Number 44.

LAST LOT OF U. S. RHINE TROOPS ARRIVE IN NEW YORK.

Photo shows soldiers and their wives and youngsters on board the transport St. Mihiel waiting for debarkation. Acting Mayor Hurlbut, bands of music and representatives of the various war-time welfare organizations gave the men and their families a warm welcome.

WILL MARK ROADS IN KIMBLE COUNTY.

The Legislature recently passed a law requiring the road overseers of all counties to have conspicuous and permanent index or sign posts placed at all intersections of first and second class roads, showing the most noted place to which the road leads, and also providing that the Commissioners' Court may enter into contracts with advertising concerns, to do this work, should they desire. Such advertising concerns making contracts with the different counties, will be required to maintain the road markers.

The bill was passed with the emergency clause, reading that owing to the fact that the roads and highways of the State are not marked, thereby causing loss of time and annoyance to the traveling public an emergency is created and the law becomes effective at once.

The Circle Automobile Men's Association of America have offered to make a five years' contract with this county to construct and maintain the necessary road markers. This service to be free to the county, the Association to derive their revenue from advertising to be placed at the road intersections. This offer will doubtless be accepted by the Commissioners' Court.

The C. A. M. A. A. have a number of routes already marked throughout this county.

CALL MEETING OF PECAN GROWERS.

Local pecan growers have received from H. G. Lucas of Brownwood, president of the Texas Pecan Growers Association, a letter outlining a plan for organizing a better selling method and asking the growers of the different section to get together and talk over the proposition and advise him of what they think of his plan.

He suggests the holding of a meeting of all pecan growers later to discuss the marketing problem and formulating plans for a permanent organization.

Those who are interested, should see County Agent McMillan and after talking with the different growers, it is likely that a local meeting will be called.

CAPT. CHAS. SCHREINER CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY.

The Kerrville Mountain Sun last week had a most interesting article recounting a few of the notable events in the life of Capt. Chas. Schreiner, who celebrated his 85th birthday last Thursday.

Probably no man is better known in Southwest Texas than Capt. Schreiner, who for nearly three-quarters of a century has been prominently identified with the financial and economic interests in this part of Texas.

In 1869 he established a mercantile business at Kerrville, on borrowed capital, and from that humble beginning has grown several enterprises that are today of unusual magnitude, among which are the Chas. Schreiner Store, the Chas. Schreiner Bank, the Schreiner Commission Co., and the Schreiner Livestock Co.

In early days he was a Texas Ranger, and later a Confederate soldier.

Aside from unnumbered smaller benefices, he set aside in 1916, a quarter of a million dollars to establish a Presbyterian school for boys and young men at Kerrville, to be known as the Schreiner Institute. The school is under construction now and Capt. Schreiner will see it begin its great work the coming fall.

A gift of $150,000 was made some time ago to the highway maintenance of Kerr County. The citizens of Junction received the donation of a beautiful plot of ground on the Llano River, which has been named Schreiner Park. This park has been improved and is one of the most beautiful to be found anywhere. He set aside $35,000 to be used for the construction of a High School building at Junction, providing that an additional $35,000 be raised other than by taxation.

At Kerrville he has provided for free a clinic at the Secor Hospital, for the poor and unfortunate of the community.

Capt. Schreiner is one of the valued subscribers of the Eagle and along with his many friends here and countless numbers else where, we join in congratulating him on his long and useful life, and wish that he may enjoy birthdays in the future that will place him in the centenary class.

EFFORTS TO GET HIGH- WAY WORK EXTENDED.

The Chamber of Commerce here and at Kerrville are making an effort to induce the Commissioners' Court of Sutton County to place a part of their available road money on the Junction-Sonora road. Work now under way on the highway leading to Sonora will extend almost to the Sutton County line. During the past year some work on the road from the county line to Sonora has been done, and it is the hope of those interested, that more work will be done over this distance of some forty miles.

By way of getting the matter in hand, the directors of the local Chamber of Commerce recently held a meeting and decided to ask for a meeting with Court and other interested parties, at Sonora, to discuss the matter. Judge Baker held a telephone conversation with Judge Johnson of Sutton County who stated that they would be glad to meet with a delegation from Junction. This meeting will be held at Sonora as soon as the weather permits.

Because of the enormous traffic over this road, this proposed work will be of great benefit to this and our neighboring county to the west.

LIVESTOCK SHOW HELD AT ROOSEVELT

In spite of the disagreeable weather, about 75 people gathered at Roosevelt Thursday afternoon, February 22nd, for the purpose of attending a stock judging, grain judging and peccan topping demonstration.

