Clinton eyes tough cuts

President-elect mulls raising retirement age

'Strong' candidate for energy emerges

Associated Press

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — President-elect Clinton on Friday interviewed his likely pick for defense secretary, House Armed Services Chairman Les Aspin, and a Minnesota utility executive who has emerged as a strong candidate for energy secretary.

The interview with Hazel O'Leary, a black attorney and executive vice president of Minneapolis-based Northern States Power Co., came amid a fresh round of complaints from women's groups that Clinton was failing to deliver on his promise of a Cabinet that "looks like America."

Aspin and O'Leary were met at Little Rock's airport by Clinton aides and whisked away for their interviews.

WASHINGTON — President-elect Clinton, facing an unexpected tide of federal red ink, is weighing a wide range of tough deficit-cutting measures including pushing back the Social Security retirement age, aides said Friday.

Clinton transition spokesman George Stephanopoulos stressed that the proposals were just being studied and that Clinton had made no final decisions. But he said the president-elect was determined to make a significant effort.

"The important thing is that we have a strong long-term deficit reduction package," Stephanopoulos said.

In addition to raising the retirement age for collecting full Social

Oil loans to Russia

WASHINGTON — Russia will get $2 billion in U.S. loans to buy American oil and gas equipment and help keep the former Soviet republic the world's biggest oil producer, the Export-Import Bank's vice chairman said Friday. "Russia was and still barely is the No. 1 producer of crude in the world, but its oil production is plummeting, it's simply dropping like a rock," Eugene K. Lawson told reporters.

Couple claims prize

AUSTIN — A Kerrville couple claimed their half of a $15.8 million lotto jackpot Friday, but there was no immediate word from the "mystery" holder of another winning ticket sold in Houston, lottery officials said. Unlike previous Lotto Texas jackpot winners, Patsy and Mike Holder chose not to appear at a news conference to discuss their fortune. Their jackpot share totals $7,881,658.44, to be paid in 20 yearly installments. Ms. Holder, 52, is a private babysitter, Levine said. Her husband, 31, is a nurse's assistant.

TSU students react

HOUSTON — The dissolution of Texas Southern University's popular marching band over an overseas shoplifting incident has left some students embarrassed and worried about damage to the school's overall reputation. The stylish Ocean of Soul marching band had been a source of pride for the school, performing everything from solemn classical pieces to gospel, rock and jazz. But the band's rhythmic reign ended abruptly Thursday when school officials disbanded the group in the wake of allegations that several members stole electronics recently in Japan and that non-students went on the trip./ 12C

'O' Tannenbaum'

Hundreds of Midland public school first-graders, above, turned out to sing during the 10th annual performance of "O' Tannenbaum" in the ClayDesta atrium on Friday. Approximately 240 pupils from Washington, Scharbauer and Bonham elementary schools performed at the event. Parents and onlookers, left, join in singing at the Christmas concert, which included a storyteller, and a presentation of canned goods to the Area Methodist Outreach Services, Memorial Christian Food Bank and the Permian Basin Center for Battered Women and Their Children.

U.N. Security Council's vote rebukes Israel

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Security Council late Friday unanimously denounced Israel's deportation of more than 400 Palestinians and demanded their immediate return.

Israel criticized the council resolution as biased.

The vote was delayed for hours by U.S. concerns over the wording of the resolution — Washington's latest rebuke of its main Middle East ally.

But U.S. diplomats failed to persuade the 15-nation council to also condemn the terrorist killings of Israeli soldiers and police, which led to the expulsions to Lebanon.

The council "strongly condemns" the deportations of the suspected Muslim fundamentalists, who were ordered not to return for two years. The explusion, the largest mass deportation of Arabs by Israel since the 1967 Middle East War,

Morales: 'Draft Ann' move stirs

Associated Press

AUSTIN — A move is brewing among Democratic Party leaders to draft Gov. Ann Richards for the U.S. Senate seat being vacated by Lloyd Bentsen, Attorney General Dan Morales said Friday.

"I know that the governor doesn't want to do it ... but we simply cannot afford to lose that Senate seat," said Morales, a Democrat. "I think her party and I think her state need her."

The Democratic governor said this week that she doesn't want to name herself to replace Bentsen. Also a Democrat, he has been tapped by President-elect Clinton to be Treasury secretary.

The person appointed by Richards will serve until someone is chosen in a special election to complete Bentsen's term,

Bullet-proof vest campaign yields $88,000

By Ed Todd

Staff writer

The communitywide "Invest In A Vest" campaign paid off for the Midland Police Department with more than $88,000 to buy bullet-proof vests for 160 officers.

"I am very, very proud of Midland and the effort that has been put out," Midland Mayor J.D. Faircloth said Friday.

"People are appreciative of the effort that our police expend everyday in protecting people's lives and properties," Faircloth said in announcing results of the campaign. The mayor cited "the patrolmen, the detectives and all the people who work to protect the citizens' interests.

"This is a tough economy right now, and a lot of people are out of work," Faircloth said. "And a lot of people gave money to make this successful."

Faircloth noted that the City Council, which initially was skeptical about the campaign's success, had set side $40,000 for vests. As a result of the campaign's success, those funds will be used to replace deteriorating vests, which Midland Police Chief Richard Czech said have a five-year life.

Among donors who supported the vest program were Travis Elementary School children who, instead of exchanging $2 gifts among themselves, donated cash to buy a $500 vest for an officer, said Penny Angelo, president of Neighbors Against Burglary and Drugs.

The students "normally exchanged Christmas gifts at $2 each, and they just decided they would turn their $2

Judge rules confession can be used in court

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff writer

A confession to the July murder of a cab driver can be used in court despite a motion to suppress that evidence by defense attorneys, a judge ruled Friday.

Statements made by 18-year-old Terrence Lee to police have been ruled not inadmissible by 238th District Court John Hyde.

Defense attorneys sought to have statements made on Aug. 7, 11 and 12 to police barred from Lee's trial set to begin with jury selection Dec. 28.

The suppression hearing basically hinged on whether Lee was able to waive his rights and knowingly and voluntarily give statements to a detective.

Lee and a second man, 20-year-old James Greene, reportedly admitted during separate interrogations that they were involved in the July 6 shooting death of taxi driver Alejandro Rodriguez.

Rodriguez, 20, was robbed and shot twice in the head during the early morning hours after being dispatched to 1119 E. Nobles Ave., where he apparently picked up his assailants, police said.

Rodriguez, employed by City Cab Co. for about six months, was found slumped over the steering wheel of his taxi in the 1700 block of Morgan Way by another cab driver, police said.

A Crime Stoppers tip identified Lee as the triggerman, police said.

After the murder, Lee and Greene were questioned about the crime and unsuccessfully attempted to implicate another man in the crime. The two later admitted involvement, police said.

VOTE: Security Council denounces deportations

(From 1A)

has threatened the already vulnerable peace process.

The Palestinians said they would withdraw from the Mideast peace talks until the deportees were repatriated.

The Security Council demanded that Israel "ensure the safe and immediate return to the occupied territories of all those deported." Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali also was asked to consider sending an envoy to the area. Israel opposes U.N. intervention in its domestic affairs.

"The condemnation of the Security Council is one-sided," Israeli Ambassador Gad Yaacobi said after the meeting. "It has ignored the violent measures of Islamic fundamentalist organizations. ... It has ignored the kidnapping and murders of innocent Israelis ... and the efforts to murder the peace process."

The United States used its veto power to shield Israel frofn Security Council denunciations during the Cold War. But in January the United States backed a condemnation of Israeli deportations and in April supported a resolution criticizing an Israeli attack on a Gaza Strip refugee camp that left four people dead.

After the vote, U.S. Ambassdor Edward J. Perkins told the council: "While we have consistently condemned deportation, we cannot ignore and must equally strongly condemn the brutal murders of Israelis by (the Islamic fundamentalist group) Hamas which preceded these deportations, and is part of a deliberate strategy to undermine the peace process."

But by deporting the Palestinians, he said, Israel "plays into the hand of those whose goal is to scuttle the peaee process. It also imposes an unfair burden on Lebanon."

Resolutions of the council are considered legally binding, but Israel regularly ignores such criticisms as unwarranted interference in its affairs.

"Mass deportation is tantamount to the infamous racial policy of transfer and is not so much different from the concept of ethnic cleansing and racism," M. Nasser al-Kidwa, the observer of Palestine, told the council.

STATE

Moisture streaming in from the Gulf of Mexico kept skies cloudy over most of South Texas on Friday, while clear to partly cloudy skies prevailed over the rest of the state.

In North Texas, temperatures rose rapidly Friday morning in the sunny air but increased little during the afternoon as clouds kept out the solar heat.

Temperatures out west were in the 50s north and the 60s south. In South Texas, low clouds and fog kept temperature readings in the 50s in the southeast, while the lower coast saw readings in the upper 70s.

CUTS: Clinton mulls pushing back retirement age

(From 1A)

Security benefits, Clinton indicated in an interview Friday in The Wall Street Journal that he was considering taxing capital gains when a person dies and limiting the size of tax writeoffs companies can take for providing health insurance for their employees.

However, he balked at the idea of raising gasoline taxes as much as 15 cents per gallon, calling that "excessive."

Several participants at his National Economic Conference this week had put forward the idea of raising the gasoline tax to lower the deficit and Clinton seemed to embrace the suggestion, linking it with his proposal to provide middle class tax breaks.

During the conference, the deteriorating outlook for the budget deficit received particular scrutiny. John P. White, who drew up Ross Perot's budget plan, said new estimates had increased the size of the likely deficit through 1996 to $300 billion more than the estimates Clinton used to develop his budget plan last summer.

In the newspaper interview, Clinton said, "Whatever we do in the short run, we need a multiyear program that simultaneously brings down the deficit credibly and increases our investment."

He said that the economic revival program he presents Congress in January will be accompanied by a deficit reduction program that will make projections not just for the next four years but for some period beyond that.

Discussing various deficit-cutting proposals:

■ Clinton said that raising the Social Security retirement age "is something that definitely has to be looked at." He said, "With the fastest growing group of the population over 80, by the turn of the century, the average person could literally spend 20 years in retirement."

The Progressive Policy Institute, a Washington think tank that has supplied a number of advisers to Clinton's campaign, has suggested that the new administration save $60 billion over the next two decades by raising the retirement age of 65 to 66 by the year 2002 and to 67 by the year 2008 for those receiving full benefits.

■ Clinton said he was "inclined to agree" with those arguing that a limit should be placed on the size of deductions companies can take for supplying health insurance to their employees. Some have proposed capping those tax writeoffs as a way of forcing companies to economize on the coverage plans they offer employes. "There has to be some personal responsibility in this health-care system we set up," Clinton said.

■ On the question of estate taxes, Clinton said he would consider raising revenue by ending the tax exemption for capital gains on assets held when a person dies.

Under current law, the amount that a deceased person's assets such as property or stocks have gained in value since their purchase is not subject to the capital gains tax and a person's heirs have to pay the capital gains tax only on appreciation that occurs after the date of death.

Eliminating this exemption could raise $4 billion to $5 billion a year, and Clinton said "that probably should be looked at."

He said he did not favor eliminating the current provision that exempts the first $600,000 in an inheritance from estate taxes.

During the economic conference, participants were split on the need for a quick-fix stimulus program to get the jobless rate down faster next year at the expense of a higher budget deficit.

DRAFT: Movement brews, attorney general says which runs through 1994. The election is likely to be in May.

(From 1A)

Morales said he's talked with "dozens" of party leaders, including elected officials and State Democratic Executive Committee members, about the prospect of a "Draft Ann" movement, but he declined to name them.

State Democratic Executive Director Ed Martin said, "Most of us support Ann Richards whatever Ann Richards wants to do. ... I think that Ann Richards will make up her own mind. I don't think that any draft movements are going to pressure her."

"She hasn't ruled anything out completely, but she has consistently stated that (appointing herself) would not be her preferred route to take," said Chuck McDonald, a spokesman for Richards.

Morales said there's been talk of a public relations campaign and a petition drive to draft Richards. He said he thinks it would be difficult to persuade her to take the post, but that the effort is important.

"There is no more popular elected official in the state than Ann Richards," he said.

Richards has said she hopes to name Bentsen's replacement next week, and that she wants it to be someone who will run in the special election.

Two leading Democrats this week took themselves out of the Senate race: former San Antonio mayor Henry Cisneros, who is Clinton's choice for secretary of Housing and Urban Development; and state Comptroller John Sharp.

In other action Friday:

■ State Treasurer Kay Bailey Hutchison, a Republican, said she has filed a statement of candidacy for the Senate seat with the state "to allow me to fully explore" running in the special election.

Ms. Hutchison said her effort would be headed by Dallas businessman James B. Francis Jr., who she said was a close adviser to U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm.

■ Longtime Democratic activist Frances "Sissy" Farenthold said she told the governor she'd like to be appointed to the Senate spot. Ms. Farenthold said she's prepared to run for the seat in the special election.

"I also believe the governor should increase the pool of those being considered for the appointment to include women as well as men," Ms. Farenthold, a Houston lawyer, said in a statement.

A Democratic group earlier this week urged Richards to name Ms. Farenthold to the Senate seat.

The special election to succeed Bentsen will be an open one, with no party primaries.

Republican Congressman Joe Barton of Ennis has announced his candidacy for the seat.

Other Republicans considering the race or reportedly interested, besides Barton and Ms. Hutchison, include Kent Hance, a former congressman and railroad commissioner; Public Utility Commissioner Marta Greytok; Dallas Mayor Steve Bartlett; former secretary of state Jack Rains; and U.S. Rep. Jack Fields of Houston.

Other Democrats who have expressed an interest in the seat or have been mentioned as possible election candidates include Jim Mattox, former state attorney general; former lieutenant governor Bill Hobby; his son, Paul Hobby; Secretary of State John Hannah; former agriculture commissioner Jim Hightower; state Railroad Commissioner Bob Krueger; state Sen. John Montford of Lubbock; and congressmen Mike Andrews of Houston, Jim Chapman of Sulphur Springs and John Bryant of Dallas.

CAMPAIGN: Mayor praises city, residents for effort into a vest," Mrs. Angelo said.

(From 1A)

Other schoolchildren held similar campaigns.

Scharbauer Elementary School children collected and sold aluminum cans to raise money for vests and paid tribute to a Drug Awareness Resistance Education (DARE) officer with candlelight music and a 16-piece orchestra to demonstrate their appreciation for law enforcement.

St. Ann's School children already have raised $500 for a vest and are raising a second $500 for another, she said.

The children at those and other schools were demonstrating "respect" for law enforcement and for the men and women who serve in the ranks of law enforcement, Mrs. Angelo said following a news conference in the Midland Police Department.

Former City Council member Tom Sloan said the campaign's objective, outside of raising funds for vests, was to get the "little guys" — kids — involved in supporting police.

"That's the reason policemen have blue uniforms instead of brown," Sloan said. "You've got to change the attitude of kids. That's the way you turn crime around. The kids all look up and respect the police."

Sloan said the vest campaign came about from monthly luncheons with District Attorney Al Schorre, Police Chief Richard Czech, and Midland County Sheriff Gary Painter.

"And they were talking about not having vests," Sloan said. "We talked and talked about it, and decided it would be a real worthwhile cause."

Sloan said that Midland civic leader Ed Vogler, who took on the "big donors" in raising funds for vests, said the campaign "nearly bombed out for about a year" in trying to raise funds.

"We finally began to make a little more momentum," Sloan said. The news media, particularly KTPX (Channel 9) and the Reporter-Telegram, "got behind us and turned the tide."

In noting the children's support of the vest program, Czech said grade-school children "have so much interest and so much care for the police officers. That flows over into the fact that Midland is such of a great community."

Outside of the obvious protection of officers' lives, the gift of money for vests "gives the community an opportunity to show the police that citizens appreciate all the activity they assist them with," Schorre said. "It builds a stronger relationship of good will between the community and the police department."

Painter, who was not at the ceremony, later said that he and his Sheriff's Office "encourage and stand behind the Police Department in their efforts to buy vests.

"We are very thankful that some citizens of this community think enough of law enforcement to provide the financing to possibly save an officer's life. It's for the officers' safety."

Painter said that some of his deputies, who had requested vests, bought them through Midland County and that the deputies reimbursed the county for their vests.

Midland Police Sgt. Price Robinson said that in 1980, he bought a life-protecting vest with his own money when he was on patrol duty.

"My wife (Kathy) is real conscious that I have it on," Robinson said.

