Water Short But Not Critical

Aransas County residents "don't need to hit the panic button" but they do need to be conservative in water usage for a while, says J.C. Gurley, Rockport's director of public works.

San Patricio County is having problems supplying water to its customers -- including Aransas County.

The reason for the shortage, Gurley said, is not a lack of water but a bottleneck at the San Patricio Water District's treatment plant.

The San Patricio Water District buys its water form Corpus Christi (Nueces County). The water is purchased "raw" (untreated), Gurley says, then is treated at San Patricio's water plant before being piped to its customers.

The treatment process takes about 24 hours, and normally San Patricio keeps a reserve supply of water on hand.

However, Gurley continued, San Patricio is presently selling water faster than it can be treated -- which means there are no reserves to fall back on and there will be some delay in getting the water to its destination.

We aren't running out of water," Gurley emphasized, "but people do need to conserve it."

In practical terms, this means it's all right for Aransas County residents to water their lawns -- but not to the point where the water is running off into the streets.

Gurley said both from a standpoint of conserving water and providing the best care for the lawn, watering should be done in early morning or late evening.

"A lot of people may cut back on their watering anyway when they see their monthly water bill," Gurley added. "They may decide the grass isn't worth it."

Water is purchased from the San Patricio Water District by the Aransas County Conservation and Reclamation District which then resells the water to the City of Rockport.

The City of Rockport sells the water to residents of

Council Paves Way For Beach Improvement Fund Application

Bids Opened For Dog Pound

Denyer Construction Company of Rockport was apparent low bidder for construction of a dog pound for the City of Rockport when bids were opened during a meeting of the city council Monday night, June 23.

The bid openings were one of the first items on an agenda that also included passage of a resolution declaring the city's support of a Beach Improvement Program.

This resolution paves the way for a joint city-Aransas County Navigation District application for grant funds available under the Coastal Energy Impact Program. Funds under this application would be used for improvements along Rockport Beach including dredging of sand to restore eroded area along the mile-long beach.

Navigation board members Bobby Landrum and Hillis Dominguez attended the council meeting to hear council action on the beach improvement proposal and on a request by the Navigation District for blanket permission to act on requests for use of the bandshell and slab area on the beach.

In the past, requests to use the beach area have been brought to the council as well as the Navigation District.

Council members tabled the Navigation board's request pending additional consideration of the matter. City officials expressed concern that such a blanket permit could cause problems in the future.

District Retains Financial Advisor

The Aransas County Independent School District has retained First Southwest Company of San Antonio to serve as financial advisors for the district.

The action was taken in an open meeting of the school board of trustees following a special executive session of the board at 7 p.m. Monday, June 23.

L.T. Janecek is representative for the San Antonio firm in Rockport.

School Superintendent Joe Randow said the special meeting was called Monday to consider companies to serve as financial advisors for the school district.

First Southwest, he said, will advise the school district "in regard to bonds, investments, etc."

"We're examining all of our financial structures and (school district) buildings," Randow said. "When you do that," he added, "you have to have an advisor."

Pilot To Close For Holiday

The Rockport Pilot will be closed Friday, July 4, for the Independence Day holiday.

Offices will be open at the regular time -- 8 a.m. -- Monday, July 7.

CONSTRUCTION IN PROGRESS

This is certainly the time of year to build sand castles, and "Hank" Hilliard and Katherine Craig are taking the task seriously. Tents Go Up Next Week For Art Festival

Tents will go up Tuesday and Wednesday, July 1 and 2, for Rockport's favorite summer event -- the July [illegible] Festival.

Billboards have been put up throughout the area, advertising the annual event set this year for Saturday and Sunday, July 5-6. Billboard space is donated by Rollins Advertising Company.

Exhibits will open at 10 a.m. Saturday, July 5, and will remain open until 8 p.m. On Sunday, the show will be open from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m.

Highlighting this year's activities will be drawings for paintings and prints by well-known area artists.

