One of plane's passengers 'unauthorized'

From Staff and Wire Reports

The pilot of the plane that crashed into the Warwick Apartments Friday could be suspended or fired for allowing an unauthorized passenger aboard, according to a Louisiana Corrections Department official.

Mike Martin, undersecretary of the department, also dismissed as "sour grapes," a charge by a former department employee that pilot Alex Sheets is incompetent.

Meanwhile, Sheets was in critical condition today in Lubbock General Hospital with second- and third-degree burns over 40 percent of his body after the Friday crash.

Martin said at a news conference that a family member was told by Sheets Sunday night that one of the engines on the twin-engine Beechcraft Baron went out moments after he took off from Midland Air Park.

The plane, ferrying two prisoners to Louisiana, slammed into Building 6 of the Warwick Apartments, injuring five people and setting the complex ablaze. One of the injured, Randy Sellars, 21, of Midland was on the ground.

The two prisoners, George Gibbs and Burnell Bell Jr., are now listed in satisfactory condition in Midland Memorial Hospital. They were moved from intensive care to private rooms Monday.

Ken Hornsby, a close friend of Sheets and the unauthorized passenger on the flight, remained in critical condition today at the Lubbock hospital with burns over 70 percent of his body. Sellars, who also is hospitalized in Lubbock, was listed in serious condition this morning.

"There is great concern" about Hornsby being allowed on the flight, said Martin, who acknowledged that Sheets could be suspended or fired for violating regulations.

But, Martin called the news conference chiefly to respond to allegations by Donald Murray, a former department pilot, who called Sheets incompetent.

Over the weekend, Murray released a copy of a letter he wrote to aviation officials in July, in which he made the charges.

Murray was laid off in September because of budgetary problems, said Martin.

"But, Mr. Murray knew prior to writing the letter that he was losing his job," said Martin. "This is all sour grapes."

In the letter, Murray listed eight examples of why he thought Sheets couldn't handle his job, including an incident when "Mr. Sheets lost two prisoners in El Paso, Texas."

Sheets also started an engine of a plane that was grounded and flew on a trip with "flaps extended," said the letter.

In addition, Sheets left El Paso once without paying a fuel bill and on another flight, had a "boiling battery," said the letter.

"Of the eight incidents cited by Mr. Murray, only four had to do with flying," said Martin. "Mr. Murray hired Mr. Sheets and, after the five-month probationary period, recommended that he be permanently employed.

"He listed these incidents as going back to October of 1981 but he never notified his superiors and we didn't find out anything until after he wrote the letter.

"We all lose prisoners at times. Mr. Murray lost two in the aircraft hangar when they went to a bathroom and climbed out a window."

Martin said, however, that after the letter was received, Sheets was put through a flight test.

The testing pilot approved Sheets for visual flying, suggesting only that Sheets be given further training in instrument flying.

Visual flying is without the need for instruments and the department never needs instrument flying, said Martin.

"But, we had scheduled Mr. Sheets for instrument training," he added. "Let me emphasize that he is licensed for instrument flying."

PLO leader dies in ambush

By The Associated Press

The Palestine Liberation Organization's top military commander was reported killed today in an ambush in eastern Lebanon's Bekaa Valley, the right-wing Christian Voice of Lebanon radio said.

The reported death came as Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin's Cabinet in Jerusalem decided to conduct a full-scale judicial probe into Israel's conduct during the Beirut massacre of Palestinians earlier this month.

Israeli Energy Minister Yitzhak Berman told reporters as he emerged from the Cabinet session that the ministers had agreed to the inquiry. He gave no details and said an official announcement would come later.

Begin's Cabinet members, bowing to intense public pressure, had been expected to support a full probe into the massacre. Begin himself was reported as saying the investigation was needed after initially rejecting it.

In Beirut, a Voice of Lebanon broadcast quoting the Palestinian news agency WAFA said Brig. Saad Sayel, the PLO's chief of staff, was killed while inspecting guerrilla positions near the city of Baalbeck overlooking the Bekaa, where both Israeli and Syrian forces are deployed. The broadcast quoted WAFA as blaming Israel for Sayel's death.

Earlier, the British Broadcasting Corp. said Sayel, also known as Abu Walid, was ambushed by 30 men with rifles and grenade launchers but it did not further identify the attackers. It said Sayel died later at a Syrian hospital.

Twelve-hundred U.S. Marines were poised off Beirut's shore, ready to move into the war-torn Lebanese capital as part of a tri-national peacekeeping force after Israeli soldiers leave. They will join 1,100 French soldiers and 1,100 Italian troops.

In Tel Aviv, Israel's military command said its forces would be out of the Moslem west Beirut by Wednesday, but said it will take longer to pull back from the Christian eastern section of the city.

The Israeli army said today it removed the last of arms and ammunition it says the PLO left behind in Beirut. The Israelis had said they would withdraw after removing the weaponry.

A military communique said the usable weapons were taken to Israeli storage depots while the rest were dumped in the sea. It said the Israelis amassed 520 tons of ammunition, 5,000 small arms and other equipment.

French and Italian troops Monday moved into Sabra and Chatilla refugee camps where the Lebanese government said about 600 Palestinians were slaughtered Sept. 16-18 by Lebanese Christian militiamen. The camps were under Israeli control.

Israel television reported Monday all Cabinet members at today's meeting were ready to back a commission inquiry with full subpoena powers and the right to force witnesses to testify under oath.

The state television, returning to the air at the end of the observance of Yom Kippur, holiest day in Judaism, also said Begin himself decided that failure to establish a full inquiry was damaging Israel's image.

A grave situation

Rescued Sunday from a plywood box buried in this shallow grave in Montgomery County, Texas, was Michael Baucom, 21, of Sante Fe, Texas. Another kidnapping victim, Coby Garland Hamilton of San Antonio, escaped early today from the trunk of an "abandoned" car under tow.

Kidnap victim escapes

CONROE, Texas (AP) — A captive firefighter leaped from the trunk of a car under tow early today after his abductor — who officials allege masterminded the live burial of another kidnap victim — abandoned the car and fled.

Coby Garland Hamilton, 28, the Houston firefighter missing since Sunday morning, made his escape near George West in South Texas, Montgomery County sheriff's spokesman Ed deForest said.

He was uninjured, said Live Oak County Sheriff Larry Busby. "He was hungry, so I ordered him a meal, and I imagine he's a little bit tired," Busby said.

The sheriff said officers are searching for Ronald White, 40, being sought on an aggravated kidnapping warrant from Montgomery County in the abduction of Michael Baucom, 21, of La Marque. Baucom was buried alive for four days before his rescue Sunday morning.

Busby — whose county is some 200 miles from the area where Hamilton disappeared — said Deputy Roy Hart found the car abandoned at about 2:30 a.m. and learned through a license check that it was stolen. He called for a wrecker.

"Coby was in the trunk, but he kept quiet and didn't make any noise because he thought maybe the suspect had returned," Busby said. When the wrecker began towing the car, Hamilton pried open the trunk with a tire tool, leaped out and ran to a nearby house.

Officials say White is the prime suspect in Hamilton's abduction.

Busby refused to let Hamilton speak with The Associated Press.

"He was abducted at approximately 2 a.m. Sunday from a Jiffy food store very close to the point where the people were arrested in the Baucom kidnapping," deForest said of Hamilton. He said Hamilton and his abductor drove through several East Texas towns before heading south.

"From time to time he would put Hamilton in the trunk of the car," deForest said. "Yesterday afternoon, he put him in the trunk and fled on foot."

DeForest said Hamilton described his abductor as "mentally erratic.

"He said he was convinced that had they been stopped by a law officer there would have been shooting," deForest said.

On Sunday morning, Hamilton had been delivering the Houston Chronicle in an area near where deputies arrested three people and rescued Baucom from the box where he had been buried for four days.

Rabbi calls for resignations

By VINCE GIORGI
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Calling Israel's role in a massacre which may have left as many as 600 Palestinians dead in West Beirut "an error in judgement," a prominent Houston rabbi pleaded Monday for the resignations of Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Defense Minister Ariel Sharon.

Rabbi Moshe Cahana, the rabbi of Houston's Brith Shalom congregation for 16 years who now serves in various capacities at Houston's Beth Yeshurun congregation — the city's largest synagogue — said a military foray into the Sabra and Chatilla refugee camps Sept. 16-18 was necessary to oust about 2,000 Palestinian Liberation Organization (PLO) fighters from the area.

Cahana, 60, said Israeli military leaders erred by trusting Christian Phalangist militiamen to assist in the operation, in effect allowing the fox free run of the hen house.

"It was essential to flush out the 2,000 terrorists," said Cahana, who was born in Palestine in 1922 and served with Begin in the Irgun — the Israeli underground which battled violently for the tiny nation's independence from Great Britain.

Cahana said the raids became necessary after the PLO violated terms of a peace agreement arranged by U.S. negotiatior Philip Habib, which required that PLO weapons be turned over to the Lebanese military and its forces completely evacuated from Lebanon.

"They didn't do it," Cahana said. "There were still left-wing Palestinian terrorists" concealed in the camps.

He said Israeli leaders asked the Lebanese military to eradicate the Palestinians but the Lebanese declined. When the Christian militia offered assistance, Cahana said Israeli leaders accepted gratefully, since at the time Israeli forces were depleted during observance of a Jewish holiday, Rosh Hashana. Because Israeli forces were not at full strength, Cahana said they lacked the ability to "watchdog" the Christian militia.

"The Christian militia got explicit, clear-cut orders: 'Don't touch an innocent person,'" Cahana said. Although the Christian commander promised he would follow those orders, Cahana said that once inside the camps, "instead of killing the terrorists, they started to take revenge."

The full fury of the revenge has yet to be measured. International Red Cross figures placed the incomplete death toll at 320 Saturday. Lebanese government officials estimate that as many as 600 people died in the raids.

"I don't feel that Israel has a moral responsibility," Cahana said. "I think Israel made an error in judgement." He added that Begin and Sharon are "tainted" because they failed to call for an immediate investigation to clearly delineate the Israeli and Christian roles in the massacre.

"Because of these mistakes...as a Jew, as a former Israeli, I respectfully ask the prime minister and the defense minister to step down," said Cahana, who made his remarks in a news conference prior to an early evening Yom Kippur service at Temple Beth El in Odessa.

Panel agrees that tax changes needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration declined to take a stand today on a dozen bills to radically change the federal income tax but agreed that many such plans would mean tax cuts for the rich and higher taxes for millions at lower and middle incomes.

John E. Chapoton, assistant treasury secretary for tax policy, has criticized the notion of a "flat-rate" tax, which would end most deductions and require everyone to pay the same portion of income to the government.

But, as the Senate Finance Committee opened hearings on the flat tax, Chapoton, the administration's chief tax authority, recommended that variations of such a proposal be studied thoroughly. Similar advice was offered by Alice Rivlin, director of the Congressional Budget Office.

Witnesses and members of the committee were virtually unanimous on one point. As Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, put it, "There is a growing feeling of unfairness in the tax system. What we need is a major reform...a simplification.... A major objection of the new Congress (taking office in January) is a massive reform of the tax system."

Most members of the committee who spoke out opposed a pure flat tax — in which the $20,000 family and the $100,000 family would pay the same portion of their incomes in taxes. Instead, they urged variations that would greatly simplify the tax system while retaining the "ability-to-pay" feature.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., said of the basic flat tax: "If you're rich, you'll love it; if you're not rich, look out."

He referred to various analyses showing that a system having only one tax rate would produce a large tax cut for upper-income Americans and pay for it by raising taxes on middle-income families.

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., chairman of the committee, said discussion of the flat tax might lead the panel to continue an item-by-item revamping of the tax law, which was begun in passage of a tax-increase bill this summer. Such an approach would increase the fairness of the tax system without a fundamental rewriting, he added.

Further evidence that a flat tax would shift tax burdens away from upper-income Americans was presented Monday by Joseph A. Pechman, a tax authority with the Brookings Institution.

Although such a plan would simplify tax laws, improve compliance and help ensure that two people in the same circumstances pay the same tax, he told reporters, it "would reduce average tax liabilities for all income classes over $50,000 and increase average tax liabilities below $50,000. At the very top of the income scale, the flat tax would reduce average tax liabilities by 30 percent to 40 percent."

A similar conclusion was reached earlier this year by Joseph J. Minarik, an analyst with CBO, who said a typical flat-tax plan would raise taxes by $243 a year on a $25,000-a-year family, and cut taxes for a $250,000 family by $27,700.

In addition, John E. Chapoton, the ranking tax authority in the Treasury Department, said such a tax would "conflict with the long-standing principle that the amount of a person's federal income tax should be based on the person's ability to pay."

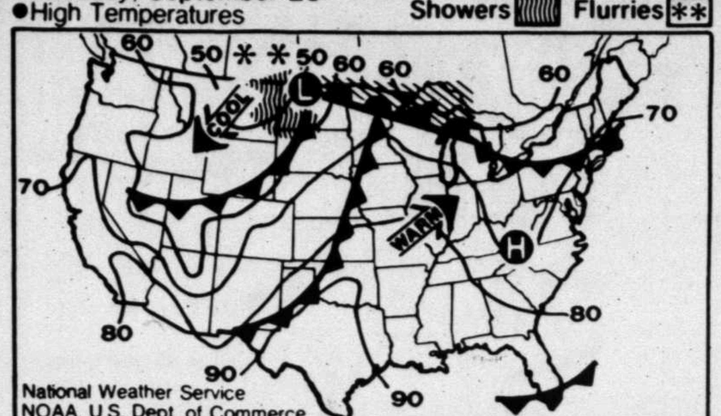

Nevertheless, the concept of a flat tax is popular among lawmakers and, according to polls, among the public as well. President Reagan has expressed interest; Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan has said a flat tax would be fairest of all systems, and presidential counselor Edwin Meese III has said the present system is "immoral."

Under the flat-tax concept, most deductions would be repealed.

The National Weather Service forecasts precipitation in parts of Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, Montana, the Dakotas, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

Rainfall total for year near normal

If several rain drops can be squeezed out of the expected clouds tonight and Wednesday, Midland's rainfall for the year will be normal.

According to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport, there is less than a 20 percent chance tonight and Wednesday for showers and isolated thunderstorms. And if one of those isolated thunderstorms sprinkles .60 of an inch of rain, the NWS said "we'll be right on the line."

But don't expect cooler temperatures. The high Wednesday is expected to continue in the mid-90s.

However, after today's summerlike temperatures, tonight should be a return to fall with the low dipping to the low 60s.

Winds should breeze through southerly to southwesterly at 15-20 mph.

Although the mercury seems to have fixed itself in the mid-90s, Monday's high of 96 was relatively cooler than the record high of 102 set in 1977, but the overnight low of 66 was quite a bit warmer than the record low of 41 set in 1936.

Authorities looking for jail escapees

ODESSA — Authorities here are still looking for four men who escaped from a holding cell adjacent to the municipal courtroom Monday morning.

Police said the four had been brought down from the jail and placed in the holding cell shortly after 10 a.m. to await court action on their cases. The men managed to obtain a key to the cell and flee.

Four or five other prisoners remained behind. The escapees, Jesus Vargas, 31, Ray Martinez Lopez, 23, Jesus Yanez, no age available, and Thomas C. Flores, 24, had been arrested on charges ranging from burglary and felony theft to unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. None of them is considered armed or dangerous, however.

Fund set up for man burned in crash

A savings account to help defray expenses for Randy Sellars, 21, the Midlander who was burned in Friday's crash of a light plane at Warwick Apartments, has been opened at Western State Bank, 1030 Andrews Highway.

Sellars, a computer technician at Albertson's super market, suffered burns over 85 percent of his body when he ran out of his apartment following the crash of the Beechcraft Baron and, according to one witness, was hit by a "wall of flaming gasoline."

He was transported to Midland Memorial Hospital and then flown to the burn center at Lubbock General Hospital, where he was listed in serious condition this morning. He was scheduled to undergo skin graft surgery today.

According to a Midland Memorial Hospital spokesperson, Sellars has first-, second- and third-degree burns, with the third-degree burns covering only his hands and arms. The skin grafts will be made to Sellars' hands and arms, the spokesperson said.

Anyone wishing to contribute to the Sellars fund should see Janice Ham, customer services officer, at Western State Bank.

Big Spring woman dies in accident

BIG SPRING — A 19-year-old Big Spring woman died Monday of injuries sustained in an early morning Monday accident.

The victim was identified as Sabrina Marie Hatfield. She was a passenger in a pickup truck, driven by Johnny Ray Hash, which went out of control in the 100 block of Cedar Street.

Hash and two other passengers, David Scott Brooke, 23, and Mike Kreuse, 19, were admitted to Malone-Hogan Hospital with serious injuries.

Ms. Hatfield was the second person killed in a traffic accident in Big Spring in two weeks.

Baker campaigns to reinforce GOP hold

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate GOP Leader Howard Baker, backed by a wealthy political organization, is laying plans to campaign full time later this fall in a bid to reinforce the Republican hold on the Senate.

