MOODY DENOUNCES THE KU KLUX KLAN

Swashbuckling Adventurer Is Mysteriously Killed

WILL SPUD IN ON WHICKER WELL SEPTEMBER 15

RIG ARRIVES AT COCHRAN COUNTY LOCATION LEASE

GOOD PROGRESS MADE ON TWO OTHER TESTS IN VICINITY OF CITY

With the arrival Tuesday of rig and other drilling equipment at the site of Whicker No. 1 near Bledsoe, in Cochran county, and the announcement of spudding in set for September 15, oil interest took on added impetus here Tuesday. The rig passed through here enroute to Bledsoe Monday.

The test is located about three miles south of Bledsoe, terminus town on the branch line of the Santa Fe railroad west of here, and is the first location made on the 8,000 acre tract in Cochran county under lease by J. C. Whicker, of Littlefield, and associates.

The test will be spudded in September 15, State Senator W. H. Bledsoe, legal counsel for the company said today.

The spudding in of this test will bring the number on the South Plains adjacent to Lubbock to three, the other two being to the northwest of this city. Others are under way in this section of the state, and locations have been made for still others, while lease property in all directions from this city is very much in demand.

Five other lease contracts filed with the County Clerk Monday, however, apparently will be made in the Lubbock county land to the northwest of the city, the Humble Oil company being principal in the contracts. These contracts, as in the case with others taken by the Humble company recently provide for tests to be started within 15 months.

The Ellwood-Myrick No. 1, located about 14 miles northwest of here, has been drilled to approximately 950 feet. It was reported at Ellwood Land company headquarters here today, with drilling continuing steadily. Several strata of water have been drilled through that it was necessary to call off, and the casing is now set the full depth of the hole.

Yellowhouse Going Down

Reports reaching here from Yellowhouse No. 1 on the Littlefield estate a little farther northwest of the Ellwood-Myrick test said that drills had panned 2,900 feet, and that work is continuing 74 hours in the day. The tests both provide for a minimum of 2,500 feet unless oil or gas is found in paying quantity at a lesser depth.

It was learned Tuesday from reliable authority that J. E. Watson is planning another test on the Watson holdings in Bailey county, and that it is expected that work will be under way within a reasonable time. Watson No. 1, about six miles northwest of here, work on which was suspended some time ago, is still inactive, but it was said that the legal technicalities in connection with the test are expected to be cleared away in the near future, when work will be resumed.

U. S. Opens Trial Of Daugherty In New York Court

(By The Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—The outstanding case involving post war fraud opened today in federal court.

Selection of jury to try Harry M. Daugherty, attorney general in the Harding administration, and Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian, for conspiracy to defraud the government began shortly before noon. A special panel of 200 talesmen had been summoned.

"Conspiracy" is charged. The indictment on which Daugherty and Miller are being tried charged them with "conspiracy to defraud the United States of their unprejudiced services as officials," by accepting a bribe of $250,000 in return of $7,000,000 in cash and liberty bonds to German claimants of stock in the American Metal company. It is charged the alleged bribe was accepted within a month after their appointments by President Harding in 1921.

When Judge Julian Mack asked all talesmen wishing to be excused to step forward, nearly two-thirds of the 200 men who had appeared by that time stepped forward. As the talesmen began presenting their excuses, with only a few of them being accepted by Judge Mack, Mr. Daugherty sat sharpening a pencil. Mr. Miller smiled occasionally, conferred with his attorneys.

CORPSE OF JACK CARLISLE FOUND ON LONELY ROAD

MAN WHO AIDED IN MANY MEXICAN REVOLUTIONS IS GUNMAN'S TARGET

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—Jackson D. Carlisle, victim of a mid-night murder mystery on a lonely road near Twin Lakes, Wis., and known in Chicago only as a promiscuous clothing salesman, was revealed today as Jack Carlisle, known in Mexico and the turbulent republics to the south as an adventurous fighting figure, a swash buckling soldier of fortune.

Carlisle was found on a little traveled dirt road a half mile from Twin Lakes early yesterday. His body lay face downward in a crimson pool, his throat slashed as by a sharp axe or a cleaver, his head almost severed from his body. Several persons who were in a party with Carlisle at a Twin Lakes resort Sunday night and early yesterday were questioned, but after they had satisfied detectives that they knew nothing of the slaying, they were allowed to go back to Kenosha, Wis., to aid in the investigation there. They included Mrs. Zelene Carlisle, 35, widow of the slain man, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Patschelt, Chicago and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kinschell, Kenosha.

His Life Quiet Now.

Carlisle and his wife lived a quiet life in a Chicago theatrical hotel. There little of the adventurous past of the soldier of fortune was known, although he was the subject of a recent series of articles in a national magazine—a series which told of his fighting days in armies of Mexico and South American republics with Tracy Richardson.

Mrs. Carlisle told detectives that her husband had planned to go back to South America and had looked forward eagerly to the trip, yet had a premonition that it would never come to pass.

Carlisle was known up and down the Mexican border in 1912 when the Orozco-Salazar revolution was in progress. He was a pal of Sam Dreben and of Richardson, known as a machine gunner in Latin American revolutions, and knew nearly all members of the soldier of fortune fraternity. He rode out of Juarez with General Yanez Salazar and General Emiliano Cerna to Chihuahua, where these two men were battling for the overthrow of Francisco Madero, and took part in some of the fiercest fighting of the revolution, which eventually failed.

King Alfonso, of Spain, whose dynasty is being threatened by a revolt. A state of war exists in his country, press reports say, and the king is already active in forming a new ministry.

City Election Is Poorly Patronized

Lubbock voters apparently were engaged in a game of "pass the buck" Tuesday while an election was under way here to name one member of the City Commission to replace R. W. Blair, resigned. Only about 300 votes had been polled at 3 o'clock out of the approximately 2,000 eligibles in the confines of the city.

It was expected, however, that fully this many more votes would be polled in the afternoon, including the bulk of the ladies who will participate, and the labor vote, the latter of which will come in after 5 o'clock, when construction work over the city is shut down for the day.

In the election George E. Benson and A. V. Weaver have offered their services to fill out the unexpired term of Mr. Blair, and the fact that either of these men are looked upon as a good selection might account for the light vote. The polls will remain open until 7 o'clock, R. T. Penny, election judge said.

Tech Authorities Lay Housing Plans

In order that there may be as little confusion as possible and that students coming into Lubbock for the current school year may find places to stay more easily than they did last year, the housing committee of the Tech is keeping well employed during these days preceding the opening of the term in listing and investigating prospective homes for students.

Those Lubbock citizens, intending to rent rooms or room and board to Tech students, will be required to write to the Housing Committee, at the Tech college, if their rooms have not yet been listed, as a survey of the city has been made earlier in the summer.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 7. (P)—The Catholic Episcopate of Mexico has formally petitioned congress to repeal or amend the religious clauses of the constitution so as to eliminate the restrictions which, the Episcopate says, render the life of the Catholic church in Mexico impossible. Speech By Cone Johnson Starts State Assembly

DAN SAYS KLANSMEN WHO HOLD PUBLIC OFFICE SHOULD RESIGN

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 7. (P)—Dan Moody, Democratic gubernatorial nominee, has suggested a plank in the Democratic platform that all office holders who are members of secret societies tending to breed hate, prejudice and religious jealousy resign from office. This announcement was made Tuesday shortly before the Democratic convention met at the auditorium. While Moody did not mention the Ku Klux Klan by name, it was said he felt it necessary, in view of charges that he had Klan support in the recent campaigns, to suggest the action by the convention.

George C. Purl, delegate from Dallas, declared that all the Dallas delegation would propose a resolution denouncing "Fergusonism."

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Sept. 7. (P)—The integrity and responsibility of the official eye of the people, the education of the child, and the preservation of the good name of the state through the living up to its obligations were emphasized Tuesday by Cone Johnson of Tyler in his introductory speech as temporary chairman of the state Democratic convention.

Johnson paid a tribute to Dan Moody nominee for governor, declaring that the people of Texas admired his "integrity, capacity and maturity and soundness of judgment."

Moody's Victory Praised

"Five hundred thousand Democrats said 'Dan's the man,'" said Johnson, "and his victory was not one of class but of honest men and women of Texas."

Loyalty to Moody as governor was pledged by Arthur R. Eddison of Hamilton, retiring chairman of the state committee.

"The people like his character and love his personality," said Eddison of Moody, "We're all for Dan now."

The retiring committee head said that the combination of the first woman governor being defeated by the youngest candidate for governor would never happen again, and added:

People Lauded

The people still believe that a public office is a public trust, said Johnson adding that they were quick to forget mistakes by officials but could not forget the things "which strike at the very fibre of government."

"Scandal and disruption leaves scars behind," he declared.

"We tried the experiment of community administration and the governor in name must have found it similar to the apostle who said: 'When I do good, evil is present with me.'"

Oil Commission Is Heard by Coolidge

PAUL SMITH'S, N. Y., Sept. 7.—The preliminary report of the oil conservation board at Washington on national petroleum resources of the United States, showing a theoretical possible supply of six years, is interpreted by President Coolidge as a warning to the country to be on its guard that it may keep supplied with necessary oil products.

The board was set up, it was pointed out to make survey of the oil situation from the conservation standpoint with special reference to the needs of the national defense and in addition the needs of commerce. Its purpose, it was added, is not to shut off from use any of the resources of the country needed at the present time, but it does aim to aid in the devising of methods for the prevention of waste and the improper use of the natural resources of the country.

DANCE? OF COURSE!

BUT WHY SO MUCH?

One night at a theatre I witnessed an amateur Charleston contest. By the time we got in the affair was half over and all the contestants had been eliminated but four. After a while two more were voted out and that left one couple a boy and a girl about sixteen years of age.

I think they had been dancing for an hour.

The evening was warm. Their faces were flushed, their shoulders heaving. There was an alluring prize of a hundred dollars and a trip somewhere.

The two started again and danced for five minutes. The voting was done by applause. The house was divided evenly. They danced again! Again it was even! Again they danced! Again even!

"I kept on indefinitely. I closed my eyes. I expected, if I opened them, to see one or both lying dead. As it happened, the girl won. She had to dance some more to show her appreciation."

