GUNMEN ESCAPE

Pleasure House Turned Into Shambles in Blind Shooting

CHICAGO, Nov. 23. (UP)—A loyal dog caused a veritable massacre when bandits attempted to rob merrymakers at Henry Goetz' roadhouse near here early today.

Two women were killed, another was believed to be dying and three men were wounded, two critically.

After the bandits arrived, Goetz' great Dane leaped for the throat of one. The latter started firing into the crowd. His seven companions also shot volley after volley of shotgun and revolver slugs into the screaming patrons.

Lights were blown out. A railroad police lieutenant fired back with a revolver, aiming blindly at the flashes of the other guns.

The wounded and dying fell moaning to the floor while the survivors milled about, trampling and slugging, unable to tell gunmen from patrons.

Bandits Escape

The bandits escaped in the dark, with loot of less than $300. When the lights finally were turned up, the following casualties were revealed:

Dead: Miss Barbara Lee, 22, and Miss Alice Ward, 29, entertainers at the roadhouse.

Expected to die: Miss Mary Ganey, 36, beauty shop proprietor.

Critically wounded: John Gates, 39, waiter, and Lieut. James Miscus, 28, employed by the Chicago Junction railway police.

FIRST LECTURE OF OPEN FORUM WELL RECEIVED

Encouraging Interest Shown Plan to Bring Noted Speakers Here

DR. D. W. HILL TALKS

Science Address Holds Crowd of 500 in Rapt Attention

More than 500 persons assembled at the Memorial auditorium Sunday afternoon for the first program staged by the new Wichita Falls Open Forum organization, heard a stimulating lecture by Dr. David Spence Hill, a 30-minute musical program, and featured the closing period of open discussion with thought-provoking questions put to the speaker for his comment.

Interest manifested in Sunday's initial public forum here, both from the standpoint of attendance and that of eager participation in the discussional part of the program, proved highly encouraging to those who have sponsored the formation of a forum in this city. While it was freely predicted, and hoped, that the number of persons present will be greatly increased as the remaining seven speakers for the year are presented, the audience Sunday represented a wide-spread territory, and a large percentage of its members remained until conclusion of the program as conducted by Dr. O. T. Kimbrough, director.

Dr. Hill is a past president of the University of New Mexico, has been on the faculties of Tulane university, University of Illinois, University of Wisconsin, University of Alabama, and is now research associate of the national advisory committee of education, the work of which is made possible by private endowment. He also is a fellow in the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and is on the board of the American Psychological association.

Question Answered

An answer given by Dr. Hill to a question put during the latter part of the afternoon by Joe Hatchitt Jr. reflected in its content not only the purpose of the organization, but also much of the burden of the speaker's address. The questioner asked Dr. Hill's opinion as to what element in the present civilization will draw the chiefest criticism from historians 200 or 250 years hence. The lecturer replied:

"I think it will be two-fold. They will marvel at the amazing progress made by this generation in all the sciences and in industry, but will marvel even more because we have utterly failed to do any reflective thinking. Twenty-five hundred

Federal Farm Chiefs Meet Today In Conference With Senator McNary

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23. (AP)—The troubles of the American farmer, with particular reference to wheat, will be surveyed minutely tomorrow when national farm leaders and government officials meet with Chairman McNary and his senate agriculture committeemen to determine whether new legislation will be sought at the coming short session of congress.

The administration already is prepared to sponsor a bill to authorize $60,000,000 in loans to farmers of 21 drouth-stricken states, but this is considered aside from the general farm question, including the all important subject of disposition of the farm board's wheat holdings or possible further purchases by the federal agency.

These and other phases will be discussed by Senator McNary and his committee with Secretary Hyde, Chairman Legge of the farm board, and three farm organization heads —Presidents Thompson of the American farm bureau federation, Taber of the national grange and Huff of the national farmers union.

Legge, whose organization has bought over 100,000,000 bushels of wheat to combat price declines, will be examined closely regarding the board's plans. The chairman said tonight, however, he had no recommendations to make at tomorrow's meeting, but was prepared to participate freely in the round-table discussion.

The officers had driven into the filling station on their way to the Looney home in Bradley. Looney and his friends just had purchased gasoline and were about to drive away. Looney leaped from his car with an automatic shotgun, mounted the front bumper of the officers' vehicle and fired through the windshield at the deputies, shouting:

WALL OF WATER RELEASED BY BREAK OF DAM

Corpus Christi's Supply Is Instantly Depleted As Dyke Gives Way

PLANT IS IN DANGER

Mounted Men Ride Along Threatened Valley To Warn Residents

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas, Nov. 23. (UP)—A deluge of water, released by the crash of Lake Mathis dam, roared through the Neches river valley tonight, sweeping all habitation in its path.

Although the flood waters engulfed two settlements, it was believed the number of casualties, if any, would be small. Livestock and poultry suffered heavily, however. Property damage also will be high.

The dam formed Lake Lovenskiole, source of water supply for the city of Corpus Christi and the break threatened to leave 50,000 people without dringing water during the night.

Spillway Crashes

The Corpus Christi pumping station lay in the direct path of the gigantic waves. Reports to the sheriff's office here said that the water was due to reach the pumping station at midnight.

The break in the dam occurred in the dirt embankment at noon. Other sections of the dam gave way quickly, releasing a gigantic volume of water from the 7,000-acre-foot reservoir. A new 50-foot spillway crashed at 5:30 p. m.

Members of the sheriff's department mounted horses, commandeered automobiles and sped afoot over the threatened valley warning farm residents of the approaching flood.

City in No Danger

A 28-mile section of the valley, lying between Lake Mathis and Corpus Christi Bay, lies in the path of the water. Corpus Christi itself was not in danger.

Fifty men, recruited by the sheriff's office, worked frantically at the dam to prevent further destruction tonight. The force of the water uprooted huge trees and picked up large concrete slabs from the dam and tossed them about, workers said.

City officials at Corpus Christi were alarmed over the possibility of the city's water supply being lost. All citizens who telephoned

Leopard Doomed For Texas Boy's Death

LITTLEFIELD, Texas, Nov. 23. (UP)—A trained leopard, which killed a 4-year-old boy here recently when it ran beserk while on exhibition, will be executed for its crime, officials decided today.

The beast now is held in a Clovis, N. M., zoo. Its master, Capt. Charles Howard, is in jail at Plainview, facing charges of negligent homicide. He was secreted away from here when feeling became so tense following the boy's death that officers feared attempts at mob reprisal might be made.

The child, James Elvins, died from injuries the animal inflicted.

The leopard will be either shot or poisoned, County Attorney T. Wade Potter said.

Three Held When Youth Dies From Poison Liquor

BRIDGEPORT, Neb., Nov. 23. (UP)—Three Bridgeport citizens today faced charges of prohibition law violations following the death of a 17-year-old youth, allegedly poisoned by liquor purchased from them.

At the inquest, a 12-year-old boy testified young Shuler had been drinking the night before he died. The three men were charged with possession and sale of liquor.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 23. (UP)—Safety measures to prevent reoccurrence of near-tragedies which have happened twice when oil wells ran wild and threatened to destroy sections of Oklahoma City, were taken today with No. 1 King well of the Phillips Petroleum company, which came in yesterday.

The well, in the heart of Capitol Hill, a residential suburb, flowed 1,367 barrels of oil in the first 45 minutes and has a gas volume of 40,000,000 cubic feet daily. The oil was diverted through sand traps to prevent residences from being sprayed by the flow.

Arlington Negro Slayer Rushed To Fort Worth Jail to Escape Lynching

Young Student-Officer Slain at Black's Home Late Saturday Night; Citizens Show Feeling

ARLINGTON, Texas, Nov. 23. (UP)—A lynching was averted here today when officers rushed Sam Lauder, negro slayer of James E. Johnson, 22-year-old policeman, to the county jail at Fort Worth for safe keeping.

More than 100 armed men joined in a hunt for the negro today and open threats of violence were thwarted when the negro surrendered to a posse composed mostly of officers.

Shoots Through Door

Lauder shot and killed the youthful officer who had answered a call at a house in the negro section of town last night. As he approached the house Lauder fired through the door, from the inside, and the officer was wounded in the neck, dying soon afterward.

Citizens joined in the hunt for the negro this morning. He was found crawling through a field at the edge of town by officers. As the posse approached Lauder threw down his gun, a German Luger pistol, and submitted to arrest. Meanwhile crowds of citizens had gathered in the downtown streets and threatened to lynch Lauder if they caught him first. Officers hurried the negro to Fort Worth and lodged him in jail.

Arlington is located midway between Dallas and Fort Worth.

Victim Was Student

Johnson, a high school student until this year, had been working as a night watchman for money to continue his education, friends said. Scores of his classmates gathered at a morgue where the body is held, late today to pay their respects.

Lauder confessed to the slaying, officers said, and a formal charge of murder was filed against him. Officers said that another negro had asked the aid of police last night to eject Lauder from his home. When Johnson approached the house Lauder began firing. Seven shots ripped through the door of the house, one inflicting a fatal wound and the other striking the youthful officer in the hand.

TWO HELD IN ASSAULT CASE

Girl's Screams Bring Help To Hotel Room

A young woman's screams for help from a local hotel room, Sunday afternoon caused members of the police department to force their way into the room and resulted in the filing of criminal assault charges against L. R. Bolin and Josh Mahan.

The young woman, still ill from the effects of a blow on the head from a black jack, told Sam Spence district attorney, that she had gone to the room with no idea of the intent of her companions. She had known both of them for some time, she asserted. She is 25 years old and an employe of a local business house. The alleged assault occurred between noon and 2:30 in the afternoon, the girl told Mr. Spence.

Both men were arrested when the screams of the girl attracted the attention of officials of the hotel. They were held in the city jail Sunday night but made no statements.

Floods, Hurricanes and Earth Shocks Bring Disaster to European Nations

(By The Associated Press)

The elements raged over Europe during the week-end, with seven deaths thus far blamed to storm conditions and the disturbances ranging from floods to hurricanes and earth tremors.

Five dead and about 20 were injured in France as a result of three days of storms which hurled a terrific gale into parts of Paris last night shipping was tied up over a wide area and rivers rose menacingly.

Fierce winds and drenching rain wrought damage over much of Germany, while one death was recorded —that of a girl who drowned at Netterschlen in the Rhineland. The Rhine and Moselle rivers and their tributaries rose to flood stage while heavy winds disrupted communications and damaged property.

A hurricane hit Vienna and caused one death, also uprooting trees and tearing off roofs.

