Residents will have chance to question candidates at Monday forum

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

Getting to know what the people who want to represent you are all about is the reason for Monday night's Concerned Women For America (CWFA) candidates forum.

The forum is set to begin at 7 p.m. at the St. Paul Lutheran Church Fellowship Hall and lasts until 9 p.m.

Carroll Kohl, pastor of St. Paul Lutheran Church, will moderate the event and questions of the candidates will be presented by a panel of local residents.

Luan Stallings, a long-time member of CWFA, the largest women's group in the U.S., said,

"We're a non-partisan organization and decided this was a good opportunity to get the word out about our organization and give people a chance to ask questions of the candidates who want to represent them."

MCLAUGHLIN

"This forum is primarily to get information out and then have our women pray for our nation and our families. One of the primary focuses of Concerned Women For America is the family - things to do with our children and education," Stallings said. Because of time constraints, only candidates running for the 17th Congressional District seat, District 70 State representative seat and the vacated District 28 State Senate seat will be represented.

COUNTS

"We didn't want to get too spread out. It wasn't that we didn't want local candidates, but there are six candidates running for the District 28 State Senate seat and we have commitments from District 70 State Rep. David McLaughlin, as well as from 17th District Congressional challenger Rudy Izzard," CWFA member Deede Cauley said.

As of Friday morning, Cauley said she was still awaiting confirmation from Congressman Charles Stenholm, who was trying to resolve a scheduling conflict in order to attend Monday's forum.

Residents attending the forum will get a chance to write down questions and present them to the panel of questioners.

Howard County Republican Party Chairman Lanny Hamby said Monday's forum will be a great time for citizens to size up all of the candidates.

"I don't know of an event that's bringing this many candidates together. This is an excellent chance to look at all the candidates. I'm excited about how many candidates from out of the county will be here," Hamby said.

Joining Stallings and Cauley as the CWFA hostess committee are CWFA members Diane Fox, Teri Blackshear, Janet Wolfe, Ginger Cook, Cookie Elliot, Suzanne Haney, Marjorie Goodwin, Helen Priddy, Millie Cunningham, Marilyn Read and Dian Griffin.

Big Spring residents will also have another chance this week to see and hear Congressional candidate Rudy Izzard.

Izzard is also making a three-day campaign swing through the 17th Congressional District, Tuesday through Thursday, stopping in Big Spring at 10 a.m. Thursday.

IZZARD

Izzard will arrive in Big Spring from Lamesa to have a town hall meeting in the county courtroom of the Howard County Courthouse from 10:05 a.m. to 10:55 a.m. before leaving for San Angelo at 11 a.m.

Court of appeals still hasn't heard Edmondson case

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

It is still undetermined when a state appeals court will hear the case of Levy Lee Edmondson Jr.

The 11th District Court of Appeals in Eastland recently granted Edmondson's lawyer more time to file a statement of facts prior to the appeal.

The statement of facts is the court reporter's transcription of trial testimony.

EDMONDSON

Edmondson is currently serving a life sentence for the murder of Department of Public Safety trooper Troy Hogue.

A spokeswoman at the appeals court said the statement was supposed to be filed Sept. 12, and has been received since the court granted the extra time last week.

No date for Edmondson's appeal will be set until both sides file their briefs on the matter the spokeswoman said.

Paul Williams, the Midland attorney handling Edmondson's appeal, said he will seek another extension before filing his appeals brief with the Eastland court.

"We've applied for the deadline to be extended, because this is a larger and more involved case than what is usual," Williams said.

Assuming the Eastland court grants Williams' request, it could be November before the appeal is heard, he said.

Edmondson received his life sentence after being convicted in 118th District Court last year of fatally shooting Hogue during a traffic stop on Interstate 20 near Sand Springs on Dec. 30, 1994. Testimony showed Hogue died from a single gunshot wound to the head.

On July 27, 1995, a six-man, six-woman jury deliberated about three hours before finding Edmondson guilty of capital murder in the case. The jury then came up one vote short of sentencing Edmondson to death, opting for life imprisonment instead.

IT CAN'T GET ANY BETTER THAN THIS

Kendall Awtry and Rachel Monsey participated in the Bass Club fishing tournament at Comanche Trail Lake Saturday. They were enjoying free hot dogs served after the tournament. "Only a couple of kids caught anything, but every kid really tried," said Linda Burchett, an organizer.

Blood samples for Alzheimer's DNA research to be taken in Big Spring

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

Recent news about genetics testing has increased awareness about the various research projects concerning the devastating Alzheimer's disease. This has prompted a second round of DNA testing dates in the Permian Basin.

Dr. Shirley E. Podulso of the Texas Tech Health Sciences Center in Lubbock visited the Permian Basin in May, including Big Spring, and added more than 200 new donors to the center's research bank.

Additional blood samples for the Alzheimer's DNA Research Bank will be collected for the Permian Basin area in Odessa, Midland and Big Spring on three dates in October and November.

Podulso's visit is to allow people who did not get a chance to participate in May to become involved with this research effort. Persons interested in participating should call for an appointment in the city most convenient for them.

Family history forms are available early in order for potential participants to have more time for consideration of facts which may be helpful.

For the study, two tubes of blood are drawn from patients and members of their families including spouses, children and their spouses, and grandchildren. The research being conducted is to determine which gene, or genes, may cause Alzheimer's disease.

Blood samples will be collected in Odessa from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 15, at the Holiday Inn Parkway. For an appointment or forms, contact Steve Rodgers at (915)334-6800.

The Midland collection date is 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 22. Samples will be collected at the Westwood Medical Center. For an appointment or forms, contact Alzheimer's Association Executive Director Gail Harmon at (915)570-9191.

Big Spring's sampling date will be 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 5, at Nurses Unlimited. For appointments contact Silvia Casas at (915)263-

Big Spring resident brings home gold medal

By STEVE REAGAN

Don't let his wheelchair fool you - James McDiffitt is an accomplished athlete, and he has a gold medal to prove it.

The Big Spring native scored big at the recent National Golden Age Games in Loma Linda, Calif., taking home a gold medal in bowling.

McDiffitt was one of several Big Spring residents who competed and won medals at the 10th annual games, which are co-sponsored by the Veteran's Administration and Veterans of Foreign Wars. The competition was open to all U.S. military veterans aged 55 or over who receive medical care from the Department of Veterans Affairs.

Other local residents winning medals at the competition included Lloyd Lindsey (gold in both wheelchair bowling and shuffleboard), Wallace Ringo (gold in visually impaired dominoes, silver in visually impaired horseshoes and bronze in visually impaired shuffleboard), Elmer Smith (bronze in croquet) and Gary Kistler (bronze in shuffleboard). Also, local Marine Corps veteran Al Scott competed shuffleboard and 33-year freestyle swimming.

McDiffitt, who served in the U.S. Air Force from 1952-56 and served at Webb AFB in Big Spring, said he thoroughly enjoyed the event.

James McDiffitt prepares to bowl during the National Golden Age Games in California. McDiffitt brought home the gold for his efforts.

"It was a great learning experience," he said. "It was the first competition I ever entered ... and I found it to be nice, educational and everything else."

Official says vandalism not directed at elderly

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

The director of the Canterbury retirement homes in Big Spring believes last week's vandalism spree that left several residents' vehicles damaged was not an act of violence directed at the elderly.

JoAnne Hyer, executive director at Canterbury, said things have been quiet at the retirement community since last week's vandalism that left the tires on about seven vehicles damaged.

"Most of the damage was just punctures and was repaired without having to be replaced," Hyer said.

Vandals struck the Canterbury North building the night of Sept. 13 or early the next morning. Residents found tires on several vehicles slashed as well as toilet paper wrapped around one of the trees on the east side of the complex.

Police are still investigating the crime.

Several residents' family members expressed outrage at the incidents, but Hyer doesn't believe the vandalism was directed toward elderly people in general.

"It's not the first vandalism we've had here, but it's the first we've had in a long, long time," she said. "I do think it was an isolated incident and not some

TxDOT employees compete in rodeo

James Gilbert and Gerald Dunlap, Howard County maintenance section employees for the Texas Department of Transportation, competed in the recent TxDOT district rodeo in Abilene.

"TxDOT's idea of a rodeo is a little different as one might imagine," said Lauren Garduno, Abilene district manager for the department. "In our rodeo, we don't ride 1,200-pound horses, we wrangle 7 1/2-ton dump trucks. Employees are challenged to steer trucks down long, winding and narrow passages; and, instead of seeing who has the best time in an event, they compete to see who can stop closest to a stop line and an alley dock."

Gilbert, a traffic signal repair technician, earned the right to compete at the district level by taking first place in the Howard County rodeo. Dunlap replaced Jimmy Clayton, who finished second in the county event but was unable to compete at district.

There were 33 entrees from the 13-county Abilene district competing at the event.

added. A spinal injury suffered in a 1971 automobile accident left McDuffitt, 65, a paraplegic, but that proved to be no obstacle at the Golden Games. In fact, the biggest problem he faced in Loma Linda came from the media.

"They had so many photographers flashing pictures in my face that I couldn't tell you how many (people I competed against)," he said. "But there were a lot, I can tell you that."

Proud Citizens corner ...

The Proud Citizens of Big Spring, Inc. owe many thanks to many people. We especially owe a big thank you to the Big Spring Herald. Not only for our Sunday Corner but so many ways they have helped us to get the message out to clean up our city. When we first began, I went to Chuck Williams and told him my dreams, goals and plans. Immediately he said "What can we do to help". We began with several articles explaining what and how we planned to work. Also many Editorials, pictures and articles of support were written. Soon we qualified to become Keep Texas Beautiful Proud Community. Eventually, Proud Citizens accepted responsibility for the Recycle Dumpster on the Herald parking lot, again Chuck's help was given. Proceeds from this dumpster helps with utilities for our headquarters.

