10 years probation for plea by youth

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

A Big Spring juvenile, detained since Feb. 13 in connection with the stabbing death of Marc Rutledge, pleaded guilty Friday to voluntary manslaughter.

Michael Viera, 15, 411 N.W. 10th St., was sentenced to 10 years probation by Judge James Gregg, 118th District Court.

Viera agreed to a voluntary adult certification in return for the probation sentence. District Attorney Rick Hamby said this morning, explaining that the plea was arranged after it was determined unlikely that a court-ruled adult certification would be awarded.

Viera was apprehended and charged with murder in February, after the Rutledge stabbing, which occurred during an argument. Rutledge was dead on arrival to the Scenic Mountain Medical Center, according to earlier published reports. He died of a stab wound to the heart.

Viera had been detained in the Abilene and Howard County detention centers pending Friday's hearing.

Hamby said the judgment is what he expected for a 15-year-old youth, but said he felt it was not just punishment for the crime committed.

"Juveniles are handled, literally, with kid gloves," Hamby said, explaining that certain barriers must be overcome to certify and try a youth as an adult.

In order to be certified as an adult, two psychiatric studies of the youth are required, and the judge must be convinced that the youth should be certified, he said.

A psychiatric study completed by an Abilene psychiatrist advised against certification, Hamby said. The psychiatrist "really didn't give any out-right reason why he shouldn't be certified," however, County Attorney Tim Yeats said.

The entire report consisted on the youth's background, and said the youth was street-wise, but didn't give any reasons why he should or shouldn't be certified, Yeats said.

"If I read the report up until the last couple of sentences, I would say, yes, he should be certified," Yeats said.

The last sentence said he shouldn't be certified, Yeats explained.

"The psychologist rode the fence and didn't say either way," Yeats said.

Three of the proponents of the Garden City superconducting, supercollider site were busy this morning, preparing to fly to Austin from Big Spring to make the delivery of 167 pounds of documents. Declaring "We don't meet deadlines, we beat 'em," Ralph McLaughlin, left, reported that the Garden City site proposal would be delivered one day in advance of the actual deadline. Dave Dorchester, local SSC site engineering committee member, center and Thane Akins, project manager, accompanied McLaughlin.

Water fight

Couple's time in court has arrived

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

Opposing parties in a lawsuit filed against the city over high water bills remained in conference this morning with Justice of the Peace Bill Shankles.

A jury was to be chosen this morning for today's trial in small claims court.

The trial had been postponed from its original date April 28 after City Attorney Hardy Wilkerson requested a continuance, Shankles said.

Wilkerson was involved in a trial in 238th District Court in Midland that day.

Paul and Jerri Winn, 811 W. 18th St. filed suit against the City of Big Spring March 2, claiming they were billed for water they did not use. They are not represented by an attorney.

The Winns question water bills last year that charge them for using as much as 25,000 gallons of water per month, when their usual average is 5,000 to 7,000 gallons per month, the suit states.

The bills charged them for using 18,000 gallons during March 1986, 13,000 gallons during April 1986, 18,000 gallons during May 1986, 13,000 gallons during June, and 25,000 gallons during September, the suit states.

However, during those months, the couple spent very few days in Big Spring, and used less than their monthly average, it states.

Jerri Winn said her husband suffers from cancer and was receiving treatment in Fort Worth, and she underwent surgery at that time. The lawsuit states the couple had no plumbing leaks.

The city, represented by City Attorney Hardy Wilkerson, denies it charged them for more water than they used.

The lawsuit is the newest development in a battle pitting the city against more than 500 citizens complaining of extraordinarily high water bills for amounts of water they contend they didn't use. Officials have said the city usually receives about 200 bill complaints a month.

Jerri Winn was a member of a citizens committee appointed by Mayor Cotton Mize to advise the City Council on actions to take in the matter. However, she said she was forced to quit the committee because of illness.