Appalling disaster threatened a wide area in Belgium as a result of floods following torrential rainfall. The Termonde district was particularly affected by the overflow of the river Scheldt, and thousands were driven from their homes with what possessions they could remove conveniently.

Switzerland was another victim of the storms, hail causing much damage to forests and communications being interrupted.

England has been swept by wind and rain for several days, but the storm had largely blown itself out last night.

Bad weather also caused doubt as to the fate of an Italian seaplane which left Barcelona for Marseilles and Rome Friday, but since has not been heard from.

A disaster of somewhat different natured occurred in Albania, where new earth shocks followed upon those of Friday which killed more than 50 persons in the Valona district.

CHILD'S HEAD IN RANGE AS PARENT FIRES

Tragedy Ends Anticipated Week-End Hunting Expedition

BOY RISES TOO SOON

Top of Victim's Head Blown Away by Force Of Discharge

Elmer Poskey, 15, looked forward to Sunday for weeks ahead. That day his folks were coming to see him and his dad was going to take him hunting. He told the kids in the neighborhood about it and four of them got up before dawn Sunday morning to go along.

Less than three hours later Elmer lay dead in a field near the Holliday creek bridge at the head of Lake Wichita, the top of his head blown away by the discharge of his father's shotgun.

The six hunters had squatted suddenly in a group to get a shot at jacksnipes overhead. Elmer was just in front of his father, E. E. Poskey. Mr. Poskey looked over the sight to see that the youngsters were all down. Everybody fired. Elmer toppled over, dead, the full force of the shotgun's discharge striking him for a distance of about two feet. The only explanation any of his friends could offer was that the boy had lifted his head a fatal moment too soon.

Comrades Stricken

Panic stricken, James Conant, one of the boys, ran a quarter of a mile to bring the car. He sat beside his slain friend while the others rushed into town to get an ambulance. Helen Stubblefield, one of the two little girls in the crowd, put in the call. James Lauderdale and Mar Bell Manion were the other members of the party.

Elmer Poskey, a student in Reagan Junior High school, has been making his home with Mrs. I. N. Stubblefield, 1415 Twelfth street, this fall, while his parents were in Three Rivers, where Mr. Poskey was employed as a driller. The parents had just come to Wichita Falls to visit their only child, and the celebration was centered in the long-planned hunting expedition.

Parents Collapse

They found no ducks at the lake Sunday morning and had turned their attention to jacksnipes when the tragedy occurred. Both Mr. and Mrs. Poskey were in a state of collapse Sunday night.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 at the Stubblefield home Monday morning. Later the body will be taken to Houston for burial. Arrangements are under the direction of Hines mortuary.

Satisfactory Attendance At First Lecture

years ago, people on the streets of Athens were discussing freely and learnedly these issues which we are considering today, but many—sometimes I think most—of our business and professional men today think it's all 'tommy-rot'."

Speaking under the heading of "Man, Master or Victim?" Dr. Hill declared that three major subjects must be considered carefully by any person who would make any progress in answering the question implied by the title of his lecture. The complicated factor of reality, partially proven evolution, and knowledge, he said, are the three elements through which study of the question must be pursued.

Cry of the Weak

"The essence of such progress as we have made in thinking about the place of man in the universe is implied by the quotation, 'The excuse "It is destiny" is the cry of weak souls'," Dr. Hill said. "The attitude of the best scientists is expressed by R. A. Millikan, one of the greatest in that group, with his statement that 'if the beauty of the high purpose of man's existence is but an idle dream, then may I dream on forever'."

The world of men and women always can be divided into two groups, Dr. Hill said. Metaphysical materialists against the idealists; pessimists against optimists; those who yield to a sense of futility and despondency against those who are full of enterprise and hopeful planning.

"Philosophers of the past have reflected that age-old division," he said. "Herodotus said 'in the soul of man is destiny,' but Shakespeare came along later and wrote that 'hour by hour we write, and write, then from hour to hour we rot, and rot.' I think the belief which has gone abroad in many quarters that philosophy has made no progress in the past 20 centuries is the most silly idea of the present age."

Freedom's Importance

The world's greatest struggles in all fields have revolved about the question of freedom, the speaker continued, and all great controversies have hinged upon the same subject.

"In some limited sense," Dr. Hill said, "we are victims, unquestionably, in that we can not exercise freedom. We are slaves to the force of gravity, for instance. We can not determine the date of our birth. I may prolong my life somewhat, but I cannot prevent inevitable death of my body. There are millions of persons today who feel that they are victims of our industrial and economic conditions. We must admit that thousands of people have been thrown out of their places. It challenges our knowledge and our sense of brotherhood intensely."

The difficulty of defining or identifying reality was discussed by the speaker. Even a simple experience may not be so entirely real, he said, because it has so many different aspects. It is one thing to a chemits, another thing to a physicist, another to a psychologist, and still something else to one who is neither of those three, he pointed out.

"To consider reality," he continued, "we must take into consideration the very essense of being, and of existence. I think perhaps no better explanation of it ever has been given than that by Plato in his parables. There were, he tells, persons in an underground cave. All their lives their faces have been turned toward a blank wall, with their backs toward the world. Chains have held their heads so they saw only the wall. Outside, men, animals, glorious sunlight; but these persons inside the cave saw only shadows, thinking the shadows were real, whereas they are only imaginings until a few individuals with great courage and strength break their chains, turn their faces, and for the first time see the life that exists beyond the cave. The trees, birds, animals, sunshine take shape then as they are."

Growth Is Evolution

Evolution must be seriously reckoned with, Dr. Hill said, in determining the estate of man in the universe. Used as a term meaning constant change, he said, no one can question evolution, for there is in natural life no such thing as an unchanging condition. All growth, he continued, is the continued evolution of one cell.

"Inheritance plays a tremendous part in determining what you are. If you could compute, arithmetically, all your ancestors, proceeding on the assumption that each of your parents had a father and and mother, and so on back, when you had gone back 50 generations you would find that there were eleven hundred trillions of ancestors back of you. That is not true, of course. Monogamy has not been followed all during those ages. But it does show of what composite stuff you are made. Certainly, there could not be an absence of 'evolution' in such a process."

The third factor in the case, Dr. Hill said, is that of knowledge.

"We are spending in this country today about $2,000,000,000 annually to educate 25,000,000 school children. Is it worth it, in view of future place in life? In 'Who's Who' there are listed 30,000 leaders. They are real leaders. Eighty-one percent of them are college men and women. That despite the fact that only 1 per cent of our school population reaches college. These facts voice the faith of the American people in knowledge."

Contemplation of a few illustrations, the speaker continued, indicate the power of knowledge. He cited the contributions made to progress recently through increased knowledge of radium, engineering, electricity and psychology.

Dangers of Knowledge

Knowledge may bring about evil as well as good, he said, through enabling a few to control the many. Science, part of the field of knowledge, is bringing about a wider predominance of monotheism, the speaker said, through relieving people of groundless superstition. One of the greatest benefits of knowledge, he said, has been the leisure time which it has provided for pursuance of culture.

Among the questions put to the speaker in the open forum which followed his lecture were the following:

"If scientists are unable to define or explain causation, energy, time, and space—the four bases of their work—and therefore can not explain them, why do they so often criticise religion for accepting many axioms based on faith?" The principal reason, the speaker said, is that they are human, rather than super-human, and can see the correctness only of that work in which they are engaged. Also, he continued, many scientists mistake ecclesiasticism for religion, and are prejudiced because of mediaeval prosecution of scientists by ecclesiasts. The question was put by Charles I. Francis.

"How much nearer has the 20th century brought us to a solution of th age-old problems of philosophy?" By Rabbi S. J. Schwab.

"Are the revelations," queried Ira L. Cain, "of science generally proving or disproving, strengthening or weakening, belief in the teachings of the Bible?"

"What are the chief factors retarding the spread of real liberalism in this country?" was asked by Joe B. Hatchitt.

Walter Cline asked the speaker's discussion of the possible need for more vocational education, as a means of correcting the unemployment evil brought about largely by invention of labor-saving machinery.

Numerous other queries were put to Dr. Hill, who discussed each question briefly. Dr. Kimbrough conducted the forum.

Forum Explained

Dr. Hill was introduced by Mr. Francis, following a brief talk by Mr. Cline in which he set out the plan and purpose of the Open Forum organization. Announcement was made that the next speaker will be Dr. Charles G. Obermeyer, who will be heard on Dec. 7 in a discussion of "Culture and the Problem of Happiness."

The Zundelowitz Junior High school orchestra of 25 pieces, directed by Miss Minnie T. Baker, presented a group of numbers to open the program, winning prolonged applause from the audience by their spirited and comprehensive playing. Members of the ensemble average about 12 years of age.

Completing the musical program, Mrs. Lois Parker, soprano, sang Gena Branscombe's "Morning Wind" accompanied by Mrs. C. C. Myers, and responded to encore with the "Bubble Song," musical comedy favorite.

Oil Pumper Hurt In Lease Accident

Special to The Record News.

VALLEY VIEW, Texas, Nov. 23.—W. G. Mosley, pumper for the Texas company, was critically injured in the power house of a lease on the Hill & Roberts field early Sunday morning. Mr. Mosley was alone on the lease at the time of the accident and officials are uncertain as to what occurred, but they believe his clothing was caught in the revolving belt.

Mrs. Mosley, preparing breakfast in the residence near the lease, first heard his call for help. When she arrived, Mosley was lying in the power house near the clutch and the power was still turned on. A hole had been torn in the pumper's face beneath the right eye, his jaw bone and ear were torn, a gash had been cut in his head, the ankle, leg and arm of one side were mangled. The injured man crawled half way to the house while his wife was calling aid. He was rushed to the hospital in Electra where physicians said his condition was perilous.

WOMEN KILLED BY HIJACKERS

Dog's Leap Starts Fatal Gunplay

who escorted Miss Ganey, was less seriously hurt.

The roadhouse consisted of two rooms. A bar was in the front, tables, a piano and a dance floor in the rear. The bandits burst suddenly into the front room about 2 a. m. The leader and two others flourished shotguns, the rest carried revolvers.

Song Halted

"It's a stick-up," shouted the bandit leader to Goetz and Joseph McAvoy, who were behind the bar. "Get in the back room."

There Lawrence Abeling was playing a sentimental song on the piano. Miss Lee was singing. The lights were dim. The patrons sat in booths around the wall. Other entertainers waited nearby to go on with their acts.

"Everybody up," ordered the bandit chief. "Face the walls."

Two of the invaders started to take the patrons and employes to the front room, one by one, to rob them. The robber leader jostled Goetz.