"The majority of guys wore vests," Robinson, 34, said. "They bought them themselves and wore them."

Correction

A caption that accompanied a photograph appearing in Friday's newspaper incorrectly stated which school Billy Galindo and Luis Arsiaga attend. The two sophomores at Lee High School wrote, illustrated and bound their own Christmas stories, which they read to young hospital patients.

FAMINE: Somali boy, 10, struggles to live

(From 1A)

ing with three brothers and three sisters in the southern Somali town of War Maxan. He recalls running races at school and learning the traditional nomadic songs of his people.

But, in what has become the preamble to almost every story of despair in Somalia, clan warfare and thieves took the farm and the cattle of Hassan's father, Osman Riyole.

That left Riyole with a hard choice: stay and hope for relief or set out for Mogadishu, the capital, where he heard there was food. So Riyole, who was raising the children himself after a divorce, began walking the 140 miles.

Two months later, only he and Hassan were still alive. The six other children died enroute.

Hassan and his father came to Lefoole, a Red Cross hospital and refugee camp where they joined 560 other refugee families waiting for food. Deliveries were uncertain because of clan warfare and looting. When food came, Hassan rallied.

But over the next six months his weight steadily fell and he began to get sick.

First, Hassan lost most of his hearing to a fever. Then scabies scarred and crusted his hands and feet. Laying on the mat in his hut, Hassan began to resemble a pile of discarded firewood.

After the landing of U.S.-led forces, relief supplies are arriving more frequently. A daily biscuit and the occasional cup of milk has given the Hassan the faint energy his father hopes will sustain him. Now, he needs protein from meat and eggs. That will be a problem because the family has no money.

"My son is very brave," Riyole said. "If he continues to eat, he will live."

Even if his body is eventually restored to health, it is a question how much will be left of the playful boy Hassan once was. Hassan cries from pain when touched and hates to be around the other children in the camp because, his father said, he is self-conscious about his emaciated condition.

A nurse in the camp said she isn't sure Hassan is even able to remember his life before the camp because of the constant headaches and fever. Still, it is a good sign that Hassan is now able to get on his feet occasionally.

And with his daily scrubbing and weekly scabies injection, a corner may have been turned in his long recovery process.

But good news here comes in small doses. On this bright, hot day two more corpses were prepared for burial in the reddish sand of the camp graveyard. Family members carried the shrouded body of a child past the huts, but no one came out to mark the passing.

Bush pencils in quail hunting in S. Texas

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush will go on his annual quail-hunting vacation in Texas at the end of the month, the White House said Friday.

The president will fly to Houston on Dec. 28 to look over prospective office space to be used after he leaves the White House in January. He then will continue to Beeville where he hunts on a ranch owned by Will Farish.

The quail hunt in the week after Christmas has been a Bush tradition for many years. He skipped it two years ago during the buildup for Operation Desert Storm in Kuwait.

Bush plans to return on Dec. 30 and will go directly to Camp David, his retreat in the Maryland mountains, the White House said.

The president is spending this weekend at Camp David, along with a guest, Prime Minister John Major of Great Britain. He will return to Camp David on Christmas Eve and remain there until he leaves for Texas.

CANDIDATE: Interview comes amid fresh complaints from women

(From 1A)

Transition sources described Aspin as a near lock for defense secretary, saying he was Clinton's clear choice heading into the interview. And, speaking on condition of anonymity, the sources confirmed O'Leary was a candidate for the energy post.

"She's a late entry but a very strong entry," said one of the sources. O'Leary, 55, who was appointed to federal energy posts by Presidents Ford and Carter and before that served as a prosecutor in New Jersey.

Colorado Sen. Tim Wirth has been considered the favorite for energy secretary until recent days.

In energy lobbying circles in Washington, speculation is widespread that Wirth's candidacy is dead. A senior Clinton adviser said that might be an overstatement, but said Wirth's chances were "clearly down."

Although several women have received senior posts, only one, Health and Human Services Secretary-designate Donna Shalala, have been named to Cabinet jobs. Clinton also wants to name a female attorney general, but women's groups say that would not be enough to allay their worries.

"We had high hopes of shattering that glass ceiling so most of us right now are quite alarmed," said Eleanor Smeal of the Fund for a Feminist Majority, who sent Clinton a letter urging him to slow his selection process and appoint "no fewer than six women" to the Cabinet. "We've got to make sure that they know we are watching and are very worried," Smeal said in a telephone interview.

In New York, a source who spoke on condition of anonymity said state Court of Appeals Judge Judith Kaye "has withdrawn" as a candidate for attorney general. At least three other women are candidates for that post.

Aspin, a Wisconsin Democrat, exchanged greetings with reporters as he arrived in Little Rock but declined to talk about his meeting with Clinton. Clinton communications director George Stephanopoulos characterized the meeting as "a long, fruitful and thoughtful discussion."

Stephanopoulos said the president-elect would not make any appointments over the weekend but hoped to complete his Cabinet by Christmas. Aides were preparing for announcements Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday before Clinton takes a holiday break.

Clinton has eight Cabinet slots to fill, at the departments of Defense, State, Justice, Agriculture, Energy, Education, Transportation and Interior. Other unfilled slots on Clinton's foreign policy and national security team include director of central intelligence, national security adviser and ambassador to the United Nations.

The favorites for most of these posts have been widely reported, but Clinton has held back on several announcements while awaiting background checks. His promise of a Cabinet that "looks like America" has raised the possibility that one or two could get nudged aside in the quest for diversity.

Clinton spent the day generally out of the public eye, emerging from the Arkansas governor's mansion at midmorning for what aides said was a routine visit with the throat doctor who treated the chronically hoarse Clinton during the presidential campaign.

On other matters raised at his daily briefing, Stephanopoulos:

■ Described as a "welcome step" Attorney General William Barr's decision to have an independent prosecutor conduct a criminal investigation of the State Department's campaign search of Clinton's passport files, presumably to determine if any members of the Bush White House staff engaged in misconduct.

"Obviously the preliminary investigation yielded some indication that laws were broken and the independent counsel is the way to get to the bottom of this," Stephanopoulos said.

■ Expanded on Clinton's comment, in a Wall Street Journal interview, that Hillary Clinton would be invited to participate in Cabinet sessions. "She'll be free to attend when she feels she can make an addition and that's probably a lot," Stephanopoulos said.

Aspin, 54, a moderate Democrat, opposed the Vietnam War, as did Clinton. As the House's leading voice on defense matters, Aspin has usually supported Pentagon programs and is generally well regarded by Republicans. Aspin was a strong supporter of the Persian Gulf War and backed financing for the MX missile and aid to the Nicaraguan Contras.

Vietnam memorial funds near $200,000

By Ed Todd
Staff writer

Funds committed to building and maintaining the $480,000 two-acre Permian Basin Vietnam Veterans Memorial Plaza near Midland International Airport are just under $200,000, according to John Philbeck, president of the committee coordinating the project.

"This is something that touches not just my generation, but it touches everybody," said Philbeck, a 42-year-old Midland clothier who is a Vietnam War-era veteran.

"When people went to Vietnam, the first thing they lost was their innocence," Philbeck said Friday. "And the last thing they came away with was total disillusionment — with the way the war was handled, with the way it was fought, with the way it was ended, and with the way our people were abandoned.

"There was a lot of anger built up," he said.

The plaza is to feature a sunset-red granite vertical likeness of Texas; the names of 203 veterans from 27 West Texas counties who were killed in Vietnam or who are still missing in action; a granite Lone Star saluting the men and women who served in all branches of the service during the Vietnam War.

More than 58,000 Americans were killed in the war.

Philbeck, who said that more than 10,000 Vietnam War veterans live in the Midland-Odessa area, lamented the recent deaths of his "Vietnam brothers."

"This war is still killing folks," Philbeck said.

When the plaza will be built and dedicated will depend on how soon the $480,000 goal is reached, he said.

Of the almost $290,000 funds now raised, most — $150,000 — has been collected this year through individual, corporate, company, and foundation gifts, Philbeck said. People who wish to contribute tax-deductible gifts to the cause may telephone Philbeck at 682-0461 in Midland or write him in care of the Permian Basin Vietnam Veterans Memorial at P.O. Box 2178, Midland 79702.

Architect for the project is Walter Pate of Midland, Philbeck said.

The project began in November 1989 with a fund-raising telethon.

The project took on deeper meaning for Philbeck in January 1991 when the traveling black granite Vietnam Veterans Memorial toured Midland.

Philbeck found the name of another Philbeck, Donald DeWayne Philbeck, who at age 19 was killed on Feb. 20, 1968, during the Tet offensive.

"I found his name and a number of other real close friends that I went through service with," said Phibeck who wears a bracelet bearing the name of Donald DeWayne Philbeck of Kentucky.

Philbeck cited the assistance of community leaders, such as Barry Beck, Paul Davis, Joe O'Neill, Arden Grover, Earl Craig and Bobby Holt, in instilling enthusiasm for the memorial. Foundations supporting the project include the Permian Basin Area Foundation, Abell-Hanger Foundation, O'Shaughnessy Foundation, and Davidson Foundation, Philbeck said.

"We need people to help us spread the word" about the memorial, Philbeck said. Twenty-seven West Texas counties are "working together toward a common goal."

"There is a tremendous amount of support that has taken place," including the fund-raising Operation Outreach in Andrews.

U.S. operation disrupts aid supply lines, relief workers say

BAIDOA, Somalia (AP) — So far, U.S. efforts to rescue starving Somalis amount to something of a setback because the Marines have disrupted crucial supply lines without replacing them, aid officials said.

"We can't get to people we used to, and they are dying," said James Fennell of CARE. He praised Operation Restore Hope for securing ports — but said excess military caution is costing lives.

During the months that relief workers waited for United Nations protection, they built a fragile spider web of delivery routes into the bush to bring food, primary medical care and seeds to desperate families.

They hired guards to ride shotgun on trucks and jeeps, losing some supplies to looters — but also reaching many thousands of people who were too weak to seek help in feeding centers.

The Marines' first move in famine-stricken Baidoa was to disarm the airport security force, tough ex-soldiers CARE had hired as escorts. Other free-lance guards hid their weapons and temporarily retired.

Tibebu Haile Selassie, deputy director of UNICEF in Mogadishu, predicted improvement once the military is in place. But for now, he said, "the situation is worse than it was before."

Although continued stocks are needed in Baidoa, relief workers say, their urgent priority is to reach more of these isolated pockets where whole villages hang by a thread.

But many of these deliveries have stopped, not only because no armed escorts are available but also because the Marines have driven bandit gangs out of Baidoa into the most vulnerable hinterlands.

"The military thinks convoys because it looks and sounds very good," said Ian MacLeod, U.N. spokesman in Somalia. "But there are also mobile medical teams, and others, who have to move quickly."

Along with food, he said, children need vaccination against measles and treatment for acute diarrhea, both deadly diseases in Africa. Also, water engineers, sanitation experts and evaluators make quick forays into the bush.

Like others, MacLeod said the threat to relief work was much less heavily armed units to be met with force than it was hit-and-run "moryan" — bandits who prey on unguarded targets of opportunity.

Col. Fred Peck, spokesman of the Unified Task Force, said troops would be available to escort all relief vehicles when they arrived in strength, but he acknowledged the temporary difficulties.

"We're caught between a rock and a hard place," he said. "They scream at us to disarm the bad guys, and then when we do they say they need their guns back."

The dilemma is affecting much of the relief effort in Somalia.

Relief mission progression will bring more U.S. aggression

MOGADISHU, Somalia (NYT) — The senior commander over the American-led relief operation in Somalia said in Mogadishu on Friday that U.S. forces would be more aggressive in disarming Somali gunmen who refuse appeals or financial incentives to give up their weapons.

The comments by Gen. Joseph P. Hoar, who heads the Central Command based in Tampa, Fla., seemed to expand the United States' narrow commitment to disarm only Somalis who threaten American forces or bring weapons into areas controlled by Western troops.

In recent days, shooting and looting have increased in Mogadishu, the capital, and in outlying areas as coalition troops push into the Somali interior.

Hoar's remarks coincided with another meeting between the two most powerful Somali faction leaders, Gen. Mohammed Farah Aidid and Mohammed Ali Mahdi, and President Bush's special envoy to Somalia, Robert B. Oakley, to reduce the weapons held by soldiers of both groups.

"We're underpinning what's essentially a political process," Hoar said at a news conference at the U.S. Embassy compound in Mogadishu. "But the time will come when we'll be more vigorous in the pursuit of weapons."

Hoar said that preferably, Somali commanders would bring the weapons of their fighters under control. The foreign coalition force might offer to buy those weapons still at large, Hoar said, or to acquire them in exchange for building roads, digging wells or performing other services a community might need.

Hundreds of more Marines from Southern California and soldiers from the 10th Mountain Division at Fort Drum, N.Y., arrived Friday, bringing the American total in Somalia to 6,839, officials said. An additional 7,232 Americans are on ships offshore.

Hoar said that other nations had pledged more than 10,000 troops to the Somalia operation. In addition to the United States, those with troops now operating in Somalia include France, Belgium, Canada, Jordan, Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, Italy, Britain and Pakistan. As many 20,000 troops from 35 countries may ultimately join the Americans, military officials said.

The American-led forces have established bases in Mogadishu, Bale Dogle and Baidoa.

National Archives displays Emancipation Proclamation

By William M. Welch
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Handled with white gloves and under careful guard, the fragile original of the Emancipation Proclamation was removed from its darkened vault Friday in preparation for a rare, five-day exhibition.

Bearing Abraham Lincoln's fading signature, the Civil War document that proclaimed the slaves of the South free hasn't been displayed in more than a dozen years.

It will go on exhibition December 31 through January 4 in the National Archives, where the Constitution and Declaration of Independence are displayed. The exhibit marks the 130th anniversary of the proclamation's signing on New Year's Day, 1863.

Because it is so vulnerable to damage, particularly from exposure to light, the document hasn't been shown to the public since 1979 and display is being strictly limited this time.

"We consider the Emancipation Proclamation one of the treasures of the archives," said senior conservator Catherine Nicholson. "The only way we can keep it safe for the next generation and the next century is to be very moderate in our exhibition."

Although it is commonly remembered as the instrument that ended slavery, that wasn't fully accomplished until the 13th Amendment to the Constitution was ratified in 1865. Lincoln's document declared slaves to be free in areas of the Confederacy not under Union control at that time, and thus meant the northern army brought freedom with every subsequent advance through the South.

"It was momentous," said John Hope Franklin, a Duke University professor who has written a history of the Emancipation Proclamation. "There was no turning back after that. There was no chance slavery could survive after that."

Nicholson wore white cotton gloves as she and other officials of the National Archives displayed the document to the press in advance of the exhibit.

The document is normally kept in the diplomatic vault, a cool, airtight chamber. Archives officials brought it to their conservation laboratory, where a display of filtering glass was being prepared so that it may be exhibited vertically, allowing both sides of each sheet to be seen.

The five-page document is written on the front and back of two sheets of paper and the front of a third. The display will mark the first time the entire text has been available for viewing at one time.

The pages have been treated with chemicals to halt acidic deterioration and placed in protective plastic. But the ravages of time are apparent.

The first page is grimy and dark, which Nicholson said was because it was handled most often.

The last page is yellowed, with lines marking past displays before its vulnerability was recognized. That page bears the signatures of Lincoln and William Seward, his secretary of state, as well as a seal and the tattered remnants of blue and red ribbons that originally bound the pages.

The middle page is in the best condition, owing to less exposure. But on each the black ink has faded to brown.

Nicholson said the proclamation is more fragile than many older documents because its paper is of a poorer quality than the hand-produced paper used in the 18th Century.

Briscoe trial goes to jury

By Larry Lipman
Cox News Service

WASHINGTON — After more than 13 weeks of testimony and legal wrangling, a federal jury began deliberations Friday afternoon in the bribery-conspiracy trial of developer Leonard Briscoe and two co-defendants.

"If the jury follows the evidence, there will be an acquittal," said Briscoe's attorney, Barry W. Levine. "The government's case rested on the testimony of a confessed perjurer of the most despicable kind. This is a case that shouldn't have been brought by the government because it rested solely on this uncorroborated testimony.

"We don't believe issues of freedom should rest on people of that quality. We also believe he (Briscoe) is innocent."

Briscoe, 53, of Fort Worth, Tex., and his co-defendants, former HUD official Lance Wilson and David Steier, an attorney from Omaha, Neb., face a combined 28-count indictment brought by separate grand juries in Washington and West Palm Beach.

