Sparks relieved of police chief duties

Pat Taylor named acting chief

On Monday evening, March 11, following a 32 minute executive session of the police committee of the City Council of Colorado City, Police Chief Bobby Sparks was relieved of his duties, effective immediately.

Upon reconvening in open session, the police committee, made up of Bob Reilly, Brian Bassham, and Mayor Jim Baum, voted unanimously to recommend to Interim City Manager Glenna Garrett that Sparks' services be terminated for what was termed "reckless use of his office."

Ms. Garrett, upon hearing the recommendation, told the chief that she had attended the committee's executive sessions, and concurred with their decision.

She then said, "You are hereby relieved of your duties."

Monday's meeting came after the police committee had held several executive sessions investigating complaints against the police department and an apparent morale problem among its members.

Several police officers and present and former dispatchers have appeared before the committee. Among them are officers Charles Rice, George Oliver and Mike Cayce, and dispatchers Barbara Penn, Sara Salazar, Julie Smith and Sharon Gilbreath.

Another officer, Patrol Sergeant Tim Atkins, is scheduled to appear before the committee at 3 p.m. on Friday.

Lieutenant Pat Taylor was named acting police chief on Monday, to serve while the city seeks a person to fill the position permanently.

Taylor will be paid an additional $350 per month for his additional duties. His current salary is $997.88 per month.

Sparks' salary was $2,214.40 per month. He has been chief of police since February 16, 1985.

Baum said that the city hopes to begin taking applications immediately for a new chief of police.

"We hope to have a new person in that position in two months or less," he said.

Baum continued by saying, "We hope to find an experienced officer who is a leader and who works well with his staff and with all segments of the public. Hopefully he or she will be a civic-minded individual who will get involved in our community."

"The full committee voiced great confidence in Pat Taylor," Baum said, "in his ability to work well with all police personnel. We believe Taylor can help restore morale to the police department while he serves as acting chief."

Taylor, who has been with the department since 1982, pledged to do his best.

"Sparks has done some good," said Baum, "but in view of the complaints we had received, the committee had no choice but to act as it did, and I commend the members for their courage."

Baum added, "The investigation in no way touched on any aspect of the civil suit filed against the city by the parents of Sammy Gomez."

Reserve Officer Melburn Jacob was reported to have resigned following Sparks' relief from duty.

Attempts to reach Sparks for his comments regarding Monday's occurrences were unsuccessful.

Motel tax requests are presented to council

At a crowded meeting of the City Council of Colorado City on Tuesday night, representatives from several local organizations requested shares of the city's local hotel occupancy tax revenues.

These "motel tax" revenues come from a 7% tax on Colorado City motel room fees, and are placed in a separate account from which they are allocated, at the discretion of the city, to organizations which will use the money specifically for tourism-related expenditures.

Among those requesting funds from the motel tax account at Tuesday night's meeting were L.B. Elliott, chairman of the Colorado City Museum Board, who requested $5,000 for work on the museum.

The Colorado City Bass Club and the Mitchell County Bass Club each requested $500. According to a spokesperson for those clubs, bass tournaments bring in tourists who stay in local motels, and promotional material for both area lakes brings tourists here on weekends as well.

Gary Parker, representing the Colorado City Volunteer Fire Department, requested $1,000 for the upcoming annual firemen's convention and dance, as well as $1,000 to help fund the fireworks display which the VFD puts on at Ruddick Park on the Fourth of July.

Connie Penland, representing the Colorado City Playhouse, asked for $2,000. She inquired as to whether the money could be saved in a separate account and added with subsequent grants from the motel tax fund until such time as there would be enough money to paint the playhouse building.

She was told that was allowed, as long as she could show each year that the money remained in that account.

Esther Goss, representing the League of United Latin American Citizens, asked for $1,000 for the West Texas District Convention.