He also will be working to help his 26-year-old daughter win a seat in the House.

Baker, whose own Senate term from Tennessee extends through 1984, intends to visit at least a dozen states on behalf of Republican candidates between the scheduled Oct. 8 adjournment of Congress and the Nov. 2 election.

His tentative plans during that span also include at least four fund-raising appearances for his daughter, Cissy. A political novice, she is in a close race with Democrat James Cooper in a newly created Tennessee district that includes Baker's home of Huntsville.

Still more time has been left open on the Baker schedule to leave him the option of making additional appearances on his daughter's behalf.

Baker's determination to campaign virtually full time for three weeks on behalf of fellow Republicans is an indication of the importance the 1982 elections hold for him. He holds power as majority leader of the Senate because his party holds a majority of the seats there.

Should Democrats regain control of the Senate, an event considered unlikely this fall, Baker would return to his less influential position as leader of the minority party.

Sen. Howard Baker

In addition, such campaign activity on behalf of others is a time-tested way of gathering political IOUs, and Baker would be a likely contender for the 1884 GOP president nomination if President Reagan decides against seeking a new term.

Other Republicans whose ambition may extend beyond the Senate also are campaigning for others this fall: Sens. Bob Dole of Kansas, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee; John Tower of Texas, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee; William Armstrong of Colorado, and Ted Stevens of Alaska, the assistant majority leader.

But there is a difference between Baker and the others.

One aide said Stevens, for example, normally charges his travel expenses to the organization of the candidate he is assisting. And Dole, according to his spokesman, rarely agrees to schedule his time more than a week ahead.

Baker, on the other hand, already has committed himself to a detailed daily schedule through Nov. 2 that includes a four-day swing through California, Nevada, Utah and Wyoming and stops in three states — Vermont, Pennsylvania and Virginia — on a single day in late October.

To accomplish this, he has his own pilot who flies him around Tennessee and in other areas where a chartered jet is convenient.

In addition to lending his time, Baker's political action committee, the Republican Majority Fund, already has distributed more than $300,000 this year to Republican candidates and causes. In all, the fund has raised more than $800,000 this year.

Federal law limits a committee such as Baker's to two $5,000 donations per candidate, one for a primary election and another for the general election.

The committee has offered the full $5,000 general election contribution allowed to each of the 33 Republican candidates, either in cash or in-kind contributions such as the cost of a campaign appearance.

Although he is spreading the money evenly, Baker is more careful about where he campaigns. His schedule appears to avoid stops in states where Republican challengers face the most difficult races. For example, no stops are planned in Nebraska, where former Strategic Air Command Gen. Jim Keck faces a difficult race against incumbent Democrat Edward Zorinsky.

But in the final weeks of October, Baker will be campaigning hard for Republican incumbents in Utah, Wyoming, Minnesota, Vermont, Pennsylvania, Connecticut and Indiana; and working as well for candidates in California, Nevada, Tennessee, New Jersey, Virginia. He also intends to help Haley Barbour, running for the Senate in Mississippi, by attending a fund-raising event in Memphis.

Shultz, Gromyko to meet

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz meets Soviet counterpart Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko for the first time today, but the meeting is expected to produce little progress toward improving troubled U.S.-Soviet relations.

Shultz, in New York for the 37th session of the General Assembly, also was scheduled to have breakfast with British Foreign Secretary Francis Pym, one of a series of meetings with the United States' European allies.

U.S. officials would not disclose publicly what Shultz and Gromyko planned to discuss during the Soviet minister's ninth meeting with an American secretary of state.

But one official said privately that Shultz was certain to urge the Soviets to withdraw from Afghanistan and drop their backing for the Cambodian and Polish governments. Shultz and Gromyko also were expected to discuss the nuclear weapons control talks in Geneva.

But U.S. officials say incentive is lacking on both sides to take steps to improve relations.

At the same time, one U.S. official who is an expert on Soviet affairs said the Kremlin is showing interest again in a meeting between President Reagan and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev. The official said the Soviets have raised the subject on four recent occasions, including once with U.S. Ambassador Arthur A. Hartman in Moscow this month.

The official said Gromyko might suggest a summit. But it is unlikely that Shultz will respond — although there is growing support in Washington for a get-acquainted session between Reagan and Brezhnev, the official said.

"There is a sense in which a social meeting in and of itself would be useful," said the official, who did not want to be identified.

Such a meeting might demonstrate to the rest of the world that the United States and Soviet Union are interested in peaceful resolution of their numerous disputes, he said.

Gromyko sent Shultz a congratulatory telegram after his confirmation by the Senate earlier this summer to replace resigned Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., expressing hope for an improvement in U.S.-Soviet ties.

Shultz, however, has followed the Reagan administration position that good relations with Moscow depend on what the United States considers acceptable global behavior by the Soviet Union, and that such behavior has not been forthcoming.

Shultz said at a news conference Aug. 20 that the administration continues to "deplore" Soviet support for the martial-law regime in Poland and many of the Kremlin's policies elsewhere.

The meeting between Shultz and Gromyko comes as the Reagan administration faces growing resentment from European allies over U.S. sanctions against European firms supplying U.S.-licensed equipment for the Soviet natural gas pipeline project.

Reagan wanted to punish the Soviet Union for its support of the Warsaw government by hindering development of the pipeline that is to supply gas to Western Europe and bring badly needed foreign revenues to Moscow. The European defiance has opened a major rift in U.S. relations with NATO allies.

But the pipeline was not even discussed in a three-hour dinner meeting between Shultz and French Foreign Minister Claude Cheysson Sunday night. It was barely mentioned in Shultz's meeting Monday with West German State Secretary Berndt von Staden.

John Hughes, the State Department's chief spokesman, said it was agreed in advance that Shultz and Cheysson would not discuss the issue because "it is quite clear the United States and France disagree on this particular aspect of the relationship."

and reportedly agreed to begin a full-scale, judicial investigation of the massacre. Meanwhile, an investigation panel appointed by Lebanese President Amin Gemayel was to begin hearing testimony from survivors in military court today.

Cahana called Begin "a very good friend" and "the most humanist politician in this world." But he added that "for a Jewish state, as a Jew, I want that its history should not be tainted." He said that throughout its fight-filled history and recently during battles in Lebanon, "Israel did everything to preserve its human posture from beginning to end." The Israeli leaders' inability to properly disassociate Israel from the massacre "tarnished" the nation, Cahana said.

While Israel's summer shelling of West Beirut killed and injured many Lebanese civilians along with Palestinian military, Cahana said the shelling was "surgical" in nature and was not indiscriminate. Cahana blamed the PLO for much of the suffering inflicted on civilians, saying PLO fighters either killed civilians or used them as "shields" against Israeli attacks.

Cahana predicted that "in a very democratic way, if he (Begin) does not step down, he will be toppled."

About 400,000 Israelis reportedly jammed the grounds of Tel Aviv City Hall Saturday evening to protest the massacre. The demonstrating crowd, largest in the country's history, reportedly demanded resignations from both Begin and Sharon. Cahana said "it's beautiful that the Israelis are more and more asking him to step down."

He added that despite the tragic massacre, the war in Lebanon was a victory over international terrorism. "Internationally, terrorism was crushed," he said. "The whole West can now sleep in peace."

Cahana stressed the difference between the PLO and Palestinians. "I as a former Israeli, have a great friendship and love for the Palestinians." But, he added, "the PLO is the danger of the world...we can't let the PLO become strong again."

Cahana also indicated that the war in Lebanon helped prove that Israel and the United States have clear conventional military superiority over the Soviet Union. He said that while he is not a military expert, Israel's advanced weaponry apparently neutralized Soviet-supplied weapons and showed the Russians to be a "paper tiger."

Administration may enter busing cases

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is considering going to court to help school districts who want to alter several court-ordered school busing plans.

William Bradford Reynolds, assistant attorney general in charge of the Justice Department's Civil Rights Division, confirmed Monday that the department may enter some cases. He declined to identify the school districts, however.

"We have said all along that the Justice Department is opposed to relying on mandatory busing as a remedial technique to desegregate public schools," Bradford said. "That remedy has failed to work in school district after school district.

Clements' wife to be in Midland

Rita Clements, wife of Gov. Bill Clements, was to make a brief stop in Midland and Odessa today for ribbon-cutting ceremonies at the governor's phone centers.

Clements is seeking re-election against Democrat Mark White.

Mrs. Clements was to be at the Midland Phone Center, 1900 W. Illinois Ave., from 4 to 5 p.m. The public is invited.

Martin: Only one investigator took part in raid

By RICHARD ORR
Staff Writer

A story in Friday's Reporter-Telegram said two investigators from District Attorney Vern Martin's office helped conduct Thursday night's bingo raid at VFW Post 7208 on Taylor Street.

A subsequent story Saturday said Martin had not been notified of the raid in advance, but it failed to resolve the question of how two of his investigators could have been involved if Martin was not aware of the raid until it was over.

In an interview Monday, Martin said only one of his three investigators participated in the raid. The investigator, David Byrnes, said a Texas Ranger contacted him by phone at home at 6:45 p.m. Thursday — an hour or so before the raid got under way from State Comptroller Bob Bullock's Midland office on North Big Spring Street.

Byrnes was asked if he could assist in the raid and did so because it's common for law enforcement officers to help one another, Martin said. When it was over, Byrnes contacted Martin and told him what had happened.

Since reporters recognized Byrnes as one of Martin's investigators, they had no idea that Bullock's agents were apparently in error when they pointed out a second, unfamiliar man as also being an investigator for Martin.

Martin indicated Monday that while prosecuting the operators of bingo games is not high on his list of law enforcement priorities, bingo is illegal in Midland County and he would therefore have to present the comptroller's case to the grand jury next week.

No one was arrested during the raid, but about eight persons were named as operators and were told to report to local authorities Friday. Neither the police department nor the sheriff's office participated in the raid.

No charges are expected to to be filed against some 150 bingo players who had to leave their names and addresses with the officers before being allowed to leave the club Thursday night.

Operating an illegal bingo game is a felony punishable by up to 10 years in prison and a maximum $5,000 fine. Playing bingo illegally is a misdemeanor.

Homeowners can apply for premium reduction

AUSTIN — Texas homeowners will be able to apply for an insurance premium reduction credit for certain security devices after Oct. 1.

That is the effective date of a rule set by the State Board of Insurance in compliance with HB 764, Acts of the 67th Legislature.

The rule permits a premium reduction of 5 percent for homeowners who have installed security devices such as deadbolts, solid core doors and special locking devices on windows and garage doors.

"The bill is very specific about what security devices will entitle the homeowner to a credit," said William P. Daves, chairman of the State Board of Insurance. "Only those specific devices named in the law will make the homeowner eligible for the credit."

To get the credit, a homeowner must apply for an inspection of his or her property and have a qualified inspector, trained by the Texas Crime Prevention Institute in San Marcos, certify that the property is in compliance with the law.

It is the policy of the Institute that no fee be charged for these inspections.

Application for an inspection must be made to the Texas Crime Prevention Institute. An application form has been developed for this purpose and application forms are being provided to local insurance agents, police and sheriff's departments.

If authorities are unable to provide the application, contact the Institute by calling 1-512-392-0166 or writing to Director, Texas Crime Prevention Institute, Institute of Criminal Justice Studies, Southwest Texas State University, San Marcos 78666.

Some of the specifications for the reduction include the following:

1. Exterior doors must be solid core doors that are 1¾ inches thick and must be secured by dead-bolt locks;

2. Metal doors must be secured by dead-bolt locks;

3. Double doors must meet the specifications for exterior doors and must have the inactive door secured by header and threshold bolts that penetrate metal strike plates, and in the case of glass located within 40 inches of header and threshold bolts, must have the bolts flush-mounted in the edge of the door;

4. Sliding glass doors must be secured by secondary locking devices to prevent lifting and prying;

5. Dutch doors must have concealed flush-bolt locking devices to interlock upper and lower halves and must be secured by a deadbolt lock;

6. Garage doors must be equipped with key-operated lock devices;

7. And windows must be secured by auxiliary locking devices.

Midland is among the cities with trained inspectors in its police department, while Midland County also a trained inspector in its sheriff's department.

Texas, New Mexico hope Supreme Court recommendation will settle water feud

PECOS, Texas (AP) — Texas and New Mexico officials say they hope a recommendation to the U.S. Supreme Court that could come this week will settle a longstanding feud between the states over nearly four trillion gallons of Pecos River water.

Texas sued New Mexico in 1974, claiming its western neighbor has shortchanged Texas by 1.2 million acre-feet of water over the last 20 years, said Jean Breitenstein, a 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals justice appointed special master in the case.

New Mexico controls the source of the river and claims it has apportioned the water fairly.

But officials in this West Texas city say they have received so little water from the river that farmers who use it for irrigation are being forced into bankruptcy while the New Mexico valley is green and thriving.

Breitenstein, who heard arguments in the case six weeks ago, told the Pecos Enterprise this week that he may issue his recommendation as early as this week.

An agreement between the states, called the 1947 Pecos River Compact, established a commission for mediating disputes and set a formula for measuring the river's water flow — a formula the states interpret

TEA proposes funds for driver training

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Education Agency has recommended each of 20 regional education service centers in the state receive a $10,000 base sum to assist in training school bus drivers and that the remainder of state allocations be distributed regionally according to how many drivers are trained.

The plan has yet to be approved by TEA Commissioner Raymon Bynum.

The Legislature appropriated $500,000 to set up the training sessions on a regional basis, and Gabe Gilley, TEA director of school transportation, said the bulk of the funds will be used to conduct the training programs. Any leftover funds would be spent on manuals and updating training films, Gilley said.

The cost for training drivers differs from region to region, said Ernest Chambers, director of regional program development. "In densely populated areas, we'll have 20 to 30 (drivers) in a class," Chambers said. "But in West Texas, classes might have up to six or eight so the cost per driver is greater."

New bus drivers must attend a 20-hour course which certifies them for three years. Every three years, drivers must take an eight-hour refresher course, Gilley said.

Midland is the headquarters for the region which includes the counties of Andrews, Brewster, Crane, Culberson, Ector, Glasscock, Howard, Jeff Davis, Loving, Martin, Midland, Pecos, Presidio, Reagan, Reeves, Terrell, Upton, Ward and Winkler.

Attorneys will continue to argue former CIA agent illegally arrested

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawyers for former CIA agent Edwin P. Wilson plan to press their claim that he was illegally arrested even though a federal judge has rejected the argument without comment.

After a four-hour hearing Monday, U.S. District Judge John H. Pratt denied Wilson a hearing on whether the government scheme that lured him from his haven in Libya to an arrest in New York City constituted such misconduct that he should be set free. That claim has been the central thrust of defense efforts on Wilson's behalf so far.

Pratt set Nov. 22 for Wilson's trial on charges that he failed to register as a Libyan agent and that he shipped explosives illegally to a terrorist training school in Libya in 1976 and 1977.

But Pratt granted a defense motion to give Wilson a separate trial at an unscheduled date on charges that he conspired unsuccessfully to assassinate a Libyan dissident living in Egypt. Pratt said the charges were substantially different and trying them with the explosives charges "may be unduly prejudicial" to Wilson.

Wilson's chief attorney, Herald Price Fahringer, made clear in court that despite Pratt's ruling he still would raise the illegal arrest claim before federal judges in Houston and northern Virginia, where the former spy faces other federal charges.

WILSON'S OTHER attorney, John Keats, said later the defense would not appeal Pratt's ruling before Wilson's trial here, but he did not rule out appealing Pratt's decision if Wilson is convicted here.

Wilson, who was in court here for the morning session of the hearing, is being held at an undisclosed location in the New York City area in lieu of bonds totaling $60 million in the three cases.

Fahringer said that Wilson, who was in Libya when he was indicted in April 1980, was persuaded to leave by businessman Ernest Keiser. Fahringer said Keiser represented himself as a consultant to the National Security Council, seeking Wilson's help in setting up an intelligence project in Central America.

According to Fahringer, Keiser showed Wilson a letter at the Zurich, Switzerland, airport in June of this year, purportedly from the National Security Council, promising him a safe haven in the Dominican Republic.

When Wilson arrived in the Dominican Republic the next day, he was denied entry and put on a plane to New York City where he was arrested.

Assistant U.S. Attorney E. Lawrence Barcella Jr. said that the government repeatedly told Keiser not to use the National Security Council ploy with Wilson but "not as a matter of legality — just for appearances."

BARCELLA SAID Keiser, nevertheless, had concocted the letter which Barcella said "did not promise immunity from prosecution. At best, it promised immunity from arrest. To that extent, the letter was a fraud but fraud is permitted" as a means of returning defendants for trial.

Fahringer relied on what he called "somewhat of a renegade decision" by the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals that he said prohibited the government from using fraud to return potential defendants to this country. But Barcella said an unbroken string of Supreme Court decisions and subsequent 2nd Circuit rulings showed that fraud was permitted in such an effort and only conduct like torture was prohibited.

