Estes Trial Set

DALLAS (AP)—Unimpressed by arguments that Billie Sol Estes had been duped by federal prosecutors, a U.S. district judge overruled motions to dismiss federal indictments against the paroled swindler and ordered him to stand trial June 11.

Estes, the West Texas financial wizard who served six years in federal prison for a multi-million-dollar hoax in the late 1950s, is now accused of masterminding a similar scheme - raising money on non-existent oil field cleaning equipment.

Lawyers for Estes contended the charges were politically motivated and that federal authorities leaked stories to the press in an effort to sabatoge a proposed plea-bargaining agreement that fell through earlier this year.

"So What?" Judge Robert M. Hill responded from the bench twice during defense arguments. "I'm not impressed with it. I don't think I'll ever be impressed with that argument," Hill told defense attorney Billy Ravkind.

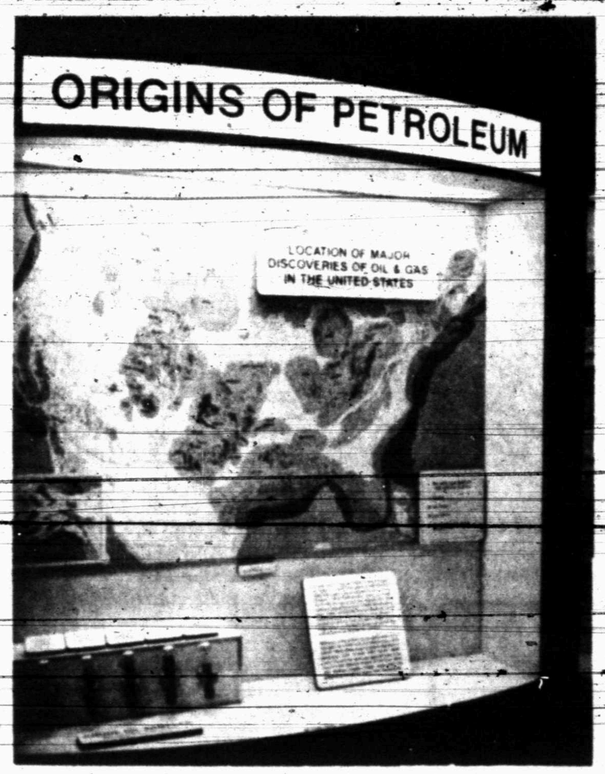

Draft Cost High

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—The U.S. might be able to avoid a return to the military draft, but it's going to take more money than current enlistees are receiving, says the chief of naval operations.

Adm. Thomas Hayward, addressing the 65th class of the Armed Forces Staff College, said Thursday the public "has got to understand that if they want an all-volunteer force, they have got to be willing to address the things that affect careers and motivations. Pay is a significant issue with them today, and I agree with that. It is clear to me that the average enlisted man is underpaid."

Launching Delayed

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The launch of a military communications satellite has been postponed after an electrical signal from an orbit-control motor was not received.

NEW EXHIBIT--Shown above is a portion of a new exhibit loaned by Exxon Company, U.S.A., for display in the Scurry County Museum at Western Texas College. Also to be featured in the museum during May are works by art students in Snyder Junior High and Snyder High School, with that exhibit to open on Sunday.

Museum Shows New Oil Exhibit

"Origins of Petroleum" is the title of a new exhibit recently received by the Scurry County Museum through the courtesy of Exxon Company, U.S.A.

The traveling exhibit is divided into three sections, with the largest section featuring a map of the United States showing the location of major oil and gas discoveries.

"Oil and natural gas are found in areas known as 'basins,' where thick layers of sedimentary rock have been deposited over many millions of years," according to the information contained in the center case. "These sedimentary rocks are made up of clay and sand that was eroded from the land and deposited in river valleys and shallow seas. Other sediments accumulated as coral reefs and banks...

"Nearly all the oil and natural gas produced in the past has come from the sedimentary land basins. Most of the major onshore deposits of petroleum have already been found. Additional discoveries of oil and gas will have to be found in the offshore basins of the East, West and Alaskan costs.

The map shows Scurry County in the Permian Basin Oil fields within the Basin are shown in a contrasting color.

The Scurry County Museum is on the south side of the Western Texas College campus and is open each weekday and from 1-5 p.m. on Sundays.

Callaghan Prepares To Resign...

Conservatives Capture Britain's Highest Post

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister James Callaghan's office said today he was going to Buckingham Palce to tender his resignation.

The statement amounted to a concession of defeat for his Labor Party to Margaret Thatcher's Conservatives.

In accordance with custom, Mrs. Thatcher would go to the palace later to confirm her new role as the first woman prime minister in Britain.

Britain then would have two women at the helm: head of state Queen Elizabeth II who is 53 and has four children and Mrs. Thatcher, a mother of twins who is the same age as her sovereign.

The statement from Callaghan's office came before all returns were in from the 635 voting districts after Thursday's national election. But the Tories went ahead in the early results and held their lead throughout.

Demonstrators shouting "troops out" of Northern Ireland heckled Callaghan earlier today as he learned of his own local re-election in Cardiff, Wales.

The 67-year-old Callaghan easily won re-election as member of Parliament for Cardiff South East with an 8,701-vote majority.

With 534 of the 635 seats in the House of Commons declared, the Conservatives, the traditional party of big business, had won 271 seats, needing only 47 more - which appeared certain - for an

Ask Us

Q--Why does the ink used in printing the Snyder paper rub off on hands, etc., so badly? Other papers are not this way.

A--So far as we can determine, it may be a product of progress. For the past 8½ years, the SDN has used the offset method of printing, and apparently this process requires longer for the ink to become completely dry. Few larger metropolitan papers have gone to the offset printing process yet, due largely, we suspect, to the huge investment they already have in their present equipment. Also, the fact that local subscribers receive the SDN sooner following the press run than they do out-of-town papers is a factor. We have noted that our ink does not smear so readily the morning after publication as it does the day an issue is published. We also have noted that many of the slick-paper magazines have the ink-smearing problem, and they also use the offset printing process.

