US Completes Troop Pullout

Massive Weapons Airlift Is Begun

SAIGON (UPI) — The United States today completed withdrawal of U.S. troops from Cambodia a full day ahead of President Nixon's June 30 deadline...

Informed sources in Phnom Penh said eight American C130s and three South Vietnamese C119 cargo planes arrived at Phnom Penh today with arms and ammunition for the hand-pressed Cambodian army...

The military sources said nearly 1,700 American troops staged on foot through monsoon mud to cross into South Vietnam from Cambodia's Fishhook sector northwest of Saigon...

In Phnom Penh, Cambodian Premier Lon Nol said the Communist threat to the Cambodian capital had diminished, but he appealed again for continued U.S. air support.

As the last Americans were leaving Cambodia the South Vietnamese opened a new offensive. Military sources said a 5,000-man armored column was driving inland across northeastern Cambodia toward the new Communist supply route down the Mekong River valley.

The sources said the offensive was moving along Route 19 toward Stung Treng, 160 miles northeast of Phnom Penh. Stung Treng has been in North Vietnamese hands for six weeks and is on the new supply route running down through Laos.

Highway 19 links Pleiku in South Vietnam's Central Highlands with Stung Treng on the Mekong.

At the same time, a military communique from Phnom Penh said 300 Communist troops were killed in a weeklong operation which cleared Highway 5 from Skoan, 35 miles northeast of Phnom Penh, to Kongpong Thom, 80 miles north of the capital.

The communique said "friendly aircraft played an important supporting role," an apparent reference to U.S. planes.

Of the 1,700 American troops left in Cambodia at dawn Monday, one rifle battalion of the 1st Air Cavalry Division was lifted out by helicopter. The rest of the GIs swept through the overgrown and dripping jungle terrain on foot, searching for Communist supply caches as they worked their way toward the border of South Vietnam. Some had been on the march four days.

City Manager Charles Hill said the provision for observing Saturday holidays on Friday is set up by order of The City Commission.

As a result, city workers will enjoy a three-day holiday the coming weekend along with employees in county, state and federal offices.

Judge Sherman Lenning said Gray County court house offices will be closed all day Friday.

Exceptions, of course, will be the city police department and sheriff's office. Highway patrol officers also will be on duty to handle holiday traffic.

Postal service in Pampa will be as usual on Friday. Acting Postmaster Carl V. English said post office windows will be closed all day Saturday, the Fourth, and there will be no residential or rural deliveries on Saturday.

English said mail will be dispatched on regular schedules, there will be special delivery service and service for post office box patrons.

Despite published warning from Police Chief Jim Conner, police are still receiving reports of fireworks being fired inside the city limits.

Conner said the law allows a fine of up to $200 to be assessed if charges are filed for the fireworks violations.

Pampa, unlike some cities, does not have an ordinance allowing for parents to be fined if their children are found to have violated the law.

Conner said a juvenile must have several complaints lodged against him before charges can be filed in juvenile court.

HOLDING A Pow Wow at the Southwest Indian Organization's celebration Sunday afternoon are SIO Chief Marland Hays and Panhandle Congressman Bob Price. More than 1,000 persons attended throughout the afternoon for Indian ceremonial dances and handwork displays.

Johnson Administration Did 'Grave Damage,' Barr Says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Treasury Secretary Joseph W. Barr says the Johnson administration, in which he served, did "grave damage" to the nation's economy by failing to press for wage-price controls as soon as the Vietnam War intensified.

Barr, asserting it is now too late to impose such controls, suggested a "rule of thumb" that would require the government to accompany future military operations with immediate calls for higher taxes and standby controls.

"My rule of thumb, if I ever have any public service again," he said, "is that if anyone deploys as many as 100,000 troops on foreign soil, you go for a tax increase and complete standby controls across the board."

Barr held the Treasury post for less than a month at the end of the Johnson administration, between the resignation of Henry Fowler on Dec. 23, 1968, and the takeover of the Nixon administration on Jan. 20, 1969. He is now president of American Security and Trust Co., one of Washington's biggest banks.

The former Treasury official was asked, in UPI Washington Window interview Sunday, if his "rule of thumb" would tend to discourage overseas military adventures by generating strong opposition to the accompanying war taxes.

"I'm sure this would be true," he said. "They would look at it a lot longer."

AMARILLO (UPI) — The Veterans of Foreign Wars in Texas ended their Golden Anniversary Convention Sunday by electing officers and adopting resolutions supporting the President's actions in Cambodia and asking murder charges be dropped against soldiers involved in the May Lai massacre.

Delegates elected Cliff Peer of Waco state commander. Other officers included Mel Stanley of San Angelo, senior vice commander; Dan Reyna of Raymondville, junior vice commander; Billie Borris of Austin, quartermaster; Julius Neunhoff of Kerrville, judge advocate, and the Rev. Ed Haffner of Brownwood, chaplain.

Command Charges North Korea With Plot To Assassinate Leaders

PANMUNJOM, Korea, (UPI) — The United Nations Command (UNC) officially charged North Korea today with plotting to assassinate South Korean leaders on the 20th anniversary of the start of the Korean War.

The charge came when the UNC brought up the attempt last Monday by a three-man North Korean infiltration team to blow up the Memorial Gate in the South Korean National Cemetery in Southern Seoul.

U.S. Army Maj. Gen. James H. Skeldon, senior UNC delegate to the commission, said if the North Korean attempt to kill South Korean leaders had been successful, peace in Korea would have been endangered.

Skeldon said the real mission of the North Korean team which set off by mistake a highpower remote-control bomb it was planting at the gate last Monday was to kill South Korean leaders scheduled to gather there Thursday for the war anniversary.

Death Toll Climbs In Northern Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — The death toll in a weekend of death and destruction in Northern Ireland rose to six today when one of the victims of Catholic-Protestant rioting died in a hospital.

