U.S. Senate votes to ban imports from Iran

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has agreed to halt all Iranian imports into the United States, but it still can't agree whether to approve a congressional veto of President Reagan's Persian Gulf policy.

The chamber was scheduled today to return again to a Pentagon budget bill that is being held up by Democratic-backed proposals dealing with Reagan's policies on the gulf and nuclear arms control.

While the Democratic-controlled chamber struggled to finish the measure, the nation's top military officer admitted the Navy underestimated the threat posed by Iranian mines.

"We made some mistakes," Adm. William Crowe Jr., chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, told a Senate committee Tuesday. "If I had it to do over again, I wouldn't do it that way."

"Obviously, we didn't want the Bridgeton to happen," he said, referring to the July 24 incident in which thz giant Kuwaiti oil tanker hit a mine in the war-torn waterway while it was being protected by a trio of Navy warships.

During three weeks of debates and decisions on the $302 billion Pentagon bill, both sides have argued about Reagan's policy of reflagging 11 Kuwaiti tankers and protecting them with Navy convoys through the gulf. Critics fear U.S. involvement in the Iran-Iraq war.

The Democratic proposal would end the reflagging and convoys 90 days after the law takes effect, unless both the House and Senate approve the policy. But Reagan has threatened to veto any bill containing that restriction and Senate Republicans are considering a filibuster that also would block the chamber from voting on the issue.

Crowe told the Armed Services Committee it would be a "terrible error" for Congress to order a withdrawal.

Shortly after Crowe spoke, the Senate voted 98-0 approval of another amendment to the Pentagon bill that would bar the import into the United States of all Iranian goods. Democratic presidential candidates Albert Gore Jr. of Tennessee and Paul Simon of Illinois did not vote.

The ban was proposed by Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan.

Jamboree to kickoff United Way

The third annual United Way Jamboree, an event which kicks off the county's largest fund raising campaign, is this Friday from 5 until 7 p.m. at the courthouse square.

As in year's past, residents are invited to bring lawn chairs and blankets; to eat a hot dog and a soft drink for the combined price of 25 cents; and to listen, free of charge, to two hours worth of music.

This year's event will feature also an appearance by McDonald's "Mac Tonight" and an offer for youngsters to be photographed for free with the new representative of the local restaurant chain.

Photographer Harley Bynum has volunteered his time to take the color photos. In addition, the film processing and prints will be completed for free courtesy of Keaton Kolor of Snyder.

These prints may be picked up at no charge at the local McDonald's beginning next week.

Event sponsors note the photo taking will begin at 5 p.m. and end at 7 p.m., so interested youth, accompanied by a parent or an adult, are urged to attend early.

Other incentives added to this year's Jamboree will include a chance for free prizes. Those attending will be given free tickets--donations will be accepted--and a drawing will be held for such prizes as T-shirts and a Ronald McDonald telephone.

"We plan the Jamboree every

Just Say 'NO'

(Editor's note: This marks the final week of an information series leading up to a training workshop here Oct. 9-11 sponsored by the Scurry County Council on Alcohol and Drug Abuse. All answers this week will deal with what to do when a parent realizes their child is using drugs or alcohol.)

Q. — What's the best way to handle the situation when my child comes home "stoned" or drunk?

A. — Don't talk to them while they are still drunk or high. A lecture at this point will likely only be tuned out as "preaching" and could cause the child to become defensive or even abusive.

Peddlers discover ordinance 'works'

Four door-to-door salesmen in Snyder Tuesday discovered that a local peddler's ordinance "works," but had less luck with their own product.

Police arrested the four Tuesday afternoon for attempting to sell their liquid cleaning product without obtaining a permit. One of the men had inquired about the permit with a local police sergeant earlier, and the same sergeant was in a local business later when the man attempted to make a sale minus the legal permission.

The sergeant asked him why he had not acquired a permit, and the man said, "I asked my boss, and he said, 'Try it till the heat gets on.'" The officer said he laughed, then replied, "Well, the heat's on."

After the men had been arrested on the Class C misdemeanor charge, one of them tried to use his cleaning product to remove fingerprinting ink at the county jail, jailers said. The product would not remove the ink, and the salesman had to use hand cleaner provided by the county.

'Three Little Pigs' set by acting troupe here

The professional acting troupe, Penguin Productions, will present another children's theatre production in Snyder next Monday.

The show will be under the sponsorship of the Snyder High School drama department and the Snyder chamber of commerce.

The touring theatre company will present a one hour, musical production of the "Three Little Pigs."

The stop in Snyder is part of a 21-show, three week tour of the group. They have appeared locally in past years in such shows as "Hansel and Gretel" "The Midas Touch," and "Little Red Riding Hood."

Penguin Productions began in 1979 and is designed to bring "wholesome, quality entertainment to children." The production company was founded by the husband and wife team of Bryan Lake and Rena Newton of Crockett.

The local performance will be at Worsham Auditorium Monday at 7:30 p.m. Ticket prices will be $3 for adults and $2 for children.

Tickets will be sold at the door.

Boat, RV tax break is amendment item

Vote

Proposition 10 on the Nov. 3 ballot would permit the legislature to exempt any non-income-producing tangible personal property, except residential structures, from ad valorem taxes.

The Constitution already allows the exemption of household goods and personal effects not held or used for the production of income, so the proposed amendment would expand that provision to include such things as boats, airplanes and recreational vehicles.

Local taxing authorities could over-ride the exemption and levy a tax, however, unless the property was exempted by some other law, under the new amendment.

"The vast majority of taxing units in the state have chosen not to tax certain personal property, even though, technically, the law provides no exemption for that property," a spokesman for the House Research Organization said.

"For example, many taxing units now ignore boats, planes and RVs because the expense of locating and appraising the property is greater than the poten-

In Iowa, presidential candidates are viewed by some as drips, by others as dips.

Iowa has long been an important presidential primary state. But in one poll, a candidate actually wants to take a good licking.

An ice cream company there recently came up with a flavor for each presidential candidate, and the company is keeping a running tally on sales as a straw poll.

A recent update shows Texan George Bush and Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis as leading their respective party races. The two flavor favorites are Bush's Preppymint and Massachewy Chocolate.

The candidates were called about their favorite ice cream. Rep. Richard Gephardt came up with St. Louis Bluesberry and Nevada Nugget was chosen by Sen. Paul Laxalt. Pat Robertson's was given Born Again Chocolate.

The ice cream company's president believes his straw poll will eventually coincide with the state's actual voting. He noted the company has started to get large orders from people believed connected with certain candidates.

The real reason Hart dropped out of the race--nobody would order Rice ice cream.

It's a shame the Gephardt-Dukakis debate wasn't shown in Iowa. Dukakis was eager to use a list of memorized farm words. It's pretty tough working "sorghum" into the conversation.

Even lawyers honor their best clients. The keynote speaker at a recent luncheon sponsored by the American Bar Association has had more than her share of experience in the divorce courts.

Zsa Zsa Gabor was the speaker at the ABA's Section on Family Law. Wonder if Johnny Carson was on the speaker list?

Q. — I've read that the increase in state sales tax will include insurance. Wasn't that taken out of the legislation due to widespread protests?

A. — The increase will not include a new tax on insurance premiums. However, some information services, such as insurance damage appraisals, investigations and claim adjustments, will come under the sales tax effective Thursday, Oct. 1.

In Brief

12 die in fire

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A fire early today swept through a two-story house where 15 people lived, killing 10 children and two adults who were trapped on the second floor by the soaring flames.

The fire broke out only hours before a woman who lived in the house was to go to court to fight an eviction notice, according to the woman's mother. The woman survived the fire, along with two other adults.