Unemployment Rate In Slight Gain For April

WASHINGTON (AP)-The nation's unemployment rate rose slightly in April to 5.8 percent, despite the largest drop in total employment in more than a decade, the government reported.

The jobless rate had been 5.7 percent in March, according to the Labor Department report. In fact, it has ranged from 5.7 percent to 5.9 percent for the past nine months.

The number of persons without jobs rose only slightly in April - from 5.87 million to 5.93 million.

But Labor Department statisticians were at a loss to explain apparently conflicting data on total employment.

As measured by a survey of households, the number of persons employed declined by 670,000 to 96.2 million persons. It was the largest drop since January 1968, when the number of persons with jobs declined by 700,000, said John Bregger, a department economist.

But according to figures collected from industrial payroll records, "nonfarm payroll employment was about unchanged over the month at 88.3 million," the report said.

"It's unusual that there is this much discrepancy," Bregger said. "We are inclined not to fully trust the household survey this month. We'll know for the sure when May figures are available.

The report by the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said employment had been rising by an average of about 300,000 jobs per month for the last eight months.

"The reasons for this April slowdown in employment growth are not entirely clear, but may relate in part to adverse weather conditions, school and religious holiday effects and the trucking strike-lockout," the report said.

The Teamsters struck the trucking industry on April 1 when negotiations for a new, three-year contract broke down. Most truckers returned to work after tentativve agreement was reached April 10, although some steel haulers remained on strike for a while.

3 Storm Waves Hit Dallas Area

By The Associated Press

Tornadoes and torrential rain from three waves of ominous black clouds that swept across North Texas Thursday injured at least eight persons, none seriously, and left a trail of destruction estimated at $2 million.

Two afternoon tornadoes that tore through the Dallas suburb of DeSoto, destroyed nine homes, damaged 12 businesses and DeSoto High School.

The approximately 1,300 students, who had undergone a tornado drill only hours earlier, spent a nervous but safe two hours huddled in the dark hallways of the school, which received only minor damage.

"The wind was blowing so hard, I couldn't hear the tornado coming," said Carolyn LaFlower of DeSoto. "But I saw a table and the porch wing on the patio blow over and things started flying through the air.

"I grabbed my son and ran into the shower. I figured it was the safest place ... as it turned out, that was about the only part left standing when it was over."

Thousands of Dallas residents scrambled for shelter, others rushed to the streets to gawk at the boiling clouds when Civil Defense sirens echoed their eerie warnings.

The flurry of tornadoes came less than a month after a massive twister killed 48 and injured hundreds in Wichita Falls.

Several tornadoes touched down within minutes of each other near Wilmer and Hutchins, about 10 miles south of Dallas, injuring four persons in a demolished mobile home, tearing the roof off of Wilmer-Hutchins High School and collapsing the roof on a supermarket.

Three men were slightly injured when the roof collapsed under the weight of collected water on a top-floor coffee shop at Dallas' Le Baron Hotel.

AFS Meeting Is Postponed

The local chapter of the American Field Service has postponed its May meeting.

The organization, which sponsors the foreign exchange student program here, usually holds its regular meetings on the first Saturday. This month, however, the meeting will be held May 12. It will be a "Dutch treat" breakfast session at the Spanish Inn.

Keeping tab on our neighbors:

People over in Granbury are coming to grips with a problem similar to one of ours. They have been trying to determine what can be done with the old Hood County Jail.

Apparently the basic question has been answered, according to Grant Mabry of the Hood County News. He reports that Lewis Timberlake, guest speaker for the Granbury Chamber of Commerce banquet, made a sales pitch for the old building, which will soon house the chamber there as well as other civic groups.

However, they still face a problem that has been idenfitied in connection with any possible plans for making use of the old Scurry County Jail.

"The cost? There is no limit," said Mabry. "Boiled down, we have a goal--to restore the old jail and make it useful to the public, as well as a joy to the beholder who may only be passing through our town."

So, they are taking contributions. How much it will take, nobody knows, but it will require a lot.

Compromise Advances On Initiative Proposal

AUSTIN, Texas (AP)-Gov. Bill Clements said today that a legislative compromise to give Texans a limited right of initiative and referendum is "half a loaf but I will accept it as a first step."

Clements commented on reports that he, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker Bill Clayton had agreed on a proposal now pending in the House.

"I reserve the right to look at it," Clements told a news conference. "I am not going to pre-approve it until it reaches my desk. However, in principle I will accept that as a step forward. hopefully the next legislature would approve a more expansive initiative and referendum measure.

"Half a loaf is better than no loaf, but this is just half a loaf."

Earlier Rep. Al Brown, D-San Antonio, said his House Constitutional Amendments Committee probably would act on the compromise Monday.

A subcommittee that has been working on the issue for months planned a noon meeting today to approve a measure along lines of an agreement between Clements, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker Bill Clayton.

"It seems we've gotten together so that everybody is satisfied, including the governor, lieutenant governor and speaker," said Brown.

Clements has said he would call the Legislature back in special session if lawmakers failed to submit a constitutional amendment on initiative and referendum to voters.

Hobby thus far has objected to any proposal that would take ultimate lawmaking authority from the Legislature.

Brown said the comprise measure would enable voters, by referendum, to direct the legislature to act on an issue of statewide concern.

regulatory overkill

If President Carter is looking for a domestic issue that should prove wildly popular with the electorate, he could do far worse than to raise the banner of regulatory reform as he did recently.

A study last year by the Chase Manhattan Bank put the cost of all government regulation at $103.1 billion during 1977, with the vast bulk of this sum attributable to the regulatory web spun by federal agencies.