Only last week, Jim White, the new Advertising Manager, stepped across the street to tell me that he and his wife would be helping us when they got settled. I was so touched, I cried.

Our very special thanks go to all the Herald staff for all their help. You are truly Reflecting a Proud Community. Thank you very much.

the man I most admired. Since I wanted to grow up to be like my dad, I was always looking for someone like him to be my friend.

Fortunately, I was blessed with several who served as mentors and taught me what my dad would have had he lived.

Today, I am 51, and while I mentor others, I am still very close to two mentors of my own. May I pass on some advice from one who transformed the quality of my life and my mother's too:

I have the best mom in the world. She's tough as a water buffalo, opinionated, thinks I could have been president and still nags me to eat more vegetables.

Three years ago, my mentor suggested I call my mother every day just to hear her voice, to let her hear mine, to hear about her day — and tell her that I love her.

I eat one meal a week with Mom, usually dinner, but sometimes lunch or breakfast. This past week, I didn't get a chance to share a meal with her, and since she was leaving town Friday morning with an elderly friend, I drove over to see her Thursday night. While there, she asked me to review her map from AAA, and we spent about 20 minutes looking it over. Before I left, Mom told me how relieved she was that we had looked over the route and that I knew where she was going.

The last time I was there, I changed two batteries in her garage door opener, and the time before, I used the blower to clean out her garage and she served me a delicious pot roast.

Today I have a priceless relationship with my mom, thanks to the advice of my mentor. I'm as attentive to her as my father would be if he were alive — I am indeed my father's son.

Diana Ross was right. You can reach out and touch someone, and in so doing, change their world — and yours too. —

Prepositioning key to U.S. defense strategy in the Persian Gulf

WASHINGTON (AP) — The last of 12 flights of Kuwait-bound, Fort Hood soldiers departed Saturday morning from Robert Gray Army Airfield.

About 3,000 soldiers were deployed beginning Wednesday to join 1,200 Fort Hood soldiers who have been in Kuwait since August.

The 3,500 Army tank crewmen deploying from Fort Hood to Kuwait walked aboard chartered jets with just their own rifles and knapsacks.

Where was the heavy armor? Already in Kuwait as part of a massive U.S. supply strategy known as "prepositioning."

Pentagon doctrine dictates that volatile regions such as the Persian Gulf cannot remain undefended for the 26 days it would take to ship tanks nearly 9,000 miles to the battlefield. Moreover, despite an impressive looking fleet of cargo aircraft, the military lacks the capacity to fly sufficient U.S.-based forces into battle.

Instead, the United States has convinced allies such as Kuwait and Qatar to permit storage of substantial heavy supplies — tanks, armored personnel carriers, howitzers, ammunition and fuel.

"This military presence provides the deterrence that spares this region from another Gulf War," Defense Secretary William Perry said recently. "I believe prepositioning is a key to our defense strategy in the Gulf."

Prepositioning means the military can, in a matter of days, dispatch troops by air to distant regions to "marry up" with their heavy equipment and get into battle quickly. It harkens to the dictum of the Confederate cavalry Gen. Nathan Bedford Forrest of "getting there firstest with the mostest."

"The general concept behind having prepositioned equipment is so that our people can do exactly what we did this week — deploy to the theater without having to take 26 days to get stuff there by sea," said Air Force Lt. Col. Nino Fabiano, spokesman for the U.S. Central Command, the military headquarters responsible for the Gulf region. "We just simply couldn't do it by air."

Army deployment plans envision putting a battalion task force of 60 tanks into the field in 24 hours. The lead division would be in place within 12 days of a crisis breaking out, with two more following 18 days later.

This force, of course, is far short of the 500,000-man Army the Persian Gulf War coalition launched against Iraq. It represents what Andrew Krepinevich of the Center for Strategic and Budgetary Assessments calls a "trip-wire" force.

"It indicates to a prospective adversary that if they commit aggression, American blood is likely to be spilled and in that case the prospect for American intervention in the war is far higher," Krepinevich said.

The military has been prepositioning equipment in Europe and Korea for decades, dating back to the Cold War strategy of moving "10 divisions in 10 days" into fighting position in Europe, according to the Army's Center for Military History.

Since the end of the Cold War, the reduction in the size of the active-duty force created a huge surplus of weapons, some of which have now become part of the supply base for prepositioning, Krepinevich said.

The practice is not without its downside.

Prepositioning depends on the permission of host nations, and, as the Pentagon discovered in the most recent scrape with Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein, that permission is not always forthcoming.

As adversaries improve their missile accuracy, the huge military supply dumps may become vulnerable targets.

"There is going to be, over time, a substantially growing risk to this approach to using prepositioned equipment as a deterrent," Krepinevich said.

Nor is prepositioning enough. "You need the triad of airlift, sealift and prepo," Army Gen. Binford Peay III, chief of Central Command, told lawmakers last year.

Attorney general says federal rental truck safety regulations needed

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Dan Morales says federal lawmakers will have to take steps to help Texas and other states make more safe the self-move, rental truck industry.

In a letter to Congressman Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, Morales said there's an "enormous regulatory loophole" allowing unsafe rental trucks on the country's roads.

"There does not appear to be much regulation of these trucks at any level," Morales wrote. "Those who rent these trucks tend to be inexperienced as truck drivers, and deserve the protection offered by safe, well-maintained vehicles."

Morales and Doggett focused attention on the industry in Texas after media reports earlier this year about unsafe trucks. Doggett asked Morales to investigate.

Morales, reporting to Doggett about the ongoing investigation, said federal law does not affect most rental trucks because they weigh less than 10,000 pounds and are not considered commercial vehicles.

He also said state safety inspection laws affect only those trucks licensed in Texas and larger trucks that transport hazardous materials.

"Many trucks currently in use in Texas are not licensed here and thus are not subject to state inspection," he wrote. "Since so many of the trucks on Texas roads are registered in other states, it appears the only way to protect Texans is to subject all self-move rental trucks to more thorough regulation."

Evelyn Knolle, Doggett's press secretary, said, "We thought asking the attorney general was the first step in addressing the problem. But we will take a look at it. It's an issue that the congressman is concerned about. He is very concerned about it. Obviously, action is needed."

Ron Dusek, a spokesman for Morales, said the attorney general has not given up his efforts to clean up the industry. But Dusek said it is clear federal regulation will be needed.

"The public exposure of this problem has caused these companies to attempt to fix whatever safety problems they have," he said. "That may only be a temporary fix. There has to be a law that requires them to maintain their vehicles."

Dusek said legal steps that can be taken against companies that maintain unsafe trucks are limited because state and federal laws on the subject also are limited.

Operation targets drugs in government housing

FORT WORTH (AP) — A three-month undercover operation targeting drug dealers at public housing projects or government-subsidized housing has netted the arrests of about 100 people on narcotics charges.

The Fort Worth Police Department teamed up with agents of the Housing and Urban Development, Office of the Inspector General, on the investigation dubbed Operation Safehome II. About 60 police officers and four federal agents took part in an arrest sweep that nabbed about 50 people.

Throughout the operation, there were 100 arrests, with 163 charges. Of those, 130 were felony charges, 80 of which were narcotics charges. There were 33 misdemeanor charges, 13 of which involved narcotics.

Officials seized more than $28,000 in illegally obtained money, firearms, and property. More than $6,000 worth of drugs also was seized.

Lt. Mark Krey, a Fort Worth police spokesman, said Operation Safehome II was brought about by the people living in the complexes, who complained about drug dealers in their neighborhoods.

"It assists in beautifying the complexes and it rids the citizens that live in a government housing complex from the criminal element that preys on these folks," he said.

"Often individuals that live in housing complexes have limited options and are easily tempted by money or the money that can be made by illegal narcotics transactions," Krey added.

The operation targeted public housing developments as well as participants in Section Eight housing, who do not necessarily live in housing developments.

A similar operation was held last year in Fort Worth and Dallas, Krey said, and HUD has funded like operations throughout the country.

Federal funds went toward overtime costs, leased unmarked police cars and money to buy narcotics.

Krey said they might get funds to continue the operation. "We're hopeful and fairly confident that the funds that were made available the past two years will be renewed," he said.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

Training could have left TWA Flight 800 residue

SMITHTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — The revelation TWA Flight 800 was used to train bomb-sniffing dogs a month before the airliner went down could explain traces of explosive residue found on the plane, making it harder to prove a bomb destroyed the aircraft, a source said.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation said the Boeing 747 jumbo jet was used in June to train bomb-sniffing dogs, and government officials said the explosives in those exercises could account for the traces of chemical residue found on recovered wreckage.

Officials call for closing of academy

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S.-run academy for Latin American military officers used training manuals that contained references to executions, beatings and other human rights abuses, the Pentagon says in a disclosure that prompted renewed calls for the school's closing.

The Pentagon released English translations of some of the phrases officials said were contained in the original Spanish-language manuals used at the U.S. Army's School of the Americas from 1987 to 1991.

FDA issues guidelines on animal organ transplants

WASHINGTON (AP) — Weighing the risk of spreading diseases against a shortage of human donors, the government is offering guidelines for transplanting animal cells, organs and tissues into people.

The Food and Drug Administration guidelines come as the number of people needing transplants grows faster than the number of willing donors. Some 3,000 people die each year waiting for transplants, the government says.

Doctors and other scientists are working to bridge the gap, from transplanting whole animal organs to genetically engineering animal tissue that the human body won't reject.

Thailand prime minister resigns

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Battered by corruption allegations and blamed for the flagging economy, Thailand's prime minister announced his resignation Saturday in a bid to save face and his ruling coalition.

Banharn Silpa-archa promised to turn over power in seven days to a member of his six-party coalition, opening the way for what is likely to be fierce jockeying among potential successors.

cannot possibly thank all those people who are so richly deserving of our gratitude. We are overwhelmed with the support shown for the school bond. We would like to say thanks to all the people who had a hand in saying yes to our children and yes to progress.

