering field forces of the highway department last week launched the first of a series of four meetings with road-building contractors thruout the state, at which B. W. Coulter, of the headquarters engineering staff and C. H. Newell, representative of the contractors, are interpretating the complicated regulations with which the contractors must comply, as part of this program are being built under five different federal department allocations. The field sessions were held in San Antonio on Oct. 16th, Houston Oct. 17th, and will move to Dallas on the 23rd and Lubbock on Oct. 24th. Several hundred road-builders and highway engineering men attended each meeting.

That Gov. Jimmie Allred will be a large factor in control of the next Democratic convention delegation from Texas—to be selected next summer—is the conclusion of political observers here. The visit of Jesse Jones, who was a mission guest of the Allreds, the growing political friendship between the governor and the two Texas senators, Allred's recent conference at Uvalde with Vice President Garner. his visit with Mrs. Roosevelt in Fort Worth, and President Roosevelt's personal telegram to Allred anent the celebration for Jones, are all given due significance in the minds of those who presume to forecast future political events.

Rex Tugwell, once head of the Rosevelt brain-trust, now relegated to a quiet job as head of the rural resettlement administration, and Senator Tom Connally are indulging in a small but bitter war over location of the Texas-Oklahoma headquarters of RRA in Stilwell, Okla. The RRa recently had 1200 people—mostly ex-school teachers—on its payroll in Texas, and they haven't "re-settled" anybody yet, Connally claims. The senator wants the headquarters moved to some central location in Texas, and some results shown for the comparatively large expenditure which the RRA has made.

House-Thomas Wedding Thursday

Mr. J. B. (Boyd) House and Miss Jessie Scott Thomas were united in marriage last Thursday night at nine o'clock at the Methodist parsonage, the Rev. C. B. Meador officiating.

Only a few relatives and friends witnessed the ceremony.

Boyd is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. House of Loraine. He received his education in the Loraine High School and graduated with the 33-34 class. He is now employed in a dry goods store at Hermleigh.

Jessie Scott is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Thomas and she too received her education here, graduating last spring.

Both of these young people are popular among the younger set here and their friends are numbered by their acquaintances.

Immediate relatives were guests at a wedding dinner at high noon Sunday in the home of the bride's parents.

They will make their home in Hermleigh.

SCHOOL NOT TO CLOSE FOR COTTON PICKING

The Board of Trustees of the Loraine school met the latter part of last week and decided not to close school for two weeks for cotton picking after they had announced it would close. The reason for the change in decision was that cotton was not opening fast enough to justify such a move. Lots of pickers have arrived in the country and it will probably not be necessary to stop school at all.

MAYES AND MUNS HANDLING GAS APPLIANCES

Olen Mayes and Ottis Muns have formed a partnership and are now handling a new gas, designed especially for country homes. They will also handle all kinds of gas appliances including Electrolux.

Mr. Mayes stated Wednesday that he had just completed a sale to a country home near Roscoe which included gas heaters, range, refrigerator, etc.

The new firm has a show room next to the G. B. Tartt Motor Company and will be glad to demonstrate to anyone interested.

Mr. and Mrs. John Nelson and daughters and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Richey visited relatives in San Angelo Sunday.

Colorado Wolves Defeat Bulldogs

The Colorado Wolves defeated the Loraine Bulldgs under the lights at the Wolves Stadium last Friday night 13 to 6. It was a battle from the starting whistle until the final whistle was blown, the Bulldogs holding the Wolves and smearing their plays all over the field. The Wolves outweighed the Bulldogs more than ten pounds to the man but it was very seldom hat they could get anywhere through the line or around the end zone.

The Bulldog line held nobly in several pinches, stopping the Wolves in their tracks near the goal on three occasions. The Wolves likewise held the Bulldogs from scoring a time or two when they were in theshadow of the goal. The Wolves star ball carriers, Priester, Morrison and Miller, proved ineffective many times against the fighting Bulldogs who drifted through the Wolves line and stopped them at the line of scrimmage and many times for losses.

First downs were 14 for Colorado and 10 for Loraine. Colorado attempted seven passes, had one intercepted and completed none. Loraine attempted nine passes, had three intercepted and completed three. Colorado was penalized seven times for a total of 80 yards and Loraine five times for a total of 55 yards.

The Bulldogs went into the affray with such force that the Wolves were taken completely off their feet. They fought hard every inch of the way. Their blocking. tackling and interference was good, so good that it looked almost like a veteran team out there on the field. The Allbright brothers, Will and Joe, Gene Roberts, H. B. McCollum and Eldon Mahon were outstanding on the defense. Chubby James, William Simmons, Garland Land and Eldon Mahon were the principal ground gainers. Lee did not draw many assignments to carry the ball but when he did he went through the line with power for some mighty good yardage. Brown and Hall in the line were stars on offensive play. Roy Miller was the outstanding man on the Wolves team.

DISTRICT MISSIONARY TO PREACH AT BAUMAN

Rev. Willis J. Ray, District Missonary, of Big Spring will preach at Bethel Church at Bauman at 7:30 Sunday evening. Everybody is invited to be present.

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES

There were 208 present at Sunday School with ten visitors. There were 22 of our teachers present. Visitors are always welcome and we hope you will come and be with us again.

Brother Meador brought a very interesting sermon at the morning hour, using the 30th chapter of Deut. At the night hour his subject was "The Souls Refuge" found in the 42nd Psalm.

Wednesday night of this week Rev. C. E. Long, Presiding Elder, will preach for us and hold conference.

Leagues were well attended Sunday. Lets build up our Leagues for the little folks. There are lots of children in the church who should be attending Leagues each Sunday. Reporter.

Jack Hubbard, Odis Hock, Clyde Snow, and Patterson, who are in a CCC camp at Lamesa, spent the week end with home folks.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Hallmark and children spent Sunday at Lubbock with Milton who is attending Texas Tech.

Mrs. Estha Coffee, who is teaching at Anton, is at home for a period of two weeks, the school having dismissed for cotton picking.

Sylvester To Be Here Friday Afternoon

The second home game of the season thus far for the Loraine Bulldogs will be staged on the local grid Friday afternoon when the Bulldogs are hosts to the Sylvester high school team. The game is being called at 3 o'clock.

This game will be a non-conference affair but should prove interesting since Sylvester has been holding Roby to a one-touchdown margin, and since Loraine tied Roby the two teams should be about evenly matched.

The Bulldogs have made a good start in the conference this year. They started the season by defeating Divide 33 to 0, tied Roby 6-6, lost to Colorado 13-6. The dark spot is the loss to Roscoe 51 to 6, but the other teams in the district will not fare much better against Roscoe.

We should all attend the game Friday afternoon and support the home team. They really have made a good record for the first year in conference and the second year of football. They deserve your support. See the game Friday at three o'clock. It will be a good game.

SHRINE UNIFORM BODIES MAKE POSSIBLE A FRE TRIP TO CENTENNIAL

One of the most unique and unusual projects ever to be conducted in Texas will soon be in "working order" for our citizens and the surrounding area.

The Westetrn Union, Greyhound Bowen transportation systems and local fraternal members have been notified that the Shrine Stamp Committee will make its appearance shortly. This newspaper will give official announcement when the plan is in operation among the local merchants—through whom the Centennial Thrift Stamps are issued to the public.

Your continued trade with local merchants make these Centennial trips available. Your favorite grocer, druggist, department store, beauty shop, gas station,—in fact, no matter where you spend your money—will all be in a position to issue these stamps to you.