What does a $100 billion price tag for regulation mean? In 1977, it equalled:

-$470 for every man, woman and child in the United States, or $1,880 for each family of four.

-Five percent of the nation's gross national product, the total value of all goods and services produced in the United States that year.

-25 percent of the entire 1977 federal budget.

-Nearly three-quarters of all private investment in plant and equipment during 1977.

At General Motors, more than 20,000 employees work full-time trying to keep the nation's largest corporation in compliance with government regulations.

In New York state, one-fourth of a hospital patient's bill reflects the cost of meeting regulations issued by no less than 164 government agencies.

The impact of regulation on small business frequently is even more devastating. U.S. News and World Report noted the case of a gasoline station owner who spent 610 hours each year - nearly one-fourth of his total working time - filling out forms required by federal, state and local government agencies.

Part of this effort, and its attendant cost is, of course, intended to provide cleaner air, less polluted waters, safer work places, purer drugs, uncontaminated food and other generally recognized benefits.

And yet, no one would seriously contend that the vast fortune expended on the administration of and compliance with government regulations is without gigantic doses of waste. Indeed, there is every reason to believe the regulatory thicket has become impossibly tangled and is in desperate need of pruning.

As the President noted: "It should not have taken 12 years and over 100,000 pages for the Food and Drug Administration to decide what percentage of peanuts there ought to be in peanut butter."

What the president proposes is to subject each regulation to a careful analysis of its costs versus its presumed benefits.

The president also plans to propose a package of additional regulatory reforms including periodic reviews of existing regulations, reduction in paper work requirements, and extensive revision of current regulatory procedure.

Pushing these changes through Congress will, of course, be more difficult than delivering a speech. But, as Carter must sense, the impetus in Congress for regulatory reform has been building for several years.

This is the year to begin to liberate the economy from the onerous burden of regulatory overkill.

the awol problem

As more studies are made of the all-volunteer military force, more questions continue to be raised about the system's effectiveness from a preparedness point of view.

One of the latest studies, by the General Accounting Office, zeroes in on the high rate of unauthorized absenteeism.

In the four years from 1973 to 1977, 608,000 AWOL cases were recorded by all the branches. The GAO figures the cost to the government of these cases at $1.1 billion in lost recruiting and training expenses.

More importantly, such a high rate of AWOLs, the report said, seriously damages combat capability "by adversely affecting unit effectiveness and mission readiness."

The GAO also noted wide differences in punishment given AWOLs, with little additional punishment given repeat offenders.

All of which adds up to less than adequate recruiting and management practices.

Elaine Hannegan in a current Reader's Digest wrote, "Rearing children is like holding a very wet bar of soap -- too firm a grasp and it shoots from your hand, too loose a grasp and it slides away. A gentle but firm grasp keeps you in control."

In looking back over the years of child-rearing, a mother has to ask herself, "Didn't I do anything right?"

I knocked myself out to serve a well-balanced diet of meat, starches and dessert only to be informed that meat is poisonous to your system, starches are fattening, sugar is lethal and vegetables are where it's at.

I prided myself in getting them to make their bed every morning, pick up their rooms, and develop habits of cleanliness, only to walk into their apartments and feel I was the first to arrive on the scene after the explosion.

I sewed little dresses and suits so that at all times they would be impeccable and people would know they were being raised by people who care. Once out of my domain, they climbed into pairs of paint overalls and have been in them ever since.

I lugged them around in packs in station wagons with the wood on them to ballgames, camp, picnics, and field trips. Now they tell me big cars are gas hogs and un-American.

How I used to guide their little hands in thank-you notes in appreciation of some kindness or some gift they received. Writing has become archaic and has been replaced by a phone call -- collect.

The lectures I gave them on keeping radios and stereos low so as not to impair their hearing now fall on deaf ears literally. I can hear their tape decks at 96 decibels ten minutes before they pull into the driveway.

Did they learn nothing from the hours of holding them on my lap reading to them, counting fingers and toes and playing games? Obviously not, as their visits are confined to a monologue before an open refrigerator and a shout of "See you" as the door slams.

The three of them were huddled together in a rare visit the other day and one said, "When is Mother's Day?" Another answered, "The 13th." "We'd better get going," said the third, "If we blow it, she'll kill us."

I smiled. My faith in soap has been restored. They remembered some thing!

board routes

NEW YORK (AP)-Why so few women on corporate boards of directors? There are few qualified women, the chairmen reply. And the women retort They wouldn't recognize a qualified woman if they saw one.

The argument won't be resolved soon. The women distribute lists of candidates, the chairmen reject them. The chairmen comb their prospect files, and claim those proposed can't make a real contribution.

Having listened to both sides, an observer sought professional help. He asked a professor noted for his input and observations about life in the executive suite.

The reason, the professor told him, is simple. Few women serve on boards for the same reason newspapermen are rarely seen on them.

Explain, he was asked. What are those reasons. The same, he replied, as the reasons why management consultants, ministers, and professionals seldom are asked to serve. Yes?

"They're not on the route."

There is, said Eugene Jennings, professor of management at Michigan State, author of numerous books on corporate life, and adviser to corporation chairmen, a precise route that leads to a directorship.

"The surest route is to become an officer of a corporation, and then get elected to the board of that company," he said. Having achieved that, you then find yourself sponsored for other boards.

"Once you serve on one board your chances are very high of being named to another, a third and to even a fourth," he explained. That route has existed a long time, it will continue to use, he said.

That assertion seems to be documented by the recent study of corporate boards by the search firm of Heidrick & Struggles. For one thing, it found women named in 1978 already had served on three boards.

Women aren't on boards in great numbers, he said, not because of inherent traits that disqualify them but because they fail to possess what is sought, mainly experience to help with business decisions.

For a time recently that wasn't so, and hurt women as well as boards, said Jennings. Earlier in this decade, he explained, women were appointed as tokens, and often found to be incompetent tokens.