Herb Booth has donated a painting to help raise money for the Art Association, sponsors of the Art Festival. Carl Krueger of Rockport has donated two framed prints by Bud Schewetz and Corpus Christi artist J. Royal Telford has donated one of his framed prints.

Cam Leonard is general chairman of the event and Estelle Stair, president of the Art Association, is coordinator and "problem solver" for the show.

This year's menu for the two-day event will include ranch steaks, polish sausage, hot dogs, tamales, corn, nachos and buenelos. Drinks will include lemonade, iced tea, beer and soda.

Members of the Women's Committee of Aransas County Medical Services Inc. will again serve as food tent hostesses this year.

Rockport Pilot Announces Deadlines

The deadline for all news articles, photographs, display ads and classified ads in the Rockport Pilot is noon Monday for the midweek and noon Thursday for the weekender editions.

Pages for the newspapers are put together on Monday and Thursday afternoons, and sent to the printer immediately upon completion.

CHOW LINE

There was plenty to eat, as these ladies demonstrate, at the Sacred Heart Catholic Church barbecue this past weekend. In addition to the good food, area residents could also enjoy an auction, cake walk, "country store" and dunking booth. It was the first such event for the Church, but sponsors plan on making it an annual affair in Rockport.

Accidents Down, Fatalities Up In Aransas County

The number of accidents so far in 1980 was down but the number of traffic deaths was up in Aransas County, according to a report released recently by the Texas Department of Public Safety.

From January 1 through May, 1980, there were 57 total traffic accidents in Aransas County with three of those being fatal accidents in which five people died.

By comparison, from January through May of 1979, there were a total of 71 traffic accidents with three of those being fatalities in which three people died.

For the month of May only, Aransas County reported one fatal accident in which one person died. That made Aransas one of the eight counties in the 21-county Corpus Christi District reporting deaths for the month.

During the month of May, Hidalgo County reported two fatal accidents resulting in two deaths.

Other counties reporting one fatal accident each during May included Nueces, San Patricio, Jackson, Cameron, Brooks and Duval. In Nueces, Jackson, Brooks and Duval counties, each accident resulted in the deaths of two people.

In the remaining counties of the Corpus Christi District -- Kenedy, Kleberg, DeWitt, Goliad, Lavaca, Refugio, Calhoun, Victoria,

Volunteers Needed For October Seafair

Volunteers are needed to help plan -- and work during -- the Rockport area's Sixth Annual Seafair, set for October 11 and 12, says Seafair Chairman Bob Bernardy.

At a meeting of committee chairmen on June 9, Bernardy showed members a chart locating proposed tent sites and parking accommodations for the October event.

"Everyone," Bernardy said, "agreed that Seafair will be more accessible at its new location on Rockport Beach."

Putting out a call for volunteers, Bernardy emphasized that "here is clearly an opportunity for everyone to get involved in this community project."

A coupon has been provided on page 3 of today's Rockport Pilot. Person who want to volunteer their time and services to Seafair are asked to fill out the coupon and return it either by mail or in person.

Coupons may be returned to the Chamber of Commerce office, Live Oak State Bank or First National Bank. They will be collected on a regular basis and volunteers will be contacted as soon as possible, Bernardy added.

He urged area residents to offer their services and help "make this Seafair the best one ever!"

Pet Talks

By Dr. Hap Lutz

Dr. Lutz is a graduate of Baltimore City College and Texas A&M University. He specializes in small and exotic animal practice. He was an instructor of small animal diseases and surgery in the Veterinary School at Texas A&M and was in private practice in Waco for 25 years.

CANINE PATROL — EVERY POLICE DEPARTMENT NEEDS THEM.

Police departments all over the world are adding dogs to their ranks. The Chicago police department has 50 man-and-dog teams.

Guided by their masters, Chicago police dogs are used in areas with a high record of street crime. They are especially effective in the reduction of major crimes such as assult, burglary, auto theft and the narcotics traffic.