It was painful to watch her breathe. Her chest must have been strained to the limit of all endurance. Shades of the old jumping rope! It was a slow motion picture compared to modern dancing.

I know a girl and her "boy friend" who never make a night at either a public park pavilion or a road house. And they never give a dance when they are there. Summer and winter, year in and year out, they dance. I believe they hold the championship of the countryside for the Charleston.

Here is the schedule of a house party during "Prom" week at a certain college: Dance from nine until two, change clothes and shower, then on to another dance; dance until five, change clothes and shower, then on to another dance; dance until five, change clothes and shower, then on to another dance; dance until five, change clothes and shower, then on to another dance.

Dancing there always has been and dancing there always will be. It is as natural as the sunrise for young people to dance. But it is constitutions and hearts that I am thinking of.

When they are forty they will wonder why they have to go to clinics for three months out of every year to keep alive if they reach forty.

READY FOR SCHOOL

CLOTHES IMPORTANT IN HAPPINESS OF CHILDREN

By VIRGINIA SWAIN

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—The first crisp days of September bring a warning to the mother of a family. "Count Johnnie's socks and investigate the rents in Susan's school dresses!"

For the younger generation, September means a clothes crisis, unless mother has been thinking ahead of its school needs.

Except for the smallest kindergarten, the cotton frocks of summer will be insufficient for school wear in the fall. Summer hats and shoes and wraps have seen their day, and must be replaced by sturdier articles.

The child whose clothes are suitable and in good order has a running start toward a successful school year. That clothes do count in the mental attitude of the child, and therefore in his whole school life, has been proved beyond a doubt.

Plainly Tailored Therefore, the wise mother will budget her means to secure the best possible garments—not the fanciest—for her youngsters.

The trend in children's clothing is toward a subtle compromise between simplicity and sophistication. Just as clothes for the adult have grown more simple every season, so too are children's clothes plainly tailored, but with a subtle line never before seen in the junior departments.

The illustrated belted dress of brown twill demonstrates the simple smartness of the new dresses for the girl of high school age.

It is cut on slim, straight lines, with front and side insets of golden crepe cloth, trimmed with polka dots of brown flat chain stitch.

Belt, sleeve pipings and tie are of the same gold color, and the soft little felt hat is gold toned also.

Tan crepe-soled walking shoes are the newest thing for this type of school dress.

For Hawaii where he has accepted a position. She and her children spent the summer here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Ellis.

SOPHISTICATED NOTE SHOWN IN MODELS THIS FALL

For the girl of 16 to 14, velveteen is a very popular school fabric. It is not to be surpassed for beauty, warmth and durability.

Clothes for the little girl entering the grades are quite as sophisticated as for the older girl. A new and charming idea is given to the fall season by a French designer for children, who produced the illustrated short plaid wool skirt and the tailored skirt of finest English cotton broadcloth.

Much smarter than the old middie blouse the skirt comes in pale colors harmonizing with the plaid skirt. The cotton broadcloth washes excellently. With such a costume, the hat of wood brown felt, trimmed with a ribbon rosette and a tiny bit of rabbit's fur, is altogether fetching.

These costumes are suitable for girls from 9 to 12.

Cost Is Low For the well dressed child of grammar school age, a wardrobe should consist of one plaid skirt, with four or five cotton shirts, one twill dress, one velveteen dress, one small felt hat, a raincoat, a rain hat and two pairs of walking shoes or plain umbrellas.

Rubbers, hose, underwear and such accessories must be selected according to individual taste and needs.

If the dresses are made at home, they should cost: the twill, $10; the velveteen, $12; the plaid skirt outfit, including the five shirts, about $11. Shoes range in price according to the size and style. The simple felt hats for school girls are to be had at $5 and $5.50.

Thus, the child of 16 may be outfitted by the home dressmaker, exclusive of underwear and outer wraps, for about $45.

Plain school coats range in price from $18.50 for tailored tweeds, to $44.50 for a soft English fabric with a raccoon collar.

Number of Teachers At Institute Here Now Estimated At 1,000 By Doctor Horn As Convention Goes Into Second Day

The estimated number of one thousand teachers of the South Plains, in session at the teachers' institute being held at the Tech College this week has been fulfilled, according to Dr. P. W. Horn, who is conducting the institute. At eleven o'clock this morning, 364 teachers had registered and paid their fees, and it is certain that at least a hundred thirty-six have neglected so far to register, as this action is entirely with the individual teacher.

While the first day was given over largely to registration and becoming acquainted with schedules, the entire movement of assemblies, lectures and classes were moving through this morning without a hitch. Teachers representing practically every school within the district up to a distance of 60 miles are attending the institute. Dr. A. W. Evans, assistant to Dr. Horn in conducting the institute, is also in charge of the teachers' placement bureau of the school. According to Dr. Evans, there are a comparatively large number of applications for schools; but few positions in schools are open just now, since this late in the season, requirements would come only from emergencies such as resignation of a teacher or other such condition.

Dr. Judd Highly Pleased

Dr. C. H. Judd, in speaking this afternoon with a representative of the Journal, stated that he was very highly pleased with the manner in which the institute is being conducted, and especially with the remarkable growth of the Western country as shown by the large number of teachers present now, representing the Plains. In regard to the Technological College, Dr. Judd stated that the time was certainly ripe for the development in West Texas of just such educational institution, judging from the enormous enrollment of the first school year; and that having known Dr. Horn personally while Dr. Horn was in Houston several years ago, his interest in the institution was more personal than it might otherwise have been. He stated that he had not known of another school whose record, for the first months of its operation; and that to him this was further proof of the need for the school that was present in this section of the State.

Dr. Judd, in speaking twice daily, each morning and each afternoon, to the assembly of the institute, upon subjects relating directly to education, dealing with the administration of specific subjects. In addition to this, however, he will speak this evening at the First Methodist church, at 8:30, at which time the citizens of Lubbock will have opportunity to hear him. Preceding this lecture, at 8:00, W. R. Wagborne, will give a pipe organ recital for the half hour.

To one familiar during the past school year with the crowds surging up and down stairways and in and out of class rooms and halls, the institute resembles closely an ordinary class day of the school term, with the exception that attendance is generally more mature as far as years is concerned. There are, however, a very large number of last year's students in the Tech who are attending the institute before going away to teach in other schools.

According to officials of the institute, the large number of visitors attending the institute are being entertained with hardly any trouble whatever. Homes in Lubbock have been secured for by far the greater number of the visitors; and dormitories and the hotel are caring for the remainder. College Inn, according to Mrs. E. Studeman, is completely filled, with about sixty of the women teachers staying there during the week, and other dormitories are running under similar conditions.

Kitchen Shower Given Miss Mary Alyce Stanton And C. Anderson Monday Evening At Bryan Home

A kitchen shower was given Miss Mary Alyce Stanton and Campbell Anderson Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Bryan, 2019 Main Street, with Misses Sue Bryan and Glen Stanton as hostesses. Games were played on the lawn of the home during the evening and after the serving of refreshments, dunes caps were worn by the guests, these being given as favors.

The gifts were brought in on a wheelbarrow with Lawrence Bacon pushing it. Percy Denton had heralded his coming on a broom-stick horse, dashing in ringing a bell and shouting.

Red and white was carried out in the decorations. The dining table was covered with a red and white cloth with an old-fashioned nosegay of flowers in an Indian basket forming the centerpiece. Nasturtiums and periwinkles were other flowers used in the home. Punch was served from a tub on the lawn with a sign over the container instructing the guests to help themselves. Strawberry ice cream was served from tin cups with tin spoons.

UTILITIES WINS FIRST OF SERIES FOR CITY FLAG

SCORE EARLY FOR HEAVY LEAD AS TAILORS BOOT DRIVE

Jumping on the offerings of Moody Smith, ace right hander on City League diamonds, the Texas Utilities diamond crew, champion of the Major division of the City League, amassed an early lead, and won the first of a five game series over the P. O. Tailors, champion of the Twilight division. In the opener of the series that will decide the city championship Monday afternoon. The final count was 14 to 3.

Smith delivered a pretty game, giving up only eight hits, while he and his mates were pounding Ater, Utilities moundman for 13, but ten errors behind Smith, each of which was costly, was more than he could overcome. The Labor Day battle went for nine innings, but all future games in the series will be abbreviated to five innings, beginning at 6 o'clock.

Utilities sent across ten runs in the first two innings of the game, mostly on errors, but these were checked in the third, and under the steady pitching of Smith, the Major champions were held scoreless until the seventh, except for one run in the fifth. During this time, however, Skipper Hule, of the Twilight champions, arrayed his forces for action, and action he received. One three, four, is the way the second brace of scores in the P. O. Tailor column reads, and for a time the heavy lead of the Utilities crew looked as though it might go glimmering, but the rally was halted after eight runs had been counted and Ater tightened to shut out the Twilight sluggers in the remaining frames while he and his teammates were pounding Smith for three additional tallies.

This win places the Utilities crew in a race by itself as far as season's record is concerned, for the club has only lost two games out of 22. The same clubs will play again this afternoon at the Merrill park beginning at 6 o'clock in the second game of the five game series.

DIAMOND DISPUTES DECIDED

By BILLY EVANS

With runners on first and third, a double steal is started as the pitcher stands on the rubber. How should this play be broken up by the team in the field?

The fact that the runners start the play as the pitcher gets on the rubber is what usually confuses the situation. Should the pitcher throw the ball to the plate while standing on the rubber, it would be a legal pitch and the catcher would be forced to handle the ball in the usual manner before making a play on the runner.

Incidentally, the batsman would have a right to swing at the ball if he cared to do so, in an effort to help out the runner.

Likewise, if the pitcher first stepped in the direction of first as the play was started, he would be compelled to throw the ball to that base or make a balk.

The only proper way to make the play is for the pitcher to step off the rubber, back off it is best, as the runners start to steal. Then he has a perfect right to throw the ball to any base he thinks best in order to break up the play.

LONGHORN STAR OF 1920 GOES TO PORT ARTHUR

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 7. (AP)—Tom Dennis of Cleburne, hero of the spectacular 7-3 victory gained here in 1920 by the Texas University eleven over the powerful Texas Aggies, this fall will take up his duties as athletic director at Port Arthur high school.