Shooting blasts by snipers wounded two more British soldiers today.

Prime Minister Edward Heath called his cabinet into emergency session in London and announced he was sending 3,000 more troops into Northern Ireland to try to enforce peace.

Previously, 8,000 troops had been sent there.

An army spokesman said in addition to the two soldiers hit by snipers another six soldiers were injured in Belfast and 92 in Londonderry during clashes Sunday night. Police said "hundreds" of persons were being treated in hospitals, many for gunshot wounds.

Rioting erupted when Bernadette Devlin, 23, member of parliament and civil rights leader of the Catholic minority in Northern Ireland, was sent to prison Friday for six months for her part in rioting last year.

The new trouble in Belfast was brief and less serious than Friday and Saturday night rioting, which police said caused five deaths and 221 injuries.

In Londonderry, police clashed with demonstrators and at one point a mob threw gasoline bombs on the roof of the post office. Postal workers threw the bombs back.

Some police officials speculated the death toll was higher. They said illegal organizations try to remove their dead and bury them privately.

Bad weather hit the city of 400,000 persons, one-third of whom are Roman Catholics, shortly after new violence erupted early today. Two British soldiers were struck by shotgun blasts but not seriously wounded and an engineering works was hit by an explosion followed by a fire that took more than two hours to control.

Premier James Chichester-Clark announced a series of new moves aimed at halting the trouble. He included closed pubs at 8 p.m., two hours early; clamped a 9 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew on civilian traffic in riot areas; and a call-up of the Ulster defense regiment.

Funeral services for O'Neal 31, are pending with Carmichael-Whately Funeral Directors.

He was born in Pampa and lived here most of his life until he moved to Houston a year ago.

Survivors are his widow, Mamie and four children of the home; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louie O'Neal, Pampa; two brothers and five sisters.

Federal Grand Jury Begins Jackson State Investigations

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI)—A special federal grand jury today begins investigating the shooting deaths of two young blacks last month at Jackson State College.

The grand jury was ordered after Assistant Attorney General J. Lee Leonard accused Mississippi officials of failing to cooperate in the government probe of the incident. Leonard charged state officials would not permit highway patrolmen to undergo FBI interrogation and refused to turn over the weapons used in the shooting.

Attorney General John Mitchell said in granting the request for the special jury the U.S. District Court directed the panel "to make a complete investigation of all aspects surrounding the incidents...to determine whether any federal laws were violated."

Fire Destroys Valuable Guns An explosion in a garage behind a house at 1165 Varnon Dr., alerted residents of the house to a fire that destroyed several thousand dollars worth of antique guns, welding equipment and tools early Sunday morning.

"We are interested in obtaining any historical items of Pampa, Gray County and Panhandle origin," Mrs. Thompson said, "either on loan or outright donation."

Firemen were called to the scene about 4:30 a.m. and fought the fire for more than an hour.

Firemen said the hinges of the rear door to the garage appeared to have been pryed open.

Pannell said the amount of damages could not be estimated until he salvages the contents of the garage and determines exactly what was stored there.

Firefighters Fight To Contain Rash Of Fires

SILVER CITY, N.M. (UPI)—Fatigued firefighters, spread thin over 1,700 charred acres, battled early today to confine 43 fires raging in New Mexico and Arizona national forests.

Officials estimated 1,700 acres of grass and timberland were destroyed by fires caused by lightning and careless weekend campers. Some 135 fires were contained Sunday, but fire lines still were manned today against danger of high winds and possible new outbreaks.

The largest single blaze Sunday swept across 800 acres of New Mexico's Little Hatched Mountains southeast of Lordsburg.

Harlan Smith, a Bureau of Land Management official, said the blaze began during a lightning storm Friday.

Hatfield Wary Of Nixon Policy's Affect On Party

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Unless the administration ends the Vietnam War and swings the economy upward, President Nixon may be denied renomination in 1972, says Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore.

"If the war is still going on by 1970, that is in November of this year in any great intensity, and the economics of the country continue to slide and disintegrate, there just may not be a Nixon-Agnew ticket in 1972," Hatfield said Sunday.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: "ON THE FENCE" asked you if remarrying a former spouse ever worked. You invited your readers who had had the experience to write in and offer their advice. Here's mine:

"Yes, it can work, but only if the couple know why their marriage failed in the first place, and they don't make the same mistakes again.

"Our problems were all due to family interference. After our divorce, we decided to try again, and we moved far, far away from both our families. We've been married for 12 years this time and we've never been happier.

J. AND M.

DEAR ABBY: Tell ON THE FENCE not to marry the same man again. After I divorced my husband (he drank) he told me if I didn't marry him again he would kill himself. Well, I married him, and he almost killed me. I divorced him again. I never should have remarried him, but I thought I could change him. I couldn't.

TWO TIME LOSER

DEAR ABBY: I am well qualified to give advice on whether or not to remarry the person you divorced. I married the same man three times! And I'm now divorced from him. My reasons for divorcing him were the same all three times

He makes a much better lover than a husband.

SINGLE AND HAPPY

DEAR SINGLE: — That's not why you remarried him—that's why you remarried him!

DEAR ABBY: I wish I had all the money I gave to lawyers before I realized that the woman I married not once, not twice, not three times, but would you believe four times, was not marriage material.

It was a big physical thing between us — nothing else, and let me tell you, as important as that is to a good marriage, it ain't enough!

ALONE AND LIKING IT

DEAR ABBY: My parents were divorced when I was two. There were four of us kids. I was the youngest. I was too young to remember at the time, but I later learned my parents got married again because of us kids. All I can remember is the fighting and yelling at our house.

After we were all grown and gone, they got divorced again. As far as I'm concerned, they should have stayed divorced the first time. They sure wasted a lot of precious time.