They cost you absolutely nothing, yet in your hands, they become as valuable as cash. You simply save the Centennial Thrift Stamps, in convenient books furnished free, and the accumulation being rapid—you soon have ample stamps to pay transportation, hotel and restaurant expenses, admission charges, buy gas and oil, etc.

Arrangements have been concluded with every organization, so that, no matter where you choose to go for your 1936 Texas Centennial visit, you can do so readily through the simple means of getting the Stamps from your local merchants—saving them—and using them for that trip you "hoped to take" but until now, you've "doubted you could take."

Centennial Thrift Stamps, through the courtesy of numerous patriotic Texas organizations and individuals, now give you your opportunity to see the 1936 Centennials—at no cost to you.

WEEKLY COTTON REPORT

A comparison of the weekly grade and staple reports for 1935 as issued this season with reports for this State issued last season discloses a significant increase in the proportion for 1 inch and longer lengths this season. This season to date, over 14 per cent of the samples classed from representative gins in Texas is 1 inch and longer lengths compared with about 5 per cent for the cirresponding period last year.

Grades are lower than last season to a pronounced extent as measured by the proportion of Strict Middling and better grades (White and Extra White) classed to date this season with the proportion classed to the same date last season. To date, only 19 per cent of the samples classed is Strict Middling and better grades of White and Extra White cotton, in contrast to 69 per cent for the corresponding period last year.

SHOCK BURSTS BRAIN

Evidence that people killed by lightning or by other shocks of high-voltage electricity die because their brains or blood vessels have exploded has been reported by Dr. Macdonald Critchley, nerve specialist of the King's College hospital in London.

This is believed to be why shock victims who recover report that the sensation of such a shock is that of a violent blow. Specimens of nerve tissue taken from people who have been shocked, Doctor Critchley finds to be shredded or "ballooned," as though an explosion had occurred inside them. Blood vessels in the brain are found to be burst so that blood has run out much as it does when one of these blood vessels bursts spontaneously and causes apoplexy. Small hollow spaces in the brain tissue frequently look as though they had been burst by violent explosions inside them.

News Review of Current Events the World Over

Italy Is Outlawed by League of Nations, Austria and Hungary Objecting—Hauptmann's Death Sentence Upheld by Appeals Court.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

© Western Newspaper Union.

BECAUSE it was prosecuting an undeclared war on Ethiopia, Italy was condemned as a violator of the covenant of the League of Nations and virtually declared to be an outlaw against which economic and financial sanctions are to be applied. That was the decision of 52 members of the league in a memorable meeting of its assembly in Geneva. Three nations, Italy itself and Austria and Hungary, refused to associate themselves with the assembly's action. The Austrian and Hungarian representatives already had announced that they would not participate in any sanctions against Italy because of their political and economic relations with the Fascist government.

Baron Aloisi

If any of the nations concurring in the league's decision wishes to declare war on Italy, it now has the legal right to do so. The nature of the penalties to be imposed and the manner of procedure was to be determined by a committee including all members of the league council, except Italy, and all Italy's neighbor nations except Austria and Hungary.

The meeting of the assembly first heard an eloquent speech on Italy's behalf by her chief delegate, Baron Pompei Aloisi. He charged that the league had been unfair, that it had used "two weights and two scales" in its work, that it had acted against Italy where it did not act against Japan in the Manchurian crisis, that it did not even consider Italy's complaints against Ethiopia.

"Why not Japan?" he asked. "Why not Bolivia and Paraguay in the Chaco war? Why Italy?"

Before the decision nation after nation registered its adherence to the league covenant.

"I shall make only a brief declaration," said Pierre Laval of France. "France will face her obligations. I said this before the council. I repeat it before the assembly. The covenant is our international law."

"Action must now be taken," said Anthony Eden of Great Britain. "I declare the readiness of his majesty's government to take full part in such action."

Vladimir Potemkin of Russia announced that his government was determined to fulfill its obligations. Switzerland also emphasized its willingness to participate.

"No other delegation has asked to speak," said President Benes quietly. "I interpret the silence of all as indicating the concurrence of their governments with the opinion of the members of the council. The assembly will place this on record."

Austria and Hungary cannot of themselves supply Mussolini with much in the way of raw materials for war; but there is the chance that he may receive, through those countries, materials from Germany if the neutrality proclaimed by Hitler does not prevent. Already the big packing companies of Brazil have suspended negotiations for the sale of 22,000 tons of meat to Italy, and Greece has stopped the shipment of donkeys to the Italian armies. The economic sanctions also will put an end to much of Italy's export trade, as well as her imports.

MAKING good on his threats and promises, Benito Mussolini sent his armies crashing across the border of Ethiopia, starting a war that gave all Europe the jitters. Under the command of Gen. Emilio De Bono, chief of the Italian colonial armies, the Italian troops laboriously advanced from Eritrea, crossing the Mareb river frontier and capturing Adigrat and other towns that had already been practically ruined by bombardment from planes. The immediate objective was Aduwa, the scene of the terrific Italian defeat 39 years ago. After several days of hard fighting against the defending Ethiopians, who lost probably 2,000 killed, the invaders marched into Aduwa, and considered that the disgrace of 1896 had been avenged. The Italian soldiers of General Marivigna's command entered first, carrying to the principal square and there erecting a big stone monument inscribed "To the fallen heroes of Aduwa."

Gen. De Bono

Italy officially announced that all of Tigre province was in Italian hands, and at the same time her columns were advancing into Ethiopia from the south and east, with the city of Harrar and the country's one railway as their objective. Squadrons of bombing planes were flying here and there, destroying towns and killing many of the inhabitants.

Recent reports from Addis Ababa said the Italian minister, whose departure had been requested by the emperor, announced that the Italian forces in the north sector had occupied the holy city of Aksum, the ancient capital of the queen of Sheba. There was no resistance, and the Ethiopians saved their sacred relics.

The king of kings asked that other Italian legation officials depart with the minister. The legation, he declared, had kept its radio communications in use after being requested to desist.

In Rome it was announced that Mussolini would retort by giving passports to the members of the Ethiopian legation and would launch a new drive toward Addis Ababa.

Ethiopian cavalry made a daring raid into Eritrea, killing some Italians and capturing others; but there was a report that a son-in-law of the emperor and another Ethiopian general lost their lives in this operation.

FIRST giving assurance, in his speech at San Diego, that the United States would not be drawn into any foreign war, President Roosevelt issued two important proclamations. One proclaimed the embargo on all shipments of war material to the belligerent nations. The other warned Americans that travel on Italian or Ethiopian vessels would be at their own risk. Since Ethiopia has no shipping, the latter proclamation was directed solely against Italy. In yet another statement the President reversed our national policy by declaring that Americans who engage in "transactions of any character" with either of the warring nations "will do so at their own risk." In the past the United States has argued for the right of neutral citizens and commerce to "freedom of the seas."

The task of preventing shipment of American arms and munitions to Italy and Ethiopia was undertaken by the coast guard and customs service.

UNANIMOUS decision of the New Jersey court of errors and appeals is that Bruno Richard Hauptmann was given a fair trial on the charge of murdering Col. Charles Lindbergh's baby son; that his conviction was in accordance with the evidence and that his death sentence was legal. Every contention raised by the defense was overruled. In its opinion the court said:

Bruno Hauptmann

"Our conclusion is that the verdict is not only not contrary to the weight of the evidence, but one to which the evidence inescapably led. . . . From three different and, in the main, unrelated sources the proofs point unerringly to guilt—viz:

"(a) Possession and use of the ransome money.

