Contra funas pledged...

McFarland recounts giving note to Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former National Security Adviser Robert C. McFarlane testified today that he handed President Reagan a note on an index card after a foreign ambassador promised to donate $1 million a month to the Nicaraguan Contras at a time when U.S. military aid was banned.

McFarlane told Congress' Iran-Contra hearings that a short while later, "I was called to come back and pick up the note card, which ... expressed the president's satisfaction and pleasure that this had occurred." McFarlane added that he also described the pledge to Vice President George Bush, Secretary of State George Shultz and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger

In a 12-page opening statement, McFarlane had told the nationally televised hearing that Reagan ordered him to help the Contra rebels "hold body and soul together" even though Congress had banned all U.S. military aid.

Testifying under oath as the joint House-Senate hearings entered their second week, McFarlane said, "The president repeatedly made clear in public and in private that he did not intend to break faith with the Contras."

"He directed that we make continued efforts to bring the movement into the good graces of Congress and the American people and that we assure the Contras of continuing administration support — to help them hold body and soul together — until the time when Congress would again agree to support them."

McFarlane testified that he met several times privately with the unnamed ambassador who ultimately made the $1 million-a-month pledge "ostensibly from private funds." There have been widespread reports that the country was Saudi Arabia, and the official was Prince Bandar bin Sultan. The Saudis have denied giving funds to the Contras.

For his own part, McFarlane said that, based on Reagan's instructions, he stressed to his own aides "that we were to operate at all times within the law, and that in particular we were not to solicit, encourage, coerce or otherwise broker financial contributions to the Contras."

McFarlane encountered polite but persistent questioning.

Services tomorrow...

Snyder woman, former resident killed in wreck

A Snyder woman and her traveling companion, also a former city resident, were killed in a one-vehicle accident about 5:40 a.m. Sunday which occurred on U.S. 380 about five miles west of Tatum, N.M.

Pronounced dead at the scene were Paula Gilley, 27, of Snyder and Debbie Richardson, 28, of Odessa, the former owner of Kid's Duds here.

Services for the Snyder woman, the former Paula Grimmett and the daughter of Jacky Grimmett and Nancy Smith, will be at 10 a.m. Tuesday at First Baptist Church auditorium, the Rev. Ken Branam officiating.

Burial under the direction of Bell-Cypert-Seale Funeral Home will be at Hillside Memorial Garden.

She was a lifetime Snyder resident, born here on Nov. 16, 1959. She was employed as a beautician.

Survivors include her parents; one daughter, Jennifer Lee of Snyder; two brothers, Allen and Steve Grimmett, both of Snyder; her maternal grandmother, Oma Dorman of Snyder; and her paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Grimmett of Snyder.

Services for the Richardson woman were scheduled for 4 p.m. Tuesday at First Baptist Church in O'Brien. She will be buried in O'Brien Cemetery.

Survivors include her husband, Flint; a daughter, Cristi; one son, Eric; four sisters and three brothers.

The women were among seven people who died in accidents on New Mexico roads this past weekend.

Police said the two were traveling east in a 1983 Cadillac which ran off the road, hit an embankment and overturned several times. Both women were thrown from the vehicle, which rolled over the Richardson woman, police said.

According to reports, the car burst into flames after coming to rest more than 700 ft. from where it first left the road. Neither occupant were wearing a seat belt, officers said.

Drowning occurs at stock tank

The body of a Fluvanna resident was recovered from a Borden County stock tank early Monday morning, an apparent drowning victim.

Funeral services were pending Monday morning at Hudman Funeral Home in Post for 21-year-old Dean Martin Coffee, who was living in Fluvanna with his in-laws.

Authorities say Coffee drowned while fishing at a stock tank on the Old Scott Place in Borden County — 4 ½ miles north of U.S. Highway 180 on Farm Road 612 — Sunday evening.

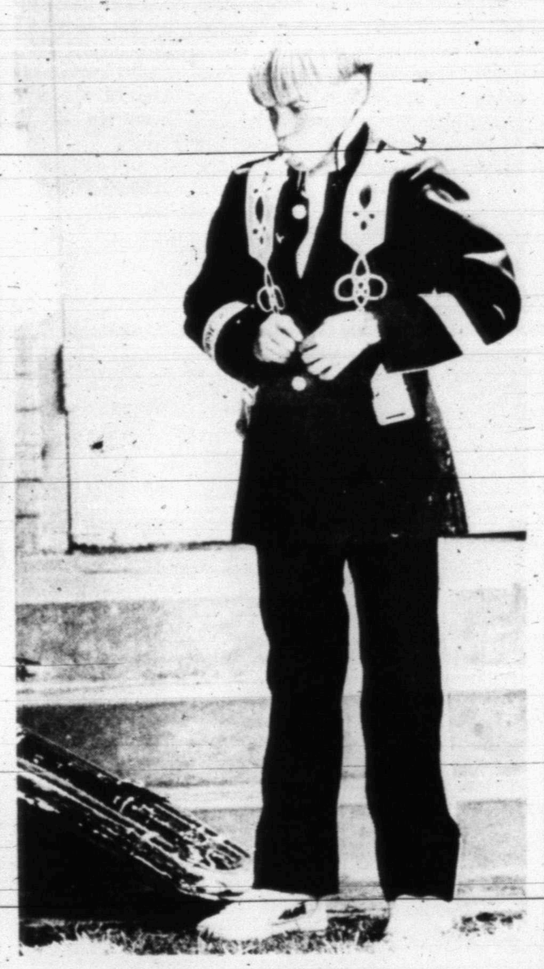

According to Justice of the Peace Carolyn Stone, he was fishing with his wife and waded into the water to retrieve a duck.

Stone said he apparently got out into water over his head and could not swim to shore.

A team of three scuba divers from Snyder — Barry Womack, Troy Hall and Billy Brooks — recovered Coffee's body from the bottom of the tank around 3 a.m.

2 from Hermleigh given cast honors

Two members of the Hermleigh one-act play "The Small World of Millie McIvor" were honored with all star cast status at the weekend state competition in Austin for UIL competitors.

Crystal Church was chosen for the all star cast and Barbara Brown received an honorable mention for all star cast.

Hermleigh's play was one of eight advancing to the state contest, but was not one of the top three chosen by judges. It was the third of the eight performed Saturday evening and night on the University of Texas campus.

It marked Hermleigh's first appearance at state in the one-act play. It was directed by John Stevens, assisted by Elaine Whitfill.

In addition, three other Hermleigh students qualified for state in other literary events, but none advanced as finalists in the state meet.

Those qualifying for state included Crystal Church, prose interpretation; Daniel Ramey, headline writing; and Ben Smith, who was an alternate in ready writing.

One SHSer makes finals

Only one Snyder High School student of six qualifying for state competition was placed among the top six finalists in Austin during the weekend.

Robert Neblett received fifth in ready writing.