Each dog selected must pass a complete physical examination by the canine section veterinarian. A variety of tests for intelligence, mobility, persistence and interest in training are also given. Tests include:

1. Obedience. The initial training course takes 14 weeks. The dog and his handler are trained together. The dog is taught to obey only one man — his handler — and a relationship of close affection, trust and understanding is built up between the teammates.

In this course, the dog learns to overcome obstacles such as barricades and boxes and to scale walls up to nine feet. During obedience training, the dog is highly praised for each accomplishment.

2. Pursuit. Fully-trained for obedience, the dog now learns to respond to every command his handler may issue. Upon command, the dog will instantly leap into pursuit, following his quarry regardless of twists and turns in the suspect's flight.

When the officer sees the suspect safely cornered, he commands the dog to halt and the animal simply stands guard.

3. Tracking and seeking. A dog trained to track must learn to discriminate between various scents. During the dog's training, he and his handler work together with one or more teams.

Each handler first conceals an object bearing his scent. He then teaches his dog to seek and retrieve only the object belonging to him.

A trained police dog can follow the scent of the human body whether the feet are bare or covered with some type of footwear. The dog can quickly search a large building or a wide area. He is encouraged to bark when he finds the source of the scent, suspect or victim and then direct his handler to the spot.

A dog trained in canine police patrol would make a major contribution to the Rockport Police Department.

If you have any questions concerning the health and care of your pet, please send them to the Rockport Pilot, 1002 Wharf, Rockport, Texas. Your question will be answered in Dr. Lutz's Pet Talks column in the Pilot's Weekender edition.

That was the question in the minds of a lot of people Friday, June 20, as they passed this house at the corner of Orleans and Patton in Rockport. What was going on -- literally -- was a tent as employees of an exterminating company from Corpus Christi prepared the house for fumigation. Ray DeLeon, foreman for Dr. E.R. Deitch, said Dr. Deitch had recently bought the house and was having it fumigated. The process, which involves covering the entire structure with this multi-colored tent, takes about two days, DeLeon said. [Pilot Photo by Pat Blair]

TDA Files For Permit

The Texas Department of Agriculture has filed application for an experimental use permit to test Compound 1080 in toxic collars, a methold of animal damage control which many livestock producers believe will help reduce death losses.

Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown reported that the application was filed May 9 with the Environmental Protection Agency to develop data not included in the experimental work being done by Interior Department or Texas A&M University.

The Interior and Texas A&M will be conducting technical research on the chemical in toxic collars under controlled conditions by experts.

The Texas Department of Agriculture's research will center on use of the collar in actual field conditions with ranchers administering the collars.

Personnel from TDA, assisted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, and the Texas Predatory Animal Control Service will train the ranchers who wil be working with the research program in the safe use and disposal of the collars and the carcasses.

"There would never be enough trained professionals in Texas to administer a statewide program using toxic collars. In practice, it would be the ranchers who would be handling the work for such a tool to be economical and effective," Brown explained. "Our tests will show whether this practice will be feasible."

EMS Report

Aransas County's paramedics responded to 19 emergency calls during the week beginning Monday, June 16.

This was four more calls than the 15 projected for the week.

The service's two ambulances logged 1,580 miles for the month. Average response time was 6.09 minutes per call.

Bills may be paid at the Enterprise Medical Center in Rockport.

'Three W's' Key to Gardening Success

By Pat Blair

Ask Willis and Oda Corbin the key to a good garden and they'll tell you it's "three W's": "Work, water and watch."

The Corbins should know. They've had a garden at their house at 618 Laurel for several years now, raising corn, beans, broccoli, carrots, onions, tomatoes . . . "You name it," says Oda.

They have a pantry in a workshop near the garden, and it's filled with jars of food from their garden.

"I canned six jars of hot sauce this morning!" Willis said during a recent interview at the Corbins' home.

And Oda added, "We put up pickles this year til they ran out our ears."