The big dog, which had been standing by patiently, leaped for the gunman. The latter, in intense pain and sudden fright pulled the trigger of his gun.

Shooting Starts

The lights went out. The other bandits started shooting. Lieutenant Miscus emerged from a washroom. He fired back across the room, while the patrons fell and huddled on the floor.

They heard the bandit leader shout:

"Let's get out of here!"

A moment later two automobiles outside roared away. Lieutenant Miscus ignored the slugs in his back, right arm and chest. He leaped into his automoile, and chased the bandit cars. The robbers fired several shots at him. He finally had to stop to seek medical treatment, so weak was he from loss of blood.

When lights were snapped on at the roadhouse, a shambles revealed itself. The wounded and dying were sprawled on the floor. The furnishings were wrecked. Most of the patrons were hysterical.

Dog Calm

Only the dog which started the whole affray was calm.

Police canvassed all hospitals and doctors' offices in the belief one of the bandits must have had to be treated for the dog bite and that another probably sought medical attention from wounds believed to have been inflicted by Lieutenant Miscus' revolver.

23 COMMITTEE POSTS VACANT

New Appointments Offer Big Problem

By COLE E. MORGAN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23. (US)—Twenty-three committee vacancies, all on the Republican side, must be filled when the senate convenes for the short session next month. At the same time three Democrats must be given committee assignments. The Republican vacancies will come about by the retirement of Senators Baird, New Jersey; Grundy, Pennsylvania; Robsion, Kentucky; McCulloch, Ohio; Allen, Kansas, and Sullivan, Wyoming.

Three of these six, Baird, Grundy and Sullivan, are to be succeeded by Republicans, Senators-elect Morrow, Davis and Cary. The other three will be replaced by Democrats, Senators-elect Williamson, Bulkley and McGill.

Twelve of the 23 Republican vacancies are created by the retirement of the three whose successors are Democrats. That fact will present a perplexing problem to the Republican senate organization in readjusting the committee assignments to fill these 12 places with n new members with which to fill them. It will mean that old members must take on additional committee assignments to cover the vacancies. That necessarily will bring about a number of shifts in existing committee assignments.

Morrow Gets Post

Senator Baird of New Jersey who is to be succeeded by Senator-elect Morrow holds assignments on the committees on banking and currency, District of Columbia and military affairs. Morrow doubtless will be given Baird's banking and military assignments, but it is hardly to be expected he would be put on the district committee. A man of his outstanding prominence could hardly be expected to welcome the tedious detail of Washington's local governmental affairs.

Senator Grundy of Pennsylvania holds assignments on banking and currency, civil service, manufactures and naval affairs. Inasmuch as Morrow was on of the American delegates to the London naval disarmament conference, it would be logical for him to succeed Grundy on the naval committee, with Davis taking Grundy's place on banking and currency, civil service and manufactures and also Baird's place on District of Columbia.

Davis' 10 years' residence in Washington as a cabinet member has given him a close contact with district affairs. His service as secretary of labor during that same 10-year period has brought him into close contact with both civil service and manufactures. There is sufficient relation between labor and capital to qualify him for banking and currency.

Irrigation Vacancy

Senator Sullivan of Wyoming holds assignments on irrigation and reclamation, military affairs, naval affairs and public buildings and grounds. Irrigation relates directly to his home state. It would be most logical for Senator-elect Cary to succeed him there. For him also to be given the three Sullivan assignments would simplify the problem of filling other vacancies without unduly disturbing present assignments just that much.

As to the places of the three whose successors are Democrats it would be mere speculation to suggest who might be named. Senator Robsion of Kentucky will vacate places on banking and currency, civil service, District of Columbia and military affairs.

Senator McCulloch will go off of interoceanic canals, military affairs, postoffices and post roads and privileges and elections.

Senator Allen's assignments which he will leave vacant are on commerce, interoceanic canals, postoffices and postroads and printing.

Little, if any disturbance of existing assignments will be necessary on the Democratic side for this short session as there are a few vacancies left unfilled at the last session. McGill, for instance, elected largely by the support of organized labor, would fit into the committee on education and labor.

Williamson, a hardware merchant on a big scale back home, would be in his environment on manufactures. Bulkley could be given a place either on military or naval affairs where there are vacancies.

Conditions Right For Cotton Co-Ops

Special to The Record News.

IOWA PARK, Texas, Nov. 23.—That the present year offers the cotton cooperative associations a better chance than usual to return their members more for their cotton than they could have sold it for on the streets was a statement made last week by Carl Williams, member of the federal farm board who was in Dallas in conference with the board of directors of the Texas Cotton Cooperative association, according to S. W. Wood, local representative of the organization.

Mr. Wood stated that word received from the states offices continue to reflect the manner in which the cotton cooperative marketing movement is being accepted in all sections. "Through Nov. 15 the Texas association had received a total of 531,363 bales," he said, "which is 434,630 bales more than was received on the corresponding date last year." Association officials estimate this season's deliveries to the channels of cooperative marketing at approximately 700,000 bales, it was said. The association is continuing its 90 per cent initial advance based upon the merit of the cotton delivered, Mr. Wood said, and much held cotton from all sections of the state is now being released to the cooperatives.

Wichita Falls Home Wrecked by Fire

Fire which originated immediately under the roof and worked downwards into the main structure occasioned damage amounting to about $5,000 on the home of J. A. Conner, 2906 Ninth street, at 11:30 o'clock Sunday morning, according to information given The Record News.

A large part of the damage, it was reported, was the result of water thrown into the house in heavy volume to check flames which had attained a good start before being detected. Two trucks from station No. 2 and one from station No. 4 answered the call. About 1250 feet of hose was laid in order to make ample water available.

Firemen worked about 40 minutes at the damaged house, it was said.

BREAK IN DAM FLOODS VALLEY

Corpus Christi City Lake Dyke Crashes

for advice were urged to draw out water for drinking purposes.

Tracks Washed Out

Despite efforts of the three section crews, the Southern Pacific tracks at La Fruta were washed out and Corpus Christi-San Antonio trains had to be routed by way of Alice.

The flooded country is mostly farming land. Five hundred head of cattle were known to have been drowned. At 9 p. m. Deputy Sheriff Bell's farm was among those flooded. He said that his land and his neighbor's feed crops were still in the fields and will be completely lost.

The waters had engulfed the settlements of Lafrunda and Blunzer, below the lake, but apparently without loss of human life. Thousands of dollars worth of livestock and poultry, however, were drowned.

Rabbits were seen clambering about the lower branches of trees attempting to escape the torrent.

The Southern Pacific rushed three section crews to guard its line between Mathis and San Dia. Hundreds of laborers worked by flares to protect trestles and fills.

Record Stage

Nick Gallagher said that the water was higher at Sandia than at any time previously. He reported water covering all wagon bridges and expected them to go out in a short time. Forty cowboys were attempting to reach 500 head of cattle trapped near there.

The failure of the dam will not impair the water supply of Corpus Christi, John Cunningham, superintendent of the Calallen pumping station said. Water had risen two inches at the pumping station at midnight.

Residents of the North Beech station of Corpus Christi tonight feared for their homes as the water from the lake swept toward the gulf. Glen R. Blackburn, however, announced that the section was not in danger after an inspection.

Three automobiles were trapped by the water at one point. When a tractor went to the aid of the machines in distress it and the cars all were submerged before the automobiles could be pulled out.

Engineer En Route

S. F. Freese of the Fort Worth engineering firm will arrive here tomorrow to inspect the broken dam. A representative of Smith Brothers also is expected tomorrow, city officials said.

Mrs. Godlie Jenkins, Mathis telephone operator, and Deputy Sheriff S. R. Bell, Mathis, were credited with the saving of several hundred persons below the dam. Mrs. Jenkins, 28, and the mother of two children, worked at her board continually for two hours warning Nueces valley residents from the path of the flood.

Children of Poor Parents Are More Often Successful

The other day a mother advertised in a newspaper for rich foster-parents for her child. She said that she was willing to sacrifice herself in order that the boy might be brought up in luxury with all of the advantages that wealth gives.

It is easy to see how a poor woman who sees her children shabby while other children are dressed in silks and satins; who sees her children riding in the street cars while other children joy-ride around in sports cars; who sees her children going to work from the high school while other children are sent off to expensive colleges, should feel that they are not getting a fair deal in life and that they have not the same chances of success that the rich children have.

She feels that if Mamie could have the pretty clothes to set off her beauty and to go into smart society, she would marry a millionaire and live happily ever afterward. She is sure that if Johnny and Tommy could afford to study some profession they would achieve fame and fortune, and she is perfectly assured that they would be utterly blissful if they had nothing to do but play and unlimited dollars to play with.

But in this the poor mother is mistaken. Beyond giving a child a decent home in which to grow up in, enough clothes to keep it comfortable and enough food to fill its stomach, money can buy nothing for it that is not oftener a handicap than a help. And if you do not believe this look about you. Who are the important people in every community? Who are the millionaires? Who run the banks and the railroads and are at the head of great enterprises? Who are the famous writers and artists and inventors and actors and singers?

The children of rich people? Men and women who were brought up in luxury? Men and women whose parents could have given them in their youth every advantage of education and study and travel? Not a bit of it. You could count on your fingers and toes every rich man's son and daughter in the country who has ever achieved anything worth while. All of the balance, from the president down, were the children of poor people who had to struggle to get an education and who had to fight their way up in the world with their own brains and brawn.

What are these advantages that the rich children have that the poor mothers envy them so much?

Not a happy childhood.

The poorest baby whose own mother nurses it on her breast, who knows the tenderness and understanding and gets the love and patience that only a mother can have for her own child, gets something that the millionaire baby that is turned over to baby specialists and governesses never knows. No synthetic motherhood is as good as the real thing. No hired hands can mold the plastic character of a child as a mother's can, and when a child has missed the daily and hourly companionship of its mother it has lost something for which money is no substitute.

The advantages of education? True, the rich can send their children to schools where there are learned professors capable of unlocking all the doors of learning for them, but they cannot make them study, and in every college and university in the land the boys and girls who are leading their classes and taking the honors are the poor boys and girls who are working their way through school. Most of the rich youngsters who go to college in their own cars never learn anything except how to make whoopee.

Marriage? If there is one thing more certain than another, it is that money doesn't help a girl to make a good marriage. On the contrary. Statistics show that there are more old maids among millionairesses than among any other class of women in this country, and the reason is obvious. They would not take the kind of men they could get.