THEIR DAUGHTER

DEAR ABBY: ON THE FENCE HAS A SOUL SISTER.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Reader Suggests Method To Hang Telephone Book

By POLLY CRAMER
DEAR POLLY—One of the girls wanted to know what she could do about a gurgling noise made as the water drained out of her bathroom sink. To stop such noise in mine, I folded a washcloth, laid over the drain and the water drained out more slowly and quietly.—MRS. M.K.

DEAR GIRLS—Just be careful not to leave that folded cloth over the drain or someone may turn the water on full force and leave it to run over.—POLLY

Polly's Problem
DEAR POLLY—A colorful plastic measure with a handle comes in each pound of coffee I buy. I would like know if some of the readers could tell me what I could do with them, as they are too pretty to throw away.—MRS. H. H. H.

DEAR POLLY—I cannot bear the telephone ringing when I am working in the back yard, so my husband made a little door in the back screen that is large enough to put the phone through with a long cord. This saves many steps, as well as the satisfaction of knowing I always hear the ring.—MYRTLE

DEAR POLLY—Where to put the telephone book often poses a problem, particularly if one rents and does not have built-in shelves and nooks as in one's own home. Such places are usually scarce in the limited space of an apartment. I solved the problem this way: Insert the bottom bar of a wire coat hanger in the exact middle of the telephone book with the book coming up over the back of the book. Hang this on a rod in the closet nearest your telephone.—BETTY

DEAR POLLY—About every two or three nights, I put my kitchen sponge right in the dishwasher with the dishes and it is easily cleaned and disinfected.—M.B.

Miss Bichsel Weds Harold Gasaway

The Rev. James Gurzynski officiated in a double-ring June wedding ceremony for Diana Marie Bichsel and Harold Wayne Gasaway. The couple exchanged vows in an evening ceremony in Sacred Heart Catholic Church in White Deer.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L.L. Bichsel, White Deer. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. H.L. Gasaway of Pampa.

Vows were repeated before an altar which formed an arch of red and white carnations, flanked by two seven-branched candleabras.

Organist for the service, Mrs. Laddie Kotara, accompanied vocalist Mrs. Richard Bichsel for the music selections of "Ave Maria," and "Whither Thou Goest."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal floor-length wedding gown of taupe de soie designed with a scoop neckline, A-line silhouette and long tapered sleeves. Insets of lace applique enhanced the bodice and front of the gown. The attach chapel train was enhanced with tiny covered buttons.

Her veil of imported illusion, accented with a border of Alcon lace, fell from a taupe de soie bow complimented with lace, seed pearls and sequins. She carried a white, pearl covered Bible with a bridal bouquet of red and white carnations.

Maid of honor was her sister, Rebecca Sue Bichsel, Mrs. Raymond Edwards of Pampa, also attended the bride. Both attendants were dressed in blue formal-length taupe de soie bouquets of red and white carnations.

Raymond Edwards was best man with Arnold Eugene Baten as groomsmen. Louis Bichsel Jr., the bride's brother, and her uncle, Richard Bichsel of Pampa, seated wedding guests.

Today's shades are a far cry from the all-white plain Janes of yesterday. They come in a whole rainbow of vibrant solid colors, several weaves and finishes, even in patterns and stripes. How about burlap-look shades, in warm red, for the children's room? A gay butterfly pattern for the dining room? A mosaic design for the family room?

For the reception in the Parish Hall in White Deer, Mrs. Richard Bichsel, the bride's aunt, sang the wedding music selections, accompanied on the organ by Mrs. Kotara.

The table was covered with a white linen cloth and centered with an arrangement of red and white carnations. Mrs. Vernon Van-Bibber served the five-tiered wedding cake as Mrs. Robert Bichsel assisted at the punch service. Mrs. Wilfred Bichsel, Panhandle, presided at the guest register. Mrs. Thomas H.L. White Deer, assisted at the wedding gift tables.

For the honeymoon trip to Colorado, the bride selected a traveling costume of a street-length A-line dress of blue satin, trimmed with blue velvet ribbon and wore the red carnations from her bridal bouquet.

The couple's home is in Pampa.

What Really is Drug Abuse?

Although commonly used by authorities to describe the indiscriminate use of those drugs associated with "turning on," "kicks," and "trips," it also is the unwise use of any drug. Too much aspirin, constant use of a nose spray would all be good examples of drug abuse.

Actually, you abuse your body when you rely too much on over-the-counter, non-prescriptive medications when you are sick. Rely instead on the knowledge and experience of your family doctor.

Ham Operators Set Up Shop For Field-Testing Readiness

Saturday morning a caravan of cars carrying receiving and transmitting radio equipment left Pampa to set up camp about three miles east of Lefors.

The caravan was comprised of members of Pampa's Amateur Radio Club, which is affiliated with American Radio Relay League.

It was field day for the amateur radio members being conducted nation-wide to test emergency preparedness.

Portable sets, generators for power were set up in attempts to contact as many distant radio hams as possible.

Each member conducted his own tests and set down the distant points contacted. The fate sheet will be sent in to national ARRL headquarters in Newton, Conn.

With the sophistication of modern radio equipment and a license, the word "ham" has almost lost its facetious connotation.

"Quite a long time ago," explained a local "ham" Robert Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Billy B. Davis, "Ship to Shore Radio Operators would have quite a bit of trouble with amateur operators... who would get on the air and 'ham it up.'"

"Everyone you talk to becomes your friend. And you get very well acquainted with some of them. But when you go to a meeting, or a convention, you might not know their face—only their radio call letters... but you do recognize them immediately by that."

The local club boasts 15 members headed by Herman Whatley as president and Paronto Poston as emergency coordinator.

The club, aside from providing a leisure-time activity, also functions as a public

US Supreme Court May Enter Texas-N.M. Toxaphene Battle

SPRINGER, N.M. (UPI)—Hidden among the waving range grass outside this small northern New Mexico town are millions of range caterpillars—ecological timebombs it now appears the U.S. Supreme Court may have to defuse.