Sheep were judged and discussed first. A Delaine ram was brought out that showed a good type of fleece and was a good individual as considered from general appearances and conformation. A class of Delaine ewes was gone over and the various good and bad points discussed. The selection of breeding animals possessing a good constitution as well as a good fleece was stressed.

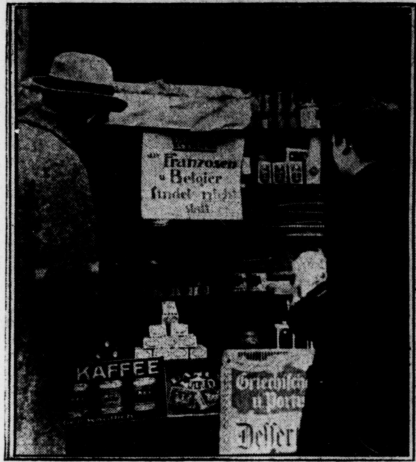

A class of breeding Poland-China sows furnished an interesting class and were the subject of a good deal of discussion as to which was really the best animal.

The poultry-exhibit was good. There were representatives of nine different breeds of chickens on exhibition. A poultry club among the boys and girls would be a fine move toward standardizing on three or four popular breeds of chickens in the community. This would facilitate the exchange of breeding stock and a surplus of breeding eggs, or stock could be more easily disposed of.

The best point brought out by the corn exhibit was that there was no "best" variety known or planted in the community. The corn shown represented about every type imaginable. A variety test will be conducted in the community this year and determine which really is the best variety of corn to grow in this section.

Several pecan trees were cut back preparatory to budding later. In a few days some trees will be cut back for the purpose of grafting. By grafting as soon as the sap begins to rise one will have an opportunity to bud the tree later this season in case any of the grafts fail to unite.

Leonard Hensley began working in the Eagle printing plant last week. He is attending school, and works after school hours and on Saturdays.

GERMAN DEALERS REFUSE FOODSTUFF TO FRENCH.

Signs have been prominently displayed in the shop windows, calling attention to the fact that food or drink will not be sold to any Frenchman or Belgian, as their part in the request by the Nationalists to show their protest for the invasion of the Ruhr.

GOVERNOR SIGNS MATERNITY BILL.

Austin, Feb. 24.—Governor Neff Saturday approved and filed House bill No. 103, an act in the interest of maternity and infancy welfare and hygiene, commonly known as the Shepard-Towner act, and accepting the Federal provisions of that law. Under an amendment, which was proposed in the Senate and adopted by both branches of the Legislature, agents administering the provisions of the act must have consent of parents or guardians before entering homes.

The Governor approved and filed the bill to establish a horticultural and agricultural experiment station in the citrus belt in Cameron or Hidalgo County. The bill carries an appropriation of $50,000.

Other bills signed and filed Saturday were:

Making an appropriation of the expended balance of the American Legion sanitarium appropriation.

Requiring the marking of the highway intersections and authorizing commissioners' courts to have same marked by advertising concerns.

Amending the State depository law providing for the manner in which State funds shall be kept and deposited.

ORGANIZE WOLF CLUB.

Notice is given to all interested in the organization of the Kimble County "Wolf Club" that the date set to meet for the purpose of organizing said club has been set for Saturday afternoon March 10th, at the court house, in Junction.

The meeting set for the 24th was not held on account of the weather.

NOTICE TO PUBLIC.

It seems that some persons regard the poster frame near the Heyman Drug store, as public property on which they are at liberty to whittle and otherwise deface. Such persons are very kindly asked to refrain from cutting or otherwise mutilating this structure, and cautioned that if this request is not complied with, prosecutions will follow, as it is strictly a violation of the law to destroy property of this kind.

Poll Tax Payments Light.

Sheriff Gibbs has kindly furnished us with the poll tax payments by precincts for the county. The number was smaller by nearly three hundred than those of last year, probably caused by this being an off year on elections. However, there will likely be several State, district or precinct elections that those who did not pay poll taxes will not be allowed to participate in. This year's poll taxes are as follows:

Prec.	P.T.	Exem.
No. 1. Junction	395	4
No. 2. Telegraph	39	1
No. 3. N. Llano	109

A FLURRY IN PILLS

Chapter VI.

"Give me a dollar," demanded Ames. Doctor Dill reached hesitantly in his pocket. He had perfect confidence in Ames, but he was an inquisitive-minded man.