Dennis ranks among the greatest tackles the Southwest Conference has developed, many critics placing him on the all-time, all-conference combination.

His splendid play in 1920 against the Texas Aggies earned him the captaincy of the 1921 Longhorns. In 1921—probably his outstanding season—Dennis tipped the scales around the 200 pound mark, stood well over six feet, was extraordinarily fast, and possessed of tremendous power and drive in his broad shoulders and muscular legs.

Spectacular Play Recalled
The Cleburne product, however, always will be best remembered by Texas University fans for his marvelous catch of a forward pass that made possible a last quarter victory for his team over the Aggies, arch-rivals of the Steers.

The championship of the conference hinged on the 1920 Thanksgiving Day clash between Coach Iona Bible's Aggies and Coach Berry Whitaker's Longhorns. The contest attracted wide attention, for the two teams were recognized as among the strongest the conference had known. Even now, some conference football followers contend the eleven were the strongest ever to battle for the Southwest Conference title.

The Aggies boasted such stars as Jack Mahan and Higginbotham, two of the outstanding backs of conference history; Drake and Carruthers, sturdy tackles; "Fats" Murrin, a great guard; and Johnny Pierce, heady center. Among the Longhorn stars were, Dennis tackles; "Swede" Swenson, George McCullough, end; Green and center; "Rats" Watson, quarterback; Louis Domingues, fullback; Joe Ellis, halfback; and "Red" McCallum, the halfback whose crashing tackle put out Pierce in the first two or three minutes of play.

Early in the game—which was played before a capacity crowd of about 15,000—Higginbotham kicked a field goal, and the Aggie machine, famed for its defensive ability, settled back on the defensive for practically the rest of the fracas, trusting largely to Higginbotham's punting to hold the Longhorns.

Toward the close of the third quarter, the Longhorns, on short passes to Leisner and Ellis from Watson, and on line smashes by Domingues, carried the pigskin within the shadow of the Aggie goal, but failed by an inch or two to take the ball over.

Undiscouraged, the Longhorns in the fourth quarter marched 50 yards to within the 20 yard line of the Aggies. Here Bible's men again rallied desperately, and fourth down found the Longhorns with about 12 yards to go for a first down. At this juncture, Bill Barry, a substitute back was rushed into the fray.

Line Surges Forward
The Aggie line surged forward and almost smothered Barry before he could get the ball. Dennis leaped high, and somehow managed to catch Barry's hurried toss. The completed pass was good for about 15 yards and first down, placing the ball on the seven yard line.

Three smashes at the line by Watson and Domingues gained but four yards, but on the fourth down, the powerful Domingues crashed through the right side of the Farmer line for a touchdown—the first scored that year on a marvelous defensive combination. Dennis' great catch momentarily had shattered the morale of the fighting Farmers.

In 1921, the Longhorns and Aggies played a scoreless tie at College Station. Dennis again stood out, particularly on the defensive. So powerful were his rushes that when the Aggies were kicking they assigned three men to check the Longhorn captain and tackle. Dennis was conceded to be the outstanding tackle of the conference for the 1921 season.

Since completing his football playing career, Dennis has coached at Meridian College, Texas University, and Austin High School. In the fall of 1924, he helped whip the Texas Longhorn line into shape, and assisted Coach Clyde Littlefield with the freshman aspirants.

Longhorn football followers are predicting that before long Dennis will have Port Arthur in the running for the state high school grid title.

Matty Matsuda Wins Again To Hold Belt

SAN ANGELO, Texas, Sept. 7. (AP)—Matty Matsuda, of El Paso, again defended his claim to the world's welter weight wrestling title by defeating Billy Romanoff of Wichita, Kans., in two straight falls before one thousand fans here last night. The Jap won the first fall with a back drop in 41 minutes and the second with a flying mare in 12 minutes.

According to Harry Meyers, of Lubbock, veteran referee who has officiated several times for the Japanese champion, Romanoff is very much of a "tough boy."

"In defeating Romanoff in two straight falls, and taking only 53 minutes of wrestling all told, Matsuda has proven again his right to the title," Mr. Meyers said today.

CARDINALS ARE STILL IN LEAD BY FEW POINTS

TWIN BILLS SPLIT WITH REDS 5 POINTS BACK OF ST. LOUISIANS

(By the Associated Press)
The St. Louis Cardinals today retained a five point lead in the National League after desperate holiday attacks upon them.

St. Louis, playing Pittsburgh in a series that may decide the pennant, took the morning encounter, 3 to 1, but lost in the afternoon, 4 to 2.

Cincinnati likewise broke even with Chicago. Cincinnati came from behind, winning the afternoon joust, 7 to 4, after the Cubs had won, 2 to 0 in the morning.

They're Bunched Up
The Reds today were half a game behind St. Louis with Pittsburgh 17 points back of the Reds.

Brooklyn and Philadelphia split. The Robins hammered their way through the first game, 3 to 2. Fred Leach got a home run with the bases full for an 8-2 victory in the afternoon.

Leaders Split
The standing at the top of the American League showed no change. Both the Yankees and the Cleveland clubs split double-headers. Elmer stepped New York in the first game with Philadelphia, 5 to 2, but weakened when called upon in the second and was forced to take a two to one defeat. Cleveland won the first against St. Louis, 7 to 6, but was nosed out in the second, 3 to 1.

Chicago alone was able to win more than one game in the day, taking two from Detroit by scores of 5 to 4 and 7 to 5.

Washington won its tenth straight by beating Boston again, 2 to 1, and tied for third place with Philadelphia.

Dempsey Gets 'Fat' From Early Funds Girls Rally Round Tunney, A Bachelor Jack O'Brien Says Champ Looking Fine

(By the Associated Press)
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 7.—During his first 13 days of training here, Jack Dempsey has taken in nearly $17,000. He has reason to believe that his bank account will be swelled to the extent of $25,000 or $30,000 before he breaks camp.

He paid the $3,000 rental of the Greyhound race track where he trains out of one day's receipts. Last Sunday nearly 6,000 spectators paid $1.10 each to see him wallop his playmates. While he was training at Luther's resort at Saratoga Lake, Dempsey only got fifty percent of what came in to the gate. Likewise he had to divide when Jack Kearns was handling the business in the training camps of other years.

He Got It All
Dempsey handling his own affairs, all the receipts are his.

The champion is satisfying nearly every spectator that he is at least nearing the form of old.

STROUDSBURG, Pa., Sept. 7. (AP)—Gene Tunney looses out epigrams as readily as he throws rights and lefts. "Composure is absolutely necessary," is one of his observations in regard to conduct in the ring. Another is "poise is essential."

The challenger has never been knocked down. On the theory that there must be a first in everything, he was asked what his reaction would be if the champion stretched him on the canvas.

He'd Then Get Up

"In that event," Tunney replied, "the next move would be to get up and the move after that must be an effort to knock my opponent down."

Tunney, a bachelor, is receiving many letters from girls who desire to know him better but the chances are they will not. He thinks now only of men who have championships to lose. Many have sent all kinds of good luck pieces.

It became known here today.

League officials held a conference on the matter here Saturday. Galloway already was temporarily suspended. Probable extent of the continued suspension could not be learned.

LUBBOCK GETS LABOR AGENCY

Federal Branch To Be Placed In City For Cotton Field Labor Decided Monday

A general labor office is to be established in Lubbock to serve the South Plains section, it was decided Monday afternoon at a meeting of farmers from Lubbock and surrounding counties with A. M. Robertson, special agent of the farm labor division of the United States department of labor. The number of pickers needed for the cotton crop in this section and other problems of the farmers were discussed.

The standard price is to be fixed at a meeting at 2 o'clock on the afternoon of September 20 in the office of the chamber of commerce with representatives from each community present. It was decided. Communities are to hold meetings on September 15 and select representatives to the session here.

In order that the number of pickers needed for this section may be determined, it was suggested by Mr. Robertson that each farmer report to his chamber of commerce, with these organizations reporting in turn to the general office at Lubbock. A. B. Davis, secretary of the chamber of commerce here and D. F. Eaton, county agent, were other speakers Monday. Mr. Eaton urged attendance at the farmer's congress which is to be held at the

Allen to Lead Delegation of Legionnaires

FINAL PLANS LAID FOR TRIP AT MEETING OF POST LAST NIGHT

The Lubbock delegation to the state convention of the American Legion which meets in Amarillo Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week will leave here Wednesday morning, some by auto and some by train. Final plans for the trip were laid Monday night at the regular meeting of the local Post when Hubert L. Allen, district manager of the Texas Utilities company was selected chairman of the official delegation.

The Lubbock Post is entitled to nine votes at the convention, at the rate of one official delegate for every twenty members of the Post, and it was decided that the balance of the official delegates will not be selected until the group arrives at Amarillo. It is probable that 25 or 30 members of the Post will make the trip.

Lubbock Has Headquarters The home of the Amarillo Post was selected as Lubbock headquarters at least until other arrangements can be made after the delegation arrives there, and it was announced at the meeting that a special Legion cap has been ordered by the Adjutant of the Post here to distinguish the Lubbock delegation. The cap is similar in make-up to the overseas O. D. service hat, but is of different color and has emblazoned across it the name of the local Post.

As a result of the resignation of Martin Hart as Adjutant when he moved to Amarillo recently, Vaughn E. Wilson, prominent young local attorney, was elected Adjutant to succeed Mr. Hart at the Monday night meeting, and in a short talk following his election, he pledged his best efforts to promotion of Legion work and activity.

Other matters discussed at the Monday night session included presentation of the home talent play by the Post to bolster up its finances. Harry Myers, manager of Jaret's Fashion Shop here, and amateur producer, has consented to direct the play, and met the Legion committee in charge of this phase of the Legion program today when matters in connection with the play were discussed. Four Cards—And All Aces

After many years of mediocre baseball and second division teams, it looks like the St. Louis Cardinals have a real winning combination this season. Many experts are predicting the Cards will win a pennant this year—a trick a St. Louis club has never accomplished in American or National League play.

