Mayor West Firm On One-Term Pledge

MAKING GOOD on a campaign promise of two years ago, Mayor Dirk West said Thursday he definitely will not be a candidate for re-election and plans to retire from public life following the April city elections.

Despite about a dozen calls during the past two weeks urging him to seek a second term, the 50-year-old advertising executive said he wants more time to devote to his business and family.

West said his announcement was designed to "open it up for anybody who wants to announce (for mayor) so they know they don't have to contend with me."

West's decision means the mayor's job and at least one council seat will be up for grabs in the spring election.

Councilwoman Carolyn Jordan has announced she will run for state representative and it is unknown whether or not Bill McAlister will seek re-election to his council seat.

West predicted whoever succeeds him "had better get their boots on" and be prepared for a "tough, tough job in the next two years."

The next mayor will have to deal with bond issues, inflation, the economy, taxes, crime and traffic, West said.

"Those problems have not gone away, and if you let up one second they could go through the roof.

"I feel like we've turned the corner on the crime rate, but if you let up one minute we could have a crime wave," he said.

Although traffic fatalities have been reduced by about 50 percent, West said a let-up in enforcement could cause a rash of deaths which would "set a record in six months."

"People have not changed — they're still the same," he said. "The way we enforce the laws have forced them to change their habits.

"I hope in the next six months we don't see a ribbon-cutting, speech-making mayor," West said. "They're worthless.

"Lubbock is too big a place to have a figurehead" as mayor.

Asked if a person holding a full-time job could do a good job as mayor, West answered, "No.

"To be mayor and find out what's going on, hear complaints and formulate action — that's a full-time job," he said.

"And two years from now, there's going to be a lot more to do than now.

"I'm not a politican and that's one of the main reasons I'm not running again," he said. "The term is distasteful to me."

Although West has been an elected city official the past six years, he said, "Still in my own mind I don't believe I am one."

"A politician does most everything for effect. I didn't do everything to please people," West said, adding the only people he has attempted to please are his wife and three children.

West admits his frank comments and forceful stands on issues "may have upset some people," but, he said he hopes they'll admit that "what I said worked."

Selection Of New Tech President Nears

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY

(c) 1980 A-J Pub. Co.

FINALISTS being considered for president of Texas Tech University will be interviewed by a selection committee of faculty and students beginning at 10 a.m. today.

Regents will meet in a closed session at 7 p.m. today to consider selection of a president. If the board reaches a decision, it is expected that the announcement will be made Saturday.

A last-minute presidential candidate's resume was rushed through committee Wednesday in time for the board to consider what one regent called "a new name." It is believed that the candidate discussed at Wednesday's meeting was Dr. Bryce Jordan, president of the University of Texas at Dallas.

Meanwhile, another candidate, Dr. Lauro F. Cavazos, dean of Tufts University School of Medicine in Boston, Mass., arrived in Lubbock Thursday.

Bradford, Young Included

Sources say two other candidates previously mentioned by The Avalanche-Journal still are considered finalists. They are Dr. John Bradford, dean of engineering at Tech, and Dr. Roy Young, chancellor of the Lincoln campus of the University of Nebraska.

In some cases when regents meet in closed session to name a president, their opinions are set and the vote is merely a formality. However, when regents meet tonight, there may be much politicking before a final vote is tallied. Sources say no single presidential candidate has a majority of votes assured at this point.

"You never know what can happen when nine men go behind closed doors," one regent said.

Two others have been strong candidates for the presidential post for many months. They are Dr. Earnest Gloyna, 58, dean of engineering at University of Texas at Austin, and Dr. Lorrin Kennamer, dean of education at University of Texas at Austin.

Image Projected

Regents have indicated throughout the six-month search that they would prefer someone who "can relate" to West Texans, although they did not require that a candidate be a native of the area.

Jordan and Young both were born in New Mexico. Cavazos, Bradford and Gloyna are graduates of Texas Tech. Kennamer is a former dean of arts and sciences at Texas Tech.

Jordan, 55, was the first permanent president of UT-Dallas and has remained in the post since 1971. His salary is $63,000 and his fringe benefits include a house and car. He served as acting president of UT-Austin in 1970-71 and was vice president for student affairs at the Austin campus prior to that.

Associates say Jordan has "tremendous ability" to relate well to both civic leaders and the academic community. He serves on a number of boards including Presbyterian Hospital in Dallas and the development council of Richardson General Hospital.

It is believed that his name has been kept extremely quiet because those who know him well say he would immediately withdraw if his name were made public. During his academic career, he reportedly has been a candidate at a number of schools including Arizona State University, North Texas State University and the University of Michigan at Flint. He also withdrew from consideration for an administrative post at Yale University.

Cavazos, 53, was earlier thought to be a possible candidate for a post at Tech's medical school because his background has been mostly with medical facilities,

Debate Opened On Afghanistan

A-J News Services

UNITED NATIONS — Over strong protests from the Soviet bloc and the new Afghan government, the U.N. General Assembly Thursday opened an emergency debate on the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan.

One of the strongest attacks came from China, which warned that Moscow's intervention in Afghanistan "marks a new stage in its expansionist activities in the Third World.

"Component Of Soviet Global Strategy"

"This is not an isolated event," said Chinese Ambassador Chen Chu, "but an important component of the Soviet global strategy of pushing southward to the Indian Ocean, controlling the sea lanes, seizing strategic points, outflanking Europe, threatening Asia and then dominating the world."

The assembly convened a special session three days after the Soviet Union vetoed a resolution in the 15-member Security Council calling for the immediate withdrawal of all foreign troops from Afghanistan.

Twelve members of the council then supported a Philippine-Mexican motion to move the issue to the Assembly, where the Russians cannot cast a veto and the resolution was expected to be approved.

No Veto Possible

Since the resolution dealt with procedure the Russians could not veto it.

Before the debate opened, Afghanistan's new foreign minister Shah Mohmmad Dost protested the session as an "o-pen and flagrant intervention in the internal affairs of the Democratic Republic of Afghanistan."

The entire Soviet bloc then joined the protest but the assembly adopted the agenda without a vote.

Dost led off the debate, accusing the former government of Afghanistan of "playing into the hands of foreign reactionaries."

Then speaker after speaker took the floor to denounce the Soviet intervention before the debate was adjourned until this morning.

Pakistan Represented

Pakistan, which considers itself the most endangered country after the Soviet takeover in neighboring Afghanistan, sent its foreign minister, Agha Shahi, to New York to address the emergency session — the sixth in the assembly's 34-year history.

U.N. EYES IRAN

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Security Council will meet today to vote on a U.S. request for economic sanctions against Iran, Western diplomatic sources reported Thursday.

Speculation Arises After Militants Visit Khomeini

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Moslem militants from the U.S. Embassy made a surprise pilgrimage to Qom on Thursday and consulted with Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, stirring speculation that some solid development may be near in the long captivity of their American hostages.

But one possibility was that the militants were only trying to persuade Khomeini to order that U.S. diplomat L. Bruce Laingen, in custody at the Foreign Ministry, be handed over to them.

The government radio reported, meanwhile, that the leader of a shadowy assassination band called "The Koran" and 15 of his comrades had been captured after a shootout with militiamen. The band had claimed responsibility for a string of political killings, including the slaying of a Khomeini associate last month that many Iranians denounced as the work of the American CIA.

The purpose of the militants' journey to the holy city of Qom, 100 miles south of here, was not revealed, and no details were available on the meeting with Khomeini.

One spokesman for the student militants said 100 of the estimated 500 young people occupying the embassy had gone to see the Iranian leader, but another of the youths later denied the group was that large.

The students refused to say whether the trip was concerned with their 50 or so American hostages or with Laingen, although one said of the Laingen issue, "If we had wanted to (discuss that), we would have sent two people."

Charge d'Affaires Laingen, the top U.S. diplomat in Iran, has been at the Foreign Ministry with two embassy colleagues ever since the militants seized the complex and hostages Nov. 4. The militants say they will not free their hostages until the deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi is sent back to Iran.

Last week, the militants called on the ministry to hand Laingen over to them for questioning about alleged espionage operations at the embassy. Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh asked Khomeini to make the decision, but the ayatollah has been silent on the question.

It was the first known meeting between Khomeini and the militants, who describe themselves as loyal followers of the ayatollah and have a clergyman representative of Khomeini in the embassy.

The Qom meeting came the day after a Carter administration spokesman said the militants were "Marxist terrorists" who operated outside Khomeini's control.

It also followed a statement Wednesday by Ayatollah Mohammed Beheshti, secretary of the ruling Revolutionary Council, that there was "some movement" in the embassy crisis, though it might not become apparent for a few weeks.

The 16 alleged members of the terror group "Forghan" — Persian for "Koran," the Moslem holy book — were captured early Tuesday in the capital, the government radio said. The leader was

Interconnect Funds Okayed By Council

AFTER NEARLY 10 years of talk about linking Lubbock Power and Light with another electric utility, the City Council approved a $1.5 million expenditure to make an interconnect with Southwestern Public Service a reality.

Since privately owned SPS provided emergency power to LP&L after the tornado, there has been talk of a permanent tie-in between the two utilities.

In March, the LP&L Study Committee recommended an interconnect be pursued to give the municipally owned utility time to develop another power source. It is estimated LP&L will need another source of power by 1982.

Most costly is nearly $900,000 to construct a transformer a substation, followed by nearly $280,000 for construction of a three-mile line linking SPS' Jones Station and LP&L's Holly Avenue lant.

Source Of Funds

Funds to finance the interconnect construction will come from interest earned on electric revenue bonds sold in 1973, from debt service funds and from other interest earnings from LP&L investments.

Under the 10-year contract with SPS, LP&L would purchase a minimum of 10,000 kilowatts of electricity each year, with an option to purchase more if it is needed.

Carroll McDonald, LP&L head of sales and service, called the contract "a very good one," adding, "We feel like everyone is satisfied at this point."

Also Thursday, the council decided to accept public comment at its next meeting on the quality of service being provided by Lubbock Cable TV.

Manager Jim Brown had asked for council approval of the proposed merger of Cox Communications, Inc., which owns Lubbock Cable, and General Electric Company.

Because Lubbock Cable has a franchise to operate within the city, the council must approve any transfer of the franchise to new ownership.

Complaints Study Asked

However, Councilmen Alan Henry and Bud Aderton said they wanted Brown to appear at the next council meeting to respond to complaints about cable service and tell the council what changes in service might occur under the merger.

"About all we can do is strongly urge" changes in service in Lubbock, Henry said. However, he added, "I'm sure the franchisee will be willing to make any changes...and be eager to see that it has satisfied customers."

The council approved on first reading the closure of three streets and an alley near the Civic Center to allow construction of a new central post office.

The Postal Service tentatively has agreed to purchase property bounded by Fourth and Sixth Streets and Avenue K and L for a new retail facility.

The council approved the closure of Avenue K between Fourth and Sixth Streets (a street already closed to through traffic), Fifth Street between Avenues K and L and a north-south alley between Fourth and Fifth Streets.

Dispute With Mechanics May Cut Airline Service

By JOHNNY HOLMES
Avalanche-Journal Staff

LUBBOCK air travelers could see their chances of catching a flight out of the city cut in half next week unless Southwest Airlines can resolve a contract dispute with the International Association of Machinists by Sunday.

The airline, which flies more than 700 persons per day from Lubbock — more than all other airlines serving Lubbock combined — could be shut down completely if the union, which represents some 106 mechanics and clerks, opts to strike early Sunday.

"There's no real progress to report," said Southwest spokesman Camille Keith late Thursday of an all-day meeting that appears to be a last ditch effort to reach an agreement. "They're still meeting."

"As I understand it, if a strike occurs, Southwest will cut down its service to Lubbock and other cities by about half," said Lubbock aviation director Marvin Coffee. "If the strike drags on, they'll steadily reduce their flights down to none."

Mrs. Keith said any decision to shut down the airline or continue operations on a limited basis "will be made only after we're sure there's going to be a strike. That will come at 12:01 Sunday morning unless we work something out."

"They've been working on this for about six months, and again, as I understand it, the IAM hasn't backed off its original demands at all," Coffee said. "They seem to be holding pretty fast, so I wouldn't expect any sort of settlement very soon. But it's possible."

The airline and the union have been negotiating since July, and from October through Mid-December the negotiations were overseen by a federal mediator. But

Labor Chief Meany Dies At 85

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Meany, the gruff-talking one-time plumber who rose to become the single most powerful force in the American labor movement, died Thursday. He was 85.

Meany stepped down in November after 25 years as the only president the AFL-CIO had ever known.

Meany, who had been confined to a wheelchair since last May, was readmitted to George Washington Hospital on Sunday for treatment of a painful build-up of fluid in his legs.

AFL-CIO spokesman Albert Zack said Meany's condition had worsened Thursday afternoon and he was transferred to the hospital's intensive care unit.

He died late Thursday night, Zack said.

Meany's health had deteriorated rapidly in 1979, perhaps hastened by his wife's death in March. Friends said the loss of the woman to whom he had been married for 59 years dampened his spirit and his determination to recover.

Shortly after her death, he suffered a knee injury that prompted a flareup of his arthritic hip. He was left gaunt, pale and confined to a wheel chair.

It was from that wheel chair that Meany bade a tearful farewell to the 14 million-labor federation in November at the AFL-CIO's annual convention.

Meany was "Mr. Labor," keeping an iron grip on the organization he forged by bringing together the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations in 1955.

Under Democratic and Republican presidents alike, he became as much a political power broker as a labor leader. And he could never be taken for granted.

Meany was succeeded as head of the AFL-CIO by Lane Kirkland, his protege and handpicked successor.

Meany's final speech had been delivered in the same Bronx-accented voice and with the same stern grimace that were his trademarks.

Although conversational until the very end of the speech, he finally could not restrain the tears. Twice his voice choked, and with difficulty, he told the convention:

"To God go my prayers ... of thanks for granting me more than one man's

Major Snowstorm Thrusts Wind, Snow On Western States

By The Associated Press

A strong snowstorm continued venting its rage over the Northwest on Thursday, and a new storm struck already ravaged Hawaii.

Snow combined with winds gusting more than 60 mph to produce near blizzard conditions over the northern and central Rockies.

The storm had already left 13 people dead in the coastal states, and travelers were stranded throughout the region.

As the storm moved eastward Thursday, more than a foot of snow fell in Yellowstone National Park and much of the rest of Wyoming, where forecasters described the storm as "dynamic."

A storm bearing 60 mph winds and torrential rain lashed the Hawaiian Islands, where another storm earlier this week caused six deaths and millions of dollars in damage.

The new storm moved in from the northwest as the earlier storm was moving to the south of the islands, and a forecaster said the new storm was "drawing the earlier storm back toward the northwest."

A mixture of snow, sleet and freezing rain was scattered over parts of the northern Plains and upper Mississippi Valley. Low clouds, dense fog and drizzle shrouded much of the South.

At 1 p.m. CST, temperatures around the nation ranged from 17 degrees below zero at Cut Bank, Mont., to 83 degrees at Mac Dill Air Force Base in Tampa, Fla.

For Friday, snow was forecast over much of the Pacific Northwest, the northern and central Plateau and the Rockies, with rain over the central and southern Pacific Coast and the southern Plateau.

Freezing rain and snow were forecast from the upper Mississippi Valley across the Great Lakes to New England. Showers and thunderstorms were forecast from the mid and lower Mississippi Valley to the Atlantic Coast.

Highs around zero were predicted over the far northern Plains, in the teens from the northern Rockies across the lower northern Plains to the upper Mississippi Valley, in the 20s and 30s over the northern Plateau, the northern and central Rockies and the central Plains to the western Great Lakes, in the 60s and 70s in central and southern California and the southern Plateau and from southern and eastern Texas across the lower Mississippi Valley and the Gulf Coast to the southern Atlantic Coast, and in the 40s and 50s elsewhere.

•East: Atlanta 48 cloudy, Boston 28 fair, Buffalo 30 partly cloudy, Caribou 11 fair, Charleston, S.C. 50 cloudy, Cincinnati 39 cloudy, Cleveland 33 hazy, Detroit 27 hazy, Indianapolis 34 cloudy, Knoxville 45 partly cloudy, Miami 81 fair, New York 34 fair, Philadelphia 29 fair, Pittsburgh 33 hazy, Richmond 38 hazy, Washington 37 cloudy.

•Central: Bismarck 13 freezing rain, Chicago 35 cloudy, Denver 48 fair, Des Moines 37 windy, Fort Worth 52 drizzle, Kansas City 44 windy, Minneapolis-St. Paul 19 freezing drizzle, New Orleans 72 hazy, St. Louis 48 hazy.

•West: Los Angeles 61 cloudy, Phoenix 61 cloudy, Salt Lake City 45 windy, San Diego 63 cloudy, San Francisco 48 partly cloudy, Seattle 29 fair.

•Canada: Montreal 16 cloudy, Toronto 23 cloudy.

Winter Storm Hits Hawaiian Islands

HONOLULU (AP) — A new winter storm lashed the Hawaiian Islands on Thursday with torrential rains, 60 mph winds and huge waves on the south and west shores.

The fierce rain triggered a landslide in the backyard of a Kaneohe home in Windward Oahu, killing a man who was buried under the mud and rocks.

No other new deaths or serious injuries were reported.

The storm came close on the heels of a violent rainstorm Wednesday that caused six deaths and millions of dollars in property damage.

The new storm moved in from the northwest as Wednesday's storm was moving to the south of the island chain, and the combination of the two wrecked havoc on the islands.

"It's a complex situation," said a spokesman for the National Weather Service. "The new storm system is drawing the earlier storm back toward the northwest."

The rains washed out roads Thursday, interrupted electric and telephone service, forced residents to evacuate their homes at scattered locations throughout the state and closed many schools in Maui, Oahu and Hawaii. Residents of several areas on Maui have been without electricity since Tuesday.

In densely populated Honolulu, flooding washed rocks and boulders onto main thoroughfares, bringing morning traffic to a standstill. Oahu Mayor Frank Fasi declared a state of emergency on the island, where the storms have caused more than $2.5 million in damage.

At Kihei on Maui, several cars were washed into the ocean, and boats were reported badly damaged at harbors throughout the state.

Maui Mayor Hannibal Tavares asked Gov. George Ariyoshi to declare the island of Maui a disaster area.

On Hawaii Island, new flood waters swept through remote Waipio Valley, where residents were still cleaning up from a flood two months ago that washed out the valley's citad taro crop.

The rain kept visitors in Waikiki and other resort areas confined to their hotels.

Maui airport was closed Thursday, and while other airports were open, at least one inner island airlines canceled all flights because of the storm.

More than 100 visitors had been stranded Wednesday at the airport at Kahului, Maui, and some stayed at an emergency shelter at a local armory.

The original storm centered over Maui Island Wednesday night, and the weather service said 22 inches of rain was recorded at the summit of Haleakala Crater during a 24-hour period that ended early Thursday.

Texas Tech Sues Past Students For Failure To Repay Loans

By KAY BELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Texas Tech University Thursday filed lawsuits against four former students that university officials say have failed to pay back loans.

Texas Tech officials, in a lawsuit filed in 99th District Court, say Gwen Stanford of 2620 E. Cornell St. owes the university $1,426.75 from National Direct Student Loan Program (NDSLP) payments distributed through the university in 1973 and 1975. Named as co-defendants in the suit are Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Stanford.

A second lawsuit, filed in 72nd District Court, alleges that Randall Collins of 4004 25th St. signed a NDSLP note in August 1973 and received $1,097.50 in payments. According to the petition, Collins is an employee in the engineering department of the Texas Tech Medical Center.

University officials say $2,414.50 is owed Texas Tech by Tina Rodriguez of 2711 63rd St. The petition, filed in 237th District Court, states that Mrs. Rodriguez signed a NDSLP acceptance application Sept. 10, 1973.

The fourth suit alleges that L.D. Wiley of 1710 E. Amherst St. received $1,112.50 in payments from the university since Sept. 7, 1971, and has not repaid the money. Novella Wiley and Wiley's mother, Annie Contee of 1901 Parkway Drive, are listed as co-defendants in the suit, filed in 140th District Court.

All of the lawsuits, prepared by attorney J. Frank Thompson and notarized in Tarrant County, also are seeking interest on the loan amounts as well as attorney fees.

Cooler Temperatures Expected For Today

After southwesterly winds Thursday whipped up a dust storm for Lubbock, winds today should be from the northwest, bringing slightly cooler temperatures.

The high today should be in the lower 50s, and the low tonight near 30. Winds today still should be brisk, from 15 to 20 mph.

The temperature in Lubbock Thursday reached a high of 66 — a mild day if not for the winds that gusted up to 30 mph and choked the air with blowing dust.

The extended forecast calls for warm days during the weekend with cooler temperatures on Monday. No precipitation is expected through Tuesday.

On Thursday, northwest Texas escaped a soggy blanket of fog and rain that covered most of the state. Visibility was low and roads were slick in much of Central Texas.

In the Guadalupe mountain passes, winds whistled up to 70 mph in the late afternoon. Showers also soaked Southeast Texas from Matagorda Bay to Houston and inland to Lake Livingston.

KEEPING TABS

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York City police department has assigned 75 officers to keep tabs on the city's 500 most violent youths, it was announced Thursday. Under the program, to begin next Monday, policemen will follow repeat offenders, all under age 25.

Dying Man Leaves Clue To Name Of Assailant

TROUP (AP) — Two men have been charged with killing an East Texas woman and her husband after the dying man, part of his face blown off by a shotgun, was able to spell out one of the two men's names, the Smith County Sheriff said.

Clifford McDougal, 72, spelled out the name "James Sessions" before he died Tuesday in a Tyler hospital, Sheriff J.B. Smith said Thursday.

McDougal spelled out the name twice, according to a source who said he witnessed it. The name was then repeated to McDougal, who nodded in confirmation, said the source who would not let his name be used.

"He wrote it with a pen or pencil, I'm not sure which, while the ambulance was taking him to the hospital. He couldn't possibly have said it. Part of his face was blown away," Smith said.

Smith County sheriff's officers earlier had said the name was written on a blood-stained piece of paper a short time after the 2 a.m. shootings.

James Sessions, 22, and Larry Charles Franklin, 25, both of nearby Jacksonville, have been charged with two counts of murder and remained in the Smith County jail in Tyler on Thursday in lieu of $100,000 bond each. Both were arrested in Jacksonville, about 17 miles southwest of Troup, with Franklin arrested Wednesday night and Sessions on Tuesday.

There was speculation that three men may have been involved in the murders following reports from area residents that three men were seen driving near the rural area southwest of Troup the evening before the slayings.

"The investigation is continuing, but at the moment we only have two suspects," Smith said.

Deputies said McDougal was stabbed in the back by one man and shot in the face by another as he ran from his house. The source said the shotgun was at close range, and may even have been jammed in McDougal's mouth.

McDougal's wife, Belle, also 72, was stabbed in the back of the neck and died in her bed.

After he was shot, McDougal went across the road to the home of his son, Harold McDougal, who called for help.

Carl Storey, editor of the Troup Times-Banner, said McDougal retired several years ago as a farmer and rancher, but sold household goods door-to-door in the area.

McDougal was known to keep money either in his home or his pickup truck, investigators said, and occasionally loaned out cash. A telephone line to the house was cut and the house and truck ransacked.

Until Dec. 31, there had not been a slaying in Troup in about 25 years, Storey said.

On New Year's Eve, a 30-year-old resident of Tyler, about 20 miles northwest of Troup, died after being robbed and shot in the back of the head as he guarded a fireworks stand less than a mile from the McDougal's home.

Island City In Dallas Offers Lenient Marijuana Sentence

DALLAS (AP) — Highland Park, an ultra-wealthy island city in the heart of Dallas, may be the safest place in the state to roll a couple of joints.

If you're caught with two ounces or less of marijuana, you can sign a form pleading guilty, pay a $103.50 fine and go home without a record.

Anywhere else in Texas, possession of two ounces or less is a Class B misdemeanor carrying a maximum 180-day jail term and $1,000 fine.

The tiny city has been offering this decriminalization program for more than a year. But it has operated so quietly, most officials, including those at the Dallas County district attorney's office and a few with the city of Highland Park, know about it.

"We're in the preventive business," said Highland Park Police Chief Henry Gardner. "The courts punish, police don't. This is an area here that gives us some discretion."

"If you don't have all the necessary elements to make a criminal case, we will drop it to a criminal attempt," Gardner said.

The program has instant appeal, especially to youngsters, who can sign the form and pay the fine without consulting either parents or an attorney.

But the things that are appealing about the program also are the things that could most easily be abused.

Gardner said, however, that he does not believe his officers are pressuring young adults to plead guilty for something they did not do or in a case where the evidence is shaky.

Of the 2,088 arrests in the last year, police records show, 96 were for "criminal attempt." Another 48 were for "violations of the controlled substance act," meaning they did not qualify for the fine program.

Fifteen percent of the 96 "criminal attempt" defendants posted bond with intentions to take their cases to court. Between 55 and 85 percent — several of the records did not bear a "paid fine" stamp — paid the $103.50 fine and were out of the station in less than an hour.

Gardner said the program was not started to ease the way for wealthy youngsters, but to give kids a second chance. But, he said, he realizes everyone may not view it that way.

"Somebody may come along and say that we can't do that," he said.

A Head In The Sand Policy?

THE MIDNIGHT oil must be burning all over Washington, but particularly in the State Department these days.

And well it should. In little more than two years, the United States has seen what it thought of as a "precarious balance of power" in the Mideast and parts of Africa go from bad to worse.

Stuffy and unrealistic officials, often unfamiliar with the area into which they had been moved, pontificated on the motives and goals of other nations in various parts of the globe. Almost always, the picture had a rosy tint.

NOW, TWO YEARS later, the U.S. foreign policy scene is in disarray.

All of the high-sounding phrases, including those on human rights, equality and detente have gone down the drain. America, to put it bluntly, is on the defensive almost around the globe.

When such remarks are made and laid at the door of the Carter Administration, there are those who are quick to note that many of the problems were already there when the man from Georgia and his amateurs took over the reins of government.

The argument is only partially true. Such problems have confronted almost every administration since World War II.

IN THE FINAL analysis, it is what each President and those he appointed to help him must face.

President Carter, after showing a bit of daring and expertise in arm-twisting diplomacy at Camp David in bringing about the Israeli-Egyptian Peace talks, for some reason reverted to his more typical pose of taking the easy way out in dealing with Iran, and now Russia.

The truth is that Mr. Carter nor Sec. of State Cyrus Vance ever really formulated a concrete, overall foreign policy with the U.S. interests as the prime consideration.

Instead, the pitch seemed always to be to accommodate "the other fellow," such as not irritating the Ayatollah Khomeini for fear of losing more Iranian oil, the same for Nigeria with its black leadership, the same for the Marxist guerrillas, apparently for fear of irritating then UN Amb. Andrew Young.

IT HAS BEEN as though the President and his advisers have been wandering through a wilderness on the one hand and muddling through a haystack on the other.

In both cases, no one has shown any inclination to come up with a set of guidelines and goals toward which the U.S. would work.

As a result, we have reacted rather than acted. Others called the shots for us. Now, that we are reaping the benefits of indecision

JAY HARRIS:

The Tech Equation

TEXAS TECH'S Board of Regents meets here today to name a new University President.

Not since the last time the Regents named a new chief and later chose a new coach has interest in a Board meeting been so high.

Because of Texas Tech's mission, its importance to so many in Lubbock and the Southwest and because of the stake its faculty and students have in what happens, "the man who" is always important.

But, the choice this time has some extra ingredients, some extra pressure attached to it—to Texas Tech's immediate goals on campus, its relations with those who support it, and not insignificantly with what happens to the Health Sciences Center Hospital and Med School Complex.

THE SEARCH for a new head honcho out on the Big Red Spread has been going on since last summer when then-President Cecil Mackey accepted a similar post at Michigan State.

As many as 125 names have been tossed into the pot during the more-than-six-month's process. The list of candidates covered the greater part of the nation and included persons from all walks of life, not necessarily just from the academic field.

Gradually, the list was narrowed down, often by the person who had been recommended, saying he appreciated the honor but was happy where he was.

Those who wished to be considered were processed into the selection set-up whereby an overall faculty group and a smaller faculty-board committee screened them. Then, the prospects were narrowed even further, at which point individual interviews were conducted.

NOW, AT LONG last, no more than four or five at the most, possibly two or three, remain as "serious contenders," for the job.

During the long process, probably the most marked thing has been the amount of rumors and "inside information" about who may or may not be chosen for what has to be regarded as not only one of the more challenging University head jobs in the nation, but also one of the more demanding.

Everyone, it seems, has an idea of what the man who gets the job should be like, if not who he should be. We are not alone in that respect.

The truth is that most citizens and the faculty, we think, basically want the same thing—a President who can relate to both the campus and the community, who can manage its complex affairs and lead it to even higher planes of endeavor, to maintain a standard of excellence on the campus and to cement a working relationship with those who pour much of the vitally needed financial and personal support into the institution.

IT IS NO secret that Texas Tech, while in good shape in most ways, also faces some major problems in the months just ahead.

There is the business of seeking more support from state and federal sources for the Med School Complex. More long-range and broader financial backing from the outside, such as endowments, are needed.

Certain internal problems, which have outside significance, including the athletic set-up, demand quick attention. A general "putting the house in order" is a must. The tasks ahead are formidable indeed.

In brief, "the man in the saddle" should be a strong person, preferably with considerable experience not only in the academic field but in public and civic endeavors, a man with a proven track record in his chosen field.

He should be a man, if possible, who knows and understands Texas Tech, its unique status as a multi-purpose institution and a man who can relate to the community about him. In turn, he must be a man in whom the community will have confidence.

"Almost from its inception some 55 years ago, Lubbock and this area has regarded Texas Tech as its own.

"This did not keep its many loyal followers from seeking to make it nationally and internationally known. There was a love affair with the sprawling college which ran deep.

"The relationship was not a one-way street. The Town and Gown feeling was mutual. Texas Tech was part and parcel of the community, its students welcomed into the city's homes, its faculty and administration often active in civic and church affairs.

"Quite frankly, the relationship was a profitable one on both counts. Texas Tech gained badly needed support, the city and area economic and educational benefits.

"TEXAS TECH'S situation may be unique in this respect. But we doubt it. Other colleges have benefited in similar fashion. Many haven't.

"It is precisely because of this unique set-up that many friends of Texas Tech have felt for some years now that the Board of Regents should give more attention to 'naming one of our own' to key positions on the campus when they become available.

"The argument has been that if Texas Tech is able to turn out leaders in fields ranging from politics to electronics—and it has in spades—then it surely must be able to do the same thing in the educational field.

"With that in mind, there was a collective sigh of relief following Dr. Mackey's surprise announcement when Robert Pfluger, chairman of the Board of Regents, said:

"'Speaking personally and not as a spokesman for the board, my personal feeling is that we need a man from this area. I hope we could select a Texan or a man who can relate to Texas and West Texas.' Lee Stafford, another regent, said: 'The most important quality for Tech's new president is to have roots in Texas.'"

Gentlemen, those qualifications still make sense.

AN EDITORIAL:

Rhodesia Turning Back Clock

IT IS NEITHER desirable nor possible, ordinarily, to turn back the clock. But an exception to the rule in both respects is taking place in Southern Africa.

Rhodesia is backtracking 15 years to resume legal status as a British possession.

The reversion ends an effort by the territory's white minority who make up four percent of the population to go it alone as an independent state.

The minority's fight for continued independence has been in defiance of the authorities in London, world opinion, economic sanctions in which the U.S. played a key role and an increasingly bitter guerrilla war that has cost some 20,000 lives and spilled over the borders of neighboring nations to disturb the entire region.

THE REVERSION, however, is a temporary one. After a transitional period under a British governor, Rhodesia is supposed to emerge with a new constitution as the independent, black-ruled nation of Zimbabwe uniting moderate blacks, guerrilla forces based outside the country and Rhodesian whites.

The last, whose numbers have declined precipitously during the long struggle—from some 280,000 to an estimated 230,000 today—are guaranteed political powers including a 20 percent representation in the new parliament.

But these are less than they enjoyed under the now dismantled shared-power regime established less than a year ago, and, ironically, far short of what was offered in the British-drafted independence plan they rejected 15 years ago which would have postponed black rule for decades.

The settlement is the product of a London conference now into its fourth month that shapes up as a triumph of sorts for Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's government. It is not yet signed, sealed and ready for final delivery, however.

DETAILS OF A pre-elections cease-fire between government and guerrilla forces still are to be worked out.

The new constitution, weak on democratic principles at some points, could open the way to authoritarian rule.

Two major questions hover over the scene for those who have observed other such reforms in Africa. One is whether the Marxist-backed guerrillas will accept an election which may go against them. The other is how much influence Russia or Cuba may have in any new government if the guerrillas do win.

In the background is the role the U.S. and Britain reportedly have agreed to play in reimbursing white farmers whose land may be taken from them by a new black regime.

Rhodesia has come a long way toward making a fresh start. But, the path to a permanent peace and economic progress is still strewn with formidable obstacles.

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

Beware Of Red Bear

EVANS

MUSCAT, Oman—This anti-communist, pro-Western redoubt on the Arabian peninsula's southern shore is convinced of Soviet complicity in the November assault against the Grand Mosque in Mecca, deepening belief here that the Russian bear is on the march in the Persian Gulf.

Oman's leaders claim their intelligence leaves no doubt: The Mecca attack was hatched in communist South Yemen under Soviet auspices as an audacious effort to overthrow the conservative royal government of Saudi Arabia, the world's richest oil state.

To Oman, this represents ultimate arrogance in the Kremlin and blatant disrespect for the U.S. in its Iranian ordeal.

Oman's answer is to intensify its appeal to the rich but nervous Persian Gulf hereditary monarchies and to Western powers, particularly the U.S., for new aircraft and ships to patrol the strategically vital Straits of Hormuz against the expanding Soviet presence.

But beyond hardware, the Omanis want a tougher U.S. posture after permitting the shah of Iran to fall and suffering the humiliation of Tehran.

While the Mecca assault stunned all Islam, it especially disconcerted the conservative sultanate of Oman, thanks to reports from its intelligence service (which, like its armed services, is run by British officers).

Those reports reject the official Saudi attribution of the attack to religious fanatics not connected with any foreign power.

Omani intelligence contends that the cadre for the Mecca assault was trained in the People's Democratic Republic of Yemen (South Yemen), the Soviet outpost on the Arabian peninsula.

ALTHOUGH SOME arms were of British manufacture for the purpose of "deniability," they were supplied from South Yemen. Furthermore, Omani intelligence contends that Mecca, if successful, was to be followed by risings at Medina and "other places in Saudi Arabia."

Similar reports come from intelligence services of other nations, and even some Saudi officials have hinted as much. While U.S. officials reject the Omani report as evidence of a tendency here to find Russians under every bed, they concede the Mecca terrorists got arms from South Yemen.

Whatever the degree of Soviet complicity, it was taken here as evidence of Moscow's arrogance. "It stunned me," one Omani official told us. "I would think the Russians would want to ensure the re-election of a weak President like Carter, or better still, Kennedy, and not make any trouble. It shows just how arrogant they are."

PHYSICAL EVIDENCE of that arrogance is the growing Soviet naval presence here. According to Omani intelligence, eight to 12 Soviet nuclear submarines are berthed in permanent pens in South Yemen alongside several surface warships.

Until recently, a Krivack-class Soviet destroyer (bristling with electronic listening equipment) was on station in the Straits of Hormuz, through which passes Persian Gulf oil destined for the Western world.

Lt. Tom Hammon, British commander of one of Oman's two missile-firing fast patrol boats, told us it was recently replaced by a Kotlin-class destroyer. "It doesn't matter," he said. "They've always got somebody out there."

With the Iranian navy departed following the shah's fall, the only counterweight is Oman's competent but tiny (six vessels) navy, which patrols the straits.

ACCORDINGLY, SULTAN Qaboos, Oman's 38-year-old pro-Western ruler, has asked financial help from the gulf states and the West to buy patrol boats, minesweepers, helicopters and patrol planes.

There was sharp public criticism from leftist, heavily armed Iraq, which decries Oman's breaking of Persian Gulf solidarity to endorse the Camp David accord.

The gulf's jittery hereditary states backed away from Oman after Baghdad's blast. But Omani officials claim many Arab states—including Iraq—privately expressed interest in helping Oman police the straits. "I can assure you," one official here told us, "we want no part of help from Iraq."

It does want help from the U.S.: an aid package of defensive arms has been approved in the State Department. The recent U.S. delegation seeking emergency basing facilities received a warm reception here.

OMAN'S POSITION is a welcome for the U.S. naval presence "just over the line of the horizon." Such force—out of sight, but nearby—reassured this thinly populated (around 500,000) nation whose armed forces, though numbering only about 15,000, are excellent by Mideast standards.

Nevertheless, the sultan's government remains uneasy as it compares the Kremlin's arrogance with Jimmy Carter's restraint in this caldron of world conflict.

ANDREW TULLY:

Out On A Limb

There is Miles W. Fry & Son, nurserymen, of Ephrata, Pa.

The Fry outfit has been experimenting with the use of hybrid poplar trees as an energy source for 25 years, and for the past year has worked with Dr. E. Kendall Pye, a biochemist at the University of Pennsylvania and a leader in the development of new alcohol technology.

On test plots, the trees were planted on two-foot spacings to the row, and the rows spaced only 42 inches apart.

After four years, the first harvest yielded an average of 24 pounds of green wood per tree, equivalent to about 37 dry tons per acre.

IN TURN, the harvest would yield 39,000 pounds of glucose and 18,000 pounds of hemicellulose for an estimated 36,000 gallons of ethanol and butanol per acre.