"What's it for?" he puzzled. "The foreign travel fund," smiled Ames.

"Mother" Dill, watching his face with the keen insight of mediocrity, rumbled nervously in her work basket. "If you haven't the change, I have, papa," she flutteringly stated. "Invest a dollar of mine," begged Janet Stanbury, laughingly, but studying him curiously. "I'm going to Europe, too."

Ames glanced at her disappointedly. The mocking light was not in her eyes.

The doctor produced a much worn silver dollar, and Ames noticed that his look lingered on it when it was passed over.

"Now read me your riddle," the professor laughed.

"I warn you it's a long shot," Ames confessed, "but here's the dollar's worth I bought for you, and he handed over the thirty-day option, made out to John Ames, agent. 'You see, I've indorsed it to you.'"

"Kleno!" figured the doctor, as he glanced at the paper.

"The good, old-fashioned stuff," supplemented John. "You have the benefit of a hundred and fifty thousand dollars' advertising. If you'll only change the name of Dill's Billious Pills."

"To Kleno!" choked Janet. "Isn't that the cleverest thought?" and, now that she understood, that curl came once more to the corners of her lips.

"But what's it all about?" quavered the perplexed "Mother" Dill.

"It's the first step in your attempt to sell enough pills to go to Europe," Ames smiled at her. "The name 'Kleno' has been advertised all over the country. The doctor will put up some of his pills under that name, and I'll present them to some big drug jobbers. If they undertake the manufacture and sale of the pills, under the doctor's formula, it won't be very long until you can buy your steamer tickets."

"Oh, do you suppose they will?" trembled "Mother" Dill.

"Kleno!" exclaimed the doctor, and, all at once, broke into hearty laughter.

"The good old-fashioned stuff," added Ames.

"How very clever," breathed Janet, and at last John Ames understood her. He had thought her intelligent; but she was only intellectual.

Chapter VII.

"Kleno!" exclaimed Clarence Beaker of the immense drug jobbing house of Beaker, Troy & Peattie. "I've been waiting for Kleno. You're rather far behind your advertising, though. Some of our biggest customers have been asking what it is."

"It's a pill!" exclaimed Ames, producing one of the boxes, and displaying the awe-inspiring globelets it contained.

Clarence Beaker, who was slumped when he stood up, and could slip his collar on over his head, took but one glance at the pill, and did not ask what it was made of.

"We'll handle it with pleasure," he announced. "That was a good line of advertising. 'The good, old-fashioned stuff,'" and he shook his periphery with a laugh of appreciation. "Make the price right, and I'll give you an order for a thousand gross."

Ames shook his head.

"I prefer a proposition for you to take over the manufacture, sale and advertising from this point on."

"I see," he guessed, "broke before you get on the market."

"There hasn't been a penny's worth of Kleno sold, and a hundred and fifty thousand dollars have been spent in advertising. I won't say that Doctor Dill is broke, but he does not feel equal to pushing the sale of this pill as it should be pushed."

Clarence Beaker, in whose face there were few features by which to judge of his thoughts, shoved back the box of pills.

"Sorry," he announced, "but, while we'd handle your pill with pleasure if you'd keep up the advertising, we couldn't go into the game ourselves. We have three cathartics of our own, and it would be foolish to pay for more competition."

Ames, though with sinking enthusiasm, studied the matter quietly.

"I think you are making a mistake," he urged. "The cathartics you have are all of one type, and there's no new appeal in them. The very size and color of this pill would inspire confidence."

"Maybe so," granted Clarence, indifferently; but I've told you where we stand, unless you can finance the thing."

"I'll place it elsewhere," decided Ames, rising. "The name alone, familiar as it is to the public, makes it worth a serious marketing campaign. The name's a peach," readily admitted the leading drug jobber. "I wish we owned it."

Ames, who never let any commercial hint escape him, breathed a sigh of relief.

"What will you give us for the name?" he immediately asked.

Again Mr. Beaker's expression underwent a change. It grew tighter towards the apex, as he reflected that the Kleno firm was probably flat broke.

"Of course we couldn't begin to pay you what you've actually lost in advertising," he indifferently stated; "but I'll give you a chance to save a little out of the wreck," and he drew the pills towards him again and looked into the box. "How much will you take?"

Ames studied his man in perplexity, and felt that he was unfairly handicapped. He had never before tried to read a man who offered so little in the way of facial guidance.

"Fifty thousand dollars," he bluffed.

Mr. Beaker's countenance widened towards the base.