The wood and brick house on the city's North Side was gutted by the flames, which also spread to an adjacent building.

The dead youngsters were 11 months to 8 years old, according to fire battalion chief James Rechlitz, but he did not know the relationship among them.

Rate doubles

CREEDMOOR, Texas (AP) — Homeoners will pay a doubled property tax rate to help this young town pay off a lawsuit settlement with a widow whose husband died trying to avoid a pothole on one of the community's roads.

About 23 people — ten percent of the town's population — attended a Tuesday meeting in which the town council voted unanimously to double the property tax rate.

"There was a much larger attendance than at a normal meeting," said Mayor Joe Click. "It looked like a majority of folks were in favor. Two people were the opposition. Several people said it was necessary to cover our liability."

Creedmoor owes a $25,000 settlement to a woman whose husband died in a 1982 traffic accident trying to avoid a pothole in the then newly-incoporated town.

Creedmoor's current tax rate is at 7.28 cents per $100 assessed valuation. The new tax rate is 14.56 cents per $100.

Biden rebounds after quitting White House race

WASHINGTON (AP) — Joe Biden, an angry, frustrated man when he abandoned his presidential candidacy a week ago, seems relaxed and rejuvenated as he helps lead the battle to block Senate confirmation of Supreme Court nominee Robert H. Bork.

The Democratic senator from Delaware has been conducting the Bork hearings this week with more humor and bite, poking fun at himself and quizzing witnesses with new verve.

"It's a natural human reaction," said a member of Biden's staff who asked not to be quoted by name.

"He was caught up in this other thing," he said, referring to the presidential campaign and its unhappy ending.

Biden announced his withdrawal as a candidate on Sept. 23 after confessing painfully to plagiarism in law school and exaggerating his academic record when confronted by a heckler during an earlier campaign stop.

Biden's problems began when he liberally adopted parts of a British politician's stump speech and someone made a side-by-side videotape and passed it on to the media.

An announced candidate since June, Biden had earned high marks for inspired oratory and was a successful fund-raiser despite running well back in the pack in public opinion polls.

In bowing out, the 44-year-old, three-term senator earned plaudits by accepting the lion's share of blame for his actions.

"I do it with incredible reluctance and it makes me angry," he said. "I'm angry at myself. I made some mistakes. Now the exaggerated shadow of those mistakes has begun to obscure the essence of my candidacy and Joe Biden."

A couple of days later, Biden was late getting to the Senate Judiciary Committee hearings on Bork that he chairs. A train derailment had forced him to find other means of transportation to Washington from his home in Delaware.

"It's been a bad week for derailments," Biden noted wryly as he assumed the chairman's gavel.

A little later he cautioned a witness, former presidential counsel Lloyd Cutler, to be careful when responding to a question about Cutler's standing back in law school.

The hearing room filled with laughter when Biden suggested that recalling one's academic ranking can get you in trouble.

To mute charges of bias, Biden had bent over backwards in treating Bork and his allies evenhandedly. But lately, he has been more straightforward in stating his position on the controversial nominee.

Ford operations will go silent in memory of Henry Ford II

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. operations worldwide will go silent for three minutes in memory of Henry Ford II, who rescued the company from near ruin by his doddering grandfather and ran it for four decades in autocratic fashion.

Ford, who wrested control of the company at age 28 in a boardroom power-play carried out with help from his mother, died Tuesday at age 70.

Ford, who suffered from heart and kidney problems complicated by pneumonia, fell ill in London on Sept 1. Dr. Louis Saravolatz, who helped treat Ford at Henry Ford Hospital, said Legionnaires' disease contributed to the death.

Ford's successes included the Mustang in the 1960s, and recruiting a young management team dubbed the "Whiz Kids" that returned the company to profitability and a position as an industrial giant after World II.

Among his failures was the biggest dud in automotive history, the Edsel, named for his late father.

A boss who jealously guarded his power as much as his grandfather, company founder Henry Ford, before him, Ford fired Lee Iacocca, the darling of the auto industry, as president in 1978. "Well, sometimes you just don't like somebody," he explained.

Divorced twice and married three times, Ford lived a jetset lifestyle during the 1960s and 1970s and was fond of boisterous parties. At one point, he began drinking heavily and was charged with drunken driving.

Although generally polite and gracious, he could also be outspoken and sometimes cruel in his dealings with subordinates. "My name is on the building," he would say to settle arguments.

His personal fortune was estimated at $250 million by Forbes magazine in 1986, when his Ford stock was half its current value.

The death prompted the company to cancel Tuesday's national introduction to the press of its 1988 models.

Flags will fly at half-staff for the next month at all Ford plants in the United States and "we have asked all Ford locations overseas to follow the appropriate local custom," said company spokeswoman Judith Muhlberg.

On Oct. 8, Ford operations around the world will shut down for three minutes in Ford's memory.

Ford won recognition for his advocacy of corporate contributions to social causes and was credited with wiping bigotry against Jews and blacks from Ford's image.

Civil rights leader Coretta Scott King called Ford was "one of the nation's most visionary and progressive business leaders."

In Detroit, he was recognized as an employer, philanthropist, builder and social activist.

Upon the death of Edsel Ford in 1943, the government plucked Ford out of the Naval Reserve in 1943 to save the auto company, which was losing $9 million annually under his grandfather, who was approaching senilty.

By 1946, a year in which the company lost $8 million, the younger Ford had launched a multibillion-dollar, international reorganization and expansion that netted a $430 million profit in 1955.

Schools paying kids not to miss school

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Going to school every day next month could pay off — literally — for students who are being offered incentives such as cash prizes to attend classes.

Each of the district's 57 schools will be offering a chance to win money, gift certificates or special activities — whatever it takes to increase student attendance during October, associate superintendent Abe Saavedra said.

October is the month when the state tallies the average daily attendance, which in turn determines how much state money each school district gets.

The incentives are a response to the Corpus Christi Independent School District's enrollment dearth. Because enrollment is about 550 students below projections, the district stands to lose about $1.2 million in state funding it had figured into its budget.

Every school has received $300 to create its own student attendance incentive program, Saavedra said.

"Each principal will determine what kind of incentive program to set up," Saavedra said Monday. "Some are giving cash prizes, others pizza parties."

W.B. Ray High School students with perfect attendance each week will draw for cash prizes of $50, $25, $15 and $10, said principal Bill Hamrick.

At the end of October, the names of six King High School students who haven't missed a day of school that month will be drawn to receive $50 each, said assistant principal Ed Martin.

Students at Cunningham Junior High School will be encouraged not to miss school during October with a drawing for a special prize every week, principal Arnold Saavedra said.

A similar incentive program has been instituted in the Marble Falls Independent School District, about 30 miles northwest of Austin.

Students with perfect attendance there will be eligible for a drawing to win a trip for two to Disney World's Epcot Center on American Airlines, said Assistant Superintendent Jay Watson.

Other drawings will award prizes of money, bicycles, radios and pizzas, he said.

"It's not costing the local district any money," said Watson, adding that local businesses contributed the prizes. He said all students with perfect attendance would win something.

The district is trying to compensate for $750,000 in state funding that was cut this year.

Corpus Christi Superintendent Charles Benson said many schools around the country are taking similar approaches to improving attendance. He said the district receives about $2,000 for every student in attendance during October.

"This is not bribing children to stay in school," Benson said. "We're mainly doing this because of the enrollment decrease that we have this year."

Legislation introduced that will replace dollar with coin

WASHINGTON (AP) — A move is afoot to replace the $1 bill with a coin, despite the failure of the Susan B. Anthony dollar coin, which was introduced in 1979.