(Ethanol is used as a gasoline extender and octane enhancer, butanol for heating, diesel, and industrial fuel.)

Wood is a natural way of storing solar energy—in the form of growing trees. The burning of wood provides heat at higher temperatures than can be achieved from direct sunlight. Wood can be burned more cleanly than coal.

For every cubic foot of carbon monoxide released by wood burning, the trees growing to produce the next year's energy will consume an equal quantity, while releasing oxygen into the atmosphere.

HOW ABOUT running out of wood? No problem with hybrid poplars. They regenerate themselves from the stumps on the same stands without any new planting, and after the first harvest can—and should be—harvested every two years.

Meanwhile, yields could be dramatically increased by using sewage sludge as fertilizer, thus solving the serious municipal problem of waste disposal.

Morton Fry, president of Miles W. Fry & Son, estimates our energy problem nationally could be solved by planting hybrid poplars on 122 million acres—less than 6 per cent of the land area of the United States.

And no, there would be no destruction of good land. The country has 500 million acres of land, some of it arid and much of it marginal farmland or idle acreage taken out of farm production by federal programs over the last three decades.

FRY ALSO notes that "millions of acres of land" are now being wasted on our cloverleaf traffic systems, median strips, and along the sides of our interstate highways.

Almost all this land, he says, could be producing energy through hybrid poplar plantings. Fry may be overly optimistic, but it's nice to hear somebody say he's working on a project that could make the U.S. energy self-sufficient within a decade, and enable us to "completely convert" from gasoline to 100 per cent alcohol.

A guy like that deserves a national hearing. That's the way Americans talked before they decided to let Uncle Sam do everything.

JOSEPH SOBRAN:

Victims Get The Blame For Being In Trouble

WASHINGTON—We are retreating. The Soviets are invading. The juxtaposition of Iran and Afghanistan makes indecently clear a pattern we have done our best to ignore.

Afghanistan. Vietnam. Cambodia. Angola. Ethiopia. Mozambique. Nicaragua. In each case we have pretended the conflict was local, that the Soviet role was marginal to the nature and outcome of the struggle.

No need to act in any case. They would soon be bogged down in "their" Vietnam. We heard this first about Angola in 1975. We hear it today about Afghanistan. Nobody seems to notice that "their" Vietnam was Vietnam. They won.

We have invented marvelous techniques of blaming and renouncing the forces that favored us. All our Third World allies turn out to be corrupt and repressive.

Communist forces always represent the legitimate aspirations of the people. When our friends are toppled, it is because they deserved to lose.

CRIME HAS an ugly way of producing recriminations against the victim. A woman who is raped may find herself suspected of contributory misconduct.

The principle of our foreign policy has been laissez-faire, and it has been good for business. The Soviets have set up little Communist and anti-Western franchises around the world.

Of course the Marxist regimes prefer to adopt local brand names, keeping the Soviet trademark out of sight. But the pattern is clear enough. In Afghanistan even the customary decencies have been all but dispensed with.

Far be it from us to seize the initiative, or even to discuss the situation frankly. We like to pretend that the new regimes represent the legitimate aspirations of the people, even when many of the people wind up getting butchered.

That way we don't have to do anything about international crime. We can't police the world anyway, so why even blow the whistle?

MEANWHILE WE learn to blame the victims. The PLO kills Israeli schoolchildren (with Soviet weapons): too bad, but the Israelis do oppress Palestinians.

Rhodesian guerrillas slaughter white missionaries (with Soviet weapons): deplorable, but those white Rhodesians are so intransigent.

An Iranian mob seizes American hostages (the mob is led, says Israeli intelligence, by Soviet-trained youths): indefensible, but then we did support the shah.

The more our allies suffer, the more intensely they—and we—are blamed. The victory of the anti-Western forces always gets itself defined as a triumph for the principles we should have supported all along. The new regime is right to hate us. We must approach them with humility, restraint, remorse.

AND HOPE for the best. Always hope: passive, pious, homiletic hope.

In 1975 the Khmer Rouge took Phnom Penh and force-marched three million people from their homes and hospital beds into the sunny countryside. What a relief from the corrupt Lon Nol regime that was.

Columnist Anthony Lewis of the New York Times assailed the "cultural arrogance" of those who would condemn, by "Western assumptions," this attempt to build a new society.

TODAY LEWIS blames Richard Nixon and Henry Kissinger for making the Khmer Rouge possible.

Obscenely, he likens Kissinger to Pol Pot for sheer inhumanity. He doesn't mention his own warm welcome for the regime which Pol Pot headed, and Kissinger tried to prevent.

Lesson of History No. 1: Communism kills. Lesson of History No. 2: The Anthony Lewises will never learn Lesson No. 1.

"The fuel shortage is worse than many of us think," said the local patrol. "The other night I got a call from a fellow who reported he had been mugged for the fluid in his cigarette lighter."

L.M. BOYD:

Pass It On:

HOW DO you regard the Super Bowl? Walter Cronkite described it as "a chance to see everyone come together once a year for an event that means absolutely nothing." Come on, Walter, for "everyone to come together once a year" isn't a bad end in itself, is it?

The deep beat of rock music turns loose an enzyme in cows which gives a foul taste to their milk. Or so report science writers.

Hearing Set In University Investigation

AUSTIN (AP) — The House General Investigating Committee expanded its scrutiny of North Texas State University on Thursday and prepared to open its usually closed doors for a public hearing.

One activity presumably included approval of subpoenas for certain witnesses to appear at Monday's hearing.

A quorum of three of the five committee members spent less than an hour in executive session with special counsel Jim Vollers, former state prosecutor Vollers said it was "fair to assume" the committee would broaden its inquiry to look at allegations NTSU transferred state funds to a private foundation that seeks a federal license to operate a public television station.

The Dallas Morning News reported in Thursday editions the committee has received NTSU records on the school's relations with Denton Channel 2 Foundation, Inc.

The News said investigators are interested in an alleged proposal to transfer a $60,844 piece of property from NTSU to the television foundation.

NTSU came under committee scrutiny in April, following reports the university had made unconstitutional transfers of state funds into the private North Texas State University Educational Foundation.

Just before Thursday's closed door meeting, committee chairman Richard Slack, D-Pecos, said the reason for the executive session was "to decide on subpoenas — how many and who will be the recipients of the glad tidings."

Vollers would not confirm subpoenas were issued but neither would he deny that some were sent out.

Asked if the committee had come across any prosecutable offenses, Slack told reporters:

"I would hesitate to say. I'd say they are serious enough for us to have a meeting about. There were clear violations of the law, although how far the prosecution would go, I cannot say. ... We want anyone who is guilty of misappropriation or misuse of public — we want something done about it."

The Texas Prosecutors Coordinating Council, which assembled a task force from several urban district attorneys' offices to look into the NTSU situation for Slack, turned over to Vollers the documentary evidence and written statements it had developed.

"After consultation with Mr. Vollers, it is clear that testimony must be taken from several additional witnesses. Therefore, no report is being made to protect the innocent as well as to ensure the successful prosecution of any guilty party," council director Andy Shuval wrote Slack.

Washington's Birthday Sale Promotion Set

The retail trade development committee of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce met Thursday with a group of Lubbock businessmen to launch plans for the staging of the largest Washington's Birthday sale ever held in Lubbock.

The sale, which will begin Friday, Feb. 22, and continue through the following day, will be geared exclusively to the commemoration of Washington's birth.

Leland Duckworth, chairman of the committee, said retailers, shopping center promotional managers, grocery store personnel, automobile salesmen and restaurant and cafeteria managers will join forces with the Lubbock media in arranging the event.

Duckworth said the organization has asked merchants to buy their merchandise now in preparation for the sale.

Every restaurant in Lubbock has been asked to feature a Washington Birthday special lunch on those two days, with cherry pie as an indispensable adjunct.

Duckworth said there also will be "cherry" specials in automobile and home sales, as well. The group is asking real estate people to make a special effort to offer homes at lower prices for sale on that day.

All liquor store managers have been asked to work toward the promotion, and to submit their advertising copy to the Avalanche-Journal for arrangement in advertisements to run on those days.

The city will conduct research aimed at providing data on the city for use in the advertising. Statistics relating to the number of doctors, lawyers, hospitals, schools, apartments and other features of the city will be used to complete space in ads.

Duckworth and the group of retailers hope to enlist 100 percent of Lubbock's merchants, as well as the media, in supporting the sale.

The time for the sale is considered a natural time to renew business activity in the city, with the Christmas holidays several weeks in the past.

Police Detective Accused By Stepdaughter In Wife's Death

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) — A veteran police detective and his stepdaughter are locked in a legal dispute over who pulled the trigger that killed the officer's wife on Christmas Eve.

Bergen County investigators initially believed that Nancy Sherman, married to Det. Robert Sherman for almost 10 years, took her own life.

But Mrs. Sherman's daughter by a previous marriage, Nancy Luginbill of Los Osos, Calif., has filed a civil suit in state Superior Court in Bergen County charging that her stepfather killed her mother.

Sherman, 59, a 25-year veteran of the Englewood police force, denied he shot his wife. He accused his stepdaughter of malicious prosecution and suggested that she made her claims for financial reasons.

A month before her death, Mrs. Sherman filed for divorce, claiming that on two occasions her husband had threatened her with a gun.

Sherman called Elmwood Park police at 4:02 p.m. that afternoon, saying he had been awakened by a gunshot and had found his wife dead.

Bergen County Prosecutor Roger Breslin said police found Sherman's service revolver on the floor near the body. He said Sherman told investigators he had placed the gun in the closet when he came home from work two hours earlier.

On the basis of the interview with Sherman and a report on the appearance of the body, Breslin called the death an apparent suicide.

An autopsy by the county medical examiner's office two days later left unanswered the question of whether the wound was self-inflicted.

Ellen Effron, a lawyer who represented Mrs. Sherman in the divorce proceeding, said she received several telephone calls on Dec. 26 from Mrs. Sherman's friends who challenged the prosecutor's assessment.

"They said there was no way she would kill herself," the lawyer said. Mrs. Sherman had her nails polished and her hair done up and planned to go to her sister's house for a Christmas Eve dinner.

Lubbock Woman Reports Burglary

A South Lubbock residence was burglarized shortly before noon Thursday of cash and other items totaling $3,550, according to Lubbock police.

A 29-year-old woman told police she discovered her home had been burglarized after seeing a car leave the residence just before she arrived.

When the woman entered the home, she found that several items, including a color television, a guitar, a stereo and several pieces of furniture, had been stolen, police said. The woman also reported $1,000 cash was missing.

Police questioned the owner of the car seen leaving the residence, but no charges had been filed late Thursday.

In other activity, Patricia Ann Hospick of 4620-B 35th St. told police someone had apparently attempted to set her 1972 Volkswagen afire between 6 p.m. Wednesday and 8:30 a.m. Thursday.

A Christmas tree covered with gum of turpentine had been placed against the car, and an attempt to set the tree afire had been made, police said. The tree was partially burned, but the car was not damaged, reports indicate.

Items stolen in the break-in included an AM-FM receiver, a cassette deck, a turntable and several cassette tapes, Smith told police. The theft occurred between 3:30 p.m. Dec. 14 and 10 a.m. Thursday.

Tires and wheels valued at $872 were stolen from a Chevrolet Camaro parked at a service station at 3501 50th St. between 9 p.m. Wednesday and 7 a.m. Thursday, police said.

A Lubbock woman was shot in the hand late Wednesday while struggling with her estranged husband over a shotgun, according to police.

The 43-year-old woman was listed in satisfactory condition early Thursday at Methodist Hospital after undergoing surgery on her left hand.

Reports indicate the victim and the 50-year-old man were struggling for possession of the weapon when it discharged. The couple had been separated about two weeks, police were told.

The altercation began after the man reportedly entered the Avenue S house about 11:20 p.m. Wednesday and told a friend of the woman to leave.

The suspect, who was not taken into custody at the scene, told police that after the shooting he left the house and tossed the weapon away near Loop 289.

Investigating officers were unable to locate the gun, police said.

In other activity, an apartment manager was arrested about 2:30 a.m. Thursday after she allegedly caused a disturbance when police refused to let her take off the front door of an apartment in an attempt to evict a tenant she said was delinquent in paying his rent.

The 42-year-old manager reportedly became enraged when officers said she could not take off the door because she had not given notice of eviction.

William R. Lawless, an Austin telecommunications engineer, told Lubbock police his vehicle was burglarized in front of his motel room late Tuesday or Wednesday and about $7,500 in electronic equipment stolen.

About $930 in loot, including television sets, a leather coat and other clothing, was the apparent take in a break-in at Lessie Thompson's 2610 Elm Ave. residence between 7:30 p.m. and 10 p.m. Wednesday.

Her late father and brother were longtime South Plains farmers and ranchers.

Mrs. Vickers was a member of First Church of Christ Scientist.

Planning, Zoning Panel Denies Zone Change

By RAYNIE HARDESTY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Planning and Zoning Commission Thursday denied a case they formerly had approved twice, but was denied equally as many times by the City Council because of strong neighborhood opposition.

Lewis Garnett, representing Alamo Square Inc., asked commission members to approve for a third time a zone change from single family R-1) to two family (R-2), to allow construction of duplexes on property at 2002 58th St.

Garnett's most recent request, however, only included two lots instead of the five included in requests presented to the commission in October and in 1978.

Although Garnett told commission members that neighborhood resistence would not be as strong because of the location of the two lots remaining in the request, commission member Harry Stokley said, "The people who live there have said three times now, 'We don't want this.' and the council has said, 'We don't want this.' I think it is clear now what the council's position is.

"There is enough opposition to this, that if I was proposing this case, I would withdraw it," Stokley added.

A motion then was made to deny the request and it passed unanimously.

Residents surrounding the area in question have told commission and city council members that the zone change would create "congestion" and traffic problems even though the property is located in what city officials say could be called "a textbook case for duplex zoning."

Commission members also made decisions Thursday night on three other zone cases continued from a Jan. 3 meeting.

Approved were a request by John F. Hurley, for Jerry Nesbitt and Betty Dorsett to change commercial (C-4) zoning to light manufacturing (M-1), on property at 2224 E. 47th St., and a request by Stanley F. Smith, for Max B. Caraway, Richard C. Spikes and Keith G. McMahon, to amend the site plan for development of property at 3401 22nd Place.

Commission members denied a request by Jay Fikes, representing Plainsman Hotel, to change zoning on property at 2101 Avenue Q, from C-3 specific use to C-4.

A revised request by E. Reuel Nash, representing Northwestern Plaza, Inc., to change family apartment (A-1) and high density apartment (A-2) to C-3 specific use zoning for construction of a private recreation center at 5320 38th St., was continued upon request.

Remains Of Palace Said Found

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Some American psychics say they have found the remains of what may have been the palace in which Cleopatra, queen of the Nile, captured the heart of Mark Antony 2,000 years ago.

The archeological find in the harbor of Alexandria came as a surprise, said the psychics, who were working with the Los Angeles-based Mobius Group, a research and film organization.

A report on the discovery was to be presented Thursday by group leader Stephan Schwarz at an underseas archeology conference in Albuquerque, N.M.

In interviews and press statements in the Egyptian capital, the group said it had found a pillar and the remains of a large house believed to be a palace.

Levelland Couple Hurt In Collision

LEVELLAND (Special) — A Levelland couple was injured Thursday afternoon when their car collided with a butane truck near Smyer, according to the Department of Public Safety.

Joseph G. Nipper, driver of the car, received facial lacerations and a broken arm in the accident, which occurred about 2:30 p.m., according to DPS officer R.C. Cheek. Nipper's wife, Ruth, also received apparent minor injuries. Both were taken to Cook Memorial Hospital.

Cheek said the accident occurred on Texas 114 about one-half mile west of Smyer in a road construction area. Nipper was eastbound when the collision with the westbound truck occurred, Cheek said.

PERFECTLY PRESERVED BODY

The body of an ancient Chinese noblewoman was found almost perfectly preserved after more than 2,100 years in an airtight tomb. Archeologists say the tomb contained layers of earth, white clay and charcoal which covered a large wooden box that encased six coffins.

Afghans Pouring Into Refugee Camps

PIR PIAYEE, Pakistan (AP) — More than 2,600 Afghans are pouring into 12 major refugee camps in Pakistan each day, apparently in search of the religious freedom they fear has been lost in their Soviet-dominated homeland.

Once inside this Moslem land, the Afghan refugees are provided tiny food rations and tents too flimsy to withstand sub-zero temperatures many of them must endure. There are urgent shortages of medicine, baby food, mobile dispensaries and hospital facilities.

And yet the Afghans keep coming with their cattle, camels, goats and sheep from which many derive their livelihoods and are their chief means of transportation.

There is not enough food to feed the animals either, but the talk here is of religious freedom not material shortages, though less than the equivalent of 50 cents is spent on each refugee each day.

"We have never been slaves, much less the slaves of the atheists and the godless Communists, and these are the ones or their henchmen who are ruling us for the last two years," said Rahim Gul, a 40-year-old shopkeeper who fled here from the eastern Afghanistan city of Jalalabad.

It is a theme repeated again and again by the refugees fleeing the landlocked Central Asian nation that has had three pro-Soviet Marxist governments in the past 20 months.

All three Communist governments have offered amnesty to the refugees to return home, but with the passing of each government, the number of refugees has increased.

Even before the Soviet Union sent thousands of troops into Afghanistan and helped install Babrak Karmal as president on Dec. 27, 1,000 Afghan refugees had been fleeing into Pakistan each day. In the past two weeks, the number has swelled to 2,625, and one man at this camp 40 miles inside Pakistan predicted:

"With the new repressive regime in power, and the Rusi's (Russians) roaming all over our country, the number will increase further."

The total of Afghans in Pakistan is now estimated at 411,000, a figure that does not include those who have fled into inaccessible mountain areas, those who have gone to live with relatives or the small number who can afford to live outside the refugee camps and are not receiving assistance from the government of Pakistan.

The refugees sit in snowbound hilly areas of Chitral in Pakistan's northwest, overlooking the area where Afghanistan, the Soviet Union and China meet; in rugged leafless tracts of land or small valleys down the border in Pakistan's North West Frontier Province, or in the parched wind-eroded lands of Baluchistan, where Pakistan shares borders with Afghanistan and Iran.

In a message Thursday, Pakistan's president, Gen. Mohammed Zia ul-Haq, said, "Commensurate with the limited means available to Pakistan, bare relief and succour is being provided to these refugees, purely on humanitarian grounds, and on the basis of Islamic brotherhood."

But he said it is difficult for Pakistan to ensure proper care of so many refugees "during the biting cold winter season."

Pakistan has paid for most of the relief so far. In recent months, however, international relief agencies have committed more than $10 million, and some Moslem countries, most prominently Saudi Arabia, have also committed funds.

China Explains Reluctancy To Buy U.S. Arms

WUHAN, China (AP) — Secretary of Defense Harold Brown indicated Thursday that China's reluctance to surrender even a small part of its independence to a foreign power, no matter how friendly, may be one reason it is not seeking arms from the United States.

Appearing before American reporters here after seeing an air show by Chinese-made fighter jets, Brown was asked why the U.S. sells military hardware to Taiwan but not to Peking.

In explanation, he reviewed the 30-year history of China-American relations since the Communist conquest of the mainland.

Although the United States withdrew recognition from Taiwan and gave it to the People's Republic on Jan.1 last year, the Carter Administration sought to mollify critics of the move by assuring them military sales would continue to guarantee the island against possible attack from the mainland.

China's top leaders reportedly failed to raise the subject of arms purchases during just concluded talks with Brown in Peking even though they criticized the U.S. decision to make $280 million worth of weapons available to Taiwan.

Brown noted that even in acquiring arms from European countries, the Chinese have bought just enough to learn how to make their own versions.

In the past 30 years, arms have been the new bargaining chips and the Chinese view the big powers as seeking to control smaller ones.

The Chinese, during Brown's trip, have made it clear they want the United States to unite with it and other anti-Soviet nations to resist further Moscow adventures. An alliance is another thing.

Xinhua, the official Chinese news agency, went to unusual length Thursday to correct the impression it had given that Vice Premier Deng Xiaoping in his talks with Brown urged a global alliance against the Russians. What he called for was unity, not an alliance, it said.

Brown, wearing a heavy Chinese army overcoat against the bone-chilling cold, watched Chinese F-6 fighters climb steeply into the sky and fly nearly at ground level while firing their cannon during an hour's air show of the 28th Fighter Division near Tientsin.

Afterward, in the plane taking him here, he said the F-6, and its more advanced model, the F-7, were a dozen years behind U.S. and Soviet fighter planes. But he praised the Chinese technical capability in turning out this equivalent of the Soviet Mig-21. The trouble is, he added, the richer countries have moved ahead in the meantime.

A Pentagon expert traveling with Brown said, "The fact is all other of China's neighbors have better air forces."

He apparently referred to the Soviet Union, South Korea, Japan, Vietnam and Taiwan.

On the sixth day of a nine-day China visit — the first by a U.S. defense secretary in 30 years — Brown also attended a performance by the Wuhan Physical Culture Institute, was the guest at a banquet given by the Wuhan military command and saw an exhibition of dancing, singing, acrobatics and magic.

He inspects a naval shipyard Friday then goes to Shanghai for two days, leaving China for Tokyo on Sunday.

1979 Records Steepest Wholesale Price Increases Since 1974

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices rose 0.8 percent in December, pushing last year's overall increase to 12.5 percent, the steepest since 1974, the Labor Department reported Thursday.

Last month's boost was the smallest since June, and wholesale food prices actually dipped 0.1 percent after rising a sharp 2.6 percent in November.

However, that moderation was called "temporary" by Courtenay Slater, the Commerce Department's chief economist.

For all of 1979, wholesale food prices rose 7.5 percent.

Besides food, little else appeared in December's wholesale price report to offer relief to inflation-weary Americans.

Prices of non-food items that were one step removed from retail outlets jumped 1.2 percent last month, after climbing 0.8 percent in November.

December's non-food increase was sparked by a 17.7 percent advance in precious metal jewelry, amid the unprecedented worldwide rush for gold and silver. The price of dinnerware and other metal-based household goods also rose, the Labor Department said.

Wholesale gasoline prices rose 3.4 percent and heating oil prices remained at November's very high level. For all of 1979, wholesale energy prices jumped 62.7 percent, the department reported.

"We won't see very much improvement in inflation this year," Mrs. Slater said. Recent oil price boosts by OPEC members will put renewed pressure on energy prices in coming months, she said.

David Ernst, senior economist at the forecasting firm of Evans Economics said: "We don't look for wholesale prices to fall below a 12 percent annual rate until April at the earliest."

He said it will take several months before December's OPEC increases work their way through the U.S. economy.

Wholesale, or producer, prices are watched closely because increases often show up in higher prices at grocery stores, service stations and other retail outlets within a month or two.

Consumer prices are rising faster than wholesale prices and should exceed 13 percent for 1979. That will be the worst inflation rate since World War II price controls were lifted in 1946.

The drop in wholesale food prices was led by poultry, beef and veal, the Labor Department said. Poultry prices, which rose 21.5 percent in November, declined 0.1 percent. Beef and veal prices dropped 4.3 percent after rising 6 percent in November.

"That offers some welcome breathing space," Mrs. Slater said, "but we can't look to food to help hold down wholesale prices."

Moreover, capital equipment prices rose 0.9 percent in December, compared with 0.5 percent in November. For the year, wholesale prices in this area climbed 8.7 percent, the department said.

The Producer Price Index in December stood at 227.8, meaning that goods which sold for $100 in 1967 cost $227.80 last month.

The index measures price changes at three levels: Finished goods, one step short of retail outlets; intermediate materials, still needing some processing; and crude goods, which are unprocessed.

Last month, intermediate goods rose 1.2 percent, compared with November's 0.9 percent increase, and crude items, which includes OPEC oil, went up 1.1 percent after jumping 2 percent the previous month.

Mrs. Slater reported earlier that the economy was surprisingly strong in the last quarter of 1979, despite fears of a recession. Preliminary reports indicate that the gross national product — the value of all goods and services produced in the country — expanded by more than 2 percent from October through December, she said.

The housing sector, however, did decline in late 1979, largely as a result of the Federal Reserve Board's tight money policies aimed at curbing inflation.

That weakening was reflected in wholesale price declines for building materials. Lumber prices, for example, fell 6.2 percent in December, after declining 0.9 percent in November. Demand for these products lessens as housing starts decline.

Wariness about a recession apparently is leading to restrained capital spending plans by American business, the Commerce Department said Thursday.

Companies plan to increase spending on plant and equipment by 10.9 percent in 1980 to $195.7 billion, a department survey reported. Capital spending increased by 14.7 percent last year.

After adjusting for the current inflation rate, the 1980 increase would be less than 2 percent in real dollars, compared with about 5 percent in 1979, the department said.

State Judge Rules Against Filming Of Testimony

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A state judge ruled Thursday that CBS television's "60 Minutes" cannot film the testimony of a Dallas psychiatrist during the capital murder trial here of a 20-year-old man.

CBS News Producer Stephen A. Glauber had asked State District Judge Mike Machado in a letter for permission to film the testimony of Dr. James P. Griggon as part of a segment on the importance of expert witnesses in criminal trials.

The segment focuses on Griggon, Glauber said.

Prosecutors contended Wednesday that the filming would be a distraction to the jury and possibly prejudice the case against Alan Johnson, who is charged with fatally stabbing 14-year-old Joni Foster in her home last February.

Machado said Wednesday he agreed, but asked the prosecutor to put his objection in the form of a written motion before ruling.

Johnson's attorney, Allan Manka, said he would not object to the filming.

Griggon, who examined Johnson, is a well-known psychiatrist who has testified in numerous capital murder cases about whether defendants are inclined to further violence. In capital cases, a jury must decide a defendant is likely to commit other violence before it can assess the death penalty.

Palestinian Issue Still Unresolved As Mideast Summit Closes

ASWAN, Egypt (AP) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin remained divided on the Palestinian issue after a four-day summit ended Thursday, but they jointly condemned the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan.

The agreement on strategic outlook, disclosed by the two leaders at an airport news conference, reflected the shared concern of the United States' two closest Mideast allies over Soviet intentions in the area.

Both countries have offered the United States use of their air and naval facilities to counter Soviet military moves. But Begin avoided a question on whether more tangible Egyptian-Israeli cooperation was possible.

Begin offered and Sadat accepted an invitation to meet for the 10th time in Israel soon.

Asked about reports that a three-man summit would be called by President Carter in Washington, Begin said he and Sadat would accept if asked but "we will endeavor to solve these questions ourselves."

Sadat said the talks in this winter resort produced "identical" views on the Soviet actions and that he would assist the Americans in protecting the oil-rich Persian Gulf.

Begin said he and Sadat "paid special attention" to Afghanistan since it raised the question: "What country might be next."

The delivery of Soviet troops backed by tanks and heavy weaponry, Begin said, was "one of the most brutal acts carried out in our time."

Describing Afghans as "fighting people," Begin said guerrillas would hold out against the Soviets in the mountainous countryside, raising the possibility that he, like Sadat, would offer aid to the Moslem rebels.

While Sadat said the talks were "very friendly," he indicated disappointment at the failure of the meeting to produce a breakthrough on Palestinian autonomy or Jerusalem.

"I had hoped that we (could) reach a directive for our ministers but still we have differences on key issues," Sadat said.

Sadat proposed — and Begin promised to submit immediately to his Cabinet — a plan to implement autonomy in the Gaza Strip, which Egypt administered until Israel occupied the area in 1967, before starting self-rule in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River.

Begin, asserting that Gaza was not "foreign land," said the proposal raised "serious" questions and was a "new idea" not contained in the Camp David accords.

Sadat said the "letter and spirit" of the accords would be carried out but he did not answer directly when asked if he would link the progress on autonomy to the pace of normalization.

Egypt and Israel disagree on how much autonomy to grant the 1.2 million residents of the West Bank and Gaza, with Israel contending home rule applies to people not land. Their definition of the West Bank is also at odds, with Egypt insisting that Arab Jerusalem is part of the territory and its inhabitants should be allowed to vote for a self-rule council.

The Gaza-first idea has surfaced from time to time during the past year of peace talks but apparently never was a formal Egyptian proposal until Sadat presented it to Begin this week.

Conservative Candidates Criticized On Grain Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leaders of four conservative organizations chastised Republican presidential candidates Thursday for disagreeing with the Carter administration's Soviet grain embargo.

"President Carter deserves the support of the American people. He has our support," said Paul M. Weyrich, director of the Committee for Survival of a Free Congress.

"We don't understand the Republican presidential candidates," Weyrich added. "They are putting their careers in the Iowa caucuses ahead of the national security. We are disappointed in them."

Republicans Ronald Reagan, Howard Baker, Philip Crane, John Connally, George Bush and Robert Dole, and Democrat Edward M. Kennedy, have criticized the grain embargo in the Iowa, where the embargo's impact on farmers is a major issue.

Carter sharply curtailed sales of U.S. grain to the Soviet Union in retaliation for Russian military intervention in Afghanistan. But the administration subsequently said the government would buy up some of the grain to cut farmers' losses.

Weyrich said conservative leaders hold Carter accountable for foreign policy decisions that they feel brought on the crises in Iran and Afghanistan.

"Nevertheless, he had the courage to do it (take retaliatory actions against the Soviets)," Weyrich said. "We do think this is a good move."

Howard Phillips, national director of the Conservative Caucus, said it was "most unjust" for conservatives who criticized grain sales to the Soviets under Republican administrations to attack the embargo in the midst of a farm-state campaign.

Robert Billings, executive director of a group known as Moral Majority, attacked "squishy Republicans who sacrifice their principles on the altar of politics."

Billings, involved in a movement led by the Rev. Jerry Falwell, which claims 5 million followers, said that if candidates "want the support of the evangelical-fundamentalist constituency, they had better get their act together."

Terry Dolan, director of the National Conservative Political Action Committee, called for a total embargo of all shipments to the Soviet Union, and said Republicans should support it.

"We hope these Republican candidates who are very courageous against the grain embargo will come out and tell us what they are going to do against Soviet aggression in Afghanistan and elsewhere," Dolan said.

"Expediency has won out with some of our Republican candidates for president, and I hope they will reconsider," Dolan said.

He said he had expressed support for both Reagan and Crane in the Republican presidential nomination race, "but frankly I am going to have to reassess my position now."

All four conservative leaders said that Rep. John Anderson of Illinois is the only GOP candidate courageous enough to support the grain embargo.

Man Claiming To Be Prophet Holding Three At Gunpoint

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A pregnant woman and her two children were held at gunpoint for a second day Thursday by a man claiming to be a Moslem prophet who demanded a ship to take him to Iran, police said.

Heavily armed police surrounded a 2½-story house in the city's Beltzhoover section where Samuel Andrews, 27, an unemployed security guard, had held the captives since 5 p.m. Wednesday.

"This is the year 7001, the day of judgment, and I have been ordered to act by Allah. I am doing this for the people," one officer quoted the gunman as saying.

Although the man, who calls Andrews his "slave name" and refers to himself as Sampson Solomon Mohammed, fired at least a half dozen shots during the siege, there were no injuries, authorities said.

The hostages — Arlene Ware, 22, and her children, ages 4 and 2 — reportedly were in good condition, police said.

Andrews, armed with a pistol and said by neighbors to have a cache of weapons, began a telephone dialogue with police Thursday morning after refusing to speak to authorities earlier.

"He calls us. We call him. He answers. We answer. We're doing everything we can to make sure no one is harmed," said police Lt. John Vuch.

The officer said two of Andrews' cousins asked him to surrender, assuring him that he wouldn't be hurt.

"He refused to do that. They asked him to release the hostages and he refused to do that, too," the officer said.

HEARTLINE: I was ill last week and missed seeing the newspaper. A friend said you told in your column what the changes are for this year in the deductibles under the Medicare program. She wrote them all down and gave me a copy. However, there was no mention on her list of changes of the $60 deductible under the medical part of Medicare (Part B). Was this $60 deductible changed also? — D.O.

No. The $60 deductible under Part B of Medicare will remain unchanged for 1980.

HEARTLINE: My friends and I are always trying to come up with things we can improve on in our homes to help conserve energy. Of course, we cannot afford such expensive improvements as new storm windows and the like, so it makes it rather difficult to suggest affordable ways to save energy and heating costs at the same time. The other day, my long-time best friend, who incidentally is also an expert on everything, told me that window shades can help cut the loss of heat in my home. I doubt this very seriously. What do you say? — J.F.

According to tests conducted by researchers at the Illinois Institute of Technology, an ordinary opaque shade mounted within the window frame (with a quarter-inch clearance along the sides and the end touching the window sill) can cut heat loss through the window by 24 percent to 31 percent — more than either the Venetian blind or the draperies the researchers tested.

In an otherwise well-insulated house and with outdoor temperatures ranging from 20-50 degrees Fahrenheit, that translates into a savings of as much as eight cents per dollar of heating costs.

Your single-glazed windows are second only to poorly insulated ceilings and roofs or attics as a cause of heat loss in winter. You can figure that every square foot of uncovered single-pane window area in your home accounts for 40 cents to $1.40 of your fuel bill each year.

On the other side of the coin — a window can transmit sunlight into a room, where its heat can be trapped. So, during the sunny daylight hours of winter, raise the shades on the south, east and west sides of the house, where solar heat is greatest. Letting the sun's rays in keeps your furnace from having to work as hard to warm the interior of your house.

Keep your shades drawn in the evening, at night and throughout the early morning hours when the air outside is coldest. Warm air inside the house will bounce off the shades back into the room. In many instances, solar heat gained and retained this way can compensate for conductive heat that's lost through the windows during the day.

The shades used by the researchers in the tests cost $6 each. Window shades can be effective also in conserving cooling energy in the summer, by preventing heat outside from getting in.

Bargains Available During January

WASHINGTON (AP) — Storewide clearance sales make January the month for picking up bargains on just about everything, according to the federal Office of Consumer Affairs.

Sale merchandise will differ from store to store and region to region, but good buys are most likely to be found in linens and towels; handbags, shoes, lingerie, books, luggage, appliances, dresses, men's clothing, baby clothes, resort wear, toys, art supplies, bicycles, blankets and storm windows.

It's a good month for major purchases too, so look for sales on clothes dryers, furniture, radios, phonographs and stereos, refrigerators and freezers, rugs and carpets and water heaters.

But shop early, the selection of sale items will diminish as the month wears on, officials say.

The bargain advice is included in the consumer office's monthly National Consumer Buying Alert, which also discusses a variety of other consumer problems and issues and offers helpful suggestions.

Copies of the Alert are available without charge by writing to Esther Peterson, Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

Cabby Paid with 576 Pounds Of Cheese

WOODCLIFF LAKE, N.J. (AP) — The 13-hour odyssey might have been called "East of Edam," but cab driver Ron Salma expected more than 576 pounds of cheese after his customer ran up a $389.40 fare.

"I think the guy really meant well, but I should have known something was wrong with him. He was wearing purple tennis shoes," Salma said.

The Comfort Cab Co. of Bergen County last week dispatched Salma to pick up a passenger at the Bergen Pines Hospital, a 1,200-bed general care facility in Paramus.

Out walked Murray Lipton, dressed in a long fur coat, khaki pants and those tennis shoes.

"It looked like a pretty good deal," said Salma, who usually pulls in between $40 and $50 a day. "He said he had to pick up some merchandise at a warehouse near the World Trade Center, make a few deliveries, and I'd make about $100 for the day."

After several stops in New York to give people rides, they arrived at the warehouse. Salma said Lipton told him to relax — even though the meter was running at $12 an hour.

Lipton led a fork-lift truck loaded with 700 pounds of Edam cheese to the car. He said the cargo was worth about $840 wholesale.

"I was really surprised," Salma said Thursday. "I was talking to a guy at the cheese place and he said, 'Don't worry. He does this all the time.'"

"It looked so ridiculous that I started laughing. But I figured it was worth it ... Then he tells me he hasn't got any cash, that he signed for the load, but not to worry. He's done this before."

The pair then drove to cheese stores and diners throughout New York City.

At a Queens butcher shop, Salma said he began to think something was wrong. The butcher had a scale to sell, and Lipton offered to bring him to a friend in Elmsford, N.Y., who was in the market for one. The meter was at $250.

The deal fell through and the butcher told Lipton he'd pay for some cheese the next day.

Further efforts to unload the cheese in Poughkeepsie, N.Y., and elsewhere proved futile.

Thirteen hours later, Salma brought Lipton back to Bergen Pines Hospital, only to find that officials wouldn't take him. Hospital officials had no immediate comment about Lipton or his medical history. Police would not press charges.

Salma said a police officer told him to take the cheese as collateral, which he did. Lipton was put on a bus.

Salma said Lipton never paid up, so he started selling the cheese. Lipton could not be reached for comment.

Of 19 cases, Salma said he had sold about 10 for $20 a case. The money goes to the cab company.

If Salma sells one or two more cases, he'll break even. Anything over that will be profit.

Lipton called the cab company several hours after Salma dropped him off and asked to be picked up in Manhattan, according to dispatcher Larry Schwartz.

Lipton said he had the money for the fare — and also 1,440 eggs to deliver, Schwartz said.

The man and the eggs were left waiting.

Doing Duty Lands Pig In Sausage Plant

KAISERBACH, West Germany (UPI) — They could not watch Karle die of love. So they made sausage out of him.

Kaiserbach Mayor Bodo Kern said Karle was the star male breeding pig in the small southern German village. He had been scientifically bred for stud work, Kern said.

But Karl's special background had an unfortunate side-effect. He continually lost weight in the course of duty, the mayor said.

"We could not watch him die of love," Kern told the Stern news magazine Thursday.

So when Karle, 2, had dropped to 550 pounds from the 880-pound ideal weight for breeding pigs, he was put to sleep.