"Give you twenty-five thousand," he offered; "not a cent more!"

"Cash, I suppose?" observed the agent, as if in sarcasm.

"Right on the nail!" returned Clarence promptly, betraying his first hint of eagerness.

Ames made no secret of his pleasure.

"Write me the check, less five thousand!" he exulted. "Here are the papers and my credentials."

Mr. Beaker examined those papers with interest and a smile. At last, his face had expression.

"Option, eh?" he chuckled. "That's where the five thousand goes. Why, Kleno was originally to have been a cleaning compound! You know, I don't think it was a good name for a pill."

"That's what worried me," acknowledged Ames. "I hope you have a better use for it?"

"Tooth wash," explained Beaker, reaching for his checkbook. "I've been hunting for a name for a month, but I never expected a snap like this. Kleno, the good, old-fashioned stuff!"

"Yes, you bought a bargain," agreed Ames, thoughtfully. "I still believe, however, you would have found the pill a good proposition. It has been tried for twenty years. It was formerly known as Dill's Billious Pills."

Clarence Beaker jerked the box towards him.

"Dill's Billious Pills?" he repeated. "Now, that's what I call a name for a pill; especially a pill that looks like this!"

"We might negotiate with Doctor Dill for his name and formula. We can unload it on our druggists without advertising."

John Ames, agent, waited until he had signed all papers and had received a check.

"Speaking as Doctor Dill's representative, I may say that neither the formula nor the name is for sale," he firmly announced. "The doctor will manufacture them for you, himself, but cannot begin until his return from Europe, next spring."

Chapter VIII.

Ames disliked to be cruel, but he had a test to make.

"Sorry, companions," he reported; "but they won't have the Kleno pill at any price."

Doctor Dill laughed, with no trace of disappointment.

"Mother" Dill's waxen fingers locked themselves together, and then she smiled very sweetly.

"Oh, I'm so sorry!" murmured Janet Stanbury, with softened gray eyes. "I don't care, Mr. Ames, it was a clever idea, anyhow; a brilliant idea!"

Ames felt a trifle ashamed of himself.

"I didn't come back empty-handed, however," he went on, and panned over the check. "I sold the Kleno name for a tooth wash."

"Twenty thousand dollars!" gasped the doctor, clutching at the chin which missed a beard.

"Mercy!" fluttered "Mother" Dill, and, adjusting her glasses carefully as she went, she hurried over to the bird's-eye view of Pompeii.

Ames stole a glance at Janet. Again her gray eyes rested mockingly on him, and the curl came at the corners of her lips. She had penetrated him, and why had he done all this, from the time he had followed her off the train until now, when he had tried to test her? The curl came once more.

The doctor, having feasted his eyes on the check for a long minute, slowly passed it back.

"This don't belong to me," he decided.

"Why not?" disputed Ames. "You paid for the option, and besides, the check is a direct outgrowth of your pill. I am sure I won't have the check."

The doctor, who was a just man, pondered slowly.

"I'll divide it equally with you," he offered. "That is positively the only basis on which I'll do business."

"All right," accepted Ames, cheerfully. "I have less compunction of conscience about it, because I've made a bargain for you to manufacture five hundred gross of your pills a month as soon as you get back from your trip to Europe. Beaker, Troy & Peattie think 'Dill's Billious Pills' a great name for the article."

Janet Stanbury's eyes glowed with admiration again.

"What a triumph of cleverness!" she exclaimed, and there was no mockery about her. However, Ames reflected, her sense of humor was liable to assert itself at any time.

Suddenly he realized that she mocked only that which she understood. The thing which had fascinated him had been but an imitation. He sighed; for her poise was perfect and her lashes were long.

The doctor shook him by the hand, and "Mother" Dill, half smiling and half crying, drew him down, by the lapels of his coat, and kissed him.

"You've made the world so real!" she told him. "How soon can you go to Europe, Janet?"

"As soon as you can get ready," "Better go along, John," urged the doctor, heartily.

John felt the eyes of Janet fixed on him, and that there was wisdom in them.

"Sorry," he regretted; "but it is impossible."

BILLS INTRODUCED TO DATE NUMBER 1,033.

Austin, Feb. 24.—At the close of the seventh week of the session a total of 1,033 bills had been introduced in both branches of the Legislature. Of this number 645 have appeared in the House and 388 in the Senate. Many of them are duplicates in the two Houses, having been introduced in both branches of the Legislature.

With the larger number of the calendar of both Houses, it is apparent that many measures are going to die without having received consideration, though given favorable committee reports.