"We could have promised him a papal audience, a joint address before Congress and a weekend with a starlet of his choice and it wouldn't matter," Barcella told Pratt. Pratt gave no indication of his reasoning for siding with Barcella.

The judge also denied a flock of other defense motions, including one to disqualify two prosecution lawyers from trying the case.

The judge, however, asked both sides to submit further arguments on the question of whether counts four through nine of the indictment, each alleging a specific transfer of explosives or related material to Libya, were properly brought in the District of Columbia.

Wilson also faces federal trials in Houston on Oct. 27 on charges of shipping additional explosives to Libya and in northern Virginia on Nov. 15 on charges of illegally smuggling weapons out of this country. One of those weapons was allegedly used later in the assassination of a Libyan dissident in Bonn, West Germany.

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Cowboy-actor Gene Autry, who now rides herd on the California Angels, celebrates a birthday today. Also born on this date: Actresses Greer Garson and Anita Ekberg, country musician Jerry Lee Lewis and New Orleans Saints' coach "Bum" Phillips. Although business and financial affairs will be sensitive in the coming months, you are able to steer a careful and profitable course. New opportunities for growth deserve prompt attention. As family members draw closer together, you spend more and more time thinking about romance. Only you can choose that special someone who will make your life complete.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Take a career risk if you know you are right. It could be the only way to break up a logjam at work. You and loved ones draw closer together.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Broaden horizons to become more interesting companion. Business outlook brightens when you take steps to improve a product or marketing plan. Stay neutral in family dispute.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Postpone celebrating a happy event until all loved ones involved can be present. Someone who works behind the scenes helps you. You are able to resolve a financial problem.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Make the first move to mend a rift at place of employment. Member of opposite sex may be an unknown factor in the dispute. Seek partners who share your interests.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You now feel that you are truly a part of a group. Two people you have been involved with romantically could get together and compare notes. Be ready to answer questions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Financial independence helps you make the right career choices. Travel is favored. Take control of the purse strings until you and mate reach a better understanding.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The power of suggestion and constructive behavior advance joint financial ventures. You could receive a gift of money. Forge ahead with your career or educational plans.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): An old debt will be paid in full today. Invest the money wisely. People who work behind the scenes prove very helpful. Avoid going overboard when on a shopping expedition.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Devote your energies to tasks immediately at hand. Someone approaches you with a difficult personal problem. Try to help without lending money or becoming directly involved.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Short business trips prove more useful than long ones. Pay closer attention to detail, especially if you are in the process of signing contracts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Get an early start to beat the competition. Routine matters deserve prompt attention. Resist a temptation to change jobs—you could lose benefits.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Light is shed on an area previously shrouded in mystery. Catch up on phone calls and correspondence. Something you learn today could remove an emotional burden.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ♡	Pass	Pass	Dble
2 ♡	3 ♠	Pass	3 ♠
Pass	3 NT	Pass	4 ◇
Pass	4 ♠	Pass	6 ♠
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♡.

Sometimes you should be grateful that you have opponents. They tell you how to play the hand.

The bidding shown is from a rubber bridge game. We would have cue-bid hearts at our second turn with the South cards, because three spades isn't 100 percent forcing and to be dropped short of game with this power house would have been most distressing. But South compensated with an over aggressive jump to slam—especially since North had warned him that some of his values were in hearts, where they might have been useless to South.

Had there been no bidding by East-West, declarer would almost surely have gone down to defeat in his contract of six spades. He would quite likely win the ace of hearts and use the entry to dummy to take two diamond finesses. Here, however, West's opening bid and free rebid surely marked him with all the missing cards, so declarer cast around for a better line—and found one.

One discard on the ace of hearts would do no good. Indeed, winning the ace of hearts at trick one would lead automatically to the contract's defeat. Instead, declarer played low from dummy at the first trick and ruffed in his hand. Next came three rounds of trumps, followed by the king of clubs.

Obviously, West could not afford to win the ace of clubs, for then declarer would have an entry to dummy to use the good clubs. So he ducked, but it availed him not one whit. Declarer simply continued with a club, and West was end played. No matter which suit he played, he would have to give declarer an entry to the table, and declarer could take four diamond discards on the ace of hearts and three clubs.

Note that this line would succeed even if West could hold off on the ace of clubs for another round. Declarer would then simply concede a diamond trick and make his slam.

A job well-done

A true test of emergency preparedness is a real emergency. An emergency of major proportions occurred last Friday when a twin-engine aircraft crashed into Warwick Apartments on Midland's extreme north side, severely burning the craft's four passengers and an apartment dweller.

Any lingering doubts about the ability of the emergency personnel in Midland to cope with a disaster of these proportions was removed at that point. Police officers, fire fighters, emergency medical personnel worked frantically yet smoothly in a well-orchestrated effort to treat the injured, extinguish the resulting fire that burned 12 apartments in the complex and several vehicles, prevent further accidents and looting of the burned apartments.

Not to be forgotten are the efforts of a number of "good samaritans" who realized their help was needed and pitched in to assist. We can't mention all of them by name; chances are we don't even have all their names. But they know who they are. Let those thoughtful individuals rest assured their help did not go unnoticed. We're appreciative and so are others.

Throughout the crisis, emergency personnel worked well with members of the media and assisted them in every way possible. That's important and the members of the media are grateful.

If there's one black mark in the entire plane crash story it's the fact that a large number of curiosity-seekers stood by and to a degree may have impeded the work of emergency personnel. Crowds will gather at the site of all disasters. That's simply the nature of the beast.

By being at the plane crash site, though, the curious only made the work of emergency personnel more difficult and increased the danger to themselves. It would be much safer and the burden on emergency personnel would be reduced if in the future individuals would control their curiosity and stay away from the location of disaster, at least until later.

A hearty "well-done" to all the emergency personnel and those others who combined efforts following the plane crash. It wasn't the kind of "test" you want to have for emergency personnel. But it is good to know that the city's police officers, fire fighters and medical personnel can perform so well in such extreme situations.

Navy accepts a partner

The Navy and Adm. James D. Watkins, chief of naval operations, must be commended for working out an agreement with the Air Force to share the responsibility of guarding the nation's sea lanes.

The Navy traditionally has rejected sharing such missions with other services. Besides its ships, the Navy maintains its own air wing and Marine landing forces. The Army, however, has relied on Air Force aid to support its military actions.

The agreement will comply with the wishes of Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger, who seeks less interservice rivalry and more coordination among the Army, Air Force, Navy and Marine Corps. Negotiations began last year.

The arrangement calls for the Air Force to conduct long-range B-52 bomber sorties against enemy ships and naval bases and to provide coverage with its fighter aircraft for U.S. warships. The Air Force also would operate AWACS warning and control aircraft with Navy fighter operations and help patrol naval defense lines across the Atlantic.

In turn, the Navy would use its carrier aircraft to provide fighter cover and aid the Air Force in bombing land targets. The two services also would cooperate in the support of Rapid Deployment Forces.

The services working together in this fashion can save millions of dollars in defense funds and provide greater flexibility to the nation's military might. We hope enactment of the agreement will prove beneficial to the defense effort.

Another step in the same direction would be the strengthening of the staff of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, as recommended last summer by the retiring chairman of the joint chiefs, Air Force. Gen. David C. Jones.

Another View:

Last chance for survival

The rapidity and near-unanimity with which Lebanon's Parliament elected Amin Gemayel president this week is one of the few encouraging signs to come out of that country in a long while.

In 20 minutes, without a dissenting vote and with only three abstentions, Amin was named to replace his assassinated brother, Bashir, for a six-year term of office that begins Thursday. Bashir's election, just one month ago, was finally secured only after a number of reluctant deputies were rooted out of their homes and force-marched to the military academy where the voting took place. Even then it took Bashir, without any opponent, hours to secure the necessary minimum of 57 votes on the second ballot. A month ago, only 62 of the Parliament's surviving 92 deputies showed up to vote. For Amin, 80 deputies turned up, and without evident coercion.

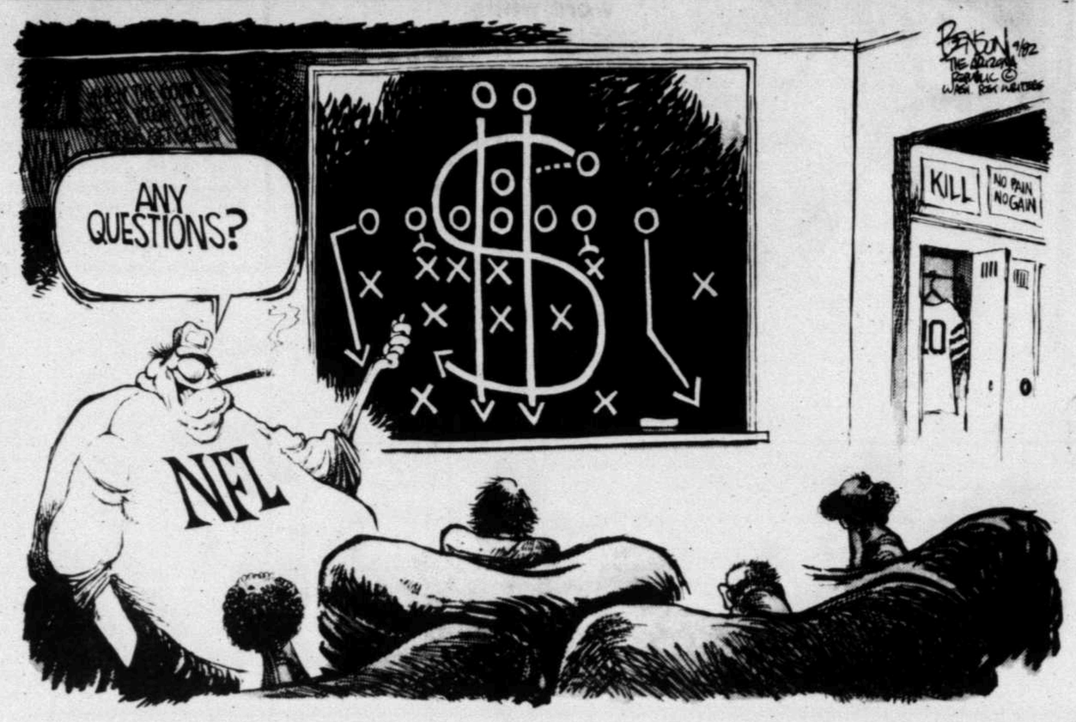

The numbers are significant. What they suggest, at least for now, is a rare impulse toward unity in a country whose chronic religious and cultural divisions have been so heightened and intensified by a decade of bloody strife. Lebanon's president is, by tradition, a Maronite Christian. Amin Gemayel seems to command far greater respect than did his dead brother among the Sunni and Shia Moslem, the Greek Orthodox and Greek Catholic, the Armenian and Druze deputies who together with Maronites make up the Parliament according to a careful and customary distribution of seats. Personality has something to do with that respect, but history has even more. Bashir Gemayel had a great deal of blood on his hands, Christian as well as Moslem. Amin is far less tainted.

More than respect, though, the strong parliamentary vote for Amin reflects a profound and realistic sense of desperation, an awareness that Lebanon may well be facing its last chance to survive. Unless the bloody internecine feuds can be suspended, unless a strong central governing authority can be made to take hold, unless the armed forces of Syria, Israel and the Palestinians leave the country, Lebanon cannot hope to be either peaceful or viable or free.

Achieving any of those needs will be difficult enough. To achieve them all could take a political miracle. Lebanon's blood feuds have so far proved resistant to control. Its feudal tradition works against acceptance of central rule. Syria and Israel claim strategic interests there, and if they cannot protect those interests with their own armies they are likely to try to do so through Lebanese proxies, again undercutting central authority.

The president of Lebanon is not an autocrat. The country's unique confessional structure requires an enormous degree of political and communal cooperation if even minimum effective government is to be possible. If the first tentative step toward cooperation that was taken this week by Lebanon's electors is not now continued and augmented, the chaos and carnage that have for so long been the country's fate will go on.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

AF hid true cost of controversial plane

WASHINGTON — Here we go again: In a shocking replay of a 13-year-old embarrassment, Air Force officials hid from Congress the true cost of a controversial cargo plane during months of heated debate on Capitol Hill.

Jack Anderson

The plane is the Lockheed C-5B Galaxy, a remake of the C-5A, the notorious granddaddy of Pentagon overruns. Back in 1969, the Pentagon brass desperately tried to cover up a $1.36 billion overrun on the original C-5; this year's six-month coverup involved about $1 billion of the true cost of the C-5B.

The Air Force insists that the figure — estimated at $979 million last April — does not constitute an overrun, but merely a price increase caused by inflation. It blamed Congress for causing the price escalation by delaying funding for the plane.

This is word play. An overrun by any other name costs the taxpayers just as much money.

The important point is that the program's cost was the crucial point at issue during congressional debate on the C-5B that began in early May and lasted till the middle of August. The Air Force knew as early as February that the projected cost it had given to Congress was seriously out of date, yet it didn't finally concede this until August, when the C-5B was on the verge of congressional approval.

In other words, throughout the months of debate, Congress didn't have the facts on the key point at issue. The C-5B won a close victory; if Congress had been told that the true cost of the program would be substantially higher, the vote might well have gone the other way.

An Air Force spokesman told my associate Donald Goldberg it isn't clear when the Air Force realized the figures it had given Congress were too low. But internal messages between Pentagon officials and their colleagues at Andrews Air Force Base, outside Washington, D.C. and Wright Patterson Air Force Base, in Ohio, lay bare the Air Force's duplicity.

In one message, dated Feb. 23, one Air Force official pointed out that the price escalation rates on which the C-5B program was based were six months out of date. This meant that the actual cost was already $657.5 million more than the Air Force was acknowledging.

"It is not possible to implement the Secretary of Defense's decision to buy 50 C-5 aircraft with the funds as outlined in the message unless they are adjusted," the message warned bluntly.

By April 8, the true cost had risen even higher over the projections the Air Force was still publicly clinging to. "This office may not be able to comply with ... the funding constraints in the ... president's budget," advised an official at Wright Patterson AFB.

An April 21 message from an Andrews AFB official to Air Force headquarters reiterated the warning. While noting that the budget would be adequate for the C-5B if 1980 dollars were used, the official recognized the folly of projecting costs on two-year-old data by stating: "When this profile is escalated using the Jan. 1982 rates, a shortfall of $979 million exists."

But none of this was known to members of Congress as they considered approval or rejection of the C-5B during May, June and July. Critics of the C-5B, who were already arguing in favor of a cheaper alternative, could not get the Air Force to admit that its cost figures were unrealistically low.

Finally, under pressure from Rep. Norm Dicks, D-Wash., and Dina Razor, director of the Project on Military Procurement, a public-interest watchdog group, the Air Force in early August provided figures that showed the C-5B would cost even more than the critics had charged.

By then, the congressional delegation from Georgia, where the planes will be built, had all its ducks in a row. The C-5B was approved despite the new disclosures.

CROWDED PLANET: The baby boom in Third World countries may pose a threat to international stability, according to an unpublished Senate Foreign Relations Committee briefing paper.

"The staggering growth of world population," it points out, "will be one of the strongest forces shaping the future of human society." The report predicts that population growth could reach 90 million a year by the turn of the century.

Countries like Pakistan, Bangladesh and Kenya currently have such whopping birthrates that it will "likely result in intolerable strains on the fragile environments and socio-economic systems of these societies," the staff paper notes.

The report was highly critical of the Agency for International Development for trying to solve the overpopulation problem by dumping tons of contraceptives on Third World countries that were unwilling or unable to put them to proper use.

The Reagan administration, philosophically cool to family planning programs, recently tried to "zero out" more than $200 million in population-related funds from the budget, but the attempt was beaten back.

HEADLINES AND FOOTNOTES: Rev. Jerry Falwell tried to get through the Gates of Heaven and failed. It wasn't the portals guarded by St. Peter, but a stretch of white water on West Virginia's Gauley River. The Moral Majority evangelist's raft threw him off as he was trying to negotiate the turbulent stretch. A spokesman said Falwell thinks the rapid should be renamed the Gates of Hell.

— At Fairchild Air Force Base, Wash., a simulated prisoner-of-war camp is part of the survival training school. Until last year, a fictitious national flag flew over the POW camp. Now an authentic East German flag flies above the stockade — for "realism" and "familiarization purposes," according to an Air Force spokesman.

INSIDE REPORT:

Reagan chooses 'arms for Araby' policy

WASHINGTON — Unwilling to punish Israel, President Reagan is turning toward fatter arms deliveries to pro-American Arab states as proof of even-handedness in the Mideast and as a restraint against future Israeli adventures.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

The move is certain to provoke Israel and likely to encounter resistance in Congress, but Reagan has no other options. Otherwise, Arab countries such as Egypt, Jordan and the Persian Gulf states will conclude that American impotence in curbing Israel's bloody Lebanon operations puts the U.S. in Israel's hip pocket.