Advocates of the changeover say it would reduce government spending, hold down the cost of vending-machine products, aid the visually handicapped and remove hidden costs of what they call the outmoded dollar bill.

Sens. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., and John W. Warner, R-Va., and Reps. Jim Kolbe, R-Ariz., and Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., introduced legislation Tuesday to begin minting a new coin dollar that would be "gold in color" but made of 90 percent copper.

It would retain the dimensions of the Susan B. Anthony dollar, but would be made without the reeding, or small ribs on the edges.

Kolbe, one of the early supporters of the change, said minting the Anthony dollar in the late 1970s was a sensible acknowledgement of inflation.

"The 'Susie' failed, not because the need didn't exist, but because it was an alternative dollar rather than a replacement dollar," he said. "The coin lacked public support because it looked and felt like a quarter. It was about the same size, it was the same color, and it had the same reeded edge."

However, Kolbe acknowledged that public support must be generated for the new proposal.

"This is a long-term project," he said. "It is not going to happen quickly. We have to generate a lot more steam."

The new coin would succeed the Anthony dollar, which was introduced in 1979 but never caught on. The government now has 500 million unused Anthony coins stored in various vaults around the country, out of 800 million that were minted.

The new coin would bear the likeness of Christopher Columbus, in honor of the 500th anniversary of his landing in America.

Udall joked that Domenici, New York Gov. Mario Cuomo and House Judiciary Committee Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J. — all of Italian descent — declined the honor, "so we settled on the likeness of Columbus."

The legislators and the Coin Coalition, a diverse group of retailers, vending machine operators and metal producers and fabricators, say American taxpayers would save more than $50 million annually if a coin replaced the dollar bill. They say each coin would last 20 years while bills average just 18 months before they are shredded.

Double meaning

I'm sure most of you have heard about the Lightner slam double. Doubling a slam that the opponents expect to make asks partner to make an unusual lead. Sometimes this means that you should not double a slam that you expect to beat, if the double will cause your partner to make the wrong lead. This type of confusion created an enormous swing in a team match at the North American Championships in July.

The opening two-spade bid had special meaning for the East-West partnership, showing five spades and five diamonds, as well as an opening bid. Although his primary suit was weak, South could not risk passing such an offense-oriented hand and so overcalled three hearts. North tried six hearts, and all East's double really meant to say was that North had erred. Unfortunately West knew about Lightner slam doubles, and it sounded as if North was bidding six to make. So, looking for a unusual lead, he led a diamond. The result — the doubled slam was made, declarer pitching a spade as he won the diamond ace and queen. He then took 12 tricks on a crossruff, losing only the ace of hearts.

Opening lead judgment was on target at the other table. There six hearts was doubled and redoubled, but the lead of a spade set the contract two tricks.

Peter Gott, M.D.

Arm pressure shouldn't differ

DEAR DR. GOTT — Why would I have a different blood pressure in my arms? The right arm is 50 to 100 points higher than my left arm.

DEAR READER — The blood pressure is normally the same throughout the body. Because the circulatory system is a free-flowing hydraulic system, the pressure within it does not vary from arm to arm, arm to leg, or leg to leg.

Small differences between blood-pressure recordings in the extremities are usually due to fluctuating pressure or to technical differences in how the blood pressure is recorded. For example, a person with a thin arm will seem to have lower blood pressure than a thick-armed individual. This is because the large arm requires a pressure cuff that is wider than normal in order to record an accurate figure.

In your case, the difference between the arms is significant and suggests a medical condition called subclavian stenosis. Occasionally, patients will show a higher right arm pressure because of a narrowing of a portion of the subclavian artery that feeds the left arm. This narrowing causes an elevated blood pressure in the right arm but not in the left. It is a dangerous condition and can lead to stroke unless the constriction is surgically corrected. Most doctors are alert to the possibility of stenosis; this is why we take blood-pressure recordings in each arm during the initial examination of hypertensive patients.

Subclavian stenosis is unusual. I have seen only one case in 20 years of practice. However, once it is discovered, treatment is direct and permanent. The diagnosis is established with an aortogram, a type of X-ray study during which material is injected into the aorta and films taken. The pinched area shows up readily.

I suggest that you discuss your blood-pressure readings with your doctor. If he or she verifies your figures, you will need to have further examination.

DEAR DR. GOTT — What is livedo reticularis? Is there a cure for it?

DEAR READER — Livedo reticularis is a reddish-blue mottling of the skin, produced by exposure to cold, that is caused by a spasmodic constriction of small arteries. It is made worse by smoking. Livedo is more common in the arms and hands than in the legs and feet. It can indicate a circulatory disturbance and can lead to tissue damage if the constriction is not relieved by warming or by medicines called vasodilators.

Average savings account has $56,000

TOKYO (AP) — The average Japanese household has more than $56,000 in savings, according to a study.

Japanese families had an average $56,233 in savings in 1986, according to the survey of 4,200 families with two or more children. The annual study, released Tuesday, was conducted by the Central Council for Savings Promotion, a non-profit group of Japanese financial institutions and scholars.

The families had an average $17,740 in debts, resulting in net personal savings of $38,493, it said.

More than three-quarters of those surveyed listed preparation for illness and disaster as reasons for saving. Just less than half cited education fees and retirement needs.

Twenty-six percent checked an entry that said "no particular reason except that having savings puts one at ease."

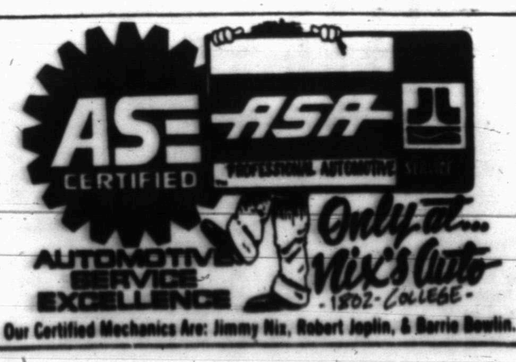

The report did not provide an international comparison of savings rates.

Golfers in Fort Worth

FORT WORTH – Western Texas College was to tee off this morning in the Fort Worth Park and Recreational College Invitational at Pecan Valley Golf Course here.

The 54-hole tournament runs through Thursday.

Playing for WTC will be Mark Burgen, Clint Adams, Lance Jones, Darrell Cofer and Jeff Beal. Mark Gonzales and J.D. McLelland will compete as individuals.

Tigers play Thursday

Snyder junior varsity gridders entertain Monahans at 7 p.m. here Thursday night.

Tickets for the contest, to be held at Travis Field, are $2 for adults and $1 for students.

Snyder freshmen will play in Monahans at 7 p.m. Thursday. Local junior high teams are idle this week.

7th grade v-ball slated

Snyder will host a seventh grade volleyball tournament here Saturday, beginning at 8 a.m. at the junior high gym.

Snyder, Colorado City, Big Spring Goliad and Sweetwater will participate.

Snyder Gold plays Goliad B at 8 a.m. while Snyder Black plays Sweetwater A at 10:15 a.m.

Maidens latest victim of Lady Tigers squad

Snyder's Lady Tigers completed the first half of District 2-4A volleyball play with a 6-2 record as they defeated San Angelo Lake View in front of the home fans Tuesday night.

The six wins keep Snyder near the top of the standings, but the two losses mean the Tigers can ill afford another loss.

"We're not out of the district race but we have to win," said Coach Vicki Nelms. "I think the kids realize that and that's what we're planning on doing, playing our best ball and hopefully that will mean a victory for us when we go to Fort Stockton."

Snyder takes a 12-7 season record into Saturday's 3 p.m. match at Fort Stockton.

Coach Nelms expected a tough time from Lake View on Tuesday and the final scores of 15-13, 15-12 indicate just that.