The caterpillars, each about one inch long, for the past month have been eating away range grass that stockmen need for cattle. In past years, the insects were killed with the pesticide toxaphene. But a pollution panic by Texas officials apparently has jeopardized the use of the pesticide again.

Texas claims that toxaphene is so powerful that if a minute portion of the poison seeped into the Canadian river that cuts through the two states, it eventually could contaminate drinking water for 11 West Texas towns.

Last Thursday, Texas assistant Attorney General Roger Tyler appeared before a federal judge at Albuquerque, N.M., seeking to have the court outlaw toxaphene.

U.S. District Judge H. Vearle Payne, however, told Tyler and Amarillo, Tex., District Attorney Tom Curtis, that it was out of his jurisdiction.

"My feeling is that this court does not have jurisdiction," Payne said in dismissing Tyler's suit. "The U.S. Supreme Court is the court which should take up the issue."

The decision brought ranchers and the Texas officials to a stalemate. Reuben Pankey, head of the New Mexico Cattle Growers Association said, however, it freed ranchers to "use toxaphene if they wished."

To the cattlemen, it is a question of survival. They depend on the grass covering about 1.5 million acres for their stock. And they don't have too much time.

The problem, according to Pankey, is that there will be a point of no return in the not too distant future when caterpillar infestation will be so widespread that no pesticide will satisfactorily kill off all the insects.

The stockmen and Pankey have argued that toxaphene has been used in years past with ill effects and the chances of it polluting the Canadian River are virtually non-existent.

They say that toxaphene has been given clearance by at least one federal agency and that the insecticide dibrom, suggested as a substitute by conservationists, is erratic in results.

The state of Texas, however, and the New Mexico Game and Fish Department, both have claimed that if as little as seven-tenths of one per cent of toxaphene seeped into the Canadian River, it would kill all the fish in the Quay and Conchas lakes as well as contaminate the Texas water. The lakes are formed by the Canadian's runoff.

Although there has been no clear-cut decision on the use of toxaphene, the future for stockmen wanting to use the pesticide in any federal-state spraying program is not bright.

Earlier in the month, New Mexico Gov. David Cargo earmarked $40,000 in disaster funds to help fight the caterpillar infestation. But State Agriculture Commissioner Dallas Rierson indicated the federal government's attitude toward the poison possibly was signaled by Interior Secretary Walter Hickel earlier in June when he banned its use on all federal land.

The cattlemen's position was summed up by Pankey following Payne's decision. He said any future decision, for or

PRO: Frank Beard On The Golf Tour Tough Living

(Teeth of 12 Pieces.)
 By FRANK BEARD
 I'd like to be able to give some good advice to Steve Reid, but the only one who can help him is himself. I've never met anyone who wants more desperately to be successful on the pro tour. Steve wants to win so badly he builds up unbearable pressure on himself, then gets angry when he makes a mistake and loses his concentration.

Mechanically, he's an outstanding golfer. His problem is controlling his emotions. I'd like to see Steve do well because I know how much it means to him; I swear he'd cut off an arm if somebody promised him that'd make him a winning professional golfer.

I saw Jerry Steelsmith today, the guy I beat out for my first tournament victory six years ago. He shot 72 today and fell back to around thirtieth. He won $725. That's all he's got to show for six full weeks on the tour. "I just can't take it any more," Steelsmith told me. "I'm going to play one more week, then go home and try to find a job at a club."

Steelsmith's got natural ability.
 He's got desire. He wants to play the tour. But now he's got to go home and, to support his wife and his children, do something he doesn't really want to do.

I feel badly for Randy Glover.
 He was one of the up-and-coming young players on the tour—from 1965 through 1967, he averaged more than $30,000 a year in prize money—then last year his back started acting up, and his earnings slipped to less than $20,000, hardly enough to break even. He told me tonight that he's going to have an operation on his back. He's just 27, and his career is finished.

I know professional golf isn't a very strenuous sport, compared to football or basketball, but I swear we have more back injuries than anybody else.

I saw Don Massengale on the practice tee, and it just about broke my heart to see the way he's striking the ball. He hasn't won more than a few thousand dollars all year, and he just doesn't have a chance of getting up into the top 60. I can't understand what has happened to his game. Three years ago, he won two big tournaments—the Crosby and the Canadian Open—and now he's only 32 years old, and he looks as though he's finished. He's not making enough money out here to pay expenses. I'm afraid he's going to have to go look for a job.

I had breakfast with Jacky Cupit, a Texan about a year older than me, and then I played with Chuck Courtney, a fellow from California who's a year younger than me, and seeing Jacky and Chuck, both old friends, made me kind of think. Like me, they both won tournaments their rookie years. Like me, they both made the top 50 money-winners their rookie years.

And now both of them have problems. Jacky pulled a back muscle a couple years ago, and his earnings dropped from $50,000 in 1966 to under $20,000 in 1967 and 1968.
 Chuck's earnings dropped from $25,000 in 1967 to about $16,000 in 1968. Both of them lost their exempt status.

All the time, I live in fear of a slump like Jacky and Chuck have suffered. It can happen so quickly, without warning, to anybody. At least Jacky knows the cause of his slump—the muscle pull. Imagine how Doug Sanders feels. His tournament earnings fell from more than $110,000 in 1967 to less than $40,000 in 1968.
 He dropped from sixth place in money-winning to clear out of the top 40. It scares me. It could happen to me.

As long as there are cases like Dale Douglass and Ken Still, fellows who couldn't make a living out here and then suddenly developed into outstanding players, a lot of young boys—and their sponsors—aren't going to give up their dreams easily.

Bucs Belt Bruins

By BILL MADDEN
 UPI Sports Writer
 By sweeping both ends of a doubleheader from the Chicago Cubs Sunday, the Pittsburgh
 Pirates celebrated their Forbes Field swan song by moving to within two points of the first place New York Mets, while the slumping Cubs dropped their ninth and 10th losses in a row.