The three are charged with conspiring to win HUD contracts for the development of the Wedgewood Plaza apartments and Wedgewood Plaza Mall in Riviera Beach, Fla., the Palm Glade apartments in Belle Glade, Fla., and the Overton Ridge apartments in Overton, Texas.

The prosecution's case rested largely on the testimony of DuBois Gilliam, a former HUD official who served 100 days of an 18-month sentence for accepting a bribe in an unrelated case.

Prosecutors said Briscoe bribed Gilliam and used Wilson — then a vice president with PaineWebber Inc. — to help win the HUD contracts by falsely promising financial backing for the projects. In return, Wilson received a share of Briscoe's properties. Steier was charged with receiving the bribes on Gilliam's behalf.

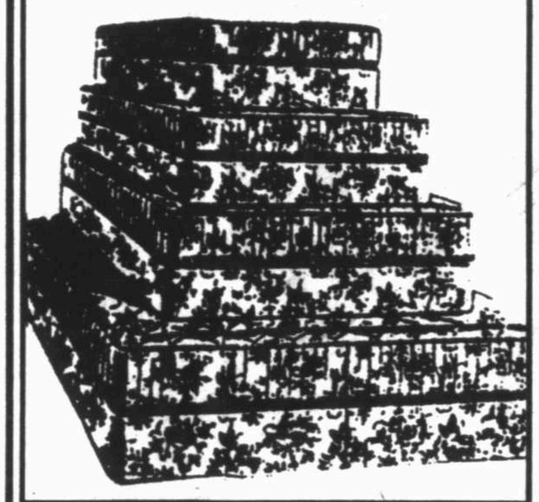

None of the defendants testified during the 45 days of testimony.

"We didn't feel we had any obligation to put up a defense to a prosecution that, in our view, couldn't sustain a verdict," Levine said.

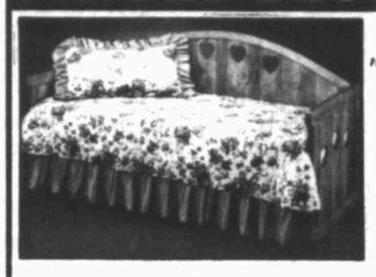

Prosecutors from the Office of the Independent Counsel declined to comment.

USDA targets hundreds of farm agency offices for possible closure

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is seriously considering closing or merging 1,200 field offices in a Depression-era network that reaches nearly every county in the nation, including some with few farmers.

USDA spokesman Roger Runningen said the list, obtained by The Associated Press, is a draft. The targeted sites range from a Soil Conservation Service field office in the District of Columbia to 95 scattered across Georgia.

USDA officials in each state have been asked to review USDA's list and complete their recommendations on which farm offices should be closed by the end of the month.

"There could be some changes, or there could be wholesale changes," Runningen said.

A congressional aide said the list represented the field offices that USDA and the White House Office of Management and Budget believed should be shuttered or merged.

"These are the recommendations for closure, unless a state director can make a compelling case (for keeping one open)," said the aide, speaking on condition of anonymity.

The decision to target an office was based on several factors, including overhead costs, the number of farmers and the size of the region served. Each office was scored; those ranked above a certain level are considered vulnerable. In some cases, USDA suggests that some but not all of the high-risk offices be closed, leaving the decision to the state.

States with the most offices recommended for closure are Georgia, with 95; followed by Texas with 75; Tennessee, 67; Virginia, 55; West Virginia and North Carolina, 51 each; and Mississippi, 50.

President-elect Clinton's home state of Arkansas has 46 on the list.

Agencies with offices at stake are the Soil Conservation Service, the Farmers Home Administration and the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Virtually every county in the country has at least one USDA field office, and some counties have three or four if the Cooperative Extension Service is counted. Combined, the four agencies may have as many as 11,000 field offices nationwide.

Jimmy Harrison, state director of the ASCS in Georgia, said the farm agency could "use some streamlining, but it will take some careful thought not to butcher it up."

The need for so many field offices, he said Friday, may have made sense "in the days of mules and wagons," when a farmer needed to get to the county seat and back before dark.

Asked why Georgia, with 159 counties, continues to have so many offices, Harrison said: "People are possessive. There are egos involved, they don't want to lose an office. And I'm not going to say they're going to lose an office. I just had to come up with a plan."

One ASCS office serves four Atlanta-area counties. Yet at last count it was helping just 17 farmers, he said.

Sens. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., and Richard Lugar, R-Ind., have questioned USDA's far-flung network of field offices, particularly in counties that serve few growers.

The congressional General Accounting Office has said that consolidating the most inefficient offices alone could save $90 million annually from the department's $62 billion budget.

Katherine Ozer, director of the National Family Farm Coalition, said USDA's farm agencies could play a role under Clinton in revitalizing rural businesses, communities and family farms.

Police chief fires officers in Nashville

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Two white police officers were fired Friday for using excessive force to subdue a black motorist who turned out to be an undercover officer working on a prostitution sting.

The officer was stopped Monday night by five of his precinct colleagues for driving a unmarked, police-issue truck with an expired license tag.

Officers David Geary and Jeffrey Blewett were dismissed during a three-hour hearing by Police Chief Robert Kirchner, who had promised to deal swiftly with the case. Police department hearings for the other three officers, who remain on paid leave, probably will be next week.

The chief said after the hearing that the officers' testimony showed the beating was not racially motivated. The FBI has been trying to determine if the black officer's civil rights were violated.

Both fired officers said they would appeal to the Civil Service Commission.

"I feel we haven't done a thing wrong," said Geary, 27.

Blewett, 25, said, "I'm angry. I feel it's wrong."

The beaten officer, Reggie Miller, said he was partially satisfied with the outcome.

"If you want to put a percentage on it, I'm two-fifths satisfied," Miller said. "I feel I was treated like a piece of meat, thrown out to a pack of dogs."

Miller, 31, was treated at a hospital for a groin injury and released after a few hours. He is expected to return to work Jan. 6. He said he is still taking medication.

He was working under cover as part of a prostitution sting in a high-crime area when he was ordered by Officer Jeb Johnston to pull over. He drove about three blocks from the main sting area before stopping to avoid unmasking the undercover operation. Johnston called for backup.

When Miller stopped, he was ordered to show his hands. Officers pulled him from the truck and placed him on the ground.

Miller, who was unarmed, said his eyes were gouged and he was choked and kicked in the groin and kneed in the back.

After 20 seconds, other undercover officers arrived and intervened.

Miller has said he did not resist and did not have time to identify himself as an undercover officer.

All of the officers involved worked in the same precinct and on the same 3 p.m. to 11 p.m. shift.

Mayor Phil Bredesen and Kirchner personally apologized Thursday to Miller, a four-year veteran of the police department.

MHS soars over Eagles

Brian Adamcik/Reporter-Telegram

Midland High's Jackie Perez brings the ball upcourt.

■ Midland High's Lady Bulldogs defeat defending District 4-5A champion Abilene High, 66-48, to set the tone for the league chase.

By Bill Price
Staff writer

Where to begin with the superlatives? There were plenty in the Midland High girls' intensity-packed, 66-48 basketball win over District 4-5A foe Abilene High Friday night at the MHS gymnasium.

Keeping MHS (12-2, 2-0 in district) in a first-place tie were supreme examples like the Lady Bulldogs' 28-point second quarter, an eight-minute span that saw MHS junior Julie Chancellor score 12 of her 16 points or sophomore Amy Alcala again leading the Lady Bulldogs in scoring with 24 points.

A mention of 6-4 post Lisa Koss should be offered, as well. Because even if a bout with a cold had rendered her voiceless, her actions did the speaking with 11 points, six rebounds and seven blocked shots.

But senior point guard Charlotte Scharbauer's play in the fourth quarter was the final nail in the Lady Eagles' coffin.

After AHS fell behind MHS by 22 points at halftime, the Lady Eagles cut the margin to nine points with 3:43 to play. But with time running off, AHS coach Sam Nichols increasingly felt the need to stop the clock by fouling the Lady Bulldogs.

The plan backfired on Nichols, though, as Scharbauer sank her first free throw of the year. Scharbauer, who was 0-for-1 from the line in MHS' 13 previous games, also got plenty more chances in the final period,

Cooper nips Lee

Staff report

ABILENE — The quest for the Midland Lee Lady Rebels to make a second consecutive trip to the state playoffs started on shaky ground here Friday night.

Abilene Cooper, figured to be stronger this year, rallied for a 45-44 win over the Lady Rebs to climb to 2-0 in the young district season. It was the league opener for Lee, the district's No. 2 team last season.

Lee grabbed a 24-20 lead at the half, but were outscored 16-8 in the third quarter to lose momentum. Lee tried to get back in the game, outscoring the Cougars by a 12-9 margin in the final period on the road, but fell one point shy of a comeback.

Lee is now 6-7 on the season. Tekeira Strambler led the Rebels with a game high 14 points while Tanisha Mills had 11.

Sherri Kuzma had 11 points for Cooper.

Cooper defeated Odessa Permian Tuesday to gain their first league win of the season. Cooper was 2-10 last year in district play and have now equaled that win total already.

Montana active

SANTA CLARA, Calif. — Joe Montana is one step away from returning to the field and completing another remarkable comeback.

Montana, who has spent almost all of the last two seasons on injured reserve, was activated Friday. Although he is listed as inactive for the game, he could conceivably play for the first time in 23 months in the San Francisco 49ers' game today against Tampa Bay.

The 49ers waived running back Sheldon Canley to make room for Montana, a two-time NFL MVP who led the 49ers to four Super Bowl wins.

Montana, 36, who also defied the odds in 1986 by returning from a back surgery, had been sidelined by a torn right elbow tendon suffered in August 1991.

Spurs axe Tarkanian

Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO — Jerry Tarkanian was fired Friday after losing more games in less than two months with the San Antonio Spurs than he did in three years at UNLV.

Tarkanian

"Coach Tarkanian has been terminated," team owner Red McCombs said during a hastily called news conference "We have a different level of expectation for this team. I appreciate all that the coach has done."

After the Spurs' 122-101 victory over the Dallas Mavericks just hours later, McCombs announced that former Spurs and Houston Rockets guard John Lucas would be the next head coach.

"I have followed John's career as a player. John is a great player. John is a great person," McCombs said. "I've always felt he would be a great leader on the floor."

McCombs said Lucas, 39, would begin coaching the team immediately.

Tarkanian, 62, coached UNLV to the 1990 NCAA championship and compiled a record of 625-122 (83.7 percent) in 24 seasons, five at Long Beach

MINNEAPOLIS — Dave Winfield, the 41-year-old who won his first World Series ring this year, got a chance to fulfill another dream Friday when he signed a deal that will let him play ball in his native Minnesota.

Winfield, who grew up in nearby St. Paul, Minn., turned down more lucrative offers to play his 22nd and 23rd seasons in the major leagues with the Twins. He signed a two-year contract worth $5.2 million plus the chance to make more in incentive bonuses.

"I'm at the point where it wasn't just the dollars," Winfield said. "I wanted to be happy. I've come from good places, I went to a better place last year and I think this may be the best."

Twins general manager Andy MacPhail introduced Winfield as a "sure-fire Hall of Famer," and team owner Carl Pohlad helped Winfield put on a Twins jersey.

Don't it make her brown eyes gold

Popular and talented, Yamaguchi now calls herself rich, too

By Karen Rosen
N.Y. Times News Service

LANDOVER, Md. — Yes, Kristi Yamaguchi has changed. For one thing, her eyes are green. Or is it violet? She was strictly a brown-eyed girl when she won the Olympic gold medal in figure skating 10 months ago.

Now she's the new spokeswoman for a contact-lens line, using the prescription lenses to match the color of her costume, even to alter her mood.

"Sometimes," said Yamaguchi, an ever-present smile playing on her lips, "I look in the mirror and I'm like, 'Who's that?' "

Staring back at Yamaguchi, 21, is a more mature woman who has expanded her focus from nothing but skating to fashion layouts and charity fundraising. She has learned to live with celebrity and bought a house in Reno, Nev., where America's newest ice princess is now of legal age to gamble.

"I'm hardly in one place long enough to unpack a suitcase," she said.

Last Saturday, Yamaguchi found time to compete again, winning the title in her first pro event, the World Professional Figure Skating Championships at the Capital Centre with a score of 99.9 out of 100, so there's still room for improvement. Then she headed off for Los Angeles for the Challenge of Champions.

Next comes a lucrative exhibition tour, then a decision which could be the biggest gamble of her life: whether to apply for reinstatement to the amateur ranks on April 1 with hopes of defending her Olympics title in Lillehammer in 1994. A second gold medal would do little to enhance her reputation, while a loss would do much to hurt it.

Besides, two years isn't much time to enjoy the first one.

Yamaguchi's life has been in constant motion since that February night in Albertville, when she won America's first gold medal in women's skating since Dorothy Hamill in 1976. Since then, Yamaguchi hasn't had to search for her beautiful reward. It's come to her.

The dentist's daughter from Fremont, Calif., has been on "Arsenio," appearing on the same show as Ringo Starr and Dr. Ruth. She has been on a cereal box — Special K, of course.

She's the national spokesperson for the American Lung Association's Christmas Seals. Last week, she presented the first Christmas seal to President Bush in the Oval Office.

"That work has been special to me," said Yamaguchi. Her grandfather died of lung cancer three years ago, and her best friend's father has lung disease. "It's something I really wanted to do. It's a cause I believe in."

She has one of the highest Q ratings, the barometer used in Hollywood and on Madison Avenue to measure popularity. "I'm ahead of Madonna," she gasped.

In a survey to determine Woman of the Year by the National Coalition of Girls Schools, she was behind only Mom and Barbara Bush and ahead of Mother Teresa.

Her second endorsement deal is spokeswoman for the acetate fiber industry. Yamaguchi modeled for a six-page spread in Woman's Wear Daily, a rarity for a 4-foot-11 woman. Designers include Nicole Miller and Carolina Herrera, and Yamaguchi gets to keep the clothes. After all, who else can wear size 0?

"For someone in figure skating and being the size that I am, I never expected to be in fashion ads or anything," she said. "It's a tough job, though. It's a lot harder than I expected. The long hours. For every picture, the hair and makeup are different. And you have to put on a certain expression all day."

Yamaguchi's agent, Kevin Albrecht with IMG, is pleased with the deals he's negotiated. He said the goal this year was a tour contract and three major endorsements, the third to be

MHS: Bulldogs aggressive against defending champs ending with nine points and a 7-for-8 effort from the stripe in the fourth quarter.

"I've been practicing them ever since last year because I missed a lot last year. I was very inconsistent then, but I got a chance tonight and I made them," Scharbauer said.

As a matter of fact, MHS as a team converted 21 of 27 free throws, while AHS was 18-for-32 from the line.

The Lady Eagles, picked by many in the preseason to win the district, fell to 10-6 and 1-1 in 4-5A. That dropped AHS behind the Lady Bulldogs and Abilene Cooper, a 45-44 winner over Midland Lee Friday in Abilene. Also in 4-5A play, San Angelo downed Odessa Permian, 71-28.

In the first quarter, the game was as close as a battle of league heavies should be. Both teams tried to squash the opponent in the backcourt with the press, and the exhausting eight minutes ended with MHS in front 12-8. But the second quarter was when MHS got hot and jumped to a lead it would never relinquish.

With the Lady Bulldogs ahead just 16-11 and 4:19 left in the half, MHS exploded and went on 24-7 run that was mainly sparked by scoring on turnovers caused by its press.

"It's a good win. I don't know if we really made any changes (between the first and second quarters), but we did adjust our press a little bit," said Jim Raughton, MHS head coach.

But if anybody thought the Lady Eagles were done at halftime, they were mistaken. After starter Jackie Perez, Koss and Chancellor all spent extended periods on the bench in the second half because of foul trouble, AHS chipped away in the third quarter by outscoring MHS 15-8.

The Lady Bulldogs hit a dry spell of 4:12, finally breaking the drought at the 6:42 mark of the fourth period when Alcala sank a basket to stop a seven-point Lady Eagle run.

"We got into foul trouble and had to get out of our pressure, and had to quit running up and down the floor," Raughton explained.

From there Alcala carried the MHS torch with six points until Scharbauer took over.

"They just had a run. We were all real tired, but we all came through in the end," Alcala said.

"We just played too timid at the beginning of the ball game," Nichols said. "They came out in much more aggressive form than we did. The second half was more representative of how we have played this year.