Others who qualified for the state meet included Kirsten Miller in poetry interpretation; Robyn Fambro in prose interpretation; Elaine Smylie, heading writing; Jeff Franklin, an alternate in poetry interpretation; and Kyle Nazworth, an alternate in headline writing.

Panel chooses

AUSTIN (AP) — An advisory council has pared down the list of sites state officials will choose from in submitting a bid for the lucrative "supercollider" federal project.

The Texas National Research Laboratory Commission's advisory council selected the sites over the weekend, choosing a from a list submitted by 14 regions around the state.

The commission is expected to recommend three sites today in Austin.

Late Sunday, members of the advisory council would not identify the recommended sites.

Suggested sites include locations near the Dallas-Fort Worth area, the Houston area and sites near Amarillo, El Paso and the Midland-Odessa area.

Shortwave operators help out

WIMBERLEY, Texas (AP) — As he has on Mother's Day for the past seven years, shortwave radio operator C.L. "Pinky" Roberts volunteered his time to put through greetings from overseas to moms across the United States.

Roberts, 64, spent Sunday at his shortwave radio off the living room of his log cabin under huge oak and elm trees near the Blanco River about 35 miles southwest of Austin.

By mid-afternoon, he had handled 22 messages to mothers across the nation from their offspring working at various far-flung jobs in Central and South America or at sea.

"It's fascinating," he said. "And people treat you nice when you help them out."

Eighteen of the calls were from one spot: the Tampa, a U.S. Coast Guard cutter on drug patrol in the Caribbean.

Being military in origin, the cutter's calls qualified for a toll-free service offered through a few American hams, such as Roberts, by the U.S. Sprint long-distance phone company.

One of the Tampa's calls was for an Austin woman. Unfortunately, she wasn't home.

"All I got was her first name, Christa," Roberts told the Austin American-Statesman. "The boy on the cutter was named Ron. His mother was at church when he called. But he talked to his father."

Roberts has worked with so many ships at sea that some have sent him souvenirs in appreciation for his time. A Coast Guard cutter cruising the frigid waters of Antarctica, for which Roberts patched through 200 home calls in mid-February, sent him a small plaque to hang on the wall.

"I'm just a switch operator," he said with a grin, referring to the small switch between his radio and telephone that he throws when one party or the other in the conversation says "over."

Ex-Nazi Barbie on trial

LYON, France (AP) — Klaus Barbie, the Nazi Gestapo officer known as the "Butcher of Lyons," goes on trial today on charges of crimes against humanity, after being convicted twice in absentia during his four decades on the run.

Barbie, now a frail, gray-haired 73-year-old, may be the last of Adolf Hitler's officers brought before a criminal court.

He was stationed in Lyon from 1942 to 1944 as an SS lieutenant and head of the police section in charge of deporting Jews to German concentration camps and wiping out the French Resistance during World War II.

The schedule for the opening day of trial included the selection of a nine-member jury that will hear the case along with the president of the Lyon Assize Court and two associate judges.

The court also was scheduled to call the roll of witnesses and civil parties to the case, then read the charges against the defendant.

Barbie claims he is innocent. According to his defense attorney, Jacques Verges, Barbie says he bore no responsibility for rounding up Jews or sending them to death camps. His principal function, he says, was to destroy the Resistance, which struggled against German occupation for four years.

About 800 journalists from more than 25 countries were accredited to cover the trial in the 19th century neo-classical courthouse in Lyon, a southeastern city known as the capital of the French Resistance.

In 1952 and 1954, French courts convicted Barbie in absentia of war crimes and sentenced him to death.

Mom Says Condom Giveaway Promotes Sex, Not Protection

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1987 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Will you please use the power of your column to stop people from giving condoms to young people on campuses, at youth groups, and wherever young people gather?

I am appealing to you as a parent who has tried to raise her children with high Christian morals — to say no to sex — and now we have these liberal do-gooders handing out condoms to "protect" our children against pregnancy, VD and AIDS.

Society might just as well say, "Go out and have a good time, and take these with you for protection!" Giving kids condoms is giving them permission to have sex.

Please push for higher moral standards — not ways to break the laws of decency without having to pay the price.

INDIANA MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I wish it were that easy. For decades parents have tried to teach their children that sex outside of marriage is immoral, forbidden, dangerous and ill-advised. It has worked with some — but for most, it has not. The sex drive is powerful, and today the price for having sex just one time with the "wrong" partner is death! So ask yourself this question: "Would I rather have my child prepared for a safe sexual encounter, or be unprepared and die?" The choice is yours.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I recently attended a choral concert with my boyfriend. During the first number, a woman seated behind me sang loudly and hummed along. At first, I just gave her a stern look, hoping she would stop, but when she didn't, I "shushed" her. She kept right on singing, then at the end of the piece, her husband leaned forward and said, "Madam, because of your rudeness, you not only ruined the piece for my wife, but for me as well!"

Abby, was I wrong to ask her to stop singing along? In my mind, if his wife can't tell the difference between a concert and a sing-along, she should stay home. After all, I paid to hear the choir, not her. What's your opinion?

MUSIC FAN

DEAR MUSIC FAN: You were within your rights if you "shushed" the sing-alonger in a courteous manner. And her husband, although loyal, was out of line for chastising you for your so-called rudeness.

In the future, to avoid a possible confrontation, take your complaint to the official "shusher." The usher.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Another view about not receiving thank-you notes for gifts of checks: Our family has always felt that a gift of cash is no gift at all. We would prefer to receive a card by itself if it contains a heartfelt sentiment. Obviously the giver of cash does not feel the need to take the time to select an appropriate gift, so why give a "gift" at all?

How much time does it take to select a pretty necklace or hair combs for a teen-age girl? It's easy to ask a salesperson for help to see what's in style.

Can't get out to shop? Why not send a subscription to a magazine? Or order from a mail-order catalog? We feel that cash is a poor substitute for caring. No cash, please. Draw me a picture or write me a poem.

SCHARRE JOHNSON, REPRESA, CALIF.

DEAR SCHARRE: I see no correlation between cash and caring. Some people are not as gifted as others in selecting appropriate gifts and, realizing their limitations, prefer to allow the recipient to do the choosing. One thing about a gift of money: The size is always right — and so is the color.

Sleeve may help after surgery

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I developed lymph edema following a modified radical mastectomy and have been using a Jobst gradient-pressure sleeve. Can you explain how this sleeve works — or, in my case, why it doesn't work? How else can I correct this problem?

DEAR READER — One consequence of radical breast surgery is lymph edema of the arm. This fluid accumulation is caused by the removal of lymph glands and channels — a necessary part of such surgery.

In addition to the circulation of blood through our arteries and veins, we have a second circulatory system, which contains lymph. This liquid is the clear fluid portion of blood; part of it travels through myriad thin-walled vessels, through lymph node filters and back to the heart, where it is recombined with blood — and the process starts all over again.