The Corbins come by their gardening skills naturally; both were raised on farms, Oda in Seabrook and Willis in West Columbia and Webster.

But until they came to Rockport, they never had a place where they could raise crops, Oda said.

Willis spent 32 years working for Humble Oil Company — it's Exxon now, "but it was still Humble when I retired," he said — then spent another 10 years as a welding inspector. The Corbins moved to Rockport in 1965.

It wasn't the first time either of them had been here. Back in 1917, Willis's father came to Rockport to help build ships. "We left the year of the 1919 storm," he recalled; "we left just a few days before the storm hit."

Later, after he and Oda married, the Corbins came to Rockport on vacations. "We used to come every two or three years when the children were small," Oda said. "We came down 20 years on vacations before we moved here."

Married 45 years — 46 next November — the Corbins have three children, a daughter and two sons, seven grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Although their children are grown, they currently share their home with two dachshunds — "automatic floor cleaners," is Willis's description for the dogs. Oda adds, "They eat anything."

In addition to gardening and canning — for which the Corbins have a big food processor — Willis also does some "puttering" in the workshop. There's a barbecue grill he built himself — and this year, he did all his insecticide spraying with a "special sprayer" that he also made himself.

The sprayer did all right: Willis said he had fewer insects this year than ever before.

"We were going to keep count of the produce," Oda said, "but we lost track." However, Willis added, the tally included four 20-foot rows of green beans — 54 pounds worth of beans — and zucchini squash that weighed up to four and a half pounds.

"Some people say it isn't good that big," Oda said, "but that's when it's good — dipped in egg, corn meal and fried . . ."

On the day of the interview, only the tomato bushes were left in the garden. The rest of the 80-by-22 foot plot had been turned over and he was tilling it, getting his compost ready.

"I use cow manure fertilizer," he said, plus the "waste" from whatever he raises, such as potato and tomato peelings — it's all tilled back into the soil.

"It's all tilled under now," Willis said during the interview, lookint at the mostly-bare plot.

"But wait 'til next year . . ."

Parks & Wildlife Buys Habitat For Dove

AUSTIN—The Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission has authorized the purchase of 56.3 acres of prime white-winged dove habitat in the Rio Grande Valley rea.

In a public meeting last week the commission approved the expenditure of $50,000 from white-winged dove stamp funds for the J.S. McManus tract in Hidalgo County.

Whitewing Program Leader Jim Dunks told the commission the tract is one of the few remaining native South Texas brush tracts which are highly productive nesting areas for the migratory game birds.

Dunks said the area also has been a source of broodstock of chachalacas for restocking in other valley areas.

No hunting will be allowed on the tract, which will be maintained as a whitewing sanctuary.

The newly acquired tract is located in Hidalgo County just north of the Rio Grande and south of the State Highway 281 near Donna.

WATER

Aransas County.

Water purchased from San Patricio is pumped into storage tanks in Aransas County, and a new ground storage tank in Peninsula Oaks will boost the Aransas County system's storage capacity by 1.5 million gallons.

The new tank was supposed to have been in operation by the first of June but delays in getting the facility painted have made the completion date indefinite as of Monday, June 23.

Gurley said Monday the new facility "may be ready" by mid-July.

However, he added, the new facility -- although it will increase the amount of water Aransas County can store -- will not affect the amount of water the county gets from San Patricio.

The water that serves Aransas County is pumped from the San Patricio Water District's plant at Reynolds, Gurley said.

This plant also provides water for Ingleside, Aransas Pass and Port Aransas.

DEATHS

Starr, Willacy, Zapata, Jim Hogg and Jim Wells — no fatalities were reported for May.

So far, for the first five months of 1980, no county has reported a zero death rate. Four counties — Goliad, Calhoun, Zapata and Jim Hogg — could report that distinction in 1979.

District-wide, rural accident figures follow a trend reflected by Aransas County: total accidents are down but fatalities are up. Through May, 1980, the Corpus Christi District only had 1770 accidents as compared to last year's 2445.