"But I certainly have to compliment them for their free throws. By that time we had expended so much energy I didn't think we could defend their spread offense (a time-killing tactic by Raughton)."

In junior varsity play, the Lady Eagles downed MHS, 74-37, as Mandie Spake scored 22 points for AHS. Veronica Poage led the Lady Bulldogs with 15 points.

After having Tuesday's game against Plainview cancelled, MHS is off until it begins play in the Caprock Tournament, Dec. 28 in Lubbock.

JENKINS: Girlfriend was apparently under pressure would be the first Canadian inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame.

The bodies of Cynthia Takieddine and Samantha Jenkins, his daughter from his marriage to Mary Anne, were found in a car on a deserted Oklahoma road Tuesday afternoon.

Takkieddine had connected a vacuum cleaner hose from the exhaust pipe to the inside of the car and killed them both by carbon monoxide poisoning.

From the rambling Guthrie, Okla., farmhouse he had once built for Mary Anne, the 48-year-old former pitcher held back tears as he spoke about the deaths of the people he loved.

"In some respects you can control your future in sports, but life is different," he said in an interview with the Toronto Star. "You don't have any control over life, only God does."

Jenkins doesn't speak with anger about Takieddine for taking the life of his daughter. He speaks of the pressure she was facing and how she cared for Samantha with the love of a mother.

"There were a lot of pressures from different places," he said. "Why she decided her way out was to do that I'll never know."

Takieddine felt pressure from the offer Jenkins received from the Cincinnati Reds to work as the pitching coach with their Chattanooga, Tenn., team, he said.

She was worried about the difficulties Jenkins' adopted son Raymond, 12, was having in coming to terms with his mother's death and there were some "financial difficulties," he said.

"A lot of her friends were putting pressure on her to get married but I said it's better to get married when we're ready."

He first met Takieddine in 1967 but said they were just friends until years later when she came into his life again.

"When Mary Anne had the accident, she (Takieddine) placed a call to the ballclub and got my address. She wrote me a letter saying if I needed any help, she would come and help me."

Takieddine came out to spend a couple of weeks at his home and fell in love with Samantha immediately, he said.

"She was such a help. Samantha was so young at the time, she just called her mom."

In time the couple decided "this was turning into a good relationship" and Takieddine moved into the home.

State and 19 at UNLV. The Spurs, expected to contend in the NBA Western Conference this season, were 9-11 after Thursday night's 121-109 loss to Houston.

Tarkanian didn't attend the news conference, but said later Friday that his firing "boils down to what Red expected the team to do and what I expected the team to do."

He was named coach on April 15, after leading the Runnin' Rebels to records of 35-5, 34-1 and 26-2 in his last three college seasons. He was in the first year of a three-year contract that pays him $500,000 a season.

Tarkanian said losing had been bothering his health.

"The losses have been really painful," he said. "It's really been hard on me. I've been taking medication for high blood pressure and I've never done that before."

"I'll never coach again. I'm all done," Tarkanian said. "I probably shouldn't have gotten into it this time. I'm 62 years old. I probably ought to be out watering the flowers."

McCombs said Tarkanian shouldn't shoulder all the blame.

"He put effort and a great ability into developing this team. We have a very honest difference of opinion," McCombs said.

Although there has been a dispute between Tarkanian and club management about acquiring another point guard, McCombs said it was not the only factor in the firing.

"It goes far beyond that. There's just a different level of expectations for the talent that is here between Tark and myself," he said.

WINFIELD: Pohlad offers big bucks despite age

(From 1B)

An outfielder and designated hitter, Winfield batted .290 with 26 homers and 108 RBIs for Toronto last season as the Blue Jays won the World Series. He was not offered arbitration by the Blue Jays.

Twins manager Tom Kelly said the former University of Minnesota baseball and basketball star will mostly play designated hitter for the Twins, a slot vacated when the team chose not to offer salary arbitration to Chili Davis.

He'll also share some outfield duties and occasionally spell Kent Hrbek at first base.

Winfield will add some much-needed offensive punch to the Twins, whose lack of power hurt them down the stretch last season.

But interestingly, it was Winfield himself who initiated contact with the Twins, surprising MacPhail with a phone call last week.

"I thought, I'm going to take a shot and call up Andy directly. So I called him, and I said, 'Do you still have an opening on your team for a good player?' He said, 'Yes.' I said, 'Well, if in fact you guys are interested, maybe we can work something out.'"

Said MacPhail: "Had he not made that first call and been forthright and candid about concessions he was willing to make, I just don't see any way he would be here today."

Winfield said he's always admired the Twins organization.

"I know they always treated the players fairly, treated them well. They weren't always the highest-paid players, but the players always seemed to be pretty happy and have a good time on the field," he said.

Winfield said the Twins also have a good team.

"We have a chance to win, and that's what I like to do," Winfield said. "I'm not here for these couple of years, at least, just to hang on and hang around. I'm going to kick butt. I'm going to play good baseball."

Winfield, who made $2.35 million last season, gets a $1 million signing bonus and a $2.2 million salary in 1993 with the chance to earn an additional $300,000 in bonuses. His 1994 salary will be for $3 million plus the bonuses he earned in 1993. He also can make $75,000 more per year based on attendance.

It is Minnesota's second major signing in two weeks. On Dec. 4 Kirby Puckett signed $30 million five-year contract. Otherwise, the offseason hasn't been kind to the Twins, who have lost John Smiley, Greg Gagne and Davis.

Another St. Paul native, pitcher Jack Morris, helped the Twins win the World Series in 1991. But Morris, who had said his dream was to play at home, left Minnesota the following season to pitch for the Blue Jays.

Winfield is the major leagues active leader in home runs (432) and RBIs (1,710) and is 134 hits away from the 3,000-hit mark. Last season, he became the oldest major leaguer ever to drive in 100 runs in a season.

"I've erased some expectations that guys over 30 can't play, or 40 can't play," Winfield said. "I still have high expectations of myself."

Pohlad said he's not concerned about Winfield's age.

"That's a factor when you get to be 41 or 42, no question about it, you have aged," Pohlad said. "On the other hand, he keeps himself in good condition and he had a great year last year, and there's no reason to say he can't do it the next year or two at least."

Late coach inspires 3A finalist Coldspring

By Jaime Aron
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS — When Coldspring plays for the Class 3A title Saturday, the Trojans hope coach Ed Peveto will be watching. They just wish he could be there to see it.

Peveto, 54, died of a heart attack on Sept. 21, but his assistants have not let it slow the team. The players have remained remarkably focused, going 11-1 since his death.

The Trojans beat Crockett 40-6 that weekend, then lost 30-27 to Class 2A's then-No. 5 Grapeland. They haven't lost since, winning the District 19-3A title and rolling into Saturday's championship game against Southlake Carroll (15-0).

Class A Championship

"He's in the back of our minds when we play," said sophomore quarterback Arthur Reece. "Every time we win, we think about the things he taught us and we correct our mistakes the way he taught us to."

"When the going gets tough, we have 'Peveto Power,' " assistant coach Pat Moynahan said, repeating a slogan that is on T-shirts worn by several staff members and fans.

Reece and first-team all-state running back Ray Fisher have been the keys to Coldspring's success. Fisher has run for 2,628 yards and 34 touchdowns and Reece has more than 1,100 yards.

Both players said the team still invokes Peveto's memory for inspiration.

"The offensive line sometimes gets in the huddle and says, 'Coach Peveto's up there looking at us so we've got to do good for him,' " Fisher said.

Peveto had a history of heart problems leading up to his death at his home in Coldspring, about 60 miles north of Houston.

He was considered a tough coach, a characteristic which may have taken a toll on his heart. His history of ailments included an enlarged heart, two defective valves and a previous attack.

Roger Henry, an assistant to Peveto the last two years, was promoted to replace Peveto. Henry has tried keeping the players from dwelling on their emotional loss, but he does allow Peveto to be mentioned in a pre-game prayer.

"But after that, the coaches want us to focus on the game," Reece said. "We listen to the coaches and we try to put him out of our minds, but sometimes, that's not easy to do."

Peveto began coaching in 1975 at Orangefield and built a 67-38-3 record before taking over Laredo Martin in 1975. He went 9-19-1 and left in 1988, spending the next year as an assistant at Longview.

Peveto took over at Coldspring in 1990 and went 21-5, including his 3-0 start this year.

"He was like a dad to a lot of us," lineman Don Alldredge said. "It would be hard to tell you all the things he did for us. Outside of school, you could always call him and talk to him if you needed to."

Fisher also is still touched by Peveto's warmth.

"He taught us to do right, not just on the field in football, but all the time," he said.

Southlake Carroll coach Bob Ledbetter said he knew Peveto for about 10 or 15 years, mostly through the annual coaching school. He calls Peveto's death "a tremendous loss to coaching profession."

"I'd have loved for my son to have played for him," Ledbetter said.

Ledbetter never coached against Peveto and wishes he could have this weekend, he said.

Deacons forced to forfeit one

Associated Press

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. — Wake Forest has been told by the NCAA to forfeit this week's 69-65 victory over Rhode Island for using a player 4½ hours before he was eligible, officials said Friday.

The forfeit, however, will not affect Wake Forest's 3-0 record or any individual statistics from Tuesday night's game, said Gary Johnson, an NCAA spokesman.

Demon Deacons guard Charlie Harrison, who started against Rhode Island on Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. and scored 21 points, transferred to Wake Forest from Georgetown last January.

Harrison was declared eligible by the school after Wake Forest's fall semester exam period ended Tuesday. But NCAA bylaws state that when an athlete becomes eligible at the end of a semester, the earliest date he can compete is the day after the date of the last exam, Wake Forest athletic director Ron Wellman said.

"We deeply regret the mistake that has been made," said Wellman. "It was an inadvertent misinterpretation on our part."

Jim Marchiony, director of communications for the NCAA, told the Winston-Salem Journal Friday that it would not be possible for Rhode Island to have the result changed before the end of the season. He said an executive regulation (31.10.5) states that the NCAA does not change statistics or records when a game is forfeited.

"And there's only two ways an executive regulation can be changed," Marchiony said. "The first is by the executive committee of the NCAA, which is made up of 15 administrators from colleges and universities. And the executive committee doesn't meet until May of 1993.

"And the second way is by vote of the membership of the NCAA convention, and the earliest that can happen is January of 1994," he said.

Wellman said Harrison and the basketball coaching staff were following NCAA guidelines.

Knicks break long skid at Boston Garden

Associated Press

BOSTON — The New York Knicks won a regular-season game in Boston for the first time since 1984, and they did it with ease.

Patrick Ewing had 30 points and 14 rebounds as the Knicks broke a 23-game losing streak in non-playoff games at Boston Garden with a 113-87 victory over the Celtics.

The Knicks' last previous regular-season win was Feb. 29, 1984, two seasons before Ewing joined New York. They won a playoff game in Boston in 1990.

New York's NBA-leading defense held the Celtics to 41 percent shooting. Boston appeared confused at times on offense, often settling for 20-foot jumpers.

Boston, which has lost three of four games, is 0-9 this season in games in which it scored less than 100 points. Reggie Lewis led the Celtics on Friday with 24 points.

The Knicks, who shot 55 percent, won for the 11th time in 14 games. They have held teams to under 100 points in 12 of those 14 games.

Ewing hit 13 of 19 shots and blocked three shots. Anthony Mason added 19 points and 13 rebounds for New York.

After the Celtics scored the opening basket, the Knicks scored nine straight points and built a 19-6 lead less than six minutes into the game. Rolando Blackman had 10 of those points.

The Knicks led by 12 at the end of the first quarter and built that margin to 20 as the Celtics scored just six points in the opening 8:32 of the second quarter. Ewing capped the half and gave New York a 60-42 lead with a 3-pointer as the buzzer sounded.

The closest the Celtics got in the second half was 11 points.

Celtics backup point guard Sherman Douglas missed his second straight game with what the team has described as emotional problems. He left the team following Tuesday's win at Minnesota and has not returned to the court, though he met Wednesday with team officials.

Jazz 112, 76ers 98

PHILADELPHIA — Karl Malone scored 23 points and John Stockton had 17 points and a season-high 22 assists as the Utah Jazz used a 36-12 second-half run to defeat the Philadelphia 76ers.

It was Utah's fourth straight win and eighth victory in 11 games. The loss was Philadelphia's third straight, their 11th in 13 games and dropped their home record to 2-10.

The teams were tied 45-45 at halftime and Utah led only 63-62 with 3:37 left in the third period before the Jazz took a 79-68 lead with a 16-6 run cappped by Stockton's 3-pointer with 34 seconds remaining in the period.

Utah then scored the first 10 points of the fourth quarter, and later took a 99-74 advantage on a dunk by David Benoit with 6:08 to play. Benoit scored 12 of his 15 points in the final period.

Utah outscored Philadelphia 67-53 in the second half, and for the seventh time in the last nine games, held an opponent to under 100 points.

Clarence Weatherspoon scored 17 points, Charles Shackleford had 14 points and 17 rebounds and Jeff Hornacek finished with 16 points for the Sixers.

Krystkowiak scored 14 points for the Jazz, who have defeated the Sixers six straight times, including three in a row at the Spectrum.

Cavaliers 119, Kings 108

RICHFIELD, Ohio — Larry Nance and Mark Price shot 69 percent from the floor and scored 22 points each as the Cleveland Cavaliers beat the Sacramento Kings.

The victory was the fourth straight for the Cavaliers, a season high, while the Kings lost their seventh consecutive game. Sacramento, which won at home against the Cavs last month, has not won at Richfield Coliseum since 1984.

Nance and Price each made 9 of 13 floor shots. In his last three games, Nance has shot 71 percent from the floor, despite suffering from a stomach virus in the first of those games and twisting his ankle in the second.

Sacramento led for much of the first quarter after running off eight straight points for a 14-8 lead midway through the period. Cleveland's Craig Ehlo sank a 3-pointer to stop the flurry, and the Cavaliers took the lead for good on Ehlo's 15-foot jumper with 2:30 left in the quarter.

Price scored nine points and Nance eight in the second quarter, helping Cleveland to a 66-53 halftime lead, and the Cavaliers maintained a double-digit advantage the rest of the way. Gerald Wilkins' three-point play gave them their biggest lead, 105-85, with 8:30 to play.

Richmond and Lionel Simmons each scored 16 points for the Kings.

Wilkins scored 19 off the bench for Cleveland. Price had 11 assists, and Nance grabbed 13 rebounds.

Hawks 108, Heat 100

MIAMI — Jon Koncak had the key basket, free throws and rebound as the Atlanta Hawks snapped a three-game losing streak with a win over the Miami Heat.

The Hawks led 95-93 before a three-point play by Koncak, who scored 13 points, and Kevin Willis' basket extended their advantage to 100-93 with 3:57 left.

Leading 102-96, Atlanta committed two 24-second violations, but Miami was unable to capitalize. A miss by Kevin Edwards was rebounded by Koncak after the first violation and Atlanta's Mookie Blaylock, who scored 20 points, stole the ball from Rony Seikaly the second.

After a basket by Atlanta's Paul Graham, the Heat's Brian Shaw hit two free throws and a basket to make it 104-100, but Koncak connected on one of two free throws with 43 seconds to go.

Graham added three free throws in the final seconds to complete the scoring.

Heat coach Kevin Loughery was ejected with 2:54 left in the second period after two technical fouls for arguing an offensive foul called on Shaw. Assistant coach Bob Staak ran the team, which was led by Bimbo Coles with 22 points, in Loughery's absence.

Koncak scored nine points as Atlanta opened a 29-16 lead with 1:57 left in the first quarter.

Miami cut the margin to four, but three baskets on jump hooks by Willis sparked a 15-4 run that put the Hawks ahead 56-41 with 2:44 left in the second period.

Miami's starting frontcourt of Grant Long, Glen Rice and Seikaly, averaging a combined 54.9 points per game, scored just nine points in the first half, which ended with Atlanta ahead 61-46.

After Atlanta opened a 17-point lead, a 12-1 spurt closed the Heat to 75-69 with 4:03 to go in the third quarter.

Moments later, seven points by Long highlighted a 15-7 spurt that pulled the Heat to 88-86 with 7:31 left in the game.

Pistons 122, Pacers 106

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. — Terry Mills scored a season-high 20 points and the Detroit Pistons also had their highest total of the season in a victory over the Indiana Pacers.

The Pistons, 7-1 in December, have won their last six games at home and eight of their last nine overall to get back to .500 (10-10) after a seven-game losing streak in November.