American men are seldom fortune-hunters and they fight shy of very rich girls, so the very fact of her money cuts many a fine girl off from ever really meeting the kind of men that she would like to marry. She is thrown only with play-boys and cake-eaters and men who do not attract her because they have no serious purpose in life. Every girl who works in an office among alert, keen, ambitious young men who are go-getters has a better chance to marry than any Miss Croesus has.

Success? Mighty few successes are nurtured in the lap of luxury. Most of us need the spur of necessity to drive us on. When we are lapped in comfort and pleasure beckons to us from every side, we may dream of doing great things, but we never do them. It is only when we have to work to starve that we put our backs into the job. It is only when we know that the only way we can achieve our desires is by battling for them tooth and nail that we put up the fight that makes us win out.

Temptation? Every mother wants her children to be good. To be men and women of stainless life, and surely no one will deny that it is easier for a poor boy and girl to keep on the straight and narrow path than it is for rich ones, for their very poverty is their protection against the evil men and women who prey on the weaknesses of the rich. It is cynically true that nothing makes for virtue like lacking the price of vice.

So, what are these advantages that this poor mother thinks she would give her child by giving it to rich people to rear in luxury?

OFFERS LURE ARMY AIRMEN

Experts Leave Service For Bigger Salaries

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23. (US)—Warning that the last fiscal year has seen an alarming increase in resignations of the army's finest fliers to take more lucrative private positions, Major Gen. James E. Fechet, chief of the army air corps, today strongly urged higher pay in his annual report to the secretary of war.

During the fiscal year ending June 30, General Fechet said, 27 of the army's crack pilots left the service, a new high record. The number he said, has steadily increased from year to year.

"Many officers who have received tempting offers from commercial air firms are remaining in the service in the hope that congress will enact relief legislation in the matter of pay and promotion," he added.

Force Increases

General Fechet's report stated that on June 30, 1930, the strength of the corps was 1,266 officers, 378 flying cadets, and 11,654 enlisted men. This represents an increase of well over 1,300 as compared with the previous year.

Vast expansions in the facilities of the corps have been made in the last year, General Fechet reported, including the completed construction of $6,415,000 worth of barracks at Langley, March, Mitchell, Randolph and Selfridge fields. Layout plans have been completed, it was added, for Langley, Maxwell, Mitchell, Selfridge, France and Wheeler fields. France field is in the canal zone and Wheeler field is in Hawaii.

The construction work represents the third increment of the five-year expansion program.

Accidents Decline

The report added that in the last fiscal year there has been effected a very appreciable reduction in the number of men lost through accidents.

Great progress has been made in the art of aerial photography, considered highly valuable as a military science for use in observation scouting over enemy territory. In one instance, he reported, a photograph was taken of a mountain 270 miles away from the camera.

The service is facing a serious lack of commissioned officer personnel in the lighter-than-air division, General Fechet told the secretary, there being at the present time only about 25 officers actually engaged in this work, although the service has about 90 who are rated as lighter-than-air officers.

In the field of engine development, the report stated that considerable progress has been made, although the radical air cooled types of engine still seem to hold preference despite the inherent advantages of the liquid cooled engine.

Sunset Harvests Improved Nut Crop

Special to The Record News.

SUNSET, Texas, Nov. 23.—Good progress is being made with the gathering of the pecan crop here. The yield and grade are better than the owners expected in the latter part of the summer. The crop isn't extra good but it is better than the crops of the past two or three years. Local dealers are paying the growers from seven to 10 cents a pound for native pecans.

Some individual growers have already gathered more than a thousand pounds from their orchards, and some less.

Most of the pecan trees here are native trees, growing in sandy and brushy creek bottoms. They number, mostly, a dozen or two trees to the farm. A few farms have as many as hundred trees. Some of these farmers are getting interested in the papershell variety and likely the better variety will take the place of the native pecan here within the next few years.

Farmers who let their peanuts remain in the field until after the middle of October have had a month of very favorable weather in which to get them up in good condition. Quite a number of individual crops were cured and thrashed without any rain damage, others are in stacks in fine condition.

Good peanut hay is among the best sorts for livestock, and many farmers of this section have a quantity of it put up to feed to their stock during the winter months.

When History Is Bunk
A New Tower of Babel
Mr. Crain's Appeal
Would End the Rackets

By EMILE GAUVREAU

Historical exactness is desirable in any account. But there is such a thing as overdoing it, and that is what will defeat the purposes of the Anglo-American Records Foundation, which plans a record of our colonial era in 700 volumes—a task which will take 20 years to accomplish, and will probably require a reader a whole lifetime to glance through, even cursorily.

Our colonial era is not important enough for that. One or two volumes, by a reliable scholar, would be sufficient for all purposes. Multiplying the one volume by 700 might only multiply our ignorance of the era 700 times. One is apt to refer to a single volume; hundreds of them will daunt the most ambitious and patriotic scholar.

The tower of Babel was a futile project. This record appears to be even more so.

District Attorney Crain asks New York to aid in wiping out rackets and racketeering from business and community life. But what can the citizen do about it when official corruption has aided and abetted practically every racket of consequence that has so far been uncovered?

The public cannot possibly help so long as racketeers dictate to our judges, our party leaders and even our members of congress. A plaster on an infection does no good. The infection must first be cauterized. The salve of public aid might then heal the wound. Racketeering will receive its death blow when prohibition is wiped out.

Mr. Crain probably knows as well as any New York editor that racketeering goes up for a considerable distance. Recently the paper with which the writer is connected printed from police headquarters records a series of life histories of New York's best known and most powerful racketeers. He was visited by the executive vice president of a large organization of wide influence, who, in considerable alarm, wanted to make sure that one racketeering gentleman, now in the higher realms of lawbreaking, would be spared the humiliation of looking at his rogue's gallery photograph in a newspaper.

Unfortunately, the story was on the presses, which kept going. "Does your great organization have to bargain with these violators of the law?" the executive vice president was asked. "Some of them are very useful to us," he replied. "They keep their gangs in line. Remaining friendly with them, we can sleep nights."

Some lines of American business, finding the law poor protection from these vandals, actually have bargained with organized crime! Mr. Capone, now feeding the poor in Chicago, could tell you much about that.

It is possibly only a question of weeks before Spain becomes a republic. One of the oldest and most absolute monarchies in the world will join the discard of scepters and crowns with the abdication of King Alfonso, leaving England alone, among the great powers, in the enjoyment of monarchical government.

Alfonso, as a matter of fact, ceased to be a king in the old sense of the word some dozen years ago when he became a real estate operator and subway promoter. He probably read the handwriting on the wall at the outbreak of the world war, and has been investing wisely in the future.

Business is king today, the world over. Ford, Morgan, Sir Basil Zaharoff, each alone is more powerful than all of the remaining kings put together.

Hambone's Meditations

Copyright, 1930, by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.

Speaking of surprises, who would have guessed a couple of months ago that Bobby Jones would be big news at the height of the football season?

Cigaret-smoking women are reported to be in search of a fireproof material for their frocks. Perhaps a curtain is about asbestos they can do.

Hear that one about the Scotchman who got into a fight? He mixed himself up in a street brawl because they told him it was a free-for-all.

A prominent New York lawyer has written a book of rhymes. Perhaps his publishers will urge the reading public to give him a trial.

Many a young man who has refused to let the grass grow beneath his feet has lived to reap a rich harvest.

Knute Rockne, Notre Dame coach, is a good actor they say. Maybe it's because he studies his lines before every game.

"What we need," writes a paragrapher, "is to switch unemployment to the gangsters." Just to switch gangsters would be sufficient.

The married man who shows lots of brass elsewhere is usually the fellow who plays second fiddle at home.

"Ax me another," said the witty Thanksgiving day shopper as he ordered his second turkey.

Maybe by opening a soup kitchen for the unemployed in Chicago Al Capone figures to get himself out of a stew.

One of the paradoxes of the modern age is why a man on the loose thinks he can improve things by getting tight.

No Reason to Be Proud

FOOTBALL GAMES are being played for charity. Cities are registering their unemployed and urging householders to find odd jobs wherever they can. New roads are being laid down and new buildings are being built; factories are "staggering" their working shifts, so that a given number of jobs can be made to go farther, and various community chest projects are getting under way.

Plainly, the nation is devoting itself to the relief of the misery brought on by unemployment. If anything that might be done is not being done, or at least attempted, it is hard to think what it could be.

Nevertheless, without in any way criticizing any of the relief measures that are being undertaken, it would be a good thing if we could be made to understand that we have no reason to feel especially proud of ourselves for the work. No matter how splendidly these relief jobs are performed, at the end we shall have done no more than the very least we could do in decency.

For this whole relief program is at best only a stop-gap measure—something to tide us temporarily over a sudden crisis. Even after due allowances are made for the fine spirit of charity and brotherhood that enters into it, in the last analysis it is not a pretty business.

What does this whole program of relief work mean, anyway? Simply that our civilization has proved itself to be terribly defective somewhere; simply that the richest country in the world, the country that has more millionaires than any other country on earth, the country that boasted only recently about the imminent abolition of poverty, finds itself utterly unable to provide some millions of its citizens with a chance to earn a living.

Giving a hungry man a bowl of soup and a cup of coffee is a fine thing. It is likewise very fine to send coal to families that cannot afford to buy any, and to provide part-time work for men who have been idle. But such things only scratch the surface. What the unemployed worker needs is a job—a real job, full time and well paid, carrying with it the assurance that it is going to last as long as he does his work decently.

That, of course, is elementary. But it needs to be said, and to be repeated over and over again. For if it is not we are too apt to get self-satisfied, and forget that our whole economic machine needs a bit of overhauling.

Probably it will be necessary for this relief work to continue through most of the winter. When spring comes, most of it can be continued, as there will be a revival of business. But the fundamental problem will be just as bad then as it is now.

Just what the solution may be is a puzzling question. The important thing, however, is to remember that it is a question that has to be answered. All of our relief work is only a temporary expedient.

What Patriotism Really Is

IN AN OHIO TOWN a group of patriotic citizens celebrated Armistice day by tossing tear gas bombs into a chain grocery store that had failed to close its doors in honor of the holiday. After the affair was over, one of the leaders in the mob remarked that he was very sorry they had been obliged "to impose patriotism on any American concern."

That remark contains a profound error, which is worth examining. For it so happens that patriotism is one of those things than can never, by any means, be "imposed" on anyone. If you are patriotic, it is because of something that wells up within you. No outside agency can stuff it into you. You can't get it through threats or compulsion.

That ought to be self-evident. An intelligent adult is bound to feel just a little bit sorry for any grown man whose mental processes are as childish as those of this ardent, "patriotic" Ohioan.