Lymph leaks out of lymph vessels in the skin and appears as the watery liquid in blisters. Lymph often leaks from the blood vessels themselves, as in congestive heart failure; when it cannot find ready access back into the circulation, it builds up in tissues, causing swelling and discomfort. This is what happens after radical breast surgery, during which many of the lymph channels — as well as the lymph nodes — are removed. In short, the lymph fluid in the tissues of your arm no longer can find a way to rejoin your bloodstream.

The Jobst sleeve is a pneumatic device that applies pressure to the arm, forcing tissue lymph out of the extremity. It often is a useful way to overcome lymph edema. However, it doesn't work for every patient. Since this problem is so difficult to solve, ask your surgeon for specific advice about other methods (such as diuretic therapy, to reduce excess fluid) that may be appropriate for you.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I went to an internist because I had two red ulcers on my leg. The first thing he did was to tell me I was overweight. I already knew that.

Then he asked me if I had ever heard of a certain brand-name diet plan that requires special supplements. I said yes (although I didn't tell him I'd heard that this plan was expensive and dangerous). This whole time, I was stretched out on the table — and his next statement almost caused me to jump off, because he said his wife sold this diet plan.

The doctor took my name, his wife called that evening and I told her, "No, thanks."

I'd like your opinion of the ethics of this encounter.

DEAR READER — I don't know whether your doctor's behavior was unethical. However, it certainly was unusual. This is the first time I've heard of such an enterprise — and with a natural source of referrals, too! If the physician is this eager to endorse his wife's entrepreneurship, you'd be better off finding a doctor who can simply put you on a diet, refer you to a reputable dietician or put you in touch with an organization like Weight Watchers — in short, a physician who can be more objective about your needs as a patient. I don't begrudge a doctor's spouse having his or her own career, but your doctor's orientation seems somewhat self-serving.

To give you some weight-loss tips, I'm sending you a free copy of my Health Report, WEIGHT CONTROL THROUGH CALORIE CONTROL. Other readers who want a copy should send $1 and your name and address to P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to ask for WINNING THE BATTLE OF THE BULGE.

Your Birthday

Tuesday, May 12, 1987

Two projects in which you'll be involved in the year ahead could turn out to be financially rewarding if they are managed properly. One is with a person who has been lucky for you previously.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Just because a financial arrangement didn't work out well before, don't toss in the towel. You could be more fortunate today, so give it another go. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker set instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Commercial or social dealings with friends today should work out rather well. Look out for their interests and they'll look out for yours.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Something a trifle mysterious and strange is stirring behind the scenes today. It could be an advantage to you when it is brought into the open.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Try to coordinate your efforts today with the two people most able to assist you in realizing your present hopes. Collectively, this is a winning combination.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It's to your advantage today to keep to yourself anything told to you by a business confidant who insists on secrecy. Loose lips weaken tips.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Associates can be relied on to do as you direct today, provided you build a little fire under them first. A brisk pep talk will help.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) This is a good time to call your efforts to the attention of your superiors if you have been producing beyond their demands and expectations.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) An agreement that you negotiate today should prove to be of equal benefit to both parties, especially if a member of the opposite sex is involved.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't be reluctant today to mark up the price a bit for your skills and services. The buyer will still be getting a bargain.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Much can be accomplished today if you arrange your tasks in their proper order of importance. Be methodical and attack one problem at a time.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) People who like you will be willing to share things of value with you today. Just be sure you are properly grateful for what they offer.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You could be a bit luckier than usual today in situations that have elements of chance as an ingredient. Be bold, but not foolhardy.

Heart transplant recipient dies

MARSEILLE, France (AP) — Emmanuel Vitria, who was the world's longest surviving heart transplant recipient, died early Monday after living for 18 years with the heart of a young sailor, hospital officials said. He was 67.

Vitria died at 5 a.m. at Salvator Hospital of respiratory problems brought on by a heart problem, said his doctor, Jean-Raoul Monties.

"We have lost a friend and friends are rare," Monties said in a telephone interview.

Monties was part of the team that performed the heart transplant on Nov. 27, 1968, giving Vitria the heart of a 20-year-old sailor killed in an accident.

Dr. Edmond Henri, who headed the transplant team, since has died of a heart attack.

Over the past 13 years, nearly 70 people have been killed on California's Imperial Sand Dunes, most in accidents involving recreational vehicles, says National Geographic.

The nucleus of Halley's Comet is the size of Manhattan.

Boy kills father, wounds mother

HOUSTON (AP) — A quiet Mother's Day at a northeast Houston apartment complex exploded in tragedy when a 10-year-old boy shot his father to death and seriously wounded his mother after they refused to let him go outside to play.

Sgt. Jim Boy said Edward Simon Sr., 45, was pronounced dead at 1:25 p.m. Sunday at the family's apartment. He was shot just above the left eye, with the bullet exiting at the top.

His wife, Mary Simon, 47, was taken to Ben Taub Hospital where she was listed in stable condition early today with two gunshot wounds to the chest and a wound in each leg, police said.

The couple's other children, a boy, 13, and a girl, 7, were in another room when the shots rang out and were uninjured.

Police said the 10-year-old first fled to the home of a close friend and told him what he had done. They said when he left, the friend followed him out of concern, while the friend's mother called police.

Police took the boy into custody about 2:15 p.m. on a street about a mile from his home.

Authorities said the boy is probably the youngest homicide suspect in recent history here.

Authorities have determined the boy asked if he could go outside to a nearby park to play, but his parents refused shortly after 1 p.m.

"He was outside and his dad told him to come in. He came stomping in. He was mad," homicide Sgt. June Cain-Crocker said.

After arguing with his parents, police said, the boy found his father's handgun in the apartment, shot his parents, and ran from the building.

Gus Espree, 16, said he and another friend were tossing a football around in the middle of the parking lot near the Simon apartment when he heard two loud gunshots and saw the boy run outside and head toward a wooded area.

"After that, the woman came out hollering and said, 'Me and my husband just got shot. My son shot us. Please call an ambulance,'" he said.

Cain-Crocker said police recovered a .38-caliber revolver, and all six rounds had been fired.

The shooting disrupted a relatively quiet Mother's Day afternoon at the apartment complex, where many residents were entertaining guests.

Charlotte Ross, 23, who lives next door to the Simons, said she was startled by two loud noises that came from next door.

Son keeping tabs on parolee father

HOUSTON (AP) — A man who as a child was chemically castrated by his father is keeping tabs on him and has provided information to the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles.

Kerry Crocker, 57, was released from prison in October under mandatory supervision after serving one-third of a 15-year prison term for a 1975 conviction of injuring his son, Kirk, with radioactive cesium pellets.

Since the elder Crocker's release, his son has alleged to the board that:

— A new car under Kerry Crocker's name was purchased with cash in Oklahoma, six weeks after his release from prison. The elder Crocker has told parole officials his total income the past six months has been $300.