Ms. Goss told council members that last year's convention brought nearly 200 LULAC members from as far away as San Antonio and El Paso. Between 30 and 40 couples stayed overnight she said, and the group used the Civic Center all day.

Marsha Burrus, speaking for the Colorado City Chamber of Commerce, requested $5,000 for, among other things, upkeep on five highway billboard signs, and new tourism brochures to be distributed throughout cities in Texas.

County Commissioners hear Literary Council proposal

The Mitchell County Commissioners' Court met in regular session on Monday, March 11, and, among other agenda items, heard from Nancy Mayo and Beeman Dockrey, representatives of the county's Literary Council.

Ms. Mayo had prepared a grant request which the library wishes to send on behalf of the Literary Council. She provided copies for the commissioners.

The grant request is for $35,000 from the Texas State Library, and will be earmarked for the teaching of English as a second language.

Commissioner Bill Preston inquired as to how the operation would be funded at the end of the grant period, and Ms. Mayo assured him that there were other grants available, and that she could not see why the county would ever need to take over the operation.

Dockrey added that the County Extension Agency has indicated a desire to become involved with the project, and that the program will be expanding.

Commissioners voted to authorize the grant request.

The Colorado City Volunteer Fire Department requested removal of Tommy J. Guelker's proposed appearance from the meeting's agenda, owing to the fact that all of the estimates had not been received for the cost of the new water tank the department wishes to purchase.

Commissioners tabled agenda items regarding redistricting and 911 rural addressing. It was agreed that these items might well be related, and commissioners wished to have all the facts on possible redistricting before undertaking the rural addressing, which they agreed might subsequently have to be changed.

They decided to wait to discuss those items until after they had attended a convention of the West Texas County Judges and Commissioners Association on March 20 through 22 in Midland.

One of the seminars at that convention will deal with redistricting.

Charity requests were reviewed, and County Judge Ray Mayo said that the next joint meeting of the Mary Buchanan prepares to present her seminar on "Landscaping With Native Plants."

"Native Plant" seminar successful, informative

Mary Buchanan, owner of Texas Star Garden, a native plant nursery near Abilene, presented a seminar last Thursday night on a subject near and dear to her heart: "Landscaping With Native Plants."

The seminar was sponsored by the Colorado City Garden Club, Colorado Floral, Mitchell County Extension Office, City National Bank, the Mitchell County Library, Colorado City Chamber of Commerce, and Neff's Nursery.

Addressing a nearly full house at the C.C. Thompson Room in City National Bank, Ms. Buchanan spoke of the many native plants which can be grown easily in this area. However, she said, the ease with which they can be grown is only one reason why it is a good idea to landscape with them.

Other reasons include the facts that they require no chemicals, that they preserve regional identity, and that they provide little oases for the native wildlife and birds of the area.

The "bottom line" according to Ms. Buchanan, is that native plant gardening and landscaping is simply "the right thing to do."

Ms. Buchanan explained that many plants are considered, by some, to be weeds, and to have little or no value. These plants, she said, are frequently destroyed before they have even been described or thoroughly studied scientifically to determine what value they might have had.

She said, for example, that there are at least 8,000 plants on earth which are known to be edible. Out of those, only approximately 200 are cultivated for use as food. A resistant pathogen, she explained, could seriously limit the world's food supply.

In light of that fact alone, she asked, how smart is it to continue to eliminate any plants at all?

What many people call "weeds," she explained, are simply plants which are growing in a location where they are not wanted.

In fact, she said, some native "weeds" have found their way to foreign countries, where they are cultivated and sold back to us under different names!

Instead of trying to destroy the gene pool of these native plants, why not applaud their tenacity and their resistance to harsh conditions? Why not look a little more closely, and see their real beauty?

Plants which can thrive in the arid conditions we find in these parts are not all cactus or other spiny plants.

Those which are tough and spiny however, Ms. Buchanan

Loraine school board is presented petition

The Board of Directors of Loraine Independent School District voted on Monday night to renew the contracts for all LISD teachers for the 1991-1992 school year.