Colonel Capone Feeds the Poor

CHICAGO has one of the largest free soup kitchens in America. It is said that Col. Al Capone with some help from friends is financing the kitchen and feeding about 1,100 men daily. This kitchen is not identified with any of the various relief agencies. Three meals a day are served, varying from coffee and rolls for breakfast to soup, stew and coffee for dinner. No attempt is made to sort out the habitual bums from those who can't find work. No questions are asked. The food is merely handed out as long as its lasts or as long as the line lasts.

Colonel Capone's critics are fond of saying that he has a gizzard but is without a heart. If he is feeding 1,100 hungry men daily he must be the possessor of a remarkable gizzard.

HEARTBREAK GIRL

By ROB EDEN

Gail Stuart, befriended by Nick Walther after hiking to Hollywood, falls in pictures. She becomes secretary to Carlo Cross, the star, and gets her fiance, Ross Hardy, a job as Carla's leading man. Gail breaks her engagement when he falls for Carla. Carla discharges her for liking with Walther, whom she hopes to marry. Nick loves Gail, but throws her in contact with Hardy at a house party, knowing she still loves the actor. The party ends tragically with the suicide of Norman Frame, one of Carla's discarded lovers. He leaves a note accusing her of causing his death. Newspapers print sensational details of the former affair between the two, digging up letters, poems, etc. Sarah Morton calls Gail, telling her Ross has disappeared. The studio is frantic, as he is in the midst of his first starring picture.

CHAPTER XLI

Mrs. Cross took out the wet ball that had been her handkerchief, and dabbed her eyes, as she sat down on the one rickety chair the room boasted. Gail took her old position on the bed, her feet curled up under her, one arm slung around the brass bed post.

"I couldn't stay in the house any longer. It's too awful, Gail. Too terrible. And I had no one to talk to, nowhere to go. I thought of you. You've always been so kind—and you're from Fairview. I always felt somehow that you liked me—"

"I do," the girl said quickly. She felt very sorry for Carla's mother. The house must be pretty bad, to drive her out.

"Carla sitting around crying, Tod running in and out, trying to help. I went into Carla's room this morning, but she didn't want me. I thought I might be able to help. I told you I was worried about Norman, and that I was a little afraid of him. I warned Carla when he came back, but she laughed at me. She's not laughing now. She's crying. Only you can't tell her anything. She won't listen. She's never listened to me, Gail. Never—" All the pent up agony in Mrs. Cross' heart was being poured out. She seemed calmer now that she was talking, although her handkerchief went frequently to her eyes.

Reporters Thick as Flies

"The day has been so long, all by myself in my room. I slipped out the back door when I came, so I wouldn't meet any of the newspaper reporters. They've been haunting the house all day like flies, questioning Martin—awful. I walked down to the bus, because I didn't want Carla to know I'd gone. She gave orders this morning that no one in the house was to leave, not even the servants. For fear of the reporters, I guess. Or maybe, Tod told her to give the orders. I've my key in my pocketbook, so I can get back all right. I won't be missed, because Carla won't want me. She never does—"

Talking like a girl who has slipped away from a convent in the dead of the night—

"But Gail, that isn't all—"

Mrs. Cross' eyes grew round, and large. They didn't look like Carla's now. There was nothing about this woman that resembled Carla.

"That isn't all," she repeated in a whisper. "The rest is too terrible—" Her eyes closed, and her body swayed back and forth in the chair, which was creaking badly under her weight.

"Oh, I wish we'd never come to this place. Wish Carla had never wanted to be an actress! Then we would have stayed in Fairview, and Carla would have married someone there, and I would have been happy. I've never liked it here, anyway. Now I hate it!" Her plump, well kept hands, touched her trembling mouth.

"It'll blow over, Mrs. Cross," Gail said comfortingly, feeling that she had to say something.

"Not this—I know. The servants are all telling me it'll blow over, but it won't. I feel it. Know it. If Carla had only taken care! Did you read that diary? Those letters? To think that my daughter—but that isn't the worst by any means, Gail. Mr. Werber called this afternoon! Late, about five—" The swaying started again, accompanied by moaning.

Carla Clings to Tod

"Mr. Werber?"

"Yes, Marcella told me. You remember her, Carla's new secretary. Marcella told me. I met her in the hall, and asked her what was the matter, she looked so scared. She told me. She was just going down the stairs to meet Tod. Carla had sent for him again. She sent for him every hour all day long. Like she would a doctor." Mrs. Cross' voice quivered, and she paused for breath.

"Carla was to sign her new contract this afternoon, and Mr. Werber called about that—Marcella didn't have time to tell me much—she doesn't like me very well, anyway. But she told me that Mr. Werber said he was tearing up Carla's contract, the one he had prepared. Werber's won't re-sign her!"

"Oh, it can't be true!" Gail cried. "It is true. Now what's Carla going to do? She's never worked for any other studio but Werber's—and they won't re-sign her. On account of the scandal Marcella told me. You see now why I had to come to you. I had to tell somebody, and you're the only one I could—"

The sobs started afresh. "And Carla was so proud of the new contract. She was to have a fine bungalow. The best in Hollywood—right on the lot. More money. Everything she wanted. She explained it all to me the other day. She was really very kind. I never saw her happier. Now, what'll happen?"

"It can't be true," Gail repeated. Her face was as white as the spread on her bed, and her arms caught the brass post as if it were something to cling to, strengthen her. The note—she had done this to Carla—

Norman's revenge was too bitter—

"I've seen these actresses—" Mrs. Cross went on tearfully, "come and go since I've been in Hollywood. I've seen them get tangled up in scandals, and lose everything once their reputation is gone. I'm afraid Carla's—gone as far as the movies are concerned. People remember longer than you think. Carla doesn't think I know much about the movies, but I do. I use my eyes. I know. I've warned her—"

"She'll get a job at another studio—"

Shifting Sands

"She may and she may not. You know Carla hasn't saved her money. If she had saved her money she'd be all right. She could go away for a year or so, until her fans forget. I've some money, but it won't be enough for Carla. She needs so much. Thousands. Of course, what I have is here—she gave it to me, and I invested it as best I could. It isn't much, but it'll keep us for awhile—"

The Spanish house, which once had been Sarah's, and now was Carla's. Would Carla have to give that up, too? Would some other rising young actress buy it, live in it for awhile, only to leave it eventually, because she couldn't afford it any longer? But Carla hadn't given it up yet. Even if Werber's wouldn't re-sign her, she might get work someplace else. Of course she would. She was still a good actress—publicity like this couldn't kill her off, in a few days.

Yet Mr. Werber had called himself to say he wouldn't re-sign—one of the smaller companies would take her up, play her up. Mrs. Cross was too morbid, too excited to realize that. Gail tried to explain but Mrs. Cross wouldn't listen.

"Think—the contract all ready and waiting to sign. Mr. Werber wanted Carla to sign Saturday afternoon, but she said she couldn't, as she had to go to Nick's house party. She might have signed then and everything would have been all right. Why, oh, why didn't she? You've no idea how awful it is in the house—"

Gail had a pretty fair idea. She didn't blame Mrs. Cross much for getting out for awhile. The storms she had seen at the house had been mild compared to this. And even they had worried her. This was a tragedy to Carla.

Mrs. Cross left at 10, after calling a taxi, which she said would take her to within a block of her daughter's house. From there she would walk, and go in the back door, as she had gone out.

The girl resumed her seat on the bed, after Mrs. Cross had gone. She didn't notice the chill wind blowing through the open window at her back. Indeed, she felt nothing. It was as if her body were dead.

Ross gone and Carla "out" at Werber's. Another sleepless, restless night. Another day of work. The morning papers held the news Mrs. Cross had told her the night before. Her information from Marcella Wilson was correct. A short statement from Roscoe Werber, merely confirming the rumors that Carla Cross had not been signed to a new contract.

Carla Out

Gail recognized Tod's work in one of the chatter columns. There was a short item that Carla Cross was contemplating a new contract with Colonial. This bit of news was denied later in an afternoon edition by Colonial Incorporated, so Tod's counter effort had failed. It still remained in the chatter column all day, however.

Mr. Werber, after his one short statement "had left town," and would be away several weeks.

Reporters had not yet been able to get an interview with Carla. They had tackled Tod, who publicly branded the suicide note as revenge.

More letters from Carla, not quite as juicy today, as the ones which had been printed yesterday. More excerpts from the diary. A complete story of Norman Frame's life.

At lunch, passing a music store, Gail had recognized the tune Norman had played Saturday night so many times. His own music, dedicated to Carla. The papers had copied the sheet of music faithfully—already it was being exploited madly. The tune was really beautiful, the melody haunting.

She didn't know then, but she was to find out in a few days that a local music company had arranged for the printing of the sheet. Across the front of it was to be the name, "Heartbreak Girl." One of Norman's poems, which fitted the peculiar meter, was being adapted to it. The company was working on it feverishly, and was prepared to sell millions of copies.

Wednesday evening, Sarah called her at Mrs. Green's, and told her that Ross was still missing. And that Max was frantic. He had detectives out now, and production was definitely halted on the new picture, until Ross could be found.

Potatoes—Good Winter Food

In making a list of wholesome starchy foods, I always place the potato at the head of the list. Potatoes have the advantage over most other forms of starch in not producing an acid condition in the body.

The potato yields both heat and energy, and is helpful in protecting the body against the winter cold. They contain all of the known vitamins, but potatoes should not be boiled over 15 minuts or some of the vitamin C is destroyed. Baking does not destroy this vitamin as readily.

For some reason many people believe that the potato is fattening, and almost all stout people avoid potatoes as they would poison, when the truth of the matter is that one slice of bread contains as many calories as two average sized helpings of potatoes. Those who are underweight will find that the potato is much easier to assimilate than many other forms of starch.

If potatoes are used in proper combination with other foods, a larger amount may be eaten without injury than is the case with any other kind of starch.

The modern diet is largely acid forming, resulting in acidosis. The addition of the potato to the bill of fare helps to prevent this trouble. The important alkaline-forming elements of the potato are potassium and magnesium.

Potatoes should always be used with other raw and cooked non-starchy vegetables. The potato belongs to the night-shade family and really has not been used as a food plant for very long, yet, in that time it has become very popular. An average of over three bushels a year are eaten by every man, woman and child in North America.

In spite of its dirty appearance and lack of attractive color when uncooked, the potato holds the championship of the world among vegetables. It wins on several merits. It is an inexpensive food, keeps well, is easily prepared, easily grown and has a flavor that blends well with other common foods and when cooked is so digestible and nourishing that it may be used by anyone in good health, including young children.