Federal Judge Vacates Libel Award

NEW YORK (AP) — Declaring that it "shocks the judicial conscience," a federal judge Thursday vacated a $7.5-million libel and slander award made by a jury in a dispute between two manufacturers of mattress pads.

U.S. District Judge Constance Baker Motley said the award to Acme Quilting Co. was "so grossly excessive" it was not susceptible to adjustment by the court and a new trial was necessary.

"In light of the gross excessiveness and patent irrationality of the jury's award, there is no rational formula by which a remittur could be calculated," Judge Motley said.

The court dispute between Acme and its competitor, Perfect Fit Industries, Inc., stemmed from a rivalry to promote their products with Gimbels department stores.

The jury awarded Acme $2.5 million in compensatory damages and $5 million in punitive damages for libel and slander last November. The award was based on a complaint that Allen Levine, vice president of Perfect Fit, committed libel by stating in letters to Gimbels officials that Acme submitted a "doctored" sample and suggested that Acme used "various influences" to promote its product.

The slander claim involved an alleged statement by Levine to a Gimbels employee that Acme had "supplied women" to Gimbels buyers.

EMPLOYERS REMINDED

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Labor Department is reminding employers of their February posting requirement. During the month, firms with 11 or more workers must post the total count of job-related injuries and illnesses that occurred in 1979.

GAS SAVERS

Looking for ways to save gas and money? One of the simplest solutions is to drive your car a little less. Here are six ideas you can use to keep your foot off the gas and more money in your pocket.

Call ahead to be sure you aren't wasting gas on an unnecessary trip. On the average, a wasted trip costs you a dollar's worth of gas.

Shop, bank and pay your bills by mail. A 15¢ stamp is a lot cheaper than a gallon of gas.

Ride a bike or take a hike. You'll feel more fit, and you'll have more money to spend when you get where you're going—since you didn't waste it on gasoline.

Ride to work with a friend or neighbor just one day a week and you can save at least $100 worth of gas every year.

Take public transportation as often as you can. You'll save gas and help reduce air pollution, too.

This free booklet can show you a lot more easy ways to save gas and money. To get your copy write "Energy," Box 62, Oak Ridge, TN 37830

Governor Seeking Divorce

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — Gov. Thomas Judge is seeking a divorce from his wife, Carol Judge, who filed for a legal separation on Oct. 9, after 13 years of marriage.

GOV. JUDGE

In papers filed in district court in Helena, Judge asks that his marriage be dissolved with "appropriate provisions with respect to the care, custody and visitation" of the couple's two sons, Thomas, 12, and Patrick, 9.

The governor also seeks an "equitable distribution of property" and an order for maintenance and payment of attorney's fees for Mrs. Judge.

The governor has declined comment on his marital trouble, saying it was a personal matter.

The governor's office announced the couple's informal separation on Aug. 20 after Mrs. Judge, 38, moved out of the governor's mansion with their two children.

In her request for separation, Mrs. Judge asked the court to distribute the income from a trust established by Judge when he became governor. The trust was a means of handling his ownership of Judge Advertising Agency. Mrs. Judge lists herself and the children as beneficiaries of the trust.

Lobbyist Looks For Job

ATLANTA (AP) — Rick Dobbins wants to get a message across to legislators.

Any message will do, as long as the sender has $15 an hour to hire one of the Georgia State University student's pickets to march in front of the Capitol.

"While we will work 'pro' or 'con' for almost any cause, we can only represent reputable organizations," Dobbins wrote in a brochure for Student Picket Service mailed out to lobbyists and other groups this week.

"I've got a list here of plenty of able-bodied people who would be down there first thing in the morning," Dobbins said Wednesday night.

The $15 "includes the sign, parking down there, gas to get there, everything," said Dobbins, who declined to say how much of it went to pay the pickets.

Dobbins, 20, a business administration major at the campus which abuts the Capitol grounds, said he has no personal causes.

Bell To Offer Coupons

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Ma Bell, taking a cue from magazines and newspapers, has gone into the coupon business.

The January 1980 edition of the Wilmington phone book contains a full coupon section with money-off savings for pizza, picture frames, auto parts and plumbing. Cash rebates include a $15 money-back guarantee for signing up with a liquid petroleum gas company to $25 for auto body repairs.

This is the first year the Bell telephone system has offered the coupons, and they are limited to some directories in Pennsylvania and Delaware.

Coupon sales were handled by the telephone company's Philadelphia office. The cost to the retailer is $1,200 per year for each coupon.

The cover of the new Wilmington book resembles a box of kiddie cereal with a promotional banner in the upper left hand corner announcing "Valuable Coupons Inside."

Woody Montgomery, of directory planning for Diamond State Telephone Co. and Bell of Pennsylvania, said the phone company began considering coupons in 1977 because of their popularity among consumers.

New HUD Secretary Praises Cities For Restoration

ATLANTA (AP) — American cities experienced a rebirth in the 1970s, Moon Landrieu, newly named secretary of Housing and Urban Development, said Thursday.

"As those of us look at the cities today and remember what they were in the early '60s ... we cannot help but think that while they have not been totally restored, my God, they've come a long way," said the former New Orleans mayor.

The secretary outlined achievements made by HUD since Carter took office three years ago.

Over the past three years, HUD has acquired 545,000 housing units and built an additional 418,458, compared to only 15,000 built in the three preceding years, Landrieu said.

Prior to Landrieu's speech, a predominantly black group of about 50 elderly women trooped onto the platform carrying signs and chanting, "Moon, Moon, meet with us soon," and "Hey, hey, HUD, HUD, our homes are falling in the mud."

The protest, sponsored by two activist groups, was aimed at calling attention to problems encountered by elderly persons living in public housing developments.

Road To Laurieton

LAURIETON, Australia (AP) — This small seaside village 240 miles north of Sydney has a message for comedian Bob Hope. Why not take the road to Laurieton?

BOB HOPE

The veteran entertainer has been to Laurieton (population 1,200) before.

One day in 1944, a seaplane ferrying Hope and his entourage to World War II military bases made a forced landing on a local lake, later renamed Lake Hope in his honor.

Hope and his crew spent three days at a Laurieton inn while the plane was being repaired, and the older generation still recalls his friendliness, his impromtu shows, and an airdrop of hard-to-come-by cigarettes over the village after the plane left.

Now Laurieton businessman Kevin Sonter plans to contact Hope to invite him back to Australia for a television special which would benefit such charities as cancer researeh and the village's rugby team.

Library Gives Stern Warning

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. (AP) — Keeping a library book too long is no two-bit offense in Traverse City.

For two years now, the Traverse City Public Library has been mailing up to three warnings to people whose books are overdue for at least four months. The fourth warning is not from the library.

It's from the city attorney, Peter Doren, and it's brief:

"Return the book or face possible arrest."

"Once they have been contacted by the city attorney, most of these people either return the book or make settlement," said library director Mike McGuire.

The system has allowed the library to cut its 300-books-a-year-loss and consider eliminating its 5 cent-a-day library fine, he added.

Doren said he has written dozens of letters threatening prosecution. But he has had to carry out that threat only five times and has yet to actually prosecute a library patron.

King To Watch Races

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — King Carl XVI Gustav of Sweden will visit Rhode Island in August to watch the Swedish 12-meter yacht "Sverige" compete with three other foreign entries in preliminary America's Cup races.

Peter Rhedin, project manager of the Swedish entry, said Wednesday he did not know the exact date of the visit.

The king, an avid amateur sailor, is one of the backers of his country's entry.

Ex-Leader Now 'Comrade'

PEKING (AP) — Disgraced former Chinese president Liu Shao-chi moved another step toward regaining respectability Thursday when official newspapers referred to him as "comrade" in headlines.

The term of communist respect was used over an article on the renovation of a museum for the 1935 Zunyi conference in which Mao Tse-tung became the Chinese communists' top leader.

The article contained no references to Liu being exonerated of charges by the party's radicals that he had worked to restore capitalism. He was ousted in the late 1960s and is believed to have died at the age of 72 in 1970.

Liu's picture now hangs with those of Mao and other party politburo officials of the time at the front of the museum meeting room, the newspapers said.

Carter Pleased With Allies' Response To Economic Sanctions Toward Soviets

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials insisted Thursday they are "very pleased" with the response of American allies to President Carter's campaign to use economic sanctions in retaliation for the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said Western European allies, Canada and Australia have given assurances that they will not try to sell the Soviets grain to make up for the 17 million tons that the United States is withholding from the Russians.

President Carter announced the embargo on shipments of grain to the Soviets last week, but has drawn criticism from other presidential candidates who have said American farmers will be hurt and the Russians will buy grain elsewhere on the world market.

But the State Department spokesman said U.S. allies "will take appropriate steps to make sure that ther the allies would be doing

The spokesman was asked whether the allies would be doing "business as usual" with the Soviets, since they have not followed the U.S. lead and cut sales to the Russians.

"In a capitalist system, people normally rush in to fill a market. We're seeing here a refusal to act in a normal way," spokesman Carter replied.

He denied reports that President Carter has written a memorandum to the agencies involved in arms control negotiations ordering them to cease offering new initiatives at arms control talks with the Soviets.

"No such memorandum exists," Carter said.

The spokesman said the "political climate" caused by the massive Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan "will obviously have some effect" on the arms control negotiations. He would not say whether the United States would offer new proposals at the various arms control meetings with the Russians.

Spokesman Carter said the U.S. positions in upcoming talks with the Soviets are still being decided within the administration.

Among the negotiations in which the United States will participate are talks on a comprehensive nuclear test ban treaty and discussions of mutual force reductions in Europe, scheduled to begin in several weeks in Vienna and Geneva, respectively.

Spokesman Carter said no dates have been set for resumption of long-stalled talks on limiting conventional arms transfers, anti-satellite warfare and armaments in the Indian Ocean region.

Later, President Carter referred to the Afghanistan situation in a speech in which he introduced a new youth jobs program. Americans, he said, are outraged "when we see the independence of that nation and the freedom of those people destroyed by an invading superforce."

But he said, "We will prevail because we collectively are strong."

Soviets Launch Propaganda Offensive

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union Thursday unleashed a major propaganda offensive, topped with a rare newspaper article signed by a Politburo member, to discredit U.S. foreign policy and President Carter personally.

The strongly worded attacks attempted to show the Carter-ordered grain embargo of the Soviet Union as the act of an administration "sliding downhill" and intent on destroying detente.

Pravda, the Communist Party Daily, suggested that Carter's get-tough tactics were designed to regain popularity during an election year.

"One cannot help feeling that the direct attack against detente, against Soviet-U.S. Relations, has been launched not oy the president of the United States, but rather by J. Carter, one of the presidential cndidates in the election campaign of 1980 who put his last trump cards in this vanity fair," the article said.

Another daily paper, Sovetskaya Rossia, scoffed American charges that the Soviet presence in Afghanistan threatened other Moslem countries.

"Washington of course, would like very much at any price to divert the attention of world opinion from the American-Iranian crisis and from that of the extremely dangerous game of military-politicl poker it had started," the paper said.

"There really is a threat to Iran, but it comes from the United States."

The most surprising of the articles Thursday appeared in the magazine Kommunist and was signed by Boris Ponomaryev, an alternate member of the powerful Politburo an secretary of the Communist Party Central Committee. Such ranking officials seldom contribute to publictions under their own names.

In broad terms, the article refuted American charges that the Soviet Union is responsible for much of the political upheaval in the world.

"It is high time to understand that if an Asian, African or Latin American country decides to break with the imperialist system and embark on a path of socialist orientation, it does not do it under the influence of agitation from the outside, not as a result of somebody's agents," Ponomaryev wrote.

The word candidate — originally signifying any person clothed in white — stems from the same Latin root as the term candid.

More Wholesale Gas Price Hikes Stab Consumers' Pocketbooks

By WILLIAM GLASGALL

NEW YORK (AP) — The second shock wave from the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' winter crude oil price hikes has hit the United States, with most major oil companies announcing increases of up to 6 cents a gallon in wholesale gasoline or heating oil prices.

The increases, which are likely to be passed on to consumers, were generally attributed by oil companies Thursday to rising crude oil prices.

But one U.S. oil industry source said he believes heating oil prices may fall by as much as a nickel a gallon later this winter because stockpiles here and abroad are at such high levels.

Heating oil consumption is running 5 to 10 percent behind last year's levels due to conservation efforts and conversions to natural gas and other fuels.

Warmer-than-expected weather here and in Europe also has kept heating oil stocks higher.

The source, who asked not to be named, said oil companies may be forced to dispose of heating oil at cut rates to make room in their storage tanks for summer gasoline supplies.

The latest boosts came on top of 1-to 6-cent-a-gallon wholesale increases in December, and followed a year in which U.S. wholesale energy costs skyrocketed 62.7 percent.

Price increases announced before and during last month's OPEC meeting in Venezuela boosted the average U.S. import price of a 42-gallon barrel of the cartel's crude oil to about $29 on Jan. 1 from $24 in November, the Energy Department said Thursday.

But department spokesman Jay Vivari said increases by non-OPEC producers actually have boosted the U.S. import price to about $31, nearly double the level of a year ago.

The United States imports about half its crude oil. About 60 percent of domestic crude oil production is not under price control, and thus rises along with OPEC's actions.

This week, the federal government said it was selling oil from its Elk Hills reserve in California for nearly $40 a barrel, about $5 above the current top OPEC price charged by Libya.

Among the latest price increases:

•Exxon USA, the nation's largest gasoline marketer, Thursday raised gasoline prices 3 cents a gallon to an average of 76.6 cents for regular, 80.6 cents for unleaded and 82.6 cents for premium. Home heating oil rose 3 cents to an average of 68 cents.

Exxon's prices are lower than average because of the company's access to Saudi Arabian crude oil, which at $24 a barrel is nearly $3 below the average OPEC price.

•No. 2-ranked Standard Oil Co. of Indiana on Jan. 4 boosted gasoline and heating oil prices by 3 cents a gallon in the East and South, and 4 cents in the Midwest and West. Wholesale prices were not disclosed.

•Third-ranked Shell Oil raised gasoline prices by 5 cents a gallon nationwide, and heating oil prices by 6 cents in the East and South and 5 cents in the Midwest and West.

•Gulf Oil, No. 4, on Tuesday raised gasoline prices by 2 cents a gallon in the East and South and 3 cents in the Midwest and West. Heating oil rose by 2 cents nationwide.

•No. 5 Texaco raised gasoline prices 3 cents, and gasohol prices by 2 cents a gallon Thursday. Cities Service had identical increases, bringing the wholesale price of Citgo regular gasoline to 82 cents a gallon, while Sun Oil raised gasoline and heating oil prices by 3 cents Jan. 4 and Jan. 5.

Nigeria Pledges Not To Follow Libya In Crude Oil Price Hike

NEW YORK (AP) — Nigeria, the second-largest supplier of crude oil to the United States, told a U.S. oil company Thursday it does not intend to follow Libya's nearly $5-a-barrel crude oil price increase to nearly $35, an industry source said.

But the source, and others in the industry, remained skeptical of Nigeria's pledge.

Saudi Arabia's oil minister, Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani, was quoted, meanwhile, as saying he expects oil prices to decline in 1980 because an economic slowdown will create a worldwide oil glut.

In a report from the Saudi Arabian capital of Riyadh, the West German economic news agency VWD said Yamani told visiting West German Economics Minister Otto Graf Lambsdorff he expects crude oil production to exceed demand this year by about 2 million barrels a day.

Oil producers could cut oil output by only 1 million barrels a day, leaving a sizable surplus, Yamani said. A barrel contains 42 gallons.

Saudi Arabia produces 9.5 million barrels of oil a day, one-third of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' output, and is the largest overseas supplier of oil to the United States.

Saudi Arabia accounts for about 7.2 percent of U.S. oil needs, while Nigeria accounts for 5.7 percent of the U.S. supply.

The Saudis were among a moderate bloc within the oil cartel agreeing last month to an increase in the OPEC base price from $18 to $24 a barrel.

But Libya, whose top-quality oil was selling for $26.27 early last month, has since raised its price to $30 and then to $34.72. Algeria, which typically follows Libyan moves, reportedly has raised its price to around $33.

Nigeria, which also usually is allied with the Libyans, informed the U.S. oil company it is sticking with the approximately $30-a-barrel price it posted for Jan. 1.

Nigeria earlier told another oil company its price was $30. It also has denied publicly that it is contemplating a $35 price.

But another source, whose company deals with the Nigerians, said "most people expect" Nigeria eventually will follow Libya's move.

"We haven't had any evidence to indicate they will not," said the source.

UNION SPURNS RUSSIANS — Russian cargo container ship, Khudozhnik Pakhomov, sits in Delaware River at a Philadelphia marine terminal Thursday after arriving Wednesday night. Longshoremen are refusing to load the big ship because of their contempt for the Soviet's invasion of Afghanistan. The longshoremen are giving up $15 an hour pay during their protest. No Pullout Signal Given By Soviets

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet march into Afghanistan has cost the Russians much in lost trade and international prestige. But whether they foresaw what they were getting into or not, the Soviets show no sign of backing out.

Relations with Washington and the West have sunk to near-Cold War levels and the SALT II arms-limitation treaty is indefinitely shelved. Needed American grain and technology are embargoed. And Soviet friends in the Third World have turned against it in unprecedented numbers.

In exchange, the Soviet Union is embroiled in what could be a long, costly and bloody struggle against determined Moslem rebels in a forbidding country whose name literally means "Land of the Unruly."

Action Stuns Soviets

American officials say the Soviets were stunned by the strength of President Carter's reaction to the Afghan intervention, and especially by his clampdown on grain sales.

The Russians, on the other hand, have publicly downplayed the impact of the American actions.

There is no authoritative means of gauging whether the Soviets were fully aware of the risks of the intervention and decided it was worth the gamble, or were caught off guard by the reaction.

But the scope of the Soviet operation alone — some estimate up to 100,000 Red Army troops are in Afghanistan — is evidence that the Russians marched in determined to firmly plant a more pro-Moscow regime in Kabul and to crush any resistance.

"Limited Contingent"

The official Soviet line has been that Moscow sent a "limited military contingent" into Afghanistan at the request of the Afghan government to repel rebels trained, backed and armed by the United States, China, Egypt and Pakistan. Moscow contends it had no hand in engineering the coup that deposed one Marxist regime and replaced it with another.

But Kremlin leaders must have expected that a blitzkrieg of this sort would generate a strong reaction, and that at the very least President Leonid I. Brezhnev's pet detente policies would suffer.

What did the Russians see in Afghanistan that justified so large a risk? Some of the answers suggested by analysts here are as old as Russian history:

Subject To Invasion

— A vast, wide-open land, Russia has always been subject to invasion, whether by Mongol hordes from the east or European empire builders from the west. In defense Russian governments have traditionally sought to create a bulwark of friendly states around their borders.

Over the past three decades, the Soviets showed in Finland, Hungary, Berlin and Czechoslovakia they were willing to take drastic steps to preserve their geographic safety belt.

— Some 50 million Moslems live in the southern Soviet republics, and many share ancient ethnic and commercial ties with the Afghans. Diplomats say the Soviets may fear that a Moslem revolution in Afghanistan coming on the heels of Iran's could spread the flame of Islamic nationalism across the border and arouse the southern Soviet people.

— Perhaps most significantly, the Soviets saw the hand of China, its communist arch-rival, behind the Afghan rebels.

Observers here say China's friendship with Pakistan and its alleged support for the Afghan rebels apparently alarmed Moscow as an ominous spread of a hostile power under Russia's belly. Compounding this perceived threat is the growing closeness of the United States and China.

Still, many Western observers were surprised that the Kremlin was willing to abandon its much-ballyhooed search for detente so soon after SALT II was signed.

Some quarters in the West suggest the Soviets may be looking even farther south and have designs on the oil and warm water ports of the Arabia-Iran-Pakistan region. Many world governments condemn the Soviet move as blatant aggression that has suppressed the Afghans' right to self-determination.

Officials in Washington have raised the possibility that the Soviet action was carried out by a majority of the ruling Politburo without the full approval of Brezhnev, who is 73 and ailing. But Western and East European diplomats here discount this, noting that the Soviet president publicly appears to be well in command, and he is not believed to have opposed the Soviet intervention in Czechoslovakia in 1968.

Despite the arms limitation agreement, U.S.-Soviet relations had been sliding downhill rapidly long before the Russians crossed into Afghanistan.

More Soviet Troops Move In Afghanistan

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — Diplomatic sources reported the Soviet Union has moved additional men and armor into Afghanistan, but Moslem guerrillas were said Thursday to have closed a strategic highway linking Russia with the capital city.

There also were reports an Afghan army brigade fought with Soviet troops in Kandahar, in southwestern Afghanistan, and both sides suffered heavy casualties.

The reports could not be confirmed independently.

Afghanistan's new pro-Soviet government broadcast a letter to President Carter accusing the United States of "trying with all its force to work against us."

The nation's new president, Babrak Karmal, told a news conference "the small-numbered Soviet military contingent" will leave the country as soon as "intervention" by foreign powers supporting Moslem Afghan rebels is over, the Hungarian news agency reported. Karmal claimed the insurgency is supported by the United States, China, Pakistan, Saudi Arabia and Egypt.

The news agency, MTI, quoted Karmal as saying Afghanistan's revolutionary council had asked the Soviet Union for assistance even before Dec. 27, when the Soviets sent thousands of troops into Afghanistan and helped install Karmal in place of Hafizullah Amin, who subsequently was reported executed.

The Soviets, he said, did not consider intervention for some time, but later the assistance of the "Soviet contingent became urgently pressing." He did not elaborate.

The official Soviet news agency Tass said in a dispatch from Kabul that an American Roman Catholic mission here had been functioning as an "underground center" for recruiting "counter-revolutionary agents" to circulate "subversive literature." Tass claimed the mission was part of the American cultural center run by the U.S. Embassy.

The 152-nation U.N. General Assembly, which has no power to take punitive action, began debate on the situation in Afghanistan. The Soviet Union, which on Monday vetoed a Security Council resolution calling for withdrawal of all foreign troops, has an estimated 100,000 soldiers in this Central Asian nation.

Afghanistan, a poor mountainous country whose people are overwhelmingly Moslem, is surrounded by Pakistan to the south and east, Iran to the West, and the Soviet Union to the north. It shares a tiny border with China in its northeastern corner.

Previously Non-Aligned

Historically, Afghanistan has been non-aligned. But a succession of three pro-Soviet Marxist governments have ruled the country in the past 20 months, prompting Moslem Afghan rebels to declare "holy war." Some observers speculate the government's inability to halt the rebellion brought on the Soviet intervention.

Afghan sources and Asian diplomats in Kabul, quoting Afghan military officials and travelers just returned from the area, said the Salang Highway was blocked Tuesday by fighting near the Doshi or Khenjan bridges, about 90 miles north of Kabul.

The sources also said the Soviets poured three more divisions into Afghanistan this week, bringing to seven the number moved in during the past two weeks.

Troops Attack Rebels

Heavy military traffic also was heading south into Afghanistan from the Soviet cities of Torgundi, in the Turkoman Republic, and Termez, in the Uzbek Republic, according to diplomatic sources. They reported fighting in Nangahar province, east of Kabul, and said Russian troops had attacked rebel units near Saidabad, about 50 miles southwest of the capital in Wardak Province.

Soviet troops are believed to control most of the major cities and highways throughout the country.

The Associated Press of Pakistan, a Pakistani news agency, reported from the border city of Chaman that Afghan army troops and Soviet troops engaged in an "armed and blood encounter" resulting in heavy casualties on both sides after the Afghan brigade revolted in Kandahar.

After the clash, the brigade joined the rebels, according to the report.

U.N. Opens Debate On Soviets

sembly was not expected to have a practical affect on the situation in Afghanistan, the mountainous landlocked country at the Soviet Union's southern border where Moslem rebels have been waging a "holy war" against a succession of pro-Soviet governments for the past 20 months. The General Assembly's decisions, which are not subject to veto, also are not binding.

Dost, representing the Afghan government-installed Dec. 27 after a Soviet-led coup, opened Thursday's debate by reiterating his government's claim that it requested Soviet military aid to defend against attacks by "imperialist and reactionary circles."

"The so-called situation in Afghanistan is entirely an internal matter and poses no threat to peace in the world," he said.

He noted that the assembly's decision to take up the matter was provided for under terms of the Uniting for Peace Resolution passed in 1950 — and thus, he said, "dating from the dark days of the cold war." The resolution provided for the General Assembly to meet in emergency session when the Security Council is prevented by veto from acting to preserve or restore peace.

Japanese Ambassador Masahiro Nisibori, who followed the Afghan representative, said: "The present crisis bears tremendous political implications, jeopardizing international peace and security and threatening the stability of the region. The Soviet actions in Afghanistan contravene international law and justice, and we find the use of force in these actions particularly deplorable."

He added, "The government of Japan steadfastly maintains the position that the Soviet Union must cease its intervention and withdraw its troops immediately and that the people of Afghanistan must be permitted to solve their internal problems by themselves."

Colombia's chief delegate, Indalecio Lievano, called the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan an "arrogant abuse of power" that threatens other small nations.

Lievano, president of the 1978 General Assembly, said, "This outragous threat of replacing law with the aggressive action of tanks and subjecting the freedom and independence of defenseless peoples to the savage onslaught of new and old forms of imperialism — that would be a return to the law of the jungle in this era of nuclear weapons."

The United States, a firm critic of the Soviet action in Afghanistan, was expected to address the emergency special session today. The Soviet Union also was expected to speak.

Union Chief Meany Dies At 85

share of happiness and rewards, and prayers for His continued blessing on this nation and on this movement and on each of you."

Many of the delegates wept with Meany. He tried to gavel the convention to order, but the delegates refused to give Meany his way.

Until the year he retired, he had put in a five-day work week, being driven each morning by a chauffeur from his suburban home to the AFL-CIO's marble headquarters one block from the White House.

Occasionally there would be suggestions in the press that he retire, but Meany usually laughed them away.

But when he announced in September he would not seek a 13th two-year term as AFL-CIO president, his colleagues were not surprised. A few already had begun to say privately that Meany was losing his clout with Congress and the White House and that he should retire.

Meany's attitude toward the Carter administration had turned glum in May 1977, just four months after Carter took office. When asked if organized labor had any reason to be happy with the new administration, Meany replied succinctly, "No!"

Meany frequently spoke bluntly of his displeasure with Carter, particularly concerning the president's economic policies.

When Carter called for organized labor's support in October 1978 for the administration's voluntary wage-price guidelines, Meany denounced the anti-inflation program as unfair to workers.

A month later, in one of his most caustic attacks on the president, he called Carter the most conservative chief executive since Calvin Coolidge. "Why in the hell did we have to have a small businessman (as president)?" Meany complained.

According to Carter administration officials, the Meany-Carter relationship was hampered by a personality clash that left the two estranged.

Yet Carter, at Meany's farewell appearance, called him a "great American" and said "no American has fought harder for economic justice" for union and non-union workers. "No American has believed so deeply in human dignity ... and no American has loved his country more.

"Mr. Meany, on behalf of the American people, thank you and God bless you."

Islam Summit Eyes Soviets

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Moslem opposition to the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan gained momentum Thursday with 11 Arab and Moslem countries declaring their support for an emergency Islamic summit to discuss Moscow's action.

Saudi Arabia, Oman, the United Arab Emirates, Lebanon, Morocco, Malaysia, Bahrain, Pakistan, Tunisia, Sudan and Bangladesh have agreed to attend an emergency summit of Islamic foreign ministers called for by Bangladesh and Pakistan, the Gulf News Agency said.

Habib Chatti, secretary general of the 42-nation Organization of the Islamic Conference, of which Afghanistan is a member, said in Jeddah, Saudi Arabi Wednesday, "The Pakistani government expressed its readiness to host the meeting in Islamabad beginning Jan. 26 to discuss the Soviet intervention in Moslem Afghanistan. Such a meeting is very important."

East Lubbock citizens convinced the council to fund an access road on the south side of Canyon Lake 6.

The largest of the Canyon Lakes became the target of controversy when the council voted late last year to name it after slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr.

Councilman Bud Aderton said derogatory comments made about the lake when the council was considering ways to honor King contributed to the council's tentative decision to drop the lake access road from the list of CD projects.

However, Oscar Jones urged the council not to mix the two issues and to proceed with development of the lake.

The council also approved full funding for the Huffman Athletic Complex, to be located north of Canyon Lake 1. Construction of an access road and parking lot for the complex is expected to cost $162,000.

Most of the $3.3 million CD allocation — $1.8 million — will be used for rehabilitation in seven Lubbock neighborhoods.

Other Council Actions

Also Thursday, the council:

— Approved a $30,000 contract with an engineering firm to study the city's options to redesign the inters ection at East 34th Street and Quirt Avenue.

— Appointed Councilman Bill McAlister to work with a committee representing the Convention and Tourism Bureau, the Hotel-Motel Association, the Restaurant Association and the Civic Centers Board on hiring a promotional person for the Civic Center.

— Decided not to reinstall any of the traffic signals at 18 city intersections which were replaced by stop signs in November. —SYLVIA TEAGUE

Mayor West Says No To New Term

"The most distasteful thing has been being on public inspection all the time," he said. "I'm essentially a private person, but you have to live in sort of a fish bowl.

"I will have completed six years (on the council) when I go out of office," he said, "and it's inconceivable to me why anyone would stay any longer."

Also, he said, "Being a spokesman for the city can be exciting.

"Being able to originate programs like on traffic, Crime Line and Crime Eye, working with neighborhood associations and working with minorities have all been pleasurable," West said.

"But the downside is the demands of the job increase every week."

But West said he's not through being mayor yet — "I've still got three more months to serve," he said.

"I'm not going to be a lame duck."

After that "it's time to get on to something else," West said. Although he has no definite plans, "I'm not ruling anything out," he said.

Recalling his jobs, which have ranged from college teacher, to television show host, to advertising executive to mayor, West said he'd "like something new."

And although he won't be mayor after April, West promises he'll be around.

after no agreement was reached at that time, the National Mediation Board notified both parties to observe a 30-day cooling off period.

Thursday's session, which was expected to last into the wee hours of the morning, apparently is a last-ditch effort to resolve the contract problem before the union becomes eligigble to call for a work stoppage effective Sunday morning.

"This could be a real blow for Lubbock," Coffee said. "But it's the kind of deal where there's nothing any outside interests can do. A lot of people might not be making trips, I guess."

Speculation Stirred By Iran Visit

identified only as Goudarzi. A spokesman for the revolutionary guards, Khomeini's militia, said at least 20 of the gang were still at large.

In a series of submachine-gun attacks from speeding motorcycles, the assassins have gunned down five leading Khomeini associates since the revolutionary regime took power last February. Anonymous messages said the victims were condemend because of their ignorance of true Islamic teachings.

On Dec. 18, an assassin team killed the dean of the Tehran University theology school, Hojatoleslam Mohammad Mofateh, and his two bodyguards.

A pall of black smoke from burning tires hovered over the northwest Iranian city of Tabriz Thursday as Azerbaijani dissidents there pressed their campaign against Khomeini's central government.

From five to seven persons were officially reported killed in street clashes Wednesday between Khomeini supporters, including revolutionary guards, and the supporters of Iran's No. 2 ayatollah, Mohammad Kazem Shariat-Madari.

About 30 branch banks were gutted by fire during the violence, according to reports from Tabriz, and Pars said about 100 people were wounded. Radio broadcasts appealed for blood donors.

Reporters on the scene saw tanks, armored cars and several truckloads of soldiers parked in the nearly deserted streets. A double line of troops and vehicles guarded the television station, which has been captured several times recently by the dissidents.

A general strike was called Thursday, shutting down almost all shops and schools, to dramatize the Azerbaijani demand that the guards be pulled out of Tabriz.

The dissidents, led by the Moslem People's Republican Party, want greater local government control and have made Shariat-Madari, who opposed Khomeini's assumption of near-absolute power under the new Iranian constitution, figurehead leader of their movement.

South of Tabriz, in the Kurdish stronghold of Sanandaj, all shops, schools and offices were closed in a similar general strike, and sit-ins were in their ninth day at the governor-general's office and a major mosque, the government radio said.

Iranians Given Prison Terms

KUWAIT (AP) — A court sentenced 15 Iranians to one year in prison each on Thursday for staging an unauthorized demonstration in front of the U.S. Embassy here in November.

Five other Iranians were sentenced in absentia to similar terms and 10 Iranians received terms ranging from 45 days to three months.

More than 45,000 Iranians live in Kuwait. The defendants were among 2,000 persons who demonstrated in front of the U.S. Embassy on Nov. 30 to protest American policy in Iran, where Moslem militants have held hostages at the occupied U.S. Embassy since Nov. 4.

The demonstration was a part of anti-American riots that swept some Moslem capitals after Iranian leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini charged the United States was behind the takeover by zealots Nov. 20 of the Grand Mosque in Mecca, Saudi Arabia, Islam's holiest shrine.

Last summer, this Persian Gulf sheikdom banned demonstrations and even social gatherings of more than 20 persons without advance permision from authorities.

India's Prime Minister Calls For National Unity

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Climaxing her spectacular comeback, Indira Gandhi once again became prime minister of India on Thursday and invited her defeated political foes to join in national reconciliation.

The 62-year-old stateswoman's triumphant return to the office she left 34 months ago in defeat and disgrace awaited only the formality of picking her Cabinet and taking the oath of office, expected Friday or Monday.

India's President Neelam Sanjiva Reddy sent a letter late Thursday to Mrs. Gandhi asking her to form her government as prime minister and to advise him of the names of her "other ministers," a presidential spokesman said.

The president nominated Mrs. Gandhi after thunderously applauding members of her huge, newly elected majority in Parliament unanimously elected her their parliamentary leader.

"We are not petty people...We do not think in terms of vendetta," she told the parliamentary gathering, offering the olive branch to opposition forces crushed by the national election victory of her Indira Congress Party earlier this month.

Mrs. Gandhi's gesture to her foes provided an unspoken contrast to their efforts to jail her ever since her fall from power in the March 1977 election — efforts she has called a political vendetta.

Three cases accusing her of fraud and abuse of power during her 19-month emergency rule in 1975-77 are before special courts set up by the government that succeeded her in 1977 headed by former Prime Minister Morarji Desai.

Mrs. Gandhi's 33-year-old son, Sanjay, elected to Parliament in the landslide, listened intently as his mother addressed the cheering gathering at the Central Hall of Parliament. He is a defendant in at least 10 criminal cases and is free on bail pending appeal of a conviction of destroying a film critical of his mother's earlier administration.

It was Mrs. Gandhi's first appearance before Parliament since the lower house in December 1978 jailed her for a week and expelled her from its ranks on contempt charges stemming from harassment of a parliamentary probe while she was prime minister. Her backers used the expulsion and arrest to build public support for their vendetta charges.

There was speculation that Mrs. Gandhi would be her own foreign minister in the first days of her new administration in order to give close attention to strengthening foreign policy. She has frequently charged that India's world policies and image were greatly weakened by the Desai government and the caretaker regime of Charan Singh.

Mrs. Gandhi, often regarded as pro-Soviet, spoke of a "special relationship" with Moscow during her earlier 11-year administration. This was criticized by Desai when he took office in 1977 and proclaimed "true non-alignment."

Mrs. Gandhi has not directly condemned the Soviet military incursion into Afghanistan except to say that she opposes foreign intervention and to suggest that the United States and China have interfered in the region.

Mrs. Gandhi spent part of Thursday looking over congratulatory messages and discussing Cabinet choices with her close aides.

Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin sent a congratulatory telegram to Mrs. Gandhi, the Soviet news agency Tass reported Thursday. The Kremlin leaders told Mrs. Gandhi: "You personal contribution to the cause of expanding and deepening Soviet-Indian relations is deeply appreciated."

Tass said the Soviet leaders expressed their "firm conviction" that Soviet-Indian relations "will receive further development in the name of the cardinal interests of our peoples, peace and progress in Asia and in the whole world."

Rising Prices Separating Lubbockites From Precious Metals

By NANCY ALLEN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

As the price of gold escalates to new highs almost daily — taking the cost of silver right along with it — Lubbockites are becoming increasingly willing to part with any of the precious metals they possess, say jewelry and coin buyers.

Retail and classified advertising by gold buyers in The Avalanche-Journal has shown a marked increase during the past six months, while the price of gold on world markets has doubled.

Response to the ads ranges from "fantastic" to "pretty fair," according to jewelers and private investors who have opened their doors to sellers.

Since the price of gold topped $450 per troy ounce in December (it's now more than $600), the number of people coming in to inquire about selling gold has doubled to between eight and 12 daily, says Raymond Pena of Bacon Jewelers.

Selling gold is a five-minute procedure, says Pena. "We clean it, weigh it, determine what karat it is, and make an offer. If the seller agrees, then it's done."

Prices are based on the purity (karat value) of the gold, and fluctuate according to market value, Pena explained.

Depending on the dealer, 10K gold will bring $7 to $7.50 per pennyweight (approximately 1/20th ounce); 14K gold, $9.50 to $10 per pennyweight; 18K gold, $11 per pennyweight.

Most dealers will buy only gold marked with its karat value, which is the way it must be retailed in the U.S., although Pena said Bacon Jewelers sometimes "will take a guess" on unmarked jewelry.

"People sometimes become disillusioned because of the price their gold will bring," Pena commented. "They hear gold is selling at over $600 per ounce and wonder why they can't get more for their jewelry."

A man's class ring, which weighs around 17 pennyweight and usually is made of 10K gold, would net the seller $150 to $170, depending on the size of the stone (which would be removed).

The South African Krugerrand, one troy ounce of what is considered to be pure gold, would bring 60 percent of whatever the market value is, said Lance McIntosh of The Alchemist.