In defeating the Cubs, 3-2 and 4-1, the Pirates' now move into New York for a crucial three-game series with the Mets which could vault them into first place.

In the first game Sunday Cub reliever Phil Regan, walked home the winning Pirate run with the bases loaded in the eighth inning. Then in the second game Matty Alcu's two-run single in the fifth broke a 1-1 tie and rookie Jim Nelson combined with Dave Giusti to check the Cubs the rest of the way.

The Mets, who initiated the Cubs' current plight by sweeping them five straight in Chicago earlier in the week, fell victims to Rusty Staub's two-run homer in the ninth inning and dropped a 3-2 decision to Montreal.

At San Francisco the Giants handed a pair of losses to the slumping Atlanta Braves, 6-4, and 4-3. Alan Gallagher hit his second major league homer in the 10th inning of the first game, and Frank Johnson drove in three runs in the nightcap to give the Giants a sweep of the four-game series.

In another doubleheader, the St. Louis Cardinals and the Philadelphia Phillies traded wins, the Cards capturing the opener, 5-4, and the Phils coming back in the nightcap, 8-3. In the second game, the Phillies came up with five runs in the top of the 10th to reward Dick Selma with the win after the righthander had lost the first game.

The Los Angeles Dodgers picked up their sixth straight victory by blanking the San Diego Padres, 2-0. The Dodgers got both runs in the first inning on a walk, an error and a double by Jim Lefebvre. Alan Foster registered his fifth win of the season.

Tony Perez socked his 27th homer of the season to break up a 2-2 ball game with the Houston Astros and give Cincinnati a 3-2 triumph. The Reds swept the three-game series to stretch their win streak to five.

Gary Nolan started for the Reds, but the win went to Clay Carroll, who came on in the seventh when Nolan gave way for a pinchhitter.

Washburn's 14th homer of the year in the sixth inning provided the White Sox with an 11-10 triumph in the second game of the doubleheader with the Twins, after Rigney won his 1,000th game with the help of two homers by Harmon Killebrew, now tied with Frank

Howard for the AL lead with 20 home runs.

Chuck Dobson scattered six hits and the A's made four first-inning runs stand up for the second game win over the Brewers. Two-run homers by Bert Campaneris and Dave Duncan made the difference in the first game.

Rick Reichardt blasted a two-run pinch homer—his ninth of the year—in the 12th inning to lift the Senators to victory.
 Jake Gibbs belted a three-run homer and Roy White added a two-run blast to pace the Yankees in the nightcap, after Carl Yastrzemski's three-run homer carried the Red Sox to the first game victory.

Twins' Rigney Wins 1,000th Game As Minnesota Splits With Chisox

By FRANK DE GEORGES
 UPI Sports Writer
 Bill Rigney, who notched his 1,000th victory as a major league manager Sunday, knows that the second thousand are the hardest. That's why he's willing to settle for only 62 more wins.

Rigney became the 28th manager in history to reach the 1,000 mark when his Minnesota
 Twins whipped the Chicago White Sox, 9-1, in the opener of a doubleheader. Chicago won the nightcap, 11-10.

"I don't know whether I'll be around for another thousand," the 52-year-old Rigney said,
 "but I'd sure like to get at least 62 more. That, plus the 43 wins we already have should give us the title in the Western Division."

The Twins are currently leading the division by three games.

In other American League action, Oakland swept a pair from Milwaukee by identical 4-1 scores, Washington topped Baltimore, 4-3, New York split a pair with Boston, with the Red Sox taking the opener, 5-3, and the Yankees coming back in the nightcap, 8-2. Kansas City and California divided a doubleheader, California winning the first game, 2-1, and Kansas City capturing the second, 13-1, and Cleveland won the first game of a twin bill with Detroit, 8-2, with the Tigers retaliating in the nightcap, 5-1.

Pampa Increases Legion Standard With 2 Victories

Pampa's American Legion baseball team increased its record to 4-2 with a pair of victories over the weekend.

Host Groom fell to the Rebels Saturday, 15-10, and Perryton surrendered, 7-6, Sunday at Optimist Park.

Randy Stevens, who relieved
 Steve Scott in the fourth Saturday, allowed only two hits the rest of the way to subdue Groom. Tommy Hawkins led the Rebels at the plate with a double and a triple.

Dan Hood drilled a single to score John Jenkins from third to give Pampa the victory over Perryton in the final frame.
 Jenkins reached third after singling and advancing on Ross

Devlin Praises Rain After Cleveland Win

By STEVE MORROW
 AURORA, Ohio (UPI)—Raindrops fell on the head of Bruce Devlin and brought with them a $30,000 check.

The 32-year-old Australian pro golfer took first-prize money in the $150,000 Cleveland Open, and he said he was thankful for the rain storm that postponed the second round of the tournament.

"I was three over par for the seven holes I played Friday, and I was three under par for the same holes when we played them over again," Devlin said.
 Friday's round, which was washed out, was played Saturday and the final 36 holes of the tournament were played Sunday.

"That rain saved me six shots," he said.

Youth Without A Garden

Every schoolboy knows—or used to know—the story of how the Greek mathematician Archimedes calmly continued drawing figures in the sand even as Roman troops broke into the city of Syracuse, Sicily, in 212 B.C.

In a somewhat more modern setting, points out Don Oakley of Newspaper Enterprise Assn., in a scene from a work of fiction but nevertheless true to life, the beloved Mr. Chips continued instructing a class of boys in Latin even as German bombs exploded outside.

Such Archimedean or Chipian detachment and inner calm and determination to let nothing interfere with the really important things used to be considered admirable.

Today, Mr. Chips' Latin class would hoot the old dodderer out of the room with choice Anglo-Saxon epithets.