Detlef Schrempf had 18 points for the Pacers, who won four of their previous five on the road. Sean Green scored eight of his career-high 17 points in the fourth quarter for Indiana.

Isiah Thomas had 19 points and 10 assists for Detroit. He also delighted fans at The Palace by helping the ballboys by pushing a dust mop in the second quarter.

The Pistons used a balanced attack to dominate the early going. Detroit shot 54 percent and eight players scored as the Pistons took a 36-22 lead after one quarter. Indiana, shooting just 27 percent in the quarter, got nine its 22 points on free throws.

Reggie Miller scored seven points in a 15-8 spurt that brought the Pacers to 44-37 with 5:46 left in the second quarter. But the Pistons, turning up the defensive pressure, got five points from Orlando Woolridge during a 10-0 run over the next 2:55. Detroit led 60-45 at halftime.

With Joe Dumars and Mills each scoring eight points, the Pistons increased their margin to 94-74 after three quarters and played seldom-used reserves late in the game.

Spurs 122, Mavericks 101

SAN ANTONIO — Sean Elliott scored a career-high 41 points and the San Antonio Spurs won their first game after the firing of coach Jerry Tarkanian, over the Dallas Mavericks.

Tarkanian was fired earlier in the day after coaching the Spurs to a 9-11 record. Assistant Rex Hughes coached the game against the Mavericks, who lost their first outing after snapping a 12-game losing streak.

Elliott was 16 of 22 from the field in surpassing his previous career-high of 32 points, set 10 days earlier against Utah.

Leading just 85-79 after three periods, the Spurs started the final quarter with an 18-4 spurt for a 103-85 lead. David Robinson had eight points and Elliott four during the run.

Dallas, 2-16, was led by Derek Harper's 23 points and Walter Bond's 19.

Dale Ellis scored 24 points for San Antonio and Robinson had 18. The Spurs hit 44 of 81 from the field for 54.3 percent.

The score was tied at 55-55 at the end of the first half. The Spurs held a 29-19 lead on two free throws by Elliott with 1:34 left in the first quarter and finished with 22 first-half points. The Mavs' Harper had 15 points at halftime.

SuperSonics 126, Trail Blazers 109

SEATTLE — Ricky Pierce scored 13 of his 19 points in the final quarter, and the Seattle SuperSonics defeated the Portland Trail Blazers in front of a crowd of 36,521 in the Kingdome.

Shawn Kemp scored 11 of his 25 points in the fourth quarter for the Sonics, who led 86-77 after three quarters.

Pierce, held to six points on 1-for-9 shooting in the first three quarters, gave Seattle a 107-93 lead when he scored on a fastbreak layup with 5:38 left after Gary Payton stole a pass from the Blazers' Cliff Robinson.

Rod Strickland scored 23 points for Portland, which was facing Seattle for the first time after beating the Sonics four out of five times last season.

Pierce hit 6 of 7 shots, including a 3-pointer, in the fourth quarter. Nate McMillan had 15 assists for the Sonics, who also got 22 points each from Derrick McKey and Eddie Johnson.

Robinson added 20 points for the Trail Blazers. In foul trouble all night, Clyde Drexler scored 16 points.

The Sonics led only 94-89 when Kemp made a dunk with 8:23 to go and Pierce scored on a 15-footer after a fastbreak for a 98-89 Seattle lead with eight minutes left.

Portland got Seattle's lead down to 109-101 with 3:28 to go after Drexler made a pair of free throws. But the Sonics got a 15-footer from Pierce with 3:16 to go and a 17-foot jump shot with 2:44 on the clock.

The victory gave Seattle a 10-1 home record. Its only home defeat came in the Kingdome on Nov. 19, when the Sonics lost to Chicago 108-99 before a crowd of 37,401.

Seattle was in front 29-19 after the first quarter and 59-52 at halftime.

Clippers 103, Timberwolves 95

LOS ANGELES — Danny Manning scored 27 points on 11-for-14 shooting and the Los Angeles Clippers held the Minnesota Timberwolves without a field goal for more than six minutes of thw fourth quarter.

Ken Norman had 23 points for the Clippers, who have won their last seven meetings with the Timberwolves.

Rookie Christian Laettner led Minnesota with 24 points and 10 rebounds, after scoring a season-high 35 in 51 minutes of a double-overtime loss to Boston on Tuesday night. But the rest of the Timberwolves could not fill the void left by team scoring leader Chuck Person, who strained his right Achilles' tendon just 2:35 after the opening tip.

Manning's layup brought the Clippers within a point and ignited an 11-0 run that put them ahead 97-89 with 1:39 remaining.

Mark Jackson converted a steal and a foul in the lane by Luc Longley into a three-point play that put the Clippers ahead to stay, 91-89, with 4:24 left. Manning then tipped in his own missed layup, followed by layups by Norman and Gary Grant.

The defeat was Minnesota's 12th in 14 games overall and its seventh in a row at the Sports Arena. They are 0-9 this season against teams with winning records.

Norman's layup extended the Clippers' 6-point halftime margin to 67-56, their biggest of the game, with 10:50 left in the third quarter. But Minnesota responded with a 12-2 run, keyed by Laettner's seven points and Micheal Williams's 3-pointer with 3:10 remaining.

Manning's 19 points and a 10-3 run late in the second quarter propelled the Clippers to a 60-54 halftime lead.

Celtic guard misses 2nd

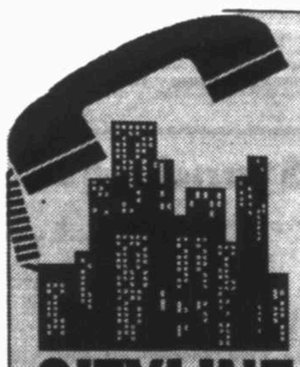

Associated Press

BOSTON — Boston Celtics guard Sherman Douglas missed his second straight game Friday with what the team has described as emotional problems, and team officials said they have no idea when he will return.

Douglas, who began the season as the Celtics' starting point guard but has been coming off the bench in recent games, skipped an afternoon practice and Friday night's game against the New York Knicks.

The fourth-year player, traded from the Miami Heat to the Celtics last January, left the team after playing just 20 minutes in Boston's double-overtime win at Minnesota on Tuesday. He did not suit up for Wednesday's loss at Indiana.

Douglas, who attended Syracuse, met with Celtics officials Wednesday. He was granted an undetermined leave of absense, during which he will be paid.

Philadelphia, Washington near playoffs

Associated Press

Two years ago, one of the Philadelphia Eagles termed it the "body bag game," a 28-14 win over the Washington Redskins in which eight Redskins were carried off the field.

This season, the squabbling Eagles should forget about body bags and concentrate on beating the Redskins if they want to make it to the playoffs.

This has been a schizophrenic season for Philadelphia, which has spent too much time on internal debates involving coach Rich Kotite, Randall Cunningham and Seth Joyner, among others.

That's shown in the record.

Philadelphia is 6-0 at home and 3-5 on the road, where they were forced into overtime last week before beating 2-12 Seattle 20-17.

Both Philadelphia and Washington enter this game at 9-5, on the brink of the playoffs, but not yet there.

A lot of teams are in that position.

Of the 12 post-season berths, only five are clinched going into the next-to-last week — San Francisco, Dallas and New Orleans in the NFC; Buffalo and Pittsburgh in the AFC. Only the Steelers, at 10-4, have nailed down a division title, the AFC Central.

Either the Eagles and Redskins could get in with a win.

Washington won the first meeting, 16-12 at home. Last week's 20-17 win over Dallas was the key for the Redskins in their quest to repeat as Super Bowl champions.

But the Redskins can use some offensive help — Mark Rypien is the NFL's lowest-rated passer.

"Somewhere along the way we're going to have to make some plays, and this will be as good a week as any," Rypien says.

Typically for Philadelphia, there's a sideshow — comments by Joyner, their outstanding linebacker, critical of Kotite, owner Norman Braman and Cunningham.

"What's done is done," Joyner says. "What's said is said, and I can't go back and fix it or take it back So I move on from here, and that's the end of it."

Buffalo (10-4) at New Orleans (11-3) New York Jets (4-10) at Miami (9-5)

The Bills got back the AFC home field when Pittsburgh lost in Chicago and this may be the key game if they want to keep it. They also risk falling into a tie with Miami for the AFC East lead and the Dolphins have the tiebreaker edge.

New Orleans can still win the NFC West — although they need two wins and two very unlikely losses by San Francisco. That also would give the Saints home field for the NFC playoffs.

Miami, meanwhile, can get in by winning one of its last two games — so a win this week against the Jets would do it. One advantage: they'll go against Browning Nagle instead of their old nemesis, Ken O'Brien, who is on injured reserve.

In fact, the Dolphins are in good position.

They'll be favored this week and at New England next week, while Buffalo has to go to Houston to close the season.

Minnesota (9-5) at Pittsburgh (10-4) Los Angeles Rams (5-9) at Green Bay (8-6)

The Steelers have clinched the AFC Central but would love the home field (where they are undefeated) for the playoffs. They can get it if Buffalo loses once and they beat the Vikings and then the Browns at home. That may not be easy if Bubby Brister continues to play the way he did last week in place of Neil O'Donnell in the 30-6 loss in Chicago.

But these two games are more important to the NFC Central race.

Minnesota is suddenly in trouble, particularly if they lose this. Playing musical quarterbacks at this time of the year is rarely healthy but they're doing it after two straight losses — going back to Sean Salisbury after benching him for Rich Gannon in last week's 20-17 defeat by the 49ers.

■ NFL This Week

If the Vikings lose to the Steelers and the Packers beat the warm-weather Rams — it was 15-below in Green Bay earlier this week — then the Central Division title will be decided next week in Minnesota, when the Packers visit there.

The question in the Minnesota-Pittsburgh game may be Barry Foster, who seems to be tiring after 10 100-yard games for the Steelers. He was shut down by the Bears last week and with Brister at quarterback, there's a question how much offense Pittsburgh will get against a defense that's scored eight touchdowns this season.

"The most important thing is we are not playing very well and we haven't played very well in a long time," says Pittsburgh kicker Gary Anderson.

The Packers got a big win in Houston last week and now have won six of seven. Brett Favre has shown the capacity for the big play and Sterling Sharpe is there to provide it.

Houston (8-6) at Cleveland (7-7)

The Oilers are one of this season's underachievers — they were rated Super Bowl caliber when the season started.

But they can make the playoffs by winning their last two games and they can clinch this week if they win and Denver loses to Seattle.

The Browns would also have to win in Pittsburgh next week and hope that Denver and Indianapolis each lose once to make the playoffs.

Seattle (2-12) at Denver (7-7)

John Elway is back for the Broncos, but it's probably too late against the team that started their downfall with an overtime win in Seattle three weeks ago.

The Broncos have lost four straight since Elway went out with a bruised shoulder and now need a combination of unlikely circumstances to make the playoffs.

Elway can work miracles for the Broncos, but as yet, no one's discovered a way he can simultaneously help the Raiders beat the Chargers and the Giants beat the Chiefs — which is what Denver needs.

Dallas (11-3) at Atlanta (6-8) (Monday night)

This should be the NFC East clinching party for the Cowboys if Jimmy Johnson can get beyond his complaints about the fumble — or non-fumble — that cost the Dallas the game in Washington last week.

In fact, if Dallas wins this one then closes with a win in Chicago, it probably will be just where it would have been had it won that game — with the NFC's second seed. Atlanta, which got five TD passes from Wade Wilson in last weeks' 35-7 demolition of Tampa Bay, can usually beat bad teams, rarely or never beats good ones.

San Diego (9-5) at Los Angeles Raiders (6-8)

The Raiders can still make the playoffs, but they have to win and everyone they're chasing has to lose.

"It really hurts when you lose," Al Davis said this week, still upset about Monday night's loss in Miami.

San Diego doesn't lose — winning nine of 10 after an 0-4 start. One more win and they become the first team to start 0-4 and make the playoffs.

Phoenix (4-10) at Indianapolis (7-7)

What's interesting here?

1, The Colts, 1-15 last year, can actually make the playoffs despite losing Jeff George, Steve Emtman and Quentin Coryatt for long stretches. But they need a lot of help.

2, A decade ago, this would have been St. Louis at Baltimore.

Chicago (5-9) at Detroit (4-10)

These two competed for the NFC Central title last season, so they were scheduled like this in a late-season game for a possible showdown.

Sorry.

New England (2-12) at Cincinnati (4-10)

Scott Zolak at David Klingler.

As Dick Enberg would say: "Oh, my."

Chiefs can clinch berth with win

Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Derrick Thomas has been unhappy this season, and his outlook is not expected to change Saturday.

This was supposed to be the week Thomas got a chance to play in a regular-season game against New York Giants linebacker Lawrence Taylor, his football idol.

However, Taylor ruptured an Achilles' tendon last month against Green Bay and is out for the season.

It's another setback in a season that has been a bit of a disappointment for Thomas despite an impressive 11½ sacks, eighth best in the AFC going into Saturday's game between the Chiefs (9-5) and Giants (5-9) at Giants Stdium.

The Chiefs can clinch a playoff berth with a victory. They also could win the AFC West by winning their final two games or winning one and having San Diego (9-5) split its final two games.

Overall, a good year, but not a Derrick Thomas-type year.

Shoulder problems bothered him early, then came the change that has been the biggest adjustment for Thomas — the Chiefs' decision to switch from a 3-4 front to a 4-3.

In the old defense, Thomas was a pass-rushing linebacker, the position in which Taylor revolutionized the game. Under the new system, Thomas' responsibilities have included pass coverage and less rushing the quarterback.

The new job is less glamorous and can take away from a great player's performance. Former Giants coach Bill Parcells said putting Taylor in a 4-3 defense would make him an ordinary linebacker.

"I'm having to do some things on a regular basis that I did on few occasions in the past," Thomas said. "It is different.

"Now that we've been in it for a few weeks, we are having different variations that are giving me the ability to rush, pursue and be aggressive off the back side. The defense is becoming fun again. It wasn't fun in the beginning."

Since the change was made against Dallas Oct. 18, Thomas has six sacks in eight games, four against San Diego.

"Derrick is having a good year," Chiefs coach Marty Schottenheimer said. "He is in transition from a guy being involved in rushing the quarterback to one involved in coverage. To Derrick's credit, he has continued to work hard developing those things."

The change has helped the team. The Chiefs have won five of their last six.

"People have suggested that the absence of the 3-4 defense has hampered Derrick's ability to get sacks," Schottenheimer said. "He still has 11 or 12. His sacks in the past in the 3-4 defense were the product not of that but of the four-man line, the nickel defense when he rushes the passer."

For the most part, Thomas has been pleased with the way the Chiefs have played and is looking toward the playoffs.

"We feel there is nobody in the AFC we can't beat," he said.

The Giants have lost five straight games and appear in turmoil.

There have been squabbles between players and coaches. There were reports this week that coach Ray Handley would be fired at the end of the season. And there were rumors that Parcells would return as coach only two years after leading the team to its second Super Bowl victory.

The Giants were in the same position in the final game of the 1991 season and beat Houston, denying the Oilers a home-field advantage in the playoffs.

"If we prepare well and get after them, what they may perceive as a pushover might turn out to be a surprise for them," Handley said.

The Giants should get a lift from the return of quarterback Jeff Hostetler. He missed three games with a severe concussion. New York scored 13 points in his absence with rookies Kent Graham and Dave Brown at quarterback.

NFL wouldn't resemble baseball under plan

Associated Press

Despite predictions by NFL owners and officials that competitive balance might suffer if there is free agency in the league, it's unlikely that there would be a wholesale shifting of personnel under a free agency system.

And certainly nothing like what goes on in baseball, where you literally can't tell the players without a scorecard.

If you compare a list of potential free agents with the league's proposed free agency plan, it becomes apparent that most teams will be able to protect their most valuable players this year. Moreover, as they become used to the system, smart general managers will be able to structure contracts and expiration dates to ensure some stability on the roster.

Without getting into the nuts and bolts, each team this year will be able to designate one "franchise player" and can keep two others by matching their best salary offer.

That means they can retain three.

Looking at the potential free agents this year, most teams don't have many more than three players worth keeping. The rest are guys who might not have been protected under Plan B, the old method in which 37 players were protected.

Who stands to lose?

The four teams with the most good players whose contracts expire this season are apparently headed for the playoffs — San Francisco, Minnesota, New Orleans and San Diego. The 49ers are the league's best paying teams, the other three are not known for loose pursestrings.