The first signal of the post-Lebanon policy switch is the decision to give the tiny Gulf state of Bahrain its own air force. Jordan will soon be ticketed for new aircraft and a mobile air defense system. In Egypt, President Hosni Mubarak privately warns the U.S. that some measure of arms balance in the Middle East is essential to prevent new runaway military operations by Israel (described to intimates by Reagan as "David" transformed into "Goliath").

The turn to higher arms shipments for the Arabs is dictated by the president's refusal even to consider punitive measures against Israel. Reagan has ruled out any administration support for cutting the nearly $3 billion in annual economic and military aid to Israel. White House insiders angrily deny published reports that Reagan wants to maneuver Begin out of office.

Thus, the only remaining way to signal U.S. support to Washington's Arab allies lies in building up their puny military establishments. That neatly fits Pentagon strategic thinking going back to the early Persian Gulf crisis following the Islamic revolution in Iran. The Defense Intelligence Agency (DIA) has warned for months that anti-U.S. sentiment born out of the Palestinian issue threatens to wreck the Rapid Deployment Force; more arms for Arabs could soften that mood.

Policymakers agree an overt crackdown on Begin would better convince the Arabs that the U.S. is a reliable mediator between Israel and the Arabs. But with that ruled out, one high official asked us, "What else is left but military aid?"

The $180 million cash-and-carry arms package for Bahrain, which went to a skeptical Congress last Friday, will be followed by a larger arms package for Jordan. King Hussein is ready to accept the Reagan Palestinian peace plan if other Arab states agree and if Begin can be talked out of his outright rejection.

The most important arms aid under Pentagon study is destined for Egypt, the only Arab country that has signed a peace treaty with Israel. The Lebanon crisis dangerously undermined Mubarak, forcing him to withdraw his ambassador to Tel Aviv. Last week nearly 200 right-wing Moslem extremists were arrested and jailed for plotting Mubarak's overthrow as an American ally and an Israeli treaty partner.

Visiting Cairo early this month, Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger got an earful from Mubarak and Defense Minister Abu Ghazala. He was told Egypt's military needs must be met, both to compensate for Israel's awesome might and to strengthen Egypt's role as protector of Somalia and the Sudan against Soviet-backed Ethiopia and Libya.

The question now is whether pre-election congressional sentiment for Israel, remarkably intact despite the Beirut massacre, will remain that way in the new Congress. Sen. Robert Kasten, the conservative Republican chairman of the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee on Foreign Aid, was ready last week to add $425 million to Reagan's Israeli aid request. One reason: the prospect of higher Arab arms sales.

Kasten was supported by at least five of the subcommittee's nine members. State Department officials, belatedly learning details of the bill, intervened. Headlines trumpeting a half-billion-dollar aid increase for Israel but no increase for Arab states, they suggested, would seem a reward for Israel at a time when the president was begging Begin to behave. Kasten agreed to delay the vote.

Aid for Israel therefore will stay at current levels for now. But the portent of Kasten's aborted move was clear: The new plan to increase Arab arms aid may prove yet again the intractability of the Middle East for an American president.

CHARLEY REESE

U.N. serves only enemies of the U.S.

Now that so many Americans are on short rations, it is a good time to push the push-overs in the Congress to stop the flow of American tax dollars into the United Nations.

Charley Reese

Whatever its intentions, the United Nations today is an organization which is solidly anti-American, anti-capitalist, anti-human rights, and even anti-plain ordinary honesty.

The United Nations bureaucracy is filled with Soviet nationals and communists. Every single organization has consequently been perverted to reflect Soviet policy and views.

Year in, year out, the West is the whipping boy at the United Nations. The United States is condemned, maligned and ridiculed while the Soviet Union and other Communist nations get a free ride. The United Nations has yet to condemn the Soviet Union by name for invading Afghanistan. The cover-up by the United Nations of the evidence that the Soviets are using poison gases and lethal biological weapons in Afghanistan, Laos and Cambodia is an international disgrace.

The Soviets have taken over the international organization, not only by putting a KGB officer in charge of the UN personnel department, but by forming a working alliance with the so-called developing nations and the Arab bloc.

The Arabs support the Soviet Union and the Soviets support them in their absurd vendetta against Israel. The African states support the Soviets and the Soviets support them in their racist vendetta against the Republic of South Africa.

Racial segregation in South Africa or elsewhere may be morally reprehensible (I think it is) but (1) it is an internal affair of South Africa; (2) in an age of mass slaughters, torture and slave labor, it is hardly a human rights priority; and (3) it most definitely is no threat to world peace.

Yet in 1981, while the Soviets ravaged Afghanistan, ruthlessly suppressed Solidarity in Poland; and employed poison gas against people in Laos and Cambodia, the United Nations accumulated this record, according to a Heritage Foundation study:

It abused South Africa in 61 of the initial 108 meetings, adopted 45 resolutions against South Africa, heard 353 speeches dealing with apartheid (segregation) or Namibia (formerly Southwest Africa, which is administered by South Africa); employed almost 200 full-time Secretariat employees who work almost exclusively against South Africa; supported 15 subsidiary programs, organs, and funds against South Africa; set aside five days "in solidarity with the struggling people of South Africa;" and dedicated three special weeks for the same purpose.

The taxpayers of the United States are paying 40 percent of the bill for this nonsense. Talk about moronic masochism, we are funding our enemies and the enemies of our friends to abuse us and them.

There is not one reason to maintain the illusion of the United Nations as an even partially worthwhile organization. It is totally corrupt. Its statistics and studies are no longer reliable since it's been found that facts are suppressed and fiction included to suit the propaganda purposes of the anti-West bloc; the so-called humanitarian agencies have been corrupted and are used to fund terrorists (American taxpayers also provide Fidel Castro with over $100 million worth of food via the United Nations); and the United Nations charter has been shredded by these crooks and tinhorn dictators who dominate the world body.

We should pressure our congressmen and senators to withdraw the United States from this abysmal organization or at the very least cut our contribution to its rightful proportion which would be about 150th instead of 40 percent of the annual budget.

Since the United Nations serves only the Soviets, the Arabs, and the radical African states, let them pay for it and move the organization to Stalingrad or Upper Volta.

With 13 million Americans unemployed and our poor, our elderly and our children being told to tighten their belts, any congressman who votes to continue funding this stinking mess called the U.N. deserves to be retired forthwith.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, Sept. 28, the 271st day of 1982. There are 94 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Sept. 28, 1781, American forces began the Revolutionary War siege of British forces at Yorktown Heights in Virginia.

On this date:

— In 1939, Germany and the Soviet Union agreed on a plan to partition Poland in World War II.

— In 1968, French President Charles de Gaulle declared that France could get along without the European Common Market but assured West Germany it could not count on French help in the event of a Soviet attack.

— In 1969, Britain sent additional troops to Northern Ireland as violence between Catholics and Protestants flared anew.

— In 1970, Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nassar died of a heart attack at age 52.

Ten years ago: Japan and China agreed to end a state of war and establish diplomatic relations.

Guard accused of murder feels life over

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP) — A prison guard accused of going on a rampage and killing 13 people — five of them his children — believes his own life is over, a friend says.

Late Monday, guard George Banks was visited by Robert Brunson, a friend who helped talk Banks into surrendering. Banks was being held under constant watch after threatening suicide at the Luzerne County prison.

"He said, 'It's all over. My kids are gone. My life is over.' I told him some people still care about him," Brunson told the Wilkes-Barre Times-Leader.

Brunson said Banks requested the visit, which lasted about an hour.

Meanwhile, family members prepared for more funeral services today after seven of the victims were buried in private services.

Banks, 40, is suspected of killing five of his own children, the four women who bore them, two other children and a bystander. Another bystander was critically wounded in the rampage, which occurred at two residences Saturday. Banks has been formally charged so far with five of the slayings.

Affidavits filed through Luzerne County detective James Zardecki with District Justice Joseph Verespy, of Plains Township, indicated Banks admitted guilt in the slayings.

"I know I killed them," Banks allegedly told Zardecki after a report that his children were alive.

A funeral mass was scheduled today for Raymond Hall Jr., who was gunned down as he left a party at his brother-in-law's house during the shooting spree.

Hall, 24, the father of a 13-month-old daughter, was slain outside a house where eight of the victims were massacred. A companion, James Olsen, 22, was in critical but stable condition with a gunshot wound to the chest.

Private funeral services were scheduled at the families' convenience for five victims. Their burial expenses will be paid from the Luzerne County coroners fund because the family has no money, deputy coroner Harry Hyman said.

On Monday, two separate services were held in private for seven people slaughtered in the killing spree.

About 75 family members and friends attended a 20-minute non-denominational service for four of the people shot to death.

"There were a lot of people crying. Many of them had tears in their eyes," said the Rev. Joseph Borda, who presided at the service in nearby Swoyerstown.

A service was held in Wilkes-Barre for three other victims.

Earlier Monday, state officials said Banks threatened to commit suicide three weeks ago while stationed in a guard tower at a state prison in Camp Hill.

"On Sept. 6, George Banks did say he would commit suicide. He was immediately relieved of duty and taken to Holy Spirit Hospital for review," said Ken Robinson, spokemsan for the state Bureau of Corrections.

Banks was released from the hospital and had arranged a meeting with the psychiatrist at the prison, where he had worked since 1980.

Man's toe replaces finger

HONOR, Mich. (AP) — A hunting accident that nearly cost a teen-ager his right hand apparently hasn't discouraged him from the sport — and he'll use a thumb that used to be a toe to hold the gun.

"I've got a new shotgun and I've shot a couple times since," said Mark Rhodes, 15. "I am going to try again for a deer this year."

Rhodes lost his right thumb Nov. 15 when his shotgun discharged on a deer hunting trip. His hand was severely damaged, requiring six operations to repair.

During the most recent surgery on Aug. 26, the second toe on Mark's right foot was transplanted to his hand, said his surgeon, Dr. Ronald Clark.

The result is that Rhodes will have a "pretty functional hand," Clark said.

With the new thumb, he expects the youth to have motion, feeling and the ability to write. He also will need further surgery to the rest of his hand.

"If he had done this in 1965, or even 1970, he wouldn't have much of a hand left," said Clark.

VA programs inadequate, report says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Veterans Administration health care centers are providing inadequate services for women despite the growing number of female veterans, congressional auditors have concluded.

In a report prepared for Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, the General Accounting Office said VA health care programs have typically been oriented to male health care needs because most veterans are male.

The report said 742,000 veterans, about 2 percent of the total, are women. The proportion is growing rapidly, said the report, which was released Monday.

Before 1975, women made up only 2 percent of the nation's military strength, but this had increased nearly 6 percent in 1977 and is expected to reach 12 percent in 1984.

Despite that, the GAO said:

—Only one of the VA medical centers visited by the GAO team had reviewed medical charts to monitor the completeness of female patients' medical examinations. This center, in Syracuse, N.Y., found that pelvic examinations had been done for 27 percent of the women, breast examinations for 40 percent and pap smears for none. All are techniques for detecting cancer in women.

—VA has not adequately considered the increasing female veteran population in long-range planning."

Dollar holds steady on European money markets

LONDON (AP) — The dollar held steady on Europe's money markets early today, notching marginal gains against some currencies following what dealers called discouraging U.S. trade figures. Gold prices eased in quiet trading.

Foreign exchange dealers noted the U.S. trade deficit of $7.08 billion dampened the dollar, despite its improvement against the Japanese yen.

The U.S. currency closed in Tokyo earlier at 269.50 yen, its highest level there in 5¼-years, despite Bank of Japan intervention to shore up the the Japanese currency.

Dealers noted, however, that continuing political undertainty in West Germany was still helping the dollar. In Milan, it posted at 1,423 lire, just under the record high of 1,423.05 lire during trading Monday and slightly up on Monday's late 1,422.75-lire rate.

In London, it cost $1.6965 to buy one British pound, against Monday's late rate of $1.7030.

Other early rates compared to Monday's late levels:

7.1550 French francs, slightly up from 7.1525.

2.5325 German marks, slightly up from 2.5310.

2.1677 Swiss francs, down from 2.1695.

2.7725 Dutch guilders, up from 2.7690.

1.23475 Canadian dollars, slightly up from 1.2346.

The price of gold opened in Zurich at $409.50 an ounce, $3 down on Monday's close. But it later edged up to $410.25.

In London, the precious metal opened at $408.50 an ounce, $5.50 down from Monday's close. The center's five major bullion houses later "fixed" the recommended morning trading price at $409.65 an ounce.

Israeli cabinet wants full judicial inquiry

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Israeli cabinet decided today to set up a full judicial inquiry into Israel's conduct during the Beirut massacre of hundreds of Palestinians, Energy Minister Yitzhak Berman said today.

Berman told reporters as he emerged from the cabinet meeting that the ministers had agreed to the inquiry. He gave no details.

The cabinet was still meeting and an announcement was expected later.

Berman submitted his resignation last week because of Prime Minister Menachem Begin's refusal at the time to set up a judicial inquiry into the massacre, which has outraged the world and severely shaken the Jewish state.

Berman said that despite the latest decision, his resignation still stood.

His announcement confirmed predictions that all cabinet ministers now supported an independent, full judicial inquiry into the bloodbath at the Sabra and Chatilla camps Sept. 16-18.

The camps were then under control of Israeli forces, which allowed Christian militiamen to enter the camps with the stated purpose of routing Palestinian guerrillas believed hiding there. Israeli army commanders say they were unaware at first that the militiamen were slaughtering civilians.

MMH governing boards to meet Thursday afternoon

Midland Memorial Hospital's governing boards will meet in their regular monthly meeting Thursday afternoon in the medical staff conference room at MMH.

The trustees meeting, which will be at 12:30 p.m., will include an update on MMH's indigent care policy, consideration of the 1983 fiscal year capital equipment budget and an update on the certificate of need applications for the chemical dependency and the expansion.

Other items on the agenda include a report on management evaluation, effects of the May 29 increase in the hospital's compensation program and reports from the standing committees.

The directors meeting, set for 2 p.m., includes consideration for the approval of the capital equipment budget, consideration of financial statements, transfer of funds, tax office reports, approval of any bids and letting of contracts and reports from the standing committees.

IRS commissioner warns wealthy who invest in exotic tax shelters

WASHINGTON (AP) — Internal Revenue Service Commissioner Roscoe L. Egger is warning upper-income Americans who invest in exotic tax-avoidance schemes: "Participating in abusive tax shelters can be hazardous to your wealth."

In testimony prepared for a hearing today by a House Ways and Means subcommittee, Egger pledged an all-out campaign against fraudulent shelters.

"I wish to make it very clear to individuals considering investing in tax shelters, and to those thinking of starting one, that the risks are now substantial," Egger said. "We intend to vigorously impose the new fines and penalties enacted by Congress (earlier this year) and, when appropriate, criminally prosecute those responsible."

The "abusive tax shelters" to which Egger referred are investments entered into chiefly to get large, quick tax deductions and with little expectation of making a profit.

"Much of what is being marketed today is not a tax shelter at all, but outright fraud," Egger said.

Egger outlined one recently uncovered way to beat the tax collector — an involved scheme in which the government, through tax refunds, provided the cash required to finance the investment. He said about 5,200 people invested in the scheme over the last three years, wiping out as much as $62 million of their tax liability.

The IRS now has under examination 281,000 returns that appear to involve abusive shelters. Over the past 11 months, the agency completed auditing 61,772 such returns and found what it contends is a tax underpayment of $824.3 million — an average of more than $11,000 per return.

During the same 11 months, criminal prosecutions were recommended against 81 promoters or brokers of shelters and 30 were convicted. Those 81 cases involve 13,000 investors and an estimated additional tax liability of $2.6 billion, the IRS said.

Tax shelters became a hot political topic earlier this year when it was disclosed that Attorney General William French Smith invested in two oil and gas shelters that would have yielded tax deductions of about $3 for each $1 invested. Smith later announced he would pare back his deductions.

Most tax shelters are devised only for investors in the 50 percent income tax bracket. Although there are numerous tax-avoidance plans that meet IRS approval, the agency is especially wary of any promising big, immediate deductions and of those that are entered into late in the year.

Most shelters take advantage of special provisions in tax law that were enacted as an incentive to investment — such as the 10-percent investment credit and depreciation on property.

FALL 82 • A TOUCH OF Adventure

Traditional, tailored look evident in menswear

By TIMOTHY HAWKINS
Los Angeles Times

NEW YORK — For spring 1983, menswear designers here are telling a touching story. They are all talking about the texture, feel and mix of fabrics.

A touch of class is the theme of most collections, with the traditional, classic silhouettes and details popular in recent seasons still prevailing.

Ralph Lauren says he has gone beyond the American preppie, Ivy League or natural-shoulder look for which he is known, to what he calls a "cosmopolitan" look. "It's not English country or polished city but a clean-tailored look that travels well," says Lauren. "It has a lot of flair but is a less obvious statement."