"(b) The handwriting of the ransom notes.

Hauptmann's attorneys immediately began preparations for an appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States. Their only way is to ask that tribunal for a review of the New Jersey court's action.

To prevent the death sentence being carried out while such a petition was pending in the Supreme court, it would be necessary to have a "stay of execution" issued by the New Jersey courts or by a justice of the United States Supreme court. If a review is denied the case will be closed and Hauptmann probably will die in the electric chair late in November or early in December.

GREECE changed back from a republic to a monarchy overnight in a bloodless coup d'etat engineered by the royalists in the armed forces. Led by Gen. George Kondylis, the army officers demanded that Premier Tsaldaris immediately proclaim restoration of the monarchy. He refused and resigned, and a new government with Kondylis as premier took hold. This former minister of war then forced out President Zaimis, abolished the republican constitution, decreed the restoration, and was named regent by the national assembly pending the return of King George II, who was called back from exile. Though the change of form of government thus seemed completed, the assembly directed that a plebiscite on the question be held November 3, and in London the Greek king's equerry said George would await the result of this vote.

QUITE inadvertently, Secretary of the Navy Swanson revealed the fact that our government is preparing to take part in another naval conference in London within three months. Mr. Swanson, replying to some question at his press conference, said he would send Admiral William H. Standley, chief of operations, to the London meeting as the navy's representative because of his good work at the last conversations on naval limitation. It is supposed the naval powers will try to formulate a limitation program which would take the place of the treaties that are to be terminated January 1, 1937.

Mussolini at the Phone
Who Is the Man?
No Fear in Vatican City
A Shot at a Bird

Something new in war is Mussolini sitting in his office at the Palazzo Venezia in Rome, talking on a short-wave radio telephone with Gen. Emilio de Bono, his commander in chief in Ethiopia. Mussolini should have been photographed as he received the message, "We have just taken Aduwa, where 8,000 of our colonial troops, 6,000 of our Italian troops, were killed 40 years ago, and Italy humiliated." That was a proud moment in Mussolini's life.

Arthur Brisbane

After Mussolini gets the news by radio-telephone he telephones it to the Italian king's summer residence.

For a change from war, consider this incident. Before the entrance to the "Recess club" frequented by Wall Street's "Who's Who," stood George C. Haigh, banker; Matthew S. Sloan, who used to run New York's electric light and now runs the "Katy" railroad, a learned friend of Mr. Sloan's and this writer.

Mr. Sloan said, with finality that marks greatness, "Mr. Blank," mentioning the name of a well-known Republican candidate, "will be elected in 1936." Your narrator buttonholed the first man passing, a Wall Street denizen, well-dressed, asked him "Who is Mr. Blank?" mentioning the name of Mr. Sloan's candidate.

"Never heard of him, don't know who he is. Who is he?" the pedestrian replied and went on. Of the next ten, nine would have said, similarly, "Never heard of him," but all ten would have heard of Franklin D. Roosevelt. Republicans must take somebody whose name is known if they can find him; failing that, they would do well to select him now and see to it that his name is known before election day comes around.

Despite possibilities of widespread bombing of cities if "that war in Europe" should come, Vatican City, ruled by the pope, does not consider anti-bomb defense necessary. Osservatore Romano, representing the Vatican, denies reports that shelters against air raids would be provided in Vatican City. It says:

"The Holy Father has reason to believe that the dome of St. Peter's, regardless of whatever the occasion might be, is the most inviolable defense, firstly, because of the celestial protection of the Prince of Apostles, for whom the dome is the sacred sign and symbol, and because its mass indicates so clearly the holy place, respected and venerated during the most obscure centuries."

That the magnificent building erected by Michelangelo, with his priceless statues and paintings within it, would be respected by even the most barbarous invader seems certain.

Little things start big things. Doctor Potter, formerly professor of political science in the University of Wisconsin, one of an international committee of four that tried to settle a quarrel between Italy and Ethiopia in 1934, says that Italy has good ground for complaint against Ethiopia, and that a soldier's casual shot at a bird probably caused the present trouble.

Mr. Joseph E. Uihlein, an able citizen of Milwaukee, who takes information with him on his travels and is therefore able to bring information back, returns from England with the impression that, despite greatly improved conditions in Britain, English and other Europeans are expecting something unpleasant to happen. What it is, where it will start, what will cause it, nobody is prepared to say, but there is a feeling of apprehension, a vague anticipation of some catastrophic event.

The President assures the nation that on this occasion America will not meddle with what does not concern it.

What will the United States do about selling food to Italy, if, through "sanctions," the League of Nations tries to starve out the Italians, as Germany was starved?

If a chain is no stronger than its weakest link the chain that makes up the human race is not strong.

Authorities in Java report fifty natives of New Guinea, including seventeen children, arrested as "head-hunters." They got the heads of two native women and ate the two women.

Mussolini spoke to twenty million Italians gathered in Italy's public squares, and to the people of the world. You could not mistake the meaning of that voice.

Newspaper men, gathered near the radio, said: "His voice made the shivers run up and down our backs, although we could not understand a word of it." Shivers do not often run up and down those backs.

Lesson for October 20

THE MESSAGE OF JEREMIAH

LESSON TEXT—Jeremiah 7:1-26.

GOLDEN TEXT—Obey my voice, and I will be your God, and ye shall be my people. Jeremiah 1:23.

PRIMARY TOPIC—What Jeremiah Said.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jeremiah's Stirring Message.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Doing What God Commands.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Will of God for Our Times.

The prophet stood in the gate of the temple in order that the multitudes might hear him. The occasion was the coming together of the people from all over the country to attend a feast. From this place of prominence Jeremiah called the people to obedience.

I. What God Requires (vv. 1-7).

1. Amend your ways (v. 3). This means that their course of living should be reformed by exchanging bad deeds for good ones. On the basis of this change God would permit them to remain in their city and country. Failure to comply with this demand would eventuate in their expulsion.

2. Personal experience (v. 4). The people regarded the temple as a charm against evil, irrespective of the condition of their hearts. Without a heart experience, the most sacred institution and ordinances are valueless. Trusting in religious forms while lacking a vital experience is the height of folly.

3. Social justice (v. 5). The proof of their having reformed was the execution of justice between man and his neighbor. The evidence of one's being in touch with God is his fair dealing with his fellow men.

4. Not to oppress the helpless (v. 6). The stranger would likely be ignorant of the laws of the land. The widows and orphans would usually be imposed upon. Protection and defense of the weak is a sure sign of godliness.

5. Not walk after other gods (v. 6). The worship of idols and conformity to heathen customs go hand in hand. True morality is determined by the individual's attitude toward God.

II. Some Solemn Warnings (vv. 8-15).

1. The teachings of false prophets (vv. 8-11). These false prophets taught the people that attention to ceremony and observance of religious form exempted them from strict attention to morals. Those who heeded the words of the lying prophets did not hesitate to steal, murder, commit adultery, swear falsely, and practice idolatry. They would even come into the Lord's house and claim freedom to practice such abominations. The sacred temple itself, filled with such worshippers, would be a den of robbers.