Start with the San Francisco.

Steve Young's contract is up, but he's likely to be the franchise player and he's not anxious in any case to leave the Bay Area.

The other Niners eligible for free agency include defensive linemen Kevin Fagan and Pierce Holt; guard Guy McIntyre; center Jesse Sapolu and linebacker Bill Romanowski, all starters, plus Steve Bono, Young's backup.

Like Young, many of those guys are likely to want to stay put. Fagan has had injury problems, making him a risk for other teams, and Holt is likely to be protected.

Assuming Sapolu stays, the Niners might lose Romanowski, whose personality suits him for the Raiders. Then again, they may not.

Minnesota? How about wide receiver Hassan Jones; offensive linemen Kirk Lowdermilk and Gary Zimmerman, cornerback Audray McMillian, linebacker Mike Merriweather and safety Felix Wright?

Not tough, protect Zimmerman and Merriweather, assume Lowdermilk will stay and hope that Jones does. Wright and McMillian were Plan B guys to start with.

New Orleans has more of a problem.

Quarterback Bobby Hebert is a plaintiff in one of the lawsuits, meaning he can't be protected. But he's also a Louisiana native and has said that all things being equal, he'd like to stay.

In fact, the question is: do the Saints want him if they can find another QB?

But ...

The Saints also have the one kicker who might be protected — Morten Andersen, although he has a bar in the area and is an institution there. They also have both starting wide receivers, Eric Martin and Quinn Early; offensive linemen Jim Dombrowski and Kevin Haverdink; running backs Dalton Hilliard and Craig Heyward, and linebacker Sam Mills.

So protect Martin and Dombrowski and hope the others, like Mills, like it enough to stay — if they're paid.

San Diego?

It's no coincidence that early last Thursday, when word of a possible settlement leaked out, general manager Bobby Beathard called Ralph Cindrich, the agent for running back Rod Bernstine and said: "Let's talk about a new deal."

Berstine is just one of many good Chargers who could go on the market. The others include cornerbacks Gill Byrd and Tony Blaylock; running back Ronnie Harmon; wide receiver Anthony Miller; defensive end Leslie O'Neal and guard Dave Richards, a plaintiff in last summer's suit.

What does Beathard do?

Protect Miller and O'Neal and hope that the climate keeps the rest.

A few of the other 24 teams have problems. But not enough to make many coaches lose sleep.

Houston, for example, can designate, say, Lorenzo White as the franchise player and protect Al Smith and Earnest Givens. Whom might they lose — backup quarterback Cody Carlson, the kind of player who is supposed to get an opportunity under free agency.

If that happens, the system works.

NO SMILES, PLEASE

Was Jimmy Johnson upset about Sunday's 20-17 loss in Washington on the fumble-no fumble play?

Let's put it this way.

On the plane ride home, he screamed at several players for no apparent reason except in one case — he berated backup center Frank Cornish, one of the team's most pleasant players, for the offense of ...

Smiling.

GOING TO EXTREMES

There's little question now that Ray Handley is out as the Giants' coach after the season. If nothing else, one comment should do it — "I don't get paid to motivate."

But some fans went a little beyond last week.

After the Giants were embarrassed in Phoenix, Handley's wife stayed over for a day. On Sunday, Handley went to Newark Airport to pick her up and was standing in a group of people waiting for the plane when he was recognized.

And the chant started: "Ray Must Go!"

MAJOR MARKETS

How have things changed in the NFL?

For the first time since 1972, there will be no team in the playoffs from the nation's three major markets — New York, Los Angeles or Chicago.

POST SUPER BOWL-BLAHS

Not only is Mark Rypien the target for booing fans in Washington, he's also taken apart daily by Joe Theismann on Theismann's morning radio shows.

On the other hand, his figures say he deserves it.

After 14 weeks this season, he's thrown for 14 fewer touchdowns, 398 fewer yards and his yards-per-attempt is down from 8.54 to 6.81.

On the other hand, he's had to operate behind a banged-up offensive line that's been without Jeff Bostic and Jim Lachey and has had Mark Schlereth playing on one leg.

HIGH SPIRITS

Dennis Byrd, the partially paralyzed Jets defensive lineman, retains a sense of perspective despite his problems.

Last week, he got a call at the hospital from an aide to Bill Clinton. "How do I know you're who you say you are," Byrd told the man. "Let me call you back."

So the aide gave him a number and Byrd called.

This time, the president-elect picked up the phone.

Race helped promotion, Reds' employee says

Associated Press

CINCINNATI — Darrell "Doc" Rodgers, who has become the second black in the Cincinnati Reds front office, says race probably was a factor in his promotion.

"It would be naive to say it wasn't, in light of everything that's been going on," Rodgers said Thursday, referring to criticism of club owner Marge Schott's racial remarks and minority hiring record.

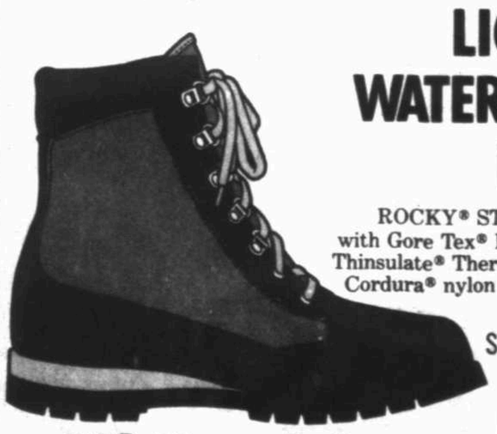

"I think you can say that with Dusty Baker being hired yesterday (Wednesday)," Rodgers said from his home in Norman, Okla. Baker, who is black, is the new manager of the San Francisco Giants.

"Race is a factor. Race is a problem in our society. But how much of a factor, I don't think anybody can say. It's still quality people being hired for jobs."

Basketball in Alaska begins to take hold

By Jim O'Connell
AP Basketball Writer

Alaska basketball — white hot.

OK, so there's no slogan like that making the rounds, but it might not be far off.

The 49th state's hoop history has been confined to what Alaska-Anchorage could provide in hosting the Great Alaska Shootout every year. The Seawolves beat two Division I team from the lower 48 in last year's tournament and added another pelt this season.

Now, add Alaska-Fairbanks, like its state sister school a member of the NCAA's Division II. The Nanooks registered their first-ever win over a Division I program last week, a 66-55 victory at Toledo. It wasn't that long a drought, 10 games in 16 years, but it's over.

"Oh, it will help recruiting. That's why we schedule the games against the Division I teams," Alaska-Fairbanks coach George Roderick said. "It could possibly open the doors to play the bigger Division Is."

Both Alaska schools are in the Pacific West Conference and there is quite a rivalry. Alaska-Fairbanks started a tournament this season to try and offset some of one-sided publicity Alaska-Anchorage gets with its Shootout every Thanksgiving.

"We initiated the Tournament of Champions this year and held it the week prior to the Great Alasks Shootout," Roderick said. "We invited the champions last season from Division II and III of the NCAA and the NAIA national champion. We lost both games, but we had a great overtime game against Virginia Union and that helped us get some respectability nationwide.

"We knew we couldn't duplicate the Great Alaska Shootout because of the Division I rules on when the season can start. But our theory now is to try to get best tournament we can without going after Division I teams. We want to become the home of the best non-Division I tournament in the country."

Another big win for a program last week that may have gone unnoticed was Wisconsin-Milwaukee's 77-72 victory over Wisconsin-Madison, the benchmark of the state school system.

It was the Panthers' first win ever over the main campus in 10 meetings, the last in 1978-79. Wisconson-Milwaukee has been a Division I program for just three years.

Rollie Massimino went to the closet to change UNLV's look in just his second game in charge of the Runnin' Rebels. They showed up for their game at San Diego State wearing black uniforms instead of the traditional red road jerseys worn before and during the tenure of Jerry Tarkanian.

The uniforms were bought two years ago and were going to be broken out for the 1991 NCAA championship game at Indianapolis. The only problem was that Duke knocked off the defending champion Runnin' Rebels in the semifinals and the uniforms were stored away until their debut last week.

Massimino said the team will still wear the red road uniforms but the black outfits wil appear occasionally.

Clemson center Sharone Wright recorded the school's first triple-double in 15 years last week when he had 19 points, 15 rebounds and 10 blocked shots in the Tigers' 88-62 victory over North Carolina-Greensboro.

The 6-foot-10 sophomore's blocks matched the school record set in 1977 by Wayne "Tree" Rollins on the night of the last triple-double in the Tiger record book.

It may be the closest thing to a trade we've ever had in college basketball.

Following the 1990-91 season, Zan Mason left UCLA and decided to transfer to Loyola Marymount. Just about the same time, Richard Petruska opted to leave Loyola Marymount and enroll at UCLA.

The two sat out last season and both are helping their teams this year.

Mason, a 6-foot-7 junior, is averaging 17 points and 8 rebounds for the Lions (2-3) while shooting 53 percent from the field, 57 percent from 3-point range.

Petruska, a 6-10 senior, is averaging 12.7 points and 6.7 rebounds for the 13th-ranked Bruins (5-1).

Fran Fraschilla is a rookie head coach at Manhattan College, but he's learning quick.

The Jaspers traveled to Peoria, Ill. last week to play Bradley and the former Ohio State and Providence assistant came away with a lot more than a win.

"They gave me a six-room suite at the hotel with three bathrooms and jacuzzis and I used every one," he said. "If I knew it was that good being a head coach I would have tried to get a head job sooner."

There was a lot of relief in Hattiesburg, Miss. this week after Southern Mississippi beat Alcorn State 86-59. It was the Golden Eagles' first win of the season after an 0-4 start. The last time the season started that poorly at Southern Mississippi, it was the 1971-72 season and it ended with an 0-24 record.

How young and inexperienced is Brown this season?

Five players established career highs in the Bruins' two games last week.

The Western Athletic Conference has two father-son combinations this season. Randy Reid is playing for his father, Roger, at Brigham Young and Reggie Minton Jr. is playing for his dad at Air Force.

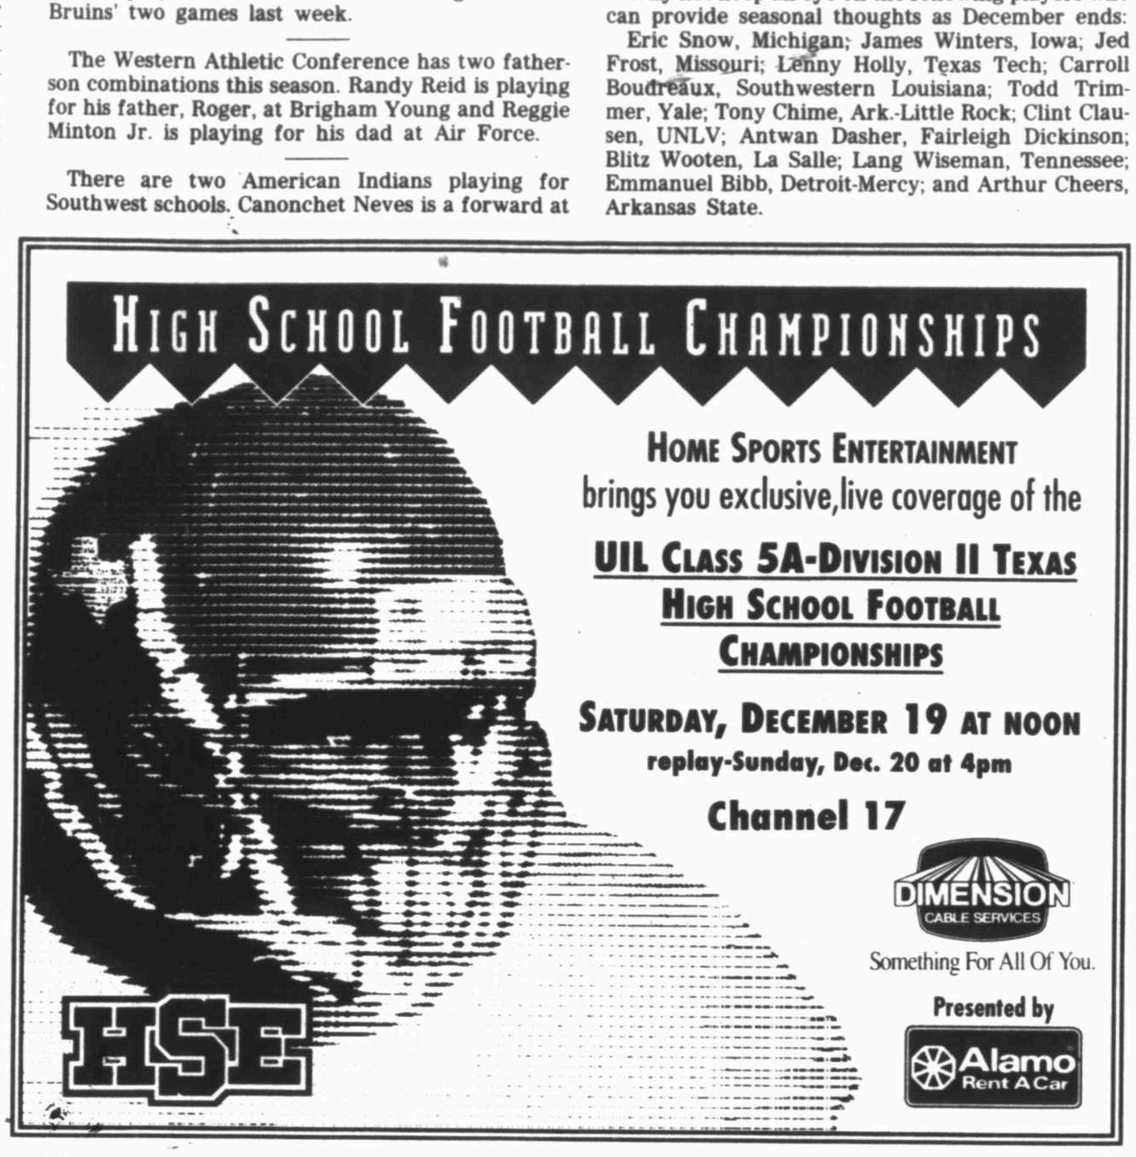

There are two American Indians playing for Southwest schools. Canonchet Neves is a forward at New Mexico, while Clifford Johns is a guard at Arizona.

With Winter starting Monday and Christmas just four days later, there are plenty of reminders of the season throughout collegiate boxscores.

Why not keep an eye on the following players who can provide seasonal thoughts as December ends:

Eric Snow, Michigan; James Winters, Iowa; Jed Frost, Missouri; Lenny Holly, Texas Tech; Carroll Boudreaux, Southwestern Louisiana; Todd Trimmer, Yale; Tony Chime, Ark.-Little Rock; Clint Clausen, UNLV; Antwan Dasher, Fairleigh Dickinson; Blitz Wooten, La Salle; Lang Wiseman, Tennessee; Emmanuel Bibb, Detroit-Mercy; and Arthur Cheers, Arkansas State.

Once a problem, Rodman a force in Motor City again

By Bill Barnard
AP Basketball Writer

Dennis Rodman, considered a sure bet for a trade from the Detroit Pistons in mid-November, is back again as the NBA's most determined rebounder.

When Rodman was suspended for five games, his desire to play was questioned because of his pending divorce, the departure of former Pistons coach Chuck Daly to New Jersey and tendinitis in his right knee.

Rodman, whose 18.7 rebound average last season was the most in the NBA in 20 years, had 20 or more rebounds in nine of his first 10 games after the suspension ended on Nov. 25. That put him on top of the NBA's rebounding leaders again with more than 17 per game.

Asked how he rediscovered the motivation to rebound more effectively than any other active player, Rodman said, "I just go out and do my job. I go out and sacrifice my body, everything I have for my team."

Rodman said the suspension is proving to be the best thing for him and the Pistons.

"I had to take care of what I had to take care of," Rodman said. "It was beneficial to me. I had to look out for myself and find out what direction I wanted to go in."

LEARNING THE ROPES: When rookie Alonzo Mourning tried to throw a woman reporter out of the Charlotte Hornets' locker room last week, 1992 rookie the year Larry Johnson set the former Georgetown center straight.

MEDIA BLITZ: Orlando Magic media relations director Alex Martins recently went on a 4-hour tour of local hospitals, accompanied by a few players.

When Martins returned, he had 73 messages on his voice mail and 39 telephone messages from his secretary, most of them concerning Shaquille O'Neal.