"Anytime a squad fields all seniors you have to wonder because they are capable of playing real well," she said of the Lake View team. "We knew they were going to play well and they did. This was probably one of their better games. We had to play pretty well to beat them and we did."

The loss knocked the Maidens to 8-9 overall and just 2-6 in district play. At one time this season the Lake View girls were 8-2, and 2-0 in district.

"It seemed like our last two games we had been moving kind of sluggish on defense and offense. We hustled better this time," said Coach Nelms. "Our offense looked a lot better. Our defense was still questionable at times, but it was good to see us get back into the way we are capable of playing overall."

Scoring points for Snyder were Melody Pickering 8, Sandra Powell 6, Becky Becerra 5, LaFon Williams 5, and Denise Overton, Sandra Morin and Rhonda Echols, 2 each. Pickering and Powell each had two ace serves.

Snyder had nine kills in the game, including 5 from Pickering and 2 from Overton.

Cats slap Lake View

Snyder junior varsity volleyball girls tripped up San Angelo Lake View here Tuesday evening, 15-9, 15-9.

The victory puts the young Tigers at 17-4 on the season and 7-1 for the first half of district action. The second half begins Saturday as the Tigers play at 2 p.m. in Fort Stockton.

Scoring on serves for Snyder were Jennifer Pate 10, Cindy Srna 6, Annette Ramos 5, Shelly Tomlin 5 and Teena Braziel 4. Also playing were Veronica Rivas, Anne Osborn, Amber Adams, Brandi Bell, Angie Brewster and Diana Espinosa.

"We started out pretty slow. We were behind 7-2 in the first game and came back and won it," noted Coach Patty Grimmett. "We had a lot of good offense and our defense played really well, too. They had a couple of girls that could really hit but several times when they did we were able to pick it up and make some offense from it. We had a lot of good blocks, also."

Dorsett, Jones may follow soon..

Danny White joins 'Cowboys'

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Dallas quarterback Danny White crossed the picket line of striking Cowboys players early today, saying his reasons for doing so "are strictly private."

White, who lost $45,000 last week when he honored the players' strike, slipped across the picket line at 7:50 a.m. as it was formed by late-arriving strikers.

White joined veterans Randy White and Don Smerek. Also in the Cowboys' camp are two players off the injured reserve, Chris Duliban and Johnny "Lam" Jones.

Also expected to cross the picket lines this week were running back Tony Dorsett, one of the most outspoken pro-union members of the team, and defensive end Ed Jones. Both received letters from Cowboys management saying they would jeopardize their annuities if they didn't show up.

White informed the rest of the team during a meeting on Monday that because of financial problems he would have to cross the picket line later in the week and return to work.

Dorsett said he received a letter from Cowboys President Tex Schramm on Tuesday that informed him he stands to lose a portion of his $6 million annuity if he doesn't return soon.

On Sunday, the Cowboys are scheduled to play Jets in East Rutherford, N.J., their first game since the National Football League Players Association announced the strike Sept. 21.

"He (White) figured that it was time for him to go in," Dorsett said. "He has an economic situation where he needs to go back to work."

Though teammates said White's decision to break ranks with the striking players was not a surprise, Dorsett's departure would be.

Dorsett has been a regular member of the Cowboys' picket line and last week was bitter toward fellow Cowboys captain Randy White for crossing the line and joining the replacement players for workouts.

Dorsett, however, told teammates on the picket line Tuesday that he had little choice after receiving a letter from Schramm that apparently indicated Dorsett stood to lose a portion of his annuity, in addition to some land also promised him in his contract, teammates said.

"I sent him a letter pointing out some things about certain parts of his contract," Schramm told The Dallas Morning News. "I won't go into the details. It involves a lot of money."

Schramm said last week that players must participate in all games - even during a strike - if their annuity is to be fully funded.

Another standout, starting defensive end Ed "Too Tall" Jones, whose current contract includes a similar annuity clause, also has been sent a letter by Schramm, and he, too, might be persuaded to return to the club before the strike is settled, the News reported.

White said last week he would lose $45,000 for every game he missed.

Coach Tom Landry said White would be in the starting lineup against the Jets if he returned.

The reaction of teammates to Danny White's decision to rejoin the team was relatively kind.

'Pokes question mark because they haven't been tested says coach

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Bring on the Oklahoma Sooners. In about a month.

That's how long Dallas Cowboys' Coach Tom Landry figures it would take to mold his collection of free agents into a club worthy of handling the nation's No. 1-ranked collegiate team.

Landry said on Tuesday he isn't sure what he's got because his substitute NFL team hasn't had any contact.

"Oh, give me a month and we might," Landry said after he was asked if his collection of free agents could handle the Sooners. "I'm not sure what level we can play because we haven't even seen our team scrimmage."

Landry said he hasn't scrimmaged his team for fear of injury.

"We can't afford to scrimmage," Landry said. "We're down to five offensive linemen. We just have enough players to play. We're just trying to get 'em in shape."

The strike teams of the Cowboys and the New York Jets meet on Sunday at 3 p.m. in the Meadowlands.

"I think we will have a good overall team, but we have no idea what we are going to come up against in the Jets," Landry said. "Defense normally has the advantage early in the season, but who really knows, because we've never had a game like this. We have veterans like Randy White and Don Smerek in the defensive line, so that could be an advantage for us."

Landry said he might be inclined to try more trick plays than normal.

"We might have a little more wide open approach," he said.

Landry said quarterback Kevin Sweeney, the NCAA's all-time passing leader, has been looking sharp in practice.

"He's been throwing the ball very well, and it will be interesting to see how he competes against the Jets," Landry said.

Landry said if veteran quarterback Danny White changed his mind and crossed the picket line, then White would start.

"Sure, Danny would be my starter," Landry said. "If anybody else crosses, we will sure use them."

Landry said the free agents and the coaches are taking the Jets seriously "because these games count in the standings. That gets your attention. I will be doing my very best to coach this team (to a victory)."

Cowboys' practices have been closed this week as Landry puts in a game plan.

Landry said he would pay $23 to see the game this weekend.

"Sure, I would pay it," Landry said. "I think it will be fun. I imagine the fan reaction will be mixed. We will get some support."

Asked if he wished he had retired because of the strike hassle instead of signing a new three-year contract, Landry quipped, "I'll let you know in a couple of weeks."

The Cowboys will travel to New York on Saturday afternoon.

"It will be different," Landry added.

St. Louis sweeps Montreal; leads NL East by 3½ games

by The Associated Press

The St. Louis Cardinals' strong pitching and opportunistic offense were never more in evidence.

The Cardinals took full advantage of a total of six hits in the doubleheader and held Montreal to seven as they swept the Expos 1-0 and 3-0 Tuesday night.

The sweep, combined with Philadelphia's 3-0 victory over New York, gave the Cardinals a 3½-game lead over the second-place Mets in the National League East race. The Cardinals have five games remaining and the Mets four, including three at St. Louis to close the season.

"It's not always how many (hits) you total, it's when you hit them," said Ozzie Smith, whose hit-and-run single through a vacant shortstop hole set up Tommy Herr's sacrifice fly in the sixth inning of the opener. "It hasn't been easy. We are short our big hitter (Jack Clark). The ballclub's just responded."

Joe Magrane, 9-7, pitched a three-hitter in the opener and Greg Mathews, 11-11, and Todd Worrell combined on a four-hitter in the second game.

Worrell, who allowed one hit in the last three innings, earned his 33rd save after taking over for Mathews with no outs and runners on second and third in the seventh inning. Worrell got Hubie Brooks on a pop foul and struck out Tim Wallach and Andres Galarraga.