The best way to prepare potatoes is to wash them well with a vegetable brush and boil in plain water until they become soft. Potatoes cooked with the skins on have a better flavor and retain more of the mineral elements than if cooked in any other way. Baking potatoes is the next best method of preparation, although some of the mineral elements are close to the skin and baked potatoes should therefore be eaten with the skins.

In preparing mashed potatoes it is well to boil the potatoes with their skins on, then peel them and mash with a little cream or milk.

Potatoes may be used for thickening soups made of non-starchy vegetables. Scalloped potatoes make a hearty dish for a wintry day, and are made by paring, slicing and laying potatoes in a deep dish in layers covered with milk and a little butter. The milk and potatoes blend together while cooking.

Avoid potatoes which have turned green, or cut off all of the green parts before cooking the rest for the green contains a bitter substance which is slightly poisonous.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Weak Stomach

Question—E. M. asks: "Will you please tell me what to do for a weak stomach? After eating my breakfast I become so very nauseated that many times I lose my food. When washing my teeth the tooth paste makes me sick. I have perfect health, and work in an office."

Answer—Your trouble is more than likely due to some reflux cause, such as a faulty position of the stomach, uterus or kidneys. Undue pressure upon these organs is a frequent cause of nausea. A good diagnosis of your cause by a physician who uses the x-ray would doubtless determine which of these causes is responsible.

Corn Oil

Question—W. J. L. asks: "May oil of corn be used as a part of health meat? Someone told me that it is not very wholesome, but I have been using it for a long time and it seems to agree with me."

Answer—Corn oil is usually pressed from the germs of the grains of corn. It has a pleasing taste and a golden yellow color and does not become rancid readily. It is quite wholesome and may be used in salad dressings, for preparing French fried potatoes, or in other methods of cooking. Experiments have proven that it contains some growth promoting and anti-sterility vitamins.

Increasing Height

Question—X. Y. Z. asks: "What is the most helpful exercise for a man who wishes to increase his height two or three inches?"

Answer—Any kind of exercise where the spine is twisted and bent in different directions has a tendency to increase the growth of the muscles, bones and cartilages of the spine. At the same time, osteopathic or chiropractic treatments also help to stimulate and increase the blood supply to these parts.

Surprise!

LONDON.—Flight Lieutenant A. J. Styran was flying from London to Antwerp to attend an international air meeting. On the way he saw a German pilot performing stunts. On the spur of the moment, Styran decided to show the spectators below what real stunting was. He went through his bag of tricks and then landed. Much to his surprise, he was handed a prize by a judge for his stunting in the air.

QUANAH AND PLAINVIEW GRID TEAMS START BELATED RALLY

COYOTES CLOSE WITH SANDIES

Interest Centers in Game Here Thanksgiving Day

The lower position clubs in district 1, class A, of the interscholastic league, started a winning spurt last week, but it's too late now, mates. There remain the Turkey day battles, and then it's all over.

Quanah and Plainview were the lower position clubs referred to above. The Quanah Indians looked as good as ever in downing Electra, 12 to 0, and the victory raised them to no less than a tie with Vernon for fourth place in the district. Plainview bowled over Childress, 13 to 7, to register its second conference victory and to forge into a tie with Electra for sixth place. The Wichita Falls Coyotes remained the worst club in the loop today after losing last Thursday to Pampa, 71 to 7.

The Lubbock Westerners disposed of the Vernon Lions quite handily, 31 to 6.

Attention now is centered on the Thanksgiving day battles, and all eyes will be turned in the direction of Wichita Falls, anxious to see what the Amarillo Sandies will do to the Coyotes. It will be an unequal battle, but much interest will be centered in the game anyway, as Amarillo has a reputation of spreading on quite a show. Coach Holton's Coyotes, fresh from another defeat, frankly are expecting another, but they hope to put up a great battle.

The only Turkey day battle that will involve teams anywhere near equally matched will be that between Vernon and Electra at Electra. Quanah will go to Pampa for a drubbing, and Lubbock will journey to Plainview for a final conference victory, the experts say.

The standing:

Clubs—	G.	W.	L.	T.	Pct.
Amarillo	7	7	0	1	1.000
Pampa	7	6	1	0	.857
Lubbock	7	5	2	1	.714

Western Conference Season Comes to End

CHICAGO, Nov. 23. (AP)—Football uniforms go back in the moth bags in the Western conference tomorrow. The season is ended, but the memory lingers on. Northwestern and Michigan are the joint champions each with five successive victories, Purdue, the 1929 title-holder, finished third, with Wisconsin fourth and Ohio State fifth.

The Wolverines got their half-portion share of the title by defeating Chicago, 16-0, in the windup of the season yesterday.

Indiana provided the most stunning upset of the Big Ten season by defeating Purdue, 7-6, in the final yesterday.

Wisconsin had been figured a bit stronger than Minnesota, and demonstrated it by beating the Gophers 14-0. Ohio State, figured as better than Illinois, closed its season by taking Bob Zuppke's warriors into camp, 12-9, while Chicago was losing to the Wolverines. Iowa considered its season a success as the result of a 12-7 victory over Nebraska.

Members of Rider Cup Team Named

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 23. (AP)—Walter Hagen of Detroit, Leo Diegel of Augua Caliente, Calif., Johnny Farrell and Gene Sarzen of New York and Horton Smith of Joplin, Mo., have been chosen for the Rider cup team of American golf professionals who will play the British next year, while 14 other stars will play 72 holes to qualify for the three remaining places.

AGGIES YET IN WAY OF STEERS

Baylor Stages Great Upset In Trouncing Frogs

By GAYLE TALBOT JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Nov. 23.—The 1930 Southwest conference football crown belongs to the University of Texas Longhorns for the taking. All Coach Clyde Littlefield's big eleven needs do now is knock over the unhappy Texas Aggies in their Thanksgiving duel at Austin and the Steers will be in, with four conference victories and one defeat.

Baylor left it squarely up to the Longhorns by trouncing the defending champions, Texas Christian university, 35 to 14, yesterday at Fort Worth. Although they entered the fray on the short end of the odds, the Bears from Waco polished off the Frogs with even more ease than had Texas the preceding Saturday, rolling up five touchdowns before the Christians got started. Their performance was the most surprising seen on a conference field this season.

The Breaks Helped

Ability to take advantage of the breaks that came their way enabled the Bruins to run up the score, rather than any marked superiority over their opponents. In fact, the losing eleven compiled almost twice as many first downs, 17 to 9, but had no help from the football fates. Three Baylor touchdowns resulted from intercepted passes. Captain Bochey Koch running one of them 60 yards, and the other two were on long aerials. The Frogs counted their two touchdowns late in the final period with a passing attack. Jake Wilson was, as usual, the outstanding performer for Baylor and, for that matter, on the field. He played one of his greatest games.

Southern Methodist remained in the top flight of title contenders by walloping the Rice Owls, 32 to 0, at Houston. The Mustangs cut loose with a withering attack, both by air and land, and had the Owls hanging on the ropes almost from the start. Their long passes clicked for touchdowns, while Travis and Gilbert led a running offense that was never successfully stopped after the first period.

Not until the Methodists had scored their fifth and last touchdown early in the final quarter and had sent in a flock of reserves did the Rice offense manage a first down. Up to that time the Owls' longest gain had been for six yards.

Steers Favored Over Aggies

Having seen things go to their perfect satisfaction yesterday, the Texas Longhorns will be top-heavy favorites to subdue the Aggies and close the race four days hence. They might accidentally get licked, however, and therein lie some interesting possibilities. In that event the flag might go to Southern Methodist, Baylor or Texas Christian.

Southern Methodist, then, could finish on top by defeating Texas Christian in their final battle here Saturday, providing Baylor loses to Rice in their duel at Waco the same day. Baylor could defeat Rice for the title, provided Southern Methodist lost. Texas Christian's only chance lies in its ability to defeat Southern Methodist while both Baylor and Texas are losing their engagements. The best bet, however, is that the University of Texas will have an important addition to its trophy case very shortly.

The Arkansas Razorbacks, out of the championship chase for some time, will close in a non conference bout against Centenary Thursday at Shreveport.

The standing:

	Won	Lost	Tied	Pct
Texas	3	1	0	.750
Southern Methodist	2	1	1	.625
Baylor	2	1	1	.625
Texas Christian	3	2	0	.600

LELAND'S DASH KEEPS HIM AHEAD IN SCORING

DALLAS, Nov. 23. (AP)—A 40-yard touchdown gallop against Baylor enabled Cy Leland, Texas Christian university ace, to retain his lead in the Southwest conference scoring race with only one game remaining to be played. The Frog flash has never been headed this season. Big Al Lewter, Baylor fullback, was six points behind Cyrus. The leaders:

Two Games Separate Ramblers From Crown

NEW YORK, Nov. 23. (AP)—That mythical national football championship situation, more and more a nightmare for experts in recent years, had resolved itself today into a duel between Notre Dame, on the one hand, and the rest of the field on the other.

If Rockne's Rough Riders can hurdle their two remaining obstacles, Army and Southern California, there will be little or no dispute over the award of the mythical title, for no other college eleven in the country has played so representative and difficult a schedule. If either Army or Southern California can stop Rockne's men then the title will have to go a-begging with one expert's nomination as good as another.

Notre Dame has won most of its games this year by getting the jumps on the opposition, but it took a last period assault for the Rough Riders to knock over Northwestern Saturday, 14-0. The Wildcats, co-holders with Michigan of the Big Ten championship, entered the battle unbeaten and untied and were not minded to surrender meekly without a struggle.

For three periods—or a major part of them—Notre Dame was on the defensive, Northwestern losing two excellent chances to score through costly fumbles within the Hoosiers' 10-yard line. In the fourth period, Northwestern's defense crumbled.

Reports show that $793,000 have been spent on athletic units at Stanford university during the past six years.

Indians Battle Weatherford Thursday At Nocona for District 4 Honors

The runnersup in the north half race in district 4, class B, of the interscholastic league, can now start editing their scrap-books, pasting in the lineups and scores of eventful games which they won or lost—can start assembling memories of a bygone season. Graham can sleep peacefully, aware that its team did their utmost in losing to their arch rival last Friday. Bridgeport should feel quite cozy in third place, with four victories and two defeats. Bowie should be proud of being in fourth place, a notch higher than the Jacksboro eleven, which was rated high at the start of the season. Newcastle should be proud of being at least one step out of the cellar, with one victory and five defeats. Bellevue—well, better let Bellevue sleep peacefully and not worry over the problems of life too much. A season without a single victory is quite a blow!