Lauren says the big news in his collection is his use of as many different textures and fabrics in sport coats and suitings for spring as in his more elaborate fall line. He's using linens, Egyptian cottons, what he calls "crunchy cottons," nubby silks and lightweight tropical wools for clothing that is often accented with thick-to-thin "antique" stripes. His traditional Fair Isle pullover sweaters and vests come in soft sherbet pastels and are pattern-mixed with striped-linen shirtings. He is also touchy about mixing solid, cabled cashmere sweaters with subtly striped silk sport coats.

"BASICALLY, I always do the same body of work, and, within that, things happen," says Perry Ellis. What's happening for spring is Ellis' touch game of mixing different weaves of linen in slightly different shades in a single outfit. For example, he mixes a three-quarters-length waxed-linen jacket with a hand-knit linen-cotton sweater with his signature cable details and a pair of cuffed linen pants — all in different tones of beige. Another pair of linen pants has the textured touch of a horizontal tweed weave accented with a mini-stripe. He continues to create what have now become Ellis classics: cabled and striped sweaters and striped blazers in dark, pale or neutral shades with stripings in tones of dark green, navy and red. New Ellisisms include a white classic sport jacket that is piped in white, a sport jacket (he calls it a working jacket) that buttons high in front, cotton interlock T-shirts with his signature dimpled sleeve and band or Henly collars, a sweater cut like a sport coat, and a hooded sweater with a cabled armhole and pouch pockets.

Ellis also does his first short-sleeve shirt, which touches just below the elbow — about the same place where Ellis rolls up the long-sleeve blue chambray shirt that has become his personal uniform. He describes his short sleeves as classic but atypical: "They look like something that's been around a long time. They fit like they belong to someone larger than yourself — like your big brother — so they have a drop shoulder. If it were just a snug-fitting, basic short-sleeve shirt, I wouldn;t want to design it or wear it."

Alexander Julian touches up his classic designs for spring by blending such fabrics as silk, linen and wool for texture, and by creating depth by playing with his always-rich color palette in stripes, plaids, checks, tweeds and blocks of color. A typical Julian outfit might be a wide-spaced striped cotton pant, a herringbone wool-and-linen sport jacket, a multicolored plaid cotton shirt and a striped silk tie featuring more shades of color than you could count on your fingers and toes.

Julian also plays pattern games with a plaid sport jacket that has strong vertical lines running down the front and lines bisecting the front of each sleeve; an awning-striped jacket in silk that reads like a large-scale check; pairings of striped and plaid fabrics on the same shirt; and a "harlequin" oxford-cloth shirt that splits down the middle with blue on one side and white on the other.

THERE IS ALSO an important directional switch from the horizontal to the vertical in fabric weaves and stripings. Julian also upsets the balance on a cotton polo shirt by running a single vertical stripe down one side of the shirt. Another way Julian manages to be "a little more offbeat" and yet remain in a classic tempo is by designing his traditional-cut trousers in bolder patterns.

Calvin Klein's definition of traditional, classic menswear has meant "simple, casual, comfortable" clothes. For spring, Klein is touching up his image a bit and says his deigns are "more fashionable than in the past. I'm taking the sportswear look and making it much, much dressier." He says his outerwear has simpler, cleaner lines than the military, survival looks for which he is known. "Extraneous details are out," says Klein, who is showing jackets with pockets coming out of vertical seams, with pleated backs, band collars and a volume cut in the shoulders replacing the more obvious shoulder pads.

Klein is taking a strong stand on touch-and-feel fabrics such as linen, cotton sheeting, pique knit and batiste — fabrics he refers to as "soft and drapey." He says he is cutting everything bigger through the chest and fuller in the thighs for "a big, soft, almost 1930s feeling." The most interesting new looks from Klein, whose menswear business has thrived on American sportswear basics, include band-collared safari jackets with snap closures, cotton sheeting pants with adjustable tab waistbands that form the pleats, dressy ikat-patterned sweaters in cotton-linen, a knit underwear-style shirt with a gusset under the armhole, short-sleeve shirts with pajama collars, and a tank top in cotton with a low-cut armhole, similar to the type that gymnasts wear. The dressiest touches in Klein's line for spring may be his butter-soft suede designs, including a band-collared bomber blouson that comes in a smashing dusty-rose shade, a "C.P.O" shirt-jacket with drawstring waist and a boat-neck pullover with snap closure on one shoulder, plus shorts, pants and what may be the ultimate example of his new dressed-up casual stance — a suede tank top.

While Klein is talking about dressing up his line, Jhane Barnes says she wants to see her clothes worn more casually. "Men aren't used to mixing the categories of clothing and sportswear," Barnes says. "By combining the details of both, I can cut the stuffiness of clothing in half and can make sportswear dressier, so that you can get more mileage out of it. I can't imagine anyone being turned away from a restaurant in my sportswear."

THE BEST example of Barnes' correctly casual theory is her blouson suit — a three-button waist-length jacket with notched lapels, and traditional buttons at the cuff, with collar and pocket trim in a different weave. The pants come in the same weave as the collar-pocket trim. Barnes also continues to create her short tuxedo jackets — one with a cutaway front, a black belt similar to a vet detail, and satin inserts in place of a lapel. She also breaks the black-tie barrier with a four-button evening cardigan in rayon and cotton that mingles with her tux pants and her new button-down collar tux shirt with pleat front and squared collar ends.

Four-poster beds are back in favor

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Two centuries ago, a number of Americans slept in four-poster beds that were swathed in fabric.

These fabric curtains kept northerners warm in their drafty houses. In the south, mosquito netting often replaced wool or cotton bedclothes and served the useful purpose of keeping bugs away.

Nowadays, the four-poster tradition has returned to favor. According to retailers and designers, four-posters are enjoying increasing popularity with many consumers.

The industry credits a current enthusiasm for the country look and traditional American interiors for part of the revival. The idea of the bedroom as a romantic refuge, an oasis of luxury in a stressful life, has also encouraged it.

People who view their bedroom as a refuge are not put off by the fact that four-posters, especially when you add in the cost of canopy and fabric curtains, are more expensive than other types of bed headboards and footboards.

Gerda Clark, home furnishings fashion director for Gimbels, New York, has found that once a customer has decided on a four-poster price is usually not a consideration.

"They have made up their minds and they don't worry about costs," she said.

According to Ms. Clark, the increase in popularity has resulted in a corresponding increase in the number of four-posters available. Formerly an adjunct of traditional American styles, they now come in every furniture style, including contemporary, and are offered by virtually every manufacturer of bedroom furniture.

The modern versions in chrome or brass are quite a bit more expensive (one of Gimbels' is $1,500) and tend to be rarely ordered. Less expensive four-posters in pine, for example, which may sell for about $400 and up, are enjoying increased sales, she said.

"I think there is a certain romance to them that makes them attractive to some people," says Ms. Clark. It's an attitude confirmed by others. Bebe Winkler, an interior designer, noted "there's something opulent and lush about a four-poster draped with hangings. As the outside world becomes harsher, people seek out the feeling of being enclosed, warm and private which a four-poster can suggest."

Designer Susan Zises agrees. "There is a storybook feeling about being in a four-poster. Perhaps that is why they are often considered perfect for a young girl." She has found that children enjoy cozy traditional rooms as a rule. Working on one little girl's room recently in which a four-poster was the star reawakened her own early dream about having such a bed. As a result, she treated herself to one in her own bedroom at home.

Being high up, surrounded by lavish hangings, shutting out the world and feeling snug and secure — that's the magic of the four-poster.

But is there any way to improvise a four-poster without buying a new bed? Yes, says designer Stanley Hura. Hura offered suggestions for creating a pretend four-poster. He used shower curtain rods and plumbing pipes to form a ceiling-hung frame to imitate the look. He hung fabric from the rods and tied it with outsize bows at each corner of the bed. Do-it-yourselfers who emulate this idea are advised to make the framework 3 inches wider than the bed itself. "That way, the fabrics will hang clear of the bed," Hura said.

Women given advice on preparing for interviews

By LINDA YGLESIAS
Hearst Feature Service

SAN FRANCISCO — Management consultant Jayne Townsend teaches women how not to talk themselves out of a job through apologetic language and hedged words during job interviews.

Townsend, 46, stresses that that the job interview process "can be made predictable, planned in advance and controlled, just like any other business meeting."

To get an accurate picture of her employment assets, a woman should "list five accomplishments that make you feel proud," Townsend advises, "and remember that volunteerism counts, too. I haven't met anyone who didn't have more accomplishments than she credited herself with."

The job-seeker who has survived initial screening interviews then is ready to talk with the person who is actually doing the hiring. "And though the format is set by the interviewer, you need not be the victim," Townsend counsels.

First, the interviewer attempts to make the job-seeker comfortable through social chatter "to make the potential employee open up."

SECOND, THE interviewer wants to see how the interviewee's mind works. "Are you a good communicator, do you get along with people, are you cheerful, what would make you an addition to this organization?' Part of the purpose of this conversation is to get an idea of the job-seeker's personality and values."

Third, the interviewer focuses on qualifications that the job-seeker needs to be hired for the position.

And finally, the interviewer attempts to close the interview without making a commitment to the job-seeker.

Once familiar with the probable questioning route, the strategy for the job-seeker is one of tactful offense. She should plan an "if/then" strategy — "If he asks me this, then I'll. . ." She should project "scare questions or statements" that will uncover the interviewee's weaknesses (no college degree, lack of experience, gaps in employment), again preparing an "if/then" dialogue.

She begins at step one, the "socially comfortable" stage of the interview process, by using her social skills to help the interviewer become comfortable with her.

" 'Tell me about yourself' is known as an open-ended question," says Townsend. "It should always be taken as a cue to positively link your own history with the position you are seeking."

TOWNSEND SUGGESTS: "I was reading the history of the company, and..." A stronger version, Townsend continues, might be, " 'I understand you've already seen 10 candidates today. You must be tired.' That implies that you know what the score is."

Step two in the interview process, the "how the mind works" stage, requires that the job-seeker become knowledgeable about the company. Whether she acquires the company's annual report or seeks the help of a librarian at the business branch of a local library, she should be armed with information about the company. And her "ace in the whole," Townsend emphasizes, may be information gleaned by arriving early for the interview. "Read what's on the tables, and listen," Townsend says.

Step three in the interview is the place for nuts-and-bolts qualifications. After discussing qualifications that the job-seeker should possess, the interviewer most likely will get around to a question such as, "What are your strengths?"

"This is where you women particularly have a hard time, because they've been taught not to brag," says Townsend. Townsend counsels job-seekers to pick out key words in the interviewer's description of the position, focusing on phrases such as "organized," "has good follow-through" and "is good with people."

"Then the strategy is to make a statement that addresses these clue words. 'I'm so pleased to hear you say that, because these are skills that I've used and sharpened for years, and I feel confident about them. Let me give you an example.' "

AND TOWNSEND urges the job-seeker to provide examples that are big on numbers: "In my last position I was responsible for coordinating student and staff activities that involved 450 people. If you like, I can describe for you how I set up a system that tracked those people and activities."

After discussing requirements and qualifications, step four — "the non-committal close" — begins.

"This is where it can get tricky," says Townsend. "The job-seeker wants to know if she's still on the possibles' list. If the interviewer offers the job-seeker a "We'll be in touch" signal at the interview's end, Townsend suggests the job-seeker use an implied close: "I recognize that you are still seeing candidates, but I would appreciate having a quick first impression from you."

If the interviewer declines, "Let it go," Townsend says. "Ask him when he will be making a first cut. If he sets a date, respond with 'Would it be appropriate for me to call you then, or would you prefer to call me with your decision?"

But the moment the interviewer begins looking at his watch, tapping his foot, or puts his hand on the phone – ease off, Townsend emphasizes. The interview has come to an end.

When preparing for probable questions, many women overlook what might be major qualifications, Townsend says. Aside from education and career history, experience counts.

Once again women wearing man-tailored fashions for fall

By GWEN JONES
Hearst Feature Service

Tuxedos, fedoras and wing-tip shoes are usually the plumage of the male species. But fashion-conscious females also will be strutting around in the man-tailored look, come fall.

If the prospect of pleated trousers, Oxford shirts and double-breasted suits ruffles your feathers, relax. There are plenty of ultrafeminine dresses, skirts and high-heel shoes.

Not that this is a strictly masculine-feminine dichotomy, as was the case in "Victor-Victoria," the movie that inspired a lot of this mannish garb. Few women want to dress exactly like men, anywy, and so the hard lines of a tuxedo jacket, for example, are softened when the garment is paired with a straight skirt and a fluffy bow tie. Likewise, a delicate suit takes on a dandy air when accessorized with a rakish hat and tie.

The resurgence of tailored togs for day wear is attributable not only to movies like "Victor-Victoria" and "Chariots of Fire" and TV's "Brideshead Revisited," but to designers' reactions against the prairie princess ruffles and flounces of the past two years. And during lean economic times, there's a tendency for the fashion world to focus on more classic styles; consumers don't want trendy clothes that will be obsolete after one season, and tailored lines are never outdated. In evening wear, however, the aim is to forget about bad times. The new look for night is glamorous and lavish.

The male-female connection crops up in a variety of ways for fall: bib-front shirts and soft-tie blouses; English-style hacking jackets and easy-fitting waistcoats; soft suede separates and rugged tops and bottoms in distressed leather (one of the season's big looks — influenced by "Raiders of the Lost Ark"); full-cut trousers in glen plaids and narrow straight-leg pants in windowpane patterns; long slinky padded-shoulder gowns and full-flair numbers; and fedoras and dainty dinner hats.

In general, skirts are leaner and hemlines longer — from just below the knee to midcalf. Jackets, by contrast, are cut fuller.

Watch for black to become the season's hottest shade, along with burgundy, mustard, hunter green, olive and purple. Brights such as red, fuchsia and turquoise, usually confined to spring and summer, also are part of the season's forecast.

No matter how you color it, fashion for fall is a blend of the masculine and feminine.

Cremation societies alternative

By JANE SEAGRAVE
AP Writer

GRANTS PASS, Ore. (AP) — With the cost of dying on the rise, more and more people are opting for simple cremation over elaborate burial — a trend that has given birth to a new type of business.

Cremation societies, which offer quick, inexpensive cremation for those willing to pay a modest membership fee, have sprung up throughout the country, particularly on the West Coast, responding to the growing desire of many Americans to help keep down the escalating costs of funerals and burials.

In Grants Pass, the newly founded Southern Oregon Cremation Society recently began advertising "immediate cremation" for $280 — well below the going rate for burials, which can cost a minimum of $600.

Bob Matson, a former funeral director and now general manager of the profit-making organization, said that price includes few of the services normally provided by funeral homes.

"We're a box-and-burn operation," he said. "That's the object of the society — something simple at a low price."

In the last 10 years, the number of Americans choosing cremation has more than doubled, according to statistics compiled by the Cremation Association of North America.

In 1981, more than 200,000 people were cremated in the United States — nearly 11 percent of total deaths. On the West Coast, which historically has led the country in cremations, 12.6 percent of those who died last year were cremated. In Marin County, Calif., the figure was 57 percent.

Many funeral homes now offer cremation as an alternative to burial or entombment. Paul Bryan of Pasadena, Calif., secretary of the national cremation group, said there are about 550 crematories operating in funeral homes in the United States and Canada.

A majority of the cremations performed are still preceded by a funeral with the body present, Bryan said. He said his organization requires its members to sign a statement saying they will encourage their clients to arrange some kind of memorial for the deceased.

"It doesn't mean that we require anything permanent," Bryan said. "But it does mean we don't think going to the hospital and picking up the remains and disposing of them without any service or anything quite complies with the traditions of cremation in the United States."

In 1981, the average cost of a funeral in the United States was $1,950, said Howard Raether, executive director of the National Funeral Directors' Association in Milwaukee, Wis. That price includes some professional services, facilities, transportation and a casket, but not the costs of burial, tombstones or death certificates, he said.

At Hull and Hull Funeral Directors in Grants Pass, the cheapest burial costs $622, said funeral director Jerry Monnet.

"Usually, people have their minds made up whether they want cremation," Monnet said. "If they want to go that way, they want to do it as cheap as possible."

The Neptune Society in Burbank, Calif., has more than 200,000 members, with 17 offices in California, Florida and New York. It was founded in 1973.