After discussion of the contracts in closed, executive session, board members reconvened in open session and voted on the renewals.

Also at Monday night's meeting a petition with approximately 200 signatures was presented to the board by Loraine citizen Chrystene Hall, a retired Colorado City school teacher.

The petition requested that board members reconsider their recent action wherein the contract of Loraine School Principal Doug Foshee was not extended.

The board decided to consider the petition, and to place discussion of the matter on the agenda for the

Mayor Jim Baum, speaking for the Historical Society, requested $2,000 to preserve the historic Lorraine Railway Depot.

Baum said the society had saved its $2,000 from last year, and that this $2,000 would be added to it.

Speaking for the Civic Center, Interim City Manager Glenna Garrett asked $2,000 for work on that building's circulation system.

Council members said that over $50,000 is currently in the motel tax account, however, the city intends to allot only $22,000 this year, and to allow the rest to remain in the account.

Baum explained that this was a safeguard against the possibility that the city might experience a year when very little motel tax was generated. In that case, he explained, none of the organizations which relied on the tax money would be forced to do without it.

After hearing all of the requests for funds from the motel tax account, council members closed the hearings, and announced that all requests would be considered and the results of those considerations announced at a subsequent meeting.

Elliott then addressed the council again, and said that the Secretary of State on March 4 had granted a charter for the non-profit organization, "Heart of West Texas, Inc.," which will help operate the Colorado City Museum.

He also advised members of all the work the museum's volunteer workers have been doing, washing baseboards, woodwork, everything. He said the new museum building is probably the cleanest in town.

Now, he said, the carpentry work on cases and shelves will begin.

Ben Alexander, a representative of Texas Utilities Electric, then addressed the council, with a proposed new water contract between that company and Colorado City.

TU Electric's proposals include a new price for the water the city purchases, one which would be close to an average of the prices paid by Snyder and Big Spring.

The council voted to approve the new contract subject to its approval by City Attorney Tom Rees.

Acting Police Chief Pat Taylor addressed the council at Tuesday night's meeting.

Taylor, who was appointed to that position upon the relief from duty of former police chief Bobby Sparks, said he had been meeting with police department personnel since his appointment, and that he was very encouraged, and thought things were going very well.

He then addressed the need for a stop sign at the intersection of Houston and College Streets.

Taylor explained that there had been accidents at that intersection, and that people had been hospitalized as a result.

The council agreed that the stop sign was needed.

Council members discussed the problem of individuals charging materials to the city without having authorized purchase orders.

A resolution was approved to deal with that problem, and it was agreed that local vendors should be sent a letter detailing the authorization policy.

Buddy Foster, Colorado City's new city manager, who participated in Tuesday night's meeting, suggested a list be made available, for vendors, of those individuals who were authorized to purchase for the city.

Members of the council voted to accept the recommendation of the Zoning Board of Adjustments that a zoning variance be allowed for a residence on East 16th Street.

City worker James Rich discussed the cost of repairing some of the potholes on city streets, and requested that the council consider funding some work on Colorado City Cemetery roads.

He also informed council members of the costs for speed bumps in and around Ruddick Park.

Foster, however, stated his wish to look more closely into the question of liability in the case of speed bumps, and said that before considering them, he would like to have Taylor look into ways of controlling speeding in that area.

Council members discussed the upcoming May 4 election.

The last day to file to be on the ballot for that election is March 20, and the last day to file to be a write-in candidate is 30 days prior to the election itself.

Each ballot will contain the names of all candidates for city council from the voter's district, and all candidates for mayor, which is an at-large position.

City worker Victor Huff said the work being done by the divers hired by the city to clean silt from the water pump sites is going much more slowly than anticipated. He said this is because there is a 20-year build-up of silt, and that, buried in the hard-packed silt, there are many items such as large mussel shells and turtles, which make the operation more difficult.