(Krugerrands may be redeemed for full value at banks or through certain brokerage firms, however.)

Gold bought in Lubbock is sent to smelters to be melted and purified. Much of the 40 percent of the market value kept by the buyer goes to ship and insure the scrap gold, pay smelting fees and provide a profit for the dealer, McIntosh explained.

The economic recession and spiraling price of precious metals combined are bringing jewelry sellers to the counters of buyers in Lubbock, says Jim Spikes, a part-time jeweler.

He has bought old class rings, old broken jewelry, a silver tea service, even wedding bands. "Evidently some folks are down on their luck," Spikes commented. "I think we'll see more and more people selling," he continued.

Don Hall, who is investing in pre-1964 U.S. silver coins at 15 to 18 times their face value, believes coin sellers essentially are profit-takers in the silver market.

"Most people just want to cash in on the high price," he said.

Whatever the reason Lubbockites are selling their silver and gold, the buyers are looking at their purchases as an investment that could pay rapid — and handsome — dividends.

Fireman Plea Opposed In Council Resolution

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Before a crowd of about 100 firemen and their supporters, city council members Thursday unanimously approved a resolution opposing collective bargaining rights for firemen.

The resolution states collective bargaining in other cities "has proven to be a costly and time-consuming procedure that has caused division between employees and management."

That bargaining right also "has proven to encourage strikes by government employees even though such strikes were prohibited by law," the resolution states.

Because collective bargaining is "not in the best interest of the citizens of this city or in the best interest of economy and government," the resolution was approved.

City Manager Larry Cunningham told council members the resolution "reflects what collective bargaining has brought about in other cities," and denied the statements in the resolution are "an empty scare tactic."

"Strikes do occur," Cunningham said, adding, "No labor leader can predict what a future union chief will advocate."

Cunningham listed numerous cities in other states where firemen have gone on strike, despite laws to the contrary.

However, fireman John Hye disputed that argument, saying accounts of city council members being arrested in other cities for such things as embezzling or child abuse did not lead him to believe Lubbock council members would participate in the same improprieties.

Cunningham noted pay for a journeyman fireman has increased 88.2 percent since 1973 while inflation has risen only 64.9 percent.

He said the average experience in the fire department is 14 years, higher than in the police or other city departments.

In the last six years, Cunningham said, turnover in the fire department has never surpassed 6.5 percent, while the turnover in other city departments ranged up to 30 percent.

"Union leaders may not recognize it, but we must be doing something right," Cunningham said.

Cunningham also countered statements by officials in the firemen's association that their organization is not a union, noting that it is affiliated with the AFL-CIO.

Although the Texas collective bargaining law does not require binding arbitration, Cunningham said he fears labor leaders will be successful in persuading the legislature to make the arbitration binding.

Whether firemen will get collective bargaining rights and a 15 percent raise will be decided by Lubbock voters Jan. 19.

One of the issues in the campaign for collective bargaining has been the gloves issued to firemen, and those attending the council meeting were given samples of the cotton gloves by association members.

"I would set them afire, but it's against the law," Brightwell said.

Television and newspaper advertisements in support of the collective bargaining issue show such a glove burning.

"It's against the law for us to speak to you about things like this — that's the reason we need collective bargaining," Brightwell said.

He said past requests for better gloves and safety equipment have gone unanswered from city officials.

Association President Luther Dean said it is because the firemen are organized that city officials refuse to discuss their demands.

"The reason we can't get a word in is because we have a little organization ya'll choose to call big labor or big union," Dean said.

"If we had the notion we were going to strike, we wouldn't want collective bargaining" because of its penalties against those who strike, he said.

Dean said the council could have headed off the collective bargaining election if it had agreed to a request two years ago to sit down and discuss "subjects of mutual interest" with association officials.

"If we had gotten an answer to that,

Grand Jury Returns 112 Indictments

By KAY BELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lester Earl Jackson, charged last week in connection with the decade's first homicide, was indicted Thursday for murder.

Jackson, 18, of 4315 E. 63rd St. is accused of shooting Nathaniel Roy Dec. 30. Roy, 37, died five days later at Health Sciences Center Hospital.

Jackson's father, Ester, 36, of 4315 E. 63rd St. also was indicted for an alleged aggravated assault which occurred shortly before Roy was shot in the head at a club in the 6200-block of Quetzel in the Yellowhouse Canyon addition.

The indictments against the Jacksons were among 112 true bills the 237th District Court grand jury returned.

The grand jury no-billed, or declined to indict, six persons.

Also indicted for murder was Lloyd Dale "Skipper" Ready. The 40-year-old Ready is charged with killing Severo Garza Jr. of Slaton in late 1976 by injecting Garza with a drug overdose.

Garza's body was found in the trunk of his car at a Slaton wrecking yard Dec. 13, 1976. The Slaton man was last seen alive in Lubbock on Dec. 1, 1976.

Carlos G. Garcia, 54, of San Antonio was indicted for the murder of Wenceslao Carrillo. The 43-year-old Carrillo was gunned down Dec. 12 outside of a North Avenue Q nightclub.

Rudy Mata, accused of the shooting death of Winston F. McDonald, also was indicted by the panel. Mata, 27, was charged last month with the murder but has eluded police capture. He is believed to be in Kansas.

McDonald's body was found March 8 in his small apartment at 2910 Ave. H. Authorities said he had been dead for at least a week before a neighbor made the discovery.

Bobby Ray Johnson, 18, of 4306 E. 63rd St. was indicted for attempted capital murder in connection with the Dec. 18 burglary and shooting at the home of a former police captain's widow. Two persons who allegedly helped Johnson with the break-in, Donita Sherrill, 17, of 102 Main St. and Calvin Ross, 21, of 3621 E. 15th St., also were indicted this morning on burglary of a habitation charges.

Michael Alan Moore, 19, of 5520 58th St., No. 219, was indicted on two charges stemming from an alleged incident in which he used the name of a dead man to open a bank account and forge checks. Moore was indicted for tampering with government records and forgery.

No-billed were Frank Herrera, age and address unavailable, who had been charged with attempted murder; Isaac Brown Jr., 21, of 2906 E. Auburn St., who had been charged with aggravated assault; Cynthia Hunter, 24, of 1104 52nd St., who had been charged with burglary of a habitation; Marvin Allen Walden, age and address unavailable, who had been charge with unauthorized use of a motor vehicle; Micky Clifton, 21, of 4303 19th St., who had been charged with theft; and Corina Gutierrez, age and address unavailable, who had been charged with theft.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Have you heard of a Viking funeral? I hadn't until two weeks ago. Since then I have thought of little else. Please give me some guidance. I'm all fogged up on this one.

My grandfather has told my brother and me that he wants a Viking funeral. We didn't know what it was until he explained. The deceased person is put in a boat. The boat is set on fire and shoved out to sea.

Grandpa lives in Minneapolis, and there is no sea anywhere around. He says he wants us to use Lake Harriet instead. It all sounds very sentimental, but the other members of the family insist it's a crazy idea, and they will not agree to it.

My brother and I think Grandpa should have his way. After all, when life has gone out of the body what difference does it make what is done with it? Please agree with us. It would make Grandpa happy to know you are on his side. It might also help persuade the other members of the family to grant that sweet old man his last wish. — Joe From Bismarck, N.D.

Dear Joe: Every state has its own burial laws, and I know of no state where a Viking funeral is legal. Break the news gently to Grandpa. It sounds as if he had his heart set on it.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I were married four years ago by a justice of the peace. No family was present. We were planning on a big wedding, but I became pregnant and we hurried it up some.

I refused to have a church wedding because I didn't want to embarrass my family. I also felt I didn't deserve a church wedding because of my mistake.

Now, four years and two kids later, we realize we missed out on something very special. We also realize we hurt the people we loved most.

My question is this: Would it be acceptable to have a wedding now to renew our marriage vows? Should we invite just family, or family and friends also?

We have a good marriage, a lovely home and beautiful children, but we both believe a church wedding would make us feel better about our life together. Are we crazy for wanting this now? Please tell us. — Something Missing

Dear Missing: I don't see anything crazy about a second wedding ceremony in a church, to renew your vows.

Do it, and invite anyone you please. (P.S. I assume, of course, that you and your husband are paying for this, and not your parents.)

• • •

Dear Ann Landers: Friends in their late 20s have a beautiful, healthy seven-month-old boy. The child's mother is a health nut. She refuses to have the child immunized against any disease. The woman insists that shots actually contain small amounts of the disease, and she doesn't want anything like that injected into her son's system.

Her husband goes along meekly. We can't get it through to her that she is doing the child a grave disservice. Maybe there are other well-meaning but misguided parents in your reading audience who need educating. Please say something to them. — Worried In The Midwest

Dear Worried: The "shots" do indeed contain "small amounts of the disease." The child's body then manufactures antibodies to fight the disease, and this is how immunity develops.

Parents who are afraid to vaccinate their children against polio, whooping cough, measles and typhoid need to be talked to by a pediatrician. Many schools will not permit a child to enroll unless there is proof of vaccination — a very good idea.

South opened an old-fashioned strong two bid on today's hand and got to game. However, the hand belonged to the opponents. East-West could easily make four spades, but South's strong two bid silenced them.

The defense quickly took two spade tricks. East won the second round with his ace and had to make a crucial decision about which suit to return. He couldn't return a spade because it would yield a ruff and sluff. If he led a diamond, West would capture South's king with his ace and West would be able to make a trump exit at the fourth trick. Declarer would eventually enter dummy with the heart seven and take a losing club finesse.

However, East couldn't tell which minor suit to play at trick three and chose a club. Declarer was now in control. He won with the king, postponing the finesse. Now he drew two rounds of trump and led the king of diamonds from his hand at the sixth trick. West won the ace and was end played. If he played a club it would be into declarer's tenace. A spade lead would give a ruff and sluff. Finally he led the diamond queen. Declarer ruffed the queen with a high trump and led his carefully preserved deuce of hearts to the seven in dummy.

AREA DEFINERS

Area rugs, folding screens, bookcases and etageres are subtle yet effective area definers that do not check the spatial flow, says Sue Young, a housing and home furnishings specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

Somehow I never figured tea drinkers as potential militants.

They always seem sort of proper. I've never seen tea drinkers pour their tea into a saucer and blow on it. And I cannot imagine a tea drinker sitting around a campfire gulping a mouthful of tea from a tin cup, gargling it, and then throwing the dregs from the cup into the fire.

But if my mail is to be believed (and there's a first for everything), tea drinkers are cuing up for a revolution. A tea sipper in Salisbury, Md., writes, "I'm sick of being discriminated against. We're never offered a second cup of tea like coffee drinkers, and on airplanes the tea drinkers are served LAST!

"And even in homes, the hostess serves coffee and when you ask for tea, I can see it written all over her face. She's hoping you'll say, 'Oh, don't bother.'"

From Santa Barbara, Calif., another tea tippler writes, "People have no consideration for us whatsoever. They never have lemon, yet they have cream and sugar for coffee drinkers. I've even been to meetings where they say, 'If you drink tea, bring your own tea bag.'"

Cooking expert James Beard has long carried the banner for tea drinkers. He calls them the downtrodden minority in this country and points out that while coffee drinkers enjoy their steaming cup in restaurants, the tea drinker must face the pitiful sight of a pot of lukewarm water and a solitary teabag by the side. Or even worse, the dejected bag floating in a cup of tepid water.

Perhaps the most debilitating plight of the tea drinker is called the soggy tea bag experience. What do you do with the bag when it has strained itself into your cup?

I think we must take tea drinkers seriously. With the way things have been going in this country lately, I wouldn't be surprised if there is a decline in mixed marriages (coffee vs. tea drinkers). Look for "Thank You For Not Dunking" signs in restaurants. Look for signs in department and specialty stores: "Tea Spoken Here." I am predicting classes at the Schick Center for people who want to get off coffee and into tea and warnings on coffee cans that say, "Coffee may stain your dentures permanently. Drink tea."

All I know is if Mrs. Olsen pitches to a born-again tea drinker, I wouldn't want to be responsible for her safety.

To Your Good Health

By PAUL DONOHUE, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am under a doctor's care for a torn retina in my right eye and am taking laser beam treatments. I ask a lot of questions but get few answers.

What causes the retina to tear?

Will there always be the streaks of light from the torn retina?

What are the large black spots with light behind them? Will they go away?

Does the light and spots mean I am injuring my eye worse?

Why does leaning forward bother me?

A word about the retina in general.

It is one of the most sensitive structures of the body. It is a layer of light-sensitive cells across the rear of the eyeball. The specialized cells allow us to distinguish light and color. Any disturbance of the retina creates all sorts of visual phenomena — your streaks and spots.

A torn (or detached) retina is a peeling away of this vision-sensitive structure from the layer of cells directly under it, much as wallpaper detaches from the wall. Often a small hole has formed in the retina, either from aging or because of an elongation of the eyeball, as in extreme nearsightedness. The fluid in the eye seeps into the hole and pulls the retina away. In other cases, a severe eye injury can cause the retina to become detached.

To answer your questions one at a time.

The streaks of light and black spots should disappear when the retina has been tacked back down by the laser beam. The laser acts like a welding gun in this procedure.

Leaning forward makes your symptoms worse because the retina floats farther away from its attachment. When you lie flat, the symptoms should lessen as the retina falls back into position.

You should report any change in your symptoms to your doctor promptly.

Dear Dr. Donohue: When I was 16 and was applying for an after-school soda fountain job it was discovered that I had a positive blood (Wassermann) test. As God is witness, I had no relations. I was given shots for this. I got married and had three healthy children.

I am now in my 50s and everytime I have a blood test it always shows as positive. My health is perfect, thank God. My children have had healthy children. Why does my blood always test positive? Please answer, as this has bothered me all these years. Thank you. I enjoy your column very much. — Anon.

Please shed this mental burden and accept the following answer.

The Wassermann test for syphilis can be positive for reasons other than syphilis. It can be positive for certain illnesses like lupus. It can be positive in completely healthy individuals for no known reason. A positive Wassermann test does not prove that a person has or has had syphilis. Newer, more specific, tests for the diagnosis of syphilis are available. Even these can be falsely positive.

Dear Dr. Donohue: When my five-year-old niece was visiting recently she kicked me very hard in my left breast with her heel. My breast was sore for weeks afterward and I am somewhat concerned as to whether or not a blow of that sort could produce any adverse medical consequences. — R.R.

• • •

If you mean will the sore area develop cancer, the answer is no.

Usually such an injury causes a deep bruise (hematoma) in the breast. That will disappear in time. Continued, prolonged pain, however, calls for an examination. Many times such an injury leads to detection of other problems not related to the injury itself.

• • •

Dear Dr. Donohue: In response to the person who had trouble with mouth dryness caused by medication: My doctor recommended lemon drops and they really solved my problem. — R.R.

To learn of the many factors involved in the treatment of hiatal hernia (which concerns the esophagus), write to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for a copy of his booklet, "Hiatal Hernia and Eight Ways to Combat It." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Women Choose Sensible Diet, Exercise

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (Special) — The trouble with exhaustive exercises and rigorous diets is that most women have discovered that they just couldn't live with them for long.

Instead, in greater numbers, they are adopting programs of sensible exercise and diet — ones which help them "shape up" and look, feel and perform at their best.

In a new brochure, "Home Stretch," the people from Chun King Oriental-style foods suggest six active lifestyle recipes and a moderate, eight-week exercise program that can be done in a few minutes a day, at home without apparatus.

The booklet's recipes, developed by Oriental cooking expert Anne Byrd, reflect the active lifestyle theme with names like Mixed Doubles Vegetables, Championship Chicken, Squash Warmup and Runner's Rice.

The exercises were developed by Alexander Jaskewicz, owner of the Alex and Walter Physical Fitness Studios located in New York and Los Angeles. Jaskewicz has made guest appearances on the Johnny Carson and Barbara Walters shows as well as other talk shows.

The booklet also has a calorie guide, an exercise chart, and eight coupons worth $2.85 for Chun King canned or frozen products.

The exercises include stretching and firming ones for the stomach and waistline, procedures for developing the bust and ways to limber up and relax.

Waistline, Stomach and Back Muscles

(1) With hands on hips, lean forward from waist about halfway to floor, very relaxed, (do not stiffen back) then stand up, six times.

(2) Lean straight over your hip to the right, head up, shoulders back, six times, and then repeat to the other side. Exhale down, inhale up. Don't move fast.

(3) Hands still on hips, circle torso from the hips around and around, three times in one direction, three times in the other.

For Stomach, Waist and Buttocks

Lie on back. Place hands under buttocks. Raise legs and head six inches from the floor. Move feet in a circular bicycling motion forward six times. Shift hips slightly and pedal to right side, then to left, six times each. Gradually build up to 15 times in each position. To avoid overloaded muscles, stop when there is too much strain. Work consistently and gradually and you will progress without pain.

For Arms, Chest, Muscles and Bust

Use the floor or wall. Stand about 2-1/2 to 3 feet from the wall. Place hands flat on wall, elbows straight, then bend elbows and lean into wall as far as possible (inhale) and back (exhale) . . . do not curl your back or hunch shoulders. You can use a desk as support for both hands to do this exercise or on the floor as pushups, but do not lift waist and hips from the floor. Do six to eight times.

For Limberness and Relaxation

(1) Stand with hands on hips, feet 10 inches apart. Breathe in slowly through nose; out slowly through mouth. Correct breathing relaxes muscles and nerves. Always start exercises with deep, slow in-and-out breathing.

(2) Legs two feet apart, raise arms and stretch, breathe deeply, fall forward from the waist slowly and limply, exhale slowly, hang loosely as far down as possible. Roll upwards slowly to normal standing posture. Repeat six times, hanging looser and further down each time. Do not force. Practice will do it.

To obtain a free copy of the "Home Stretch Booklet," mail in a coupon available in the Chun King section of your favorite grocery store with one proof-of-purchase from any canned or frozen Chun King product.

Bridal Courtesies

KARLA WEBB

Karla Webb, bride-elect of Sam Hickman, was recently honored with a miscellaneous bridal shower in the home of Mrs. J.L. Trammell. Cohosting the event were Mrs. Edward Raue, Mrs. Melvin Rogers, Mrs. Jimmy Blevins, and Mrs. Gene Stinnett.

Special guests were Mrs. Doyle Webb, mother of the bride-elect, and Mrs. Clarence Hickman, mother of the future bridegroom.

The couple were also honored with a block bridal shower in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Griffin. Cohosting the event were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Young.

The couple plans to be married Feb. 2 in Crestview Assembly of God Church.

JUDY WHITSON

Judy Whitson, bride-elect of Randy Pool, was honored with a lingerie shower recently at the party room of First Federal Savings and Loan. Hosting the event was Mrs. Elden Hixson.

Special guest was Carol Whitson, mother of the bride.

The couple plans to be married Jan. 19 in Hodges Chapel of First Christian Church.

TWO LAST SHOTS

LIMOGES, France (WNS) — Anne Faucher, 28, became so frightened at her husband's behavior when he came home drunk that she shot him in the head. "Miracle of miracles, he did not die, and the shock healed him of alcoholism and nervous depression," she testified. But she was taken to prison. Christian Faucher, 31, asked for her release so that she could take care of their two children. In court, doctors testified to the total healing of Faucher from alcoholism and asked for the mother's release so that she could take care of her family. The jury hastily agreed.

Hints From Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Recently, you mentioned in your column that "something" should be kept on top of the stove in case of a grease fire.

Just the other day, a small grease fire started in the broiler. I thought about your article, but couldn't for the life of me remember what that "something" was.

Please let me know so I'll be ready for the next emergency. — Mrs. Walters

Use baking soda, luv! Just the plain old kind that comes in a box. It's one of the best fire extinguishing agents found in a kitchen, says our friendly fire marshal.

There's a technical reason for this — baking soda produces carbon dioxide gas which consumes the oxygen, thus extinguishing a fire.

The main thing to remember is to keep that box of baking soda handy at all times.

If the appearance of a baking soda box sitting on the stove bothers you, put the soda in a zingier container.

Cover a tubular potato chip can with adhesive-backed paper and fill it with baking soda. But mark it plainly so the whole family knows what it is.

Should a small fire occur, snap off the plastic lid and shake the soda on the flames as quickly as you can.

While baking soda is great in an emergency, it's not a bad idea to keep a small fire extinguisher in the house, especially in the kitchen.

Be sure the extinguisher is in the ABC class, which simply means it will put out all kinds of fires, grease included.

And, be sure to have it inspected once a year to see that it is in proper working order. (The cost for this is very nominal.)

While any ounce of fire prevention is worth 10 pounds of cure, it goes without saying that I hope you never need an ounce of baking soda — or an ounce of any cure — for household hazards. See you tomorrow! — Heloise

PETS AND PILLS

DEAR HELOISE:

During a recent visit to the veterinarian, I picked up a hint for dog lovers.

We had tried to give our little hound a pill but she didn't want to take it.

We tried tossing the pill far back in her throat, holding her jaw shut, stroking her throat, etc., but the minute we let go, back came the pill.

The vet began repeating the procedure of placing the pill in her throat — but then he blew on her nose.

Gulp! The pill went down before she knew it. — Celin Schoen

DEAR HELOISE:

Adds flavor too. — Mrs. Bob McPhie

DEAR HELOISE:

My husband saw me trying to find the spool of thread I wanted midst the maze in my spool box and asked if he might have the box for a moment.

In a short time he brought it back — but it had a completely different look.

He had rewound every spool, taping each thread end with a bit of sticky tape.

Now, it is so much easier to locate the color thread I want and, thanks to my husband, my thread box is really neat. — M.M. Rasler

Pure, Simple Lines Make Pine Shaker Stool Beautiful, Useful

When America was a young and struggling country, the fine art of furniture making — along with many other crafts — was a matter of necessity. There were no retail stores, department stores or discount warehouses. Using the simplest of tools, the early Americans crafted furniture that we now appreciate as pure art.

Today there are fine reproductions of the furniture of the New World settlers. Because it was designed to be practical and to fit into multi-functional rooms, that simple pine and maple furniture works just as well in our contemporary lifestyles.

Often lacking the proper materials, our pioneer ancestors concocted new ways to create what they so sorely needed. It is here we witness the true spirit of their times. For example, although lacking the necessary adhesives, the colonists were still able to fashion sturdy chairs by combining seasoned and unseasoned wood. The chair legs were formed from unseasoned wood and as they dried with time, they gripped the cross bars cut from dried or seasoned wood.

Recently many of us have begun to look to the simple ways of the past for a feeling of stability and security. We can prepare our own foods, sew our own clothes and attempt to fill our homes with the artifacts of the past; the arts, crafts and furnishings that bring to mind those earlier times. Whether we haunt the antique and flea markets or copy the old arts with our own handwork, we endeavor to achieve a real feeling for the ingenuity and resourcefulness that helped build this country.

The pure and simple lines of this pine shaker stool make it as beautiful and useful today as it was a century and a half ago. Contemporary crafters will delight in making and adapting this lovely stool to their home.

The kit comes complete with ready-to-assemble hardwood parts, glue, weaving needle and golden-tan heathered Super Cord for the top. Kit also includes assembly and weaving instructions for the 11½x12¾-inch Shaker stool. You add your choice of stain or paint.

For Shaker stool, order kit no. 11365 for $17.99 plus $1.95 for postage and handling. Creative Home Crafts is required to pay and collect sales tax in Texas.

Tole Painting Can Add Brightness To Objects

Just a lot of fun and relaxation! Early American settlers used to decorate and protect the tin finish of trays, pitchers, candlesticks and the like with paint. This kept the raw tinware from rusting and preserved the metal. Today you can add the same brightness to metal and wood objects in your own home for decoration and enjoyment...without concern for preserving the metal.

Our instruction booklet is complete with full-size traceable patterns, easy-to-follow step-by-step directions and photos, plus a list of materials for each project. Tole projects discussed in detail include a milk can, wood-mirror planter, wooden stool, cookie jar lid, plastic headbands, a recipe box and a clay pot.

Tools used in tole painting are acrylic paints, brushes, tracing carbon and spray sealants. The instructions tell you how to prepare your piece for painting and there is even special note given to antiquing your tole work.

To obtain Tole Painting Made Easy, Instruction Guide No. U104, send $3.50 (includes first class postage & handling) by check or money order:

Simulated Shuttle Test Rescheduled

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — More technical problems delayed a scheduled simulated launch of the Space Shuttle Columbia on Thursday after technicians at Kennedy Space Center worked all day to correct a host of minor problems.

The Columbia had been scheduled for a mock blast-off early Thursday morning, but the test was scrubbed with just over four minutes left in the countdown when computers detected a problem and automatically shut down.

A second attempt was scheduled for 7 p.m., but was delayed when a flight computer on the spacecraft shut down again, said spokesman Rocky Raub.

Prime Shuttle crew members John Young and Navy Cmdr. Robert Crippen wore bulky pressurized space suits for the morning test in the orbiter, but officials said they would not wear the suits when the test resumed.

Oriental Stamps Proclaim 'Year Of Monkey'

By SYD KRONISH
Associated Press Writer

In the Orient, 1980 is labeled "The Year of the Monkey" and many countries in that area will be issuing stamps for the occasion. The first to be released is from the Republic of China of Taiwan. There are two stamps in the set of identical design featuring a wild monkey in a tree.

According to the World Wide Philatelic Agency, these stamps are labeled "New Year's Greetings Postage Stamps" to hail the special year. Chinese tradition designates years in association with 12 animals in a repetitive cycle. The year 1979 was the year of the sheep.

Also issued by the Republic of China — to ring out the old year — was a special stamp honoring Sir Rowland Hill on his centenary. Hill, recognized as the father of the modern postage stamp, received philatelic tribute from many nations during 1979. The new adhesive from Taiwan bears a portrait of Hill and a miniature reproduction of the first postage stamp, the British "Penny Black" issued in 1840 and designed by Sir Rowland.

The stamps are available at your local dealer or stamp department.

The U.S. Postal Service will be making available nine pictorial cancellations calling attention to the 1980 Winter Olympic Games when the event starts in February at Lake Placid, N.Y.

Nine temporary postal stations are being established to provide service during the Games and a unique cancellation has been authorized for use at each station. Eight of the stations will begin operation on Feb. 13 to coincide with the opening ceremony.

The eight stations are: The Skating Oval, Whiteface Mountain, Mount Van Hoevenberg, Intervale, Olympic Arena, Olympic Village, Olympic Torch and Winter Olympic Stations. The ninth will be in operation only on Feb. 24 on the closing day. It is called "The Sarajevo '84 Station" in recognition of the 1984 Winter Olympics to be held in Sarajevo, Yugoslavia.

The USPS says that collectors sending covers to be cancelled must affix their own stamps. The Lake Placid Post Office will not affix stamps. All covers must be sent prior to Feb. 13.

Separate post office boxes have been designed for each pictorial cancellation for each day. Orders should be addressed to: Olympic Cancellations, Post Office Box (according to location), Lake Placid, NY 12215.

For Intervale, the PO Box numbers are E-13, E-14, E-15, E-16, E-17, E-18, E-19, E-20, E-21, E-22, E-23. For the Olympic Arena, the PO Box numbers are F-13, F-14, F-15, F-16, F-17, F-18, F-19, F-20, F-21, F-22, F-23, F-24. For the Olympic Village, just write "G" followed by the date of cancellation from Feb. 13 through 24. For the Winter Olympic Station, write "H" followed by the dates of cancellation. For Sarajevo '84, send to Box J-24 for the closing ceremony on Feb. 24.

The International Stamp Collectors Society has made it easier to get Olympic covers by preparing nine commemorative covers. Each will be highlighted by the pictorial cancellation from one of the U.S. postal stations serving the Olympic area on a temporary basis. Four different cachets have been created for the collection.

All covers will contain the U.S. 15-cent issue commemorating the Lake Placid extravaganza. One cachet honors the 1980 Summer Olympics, two commemorate the 1980 Winter Games and the fourth focuses on "TV Coverage" of the Games.

The complete set costs $14.95. Send to: International Stamp Collectors Society, 6253 Hollywood Blvd., Hollywood, CA, 90028.

Tub Installation Creates Space

By ANDY LANG
Associated Press Writer

Q. — We moved into a very old house recently. The back rim of the bathtub is separated from the ceramic tile on the wall, not much but enough to be noticeable. What caused this, and is there anything that can be done about it?

A. — According to American Standard Association specifications, tub hangers or special installation hooks must be used in certain types of tub installations. When such hangers are not used — and they were not required many years ago — drying out of the floor joists causes the tub to settle just a bit, creating the space you mentioned. The fault, therefore, lies in the tub installation and has nothing to do with the tiles. Dig out all the caulking or cracked grout between the tub and tiles and start afresh. Make sure the joint is thoroughly cleaned and dry, then recaulk. Many good, non-shrinkable new caulks are on the market and are available in caulking tubes.

Q. — What does the designation "closed coat" mean on the label around a package of sandpaper?

A. — Close-coated sandpaper means the mineral particles on the backing are close together. This type of paper is used for most general sanding. An open coating means the particles on the backing are spaced far apart. This allows the sanded material to fall free without clogging the sandpaper which can therefore be used for removing paint or working on old finishes or gummy surfaces.

Q. — I used a wood filler on some oak furniture a few years ago and got a good result, but I can't remember now whether I used a sealer before putting on the varnish. Is a sealer necessary?

A. — Yes. It prevents the possibility of the finishing material, varnish or anything else, dislodging the filler from the wood pores. The sealer can be shellac or any other sealer recommended by your dealer after you explain to him exactly how it is to be used. It is vital that the filler be 100 percent dry before applying the sealer. To be certain of this, allow at least twice as much time for the drying as recommended. Thus, if the label on the can of paste filler says it is the 12-hour drying type, wait 24 hours before putting on the sealer. When the sealer is dry, sand it with a very fine grade of sandpaper, using a light touch.

WHICH IS WHICH?
Any could be elegant, flawless, expensive diamonds. But one or more — or all — could be elegant, flawless diamond simulants from The Diamontrigue Collection.
THE DIFFERENCE LIES BEYOND THE BEAUTY
As with diamonds, diamond simulants are offered in many grades and prices. Fashioned from only first quality crystalline formations, Diamontrigue brings you the cut, color, depth and clarity of fine diamonds — without the security worries and insurance payments you associate with natural diamonds — but with the knowledge you have purchased the finest, most expensive diamond simulation offered.
Without a doubt, Diamontrigue is the diamond simulation discovery of the century.
Yours to enjoy now in rings, earrings, necklaces, bracelets, tie tacs and stick pins. Wear them with confidence, no matter the occasion or attire. Set in genuine 14 Karat yellow or white gold, The Diamontrigue Collection puts the accent on you.
SO WHICH IS WHICH?

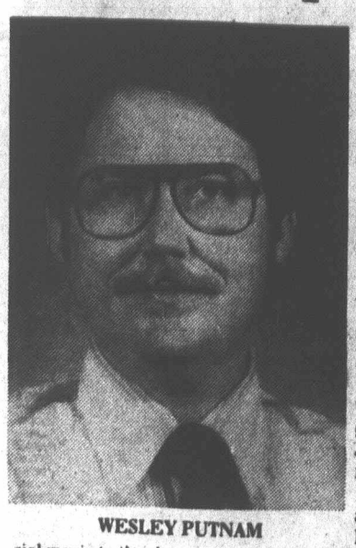
Newcomer To Boost KLLL Opry Roster



WESLEY PUTNAM

Gospel singer Wesley Putnam will join the roster of newcomers when the curtain goes up on the KLLL West Texas Saturday Night Opry at 8 p.m. Saturday in the Lubbock Municipal Auditorium.

Putman will make his first appearance of the Opry along with other first-timers Charles Terry, Rex Thomas and 12-year-old Michele Mason.

Opry favorites Cecil Caldwell, Jim Fullingim, Don Caldwell, Tommie Anderson and David House also will highlight the show, which is co-sponsored by Don Caldwell Studios.

In addition, special appearances will be made by Southplains Bluegrass, Curley Lawler and Buzz and Jewette James, featuring Bob Wills music.

The Opry Band also will perform and Opry regulars — The Maines Brothers — will add their own special music to the show.

KLLL's Steve Sever will serve as master of ceremonies on tonight's stage.

Putnam was ordained as a minister in the United Methodist Church in 1978 and currently is serving as pastor of the First Methodist Church in Hale Center. With his father also in the ministry and his childhood surrounded by gospel music, Putnam hardly could avoid dedicating his own life to religious ministry and his voice to spreading the gospel. As the second oldest of seven brothers and two sisters, Putnam and his family were deeply dedicated to spiritual music.

Four of the brothers "grew up singing" Putnam said, and formed a quartet, sang in church and at every other chance they got.

Putnam said most of the singing was almost exclusively for church functions while his family lived in Louisiana, early in his life. Now, as Putnam has embraced his own ministry, his singing still encompasses the realm of the church and religion.

I'm really comfortable using music the way I do," said Putnam. "I use it quite a bit in my ministry. Three or four times a year I sing a sermon where I put music together with narration to tell a story, to deal with some part of the Christian faith, especially Christmas and Easter. Also, I go out and do revival singing about five or six times a year and concerts as they come up. It kind of complements my ministry; it's the thing I enjoy."

Putnam recently released an album, produced at Caldwell Studios, entitled "The Gift." Several of the songs are being played in the Lubbock area and he will be singing at least one of the songs he wrote for the Opry.

Putnam said he sees the Opry as an opportunity for sharing his faith in God with people he may not reach in other ways, "and do it in such a way that it's not going to threaten them or me," he said.

Putnam just returned from appearing in song at the National Congress on Evangelism in Tulsa on the campus of Oral Roberts University. Putnam said between four and five thousand persons attended the conference which included appearances by Oral Roberts and Billy Graham.

Low-Income Housing Proposals Presented

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock Housing Authority board members Thursday heard presentations from four developers on the proposed design and construction of 132 low-income housing units in west and southwest Lubbock.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development has recommended development of the housing and allocated funding for the project which will be implemented pending HUD approval of a development proposal.

The Housing Authority board will evaluate the proposals and send its recommendations to the regional HUD office in Dallas but the government agency will have final approval.

Most of the proposals provide for scattered sites of housing rather than a single location. Director D.C. Fair said HUD recommends breaking up the units into several locations to prevent an impacted area of such federal housing. He added that the Housing Authority also prefers that system of locating units.

Firms presenting their proposals were SCB Corporation out of Georgetown, Hunt Building Corporation from El Paso, Vivienda Development Corporation of El Paso and Old Glory Corporation of Lubbock (as a joint venture) and Temple Management, based in Temple.

SCB spokesmen suggested three separate sites at 56th Street and Chicago Avenue, 70th Street and Avenue P (south of Lowrey Field) and Frankfurt Avenue and 16th Street.

All three sites, which total 21 acres, already are zoned for apartments, the corporation spokesmen said.

Hunt Building Corporation proposed one site west of 19th Street and Loop 289 at Iola Avenue that would contain all the units along with four other sites that could be combined in several different ways to get a total of 132 units.

The other sites were at Frankford Avenue and 16th Street, LaSalle Avenue and 34th Street, 40th Street between Frankfurt Avenue and Englewood Avenue and 34th Street and Bangor Avenue.

Local developer Ken Flagg who represents Vivienda and Old Glory, said that the firm's proposals include locations at Fourth Street and Elkhart Avenue, 34th Steet between Milwaukee and LaSalle avenues and Avenue X and 74th Street.

Temple Management, as represented by the Lubbock-based architectural firm of Whitaker and Hall, proposed a site for all units at 24th Street and Frankford Avenue with alternate locations at 53rd Street and Chicago and at an area between 51st and 52nd streets and between Avenues L and M that could be combined with just one half of the site at 24th and Frankford.

Cost of the proposals ranged from a low of $4.9 million for the one site suggested by Hunt, to $6 million estimated by Temple.

The units would include one, two, three and four bedroom apartments or duplexes. Most proposals include play areas and basketball courts.

Several developers also provided for porches for each unit, while Hunt proposed a picnic area as well. Vivienda and Old Glory designed a carport for each unit.

Provisions were made in the plans for modifications for the handicapped in some units should the board or HUD decide to make such features available. Several developers said the cost of such conversions would be minimal.

Fair and architectural advisor to the board Ed Stiles told members that the main consideration should be site location and architectural features rather than cost.

Board member Vernon Behner questioned the need for additional housing units in the city when the existing housing projects have numerous vacancies.

Fair said the other projects are not at capacity because of the continued modernization program which has prevented some occupancy and because of the location of the units.

"You're not going to get Anglos and Chicanos in the projects on this side of town," Fair said.

The director cited Greenfair Manor as a particular problem because of its reputation as a high crime area. But security has been beefed up at that location and maintenance and upkeep has improved.

"I feel...as soon as we get some of the stigma off Greenfair we feel certain we'll be able to lease up there," Fair said. He added that as rents, particularly in east Lubbock, continue to rise, more residents will look to Greenfair for housing.

The recommendations on the developers' proposals are due at the HUD regional office on Jan. 14 and Housing Authority members hope to get a decision from the agency in February.

Building will begin approximately one month after contract negotiations and completion will take anywhere from 12 to 20 months, depending on the plans of the particular developer.

In other business, the board re-elected Cathy Morton as chairman and elected Alfred Caviel as vice chairman.

ALLIANCE SUPPORTER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States should support a renewed military alliance of Middle East nations instead of joining China to stop Soviet expansion in Afghanistan, says Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa. "A treaty organization including countries such as Egypt, Oman, Israel, Saudi Arabia, Pakistan and Somalia would be a better solution than a military alliance between the so-called great powers," Heinz said. The senator also said he favored U.S. arms sales to Pakistan and Afghan rebels fighting Soviet forces.