Those people who:

- Gave a speech.
- Listened to a speech.
- Worked an event.
- Wore a button.
- Put up a sign.
- Made endless phone calls.
- Received endless phone calls.
- Were part of the invisible hundreds who did all the work that supported the visible few.

We would particularly like to thank everyone who took the time to vote.

We believe that this proves that our community is not down or out.

OUR VIEWS

Women in business are important to us all

Today is American Business Women's Day - and we salute the many women in our community who are involved in business.

Forty years ago, women in business were few and far between. As times have changed, so have the numbers of women involved in the business community.

There virtually is no area within business today where one cannot find a woman, and that is as it should be.

From corporate executive to day care worker, from locomotive engineer to airline pilot, our society has evolved into one where virtually everyone has the opportunity to pursue whatever goals they may set for themselves.

It is clear to us that both our society and our economy are better because of those opportunities and the fact that people take advantage of them.

On this day, we salute women in business on the day set aside to recognize your efforts and successes.

OTHER VIEWS

Among those personalities prominent in public policy debates, few have seemed more insistently dedicated to their causes than Ralph Nader to his.

True, his pro-consumer, pro-environment, good government message has grown wearisome, resting as it does on statist politics and an anti-business prejudice. He hasn't always been evenhanded. His charges haven't always held up.

But Nader has still seemed sincere beyond question and unalterable in his principles.

It has come as something of a shock, then, to find him refusing to file a financial disclosure statement as the presidential candidate of the Green Party in 21 states. Here, after all, is someone who created 28 advocacy organizations that, among their other enthusiasms, have fought for financial disclosure by candidates as that without which democracy will surely crumble.

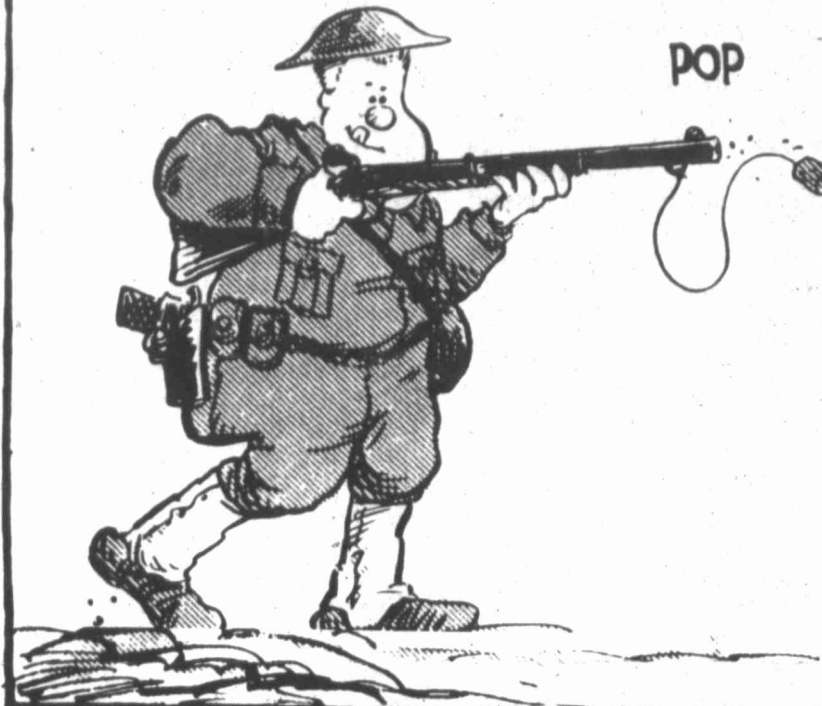

In his own defense, Nader has proffered the sort of legalistic and sophisticated argument that would surely make him rightly indignant if it issued from the lips of another.

The legalistic part of his argument is that federal election laws don't define someone as a candidate if total campaign expenditures are held under $5,000. Nader says that's all he'll spend, not a cent more, and that it's his own money.

The sophisticated part is that accepting contributions beyond that amount would make him "a money candidate," when what he seeks is to be a "civic" candidate. But Nader could file a statement and still refuse contributions.

The Office of Government Ethics says Nader's reading of the law is correct, but his inconsistency undercuts both a cause he once seemed to favor — and his own reputation.

The Clinton Administration's
War on Drugs...

When it comes to protecting kids, what's an intrusion?

A couple of news items, one in the Snyder Daily News and one in the Wall Street Journal, caught my eye this week.

The one in Snyder related a 10-year sentence for a 32-year-old male found guilty of indecency with a child.

Imagine that... jail time for indecency with a child.

John H. Walker
Managing Editor

The story in the Journal relates a decision made by the San Mateo, Calif., National Little League to fingerprint all volunteers who work with the program.

"If you don't show up, you don't coach," Jim DeMetris, a coach who helped organize the fingerprinting program two years ago, told the Journal.

DeMetris admits that the program has yet to catch anyone with an abuse record through the program, but does think it has scared some people off.

San Mateo officials are now considering implementing an ordinance that would require coaches, den mothers, Scout Masters and other volunteers to be fingerprinted and checked for criminal records before they can work with children.

And while San Mateo's National Little League says the program works, its rival, the American Little League, is fearful.

"It would be an absolute nightmare," American Little League president Marc Nelson told the Journal. Nelson thinks the league would lose coaches because they would be "turned off" by the process.

He also thinks that the first time a person was denied the opportunity to volunteer, a lawsuit would be filed.

The executive director of the San Francisco Bay Girl Scouts Council think longtime Scout leaders would rebel if her council approves the policy during an October vote.

San Mateo city council member Claire Mack told the Journal that she felt "... everybody should be fingerprinted. I say, shut every d--- door you can so no child in society gets hurt."

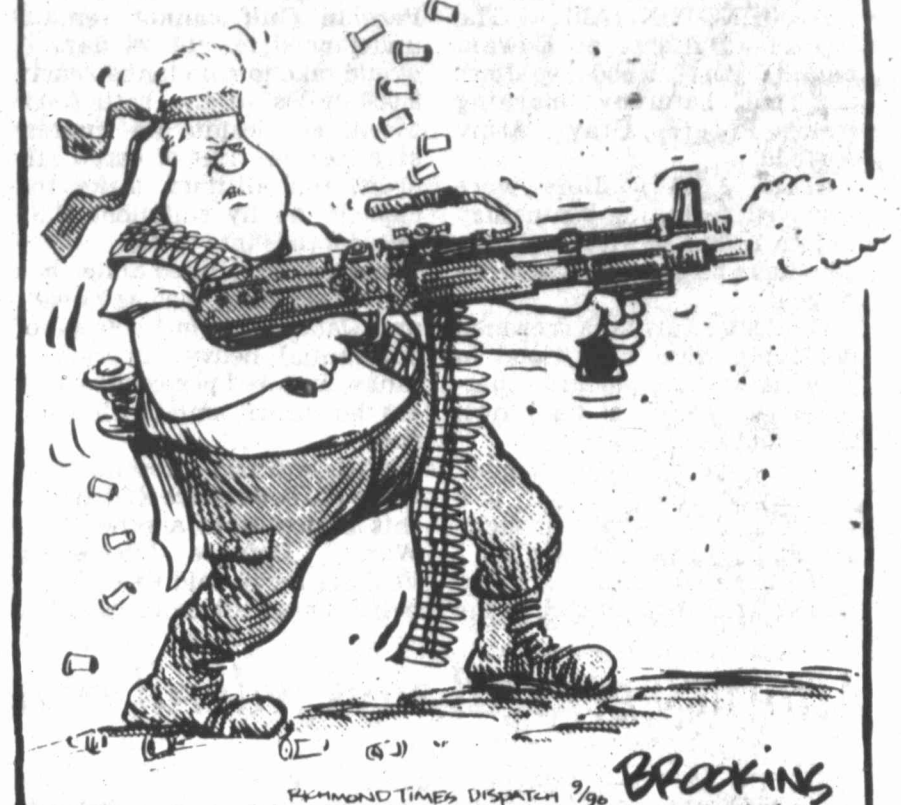

According to an American Bar Association survey conducted last year of 3,800 child-welfare organizations, about 35 percent subject volunteers to criminal record checks.

That same survey reported that only about 60 percent of those same organizations check the records of potential employees.

In Gaithersburg, Md., a local youth-sports group subjects local coaches to background checks by the state department of public safety, even requiring coaches themselves to pay the $41 fee charged by the state.

There are also personal interviews where people like Joseph Stolz, a local attorney, asks tough questions like, "Are you a pedophile?"

One thing that kept popping up throughout the Journal story was the concern over the invasion of privacy of the individuals who serve - or seek to serve - as volunteers.

A story was related about a day care center where employees were advised that hugging children would no longer be tolerated because of the concern that the action might be misinterpreted and a lawsuit filed.

The chief of police in San Mateo says he'd prefer to spend his times worrying about youth gangs and burglars swiping CD players and cellular telephones from vehicles than trying to protect our kiddos.

John Stangl said that because most sex offenders have no criminal history, he doubts the ordinance would head off many problems.

No criminal history. Could it be that most sex offenders don't have a criminal history because they receive probated sentences that are wiped clean if they don't foul up after being convicted?

I don't know ... that's just a question.

I do know that we must do something to protect our children from these perverts who are nothing more than a boil on society's arm.

A friend of mine, with whom I smoke an occasional cigar and drink a cold beer, argues that whatever the jury does is fair because the defendant has been judged under our legal system.

I disagree.

I still think the Louisiana law that requires convicted child molesters being returned to society to purchase a photo ad in the local newspaper advising the community of what crimes they were convicted and where they will live, is a good one.

It has more teeth in it than Texas' no more than a hand-slap registration/notification requirement. I think the Louisiana law is something that David Counts and Scott McLaughlin, both candidates for the District 70 state house seat, might do well to study and seek to implement.