That phase is gone. It proved embarrassing, said Jennings, who once was hired by a chairman to develop ways of making women directors better able to understand finance, marketing, and business policy.

Competence is sought now, whether in men or women.

"Boards are more active, have greater responsibility. A premium is placed on people who need little startup time." That means business experience, he said.

my turn

by john dunnam

It was in the wee hours of the morning the other night when I saw one of those western movies of the old sort on the tube. You know the type. The plot was as simple as a white hat, the dialogue was as corny as grits and the ending was as happy as a ride off into the sunset. The delightful old relic of TV past left me feeling sad. Whatever happened to those days when the height of fulfillment was being a lonesome cowboy who only had to remember not to draw first to survive?

As a tyke, I remember sitting in front of the television and thinking I would be like that someday. Only I would be smarter. For example, most of them wore a gun on each hip but even after being disarmed at least once in each episode for 10 straight weeks, they still could not grasp the importance of having an extra weapon or two hidden in their boots or hats.

Life was not easy for the good gunslinger but at least he knew what to expect. Everytime he went into a saloon he would find sime dastardly scoundrel challenging the honor of one of the pure ladies that seemed to hang out in such places in those days. The hero would politely intervene, get a drink thrown in his face and then one of two things would happen.

1. The piano would stop playing, everyone would scramble for cover and there would be a fast-draw showdown right there at the bar. Once he plugged the rascal, some old gieser would peer over the body and say, "He drew first, it was self-defense." And that would be the end of that.

2. Or after the usual splash in the face, a terrible fistfight would ensue. Every table, chair, mirror and bottle in the house would be smashed, usually over the hero's head, before he finally decked his adversary. But once the fight was over, the hero, miraculously unscratched, would accept his hat from the bartender just as miraculously unperturbed. The rescued lady's professions of gratitude and undying love would be shrugged off with, "Aw, heck mam it was nothing."

Even more peculiar than how he could emerge unscathed from a fight or get 27 shots out of a six-shooter was the way he made his living. With no visible means of support he would drift from town to town on the best horse in the West and proceed to help beautiful young widows who were about to lose the ranch or take up the side of some dirt poor "sodbuster who didn't have the stomach for fighting.

I just don't know how he made payments on those fancy boots. Of course he only had one suit of clothes and, taxes were not what they are now.

in washington

WASHINGTON (NEA) - It has suddenly become conventional wisdom that the Senate will never accept the SALT II treaty in the form negotiated by the Carter administration and Soviet officials. Amendments and modifications of some sort are said to be certain.

Such talk, however, should be taken with a large grain of You-know-what. As touchy as the Senate is about its own prerogatives, both political and constitutional, members are likely to find their maneuvering room on the particular treaty is decidedly limited.

It was one thing for Senate Minority Leader Howard H Baker Jr and others to tinker extensively with the terms of last year's Panama Canal treaty. The panamanians may not have been complete pushovers, but they were in no position, militarily or otherwise, to resist the changes sought by the Senate.

The Soviets are a very different kettle of fish. Like it or not, they have attained over the past decade a position of essential strategic equivalence with the United States and they are not about to be shoved around by senators anxious to enhance their own reputation for toughness.

As one SALT expert at the White House put it, "bargaining with the Russians in the 1970s is not exactly like negotiating with the Japanese on the battleship Missouri in 1945."

Critics of the SALT II treaty consistently imply that the pact is more favorable to the Russians than to the United States that our negotiators made those extracted from the Soviets.

Such assertions, however, simply don't stand up under careful scrutiny. To cite but one example, much has been made in the Senate and elsewhere of the failure of SALT II to include the Soviet "Backfire" bomber under the limits imposed on each side's strategic weapons delivery systems (land and submarine-based missile launchers plus heavy bombers).

It is true that U.S. negotiators felt the Backfire should be counted under the aggregate limits set forth in the treaty. Even though the Soviets contend the plane is an intermediate-range bomber designed for use in theater warfare, rather than intercontinental attacks, the Backfire does have the capacity to reach the United States on a one-way "suicide" flight and unload its warheads.

What SALT II critics never seem to mention, however, is the U.S. negotiators did not meekly accept the Soviet refusal to include the Backfire under treaty limits. They got something in exchange, a concession of considerable greater import, in fact.

The Soviets had originally insisted that U.S. forward-based systems in Europe and the Pacific be included under SALT II limits along with the missile launchers and bombers located in this country. After all, they noted quite correctly, our F-111s could easily strike the Soviet Union from their bases in England, unloading nuclear warheads and returning Dit to for carrier-based planes.

To make a long story short, we agreed to leave the Backfire bomber out of the treaty limits but they, in turn, dropped their demand that our forward-based systems be included. A one-sided deal? Hardly.

The Senate can play around with the treaty wording all it wants, but any attempts to force additional concessions from the Russians are almost certain to meet with failure unless, of course, we are prepared to give up something in exchange. And that seems highly unlikely.

It is difficult to believe that after six years of painfully slow and arduous bargaining conducted under the direction of three separate administrations (two Republican, one Democratic), U.S. negotiators failed to wring out all they might have from their Soviet counterparts.

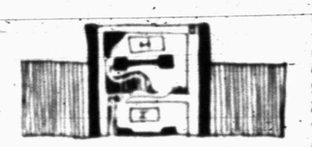

It is even harder to imagine that the Senate, in a couple of months, could wrest advantages from the Russians that the Soviets consistently denied to official U.S. negotiators. More likely, Senate tinkering would simply torpedo the treaty entirely.

When your opponent opens a weak two bid against you it is up to you to get into the bidding even at some risk.

If you make a takeout double, your partner will probably have to go to the three level if he wants to bid a suit.

The experts have developed an unusual way of responding to cover this. Specifically, if you do respond at the three level you are guaranteeing a minimum of six or seven high-card points. Thus, if South held a weaker hand he would have to respond two notrump. This would allow North to bid three clubs, whereupon South could pass with clubs or bid his own suit if he didn't like clubs.