Fireman Bargaining Rejected By Council

we wouldn't be here asking for a very weak collective bargaining law," Dean said.

Council member Carolyn Jordan seemed to sum up the feelings of other council members when she said she feels collective bargaining could open the door to strikes and "I don't think there's a place for strikes in public employment."

Bud Aderton made the motion to approve the resolution, and it was seconded by Bill McAlister.

While at City Hall, many of the firemen and their families used the opportunity to vote absentee.

Forty-four absentee ballots were cast in the City Secretary's office Thursday, more than on any previous day, bringing the vote total to 181.

Madeira Big Game Fishing Outstanding

Madeira, that speIndid volcanic island erupting out of the bluest waters imaginable in the Atlantic Ocean a few hundred miles south of Portugal and west of the African coast, is noted as a year-around tourist paradise, with consistent temperatures around 70-75 degrees. For several centuries, it has attracted discriminating English and European clientele looking for sunshine and a warmer climate.

However, Madeira is still a relatively undiscovered destination for the American traveler, even though there are a multitude of activities to fulfill the needs of any vacationer.

There are championship golf courses, tennis facilities, cultural and shopping tours, a gaming casino and tours to the vineyards that produce the world-famous wines of Madeira.

TAP, the Airline of Portugal, has developed a number of "TAP-happy" tour programs to Madeira to interest any American looking for an inviting European destination. Among these programs is "Big Game Fishing in Madeira."

areas. It is unquestionably a paradise. On any given day, giant game fish traveling the sea routes of Vasco de Gama and Henry the Navigator centuries past can be the prize... the triumphant trophy from Neptune's depths.

Sportsmen from throughout the world come to this idyllic isle in pursuit of blue marlin, long tail tuna, swordfish, Atlantic bigeye tuna and blue sharks. Deep sea fishing in the waters off of Madeira is the best of any European seas.

On their arrival in Madeira, the deep sea hunters decided to try their skills in combating bigeye tuna, a magnificent creature that is rare sport to catch on rod and reel.

These fish, generally inhabitating depths in the neighborhood of 1,000 feet, occasionally rise to the top to feed on Spanish mackerel. Seeing the large tuna boiling out of the deep blue is an astounding sight. Crashing upward and churning the velvet seas into a turmoil of white water as they pursue their feed is a captivating sight for any mariner.

After a futile day of trolling sophisticated lures with iridescent plastic skirts from modern international reels, the angling experts, despite their masterful techniques and combined experience, couldn't land even a nibble.

Back on shore that evening, there was a skull session among the group during which it was decided that the following day a different approach and method of fishing would have to be taken.

Fishing from two charter boats with live Spanish mackerel, kept healthy in a live fish well, the chagrined sportsmen finally hooked into a giant bigeye tuna. At that moment, Paul Neff had what he describes as "the misfortune of being near the rod when a tuna hit."

Quite by accident, Neff suddenly found himself on the other end of a screaming 80-pound-test reel. The monster fish almost bent the rod in half as it dived.

"I guess I grabbed it on impulse," Neff moaned later. He fought the fish for an hour and ten minutes before the crew on the charter could gaff the powerful creature. Every muscle in Neff's body ached, but the triumph was worth it: he landed an Atlantic bigeye tuna that weighed 332 pounds, a European record for 80-pound test line and only a few pounds off the world mark.

"There's no question that world record fish can be caught in Madeira," Al Ristori said later that evening back at the Hotel Dom Pedro in Machico. "The fish are here; with skilled charter boat crews and a little luck they can be taken."

Traveling to these waters is simple. A sportsman from the United States can fly via TAP to Lisbon, with a connecting TAP flight to Funchal, Madeira, only 90 minutes away from mainland Portugal.

In Funchal or in Machico, there are many deluxe hotels with beautiful views of the Atlantic. Accommodations for charter boats and operators can be arranged by the hotel representative.

For detailed information on "TAP-happy" tours to Madeira, travel arrangements and hotel accommodations, contact your local travel agent.

MADEIRA TROPHY — A group of American fishing experts struggles to secure a tuna off the Portuguese island of Madeira. The creature weighed 332 pounds and shattered the European record for a tuna catch on 80-pound test line. Moreover, it was only a few pounds off the world mark.

Yellowstone National Park's Winter Panoramas Exciting

Suddenly it's winter in Yellowstone National Park. The rolling country seems locked in ice and snow. The silence rings.

The Yellowstone winter fantasyland is alive for the visitor on cross-country skis, on a snowmobile or in a snowcoach.

Cross-country ski trails traverse the park. There are snowshoe hikes for exploring the geyser basins. Both skis and snowshoes may be rented. Guides are available.

Snowmobilers find welcoming roads to explore here. There are more than 150 miles of groomed roads, making Yellowstone one of the largest areas in the country with trails maintained for snowmobiles. Gas and oil are available at Old Faithful Snow Lodge and Canyon Village, along with emergency repairs. The Four Seasons Snack Shop at Old Faithful caters especially to snowmobilers.

Many people prefer to explore the park in heated snowcoaches, unique tracked vehicles for 10 passengers and equipped with windows and roof "hatches" that are perfect for photo buffs.

And what discoveries await Yellowstone's winter adventurers! Snowfields, hot pools, geysers and steaming springs combine to produce an uncanny vision straight from the pages of science fiction. The park teems with wildlife that thrives in winter as well as summer. Actually, only the bears sleep.

Elk, deer and bison graze the perimeters of hot springs, seeking there the grass that is exposed where geothermal heat has melted the snow away. Hot springs flowing into icy rivers are insurance against the cold, providing pools of ice-free and warmed water, homes for waterfowl wintering in the park.

TWA Services, the Yellowstone National Park concessionaire, offers a variety of winter packages that present both the seasoned explorer and the novice with a convenient schedule of recreation. There's something for every kind of winter adventurer. Room and cabin accommodations are available in the park at Old Faithful Snow Lodge and Cabins near the famous geyser.

There's easy access to Yellowstone National Park in the winter. Regularly scheduled airlines fly into Bozeman, Montana and Jackson, Wyo. Tours depart West Yellowstone and Jackson. Motorcoach transportation is available through the beautiful Gallatin Canyon from Bozeman to West Yellowstone.

For more information on Yellowstone's winter season, write TWA Services, Room 961, Yellowstone National Park, Wyoming 82190.

Gold Miners Survive 13 Days Without Food

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Two gold miners stranded in the wilderness when their kayak was crushed during a storm have been rescued after 13 days with no food.

Roger Lewis, 31, and Denise Harris, 20, his fiancee, said they survived by wrapping a wolf Lewis shot around their feet for warmth.

They shot their dog for food but were unable to bring themselves to eat the raw carcass.

They were picked up by a Coast Guard helicopter about 5 p.m. Wednesday near Gore Point 150 miles south of Anchorage, after a pilot spotted an SOS signal Lewis made of spruce boughs in the snow.

"We were never into God before all of this," Lewis said. "It's a miracle. Somehow, that airplane spotted us after all hope seemed to be gone."

The couple's ordeal began on Dec. 16 when they decided to leave a gold mine where they had been testing ore samples near Surprise Bay on the southern tip of the Kenai Peninsula.

Lewis said they left the area in a kayak, but bad weather forced them to shore at Gore Point on Dec. 22. The kayak was crushed by rough waves the following day, Lewis' birthday. Waves also destroyed most of their food and supplies.

Lewis said the couple and their dog began marching through thick snow along steep cliffs in search of a mining road that would take them to Seldovia on the western side of the peninsula. Lewis said they lost their remaining food and blankets the first day out.

"We started praying every night," Lewis said.

Skelton Biography Reveals Bizarre Tales Of Comedian

By JERRY BUCK

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Arthur Marx said that when he started his biography of Red Skelton he thought it would be "a nice little tale about a comedian who said, 'God bless,' at the end of his show."

Instead, Marx said he began to hear stories about a sad and lonely man who trusted no one and kept himself remote from the world. If someone offended him, he held a ceremony in his backyard and mentally buried that person.

"I taped two hours with Seymour Berns, his former producer and director, and I couldn't believe some of the stuff," said Marx. 'Like his climbing up a tree with a shotgun the day he was to do a show. Berntold me he was always wanting off the show. He always had a forbidden word he didn't want any jokes about."

Marx's new book, "Red Skelton," does contain a number of bizarre episodes, but it is not a hatchet job. It is also an affectionate tribute to a gifted comedian. It traces Skelton's rise from poverty in Indiana, through his early struggles to his breakthrough in radio and movies.

Skelton was on television from 1951 to 1971, first on NBC, then on CBS. He ended his long tenure on TV in August 1971 after a return to NBC.

A skilled pantomimist, he had a "Silent Spot" on every television show. But he is more famous for such expressions as "I Dood it" and the "mean widdle kid" and such characters as Freddie the Freeloader, San Fernando Red, Cauliflower McPugg and Clem Kadiddlehopper.

Marx, head writer for the CBS series "Alice," has written six other books, including two about his father, Groucho Marx. He's also written a number of plays and movies.

"Doing these books is like a detective story," he said. "One person leads you to another and you find out things you never knew before. I never knew that he had been a master of ceremonies at walkathons. That had never come out before.

"Another interesting thing I found doing the interviews — everyone told me not to do a whitewash. They said tell the truth. Usually, people want you to go easy. I was lucky finding the key people in his life."

Marx said he did not hear from Skelton until excerpts from the book were published in a newspaper. His lawyers wrote and asked that the words "an unauthorized biography" be put on the cover.

"Red has been going around the country doing shows and telling people not to buy the book," Marx said. "It seems to be sending a lot of people out to buy it. Red is a kind of ostrich. He doesn't want to ever admit to anything in his life that was less than perfect."

Reaction to Marx's earlier books has been mixed.

"My father was a fairly reasonable fellow," he said. "He gave me a little help about the old days when I was writing 'Life With Groucho.' After the Saturday Evening Post bought it, I felt it was safe to show it to him. He wanted to change everything.

"I said I couldn't change it because it was already sold to the Post. He said if I didn't, he'd sue me. I had the Post send him two sets of galleys and let him make the changes he wanted. Then I threw them away."

Tech To Sponsor 'University Day'

Texas Tech will sponsor its fifth annual University Day for high school students Feb. 29. Day-long activities include entertainment, campus tours, advisement sessions with faculty and counselors, and departmental and college visits.

University Day is designed for prospective students of higher education who want to get acquainted with the university before making a final choice of where he or she will attend college.

For additional information regarding Texas Tech University Day, students should contact their high school counselors or John Edwards, Office of New Student Relations, Room 133 Doak Hall, Texas Tech University, Lubbock, 79409 (806) 742-1480.

Soviet Submarine Said To Be In China Sea

TOKYO (AP) — A diesel-powered Soviet patrol submarine was reported Thursday cruising southward in the East China Sea.

A Japanese defense spokesman said the "Whiskey" class submarine was spotted Wednesday by a Japanese naval vessel while cruising on the surface in Korea Strait.

The Soviet vessel, similar to ones built after World War II, is the same type that has been given to China, Egypt and five other countries, the spokesman said.

New Movie Portrays Lives Of 'Beat Generation' Progenitors

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "I don't think we did anything wrong," says Sissy Spacek as Carolyn Cassady in the new film "Heart Beat." "We just did it first."

Mrs. Cassady is the surviving member of a triumvirate that has become part of the folklore of mid-century America. The others were her husband, Neal Cassady, who is portrayed by Nick Nolte in the movie, and Jack Kerouac, who is played by John Heard.

Those who matured in the 1950s don't need to be told who those figures were. Kerouac's free-wheeling prose captured the spirit of a generation while appalling the literary establishment (Truman Capote: "That's not writing; it's typing.")

"Heart Beat" portrays the wild times and unhappy ends of these two progenitors of the Beat Generation. Which, of course, spawned the counter-culture revolution of the 1960s.

The Orion-Warner Brothers film probably wouldn't have been made except for the star presence of Nick Nolte, an actor who refuses to sell out for sure-fire projects.

"Sure, it was a hard little film to make," Nolte admitted as he fingered a bottle of beer in an Orion office at the Burbank studios. "It's not easy to take a hunk of history and portray the development of a whole subculturen meanwhile trying to do an ensemble piece without spotlighting any one of the three performers ..."

"Yes, it would be easy just to go for the big-money movie. But that's not too exciting, you know. The exciting part is what connects with art. I have tried to resist the pressures of commerce in order to do the things I believe. I can be very bad (as an actor) when there is no connection to art.

"Then I have to fabricate energy, and the end product never works. Not only is it not fun to work under such circumstances, it hurts. You know all along that you are fooling yourself."

Nolte followed his sensational success in the ABC miniseries "Rich Man, Poor Man" with an obviously commercial movie, "The Deep."

"I will probably always regret doing 'The Deep,'" he admitted. "Although it was successful, the emotional regret will remain. Still, there was a good aspect. Without 'The Deep,' I never could have made 'North Dallas Forty.'"

Nolte followed the undersea adventure with "Who'll Stop The Rain?" an impressive underrated film that was the first to deal with the aftermath of the Vietnam War. Then "North Dallas Forty," not just another jock movie but a hard look at the evils of pro football.

"Heart Beat," written and directed by newcomer John Byrum, interested Nolte from the beginning.

"I graduated from high school in 1959 and I read 'On The Road' when it first came out," the actor recalled. "Growing up in the Midwest, I had no fantasy to pattern my life after. I found it fascinating to read about a guy who would just jump in a car and go. I did it myself, traveling all over the country."

Nolte talked with those who had known Cassady and read about his early life in Denver. "Unlike Kerouac and others who had come from middle-class backgrounds, Cassady came from the depths of society. He lived on skid row with his father, who was a wino."

Despite all the researcch, "Heart Beat" does not pretend to be a documentary about the founders of the Beat Generation. Nolte told of Carolyn Kassady's confusion after witnessing a preview in Denver. "There is no way I can look at the film and incorporate it into real life."

"Of course not," Nolte said. "We romanticized the hell out of it."

Carter Due Criticism, Tower Believes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A leading Senate Republican indicated Thursday that President Carter will face GOP criticism after Congress reconvenes Jan. 22 for his handling of the crises in Iran and Afghanistan.

"I think the bipartisan phalanx of support was illusory in the first place," Sen. John Tower of Texas, chairman of the Republican Policy Committee, told reporters. "It was a matter of not politically exploiting a delicate situation."

He said he had "serious reservations" about the grain embargo and thought it would make more sense to embargo all industrial imports rather than just high technology items.

Musician On Trial For Murder To Marry Defense Witness

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — A rock musician, who went on trial Thursday for murdering his 18-year-old wife and then hauling her dismembered body across the country in a wooden box, plans to marry one of the defense witnesses.

Gary Lynn Webster, 33, who is charged with strangling his bride of four months, Betty, in March 1977, applied for a marriage license with Linda Bingham, of Dallas, earlier this week.

Mrs. Bingham, a divorcee, is listed as a defense witness. According to testimony in a pre-trial hearing, she was with Webster when he was arrested last year in Casper, Wyo.

Webster, who formerly taught music at a South Carolina high school, was at a Jacksonville Beach motel playing with a band at the time of his wife's death. Police believe she was killed in the Webster's apartment.

The mummified body was discovered in the sealed wooden box two years later in a mini-warehouse at Garland. The warehouse manager emptied the storage stall when Webster fell seven months behind in his rental payments.

The manager detected a foul odor and called police, who opened the sealed box and found another box inside containing a young woman's body wrapped in sheets and plastic bags. The legs below the knees were cut off as well as the arms at the elbows.

Webster was traced to a hotel in Casper, where he was playing with a rock band. He was arrested last July 18 and taken to Texas. On Aug. 30, he was transferred back to Jacksonville to stand trial.

Oscar-Winning Composer Named New Conductor Of Boston Pops

NAMED TO POPS — Composer John Williams holds two Grammy awards presented to him in Los Angeles in February 1979, which he won for best instrumental composition. Williams was named conductor of the Boston Pops orchestra Thursday, succeeding Arthur Fiedler, who died last July. (AP Laserphoto)

BOSTON (AP) — John Williams, a prolific jack-of-all-trades who wrote the scores for the movies "Star Wars" and "Jaws," is the new conductor of the Boston Pops, a job held by the late Arthur Fiedler for half a century.

His appointment was announced Thursday by the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Fiedler died last July at age 84.

Williams, 47, has won three Academy Awards and two Emmys. He has conducted or composed the music for more than 50 films and has also written classical music.

He was in London, England, working on "Star Wars II" when the announcement was made by Thomas W. Morris, general manager of the Boston Symphony.

"John brings a dynamic blend of conducting and composing talents to our orchestra," Morris said.

Boston Symphony musicians, except the first players, make up the Boston Pops Orchestra, which under the direction of Fiedler played classical, semi-classical, Broadway and popular music.

Seiji Ozawa, music director of the Boston Symphony who has artistic control over the Pops, said Williams' appointment "marks the beginning of a new era for the Pops.

"It's going to be a great and exciting time for my colleagues in the orchestra and myself."

The Boston Herald American had reported Saturday that Williams was the front-runner for the Pops post, and the Boston Globe confirmed his appointment before its official announcement Thursday.

"What I am looking forward to the most is the start, the beginning, a wonderfully invigorating fresh activity," the Globe quoted Williams as saying in London.

"What am I afraid of? I'm fearless," Williams said.

The Globe said Williams will compose works specifically for the Pops and will continue composing for films as time permits. He will conduct the Pops at Symphony Hall and at the Esplanade on the banks of the Charles River in Boston and at Tanglewood in Lenox in western Massachusetts.

Harry Ellis Dickson, assistant conductor of the Pops for 26 years, has been given the new title of honorary conductor and will conduct the Pops periodically.

Williams is to rehearse the Pops in Boston on Jan. 21, the day before a Carnegie Hall performance by the orchestra, which then will tour the Midwest.

The three-month-long Pops season opens April 29, but Williams will conduct the orchestra in Boston on April 20 in a televised fund-raising event.

Williams' film credits also include "Close Encounters of the Third Kind," "Jane Eyre," "The Towering Inferno," "Superman" and "Dracula." The Houston Symphony, conducted by Andre Previn, gave the permiere of his First Symphony in 1966. He also has written a violin concerto.

Williams studied at the University of California at Los Angeles and the Juilliard School of Music in New York.

He conducted the Pops twice last May and has led orchestras in London, Buffalo, Pittsburgh and at the Hollywood Bowl. His classical works have been performed by orchestras in Los Angeles, Pittsburgh and St. Louis as well as in Houston.

Porno Movie Producer Pleads Guilty

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A movie producer who was successfully sued by actress Cheryl Ladd over the use of her name in ads for his adult film, "Taxi Girls," has pleaded guilty to offering an undercover policewoman money to perform sex acts in the same film.

Jaacov Jaacovi of Hollywood, who entered the plea Wednesday before Superior Court Judge William B. Keene, is the first film producer to be successfully prosecuted on a felony pandering charge, Deputy District Attorney Kirk Newkirk said Thursday.

"We had never used this route to go after a motion picture producer before," said Newkirk, head of the district attorney's porno section.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ben Vereen is Tenspeed. Jeff Goldblum is Brown Shoe. Stephen Cannell is the man who puts Tenspeed into gear and puts the polish on Brown Shoe.

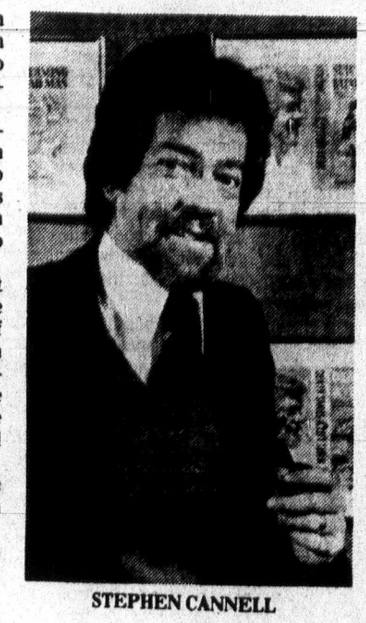
Cannell created the new ABC action-comedy series, "Tenspeed and Brown Shoe," under his new deal to develop shows exclusively for ABC. He also has another new ABC show, "Stone," in which Dennis Weaver plays a cop who becomes a best-selling author.

Cannell is one of television's most prolific and imaginative creators. He wrote the pilots for "Chase," "City of Angels," "Toma," "Baretta," "Baa Baa Black Sheep," "Duke," "Richie Brockelman" with Steve Bochco, and "The Rockford Files" with Roy Huggins. He created "Stone" from an idea by Richard Levinson and William Link.

"I'd always wanted to do a show like 'Tenspeed and Brown Shoe' — about an odd couple who team up as detectives," said Cannell, 38, whose tanned face is partly hidden by long hair and a dark beard.

"Tenspeed is a black con man. Brown Shoe is a white stock broker who's a romantic. ABC was a little skeptical about the show, so I came back with a story. They liked it and I wrote it."

ABC also wanted the two-hour pilot for its mid-season changes. Cannell wrote it in 10 days. He said he is used to working 14-hour days under deadline pressure — he's produced "The Rockford Files" for the last six years. He's written more than a hundred scripts in the past seven years.



STEPHEN CANNELL

"Tenspeed and Brown Shoe" premieres on Sunday, Jan. 27. "Stone" premiered earlier and airs Monday night.

The two-hour pilot of "Tenspeed and Brown Shoe" is an ingenious and amusing story of how the two disparate partners got together. Vereenn who was Chicken George on "Roots," is an ingratiating con man with a repetoire of tricks to outwit the pursuing Mafia and Nazi party.

Goldblum is the square, conservative stockbroker whose passion is detective stories. He's a newcomer to television, but has been in such movies as "Invasion of the Body Snatchers," "Between the Lines," "Next Stop Greenwich Village" and "Nashville."

Cannell was an indifferent student in high school. "I was only interested in girls and athletics," he said. "I played football. Then about my senior year I was being scouted by several colleges and got serious in my studies."

He went to the University of Oregon. He didn't play football, but did major in writing. "I took writing because it was easy to get good grades," he said. "The A's carried me through the other subjects. I never figured I'd use it as a career, but I'd always wanted to."

Instead, he joined his father's business, a prestigious interior design and furniture company in Los Angeles. "I worked there for four years, but I didn't like it," he said. "I wrote scripts on the side and I finally sold one. I quit my father and went into business as a free lance writer."

Cannell didn't sell another script for a year, then was hired as head writer for "Adam-12." "I did that for two years and wrote about 20 scripts, which was wonderful training for me. I learned a lot about my craft during that period."

Cannell is continuing as the supervising producer of "The Rockford Files," starring James Garner, which goes off the air at the end of this season.

He said he wrote "Stone" with Dennis Weaver in mind. The idea came from Levinson and Link, who created "Columbo" but now want to write exclusively for motion pictures. The pilot aired last September.

"Joe Wambaugh is the obvious front-running model for the character," said Cannell, "but there are other policemen who write books. We didn't structure our character after Wambaugh. Dan Stone's background is closer to Dennis Weaver's.

"The conflicts in the show come from being a cop and a celebrity. About being on the 'Tonight' show and then making a bust and having the suspect ask for your autograph."

A number of studios, including Universal, where Cannell worked for many years, tried to buy his contract with ABC. Cannell decided, however, he wanted to be in business for himself. "It's a financial gamble," he said, "but it can be very rewarding if you're successful."

Discharge Reviews To Be Offered

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you're among the former military personnel with undesirable discharges, the Veteran's Administration reports there is still time to apply for a discharge review.

For people separated from the service before Jan. 1, 1965, the statute of limitation for a review was to have expired at the first of this year.

However, the VA says that because of the large number of applications being received, that deadline has been extended to April 1, 1981.

Officials said the three military discharge review boards have heard about 3,500 cases so far, and another 5,600 cases are pending.

To get your discharge reviewed, file "DD Form 293," which can be obtained from VA regional offices, veterans service organizations and military installations.

VA regional offices have available an index of previous review board decisions to assist you in preparing your case and if cases in the index appear useful, copies of the documents of those cases can be made available.

Board Seeks New, Modern Hospital For Slaton

By GERRY BURTON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

SLATON — A half-century ago, the Sisters of Mercy, Province of St. Louis, built Mercy Hospital to care for the ill of the Slaton community.

Today the community, which received the hospital as a debt-free gift in 1972, gathers to voice its opinion on the need for a modern facility to replace the aging structure.

A 7 p.m. town meeting in the junior high school, called for the sole purpose of feeling the public pulse, is a necessary first step.

"We are going to lay plans for a new building. . . and try to keep a hospital in Slaton," William Sewell, a director of the Slaton Hospital Memorial Foundation board, said.

He described the four-story, concrete and brick Slaton landmark as antiquated, with all the problems that could be expected in a 50-year-old building.

"I doubt if we can maintain accreditation very long with the old building."

No tax money is involved. Hospital governors maintain that a new energy efficient, single-story building could be paid for out of savings from present operating expenses. It would have 30 beds instead of the 40 in the existing building.

To obtain a Farmers Home Administration loan for the $600,000 estimated cost, the board must establish a need for the new structure based on public opinion. The proposed building would be 10,000 square feet.

Payback, scaled at $5.17 per $1,000, would be $3,120, a figure below the projected monthly saving of $1,500 and more in repairs, $700 in utilities and $1,200 in employee salaries.

"If they are against it, we will just have to run on what we have until we have to close," hospital administrator Bob Manley said in assessing the situation.

What the hospital has to run on, Manley said, is 20,000 square feet of space on four floors with many more cubic feet to heat and cool than the footage implies. High ceilings and large wood frame windows combine to drain energy.

Improvements on the 1929 building are visible because inner walls also are concrete. Electrical wires and connections as well as water pipes for heating and cooling systems are suspended from hallway ceilings.

While the building is far from modern, Manley noted that equipment and patient care "would stand up with any."

With an 11-patient average, care is on a first name basis for Jeanette Bradford, director of nursing, who knows all the patients and their medical histories, knows where problems might be in care.

"I consider us all one big happy family," she said.

From the nurses' station on the first floor she may dash downstairs to man the emergency room ("the elevator's too slow") or she may be minding a premature baby in an isolette set up in an alcove of the station with all monitoring devices necessary.

Patient care, according to board member Bill Alspaugh, is excellent and hospital equipment so modern that it will be moved into the new building if it is approved by the community. Kitchen facilities already are in a single-story addition to the original building.

So far, the longtime board member stated, there has been only good comment from the community, although fears have been expressed that the old hospital will be destroyed.

There is no way that the building — "just like a rock" — will disappear from the Slaton scene, Alspaugh said. It has too much sentimental value. Had it been built less solid, he noted, it might be easier to remodel.

There are other uses for the structure that will not require the extensive renovation the hospital would require to meet government regulations. Possession of the old building reverts to the Sisters of Mercy.

Federal mandates dictating changes necessary for accreditation in 1971 resulted in the gift to the community, which rallied in many fund-raising projects to meet financial needs of the modernization.

The new hospital would, Alspaugh stressed, draw new doctors to Slaton to use it. In the recent past, physicians have expressed an interest in moving to Slaton but backed out after a hospital tour.

Three of the four doctors in Slaton do not use Mercy Hospital and have expressed little interest in a new one.

According to Alspaugh, one of the physicians, who came to Slaton soon after World War II, put few patients in Mercy from the very beginning and now uses Lubbock hospitals exclusively.

The other two, along with a third who moved away, were the results of board efforts to attract doctors by means of a subsidy program. Policy involved setting a doctor up, providing him an office and guaranteeing an income for a year. All three efforts landed the board in the financial hole.

The new hospital will attract physicians who will need no subsidy, Alspaugh and the rest of the hospital governing board believe.

To set things in motion, the board needs approval from the community to obtain a certificate of need for the long procedure involved in obtaining the FmHA loan.

Health Information Clinic Set By YMCA

Persons with questions concerning cardiovascular health problems can receive answers at a clinic Saturday being sponsored by the Lubbock YMCA.

The clinic, free to the public, is scheduled from 9 a.m. until noon at the YMCA building, 1601 24th St.

Included in the clinic will be blood pressure screening, and testing for rest and exercise pulse, percentage of body fat, recommended body weight, body trunk and leg flexibility, lung capacity and abdominal strength.

Health information materials from the American Heart Association will be available, and a respiratory therapist will be on duty throughout the time for questions.

The clinic is a public service sponsored by the YMCA about every two months.

More information may be obtained by calling the YMCA office.

"Mary Had a Little Lamb" was published in 1830. It was written by the American woman of letters, Sarah Josepha Hale.

Jody Thornton, Manager Furr's Cafeterias*

....."the work is hard, but the goals are realistic and the rewards are fantastic"....

Furr's Cafeterias, Inc., is now expanding its Management team to keep pace with the rapid growth of our cafeteria chain. This growth ensures that opportunities as assistant cafeteria managers, cafeteria managers, and higher level positions will be available.

We are hiring qualified candidates into our Management Training Program, and we want men and women who will put forth maximum efforts toward a rewarding career with us. Candidates should be willing to relocate occasionally during their career.

"The starting salary for manager trainees, based upon background and experience has a range from $10,400 to $14,400. As your career progresses and your responsibilities grow, you can expect a rapid growth in earnings. Assistant managers can earn from $17,000 to $25,000 per year, or more. Cafeteria managers can earn from $22,000 to $55,000 per year, or more.

Jody Thornton began our management program in July, 1978, and rapidly became an assistant manager. He was promoted to cafeteria manager in Hobbs, New Mexico, in May, 1979. He is just one example of the potential with Furr's Cafeterias.*

Benefits include group medical plan, retirement plan, special manager's life insurance program, stock ownership plan, and free meals while on duty. Paid vacations are 1 week after 1 year service, 2 weeks after 3 years, 3 weeks after 10 years, and 4 weeks after 15 years service.

Furr's is one of the nation's largest, publicly-owned cafeteria chains, with over 75 units in prime locations throughout 7 Southwestern States. So if you want to work hard where your efforts will really pay off, Furr's Cafeterias has the program for you.

Please apply in person to:
Mr. Jim Tye

Ford To Close Assembly Plant Because Of Slump

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. will close its Los Angeles assembly plant permanently next month because of slumping demand for big cars, Ford said Thursday.

It will be the second recent closing of an assembly plant. Chrysler Corp. produced its last car at Hamtramck, Mich. last Friday.

Word of the closure from Ford followed announcements by all U.S. automakers putting layoffs next week at more than 200,000 for the first time in the current sales slump.

The home plant of the Cadillac division of General Motors Corp. will close next week for the first time in almost six years.

Ford said it would build its 1,419,500th and last car, a full-size LTD, in the plant at Pico Rivera, a suburb of Los Angeles, on Feb. 8.

The plant employs 1,670. Ford said it would try to place them elsewhere in the company, but "the possiblities are extremely limited."

White-collar employees may receive up to a year's pay as a separation allowance and production employees may receive supplemental unemployment benefits for up to a year.

The supplemental benefits, which all companies must pay during layoffs, are added to state benefits to produce 95 percent of an eligible worker's base take-home pay, less $12.50 a week for commuting expenses.

"We regret having to take this action because we have tried very hard to keep the plant going and the work force employed in the face of problems shared by the entire U.S. auto industry," said a statement by Marvin T. Runyon, vice president for body and assembly operations.

Ken Bannon, vice president for Ford at the United Auto Workers union, said the union was "indignant at the extremely short notice" it had been given of the closing. A spokesman said the UAW was told "only hours" before the announcement.

Bannon said the UAW would do everything it could to help the employees and 575 more on indefinite layoff. "The closing of Pico Rivera is yet another tragic symptom of the ailment besetting our nation's economy, including the unduly high proportion of imported vehicles which endangers the stability of the U.S. auto industry," he added.

Ford opened the Pico Rivera plant in 1957. Over the years it built, among other things, the Ford Falcon, the company's first compact, and the Thunderbird when that car was a sporty model.

The plant has 2.17 million square feet on a 199-acre site. A Ford spokesman who does not want to be identified said, "We would hope the demand would necessitate reopening it."

But, he added, "We would be willing to listen to any reasonable offers" to buy it.

Ford will be left with 25 assembly plants in the United States and Canada. Some have two assembly lines, one for cars and one for trucks.

Ford last closed an assembly plant in 1970 in Dallas.

The No. 2 automaker expects to report a loss of $1 billion on North American car and truck operations for 1979, though worldwide it will be profitable. Its 1979 U.S. car sales were down 17 percent from the year before.

Both the U.S. car sales decline and the North American loss are about what Chrysler will suffer. Ford's troubles have received less attention because the company is much bigger than Chrysler and its survival is not in question.

Next week's layoffs will total 202,450, according to Thrusday's word from the companies, compared with 197,625 this week. The totals include 4,000 from Volkswagen of America's assembly plant at Westmoreland, Pa., idled indefinitely by a strike of 500 workers at VW's stamping plant in Charleston, W.Va.

At the bottom of the 1975 recession, some 350,000 workers were laid off and Ford endured some weeks when no assembly plants operated.

Six of Ford's plants will produce next week, compared with eight this week.

The Cadillac layoffs in Detroit are the first since the week before the lifting of the OPEC oil embargo in March 1974. When the embargo was lifted, demand for the luxury car immediately picked up and remained strong, even through 1975, until now.

Of the total, 54,100 will be temporary, most for one or two weeks, all in the Big Three companies. Similar layoffs this week were announced as 48,675.

American Motors Corp. has 1,200 on indefinite layoff at Toledo, Ohio, where on Thursday the company produced its one millionth Jeep since buying that company in 1970.

GM's temporary layoffs next week were estimated at 30,300, Ford's at 12,100 and Chrysler's at 11,700.

GM's indefinite layoffs next week were put at 71,200, Ford's at 36,550 and Chrysler's at 35,400. The figures are the same as this week's.

Here are the new plant closings next week and the workers affected:

GENERAL MOTORS

Two-week closings: Pontiac, Mich., car plant, 8,800 including an associated body plant; Leeds, Mo. near Kansas City, 3,600.

One week: the Cadillac plant in Detroit, 7,500 including an associated body plant; Fairfax, Kans., 4,200; South Gate, Calif., 2,000; Lordstown, Ohio van plant; 1,300.

As previously announced, the assembly plant at Fremont, Calif. is closed until Jan. 28 for installation of a new painting system, with 2,900 idle.

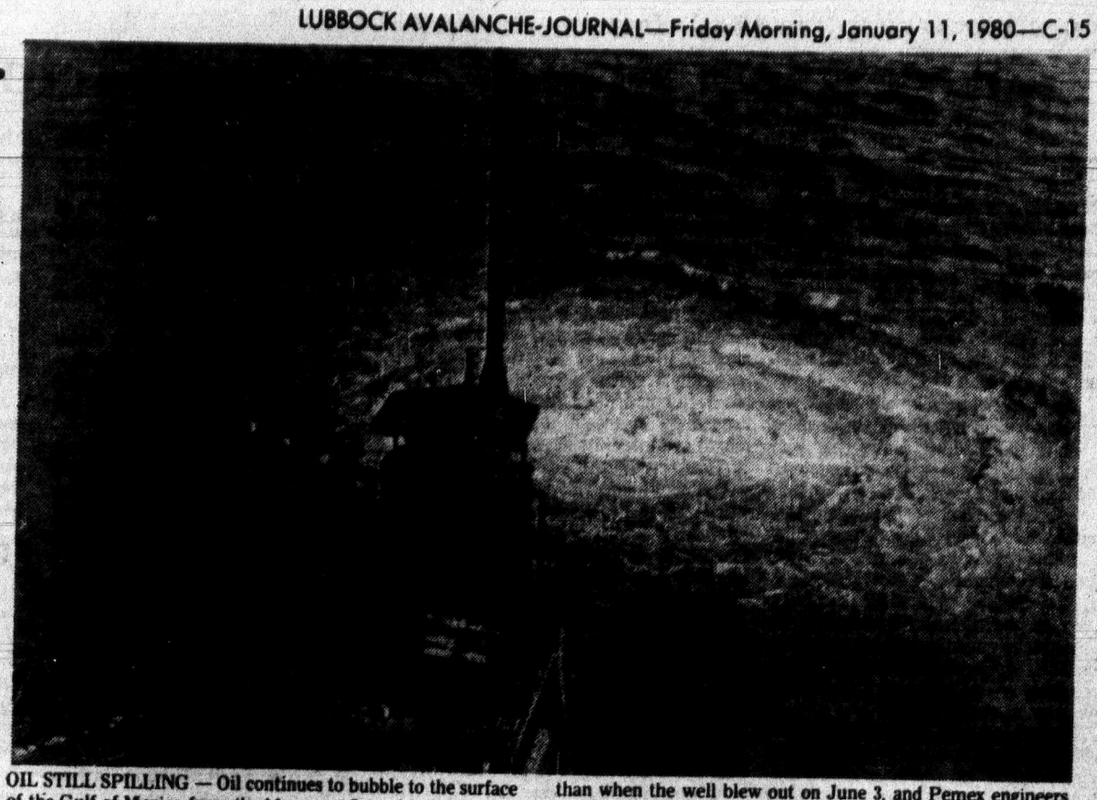
FORD

Two weeks: San Jose, Calif., 1,000; Minneapolis trucks plant, 2,200.

One week: Dearborn, Mich., 4,200; Kansas City, Mo. 2,600; Norfolk, Va. van plant, 2,100.

CHRYSLER

One week: The Lynch Road plant in Detroit, 1,700.