Severe Indigestion

"I had very severe attacks of indigestion," writes Mr. M. H. Wade, a farmer, of R. F. D. 1, Weir, Miss. "I would suffer for months at a time. All I dared eat was a little bread and butter... consequently I suffered from weakness. I would try to eat, then the terrible suffering in my stomach! I took medicines, but did not get any better. The druggist recommended and I decided to try it, for, as I say, I had tried others for two or three years without any improvement in my health. I soon found the Black-Draught was acting on my liver and easing the terrible pain. "In two or three weeks, I found I could go back to eating. I only weighed 123. Now I weigh 147—eat anything I want to, and by taking Black-Draught I do not suffer. "Have you tried Theford's Black-Draught? If not, do so today. Over 8-million packages sold, a year. At dealers"

Theford's

STATE CAPITAL NEWS

From The Austin Statesman:

TECHNOLOGY COLLEGE DIRECTORS APPOINTED

Nine members of the board of directors of the newly created Texas Technological college which is to be located in West Texas, have been named by Gov. Pat M. Neff.

Three of the directors are named for a term of six years, three for terms of four years and three for terms of two years.

Those named for six-year terms are: W. P. Hobby of Beaumont, former governor of Texas, who is a newspaper publisher and has extensive business and financial interests in Texas and Mexico; John W. Carpenter of Dallas, an active executive officer of the Texas Electric Company of Dallas, who is chairman of the textile factories committee of the Dallas Chamber of Commerce; G. W. Meadows of Waco, who is a young man and head of one of the largest wholesale grocery concerns in Texas.

Those named for four-year terms are: Amon G. Carter of Fort Worth, vice president and general manager of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, who is a native of Bowie, Montague County, and one of the leading business men of Texas; R. A. Underwood of Plainview, active vice president of the First National Bank of Plainview and former president of the Panhandle Bankers' Association; Mrs. Charles de Groff of El Paso, owner of hotel and building interests in El Paso, an active civic worker who has taken an active interest in politics.

Those named for two-year terms are: Clifford B. Jones of Spur, former president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce and for the last fifteen years intimately connected with every forward movement in West Texas, an authority on animal husbandry and ranch economics; Dr. J. E. Nunn of Amarillo, owner of extensive business and property interests in the Texas Panhandle; Mrs. Frank N. Drane of Corsicana, noted in club and civic circles among women, and wife of a wealthy man, who for years has taken a philanthropic interest in educational affairs.

All the above appointees were confirmed by the Senate except Mrs. de Groff. Confirmation in her case was held up, it is said, on account of her alleged Ku Klux activities.

GOVERNOR TO SPEAK AT WEST TEXAS CONVENTION

Preparations are being made by San Angelo to handle an attendance of 7,000 people for the fifth annual convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, which meets in that city on May 21, 22 and 23.

Speakers for the convention will include Governor Pat M. Neff, Governor Al Smith of New York, Secretary Herbert Hoover, President Alvaro Obregon of Mexico, and others. An invitation to Governor Smith will be extended by Col. C. C. Walsh, president of the Central National Bank of San Angelo, during a visit to New York within the next few weeks.

According to a letter received by the Austin Chamber of Commerce, arrangements are being made for a great pageant of West Texas to be presented in an immense park and for the fifth annual banquet which will be held out-of-doors and for which 3,000 plates will be reserved.

CARPENTER-PATTERSON BILL FINALLY PASSED.

Without debate the House passed finally, 91 to 23, the Carpenter-Patterson bill empowering the attorney general, under the direction of the governor, to institute quo warranto proceedings against county officials who fail to enforce the laws. The bill had been engrossed last week and was pending on final passage. This is one of the important measures included in Governor Neff's law enforcement program. The bill, which failed in the Legislature two years ago, had little trouble in getting by in the House of the Thirty-eighth Legislature. Its fate in the Senate is uncertain, but it would not be surprising to see the measure defeated in the upper branch.

This is the first bill on the Governor's law enforcement program to pass in the House. There are several other measures, but they have not as yet advanced to any extent on the calendar of the House or Senate.

at the regular rates.

The "flu" epidemic seems to have passed in Junction. Very few cases are reported this week. Most of the cases here have been of a mild nature and so far as we are able to learn, no deaths have resulted from this disease. However, several deaths have occurred recently from other causes.

Building is going on in Junction and over the county at a rate not equalled in several years. Most of the contractors and carpenters are busy and have a month to three months' work ahead. Several buildings and other improvements are under way in the town and plans are being made to begin other construction work shortly.