— His father traveled to Oklahoma several times, despite a prohibition of his parole. Kerry Crocker is forbidden from traveling to Oklahoma because radioactive cesium, which he is prohibited from handling, is more available there. Last week, the board limited his travels to within Tarrant County.

— Kerry Crocker has failed to pay a $10 monthly supervision fee and has failed to pay a $5,000 fine imposed after his conviction. When told of his son's prodding, he promptly paid the accumulated $60, officials said.

Mike Roach, a spokesman for the parole board, said Kerry Crocker was mistakenly given travel permits five or six times for two- or three-day stays in Oklahoma. He said the supervisor was unaware of the prohibition.

A report is being compiled to determine if Crocker has violated his mandatory supervision, which expires December 1989. The supervisor is attempting to learn, for example, if Crocker has a job and, if so, what type of job and the salary he is paid, he said.

"I'm doing everything I can do to see that the board has all the facts and information," Kirk Crocker said. "If that shows that Kerry Crocker can get a job and integrate into society, then we all benefit. On the other hand, if he can't integrate, then somebody else is going to get hurt."

There is no telephone listing for Kerry Crocker in Fort Worth and he could not be reached for comment Sunday.

His brother, Ben Crocker of Houston, said Crocker is innocent of the abuse charges. He said his brother has never tried to contact his son even while a fugitive from 1978 to 1981.

Kerry Crocker was sentenced to the then-maximum 10-year prison term for putting radioactive pellets inside a sock and under his 11-year-old son's thighs at night. The current maximum term for aggravated assault of a child is 99 years.

When he lost an appeal in 1978, he jumped bail and wasn't arrested until 1981. He received a consecutive sentence of five years for jumping bail.

Proper trump play yields overtrick

By James Jacoby

The old saw about beggars walking the streets of London because they didn't pull trump is exaggerated, since postponing drawing trump is often the correct play. Using the trump suit to throw a defender on lead as part of an elimination and end play is an unusual ramification of the postponement.

Against two spades, the defenders cashed the A-K of diamonds. East then played the heart jack (an error — with four hearts to the J-10 and four small in dummy, he should lead small). Declarer played the ace, noting the fall of West's nine. Certainly South's contract is safe, unless he loses two trump tricks, but there is a safety play in case one opponent holds all the trumps (lay down the king first). But if declarer can combine playing safe with the best chance for making an overtrick, that is good bridge. Accordingly, declarer did lay down the spade king. When everyone followed, he then switched to the club king. West made the natural play of taking the club ace and leading back the heart queen, won by South's king. A second spade was now played to the ace, leaving West with the good queen. Declarer played dummy's remaining high clubs and then put West on lead with his spade queen. The hapless defender now had to play either a club or a diamond, allowing declarer to trump in dummy while sluffing his losing heart.

If an overtrick in a part-score contract is too dull for you, use your imagination. Let South be declarer in three spades doubled and redoubled. Now, that's work making.

Court officials close city's day care center

HOUSTON (AP) — A Harris County family court official, who faces a $2 million judgment involving a sexual abuse case at a day-care center he owns, says he has closed the center, The Houston Post reported in a copyright story.

Douglass F. Norman, 43, a full-time special master to State District Judge Robert S. Webb III, was ordered to pay the default judgment in a lawsuit filed last year on behalf of a 3½-year-old girl who attended the Tiny Tot Nursery School, the newspaper reported Sunday.

Norman is empowered to make child-custody decisions in his job in the Harris County family court. The case was the latest of five personal injury lawsuits brought against Norman resulting from complaints at one of his day-care centers in recent years.

One of the lawsuits, filed on behalf of 3-year-old twins who allegedly suffered sexual abuse at the school, is still pending.

Norman said the Tiny Tot center had closed its doors Friday. He said he deeply regretted not having closed the center, founded by his mother, before serious problems arose.

"This sex abuse thing just blew my mind," he said. "I never had anything like that happen before, and I'm still overwhelmed by this — I'm just killed.

"When it became economically unviable, a losing deal, I should have closed it up," Norman said. "I kept it open for all the wrong reasons — because I felt an obligation to the employee and the customers."

Norris Edward Handy, 38, the boyfriend of a newly hired worker at the Tiny Tot school, was sentenced in February to 18 years in prison. He pleaded no contest to charges of assaulting the 3½-year-old girl and one of the twins, court records show.

The Texas Department of Human Services ordered corrective action in the Tiny Tot case, following the sexual abuse complaints that resulted in the charges against Handy.

Attorneys for the 3½-year-old girl's mother negotiated with Norman for two months last summer before deciding to file suit against him. Norman answered the suit, acting as his own lawyer, but then did not participate in court proceedings until the default verdict was issued.

Since State District Judge Davie Wilson handed down the $2 million judgment, Norman has hired attorney Joe Blackburn to reopen the case. Norman said it was "carelessness on my part" that he did not properly contest the lawsuit in the first place.

Long gone are the days of youth,
When the hair was red, and that's the truth!
Now it's greying, what a pity.

"CAN I HAVE A QUARTER AND WHY NOT?"

Witt gets Rangers past Jays; rally from early 4-0 deficit

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - Considering the stiffness in his arm while warming up before the game, Texas Rangers right-hander Bobby Witt was fortunate he even got to start Sunday's contest against the Toronto Blue Jays.

And considering his performance in the first inning, he was fortunate to stick around long enough to earn his first win of the season.

He did it when the Rangers rallied from an early 4-0 deficit to beat the Blue Jays 9-8, snapping a nine-game losing streak to Toronto that started last Aug. 9.

"I was stiff when I first warmed up," said Witt, 1-1, who went seven innings and allowed five runs. "But the longer I threw in the bullpen, the looser I got, and eventually the stiffness went away."

The stiffness might have been gone, but he still couldn't throw strikes in the first inning.

He walked the first two batters. And when he did throw a strike, Lloyd Moseby hit it into the right field bleachers for a 3-run homer.

"I was struggling to find the strike zone," said Witt, who walked two other batters in the first inning but got out of it without further scoring.

In the second, Witt walked Rob Ducey, and he scored to make it 4-0 when left fielder Pete Incaviglia dropped Moseby's fly ball for a 2-base error.

"I settled down after that," said Witt, "and began getting the curveball over. Then the fastball came around and things got a lot better."

Witt walked one batter in the next four innings and the Rangers rallied to take a 9-5 lead before he left.

"That was a Bobby Witt game," said Rangers manager Bobby Valentine. "When he started throwing strikes, he did a great job and deserved to win."

While Witt found his control, Toronto pitchers couldn't find theirs. Walks played a major part in the 3-run rally that gave Texas a 7-5 lead in the sixth and the decisive 2-run rally in the seventh.