But 99 people have died in 76 fatal accidents so far this year, compared to 96 deaths in 66 fatal accidents in 1979.

Guest Camps Scheduled For Cheerleaders

KINGSVILLE — Several music camps and clinics — sponsored by the Texas A&I University music department for South Texas high schools and college students and band directors — will be held on the University campus this summer.

The Texas A&I music department, in conjunction with the Marching Auxiliaries of America, is sponsoring a drill team camp for high school students from Monday, June 23, through July 3.

The program concentrates on drill team, dance and pompon routines.

The Texas A&I Flag, to be sponsored by the Texas A&I music department July 7-11, is expected to attract approximately 90 high school participants from the South Texas area.

Instructors for the five-day camp will include Cheryl Strohschall, Kathy Banz and Libby Blythe, all members of the East Texas State University Flag Corps.

They are experienced flag corps teachers and have worked with Lenny Krezeki, flag instructor for the Santa Clara Vanguard from Santa Clara, California.

Classes for the Texas A&I Flag Camp will be held between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. each day.

Instruction will include the use of movies to demonstrate various aspects of flag per formance. Special classes are set for captains, covering such topics as giving commands, routine construction and equipment and uniform selection.

Dr. Norman Sunderman, coordinator for the flag camp and member of the Texas A&I music faculty, may be contacted at (512) 595-2803 for more information.

The 12th annual Marching Band Clinic, geared to high school band directors and senior-level college music students going into teaching, will be held on the University campus July 11-12.

The clinic, also sponsored by the Texas A&I music department, will feature Bill Brady director of bands at Fredericksburg High School, and Paula Crider, director or bands at Crockett High School, as the program clinicans.

The two-day clinic will make use of a seminar format with emphasis placed on the actual design of half time shows for high school bands. The program is limited to approximately 50 people.

Scott Randolph, coordinator of the marching band clinic and director of bands at Texas A&I, may be contacted at (512) 595-2803 for more information.

Approximately 300 girls from the South Texas Area are expected to attend the 30th annual Texas A&I Twirling Camp, scheduled for July 13-18 on the University campus.

Classes offered during the six-day camp will include instruction for beginning, intermediate and advanced twirlers, majorette classes, class and individual instruction for drum majors and "individual help" classes for featured twirlers or contest twirlers.

Frances Whitley Winkle, holder of 15 state championships including eight consecutive years as state two-baton champion, will be head instructor for the twirling camp. She owns the Little Miss Baton Twirling Academy in Corpus Christi.

Assisting Winkle will be 13 instructors including Arturo Valdez, Texas A&I University drum major and assistant drum major instructor, and Joe Carrizales, member of the Javelina Marching Band and assistant to the drum major.

Randolph is coordinator for the Texas A&I Twirling Camp and may be contacted through the Texas A&I University music department for more information. Dr. Robert Scott, chairman of the Texas A&I music department, is assistant coordinator for the program.

BIDS

Johnson said that in cases where a permit fee is required by city ordinance, the request must come before the city or be in violation of the ordinance.

Alderman Henry Bent made the motion to table the request. The motion was seconded by Charlie Garrett and approved unanimously.

Bids for the dog pound construction were referred to city officials to determine if they met the architect's specifications. Barring any problems, the project will be awarded to Denyer with a bid of $22,500 for construction of the new city pound.

Other bids submitted on the project ranged from $27,000 to a high bid of $39,375 submitted by a Corpus Christi firm.

In other action Monday night, the city council adopted -- and all council members signed -- a resolution of respect for the late Alderman Ervin D. (Dan) Ward Jr.

The council also approved the order and notice for special city election -- set for August 9 -- to fill the vacancy left on the council by Mr. Ward's death on June 8.

Rachel Garcia will be election judge and Andrea Martinez alternate.

Council members approved a request by Timothy J. Lutz for a vendor's permit to allow solicitation of ice cream and frozen food sales in the city.