"It was unbelievable," Herr said of Worrell's performance. "I think he threw 11 pitches - two strikeouts and a popup to shut 'em down ... that was, I think, the key to the game."

In other NL games, it was Cincinnati 5, Atlanta 4; Los Angeles 6, Houston 1, and San Francisco 5, San Diego 3. Chicago at Pittsburgh was postponed because of rain.

Phillies 3, Mets 0

Philadelphia left-hander Don Carman thwarted New York's title hopes with a near-perfect game and said he was happy to help the Cardinals.

Carman allowed only one baserunner - an infield single by Mookie Wilson in the fourth inning - and Mike Schmidt drove in two runs for the Phillies.

Shortstop Steve Jeltz cut off Wilson's grounder toward the hole to the left of second base, and just missed throwing him out at first.

Dodgers 6, Astros 1

Los Angeles got a two-run homer from Franklin Stubbs in the first inning and rookie Shawn Hillegas held Houston to three hits in six innings.

Hillegas, 3-3, outdueled Nolan Ryan, 8-15, who pitched seven innings and gave up four runs on six hits. Ryan struck out nine as he retained the major-league lead with 260, eight more than Seattle's Mark Langston.

Detroit Tigers move back into East race

by The Associated Press

There's one race left in the American League, and the Detroit Tigers are doing their best to make it interesting.

"We've got to do this the rest of the way," Bill Madlock said after his home run triggered the Tigers to a 10-1 victory over the Baltimore Orioles Tuesday night and back into the thick of the American League East race.

Coupled with Toronto's 5-3 loss to Milwaukee, the Tigers' victory moved them within 1½ games of the front-running Blue Jays. Detroit and Toronto close out the season with a three-game series this weekend in Tiger Stadium.

"If the Blue Jays lose one more, they'll for sure have to beat us here," Detroit Manager Sparky Anderson said. "I think everybody will feel the heat if it gets down to the last three, which will be wonderful."

In other games Tuesday night, the Texas beat the AL West champion Minnesota 7-5, New York defeated Boston 6-0, Chicago stopped California Angels 1-0, Kansas City trimmed Seattle 6-3 and Oakland edged Cleveland 5-4.

Along with Madlock's first-inning solo homer, the Tigers also got a three-run shot from Chet Lemon in the fourth and a splendid pitching performance from Frank Tanana, who hurled three-hit ball over eight innings.

Brewers 5, Blue Jays 3

Glenn Braggs knocked in two runs with a pair of singles and B.J. Surhoff homered as Milwaukee defeated Toronto.

The loss was the Blue Jays' third straight and marked the first time the team has lost more than two games in a row since an eight-game slide that ended July 7.

Rangers 7, Twins 5

Pete O'Brien and Geno Petralli homered in the eighth inning and Charlie Hough pitched a seven-hitter for Texas.

O'Brien's homer, his 23rd, came off reliever Keith Atherton, 7-5, and broke a 5-5 tie. Petralli followed with his second of the game and seventh of the year.

Hough, 18-12, went the distance for the 13th time.

Minnesota broke a 3-3 tie in the fifth when Gene Larkin doubled home Gary Gaetti from first. Randy Bush hit his 11th homer in the seventh to pad the lead to 5-3.

Stiffer drug sentences said needed

AUSTIN (AP) — The AIDS battle must be fought in the courtroom with longer prison sentences for dealers convicted of selling intravenous drugs that help spread the deadly disease, says the president of the American Medical Association.

"The United States is not as tough on drug dealers as many other countries. They sure are responsible for spreading a lot of this disease," Dr. William S. Hotchkiss said Tuesday at a news conference.

The Chesapeake, Va., surgeon was in Austin for meetings with the Travis County Medical Society.

He said about 15 percent of current AIDS patients contracted the disease through the illegal use of intravenous drugs. AIDS, which can be spread through the use of contaminated needles, destroys the body's immunity system.

About 85 percent of the AIDS cases are spread through sexual contact, primarily between male homosexuals, according to Hotchkiss. But he said the spread of AIDS to the heterosexual community is being quickened by intravenous drug abusers.

He said a stepped-up war on drugs might be the only way to protect drug abusers from AIDS.

Fuel oil prices climbing higher

NEW YORK (AP) — Futures prices for wholesale heating oil have edged up with the coming of winter, and other prices have also moved higher in the latest trading on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Contracts for November delivery of West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude, closed 9 cents higher at $19.54 a barrel Tuesday. It was the first upward move since last Wednesday, when the contract jumped 43 cents to close at $19.68 a barrel.

A barrel is the equivalent of 42 gallons.

October contracts for wholesale heating oil closed at 54.15 cents per gallon, up 0.75 cent, while wholesale unleaded gasoline for October delivery settled at 51.35 cents per gallon, up 0.14 cent from Monday.

Seasonal factors were responsible for the leap in heating oil, which was the main focus of attention in Tuesday's market, according to Mike Furlan, a trader for Dean Witter Reynolds Inc.

"We had the first snow of the year up in Vermont, and so it's getting to be that time of year again — even if it's 70 degrees down here in New York," he said.

Lightning kills two special mules

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The two mules that led the Sesquicentennial Wagon Train across Texas last year have been killed by a lightning bolt.

Bonnie and Beth, who pulled the train's lead wagon 3,235 miles, died after lightning struck a North Texas ranch's tree under which they stood during a thunderstorm, officials say.

The mules were owned by Garry and Jan France of Sulphur Springs, the originators of the Sesquicentennial Wagon Train. The Frances bought Bonnie in South Dakota. Beth was purchased from the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

"Beth weighed 1,660 pounds and was well known before the wagon train," said Ida Nell Wood of Fort Worth, who drove the two mules for five of the six months they were on the trail.

"She used to pull a tour wagon for sightseeers on the Lyndon Johnson Ranch at Johnson City. When the wagon train went through Johnson City, residents gave Beth special recognition, she said.

Ms. Wood described the mules as large but gentle animals, saying Beth flirted along the trail and "talked" often.

Smokeless tobacco to be studied

HOUSTON (AP) — A University of Houston scientist hoping to fight oral cancer is using a $1.6 million grant to study Little League baseball players' use of smokeless tobacco.

An estimated 10 percent of all teen-agers chew or dip tobacco, said Richard Evans, a psychology professor and principal investigator for the National Cancer Institute-sponsored five-year project. That percentage is about the same as adult usage and is up 3 percent to 4 percent in the past six years.

"We have a chance now to stem the tide, before this becomes established," he said.

An earlier school study showed 55 percent of high school or junior high school students who used the smokeless tobacco began the practice before the age of 12.

Evans said he believes usage is climbing because smokeless tobacco is more easily concealed than cigarettes.

"The biggest mystery is why people know the risks of using something and they persist in using the drug," Evans said.

He said a goal of the study would be to determine if students who decline to chew see those who do as being status-conscious.

Authorities have accused man

EAGLE PASS, Texas (AP) — Authorities say a Mexican accused in the shooting and burning death of a man in Mexico will be prosecuted for alleged violation of U.S. Laws before he is turned over to Mexico.

Abel Jaimes, 40, of Tejupilco, Mexico, is believed to have been smuggling Mexican citizens into the country for 25 years, and brought hundreds of undocumented workers into Texas, authorities said Tuesday.

Border Patrol Special Agent Bruce Thompson said Jaimes is well known among immigration authorities, and is classified as a professional alien smuggler.

Jaimes, who was living in a house in Round Rock, was arrested in Austin Friday by members of the Austin police's Hispanic Crimes Unit, he said.

Austin law officers had been watching for Jaimes for three weeks, after federal police in México said he was wanted in connection with a slaying committed June 30.