Mark Eichhorn, 4-2, took the loss after relieving starter Joe Johnson with two outs in the fifth and the Blue Jays nursing a 5-4 lead.

In the sixth, Eichhorn gave up a one-out single to Larry Parrish, then walked three batters in a row, forcing home the tying run.

Jeff Musselman relieved, and Oddibe McDowell plated the go-ahead run with a sacrifice fly. Scott Fletcher made it 7-5 with an RBI single.

In the seventh, Musselman lost the plate and walked Pete O'Brien and Parrish before giving way to Jose Nunez, who served up a 2-run double to Geno Petralli, making it 9-5.

In all, the seven pitchers issued 18 walks, and nine of those runners scored.

Things got a bit scary for the Rangers when Mitch Williams relieved Witt to start the eighth. Like those before him, Witt couldn't find the strike zone, sandwiching bases on balls around a single by Cecil Fielder to load the bases with none out.

That brought on Dale Mohorcic, who earned his third save. One run scored as Rance Mulliniks hit into a double play and another scored on Tony Fernandez's single, making it 9-7.

Moseby hit his second homer of the game off Mohorcic leading off the ninth.

Couples has 'fun' taking classic win

IRVING, Texas (AP) - The 1987 PGA Tour season has turned around for Fred Couples. So has his attitude.

"It's a whole different thing," Couples said after his playoff victory over Mark Calcavecchia in Sunday's final round of the $600,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic.

"It's fun being in this position, playing in the last group. It's just more fun to play."

Couples, who established himself as one of the brightest young prospects in the game with his 1984 triumph in the Tournament Players Championship, had been a non-winner and in a decline for three full seasons.

That ended when he dropped a five-foot par putt on the third playoff hole at the Tournament Players Course at Las Colinas. It secured the third victory of his seven-season career and was worth $108,000.

"It proves I can win again," said Couples, who matched par 70 over the last round and completed the regulation 72 holes at 266, 14 under par and matching the tournament record.

"It's weird," Couples said. "Sometimes you feel like you can't win an amateur tournament. Then to beat these guys ..."

Couples, a two-shot leader starting the final round, couldn't get much going until he made a great save of par from the trees on the 14th hole.

Calcavecchia, who played 40 minutes in front of Couples, had completed a 64 and was sitting in a television tower when Couples came to the par-5 16th needing a birdie to catch up.

"I knew I had to make birdie there," Couples said. "Seventeen is a hard hole and there's always pressure on you on the last hole."

Couples made his birdie, pitching a third shot some three feet from the cup and dropping the putt.

He parred in and the playoff was on.

Both birdied the first playoff hole, the 16th, and both one-putted for par on the 17th. On the 18th, Calcavecchia missed the green with his approach and played a poor chip across the green. Couples was on in two and two-putted. When Calcavecchia missed a 20-foot par putt from the fringe, leaving it short, Couples was the winner.

Bob Lohr missed the playoff by a single shot with a closing 69 and a 267 total.

He was followed by Donnie Hammond and Craig Stadler at 268. Stadler closed up with a 65 and Hammond shot 69.

Greg Norman matched par 70 and tied with three others at 269. He'll now take two weeks off before continuing the search for his first American victory of the year.

Cincy's Power buzzed; bee bite bothersome

CINCINNATI (AP) - Ted Power learned it can be a harrowing experience when his fastball isn't the only thing buzzing in Riverfront Stadium.

The Cincinnati Reds' right-hander had to deal with both Phillies and bees Sunday when he took the mound against Philadelphia. A swarm of bees that had settled on the batting cage before the game returned in the first inning of the Phillies' 4-3 victory, claiming Power as a casualty.

Power, who is allergic to bee stings, retired the game's leadoff batter, Milt Thompson, on a ground out. When he released the pitch, he got an unpleasant sensation in his glove.

"I threw my glove down because a bee flew up into it when I threw the pitch," Power said. "When I came back to the mound, one got stuck between my fingers and it stung me."

He made a beeline for the clubhouse to get the stinger removed from the index finger on his right hand and get treatment to prevent swelling. The rest of the team soon left the field as three bee handlers swooped near the first baseline with nets, trying to convince the insects to let the teams play ball. The stadium organist made a contribution, serenading the efforts with "Flight of the Bumblebee."

After a 17-minute "bee delay," Power went back to the mound, the "bee team" left and play resumed.

Power overcame the unusual adversity, giving up just six hits in eight innings and striking out a career-high 11 batters. However, two of the hits were homers by Juan Samuel and Lance Parrish that sent Power to his first loss in four decisions and his first defeat since last Aug. 22.

The start of the game was particularly disturbing to Power, who learned of his allergy when he was stung in the neck as a 5-year-old and had to be rushed to the hospital.

"It swelled up so much it was cutting off my breathing," he said. "I couldn't breath."

Power said he's been stung many times since, and he only fears stings around the neck and face because those would be the most dangerous.

"I was a little worried (Sunday)," Power said. "But since it was not a fleshy area, there was no problem."

The finger was treated promptly, allowing him to continue pitching. However, more fright was still in flight.

The bees thinned out, but didn't completely evacuate after the 17-minute delay. Power occasionally swiped at them, and once had to stop in mid-delivery as some buzzed his face.

Septien waits for opportunity

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - Former Dallas Cowboys placekicker Rafael Septien wants another chance.

His NFL career has unraveled after he pleaded guilty to indecency with a child.

"I would like an opportunity again to show I'm an asset to society and not a liability," he said. "I'm really waiting for somebody to say they believe in me and go from there.

Septien was indicted on Jan. 22 on a charge of aggravated sexual assault of a child. On April 8 he pleaded guilty to a lesser charge of indecency with a child and received a 10-year probated sentence, a $2,000 fine and was ordered to undergo psychiatric treatment.

A week later he was released by the Cowboys and he became a free agent on April 27.

Last week, NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle sent a memo to all league teams saying that while any club was free to sign Septien, they should be warned that he would have to receive clearance from the NFL office before he could play.

Warrior's Sleepy wakes up

by The Associated Press

The Los Angeles Lakers appeared to be on the way to a sweep of the Golden State Warriors until they got Sleepy in the fourth quarter.

The Lakers, leading the best-of-seven NBA playoff series 3-0, took a 102-88 lead into the fourth quarter against the Warriors Sunday. Then 6-foot-3 guard Eric "Sleepy" Floyd scored a record 29 points in the final 12 minutes and finished with 51 as Golden State stayed alive with a 129-121 victory.

"My teammates kept giving me the ball, and said 'Take it,' so I took it," Floyd said. "I was very conscious of the score, and the crowd got us pumped. Once we got it rolling, we weren't going to lose. I've never been hotter at any level."

"The basket seemed 10 feet wide."

Floyd broke the one-quarter playoff record of 25 set by Detroit's Isiah Thomas last Friday night. Floyd's 39 points in the second half also eclipsed the previous mark of 33 by Elgin Baylor of the Lakers in 1962.