2. By the destruction of Shiloh (vv. 12-15). God caused his tabernacle to be set up in Shiloh, but in Eli's time he gave it into the hands of the Philistines because of the idolatry of the people (Ps. 78:56-60). The prophet declared that God would do even so with the temple, the city and the whole country. This he had already done with Israel and the northern kingdom.

III. The Hopeless Condition of the People (vv. 16-20).

Their propensity to do evil was so strong that all efforts at reclamation were futile.

1. Pray not for them (v. 16). There is such a thing as sinning unto death, in which case prayer is useless (v. 16; cf. I John 5:16).

2. Entire families devoted their energies to that which provoked God's anger (vv. 17-19). This was done by young and old, men and women. They did it with the definite purpose to provoke God's anger. The prophet assured them that the outcome of such conduct would be their utter confusion.

IV. Judgment Sure to Fall (v. 20).

Because the people poured out their offerings to idols, the furious anger and wrath of God would be poured out upon men, beasts, trees and the fruit of the ground. How this has been fulfilled the history of the Jews makes clear.

V. Obedience to God Better than Sacrifice (vv. 21-26).

The prophet appealed to history to show that God requires heart service rather than the observance of religious forms. Blessings came to Israel through obedience, while cursings followed disobedience. On condition of obedience to his requirements God promised to own them as his people and to bless them.

The Seventh Wave

The man who waits for some seventh wave to toss him on dry land, will find that the seventh wave is a long time coming. You can commit no greater folly than to sit by the roadside until someone comes along and invites you to ride with him to wealth or influence.—J. B. Gough.

Conciliation

The essence of all fine breeding is in the gift of conciliation. A man who possesses every other title to our respect, except that of courtesy, is in danger of forfeiting them all. A rude manner renders its owner always liable to affront. He is never without dignity who avoids wounding the dignity of others.—Lytton.

Duty

Mayflower Became Barn, Says Retired Sea Captain

Historians have long tried to learn what became of the Mayflower, the ship that carried the Pilgrim fathers to America. An old retired sea captain, Henry D. Smith, of Atlantic City, declares that on a trip to London years ago, he learned of a tradition believed to be true that the old ship came to an ignominious end. After being tied up at Plymouth Rock a long time, serving no useful purpose, farmers of the struggling colony dismantled it and pulled the hull ashore. Doors were cut into its sides and it served as a stock barn for their cattle and pigs.

What a shrine this old vessel would be now had it been preserved. Also it would make it possible to check on its capacity, which, judged from the number of persons who came over in it purportedly, must have been unusually large for a ship of that time.

Press On

If there is only one bathtub to every ten people in the United States, it shows that civilization must press on until every bedroom has its own bathtub as inevitably as it has a bed.

IT'S NOT IN MANY CEREALS

● Nothing anyone eats is more important than Vitamin B—the vitamin for keeping fit. Yet it isn't in many cereals, when cereals are supposed to be our best source of this food element.

Many are nervous, poor in appetite, system out of order, because their daily diets lack enough of the precious Vitamin B for keeping fit.

Few things keep them back like a lack of this protective food element.

So give everyone Quaker Oats every morning. Because in addition to its generous supply of Vitamin B for keeping fit, it furnishes food-energy, muscle and body-building ingredients. For about ½c per dish.

Start serving it tomorrow for a 2-weeks test. Quaker Oats has a wholesome, nut-like, luscious appeal to the appetite. Flavory, surpassingly good. All grocers supply it.

SYNOPSIS

As Alan Garth, prospector, is preparing to leave for his mining claim in the Far North, a plane lands at the airways emergency station. In it are Burton Ramill, millionaire mining magnate; his daughter, Lilith; and Vivian Huxby, pilot and mining engineer. Believing him to be only an ignorant prospector, the men offer to make an air trip to Garth's claim, although they refer to his samples of platinum-bearing ore as nearly "worthless." Lilith Ramill, product of the jazz age, plainly shows contempt for Garth. Through Garth's guidance the plane soon reaches the claim site. Huxby and Ramill, after making several tests, assure Garth his claim is nearly valueless, but to "encourage" young prospectors they are willing to take a chance in investing a small amount. Sensing treachery ahead, Garth secretly removes a part from the motor of the plane. Huxby and Lilith taunt Garth, but their tone soon changes when they try to start the plane. Returning to shore they try to force Garth to give up the missing part. Garth manages to set the monoplane adrift and the current carries it over the falls. He points out that he is their only hope in guiding them out of the wilderness. Garth begins the work of preparing for the long journey. He insists that the others help. Ramill and his daughter must be hardened for the hardships ahead in their trek to the outpost on the Mackenzie.

CHAPTER IV

The Whip Hand.

The girl licked her fingers and turned to stare covetously at the pieces of moose dangling in the smudge-fire smoke. She spoke to Garth almost civilly:

"I've no need to rest like Dad. Do I have to wait for another piece?"

"Certainly not. But you've let the cook-fire go out. Keep this one going, and you can use it. Better cut another spit. Mind the knife edge, if you don't want to lose a finger."

She showed she could be deft enough when she chose. One stroke of the knife hacked off a willow twig, two cuts sharpened the end. Grasping the bottom of the uncut second liver, she sliced up lengthwise, all the way to the rawhide thong. She poked the green wood from the near edge of the fire, piled on dry sticks, and crouched down to hold her spit over the blaze.

Garth had at once begun to make catgut. It would be needed to sew the moccasins. He was intently at work, and the girl was still more intently eyeing her meat, when Huxby came striding between the spruces.

The once elegant engineer was smeared with mud from his midbody down to where the rock-milk water of the ford had drenched the bog slime from his shoes and leather aviator trousers. Snags had scratched his flying jacket and even torn through one sleeve.

Worst of all, his bare face and neck was a swollen mass of mosquito-bite welts and the bleeding wounds of deer-fly stings. The skin had already begun to puff and discolor.

At sight of the man's condition, Garth picked up his rifle. Even the most cold-blooded, calculating schemer can be tortured into crazed violence.

Miss Ramill glanced up from her cooking, and uttered a startled cry. It awakened her father from his doze. He sat erect to start at Huxby.

"My G—d, Vivian, what's happened? You look like something the cat brought home."

Garth lifted his rifle. "Put up your hands. No, don't reach for your pistol. Up with them, or I'll wing you—That's it. Now hold them there while Mr. Ramill takes your pistol. I've had enough of your threatening."

The millionaire looked at Garth's cool gray eyes, and heaved himself upon his feet to shuffle around behind Huxby's shoulder. He pulled open the leather jacket and drew the automatic pistol from its high-slung sheath. Holding the butt forward, he brought the weapon to Garth.

"Keep it yourself," Garth told him. "You can give it back to him soon as he gets over this fly madness. There's your headnet, Huxby. Better stand in the smoke till you get it on."

The tormented man first ran to lie down on the rill bank. Between deep drinks, he doused his bitten face in a pool and dashed the gratefully cool water over the back of his neck. The moment he stopped, the pests buzzed at him again. He ran to the smoky side of the fire without stopping for his headnet.

For the first time since Garth had met Lilith Ramill, she showed consideration for someone else than herself. Her second piece of liver had been cooked enough to be eatable. She tore it in two and gave half to her fiance.

"It's good, Vivian. Try it. You must be famished."

Her unexpected graciousness calmed his half-crazed mind.

"Why, Lilith—you roasted this yourself! It will taste doubly delicious." He forced a laugh. "But I couldn't take the food out of your mouth."

"I'll soon cook more. There's plenty."