Council members requested that Huff determine whether the pumps could be placed in the holes now, even though all the silt has not yet been cleaned out.

Council members designated the week of March 31 through April 6 as Clean-up Week in Colorado City.

Among other things, that means that city crews will haul away items which they would not normally haul away, and that the dump grounds will be open and free to the public during that time, for dumping everything but rubber tires.

Garrett said that it was necessary for citizens to call and advise the city if items needed to be collected. The last day to call, she said, would be April 6.

Councilman Sammy Contreras had words of praise for the job city workers were doing in repairing many problems with the streets.

Finally, members discussed upcoming budget workshops, and expressed their hopes of being able to deal more equitably with city workers' pay scales.

local charity groups will take place on April 4.

The charity groups are in the process of discussing the formation of a central charity committee, as well as whom to place in charge, should one be formed.

Commissioners voted to pay the electric bill for an out-of-work resident whom they determined to be actively seeking employment.

They tabled two additional charity requests.

As one of the three taxing entities whose authorization is required to sell a property which was offered but not purchased at the October 2, 1990 sheriff's sale, the court agreed to give that authorization.

Other taxing entities which must accept a recent bid on that property, thereby placing it back on the tax rolls, are the city of Lorraine and the Lorraine Independent School District.

Money earned on the sale will be used to repay some of the back taxes on the property owed to each of those entities.

next regularly scheduled meeting.

At Monday's meeting, members voted to adopt a new series of textbooks, which are actually video laser discs.

The elementary science series, called "Windows in Science," will be viewed by the students in the classroom on a TV monitor.

In other business, board members voted Jack Gorman of Snyder, Dr. Gene Shelhamer of Stamford, and Stanley Whisenhunt of Wylie to the Board of Directors of the Education Service Center.

The center, according to LISD Superintendent Glenn Sanders, serves approximately 65 school districts in West Texas counties, including Mitchell, in and around the Abilene area.

Board members voted not to accept a recent bid which was offered on property in Lorraine.

Earlier on Monday, Mitchell County Commissioners' Court members voted to accept the bid, but the authorization of the LISD as well as of the city of Lorraine were also required in order for the transaction to take place.

The next meeting of the LISD Board of Directors is scheduled for Monday, April 8.

explained, make excellent "barrier" plants, planted under windows, for example, for protection from intruders.

Other plants are ornamental, or, in the case of certain trees, provide excellent shade, and can be as lovely as anything which grows naturally in milder and more humid areas.

To demonstrate this fact, Ms. Buchanan treated her audience to a selection of slides showing many lovely native plants which will thrive in this area.

The slides consisted of everything from yucca to a certain type of honeysuckle. There were climbing vines and groundcovers, even some which resembled ferns. There were tall, sturdy trees and the beautiful mesquites. There were perennial flowers, and drought-resistant grasses.

In short, there were all of the components to create a beautiful garden, whether one wished a lush, formal landscape or a more western-appearing one.

Ms. Buchanan explained the importance of mulching, and recommended dried grass clippings and rocks, but said that soil amendment, in her opinion, was not necessary at all for native plants.

She said that extra water might be necessary in the beginning of a native plant's life in order to allow it to become established, but that after that, very little water would be required, and quite low maintenance.

After Ms. Buchanan's talk,

Marsha Burrus of Colorado Floral gave a practical demonstration of how decorative native plants could be.

Ms. Burrus had searched locations between Westbrook and Lorraine, and had brought with her to the seminar samples of many of the plants she had found.

Using those cuttings she created, in a matter of minutes, a beautiful dried arrangement which will last a long time and which could serve as a lovely decorative accent in any home.

Available at the seminar were several pamphlets, dealing with native plants, provided by the Mitchell County Extension Office. Several books, dealing with native plants, were on display courtesy of the Mitchell County Library, where they are now available.