One of the most optimistic of the lot is Rogers Hornsby, manager and second baseman of the Missouri team. The Rog believes he's got the winning hand. He respectfully refers you to the four aces at his command—Flint Rhem, pitcher; Bob O'Farrell, catcher; Jim Bottomley, first-sacker; and Lester Bell, third baseman. Many Close Races

There are several exceptionally close races in many baseball leagues this year, more so than in quite a number of seasons.

In the larger circuits, the Yankees, alone, have turned the chase into a runaway. The Yanks, in fact, have done even more than that—they've handed the spring critics a terrific wallop. Most of the experts, you'll recall, had the Yankees slated for the ash pile or thereabouts.

In the National League, a hectic battle is in order. It's apt to go to the final day of the campaign, too, with the Pirates, Cards, Reds and possibly the Cubs fighting it out. The Cubs, however, are likely to be distanced within the next few weeks. They've done exceptionally well, though, under their new pilot Joe McCarthy.

The Giants appear destined to finish in the second division for the first time in more than 10 years. And this despite the fact McGraw's boys stacked up as a good bet to cop before the race got under way. It looks like the crafty John will have to do a bit of revamping ere the 1927 gong clangs.

In Double A

Over in the American Association a three-cornered jamboree is being staged. Milwaukee, Louisville and Indianapolis are battling neck and neck. The Brewers and Colonels look somewhat stronger than Louis' Bush's Hoosiers, but Bush is of the fighting type of player and manager and may pull in ahead.

This year's chase is in marked contrast to the 1925 one. Last season Louisville made a merry-go-round of the season, winning by one of the largest margins ever established in that circuit. This campaign the Colonels are finding all the opposition they can take care of—and more besides.

This, by the way, has been quite a season in the American Association. Not long ago Milwaukee came thru with something like 21 straight successes, basking up a new record for the organization. And the other day Dennis Owen, Milwaukee hurler, turned in the first no-hit no-run game the Double A loop has seen in quite a stretch.

May Stop Orioles

In the International League still another one of those nip and tuck races is on. It's a three-cornered affair, similar to those in the National and American Association.

Toronto, Baltimore and Newark are the three pace-setters in the International. Baltimore, as you know, has copied the pennant seven seasons in a row. And for a while this year it looked good to cling to the exacting pace. Of late, however, Toronto and Newark have been making it rather hot and uncomfortable for the Dunn entourage.

It wouldn't be at all surprising were the Orioles' long winning streak halted this season. Toronto stacks up as a fair bet to lead the procession, especially at the rate the Maple Leafs have been plugging along during the last two months.

Newark, also, must be given consideration, though it doesn't appear quite as formidable as Toronto. Buffalo, the other first division club, has been doing well this year, too, but seems a little to far behind to catch the leaders, though the possibility is there with several weeks more to play.

However, it looks like Toronto stand the best chance of stopping that long string of Dunn triumphs. If any team is to turn such a trick this season.

It has been in days gone by that the man working for wages had to rent a house to live in. The down payment was so much that it was almost impossible for the wage earner to make these payments.

These conditions do not exist at this time. There is no reason why one cannot own their own home now. When you can buy one just like paying rent, why pay rent? Cotton Markets

NEW YORK COTTON. NEW YORK, Sept. 7. (AP)—The cotton market was active and excited at the opening today, owing to reports of rains in the western belt over the holidays and relatively firm Liverpool cables.

The opening was 15 to 26 points higher. Active months sold 22 to 29 points above Friday's closing figures before the end of the first hour. December selling up to 180c, or within nine points of the high price touched on August 26, while March and later deliveries made new high ground, March selling at 18.20c.

The realizing encountered as the market reached the 18 cent level again proved sufficient to supply the early demand and caused moderate reactions. Selling otherwise was restricted by nervousness over weather condition in the South, however, and the market was quieter with the tone steady at midday. October contracts at that time were selling around 17.75c and January 18.05c or about 15 to 22 points net higher.

NEW YORK FUTURES

NEW YORK, Sept. 7. (AP)—Cotton futures opened firm October 17.75c; December 17.95c; January 18.05c; March 18.20c; May 18.43c.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 7. (AP)—Cotton opened steady; October 17.85c; December 17.85c; January 17.87c; March 17.82c.

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 7. (AP)—When the cotton market here opened today after the three day holiday Liverpool was better than due and weather reports indicated considerable rain in the belt over the holidays. First trades showed gains of 23 to 25 points and the market improved after the start, until October traded to 17.85, December to 17.92 and January to 17.90 or 26 to 28 points above the previous close. The advance attracted realizing in October which eased off 16 points from the high to 17.72, later months losing only 3 to 5 points. The undertone continued bullish and prices tended upward at the end of the first hour.

The market rallied moderately during the morning on unfavorable reports of insect damage and general crop deterioration. Although prices did not advance to the early high levels October rallied 14 points from the low to 17.86 or 28 points above Friday's close.

Later months rallied six to eight points. The undertone continued firm despite more or less profit taking.

The market ruled very steady after mid-session and prices gradually rallied on buying and covering induced by unfavorable private advices as to the condition of the crop particularly in Texas. All months made new highs with October at 17.97c, December at 17.98c and January at 18.00c.

Grain Market

CHICAGO REPORT. CHICAGO, Sept. 7. (AP)—Wheat, No. 2 red, 1.31 1/2; No. 2 hard, 1.21 1/2@1.33. Corn No. 2 mixed, 78@79; No. 2 yellow, 37@38. Oats No. 2 white, 37 1/2@40 1/2; No. 2 white, 35 1/2@37 1/2.

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, Sept. 7. (AP)—Wheat was unsettled at the outset today, with commission houses doing a moderate amount of business on both sides of the market. Lower cables from Liverpool coupled with reports of unsettled weather in Canada were chiefly responsible. Opening 1/4 to 1c higher what scored moderate gains all around.

Unfavorable weather over parts of the corn belt was largely responsible for an upturn in corn which started 3-4 to 1/2 up, and continued to rise.

Oats were affected more by the action of wheat, while provisions were weak in sympathy with a down turn in value of hogs.

Stocks And Money

WALL STREET REPORT

NEW YORK, Sept. 7. (AP)—Resumption of business after the three days holiday in the stock market was accompanied by mixed price improvements. Most of the rails and motors yielded fractionally on initial sales but the standard industrials tended higher. Allis Chalmers and Postum Cereal each opened a point higher and U. S. Steel and American Can improved fractionally.

Price movements continued confused through the early trading but strong buying support quickly developed in the railroad group, particularly in the Southern and Southwestern and other issues. The August earnings of which are led to compare favorably with those of the same month last year. New peak prices for the year or longer were established in the first half hour by Baltimore and Ohio, Southern Pacific, Canadian Pacific, Illinois Central, Chesapeake and Ohio, Pullman and Brooklyn Edison.

Revolutionary disturbances in Spain over the week-end were responsible for the heaviness of the foreign exchanges but apparently had no effect on securities prices.

Rumors of further price cuts in the motor industry probably accounted for the early heaviness of those shares while the weakness of Stewart-Warner, which touched a new low level for the year at 64, was attributed to the expiration of a pool agreement in that stock.

Demand sterling was quoted around 4.48 and French francs sagged 3/4 points to around 2.94 cents.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, Sept. 7. (AP)—Foreign exchange lower. Great Britain demand 4.45, 15-16; cables 4.45 7-16; sixty day bills on banks 4.40 7-8. France demand 2.95; cables 2.95. Italy demand 3.68 1/2. Belgium 2.76 1/2. Germany 23.81. Tokio 48.25. Montreal 100.15 5-8.

Brownsville Murder Probe Goes On With Prison Under Guard

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Sept. 7.—Two men armed with 38-39 calibre high-power pistols killed Constables L. A. Shaw, and Deputy Sheriff Ernest May and wounded Constable Sidney Brant at Raymondville early Sunday morning, is the opinion expressed by officers who are investigating the case. The perpetrators of the crime are believed to be among the number now held in the Willy county jail as suspects, which includes 15 Mexicans and one Austrian.

The shots heard by other officers indicate that two guns were being used, and all three of the officers were struck by bullets of the same calibre.

Clues Believed Found.

After 48 hours of investigation and questioning the officers in charge of the investigation feel assured they have secured clues which will eventually lead to the conviction of the murderers. No statements could be made at this time, they stated.

The funerals of Constable Shaw and Deputy Sheriff May were held at Raymondville Monday afternoon, hundreds of residents of the county attended. Deputy May was only 21 years of age.

CHICAGO TRAIN WRECK CAUSE OF DEATH TO FIVE; SCORES INJURED AS HOLIDAY SPECIAL IS STRUCK

WOMEN AND CHILDREN CRUSHED AS EXPRESS HITS REAR OF LABOR DAY TRAIN AND TELESCOPES IT; ESCAPES ARE MIRACULOUSLY SEIZED

(By The Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—A Chicago and Northwestern suburban train brought death and injury to scores of Chicagoans returning from Labor Day outings last night when it telescoped the rear of a holiday special, which was discharging passengers at an outlying station four miles from the Loop.

Hours of labor in the debris of the two wrecked cars, wooden coaches pressed into holiday service, brought the toll of identified dead to five and the list of injured to approximately 100 persons.

The special was the third section of a train made up at El Roy, Wis., and just stopped to discharge several passengers when the suburban train from Barrington, Ill., rounded a curve and plowed into the rear coaches.

Passengers Are Crushed.
Passengers, many of them women and children, were crushed as the coaches telescoped and hundreds of firemen and police worked feverishly for hours to free them.

Engineer Lester Smith of the suburban train placed under arrest when found in a state of collapse at a hospital, admitted running past a warning block signal, but blamed the wreck on failure to have a brakeman far enough back of the special, and the approach of an out bound train which led to its headlights.

Dead Mostly Foreigners.
The dead were Stanley Carbeck, 45; Mrs. Antoinette Skymanski, 37; Mrs. Bessie Simons; Mrs. Marie Adams, 32; Ralph Becklein, 5.

Tragedy and heroism mingled before the eyes of thousands who flocked to the scene, handicapping the work of rescuers.