"It's just an average day," Martins said. "I'm not trying to put him on the same plateau, but it's Jordanesque."

POINT-GUARD FEVER: The San Antonio Spurs continue to muddle along in the middle of the Midwest Division standings without an experienced point guard.

Vinny Del Negro, Lloyd Daniels and Avery Johnson continue to handle the position, a situation that coach Jerry Tarkanian and All-Star center David Robinson find difficult to understand. The Spurs lost Rod Strickland to free agency in the offseason.

"This team does not have anybody with an NBA point guard mentality," Robinson said. "It's hard to imagine how a quality team could ever let something like this happen. You don't see this anywhere else."

Tarkanian said he isn't interested in waiver-wire rejects. Only a trade will do, which will be difficult considering the Spurs' injury problems at forward, where Terry Cummings and Antoine Carr are out.

"Guys who can't make it with Denver or Dallas aren't going to help us," Tarkanian said. "We need a quality point guard."

One point guard the Spurs might consider is Darrell Walker, waived by Detroit.

The Spurs are loaded with shooters, and Walker wouldn't get in their way. He's 6 for 102 for his career from 3-point range.

FAN-TASTIC: An Australian basketball magazine expected 20 to 30 replies when it offered a tour to see six NBA games and one NFL game for $2,800, but instead 65 people signed up.

The tour included one game in Minnesota, where Australian Luc Longley plays for the Timberwolves.

Bowling Green ruins Nevada's comeback

Associated Press

LAS VEGAS — Erik White hit Dave Hankins on fourth down with a 2-yard touchdown pass with 22 seconds left Friday night as Bowling Green spoiled a huge Nevada comeback to beat the Wolf Pack 35-34 in the inaugural Las Vegas Bowl.

Bowling Green, which led 28-3 at halftime, fell behind 34-28 in the fourth period. But with 1:48 left, Nevada punter Steve Lester bobbled the snap and Bowling Green recovered on the Wolf Pack 15.

After Mark Szlachcic caught a pass to put the ball on the 3, the Falcons stalled on three plays before White found Hankins alone in the end zone.

The win was the ninth straight for Mid-American Conference champion Bowling Green, which finished the season 10-2. Nevada, which won the Big West in its first year of Division I play, finished 7-5.

A series of three horrendous Bowling Green punts helped Nevada back into the game in the third quarter, when backup quarterback Chris Vargas threw for two scores and the Wolf Pack scored three touchdowns with a 4:27 period.

Vargas, taking over from starter Fred Gatlin, led the Wolf Pack to four straight second-half touchdowns.

The comeback was sparked by two successive Bowling Green punts that totaled 13 yards and a third botched punt attempt in which backup punter Rob Donahue scrambled for only five yards. Nevada scored touchdowns after all three punt attempts.

Donahue had come into the game in the second half as a replacement for starting punter Andy Tracy, who sustained a concussion.

Bowling Green dominated the first half and appeared to have the game in hand after stopping a Nevada drive on the goal line with four seconds remaining in the first half.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

THE AMERICAN INDIAN BIBLE!

QUITE FITTING ENOUGH IS THE FACT THAT THE VERY FIRST BIBLE ACTUALLY PRINTED IN AMERICA WAS WRITTEN IN—NOT ENGLISH—BUT A NATIVE AMERICAN LANGUAGE—ALGONKIAN! THE TIME: 1663, THE PLACE: THE COLONY IN MASSACHUSETS, AND THE MAN RESPONSIBLE: JOHN ELIOT, CALLED "THE APOSTLE TO THE NORTH AMERICAN INDIANS". ELIOT CAME TO AMERICA FROM ENGLAND IN 1631, WAS MADE TEACHER OF THE CHURCH IN ROXBURY, MASS., AND ORGANIZED THE FIRST VILLAGE OF INDIAN CONVERTS AT NATICK, NEAR BOSTON, IN 1651.

WHETHER THE INDIANS FELT HONORED OR NOT OVER THE FACT THAT THE FIRST BIBLE TO BE PRINTED IN AMERICA WAS DONE IN THEIR LANGUAGE HAS NOT BEEN RECORDED, BUT OVER A CENTURY WOULD PASS BEFORE THE FIRST ENGLISH LANGUAGE BIBLE WOULD BE PRINTED IN 1782!

NEXT WEEK: THE "MYSTERIOUS" SELAH!

The Best Thing About Church Is When It's Over

A sad commentary, but sometimes true. Especially for some people who have this memory about religion from their own childhoods. But Unitarian Universalists believe they can offer a very different experience. Not too different, but different enough. You may wish it's never over then.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

■ Church presents music

David McReynolds, music director, announced that the Ranchland Heights Baptist Church Adult Choir will present special Christmas music during the Sunday morning worship service.

Also the chime choir will play selections of the Christmas season. An added treat will be the singing of Christmas songs by the boys and girls from our Children's Church.

Pastor Lucian Rudd invites everyone to attend Sunday at 11:00 a.m.

■ Musical scheduled

The Sanctuary Choir of Crestview Baptist Church (3300 Thomas) will present the Christmas musical "Everlasting Light" this Sunday evening at 6:00 p.m. This work, subtitled "A Christmas Carol for a Dark World," employs drama and special lighting effects, and both traditional and contemporary music to tell the Advent story. The presentation, which also includes one selection by a 60 voice children's choir, will be directed by Ty Morris, Jr., Minister of Music.

In addition the church will present its Annual Candlelight Service on Christmas Eve at 5:30 p.m. The evening will begin with a "Holiday Celebration" of familiar songs including "Jingle Bells," "Silver Bells," and "White Christmas" and progress to the "Holy Day Carols." The service will conclude with the traditional "candlelight ceremony," and will dismiss at 6:30 p.m. Worship leaders will include The Master's Ringers Handbell Choir and Dr. Larry Ashlock, pastor. The public is invited to attend both services.

■ Church plans carols

St. Luke's United Methodist Church, 3001 W. Kansas, will celebrate the fourth Sunday of Advent this Sunday with A Feast of Carols a 5:00 p.m. in the sanctuary of the chuch.

The service will be led by Roger and Debby Vester, and will include the singing of Advent and Christmas carols from around the world. Although the focus of the worship is the singing of the carols, through drama and readings, the origin of some of the carols will be given as well as Christmas customs of the different countries shared. Elementary children of St. Luke's will provide a tableau of the nativity during the course of worship.

This is the fifth and last of the Advent Series Celebrations, and the public is invited to attend. It is under the direction of Bert W. Bostic, Minister of Program/Music for St. Luke's Church. Dr. Jarrell

■ More religion/7C

H. Sharp is the Senior Minister at St. Luke's.

In addition the church will be offering two worship services on Christmas Eve. The first worship will be at 5:30 p.m. in the Sanctuary and the focus for the worship will be singing of carols and sharing the Christmas story with young children of the congregation. Dr. Sharp will share a Christmas Homily and special organ music will be provided by Debby Vester, Organist/Music Assistant.

At the 11:00 p.m. service over 1000 luminaries placed around the church will light the worshippers' way as they come for Holy Communion and Candlelighting. Dr. Jarrell H. Sharp, Senior Minister of St. Luke's Church will bring the Christmas Message "God's Ultimate Yes!" based on scripture found in St. Luke 2:1-20. Come share in the joy of the birth of Christ Child as we worship this Christmas Eve.

■ Church plans program

A Christmas program of music and narration will be presented at the Midland III Ward of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints this Sunday. "Carol of Christmas," a cantana of familiar carols and original music by John W. Peterson, will be performed at 9:00 a.m. in the chapel at 2101 Tarleton. Choir director is Karen Weidmann, accompanists are Lauryl Hoose and Kim Gilland, and narrator is David Nelson. Some fellow Southern Baptists question Clinton's stands

By George W. Cornell
Associated Press Writer

Although President-elect Clinton is one of their own, many Southern Baptists are unsettled about him. That was evident at recent denominational state conventions across the country.

Some religious groups, including the Baptist World Alliance, were more receptive to Clinton. But cool reactions turned up in Southern Baptist meetings.

Some said they'd pray for him. Several asked him to reconsider his support for homosexual and abortion rights. Some felt his Southern Baptist affiliation shouldn't even be mentioned.

That uneasiness showed up at the Mississippi convention, where a resolution on prayer for Clinton and Vice President-elect Albert Gore Jr., was amended to delete a phrase noting they are "fellow Southern Baptists."

The Rev. Bobby Hood of Laurel, Miss., said Mississippi Baptists shouldn't identify with the two because of their views on homosexuality and abortion.

Opposing the deletion, the Rev. Dick Allison of Hattiesburg, said if Baptists required agreement on everything there "wouldn't be any fellow Baptists." Nevertheless, a vote eliminated mention of the religious link.

It used to be that differences on such issues were accepted. But that's no longer the case under policies of a current national administration of biblical fundamentalists who insist the Bible is totally without error.

Their leadership of the 15.5 million-member Southern Baptist Convention has been kept in power for more than a decade by convention majorities averaging about 55 percent. The losing, moderate minority has averaged about 45 percent.

Clinton has said he tends to identify with the moderate minority.

The national convention last June expelled two congregations that either had sanctioned a union of homosexuals or ordained one. Also, a constitutional amendment was initiated to exclude all such congregations.

In Louisiana, the state convention followed suit in November, barring any congregation affirming "homosexuality as an acceptable lifestyle." It was the first state convention to impose such a test of fellowship.

Several state conventions promised prayers for Clinton, although the California Baptists couched it in a somewhat resigned, reluctant fashion, saying they "accept our obligation to pray" for him.

That convention also adopted a resolution urging Clinton and Gore to "rethink their positions on abortion and homosexuality," calling their stand "contrary to biblical principles."

The condemnation was protested by David Page, a Baptist from Palmdale, Calif., saying "I don't want to wave a red flag in their face."

Religious bodies call for war's end

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — Leaders of the three religious bodies whose people are involved in the bitter fighting in former Yugoslavia have issued a joint appeal for an "immediate, unconditional and irrevocable end of the war."

They urged the "re-establishment of peace and the renewal of dialogue as the only method of solving existing national and political problems."

The statement was adopted at an unprecedented Nov. 24-25 meeting of the heads of the three faiths under the auspices of the Appeal of Conscience Foundation, a New York-based interfaith coalition working to advance religious freedom.

Signers were Patriarch Pavle of the Serbian Orthodox Church, Roman Catholic Archbishop Vinko Puljic of Sarajevo, Muslim leader Jakub efendi Selimoski Raise Ulema and Rabbi Arthur Schneier, foundation president who presided at the meeting.

Declaring that "crime in the name of religion is the greatest crime against religion," the document condemned the "horror and shame" of the war's "criminal and inhuman" cruelties and demanded an end of "ethnic cleansing."

WNBA names top 75 books

BOSTON — "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy has been named one of the 75 books by women whose words have changed the world.

As part of its 75th anniversary celebration, the Women's National Book Association (WNBA) asked its members from throughout the United States to respond to the question, "What books have been most important in your life?"

"Science and Health" was one of the 75 books listed by the members.

In addition, this month's "Science and Health," the Christian Science textbook, is the subject of a special issue of "The Christian Science Journal," a monthly religious magazine founded by Ms. Eddy in 1883 and published by The Christian Publishing Society.

"Science and Health" and the special issue of "The Christian Science Journal" are available at the local Christian Science Reading Room, 201 W. Wall St. It is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays. For additional information, call 682-8476.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 19, 1992

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: You will have to give your personal needs higher priority. It is possible to find greater fulfillment through your work! In 1993, it will be more important than ever to surround yourself with people you can count on. Business and pleasure combine beautifully next April. Summer brings happy romance. Although you will be surprised by all the demands on your time in August, wonderful rewards follow in September. Travel for business or pleasure as Thanksgiving approaches.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actor Robert Urich, actress Jennifer Beals, tennis star Stan Smith, basketball star Kevin McHale.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): It could be difficult for family members to agree on a plan or recreational activity. A friend may have a good suggestion tonight. Be sure to keep your spending within reasonable limits.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Hopes may be realized suddenly and in an unexpected manner. As long as this makes you happy, nothing else should be done. A big cleanup need not be boring.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Confusion prevails in the face of unexpected changes. Hidden forces are at work. Romance or an exciting friendship could give you new goals. Do not get caught up in trying to impress someone.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You will feel more comfortable staying home and dealing with family matters today. Your creativity is at a peak; be imaginative! Gradually ease into a new sport.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A preholiday cleaning and decorating operation is in order. Get busy! In the afternoon, a short trip could give you new perspective. Romance blossoms in an atmosphere of trust.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): An envious acquaintance could bring out your insecurities. Refuse to get into the ring with an unworthy opponent. A second career could be the answer to financial worries.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Avoid bullying a sensitive partner. Gains made through intimidation will ultimately be losses. Do put pressure on an unscrupulous merchant. An important piece of art or jewelry may be involved.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A fairly complicated project will be a success, thanks to your quick thinking and ability to follow through. Be more circumspect about your love life. Be aware of promises made to loved ones.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Concentrate on one task at a time to avoid scattering your energies too widely. A family situation could be unsettling; ask relatives for assistance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A good day for socializing if you stick close to home and entertain people you know well. Do some preholiday cooking. You are wise to be cautious about romance on the rebound.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You will have to compromise if resistance to your ideas remains strong. Be alert to any hints your friends may drop. Admit a mistake and promise to do better. Good will abounds!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A change of scene may be more pleasant than you expect. People at a distance could be a source of financial help. Twosomes are topnotch tonight. Beware of petty arguments with mate.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are truthful, spontaneous and generous — without a selfish bone in their bodies. They tend to think well of other people and will occasionally be deceived by the unscrupulous. Concerned parents will point out the benefits of having a bit of healthy skepticism. Sociable and hard-working, these Sagittarians make excellent employees. Their diligence sets a good example for their less-industrious peers.

Montel Williams tapes show on troops' 'families at home'

Montel Williams, the television talk-show host, has been both a marine and a lieutenant commander in the Navy. When American troops went to Somalia, he decided he had to do a show on "the families left behind," he said.

On Thursday, Williams was aboard the USS Essex, an amphibious assault ship, off San Diego with 450 spouses of servicemen and servicewomen and their children, taping a show in which family members talked about being apart at holiday time. The syndicated program, "The Montel Williams Show," is to be seen around the country on Monday.

"This situation touches home for me," Williams said from the ship, noting that he joined the Marines in 1974 before going to the Naval Academy. "I spent one Christmas deployed underwater on a submarine, a Thanksgiving in Grenada when our troops were there, an Easter on a submarine. I know how a mother feels when she can't send you a letter."

The mood among the families was "very supportive of the operation but solemn at the same time," he said.

"One lady who gave birth right after her husband left, told me, 'I feel bad for my husband who won't see our child for several months, but I am happy that he will save another child.' "

SAN FRANCISCO — The state Supreme Court has upheld $2.3 million in damages to Peggy Lee in her dispute with the Walt Disney Co. over video rights to "Lady and the Tramp."

Lee

The court on Wednesday denied a hearing on Disney's appeal of rulings upholding damages for breach of contract.

Lee co-wrote six songs in the 1955 animated film and was the voice of four characters. She said she was paid $3,500.

She sued Disney, claiming the studio violated her contract by releasing a videocassette of the film in 1987 without her consent. The studio contended Lee misinterpreted the contract, but Los Angeles Superior Court Judge William Huss ruled in favor of Lee in 1990.

A jury last year awarded damages against Disney and Buena Vista Home Video.

NEW YORK — Spike Lee says people who want to see his film "Malcolm X" are instead being given tickets to other movies.

The director said his office had received 45 phone calls from people who said they received tickets for "Home Alone 2" or "Aladdin" when they paid for tickets to "Malcolm X." No single theater chain was involved, he said.

"I'm not here trying to spin some great conspiracy tale," Lee said Thursday. "It's the first time I've ever heard of this. That's why it's hard to find that it's a coincidence."

The film's distributor, Warner Bros., said part-time employees hired for the holiday rush were one possible explanation for the problem.

The mix-up was "a random event that is probably attributable to human error," said D. Barry Reardon, a resident of Warner's domestic theater distribution.

ALLENTOWN, Pa. — Oliver North's company is selling bulletproof vests to police, and he's selling his autograph to help police raise money to buy them.

The former national security aide whose secret arms program for Nicaraguan rebels unraveled six years ago was awarded a key to the city at a ceremony Thursday attended by about 250 people.

Afterward, he gave autographs and posed for pictures for a $250 contribution.