Those who wish to learn more about landscaping with native plants, Ms. Buchanan said, can join the Native Plant Society, and can begin looking for native plants at nurseries, taking care to purchase native plants only from within a 150-mile radius.

Native plants and non-native plants can, of course, share a yard or garden if this is desired.

Those interested in native plants can begin studying anything they can get their hands on which deals with native plants, or with the "xeriscape" technique of gardening.

Several names were drawn for door prizes, and Garden Club members provided refreshments and a plant for everyone who attended the seminar.

Effie Wheeler gave the council report, reporting on important dates coming up soon. A very helpful program on Time Management was presented by Nina Meadows. She expressed the importance of Goal Planning, Organization skills and better ways of planning our time and using it wisely. Most of us have a problem with too much to do and too little time to get it all accomplished. Mrs. Meadows explained the best way to solve this problem is to take the time to make a list of things to do each day and prioritize them, listing the most important things first. She also stressed written goals are very important to each person, reviewed and updated regularly helping us reach our goals in life.

Refreshments were served to members Blondie Hamilton, Effie Wheeler, Nina Meadows, Billie Schroeder, Eva Wells, Bessie Ann Vaughn, Veida Gage, Margaret Brame, Jimmie Jacks, Darlene Hamrich, Hanza Graham, Millie rose, Bertha Faye Snyder, Elaine McMichael, Pat Carter, and guest, Billie Ruth Abernathy. CHIEF LONE WOLF

Today we're going to rattle some old bones as we look back on another chapter of Colorado City's history. (Like families, cities also have skeletons hanging in their closets). Here's a look at an episode that still haunts us more than three score years after it occurred.

On November 19, 1926, Colorado and Anson were ready to square off on the local football field for a state playoff game. The Tigers were champs in section "A" (Class "B") and the Wolves had claimed the championship in section "B". Anson was a top heavy favorite to beat Colorado City because the Wolves had backed into the winners circle when another school was disqualified for a rules infraction.

When game day arrived a record crowd was on hand as local merchants closed their doors so they and their employees could witness the grand battle. And what a game it was! To save space, let's move to the thrilling fourth quarter. Anson led the upstart, outmanned Wolves 21-14, but the Colorado crew was driving for the tying points late in the fourth quarter.

Over and over it was three yards and a cloud of dust, until the Wolves found themselves on their opponents twenty yard line. And here comes the play that almost started a riot. Alas, the Wolves fumbled. Players from both sides piled on the loose pigskin, but local witnesses vow Gist recovered for the hometown!

Unfortunately, that's not the way the referee, Y.P. Kuhn, saw it. The ball was given to Anson, with just seconds remaining in the game. Wolves fans howled. Colorado Coach Jim Cantrell raced onto the field and protested. He was curtly told the decision was final. That's when Colorado fans really cut loose. At least one official was said to lose his composure as he yelled back at the fans calling them "yellow curs." He also was alleged to tell one fan to "shut up you yellow dog."

Moments later the game ended with Anson clinging to its 21-14 victory. When the final whistle sounded, Colorado fans swarmed onto the field and challenged the officials. The umpire (named Simms) reportedly squared off against one fan and according to the Colorado Record, struck the first blow. The race was on!

Fists started flying and both referee Kuhn and Umpire Simms were "recipients of several blows but neither was knocked off their feet."

In short order coaches and school officials were able to break up the fights, restore order and assist the officials from the field. Moments later, lawmen from the city and county escorted the officials out of town. (The Record felt the escort service was not necessary, commenting "we do not believe they would have been violently attacked.")

The matter didn't die there. A reporter for the Abilene newspaper wrote an account of the game and it was his contention Kuhn was knocked unconscious. The reporter also alleged the trouble started when Coach Cantrell rushed out on the field to protest the controversial call by Kuhn.

Anson fans sided with the Abilene papers' account of the game. The Tiger faithful passed a resolution which stated "we believe the officials were fair and impartial and the officials who worked the game have been done an injustice."