Rev. J. Frank Norris of Fort Worth, is making a tour of the United States in an effort to influence public opinion against the apparent gradual spread of the theory of evolution. It may seem to the casual observer of Rev. J. Frank's antics, that his efforts will have the opposite effect. While delivering an address recently in the House of Representatives, he used the gavel of the speaker with such force that the glass, covering the dial upon which the House voting machine registers, was broken. How much better, it seems, are the words of one of the members of the House, himself a staunch churchman, when he stated that "The Word of God needs no aid or defense from the Legislature. It would be as logical to send Texas Rangers to Jerusalem to defend it against violence, as it would be for the Legislature to seek to defend the Bible against the baneful effects of evolution teaching. It savors of fanaticism and witchcraft, and would do credit to the Spanish inquisition. I do not believe this Legislature has any right to set itself up as an arbiter of scientific or religious issues."

In the last issue of the Eagle a plan was published showing the manner in which the Rural Aid Funds were distributed to the counties of the State, and serves to show why we have never been over enthusiastic about the appropriations for the rural schools. Probably the purpose of the bill appropriating this money was to aid those schools which were not able to maintain terms of reasonable length without assistance, but if such was the intent of the law, the manner in which the funds have fallen far short of this purpose. Not only has the money appropriated for rural aid been given to thickly settled counties of east Texas, whose school districts are well able to maintain their own schools, but these same counties which have grabbed more than their proportionate share of this money, have been the same ones that have placed such low valuations on their property that they are not paying their just share of the State taxes. Thus they are giving less and getting more as the years go on. This, and many other western counties pay several thousand dollars more in school taxes than they receive, while eastern counties each get several thousand dollars more than they pay in taxes. A remedy must be found to overcome this condition.

OBITUARY

It is with sadness that we chronicle the death of our old friend and brother in Christ, John Tobey, and old citizen of Kimble County, Texas, who died February 26th, at 4:20 a. m., at his home in the northwest section of the county, and was buried at 1 p. m., the 27th.

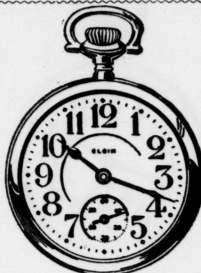

He had been a resident of the county for 40 years, and a member of the Church of Christ for 45 years; was married to Mary J. Weldon, May 10, 1868, and the following children were born to them: Avery Tobey, formerly of Kimble County, but now of Medina City, Texas; Mrs. Ida Wimberly of New Mexico; Mrs. Julia Menges of Fort Clark, Texas; Mrs. Will Mayes of Oklahoma; Mrs. Sallie Self of Junction; Mrs. Rosa Underwood and Mrs. Orpha Fish of Fort McKavitt; and Nathaniel and Pearson, both deceased. Thus we part with another one of our old time Kimble County co-laborers who assisted in paving the way for better times. Those of us who are left behind, see the ranks thinned out to a small remnant. May a better day be in waiting for all of us.

The bereaved family have the heartfelt sympathy of their many friends.

WORK ON NEW HOTEL BEGUN LAST MONDAY.

While there were no special ceremonies dirt was broken for the new Hotel Brady, Brady's new $85,000 hostelry last Monday afternoon and contractor Richards has a large crew busy this week making the necessary excavations for the foundation and the basement. Several days will be taken up with the work of excavation and it is likely that the laying of the brick will not be begun for some thirty days.

Practically all material for the job has arrived and the work will be pushed to completion. It is believed that it will take about six months to build the hotel and have it ready for occupancy, and it will likely be thrown open to the public early in the fall.—Brady Sentinel.

FARMERS WILL TEST A COMMERCIAL FERTILIZER

County Agent W. I. Marshall states the farmers of Katemey and the Peters Prairie sections are this week receiving a car of commercial fertilizer, which they expect to test out on their farms this year.

Mr. Marshall states that the farmers of these communities have had soil analyses made of their land and will apply the fertilizer according to instructions, which are being received from the company from which it was purchased.

The application of commercial fertilizers to farm lands in this county has never been practiced to any great extent and the outcome of the test, which these farmers will make, will no doubt be watched with interest by other farmers of the county. It is to be hoped the venture will prove a successful one.—Mason County News.