Who's to say if the fingerprinting program has any value. It is an overstepping of bounds? Is it an intrusion?

To those who would argue that it is overstepping and an intrusion, I would ask you to what steps you would go to protect your child.

We have to do that, don't we ... protect our children?

I've said it before and I'll say it again ... I believe that it is society's obligation to protect those who are too young or too old or infirm to protect themselves.

I believe that will all my heart and soul. That makes me willing to try anything to protect both our future and our past.

I don't believe anything we could try would be an intrusion.

One city's assault on the burgeoning teen pregnancy problem

By JOE LOCONTE

For Scripps Howard News Service

The four years Eve Jackson taught "family life" classes at Hamilton Southeastern High School in Indianapolis were troubling ones for her Baptist conscience.

At a time when the hormones of adolescents are at flood tide, Jackson says, the most powerful message the youths get about sex is from their peers: "Come on in, the water's fine."

Other voices are muffled: Teachers often ignore or play down a state requirement that they stress abstinence in sex education classes. Church-state legal doctrine permits informational teaching on religious ideas concerning premarital sex; to teach these ideas as "truth" that should motivate students toward chaste behavior is not allowed. Says Jackson: "As much as I wanted to talk about God, I really couldn't."

What she could talk about — responsible decision-making, peer pressure, self-esteem — had little impact. Finally, she left public education, developed a Bible-based abstinence program taught by high school juniors and seniors, and introduced it into 34 Catholic grade schools throughout the city.

Now the public schools — in a city with a teen pregnancy rate that has risen 40 percent over the last decade — want Jackson back. Indianapolis Mayor Steve Goldsmith has asked Jackson to bring her chastity program, "A Promise to Keep," into 150 public grade schools this fall. Stripped of its religious references, the program will recruit at least 100 high school students to serve as advocates for abstinence.

It is just one of more than two dozen initiatives launched by the mayor in the last year in an effort to reduce out-of-wedlock births. Citing its impact on crime, poverty and welfare dependence, Goldsmith calls teen pregnancy "the most serious long-term issue facing this city. We can do nothing if we don't solve this problem."

Following a meeting last year that included the city's school superintendent, a prosecutor, a juvenile court judge and the Marion County Health Department director, Goldsmith mapped out a 27-point strategy for city-wide action. His aim: to energize public opinion, the courts, and church and community groups to stigmatize out-of-wedlock births while helping support teen mothers.

The mayor intends to treat casual attitudes about teen pregnancy with the same tolerance a triathlete exhibits toward flabbiness: Since studies show that roughly half of all teenage moms are impregnated by males over age 18, Goldsmith wants prosecutors to crack down on statutory rape. He plans to enforce laws requiring women to establish paternity as a condition of receiving cash welfare benefits. He intends to track and publish monthly reports of teen pregnancies in every high school in the city.

And while local Planned Parenthood clinics seek to build creative self-expression through dance, art and painting classes, Goldsmith is pressuring schools to ban pregnant teens and boys who've fathered children from extracurricular activities. He even has floated the idea of sending pregnant girls to separate schools altogether.

Esperanza Zendejas, superintendent of the Indianapolis public schools, opposes some of the mayor's school-based sanctions, but applauds his broad-based approach to attacking the problem. "The fact that the city, as a city, is looking at teen pregnancy is extraordinary," she says. "It should be happening in every city in the nation."

It wouldn't be happening in Indianapolis without the active support of the religious community, Goldsmith says.

In February he invited 100 spiritual leaders — Protestant, Catholic, Jewish, Muslim and Buddhist — for a summit on teen pregnancy. "Nothing government does will meaningfully improve a community if there is an absence of (personal) values," he says. "We could put police officers on every corner of the city, but if our people did not believe in God and basic moral values, then we would still not have a safe community."

Crime statistics seem to side with the mayor: Juvenile crime in Indianapolis has increased nearly tenfold in the last decade, with 75 percent of those offenses committed by children from fatherless households.

"Out-of-wedlock birth is driving every single rotten outcome in our city," says Krista Rush, the mayor's social policy adviser. Communicating an effective abstinence message may be the mayor's most difficult task, and the city's schools will be his prime battle ground.

Jackson cites three essentials: 1.) Give kids a clear message of abstinence until marriage; 2.) Get the message to them early, and 3.) Find credible high-school students to deliver it.

Last year Jackson recruited 200 peer mentors from six Catholic and six public schools to lead the workshops. Most come from strong religious backgrounds.

"That faith component is essential, because it gives them a moral standard to live by. Otherwise, it's anything goes."

Notre Dame tops Texas on Sanson's field goal

AUSTIN (AP) — Jim Sanson kicked a 39-yard field goal as time expired, capping a fourth-quarter rally as No. 9 Notre Dame knocked off No. 6 Texas 27-24 on Saturday.

The game appeared headed to overtime, but Texas punter Mark Schultis squibbed a 22-yard punt that gave Notre Dame (3-0) the ball at its 43 with 59 seconds left. Autry Denson ran for 22 yards and Ron Powulus hit Malcolm Johnson with an 11-yard strike to set up Sanson's kick.

Texas (2-1) led 24-17 and had momentum, but Notre Dame linebacker Lyron Cobbins intercepted a pass by James Brown that was tipped by Irish linebacker Kory Minor.

The turnover gave Notre Dame the ball at the Texas 34 with 6:47 left. The Irish had a first down at the Texas 4, but the Longhorns held and a Notre Dame offside penalty forced a fourth-and-goal from the 6.

Notre Dame called an option play and Denson outraced Texas linebacker Tyson King into the end zone, tying the game at 24-24 with 2:54 to play.

Georgia edges Texas Tech, 15-12

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Mike Bobo, booed much of the game, threw a 22-yard touchdown pass to Juan Daniels with 1:45 remaining Saturday night to give Georgia a 15-12 victory over Texas Tech, Jim Donnan's first win as the Bulldogs coach.

Georgia faced its first 0-3 start since 1979 when it got the ball at its own 3 with three minutes to go, trailing 12-7. But the Bulldogs went 97 yards in 10 plays, getting a fourth-down, 30-yard completion from Bobo to Daniels to keep the drive alive.

Then, on third-and-10, Bobo got the ball off just ahead of a vicious hit by Anthony Armour and Juan Daniels, despite interference by Jody Brown, caught the ball for only the fifth touchdown of the season by Georgia (1-2).

Texas Tech (1-2) lost despite 214 yards rushing by Byron

Steers

If the Matadors were disappointed, they didn't show it in the second half. They proceeded to dominate the third quarter. Estacado started by marching 65 yards for a score, a 1-yard run by High. After stifling the Steers, the Matadors drove 80 yards for a touchdown. The big play was a 36-yard halfback pass. High again did the scoring honors on a 3-yard run, and Estacado added a two-point conversion pass from Paterson to Antwan Overstreet to make the score 20-3 with 2:03 left in the third quarter.

But the Big Spring-Estacado series is always close, and the Steers had a lot of fight left. Quarterback Tory Mitchell connected for two TD passes in the final five minutes in a great comeback that wasn't quite great enough.

Mitchell sparked the first drive with a 27-yard completion to Marcus Hyatt, then flipped a 7-yarder to Ashley for the touchdown. Edwards added a two-point conversion run to slice the Estacado lead to 20-11.

After an exchange of turnovers, the Steers took over again with less than two minutes to play. Mitchell threw six straight incompletions in the drive, which was saved by first down runs by himself and Edwards. But he ultimately found Hyatt, who made a diving catch in the end zone for a 15-yard touchdown.

The only trouble was there were only 39 seconds left, and Estacado easily ran out the clock.

Butler made no excuses for his team's mid-game slump. "We can't worry who is in the game or not," he said.

Edwards had another big rushing game, gaining 110 yards on 19 carries, and now has 453 yards on 76 attempts this season. He wasn't quite enough to offset the one-two punch of Boyd, who had 88 yards, and High, who had 67. Patterson completed 5 of 6 passes for 70 yards.

The Steers, now 1-2, will try to bounce back next Friday night when they host Snyder at 7:30 in Memorial stadium.

Hanspard, the ninth straight game he has broken 100 yards and the fourth time in five games he has gained at least 200. Hanspard scored both Texas Tech touchdowns, but the Red Raiders missed the conversion each time.

They had a final chance to tie but Jaret Greaser missed a 54-yard field goal as time ran out.

Bobo, who took much of the heat when the Bulldogs lost their first two games, had completed only 9-of-18 passes for 151 yards through three quarters and squandered two scoring chances with a fumble and an interception deep in Texas Tech territory.

But Donnan stuck with his junior quarterback, who came through in the final period. Bobo put Georgia ahead 7-6 on a 1-yard sneak with 13:04 remaining, setting up the score with a 28-yard pass to Daniels and a 13-yarder to Hines Ward.

Texas Tech went back ahead less than a minute later when Hanspard, who entered the game as the country's third-leading rusher, broke loose for a 47-yard touchdown. Tech went for two but was stopped just short of the goalline.

Hanspard had scored the Red Raiders' first touchdown on a 4-yard run, but the conversion failed when holder Field Scovell couldn't hang on to the snap. Much of the game was played in a driving rainstorm that stymied both offenses.

The Bulldogs were backed up on their own 3 with 2:57 remaining after a 49-yard punt by Jeremy Hernandez. Bobo connected with Ward on a 28-yard pass to get Georgia out of the hole and hit Daniels for 30 yards on fourth-and-10 at the Bulldog 48.

Bobo finished 16-of-34 for 292 yards.

Texas Tech moved into position to tie at the Georgia 39 with seven seconds remaining. Greaser's field goal attempt had plenty of distance, but was wide of the left upright by about a foot.

Hanspard had 37 carries on the heels of a 272-yard effort against Oklahoma State. He has now rushed for 601 yards in three games, numbers that might be enough to boost his Heisman Trophy candidacy despite the lack of publicity he gets playing at Texas Tech.