Give South a really bad hand and North might find himself in the meat grinder, but that is an occupational hazard for all bridge players who refuse to hide their heads in the sand for safety.

Ask the Experts

A Nevada reader asks: "What is a short suit game try?"

A bid of a new suit after partner has raised your suit bid to two that says: "Partner, I have a singleton or doubleton here. If your strength is in this suit, just bid three of my suit. If elsewhere, we belong in the game."

BEAUTY DIGEST

Diane Robbens

By Diane Robbens, Editor of Beauty Digest Magazine

Stain away

If you discover a perspiration stain on one of your favorite blouses try this: if the stain is a fresh one first sponge it with ammonia, if it's an old one use white vinegar. In either case follow with a thorough rinse and laundering.

Exercise the fun way

If you're having trouble sticking to an exercise routine because it just gets too boring try combining it with enjoyable activities. Watch a favorite half hour TV show while you do your stretches and pulls, listen to your favorite record albums while doing calisthenics or call up a friend and go jogging together.

Long and short of it

Short women will look slimmer and taller if they wear their skirts to the mid-calf with boots during the winter, and just a few inches above the ankles with sandals in the summer. For even added height stick to dark solid colors.

Clear eyes

If you wake up with red puffy eyes, try the following: apply either two ice cubes or cucumber slices directly to your lids to reduce swelling. Under your eyes, to erase bags, use either a cover stick or a foundation a shade lighter than your own complexion; next with a blue eyebrow pencil draw a rim on the inside of your lower lid. This will make the whites appear whiter.

Shampoo or not

You can wash your hair every day if you use a mild shampoo that has less detergent. Remember to always follow up with a rinse or conditioner. Women who have permed or dyed hair and want to shampoo every day must give themselves a 30-minute oil treatment once a week.

Nail plan

If you've always had difficulty growing long nails try this: first, apply a nail hardener. That will make them stronger and remind you to be careful. As they grow in keep them square across the tips, filing them slightly at the corners. Finally, when the nails have some length, have a professional manicurist cut away the cuticles and show you the proper way to shape them.

Mix Potatoes And Sausage For Variety

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Scalloped potatoes and ham make a tasty meal. But why not vary the combination with a casserole of scalloped potatoes, Polish sausages, green pepper and Parmesan cheese?

Those who truly savor scalloped potatoes know the leftovers when reheated are just as good as the original serving — if there are leftovers.

SCALLOPED POTATO-SAUSAGE BAKE

- 3 medium potatoes (1 pound)
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- ½ cup chopped fresh onion
- ¼ cup chopped green pepper
- ½ pound Polish sausage, sliced
- 1 cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 4 eggs
- 1½ cups milk
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon dried leaf basil
- ⅛ teaspoon Tabasco pepper sauce

Cook potatoes, covered, in boiling salted water for 35 to 40 minutes, until tender but not soft. Drain and cool. Remove skin. Cut potatoes into 1/8-inch slices.

Melt butter in large skillet. Add onion and green pepper. Cook until tender.

In greased 2-quart casserole or baking dish, layer potatoes, sausage, cheese and onion mixture, ending with layer of potatoes.

In bowl, beat together eggs, milk, salt, basil and pepper sauce. Pour over potatoes.

Bake in 375-degree oven for 30 minutes or until custard is set. Let stand 5 minutes before serving. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Swimming motions, by fish or people, create low-frequency vibrations that are picked up by sharks' acute hearing. If the sound is regular and rhythmic, a shark may ignore it, National Geographic says. But if it is irregular, indicating thrashing or struggling, the shark may sense easy prey and attack.

Church Council OKs Union Pact

NEW YORK (AP)-One of the first labor union pacts ever negotiated with a national religious organization has been ratified in principle by employees of the National Council of Churches.

The breakthrough contract worked out in eight months of negotiations may have an impact on other U.S. religious organizations long considered out of bounds for labor union activity.

The contract covers about 170 "appointed" workers - mostly clerical and secretarial employes of the cooperative organization of Protestant and Eastern Orthodox denominations.

Agreed terms provide what management estimates to be a total pay increase of 18 percent to be administered in three stages from through 1980.

Other terms establish medical and pension benefits, comprehensive, seniority rules, job security standards and strengthened grievance procedures.

He's Depleting Her Trust Fund

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I've been going with Tony for two years. I'm 35 and divorced, and Tony is 84 and never been married. He's a typical macho Italian type.

Tony has his pad and I have mine. He suggested giving up his place and moving in with me, but I told him nothing doing unless I get that ring on my finger. Now he's after me to marry him. I love him, Abby, but I can't trust him. When I'm at his place he always unplugs the telephone. I've also seen evidence of other women there. (Ladies' clothes, cosmetics, etc.)

So what does a gal do when she loves a guy she can't trust? He says things could be different if we were married. What do you think?

HUNG UP ON TONY

DEAR HUNG UP: A gal who loves a guy she can't trust doesn't know what misery is until she marries him. Things could be different all right. They could be WORSE. Hang on to your single blessedness.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have each called our own natural parents "Mom and Dad" since childhood. We live near his parents and, after several years I finally feel comfortable calling his parents "Mom and Dad," too.

When my mother heard me call my in-laws "Mom and Dad," she became very upset and said, "WE are the only Mom and Dad you will ever have, so please find some other names for your in-laws."

What is your advice, Abby?

DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: Tell your mother that calling your in-laws "Mom and Dad" in no way diminishes the very special love you have for your own parents. And furthermore, since YOU feel comfortable calling your in-laws "Mom and Dad," there is no reason to find other names for them.

DEAR ABBY: I have known this guy for two years, but we didn't get really serious about each other until seven months ago. I'm 18, and he's 19. He kept trying to get me to go to bed with him, and I kept saying no. Finally I gave in.