Then the Colorado Record went on the attack. And we'll tell about that next week.

Loraine Personals

by Lois Phillips

"God is still on his throne and prayer changes things."

Since we put everything on hold for a couple of months to fight a war its kinda hard to find news to tell you. One thing I really appreciated about our high ranking officials and our news people as well as our troops who had a chance to speak they all expressed their faith in God and talked about and asked for prayer. I feel like all this has made us realize once again how much we need to depend on our Lord and Master every day of our lives.

I am sure you are watching our troops returning home from time to time. I always think what a difference in this war and the other since World War II, but still losing even one person in this war was one more than we wanted to give up, as he or she belongs to a family somewhere.

Our firemen are getting ready for their farm sale which will be April 6. We need every fireman we have to help with this big chore. We don't doubt that each will help all he can. One fellow put it like this "I figure it is my chance to give back to my community at least some of what they have done for me." Well said, don't you think?

Nannie Hallmark of the Loraine

Nursing Center had guests from Snyder recently. They were Claude, Vernell and Verlette Kitchens.

Sorry Machele Williams for not letting you go to your birthday last week. I guess I just over looked your name, but I am glad to correct this for you. And Cleon, we are glad you are felling better, hope you will soon be well and strong again.

The Junior Sadler's of Merkel have bought the Royce Maylon place north of town I have been told and have moved there. We would like to extend to them a warm welcome to Loraine.

Mr. Sadler was raised in Colorado City and moved to Merkel several years ago and became mayor there, I understand.

Last week we were in Roscoe on business and found out that Mrs. Pete Etheredge has fallen and broke both arms. Hilda, we are real sorry about this. I almost know how handicapped you are but I only broke one arm a couple or so years ago. Mrs. Etheredge was Hilda Ohlenbusch before her marriage. Many moons ago she started in first grade in our school on the hill. In that class also was Annie Bell Hall Jones of Loraine, Lois Lucas Phillips, Loraine, Wilma Lee Hudgins, Colorado City, Glenn Thomas, Colorado City, Carl House of Odessa, Ida Prescott Chitsey, Hermleigh, started the same time, all graduated together.

Billie Sheffield lost her father last week. We are so sorry Billie and hope your mom is better by now.

Shirley Clifton lost her mother a week ago and Shirley our love and prayers are with you and we hope your dad is much better.

We lost a good friend last week in Mr. Matejowsky. He was a big part of our town for a long time along with his wife and daughter and family, the Roy Hollands. They came here with Custom-Ag and stayed a long time. They were fine folks and good friends. The Matejowsky's were still going to Senior Citizens at this time.

I saw Mildred Rose on my one trip to the grocery store in the last 6 weeks. She asked how I was and I said fine, if I could just walk. She said what you didn't have any feet then you'd never walk. She was trying to tell me I wasn't nearly as bad off as some other folks and Millie, you hit the nail on the head. I also visited with Dorothy Fowler on this same trip. It is always nice to see folks you seldom ever see.

I also had a chance to visit with Delmas and Betty Bowlin this past week. It sure was nice to see them. I had been told they were coming back when they got their house on the farm in order but that is not all the story. They are like a lot of people, they own the house they live in and need to sell it but this is not much of a market for real estate these days. Maybe before long they will be back. I sure hope so.

Willie Dean Forbus came home from last week's visit in Whitehouse, Texas where she visited her kids Harold, Marilyn and Dondra and Daddie Davis. She had a real nice visit she reports. Her kids had lived in Tyler at one time so this wasn't new country except she had not been to Whitehouse before. She found it to be a nice sized community. That's where the Dogwoods bloom and they also have the Azalia Trail. She was a little early for most of the blossoms but quite a few were out.

Do you know why they named this place Whitehouse, well here is the story on it. All the houses on the Azalia Trail are wood house and painted, you guessed it, white and what's more they paint all the houses, fences and wood work along this trail every year at the very beginning of spring, never skip a year and they just get whiter all the time.