Garth caught Mr. Ramill's hungry look, and shook his head. "Not yet for us, sir. We'll pack in some more of the meat before the wolverines get it."

He laid a mat of willow foliage, sliced up what was left of the second liver, and started off with Ramill.

Though at first stiff, the millionaire did not get out of breath so quickly as before. This was an encouraging sign. That easy climb to the claim and the fast return had been violent exercise for the mine investor. He could not have recovered so soon if his heart had been bad.

But when he opened his cigar case, Garth interposed.

"You have only four left, sir. Better hold them back to taper off gradually. This change of diet is going to jolt you hard enough. No wine or whisky, either."

Mr. Ramill walked along quite a distance with the cigar case open, his face impassive inside the mosquito gauze of the headnet. When at last he looked up, he closed the cigar case and handed it to Garth. "You're the doctor."

Garth put the case in his shirt pocket.

"All right, sir. You'll get them when they'll do you the most good—and you'll get them all."

Again Mr. Ramill walked along with his gaze on the ground. They were near the muskeg swamp before he looked up. He turned his shrewd gaze upon Garth, and spoke with blunt directness: "What's your game?"

"My game?"

"Yes. We may as well settle this now as later. Don't tell me you haven't some big scheme in mind. You guessed we meant to cast off and leave you holding the sack. Otherwise you wouldn't have taken that key part from the plane motor."

Garth chuckled. "Did you ever outwit a fox, corner a pack of wolves, or trap a crafty old bear?"

The ruddy face of the millionaire purpled. "What is the connection?"

"Nothing invidious," Garth assured him. "I had in mind only the fun of the game."

"So? Well, young man, it has already been admitted that you've so far taken all the tricks. I gave you credit for more sense, however, than you showed when you cast loose the plane.

Garth Lifted His Rifle. "Put Up Your Hands."

You had no need to walk up like a dupe and permit Vivian to get the drop on you. Easy enough for you to've come out of cover with your rifle up. Don't tell me you'd rather travel afoot to the Mackenzie than fly out in a plane."

"That depends, sir. Perhaps I did not wish to part company with you so soon. Over at the river, I could of course have invited myself to fly out to Fort Smith with you. But that would hardly have given us time to get acquainted. As it is, in the weeks of close companionship to come we may even learn to be friends."

Mr. Ramill frowned. "Is that a taunt, or maudlin sob stuff?"

"Neither."

"Then what's your game? If you think, after marooning us here in these d—d wilds, you can win our friendship or gratitude by guiding us out, you're a sadly mistaken young man."

Garth agreed. "It would be a stupid mistake to expect anything decent from you or your daughter or Huxby. But think what fun I've already had, facing that pistol and telling Huxby he dared not use it."

"Fun? You must be crazy!"

"Not at all. I had him sized up. The game was to let him think he had me trapped, then give him the laugh."

The big man chewed on this. "That's clear enough. But why wreck the plane? Will your next joke be to walk off and leave us to starve?"

"Does it look that way? Two moose make a deal of eating."

As Garth spoke, he pointed ahead at the red chunks on the spruce branches. Almost at the same instant his rifle jerked up. The second shot was followed by a snarling squall. The squall shrilled into a shriek that nipped off into silence.

When Mr. Ramill rather hesitatingly followed Garth to the hanging legs of moose, he saw a three-foot, stub-tailed wildcat with black-tufted ears lying under a torn shoulder of moose meat. A second cat, slightly larger, had leaped several yards away before dropping.

Garth drew his knife. "Only a pair of lynx. Not much for two shots. We haven't any cartridges to throw away. But we can use the skins, and the meat will make a change from moose."

He flayed the bodies, bagged the best cuts of meat in the skins, and hung them high. The next move was to see if Mr. Ramill could pack the hide of the cow moose. He made a game attempt to walk off under it, but at once began to stagger. Garth relieved him of the load, and in place of it gave him one of the bagged lynx skins. He himself bagged one of the bull moose quarters in the cowhide and heaved it upon his back.

They came back to the camp with Mr. Ramill panting and sweating. Garth swung lightly ahead of him. He slipped off his heavy pack and stood looking at the idle couple on the rill bank. They had eaten their fill of liver, and stretched out to rest. No smoke was rising from the embers of the smudge-fire. Flies were beginning to cluster on the moose tongues and other meat.

The girl met his look with contemptuous indifference. Huxby stared with bloodshot hostility from between his swollen eyelids.

Instead of speaking to the couple, Garth addressed the girl's father as he relieved him of the lynx pack:

"As I remember, sir, I told Miss Ramill she could cook on the smudge-fire if she kept it going. I will say now that I do not intend to shoot any more meat until use is made of what we have. There are none too many rifle cartridges. If the three of you prefer rotten, maggoty meat, I'll go you to the last mouthful. I've lived for weeks at a time on spoiled fish and rotten walrus."

Huxby's face and neck were as swollen and sore as if covered with boils. His temper was no less sore. "You're the one who put us in this fix, you wood louse!"

Garth gave him a pitying look. "That's the fly venom talking. No cool, calculating schemer in his right senses would ask for trouble when his hands were tied. I might point out, however, that the venom was due to your haste in trying to—uh—appropriate my discovery claim."

"That's a lie. You cast the plane adrift. I was stung while trying to save it. Curse the luck! I came within an ace of reaching the snagged line. Almost had it, when the plane dragged it loose and went down over those hellish falls!"

"I might remind you that you ordered me to cast off the line—at the point of your pistol."

The thrust proved too much for Huxby. He sat silent. Garth went on with his quiet argument:

"All that is now past history. We're more concerned with the present and future. Mr. Ramill has shown his common sense by facing the facts of the situation. He has fallen into line. The question is, do you and Miss Ramill throw in with us, or do you go on your own? If with us, I'm to be chief. How about it?"

Huxby had cooled down enough to see the point. "You win. I join up."

Miss Ramill looked puzzled and a bit alarmed. "What's the great idea, Vivian?"

"Very simple, my dear. He has the whip hand. He is boss. We must obey his orders, or we'll never get back to civilization."

"Oh! The despicable, cowardly—" She met Garth's cool gaze and fell silent.

He nodded. "You'll begin by rebuilding that fire. After that you'll cook the other liver for your father and yourself. You will then start graining the hair off the moosehides while Huxby and your father go back for more meat."

"I will do no such thing!"

"Very well. That means you get no moccasins to replace your boots when those flimsy soles wear through on the rocks."

She flared: "Gallant Sir Galahad!"

"Leave her be, Garth," her father interposed. "I'll tend the fire and scrape the skins."

"No. Lie down. Whenever you work, it's to be on your feet. We must build up both your wind and your muscle. Huxby, I'll ask you to fetch that pot and the gold pan."

The mining engineer rose and started up towards the trough without a word of inquiry or protest. Miss Ramill's eyes widened. She gazed wonderingly from him to her father. Mr. Ramill had no less obediently lain down as ordered.

Garth ignored the girl. He chopped deep notches in the trunks of the food-cache birch trees, about seven feet high. He then cut saplings to span across from tree to tree, with ends wedged in the notches. The next move was to fetch a number of alder poles.

When he returned, smoke was billowing up to drive the flies from the moose tongues and muffles. Miss Ramill had rebuilt the smudge-fire and taken down the liver, ready for slicing. She gazed up at him, stormy-eyed, ready to flare if he had shown the slightest flicker of amusement or gloating.