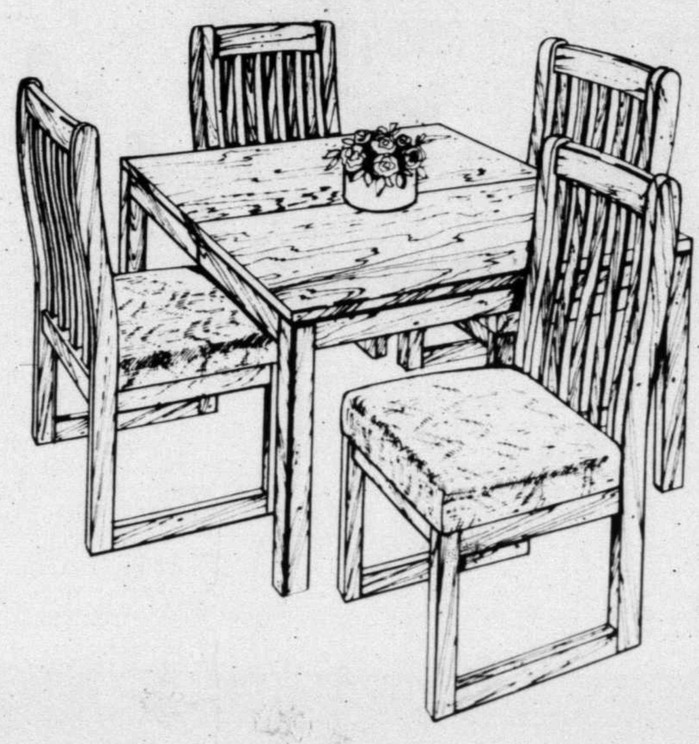

According to Emanuel Weintraub, president of the society, an average Neptune cremation costs between $400 and $500. He says his organization discourages expensive funerals or memorial services.

"What we say is save the money for the living, not the dead," Weintraub said.

Funeral directors are quick to point out that prices quoted by cremation societies often don't include ancillary services, such as transportation of the body or notice of the death.

Fashionable lace look for fall

By GWEN JONES
Hearst Feature Service

Lace up, dearies — that's what fashion-wise women are doing these days. They're not only adorning their necks and hands with lace, but also covering their legs with the delicate fabric once reserved for Granny's hankies, bridal gowns, lingerie and fine linen.

Nothing adds a softer, more feminine touch to all the new man-tailored clothes than old-fashioned lace. That's why Ralph Lauren and Geoffrey Beene were among the first designers to make liberal use of the fabric on everything from trim for blouses to seamed pantyhose. Be advised, though, that one of Lauren's linen-and-cotton-lace blouses fetches $258, while Beene's lacy creations are priced at more than $1,000.

But you don't have spend a small fortune to achieve the lace look. Lacy scarves and ascots are available for $12, dainty spider-work gloves go for $15 and rose-point pantyhose range from $17 to $37. And for those who want to whip up their own accessories, lace can be purchased at fabric shops for as little as $3 per yard. In such inexpensive laces, which are synthetics or blends, the threads are machine-looped and braided, then interlaced or knitted to form patterns.

Lace dates back to seventh-century France, where nuns in Alencon, Valenciennes and Chantilly began using a special needle to fashion the fabric out of linen. It wasn't until 1830 that a lace-making machine was invented in Great Britain.

Today, the popular Alencon pattern, which is duplicated on machines, consists of designs on a ground of sheer net that is outlined with a heavy thread called cordornet. Chantilly is a more delicate lace of hexagonal mesh on which scrolls and flowers are outlined, also in cordornet.

Communication

By ERMA BOMBECK

Some of the best fiction being written today is never serialized in the slick magazines or makes it to the New York Times list.

They're messages between the working wife/bachelor and the woman who comes in to clean their house/apartment. Sometimes, they never even see one another. They communicate only by notes left on the refrigerator door.

The following is a series of written communiques between Wilma and her employer, Mrs. Rutledge.

"Mrs. Rutledge: There is a cat mess at the end of the sofa." Wilma.

"Wilma: I know." Mrs. Rutledge.

"Mrs. Rutledge: "What do you want me to do with it?" Wilma.

"Wilma: You are limited on options. You can surround it with sand and use it as a putting green, gift-wrap it and amaze your friends, or clean it up. I prefer the latter." Mrs. Rutledge.

"Mrs. Rutledge: I was going to clean up the you-know-what, but the sweeper smells funny and sounds strange and won't pick up anything. Can you fix it?" Wilma.

"Wilma: The cat is missing. I suggest you check the sweeper bag." Mrs. Rutledge.

"Mrs. Rutledge: The cat was not in the bag. Maybe the cat mess is not a mess at all. It looks just like something in a green bowl in the refrigerator. Is it what I think it is?" Wilma.

"Wilma: What do you think it is?" Mrs. Rutledge.

"Mrs. Rutledge: I knew once, but I forgot. The sweeper works just fine. What did you do to it?" Wilma.

"Wilma: I emptied the bag." Mrs. Rutledge.

"Mrs. Rutledge: You know that little problem I told you about two weeks ago about the cat? I think I solved the problem. I moved the sofa over it and you can hardly notice it now." Wilma.

"Wilma: You're fired!" Mrs. Rutledge.

"Mrs. Rutledge: There is another cat mess I didn't tell you about. It's hard to find. I'm the only one who knows where it is. Goodbye." Wilma.

Auto theft up

One of every 143 registered motor vehicles was stolen during 1980, according to national estimates by the FBI's Uniform Crime Reporting Program. The rate of theft was highest in the Northeastern states where one of every 83 registered vehicles was stolen. Nationwide, the average value of the vehicles at the time of theft was nearly $2,900, for an estimated total annual loss of $3.2 billion.

DEAR ABBY

Yiddish 'Dear Abby' years ahead of its time

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: The reader signed "Better Dead Than Red," who complained that because he was a redhead he "can't get a girl and felt like a freak," might be pleased to know that he was not the first young man to write to someone such as yourself with this problem.

Seventy years ago, Jewish immigrants often wrote to the Yiddish daily "The Forward" for help with their problems. Their letters were printed in a column called "Bintel Brief" (bundle of letters). One letter, written in 1909, read as follows:

"I am a young man of 22 and have every reason to be happy, but I am unhappy because nature saw fit to give me red hair. Because of the color of my hair, I endure many insults in the shop and on the street. When I hear someone say to me, 'Hello, Red!' I am hurt and offended. I am unhappy and lonely and I've even consulted doctors about it. One of them advised me to dye my hair. Another told me not to do it because first of all it has a bad effect on the scalp and, second, the color would not be natural.

"I would be very happy if you could advise me. — Respectfully, Unhappy".

The editor answered Unhappy:

"A person is not valued by the hair on his head, but by what is IN his head."

Abby, you might be pleased to know that today when teachers of history, such as myself, want to describe "Bintel Brief" to someone who has never heard of it, we say, "It was sort of the original 'Dear Abby.'" — PROF. DEBORAH E. LIPSTADT, UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, LOS ANGELES

DEAR ABBY: Since the letter signed "Better Dead Than Red" appeared in your column, my phone has not stopped ringing.

"Better Dead" claimed he couldn't get a girl because of his red hair, and asked if there was a club or support group for redheads.

Too bad you didn't know about Redheads International, whose purpose is to unite and promote a more positive image of redheaded people. We are 5,000 strong and growing.

In your reply to "Better Dead," you listed some famous redheads, with Red Buttons heading the list. Well, he happens to be a member! So does Lucille Ball, Aileen Quinn (the young star of "Annie"), Jamie Rose of "Falcon Crest" and Linda Kelsey of "Lou Grant."

Those interested in joining may write to: Redheads International, 23101 Moulton Park, Suite 110, Laguna Hills, Calif. 92653. — STEPHEN DOUGLAS (PRESIDENT)

DEAR MR. DOUGLAS: I have heard from numerous readers asking me to add Christopher Columbus, Mark Twain, George Bernard Shaw, Thomas Jefferson and Van Gogh to the list of famous redheads.

Now a few questions: In order to join Redheads International, must one be a genuine redhead with no help from the dye-pot? And what happens when the red has turned to silver? And how about baldies who were former redheads? Do toupees count? (If so, add Charles Nelson Reilly.)

And I apologize for omitting David Hartman of "Good Morning, America," Woody Allen, Red Motley, Redd Foxx, and Rhonda Fleming, who is still the world's most beautiful redhead!

Possible cure for cystic acne found

By SUSAN PAYNTER
Hearst Feature Service

SEATTLE — Dr. Carl Ehmann, director of clinical research in dermatology for Hoffman-La Roche, Inc., said that his company has made a breakthrough in what has been a losing battle against cystic acne.

Ehmann said that the new pill, Accutane, is the first effective treatment for cystic acne — a disfiguring form of acne which is far more severe than the common teenager's curse. While the drug is not available for the treatment of common acne, it does what antibiotics, dry ice and ultraviolet light treatments have failed to do against cystic acne.

The cystic form of the skin disease can be both physically and emotionally damaging, Ehmann said. "It usually involves large cysts on the back, neck and face and can make bending the neck and wearing clothing painful. It can lead to permanent scarring."

The little gelatin pills are expensive, available only by prescription, and often produce side effects such as chapped lips and dry skin. In addition, Ehmann said, pregnant women are told not to take the pills, and women of child-bearing age must be using birth control to get the prescription.

Treatments are given in 15- to 20-week "courses" costing between $400 and $500 for the medication alone. And a second course is sometimes given about eight weeks after the first.

About 360,000 people currently are undergoing some kind of treatment for the skin condition, but until Accutane became available, nothing really made it go away or kept it from coming back, Ehmann said.

At least 90 percent of the 1,000 patients studied for as long as three years have shown marked improvement, including disappearance of existing cysts and only rare and temporary occurrence of new ones with Accutane, according to Hoffman-La Roche.

"You can't afford to rent your office space!"

That's what your accountant is always saying. Right? Well, we agree. Sometimes it is better to own. But first, let's look at the reasons why you don't already own your own building.

First, it's a big step. There are so many problems with building an office building, no matter how large or small, that it's all just a little confusing. There's the site location, the plans, and the cost! Can you really come out better by owning your own office building? Who knows? You don't unless you have studied all the pros and cons. And that's a big job. So, let us help, for Free!

That's right. Caton Development will do a Free Lease/Ownership Study to help you determine if you should or shouldn't build your own office building. We ask you some simple questions concerning your business and then let our specialized computer programs give us the answers.

Then it's up to you. Talk it over with your accountant, lawyer and banker, and then decide.

We won't pressure you to let us build you a building. In fact, we may tell you that you don't need a building. But whatever the outcome, it won't cost you a cent.

So what's stopping you? Pick up the phone and call Caton Development right now for a Free Lease/Ownership Study. It'll make your accountant very happy.

TI begins layoff; None planned at local plant

From staff and wire reports

Texas Instruments Inc., one of the world's largest makers of semiconductors, says it will lay off another 2,600 workers this fall, bringing to nearly 10,000 the number of employees furloughed in the last two years.

Company Vice President Norman Neureiter said on Monday that the layoffs would be spread among many of the diversified electronics concern's 50 plants around the world.

Texas Instruments, which employees 80,000 people in 19 countries, had already laid off 7,000 workers since May 1981.

Neureiter did not know what workers would be affected or the cities in which the layoffs would occur. The Dallas Morning News reported today, however, that 600 of the layoffs will be in the Dallas area where Texas Instruments is based.

"It's pretty generally across the company," he said. "It's a series of actions affecting a number of (plants) in a number of countries."

At the company's Midland plant, a member of the management team, who asked not to be named, said, "This site is not going to be effected."

The recession, falling prices and inroads by foreign competitors have dampened sales of semiconductors for Texas Instruments and other U.S. companies for more than a year.

The furloughed employees will receive partial pay and recall rights for up to six months or severance payments in amounts based on seniority, officials said.

Two months ago, National Semiconductor Corp. of Santa Clara, Calif., eliminated about 1,000 jobs in the United States.

"We share the view of many forecasters that the general economy and semiconductor sales will continue to be flat for the next several months," National Semiconductor said at the time.

Texas Instruments also makes small computers, calculators and microprocessors, and it provides geophysical exploration services.

In the first half of this year, its profit rose 44 percent to $64.5 million on revenue of $2.17 billion.

But the company noted that those earnings were matched against depressed results a year earlier, that "any significant general recovery in the coming months" was questionable and that it planned more layoffs.

In its Second Quarter Report, released on July 26 Texas Instruments noted that the need to further reduce expenses would require additional people reductions.

The company said these actions, which will extend into the fourth quarter of 1982, will require an additional reserve of approximately seven to eight million dollars against third quarter 1982 earnings. TI will issue its third quarter earnings report to stockholders on October 25.

Billy Graham planning to visit East Germany, Czechoslovakia

Billy Graham

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) – Billy Graham says there's no political motive in his upcoming visits to six cities behind the Iron Curtain next month.

"I'm going to preach the gospel," Graham said Monday of his decision to travel to East Germany and Czechoslovakia. "I'm certainly not going on a political trip."

The 63-year-old evangelist visited the Soviet Union in May to address a conference of religious leaders and to speak out against the nuclear arms race. He drew criticism for saying that he found no evidence of religious persecution during his visit.

His visit to East Germany is scheduled for Oct. 15-25. The trip to Czechoslovakia will begin Oct. 29. Graham said he will identify the cities he will visit later.

Lillian Carter

ATLANTA (AP) — Lillian Carter, mother of former President Jimmy Carter, has been undergoing tests at Emory University Hospital since last week, according to aides at her son's office.

Mrs. Carter, 84, has asked that the nature of the tests not be made public, said hospital spokeswoman Julia Hoye.

Faye Dill of the former president's office in Plains said Monday that Mrs. Carter entered the hospital last week and will be released "whenever the tests are completed."

"They just want to make sure she's OK," Ms. Dill said.

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — President Zail Singh will travel to Houston this week for a cardiac examination and possible heart surgery.

Singh, 66, who will be out of the country about two weeks, will leave Thursday for tests at the Texas Heart Institute, the presidential palace announced Monday.

On Sept. 16 the government announced that Singh was advised by his doctors to go to the hospital "to evaluate the condition of his coronary arteries."

Singh, inaugurated in July, had been hospitalized earlier in the year in an intensive care unit with reported heart trouble.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — After a three-week hospital stay for treatment of a bleeding intestinal ulcer, former first lady Bess Truman is alert and nurses are trying to keep her physically active.

"I think a lot depends upon her own attitude, a lot depends upon her will and what she sees going on around her," said Dr. Wallace Graham, her longtime physician.

Graham said Monday that he and Mrs. Truman's nurses were trying to keep the 97-year-old widow active by helping her stand and walk and by talking to her about events she is likely to recall of her life in Washington.

Graham said he talks to Mrs. Truman about a luncheon she had on Oct. 24, 1950, when wives of U.S. senators visited her at Blair House, the Washington mansion the Trumans occupied while the White House was being renovated.

"I bring up these past events because one of her age has a better memory for the past than for the present," Graham said.

Mrs. Truman, the nation's oldest former first lady, was admitted to Research Medical Center in Kansas City Sept. 2 with a bleeding ulcer in her small intestine. She returned to her Independence home Friday.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Allyn Cox, an artist noted for painting some of the major murals and friezes in the U.S. Capitol, died following a stroke at the Washington Hospital Center at the age of 86.

A spokesman at the hospital said he died Sunday.

Cox was first commissioned to complete the rotunda frieze under the dome of the Capitol in 1953. The painting was begun in the 19th century by Constantino Brumidi, who died before his work was finished.

Fulfilling a boyhood wish, Cox painted in the empty 32-foot space with depictions of the American Civil War, the Spanish-American War and the birth of the age of aviation in the style of his Italian predecessor.

"When I was very young," he said in an interview before his retirement last April, "my parents brought me here and showed me an empty space in the frieze under the rotunda dome. After that, I used to dream and dream of painting it one day."

CONCORD, Mass. (AP) — Ruth C. Winship, widow of former Boston Globe editor Lawrence L. Winship and mother of Globe editor Thomas Winship, died Sunday of cancer at the age of 90.

Congressman Loeffler honored

Congressman Tom Loeffler has received the 1982 Golden Bulldog Award, which is presented every two years to members of Congress whose voting records demonstrate fiscal responsibility, by Watchdogs of the Treasury, an independent organization dedicated to the principles of curtailed federal spending and reduced deficits. Loeffler received the Golden Bulldog at the end of his first term.

Perot ready for end of his flight

DALLAS (AP) — After facing gunbarrels in Egypt and Burma and Eskimo villagers in Canada who thought he was a spy, H. Ross Perot Jr. says he looks forward to the end of his around the world helicopter flight.

Perot, the 23-year-old son of a Dallas computer magnate, is in Alaska on the final leg of his quest to become the first to pilot a helicopter around the world, said a spokesman with his father's Dallas computer firm.

"Right now I'd say either Thursday or Friday (he) will be back in Dallas," said Electronic Data Systems spokesman Jerry Dalton.

The troubles during the trip have been many, Perot told the Dallas Morning News last week in a static-filled phone call from Singapore.

The Soviets refused to let the specially modified chopper enter the Soviet Union to refuel, so Perot and co-pilot Jay Coburn made a treacherous landing on an American cargo ship in the North Pacific last weekend in a 50-knot wind and 12-foot seas.