OIL STILL SPILLING — Oil continues to bubble to the surface of the Gulf of Mexico from the blown out Ixtoc-I well, 55 miles off the coast of Mexico recently. The highest point of the turbulence is now about six feet, which is about four times less than when the well blew out on June 3, and Pemex engineers say they will cap the well this month. In the foreground is a derrick used to lower a huge steel cap over the well, which did not work. (AP Laserphoto)

Pemex Optimistic That Ixtoc I May Be Capped By Month's End

CIUDAD DEL CARMEN, Mexico (AP) — Directly over the blowout, the normally blue waters of the Gulf of Mexico burble and boil, forced six feet into the air by the force of the escaping oil. A three-foot crown of flame tops the murky fountain.

On Thursday, Ixtoc I spewed 50,000 more gallons of rusty-colored crude oil into the Gulf, but Pemex, the Mexican oil monopoly, says the flow from the world's worst oil spill has slowed and the well may be sealed this month.

"The flow is now running about 1,000 to 1,500 barrels a day," said a top engineer from Pemex, which has lost more than 110 million gallons of oil since the well blew out last June 3. A barrel contains 42 gallons of oil.

This is not the first time Pemex has expressed optimism about stopping the well. And the company's flow figures have been questioned by U.S. experts.

In October, when Pemex said the flow had been cut to 2,000 barrels a day, U.S. scientists testifying before a congressional panel in Washington said the real figure was closer to 50,000 barrels. But U.S. officials say there is no independent way to determine just how much oil is spilling.

"One of the two relief wells is complete (and has reached the two-mile depth of Ixtoc's reservoir), and we are pumping in sea water. The other well should be completed within 20 days," said the engineer, who asked not to be identified.

Drillers hope that pumping sea water into the reservoir will equalize the pressure forcing oil out of the well, slowing the flow enough so they can cap Ixtoc.

Pemex has spent millions of dollars trying to stop the oil, but Americans under contract to Pemex here say it is time — not effort — that has cut the flow.

"There is no doubt once both the relief wells are in, Ixtoc will be stopped, but the Mexican government can't claim victory. Ixtoc is just slowing down by itself," said one American, who requested anonymity.

Ixtoc obviously has slowed.

Instead of surfacing in a turbulent 100-foot-wide circle, it has been reduced to a ring 40 feet in diameter. Instead of gushing more than 30 feet into the air, it rises about six feet above the surface, with flames burning perhaps three feet above that.

Cecil Parker II, a diver with Underwater Services of Corpus Christi, Texas, dove to Ixtoc's mouth last week. He said the slick is about six feet thick near the surface, considerably less than last year.

"I should have seen some dead fish there somewhere, but I didn't. I just can't figure it out," Parker said.

The well is still feeding a two-by three-mile slick — located 55 miles from this shrimping village in the Bay of Campeche — and the slick is slowly moving westward.

"Pemex doesn't want to talk too much about Ixtoc because it thinks it is bad publicity," said a Texan working on a rig in the area. He asked not to be identified. "They're right, it does, and I'll bet they'll be more careful on the next hole."

The blowout is a sour note in an otherwise sweet find — an estimated 7.5 billion barrels of oil and gas. The treasure, however, is in the heart of one of the world's most famous shrimping areas, and damage to the fishing industry was one of the big fears when Ixtoc I blew.

Most American experts now say the ecological damage is less than was first feared, although Dr. John Robinson of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration said last week that the spring shift in Gulf currents could bring more of Ixtoc's oil to Texas beaches.

Last summer, when the oil soiled miles of Texas coastland, the U.S. Coast Guard cleaned up. The United States asked Mexico to pay the $360 million tab, but Mexico refused. Texas has sued Pemex for $377 million, claiming damage to fishing and tourist areas.

Official Says New Production Facilities Needed For Making Of Corn Alcohol

By The Associated Press

American corn cannot be turned into fuel alcohol at the rate the Carter administration would like unless new production facilities are built, an officer of the nation's largest producer of fuel-grade alcohol says.

"Nothing can happen as quickly as they would need it to happen," said Dick Burket, vice president of Archer Daniels Midland Co. of Decatur. "The capacity is just not there."

ADM turns out 54 million gallons of fuel-grade alcohol a year — about 60 percent of U.S. commercial production.

The administration has suggested that about 5 million tons of corn involved in the current Soviet grain embargo be converted into 500 million gallons of alcohol this year.

Burket said it will take strong government incentives to encourage such expansion.

"The government will have to guarantee a market for the alcohol if we produce it," said Burket.

A blend of 90 percent gasoline and 10 percent alcohol currently is sold at some service stations as gasohol.

Burket suggested that the government could require gasoline distributors to sell gasohol, and government agencies to burn it in their vehicles. He also said an extension of the exemption from the federal excise tax for gasohol would help.

Even then, he said it would take one to two years to get new commercial-size alcohol plants into operation.

ADM, which increased production from 15,000 gallons of alcohol a day in May 1978 to the current level of 150,000 gallons, has reached maximum capacity, he said.

ADM has a total grain processing operation so none of the corn is wasted. The firm sells the corn oil, meal and feed and uses the starch to produce the alcohol.

Other producers use a distilling process that leaves them with a liquid by-product. It can be used as a livestock feed, but Burket said it is more difficult to market.

Myron Reaman, chief executive officer of the National Gasohol Commission in Lincoln, Neb., was more optimistic about the possibility of producing 500 million gallons of alcohol a year.

"It's possible to use everything we've got," said Reaman. "What we need now is a shot in the arm from the federal government."

In addition to using gasohol in government vehicles and providing tax breaks for producers, he suggested that the Agriculture Department find markets for the high protein by-products of the distilling process, and that fuel alcohol be stockpiled by the Defense Department for emergency use.

He said the Russian invasion of Afghanistan, which led to the grain embargo, may have been the turning point for fuel alcohol.

"It looks like something we had no control over ... could give our gasohol movement a high profile and the high priority that President Carter mentioned in his speech," said Reaman.

To move toward the administration goal, he said alcohol could be produced at wineries and distilleries during idle times. He said alcohol plants could be located next to some rural electric plants which have excess steam and land, and that others could be built next to grain elevators where corn and transportation were available.

The Illinois Farm Bureau already is considering the production of alcohol at an old distillery in Peoria, and Corn Products Corp. of Pekin may begin making alcohol for Texico.

Reaman said alcohol also could be made from other crops such as sugar and wood, but corn probably would be used in states like Illinois.

Firm Intended To Make Liquor, Official Says

WESLACO (AP) — Liquor, not gasohol, was the primary intended product of a proposed plant to make alcohol from sugar cane, an official for the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission said Thursday.

Sherman McBeath, ABC administrator, explained to a legislative committee why he could not allow Midwest Solvents Co., of Atchison, Kan., to go ahead with its plans for a Santa Rosa facility.

"Gasohol was to be produced only to the extent necessary to obtain a $15 million federal loan guarantee which they proposed to underwrite the cost of manufacturing liquor," McBeath told the Senate Special Committee on Gasohol.

Under Texas law, state residents must own 51 percent interest in a distillery here. The residency requirement does not apply to plants producing alcohol for a fuel additive.

C.L. Gray, president of Midwest Solvents, said in an October letter that his company needed assurances it could market 190 proof alcohol both for beverage and fuel purposes.

McBeath said legislators would need to change the law to allow that.

Sen. John Traeger, D-Seguin, said McBeath was making a serious charge by accusing Midwest Solvents of trying to hide behind gasohol while really intending to produce vodka.

"Well, that's what they told me in meetings with them," the agency head said.

Rio Grande Valley sugar cane growers wanted the Santa Rosa plant as an alternative market for their product. After juice is extracted from crushed sugar cane, the remaining fiber can be fermented to produce alcohol.

At an earlier committee meeting in Austin, legislators heard accusations that the Texas liquor lobby had influenced the ABC to stifle the Santa Rosa plant.

Jim Kaster, legislative liaison for Gov. Bill Clements, said Thursday the liquor industry opposed any changes in the 51 percent ownership requirement.

Kaster said several liquor lobbyists were in the audience but none explained their opposition to the committee.

The 1979 legislature passed a law to allow alcohol production for gasohol. Traeger said he thought the act took care of Midwest Solvents.

McBeath said it would have solved the problem but the Kansas firm wanted to produce both beverage and fuel alcohol at the same location.

Conflicting Interests Cited For Gasohol Permit Denial

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Mark White confirmed Thursday that Midwest Solvents may not build and operate a Texas gasohol plant because it has a corporate affiliate in the liquor business.

White's opinion went to the Special Senate Committee on Gasohol, some of whose members criticized the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission for denying a permit to Midwest.

The attorney general upheld the ABC's position — which committee member Sen. Bob Price, R-Pampa, once suggested was the result of pressure from the liquor lobby.

Midwest, a Kansas company, had proposed to build an alcohol plant in far South Texas in cooperation with Rio Grande Valley Sugar Growers Inc. Part of the alcohol would be mixed with unleaded gasoline to make gasohol, and part would be marketed as liquor.

White said in his opinion that an affiliate of Midwest holds a Texas nonresident alcoholic beverage seller's permit.

Under Texas law, he said, a corporation may not hold a distiller's permit, such as Midwest sought, while its affiliate has a nonresident seller's permit.

Another issue that arose during the controversy was whether the 190-proof alcohol the plant would make would be fit for human consumption and, therefore, subject to the Alcoholic Beverage Code.

Scientists Predict Return Of Slick If Well Not Capped

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND (AP) — The currents in the Gulf of Mexico will certainly shift. They do every spring.

But this year, if the runaway Ixtoc I oil well remains uncapped, the currents could wash up a second wave of thick brown crude, a prospect which frightens the merchants who depend on the rolling surf and white sand of South Padre Island to attract millions of tourist dollars.

On Wednesday, government scientists said the probability of a second wave of oil washing ashore increases dramatically if Ixtoc I is not capped by the first of March. They predicted an almost certain return of the ooze by June if the well remains out of control through May.

This resort community alone has lost an esimated $16 million to $20 million in tourist revenue since August, when oil began blackening 140 miles of southern Texas coastline. The state of Texas has sued Pemex, the Mexican oil company which owns the well, seeking $377 million for damages to the tourist and fishing industries.

Some businesses got through the bleak times with Small Business Administration loans, but many motels, restaurants, shops and fishing businesses could not survive another onslaught.

"I don't think there's any doubt it's going to happen again," said Bill Shur, owner of the White Sands Motel and Marina in Port Isabel. "If that happens, there'll be a number of small businesses who won't survive."

Dr. John Robinson of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, a member of the federal anti-spill task force, said in Corpus Christi Wednesday that Mexican crews have only seven weeks to stop the flow if a repeat of last summer is to be avoided.

"If we get beyond March 1 and the well is not capped, there's a reasonable possibility of oil (hitting Texas)," Robinson said. "By May or June with the well uncapped, it's almost certain to return."

That is because the Gulf's currents will shift to the north, probably in March. It was the autumn shift of those currents in October that helped keep much of the oil off the Texas coast over the winter. Back then, it seemed the crisis was over — no one thought the well would still be spewing oil four months later

Pemex says the flow has slowed and the well likely will be plugged by the end of January. It is still pouring more than 1,000 barrels of oil a day.

Beaches are clean now, and the tourist industry spent $100,000 on an advertising campaign designed to lure winter vacationers to the area.

"The reports that oil may return adds to the frustration," says Ralph Thompson, director of the South Padre Island Tourist Bureau. "Part of the problem last August was speculation that the oil was coming when the beaches were clean. Here we are in January speculating on what might happen in March or April."

The shrimp fleet harbored in the Brownsville and Port Isabel areas could suffer terrible losses if the oil returns. "If the oil happens to be out there during the shrimp hatch, there won't be a live shrimp left," said Walter Zimmerman, president of the Brownsville-Port Isabel Shrimp Association.

The one bright spot in the continuing crisis is that the Laguna Madre wetlands area behind Padre Island, along with other environmentally sensitive areas, apparently survived unscathed last summer.

The bays and estuaries are home to several species of wildlife, including the endangered whooping cranes who winter in the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge just north of Corpus Christi.

As a precaution, however, the Coast Guard is returning equipment used to mop up last summer's oil to four southern Texas locations.

"We want to be prepared as well as we can," said Coast Guard Capt. Gerald Hinson.

But the tourist bureau's Thompson summed up a general feeling of helplessness among area residents:

"People ask me, 'What would you do differently?' Well, we couldn't do anything differently because there was nothing we could do about it then."

Alaska Pipeline Construction Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission voted Thursday to approve construction of one segment of the proposed Alaska natural gas pipeline in advance of the main project.

The construction of this 160-mile segment, from Kings Gate, British Columbia, to Stanfield, Ore., would permit importation of at least 240 million cubic feet of gas daily from Canada to southern California, by way of existing pipelines south from Stanfield.

These gas deliveries could begin by next November, a commission statement said, bringing early revenues that would facilitate the financing of the entire 4,800-mile pipeline planned to convey gas from the Prudhoe Bay petroleum field of northern Alaska to the "lower-48" states.

Mexican Cartoonists Satirize Oil Prices

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico's political cartoonists, most of whom love a playful tug at Uncle Sam's beard, had their chance Thursday after the news that the United States would sell oil at the $40 dollar a barrel range.

A week earlier the United States had criticized an increase to $32 for Mexican crude as unjustified.

President Jose Lopez Portillo shot back that nobody would tell Mexico how to manage its oil.

Wednesday it was learned that the United States would sell 127,465 barrels of oil a day from its Elk Hills reserves in California to Phillips Petroleum at $11.13 a barrel over the posted price through March.

The December posted price was $20.50 a barrel, which would put the cost at $39.62. By some estimates a rise in the posted price could put the cost of $41 by March.

The Energy Department said the United States had to sell to the highest bidder, and Phillips said it paid the price because it needed the oil.

Basic business practice aside, cartoonists and editorial writers saw irony in the announcement so soon after the Carter administration spanked Mexico for increasing prices from $24.60 to $32 and announcing that another increase might come soon.

One cartoon showed a weeping, pleading Uncle Sam kneeling at a Mexican oil refinery saying, "You're selling me oil very high." Behind his back was a sign reading "Oil: $41 a barrel."

Another, entitled simply "Resistance," shows a smiling Uncle Sam extending a $40 payment to Mexico with one hand and taking a $41 barrel of American crude in the other.

An editorial in the morning tabloid La Prensa noted American displeasure with the Mexican increase and the statement that the United States would sell to the highest bidder.

The editorial complained of a double standard and said, "Such an attitude is incongruent, absurd and . . .ridiculous."

The United States is Mexico's largest oil customer and has been buying about 440,000 barrels of Mexican crude a day.

Mexico is not a member of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries but generally prices its oil in line with OPEC.

SURGERY DISAGREEMENTS

DETROIT (AP) — Surveys of two groups in Michigan showed that doctors disagreed on the need for surgery in about one-third of the 750 cases studied, according to Michigan Blue Cross-Blue Shield. Blue Cross-Blue Shield, which released preliminary results of the survey Wednesday, provided free second opinions on elective surgery in the two studies.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. My wife and I have more than 3,000 shares of a mutual fund which yields about $185 in dividends quarterly. The dividends are reinvested to buy more shares. Now, we are advised by a mutual fund salesman that we would get a greater return — about $725 quarterly — by transferring our shares to the "option" mutual fund managed by the organization he represents.

We would appreciate any advice you can give, to help us make the right move.

A. If that peddler comes near your house again, your move should be toward the front door. Look it. Don't let him in.

That clown is doing more than shading the facts. He's telling downright lies — with he obvious motive of milking you for a fat commission.

The dividend yield is 3.7 percent on the fund you hold and 5.3 percent on the fund that salesman wants to move you into. Granted, the yield on the second fund is higher — but nowhere . . near the numbers he quoted to you.

More important, the "total return" — change in per share asset value, adjusted for dividends and capital gains distributions — on your fund has been running well ahead of the total return on the other fund. That should be the most important thing to you — especially since you are reinvesting.

If you get conned into making the move, you would pay a commission. Based on the limited information you provide about the number of shares you own, that charge would be 7.75 percent roughly $1,750. Most of that money would go to the mutual fund peddler. Now you know why he's anxious.

Assuming you're unhappy with the fund you now hold, you can switch to any of 11 other mutual funds run by the same orgainzation without a oommission charge. Or, move your investment to one of the "no-load" funds, which never oharge commissions.

Q. In a recent column, you wrote, "I recommend that the $16,000 go into six-month savings certificates at much higher interest" and inferred that the rate is around 12 percent. No bank or savings and loan association in this area or state pays anywhere near that.

Now, if you were speaking of stocks, then, I can name one . .' that does pay 10 peroent. Am I missing something?

A. Indeed, you are. And you would almost have to live in a cave, with no communications to the world to miss what has been one of the biggest financial ws happenings of reoent years — the six-month savings certifioate story.

Those certificates — also given such names as "money market certificates" and "MMCs" — pay interest at the same rate as U.S. Treasury bills, As I put this through the typewriter, the annual rate on newly issued six-month certificates is a shade below 12 percent.

Most banks and savings and loan associations offer those certificates in minimum denominations of $10,000. Some, using a complicated process through which a depositor borrows money have smaller denominations. The minimum can also be lower in some states — not yours — where deposits are insured by state — not federal — agencies.

Q. Almost every day, anywhere from 29 million to 40 million shares are traded on the stock market. I picture people buying stock and holding it for anywhere from six months up to 10 or 20 years. Who is doing all that buying and selling?

A. All kinds of people and institutions. The latter includes bank trust departments, pension funds, mutual funds, insurance companies and other organizations. Some individuals and institutions buy and hold for the long term. Others are short-term in-and-out traders.

Add together the buying and eventual selling of long-term investors and the rapid buying and selling of short-term traders and we have heavy daily trading volume in the stock market.

DOYLE welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

Nation's Money Supply Records Rapid Growth

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's basic money supply rose by $100 million in the week ended Jan. 2, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York reported Thursday, adding that monetary growth in 1979 was more rapid than originally estimated.

The New York Fed also said commercial bank lending and bank borrowing from the Federal Reserve dropped sharply in the week ended Wednesday.

The basic money measure M1, comprising cash in circulation and checking deposits, averaged a seasonally-adjusted $383.1 billion in the week ended Jan. 2, up from a revised $383 billion a week before.

M2, a broader measure comprising M1 and savings deposits at commercial banks, was unchanged at $954.1 billion.

The Federal Reserve Board, fearing overly-rapid money growth would continue to fuel inflation by pushing the economy beyond its productive capacity, sharply tightened monetary policy last October.

According to the New York Fed, the latest monetary statistics reflect an upward revision of 1979's M1 growth rate to 5.5 percent from 5.1 percent. Money growth has slowed appreciably in recent weeks, however.

M1 averaged $382.2 billion in the past four weeks and gained at a 2.6 percent annual rate in the last quarter.

M2, whose growth has been swelled by sales of high-yielding money-market certificates, expanded at a 6.4 percent-a-year rate and averaged $952.8 billion.

The latest figures show the Fed's tight-money stand is having an effect. But analyst William E. Gibson of Smith Barney Harris Upham & Co. said "there's no question" U.S. government borrowing to pay for grain purchases and possibly new arms spending will put pressure on credit markets.

The government plans to pay about $2.25 billion for 14 million metric tons of grain in the wake of U.S. restrictions on grain sales to the Soviet Union. A metric ton equals about 2,205 pounds.

International tensions over the Iranian revolution and the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan could lead to a military spending surge. That, in turn, could "further strain our already strained resources" and hamper the government's anti-inflation efforts, said Gibson.

Monetary indicators for the week ended Wednesday included:

•Commercial and industrial loans at major New York City banks dropped $471 million, compared with a rise of $906 million a week before and a gain of $651 million a year ago.

•Member bank borrowings from the Federal Reserve System averaged $671 million, down sharply from $1.367 billion a week earlier. The Fed reduced its holdings of government securities by $1.431 billion.

•The average rate paid by major banks on large certificates of deposit rose to 13.47 percent from 13.42 percent the previous week.

•Federal funds, the interest rate on short-term loans of uncomitted reserve funds among banks, averaged 13.94 percent, down from 14.04 percent.

•The three-month Treasury bill rate averaged 11.92 percent, down from 12.03 percent.

•Net borrowed reserves totaled $474 million, down from $817 million a week earlier.

•The Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis reported the monetary base — the seasonally-adjusted total of member bank reserves held at Federal Reserve banks and cash in bank vaults and in circulation — rose to $155.2 billion from $154.7 billion a week earlier.

Pope, Bishops Meet To Discuss Visits

VATICAN CITY (AP) -Pope John Paul II met privately Thursday with bishops from Brazil and France for talks believed to focus on trips to those countries.

The Vatican gave no details of the meeting with Bishop Jose Ivo Lorscheiter of Santa Maria, president of Brazil's Episcopal Conference, but Vatican observers said it was likely they discussed a program for a visit this summer. Reports from Brazil say the pope will travel to the South American country in July.

Later, he received Bishop Henri Clement Donze of Tarbes and Lourdes, France, and Bishop Marcel Mingam, secretary-general of the 42nd International Eucharistic Congress to be held in Lourdes in 1981. Some months ago, the pope was invited to attend the congress.

READING MATTER

Originally a magazine was a storehouse not a periodical. "The Gentleman's Magazine," introduced to the public in 1731, was the first publication to use the word in its new meaning, stating in its introduction that the publication was intended to "store up" a collection of various subjects, "as in a magazine."

Dollar Firms As Europe Gold Furor Eases

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. dollar firmed in very quiet foreign exchange trading at home and abroad Thursday, but slipped a bit in Tokyo. The price of gold fell in Europe, matching New York gold prices.

A New York foreign exchange dealer described Thurday's market as "featureless" and "generally quiet" with the dollar trading in a very narrow range against major currences.

Gold closed in London at $599 an ounce, down $10 from Wednesday's close of $609 and the first closing price below $600 this week. In Zurich, the metal stayed above $600, closing at $601.50, down from $608 at the close Wednesday.

In New York, gold ended the day at $599 an ounce, barely changed from Wednesday's closing price of $600, according to Republic National Bank. A dealer said the market had "little action," and the government's report that producer prices rose 0.8 percent in December and 12.5 percent in 1979 "had no effect."

On the Commodity Exhange in New York, the price of gold futures for January delivery closed at $598.50 an ounce, down 50 cents.

The gold rush began to slow down last Tuesday as demand for the metal prompted by anxiety over international tensions declined and some speculators started taking profits. The metal hit an all-time high of $673.16 an ounce in Hong Kong Monday in reaction to the Soviet Army's entering Afghanistan.

London silver also declined Thursday, finishing at $34.25 an ounce compared to $34.50 Wednesday.

Rates for the dollar in New York as of 3 p.m. CST Thursday compared with Wednesday's late rates were: 1.7220 West German marks, up from 1.7142; 4.0310 French francs, up from 4.0125; 1.5828 Swiss francs, up from 1.5748; 236.18 Japanese yen, up from 235.35 and $1.1644 Canadian, down from 1.1678. A pound cost $2.2517 compared with $2.2652.

Operators on the foreign exchange and bullion markets — both very susceptible to international developments — said there were no significant changes Thursday in the world's two main troublespots: Afghanistan and Iran.

The Soviet intervention in neighboring Afghanistan, which began Christmas Day, and the continuing U.S.-Iranian dispute over the Nov. 4 seizure by militant Moslems of American hostages at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran have prompted the bullion boom and depressed the dollar.

In Tokyo, the dollar eased against the Japanese yen to close at 235 yen, down from Wednesday's close of 236.10.

Dealers attributed the slump mainly to a reaction to Wednesday's trading, in which the U.S. currency gained almost three yen to end a slump that began in the closing weeks of 1979.

"A lot of people bought dollars yesterday afternoon, thinking it was going to rise," said a Tokyo dealer. "But many overbought today."

In Europe, the trading pattern was just the reverse. The dollar regained some of the ground it lost in Wednesday's trading.

Late dollar rates in key European financial centers, compared with Wednesday's late rates: Frankfurt, 1.7153 West German marks, up from 1.7130; Zurich, 1.5765 Swiss francs, up from 1.5760; Paris, 4.0180 French francs, up from 4.010; Milan, 801.90 Italian lire, up from 800.95, and Amsterdam, 1.8940 Dutch guilders, up from 1.8920.

In London it took $2.2597 to buy a British pound late Thursday, compared to $2.2705 24 hours earlier.

'Gold Fever' Reaches Epidemic Proportions

HOUSTON (AP)— Gold fever has reached epidemic proportions in Houston, as hundreds of persons are selling old jewelry, coin collections, school rings, tooth fillings, anything to latch on to the soaring price of precious metals.

Lines are long at coin shops and the sale of silver and gold items is booming.

John Nash, manager of American Refining Co., said in a recent interview, "Business has gone up at least 60 percent in recent weeks. We went from five calls a day after silver and gold transactions to 100 to 150 day. I invested $800 in silver last May and two weeks ago sold it for $4,200.

Don Swanson, owner of a coin shop, said, "We have as many as 20 people at a time in line just to sell us their scrap metal. One man sold his collection of silver bars that had taken years to collect. The parting price was $5,000.

"People are taking the gold bracelets right off their arms and wrists and selling them. Never in 25 years in this business have I seen anything like it," he said.

Jeff Friedman, president of a coin exchange firm, said a man sold a 90-year old silver pocket watch. A year ago the watch was valued at $25, but now brought $200.

"In some cases it boils down to the hard times," he said. "But many of the people joining the gold and silver rush are not in need of cash."

At another coin shop, Billyeann Neyland, 28, of Baytown, said she was selling her high school class ring because "I saw the price of gold on television and I thought I might as well sell it. I don't ever wear it."

A woman who asked not to be identified said she was selling a small box of silver dollars because "it's just the fever." She collected $900 for her coins.

An elderly man at the rear of the line said he was selling his foreign coins accumulated on overseas trips during the past 30 years. "There's nothing else you can do with them."

GIRL SUES SCHOOL

PEPPER PIKE, Ohio (AP) — A 17-year-old girl who was suspended from Orange High School, allegedly for being under the influence of alcohol, has sued the school for $100,000. The suit filed Wednesday in U S. District Court on behalf of Katherine B. Sennett contends school officials violated state law by not explaining to the girl what evidence they had to support the charge.

NORVAL POLLARD

Taylor Out Of Doghouse

REMEMBER THAT PERSONALITY CLASH that surfaced toward the end of the 1979 National Football League season between former Texas Tech running back Billy Taylor and New York Giants head coach Ray Perkins? Well, you can rest easy now because all has been forgotten and forgiven.

"I had a long talk with Coach Perkins following the end of the season and everything is fine," declared Taylor, the Giants' second-year budding star. "He told me that I'd be playing all the time next year. I hope that means I'll have a chance to start."

The ruckus all began when Taylor found himself perched on the bench with the kick-holder and third-team quarterback following a couple 100-yard-plus rushing performances that led to victories over Tampa Bay and Washington. No one could figure out why Perkins wasn't playing Taylor, especially after he had turned in those clutch performances against the Bucs and Redskins.

What was the problem, Billy? Was it all a big misunderstanding?

"You tell me," Taylor suggested. "It was after the second Tampa Bay game. We lost and I only got to carry the ball one or two times. After the game a writer came up to me and asked why I hadn't been playing. All I said was 'I don't know, maybe he (Perkins) doesn't like me.'"

ACCORDING TO TAYLOR, THOSE words touched off the controversy.

"The next day in the papers," Taylor continued, "there were big headlines saying Taylor was unhappy with the Giants and Taylor claims prejudice. I never said anything like that, but there it was."

Fortunately, the situation has been squared away and Taylor will be back with the Giants next season, at least as far as everyone knows. And the Giants, the laughing stock of the NFC Eastern Division for the past few years, can get back to the business of turning the franchise into a winner once again.

"At times we really looked good this year," offered Taylor. "We were a very young team, but we were able to win a few games (New York posted a 7-9 mark) and compete with just about everyone. We know the potential is there."

Every team in the NFL has talent and potential, but not every team wins. It's putting those ingredients together in the right proportions that makes a loser a winner and a winner a contender. Sometimes it takes several years to come up with the exact formula. Taylor doesn't believe it will take the Giants many more seasons to become a bona fide challenger.

"I THINK WE HAVE the talent and coaching to challenge Dallas, Washington and Philadelphia for the NFC Eastern Division crown within the next one or two years," conceded Taylor. "We beat Washington once this season and we should have won one of our games with Dallas."

Much of the reason for the Giants' mid-season success has been credited to rookie quarterback Phil Simms, who started the final 11 games of the season and had the Giants riding high on a four-game winning streak. Taylor agrees that the Giants' future lies with Simms.

"His (Simms') first start came against Tampa Bay and that was the first game I started," recalled Taylor. "I was very impressed with the way he handled himself in the huddle and the way he led the team. He has all the physical tools. He's loaded with potential."

The Giants are rumored to be in the market for a big fullback or an exceptional tight end. Perkins and the Giants have expressed interested in another former Texas Tech grid star, James Hadnot, who has been known to play both positions quite well. Perkins is Hadnot's coach this week for Saturday's Senior Bowl game in Mobile, Ala., and could be the man Perkins and his staff are looking for.

"WITHOUT A DOUBT, the Giants are very interested in James Hadnot," acknowledged Taylor. "They have talked to me a couple times about him. If he's still available (in the college draft), I think the Giants will take him."

Would Billy Taylor like to line up alongside Hadnot in the Giants' backfield and have "Kong's" 230-pound frame laying out defenders in front of him?

"You bet!" Taylor exclaimed. "I think that would be real nice to have two Texas Tech players in the same backfield. That would be real nice."

Taylor enjoys New York, saying that there is always something for him to do or see there. He does admit it took a while before he became accustomed to the belligerent style of the infamous New York Giants fans.

"I'd have to say Giants fans are the roughest in the world," laughed Taylor. "The worst feeling I've ever had is when I took the field for the first time my rookie year. "There were 76,000 people and they were all booing. And the game hadn't even started yet!"

Taylor and the Giants weren't booed this season. For a change, the Giants gave their fans something to cheer about.

"NO, THEY DIDN'T BOO us this year," added Taylor. "They realize that we are young. But they also realize that someday soon, we're going to be a good football team. They supported us this season and it was nice."

Billy Taylor wants to those fans to keep cheering. More important, he wants to give those fans something to cheer about.

Stargell Cops AP Award

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie Stargell, the patriarch in the Pittsburgh Pirates' "Family," was named Male Athlete of the Year for 1979 by The Associated Press Thursday.

Stargell, named most valuable player in the Pirates' seven-game World Series victory over Baltimore, received 48½ votes in nationwide balloting by sports writers and broadcasters.

He easily outdistanced Sugar Ray Leonard, who won the World Boxing Council welterweight championship at the end of the year, and Sebastian Coe, the Englishman who set three distance world track records in 42 days last summer. Earlier, tennis star Tracy Austin was named The Associated Press Female Athlete of the Year.

Stargell, 38 and in the autumn of a fabulous career, reached back for one more springtime in 1979 and carried the Pirates to the world championship.

Through the pounding stretch drive of September, when the Pirates were locked in a day-to-day battle for survival with Montreal in the National League East Division, Stargell steadied the team. He batted .281 for the season, hitting a club-high 32 home runs and driving in 82 runs, most of them crucial.

As important as his tangible contributions were on the field, Stargell was perhaps more valuable in the clubhouse. He is captain of the Pirates and the team looks to him for leadership. He supplied it in large doses during the summer of 1979.

First there were Stargell's stars, little gold, paste-ons which he awarded to teammates in recognition of their contribution to the team's effort. The stars became merits of honor that Pirate players proudly pasted on their caps, a tactic that apparently bound them in pursuit of their goal.

Then Stargell and some of his disco-loving teammates adopted a popular Sister Sledge tune, "We Are Family," as the Pirates' personal anthem. They felt the words described the relationship between the occupants of the Pittsburgh clubhouse. "We really feel like we are a family," Stargell said. And if they are a family, then Stargell is "Pops," the senior citizen who gave the family direction and leadership.

The Pirates clinched the division crown on the final day of the season and then shot past Cincinnati in the National League Championship Series, carried again by their leader, Stargell. He slugged two home runs, drove in six runs, batted .455 and was named the playoff's most valuable player.

Then came the World Series against Baltimore. After six games, the teams were tied and in Game 7, Stargell took over. He drilled a two-run sixth inning homer that put the Pirates in front to stay. It was one of four hits he had that night and pushed his Series average to .400. Seven of his 12 hits were for extra bases and he was the unanimous choice for Series MVP.

Then he shared regular season MVP honors with Keith Hernandez of St. Louis, becoming the first man to have a piece of all three MVP designations.

Now he has the Athlete of the Year honor, as well.

"I'm really grateful for this award," Stargell said Thursday during a news conference at which he was named sales

Brewster Respects Frogs

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

The TCU basketball team is about as likely to drum up terror as is Don Knotts stalking Main Street with a six-gun strapped to his hip.

With a total of three Southwest Conference wins over the last three seasons and an 0-3 league mark this year, the Horned Frogs don't exactly inspire women to yank their children off the streets when they come to town.

But don't try and tell that to Texas Tech's Ralph Brewster. When he speaks of the Frogs, it's with respect in his voice — and he's not just funnin' you either.

"It's going to be a tough game," warns Brewster of Tech's Saturday afternoon clash in Fort Worth. "TCU is a tough team, they've been losing but not by much. They played A&M tough and they played Arkansas tough."

Ah, come on Brew, we're talking about T-C-U, not U-C-L-A.

"It's important for us to win as many as we can," he insisted. "I feel as though we can be contenders for the conference race."

Last year, the Raiders went out and lost to the Rice Owls in a game that no one dreamed they could've lost. And the memory still lingers with Tech's 6-8 post man.

"That game taught us something," he admits, "it taught us to go out and play everybody — play everybody hard. We've already lost five games this season, so we can't let up."

The Raiders are 8-5 to date and 2-1 in SWC play, but Brewster isn't entirely pleased — at least not with his own play.

"I've had my ups and downs," he admits. "I'm satisfied with our position in the conference but with my own play... well I'm not satisfied at all.

"I don't know what's been wrong," he added. "It seemed like I had my confidence at the beginning of the year and as the season progressed... I don't know."

Brewster scored 14 points and pulled down five rebounds against Texas A&M Tuesday night when the Raiders dropped a 63-60 decision, and is averaging over 10 points a game this year. He also leads the team in rebounds, averaging seven and a half per tilt.

But he is right about one thing — his own play thus far has been erratic. Against Texas, in the SWC opener, Brewster scored only four points and two rebounds while spending a great deal of

Rookie Shares Hope Golf Lead

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Arnold Palmer made a hole in one, Johnny Miller withdrew and longshot rookie Bob Proben survived a shaky finish for a share of the lead Thursday in the rain-delayed first round of the $304,500 Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic.

Proben, 25, finished off a 4-under-par 68 with 3-putt bogeys on his last two holes at La Quinta. He was tied for the top spot with Keith Fergus, who had a 68 at Eldorado, and Jerry Pate, 68 at Indian Wells.

"I'm surprised to be leading," said Proben, who avoided a direct answer to question involving the possibility he might win this 90-hole tournament that now is scheduled to end on Monday.

"I'm just want to have a good time and see what comes of it," said Proben, who hasn't even come close to winning in his brief pro career. He started on the tour last spring and has cashed only two checks, for a total of $1,682.

Proben, like the rest of the field of 128 touring pros, started his first round Wednesday. When a steady rain flooded the four desert courses used for this unique event, he marked his position and finished the round Thursday. The format calls for the pros to play one round on each of the four courses, each day with a different, 3-man team of amateurs, before the final round Monday at La Quinta.

Tied at 69, 3 under par and one back of the leaders were Mark Hayes, Lee Elder, Lindy Miller, Gil Morgan, Tim Simpson, Lon Nielsen and Craig Stadler. Morgan, Elder, Miller, Simpson and Hayes played at Indian Wells. Nielsen was at La Quinta and Stadler at Eldorado.

Johnny Miller, on a comeback from one of golf's more perplexing slumps, had a 73 at that course, but withdrew and didn't post an 18-hole score. He suffered a recurrence of a chronic neck problem.

"I'm so pleased with the way I'm playing now, I don't want to start using a funky swing. I don't want to ungroove it. With this muscle pull in the neck, I have to use a manufactured swing and I don't want to do that."

Palmer, now 50 and a five-time winner of this title, the last in 1973, also had a 70 at Indian Wells. Jim Rice, Boston Red Sox outfielder, was among his part-

CU Boss Enters Crucial Period

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — In the midst of his first full recruiting season, University of Colorado football Coach Chuck Fairbanks believes the next 30 days "could be the most important month I've spent at CU."

On Feb. 13, high school seniors can sign Big Eight letters of intent. On Feb. 20, the national letter can be signed.

Fairbanks and his staff have been scouring the country for blue-chip talent — players who not only can play in the Big Eight but also those with All-America potential. Assembling an abundance of such talent is vital if the Colorado football program, 3-8 last season, is to begin showing signs of life.

Since the end of the year, the former New England Patriots coach has spent much of his time on the road, in airplanes, and in the living rooms of prospects' parents. He has returned to Boulder only on weekends, when the athletes make campus visits.

"There's one team included among those who are after every good kid in Southern California this year, and that's Colorado," a Californian said recently. "We're used to seeing USC and UCLA and Stanford and Notre Dame, but CU's in here like I've never seen before."

The same holds true in Texas, where Fairbanks once attracted his best players for OU.

"CU hasn't been this active in Texas since Eddie Crowder's days," said Tulsa World writer Bill Connors, who adds that the Buffaloes are having a distinct impact on the recruiting scene there.

Fairbanks, while admitting that he "can't even remember all the places I've been," insists he loves the recruiting part of coaching.

"We have 10 staff members out traveling, working various geographic areas," he said. "What I try to do is go into each, meeting and talking with the players and their families.