C. C. WALSH SAYS WOOL WILL BRING 50 CENTS.

Col. C. C. Walsh, president of the Central National Bank, back yesterday from his annual mid-winter trip to Boston and New York in the interest of the Wool Growers' Central Storage Co., brings the news that the so-called Davidson plan to save the Orient has been rejected definitely by the Interstate Commerce Commission and the members of congress, but that a plan suggested by B. M. Myer, chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, will pass congress before the end of 1923, and will be the means of bringing permanent relief to the Orient. He also brings back the word that wool will sell for 50 cents a pound in San Angelo this spring.—San Angelo Standard.

WORK WILL BEGIN ON MENARD ROAD SOON.

Work will be started on the construction of a graded road from Sonora to the county line toward Menard immediately. W. Ed Glascock, commissioner of Precinct 1, announced last week.

Because of Federal and State aid requiring several months of time and red tape, it was decided to build the road from county road and bridge funds. Mr. Glascock pointed out. Also, he said, it would have required some time to have had to take bids from different construction companies. Smith Brothers and Standifer, who are building the Sonora-San Angelo road, were awarded the contract for grading the road which will be about twenty miles. Their bid was around $10,000.—Devil's River News.

EIGHTEEN MILES OF HIGHWAY TO BE BUILT.

Those citizens of Edwards County who are progressive and wish to see their county moving right up toward the head of the procession, heard that the Commissioners' Court had agreed to build the highway from Rock-springs to the county line toward Kerrville, a distance of 18 miles.—Edwards Co. Leader.

WATSON DIVIDE NOTES.

We expect to begin mowing our lawns at once. Grass in the Live Oaks is growing nicely. Ice, snow, frozen trees, mud on the back porch, all look like early flowers to us; and we grin, grin, grin.

We are also cherishing another—a reminiscent, chewing kind, when we think of the good fat calves we have been eating this past winter; four neighbors of the club, a quarter of a baby beef at a time to the family, O, Boy! We have our private opinion of a ranchman, big or little, who misses this annual opportunity to boost the cattle industry and at the same time to enjoy so many better-than-Kansas City steaks.

For the Orville Cowser community a wolf was caught last week by the Fleming and Cardwell dogs; sixteen trained dogs now in these two packs. Mr. Fleming also pulled down four big bob cats in the Welge ranch this week, getting three one day.

Any ranchman or stock farmer with as many as ten beef breed cows who uses anything less than a pure bred sire either has no memory of last year's cattle sales or has not the power to project past events into the future. And prices are no longer prohibitive; there are two car loads of registered Hereford bulls in this community, range raised, priced at $50.00 for the coming yearlings and $75.00 for coming two's and up.

The cold rain damaged stock much more than the snow. Much timber was broken down in our section by the weight of the ice. Farming land is in perfect condition.

We are enjoying our share of the "flu" throughout the community.

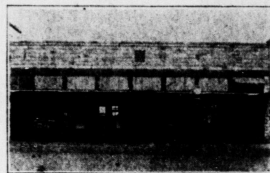

We are glad to report Mrs. James Paterson out in the sunshine again.

Gordon Stewart went to San Antonio this week to take another look at his new son who arrived there the 2nd. inst. Miss Callan of San Antonio who has been visiting Mrs. Boy Crothers of the Black ranch, made the trip down with him.

Misses Kathleen Watson and Myrtle Davie deserted the solitudes of the Divide several weeks since our last reportorial efforts, and visited among their friends of Junction and its suburbs.

Several of our regular Saturday Polo engagements have been broken, and it takes all the fortitude and patience of our patrons of Polo to reconcile themselves to these wet weeks, and lots of fat ponies in the summer time is the only excuse on earth they can think of to justify rain at any time. For ten per cent of the loot, I whisper out the inside dope that a man with six good polo ponies can absolutely rob Felix Watson and Stanton Bundy and Nat Cowser. On Saturday nights after a game, they have been heard to exclaim in their sleep, "My ranch for a polo pony!"

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

(Edited by Mrs. A. W. Loeffler)

MERRY WIFE CLUB ENTERTAINED FEB. 22ND.

On Thursday afternoon, February 22nd, Mrs. J. C. Beddingfield entertained the Merry Wives Club and a number of guests with a colonial party. Bunting in red, white and blue, with its field of blue stars, hung in festive loops around the walls of the living room. Several of the guests carried out the spirit of the occasion by wearing colonial costumes. George Washington was represented by Mrs. Carl M. Wolf and Mrs. L. L. Skaggs was costumed as Martha Washington.

Mrs. C. T. Holekamp made high score in the game of bridge and was presented with a dainty cut glass mustard jar; the pretty little hand painted bells, which were the table prizes, were won by Mesdames U. D. Kendrick, W. P. Riley and P. Joseph.