Florida downs Tennessee, 35-29

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Danny Wuerffel picked up where he left off against Tennessee last year, throwing four first-half touchdown passes Saturday as No. 4 Florida held on for a 35-29 victory over the No. 2 Volunteers before an NCAA record crowd of 107,608.

In one of the most anticipated games in Southeastern Conference history, the Gators (3-0) dominated from the outset, and the Vols (2-1) didn't have much of a chance despite shutting down Florida in the second half and making it close at the end.

Wuerffel had TD passes of 35, 10, 5 and 15 yards in the first 20 minutes, while Peyton Manning had an unthinkable four first-half interceptions. Manning came back strongly and completed 37-of-65 passes for 492 yards — all school records — and four TDs. Wuerffel was 11-of-22 for 155 yards.

After building a 35-6 halftime lead, the Gators allowed the Vols to come back as Manning threw a 24-yard TD pass to Andy McCullough.

Aggies crush North Texas, 55-0

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — The North Texas Eagles were in the wrong place at the wrong time.

Brannon Stewart threw two touchdown passes and D'Andre Hardeman scored twice Saturday as Texas A&M shook out of its doldrums with a 55-0 victory over mistake-prone North Texas.

The Eagles' hopes were dimmed on the third play of the game, when quarterback Damon West went down with a separated shoulder while completing his only passing attempt. Backup quarterback Josh Gulley was sacked five times, had two passes intercepted and lost a fumble. All three turnovers led to A&M touchdowns.

The Aggies, who had been upset in close losses in their first two games of the season, came with an all-out blitz most of the time.

"We played aggressive, inspirational, assignment football," said defensive coordinator Phil Bennett. "We put a lot of pressure on their quarterbacks."

Stewart threw touchdown passes of 55 and 22 yards to Albert Connell, and D'Andre Hardeman scored on a 2-yard run after Rich Coady intercepted his second pass off Gulley.

Stewart completed 17 of 30 throws for 275 yards, while Gulley was 5-of-16 for 51 yards.

"When Damon got hurt it disrupted our offensive flow," said North Texas coach Matt Simon. "We wanted to move the pocket and couldn't do it with our other quarterbacks. We knew they would be the most physical team we would play this year and they proved it."

The Aggies (1-2) allowed North Texas only four first downs and the Eagles crossed midfield only once. A&M had 624 yards total offense to only 70 for the Eagles.

In its first two games, A&M had lost to BYU (41-37) and Southwestern Louisiana (29-22).

"We're feeling good about ourselves again," said coach R.C. Slocum. "Until you get a win you don't know what you've been missing. We had some bad things happen to us on the road but we got back home and started feeling good."

"Colorado will be a great challenge for us. They're one of the best teams in the nation. You need to have a lot of positive things going for you. And now we do."

Colorado, which didn't play this week, visits College Station next Saturday in a Big 12 Conference matchup.

Connell was the big-play receiver for the Aggies, catching nine passes for 166 yards in the A&M home opener before 56,308 fans.

The Aggies built a 28-0 lead at halftime and put it on cruise control after Hardeman scored on a 6-yard run, Eric Bernard ran 1 yard for a touchdown and Sirr Parker ran 1 yard for a score after Gulley lost a fumble in the third period.

Parker was the leading rusher for the Aggies with 116 yards on 18 carries. Bernard had 97 yards on 13 carries.

Kyle Bryant kicked field goals of 24 and 47 yards for the Aggies, who got their final touchdown on a 16-yard run by freshman Dante Hall.

Texas A&M is 5-0 against North Texas, of the Big West Conference.

NOTES...It was the best defensive performance for A&M since it only allowed Memphis State a total of 53 yards in 1978...Texas A&M now has grass on Kyle Field for the first time since 1969. An overnight two-inch rainstorm didn't bother it at all as the field was in perfect condition at kickoff. The nine receptions by Connell is the fourth most in school history and the most by an Aggie since Rod Harris caught nine against Oklahoma State in 1988.

Trojans ride over Houston, 28-9

HOUSTON (AP) — Brad Otton didn't have Keyshawn Johnson in the lineup but tight end John Allred was almost as effective.

Allred caught 10 passes, a school record for a tight end, for 103 yards and Otton completed touchdown passes of 35 and 32 yards to Billy Miller as Southern California beat Houston 28-9 on Saturday.

"Those routes to John were the same ones run by Keyshawn in the past," Otton said. "The only difference is, Keyshawn could turn them into long gainers with his speed."

Allred caught only six passes last season but the Cougars defense took away Southern California's running game and deep passes, leaving the 6-foot-5, 250-pound Allred as a big target.

"The last two years, everyone's talked about the tight ends being open," Otton said. "Now we have another weapon."

Delon Washington, USC's leading rusher last year, played in his first game of the season after sitting out the first three on NCAA suspension for a non-football ethical violation.

But with Allred and Otton connecting so effectively, the Trojans didn't need Washington and didn't miss Johnson, the first player chosen in this year's NFL draft.

"I just got into a rhythm and Brad threw the ball right to me," Allred said. "I was so excited because the plays were working well. We call it a 10-yard turnaround. I push my guy out of the way and turn around and the ball should be delivered and it was today."

Allred, who caught six passes for 70 yards last season, broke the school record for tight ends of nine by Joe Cormier against UCLA in 1983.

Otton completed 24-of-37 for 290 yards and was effective keeping drives going on third down. Washington gained 29 yards on 14 carries in his 1996 debut.

"He set a school record and we needed all of his contributions," Southern California coach John Robinson said. "Allred finally loosened up their defense."

LaVale Woods, who was replaced by Washington in the starting lineup, scored on a 2-yard in the second quarter and Adam Abrams kicked a 31-yard field goal that gave the Trojans a 17-9 halftime lead.

Houston cornerback Delmonico Montgomery almost brought the Cougars (2-2) back. He blocked a 40-yard field goal attempt by Abrams with 4:55 to go in the third quarter and he intercepted a pass by Otton with 14:48 to go in the game.

"We had all the opportunities in the world to win this game," Montgomery said. "We know we can play with anybody. Without mistakes we could have easily won this game. As a team we must come together and cut out the mental mistakes."

Abrams added a 35-yard field goal with 5:07 to play following a fumble recovery by Marvin Powell III at the Houston 18.

The Cougars couldn't capitalize on Montgomery's big plays and, with 10:16 left in the game, Otton hit Miller with a 32-yard pass into the end zone, giving the Trojans control of the game.

The Cougars proved able to match offenses with the Trojans but had to settle for first-half field goals of 45, 25 and 42 yards by Sebastian Villarreal while Southern California took the halftime lead.

Choke artists fondly remembered

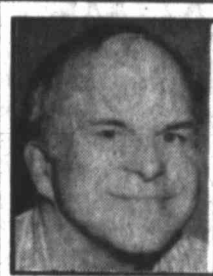

Now, as baseball's regular season is about to close, it is time to remember great pennant collapses of the past.

And what heart-warming memories they are. Especially if it was your favorite team that swallowed the orange.

The greatest choke artists of them all are generally considered the 1964 Philadelphia Phillies.

The way they blew the pennant was almost impossible, yet that is exactly what they did in the last 10 games of the season. The Phils simply ran out of pitching, and Gene Mauch, generally considered a great manager, made some really, really bad decisions. It is just one reason the fans of Philadelphia are considered the bitterest, nastiest and most disagreeable in sports.

Gene Mauch, genius or not, never won a pennant. But he was one pitch away from one once. It was 1986, and his California Angels were poised on the dugout steps, ready to run out on the field in celebration when Donnie Moore retired the final Boston Red Sox batter. Instead, Moore gave up a three-run homer. Who can forget Mauch's stoic yet totally crestfallen look. Yes, disaster stalked Gene Mauch.

Cliff Newell
Sports Editor

How about some other teams that provided anti-thrills:

The 1951 Brooklyn Dodgers. They didn't really choke. The New York Giants simply played out-of-this-world baseball, and they had a magical rookie named Willie Mays. Ultimately, it turned out that Ralph Branca occupied some strange corner of the Baseball Twilight Zone. Probably next to Gene Mauch.

The 1969 Chicago Cubs. It was Leo Durocher's last hurrah, and he seemed all set to guide the Cubbers to the NL East title until he decided to visit his stepson at summer camp. Unfortunately, he didn't tell anyone that he was going to do this, and the Cubs used that as a rallying point to go straight down the drain. It paved the way for the Miracle Mets. As for Leo, it showed that bad things happen to bad people.

The 1978 Boston Red Sox. They had such a big lead on their rival New York Yankees that they could afford to sit back and chortle. Manager Don Zimmer was on the verge of becoming a major culture figure. The Yankees of Reggie, Billy, Thurman, and Graig were doing a better job of fighting each other in the dugout than they were of fighting the opposition. But once Billy was sent packing after voicing his opinion on the truthfulness of George Steinbrenner, the Yankees went on a phenomenal win streak, and they topped it all off with their own little miracle man, Bucky Dent, in the playoffs against the Red Sox. Yes, God used to be a Yankee fan, until He got fed up with George Steinbrenner.

Unfortunately, the latest choke job is hitting too close to home. Our beloved (this year, at least) Texas Rangers are just about ready to take the big plunge. The happy chortles of only a week ago have given way to uneasy dismay. The Rangers, the mighty Rangers who have done nothing since they arrived with Ted Williams and the rest of the Washington Senators on the doorstep of Arlington in 1972, are terribly close to letting us all down, us who have stuck with them through thin and thick.

Ah, the ghostly figures of Gene Mauch, Ralph Branca, Leo Durocher and Don Zimmer. We see their sad figures through the baseball twilight as the shadows of fall lengthen and the Blue Bird of Happiness has lost its feathers.