"I've always enjoyed recruiting. There's nothing wrong with talking with young people and their families about where they will go to college. It's a very important time for them, and I feel we have an excellent product here at CU. It's an excellent university in a nice setting, and we can be competitive."

Fairbanks enjoys still another valuable selling tool. "Players coming here now would have an excellent opportunity to play at an early point in their careers," he says.

He says it's too early to assess the results of recruiting efforts, but adds, "We've been talking to a lot of very good players, and they are interested. Most of them are being heavily recruited by other schools, too."

ONE THAT GOT AWAY — Arnold Palmer frowns as a birdie putt fails to fall on the ninth hold of Thursday's first round of the Bob Hope Desert Classic in Palm Springs. Palmer did have several putts go in as well as a hole-in-one on his way to shooting a 70, two strokes off the lead. (AP Laserphoto)

Longtime City Net Coach Steps Downs

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Jim Carter is a family man — and he credits a "family type atmosphere" as the key to his amazing record at Coronado High School where he's been the tennis coach the past 11 years.

But now, says Carter, its time to give up coaching and spend more time with the family — and not the one on 34th Street.

This will be Carter's last spring to run the CHS tennis program. He announced earlier this week that he will resign the post when his contract ends on June 26th.

"Even with all the success, all the fun," he said, "it was time to put my family first. So I'm going to give it up.

"I've just been spending too much time away from my family," he added. "I wanted to have some time with them before they grew up."

Carter has a daughter Stacy in the seventh grade and a son Gil in the fifth.

As far as opposing coaches are concerned, there's really no reason that the Carter youngsters should hurry up that growing up process either. Because, with Carter at the helm, Coronado has been almost unbeatable in the last decade.

In the earlier days, tennis programs at each high school had just one team — the boys and girls combined. Then, in 1975 the boys and girls teams were separated, and in the 11 years that Carter has been at CHS his teams have won either a team, boys or girls district championship or both. Every year, they've brought home a trophy.

In 1975, Carter's boys and girls won district crowns, in '76 both teams also captured the honors and in '77 his boys finished first and the girls were second. But for the past two years, it has been business as usual, with the Mustangs capturing both titles.

"I really have to credit the family-type atmosphere that we've had here at Coronado for our success," says Carter. "Although it's largely an individual sport our kids have always pulled for each other and helped each other."

On Dec. 21, Carter called his family together — the tennis one, that is — and told them that this would be his last spring as the CHS coach.

"They were pretty shocked," he admitted, "I don't think anybody was expecting it. But I think its given us some added incentive going into the spring season."

The Mustangs posted a dual meet record of seven wins and one tie this fall and, according to Carter, they are the challengers this year.

"That (7-0-1) record is a little misleading," he says, "because the Monterey boys beat us 6-3. My girls won 6-3 so we tied the match. But Monterey is ahead in (fall) points with 33, we've got 29.

"But we're going to get after it this spring."

High school tennis action opens on Feb. 16-17 with a district team tournament and dual matches follow. Team totals will be determined from both the tourney and the matches to decide the champion.

In April the regional tourney will decide the represenatives to the state meet. And Carter wouldn't mind one more trip to the state tourney.

"We've been to the state tournament four times," he said, "we made it to the semifinals once, the quarterfinals twice and then won it in 1975.

"Winning that state doubles championship in '75 with Doug Davis and Charles Key was one of the highlights," he admitted. "As far as accomplishments go, that was our biggest one."

Carter hasn't had time to get nostalgic or misty about all those hot afternoons spent squinting on the court just yet, but he's sure that he's going to miss it.

"I haven't even thought about it yet," he said, "I hope I can stay on at Coronado (he's the head of the Physical Education department) but I don't know. I may get reassigned...

Anyhow, Carter's got plenty on his mind right now — like beating Monterey one last time. Then he can sit back and get nostalgic.

Dallas Gets NBA Okay

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Basketball Association's Expansion Committee voted to recommend expansion of the league by one team for the 1980-81 season and will suggest that the franchise be awarded to a Dallas, Texas group, the league announced Thursday.

The committee stressed that the Dallas franchise should be awarded only if certain conditions are met by a local group bidding for the team prior to a Feb. 2 meeting of the NBA Board of Governors in Washington, D.C.

The proposed Dallas franchise, the committee suggested, should have the 11th selection in each round of the 1981 college draft. The committee also will propose that an expansion draft be held with each existing team protecting seven players and the Dallas club selecting one player from each team's unprotected list.

LaSalle Cager 'Shuns Spotlight'

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The player LaSalle College coach Dave "Lefty" Ervin describes as the best power forward in America is a soap opera addict, loves music with a beat and shuns the spotlight he can't avoid.

Ervin spoke of Michael Brooks, a 6-foot 7-inch native of Philadelphia, who averages 26.3 points per game and 11.5 rebounds. Brooks shoots at a 56 percent clip from the field.

Ervin says Brooks' greatest attribute is the forward's strength and his great intensity. The coach also observes that the 221-pound senior is a well-rounded player.

"He plays both ends of the floor, and handles himself above the rim as well as any player today," Ervin said Thursday.

The inclination might be to say that Ervin, a rookie coach at LaSalle this year, is biased. But after coaching Brooks in the Pan-Am games last summer, Indiana coach Bobby Knight remarked, "if I was going to start a basketball team I would start by taking Michael Brooks."

Pat Williams, general manager of the Philadelphia 76ers, says Brooks will be among the first four or five forwards selected in this year's National Basketball Association player draft.

Brooks, however, said his first goal is to represent the United States in the Olympic Games this summer in Moscow.

"Playing in the Olympics is something that has stuck with me since childhood," said the 21-year-old Brooks who is preparing himself for a career as an FBI or Secret Service agent after his basketball days are over.

He said he didn't mind the booing that Americans are subjected to in foreign countries.

"Heck, you get used to that playing road games in college," said the soft-spoken Brooks. "It's the type of attitude you must expect. They (foreigners) don't like opposing teams. If it's the U.S., they don't like us. I deal wth that all the time."

Brooks has been compared with Tom Gola, an All-American at LaSalle in the 1950s, and later a star in the NBA.

"I don't like to be known as being as good as anybody. I'd just like to be known as Michael Brooks. We (he and Gola) are two different people from two different eras. I just want to be known as one of the best ever to play for LaSalle. Whether I'm the best doesn't concern me."

Brooks loves his basketball life, but not the glamour that goes with it. He finds it difficult to accept his role as a sports personality, all the publicity. He tries to get away from it, although he rarely turns down an interview.

"When I'm not playing I'd rather go to a disco, a movie, out to dinner, not talk basketball. Most of the time I'm by myself, because I can go where I want to go, leave when I want to leave, eat what I want to eat. I feel more freedom," Brooks said.

And then there are the soap operas.

"They're interesting," he said, referring to the multi-plots of the day time adventures.

Antelope Tight End Lands 'All' Berth

By A-J News Services

FORT WORTH — Abernathy end Dean McGuire, a 6-3, 180-pounder, was the only South Plains player named to the Class AA all-state team as selected by the Tetxas Sports Writers Association.

McGuire was a first-team pick at tight end and made the second team as a defensive back. He was joined by running back Danny Brockway, who scored the winning touchdown as Van's Vandals defeated McGregor for the Texas high school Class AA Football championship this year.

Brockway was one of two senior Vandals on the offensive and defensive first teams. Linebacker Buck Nipp was also picked on the elite team. Representing McGregor were center Herman Tucker on offense and linebacker Sammy Haynes and back Donnis Dixon on defense.

Splendora back Donald Moore and Breckenridge tackle Troy Roberson were named to the first team on both offense and defense.

LPGA Selects 1979 Awards

NEW YORK (AP) — Nancy Lopez, Mary Dwyer and Beth Daniel accepted awards from the Ladies Professional Golf Association.

Miss Lopez, who completed a second straight record-smashing year on the LPGA tour, was named Player of the Year. She won $215,987 in 22 events and posted nine victories.

Mrs. Dwyer received the $25,000 Gold Putter award for her average of 28.84 putts per round during the 1979 LPGA tour. She edged Jane Blalock, who finished second with an average of 29.00.

Miss Daniel, 21, was named Rookie of the Year after winning nearly $100,000 in her first year on the LPGA tour.

While Proben had trouble getting his round finished, Pate walked off on a high note. He birdied the last two holes, missing on a 10-foot eagle putt on his 17th hole, then dropping a 20-footer on the final one.

The weather-plagued event, already a day behind schedule, faces a forecast that calls for heavy rains today, raising the possibility of further delays.

Waltrip Pegged Pre-Race Pick

NASHVILLE (AP) — Being the defending champion going into this weekend's Winston Western 500 doesn't necessarily mean a whole lot, stock car driver Darrell Waltrip says.

Waltrip, 32, from suburban Franklin made the comment Tuesday night, just a few hours before catching a plane to Riverside, Calif., site of the first race on the 31-event, NASCAR Winston Cup Grand National schedule.

"Yeah, I'm the defending champion for the race," Waltrip said in a telephone interview. "And I had a good year at Riverside last year, winning two races and finishing second at another.

"But the Western 500 was nearly a year ago, and a lot of races and a lot of things have happened since then. Being the defending champion may not mean much."

Waltrip has achieved superstardom since breaking into the NASCAR Winston Cup Grand National circuit in 1972. He was leading the pack in points, laps and victories at the three-quarter mark of the 1979 season.

But because of a series of wrecks and some turns of bad luck, Waltrip lost his bid for the national championship to greybeard Richard Petty in final race, the Los Angeles Times 500 on Nov. 18.

In the tightest points battle between drivers in NASCAR history, Petty, 42, wound up edging Waltrip by just 11 points — 4,830 to 4,819 — and became Grand National champion for a record seventh time.

Still, Waltrip won more races, led more laps and, along with Petty, set new, single-season earnings records in the Winston Cup series last year. Waltrip and his Gatorade-DiGard racing team wound up pocketing $523,691, while Petty and his crew took home $531,292.

On Dec. 1, Waltrip was named Olsonite Driver of the Year by a panel of motorsport writers, an award worth $10,000, and he became a fixture on the wintertime banquet circuit where he preached the gospel of stock car racing, NASCAR style.

"It's been a relatively short off-season," Waltrip said. "When the last races are over in November, you usually can forget about it until January. But I've been busier this season than last.

"I went to New York for the Olsonite presentation, to Chicago for a 4-H Congress meeting ... I've been around a lot."

"I guess I'd prefer to qualify in one of the first few spots," Waltrip said. "That makes it easier on me. But if I had a choice, I'd get my car ready for a 500-mile race rather than a two-lap qualifying event. I've won races before when I've started as far back as 17th."

McEnroe, Vitas Win At Masters Tourney

NEW YORK (AP) — Fifth-seeded Vitas Gerulaitis topped No. 8 seed Harold Solomon 6-1, 7-6 to grab his first victory in the round-robin format of the $400,000 Grand Prix Masters Tennis Tournament Wednesday.

Rushing to the net to every opportunity, Gerulaitis used an effective volley game to hand Solomon his second loss of the competition. The top two finishers in each group of four players will advance to the semifinals of the Masters, which determines the championship of the Grand Prix tour.

Top-seeded John McEnroe earned his second victory of the tournament, steadily pulling away from No. 4 Guillermo Vilas of Argentia for a 6-2, 6-3 triumph. The defending champion here and top point-getter on the 1979 tour, the left-handed McEnroe from nearby Douglaston, N.Y., broke Vilas in the sixth and eighth games of the opening set.

He also took Vilas' serve in games four and six of the second set and, except for a momentary lapse in the seventh game when Vilas broke him, McEnroe controlled the final set. He handed Vilas, who won his second straight Australian Open last week, his first loss in this event.

In evening matches, No. 6 Roscoe Tanner played No. 7 Jose Higueras of Spain, both opening round losers, and No. 2 Bjorn Borg of Sweden took on No. 3 Jimmy Connors, each at 1-0.

Gerulaitis ran off 15 straight points en route to taking a 5-0 lead in the opening set. He won many of those points by putting away shots at the net.

In the tight second set, each player broke to 2-2 before they both could hold service for 3-3. Gerulaitis rallied from 0-40 to hold for 4-4, then broke Solomon to lead 5-4. But the plucky Solomon, now going for winners, broke right back to even at 5 and, after each held service, Gerulaitis took the tiebreaker 7-5 even though Solomon saved a pair of match points.

"I've had the flu and haven't been feeling well for the last week and a half," said Gerulaitis, who next faces McEnroe. "I got tired after the first set today. I played real well in that first set, but got sloppy in the second.

"This is the beginning of the year and it's hard to get started," he added. "I realy haven't played much recently and that doesn't help."

Fem Netters Advance

CINCINNATI (AP) — Top-seeded Chris Evert Lloyd, Dianne Fromholtz and Wendy Turnbull moved into the quarterfinals of a $150,000 women's tennis tournament with victories Thursday, each winning more easily than they had in earlier first-round matches.

Mrs. Lloyd was almost apologetic about demolishing Terry Holladay 6-0, 6-0.

"I think she had an off day, that's all that can be said," Mrs. Lloyd said. "We've had tough matches before, so it was kind of a disappointment. I like to be pushed a little, and she didn't push me at all."

Mrs. Lloyd acknowledged that Miss Holladay has been bothered by a shoulder injury that forced her to withdraw from a doubles match Wednesday.

Miss Fromholtz, the fifth-seeded player, defeated Marita Redondo 6-2, 6-1. Miss Turnbull, the No. 6 seed, defeated Anne Smith by the same 6-2, 6-1 scores.

The top-seeded doubles team of Miss Turnbull and Betty Stove lost the first set before rallying to defeat Jeanne DuVall and Wendy White 3-6, 6-2, 6-2.

Sherry Acker and Mary Carillo defeated Bettina Bunge and Kathy May Teacher 6-4, 6-4 to conclude the first round of doubles.

The tournament continues through Sunday.

It is called the Avon Championships of Cincinnati.

time on the bench. At other times, he has been a dominant force for the Raiders. Agains Houston, for instance, he had 13 rebounds and scored 14 points.

"All I want to do is this:" he says, "I'm just going to try and do the things that I can do to help us win. If I can't do that, then I'm sorry.

"I don't feel like I've got to score a lot of points for us to win," he added. "But I've got to get open and take the right shots. And I've got to get the rebounds and block out on the boards."

Right now, Brewster is frustrated. And he'll be the first to tell you as much. He started every game as a sophomore last year averaging 11.3 and 7.6 rebounds a game. And he saw considerable action in his freshman year after coming out of El Paso's Bowie High School.

This year was supposed to be entirely Brewster's. This was the season he would take charge of the Raiders inside attack. He is, after all, Tech's tallest starter — flanked by a pair of 6-6 forwards, Ben Hill and David Little.

But things haven't gone entirely according to plan.

"I don't know what's wrong," said Brewster, "maybe I'm just trying to hard. Like aainst A&M, I thought I could get us an easy two points and it backfired on us."

Brewster's reference is to a costly offensive rebounding call that cost the Raiders two points in the crucial stretch run against the Aggies.

"I just misjudged the ball, but that play is over and done with," he added. "I'm not going to worry about it anymore."

In a way, that play sums up Brewster's frustrations. Against the Aggies he played one of his better games of the year. Most importantly he cut down on his turnover rate that had hampered him at times.

Brewster isn't ducking any charges, but he doesn't necessarily like them either.

But Tech coach Gerald Myers has plenty of confidence in Brewster's ability to turn things around.

"All he needs," says Myers, "is a good solid game. That'll get him back on the right track. Ralph has played enough basketball and had enough success to know what he has to do.

And now you know why Brewster isn't taking the Horned Frogs lightly. He wants a big game.

"I'm going to play my game," he said, "and try my best. That's all I can do."

Mustangs Leave Coach Puzzled

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

He just wishes Selsun Blue could cure naggin itch and wash the problem down the bathroom drain.

Arnwine, the head coach of the Coronado Mustangs, is looking for the answer to a question that's been knawing at him for the past two weeks. He really doesn't know why the Ponies have lost five of their last six games. Remember, this is the same team that won six-of-seven decisions earlier in the year.

"I'm really not sure what the problem is," said Arnwine. "I think the loses to Clovis and Borger had a lot to do with it. They have two of the finest teams around and we were in a position to beat them. But we let them off the hook.

"I think that disappointed the kids, a lot, and it carried over. We lost our confidence."

Coronado, which hosts Levelland tonight at 8 p.m., rebounded somewhat and defeated Amarillo Tascosa 58-48 to halt the five-game losing skid. The Ponies are now 7-10 for the year.

"That was a big win for us," continued Arnwine. "We were a little nervous, but I thought we still played well in spots. It was important for us to win that one. It gave us the confidence that we needed."

And Arnwine feels the Ponies need to put a little strut in their walk since District 4-AAAA play gets underway in a week.

"These next two games are going to be awful important to us," said Arnwine. "In fact, they're going to be important to all the teams. We need to win the games to get something going before district starts."

In the win over Tascosa, Scott Williams hit seven-of-nine shots from the floor and added five more points from the line to lead the Ponies with 19 points. Arnwine says Williams' hot-shooting was one of the primary reasons CHS posted the win.

Also on tap tonight in city Class AAAA action, Monterey (16-4) travels to Pampa and Lubbock High (8-9) visits Palo Duro. The games are set for 8 p.m. tipoffs. Both MHS and LHS are fresh off wins. The Plainsmen defeated Palo Duro 60-42 and the Westerners downed Caprock 73-59.

In girls' play, Coronado visits Lubbock High and Monterey hosts Plainview in an important District 4-AAAA contest. Also, Estacado travels to Levelland and Dunbar hosts Borger. All girls games are set for 7:30 p.m.

Meanwhile, Estacado (12-7) entertains Lamesa in a non-conference contest in the Matador gym at 8 p.m. The Mats defeated the Tors 77-76 in overtime earlier in the year.

FAMOUS RACER DIES

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Gaetano Belloni, one of the most popular Italian cyclists of the 1910s and 20s, died at home Wednesday, his family reported Thursday. He was 87. Winner of tours of Italy and of several open road classics, Belloni had been the archrival of Italian ace Costante Girardengo. Belloni had been nicknamed by fans the "Runnerup" as he often placed second in his career.

Tracy Austin Sets Goal After Receiving Honor

CINCINNATI (AP) — Tracy Austin, the 17-year-old Associated Press Female Athlete of the Year, says she won't be content until she's ranked as the best women's tennis player in the world.

"My goal is to be No. 1," said Miss Austin, a favorite in this week's $150,000 women's tour event in Cincinnati. "But I'm not single-minded about it. I have other things on my mind, too."

The other things include school — she's a straight-A student in Rolling Hills, Calif. — and close friends her age, something the glittery world of pro tennis can't give her.

"After being with adults all the time, it's good to be back with the kids," said Miss Austin, who hadn't yet turned 17 when she became the youngest person to win a U.S. Open championship last summer.

She's ranked third in the world behind Martina Navratilova and Chris Evert Lloyd now, but she was an easy winner in the nationwide athlete of the year balloting for 1979 among sports writers and broadcasters. Golfer Nancy Lopez Melton, last year's winner, was runner-up.

"Before a match, I like to be quiet, to just get calm," she said, relaxing after an easy first-round match. "I think a person's style is what you're born with, what you're born to be.

"Some people are born to be net players. I'm more calm. The calmer players are base-liners.

"I'm a shy person, too. If I don't know somebody, I barely talk to them at first. After I know them, though, they can't shut me up."

Fans like Miss Austin. They cheer when she wins a point with perfect placement and moan when an opponent's volley hits the net and dribbles onto the court out of her reach.

"Always, when I was little, I wanted to play on the circuit," Miss Austin said. "I started carrying around a racket when I was about two. But, of course, you can't play tennis at 2. I was about 5 when I started to play."

Miss Austin won a record 25 national U.S. junior titles, and two years ago reached the third round at Wimbledon before losing to Mrs. Lloyd. She continued to improve steadily and to gain on Mrs. Lloyd, who three times has been athlete of the year, defeating her in last year's Italian Open and in straight sets for the U.S. Open title last summer.

"It was a little different when I was the underdog," said Miss Austin, who's grown four inches since her first Wimbledon appearance and now stands 5-foot-4. "People expect more now. But I don't mind."

Along with Miss Austin, Mrs. Lloyd and Mrs. King, a two-time Female Athlete of the Year, the Avon Championships of Cincinnati nearly boasted four winners of the award.

Ohio State's Bruce Named Top Coach

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Ohio State's Earle Bruce was named major college Coach of the Year by his peers voting at the American Football Coaches Association convention on Thursday.

Bruce, 47, is in his first year as successor to Woody Hayes at Ohio State. He guided the Buckeyes to a perfect 11-0 regular-season record. Ohio State's only loss this season came New Year's Day in the Rose Bowl. Southern Cal turned back the Buckeyes 17-16.

Bruce was in Japan on Thursday to coach in a post-season all-star game. He was awakened there at 2 a.m. and told he had won.

"I don't think there's a higher honor in the profession than to be picked by your peers," he said in a taped telephone conversation.

"It's a tremendous honor. I'm breathless. I'm just sorry I couldn't be there, but this is a commitment I made a year ago."

Narduzzi posted an 11-2 record this past year, with both losses coming to the Tubby Raymond-coached Delaware squad that won the NCAA Division II championship.

"We played him twice, and it was two of the best football games I've ever been involved in," Raymond said.

He said he wasn't at all disappointed that Narduzzi edged him in the voting.

"To win it once is a great feeling, and you accept it as a tribute to your staff," he said.

Narduzzi said he has been attending AFCA conventions for 19 years hoping some day to be a part of a program that would deserve such recognition.

"It's probably the biggest thing that can happen to a coach," he said.

He said he will always remember his team's first game against Delaware this season as being an example of what college football is all about.

"The kids would just knock the heck out of each other, then bend down and pick each other up.

"When it was over, I wasn't upset that we lost, I was just upset that it was over. Both teams poured onto the field and hugged each other.

Nominees in Division I were: Carmen Cozza, Yale; Jackie Sherill, Pittsburgh; John Mackovic, Wake Forest; Bobby Bowden, Florida State; Bruce; Tom Osborne, Nebraska; Lou Holtz, Arkansas; LaVell Edwards, Brigham Young, and Rich Brooks, Oregon.

Erxleben Welcomes New Year

AUSTIN (AP) — By all measure of earthly wealth, Russell Erxleben had it made.

He was a No. 1 draft choice whose kicking bordered on the legendary at the University of Texas, a million-dollar golden boy whose right toe would point the way to the playoffs for the lowly New Orleans Saints.

His pro career began with a couple of missed chip shot field goals and ended in the hospital. He was replaced by Garo Yepremian, a bald, overweight kicker who had been deemed over the hill by another team.

"I guess you can say I'm looking forward to the New Year — there isn't anything that could happen to me this year that was any worse than last year. That was one of the worst years of my life. It was like, 'If anything could go wrong for me, it will happen,'" he said in an interview at his two-story North Austin home.

"When I went out the first time against Miami, I was just awed," he said of the preseason game in which he missed two field goals and an extra point. "I just saw them and said, 'these guys are Super Bowl champions.' I was truly awe-struck," he said.

The pressure built, released only by an injury four weeks into the season. Erxleben, 22, hurt a leg muscle that had plagued him during his junior season at UT. He would be out for eight weeks.

"Sure, I felt bad about not being able to go out and play. But the people of New Orleans had me doing things I couldn't really do. You can't tell them stuff like that, but that's the way it is," he said.

"From the day I arrived at camp, I was the top draft choice, the million dollar kicker — the first one in the history of the NFL. And right there, that's something you just can't live up to. I had all the pressure riding on me ... I had nothing to gain by performing well and everything to lose if I didn't," he said.

Days before he was supposed to return to the Saints, he developed an ankle infection that benched him for the remainder of the season. About the only bright spots he recalls were the cards he received from Saints' fans.

"Some people say to me, 'Russ, you've got it made. You're making all that money and you hardly had to work all season,'" Erxleben said.

"But I try to explain that there's a lot more to it than that. I can see taking that attitude when I'm 35. But I'm still young and I enjoy playing," he said. "I want to keep playing."

Raiders Express Interest In LA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — William Robertson, the Coliseum Commission member in charge of trying to find a pro football team to replace the Anaheim-bound Rams, says there is an "excellent" chance that the Oakland Raiders can be brought to the Coliseum for the 1980 football season.

In the most optimistic report yet on the Coliseum's football future, Robertson told the commission that there may be some obstacles but that "they were not insurmountable."

When told of Robertson's comments, Al LoCasale, executive assistant to Raiders managing general partner Al Davis, said "the only appropriate comment for me is we have had ongoing discussions with representatives of the Coliseum and also conversations with people representing the Oakland Coliseum."

If a tenant is not found the commission is faced with the prospect of operating the stadium at a deficit next year, following the Rams' move to Anaheim. Robertson's report came at the commission's regular monthly meeting.

Davis wants a series of improvements at Oakland's stadium that officials estimate would cost about $15 million.

Olympians To Keep Republic Of China Name

NEW YORK (AP) — Eighteen athletes from Taiwan will march under the flag and name of the Republic of China at the Winter Olympics in Lake Placid next month unless they are forcibly restrained from doing so, a spokesman for the Taiwan Olympic group said Thursday.

"We're just going to show up at the Olympic Village and I fail to see how the American people will let us down," said Thomas Hsueh, an American citizen who lives on Taiwan and works as an engineering consultant. He also is an Olympic yachtsman and is part of a group working to keep the Republic of China's identity in international sports.

The International Olympic Committee has decreed that the Taiwanese must not use the name Republic of China or march under the ROC flag or use their anthem in the Olympics. Instead, they were told to participate as the Taiwan Olympic Committee. An arrangement was worked out with the People's Republic of China in October that Peking would compete but only on that basis.

"We have no objection to marching side by side with the People's Republic," said Hsueh. "But what the IOC demands of us would outrage any reasonable man."

The Taiwanese have appealed the IOC's decision to a civil court in Lausanne, Switzerland, headquarters of the IOC. A hearing was held Tuesday on their request for a temporary injunction to keep the IOC's two-China plan from going into effect. A judge's decision is expected this weekend, IOC sources in Lausanne said.

Hsueh said if the court rules against the Taiwanese, they plan to appeal to a higher court in Vaud, Switzerland, then to the Swiss federal courts if necessary.

Hsueh was interviewed in New York while waiting to hear the outcome of the suit. Michael Lee, secretary general of the ROC Olympic Committee, was in Lausanne waiting for the judge to rule.

Julian Roosevelt of New York, American member of the IOC, said "There is no law in this country against their flag and I don't know who would throw them out. The IOC is taking orders from Peking."

Roosevelt said he had assurance from the U.S. State Department that the Taiwan Olympic delegation would get visas. The U.S. withdrew full diplomatic recognition of the Taiwan government in order to establish relations wit the People's Republic of China.

Roosevelt said he saw no way either the IOC or the Lake Placid Olympic Committee could keep the Taiwanese from using the name Republic of China or marching under their own flag, especially if the suit in Switzerland is resolved in their favor or if it is under appeal.

The Peking Olympic officials have said they also will send athletes to the Winter Games which start Feb. 12.

Hsueh contends, as does the suit, that the IOC violated its own charter by conducting a mail vote on the two-China plan instead of conducting the vote in a plenary session. The vote was 62-17 to force the Taiwanese into using some other name than Republic of China if they are to compete in the Lake Placid or Moscow Olympics.

The Canadian government of then Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau threw the Taiwanese out of the 1976 Montreal Olympics because of Canada's ties with mainland China.

Hsueh was training with his country's Olympic yachting team in Canada at the time that happened. "We left because they insisted we could not use our own name and they wouldn't give us the flag they had made for us. I got some material and made my own flag and said 'Here it is,' but they wouldn't accept it. I'm hoping it will not happen in the United States."

The Taiwan team won the Little League baseball World Series last year in Williamsport, Pa., for the second straight season, flying the flag of the Republic of China.

Hanni Wenzel Leads World Cup Standings

BERCHTESGADEN, West Germany (AP) — Hanni Wenzel of Liechtenstein, mastering icy slopes as other favorites fell, won a pre-Olympic giant slalom ski race Thursday and jumped to first in the World Cup standings.

It was the second giant slalom victory in three races this season for the 23-year-old former World Cup holder, establishing her as the favorite for the gold medal in the event at the Lake Placid Olympics.

"The course was difficult but it wasn't too hard for me," the stocky blonde said at the finish. "Technically, I skied very cleanly. I was surprised to see so many others eliminated in a World Cup race."

France's Perrine Pelen, 19, winner of a World Cup special slalom on the same slopes Wednesday, underlined her Olympic potential by finishing runner-up and 24-year-old Italian Claudia Giordani was third.

Only 34 racers in the field of more than 80 from 18 nations managed to negotiate both runs down the 1,010-meter track with a vertical drop of 302 meters in the Bavarian Alps.

World Cup defender Annemarie Moser-Proell, Swiss downhill star Marie-Theres Nadig and Italy's Daniela Zini, the first-heat leader, were eliminated on a glass-smooth section midway through the second run.

Christin Cooper, 20, of Sun Valley, Idaho, led the U.S. team with a fine sixth-place finish after starting the first run as the 41st contender.

Miss Wenzel, on the World Cup circuit for eight years, started the event by clocking the third fastest run of 1:04.09 minutes through the 44 gates.

On the 45-gate second leg, she flashed to the best clocking of 1:07.63.

Her combined time of 2:11.72 was 92-100ths of a second ahead of Pelen and exactly 1.5 seconds faster than Miss Giordani.

Italy placed three racers in the top eight following its showing of five in the top 12 in Wednesday's special slalom.

But the race was a big disappointment for the 20-year-old Miss Zini, who led the first heat with a time of 1:03.39 and posted the best intermediate time in the second heat before a binding let go on her ski and sent her sprawling.

Cooper was elated at the finish of her second run in which she posted the fourth fastest time of 1:08.96 as the 15th racer down the steep course.

"Great," she shouted, after stopping in a swirl of snow. "What happened to everybody else?"

"I skied a lot better on the second run," she said, "letting my skis role and catching up at the gates instead of being on top of the gates."

Miss Wenzel earned 25 World Cup points and jumped from third to first in the standings with 172.

Miss Moser-Proell is second with 161 and Miss Nadig, winner of four downhills and a giant slalom this season, is third with 150.

Miss Pelen added 45 points to her World Cup total during the two days of races and rose to fourth in the standings with 108.

The next two women's World Cup downhill races are Tuesday and Wednesday in Arosa, Switzerland, — a downhill counting with Wednesday's special slalom for an Alpine combined event along with a separate giant slalom.

The male skiers continue their Olympic preparations with a World Cup downhill Saturday and a giant slalom Sunday in Kitzbuehel, Austria.

Renton, Teammates Set Fastest Bobsled Times

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — Bill Renton of the U.S. Navy turned in the fastest time for the second consecutive day Thursday in trials for the U.S. Olympic four-man bobsled team.

Renton, a native of Marionville, Pa., stationed at the Little Creek Amphibious Base in Virginia, clocked 1 minute, 3.21 seconds on his third and final run over the one-mile Mt. Van Hoevenberg track. Renton, with Al Ashton on brakes, also had runs of 1:04.02 and 1:03.28. His best run of the trials was 1:03.20 on Wednesday.

Brent Rushlaw of Saranac Lake, N.Y., a member of the 1976 Olympic team, was the most consistent of the top drivers. Rushlaw, with Jim Tyler of Saranac Lake on brakes, had trips of 1:03.38, 1:03.69 and 1:03.65.

Bob Hickey of Keene, N.Y., Wes Schifferli of Rochester, N.Y., and Howard Siler of Brushton, N.Y., also were among the top drivers as 17 four-man sleds vied to make the cut to 10 sleds over the weekend. The two four-man sleds that will be entered in the Olympics will be chosen the weekend of Jan. 26-27.

Hickey clocked 1:03.68, 1:03.86 and 1:03.73; Schifferli had 1:03.64, 10:03.57 and 1:03.98, and Siler had 1:04.11, 1:03.63 and 1:03.84. Sandy Kellin of Phoenix, Ariz., had times of 1:03.69 and 1:03.97 before pulling out of his third run.

There was only one mishap Thursday as Bill Napier of Schenectady, N.Y., rolled his sled on the finish curve. No one was injured.

Bill Lane drove a U.S. Air Force sled to a time of 1:03.73 on his second run, and Jim Morgan of West Palm, Fla., a member of the 1976 Olympic team, turned in a 1:04.05 his second time down.

Rushlaw, 1977 AAU national two-man bobsled champion, said he believed times would be cut by nearly two seconds when the Olympics began in February.

"The guy that wins the Olympics will probably be in the high 1:01s," Rushlaw said. "The Americans will probably be in the low 1:02s. Renton had a 1:02.60 before the trials started."

Rushlaw said it was hard to predict how the Americans would do against tough European drivers like Meinhard Nehmer of East Germany and Erich Schaerer of Switzerland in the Olympics.

Rushlaw said the European champions have had so much ice time, "they just jump in the sled and go. They've had maybe 400, 500 runs."

The top American drivers have had less than 50 runs so far, counting both two-and four-man practice since Dec. 5 wen the track opened.

Many of the teams here also have been troubled by injuries.

"Three weeks on four-man training is taking its toll," said Siler, whose brakeman, Jeff Jost of Burke, N.Y., came out of his last ride holding his right arm. "Four sleds pulled out today. It's incredible."

Nineteen sleds began the trials Wednesday. On dropped out Wednesday, and another before trials began Thursday.

Chicago Falls To KC Kings

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Reserves Bill McKinney and Bill Robinzine combined for 48 points Thursday night to pace the Kansas City Kings to a 104-83 victory over the Chicago Bulls in National Basketball Association action.

The Kings held a narrow 26-23 lead at the end of the first period, but they blew away the Bulls in the second quarter, when Chicago failed to score a field goal, shooting 0-for-15 from the field.

The Bulls scored 11 points in the period from the free throw line. Kansas City, meanwhile, reeled off 11 unanswered points in the period, leading at one time by 25 points.

The Kings now have beaten Chicago 10 straight times. The Bulls last beat Kansas City on March 18, 1977 in Chicago.

McKinney led the winners with 26 points while Robinzine tossed in 22. The figures were season highs for both players.

Cart Races Set

The Lubbock Karting Association will sponsor an afternoon of go-kart racing Sunday, Jan. 13 at the Lubbock Speedway.

The gate opens at 11 a.m. and the track opens at 12 noon. Time trials begin at 1 p.m. and the races begin at 2 p.m. A technical inspection will be held to insure that all kars are safe.

The little wheels at speed spectacle will feature racing on a one-quarter mile clay oval track. In December's race day, 41 karts entered the action and the races lasted throughout the day.

The Lubbock Speedway is located three miles south of Lubbock on Highway 87 — on FM exit 1585.

Boxer's Condition Remains Critical

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Convict-boxer Charles Newell remained unconscious in critical condition Thursday following brain surgery after being knocked out in a professional welterweight bout.

"His condition is still grave. He's still on the respirator, still comatose," said Connie Wilks, a spokesman for the Connecticut Correction Department.

"They removed a blood clot," Miss Wilks said.

But the injured fighter's mother, Mattie Newell of Hartford, said she feared her son's condition was worsening.

"His blood pressure is even lower," Mrs. Newell said minutes after leaving her son's bedside early Thursday afternoon.

"I'm trying to stay strong, and hope and pray ... but to see him lying there ...," Mrs. Newell said softly.

Mrs. Newell said she was not at the Hartford Civic Center Wednesday night when a punch from Marlon Starling of Hartford floored her son late in the seventh round. But she said she had seen her son fight professionally.

State officials said Newell's injury was "unfortunate" but probably couldn't have been avoided.

"We took all the precautionary measures. It's a very unfortunate thing," said former world featherweight boxing champion Willie Pep.

Hutchinson Nips Mats

Hutchinson edged Estacado 56-54 behind Tyrone Young's 19 points to advance to the semifinals of the ninth grade junior high basketball tournament being held at the Lubbock High gym.

Hutchinson will meet Atkins, a 70-37 winner over Slaton Wednesday today at 8:20 p.m. In other boys' action, MacKenzie edged Matthews 42-40 as Kirk Coats scored 25 for Mckenzie and Moses Pena had 13 for Matthews. Mackenzie faces Evans today at 5:40 p.m.

In girls' action there were three routs. First, Atkins embarrassed Estacado 41-13 behind Beth Howard's 13 points. Then, Evans stomped Matthews 32-14 as Allison Hetterich scored seven. Finally, Wilson cleaned Thompson 53-18 with Vonda Williams scoring 32 points.

O.J. SIMPSON RETIRES IN STYLE

Given to few is the talent for superstardom supported by intelligence, common sense, good looks and an even-handed lifestyle. That describes O.J. Simpson, dominant running back of the decade just passed. He was more than football's Buffalo Bills' ace. His grace not only on the nation's grids but in the commercial world of television and the movies — and in his private life — has earned him the respect and affection due but not always given. Read more about O.J. and what has made him tick on field and off in this week's FAMILY WEEKLY.

Traders Scoff At Bad News

NEW YORK (AP) — Heavy institutional buying again powered the stock market to a broad-based gain Thursday as it shrugged off some unfavorable economic news.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks closed with a 8.87 gain at 858.96. The blue chip index which was little changed throughout the morning, surged to an 11-point lead by midafternoon before giving back some of that gain near the close.

Analysts said specific news developments had less to do with the market's performance than the snowballing effects of institutional buying. Trading activity has been exceptionally heavy all week as the market gained confidence in the U.S. ability to deal with the Afgan crisis, analysts said.

"Institutions are coming a little late to the feast," said Robert Stovall, an analyst at Dean, Witter, Reynolds. The Dow Jones industrial index leaped more than 19 points on Tuesday and, although it slipped a bit the next day, volume picked up.