The patriotic motif was further carried out in the delicious refreshments of chicken salad in ribbon-tied wafer boxes, cheese balls, stuffed olives, hot tea and cake; the plate favors were cunning little red baskets, hatched and cherry, decorated with candy cherries.

Those enjoying the hospitality of Mrs. Beddingfield were Mesdames L. F. Boyle, L. L. Skaggs, C. T. Holekamp, G. G. Martin, of Chicago, C. R. Stevenson, P. Joseph, U. D. Kendrick, Henry Taylor, W. P. Riley and Lola McCollum.

Mrs. L. F. Boyle will be the next club hostess on March 8th.

SURPRISE PARTY.

The primary department of the Baptist Sunday School surprised Mrs. S. F. Marsh, their superintendent, with a party on the afternoon of her birthday, Tuesday, February 27th, at the home of Mrs. Chris Schraub.

On the entrance of the honoree into the living room, she was greeted by Mesdames Chris Schraub, Jim Massie, Frank Wilson, and Miss Mary Willis, teachers of the primary department, but not a child was in sight; then a door opened and the little folks marched in, singing, "Happy Birthday to You."

Many pretty gifts were bestowed on Mrs. Marsh, who expressed her thanks with her usual charm of manner. Then reading, songs and games were in order.

The afternoon's program was concluded with the serving of hot chocolate and cake.

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY MEETING

At the last regular meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary several new members were elected to the Unit.

The following committees were appointed:

Membership Committee: Mrs. Bert Braley, Miss Emma Pickett
Flag Committee: Miss Lillian Kendrick, Mrs. Vara James.

Constitution and By-Laws Committee: Miss Austin Durst, Mrs. W. H. Baker, Mrs. L. F. Boyle.

Hospital and Welfare Committee: Mrs. John Kountz, Mrs. H. O. Denman.

Executive Committee: Mrs. A. W. Loeffler, Mrs. Carl Wolf, Mrs. L. L. Skaggs.

The next regular meeting will be held on March 11, at Judge Weaver H. Baker's office at 8 p. m. Mrs. J. C. Beddingfield, Pres. Pro. Tem.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY ENTERTAINMENT

Thursday evening, February 22nd, the Epworth League gave an entertainment in honor of the birthday of the "Father of our Country." The church was tastefully decorated in the League colors, gold and white, from the arch above the pulpit hung the League emblem, the Maltese cross, on which was the League motto, "All for Christ." A very entertaining program was rendered with Mr. Coke R. Stevenson as master of ceremonies. After the program, tempting sandwiches, hot chocolate and coffee were received with delight by the crowd. Despite the inclement weather a large crowd was present.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Little Miss Eugenia Parker celebrated her eighth anniversary, Tuesday, February 27th, with a birthday party to which she invited a number of her little playmates. Each little guest brought a gift for their small hostess which she joyfully received.

The dark, gloomy weather cast no cloud over the spirits of the young folks and they entered heartily into the indoor games until the time for refreshments of hot chocolate came, which they enjoyed to the fullest extent.

Mrs. Parker was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Ada Dockery and Mrs. R. H. Mayfield.

VERY STRIKING SPORT COSTUME.

Gay golf sweater worn with simple pleated skirts promises to be a smart combination for all sports wear. The sweater above is of silk an dwool mohair with a jacquard design and the accoridian pleated skirt is of white wool jersey.

TWIN ADVERTISING BOOSTERS

When driving on our muddy roads,
Sometimes my auto mires;
'Tis then I need most everything
And some flashlights and plyers.
It doesn't pay to go without
The things an auto needs,
And when you're in the mud you'll find
Weed chains are better than weeds.

That Spur Feterita Again

LAST YEAR We advocated and kept on advocating the planting of more feed-stuff. Our efforts were more than satisfactory and we are at it again this year.

LAST YEAR We distributed, at actual cost, about 2,000 pounds of Spur Feterita in the county for planting purposes. The result was very gratifying and those who planted it are planting it again, and we are interested in seeing others begin growing it.

IN MOST Every neighborhood there are people who have seed to spare and we urge you to get a supply and plant it this spring. If you don't find it near you, probably we can assist you in locating a supply. It supplies both grain and forage and all kinds of live stock thrive on it. It seems well adapted to this county and is a heavy producer.

DON'T FORGET To secure a few pounds at least, and you will like it.

OUR BANKING Facilities are at your service, too. Come in to talk over business problems.