The last man carried from the debris died puffing a cigarette he had lit but a moment before. Another man, his body wedged between two seats, accepted a sip of water and then directed workers to other victims. When he was finally freed it was discovered his foot had been severed at the ankle. A sixty year old woman, Mrs. William Carter, threw herself through a window just before the crash, and escaped with minor injuries.

Queen Marie, of Rumania, Is Sent Regards of MONARCH MAY COME TO TEXAS TO RIDE HORSEBACK

Governor Ferguson, As She Prepares Journey

(Special To The Journal.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Feminine democracy and feminine royalty clasped hands today when Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, of Texas, first woman governor in the United States, extended greetings to Her Majesty Marie, Queen of Rumania, who is to visit the United States in October.

The greetings were contained in a telegram sent to Goe Beckley, who will sail for Europe shortly to accompany Her Majesty to this country. Miss Beckley, a noted newspaper writer, is a close friend of Queen Marie, and has visited her several times in the various Rumanian palaces.

The telegram received by Miss Beckley from Governor Ferguson reads: "Will you kindly convey to Her Majesty Marie, Queen of Rumania, my sincerest greetings. We are most gratified that this distinguished and universally beloved woman plans to visit our United States, and in behalf of Texas I wish to extend to her a warm and cordial welcome to our country."

MIRIAM A. FERGUSON
Governor of Texas.
May Come To Texas.
As Governor Ferguson does not leave office until after Queen Marie arrives in this country, she may have an opportunity to see the governor.

Speech By Cone Johnson Opens 1926 Democratic Convention At Santone; Dan Moody Raps Klan In His Speech

"The people have awakened to the fact that there's a chair for the governor and not a family settee. The executive office has been puzzling to the people as they do not know and can not learn who sat in the other's lap. In my home, there is no question—it's always the woman."

He Backs Schools.
Johnson urged that schools be provided for and that taxes be not manipulated for political reasons. He scored the manner in which road contracts were awarded.

"The people showed they had a sense of common honesty and that their word was as good as their bond," he said referring to the highway bonds validation matter. They have no desire not to pay the obligations which they voted.

"The legislature won't delay the enactment of legislation which will give life and vitality to these obligations," Both Ku Klux Klan and anti-Klan supported Moody for governor, he said. Warning was issued by Johnson against the convention declaring itself for radical measures which the people had not debated. To do so would be the worst of crimes he told the delegates.

Other temporary officers installed with Johnson were James Shaw, of Williamson county, secretary; Mrs. Jane McCollum, of Travis county, assistant secretary; Lee O. Allen, of Lubbock, sergeant at arms.

The temporary officers were ratified, and the credentials, order of business and the platform and resolutions committees were appointed.

The convention adjourned until 3:30 o'clock, and the platform and resolutions committee went immediately into session.

At a Democratic caucus Monday night Stuart Smith of Beaumont, endorsed for the permanent chairmanship of the convention, will succeed Cone Johnson when the delegates reconvene at 3 o'clock. The committees are to make their reports then.

GOP'S Criticize Demos.

DALLAS, Sept. 7 (AP)—Republicans of Texas in convention assembled here Tuesday laid down a barrage of criticism against the rock-bound fortress of democracy and announced that they intended "to build a republican party with democratic material."

Key-note addresses urged emancipation from "Democratic slavery" and called upon all republicans and others not in the republican party to vote their convictions to the end that "the brutal majority" would loosen its grip on Lone Star politics.

Meeting Harmonious.

The meeting was as harmonious as a symphony of purpose and thoroughness delegates credited to the convention and these pledged their staunch support to the Coolidge administration nationally and to furtherance of the "grand old party's" cause within the state.

Attorney William West of Brownsville, who said he was born and reared in a "rock ribbed democratic county," was selected temporary chairman.

Patriarch Is Present.
On the stage at the convention hall, sat a republican patriarch, Alexander Acheson, Denison, said to be one of the few men now living in Texas who voted for Abraham Lincoln for president. Mr. Acheson, who came to Texas as fifty years ago from Pennsylvania, voted for Lincoln when he ran for a second term. The old man is now 82, but he responded with vigor to the outbursts of enthusiasm with which the prefatory speeches were punctuated. Mr. Acheson was a union soldier. He ran for governor of Texas on the republican ticket several times.

In sounding the call to battle, Mr. West declared the "Democratic party lives in Texas only because the people of this state will not use their God-given intelligence or vote as their conscience must dictate, but day by day the ranks of our party are being swelled by men and women who have the courage and power to do what is right without considering what others may say or think."

Find Texas "Wrong."

"What is the matter with Texas?" he questioned. "Why does she not take a political place in the nation? Why does New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and even the small state of New Jersey carry more weight in our national councils than the great state of Texas?"

"The answer is apparent. Texas is hampered by a multiplicity of 'ring-in-the-nose' voters; too many 'dumb driven cattle' who refuse to be 'heroes in the strife.'"

The recent schism in the ranks caused by the defection from the regular organization of Congressman Harry M. Wurzbach of Seguin, the only Texas republican congressman, was not apparent on the surface of the convention. Mr. Wurzbach did not make his appearance.

Craeger Praises Dallas.
R. B. Craeger, of Brownsville, national committeeman, in a brief talk marveled at the growth of Dallas, explaining that "one would almost think it was run by a republican administration." He referred to the difficulty of determining the democratic nominee for sheriff in this county and said that the county may have a republican sheriff.

The convention was expected to adjourn about the middle of the afternoon. Election of an executive chairman and passage of resolutions was the principal business pending.

Haines Makes Talk.

DALLAS, Sept. 7 (AP)—A determined effort to do a few important things thoroughly rather than to partially conclude a great number of things, was a marked factor in the policies enunciated here Tuesday by Colonel H. H. Haines, republican nominee for governor, speaking at the republican state convention.

The candidate stressed at the major subjects greatest interest of the republican party proper support of educational institutions, revision of criminal law procedure, good roads and a material change in the election laws. The four cardinal principals are supplemented by assurance of support for industrial expansion, increased compensation for the judiciary and other administrative offices, a more determined effort to support Texas railroads and the assurance of an economical and business administration.

Denounces Democrats.
"The crying shame of the democratic party in Texas has not been its road scandals, its book scandals, its penitentiary brutalities, but it has been and is its shameful neglect of its educational institutions, and if I am elected governor of this great state I will not rest until that wrong is righted and our schools taken out of politics. That is my solemn promise," Colonel Haines said.

"The brutal majority" that has sustained the democratic party in its administration of Texas affairs has had the effect of discouraging manufacturers," he said. "Most manufacturers are protectionists and they fear a democratic majority on general principles and do not want to trust their plants to democratic political domination."

Denies Conditions.
"The ousting of democratic officials who may at present be in control and the election of other democrats to take their place will not relieve Texas of the onus of its unfortunate reputation," he said.

He advocated abolishing the compulsory primary and permitting the parties to decide whether they will nominate by primary or convention. Higher salaries for state officials were urged.

MORE ACREAGE IS TAKEN HERE

A total of 356 more acres of Lubbock county were leased for oil and gas Monday by Clyde Vinson of the Humble Oil company, Houston, who recently leased several hundred acres of land in the western portion of the county. The land which lies in Block D, is several miles northwest of the city. The leases were filed in the office of the county clerk.

As with the other leases, a well is to be started on the land within 12 months or the lease automatically expires. Those from whom leases were made were J. C. Shaw and wife, 329 acres; Gus Schantz and wife, 211.7 acres; H. C. Anglin and wife, 146 acres; H. V. Robinson and wife, 215 acres.

County Farmer Dies As Team Runs Away

Frank Ehle, about 50 years of age, a farmer residing in the southeastern part of Lubbock county, was killed this morning when the team he was driving ran away. It was given out by the Rix Furniture and Undertaking company late this afternoon.

Just how the team met with the tragic accident could not be learned last before The Journal went to press. Funeral arrangements were to be made late this evening, after the body was to have been removed here, and pending arrival of relatives in Southeast Texas.

NEW GIN HERE ONE OF PLAINS MOST MODERN

FEATURES COMBINED FOR HIGHEST EFFICIENCY MANAGER SAYS

Lubbock's newest gin, other than the Beck Bros. gin built on the site of the Davis gin which burned last winter, is one of the most compact, completely equipped and efficient gin plants to be found on the Plains.

The gin, located north of East Broadway, a block east of the railroad crossing, was started late last year; but with the freeze and other conditions arising, the completion of the plant was held up until this year. It is owned by the J. F. Moody Gin Co. of Greenville, and the local plant will be under the supervision of Jim Keen, formerly of Navarro county.

Combining two important factors in successful ginning on the Plains, complete bur-separation and thorough ginning, accomplished with five 80-saw Lummus automatic gin stands, and a Hardwick-Litter big boll burr cleaning machine, through which bollie cotton is passed before being sent through the Lummus double airline cleaners, a very successful run of cotton is expected by the owners of the plant. A number of other new features have been installed, including an entirely new type of press boxes, which instead of having a press pit with the plunger working from the bottom, set upon the cement floor of the gin, and bales are pressed from the top and released upon the floor; and the boxes turn upon their own axis, on roller bearing swivels.

The cleaning system of the plant, however, is the most important feature. While regular cotton is sent direct into the air cleaner and into the stand, bollie cotton is shunted into another end of the building, where the burs are broken and dropped, and a great amount of sand taken out before it is taken back into the regular cleaning channels, where it is cleaned twice before going into the delivery pipes, where it is relieved of more sand; and the stands, cleaners themselves, re-

Legionnaires Pour Into Amarillo Today

AMARILLO, Texas, Sept. 7 (AP)—The advance guard of legionnaires, which has arrived to prepare for the state convention of the American Legion which opens here Wednesday, brought with it rumblings of a battle in the resolutions committee on the convention floor, voting protest again holding the 1927 national convention in France.