This spring a writer railed in the student newspaper at the University of California in Berkeley about those professors:

... who refuse to be flexed. He, who refuse to allow their students to reconstitute (that is, take over) their classes, who in the face of Napoleon and National Guard killings in Kent and Augusta, Ga., have the irresponsible self-righteousness to demand that he be allowed to continue to teach Shakespeare and calculus.

Undoubtedly, this student, assuming he has ever heard of Archimedes or Mr. Chips, would point out that the first was run through by a Roman sword and that the second deserved to be the teaching a subject even less relevant than Shakespeare.

Yet what time hasn't been a time of crisis, and when hasn't it been "irresponsible self-righteousness" to demand that learning go on as usual? No matter how much upheaval there is outside the ivory tower, someone has to mind the store.

H. L. Hunt Writes

Evidence continues to mount that the Office of Economic Opportunity (O.E.O.), in charge of the "war on poverty," is still providing funds for militants and revolutionaries. In spite of this evidence the Senate recently approved a two-year extension of the "poverty war," along with an appropriation of $4.8 billion.

A few Senators were able to make some beneficial changes in the legislation. Senator Murphy of California successfully carried an amendment to give state governors an item veto over O.E.O. "legal services." Members of the farleft have used federal money to bring court suits on behalf of revolutionaries and to harass government officials. Murphy's amendment would enable state governors to stop this activity.

Senator Dominick of Colorado introduced an amendment to reduce the appropriation by $292 million. The amendment was approved by a vote of 47 to 38.

But slight limitations on O.E.O. power and small reductions in its appropriations are not enough. The program should be ended altogether. It's foolish to give $4.8 billion to an agency which hires individuals with communist connections, as recently happened in Chicago, and which distributes a manual advocating rioting as a means for achieving "community action goals." The manual, "Trainer's Manual for Community Action Agency Boards," was distributed to every O.E.O. regional office without the knowledge of O.E.O. director Donald Rumsfeld.

There is no indication that the Office of Economic Opportunity can be reformed. It is dominated by militants and their sympathizers who will continue to use government funds to advance their own cause. The O.E.O. should be eliminated, the sooner the better.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economic and political issues which will not injure anyone.)

QUESTION: — Is it true that the country is rapidly moving to the "right" and "Fascism"?

ANSWER: — The terms left and right and fascist mean little. From the results of elections it would appear that more people are concerned at the drift of the country toward totalitarian controls. If that is true, then one might say the country is slowing down the drift toward socialism and fascism. It has not truly taken any steps to reverse the trend, so we would say there was no movement to the "right."

Generally, the term "left" is applied to those advocating more collectivist economic control over the lives of individuals. Those on the right seem to want less economic control over the lives of individuals.

Some people use the terms "liberal" and "conservative." These again are confusing terms. Ambrose Pierce once wrote that a conservative is enamored of the present evils, and a liberal wants to replace those evils with others.

From long observation, we would say the bulk of "conservatives" want fewer economic controls, but more personal controls over individuals; while the bulk of those calling themselves "liberals" favor fewer personal controls and more economic controls over the lives of others.

Fascism generally is an attempt to use aggression against others in order to force those others to conform to their views. The most powerful fascist governments were those of Hitler and Mussolini. Both were nationalistic and socialistic and repressive. The nearest we have seen to fascist activities in the United States have been by collectivist seeking to impose their ideas on others. Some have been of the so-called left and some have been of the so-called right.

Brezhnev Under Fire Over Reds' Role In The Mideast

By LEON DENNEN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (NEA)—The sale of American jet warplanes to Israel will restore the balance of military power in the Middle East and thus lessen the danger of another fullscale war.

Equally important, it will tell Moscow unmistakably that the United States and the NATO allies will not stand idly by while the Russians increase their military activity in Egypt and naval expansion in the Mediterranean.

A firm Western policy in the Middle East is long overdue. In the view of specialists on Russia. It may even strengthen the "doves" in the Kremlin who are believed opposed to the "adventurous" policy of Russia's Communist chief Leonid Brezhnev.

According to some East European diplomats, a considerable group in the all-powerful Soviet Politburo is convinced that Brezhnev's policy of brinkmanship is weakening Russia's international position.

The Kremlin "doves" apparently see Russia as overextended in the Middle East and Southeast Asia at a time when the country is in the midst of a grave economic crisis.

They fear that Moscow's airmen and "military advisers" in the Middle East are rapidly slipping into the situation that overtook their American counterparts in South Vietnam.

Belatedly, they are also beginning to realize that the Middle East and the Mediterranean, unlike Indochina, are not an exclusively American or Israeli problem.

Moscow's policy in the area is as such a threat to France, Italy, Turkey and Greece as it is to such Yugoslavia, Romania and Yugoslavia, Romania and Abania.

Brezhnev's opponents are said to include younger members of the Politburo like Aleksandr Shelepin and top Red army officers, who see Red China as Russia's only important enemy.

They were particularly shocked by the latest attempt of leftist Palestinian guerrillas to depose Jordan's King Hussein that revealed the extent of Mao Tse-tung's influence in the Middle East.

There was a time when all factions in the Kremlin would have welcomed the replacement of Hussein with a "revolutionary" puppet. They hoped that continuing unrest in the Middle East would strengthen the "progressive" forces within the Arab countries.

But now the "progressives" of the various terrorist groups stand revealed as agents of Peking.

The Doctor Says

Hazards Involved In Going Barefoot

Going barefoot is a thrill for most youngsters but thousands of them have suffered severe burns on their feet by stepping on coals dumped from an outdoor barbecue grill. They can even get a painful burn by stepping on the hot pavement at noon on a sunny summer day. Broken glass, sharp stones or cinders, tacks, nails and jagged tin are lavishly and thoughtlessly distributed in our environment. For these reasons, your toddler should not go barefoot unless you can watch him every minute, and your older child should not go barefoot unless he thoroughly understands the hazards involved.