Instead, he gave her a curt nod of acknowledgment, laid his knife beside the liver, and turned to space the poles across the sapling framework to make a grill above the smudge. Upon this he laid the moose leg and the pieces of lynx meat.

Huxby came back from the discovery stake with the gold pan and little aluminum pot. He stared in surprise at sight of Miss Ramill cooking the liver. She shrugged her slim shoulders, and drew back from the fire to give one spit to her father. After that she silently offered the other to Garth.

"Thank you," he said. "Let me suggest that you now fill the gold pan with water and slice into it one of the muffles. They don't look promising. But if simmered for a day or two, a single moose muzzle will give us several delicious meals of what might be called aspic jelly."

This won no sign of interest from the girl. She was no longer hungry. Garth ignored her silence.

"After starting that dish, you may cook as much more of the liver as your father can eat. He will keep on resting while Huxby and I go for another load of moose meat. The sooner we pack all to camp, the surer we will be that other mouths do not get away with it."

He unbuckled his pack, slung the pack-board on his back, and picked up his rifle and belt-ax. Huxby trailed after him out of camp. They walked in Indian file all the way around to the muskeg swamp, Huxby with his gaze fixed coldly upon the back of his leader.

At the swamp Garth cut a tote-pole and passed it through the tendons of two hindquarters of moose. The remaining quarter he strapped to his pack-board. He folded the second lynx skin for Huxby to use as a shoulder pad. Upon it the mining engineer rested his end of the tote-pole.

Giraffe, Tallest Among Quadrupeds of the World

Tallest among the quadrupeds of the world, the giraffe is constructed along a variety of levels, its front legs longer than its long hind legs and its neck longer than the longest of its other members, with a tongue of length and flexibility entirely suited to the architectural whole.

In fact, notes a writer in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, there are evidences in support of one belief that nature must have started to make something else when it got around to fashioning the timid creature. Original plans probably called for a quadruped of conventional dimensions and the barrel and rear running gear must have been completed before amendments were decided on. Very likely the many quadrupeds of comparative size looked too much alike. So it was probably decided this new animal should have a much longer neck, and to make its neck longer than the facts justified it must have longer front legs. So we have an animal started in regularity and finished in singularity, with its body sloping up from rear to front legs and a neck so long that it distorts the distortion.

Nature in all truth must have been in a sportive mood when it made the giraffe. If it sought to give the jungle a laugh it succeeded admirably, giving the laughing hyena something about which it could laugh without restraint.

The beast has to straddle itself all out of shape to get a drink of water from the level of its own feet! So by habit it has taught itself to drink very little water, or at least to drink it with great infrequency. The long neck, the long front legs and the up-tilted body could hardly have been anything but afterthoughts.

River Flows Uphill

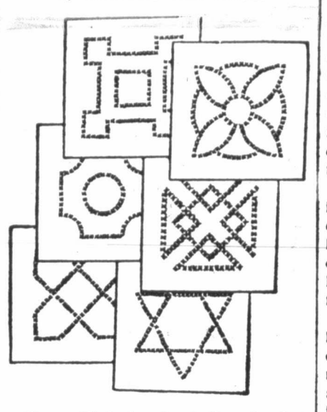

It has been figured out by the United States geological survey that a point at sea level on the equator is about 13 miles farther away from the center of the earth than a sea level point at either of the earth's poles. Their calculations show the mouth of the Mississippi river to be four miles farther from the earth's center than its source. Thus, it may be said the "Father of Waters" runs uphill. This phenomenon results from the water in the river obeying the laws of gravity which cause it to run from the higher surface level at its source to the lesser one at its mouth.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Finally the police were prevailed on to investigate. In the house they found 17 military rifles, dating back to 1870, modern rifles, revolvers, rounds of ammunition and even hand grenades.

It needn't be a matter for surprise if you learn that some new curly fur on the market with a fancy name came from an animal the ancestors of which are traceable to the common rat. For a curly-coated variety of these rodents has been developed at Wistar Institute, the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, by Dr. Helen Dean King, who has been making a study of the breeding of rats for scientific purposes. Among her rats are breeds with chocolate, cinnamon and pale lapin colored coats.

World's Most Famous Babies Eat Oatmeal

The Dionne Quintuplets, wards of the King, eat the same cereal that is eaten by millions of babies who don't get their names in the papers—oatmeal. The Canadian government chose a staff of special experts for the care of the Quints. And these experts, their scientific knowledge endorsing the instinctive choice of mothers the world over, have chosen oatmeal for the cereal of the famous five.

Oatmeal, eminent medical authorities agree, has an abundance of everything a child's cereal should have—body-building minerals, muscle-building protein, and the supremely important Vitamin B for keeping fit.

Food science says that Vitamin B is the best safeguard against those dangerous enemies of childhood—nervousness, constipation, and poor appetite due to lack of that vitamin in the diet.

NO UPSETS

The proper treatment for a bilious child

A cleansing dose today; a smaller quantity tomorrow; less each time, until bowels need no help at all.

ANY mother knows the reason when her child stops playing, eats little, is hard to manage. Constipation. But what a pity so few know the sensible way to set things right!

The ordinary laxatives, of even ordinary strength, destroy all hopes of restoring regularity.

A liquid laxative is the answer, mothers. The answer to all your worries over constipation. A liquid can be measured. The dose can be exactly suited to any age or need. Just reduce the dose each time, until the bowels are moving of their own accord and need no help.

This treatment will succeed with any child and with any adult.

Doctors use a liquid laxative. Hospitals use the liquid form. If it is best for their use, it is best for home use. The liquid laxative they generally use is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Any druggist has it.

Wolves Defeat The Bulldogs

The Colorado Wolves defeated the Loraine Bulldogs in a hard fought battle Friday night. The score was 13 to 6. Loraine put up a hard fight all the way through but it seem as if they could never get a break. Colorado's touch down came in the first and last quarters. Loraine's came in the 3rd.

The Bulldogs are very proud of the backing that the town is giving them. But there is one thing lacking and that is the student body. The student body is not backing the football team like they should. So the football team extends a cordial invitation to the entire student body to be at the game Friday afternoon.

Loraine will play Sylvester Friday Oct. 18 at 3:00 o'clock here. Everyone is invited.

SENIOR NEWS

The seniors have brought in most of their money to pay for theirrings.

Eldon seems to be making good grades this six weeks. We wonder how he does it.

Some of the seniors girls had a reunion in town Saturday night. They all seemed to enjoy it.

We wonder why Lula Mae Roberts and Loyd Beatty went to Colorado Saturday night.

Parent: What is your reason for wishing to marry my daughter.

Young man: no reason at all, It's just that I'm in love with her.

JUNIOR NEWS

Well Juniors, we are starting off another six weeks.A re you going to start off with a bang or are you just going to drag along? Let's start off with a bang and keep it up!

We Juniors are wondering when the Seniors are going to give us a party. We have been giving them all kinds of hints, but it seems as if they don't take them very well. Maybe they will give us a Halloween Party. Yes? No? We will have to wait patiently and see.

LDEALS OF THE FRESHMEN

We want to be recognized as one of the best classes in L. H. S. We will be the seniors of 1939 and when we come to that time, we want to be able to look back over our days in High school with pride and the satisfaction that we have done our part year by year.

We know we make many mistakes, but we are willing to try again and always try to do our best. We wish to cooperate with our teachers and make their job as easy for them as we can, for we know it is a job to answer dozens of questions, many of which are unnecessary.