Early in the trip, a malfunctioning fuel pump spilling jet fuel forced an emergency landing in an Eskimo fishing village in Quebec.

"We were worried they wouldn't have any jet fuel for us. But the Eskimo chief had a full tank at his house, which is pretty amazing for that part of the world," said Perot.

"The whole time, they (the Eskimos) thought we were spies on a secret mission. Or Russians. Or members of the American military," he said.

In France, a language barrier caused confusion with air traffic controllers. At Luxor, Egypt, soldiers surrounded the chopper and demanded answers to questions and signatures on a blizzard of forms.

In Saudi Arabia, they passed over fighter planes dug into mountains, camel trains creeping through the desert, and gas flares burning in oil fields.

Over the Persian Gulf, the pair passed just 13 miles from Iran, where Coburn is wanted because of his second-in-command role in Perot Sr.'s 1979 raid on an Iranian prison to free two EDS employees. The raid resulted in a jail break of 11,000 prisoners.

In Burma, a heavy thunderstorm forced a landing in the town of Marguie. An air traffic controller began yelling "No land. No land." But Perot told them if he didn't land, he would crash. When the chopper did set down, a large band of troops and villagers greeted them.

"That has been the only part of the trip I was nervous over. I felt like a prisoner of war," Perot said.

After the pair wrote an apology, let villagers sit in the helicopter, and gave the army officers cigarettes, the journey resumed.

"I really look forward to getting back to the United States where you can pretty much fly where you want to," Perot said.

Perot, a land man for an energy firm owned by his father, and Coburn, an EDS pilot, left Dallas Love Field Sept. 1 on the 26-nation trip.

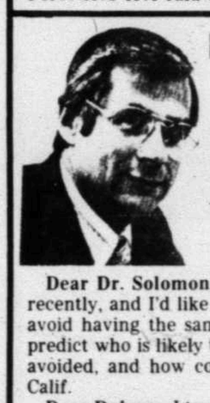

Bloomingdale 'sadistic, childlike'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Alfred Bloomingdale was a "Jekyll and Hyde" who was alternately childlike and sadistic, beating women with his belt, riding them bareback and drooling, according to the former mistress suing his estate for $10 million.

"I'm not kidding when I say that (Bloomingdale's) eyes got glazed, real — something you see in a hospital, or...in a movie," Vicki Morgan said in a 321-page court deposition made public Monday. The statement was given Aug. 13, one week before Bloomingdale died of cancer at the age of 66.

Miss Morgan, 30, who says she was Bloomingdale's mistress for 12 years, is suing Bloomingdale's estate and his wife, Betsy, for $10 million. She says she was promised life support by the heir to the Bloomingdale's department store fortune who was a close friend and adviser to President Reagan.

"Alfred was two people," Miss Morgan said in the deposition. "He was Jekyll and Hyde and in that personality of his, which is the sexual part, Alfred was strange. I don't mean a fantasy. I mean a sickness. I truly mean a sickness."

Osteoporosis can be treated early

Dear Dr. Solomon: My 72-year-old aunt suffered a hip fracture recently, and I'd like to help my mother, who is now 69 years old, avoid having the same thing happen to her. Is there any way to predict who is likely to get a fracture like this so it can possibly be avoided, and how common are they? — Dolores, San Francisco, Calif.

Dear Dolores: I try to diagnose and treat osteoporosis (a decrease in bone density that can result in a fracture) before my patients actually suffer a fracture. According to Dr. B. Lawrence Riggs, of the Mayo Clinic and Foundation, Rochester, Minnesota, there are now methods available to measure bone mass at the points where fractures are most likely to occur. I find that early diagnosis can lead to early treatment.

Osteoporosis is believed to be the cause of about one million fractures a year; hip fractures are the most serious. For every three women who live to extreme old age, one woman will suffer such a hip fracture.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My daughter is pregnant and her obstetrician says she has diabetes and he is giving her insulin. I don't like to see her take any medication, especially when she is pregnant. Since she didn't have diabetes until she became pregnant, why is it necessary for her be given insulin now? — Mrs. F.V., Toledo, Ohio

Dear Mrs. V.: I recommend insulin for my patients who have gestational diabetes (diabetes that occurs during pregnancy) and believe that such treatment can help the infant without causing adverse side effects.

Dr. Donald R. Coustan, of the Yale-New Haven medical Center, reviewed almost 400 cases in which diabetes developed in the mother during pregnancy. He found that those treated with insulin gained significantly less weight than those who were not treated, and that the newborn infants were also lighter in weight.

In addition, birth trauma and the incidence of operative deliveries were significantly higher in women who were not treated than in those who were.

Dear Dr. Solomon: You recently wrote about how lithium helps people who are depressed. If this is the case, what would happen to a person who was not depressed who took lithium? What I'm getting at is that lots of people use drugs to get high, and it seems as if lithium would do this in a normal person. — Carl, Rochester, N.Y.

Dear Carl: Without getting into a discussion of why a normal person would have to rely on drugs to get high, I can say that anyone thinking of taking lithium for this purpose would do well to think again. Many studies have shown that normal subjects who take lithium not only do not get high, they actually feel low, confused, and irritated.

Cardinals capture NL East; West getting tighter

Dodgers, Braves, Giants one game apart

By DENNIS D'AGOSTINO
Associated Press Writer

And who, pray tell, are the St. Louis Cardinals going to meet in the National League playoffs? Don't ask.

While Whitey Herzog's Redbirds nailed down their first-ever NL East pennant Monday with a 4-2 victory over Montreal, the tight-as-a-drum NL West got even tighter. Phil Niekro, 16-4, hurled a two-hitter as the Atlanta Braves snapped San Francisco's five-game winning streak with a 7-0 victory, while Cincinnati's Mario Soto five-hit Los Angeles 6-1. That put the Braves and Dodgers — both with 85-71 records — into a first-place tie, while the Giants trail by the co-leaders by one game with six to go.

In other NL action, Chicago topped Philadelphia 8-1, New York beat Pittsburgh 4-1, and Houston defeated San Diego 7-3.

"I want to play the Braves," said Cardinal outfielder Willie McGee. "I don't want to have to deal with the Giants the way they're playing right now."

McGee's three-run, inside-the-park homer off Bill Gullickson, 12-13, highlighted a four-run first inning. Dave LaPoint, 9-3, was the winning pitcher.

"I thought we had a good chance to win it in spring training, but then I started to wonder when we hit a rash of injuries in May," said Herzog, who had won three American League West titles as manager of the Kansas City Royals. "The first one is always the most exciting, but to me they're all good because that's what you're in this game for, to win."

"This is like winning the first leg of the Triple Crown," said Jim Kaat, the Cards' 43-year old reliever. "We've just won the Kentucky Derby, and now there's two big races to go."

While the race ended in the East, it reached fever pitch in the West.

"Everything is of bigger magnitude right now," Niekro said after blanking the Giants. "Every pitch, every strikeout, every hit is of bigger magnitude."

"Pitching is the key to any pennant race," said Brave first baseman Chris Chambliss, whose two-run double topped off a five-run Atlanta fourth inning. "He's (Niekro) been pitching great all year but I've been here three years and I've never seen him so good. His knuckleball can't be hit when he gets it over the plate. They just can't hit it."

Which is something the Dodgers haven't done much of, either.

"Everybody's stopped hitting," said Dodger Manager Tom Lasorda. "Nobody knows why people go into slumps. It seems like lately it's just been everybody."

Soto, 14-12, allowed just one hit after the fourth inning as he handed the Dodgers their sixth straight loss.

"The last time I faced them, I pitched my worst game in baseball," said Soto, who lost to the Dodgers 7-2 on Sept. 6. "I never forget things like that. They beat on me like I was a pitching coach. I felt bad. I remembered that tonight. In the first couple o: innings, I was thinking about that."

"I'm just hoping we can pull something out of the hat tomorrow, get started again," said Lasorda.

But tomorrows are running out for the Dodgers, Giants and Braves. For the Cardinals, they're just beginning.

Cubs 8, Phillies 1

Bill Buckner's RBI triple highlighted a four-run Cub third inning. Randy Martz, 11-10, scattered seven hits before being relieved by Dick Tidrow in the ninth, as the Phillies were eliminated from the East race with their loss and the Cards' victory.

"Sure, I'm disappointed," said Phillies Manager Pat Corrales. "I expected us to go into the last week fighting for it (the division title), which we didn't do. It got away from us."

"We weren't that great," said third baseman Mike Schmidt. "We didn't have it together at any point. We were lucky enough to hang close.

"We did have our fate in our hands three or four weeks ago and that's what makes this period of frustration possible."

First baseman Pete Rose added, "You can say we choked but I wouldn't say that. Anytime you go in a slump people say you're tight. I'm not tight. It just wasn't much fun because we were losing."

Mets 4, Pirates 1

Rookie Scott Holman, 2-1, fired a seven-hitter and drove in a run with a fifth-inning single to lead the Mets over the Pirates.

Before the game, the Mets honored retiring Pirates slugger Willie Stargell. And later, Holman ended the game by striking out Stargell with two men on base in the ninth.

"My heart was pumping when I had to face Stargell in that situation," said Holman. "I was hoping to get him to ground out. I was even happier to strike out one

Penn State jumps to third

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The Pitt Panthers, who dropped from first to third despite an unbeaten record, moved up to second place Monday in The Associated Press college football poll, only seven points behind No.1 Washington.

Penn State jumped from eighth to third by virtue of its 27-24 victory over Nebraska, with the Cornhuskers falling from second to eighth.

Three teams — Boston College, Minnesota and Auburn — made the Top Twenty for the first time this season, while Ohio State, Illinois and Michigan dropped out.

Washington received 25 of 59 first-place votes and 1,114 of a possible 1,180 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters following a 37-21 triumph over Oregon. Pitt, a 20-3 winner over Illinois, climbed from third to second with 19 first-place ballots and 1,107 points.

Last week, with 55 voters responding, Washington led Nebraska 1,045 points to 1,011, with Pitt at 989.

Seven first-place votes went to Penn State, which scored with four seconds left to nip Nebraska. The Nittany Lions received 1,032 points.

Florida rose from fifth to fourth with one first-place vote and 973 points after defeating Mississippi State 27-17. The Gators swapped places with Alabama, which edged Vanderbilt 24-21 and slipped from fourth to fifth with four first-place votes and 968 points.

Georgia trimmed South Carolina 34-18 and climbed from seventh to sixth with one first-place vote and 864 points, while Southern Methodist, a 16-13 winner over Texas Christian, dropped from sixth to seventh with 803 points.

Nebraska was eighth with 702 points, followed by UCLA — the Bruins received the remaining first-place ballot — with 662 points and Arkansas, with 607. UCLA, No.12 last week, moved into the Top Ten with a 31-27 victory over Michigan, while Arkansas edged Mississippi 14-12 and slipped from ninth to 10th.

UCLA's surge pushed Notre Dame out of the Top Ten despite a 28-14 triumph over Purdue. Behind the Irish in the Second Ten are North Carolina, Arizona State, West Virginia, Texas, Southern California, Miami, Boston College, Minnesota and Auburn.

Last week, it was North Carolina, UCLA, Ohio State, Arizona State, West Virginia, Miami, Texas, Southern Cal, Illinois and Michigan.

Boston College upped its record to 2-1-0 by defeating Navy 31-0, Minnesota (3-0) trounced Washington State 41-11 and Auburn (3-0) downed Tennessee 24-14.

Meanwhile, Michigan dropped out of the Top Twenty by blowing a 21-0 lead and losing to UCLA. Ohio State, No.13 a week ago, disappeared by losing to Stanford 23-20.

It was Minnesota's first appearance in the rankings since the middle of the 1977 season, while Boston College had not appeared since early in 1976.

Mum's the word in NFL strike talks

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League players strike moved into its second week with only the technicality of a formal announcement keeping next weekend's 14 games alive.

Negotiators for the NFL Management Council and the Players Association announced Monday that they will meet in Washington Thursday, virtually guaranteeing that the entire league schedule will be called off for the second straight week.

In a television appearance Sunday, NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle said that unless agreement is reached by Thursday, there could be no games next weekend.

Jim Miller, a Management Council spokesman, said Monday he assumes the games will be called off. Given the distance between the two sides, it appears unlikely that even around-the-clock talks starting now could save next weekend's games.

A second Sunday without NFL games would extract additional financial costs. Unofficial estimates put the price tag on the first week of the strike at nearly $70 million.

By striking Sunday, NFL players lost somewhere between $8 million and $9 million in salary. The Management Council estimated that the 28 teams lost $29 million in gate receipts and television money, though the television revenue is a point of dispute — the networks are paying their regular fees for the first two weeks of the strike, but owners are counting it as a loss because they say they will have to pay it back next year.

But the Washington Post reported today that the television networks have given NFL teams between $65 million and $83 million in scheduled contract payments — at least twice the amount previously reported.

Quoting unidentified league and players union sources, the newspaper said the payments earlier this month give each team owner at least $2.3 million in what the union believes is an interest-free strike fund.

The Post said that NFL sources set the amount paid by the networks for the first four games of the 1982 season at $65 million. Union sources, citing testimony last month by Rozelle, set the amount at $83 million.

Other losers Sunday were the 14 cities where games weren't played, an estimated $2 million each in hotel and restaurant revenue; and concessionaires, who put their losses at $2 million.

The basic bargaining issue is based on a simple question: Shall players continue to negotiate individual contracts with individual teams or shall there be a wage scale, with players paid according to their seniority in the league?

Having moved from its previously unmovable position, a demand for a percentage of league revenues, the union wants the wage scale — "it's etched in stone," said Gene Upshaw, the union president.

But the Management Council, representing the owners, has so far refused to budge from what until now has been considered an immutable fact of life in professional sports — individual contracts with individual teams.

In Dallas, Cowboys President Tex Schramm said the current impasse could mean the end of the 1982 season.

"If Gene Upshaw is saying that their demand for a wage scale is etched in stone, then I imagine we might ought to think about 1983," Schramm said.

Following Sunday's six-hour bargaining session at Hofstra University in Hempstead, N.Y., Jack Donlan, chief negotiator for the Management Council, said the owners were willing to guarantee the $1.6 billion they have offered, "if the union drops its demand for a wage scale."

The guarantee would take the form of a pool from which any money not spent during the five-year life of the contract would be distributed to the players based on a formula to be negotiated.

Ed Garvey, executive director of the union, said he doesn't expect any serious negotiating until next Monday, after management reopens training camps "and discovers that nobody's coming in."

"Then they'll realize that we're serious," he said.

Meanwhile, the Players Association planned to announce today details of its All-Star League. The union previously said the league would play two games a week for nine weeks and that the first game would be played Sunday, Oct.10, at Franklin Field in Philadelphia.

Bob Wussler, president of the Turner Broadcasting System, which plans to televise the games, said a third game each week was possible after the first two weeks or three weeks of play and that the network had guaranteed the union "a minimum of $500,000 a game."

The players who participate, according to a union spokesman, will receive between $4,000 and $5,000 each, and the rest of the money will be distributed among the players who don't play.

The Management Council has threatened legal action against any NFL player who participates in the All-Star League, and the union has filed suit in federal court in an effort to prevent such interference.

The stalemate in negotiations also has prompted union officials to begin visting with the league's 28 teams to review what has happened so far in the contract talks.

Garvey and Dan Jiggetts of the Chicago Bears, a member of the union's executive committee, were in Hillsdale, N.J., Monday where they met with 37 New York Giants players.

One player who apparently does not ally himself with the union's negotiating stance is Bob Kuechenberg, an offensive lineman for the Miami Dolphins and a 13-year NFL veteran.

"I would like to be the first player to publicly ask Ed Garvey to resign," he told The New York Times Monday in a telephone interview. Kuechenberg called the union's demand of a wage scale "ridiculous and ill conceived."

Herzog overhauls Cards into winners

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Much like putting together the pieces of a jigsaw puzzle, Whitey Herzog has assembled a winning combination for the St. Louis Cardinals.

The club he steered Monday night to the title in the National League East bears little resemblance to the one he inherited in June 1980.

Herzog, displeased by the club he saw finish 14 games under .500 his first year, embarked immediately on a major overhaul.

At baseball's winter meetings in December 1980 he traded off 13 players and received 10 in return. The deals, including one which landed him relief star Bruce Sutter, helped but not enough.

Herzog's response to last year's second-place finish during a strike-imposed split season was to continue to stir the pot.

He acquired speedy Lonnie Smith from the Cleveland Indians only hours after the young outfielder had been dealt there by the Philadelphia Phillies. He also obtained shortstop Ozzie Smith from the San Diego Padres.

The transactions for the Smiths were not the only moves Herzog made in his dual capacity as Cards general manager.

Just before the 1981 strike he picked up right-hander Joaquin Andujar. He already had catchers Gene Tenace and Darrell Porter, the latter whom he signed as a free agent. Other deals were for lesser knowns, including outfielder Willie McGee, a New York Yankees farmhand.