Q—Our son, 4, has had a fever for two years. Most of the time it is 100.6 by rectum. A thorough checkup in the hospital was negative except for a staphylococcal infection as revealed by a stool culture. He has been treated once a week for this but still has the fever. What do you advise?

A—A temperature of 100.6 rectally (99.6 by mouth) isn't much of a fever and, in a child who appears to be healthy, it may be entirely normal. The finding of staphylococci in the stool may well be an unrelated finding. It should be easily eliminated by two weeks of appropriate treatment.

When you check your son's temperature, you should do so only after he has been quiet for 30 minutes. Normal activity often raises a child's oral temperature to 100 or more.

Q—Our son, 9, has had many ear infections since birth. When he was 3 we noticed a loss of hearing. Is it possible for him to outgrow this tendency to ear infections?

A—He will not outgrow his infections but, if drainage of the infected ear is combined with vigorous treatment with antibiotics, a cure should be possible. After that, he will have to avoid swimming and poking anything in his ear to clean the canal. Whenever he gets a cold, he will have to have prompt treatment to keep the eustachian tubes open. He will be better off to give up all ideas of traveling by air. If his hearing does not improve, he should wear a hearing aid.

Please send your questions and comments to Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D., in care of this paper. While Dr. Brandstadt cannot answer individual letters, he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

Budget Squeeze Reviving Inter-Service In-Fighting

ROBERT ALLEN

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon's budget squeeze is apparently causing a revival of old inter-service rivalries which have been mostly dormant in recent years.

With the money pie to be baked a little smaller, the armed services are becoming more interested in the other guy's slice. Already there are indications that some of the service brass are less than enthusiastic about weapons planned for other services.

Insiders report, for example, that Navy and Air Force staff officers are noticeably cooling on the Army's Safeguard antiballistic missile system. On the other hand, the Navy may face renewed opposition from the other services to its aircraft carrier plans.

Maneuvering for the most part behind the scenes, some Navy operators have already tried unsuccessfully to have their projected F-14 fighter approved for the Air Force, instead of the projected F-15. That would have reduced the unit cost for Navy purchases.

By next year it appears that the Nixon Administration will have trimmed Pentagon spending by some $9 billion a year to about $70 billion. Much of the reduction has been in reduced Army manpower, and the other services will almost certainly acquiesce in further force cuts.

The climate is beginning to resemble that which prevailed after World War II and into the 1950s. It has not yet reached the point where the services propagandize more or less publicly against one another.

COMPETE, OR COMPLETE? — One intra-Pentagon dispute could reach that stage, however. It involves Army plans for the Cheyenne helicopter and Air Force plans for the A-X, a single-seat subsonic attack plane.

Both aircraft are designed to provide close support for ground troops. So the two programs reopen an old controversy: does the Army or the Air Force have the job, or "mission," of supporting troops with tactical air strikes?

That question has been compromised in a number of agreements and directives over the years. This time Deputy Defense Secretary David Packard has stated that the two aircraft are "complementary not competitive" and that is the official line.

Gen. William Westmoreland and Air Force Secretary Robert C. Seamans Jr. followed it in recent congressional testimony. Both took the view that both weapons would be useful employed.

However, the Air Force praised the A-X, as against currently available helicopter gunships. It conceded that A-X could not take off vertically as helicopters do but said "in every other close air support aspect it is far superior."

That last was not exactly an endorsement for Cheyenne, and Air Force spokesmen have been much more outspoken in their private comments to individual congressional leaders. Last week the Senate Armed Services Committee deleted development funds for Cheyenne from the annual military procurement bill.

It was another set-back for Cheyenne, which was removed from the Pentagon's procurement program last year because of unsolved technical problems in its rotor system.

ALSO MANPOWER — Complicating the controversy over close air support is the fact that the Marine Corps is buying a plane of its own. The Marines' air support plane is the Harrier — a V-STOL aircraft, one designed for almost vertical take-off and landing with the use of rotating jet engines.

Harrier is a British plane, built by Hawker-Siddeley, and that has caused some congressional concern. The Marines have therefore arranged that Harriers be assembled under license in the United States — at an additional cost of $1.4 million for each of 18 planes.

Resurgent controversies of this sort can make life difficult for Adm. Thomas Moorer, who takes over next week as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. In that capacity he will be expected to shelve the Navy interests, which he pressed as chief of Naval operations, and seek to bring his colleagues to a malleable agreement on weapons plans.

Some Pentagon experts think revived service rivalries constitute one of two problems which will be increasingly difficult for Moorer.

The other is a different sort, the manpower problem: how to keep the armed services supplied with experienced officers and enlisted men at a time when an unpopular war casts an unpleasant shadow over military careers.

PAUL HARVEY NEWS

Pressure Provokes Pressure

By PAUL HARVEY

When President Nixon goes on TV to explain his Indochina policy, he seems to be making a lot of sense.

But later, you get to mulling over this entire involvement and it doesn't make sense at all.

I did not say that. The Wall Street Journal — usually entirely friendly to this Administration — said it. Why?

The Administration's best friends are becoming disenchanted with the Vietnamese war since the Cambodian operation.

We chased the enemy from the border sanctuaries into Cambodia's interior where they became a larger menace to that government.

We were assured that the Cambodian intrusion would shorten the war and facilitate our withdrawal. Now it appears so many South Vietnamese may have to stay in Cambodia that it may lengthen the war. So far it has retarded — not accelerated — our own troop withdrawal rate.

Now former Hawks, of the stature of Georgia's Sen. Herman Talmadge, are switching.

Talmadge says the United States is overcommitted militarily, economically and politically throughout the world. He says the burden of trying to carry on a war in Southeast Asia is too great, too disruptive, too costly for our own country.

He urges that we get all our troops altogether out of all Indochina — this year.