In that killing, the victim was taken to a field south of Mexico City, shot at point-blank range and his body set on fire, police said.

Pat Robertson quits the network

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican presidential hopeful Pat Robertson, in a move to soften his identity as a television evangelist, says he is resigning as a Southern Baptist minister and severing ties to his broadcast ministry.

Robertson's announcement came Tuesday, just two days before he formally enters the GOP race.

"The call of God on my life for service has never diminished. It has shifted, however, from service within the church body to service to the nation," he said in a statement from his campaign headquarters in Chesapeake, Va.

"As I formally make the transition from service in one to service in the other, I would serve neither well by blurring the distinction that exists between them."

Robertson has emphasized his business background in campaign appearances rather than his long career as a religious broadcaster, aware that public opinion polls indicate voters are unwilling to accept clergy in high public office.

Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, formed the Aerial Experiment Association in 1907. His colleagues were J.A.D. McCurdy, F.W. Casey Baldwin, Thomas Selfridge and Glenn Curtiss. Baldwin made the group's first public flight the following year and McCurdy the first flight in Canada in 1909.

Texas sales taxes increase Thursday

AUSTIN (AP) — Record numbers of Texans are calling the state tax collector with questions and complaints about the sales tax increase that takes effect Thursday.

"It appears that nobody is happy," Claudia Stravato, deputy comptroller for enforcement, said Tuesday.

On Thursday, the state sales tax will increase to 6 percent from the current 5¼ percent. The sales tax also will be expanded to cover many services and some goods that had been exempt.

For Dallas, Austin and Houston residents, the increase means a total sales tax of 8 percent because of the 1 percent city sales tax and 1 percent transit sales tax.

Lawmakers approved the state sales tax increase during a special session called this year to balance the budget.

Ms. Stravato, who oversees the tax assistance telephone bank, said the 50 tax specialists there have been handling 5,000 to 8,000 calls a day since mid-August.

The number of tax-related calls to the toll-free line (1-800-252-5555) has been as high as 10,000 per day, she said.

Most of the calls are from businesses, Ms. Stravato said.

The 420,000 merchants now on the tax rolls must adjust cash registers or obtain new cards that show the increased state sales tax.

In addition, more than 64,000 businesses are expected to be collecting the sales tax for the first time.

Among the items that will fall under the sales tax beginning Thursday are garbage collection, landscaping, pest control, private club memberships and insurance damage appraisals.

"A lot of (the callers) are confused" because the $5.7 billion tax bill approved by lawmakers contains different effective dates for different tax increases, Ms. Stravato said.

The sales tax increase and base-broadening that take effect Thursday will together raise an estimated $3.6 billion over the next two years. Other increases took effect Sept. 1 or will take effect Jan. 1.

With the increase, Texas is tied with six other states in having the third-highest state sales tax rate in the nation.

Some of the merchants who are calling are irate because they must pay a new $25 fee for a permit to collect the sales tax, Ms. Stravato said. The fee became effective Sept. 1.

The state's motor vehicle sales tax and hotel-motel room taxes also went up Sept. 1.

Starting Thursday, the so-called Doughnut Rule, which applies the sales tax to ready-to-eat foods only if they are purchased for immediate consumption, will fall by the wayside.

The abolition of the rule, which got its nickname because the sales tax has not been charged on purchases of six doughnuts or more, means the sales tax will be charged on all food and drink purchases from such businesses as restaurants, hotels and drug stores.

Smokers also will pay a higher price beginning Thursday, when the cigarette tax will go from 20.5 cents to 26 cents a pack.

Starting Jan. 1, the sales tax will be extended to data processing services, including word processing and data entry.

Taxes also will be charged on repair and remodeling services, except on new construction and owner-occupied homes, beginning Jan. 1.

Victims could have jumped

LA JUNTA, Colo. (AP) — Three of six crew members who died in the fiery crash of a B-1B bomber on a ranch near this southeastern Colorado community could have exited through the plane's bomb bays, the Air Force said.

Why they didn't is one of the answers investigators of the crash are trying to determine.

Three crew members used ejection seats to blow themselves free of the stricken bomber and parachute to safety. They suffered cuts and bruises in landing on the prairie 3 miles east of the crash site Monday morning.

The victims have been identified as Maj James T. Acklin, 37, an instructor pilot from Champaign, Ill., 1st Lt. Ricky M. Bean, 27, of Farmington, Maine, a student pilot, and Maj. Wayne D. Whitlock, 39, of Johnson City, Tenn., a defense systems instructor.

Those who ejected were Capt. Lawrence H. Haskell, 33, Harrisburg, Pa., a student aircraft commander; Capt. Joseph S. Butler, 33, Rocky Mount, N.C., a defensive systems student, and Maj. William H. Price, 42, Yuma, Ariz., an offensive systems instructor.

The three were reported in good condition at the Air Force Academy Hospital where they were being kept from news reporters.

Capt. Jeff Mielke, a public affairs officer for the Strategic Air Command, said the B-1B normally has a four-man crew and four ejection seats.

Mielke said two crew members had jump seats in the cockpit, a usual practice when instructors are flying a mission. These jump seats are not equipped with ejection devices.

Mielke said the pilot contacted the FAA Flight Control Center at Longmont "that he had a bird strike (birds in the jet engines) and had lost number 3 and 4 engines and one was on fire."

Capt. Dav Thurston, a spokesman at SAC headquarters in Omaha, said B1 crew members also are taught to exit a stricken craft from the bomb bay.

Asked why the three didn't, Thurston said:

"We're trying to learn what went on in the cockpit. That's what this investigation is all about."

The plane was on a training flight from Dyess Air Force Base in Abilene, Texas, when the crash occurred on an electronic Bomb Plot range near La Junta.

The plane was flying at an altitude of about 500 feet over the range when it encountered the flock of birds. It then climbed to a higher altitude for more maneuvering room but crashed a short time later.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1987 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Have you ever heard of a mother being sued for mental cruelty? Mom has carried tales back and forth among her seven children for years. She has twisted stories and created dissension among all members of this family and deliberately turned brothers and sisters against each other. She is now 84.

She now mails out copies of her will to her children and grandchildren — all grown — listing who is to get how much, and who will be cut off without a dollar!

Abby, we're talking about an estate that is less than $100,000. She had better save her money because she will need it for a nursing home, as there is not one among us who can stand to be around her for any length of time.

Sad, isn't it? We were all abused as children, and she still abuses us. Every time I hear the plight of some old folks who are ignored, I can't help but wonder if some of them earned it — like my mother.

BEEN THERE
IN SAN BERNARDINO

DEAR BEEN THERE: There is nothing you can do to change your mother, but abusing her in retaliation will not improve the quality of life for anyone. Abused children usually abuse their own children. Just make sure you don't perpetuate the sins of your mother.

DEAR ABBY: Here's my problem: I have been living with "Fred" for 12 years without benefit of clergy. Until recently, he has resisted the idea of marriage, and I haven't pushed it.

Fred is Canadian, and a year ago when I took a job in Worcester, Mass., I sponsored him for a "green card" so he could work in the USA. (I'm a U.S. citizen.) In the process of getting a green card, the courts affirmed our "marriage" on the basis of long cohabitation.

Now, Fred wants to get married, but honestly, Abby, I feel the time is past. I think it would be embarrassing to have a wedding now. On the other hand, I don't want to discourage him from his newfound urge to make a real commitment.

What do you advise?

WONDERING IN WORCESTER

DEAR WONDERING: Go for the ring on your finger. It's not necessary to have an extravaganza with a lot of hoopla — a quiet but meaningful marriage ceremony with a few close friends and family members will officially reaffirm your commitment. You'll be glad you did. I wish you joy.