Once Herzog had assembled the parts he desired, he found it necessary to tamper very little with St. Louis' first winning product since 1968.

A 12-game winning streak carried the Cards to the front early in the season. They faltered briefly in June, then bounced back. By two weeks ago they were at a crossroads. Then, by rebounding from a defeat to beat Philadelphia twice, they took charge for good.

During a campaign marked most of all by consistency, St. Louis also has put together winning streaks of eight and six games and yet never lost more than three times in a row.

A major reason is Herzog's use of his personnel. By constantly shuffling his lineup, he minimized the impact of inevitable player injuries. The club's overall speed helped — 193 stolen bases — but the real surprise has been pitching.

As Andujar and Bob Forsch, whose longevity on the club makes him the senior member, were winning 15 games apiece, a trio of rookies did more than anticipated.

Angels find the key to heaven in Kansas City

By BEN WALKER
AP Sports Writer

The California Angels know the sweet taste of success. And tonight, they might sip champagne.

"It's not over yet, but it's just about a situation where we know what's going to happen," said California's Don Baylor after his run-scoring single in the seventh inning Monday night sparked a 3-2 victory over second-place Kansas City that reduced the Angels' magic number to just two in the American League West.

California, which has won eight of its last 10 games, now leads Kansas City by 4½ games and can wrap up the division by beating the Royals either tonight or Wednesday night. Kansas City has dropped 10 of its last 11.

In other AL games, New York routed Boston 10-3, Texas downed Oakland 4-1, and Seattle and Chicago split a twi-night doubleheader, Seattle winning the opener 8-4 and the White Sox taking the nightcap 4-1.

Baylor's one-out single — his AL-leading 21st game-winning hit — followed an intentional walk to Doug DeCinces.

"They put me on the spot from time to time, and I have to come through," he said. "It's a challenge, there's no doubt about that."

Tommy John, 14-12, scattered 10 hits over eight innings while beating Kansas City for the fourth time this season and running his career record to 14-4 against the Royals.

"To beat Kansas City in its own ballpark and hold them to two runs, I feel I pitched a pretty good game," he said. "We've got to win one more game. I hope we do it tomorrow night, but if not, we've got the games in LA."

John left in the ninth inning after walking pinch-hitter Ron Johnson. Luis Sanchez came in for his fourth save as the Angels, who won the AL West in 1979, moved closer to a second division title.

Kansas City had taken a 2-0 lead on U.L. Washington's solo homer in the first inning and Willie Aikens' run-scoring single in the fourth.

California, held hitless through the first four innings, tied it in the fifth on Juan Beniquez' double, a two-base throwing error by Kansas City third baseman George Brett that allowed Tim Foli to reach second and Brian Downing's RBI single.

"That was a tough one. They have all been tough lately," said Kansas City Manager Dick Howser. "We played hard again tonight, but just didn't get the job done."

"If I had to put my finger on one key game, it would've been last Wednesday in California," he said, referring to Kansas City's 8-5 loss to the Angels, then the Royals' seventh straight setback.

Said DeCinces: "Their backs are against the wall. If we win one of the next two, it's over. I'm not taking anything away from them. We still have to do it."

Yankees 10, Red Sox 3

New York got six runs in the first inning, capped by Rick Cerone's three-run homer. Jerry Mumphrey added a homer and two singles in driving in two more runs.

Boston hit into three double plays and has now grounded into 169 twin-killings this season, one short of the American League record set by the Philadelphia Athletics in 1950.

Rangers 4, A's 1

Rookie Mike Smithson pitched a four-hitter for Texas. Smithson, 3-4, took a one-hit shutout into the eighth before Mike Davis' double drove in Oakland's run.

Rick Langford, 11-16, also pitched a complete game in taking the loss.

Rookie catcher Bobby Johnson drove in three Texas runs with a two-run single and an RBI double.

Mariners 8-1, White Sox 4-4

Gaylord Perry, making his first start since serving a 10-day suspension for throwing an illegal pitch, notched his 307th career victory as Seattle won the opener and eliminated Chicago from AL West pennant contention.

Perry is now 10-12 this season. Loser Jerry Koosman, 11-7, had his five-game winning streak broken.

In the second game, Steve Kemp belted a three-run homer while three Chicago pitchers held Texas to six hits.

Jim Kern, 2-1, making his first start of the season, allowed four hits in 6⅓ innings. Sparky Lyle permitted two hits in 1 2-3 innings while Salome Barojas finished up for his 19th save.

CBS may replace NFL with Sonoma, Millsaps

By DOUG TUCKER
AP Sports Writer

MISSION, Kan. (AP) — The Sonoma State Cossacks are a far cry from the Dallas Cowboys, and no one is confusing the Millsaps College Majors with the San Diego Chargers.

They are hardly household names, but members of a select group nominated by one television network to help fill the void of another Sunday without the National Football League.

The first Sunday games since the National Football League players went on strike will hit the air this weekend, with CBS providing live coverage of four NCAA Division III games. The teams have not yet been announced. But Sonoma State of California and Millsaps College of Mississippi are possibilities, along with 196 other little-known Division III schools.

The following Sunday, Oct. 10, the teams could be familiar to every football fan. But that's still up to ABC, CBS and the schools.

After more than a week of behind-the-scenes negotiating and dickering, the NCAA announced Monday a final plan for televising college football on Sunday while the NFL is shut down.

It's not exactly what the NCAA, CBS or ABC wanted because of a provision that the Turner Broadcasting System insisted upon, an NCAA spokesman said.

Some of the more attractive Oct. 9 matchups the networks might consider trying to switch to Sunday, Oct. 10, include Notre Dame-Miami, Penn State-Alabama and Oklahoma-Texas.

However, getting schools to move their games may prove difficult. Many coaches have said flatly that they would oppose such action.

The NCAA proposed letting the two major networks show Sunday games without counting against the limit of 14 exposures per year per network called for in their NCAA contracts. An exposure is defined as a game being made available to the entire country, either one national telecast or two or more regional contests. Not counting the Sunday game against the networks' 14 exposures would have provided much greater flexibility and enabled them to televise college games on both Saturday and Sunday.

But Turner, whose approval of any plan was required along with ABC's and CBS's, turned thumbs down on the additional exposures. Thus, a network cannot televise on Sunday without creating a programming hole for itself on Saturday. The networks can televise college football on Saturday, or Sunday, but not on both days in the same weekend.

ABC and CBS have a four-year, $263.5 million contract with the NCAA, and TBS has a supplementary cable agreement totaling about $18 million.

Spokesmen for the NCAA and TBS declined to say why Turner refused to go along with the increased scheduling flexibility.

"We prefer that you talk to them about that," said NCAA spokesman David Cawood.

"We have proposed other alternatives to the NCAA, and we have not heard back from them," Robert Wussler, a TBS vice president, said in Atlanta. "If they're just moving games from Saturday to Sunday, they don't have to come to us. But if they want additional exposures above the 14, they have to get our approval. And in order to get our approval, we have proposed certain things."

"Turner made one final condition that was unacceptable to the other networks, and that led to this announcement," Cawood said.

TBS is planning to televise NFL All-Star games during the NFL strike, but Wussler said that agreement with the players' union "had nothing to do" with TBS' stance on the Sunday network telecasts.

Tigers to retire numbers of Gehringer, Greenberg

Hank Greenberg

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Tigers on Monday announced they will retire the numbers of Hall of Famers Charlie Gehringer and Hank Greenberg.

Gehringer, 79, and Greenberg, 71, will be honored at special ceremonies at Tiger Stadium on June 12, 1983 between games of a double-header with the Cleveland Indians, Tigers owner John Fetzer said in a statement.

Gehringer carried the number 2 on his uniform, while Greenberg sported the numeral 5 on his back.

Along with the No. 6 of retired right fielder and Hall of Famer Al Kaline, these will be the only numbers retired by the Tigers so far, Fetzer said.

Gehringer, a second baseman, spent his entire career with Detroit, from 1924-42. He was elected to the baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y., in 1949, with 2,839 career hits and a .320 average.

Greenberg, who spent 11 seasons with the Tigers, started at first base, and ended up as a left fielder. His Detroit career spanned from 1933 to 1946, including three years in the service during World War II. He finished his career with Pittsburgh in 1947, with a .313 average and 331 career homers.

Greenberg won four home run titles and slammed 58 home runs in 1938. He led the league in RBI four times and posted a career-high 183 in 1937. He was elected to the Hall of Fame in 1956.

Greenberg now makes his home in Beverly Hills, Calif., and Gehringer lives in Bloomfield Hills, Mich.

Martin talking with Yankees about managing, again

OAKLAND (AP) — Oakland A's Manager Billy Martin says he's been approached by the New York Yankees and the Cleveland Indians about managing those teams, but isn't looking for a way out of his job with the fifth-place A's.

"I'm not soliciting jobs. I have three more years on my contract with Oakland," Martin said Monday night as his team's record fell to 66-90 with a loss in Texas.

"There are only two clubs that have called, New York and Cleveland," Martin added. "Other than that I have no comment."

Before leaving Oakland for the road trip that also will take the A's to Kansas City, Martin said: "I want to stay here. My home is here."

Martin, whose A's won the American League West last season, was raised just north of Oakland, in Berkeley. He reportedly is receiving more than $200,000 a year under his five-year contract with Oakland.

He said Oakland President Roy Eisenhart gave Yankees owner George Steinbrenner and Cleveland president Gabe Paul permission to talk to him about managing jobs.

Martin, 54, managed the Yankees during five seasons. He started in August 1975, replacing Bill Virdon. Steinbrenner fired Martin in July 1978, rehired him the next spring and refired him in October 1979.

Martin has also managed Detroit and Texas, for three years each, and was in Minnesota for one season.

Clyde King has been managing the sixth-place Yankees on an interim basis since replacing Gene Michael on Aug. 4. Michael had taken over for Bob Lemon on April 27.

A's shortstop Fred Stanley, who played for Martin in New York, doubts Martin will return to the Yankees.

Albanian news agency reports 'liquidation' of gang

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Albanian army and security forces "totally liquidated" a heavily-armed gang of "runaway Albanian criminals" who landed on the country's coast, the Albanian news agency ATA reported today.

The action took place Saturday night and Sunday morning, according to a communique from the Albanian Ministry of Internal Affairs carried by ATA.

The gang was led by "the bandit Xhevdet Mustafa," the communique said.

The communique did not further identify Mustafa, and Albanian experts in Western Europe said they had never heard of him.

The wording of the communique suggested that the invaders were Albanian expatriates.

The small Communist nation on the Adriatic coast is closed to most Westerners. News reports from the Stalinist country frequently lash out at Western intellegence agencies and the remnants of the monarchy once led by King Zog. Zog left the country in 1939 when Albania was occupied by the Italians and he was deposed in absentia in 1946.

His successor-in-exile, Leka I, still lives outside the country and in the past has said he hopes to regain the throne.

The Albanian government communique on the landing said authorities seized "a considerable number of automatic rifles and postols complete with spy glasses and other equipment."

It did not say exactly where the landing took place, but noted that the intruders carried a radio transmitter, U.S., Italian and Albanian currency, as well as "necessary means for disguising one's face, different clothing, etc."

Let old friends know you're thinking about them.

Give them a call.

Things have sure changed since you were in school. But your friendship hasn't. Even if you live in Houston and they live in El Paso, you can still stay close... by phone.

That's because Long Distance is the little touch that says so much. And when you call on the weekend you can say so much for less. Just call between 11 pm Friday and 5 pm Sunday or weeknights between 11 pm and 8 am.

This weekend call anywhere in Texas and talk

10 minutes for $2.34. Or less.

Long Distance. The little touch that says so much.

NOTICE

TO THE REAL AND TRUE OWNERS OF PROPERTY WITHIN THE HEREIN AFTER DESCRIBED DRAINAGE AREA IN THE CITY OF MIDLAND, TEXAS AND TO ALL OWNING OR CLAIMING ANY SUCH PROPERTY OR ANY INTEREST THEREIN; AND TO ALL INTERESTED IN ANY OF THE PROCEEDINGS, CONTRACT OR OTHER MATTERS HEREINAFTER MENTIONED

Notice is hereby given to the real and true owners of property included within the hereinafter described drainage area within the limits defined, in the City of Midland, Texas, and to all persons owning or claiming any interest therein, and all others claiming or interested in any of said property, or in any of the proceedings, contracts and matters herein mentioned, that:

The City of Midland, Texas, acting through its City Council by duly enacted Ordinance No. 6086 has determined it is necessary to improve permanently the drainage of waters in any area north of FM 868 within the City of Midland, Texas, by excavating, grading, and widening by the construction in the manner and where the City engineer determines that said drainage facility is to be installed at the proper grade to adequately service the area intended to be served, and by construction of such drains and other necessary, incidentals and appurtenances as deemed necessary by said Engineer, said permanent drainage facility to consist of the construction of an adequate drainage basin for the collection of ponded water as is deemed adequate and proper by said City Engineer, all of said improvements to be as provided for in the plans and specifications heretofore prepared by said City Engineer and as shall be approved and adopted by the City Council.

That said City Council, by said ordinance, has further determined the necessity of levying assessments for a portion of the costs of the construction of said improvements against the properties within the drainage area and/or within the limits of said improvement unit hereinafter defined, and against the real and true owners thereof, and has adopted the proposed apportionment of costs hereinafter set out between the City and said properties and their owners, that the portion of said costs proposed to be so assessed will be in accordance with the per acre Rule or Plan, and said City Council has further adopted the following proposed rates and estimates of said costs in reference to the drainage facilities within the following described drainage area and as set out in the following schedule to wit:

A hearing will be given and held by and before the City Council of the City of Midland, Texas, in the Council Chambr of the City Hall in the City of Midland, Texas, on the 12th day of October, 1982, at 1:35 o'clock, P.M. to the real and true owners, whether named or correctly named in the assessment proceedings or not, of all property within the drainage area to be served by said drainage facility and to all lien holders or other persons owning or claiming any such property, or any interest therein, and to all others interested in any of the proceedings, contracts, or matters and things herein mentioned, or incident or relating thereto or the contract for the construction of improvements herein referred to.

At said time the place all such persons, firms, corporations and estates, and their agents and attorneys, shall be the right to appear and to be heard and offer testimony as to the said assessments, and as to the amount thereof proposed to be assessed against included property and the real and true owners thereof, and as to the lien and charge of personal liability to secure payment of said assessment, the special benefits to accure to each such property and the owner or owners there by virtue of said improvements, if any, or concerning any error, invalidity, irregularity or deficiency in any proceedings or contract in reference to said improvements and said proposed amendments, and concerning any other matters or thing as to which a hearing is constitutional prerequisite to the validity of said assessment, proceedings and improvements and on which the owner or owners are entitled to a hearing under the constitution and laws of the State of Texas and the proceedings of said City Council.

Following such hearing, such assessments will be levied against each and every parcel of property within the limits above defined, and the real and true owners thereof, for that portion of the cost of said improvements determined by said City Council to be assessed against such included properties, and the real and ture owners thereof, and said assessments shall be and constitute first and prior liens upon siad abutting properties, from the date said improvements were ordered by said City Council and a personal liability and charge against the real and true owners thereof, as of said date, whether such property be described or correctly described, or such real and true owners be named, or correctly named, in such proceedings or not, and no error or mistake or discrepancy in the names of such owner or owners, or in describing said property in any of said proceedings with reference to said improvements, shall invalidate any assessment or certificate issued in evidence thereof; but, nevertheless, each parcell of property and the real and true owner or owners thereof shall be charged with and be liable for said assessment, which shall be valid whether or not such owner or owners be named or correctly named, or such property be described or correctly described, and as provided for under Article 1175(15) of the Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, and Article III, Section 1 of the Midland City Charter, as amended, heretofore adopted by said City Council as the law under which such improvements, proceedings and assessments are being constructed, performed and levied.

DONE by order of the City Council of the City of Midland, Texas, this 14th day of September, 1982.

J. W. McCullough, City Secretary

Sept. 21, 28; Oct. 3, 1982

The first year's payment and buyer qualification will be calculated equivalent to a rate of 9.5% for 95% loan to value. Interest will be charged at a rate of 14.5% for the first 6 months of the loan. After the first 6 months interest will be charged at the most recent 6months Treasury Bill rate plus 4.25%. Payments on these mortgages are graduated so as to increase the principal and interest payments 7.50% each year for the next 4 years. At the end of the first 5 year period the graduation on payments will cease. A new payment schedule will be computed using a variable rate mortgage to amortize the remaining balance over the remaining 25 years of the mortgage based upon the then current Treasury Bill rate plus 4.25%. The 7.5% maximum increase can be more if the original loan principle exceeds 125%. At each 5 year anniversary date, the payment may be adjusted to allow the remaining payments to fully amortize the loan. ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE APPROXIMATELY 16.5%.

GAS, CLEAN ENERGY FOR TODAY AND TOMORROW. FHA VA financing availble.