Floyd hit 12 of 13 shots in the fourth period as the Warriors outscored the Lakers 41-19.

"The kid (Floyd) is just a great player," Lakers Coach Pat Riley said. "There was no stopping him, period. They scored 14 of 16 times down at the top of the fourth quarter and we didn't do anything about it."

In other games Sunday, Boston and Detroit took 3-1 leads in the Eastern Conference semifinals with one-point victories. The Celtics edged Milwaukee 138-137 in double overtime and the Pistons tripped Atlanta 89-88.

On Tuesday, Seattle takes a 3-1 series lead to Houston and Golden State is at the Lakers. On Wednesday, it's Detroit at Atlanta and Milwaukee at Boston.

The Lakers tried three defenders against Floyd in the fourth period and couldn't stop him.

"Sleepy can finish a drive as well or better than any guard in the league his size," Riley said. "We just sort of backed off and waited for him to miss. He gets the first step, and once he gets through, he's a broad jumper."

One of the Lakers defenders was Michael Cooper, a member of the NBA All-Defensive team.

"He had every phase of the game going ... three-pointers, drives ... They strung our defense out pretty well," Cooper said.

Joe Barry Carroll had 23 points for Golden State, while Byron Scott had 28 and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar 27 for the Lakers.

Abdul-Jabbar had eight during a 20-3 run that helped the Los Angeles lead 34-27 after one quarter. A 10-2 spurt gave the Lakers their largest lead, 98-83, in the third period.

Celtics 138, Bucks 137

Larry Bird scored 42 points and Kevin McHale 34, and Boston held Milwaukee scoreless in the final minute of the second overtime.

The Celtics, who can establish an NBA record with 15 straight playoff victories at home if they win Wednesday, have won 33 consecutive games at Boston Garden.

Cummings led Milwaukee with 31 points and Sidney Moncrief had 22.

Pistons 89, Hawks 88

Detroit took a commanding lead against Atlanta as Isiah Thomas scored 31 points, including a driving layup with one second remaining.

Thomas, who scored 23 points in the second half, drove around the right side of the lane with time running out and soared for a finger-roll that fell in.

Motta to meet with Knicks

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - Dallas Mavericks coach Dick Motta is scheduled to meet sometime this week with New York Knicks executives to discuss their coaching vacancy, he said.

Mavericks owner Don Carter said last week he had given the Knicks permission to talk to Motta about the job.

"I'm definitely meeting with them," Motta told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram Sunday by telephone from his cabin in Fish Haven, Idaho.

"I've got a neat job, but this is both prestigious and intriguing. I'm not trying to burn any bridges in Dallas.

"At this point, it really isn't more serious than the Clippers thing. With (the Clippers), I just talked to them a little bit to find out the situation," Motta said.

Motta ended talks with the Clippers on Tuesday.

Motta said the Knicks indicated they could fly up to meet him at his cabin, but he did not rule out the possibility of his flying to New York.

Motta was scheduled to scout the Pan American Games basketball trials that begin Thursday in Colorado Springs, Colo.

Milwaukee Bucks coach Don Nelson was considered by many to be the leading candidate for the Knicks job, particularly after a statement he gave CBS during the Bucks' playoff loss Sunday to Boston. Citing differences with Milwaukee owner Herb Kohl, Nelson said, "I just can't go back."

Motta told the Star-Telegram that if he signed with another club, there would be no compensation to Dallas.

Doctors: once deadly disease now treatable

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — Doctors say Charollette Holladay of Odessa is typical of people who contract a disease known as systemic lupus erythematosus.

When she woke up last April in a hospital with tubes and intravenous needles projecting from her body like needles in a pincushion, she couldn't even remember getting sick.

"Now, I know that I got in my bed last night. How did I get here?" Ms. Holladay, who goes by "Charlie," recalls thinking.

The disease, which occurs most often in black women of childbearing age, once was considered uncurable, but now is treatable, doctors say.

SLE has been likened to a deadly game of Pac-Man, where antibodies in the blood devour any matter they consider foreign.

"It sounds like something out of a Stephen King novel," said Dr. Jeffrey R. Lisse, clinical coordinator of the UT Medical Branch division of rheumatology. In a person with SLE, antibodies attack their own body.

Lupus can be elusive because victims can display a range of symptoms, many common to other medical complaints. It can affect the brain, causing seizures, a loss of memory and, sometimes, strokes.

Ms. Holladay, a 34-year-old mother, learned last year that she'd been hospitalized for two weeks — part of a period she recalls only in bits and pieces.

"It's like someone went in and cut from March 1986 to the very last week of May 1986," Ms. Holladay told the Odessa American.

Fours weeks later, she was transferred from Medical Center Hospital to the University of Texas Medical Branch in Galveston, where doctors diagnosed her condition as systemic lupus erythematosus.

Ms. Holladay is plagued by sensitivity to sunlight, she said. Water blisters form if she stays in the sun for an hour.

"I'm seeing an eye doctor because I'm losing part of my vision," she said. A Lubbock doctor told her she probably will be blind within two years, she said.

Some days she takes as many as 21 pills — including steroids — to control her condition. But "there's days you pray to God to let you go ahead and let you die because you hurt so bad," she said.

She had to give up a job as a newspaper carrier because she couldn't remember her route.

"With it you learn things, but it seems like you can not retain it," Ms. Holladay said. "You write yourself lots of notes."

Just because someone has trouble remembering doesn't mean he has lupus, Lisse emphasized.

"It's not a common disease. It's the kind of disease a general practitioner might see once or twice in a whole career," he said. Women and blacks run the greatest risk of contracting it, he said.

Symptoms may include "hot, red swollen joints" associated with arthritis; skin rashes, including a "butterfly" rash on the cheeks; sores in the mouth; nervous system problems; blood abnormalities; and kidney problems, the most serious, Lisse said.

Dr. B.K. Khandelwal, a Midland rheumatologist, agrees lupus can be tricky because it may begin as arthritis, then two years later crop up again as pleurisy, a pain in the chest, or as a rash. Still later, ulcers may develop in the mouth.

A patient seen by several doctors over that period of time won't have established a pattern for the multi-system disease — which can be mild or, when it attacks the kidneys or the nervous system, serious, he said.

Not only are about 90 percent of adult sufferers women, Khandelwal said, but most are in their child-bearing years. "It may be the hormones" that are responsible, he said, because the 9-1 ratio of female-to-male victims doesn't hold true in children.

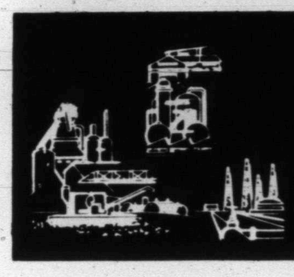

But "lupus is a completely treatable disease these days," Khandelwal said.