Unbeaten Baylor romps by Oregon State

WACO (AP) — Kalief Muhammad raced 100 yards with a kickoff and galloped 18 yards for another touchdown as unbeaten Baylor rolled to a 42-10 victory Saturday over winless Oregon State.

Jerod Douglas and Pearce Pegross also scored twice and linebacker Anthony Taylor contributed an interception for the Bears, who extended the Beavers' longest current Division I-A losing streak to 13.

Douglas sped 32 and 47 yards for touchdowns and Pegross pulled down two TD passes as the Bears (3-0) used the PAC-10 Beavers (0-3) as a final tuneup for their Big 12 Conference debut Oct. 5 against Texas Tech.

Pegross, a junior split end, scored on a 30-yard pass from starting quarterback Jeff Watson and a 48-yard shot from Jermaine Alfred but it was Taylor's interception that triggered the rout.

Taylor stole a Tim Alexander pass and returned it 44 yards to set up Muhammad's 18-yard scoring romp, awakening the slumbering Bears late in the first period.

Until Taylor's theft, the Beavers were banging the Bears around almost at will, compiling 91 offensive yards to Baylor's 15 but misfiring on first-half field goal attempts of 37 and 21 yards by Randy Lund.

Watson winged passes of 11 and 15 yards to Muhammad and then hit Pegross with a 30-yard scoring pass as Baylor moved 80 yards in nine plays to take a 14-0 halftime lead.

Douglas capped scoring drives of 64 and 80 yards with his touchdown runs in the third period and Oregon State final got on the board with a 30-yard field goal by Lund.

The Beavers got their lone touchdown on a 53-yard pass from DeShawn Williams to Roddy Tompkins, but moments later Muhammad gathered in the ball in the end zone and streaked to the longest kickoff return in school history.

Fading Bills face fading Cowboys

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (AP) — Their offense is slipping away. They might no longer have the players needed for another Super Bowl. After losing Monday night, they are one game away from trouble.

Anyone who recognizes the Buffalo Bills' predicament certainly could say the same for the Dallas Cowboys. What some considered a possible preview to this year's Super Bowl might be just another regular-season game Sunday.

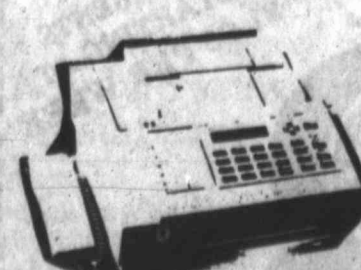

"I guess we feel about the same way Buffalo feels," Cowboys coach Barry Switzer said. "We're embarrassed and somewhat depressed, because of the way we performed."

The Cowboys (1-2) are one loss away from their worst start since 1990, when they began their ascension toward their first Super Bowl under Jimmy Johnson. Dallas was happy it finished 7-9 that season. The defending champions would not feel the same with a similar record this year.

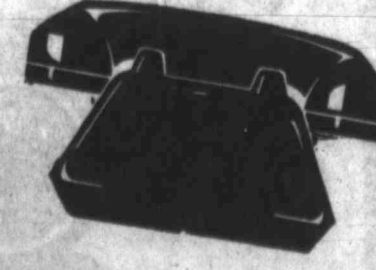

Dallas opened the season with a loss to Chicago on Monday night and blew a 21-3 lead against Indianapolis in a 25-24 loss last week. Immediately after Chris Boniol's 57-yard field goal attempt to win the game bounced off the crossbar, people began wondering what happened to the Cowboys.

Herman's Restaurant: Local icon no longer open 24 hours

Story and photos by Bryan Guess

Herman and Opal Wilkerson opened their first restaurant in 1960. The original location of Herman's was where Al and Son's Bar-B-Q is now located.

In 1978, the new Herman's opened down the road a piece to 1601 Gregg St. The Wilkersons have a son, Homer, who now runs the family business with his mother.

Since the original opening date, Herman's was open 24 hours a day. After Labor Day this year, Herman's began to close at 10 in the evening. Homer said, "We've had a lot of feed back about that. I didn't know what it (Herman's) meant to some customers until we started closing early."

The Wilkersons explained they cut back their business hours because the night cook retired and business has been slow the last couple of years at night.

Esther Mezick and Esmael Munoz have been cooking up many meals including popular dishes such as chicken fried steak, fried chicken and hamburger steak for a combined total of 69 years. Mezick has been there 36 and Munoz for 33 years. The dishwasher, Grover Cleveland, has been employed at the restaurant for 21 years.

Herman's is a popular place for hunters and people driving through Big Spring.

Opal, Herman's wife, promised she wouldn't tell Herman about the new hours. Herman died in February of 1984. Opal is still helping out with the business, along with her son and daughter-in-law, Homer and Ida.

The busiest time is at lunch. "Our customers are on a limited time schedule," Homer said. "It's more casual in the evenings, it's not as hectic." Herman's has daily lunch specials that are advertised on the sign outside the restaurant.

"So many customers come in and we know where they're going to sit and what they're going to eat," Homer said. "Restaurants must have repeat business."

The restaurant's new hours are 7:30 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Clockwise from top: Mary Acri started waitressing at Herman's when she was 18 years old. She left the restaurant, got married and raised a family, then returned to her old job. She's carrying a hamburger. Esmael Munoz (far left), Grover Cleveland and Esther Mezick take a break in the kitchen. The three employees have a total of 90 years of experience at Herman's. Munoz and Mezick are cooks and Cleveland is the dishwasher. Ida Wilkerson (right) and Dale Gregg check on an order of supplies from Gregg's employer, Affiliated Foods. Willie Helm, Robert Mitchell Sr. and Robert Mitchell Jr. enjoy a late lunch at the restaurant last Thursday. Ida and her husband, Homer, pose outside their restaurant with the sign that shows the hours of operation of days gone by. A cook that retired and slower evening business were the reasons the Wilkersons decided to change their operating hours.

When 200 million voting eyes are upon you

Could any of us live up to the sort of scrutiny we put our presidential candidates under in the minute-by-minute, second-by-second, word-by-word, breath-by-breath, hairstyle-by-hair-style, outfit-by-outfit, camera-clicking, video-rolling, poll-happy '90s?

Mickey Guleswite
Columnist

In the spirit of election-year politics, I spent the other day imagining how my family and I might fare if put under the campaign '96 microscope.

The morning started with my approval ratings at an all-time low.

We were out of coffee, causing me to stumble through the morning routine muddled, disoriented and demanding to know who had taken my glasses until my husband observed them on my head.

By 10 a.m. I was starting to function coherently, but the headlines were already out: "Caffeine-addicted working mom isn't worth a hill of beans, say 69 percent of those polled."

"But wait!" I exclaimed. "I'm not so bad. I'm together. I'm active. I like to stay in shape. See?" I said, putting on my running shoes and jogging out the door. Halfway down the street I

At 5:30, bruised by all the bad press, I made an attempt to restore our public image by eating at a family-style restaurant.

flipped on my RadioMan to hear the bad news: "A full 65 percent of men and women think she runs like a knock-kneed ostrich."

Thirty seconds later I slipped away to an undisclosed location to regroup only to glance up at a TV monitor and see myself doing exactly what I was doing, which was eating a chocolate eclair as a pensive anchorman reported that my "approval ratings were sinking due to seemingly conflicting positions on diet and fitness."

"But you're not getting the whole picture. You're not seeing I'm part of a warm, caring family. Just look at my husband."

Unfortunately, my husband was caught on camera screaming at a plumber who hadn't shown up for two weeks, leading 64 percent of men and women to find him volatile, and leaving 85 percent of surveyed plumbers unable to connect with him.

At 5:30, bruised by all the bad press, I made an attempt to restore our public image by eating at a family-style restaurant.

Things were going well (69 percent of Americans agreed we embrace wholesome family values, though 78 percent thought we were taking advantage of the all-you-can-eat buffet) until my 19-month-old son decided the woman in the booth behind us would look better with spaghetti in her hair.

It was on the way out of the restaurant with a whining, pasta-flinging 19-month-old in my arms, and an irate hostess chasing after my husband with an unpaid check that I finally snapped.

"You want perfection?" I screamed at a group of unsuspecting restaurant patrons. "Here! Look at this perfect meatball stain on my blouse! Look at my perfectly blotchy makeup-less skin! Ha! I'm a total, complete, perfect mess!"

With that we slipped into the car and drove home... my husband and son silently looking on, and me quietly, secretly, fervently withdrawing my name as a presidential candidate for the United States of America.

WEDDINGS

Newton-Tucker

MRS. BOBBY TUCKER

Kelly Leighanne Newton, Big Spring, and Bobby Joe Tucker, Sand Springs, were united in marriage on Sept. 21, 1996, in the First Baptist Church Sanctuary with Dr. Kenneth Patrick officiating.

She is the daughter of Sherry and Marion Newton, Big Spring.

He is the son of Claudine and Jim Tucker, Sand Springs.

The couple stood before two large urn arrangements of curly willow, Queen Anne's lace, stargazer and L.A. lilies, stock and larkspur in whites and pinks flanked with candelabras and ficus trees.

Organist was Beth Spence. Vocalists were Stan Hanes and Diane Roach.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a romantic gown with alencon lace on white Italian silky satin. The sweetheart neckline and fitted bodice were fully hand-beaded with pearls, sequins and bugle beads. Renaissance illusion sleeves were also beaded. Alencon lace motifs ornately beaded began at the waist and went the entire length of her cathedral train. The head piece was an iridescent tiara of sequins and pearls highlighted with a silk illusion pouf.

She carried a cascading all-white bouquet with roses, stock, lizianthus, larkspur, stephanotis, Queen Anne's lace and English ivy.

Maid of honor was Rachel Tucker, groom's daughter. Laurel McDowell Miller, Clairmont, Fla., and Jeanie Coor, Welch, were the bridesmaids.