Everybody, in fact, can loll back in the old easy chair and nurse memories, or alibis, until another football season rolls around. Everybody, that is, except the winner of the north half championship.

District Scrap Next

For Nocona there will be no rest this week. When they trampled over the Graham Steers last Friday, 20 to 0, in the season's biggest north half clash, they only piled a greater responsibility on themselves For Thanksgiving day will determine whether they will be district champions, or merely north half champions.

Turkey day, in fact, they tie up with Weatherford, winner on first downs over Masonic Home of Fort Worth in the battle for the championship of the southern extremity of the district. Weatherford and Masonic home, playing the same day that Nocona and Graham met at Graham, battled to a 6-all tie, and Weatherford by virtue of having one more first down than did the Masons, the count being 17 to 16. The 20-yard penetrations, in addition to the score, were tied. In Saturday morning's issue of The Record News the score of that game was carried as being nothing and nothing. This was an error traced to the news service which carried the report of the score.

Anyway, now we all know that Weatherford won. But few can forecast the winner in the Nocona-Weatherford game.

Game at Nocona

Nocona officials announced Sunday that the championship game between the Indians and Weatherford will be played at Nocona Thanksgiving day, starting at 3 p. m.

The Nocona-Graham game was the center of interest in the north half of the district Friday, but four other teams were heaving at the same time. Bowie bowled over Jacksboro, 13 to 7, and Newcastle won its first and only game of the season, defeating Bellevue in great style, 59 to 0. The last battles in the northern half left the final sectional standings as follows:

Clubs—	G.	W.	L.	Pct.
Nocona	6	6	0	1.000
Graham	6	5	1	.833
Bridgeport	6	4	2	.666
Bowie	6	3	3	.500

Lower Teams Scrap As South's Co-Leaders Rest

ATLANTA, Nov. 23. (AP)—While Alabama and Tulane, co-leaders in the Southern conference gridiron marathon, rested in preparation for Thanksgiving battles, Vanderbilt and South Carolina improved their standings and Wake Forest ended Duke's seven-game winning streak with a 13-13 tie.

Vanderbilt earned two touchdowns and scored two others after recovering Auburn's fumbles to win 27-0. Vanderbilt scored one in both the second and third periods and rushed over two touchdowns in the last quarter.

North Carolina State ended its season with a 19-0 lacing from South Carolina, while Sewanee also ropped its last encounter to Southwestern of Memphis 6-26.

Dixie's intersectional average took a drop as both Centre and Randolph Macon were defeated. Centre was no match for the Kansas Aggies and lost 27-0, while Drexel downed the Virginians 26-2.

A blocked punt with a resultant safety gave Mercer a 2-0 win over Oglethorpe.

Thanksgiving day will decide the Southern championship with Alabama meeting Georgia and Tulane facing Louisiana State. Both Alabama and Tulane are unbeaten with Alabama having seven conference victories against four for Tulane.

The University of Florida has one of the heaviest backfield in the country. Dorsett, quarter back and Bethea, halfback, and Jenkins fullback, average 190 pounds.

MEMPHIS CAGE SCHEDULE MADE

Round - Robin Series To Open Jan. 26

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, Texas, Nov. 23.—According to Coach Nolan Walter, the county basket ball championship of class A, which includes Memphis, Estelline and Turkey, will be determined by a round-robin tournament this season. None of the conference games will be played in Memphis for the reason that the local gymnasium is smaller than the requirement for conference games.

Following is the schedule for all conference games: Jan. 26, Memphis at Estelline; Jan. 28, Estelline at Turkey; Jan. 30, Memphis at Turkey; Feb. 2, Turkey at Estelline; Feb. 4, Memphis at Estelline, and Feb. 6, Memphis at Turkey.

As soon as the football season is over the Cyclone basketeers will start practice, according to Coach Nolan Walter. The team will be built around 10 letter men who will be in the lineup. They are Cecil Stargel, captain, Regnal Greenshaw, Carl McLear and O. B. Smith, forwards; J. D. Jackson and J. W. West, guards; and John Smith, center. Frank Jarvis, Barton Durrett and Weldon Dial are letter men from Lakeview.

The Cyclone basketeers have several games other than conference games scheduled. They are with Pampa on Jan. 14 and 15, a tournament in Amarillo on Jan. 16 and 17, and with Amarillo on Feb. 13 and 14.

KANSAS LEADS BIG SIX RACE

Sooners Can Tie for Title By Whipping Missouri

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 23. (AP)—The University of Kansas today holds temporary possession of first place in the Big Six football conference, with a tie for the title assured and a possible chance for undisputed sway over the circuit after the final games Thanksgiving.

Kansas ended its season with a smashing 32 to 0 victory over its ancient rival, Missouri, thus gaining four victories in five conference games, the only loss being to Nebraska.

Nebraska, however, has been tied by Missouri and defeated by Oklahoma and is out of the championship race. Oklahoma, by winning from Missouri Thursday could share the title with Kansas.

Whereas four teams had an opportunity to win or share the season spoils prior to yesterday, only two are in the running now. All of which happened because the Kansas powerhouse crushed Missouri into submission via both ground and air, in the best coordinated action the Jayhawkers have shown this season.

For the fourth time in 27 years, Oklahoma lost to Oklahoma A. & M., 0 to 7. Iowa State made a desperate bid for its first victory in 13 games, but failed by one point, Drake winning, 20 to 19.

The Kansas Aggies helped bolster some of the lagging Big Six prestige in intersectional combat when they swamped Centre college, 27 to 0, with shock troops playing part of the game.

Nebraska's early lead on Iowa in a resumption of gridiron relations after 11 years, faded as the Hawkeyes came right back to score two touchdowns for a 12 to 7 win.

Eozy Berger, halfback, and Jess Krajcovic, all-state guard, are products of Curley Byrd, Maryland coach. Neither had p'ayed football before entering the College Park institution.

Fairview Hoists Out of Cellar In District 3 by Defeating Megargel

Fairview's gallant little football team furnished the biggest upset in district 3, class B, last week, when determined to hang up at least one victory ere the season is packed in ice, it smeared a 12 to 7 score over the Megargel scoreboard and perched on top of the bigger number.

Nothing more unexpected could have happened. It was figured that if Fairview won at all it would be at the expense of Henrietta, and even then it was doubtful if they could register a victory. Henrietta's scheduled game with Fairview has been indefinitely postponed, and probably won't be played until after Thanksgiving. But Fairview apparently didn't care. It decided to win anyway. And win it did.

No Longer in Cellar

Every other team in the district, with the exception of Henrietta, has whitewashed, bruised, crushed and trampled the lowly Fairview team, the latest addition to the circuit. Megargel, a strong outfit, was expected to do the same thing. But Fairview rose from the cellar, brushed the cobwebs from its eyes and sped on to a victory, of which they might justly be proud.

That game was about the only thriller in the district warfare. Chillicothe's powerful Eagles romped over Archer City, 28 to 0, at the home of the Wildcats, and Seymour made exactly the same score over Burkburnett on the Panthers' gridiron. Henrietta and St. Jo tied up, 6 and 6, in a practice game.

Now the field is clear for the last important game of the season in this circuit, Olney's battle with Seymour. Already regarded as certain winners of the district bunting by virtue of Gilmoring, that is mauling every team in the circuit, the Cubs of Albert Acker have this pack of Panthers yet in their path to a certain championship. The battle will be waged at Seymour Thanksgiving day, and a record crowd from towns in this section is expected to be on hand.

If Olney wins, the Cubs will meet the winner of the Nocona-Weatherford game in the bi-district championship. Nocona won the championship of the north half of district 4 last Friday by defeating Graham, 20 to 0. On the same day, Weatherford won a decision on first downs from Masonic Home of Fort Worth, after the game had ended in a 6-all tie. The two were scrapping for the championship of the southern half of the district.

But if the Seymour Panthers spring a surprise and win—it would be a surprise—then things would be in an awful shape. It would mean than Olney and Chillicothe would be in a tie for the district 3 championship, and would have to enter a play-off for the title. Chillicothe has whipped everything in sight, except Olney. Olney has lost none. If Olney loses to Seymour, the deadlock will result.

Officials at Henrietta announced their team will play Bellevue, of the north half of district 4, in a practice game Wednesday.

The standings:

Teams—	G.	W.	L.	T.	Pct.	Pts.	Agst.
Olney	6	6	0	0	1.000	280	18

2 CONTENDERS LEFT IN EAST

NEW YORK, Nov. 23. (AP)—On two leaders who did not take part in the traditional big games of the Saturday before Thanksgiving are pinned the few remaining hopes of the East for a team that can get through the season unbeaten and win the mythical sectional championship without dispute.

Yale's 13 to 0 defeat by Harvard yesterday in the leader of the day's big games, left Army and Dartmouth the only major college teams of the East which have not met defeat. The Cadets, using their second and third teams yesterday, beat Ursinus, 18 to 0, in a "breather" game before next Saturday's clash with Notre Dame, while Dartmouth was westward bound to meet Stanford.

MARTIN CITES RICHES' PERIL

Bible Lecturer Tells Of Wealth Temptations

Judge P. A. Martin, addressing the men's Bible class of the Floral Heights Methodist church Sunday, said in part:

"The lesson of today is one full of pathos and rich with human nature. It touches the very heartstrings and awakens a responsive chord in every numan soul. One of the sacred writers tells us that this young man was a rich young ruler among the people. Undoubtedly he was a person of distinction, not only on account of his wealth, but also on account of the pure and spotless life he led. The record is that Jesus, 'beholding him, loved him' and sought to make him one of the sacred company. With an all-seeing eye and the penetrating wisdom of a God, He saw that the one thing that stood in the young man's way was his wealth: that he was tied to his money and property and that it was necessary in his particular case to separate him from his wealth in order to save his soul and use him as a disciple, so He applied to him the acid test.

"'Sell all thou hast and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven: and come, take up the cross, and follow Me.'

Found Wanting

"And the young man went away sorrowing, for he had great riches. He could not stand the test. He was weighed in the balance and found wanting. Down and out he went and he is nameless to this day, despite his great wealth and his clean, spotless life. He did not know and neither do we know what he lost and what the world lost by his decision. He might have been the author of a fifth gospel and had his name emblazoned on the pages of history along with those of Peter and Paul, Thomas and John and mighty cathedrals might have been named for him all over the world—but he deliberately, yet sorrowfully, turned down the gracious invitation and chose to cling to the riches of this world, rather than to inherit the riches of the heavenly kingdom offered him. We cannot fail to recognize the touch of pathos in the incident and to feel that we all wish he had chosen to accept the invitation. He was 'so near and yet so far' from the kingdom of God.