We are proud of our class and we hope we can make it one of the best in school. Freshmen, always do your best and play fair.

FRESHMEN NEWS

Here we are at the start of another six weeks so let's get down to work and raise those low grades and show the teachers we are smarter than they think.

Wonder why all the Freshmen were worried about the theme in English for Monday?

Roy G. seemed to be worried about losing his girl.

Miss Hoskinson: "Buddy make me a sentence using dispair."

Buddy: "De spare tire was flat so we fixed it."

SOPHOMORE NEWS

Just imagine: Ruby being so hungry in the study hall Friday.

Hazel Ruth being a buttermilk blonde.

Clydia not giggling every day.

Wilburn missing one football practice.

Patient: Tell me the worst, doctor!

Doctor: No I'll mail the bill to you.

·common Everyday Colds!

"Colds" are dangerous! Don't regard them lightly. According to government statistics, diseases of the breathing apparatus are responsible for more deaths than any other single cause, including cancer or heart disease. While respiratory diseases often start seriously, they are closely related to "colds" and in many instances are directly traceable to catching cold.

Municipalities have made great progress in stamping out typhoid fever, smallpox, diphtheria and other communicable diseases that once demanded their grim death toll. But America's Public Health Enemy Number One, the common cold germ, still rages rampant as a constant threat to the health and safety of our loved ones. Frequently "common colds" pave the way for such serious illnesses as pneumonia, bronchitis, influenza, tuberculosis and other serious respiratory diseases that result in so many deaths each winter.

Any sudden change in temperature as you go from a warm room into a cold one disturbs the heat-regulating apparatus of the body and makes it susceptible to the vicious attacks of "cold germs."

Your health and that of your family is your most valuable possession. Guard it this winter with proper ventilation and adequate heat in every room in the house. COMMUNITY NATURAL GAS COMPANY.

America's Public Health Enemy Number One, the common cold germ, is marshalling his forces for winter!

Tune in each Thursday night at 6:45, WFAA-WBAP, beginning October 17, for vital facts to help you guard your family against Public Health Enemy No. 1

Smart Play Frock That's Easy to Sew

PATTERN 2382

Pleated for play, in a very new way, this child's frock gives her plenty of room for rope-skipping. Her mother will find this smart frock so easy to cut and put together, and a very economical pattern, since bloomers are included with the dress. You can make these up in the same material, or just plain white to wear with other frocks, and no child can have too many pairs. The buttoned closing of the frock takes a new slant, and don't worry about those four pleats! They're as easy a decoration as you've ever made. Colorful novelty cotton for that crisp look and a choice of short or long sleeves.

Pattern 2382 is available in sizes 2, 4, 6 and 8. Size 6 takes 2½ yards 36 inch fabric and ⅝ yard contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to the Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 243 West Seventeenth St., New York City.

Don't Guess But Know

Whether the "Pain" Remedy You Use is SAFE?

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

THE person to ask whether the preparation you or your family are taking for the relief of headaches is SAFE to use regularly is your family doctor. Ask him particularly about Genuine BAYER ASPIRIN.

He will tell you that before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin most "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as bad for the stomach and, often, for the heart. Which is food for thought if you seek quick, safe relief.

Scientists rate Bayer Aspirin among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and the pains of rheumatism, neuritis and neuralgia. And the experience of millions of users has proved it safe for the average person to use regularly. In your own interest remember this.

You can get Genuine Bayer Aspirin at any drug store — simply by asking for it by its full name, BAYER ASPIRIN. Make it a point to do this — and see that you get what you want.

"My eczema began with an itching on my hands, arms and feet, and when I scratched, big, watery bumps came. They burned and itched so that I scratched and irritated the affected parts. My hands and arms were disfigured and it worried me so I could not sleep.

Box Score Silent on Chapman Yen to Join Senators

THINGS the box score never told me:

Although he probably squabbles more with the Senators than with any other club, Ben Chapman wants to be traded to Washington if the Yankees decide to dispose of him. . . . In the Pine Tree league, a Maine semi-pro baseball circuit, they pay the two umpires $25 but the visiting team gets only $15. . . . Mike Phipps of Carnegie Steel and the Guest brothers of Woolworth's will not play polo in Argentine this winter "because they were not offered enough dough." . . . The most successful dog track in the country probably is at Revere, Mass., where the mutuel handle often exceeds $100,000 a night. One night it hit $206,000.

Maerial, a two-year-old that has earned $17,165 this season, cost $550 as a yearling. . . . Teddy Boy, bought for $11,500 at the same time, is unknown to those who are familiar with juvenile runners. . . . That feud between the Dodgers and the Giants does not stop with the hired help on the field. John Gorman and Edide Brannick, the rival traveling secretaries, never speak to one another if conversation possibly can be avoided. . . . While a member of the Hakoahs in Vienna Ernie Schwartz, now manager of the New York Americans, played soccer in 20 countries.

Bookmakers will tell you that one of the nation's most eminent political bosses has lost $200,000 a year betting on the races during the past 20 years. . . . He will, they say, invest $1,000 on almost any kind of tip and is keeping up his average at the New York meetings. . . . The province of Quebec long has known how to handle the vexing problem of what to do with wrestlers. . . . On Sundays and holidays up there they perform along the roads as comeons to attract business to the hot dog and beverage stands. . . . Kostka, Minnesota's All-America back, who will play for the Brooklyn pros this fall, was a flop as a baseball player at Dayton. Jim Bowdoin, who will appear at tackle for the Dodgers, was a very good umpire in the Middle Atlantic league.

It's Patrick You Fans Can Thank

Lester Patrick, coach of the New York Rangers, started the custom of numbering players so that the fans might recognize them more readily. That was during the season of 1911-12, when he operated the Pacific Coast Hockey league. . . . A few months later the first college team was adorned with numbers, Old Man Stagg doing the job for his University of Chicago eleven. . . . City college (N. Y.) football players bruise easily and no wonder. The ground upon which they must practice and play is so bare of grass and packed so hard that if one of them was to be tossed upon a concrete floor he probably would think he was landing in a feather bed.

Shrewd horsemen are whispering that heroin won't show in a saliva test no matter what track doctors may say about it—They also are whispering that—but perhaps it would be a shame to disturb the hard working racing commissioners with such news, so let it go. . . . Although his ankles will not hold up under steady work, Woody English of the Cubs is rated as the best utility infielder in the National league. . . . Lloyd Greenamyre, who sells tickets for a Ringling Brothers side show, also acts as golf pro for the circus performers. He has 75 pupils. . . . Although the present tennis scoring system has been in use for centuries no one of the game's historians has ever been able to discover how it originated.

Because the lights make everything seem faster baseball scouts claim that it is impossible to get a line on a player by watching him in a night game. . . . Jack Doyle, the veteran Cubs scout, says that he must see a player in at least three day-time games before forwarding a recommendation. . . . Tom Laird, the San Francisco sports editor, is telling all comers that Di Maggio, the Pacific coast outfielder purchased by the Yankees, is one of the greatest players to come along in recent years. . . . It took 17½ miles of tape and gauze to keep the Cubs in shape this season, according to Andy Lotshaw, their trainer.

SINCE it has been pretty well established by sob sisters, people who pay $100 for 30 cents' worth of cardboard entitling them to perch in the twenty-sixth row, and by other kindred boxing experts that Joe Louis is the greatest fighter of all time, perhaps the subject could very sensibly be ducked today. Yet, since the same well-informed proclaimers of pugilistic gospel seek to prove their omnipotence by advancing the delightful contention that Max Baer quit cold at Yankee stadium, it is possible that some mature consideration will do the whole business no harm.