Many legionnaires express the opinion it would be best to abandon the Paris convention idea; in view of the anti-American feeling reported there, while others hold the view that the legion army invading France would help cement the spirit of good will that will be called to order tomorrow between the two nations. BETTER SYSTEM OF PUBLIC SCHOOLS IS PROPOSED

FORT WORTH, Texas, Sept. 7.—
"Build schools on the highways or build highways to the schools" is the slogan for a plank to be offered for adoption by the State Democratic convention through the cooperation of the Texas Highway Association and the Texas State Teachers Association.
William T. Wheeler and R. T. Ellis, secretaries of the respective organizations, announced today.
Pointing to the fact that North Carolina now has under construction about one hundred twelve to fifteen-room
consolidated school buildings, possible only since the recent completion of good roads, Wheeler and Ellis agree with Dr. A. T. Allen, North Carolina state school superintendent, that good roads will mean the rejuvenation of the rural school system in many sections.

This Atlantic Coast state, Dr. Allen points out, transports more than 100-000 school children daily in school busses, and every bus runs over a good road. Effects of good roads may be seen right in Texas in the case of Edinburg, for example, which has become the center of the county school system, the entire county having been made an independent district since construction of good roads.
The one-teacher school is almost extinct in North Carolina, due to the rapid development of highways, and Ellis believes that Dr. Allen's declaration that "It has been strikingly demonstrated that progressive road
building is education's greatest ally, certainly in the rural districts," may be taken home by every Texas voter.

of traffic problems as early as the first year in high school as one of the surest means of providing a traffic-wise public in the years to come. Such knowledge, he feels, would do much to curb the appalling loss of life which includes so many victims of school age.

"The Glorious Gloria" Pleases Lubbock Folk

"Glorious Gloria" Swanson is at her best. It could be said, in the picture being shown now at the Palace, "Fine Manners." The picture will be shown the last times tonight.
Gloria Swanson is known to theatre fans everywhere; but the Gloria of this picture is proving more popular. It would seem, than ever before. At any rate, the Theatre was filled to capacity both afternoon and night Monday, for each of the four shows. "Fine Manners" is proving a drawing card of the current movie season.

The story is simple enough, and somewhat similar to the theme of "Hick"; but with an entirely different adaptation. The lead is handled only as Gloria can handle the part of a slangy, east-side chorus girl whose man-of-the-hour tries to make into a society debutante; but only succeeds
in near breaking up their own romance
—only to end with a pleasing finish breath-taking in action, and with a hearty laugh at the end of it.

The Sign That Worked

He was a burglar.
After effecting an entrance into the bank he found his way, easily enough, to the strong room. When the light of the lantern fell on the door he saw this sign written in rather conspicuous red letters:
"Save your dynamite. This safe is not locked. Turn the knob and it will open."

For a moment he ruminated.
"Anyhow," he reflected, "there's no harm in trying it if it really is unlocked."
He grasped the knob and turned it.
Instantly the office was flooded with light, an alarm bell rang loudly, an electric shock rendered him helpless, while a panel in the wall opened and out rushed a bulldog which seized him firmly.
An hour later, when the cell door
closed on him, he sighed:
"I know what's wrong with me. I'm too trusting. I have too much faith in human nature."—Everybody's Magazine.

Shopping assures satisfaction

If there is anything you want satisfaction in, it's a shoe. You compare it with others.
You look for style. You judge values. Then you decide. Here you find comparison very helpful.

So with coffees. They differ widely. Only by comparing their flavors can you choose the one coffee you prefer.

If we could take you through our modern pound of Folger's is the source of dozens of cups of rich, full-flavored, delicious coffee.

You would know why its high quality
makes it economical.

DISCRIMINATING PATRONAGE

Advertising as all wise men have come to know, means "big business"
and "big business," as observing people have discovered, means advertising.

Although it is not generally known outside of newspaper circles, advertisement of nationally sold products is handled through advertising agencies,
located in the metropolitan centers.
These advertising agencies, many of them employing scores of technical workers, "place" the advertising in the newspapers throughout the country where the space will bring their clients' the most benefit. Naturally these agencies are anxious to "hold"
their clients and to do this they know that their choice of media must bring results. Therefore, when they place their individual contracts they do so only after careful consideration of the "pulling power" of the individual newspapers.

The Lubbock Daily Journal is every day being chosen by more and more of these great agencies to "carry" this national advertising. Although the paper is but a year old it has demanded such attention from the national advertisers and their agencies that today The Lubbock Daily Journal is carrying more national advertising
than any other newspaper published in the South Plains. These agency contracts, nearly all of which are placed on yearly periods, are practically all being made now for the coming twelve months and it is an actual fact that during the past several weeks scarcely a day has passed which has not marked the arrival of additional national advertising contracts for The Journal.

These great agencies, whose experts
define into circulation figures, popularity, growth and general character of a newspaper before contracts are made,
are careful space buyers whose judgment is backed by years of experience in the advertising world. They know that they are to get the necessary results before they let these contracts and it is because they must get these results that they choose, in every locality, the newspaper which can and will, beyond a shadow of a doubt, give them these results.

A SUPER EDITION

On September 26th The Journal will present to the people of the South Plains its third annual "Fair Edition."
This "Fair Edition" in no way, will be an ordinary "special edition," but will give to this great territory a new paper of quality as well as of quantity,
setting forth accurately, in a pleasing and an interesting manner, the benefits of the South Plains of Texas in all of its multitudinous phases.

The Super-Journal, for that is what the "Fair Edition" will be, will represent not only Lubbock, but the entire territory as well. A representative of The Journal Saturday completed a Plains-wide journey and as a result this Super-Journal will publish on September 26, advertisements and news features of the entire section,
telling the world again of the wonders
and conveniences of the Great South Plains.

Great care will be taken with this edition of The Journal and in spite of its large size it will receive throughout the same careful attention that the every-day Journal receives. It will not be a "slap bang" affair, jammed full of hurriedly thrown-together advertisements and dull, drab, uninteresting "news" stories but instead will be a real newspaper throughout,
one in which the entire territory may well take pride.

Plan now to buy several copies of the super-Journal and make your reservations at The Journal office for this paper to be sent to several out-of-town persons whom you have reason to believe may be interested in moving to the South Plains and who,
when they do move here, will make the right kind of citizens.

RATTLE TRAP

Let's see, it's just eight years ago I bought a motor car. The thing's been driven—oh, my gosh,
I couldn't guess how far. I've changed a lot of tires, and I've painted her a lot, but other things are just the same in this old car I've got.

The fenders do the shimmy when I'm drivin' down the street. If I remember right, there once were springs beneath the seat. The engine's kinda rusted to an aged looking brown, but the spark plugs work, an' keep the pistons
movin' up and down.

My horn's long since been busted, but no pleasure does that man,
for the town can hear me comin'
when I drive the bleedin' car. I step upon the starter, then I sorta hold my breath, 'cause I fear the trusty motor's gonna shake itself
to death.

But, anyhow, I travel like the classy millionaire. I ride around the country in the wondrous open air. I know I've got a rattle trap, but, shucks, what do I care, 'cause anywhere I'm goin'—well, the old bus gets me there.

IN NEW YORK
SEE-SAWING UP
AND DOWN
BROADWAY

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—The dirt-begrimed, moss-tinted, crumbling old tombstones of Trinity churchyard,
which form the incongruous approach to modern Wall street, are perhaps the outstanding attraction of New York along with Brooklyn bridge, the Woolworth building and the Broadway lights.

Immemorial paragraphs have been written of the stonemasons who gather at lunch time and spill their sandwich crumbs on the earth that holds the dust of Robert Fulton, Gen. Kearney and Alexander Hamilton.

The tombstones of these great ones
have been scanned by numberless millions. Then there are the rows of toppling slabs which bear little known names and these barely legible.

Among these you will find the name
"Charlotte Temple," and therein lies one of the strange legends of the churchyard.

Some years ago a ghoul removed the plaque that once graced the gravestone and thus cast the shadow of uncertainty over dates and data.
Now back in the nineties a certain Mrs. Rowson wrote a novel entitled
"Charlotte Temple; A True Tale." It told of a girl who eloped from England with an Englishman of rank, of how he deserted her after betrayal and finally of her death from heartstroke.
It told of her burial at Trinity and the remorse of her betrayer who pleaded with the girl's father to kill him and when met by fatal same week upon which he to sob on her grave.

Maybe true—maybe not!
Nevertheless there is a grave in Trinity with the name Charlotte Temple graven on the stone.

Throughout the summer there was reported a steady increase of resorts
just east of Broadway where "real beer" was to be had with meals.
But the most ambitious effort to date is announced by a club which comes to my desk.

It announces a "32.00 Beer Dinner."
Diners, it is announced, will be provided with a nice "growler" or bucket
full of beer and, that the right crowd
may be obtained, salesmen are going round selling meal tickets for the opening days.

The place, an old saloon, has been revamped and, I am told, $8000 spent for new fixtures.

So this is prohibition!

Speaking of bootleg!
Liquor is not the only commodity
illicitly peddled.

Recently a blue law was passed compelling New York barbers to close shop on Sunday.

Now a number of places operate with side door entrances and drawn blinds and signals, while itinerant shavers have a "route" of customers going from place to place in the good old fashioned way and charging from 50 cents up per shave.

WASHINGTON
LETTERHOW CAN FRANCE GO ABOUT STABILIZING PAPER FRANCES?

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
NEA Service Writer.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Financiers
use so many technical expressions that they're hard to understand.

For instance, they talk about "stabilizing the franc."

They mean stabilizing the paper franc. A gold franc is as good as ever.

Being gold, it's worth its weight in gold. But the paper franc is worth next to nothing, unless some government or some reliable bank will pay for it when it's turned in.

So many gold francs are deposited in the Bank of France. A corresponding number of paper francs are issued against them and circulated.

A few more paper francs may be issued than there are gold francs on deposit, for it isn't likely all the paper
francs will be presented, for redemption, at once.

But suppose hundreds of times more paper francs are issued than there are gold francs to redeem them. Then the paper franc slumps, for everybody knows they don't represent their weight in gold. Nobody knows just what they do represent. How can paper francs like that be stabilized?

Germany did it by mortgaging Germany—not in francs but marks.

She had hardly any gold at all but she kept on issuing paper marks.

Presently they were no good at all.
The time came when she wanted to "stabilize."

Still having no gold, she threw her paper marks, still supposedly backed by gold, into the discard.