The council adopted ordinances annexing the tract of land on which The Jewel Box is located and setting new rates for turning on water after it has been disconnected for nonpayment of bills and for resetting of water meters.

Both of these actions were approved at the June 9 council session.

The council tabled setting of a date for opening bids for removal of a dilapidated building at 205 Gagon Street.

In other action, council members approved bills for payment and reviewed the city financial statements as of May 31, 1980.

Live Oak Peninsula Philosopher

Editor's note: The Live Oak Peninsula Philosopher on his grass burr ranch comes out in favor of eggs, electric cars and a good pair of mules.

Dear editor:

I've concluded that if you give scientists enough rope they'll unravel it.

For years now they've been saying that cholesterol is bad for you. They hammered on it so hard and long, claiming that eggs particularly are full of it, that it wouldn't have surprised me if some people who'll believe anything had come out in favor of outlawing chickens.

Now other scientists have come up with a study saying go ahead and eat eggs, cholesterol won't hurt you. Personally, I never stopped. I don't know which came first, the chicken or the egg; but I know which came first, eggs or scientists.

The way to handle scientists who come out of their laboratories pale and dyspeptic to report what you should or shouldn't eat or drink was established years ago by a man I knew. His doctor told him he should limit himself to only one cup of coffee a day. He obeyed, after he found a cup that held nearly a quart.

Another scientist is being hailed for inventing a bug that eats oil. I've had them in my tractor for years.

Other scientists are now working on electric cars and I'm all in favor of it if I can get hold of a pair of good mules. As I understand it, the cars will run up to 100 miles before their batteries run down and have to be recharged.

I figure there'll be cars stalled all up and down the road, their batteries exhausted. A man with a pair of good mules and a long extension cord can clean up pulling them to the nearest wall plug.

Understand, I'm not decrying all scientists. If it hadn't been for volcano scientists we never would have known when Mount St. Helens was going to blow up.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Alcohol Fuel Symposium Set

COLLEGE STATION -- There's still time to preregister for the alcohol fuel symposium that will key in on small-scale production of ethanol from grain at Texas A&M University, July 1-2.

Sponsored by two agencies of the Texas A&M University System -- the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service -- in cooperation with A&M's Center for Energy and Mineral Resources, the symposium is designed to bring participants up-to-date on research progress and latest information available on alcohol-fuel.

Discussions will center around issues relating to the production and use of ethanol, including feedstocks, preprocessing requirements, use as a fuel in engines, by-product utilization, as well as legal, economic and financial aspects.

Information will be presented on a number of ongoing projects, such as agricultural residue combustion/gasification as a heat source for distillation and development of sweet sorghums as feedstocks for ethanol production.

CPR Training Now Available

Individuals, groups or organizations who desire basic CPR training and/or recertification, can now make arrangements for this training by calling the Concern Center at 729-7722.

The American Heart Association and the Concern Center have joined forces to improve the communication phase of CPR training. With this arrangement, it is hoped that classes can be established more quickly. Within the last three weeks, 16 people have been trained in the basics of CPR.

Everyone who took the basic course was informed that their certificates were valid for one year. Of the several hundred that have been taught basic CPR in the last three years, very few have been back for recertification, even though it is a free service.

One explanation for this may be the expertise of the local EMS units, which could lull people into thinking they don't need to stay current on CPR procedures. However, the time element in all heart attack cases is so critical that, within four to six minutes, brain damage is possible. For this reason and others, people need to be trained in CPR so they can help their loved ones until the time the EMS arrives and takes over.

A special class for recertification only is being formed, so check your card.

He counts on his fingers now, but he'll grow up counting on the biggest savings association in Texas.

"Back when I first started practicing medicine, I also started saving my money. I counted on Gibraltar Savings then. And I'm still counting on them today. For security and the highest interest allowed by law. They're America's first insured. And Texas' largest—a $3 billion giant. That's big. That's Gibraltar Savings. I know I can count on them. And so will my four-year-old patient."