Former Police Chief David Howells, chairman of the bulletproof vest campaign, said North "exemplifies the highest ideals and attributes of an American citizen."

TULSA, Okla. — Oral Roberts could leave the hospital this weekend after being treated for chest pains, a hospital spokesman said Friday.

The 74-year-old televangelist, who suffered a heart attack in October, was admitted Monday. Tests determined he did not have another heart attack.

Doctors have not disclosed the reason for the chest pains, but said there was no evidence of heart damage.

"We anticipate he will be released this weekend with an excellent prognosis," said Stephen Reynolds, a spokesman at St. John Medical Center.

WEST FARGO, N.D. — Ed Schafer has been governor since Tuesday, but the honeymoon goes on.

Two days after being sworn in as North Dakota's 30th governor, Schafer was married Thursday to Nancy Jones. He whisked her away in a 1929 Model A Ford for a honeymoon at an undisclosed location.

Jones, a 42-year-old widow, is development director of the Fargo-Moorhead Symphony. Schafer, 46, is divorced. Both have two children.

Their engagement was announced by Marilyn Quayle, wife of the vice president, during an October campaign stop in Fargo.

Perot, supporters to form non-profit watchdog group

DALLAS (AP) — Ross Perot will turn his supporters' organization into a non-profit watchdog group next month and lead a drive for new members, the top aide in his independent presidential campaign said Friday.

But Perot will not try to form a third political party as some supporters have urged, said Clay Mulford, general counsel of Perot's campaign.

"The intention is to disseminate information to the public on policy issues and to encourage citizen involvement," Mulford said.

The group's leaders will initially spring from the state offices of the Perot's campaign. The group will also carry the same name as his volunteer organization — United We Stand, America.

Perot will be the group's first national chairman, Mulford said.

Perot was out of his office and could not immediately be reached Friday.

Speeches, TV appearances, and perhaps a direct mail campaign will be used to seek members, who are likely to be charged $15 annually.

After the election, the Dallas billionaire promised to fund the organization for a few months until dues make it self-sufficient.

A small research and public relations staff will be its only paid employees. They will be based in a Dallas office not far from Perot's.

The organization will neither contribute to nor endorse candidates, Mulford said. But it will closely follow voting records and issues, particularly government reform and deficit reduction that were key in Perot's platform.

'The intention is to disseminate information to the public on policy issues and to encourage citizen involvement.'

—Clay Mulford
general counsel
Perot campaign

United We Stand, America, may later rate the voting records of officeholders in a manner similar to the Americans for Democratic Action or National Taxpayers Union, Mulford said.

He said President-elect Clinton appears to be paying attention to issues Perot championed in the campaign, such as prohibiting government appointees from becoming lobbyists for other countries and making economic recovery a top priority.

"We are interested in seeing if the substance follows behind the appearance," Mulford said. "It seems very clear that his actions are tied directly to the Perot agenda and to appeal to Perot voters."

Perot drew about 19 percent of the vote, the most of any third-party presidential candidate since Theodore Roosevelt in 1912.

Since the election, Perot activists from several states have visited with him to create a direction for the movement his candidacy started.

Perot rejected creation of a third party, but advocated an issues-oriented watchdog group that would eventually have state and local chapters with elected officers.

However, some Perot activists have said they will try to form third parties in their states independent of Perot and United We Stand, America.

Orson Swindle, nominal head of the supporters' organization during the last few months of the campaign, returned last month to his home in Hawaii and said he plans to be active there.

Family feuds with owner over poinsettia pesticide

AUSTIN (AP) — Poinsettias normally fill folks with Christmas spirit.

But a local family says pesticides used on the red holiday plants in nearby greenhouses are filling them with sickness.

"I feel like we're being gassed, and no one cares," said Scott Vredenburgh, 37, who is married with two children, ages 4 and 1. "So far, state agencies that are supposed to protect us have done nothing. They're almost laughing in our face."

The owner of the poinsettia greenhouses, Mike Morgan, says his fumigation is not to blame. State inspectors have verified that he is complying with all rules, he says. He also has changed his operation to address Vredenburgh's complaints.

The feud began to take root in late September when Vredenburgh contacted the Texas Air Control Board to complain that fumes coming from the greenhouses were making his family dizzy and nauseous.

An investigator suggested Morgan make his greenhouses airtight to contain the fumes.

Morgan says he quickly complied.

"I changed my schedule to (fumigate) only one greenhouse at a time, instead of all at once. We taped everything up and tested for leaks. I agreed to switch to a spray instead of the fog — everything I could do," Morgan says.

Vredenburgh says the problems persisted.

Air board officials finished their inquiry and in early October referred the Vredenburghs' complaint to the Texas Department of Agriculture, which regulates pesticides.

Subsequent tests showed traces of the pesticide — Fulex Dithio Insecticidal Smoke — in the Vredenburghs' air conditioning filter.

Hung jury forces mistrial in murder case

GEORGETOWN (AP) — A state district judge declared a mistrial Friday in the capital murder retrial of Kerry Max Cook after concluding the jury was hopelessly deadlocked.

State District Judge Joe Tunnell set a new trial date for March 26 in Georgetown for Cook, who is accused of the 1977 mutilation murder of a Tyler secretary.

Despite three split votes, Tunnell had ordered the jury into a fifth day of deliberations Friday. But about 3 p.m. Friday, Tunnell ended the trial, saying it was improbable a unanimous verdict could be reached.

The jury had been sequestered throughout the trial, and the panel's oldest member was under treatment for high blood pressure and lack of sleep.

On Thursday, Tunnell had urged the jury to continue.

"There is no reason to hope the next jury will find the questions any easier to decide. Don't do violence to your conscience, but continue your deliberations," the judge said.

A defense attorney had asked for a mistrial Thursday after the latest vote from four days of deliberations showed the jury deadlocked 8-4 on a verdict.

Tunnell, following a jury note Thursday afternoon, told foreman Tony Avizenis Sr. to reveal vote tallies — not what they meant. Lawyers for both sides declined to speculate which way the panel was leaning.

Avizenis said jurors split 10-2 Monday on a question of guilt or innocence, then voted 8-4 on Wednesday and Thursday on whether Cook was guilty or innocent of either capital murder or murder.

Jurors have had the case since Monday afternoon. They shocked lawyers Tuesday by saying they had found murder victim Linda Jo Edwards' missing stocking in a jeans pocket during an examination of physical evidence.

Since the secretary's 1977 slaying, Tyler police had searched unsuccessfully for her stocking. Prosecutors in Cook's initial 1978 trial had accused him of carrying body parts from Ms. Edwards, 21, in the stocking.

Wayne Long, a 63-year-old juror, was prescribed medicine to lower his blood pressure and help him sleep after telling Tunnell he'd had "no rest of any kind" since Monday evening. That followed 10 days of testimony.

Tunnell moved the retrial from Tyler on a venue change because of publicity.

Students worry about TSU's reputation

HOUSTON (AP) — The dissolution of Texas Southern University's popular marching band over an overseas shoplifting incident has left some students embarrassed and worried about damage to the school's overall reputation.

The stylish Ocean of Soul marching band had been a source of pride for the school, performing everything from solemn classical pieces to gospel, rock and jazz.

But the band's rhythmic reign ended abruptly Thursday when school officials disbanded the group in the wake of allegations that several members stole electronics recently in Japan and that non-students went on the trip.

"TSU students have marched for the last time under that once-proud name," TSU President William Harris said in a terse statement.

The action saddened many, angered some who felt it was too severe and simply embarrassed others.

"They messed up everything," said Brian White, a sophomore majoring in secondary education.

"Now, whenever a group of black people from TSU, or anywhere for that matter, go some place, people are going to think they're stealing," White said.

'Now, whenever a group of black people from TSU, or anywhere for that matter, go some place, people are going to think they're stealing.'

TSU sophomore

Sheronda Cooper, a senior majoring in dietetics and psychology, said the actions of a few have tainted the entire school.

"Even if the whole band is dismissed from school, it's not going to take away from the fact our reputation has been tarnished," Ms. Cooper said. "If people aren't familiar with the other programs at our school, they are only going to remember this kind of thing."

Japanese police said some band members shoplifted $22,000 worth of electronics from a Tokyo shopping center last week. The band had gone to Tokyo to perform during halftime of the Coca-Cola Bowl game between Nebraska and Kansas State.

Most of the shoplifted items were returned when police threatened to prohibit the band from leaving the country, Japanese police said.

Harris said Thursday that disciplinary action had been taken against at least 12 band members who stole, but he did not give any specifics.

TSU spokesman Chuck Smith said the punishments ranged from suspension to expulsion and possibly restitution. But he said the names of the students and their exact punishment would not be revealed because it could violate federal privacy provisions.

Harris also said the school's probe of the affair showed 28 people who are not students made the trip with the band to Tokyo. Smith said he did not know whether those people shoplifted.

State Sen. Rodney Ellis, a TSU alumnus, said the controversy was a setback for the school, which "had made such tremendous strides to propel it the world class image that it deserves.

Medicaid freezes state school funds after deaths

AUSTIN (AP) — Federal Medicaid funding has been frozen for two state mental retardation institutions because residents died after receiving substandard care, according to a published report.

Medicaid inspectors say the Fort Worth State School has until Jan. 6 to correct problems that led to a 25-year-old man's death or face losing about $10 million a year in federal funding, the Austin American-Statesman reported Friday.

On Thursday, Medicaid inspectors lifted a 9-day hold on federal funds for the Denton State School, where a 28-year-old man died Dec. 1 after sustaining a head injury, the American-Statesman said.

Both of the deaths are under investigation by the new Texas Department of Protective and Regulatory Services, which on Sept. 1 assumed responsibility for investigating abuse and neglect of residents in Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation institutions.

Paul Brynie, 25, died Dec. 9 at the Fort Worth State School after he gasped and stopped breathing, the newspaper said.

Documents show three workers, who had been trained in cardiopulmonary resuscitation, violated the institution's emergency medical policy by not attempting CPR upon finding Brynie in distress, the newspaper said.

According to a Texas Department of Health memo, the workers "admitted that they waited by the client's side, taking no further action. The nurse arrived 5 to 7 minutes later from another area of the campus. The nurse unsuccessfully attempted CPR when she arrived," the American-Statesman said.

The Texas Health Department inspects mental retardation institutions on behalf of the federal Medicaid program.

Sheila Allee, spokeswoman for the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation, said the Fort Worth institution is retraining all dorm workers "on how to handle life-threatening emergencies."

In addition, it will reinstate unannounced CPR drills, which "they hadn't been doing for a while," she said, and resuscitation masks will be placed in accessible locations, the newspaper reported.

At Denton State School, Gerard Sean Clements, 28, died Dec. 1 after a worker tried to lift him from a bathtub and could not support him, the newspaper said.

SOMALIA

A nation torn by feuds and famine

Throughout 1992, a human catastrophe has unfolded in the drought-stricken African nation of Somalia, a famine claiming countless lives against a backdrop of anarchy and war.

The victims

A mother is hugged by her two remaining children as she mourns the death of her son before carting him off in a wheelbarrow for burial in Baidoa, Somalia.

Humanitarian organizations say it's impossible to know precisely how many people have starved to death in Somalia this year. But they agree at least 300,000 have died from the combined effects of drought and warfare.

Tallying the victims is extremely difficult because many are in remote regions, and because widespread banditry and militia violence have made other areas inaccessible — their tragedies unseen by outsiders.

Aid officials say the lives of an additional 2 million people may be threatened unless they receive quick food and medical care. Many others are malnourished and in need of assistance, they say.

Figures vary according to population estimates. The Red Cross calculates that 4.5 million people live in the famine-stricken region. Other estimates range to 6.5 million people.

A census has not been taken since 1975, when about 3.3 million people were counted in Somalia.

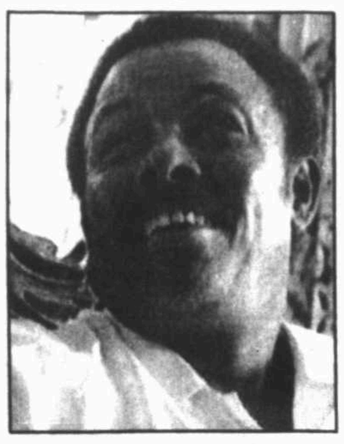

Besides those suffering in their homeland, about 1 million Somalis have fled the country. Most are in refugee camps in Kenya and Ethiopia, and others have gone to Djibouti, Yemen, Saudi Arabia, Europe, Canada and the United States.

The famine has been building since late last year, the result of a severe regional drought whose impact was worsened by fighting, anarchy and looting unleashed after rebels toppled dictator Mohamed Siad Barre in January 1991.

Fighting between clans in the countryside displaced farmers, further disrupting harvests already weakened by the drought.

Even during good years, Somalia was capable of growing only 50 percent of its food needs. The rest had to be imported. The International Committee of the Red Cross warned of the growing food crisis last December. But the plea at first fell on deaf ears.

The antagonists

Ali Mahdi Mohamed

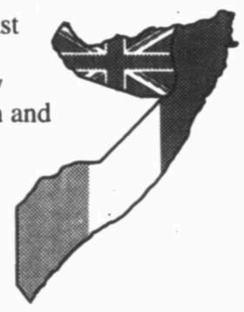

Mohamed Farrah Aidid

The conflict that has led to the catastrophic famine in Somalia is not a classic civil war pitting two ideologically opposed sides. Instead, it is a war of clan against clan, and sub-clan against sub-clan.

The feuds, rooted deep in the past, grew more violent in the 1980s as fighters took up modern weapons supplied to Somalia by the superpowers.

In January 1991, the Hawiye clan's rebel United Somali Congress drove President Siad Barre — a member of the tiny Marehan sub-clan of the Darod clan — from the capital, Mogadishu.

But two main rebel leaders — businessman Ali Mahdi Mohamed and ex-army general Mohamed Farrah Aidid — belonged to different Hawiye sub-clans, and their followers soon began fighting each other. Four months of heavy shelling, beginning last November, left Mogadishu devastated and divided, and the rest of the country plunged into fighting among other clan and sub-clan militias for territory and increasingly scarce food.

Obstacles to relief

Last November, artillery exchanges closed the port of Mogadishu. That stopped any large-scale food imports for months, even after the worst fighting was halted by a U.N.-brokered cease-fire in March.

Shipments eventually resumed, but have regularly been blocked by continuing violence and looting. A U.N. force of 500 Pakistani soldiers arrived in Mogadishu in September to guard relief shipments arriving by sea and air. But the warlords did not allow them to deploy beyond the Mogadishu airport, and the arrival of 3,000 more U.N. troops was delayed.

The continuing chaos prompted the U.N. Security Council to authorize a major deployment of 30,000 or more combat-ready troops from the United States and other countries.

In addition, relief officials have been concerned that uncoordinated shipments may clog Mogadishu's port.

In outlying areas, the brief rainy season sometimes makes airstrips unusable, and more supply airdrops may be needed, say U.N. officials.

Other problems complicate the relief effort. Of 70 hospitals in Somalia, only a dozen function, and then only partly. The water system has been destroyed almost everywhere. Relief workers themselves are sometimes targets; more than a dozen have been killed or wounded.

Somali gunmen, armed with machine guns and anti-aircraft artillery, patrol the streets of Mogadishu.

WEEKLY & MONTHLY INCOME

The Midland Reporter-Telegram will have an opening January 1 on one of its few "special allowance" routes. This larger route receives a $50 check each Friday, in addition to the regular monthly route proftis. The route is in the Washington Park area.

As with all newspaper distributorships, this opportunity requires a 7 day a week commitment (when you go out of town, you must arrange a substitute for yourself) and it is early morning work. $100 deposit required

Newspaper distributorships provide great supplemental income for housewives/ mothers, senior citizens, college students, or any other adult wanting to "moonlight".

Apply in person or call:
688-2700

WHAT!
NEWSPAPER ROUTES?

That's right...one of the best part-time income supplements around. Doesn't conflict with your "day job." Doesn't require day care. And it's dependable income.

Fact: 95% of our Distributors NOW are ADULTS supplementing their income with Route Distributorships!

Fact: Our Distributors make from $400-$800 monthly AFTER expenses, some even more!

The catch? You've gotta be able to handle early mornings and weekends! And when you take a few days off, you'll need to find a substitute for yourself.

So...are you serious about MOONLIGHTING, or what? If you are, and you have dependable transportation and can put up a $100 deposit...

Call 688-2700 and start making that extra car payment today!