DEAR ABBY: When seven of us were dining at an expensive restaurant (I call $50 a person expensive), five people in our party finished with their main courses, but two were still eating. The busboy came along and started to clear the table. Although I had finished eating, I felt that the two who were still eating were made to feel uncomfortable and somewhat rushed.

When the busboy went to pick up my dinner plate, I gently placed my hand on my plate in order to prevent him from removing it.

My son really jumped on me. He said I should not have stopped the busboy from taking my plate. I did not make a scene. I simply let the busboy know that he was not to remove my plate. He got the message and did not return to remove any more plates until everyone had finished.

Did I commit a cardinal sin?

ENCINO MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: No. The process of clearing the table should not begin until everyone has finished eating.

Perhaps the busboy did not know better, or he may have been instructed to clear the table in order to hurry the party out of the place. In any case, when that occurs, it's perfectly proper to politely tell whoever starts to clear the table to kindly wait until everyone has finished eating.

Astro-Graph

By Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

Thursday, Oct. 1, 1987

Advancement in your chosen field of endeavor is likely in the year ahead. Where your talents went unnoticed, they will now come to the attention of the proper authorities.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Assume the role of chancellor of the exchequer today and manage the family budget. Your mate's inclinations may not be as prudent as yours. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences which are governing you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o of this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Try not to be locked in too rigidly to your own views today. Your companions might have some thoughts from which you could learn.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Instead of attempting to build up your resources today, you may do just the opposite. You'll be better off trying to add rather than subtract.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It's OK to look out for No. 1 today, but don't do so at the expense of others, especially members of your own family. Be considerate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Guard against tendencies today to boast about something that you have yet to accomplish. You'll be embarrassed later if you don't pull it off.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Recreational activities that carry an expensive price tag should be avoided today. There are other things you can do that won't abuse your purse.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) In earning arrangements today you'll receive the compensations to which you're entitled. However, don't look for extras, such as praise or pats on the back.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your progress will be impeded today if you dwell too much on what you're going to do and how you're going to do it. Spend less time planning and more time producing.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't ruin something good that you have going for yourself by discussing it with too many people who are not involved.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) There's a chance you might be caught in the middle of a sticky development today. Don't try to satisfy all and end up pleasing no one.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) This can be a successful day for you if you don't get off on tangents. Select your most meaningful target and go after it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) In situations today where you feel compelled to take a risk, it will prove wiser to let your more cautious evaluations prevail over your impulses.

Sakowitz submits new plan

HOUSTON (AP) — Australia's Hooker Corp. Ltd. would acquire 80 percent of financially beleaguered Sakowitz Inc., the Houston-based retailer, under an amended reorganization plan filed in federal bankruptcy court.

According to the plan, two classes of creditors would get the remaining 20 percent of Sakowitz, which filed for reorganization under federal bankruptcy laws in August 1985 in the wake of financial troubles stemming partly from the economic slump in the Southwest.

The plan, the second submitted under Chapter 11, must be approved by creditors. The first plan filed in March was abandoned.

Hooker, a major Australian real estate company based in Sydney, agreed in April to buy the Bonwit Teller division of Allied Stores for $101 million, and earlier this month agreed to join major shareholders of Parisian Inc. in acquiring the specialty retailer in a $252 million buyout.

Hooker also is developing four regional shopping malls in the United States, averaging 1.5 million square feet each.

According to documents filed last week, Hooker would create a U.S. affiliate to contribute $7.5 million to a subsidiary that would be merged with the 80 percent stake of Sakowitz.

Nearly $4 million of the $7.5 million would be used to pay creditors. Those creditors owed less than $2,500 and those willing to limit their claims to $2,500 would get 25 cents on the dollar.

Those owed more than $2,500 would receive a pro rata share of $1.5 million cash, $2 million in cumulative preferred stock and 20 percent of new common stock in the company.

The stock deal also would give Hooker a one-time option five years after the merger to buy the 20 percent of Sakowitz common stock that it did not own.

Biden: Bork vote likely on Tuesday

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, fighting to keep his nomination of Robert H. Bork alive, took issue today with Sen. Alan Cranston's prediction that the Supreme Court nominee is "licked."

"I'm very optimistic," Reagan told reporters. "I think common sense will prevail and they will realize he's the best choice in the market today for that post."

Reagan, asked about Cranston's survey — which shows 49 senators likely to oppose Bork, 40 likely to vote for him and 11 undetermined — responded simply, "Sen. Cranston's been wrong before."

The president, who was preparing to make another pitch for Bork to supporters later in the day, made his comments at a ceremony extolling the sale of government loans.

At the hearings, meanwhile, Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Joseph R. Biden Jr. said today he expects the panel will vote Tuesday on sending the Bork nomination to the full Senate.

Committee members are holding private discussions on whether the nomination will move forward without a recommendation of approval or disapproval, or whether opponents can muster enough votes for a negative recommendation, according to several committee sources.

There now appears virtually no chance that the panel, which has eight Democrats and six Republicans, will give Bork the favorable recommendation given most nominees.

Biden mentioned the likely vote next week at the start of the final day of confirmation hearings. Before the session got under way, Cranston, D-Calif., and Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., announced their opposition to Bork. Both had been expected to oppose confirmation.

One day earlier, Cranston said of his informal poll of fellow senators, "This reflects a loss of five potential votes for Bork since Sept. 15," the day Bork's confirmation hearings began before the Judiciary Committee.

Leahy, a committee member, declared his opposition in a speech on the Senate floor today. He described Bork as brilliant and decent.

Plastic surgeons claim fat suctioning safe, effective

CHICAGO (AP) — Fat suctioning, America's most popular form of cosmetic surgery, is largely safe and effective, though some variations are riskier than others and some practitioners are poorly trained, a medical group said today.

The American Society of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgeons said in a report that it had documented 11 deaths and nine non-fatal cases of serious complications in an analysis of 100,000 U.S. liposuction procedures over five years.

Most of the complications were caused by clots of blood or fat blocking vessels to the heart, brain or lungs, the Chicago-based society said.

Fat suctioning, or liposuction, involves inserting a tubular instrument under the skin and suctioning off fat tissue.

The risk of complications increases when fat suctioning is combined with a technique of removing excess skin and fat from the abdomen called abdominoplasty, the plastic-surgeons group said.

However, the society said the procedure has been so greatly refined that it can be used on fatty areas of the face and even improve the looks of the elderly, despite early reservations about them as appropriate candidates.

Meanwhile, the society said fat transplants, a new twist on the procedure in which fat is sucked from one part of the body and injected into another, have had uneven success and should be considered experimental.

Difficulties with liposuction are more likely when it is used for more than two quarts of fat. Such an amount requires the patient to be under general anesthesia, to be watched overnight and to have donated blood in advance in case bleeding makes a transfusion necessary, the society said.

The society also reported that fat suctioning tends to be overused. Practitioners lacking training in other plastic surgery procedures may use liposuction when it is not appropriate, such as in the case of loose skin on the abdomen or under the chin, it said.

A U.S. pioneer of fat suctioning blasted that conclusion and accused the society of engaging in a "turf battle over money" by spreading the impression that only plastic surgeons are qualified to do the lucrative procedure.

"It is absolutely unconscionable what they are trying to do," said Dr. Julius Newman, chairman of cosmetic surgery at The Graduate Hospital, which is affiliated with the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine in Philadelphia.

"Plastic and reconstructive surgeons feel no other surgeons are capable of doing plastic surgery in any part of the body," said Newman, president of the American Academy of Cosmetic Surgery, based in Pacific Palisades, Calif.