"And then the Master turned to His disciples and exclaimed, 'How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God' and 'It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of God.'

"Of course this saying was what we call hyperbole, meaning only that riches are essentially dangerous and that it is far more difficult for the rich man to be a righteous man than it is for those not so rich. The love of money is the root of all evil, as it is expressed elsewhere. We find these hyperbolic expressions in many places in the Bible and in many of the great lessons taught by Jesus in His earthly ministry; and thousands of good men and women in all ages of the world have given them a literal interpretation and have buried themselves in monastic seclusion and refused to own either money or property. He said 'If thine eye offend thee, pluck it out' and men have blinded themselves to escape a sin that enters the mind by sight. He said 'If thy hand offend thee, cut it off' and men have maimed themselves in order to escape some sin. He fully answered the wondering apostles who asked 'who then can be saved' when He said 'with men it is impossible, but not with God; for with God all things are possible.'

Parable Cited

"The parable of Dives and Lazarus is given as an example of a man trusting in riches. Dives was not damned to eternal misery because he was a rich man and fared sumptuously every day. No indeed. He was condemned because he was so blinded by the glamor of his own easy life that he failed to recognize his responsibility to the poor man, Lazarus, who lay at his doorstep and licked up the crumbs that fell from the rich man's table and were swept out by his servants. Even the dogs showed the poor beggar more mercy than Dives did, for they came and licked his sores.

"There is a reason why the possession of great wealth is so dangerous to spiritual life. Wealth is powerful. It commands men and things. It buys all the luxuries, as well as the necessities of life. It receives the homage of the thoughtless and leads an army of sycophants and flattering friends. It furnishes the means to gratify all the appetites and passions that man is heir to. It dazzles and confuses the moral sensibilities and leads men to destruction more quickly and more thoroughly than anything I know of. Even to the so-called moralist, wealth is a great danger, for it leads him to depend upon himself and his money more and more and upon his God less and less, the more he accumulates.

Many Good Rich Men

"But all rich men are not like this rich young ruler of the Jews. There are thousands of rich men who by the grace of God and not by riches, have safely anchored their souls in the kingdom of God. They have consecrated themselves and their wealth to the betterment of the world, holding their stocks and bonds, their lands and their houses, as faithful stewards of the King. We delight to honor such men wherever we find them for we know the temptations they have passed through and the battles they have fought against the powers of darkness. And I am glad to believe that such men are on the increase in this world. We find them leading the fight for shorter hours of labor; for old age pensions for their servants; for better housing conditions; for schools and colleges and churches; for happy homes for the people, and for peace and prosperity as well as for law and order all over the world. And all these things are sought, not for their own selfish aggrandisement but for the glory of God and for the benefit of mankind. May their tribe increase, and may their riches increase so long as they find their true happiness in making the world a better place in which to live.

"I could mention many shining examples of the class of men I am talking about, both living and dead. But I shall content myself with but one—one whom we all knew and all loved. As I sat in an immense auditorium, just a few days ago, and saw a mountain of flowers piled high around a casket that contained the remains of our own best loved citizen and as I saw men and women from all the walks of life passing by the casket and gazing with tear-dimmed eyes for the last time upon his form and as I glanced over the vast audience and saw both white and black, both native and foreign-born, rich and poor, gathered by thousands for the one purpose of paying respect to his memory, I thought of this lesson of today and said in my heart 'truly here is one of the sort of men whom the Savior had in mind when He said the salvation of man was in the hands of God, for this man was a rich man, as riches are measured with us, yet he never allowed his wealth to endanger his soul or lessen his love for his fellow man and no man could live the life this man lived and do what he has done and gain the love that he has gained unless God were with him.'

"One more thought before I close. The rich young ruler was an unhappy man with all his riches and all his morality. He realized that there was a higher and better life. Happiness is not to be found in riches and neither is it to be found in mere obedience to the moral codes. He came running to the Master. He knelt at His feet and prayed to know the better way. He came sorrowing. He left sorrowing. He dropped out of the sacred picture. He had his opportunity. He lost it. He chose deliberately to worship at the feet of Mammon, the God he had set up in his own bosom.

"Is there in our own hearts, in our business, in our households or back in the secret recesses of our minds, some little deity that we are worshipping? Is our allegiance divided? This is the challenge we face and must answer.

"'And He said to them all, if any man will come after Me let him take up his cross daily and follow Me'."

Today

At the Theaters

By ELEANOR FLEMING

STRAND: "The Big Trail" with John Wayne and Marguerite Churchill. Silly symphony and sound news.

MAJESTIC: Warner Baxter in "Renegades." Knute Rockne football subject, comedy and sound news.

STATE: "Dixiana" with Bebe Daniels. Short subjects and news.

GEM: William Haines in "Way Out West." Comedy.

Wagon-born infants were shown in one descriptive scene in "The Big Trail," followed by further domestic scenes of young kittens, puppies and finally a litter of pigs. The little newsboy had blinked nonchalantly through the scenes of babies, kittens and dogs, but sat up excitedly as the pigs appeared. "Boy, howdy, I'd keep them!" he almost shouted.

Those who have been inspired by the hardship scenes in "The Big Trail" to be more thankful for their own comforts will be given opportunity to express their thankfulness in a material fashion on Thursday morning at the Majestic theater, when a "food matinee" will be given.

On that morning, the admission charge will be a can of corn, a can of beans or tomatoes, a sack of flour or some such bit of staple groceries. The box office will not even be opened. All the food will be turned over to Mrs. Effie McHam, family relief secretary, and in turn distributed to needy citizens for their Thanksgiving dinners.

No doughnuts, candy or perishable delicacies are wanted, it is announced by Victor B. Lowrey, Majestic manager, who is sponsoring the matinee. Those to whom the food is to be given need potatoes and beans and are actually facing starvation.

Strangely enough, the theme of the picture to be shown is that of starvation. "The Silent Enemy," shown recently at the State, is being brought back for the occasion, since numbers of Wichitans missed its first showing.

"The Silent Enemy" is like "The Big Trail" in its gorgeous photography and beautiful animal shots, but is entirely different in its theme. It was actually taken in the haunts of the Ojibway Indians and occupied two years for its completion.

STEEL PIPE IN HEAVY DEMAND

Oil and Gas Lines Consume Big Output

CLEVELAND, Nov. 23. (AP)—Development of electrically welded pipe for distribution of oil, natural gas and gasoline has increased the demand for steel pipe to such an extent that potential requirements for the next three to five years is from 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 tons, the Arthur G. McKee company, Cleveland engineers, estimate.

The growth of probable demand to such vast proportions is ascribed to the greater distances to which pipe lines now may be stretched by use of electrically welded and seamless pipe which is built to withstand high pressures. The new type of pipe largely has replaced screwed lap weld pipe, the company observes.

Whereas the present potential electric welded pipe production per year is only 2,200,000 tons, the survey just completed by the McKee concern indicates a probably demand of between 3,000,000 and 5,000,000 tons. The remainder of the country's potential pipe making capacity, fixed at nearly 8,000,000 tons, is divided as follows:

Lap weld 2,900,000 tons; butt weld 932,000 tons; seamless 1,735,000 tons. From its commercial inception three years ago, electrically welded pipe has jumped from last to second place while lap weld has not increased in production, it was added.

Advantages of electrical welded pipe, which are held responsible by the survey report for increasing potential demand, are greater strength for like weight, absence of weld weakness, longer lengths and consequent cheaper laying costs.

The report gives a census of long natural gas, crude oil and gasoline pipe line projects under construction or contemplated. It includes natural gas lines 24-inch pipe, 1,000 miles from Texas Panhandle to Chicago; 24-inch, 1,250 miles from Texas to Indianapolis; 20-inch, 850 miles from Texas to Omaha, and Minneapolis; 24-inch, 700 miles from Texas to Des Moines.

Gasoline line: Six and eight inches, 1,115 miles from Okmulgee, Okla., to Kansas City and Chicago.

Crude oil lines: Ten inches, 1,500 miles from Cushing, Okla., to Cincinnati and Pittsburgh; eight inches, 800 miles from Borger, Texas, to Kansas City and St. Louis. One of unrevealed dimensions from Cushing, Okla., to the Standard Oil company of New Jersey.

Bustling 'Broadcast Studio' Is Bait For Merchants Who Would Advertise

NEW YORK, Nov. 23. (US)—A broadcasting microphone that led nowhere, a well-furnished office with 10 busy stenographers, and two suave young salesmen—these, detectives said today were the props for one of the "prettiest rackets" yet uncovered.

The artful simplicity of this racket was described in Tombs court where Frank Gans, 20, was held in $2,500 bail as a fugitive from justice from Chicago where, it was said, he took in $60,000 before moving on to New York.

It was disclosed that Gans and Joseph J. Borris already are under $1,500 bail each on charges of running the racket here. It is said to have netted them $22,000 for three weeks work.

Magistrate Simpson was told that Gans and Borris set up the "Harlem Broadcasting company," in offices they rented here. The front room, the court was told, was filled with stenographers. The rear room was a broadcasting studio, containing a microphone that was "dead"—it was unconnected.

Borris and Gans, according to the charges, then made the rounds of the Harlem merchants explaining that a new broadcasting station had been set up and selling advertising privileges at the rate of $500 for 15 minutes. Sometimes, it was said, Gans posed as a well-known announcer.

The victims were led to the studio where the 15-minute "program" that got no farther than the sound proof walls, was put on. Surprisingly enough, Assistant District Attorney McAuliffe said, the racket worked like a charm until one of the victims, or his friends, tried to tune in on a program and got nothing except a vast silence.

Work Delayed On Memphis Water Line

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, Texas, Nov. 23.—Work on the laying of a six-inch water main in the east part of Memphis, at a cost of $14,000, has been halted on account of a delay in the shipment of a pump that is to be used to keep the ditches clear when the pipes are being tested. On the arrival of the pump the work will be resumed. The company has been using a crew of some 25 men, most of whom are home people, which is aiding the unemployment situation in Memphis materially.

The work on this project will be pushed, and it is the intention of the contractor to finish by the first of the year. With the completion of this project, the people on this side of Memphis will have an adequate fire protection, which has not been the case heretofore. This will also lower the key rate on fire insurance in that section of town.

The other five cases, according to the county clerk, have been postponed until the next term of court which convenes in the latter part of January, 1931.