Then she began issuing a new kind of marks, backed, she pledged herself,
by the country's resources—its land,
its industries, its productive capacity,
everything.

It has worked pretty well.
The mark is stabilized. It buys
something like the value—allowing for higher prices of the former mark, in
gold.

But it has this drawback—
The holder can't cash it in for anything specific, tangible.

The holder of the pre-war paper
mark could go to a bank and trade it
for a substantial gold poker chip.
How can you cash in on a nation's
resources? You can't.

The Argentine Republic once stabilized its currency by the most primitive and effective of all ways.

Its original circulation was the gold
peso, of 100 centavos—a peso being the equivalent of $1, U. S. A., less about 5 per cent.

Against these gold pesos it began
to issue paper, in moderation at first.
But it had its troubles—a war or
so and a revolution or two.

The government was tempted to issue too much paper and it fell. So did the peso's value. It had more paper in circulation than it had gold
to redeem.

No country likes to have its paper
money at a fluctuating discount.

The Argentine government faced the situation. Its money was at a discount
but it could stop the fluctuation.

It simply announced that it couldn't redeem paper pesos at 100 centavos per
peso but it could redeem them at 44
and it would. It had that much gold,
and it did.

It caused a terrible outcry at the time, but today the Argentine Republic has one of the soundest currencies in the world, with as safe a
gold reserve—at 44 gold centavos to
the paper peso—as the United States.
That's drastic stabilization. I'll say.

Just a Jingle

And posed in perfect trim.
The picture was a handsome one,
But didn't look like him.

Even if Gertrude Ederle was helped by two tugs as the English claim
she seems to have turned a notable trick. . . . Not many other channel swimmers have been able to get half way across without the help of a large-sized, well-ventilated and modern equipped passenger boat.

It has worked pretty well.
The mark is stabilized. It buys
something like the value—allowing for
higher prices of the former mark, in
gold.

But it has this drawback—
The holder can't cash it in for anything specific, tangible.

The holder of the pre-war paper
mark could go to a bank and trade it
for a substantial gold poker chip.
How can you cash in on a nation's
resources? You can't.

The Argentine Republic once stabil-
ized its currency by the most primitive and effective of all ways.

Its original circulation was the gold
peso, of 100 centavos—a peso being the equivalent of $1, U. S. A., less
about 5 per cent.

Against these gold pesos it began
to issue paper, in moderation at first.
But it had its troubles—a war or
so and a revolution or two.

The government was tempted to issue too much paper and it fell. So
did the peso's value. It had more
paper in circulation than it had gold
to redeem.

No country likes to have its paper
money at a fluctuating discount.

The Argentine government faced the
situation. Its money was at a discount
but it could stop the fluctuation.

It simply announced that it couldn't
redeem paper pesos at 100 centavos per
peso but it could redeem them at 44
and it would. It had that much gold,
and it did.

It caused a terrible outcry at the
time, but today the Argentine Republic has one of the soundest curren-
cies in the world, with as safe a
gold reserve—at 44 gold centavos to
the paper peso—as the United States.
That's drastic stabilization. I'll say.

YOUNG FISH EXCELLENT FOOD

White-Bait.

By AUSTIN M. CLARK
Smithsonian Institution.

In the West Indies you are sometimes served with a dish of what appear to be fried worms an inch or so in length. Observing your reluctance to experiment with these, your host hastens to inform you they are "white bait." You may not know what "white bait" are, but the name at any rate has a reassuring sound, and so you eat them and find them very good.

They are the young of a curious little fish, a kind of goby, that lives in the mountain streams. It lays its eggs, however, in the sea, and at the proper season great multitudes of young enter the rivers on the long journey to their future mountain homes.

They are most persistent little things.
Provided with a large sucker on the under side just behind the head, they are able to cling securely to the rocks
and thus to ascend the swiftest streams by short dashes forward alternating with long periods of rest.

They are also able to live for a long time out of water. Once on St.
Vincent, a river in its course across the flat land near the sea shrunk suddenly, owing to a let up in the mountain rains.

Covered With Dust.
On both sides of the river I noticed
many little hollows in the ground now
hot and dusty filled with curious hopping things. These proved to be "white-bait" covered with a thick layer of dust and evidently uncomfortable in the hot glare of the tropic sun.

One of the most delicious foods that England has to offer is the "whitebait." This "white-bait" — the real "white-bait" — is the young mostly of the herring, but also of the sprat more or less mixed with the young of other fishes. Also on the coast of China
there is a "white-bait" most excellent as food. This is a different kind from either of the others, a small and delicate fish more or less related to the salmon.

Helpful Health Hints

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBURN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia the Health Magazine.

The housewife ordinarily has sufficient to occupy her during the day.
When to her usual duties are added
the problems associated with the care of a none too pleasant invalid, she is likely to need and to appreciate kindly advice.

The first problem that will concern
her is the room in which the sick one is to be placed. Ordinarily the invalid is promptly deposited in the bedroom of his usual occupancy. This may not necessarily be best suited to his condition.

For many reasons, he should be in very close relationship to the bathroom facilities and not too far removed from contact with the daily life of the household. Of course, if he has a nurse who is to do the carrying back and forth of teaspoons, toilet articles, food, soiled dishes and linens, the matter of steps is of lesser importance.

Minimize Steps.
If, however, the mother is to attend to these factors in addition to her regular household problems, she will want to minimize the number of steps
as much as possible, in order that there may not be another invalid to occupy the place of the sick one as soon as he is well.

A board or a suitable ventilator may be adjusted at the lower opening so as to prevent direct exposure of the invalid to wind or drafts.

The irritability of the sick one is greatly increased by rattling windows

and noisy opening and closing of doors.

Central Rattling.
The rattling may be controlled by the use of suitable wedges of either wood or bane that may occupy the space in which the window sash moves.

A door may be made noiseless by binding a cloth of any kind from one door knob to the other.

This serves the double purpose of softening any slamming of the door and also prevents a tight closure. A call of the invalid can be heard through the opening that will be maintained by this method, and at the same time enough sound will be cut out to make a considerable difference.

An invalid needs sunlight as much or more than a person in normal health.
Sunlight has valuable disinfectant
properties and from the psychologic point of view induces cheerfulness. A distinct glare is, however, always harmful to a patient whose eyes are likely to be made more sensitive by his disease.

Colored Glasses.
In some diseases in which the eyes are especially susceptible to light, the patient may wear dark colored glasses.

Since the sick-room must be frequently cleaned, and since the patient must avoid the irritating quantities of floating dust, it may be well to strip
the room of unnecessary hangings and frivolities, without giving it a crude bareness. One or two pictures and hard furniture are easily cleaned and decorated. Heavily tufted furniture, thick rugs and double drapes and curtains are likely to serve largely as dust collectors and disseminators.

With Our Contemporaries

SHOCKED

Two members of the school board
of Arcadia, Kansas, constituting a majority of the board, have promulgated the following rules for teachers and students which they will seek to enforce:

No dresses shall be worn to school which are shorter than six inches below the knee.

Use or possession of lipsticks or rouge on the school grounds is prohibited.

No " slang " phrases or immodest language shall be employed.

Wearing of belts by boys is prohibited, their use to be supplanted by suspenders.

The third member of the board
frankly stated that he did not care
how short they wear their skirts or how thin their hair. The superintendent was quoted as saying he did not believe the rules could be enforced, and that they would merely interfere with discipline.

It is a first rate example of the desire in the breasts of some people to arbitrarily enforce laws in accord with their own beliefs.

What's become of the old bachelor

Because skirts and hair used to be long, and because rouge and powder

is considered by many people a sin to

hence, we should go back to long skirts

we shall feel shocked at the innova-

of shocked surprise; now that ears are worn again, we are shocked once more.

THE VANITY CASE

BY CAROLYN WELLS COPYRIGHT 1926 N.E.A.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Mysterious lights flash one night from the Heath household and the next day Harbor Gardens, Long Island is agog over the murder of MYRA HEATH and the disappearance of her husband, PERRY.

Guests of the Heaths are LAWRENCE INMAN, heir to Myra's fortune, and beautiful BUNNY MOORE, a woman suspicion points because of her queer actions.

Myra Heath never used cosmetics, yet when her body was found she was heavily rouged. A rare old bottle from her collection of glass has been used by the murderer to kill her. Candles were burning at her head and feet.

At the Country Club the murder is discussed by SAM ANDERSON, Heath's rival for the club presidency; AL CUNNINGHAM, who is trying to solve the crime; and others.

Bunny is amazed to get a phonecall from Heath, saying Inman is the murderer. Inman confides to TOD HUNTER BUCK, who is in love with Bunny, that he saw her ascending the stairs after the murder. One of the Heath servants says the same thing.

Cunningham goes to Anderson's house, and there, while waiting for his host, is suddenly confronted by Perry Heath, who then vanishes in the darkness. Anderson arrives soon after and upbraids Cunningham for letting Heath get away.

Todhunter Buck, puzzling as to the best way to clear Bunny, is sitting in the dark when Bunny slips out of the house of his aunt, where she is now a guest, and meets Perry Heath at the edge of a wood. Buck trails Heath but the latter escapes. In despair, Buck sends for his friend, STEVE TRUITT, famous detective.

Bunny, dozing in a chair, awakens to find a strange man staring at her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLII

He smiled—people usually smiled at sight of Bunny. "Sleep if you like," he said, and his voice was gentle.

"If you were smaller, I should take you to be Mr. Truitt," she said, meditatively, for even sitting down she was plain to be seen that the stranger was a very long person.

"I am Truitt," he said. "It is Buck's favorite jest to tell folks I'm a dwarf or pigmy, and then he thinks it funny when they are surprised. You see," he said rising, "I outgrew myself as a boy, and never got over it."

He was unusually tall, several inches over six feet, but he carried himself well and with no trace of awkwardness or self-consciousness.

"What is the girl like to whom you're engaged?" asked Bunny, letting her eyes travel up to the very top of this Eiffel Tower of humanity.

"I'm not engaged. That's another. I dare say, of Todd's granddaughters. I suppose he's afraid you'll flirt with me. Do, don't you?"

"Probably. I usually do. But, Mr. Truitt, sit down here by me. I'm glad to talk with you alone a moment. You're going to look into the Heath case, aren't you?"