I really was in love with him, Abby. I'm no tramp. I thought it would bring us closer together. Maybe even get him to figure out some way we could get married.

Well, I was wrong. After that evening I didn't hear one word from him. Finally I ran into him by accident three weeks later, and his attitude toward me was completely different. He acted like a stranger.

I feel so cheap. If I had known then what I know now, I never would have given in. But there's nothing I can do about it now.

I wasted something very precious on someone who wasn't worth it and didn't appreciate it.

Please keep telling girls that the way to keep a guy is by NOT giving in to him. I wish I hadn't.

SORRY IN W. VA.

DEAR SORRY: I will. And maybe your experience will help some other girl when she has that decision to make.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple do-your-own-thing ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Controversial Book Burned

WASHINGTON (AP)-Copies of a book commissioned by the U.S. Catholic Conference on eliminating sexual injustice in the church were ordered destroyed after a bishops' committee decided the book was not in line with church positions.

The committee cited the book's abivalence on the question of women's ordination to the priesthood, which Catholicism forbids, and the book's charges of oppression of women by the church as reasons for scrapping it.

About 2,000 copies of the 105-page book, "Light of Faith, Shades of Sexism," written by Marianne Swiacki in consultation with church experts were burned, reports the National Catholic Reporter.

Bishops Urge Nuclear Halt

BOSTON (AP)-United Methodist bishops have urged a halt in nuclear power plant construction until their safety can be assured.

At a meeting, the church's Council of Bishops approved a message to President Carter asking him to hold up further nuclear plant construction "until you can assure the American people that their health and well-being have first priority now and for the future."

Missionaries Invited Back To Uganda

WASHINGTON (AP)-On the basis of word from missionaries, the Baptist World Alliance says the ban against churches in Uganda established by dictator Idi Amin in 1977 is to be lifted under the new government of Yusufu K. Lule.

The alliance says the Rev. Webster Carroll, a Southern Baptist missionary in Uganda who had sought refuge in Kenya during the Ugandan revolution, has talked personally with Lule, who invited Carroll back to Uganda to help with reconstruction and distribution of food and medicines.

Elrod To Coach VB All-Stars

Joyce Elrod, who guided the Snyder High School Girls' Volleyball team to a state championship last season, has been selected as a coach for the 1978-79 East-West Volleyball All-Star Classic.

The game, in conjunction with the Texas High School Girls Coaches Association (THSGCA) Clinic, will be held July 13 at 8 p.m. in Abilene's Moody Coliseum.

Joining Coach Elrod will be her daughter, Dana, who was named to the West team earlier this year. Dana was an All-State setter for the Tigers both in 1977-78 and 1978-79, and has signed a letter with Texas Tech University.

JOYCE ELROD

"It's a great honor, but I'm a little apprehensive," commented Coach Elrod of the announcement. "It has a lot of responsibility that goes with it. We'll have three days to get 11 kids together and play team volleyball."

Elrod will coach the West team. Besides Dana, no other volleyball player from Region I made the elite group. The association is still voting on an opposing coach.

As volleyball coach at SHS, Elrod has won three straight District 3-3A championships and one state title. Her team was 34-3 this past season.

Tigers Can Claim Crown Saturday

By BILL McCLELLAN

With one more victory, Coach Albert Lewis will have captured his third consecutive District 3-3A baseball championship and Snyder's fifth title of the season.

That highlight could come as early as Saturday when Snyder hosts Brownfield at Moffett Field, 1 p.m.

Lewis' Tigers roared through the first half of loop play posting a 4-0 record before falling victim to injuries and what came losses to Lamesa and Brownfield.

But an improving Lamesa team quelled Brownfield hopes of sharing the first half crown with Snyder when they sacked the Cubs, 8-4 on a windy April day.

That gave the Tigers the first half championship and with Lamesa and Brownfield slumped at two losses each in the second round, Snyder can wrap it up Saturday.

In fact, the Tigers will have three chances at nailing down the title. After Saturday's game here, the Cats will travel to Brownfield on May 10, and complete the schedule by entertaining Lamesa on the 12th.

With another championship eminent, what are the possibilities of a let down of confidence?

"Oh, I'm not worried about that," commented Lewis. "The kids want to win them all and I do too. They've been playing real well, and right now we're playing as well as we have all year defensively. We haven't had the hitting this year that we've had in the past but we really haven't faced the caliber of pitching before that there is in the district this year either. I think that will help us on down the line."

That pitching talent comes primarily from Lamesa's Armando Morales and Brownfield's Roy Lee Tealer, two athletes almost sure to be named all district this year.

"That kind of pitching has stopped a lot of our runs, too. You can't give up much to those guys because they're not going to give you much," Lewis added.

But Lewis doesn't envision a rash of losses or anything like that like the back to back defeats at the close of the first round.

"Well, I'm not saying it won't happen but we're in good shape right now. We had several injuries, especially ones which hurt our pitching, and we're mostly back healthy now.

Only one other member of the Snyder High School coaching staff is able to boast of three consecutive district titles, at least in recent years. And that is Joyce Elrod, who took her volleyball squad to regional and state championships this year. Could this be the season for Lewis to go beyond a district title and sew up an elusive bi-district crown?

"I really think we can compete with just about anybody," he said earlier in the week. "We've got good pitching and we've faced better pitching this year. But we've got to get out of district first, that's the thing right now."

No ones making any predictions as to the outcome of Saturday's game, but local supporters might do well to make it out to Moffett Field this weekend. They might see a little SHS history being made, and admission is free.

Oilers Draft For Defense

HOUSTON (AP) Houston Oiler defensive coordinator Ed Biles finally is back among the ranks of the Oiler decisionmakers in the National Football League draff after a two-year vacation.

Biles could have played dominoes throughout the last two NFL draft sessions while the Oilers searched the college ranks to compile a long list of offensive players.