That's unlike years past, Lisse said, when handing a person a diagnosis of lupus was like sounding a death knell. "In the 1950s lupus patients almost always died within the first five years," he said.

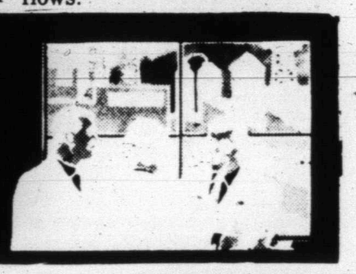

Because of earlier detection, noticing milder cases and improved treatment, that's no longer true, Lisse said. Over a 10-year period, the longest time for which studies have been conducted, the survival rate is 80 to 90 percent. That may explain, Lisse said, why the number of cases seemingly is on the increase.

Infection accounts for a major cause of death in lupus patients.

Private capital flows to Latin America tended to increase on a yearly basis throughout the 1970s. They peaked in 1981 at $24.5 billion and then fell in the following three years to $10.8 billion in 1984, according to the Inter-American Development Bank. Official flows, meanwhile, increased from $4.3 billion to $6.3 billion. But the increase in the volume of official aid, which now accounts for 50 percent of total flows, pales in comparison with the sharp fall in private capital flows.

Tom's Marine stocks lawn mowers

Summertime is here and with it comes yard work. Tom's Marine, located at 315 East Highway, has the lawnmower and accessories to meet all your mowing needs. You'll find a large selection of Lawn-Boy, Snapper and Toro mowers to choose from.

The New Generation Lawn-Boy mowers combine 68 years of two-cycle technology with advanced engineering to give you up to 30 percent more usable power than with previous engines.

Whether your needs are for a push model or self-propelled, manual or electric start, side or rear bagging, or even a mulching attachment, Lawn-Boy gives you the edge in yard care.

Toro also offers a state-of-the-art two-cycle lawnmower that has at it's heart, a Toro designed two-cycle engine. For longer engine life and quick starts, a bigger, more efficient air filter and a precision crafted aluminum carburetor is used.

Because Toro builds a better mower, they back it better with a two year limited warranty, instead of one year.

Finally, the Snapper mower line offers you a choice between two and four cycle engines, according to your needs. As with all the mowers that Tom Machen sells, you may choose from a push or self-propelled models, side or rear discharge, and manual or electric start.

Tom's Marine can also handle all of your Snapper riding mower needs, with models up to 11 horsepower and 33" cutting widths.

Don't let summer yard work catch you unprepared. Go by Tom's Marine and let Tom show you how having the right lawn mower can make lawn care a real breeze.

Federal action anticipated to prevent dollar's free fall

WASHINGTON (AP) — As the value of the U.S. dollar continues to erode in international markets, pressure is building on the Federal Reserve to nudge up interest rates.

Such action might help brake the dollar's relentless fall and prevent what Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul Volcker and many economists have long feared — a "free fall" of the dollar, a plunge that can't be reversed short of a recession.

The Fed is widely expected by economists to act soon — possibly this week — to boost its "discount rate," the fee it charges for loans to banks and other financial institutions. The rate, at 5.5 percent since last August, has not been increased in more than a year.

Earlier this month, commercial banks raised their prime rate — for loans to their most creditworthy customers — from 7.5 percent to 8 percent. And, on Friday, the Veterans Administration increased the rate on VA mortgage loans from 9.5 percent to 10 percent.

Since these and other rates have been heading up on their own, the Fed's raising of the discount rate might not trigger a major new round of interest rate hikes. But it could send an important signal to financial markets that the Fed is serious about propping up the dollar, analysts suggested.

Higher U.S. interest rates could lure more foreign investors into putting their money in U.S. financial investments, which in turn would help strengthen the dollar.

Still, some economists suggest that the dollar, if not already in the dreaded free fall, is verging on one — and could drop another 15 percent to 20 percent before bottoming out.

What would be the effect on consumers and the economy of a free fall of the dollar? With a cheaper dollar comes the threat of higher inflation, higher interest rates — and, if the cycle continues, a recession.

American tourists already have felt the effect directly as the value of their dollars decline almost daily. The dollar's slide is also making it much more expensive for the Defense Department to maintain U.S. troops and installations overseas.

Meanwhile, the United States is becoming one of the world's best tourist bargains — for the Japanese and Europeans.

The weakening dollar is also making foreign goods more expensive — from Japanese automobiles to French cognac.

"The dollar impact is beginning to show and can only build over time," said Allen Sinai, chief economist for Shearson Lehman Brothers Inc. "The process now is self-feeding and circular, and dangerous and unknown in its implications for the dollar, inflation and the finanical markets."

The Reagan administration until recently was content to see the value of the dollar fall in hopes that higher import prices would ease trade imbalances. Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III even engaged in an active campaign to "talk down" the dollar further — a process he since has abandoned.

A central concern is that if the dollar keeps falling, it may persuade the Japanese and others to pull back on their large U.S. financial investments — money needed to keep financing the government's staggering $2.3 trillion debt.

All along, Volcker has warned against the dangers of a falling dollar, claiming that once the process was started, it wouldn't be so easy to turn off.

Relatives mourn victims of crash

NEW BRITAIN, Conn. (AP) — Some Polish-Americans, shocked by the plane crash near Warsaw that killed 10 local residents, responded with tears for their loved ones and anger at the Soviets who manufactured the jetliner.

"I wouldn't fly that Russian junk," said John Markow, commander of the Gen. Joseph Haller Post No. 111 of the Polish Veterans Association, where men gathered around the bar and pool tables Sunday to talk about the crash.

Markow and other Polish immigrants, noting that the jet was Soviet-made, vented long-simmering bitterness about the Soviets who dominate their homeland.

"The problem is in the Russian planes," said Andrew Kaminski, an immigrant who has canceled his trip to Warsaw next week on LOT Polish Airlines, whose Flight No. 5055 crashed Saturday, killing all 183 people aboard. "We want to go Pan Am or any American airline."

Sacred Heart Church planned a Mass tonight for victims of the crash, who officials said included 38 U.S. citizens or residents.

Similar memorial services were planned in Irvington, N.J., and in Boston and Chicago, which have large Polish communities.

Worshippers at the Sacred Heart of Jesus church in the New Jersey community on Sunday mourned four current and two former parishioners killed in the crash.

"Right now, there's sorrow, shock and dismay," said the Rev. Tom Lewczak. "They just spoke with these people before they left. They just can't comprehend that they're gone."

Also Sunday, about 100 people attended a Polish-language Mass in the Detroit enclave of Hamtramck in memory of Irena Gospodarczyk, a local resident killed in the crash.

Ten of the victims lived in and around New Britain, a blue-collar city in central Connecticut where an estimated 20 percent of the 73,890 residents are of Polish descent. Many residents are immigrants who got jobs in the tool-and-die and bearing industries.