"Yes, I am a detective as well as a friend of Buck's. I want to do all I can for him."

"Of course you do. I'm Bunny Moore, a friend of the Heaths. I was in the house at the time, visiting and I am suspected of being the murderer."

There was no trace of a smile on Bunny's face. Her eyes looked earnestly into those of Truitt, and he saw that she had serious knowledge of the matter, whatever it might be.

"It seems incredible," he said, not perfunctorily, but with a seriousness that equaled her own. "Will you tell me a few details, or shall I wait until Todd comes home?"

"I will talk to you until they come. You don't look like a detective, Mr. Truitt."

"I did until I changed all that. The first duty of a detective is not to look like one. I was helped by my height."

"No conventional detective was ever as tall as I am. Then I cultivated a habit of looking like the person I was talking to. See, I now wear a smile like yours."

His face irradiated into a smile that was like, though in a way a mockery of Bunny's own; so much, that she stared and gasped.

"It's a knack," he said, quietly. "And it gives me the advantage of a versatility of countenance."

"My good heavens!" she exclaimed. "I never saw anyone like you!"

"Probably not. Now, talk, if you're going to. There's only one way for a detective to learn anything and that's to make other people talk to him."

"I thought you used clues and evidence and all that."

"Material clues are all very well, if they're real ones and vital to the case. Evidence is helpful, of course. But the real stuff is what is poured out by the human tongue."

"How much ought I tell you?"

"Every bit of a thing you know. I am very much in the habit of work, Miss Moore and I cannot always suppress on people the desirability of telling all. All. Now, we must mind about the general facts, the principal points of the outstanding details. Tell me what you know that no one else knows. What you saw, that no one else knows you saw. What you heard that others didn't hear. What you surmise, that others don't even suspect. Those are the things that will help me to solve the mystery. You wait it solved, don't you?"

"Yes, I do now. This morning, I wasn't sure. But sitting here, and thinking about my friend, whom I loved, and seeing her funeral going on, yes, I do want her murderer discovered—wherever he is."

"You didn't kill her?"

"No," and Bunny spoke quietly showing no resentment at the question.

"Do you know who did?"

"I am not sure. As you will learn, as soon as you learn something about the case."

"Oh, I know the main facts."

"Then you know there are three principal suspects, Mr. Heath, Mr. Inman and myself. Each of us had motive and opportunity—I've learned that line from the detective—but my motive was not a strong one, and I didn't make use of my opportunity."

"It was one of the men, then?"

"It was one of the men."

"Which one—do you think?"

"I don't know," she fidgeted a little, and her cheeks glowed pinker, but she went on; "think of it yourself. A man and wife and another man. The other man and the wife are desperately in love with one another. Which man is more likely to kill the woman?"

"The husband, of course."

"But the other man is the woman's heir. He is in a state in his greed for money. He was about given up hope of winning the woman for his own. But if she dies, he will have her fortune. Now, which one?"

"You make it very interesting. Now, what do you know?"

"Only this. I went downstairs, late that night. I found Mrs. Heath dead in the studio, with candles burning at her head and feet. I touched her, and her flesh was still warm."

At this point Bunny's bravery gave way. She faltered, hesitated, and became suddenly silent.

Understanding, Truitt said no word, but looked at her with a glance of mingled compassion and encouragement.

And just at that time, there was a commotion next door, and they saw the carrier of Myra Heath carried out from the house she had loved so well.

The slight restored Bunny's courage reignited her fire indignation and caused her to resume her story.

"They will be coming home soon," she said nervously, "and I want to tell you what I know, Mr. Truitt, because—because you have made me feel it is my duty."

"Tell me only as much or as little as you think best. Do not carry away by emotion at the sight of that casket. If you will tell me the truth, I'm sure you will not regret it."

"No. Well, as I came upstairs, I saw Mr. Inman peep through the crack of his door. He must have heard me the stairs, and opened it the tiniest mite."

"Yes."

"I was so upset I didn't know what I was doing, but I went blindly on to my own room, and threw myself on the bed."

"Why didn't you raise an alarm?"

Investigation Of All Departments Of State Where Funds Said Dissipated To Be Proposed To Democratic Meeting

(By The Associated Press)
AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 7.—Investigation of the state highway department and in any other department in which it is alleged the public funds have been dissipated, is provided for in a proposed platform to be adopted at the Democratic convention in San Antonio, September 7 and 8. George B. Terrell, commissioner of agriculture, and delegate from Cherokee county, proposes the platform, which includes provisions for the validation of the district road bonds, and advocates proper support and maintenance of the public schools.

Mr. Terrell said he is in favor of Cane Johnson of Tyler for temporary chairman, John Boyle of San Antonio for permanent chairman, and Harry Graves of Georgetown for chairman of the state executive committee.

"These are epoch making times," Commissioner Terrell declared. "We have just passed through one of the most remarkable campaigns in the history of the state, and no one can be deceived as to the will of the people, as expressed at the polls."

"In making a platform and declaring the policy of the democratic party of Texas, no backward step should be taken and no fundamental errors should be committed."

Platform Prepared

"I have prepared a tentative platform covering the fundamentals of democracy and good government. It is brief and explicit on the matters discussed. I have not discussed it with any one or tried to get the approval of any one, because the delegates representing the democracy of Texas should make the platform, but it covers the main issues discussed in the campaign and approved by the voters, as well as some others that are vital to the progress and perpetuity of a free government."

"The issues in the campaign make it necessary to declare for honest government and economical government; for the validation of the district road bonds; for an investigation of the highway department, and any other department or institution, where public funds are alleged to have been dissipated; for the proper support and maintenance of the public schools and educational and eleemosynary institutions economically administered; for rigid economy in state administration and against the creation of any more offices, boards, commissions or institutions; for the consolidation of boards and commission doing similar work; for the rigid enforcement of all laws and proper reforms in the prison system; and for such court reform as will expedite the trial of cases and reduce the cost of litigation, both to the litigant and the state, and for the preferential ballot and one primary election."

Raps Federal Encroachment

"In addition to the aforesaid subjects, I believe the platform should contain strong declarations against further encroachment of the Federal government upon the rights of the states, and for more freedom in the administration of local affairs in this state. I believe that the lands, town lots and buildings and other visible property are paying too much taxes and that the hidden wealth should bear its just share of taxes. I shall oppose the creation of a state board for the purpose of raising the taxes on the lands and other visible property, as this class of property is now paying the major part of the taxes and should not be required to pay any more."

"A gasoline tax, no matter who advocates it, is the fairest and most equitable tax that can be levied to build and maintain public highways, as it makes the people who use the roads, most pay the most taxes. The 'Pay as you go' policy should be adopted to build and maintain public highways and stop issuing forty year bonds to build four year roads, and stop saddling debts upon future generations that will sap the energy and industry of the people and finally lead to bankruptcy."

Favors More Factories

"I believe also that factories are the greatest need of the country and will favor a constitutional amendment, providing that any municipality may by majority vote to exempt factories from local taxes for a period of years in order to encourage the building of factories in this state. This would not exempt them from local taxes, which are always the most burdensome. It is the essence of local self government."

"I am not interested in the organization of the state convention, as we have hundreds of good democrats capable of presiding with dignity, ability and fairness, but Cane Johnson, for temporary chairman, John Boyle for permanent chairman, and Harry Graves for chairman of the state executive committee constitute a trio that is hard to beat."

The part of the proposed platform of Commissioner Terrell pertaining to the investigation of the state highway department reads: "It is the duty of the state to keep a close supervision over the expenditures of public funds. We therefore recommend that a thorough investigation be made by the Fortieth Legislature of the expenditure of all state highway funds, and that the highway laws be so amended as to protect the state against loss or dissipation of highway funds in the future."

Cattlemen Prospect Here For New Ranch

W. Bassett Orr, of Dallas, and R. H. Campbell, of Richardson, prominent breeders of good cattle, have been visiting at the Tech for several days with W. L. Stangel and have been prospecting in this section of the country with the possibility of locating a cattle ranch. Mr. Orr is the son of John T. Orr, president of the Texas Farm Bureau, who recently donated a Holstein Friesian calf to the Tech. Both Mr. Orr and Mr. Campbell are ex-students of A. and M. college, College Station, and are former students of Mr. Stangel.

VANITY CASE

"Mr. Trull, you will think this strange. But I was afraid. I feel years older now, though that was but a few days ago, but at that moment I felt I just couldn't do anything at all. I vaguely reasoned that if there was any alarming to do, there were people in that house better fitted to look after it than I. That I, as the youngest and least experienced of the household had no call to take any initiative—oh, I know this sounds foolish, but it's the truth. I've never done anything for myself, never had any responsibility of any sort, and I couldn't make myself do anything. I see now, it was cowardly and—"

"No Miss Moore, it was natural. You were stunned and, moreover, you had reason to believe that Mr. Inman knew something of the matter, or he would not be spying on you. You had reason to think Mr. Heath was in the house—hadn't you?"

"I don't know. I didn't think about Perry—about anybody but Myra. I cried and cried until I fell into a sort of sleep. But I kept standing up and listening every few minutes. And not another sound did I hear in that house all night long. Toward daylight, I began to wonder, if it hadn't been a dream. I got up and undressed and went to bed properly, but I waited all night long. So, when Carter came to tell me the news, I was sitting up in bed, crying."

Steve Trull looked at her earnestly, but pleadingly.

"You were afraid to say anything, because you feared—still fear—that Perry Heath was the criminal and you love him."

"I did love him then," said Bunny, simply. "I don't now."

NEW YORK TURNS TO REPARATIONS

(By The Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—The Metropolitan district was engaged today in repairing the damage caused by the heaviest thunder storm of the season, which caught it in the height of the holiday rush, deluging thousands and causing two fatalities.

More than a score were injured. A land slide filled a subway cut in Brooklyn, a three story building collapsed, on the lower East side, and a crowded ferry house, a residence and a trolley car were struck by lightning on Staten Island. Two men were killed when they jumped through the windows of a subway train in a panic that followed the land slide and landed on the third rail. Tons of sand and gravel partially buried two six car Coney Island trains.