Obviously Louis is one of the most gifted young men ever to receive a $200,000 reward in this racket that sometimes is known as sport. Also he has been magnificently trained and the financiers who handle his affairs have done so with rare skill.

He is a talented boxer, perhaps as superior in this line today as Jack Johnson was 25 years ago. He hits hard and accurately with either hand. That the Baers, Carneras, Birkies, Pirrones, Browns and Levinskys he has battered were not laid out cold as were various stalwarts upon whom Sam Langford and Peter Jackson practiced is not a matter of particular moment. Although Louis seems to have more love of, and instinct for, fighting than did the ex-marine, his ring tactics more closely resemble those of Gene Tunney than of any other modern champion. And, for all his eminence, Tunney also was a fighter who bruised and dazed his opponents when a man of lesser skill but greater power might have finished them with one blow that needed no referee's count to prove its worth and efficiency.

Such are the facts that have been made plain about him while he has, in such a short space and with such consummate ease, been triumphing over Baer, Carnera and Levinsky. That the three of them, two former champions and a man who once was the sturdiest of also rans, could not land a total of six punches on him is another previously unconsidered fact that may very well be acclaimed as an extremely artful boxer.

Joe Louis

Not Louis' Fault Talent Is Scarce

That Floyd Johnson, Soldier Bob Martin, Bob Fitzsimmons, Jr., and Jack McAuliffe, Second, were young men of rare ability who received high ballyhoo and then collapsed when least expected need not be advanced as an argument that some day he may also blow up suddenly. Neither is it necessary to point out that probably all of these young men beat better opponents than he has yet faced. It is not Joe Louis's fault that heavyweight contenders are a dime a dozen now. Like Dempsey, Sullivan and those other masters who preceded him he has met the best that have so far been available and has beaten them all. A man can do no more.

What will happen when he has outboxed, outsmarted and quickly bowled over one or two more opponents and eventually gets around to Jim Braddock is something that no one can decide at this distance. I make only two predictions. One of them is that Joe then will very well prove that he can take it and return it after taking it. The other is that he will be meeting a man as cold as himself, as unafraid and, possibly, as well informed as to the value of a left hand in winning prize fights.

Certainly Louis met no such man upon his most recent outing. Baer seemed dazed even before he was first slapped upon the lug. He performed as a wide open target, made no effort to pick punches out of the air save with his chin, seemed determined from the start to do as many wrong things as possible.

Max Baer

That one of the wrong things he did was to quit deliberately on his knees instead of going out swinging is not suggested here, though. I leave that charge to the boys along Broadway who know so much about so many things. . .

Those who saw Carl Morris, Tom Heeney and Jess Willard stand up until their faces were crushed into pulpy black and blue masses perhaps are judges as to how long a man can withstand fists that slash at him relentlessly. It may even be that those who watched Terry Mitchell, a preliminary fighter who went round after round while a discolored mass hid one of his eyes, have their own opinions.

Yet such opinions can only be thoughts without authority. No outsider is qualified to say what goes on in the heads and hearts of those who are inside the ropes.

That Baer probably knew he was ill qualified to face a strong young opponent though is something else again. Indeed the gloves that he wore still provide mute evidence of that.

Most gloves that have gone through a fight are wadded here and there, often soggy from the water bucket or from sweat, occasionally stained with the blacker dye that is blood. The gloves worn by the former champion still are brown and new. There is no dent or mark on the left one. That is as should be, for he never landed more than a fluttering blow with it. The right one is only slightly marked and stained. That also is as should be. He landed with it only three times.

Djibouti, French-Owned African Port, Livens Up

A key port of France's colonial empire, set down in a desolate desert that is one of the hottest spots on the globe, is the dazzling white little city of Djibouti, French Somaliland now thronging with adventurers, refugees, and French colonial troops.

"This small settlement, with less than 12,000 population in normal times, now occupies world attention not only as a French outpost commanding the Red sea next door to Italy's Eritrea, but as the terminus of the only railroad connecting Ethiopia with the ocean," says the National Geographic society.

"Djibouti is a city of strange contrasts. It boasts movie theaters, cafes, and a radio station, though its normal white population is less than 700; and in the desert behind it wander tribes not far removed from savagery. Night, when the blistering sun has disappeared, is Djibouti's busy time. At midday, from eleven to three, white and black alike shrink into whatever shade there is, and activity slows to a minimum.

"The only French port of call on the Suez route to Madagascar, French Indo-China, and other French colonial possessions in the east, Djibouti is of considerable strategic importance. French Somaliland, of which it is the capital, shares command of the entrance to the Red sea with the British protectorate of Aden, 150 miles opposite on the coast of Arabia.

"Djibouti lies on a coast consisting chiefly of sand and volcanic rock with here and there a patch of low scrub. The Gulf of Tadjoura, on which it stands, bites into the coast to a depth of 36 miles. Cliffs of volcanic stone form the shores of this gulf for many miles. Five miles inland from the tip of the gulf is Lake Assal, Somaliland's 'Little Dead sea,' nearly 500 feet below sea level. Its shores are encrusted with salt deposits, and the gathering of this salt is a major industry.

"France has held part of Somaliland since 1864, when the Port of Obock was bought. The colony achieved real importance, however, only with the completion of the railroad from Djibouti to Ethiopia's capital, Addis Ababa, about 500 miles away.

"The railroad was built at tremendous cost, and before the World war its passenger fare was about 25 cents a mile. The first locomotive was attacked with spears by ignorant natives along the route, in the belief that it was some sort of 'superlion.' Until recently trains were operated only in the daytime.

"Since the World war, rail-borne commerce to and from Ethiopia has brought considerable prosperity to Djibouti. Chief exports in normal times are coffee, hides, skins, ivory, animal wax, and salt.

"Back from the coast, French Somaliland rises in a long incline toward the heights of Ethiopia. Inland the boundary is about 56 miles from the sea. To the north of Djibouti, toward the frontier of Italian Eritrea, is the country of the tall, proud, Danakil people. They look with disfavor upon white men, and a sort of armed truce prevails between them and the French authorities.

"Also living under the French flag are Somalis, Gallas, Arabs, and East Indians, a total population of about 68,000. France interferes as little as possible with their customs and religions, so for the most part they are peaceful.

"Along the coast fishing and pearl-diving are important industries. In the desert the natives subsist chiefly on rice, dates and goats' milk.

"Modern Djibouti has a good harbor, with up-to-date facilities for loading and unloading ships."

CHEAP LABOR

The bridge built in 1772 which carries the western highway over the Seine at Neuilly-Sur-Seine, France, has become inadequate for modern traffic and is to be replaced. The new bridge, however, is likely to be more costly than the old. Accounts still preserved show that the contractor in 1772 paid his masons 46 cents, carpenters 45 cents, and laborers 26 cents a day, and they were not 8 hour days, either. But living was cheaper then.

More cigarettes are smoked today because more people know about them—they are better advertised.

But the main reason for the increase is that they are made better—made of better tobaccos; then again the tobaccos are blended—a blend of Domestic and Turkish tobaccos.

Chesterfield is made of mild, ripe tobaccos. Everything that science knows about is used in making it a milder and better-tasting cigarette.

We believe you will enjoy them.