Sen. Richard Russell, longtime respected voice in military affairs, also "broke with the President's policy" after Cambodia.

Whatever the President might do with respect to such a sensitive consideration as this, you'd expect carping and criticizing from the political left.

But The Wall Street Journal and the customarily conservative senators from Georgia are usually found on the political right.

The Administration can't dismiss these as either left-wing agitators or liberal intellectuals.

But the very fact that President Nixon's policy sounds so plausible when he explains it on television demonstrates the effectiveness of the old arguments in favor of "those nations and peoples who rely on America's power and treaty commitments for their security — in Latin America, Europe, the Middle East, other parts of Asia."

As we say in the Missouri Ozarks, let's shuck right down to the cob. Most everyone, in the Administration and out, now concedes that it was a mistake to involve American troops in a land war in Asia.

Most everyone agrees that we must disengage ourselves. We say we'll give in on everything except "self-determination" for the people of South Vietnam.

They don't have self-determination now; they have a military dictatorship.

As have Peru, Panama, Bolivia, Brazil, Uruguay — in our own home hemisphere.

But wouldn't a multiplicity of land wars involving our forces in Latin America be pretty silly?

Paul Harvey, are you suggesting we should just pick up and leave Indochina as is? I don't think there's any argument about that. The only questions are how soon and how many die first.

15 SILENT MINUTES

Shriver Visits Memorial To His Brother-In-Law

DALLAS (UPI) — Sargent Shriver spent 15 silent minutes Saturday at the newly dedicated memorial to his late brother-in-law, former President John F. Kennedy.

The simple concrete structure, dedicated Thursday, stands in a small mall about a block from the intersection of Elm and Houston streets, the site of Kennedy's assassination Nov. 22, 1963.

Shriver paused in front of the memorial, then walked inside and remained for about 10 minutes. He came back outside and described it to a small crowd as "an impressive tribute to the genius of John F. Kennedy."

The former ambassador to Brazil and aide to Kennedy during his administration walked about four blocks east on Main Street, the route of the Kennedy motorcade in 1963, to the memorial. He was accompanied by Dallas Mayor Erik Jonsson and the head of the memorial commission, John Schoellkopf.

Shriver spent most of his time inside the memorial looking at a large black marble slab inscribed with Kennedy's name. Several times he looked up at blue sky through the concrete shell.

Minutes later at a press conference he said, "This memorial which has been created by the citizens of Dallas is a very impressive tribute to the genius of John F. Kennedy and to the architect who created it (Philip Johnson, a close friend of Kennedy)."

Shriver said it captured the finest qualities of John Kennedy.

"The freedom... the openness... the availability... the clarity of his personality are exemplified, I think, extremely well in the memorial. It's open to the sky, yet planted firmly on the earth.

"It's open to people yet when you get inside of it there's a warmth that comes from the enclosure... the feeling that you are being held very gently within something."

Shriver was the closest member to the Kennedy family to see the memorial.

New Abortion Law To Begin In New York City

NEW YORK (UPI)—Seven-unmarried girls will be eligible for abortions in New York City when the state's liberalized abortion law goes into effect next Wednesday, it was announced Friday.

At the same time, Blue Cross of Greater New York announced it will pay cash benefits to subscribers for abortions performed in member hospitals. Blue Cross also announced that for the first time it will provide maternity benefits for single females, including dependent children of subscribers. Blue Shield was expected to follow suit.

Blue Cross covers hospital bills and Blue Shield covers doctors' bills. It was estimated that cash payments for abortions would range up to $150 for Blue Cross and up to $100 for Blue Shield when approved.

Officials of city hospitals said abortions would be performed without parental consent if the patient is married, "emancipated," or at least 17 years old. It was noted the new state law does not have age limitations.

The new law, passed recently in Albany after an emotional legislative battle, repealed the old measure that allowed abortions only in the event the patient's life was endangered. Pickup 5th pgh: By "emancipated."

New York School Principal Beaten

NEW YORK (UPI) — A 65-year-old public school principal was beaten Friday by five men who got past his secretary by claiming to be photographers for Newsweek magazine.

Dr. Harry H. Lutzer received 17 stitches in his head and three in his left thumb following the beating about 11:30 a.m. at his Brooklyn school office.

He was released from Cumberland Hospital following the emergency treatment.

The stocky, bespectacled principal said one of the men hit him with a cane and another struck him repeatedly with "a long stick."

Police said all five assailants were black, well-dressed and had long sideburns. Lutzer, who is white, is completing his 13th year as principal of the predominantly black school.

He was recently involved in an incident in which a parent charged that Lutzer had assaulted a child.

House Expected To Override President's Veto On Hospital Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For the first time in a decade, the Senate is expected this Tuesday to follow the House in overriding a presidential veto.

At issue is a $2.7 billion bill for hospital construction grants and loans.

On Thursday, the House voted 279-98 to override the veto of the politically popular measure, an extension of the Hill-Burton Hospital Construction Act. The margin met the constitutional requirement of a two-thirds vote.

The Senate must also muster a two-thirds vote if it is to override the veto.

Nixon vetoed the bill last Tuesday after denouncing as "fiscal irresponsibility" its mandatory requirement that he spend all health program money Congress might later appropriate.

Nixon also disliked the fact the bill authorized $350 million more than he had budgeted.

Shortly before the House action, Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., who supports Nixon, said if the House voted to override, "it will be very difficult, very difficult" for the Senate to do otherwise.

If the Senate action puts the bill into law, Nixon will become the first chief executive since President Dwight D. Eisenhower to have a veto overridden.

Move Didn't Shorten War, Mansfield Says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said Saturday that no matter what claims President Nixon may make in a report to the nation next week he doubts the American incursion into Cambodia has shortened the war.

"Once you start in," Mansfield said in an interview "you're going to find it extremely difficult to get out—as Vietnam should have proved to us over the years."