But Biles returned to action Thursday when the Oilers, after trading away their first round selection, picked up a pair of beefy defensive linemen in the second round. Mike Stensrud of Iowa State and Jesse Baker of Jacksonville State.

They are the type of people who will be hard to block coming through on the pass rush," Biles said. They'll have a chance to develop into great defensive linemen a la Cedric Hardeman, Dwight White and L.C. Greenwood."

Biles projects the pair as able replacements for Houston's solid three-man front that now includes ends Elbin Bethea and James Young and middle guard Curly Culp.

Phillips, becoming known as a shrewd dealer at the draft table, responded quickly to a call from Kansas City as the Oilers were ready to make Stensrud the 23rd pick in the first round.

Kansas City took Houston's first round turn and the Oilers got the Chiefs' second round choices this year and in 1980.

Phillips felt the gamble paid off.

Landry Pleased

Shaw First Cowboy Pick

DALLAS (AP) The National Football League annual draft again provided a bonanza for the Dallas Cowboys in the first two rounds although they drafted in the 27th and 54th positions.

"We would have to be awful lucky to do better than we have done," said Coach Tom Landry after the five-time Super Bowl participants chose center Robert Shaw of Tennessee and cornerback Aaron Mitchell of Nevada-Las Vegas in the first two rounds respectively.

Landry said, "Shaw was no gamble. He has the potential to play guard as well as center. He moves well and pulls well. It gives us some needed depth in our offensive line.

"Mitchell has good size, speed and is very aggressive. We were delighted to get him. He was the last of the cinch cornerbacks. He has a 4.5 in the 40 on grass and that is moving. He has the size of 6-1 r 195 pounds that none of our cornerbacks have."

Shaw was the first offensive lineman the Cowboys have drafted in the first round since 1966 when they selected John Niland. It was the first time they had ever drafted a center in the opening round.

"I know it will be tough beating out John Fitzgerald because he has been around seven years, but I am just delighted to be drafted in the first round by the Cowboys," said Shaw. "I thought the best chance I had was to go late in the second round or perhaps the third round."

Shaw was All-Southeast Conference and an AP honorable mention All-America. He had a knee injury in 1977 and underwent surgery. The Cowboys flew Shaw to Dallas so their doctors could give him a physical and he checked out fine.

Landry said Mitchell "really comes up and hits people, he arrives mean." Mitchell likely will compete at left cornerback, a position he played in college. He must beat out either Mark Washington or Dennis Thurman, Landry said he could keep only four cornerbacks next year.

Landry was impressed with the drafting of running backs Ottis Anderson of Miami and Theotis Brown of UCLA by St. Louis.

"That was the best draft in our division by far," he said.

"Philadelphia got a fine player in linebacker Jerry Robinson of UCLA."

In the third round, the Cowboys collected 6-foot-6 tight end Doug Cosbie of Santa Clara.

Spectacular Bid Top Kentucky Derby Choice

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) There will be plenty of longshots on the board when 10 colts go to the post Saturday in the 105th Kentucky Derby, a race expected to be a battle between Spectacular Bid and Flying Paster.

Whether those two standouts will be this year's Affirmed and Alydar, who ran 1-2 in all three 1978 Triple Crown events, remains to be seen. While Affirmed and Alydar tangled as 2-year-olds and carried it through last year beginning in the Derby, Spectacular Bid and Flying Paster will be meeting for the first time Saturday.

Spectacular Bid, who campaigned mostly in Florida this year, has been installed the 3-5 early line favorite to make the Derby his 11th straight stakes triumph and begin his quest to become the third straight Triple Crown champion, following Affirmed and Seattle Slew. There have been only 11 horses in throughbred history who have won the Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes.

Flying Paster, seeking to become only the fourth California-bred to capture the $200,000-added Derby, was made the 9-4 second choice for the 1¼-mile classic which is expected to draw a crowd of more than 100,000 at Churchill Downs and a national television audience ABC.

Spectacular Bid, owned by the Hawksworth Farm, has won 12 of 14 starts, his last victory coming in the Blue Grass Stakes. Ben Ridder's Flying Paster includes the Hollywood and Santa Anita derbies among his 10 victories in 14 starts.

Girls Meet To Begin Today

Editor'S NOTE: Pam Brown, Snyder High School freshman, will compete in the state track meet this evening. Her event, the 100-yard dash, will be run at 7:30.

AUSTIN (AP)—Galveston Ball, the 1978 runner-up to Fort Worth Trimble Tech in Class 4A at the girls' state track meet, appears ready to bid for the championship this year.

The meet was scheduled to open with field events at noon today.

Running events to determine the 3A and 2A champions are set for 7:30 p.m. Canyon won 3A last year and Bellville 2A.

On Saturday, champions will be determined in Class B, A and 4A.

Ball, shaded by four points by Trimble Tech, has the best regional time in the 400-meter and 800-meter relays and qualified Dorene Hayward in the 200-meter dash and Carla Thomas in the 80-yard hurdles.

Rising Star won the B title in 1978 and Bovina edged Longview Spring Hill by one point for the A championship.

Dana Olson of 3A Austin Westlake, the state record holder in the girls' discus throw, has a chance at a national high school record.

Texas girls hold or share national high school records in four events - 400 meter relay, 80-yard hurdles, 800-meter relay and the triple jump.

Regional performances, however, indicate neither those nor any other national records - with the possible exception of the discus - are in danger.

Easter Gabriel of Houston Sterling set the national triple jump record last year, leaping 40-¼, but she will not compete in that event this year. She qualified for the 400-meter dash, however, with a regional best time of 55.34.

Ira Players Get Uniforms

IRA—Ira's Little League and Pee Wee League baseballers will get their uniforms Saturday morning.

The uniforms will be issued between the hours of 8 a.m. and 10 a.m. at the new baseball facility.