Tyler (Turbo) Tucker, groom's son, was the best man. Brandon Iden and Robert Hancock served as groomsmen. Gary Payne and Mike Peterson both served as ushers and candlelighters.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the Big Spring Country Club.

The bride's cake was five separate cakes at different heights and each decorated with fresh white and pink roses, lilies, larkspur, Queen Anne's lace, and English ivy. Two tall clear vases holding arrangements of the same flowers and candles completed the table.

The groom's cake was a two-tiered German chocolate hexagonal cake with six heart shaped satellite cakes all decorated with grapes and greenery.

Designer looks in pantyhose and other stockings

Scripps Howard News Service

Kicky and casual are key looks for fall. Designers have thrown out the rules and are having fun with the classics. In ready-to-wear collections, sedate menswear patterns have enlarged in scale. Oversized houndstooth checks are leading the pack, with newswy, graphic plaids and argyles creating fashion impact. Cool, '60s fashion is returning. Both kicky and casual looks are being ardently addressed in the season's hosiery collections.

Hot Sox, the first hosiery company to incorporate multi-colored patterns in knit designs, has reinterpreted tradition with new proportions of pattern. Large-scale houndstooth tights are appealing to fall's leggiest shoppers.

Hot Sox's glen plaid tights and argyle tights have a hip '90s feeling of the classics. Herringbone tights are walking off hosiery counters and into a fall flecked with trendy tweeds. "We started Hot Sox in the late '60s," says Gary Wolkowitz, the company's president and director of design. "There was a flavor of surprise, an irreverence, that made fashion a means of personal expression. It's happening again to fashion now."

"And, of course there was the birth of the miniskirt, which anyone designing hosiery is always happy to see revived." Synthetics will be everywhere for fall and winter, transforming yesterday's "wet look" into mainstream '90s fashion. Shiny vinyl miniskirts with white boots and Hot Sox knee-highs will walk on the wild side. But new fall looks don't end with kicky and casual. Luxurious fabrics play a key role, too. Cashmere tops the charts. Flat and textured knits (you won't see too many bulky looks) have been done up in twin-sweater sets, dresses, tunics, skirts and pants. The overall look is clean, lean and very elegant.

Luxury is also stepping into legwear. Cashmere tights and socks take the spotlight in soft and sumptuous designs. Other warm and soft legwear styles incorporate fine Merino wool. Cashmere, angora and Merino wool are the fibers of choice for Anne Klein's new Luxury Collection of socks and tights. The socks and tights all coordinate with Anne Klein clothing.

Gray is the big color for the new season. The elegance of gray is evident in the Hot Sox Cityscape Collection, with patterns borrowed from menswear. In the collection are Hot Sox tights, knee-highs and trouser socks, all rich in sophisticated shades of gray to relate to the season's ready-to-wear.

In the Hot Sox Luxury Collection for fall are trouser socks in blends of silk, angora and cashmere. Four styles, including chenille socks, range in price from $7.50 to $15.

In support of the season's favored silhouette — the lean look — Anne Klein offers a line of sheer hosiery with everything under control. Perfect for wear with Anne Klein knit fashions, a new hosiery concept offers levels of control in the panty and the leg (light, natural, medium or maximum), in leg appearances (sheer, very sheer or opaque).

Christian Dior's Special Occasion Collection provides the refinement women look for to make an occasion special.

Givenchy Plus is the only designer brand offering hosiery to dress plus-size women. Designed to meet the needs of full-figured women, Givenchy Plus pantyhose are available in body smoother and body gleamer styles, giving a choice of day or evening hosiery options.

Round the Clock is the practical brand for women, offering niche products.

Leg Solutions by Round the Clock are long-lasting and like a cosmetic, provide help where it's needed.

Round the Clock Nine Months is the hosiery that mothers-to-be have been searching for. Engineered with an expandable belly area and non-binding waistband, they offer leg toning in sheer and opaque styles. A fit chart is designed to make sizing easy. Styles are offered in sizes A/B (4-6 months) and C/D (7-9 months).

For the growing population of baby boomers, Round the Clock's Girdle-at-the-Top pantyhose offers the controlling benefits of a girdle combined with either a sheer or opaque leg.

History of cotton imports worry U.S. producers

CONE (AP) — Cotton growers are resigned to drought and pests as defeatable enemies to their business. The Russians are another story.

"We spent billions keeping those people at bay, and now we have them stealing our markets," said Scott Gilbreath, a third-generation farmer with 1,700 acres near Lubbock. "Nobody's doing anything about it, and with the budget constraints Washington has been having, we will not survive."

The United States traditionally had been off limits to cotton imports. This year, mills are expecting more than 700,000 bales from Russia, Argentina, Pakistan and elsewhere, surpassing 1919 as the largest import year in memory.

A typical cotton bale weighs about 480 pounds and produces enough fabric to weave 330 pair of blue jeans.

Imports remain just a fraction of the market, which will see 19 million bales of American-grown cotton picked this fall. That fraction, though, didn't even exist until last year.

The 1990 farm law created a three-step process to allow imports if the price of U.S. cotton on the Northern Europe market exceeds an adjusted world price index by 1.25 cents. Recent poor crops triggered the import quotas in May 1995, and cotton from abroad has been arriving since.

The adjusted world price is hovering around the 59-cent range, its lowest point since early 1994. American cotton was selling about 8 cents higher on the European markets last week, a gap that won't close anytime soon if current trends continue.

The break-even point for domestic farmers tends to range from 65 cents to 80 cents a pound.

Imports really began picking up steam this year, said Janice Zygmunt, who monitors cotton imports for the U.S.

Department of Agriculture.

"I think we have not been in an import situation in a long time, so there was some uncertainty," she said. "There's a learning curve for everyone involved."

This year's imports will only scratch the surface of the 9.2 million foreign bales that legally could have entered U.S. ports under the federal program, a massive chunk of the global market.

The three-step federal program calls for subsidies to make domestic farmers more competitive under Step 2. However, price differentials have caused Step 3 to be in effect since last Nov. 1, meaning farmers aren't eligible for government relief.

American cotton has remained about a nickel higher than the USDA's worldwide index in Europe, meaning mills should have the opportunity to import cotton in the foreseeable future.

"The fundamental reason

Step 3 is there is to keep the U.S. textile industry competitive," said Texas Tech University agricultural economist Don Ethredge. "The domestic textile industry is the U.S. cotton farmers' best customer."

Domestic growers won't have any customers at all if cheap imports continue, Gilbreath fears. That's why he's circulating a petition calling for a return to a protectionist cotton policy.

Gilbreath suggests stiff curtailment of import quotas under Step 3 and for subsidies to be available to American farmers during any period in which imports are legal.

U.S. Rep. Larry Combest, R-Lubbock, was a key player in the passage of the 1995 farm policy. He has called for a review of the way the USDA determines its index, but he also maintains American farmers can retain the advantage.

"American farmers can compete with anyone as long as they don't have to compete with their own government," said Combest, referring to U.S. environmental, labor and financial laws other countries don't have.

Despite minor insect infestations that decreased the quality of some of last year's harvest in Texas and Arizona, the United States continues to be the world's largest net exporter of cotton.

William B. Dunavant Jr., a leading U.S. cotton merchant, has said Russian fiber is in many ways better quality than that grown in his Memphis area, and Argentine fiber could become a denim mainstay. Merchants profit from cheap cotton, wherever it's grown.

The new farm policy, which initially drew support from all segments of the cotton industry, was an import time bomb from the start, Gilbreath said.

"(USDA Secretary) Dan Glickman should have known this, but you could bet those dadgum cotton mills weren't going to bring it to their attention," Gilbreath said. "They don't care who they run over, chew up or spit out. All they care about is the bottom line."

Healthy prices are necessary to fuel domestic cotton production, which could reach 25 million bales annually in coming years, Texas A&M University cotton expert Carl Anderson said.

About one in every seven American bales is grown on the South Plains around Lubbock, where the prices recently have inched into the low 70-cent range per pound.

Many Texas cotton growers planted sorghum this year because it appeared more profitable, and Gilbreath believes that could become a trend if the law doesn't change.

"If you look around today, all you see here is cotton," Gilbreath said, surveying the horizon. "Pretty soon, you might not see any."

BDC plans seminar for business hopefuls

HERALD Staff Report

Are you interested in starting your own business? Howard College's Business Development Center (BDC) wants to help you get started on the right foot by offering a "Starting Your Business" workshop.

The workshop will cover topics such as developing a business plan, financing, tax requirements, legal issues and risk management.

The majority of businesses that fail are not adequately prepared to go into business. While they have the motivation, desire and talent, many have not taken time to properly research the business they are interested in starting.

BDC Coordinator Delia Barraza said the workshop will cover topics such as deciding if you have the personality to succeed in business because being your own boss requires a lot of time and energy.

A major topic of the workshop is writing a business plan. Barraza advises new businesses to write a business plan. Business plans help owners with strategic planning in the areas of management, financing, marketing and addressing tax and legal issues.

The workshop will begin at 9 a.m. Saturday at Howard College. All persons interested in starting a business are encouraged to attend. Registration is free of charge. For additional information, or to make reservations, contact Delia Barraza at 264-5164.

Kelly AFB lands first civilian firm

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A California-based railcar repair company employing up to 100 workers will be the first non-defense business located at Kelly Air Force Base.

Rail Car America will open a maintenance and repair plant in the east Kelly industrial area early in 1997, officials of the Greater Kelly Development Corp. announced Monday.

Mayor Bill Thornton applauded the lease as "the first harvest" of the year-old effort to redevelop Kelly and the beginning of diversifying the local economy away from military dependence.

Kelly's major tenant, the San Antonio Air Logistics Center, is scheduled to close in 2001 because of military downsizing. Rail Car America expects to hire all but one or two of its 70 to 100 workers locally, said Charles Franklin, vice president of the San Francisco-based company. Most will be welders, who will be paid the prevailing local wage for that skill.