Our boys will start baseball real soon, I think and I know I will enjoy watching them. We have a new ballfield or at least it has been made a lot better than it was. I am sure our guys will enjoy playing on it. Come up to the Hill and watch them play.

Marsha Brantley of Sweetwater was admitted to Hendrick Hospital in Abilene Sunday. She is the wife of Rev. Orville Brantley, the interim pastor of 1st Baptist Church, Loraine.

James McCloud of Tye will preach Sunday at 11 a.m. at 1st Baptist Church in Loraine. There will be lunch at the church at noon. Bring a covered dish and eat with us. Come meet the McClouds

Association of Business calls for insurance reform

AUSTIN -- Texas Association of Business has called for insurance reform that would benefit consumers by maintaining a strong, private insurance market, lower rates, and good legislation. TAB stressed the importance of a strong, competitive private insurance market for all consumers, both individuals and businesses.

TAB presented testimony before a House Committee this week on House Bill 2 opposing key provisions that would set a bad precedent for fair public policy. The statewide business and industry association pointed to two aspects of the bill which will negatively affect all Texans.

First is reversing the burden of proof in all insurance lawsuits and the other would establish a "revolving door" policy for state employees.

The "burden of proof" concept would shift the responsibility on the defendant to disprove every accusation made in court. This is contrary to all historical legal tradition. In every type of lawsuit, whether insurance or any other area, the responsibility for proving all allegations rests with the plaintiff - the person making the allegation. It is arbitrary and without justification to shift the burden of proof merely because the defendant is an insurance company.

A proposed "revolving door" policy would prohibit former state employees from representing their new employer or a client for an arbitrary period of time after leaving a state agency.

For more information concerning this legislation, please call Brad Gahn, TAB Vice President of Governmental Affairs and General Counsel, at 512-477-6721.

Loraine, Westbrook begin baseball season

Westbrook

America's favorite past time has recently been installed at Westbrook School as baseball is slowly spreading in west Texas.

Is this the first time Westbrook has had baseball - yes and no? The Wildcats managed to play a little six game season, but this year's schedule is full as Coach Jimmy Hill's athletes will have a twenty game season.

The decision for a new program at Westbrook was quite simple, "We were just looking for something in the spring," said Hill. "Not having the proper track facilities, we could never really do well, but the kids wanted something that they could compete in."

The Wildcats will compete in district 3-A with two other teams - Wilson and Loraine. With such a small district, the district games will only last five innings, but those games will be double-headers.

"We have a tough non-district schedule," stated Hill, "We will compete well, but we're not expecting too much because of our inexperience. We'll expect more later after we've been playing couple of years."

Coach Hill is optimistic about the baseball season and is hoping for success for his club. He feels that the teams victories will come by learning from adversities.

Loraine

The Loraine Bulldogs are just one of the Mitchell County towns that have acquired baseball and installed it into their spring athletic season.

For the most part, Coach Bob Loy is unaware of any previous Bulldog baseball team, "We're going to be a really young and inexperienced team this year," he said. "Some of our guys haven't played organized baseball in about four or five years; we'll just have to play it by ear."

Unusually, the Bulldogs have a light schedule as they will only play in four non-district games and eight district with the first home opener on April 5 against Merkel.

Loraine will also be in district 3-A with county rival Westbrook and Wilson, "There's not going to be a strong, dominant team in the district," Loy stated, "This is the first year for all of us, and by the time district comes around, we'll all be pretty much equal."

This year's Bulldog team is David Madrid, David Mitchell, Rene Pantoja, James Lopez, Chris Phillips, Clayton Lee, Sammy DeLoera, Jason Shy, Jeff Martin, and Billy Martinez.

In closing, Coach Loy feels the future of the baseball program in Loraine will prosper, "The junior high kids who are coming up are interested in baseball, and in the next couple of year's, Loraine will be a competitor."