WCT Reaches Semifinals

DALLAS (AP) Defending champion Vitas Gerulaitis has a new serve and he's going to need it in tonight's semifinal of the World Championship of Tennis against No. 1 seeded Bjorn Borg, who admittedly is playing better than last year.

In the other matchup to determine the pairings for Sunday's finals for the $100,000 first-place prize, Jimmy Connors meets 20-year-old John McEnroe.

Gerulaitis and Borg breezed to straight set victories Thursday night. Gerulaitis coasted past Brian Gottfried 6-4, 6-3, 6-3, and Borg blasted Australian Geoff Masters 6-3, 6-1, 6-1.

"I've changed my second serve and it feels good," said Gerulaitis. "I always used to back off my serve but now I have confidence."

Gerulaitis credited Australian Fred Stolle, who has been hired as a traveling teaching pro, with changing his serve.

"Stolle opened my stance...he changed it two weeks ago and it has worked well although I started getting a little shaky at the end tonight," Gerulaitis said.

Britain

overall majority.

Computer projections said the Tories could expect an overall majority of 25 to 39.

Though Mrs. Thatcher was withholding a victory statement until the 318 seats for majority were declared, the pro-Tory London evening papers pushed her into the premiership. "The First Lady," shouted an Evening Standard headline. "I've done it," blared the Evening News.

The standing of the parties at 12:20 p.m. (7:20 a.m. EDT) was Conservatives 271, Labor 250, the small Liberal Party 8, the Scottish Nationalists 2, Plaid Cymru Welsh nationalists 2, and one for the non-voting speaker of the House.

The results showed the country deeply divided, with the prosperous south of England solid for Mrs. Thatcher's Tories, while Scotland and the north of England, where the shipbuilding, steel, engineering and coal industries rely on state support, consolidated behind Labor.

Union reaction to Mrs. Thatcher's triumph came swiftly. David Basnett, head of the General and Municipal Workers Union, called it "a sad day for Britain," while railwaymen's union leader Sidney Weighell warned: "We are going to have a confrontation situation generated if they do what they say they are going to do."

Joe Gormley, leader of the National Union of Mineworkers whose strike brought down the previous Tory government in 1974, said: "Just when we have got things going right for Britain, we are changing horses in midstream."

President On Trip To Iowa

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter flew to Des Moines today on a "nonpolitical" trip to politically potent Iowa and California because, according to a grinning aide, people there are "really interested in Carter's programs."

Iowa is expected, once again, to be the first state to pick Democratic national convention delegates at party caucuses next January caucuses that gave Carter a big boost toward nomination in 1976.

Hungary declared independence from the Austrian Empire in 1849 and Lljos Kossuth became president. But the Austrians, aided by the Russians, crushed the revolution in August. Kossuth resigned and fled to exile in England and later to Italy, where he died in 1894.

Martin Luther arrived at the Diet of Worms in 1521.

Advantages of chewing food

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Thank you for the fine advice to throw laxatives into the trash can and train the bowels naturally. I did just that and I'm very grateful for the advice.

All my life I was taught to chew my food well to digest the sugars and starches. My daughter worked for a fine doctor until his death who advised this but my present physician says that this is not true — that the entire body handles sugar. Who's right?

Then recently I heard a New York doctor interviewed on TV about milk and he said milk caused gas in the upper digestive tract and often caused ulcers of the stomach. A woman asked him about mother's milk and he said not more than for two years.

I'm on a diet for diabetes and I'm supposed to use a half cup of milk four times a day with meals and with a bedtime snack. I asked the doctor if I should drop the milk and use calcium tablets and he looked at me crossly and said, "Drink your milk." What do you think?

DEAR READER — First I think you were very smart to throw away the laxatives. I'm sending you The Health Letter number 12-8, Laxatives, Enemas and Suppositories, to give you a complete understanding of this problem. Other readers who want information about this can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Most people who use chemical laxatives shouldn't. It's a very bad habit.

The saliva in your mouth contains an enzyme which does break down starch. That's one advantage to chewing your food. When you have quite a bit of solid food and the saliva is mixed in the center of the food bolus in the stomach, this digestive process continues inside the bolus of food. If the food is exposed to the acid in the stomach, the enzyme will be immediately inactivated.

That doesn't matter too much because once the food is emptied into the small intestine, the same or similar enzymes from the pancreas enter in the small intestine and break down all the starch and carbohydrates for you.

Perhaps one of the better reasons for chewing your food quite a little while is that it prolongs eating. People who wait long enough will find they're satisfied with less food and that sometimes helps avoid eating too many calories.

Now about milk. It's perfectly true that it can be irritating to the digestive tract in many adults. The milk sugar may not be absorbed and this may cause gas and diarrhea or symptoms very similar to those noted for spastic colon. That does not mean that milk isn't a good food or that people shouldn't use it. Milk is our major source of calcium. Calcium found in some vegetables actually can't even be absorbed. Since you have had no symptoms of difficulties from milk, I see no reason why you shouldn't continue it. You certainly need the calcium.

I doubt your doctor was really cross with you. He probably just wanted to emphasize how important it was that you should have milk as part of your diet. Aren't you glad he cares enough about you to be concerned if you didn't follow the diet he thinks best for your health?

Theft, Two Mishaps Are Logged Here

A theft and two minor traffic accidents have been investigated by city police.

The theft was reported by Daniel Martin at Snyder High School who told officers a $75 calculator was missing from the area of the central office. The item was allegedly taken between April 16 and May 3.

Getting off work early this morning night police dispatcher Keith Ward was involved in a minor traffic accident in the 2300 block of 48th St. The 1977 Pontiac Ward was driving officers said struck a tree and a yield sign. Moderate damages were reported. The mishap occurred about 7:25 a.m.

Yesterday at 1979 Buick driven by James Blair Dower was in collision with a parked 1970 Mercury driven by Dale Welhelm. The accident took place in the 2300 block of Ave. T about 4 p.m. and resulted in minor damage.