"Our position is no one surgical specialty can control all of plastic surgery," he said, noting that a French gynecologist, not a plastic surgeon, developed the procedure and taught it to U.S. doctors.

Newman said specialists such as eye surgeons; ear, nose and throat doctors; obstetrician-gynecologists, and orthopedists may in many cases be better qualified than plastic surgeons to do liposuction because they would be more familiar with the body areas on which they would be performing the procedure.

Jamboree Friday to start campaign year to give something back to the community that supports us," noted United Way President Ralph Williamson. "We just hope they remember us at drive time."

Beginning next Monday, United Way volunteers will be distributing donor packets throughout the county. The campaign, using the theme "On the Rebound," seeks a goal of $80,000 this year.

The music provided Friday will come from a mix of a country western "house band," featuring both solo and ensemble performances, and the harmony entertainment of The Singing Cowboys.

The house band, set to perform from 5 until 6 p.m., will include the Jimmy (Hoss) Clayton band with such individual performers as Aubrey Wilson, E.L. Hill, Bob Campbell, Jack Denman, Nell Clayton, D.W. McCommas, Warren Badger and others.

From 6 until 7 p.m., The Singing Cowboys, under the direction of Jane Womack--who will perform also--will take the stage. The group's membership includes Bob Womack, Ralph Williamson, Joe Dan Jones, Malcolm Crawford, Joe Coronado, Terry Bowden and Jackie Greene.

Accompanying them on piano will be Barbara Wilkerson. The sound system and piano Friday will be provided by J.D. Smith and Smith Music Company.

The honorary drive chairman for the 1987 United Way campaign is Melinda Drum, who currently serves as a director for the Snyder Child Day Care Center.

She and other United Way volunteers, to include Williamson, Jack Denman, the organizational head for the Jamboree, and Donna Fowler, will make brief promotional announcements during the evening.

The executive board for United Way includes Williamson as president; Jack Gorman, first vice president; Barbara Figueredo, second vice president; and Mike Banta, treasurer.

The Pacesetter effort for United Way is now underway with the regular campaign to begin next week.

United Way's nine agencies are mainly youth-oriented organizations.

The pledges toward these agencies this year include: Boys Club, $27,500; Noah Project, $11,000; Snyder Child Day Care Center, $10,000; Boy Scouts, $9,500; Girl Scouts, $9,500; Oil Patch Foster Parents, $4,060; Red Cross, $1,775; Salvation Army, $1,335; and the West Texas Rehab Center, $445

United Way has also set aside some $4,885 for its campaign expenses. Approximately 94 percent of all funds raised go directly to the nine agencies.

tial tax revenue."

Opponents say the proposition would save money for the wealthy while shifting the tax burden to Texans who cannot afford such expensive items.

"If no taxing units chose to over-ride the personal property tax exemption proposed by this amendment, property taxes collected on tangible personal property would drop by $167 million over the next biennium," an opposition spokesman said. "The already over-burdened homeowner would have to make up the difference."

Sophomores, who were elected last spring, are Brandy Hickman of Snyder, Margaret Ornelas of Abilene, Raquel Rodriguez of Donna, Shannon Cloe of Liberty, Tony Zambrano of Rotan, Mark Rauterkus of San Angelo and Mark Reger of Tularosa, N.M.

Mickey Baird, student activities director, serves as faculty advisor for the senate.

Health careers workshop set

A health careers workshop open to the public is planned on Oct. 6 at Western Texas College. There will be no charge.

Wendy Kumasaki of the Texas Hospital Association will speak at 11:15 a.m. in the Science Lecture Hall. Her presenation will be followed by a question and answer period.

Kumasaki will be talking about careers in nursing, physical and occupational therapy, respiraroty therapy and other careers in the health care field. The program is to end at noon.

"The health care industry continues to need qualified individuals," Dan Osborn, WTC counselor, said. "This workshop is intended to help persons interested in that type of career to gain information and we invite everyone interested to attend."

Nomination of next leader of Mexico said imminent

MEXICO CITY (AP) — In a process not unlike an Aztec Indian ceremony in which only the high priests know the ritual, the Institutional Revolutionary Party (PRI) is about to conclude its selection of Mexico's next president.

All indications are that within the next week or so, the party leadership, having been whispered the name by President Miguel de la Madrid, will announce the name of its candidate for the election next July.

The announcement most likely will be phrased that, by common agreement of all sectors of the party and its activists, the nominee will be the man everyone knew all along would be the chosen one.

The unveiling of the "tapado," or "masked one," will signal what is commonly known here as the "buffalo stampede," the mad rush of professions of allegiance by political and non-political groups in Mexican society that know how important it is to be in the good graces of the next administration.

Many of those professions of loyalty will come from groups and individuals who hours before would have undergone torture before admitting their allegiances.

Thus will conclude another one of Mexico's complex selection of the man who for six years becomes the most powerful person in this country and who in turn will have the final say in the naming of his successor.

The ruling party, known as the PRI, never has lost an election for president, senator or governor of any of Mexico's 31 states since its founding in 1929.

The front-runners for the nomination are Interior Secretary Manuel Bartlett, Budget and Planning Secretary Carlos Salinas de Gortari and Energy and Mines Secretary Alfredo del Mazo.

PRI candidates, like the party itself, cannot be easily classified under political labels of left or right.

Traditionally, possible candidates did not campaign, but were chosen by the outgoing president after consultations, supposedly, with the elite of the party's labor, peasant and popular sectors.

This time, the party announced the names of six possible candidates and had each of them speak express his program and ideas publicly before the party leadership.

In addition to the three front-runners, the hopefuls include Mexico City Mayor Ramon Aguirre, Attorney General Sergio Garcia Ramirez and Public Education Secretary Miguel Gonzalez Avelar.

The waiting for the official "destape," or "unveiling," is the talk of Mexico. Bets are placed and rumors swapped.

Group opposes super collider

AUSTIN (AP) — The state panel leading the Texas bid for the "super collider" says the project would be a money-producer and a landmark in science.

But the Texas Libertarian Party says if it's such a good deal, why aren't any private firms interested in paying for it?

"Let the people who think it is a good idea pay for it," Libertarian Party secretary Gary Johnson of Austin said at a Tuesday news conference.

The Libertarian Party, which contends that government already does too much, is urging Texans to vote against a proposed constitutional amendment on the Nov. 3 ballot that would let the state sell $500 million in bonds to raise money for incentives to lure the project.

Twenty-five states want to be home to the super collider, which a report released Tuesday called "one of the most significant scientific research projects of our time."

The project includes a 53-mile underground tunnel in which atoms would be smashed together at the speed of light. In a report released Tuesday, Southwest Econometrics Inc. of Austin told the state's National Research Laboratory Commission, which is coordinating the state bid for the project, that the collider could mean big dollars for the state.

"If Texas is successful, an important question is, 'What will Texans receive in return for the investment?' In economic terms, the answer is jobs, income and tax revenues," the report said.

The construction phase will mean more than 17,000 jobs for Texas, according to the report.

The total economic activity could add up to $11.4 billion for Texas during the projected eight-year construction.

But Johnson said, "Actually, the federal super collider will be the world's largest and most advanced tax accelerator and wallet smasher. Government scientists will use giant magnets to take money from our pockets faster than ever before."

He added, "The super collider is a super boondoggle. This esoteric super toy for absent-minder professors has no practical application. A state bond proposition to borrow $500 million must be repaid with higher state taxes — supertaxes."

Matt Lyon, press secretary for the group pushing for approval of the constitutional amendment, was not impressed with the Libertarian's criticism.

"Those folks are against so many things I wouldn't be surprised if they announced they didn't believe in gravity," Lyon said.