"One or another from the family will make his way here and make a good living so then they invite the relatives to come and join them," said the Rev. Paul A. Wysocki of Sacred Heart Church, which celebrates some Masses in Polish.

"The Polish people are suffering people. I'm sure every one of them is asking 'When will it end?'" he said. Five of the crash victims were parishioners of Sacred Heart.

Disturbance call leads to misdemeanor report here

Police investigated a disturbance call early Sunday morning that led to the filing of a report for misdemeanor assault.

A resident of the apartments at 1906 Coleman Ave. filed that complaint at 2:37 a.m. No arrest was made in the case at that time.

In other weekend action, city officers logged 11 misdemeanor arrests.

Two men were jailed for soliciting without a permit at 7:29 p.m. Sunday after east Snyder residents reported two men going door-to-door attempting to sell pottery.

Other weekend arrests included three men charged with driving while intoxicated, two charged with being intoxicated on a premises licensed to sell alcohol, and four charged with public intoxication.

One of the suspects charged with being intoxicated on a licensed premises was also charged with misdemeanor possession of marijuana.

Light poles have no bids

County commissioners Monday took no action on removal of light poles and fixtures at the old Hermleigh ball field.

The court was to have opened bids for the items during their regular session. However, no bids were received on the nine poles, lights, wire and meter loops.

Commissioners agreed to give the items to the first individual who will remove them from the park site. Interested persons may contact Parks Superintendent Jimmy Ward at Towle Park Barn at 573-3313.

Ward and court members also discussed a possible auction to sell surplus county equipment.

In other action, the court authorized the release of some $3.6 million in securities from the West Texas State Bank.

Report of fire is only smoke

A report of smoke proved to be a false alarm for local firemen early Sunday morning.

According to fire officials, a resident of the 400 Block of 32nd St. called the department around 5:40 a.m. and reported smelling smoke in the area.

They said Monday morning the smoke likely originated from a barbecue pit left to burn out overnight.

Work underway at Stacy Dam site

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — Bulldozers and archaeologists are already crawling over the site of the long-delayed Stacy Dam project, even though formal ground-breaking ceremonies aren't until Saturday.

Opponents of the dam argued that it would wipe out the threatened Concho River snake. But the Colorado River Municipal Water District received federal permits to start construction after unveiling a $3.1 million plan to protect the snake.

The water district received a building permit last month, 10 years after applying for it.

Eventually, the dam will stand 158 feet high, extend two miles and be 900 feet wide.

The $70 million reservoir will be built about 45 miles east of San Angelo in Coleman, Runnels and Concho counties. It will provide water for Abilene, Big Spring, Snyder, Odessa, Midland, San Angelo, Stanton, Robert Lee and Pyote.

The Texas Water Development Board has said most of the area would run short of water by 1990 without the dam.

Archeologists are working near the construction crews, yet another key part of the water district's agreement with the government. In return for a permit, the water district promised to first explore the site for archaeological artifacts.

The district is paying $1 million for Prewitt & Associates of Austin to examine about 500 cultural sites at the confluence of the Colorado and Concho rivers, where the dam is being built.

Dr. Mike Collins, who heads up the archaeological effort, said he can complete his work in three weeks. But he can take longer if he needs it.

Jews come home for visit

LANDAU, West Germany (AP) — William E. Mayer looked "with one wet eye and one dry eye" at the German wine-growing region he and hundreds of other Jews fled a half-century ago after the Nazis' rise to power.

The New York resident underscored the mixed emotions he felt when he and more than 70 other members of Jewish families driven away by Adolf Hitler's Third Reich came back for a week-long reunion in Landau.

The reunion was one of several run by West German towns and cities, such as Frankfurt and Berlin, to encourage former Jewish residents to come back to the land they once fled.

Landau officials used city funds and contributions to pay all costs for round-trip flights and lodging of former Jewish residents and their spouses. For many, it was their first time back.

Landau, with a population of 37,400, is a traditional German town with neat churches, winding streets and well-kept buildings. It lies in the middle of a wine-growing region in southwestern Germany, 12 miles from France.

About 800 Jews lived in Landau in 1938. Today, there are two.

"I'm here with one wet and one dry eye. In other words I have mixed feelings," said Mayer, of Rye, N.Y., who came with his wife, Susan.

"I wasn't here when they burned the synagogue (in 1938), because our family left in 1936," three years after Hitler took power in Germany, said Mayer. "But I grew up here."

Mayer and his wife were in a crowd of about 100 people watching a wreath-laying ceremony at a memorial obelisk dedicated to the town's synagogue, which was torched by the Nazi party's storm troopers on Nov. 10, 1938.

The raid came in conjunction with the Nov. 9 "Crystal Night" attacks in 1938, when the storm troopers ransacked Jewish homes and businesses, smashing windows and other property in Frankfurt, Berlin and other cities.

Also here were Kurt Metzger, 74, Landau's last rabbi, and his wife, Lore, of Monroe, N.Y., also a former resident. They were joined by other Jews from the United States, South America, Israel, and Europe.

"It's like a homecoming. Many of these people haven't seen each other for 50 years," said Susan Mayer, who was not born in Landau.

Landau Mayor Christof Wolff welcomed the former residents at a dinner the day before the wreath-laying.

AIDS is one of most feared diseases

NEW YORK (AP) — AIDS, deadly and incurable, now rivals cancer as the most feared disease in America, according to a Media General-Associated Press poll.

The dread manifests itself in several ways: six in 10 Americans favor mandatory AIDS tests as a requirement for certain jobs, more than half would take a vaccine against AIDS if one were available, and about half think everyone or almost everyone is at risk of getting the disease, according to the poll.

The 1,304 adult Americans in the nationwide telephone survey were asked if they feared one disease more than any other, and 44 percent said yes. Of those, 48 percent cited AIDS and 47 percent cancer as the most feared disease.

When the same question was asked in a Media General-AP poll in September 1985, 78 percent said cancer and 23 percent said AIDS. (In the earlier poll, some respondents mentioned more than one disease.)

Among younger people, half of those who feared one disease more than others cited AIDS, while only one-third cited cancer. Women were as likely as men to fear AIDS.

Acquired immune deficiency syndrome is a disease in which a virus attacks the body's immune system, leaving victims susceptible to a wide variety of infections and cancers.

In the United States and Europe, AIDS has so far been largely confined to male homosexuals, hemophiliacs and intravenous drug abusers. In Africa, it is believed to be transmitted primarily through heterosexual contact.

Respondents in the Media General-AP poll were asked if they knew anyone with AIDS, and 7 percent said they did. And although fear of the disease was high, and half the respondents said everyone or almost everyone was at risk, only 16 percent thought they were at risk themselves.

Recently, some laboratories have been inundated by people seeking blood tests to determine if they've been exposed to the virus. In the Media General-AP poll, 17 percent of the respondents said they were thinking seriously about being tested themselves.