New York (AP) — Thursday's national prices for New York Stock Exchange issues at Consolidated Tape close. Prices and volume consolidated for securities also traded on other markets

Cotton Dust Main Industry Problem

ST. LOUIS (Special) — National Cotton Council economist Gaylon Booker of Memphis said here Thursday that cotton dust remains the industry's "greatest problem," despite the expenditure of "very substantial" industry and government resources toward a solution during the 1970s.

Booker, assistant director of economic and market research at the council, addressed the 1980 Beltwide Cotton Production-Mechanization Conference at the Chase-Park Plaza Hotel.

"There can be only one solution to the problem. The byssinosis causative must be identified and elminated from cotton. This underlines the absolute necessity for a highly funded research effort toward this end," he told the audience of agricultural researchers, educators, farmers and other cotton industry personnel.

Booker outlined the cotton industry's concern for cotton dust and said members of the council officially recognized the critical importance of the problem as early as 1972 and organized an industry-wide committee to plan and coordinate cotton dust-byssinosis research.

He said industry plants, particularly textile mills, since have spent millions installing dust-control equipment and many firms now have the capability of complying with the Occupational Safety and Health Administration standards.

However, technology simply does not exist that will bring all work places into compliance and the appeals process is continuing in the courts.

"Aside from the problems stemming from impractical, overly-stringent standards, there is another part of the cotton dust story that centers on workers' compensation. And this is a liability textile mills and other processors and handlers of cotton face win or lose in the court appeals," Booker said.

He explained that byssinosis normally cannot be distinguished from chronic bronchitis or similar lung ailments. This complicates the job of accurately diagnosing byssinosis and of qualifying claimants for disability payments.

"Studies have found chronic respiratory disease in 30 percent of the population of communities hundreds of miles from the nearest cotton handling or processing facility. If these same people worked with cotton or had previously worked with cotton, this illness might well be diagnosed as byssinosis," Booker said.

The conference is sponsored by the council and The Cotton Foundation, in cooperation with the U.S. Department of Agriculture, National Agricultural Chemicals Association, Farm and Industrial Equipmenmt Institute, land-grant universities, and other farm and industrial organizations.

A Cotton Council economist said that farmers benefit from size economies when they operate more than 1,000 acres.

Dr. Kendall Keith, agricultural economist at the council in Memphis, reported his studies were based on typical farm budgets for cotton growers in the Mid-South, Texas High Plains and Arizona. Each hypothetical farm was assumed to produce one other major crop common to the area.

"Larger farmers simply have more flexibility and a greater number of options in selecting a combination of resources that minimize costs," Keith said.

He called attention to "the current debate" on the structure of so-called family farms.

"Most agricultural economists seem to agree that significant size economies do exist, at least up to some point. The study attempts to demonstrate the fairly substantial size economies that are possible for various regions of the Cotton Belt," he said.

"Per-unit costs tend to decline rapidly up to the capacity of harvesting units. But even beyond this level of production, there are significant size economics to be gained," he added.

A Texas cotton grower said that declining federal support for acricultural research is a threat to future generations.

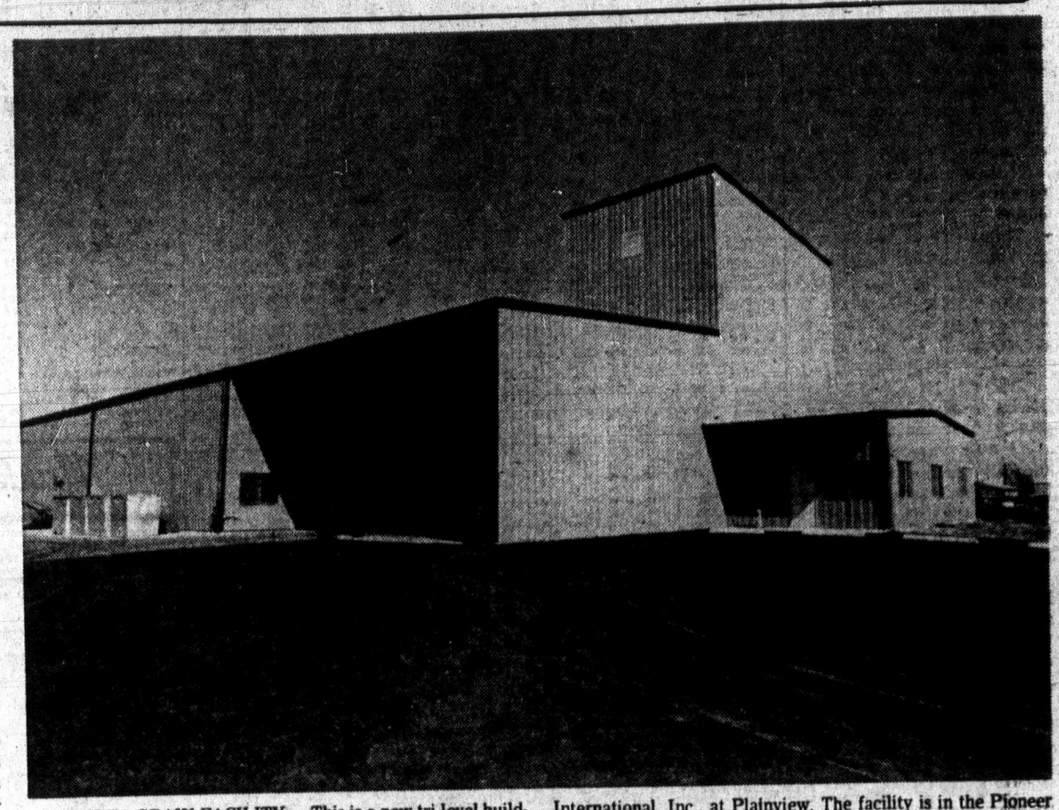
Lloyd Cline of Lamesa opened the conference by noting, "Unfortunately, agricultural research is held in low esteem by some who seem to be charting a new and unwelcome course away from our traditional and proven approaches to the development of new, useful knowledge."

Cline is general chairman of the conference and also heads the Cotton Council's technical committee.

He said in his view the present generation has a responsibiity "to increase human knowledge about the contributions to soceity from the sciences of crop production and processing."

Cline said if the present generation just consumes the fruits of past research, it would "leave a bare pantry for those who will follow us in the 21st Century."

He said the purpose of the two-day conference was "to be a showcase for the newest and latest methods of producing, processing and marketing cotton."



NEW AREA GRAIN FACILITY — This is a new tri-level building for preparation and storage of parent sorghum seed adjacent to the sorghum breeding headquarters of Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc., at Plainview. The facility is in the Pioneer complex north of Plainview, where the Southwestern Division of Pioneer also is based.

New Seed Structure Completed At Sorghum Breeding Quarters

PLAINVIEW (Special) — A tri-level building for preparation and storage of parent sorghum seed has been completed and is in operation adjacent to the sorghum breeding headquarters of Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc., at Plainview, Dr. Gene Dalton, sorghum research director, has announced.

The facility is located in the Pioneer complex north of Plainview, where the Southwestern Division of Pioneer is also based. Parent seed produced by the sorghum breeding department is then used by several Pioneer divisions and associates, including the Southwestern Division, to produce the hybrid sorghum seed that is marketed to farmers.

The new building was completed just in time for the fall harvest of foundation stock, acording to David Stephenson, parent seed manager. Stephenon said the building was designed to be operated by two or three men in a simple, but efficient manner.

"Two special considerations were required in designing this building," said Stephenson, who planned the layout of the facility. "It had to be simply operated and easily cleaned. Our department deals in small quantities of seed, but many different lots. The lots must be kept completely separted to ensure the purity of the parent seed stock, so the building must be thoroughly cleaned after each lot has been prepared for planting.

New equipment, including a gravity table and a polisher, has been installed in the seed preparation section of the building. And Stephenson said this new equipment will enable Pioneer to improve the physical quality of its parent seed.

"Previously we had only a cleaner and a treater," he said. "The new gravity table makes it possible to handle seed lots with germiation problems by separating seed according to weight. The polisher takes the glumes off the seeds, improving plantablility and appearance.

"Of course, this extra care doesn't provide an immediate benefit to farmers who plant Pioneer brand sorghums. But hopefully, if we provide a higher quality product to the Pioneer production departments, they'll be able to do a better job of producing the seed that farmers will plant."

Preparation of the parent seed is done in a three-story section of the building. The equipment can handle as much as 100 bushels per hour, with very little manpower needed. After the parent seed is bagged, it is stored in a climate-controlled warehouse at 55 degrees until it is needed by Pioneer divisions. The warehouse has a capacity of 20,000 bushels, Stephenson said.

Three men are presently engaged in the operation of the new facility. One man has been assigned to work in the building throughout the year, while the other two will spend about six months of each year supervising parent seed production in the field.

Hockley Farm Meet Scheduled Tuesday

LEVELLAND (Special) — "Hanging on in 1980" will be the theme of a farmer's meeting Tuesday at 1:30 p.m. in the Levelland State Bank meeting room, according to Bill Taylor, Hockley County extension agent.

The meeting, sponsored by the Hockley County Agricultural Committee, is aimed at helping farmers narrow the cost price squeeze, Taylor said.

"Rising cost of fuel for tractors, power cost for irrigation, fertilizer costs and nearly everything the farmer buys are making an already difficult situation nearly impossible," Taylor said.

Just "hanging on" in 1980, with 50-60 cent cotton, would require close management of each production expense dollar to make sure that the practice would return that dollar plus a profit on each block of land, he said.

"Practices that will not return $1.25 for $1 spent will have to be dropped," he stressed. "A study of each farm situation is necessary to make a decision to drop an expense. Hopefully this meeting will help provide information for farmers to make these kinds of decisions wisely."

A magic list of production practices applied to every block of land were dropped by most farmers several years ago, he said, but farmers are still refining this process by reducing expenditures on each production practice to the production level that they think a farm will produce three out of four years.

"The key to this type of management is determining the factor or factors that hold yield down on each farm," Taylor explained. "These factors should receive the first production expense money and other production expenses should be held to this realistic yield level to maximize profit."

According to Taylor, a few farms may operate profitably at 1½ bale yield levels but most farms will probably operate more profitably at the one bale level.

"A Bare Bones Budget" will be the title of an evaluation of cost and returns by Marvin Sartin, area extension economist and farm management specialist. His speech will open the meeting at 1:30 p.m.

Irrigation costs and returns will be discussed by Leon New, extension irrigation engineer, beginning at 2 p.m.

At 2:30 p.m., Taylor will address the farmers on ways to reduce weed control costs with chemicals followed by a 3 p.m. talk by Dr. James Supak, extension cotton agronomist, about evaluating cost and returns from cultural practices.

Farmers Home Administration supervisor Bob Sparkman will close the meeting with a discussion at 3:30 p.m. on FmHA loan procedures.

Taylor added that a training meeting will be held Thursday to certify private applicators of restricted pesticides. The meeting will begin at 1:30 p.m. in the Levelland State Bank meeting room.

Cotton Harvest Soars Above 1978 Figure

WASHINGTON (AP) — Last year's cotton harvest produced almost 14.9 million bales, a 37 percent increase from 1978 and the biggest output since 1965, the Agriculture Department said Thursday.

The latest estimate, based on surveys on Jan. 1, also was an increase of 2 percent from the forecast a month ago.

Upland cotton accounted for about 14.8 million bales and American-Pima or extra-long staple cotton 97,600 bales, the department's Crop Reporting Board said.

Alabama 495 pounds an acre and production of 320,000 bales; Arizona 1,080 and 1,350,000; Arkansas 532 and 610,000; California 992 and 3,380,000; Georgia 496 and 155,000; Louisiana 712 and 690,000; Mississippi 676 and 1,450,000; Missouri 545 and 159,000; New Mexico 388 and 105,000; North Carolina 469 and 44,000; Oklahoma 430 and 520,000; South Carolina 497 and 115,000; Tennessee 359 and 172,000; and Texas 397 and 5,700,000.

Eating Out Claims Food Bill Share

Neon signs along streets and highways tell more of the story of modern food costs than the weekly shopping list.

Now, more than a fourth of all expenditures on meals eaten outside the home are made at fast-food outlets. A decade ago, their share was only 10 percent.

Overall, "eatng out" expenditures jumped 165 percent durng the past decade.

Such meals are not only having a basic impact on family food costs, but are helping to determine trends on how agriculture will provide future food.

GOOD CITRUS CROP

WASHINGTON — The Agriculture Department is forecasting a record citrus crop for this season, with declining prices. The forecast, particularly for oranges, indicates a crop of 15.2 million tons, with the Florida orange crop expected to be 22 percent ahead of last year.

New Policy Statement Draws Mixed Reaction

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's recent unveiling of a new "Small Community and Rural Development Policy" generally has been received well, but some rural advocates are mixing a bit of skepticism with their praise.

The 42-page policy statement, disclosed Dec. 20, was chock full of problem definitions, action plans and objectives to help make the countryside and small towns better places in which to live.

However, as one official of a national group told a reporter, "it didn't give much indication that Carter is willing to spend much more money" on federal programs intended to help rural people.

The official, who asked not to be identified, praised Carter for "recognizing, at last, the unique problems" of rural America. He added that previous administrations paid lip service to those problems but failed to seek massive actions to solve them.

In his policy statement, Carter established principles recognizing "the need for strong partnership between the public and private sectors" and all levels of government.

He also listed an "action agenda" of more than 100 specific actions to be taken to help meet pressing rural needs. Many of these involve modifications of existing or proposed programs related to housing, energy, credit institutions, health care and community services.

Regarded as a fresh and potentially creative proposal is one to establish a working group at the White House level to help coordinate and oversee rural development.

Another is a proposal to Congress for a new position of undersecretary of agriculture for small community and rural development.

Among those who praised the Carter policy was the National Association of Towns and Townships. Its executive director, Barton D. Russell, said Carter "recognizes the importance of the nation's small locales" and their local problems.

"This recognition of such a vital segment of American society should put politicians and regulators on notice that they can expect to hear much more from America's heartland in the coming decade," said another association official, George Miller.

But the association also noted that "while some initiatives are specified in President Carter's announcement, the real test of the program will come in subsequent policy decisions" this year and in the future.

For example, it said, the administration's intentions still are not clear about general revenue sharing for small towns, possible cuts in the upcoming 1980-81 federal budget for spending on rural programs and chances the administration will follow through on cutting red tape and paperwork involved in federal grants to small communities.

Another group, Rural America, also praised Carter's rural policy statement as "something we have waited for for a long, long time."

"But there appears to be a basic contradiction between many of the stated goals in the policy and the measures that are to be undertaken to reach these goals," said David Raphael, executive of Rural America.

"We regret that the budget constraints under which the president has operated since he first took office prevent a dramatic, or even a reasonable, implementation of the policy at this time."

Rural America is a nonprofit membership organization that describes itself as "set up to give people in rural areas and small towns a stronger voice in Washington."

In a current newsletter, Rural America — without mentioning Carters rural policy statement — said the coming year's budget for some important programs of the Farmers Home Administration may be cut sharply.

The FmHA, as the Agriculture Department agency calls itself, tried to get more money for the fiscal year that will begin next Oct. 1 but was thwarted by budget watchers in Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland's office and in the Office of Management and Budget in the White House, it said.

One cut involved rural housing grants for low-income rural people, the newsletter said. The FmHA asked for $25 million for next fiscal year but was held to only $2 million by Bergland's office, with approval of the White House group, it said.

Similar reductions were approved for home ownership assistance programs operated by the agency, and in public housing assistance offered by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, the Rural America publication said.

Thus, it appears Rural America and other rural development advocates will be watching closely to see if the administration's budget proposals for 1980-81 — due to be made to Congress later this month — will live up to Carter's rural policy statement.

American Ag Movement Bares Plans For 'Paritycade' To Washington

Plans for a "paritycade" to Washington, D. C., by the American Agriculture Movement were announced Thursday by Mell Cherry of Lorenzo, national wagonmaster.

The nationwide paritycade will begin Feb. 11 and the southern route will depart Lubbock and possibly Plainview.

Farmers also will travel an Interstate 40 route beginning from Hereford, an I-70 route through Nebraska, Kansas and Missouri, and an I-90 route from North Dakota, South Dakota, parts of Nebraska, and Minnesota. The I-90 group will join other travelers going through Michigan.

James Stair of Plainview is Texas wagonmaster and lead coordinator for the southern route. Jerome Friemel of Hereford is state coordinating wagonmaster for the I-40 route.

"We don't anticipate actions like we had last year with the tractorcade," Cherry said. "We're going to be real gentlemen but we are going to push our points real hard and present the problems frankly."

Cherry said purposes of the paritycade are twofold:

— "To develop and promote the production and use of farm-produced fuel alcohol from renewable sources."

Since the AAM agreed upon those purposes, Cherry said, additional problems have arisen as a result of the Carter administration's decision to put an embargo on exports of grain to Russia.

"We're going to try to work out of these problems caused by the embargo by offering our input as a protest group," the national wagonmaster said.

Cherry said cottonseed prices plunged $10 per ton Thursday morning in sympathy with a weak soybean market and depressed vegetable oils.

"This will add $10 per ton to ginning costs," Cherry said, "and there still is a lot of cotton out here to be ginned from last year's crop."

Cherry said the paritycade theme is "FEFOP — Farmers for the Economic Freedom of People."

Farmers participating in the paritycade will travel individually in private vehicles and not in a convoy. The vehicles, not tractors, will use gasohol or alcohol fuels and will be decorated with signs and slogans.

At points where different routes come together, Cherry said, wagonmasters will pick a new leader. Each unit will be identified by state and county.

Stops and rallies will be determined by the state wagonmasters. Each route will depart daily at a time designated by the wagonmasters and will arrive nightly at predetermined hours and locations.

The Washington national office of the AAM will serve as a communcations center. Different routes will report in each day between 7-7:30 p.m.

Advance public relations teams will precede the main paritycade along each route. Their responsibilities, Cherry said, will be to arrange local communcations with media centers.

CORN CANNOT BE SOLD BY THE U. S. Department of Agriculture at less than $3.15 per bushel if the government takes physical delivery of the grain in assuming the contracts on suspended shipments to the U.S.S.R.

This was announced Thursday by Howard Hjort, the USDA's chief economist, who said another possibility would be to sell the contracts to other firms that have the opportunity to use the grain for a destination other than the Soviet Union.

If the contracts are sold to other firms, he said, the corn would not move back into the market unless the price is above the close last Friday of $2.40 a bushel.

The wheat embargoed for shipment to the U.S.S.R. will be used as part of the 4 million metric tons earmarked for emergency food reserves, he said.

Hjort said the $3.15 a bushel for corn works out to 150 percent of the new loan rate. A provision in the 1977 farm act mandates that whenever a farmer-owned grain reserve is in effect the government's Commodity Credit Corp. cannot resell grain it owns at less than 150 percent of the then-current loan rate.

THE CONTRACT IS LIKELY TO BE ASSUMED by another firm if the market price is above the price specified in the deal for the delivery date, Hjort said.

"If the market price is not higher than last Friday, we will take delivery and then sell it at not less than $3.15," he said. "The only way to get it (the corn) back on the market would be if prices are higher than Friday."

Before the suspension on grain sales to the U.S.S.R., Hjort said, the USDA had been projecting that corn prices would continue to rise. He said the USDA now would "do everything we can to make sure that does happen."

The delivery period in the contracts will determine the time when the USDA has to decide whether to accept delivery of the corn or to move it back into the market, he said.

Hjort said the USDA has not yet assumed any contracts on grain previously destined for the Soviet Union. He said the department still is developing the plans on how to assume the contracts and what price to pay.

The USDA official said he had no word from the White House on whether President Carter is going to ask the International Longshoremen's Association to halt the boycott against all Soviet cargo.

THE USDA IS ANALYZING THE IMPACT of the union action, Hjort said. He noted that ILA president Thomas Gleason had said the dock workers would honor any requests from the White House made in the national interest in connection with the boycott.

"We have a commitment to isolate from the market the difference between the full 25 million metric tons (of grain that previously had been allowed to the U.S.S.R.) and whatever is shipped," he said.

About 5 million metric tons of grain already have been shipped to the U.S.S.R. in the current fiscal year ending Sept. 30 and an additional 3 million metric tons would be allowed to be shipped under Carter's order.

"The 3 million tons would clear out the congestion at the ports, barges, rail traffic and so on," Hjort said. "The rest of the grain (embargoed for shipment to the U.S.S.R.) is at terminal or country elevators."

J. Dawson Ahalt, another USDA economist, said it would be unlikely for the government to take delivery on any of the soybeans embargoed to the U.S.S.R.

COTTON PRODUCTION IN THE HIGH PLAINS crop reporting districts of 1-North and 1-South is estimated by the USDA at 3 million bales, down 40,000 bales from the December projection.

The new estimate, adjusted for geographical differences, would translate into a 25-county crop of 3,074,100 bales, up from the previous year's output of 2,049,100 bales.

This would be the region's second largest crop on record, ranking next to the all-time high of 3,215,400 bales in 1977. A pre-report guess, not based on the usual monthly private survey information, had indicated the 1979 crop would total about 2,915,500 bales.

The USDA hiked its estimate for the southern Low Plains by a surprising 110,000 bales, putting the January prediction at 660,000 bales. With production in the northern district expected to total 575,000 bales, the USDA has the Low Plains crop estimated at a record 1,235,000 bales.

Acreage for harvest on the High Plains is estimated at 3,850,000, down 80,000 from the December report. The average yield is pegged at 374 pounds per acre, compared with 371 a month earlier.

THE TEXAS ESTIMATE SHOWED an unexpected increase of 100,000 bales, rising to 5.7 million. A cut of 100,000 to 150,000 bales had been expected.

State estimates were boosted 100,000 bales in California (to 3,380,000), 50,000 in Arizona (1,350,000), 50,000 in Mississippi (1,450,000), 25,000 in Lousiana (690,000), 10,000 in Arkansas (610,000), and 7,000 in Tennessee (172,000).

Traders and analysts said the national estimate, released after the market closed Thursday, was bearish. Some brokers said the market is likely to open down 100 points to the 200-point limit today, although others were dubious about this and said continued strong export demand could serve to restrain losses.

The U. S. increase from the December estimate is said to be the largest baleage boost in the USDA production report for this period since World War II.

LATE-SESSION SELLING BY A MAJOR commission house took cotton futures down sharply near the close Thursday, with final prices in nearbys ranging from 41 points higher to 8 points lower.

Brokers said the market had shown gains of as much as 111 points during afternoon trading on the strength of local and speculative buying before the late selloff. Prices in the old-crop months reached or exceeded previous contract highs on the runup.

The late selling, brokers said, may have been prompted by rumors that the USDA's January crop report would be higher than expected earlier. Estimated volume was 11,800 lots.

The market opened basically unchanged and moved 31 to 40 points higher in nearbys on speculative buying in early moderate activity. The new-crop months closed 20 to 60 points lower.

Trading on Telcot set a new record high daily volume at 41,423 bales. The average price was 52.56 cents and the average over the loan was 1,060 points. Prices were up 75 points much of the day but backed off to 50 points higher by the close.

Buying didn't appear to be quite as strong on Telcot after the crop report was released, particularly for some qualities, although there still were those who were bidding actively.

U. S. COTTON EXPORT SALES WERE SLOW during the week ended Dec. 30, the USDA reported after the close.

Sales increased by a net of only 11,200 running bales during that holiday week. China, rumored to have been back in the market in recent days, canceled purchases of 37,900 running bales and bought 18,200 metric tons of corn. The corn was involved in destination changes.

Cotton exports of 250,200 running bales set a new weekly record, with 9 percent going to Europe and 90 percent to Asia, including 137,200 bales to China.

U. S. ginnings prior to Jan. 1 totaled 12,732,581 running bales, the Census Bureau reported, compared with 9,316,913 a year earlier and 13,513,320 two years ago. Ginnings in Texas were 4,369,888 running bales, up from 2,950,071 a year earlier but down from 5,208,812 two years ago.

Grain Gains Stimulate Cattle Mart

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed 62 to 142 points higher paced by June in active closing trade Thursday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. Sales totaled 18,181 lots.

Improvement in some grain futures stimulated short covering and other buying. Overshadowed were lower beef prices at noon and steady to lower live prices. Most months finished on or near highs for the day.

There have been 251 deliveries thus far. Wholesale beef was off 1 to 2 at 102¼ to 103¼ cents a pound, f.o.b. river points. Cash cattle were steady to off $1 with the best top $68 per hundredweight at Illinois Direct. Slaughter was 122,000 head. About 3,250 head are expected today at the major markets.

Feeder cattle futures closed 40 to 145 higher led by January. That month came within 5 of the daily limit. Volume was 2,615 cars.

Spillover demand from the cattle pit along with buying stimulated by steady to higher live prices lifted most months to new daily highs by the close. Overshadowed was the lower cash beef market at noon.

Deliveries total 180 thus far. Cash feeders were steady to up $3 with the best top $130 at Dodge City. Receipts at the major terminals today is expected to total 1,525 contracts.

Hog futures closed 52 to 120 higher paced by December on sales of 5,731 cars. All months finished on or near daily highs.

Futures ran up to the best levels in late trade on short covering and other buying stimulated by the recovery in some grain futures. Overshadowed were mixed to lower cash hams at noon, mostly lower live prices and heavy slaughter.

Wholesale hams were up 1 to off 1¾ at 60¼ to 64 cents a pound, f.o.b. river. Cash hogs were off 50 cents to up 25 cents with the best top $39.75 per hundredweight at Joliet. Kill was 381,000 head. The major markets are expecting about 26,000 head today.

Pork belly (bacon) futures closed 100 to 117 higher led by May on sales of 5,875 lots.

Spillover activity from other meat pits encouraged short covering and other buying. The recovery in some grain futures was noted by sources. Overshadowed were mixed to lower cash product, heavy slaughter and movement into Chicago storage.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Strong demand for grains and soybeans in overseas markets stimulated active trade Thursday on the Chicago Board of Trade but still left wheat, corn and oats futures prices sharply lower because of the grain embargo against the Soviet Union.

Cash prices, however, moved higher as country elevator operators took off their price protection which gives them latitude in prices should they fall lower than expected.

Traders said heavy futures buying by brokerage houses representing foreign customers in the wheat, corn and soybeans complex lifted prices from the trading limits reached at the close Wednesday in all grains and soybeans.

"There was very heavy commerical buying in all areas, primarily due to the exporters," a long-time broker said. Most traders said they did not expect the market to rally as much as it did because of the glut of grain in the domestic market due to the grain embargo against the Soviets.

They said prices apparently fell enough to interest foreign customers and traders who did not have enough grains and soybeans to cover prior contract commitments.

At the close, soybeans were 8¼ to 18¾ cents higher, January $6.31¾; wheat was 12 to 4¾ cents lower, March $4.15¼; corn was 9 to 3¾ cents lower, March $2.65¼; and oats were 6 to 3½ cents lower, March $1.42¼.

HIGH PLAINS COTTON
U. S. Department of Agriculture

Trading on the Lubbock spot cotton market Thursday was active. Supplies of cotton for sale were moderate to heavy and demand was good.

The Lubbock Cotton Exchange's spot quotations were steady to 50 points lower.

The base price of grade 41, staple 34, mike 3.5-4.9 was 66.35, unchanged from one week ago. Grade 42, staple 31, mike 2.7-2.9 was 47.30.

High Plains Agricultural Marketing Services graded 32,000 samples Wednesday. This brought the season's total samples. About 74,000 samples were carried over.

Foreign Buyers Ignite Late Grain Price Rally

CHICAGO (AP) — Foreign buyers ignited a late rally in commodities trading Thursday, the first significant upward movement of grain prices since President Carter retaliated against the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan by blocking grain and soybean sales to Russia.

The price of soybeans rose on the Chicago Board of Trade to close at $6.31¾ a bushel for January contracts, up 18¾ cents. Other grains closed lower than on Wednesday, but not as low as they had gone earlier Thursday.

At Thursday's close, March wheat was down 10¼ cents to $4.15¼ a bushel, March corn was off 9 cents to $2.65¼ and March oats were 6 cents lower to $1.42¼ a bushel.

Traders said heavy futures buying by brokerage houses representing foreign customers in the wheat, corn and soybeans complex lifted prices of grains and soybeans.

"There was very heavy commercial buying in all areas, primarily due to the exporters," a long-time broker said. Most traders said they had not expected the market to rally as much as it did because of the glut of grain in the domestic market, the result of the grain embargo against the Soviets.

Brokers said prices apparently fell enough to interest foreign customers and traders who did not have enough grain and soybeans to cover prior contract commitments.

The limit in Chicago allows daily prices to fluctuate up or down to a maximum of 20 cents a bushel for wheat, 10 cents for corn and 30 cents for soybeans.

The decline may hurt many farmers who have held crops off the market, hoping to get more for their grain. They also face higher grain storage costs because larger supplies will strain facilities.

In other developments:

—Maurice J. William, the executive director of the United Nations World Food Council, said in Rome that Russians may pay more for their food and the embargo could "adversely affect the quality of their diet but is not likely to cause hunger in the Soviet Union."

—The Agriculture Department said in Washington the cancellation of orders to the Soviet Union will mean a 9.5 percent drop in U.S. grain exports from earlier predictions, but will still leave the exports at a record level of 98.8 million metric tons of wheat and feed grains, mainly corn.

—Howard W. Hjort, the USDA's chief economist and policy analyst, said no windfall profits will be allowed to exporting companies whose orders were canceled by Carter's action.

As announced, the department's Commodity Credit Corp. will buy from exporting companies contracts totaling about 13.7 million metric tons of corn and wheat.

Seminar On Alcohol Planned Saturday

PLAINVIEW (Special) — The American Agriculture Movement of Texas is sponsoring an alcohol fuel seminar Saturday, beginning at 9 a.m., in the Plainview Agriculture Center.

Speakers at the day-long seminar will discuss alcohol production and use, President Carter's grain embargo against Russia and the parity concept for agriculture production.

Those involved in alcohol production who will be speaking at the Plainview meeting include Gene Schroder, Marvin Oerke, Guy Austin, Russell Grider, Patty Stulp and Harvey Gardner. Air Force Col. J.C. Lewis of Oklahoma and Joe Cook of Cottle-King County Agri-Fuels also will speak at the event.

Registration fees, to be paid between 9 and 10 a.m. Saturday, are $5. Meals will be made available on the premises.

Housing Loans Due Renewal By USDA

WASHINGTON (Special) — The U.S. Department of Agriculture will resume making housing loans and grants, Alex Mercure, assistant secretary of agriculture for rural development, announced.

Farmers Home Administration, the credit arm of USDA, had suspended certain new housing loans and grants because legislative authority had expired Dec. 1.

New authorization became effective after Congress passed the Housing and Community Development Act and President Carter signed it into law in December.

Programs affected were the section 502 low to moderate income home ownership, section 515 rural rental housing and the section 523 technical assistance grants and self help site loans. These programs represent most of FmHA's rural housing lending authority.

Poultry Movement Restriction Off

WASHINGTON (AP) — An eight-year ban on the movement of poultry and other birds from Puerto Rico to the U.S. mainland has been lifted, the Agriculture Department said.

The quarantine was imposed in January 1972 after exotic Newcastle disease was found in flocks of game chickens and other fowl.

A program to stamp out the disease was conducted by the commonwealth, and a survey of more than three million birds last year showed no trace of the virus.

Consequently, officials said, "poultry and other birds now are free to move from Puerto Rico to the U.S. mainland without restrictions."

Lubbock County Show Planned Next Week

Nine Future Farmers of America and 13 4-H chapters with more than 500 members will participate in the Lubbock County stock show Monday and Tuesday at the Panhandle South Plains fairgrounds.

Swine judging will open the show Monday at 8 a.m. followed by the steer show. Lambs will be judged at 8 a.m. and the premium sale for all animals will be at 6 p.m. Tuesday.

Joe Wise, Dawson County extension agent, will place the lambs and Sid Conner, Garza County extension agent, will judge the steers. Joe Tarter of Littlefield will place the swine.

Jere Mimms of Acuff is the general superintendent and Max Thomas of Lubbock is his assistant. Steer superintendent is Gib Ragland of Acuff, Milton Daniel of Lorenzo is swine superintendent and Bobby Fletcher of Wolfforth will supervise the lambs.

Ken Aldridge, show president, and Bill Biddy, finance chairman, are in charge of the premium sale. Beth Arnold is the general secretary and treasurer and Johnny Wells is the publicity chairman.

Mondale, Kennedy Trade Jabs Over Embargo

By The Associated Press

Walter F. Mondale and Edward M. Kennedy, longtime friends and Senate colleagues, clashed over President Carter's Soviet grain embargo Thursday. The vice president questioned Kennedy's patriotism and the senator retorted that he didn't need a lecture.

In Des Moines at the start of a three-day campaign blitz, Mondale charged Kennedy "has decided to pursue the politics of the moment" by opposing Carter's curtailment of U.S. grain sales to the Soviets.

He said presidential candidates must decide whether "to put their own politics first" or to support Carter's moves to punish the Soviet Union for its move into Afghanistan. Mondale said the curtailment of grain sales to the Soviets was a firm and essential action.

Presidential candidates face a decision between the politically safe move and what is right for the country, the vice president asserted.

Asked whether he was asserting that Kennedy's position was unpatriotic, Mondale replied by saying only, "I've said what I've said."

California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., also seeking the Democratic presidential nomination, refuses to criticize the grain embargo.

Brown said last Saturday he does not have any quarrel with what he called the "obvious" steps announced last week by Carter, but that he believes "the lack of a coherent U.S. policy has emboldened the Russians to take this naked aggression."

As the vice president launched his Iowa tour, Kennedy flew to Illinois and Republican candidate Ronald Reagan made a pitch for the farm vote in Iowa.

At a news conference in Springfield, Ill., Kennedy was asked about Mondale's remarks.

"I would certainly reject that suggestion," said the senator, who continued hammering away at Carter's grain embargo.

On his return to Iowa late Thursday, Kennedy said: "I don't think I or the members of my family need a lecture from Mr. Mondale or anyone else on patriotism.

"I have too high a regard for Vice President Mondale to question his decency or loyalty or his patriotism, and nothing that happens during the course of this campaign will alter the high regard I have for the vice president," Kennedy said.

Kennedy said that both he and Mondale were among senators who dissented from continued U.S. involvement in the war in Vietnam and were accused at the time of being unpatriotic.

In Washington, the leaders of four conservative organizations, accused Republican presidential hopefuls of forsaking national interests for political expediency.

"We don't understand the Republican presidential candidates," said Paul A. Weyrich, director of the Committee for Survival of a Free Congress. "They are putting their careers in the Iowa caucuses ahead of the national security. We are disappointed in them."

Joining Weyrich in condemning the positions taken by Reagan and five other Republicans were Howard Phillips, director of the Conservative Caucus, Terry Dolan, director of the National Conservative Political Action Committee and Robert Billings, executive director of a fundamentalist-oriented group known as Moral Majority.

Their criticism, they said, was aimed at the positions taken by Reagan, Sens. Howard Baker and Robert Dole, Rep. Philip Crane, former CIA Director George Bush and former Texas Gov. John Connally. The conservatives cited Rep. John Anderson as one Republican who has been courageous enough to support Carter's embargo.

Mondale coupled his criticism of Carter's rivals with a ringing defense of the president's foreign policy moves. The vice president said the Russians must pay a stiff price for the Afghanistan move, but that extracting the toll will require some sacrifice by Americans.

He also defended Carter's decision to withdraw from the Jan. 7 debate with Kennedy and Brown Jr.

"He has to be in Washington working," Mondale said as he sought support for the Jan. 21 precinct caucuses in Iowa. "There's been some criticism that he ought to be out here, but that's the last thing he should do."

"Those in agriculture are raising sharp questions about the record of the Carter administration in agricultural policies," Reagan told supporters in Waterloo, Iowa.

"They are doing so because that record does not demonstrate an understanding of farmers' problems or, for that matter, much concern over those problems," he added.

There were these other political developments Thursday:

•The League of Women Voters sought to persuade Carter, Kennedy and Brown to appear in debate in New Hampshire on Feb. 19, one week before the Democratic primary in that state.

Linda Peek, a spokeswoman at the Carter-Mondale Presidential Committee in Washington, said the request was under study, but that Carter's participation would be subject to the same foreign policy considerations that led to his withdrawal from the Iowa debate.

•Chicago Mayor Jane Byrne, who has endorsed Kennedy, accused Carter of being "deceitful" by canceling political appearances because of the Iranian crisis.

She charged that while Carter shows public concern for the hostages being held in Iran, he continues behind-the-scenes maneuvering for the support of Illinois Democrats.

Reagan Expected For Spring Appearance

Republican presidential hopeful Ronald Reagan is expected to make a campaign appearance in Lubbock sometime in March or April, a Reagan campaign spokesman announced Thursday.

"Gov. Reagan will be on the road as much as any candidate during the campaign," said state vice-chairman Jim Brandon at a press conference to kick off the former California governor's Texas campaign. "He'll probably be making appearances in Lubbock and Amarillo sometime before the (May 3) Texas primary, probably in late March or April."

"The decisive edge Reagan has is his grassroots organization and support," said John Ryan, Reagan's 19th Congressional district chairman. "And he has proven his ability to govern."

"We're looking forward to a very heated and contested race in Texas between Gov. Reagan and Gov. Connally," Brandon said. "It'll be a good race for Texas."

Branson also announced Reagan's Texas steering committee, which consists of about 1,000 persons from across the state. Included among those are about 50 Lubbockites, most notably Lubbock County chairman Jack Markham.

Step 1 — Year of birth. Read down the left hand column to find the last number in the year of your birth then go across to the appropriate decade. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.