Ranch management on tap for local producers

Ranch Management will be featured this week for area producers. Thursday, Sept. 26, the program will feature a tour in Midland/Odessa area, with a Demonstration/Field Day in Big Spring on Friday, Sept. 27. A breakfast at 6:30 a.m. at the Parks Ranch on Thursday will kick off the activities. To get to the Parks Ranch from Midland, travel four miles west of FM 1718 on south service road to a white cattle guard. Turn in there and follow the road to headquarters.

Dr. Dale Rollins, Associate Professor and Extension Wildlife Specialist, will discuss accommodating wildlife habitat when planning brush control.

He will be followed by Mr. Sid Wilson with Superior Livestock Auction with a discussion. A range demonstration tour of Mesquite plots, Yucca, Rayless Goldenrod, Perennial Broomweed and Cactus will follow. Dr. Charles Hart, Extension Range Specialist, will discuss poisonous plant control and nutrition.

The Doug and Chris Hardcastle Ranch will be site for the noon meal, sponsored by Midland's Farmer's Coop, Mike Denney, mgr., and Superior Livestock and Mr. Sid Wilson. The meal will follow a discussion by Mr. Charles Neeb, District 5 Extension Director on Extension Goals and Objectives. Dr. Bruce Carpenter, Extension Livestock Specialist, will discuss the new Texas Animal Health Regulations as concerning the movement and transportation of horses. The economic impact of the equine industry will be discussed by Chris Hardcastle followed by a discussion on the body condition scoring program in broodmare management. Mr. Dwight Welch, Harkness Hayporter Co., will demonstrate mechanical brush control. Two CEU's will be offered to those needing these credits.

On Friday, Mr. Welch will demonstrate the mechanical control of brush on the Earl Lusk farm, just north of Big Spring to the West on the Leatherwood Road. This road is located just south of Feagins Implement Co. Results from the Chemical Control of Mesquite on CRP land demonstration that we conducted earlier last summer will be evaluated. Two hours of CEU's can be earned at this meeting. The meeting begins at 9 a.m. and should conclude before noon.

We had a lot of questions asked at the Field Day last summer and some of these I thought I would share with you in this week's column. Two products are recommended for control of Nutgrass. These are PERMIT and MANAGE. For control of weedy forbs along roads, gardens, etc., approximately 3-4 in. tall, consider 2,4-D at 2 percent + surfactant + water or BANVEL at 1/4 percent + 2,4-D amine at 3/4 percent. Caution is urged in the use of any 2,4-D product in our area, however, due to possible drift upon susceptible crops as cotton.

Be SURE and follow ALL label instructions and precautions. For those of you that can't seem to find GRAZON E+T anymore, try asking for REMEDY, both are the same ingredients. Juniper and Cedar can be effectively controlled with VELPAR at 2 cc concentrate for a 3 foot canopy shrub in height and width. In control of mesquite, 1/8 lb. of REMEDY + 1/8 lb. RECLAIM has the quickest mesquite kill. 1/2 percent of Remedy + 1/2 percent of RECLAIM has a slower but just as efficient kill. Mix both with water and surfactant. TORDON 22K (more PICLORAM is the only ingredient that makes this chemical different from GRAZON P+D) is recommended for control of Prickly Ash and Ash Juniper.

Use a foliar application mixing TORDON with water or a stem application mix of TORDON with diesel. Prickly Pear can be controlled with TORDON 22K at 1 percent + GRAMOXONE EXTRA at 3 percent during May through Sept. GRAMOXONE is an acute TOXIC RESTRICTED herbicide! Hope to see each of you this week at either or both of these upcoming programs.

made in television and radio ads.

"Consumers may be paying as much as 20 cents a gallon more for premium gasoline because of (those) claims," said Jodie Bernstein, director of the FTC Bureau of Consumer Protection.

If an administrative law judge upholds the FTC complaint, Exxon could be required to have scientific support for future claims about its gasoline's benefits, the FTC said.

Exxon had no immediate comment on the complaint. The case is the latest in a series of complaints challenging advertising claims for high-octane gasoline. Amoco Corp., Sun Co. and Unocal Corp. have previously settled similar FTC charges, the FTC said.

Chamber to host law enforcement luncheon

On Oct. 4, the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce will host a luncheon honoring our law enforcement personnel. The luncheon is being sponsored by First Bank of West Texas and Howard County's 118th District Judge Robert Moore.

Other guests will be guest speaker. Thanks to chamber President Frances Wheat, it came to our attention that we, along with other organizations, have neglected taking the time to thank these neighbors. These are our neighbors, friends and family members who basically have dedicated their lives for our safety and well being.

It seems that the subject of our luncheon is a popular one. Mr. David Wrinkle, owner of KBST Radio, contributed a donation to cover lunches for these honored guests. Two local clubs, the Ambucs and the Greater Big Spring Rotary Club, are coming to show their appreciation.

The luncheon will be at the Dora Roberts Community center at the lake. Food service will begin at 11:30 a.m. Everyone is invited to attend, but there will be limited space. Tickets can be purchased at the chamber of by calling 263-7641, for $6.50 each.

Other events happening around town involving the chamber include:

The second annual National Inter-Tribal Gathering, better known as the Pow Wow, is set for Oct. 25 through Oct. 27, at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. Tickets are available at the chamber and you will be seeing more information about this event in the next few weeks.

The next and final Business After Hours for 1996 will be at the Big Spring Mall from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m., Nov. 7. This is a great opportunity to meet new people and spread the word about your business.

Fort Worth and San Antonio to keep current area codes

AUSTIN (AP) — Fort Worth and San Antonio would keep their current area codes when the 817 and 210 areas are split, under a proposal going before the Texas Public Utility Commission.

A working group of consumer advocates, telephone companies and regulators agreed to final proposals Monday. The plans going before the PUC would divide both area codes into three regions each.

The 817 area code would remain in the metro-Fort Worth area. That would include Arlington and nearly all of Johnson County.

The rest of the current 817 area would be divided into north and south regions covered by two new codes, which have not been determined.

San Antonio and nearly all of Bexar County would remain in the 210 area code. Areas north and south of the city currently in the 210 area also would be divided into north and south regions.

Laredo would be part of the southern area.

"The real consideration is where will the area code change effect the least number of people," said Leslie Kjellstrand, a spokeswoman for the PUC, which regulates local phone service in Texas.

The PUC will get the recommendations next month and could vote on them in November. Changes likely would take effect next summer.

Keeping an eye on Texas

Mesquite sales climbing

Texas farmers and ranchers have tried burning, poisoning, chopping and bulldozing, but mesquite trees that grow naturally across the state have recently been harvested for profit. Sales of mesquite lumber and wood chips, used for barbecuing, have increased the potential of a scrubby tree previously considered a nuisance.

Mesquite
Grows naturally on 55 million acres in Texas.
Chips sold for barbecue.
Wood used for flooring, cabinets, furniture, crafts.
Beans used in syrups, jellies, bread flour and specialty food.
Texas annual sales: about $20 million.

Zero-interest ads targeted by AG's office

HERALD Staff Report

Texas Attorney General Dan Morales announced Monday the state has reached agreements with four major retailers for additional advertising disclosures on so-called no-interest financing.

The pacts with the electronics and appliance retailers pertain to ads proclaiming no interest will be charged for a year, or some other specified amount of time.

"Unfortunately, many customers assume that zero-percent interest financing means something different than what the retailers had in mind," Morales stated.

Often interest accrues from the date of purchase and the entire interest amount is charged if the item isn't paid for by the end of the zero-percent period. Though that information may be contained in "the fine print that no one ever reads," it now must be disclosed more prominently, Morales stated.

The agreements cover print advertising and disclosures in stores. Television and radio commercials are not included in the deals because federal broadcasting laws are involved, said Thomas P. Perkins Jr., chief of the attorney general's consumer protection division.

The attorney general's office launched its investigation in early 1995 and reviewed retailers' advertisements and consumer complaints.

It found one-half to two-thirds of those making the "no-interest" purchases carried a balance beyond the 0-percent period. Most did not expect interest charges to apply to the entire bill, Morales added.

Voluntary agreements were reached with Best Buy Corp., CompUSA Inc., Montgomery Ward & Co. and Tandy Corp., which owns Radio Shack, Computer City, McDuff and Incredible Universe.

Circuit City was asked to sign an agreement but declined, Morales said.

The companies will pay a total of $925,000 for attorneys' fees and investigation costs. Best Buy will pay $175,000; CompUSA, $175,000; Montgomery Ward, $275,000; and Tandy, $300,000.

Texas will receive $102,500 of the total payment.

Eleven other states joined in the investigation and will receive some of the money. Twelve additional states have signed on to the agreements.

Morales noted the agreements are not lawsuits. But he didn't rule out litigation for companies continuing to employ what Morales termed the misleading "no-interest" advertising method.

"We intend to enforce the standard," he stated. "We will not accept this type of deception in Texas. These four companies are setting an excellent example for the rest of the retail industry. I sincerely hope and highly recommend that the other retailers, who use similar advertising, follow the standards set by these companies."

The agreement signed by the companies state that any advertisements of "zero interest" financing prominently include the terms, which typically are that the full purchase price must be paid within the zero interest period; that payments are required during that period; that if a customer fails to make any required minimum payment when due, or if the customer fails to pay the purchase price in full by the end of the period, the consumer will be liable for payment of all interest accruing from the date of purchase.

The advertisement must also state the amount of any minimum purchase required; any specific brands or products to which the offer is limited; and, the interest rate that will be assessed if the customer does not comply.

In reaching the agreement, the companies also agreed to provide in-store information about the zero interest financing options; and, when they are the credit provider, include on the billing statements clearly the amounts due, the due dates and, if applicable, that the consumer is required to pay interest charges if the required payments are not made when due.