City officials began investigating possible water meter problems the previous summer when the unusually high number of citizens complained about their bills — including some who said their bills were double or triple the usual amount.

When officials were unable to determine the cause of the bills, the citizens committee was organized. After more study of the problem, the committee reported it could find no single cause of the high bills, but a number of contributing factors.

Court: State can require Rotary to admit women

WASHINGTON (AP) — States may force Rotary Clubs to admit women, the Supreme Court ruled today.

The justices, in a 7-0 ruling, upheld a California law that bars Rotary International from ousting local chapters that have women members.

Justice Lewis F. Powell, in his opinion for the court, said the California law does not interfere with the constitutional rights of Rotarians to associate with whom they please.

Powell compared the clubs to public accommodations in rejecting arguments that Rotarians have a First Amendment right to bar women.

He said the clubs are sizeable, have a high turnover rate, engage in public activities, encourage participation by non-members and welcome news media coverage of many of the central activities.

"The evidence in this case indicates that the relationship among Rotary Club members is not the kind of intimate or private relation that warrants constitutional protection," Powell said.

"The membership undertakes a variety of service projects designed to aid the community, to raise the standards of the members' businesses and professions and to improve international relations," he continued.

"In sum, Rotary Clubs, rather than carrying on their activities in an atmosphere of privacy, seek to keep their 'windows and doors open to the whole world,'" Powell said.

While today's ruling reinforced the power of states to curb sex discrimination, the court provided no checklist on what other organizations might be affected.

Powell suggested it requires a case-by-case analysis to determine whether an organization is sufficiently private to base membership on gender.

Searching for budget resolution

AUSTIN (AP) — Lawmakers entered the final month of the regular session today with the House debating a budget bill that might not be approved until a summer special session.

Speaker Gib Lewis said House members might be able to trim $1 billion or so from the $39.4 billion 1988-89 spending plan forwarded by the appropriations committee.

But, according to Lewis, there is no chance of getting it down to the $36.8 billion bottom line set by Gov.

Bill Clements.

Clements has vowed to veto any spending plan, such as the one approved by the House Appropriations Committee, that would require a tax increase other than the continuation of the current temporary motor fuels and sales tax increases.

The Senate has approved a $39.9 billion spending plan. Differences between the House and Senate budgets will be worked out by a conference committee.

"We think we are making progress. If the governor will cooperate with the Legislature in the next four weeks, we'll get out of here" with a balanced budget, Lewis said.

Clements sees a rockier road. "I think we can solve these problems in the next 30 days, but it's going to take some real head-knocking, some real honest-to-God getting down to brass tacks to get that done. And I haven't seen any evidence of that."

Sen. Gramm rides 'finest bomber'

ABILENE (AP) — After flying in the pilot seat of a B-1B bomber at Dyess Air Force Base Saturday, U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm pronounced the controversial aircraft "the finest bomber in the world."

Still wearing a flight suit and cradling his helmet and life-support equipment, Gramm took a jab at B-1B critics.

"You can't compare (the B-1B) with a plane made and flown in Heaven. You've got to compare it with other weapon systems that we have actually built and operated," he said.

"And at this stage, this plane is out-performing specifications as compared to the B-52, and the B-52 went on to become the greatest bomber we've had," he added.

The Republican, a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee and supporter of the B-1B, was all smiles when he stepped off the $280 million aircraft after a 43-minute training flight with a Dyess crew.

Gramm said he made the visit "because it is one thing to sit in Washington in the Pentagon under an air conditioner and read about the plane and quite another to talk to the young people who are putting the plane through its paces."

"If those who plan strategies in the Soviet Union woke up tomorrow and said, 'Today is the day to attack the United States of America,' there is no doubt in my mind the young men on the plane with me believe the B-1B could do its job," Gramm said.

Standing before a line of 28

B-1Bs, he said, "I'm convinced that all these planes we see out here ... are an investment that assures that those who do the planning in the Kremlin decide, 'today is not that day to attack' ..."

Gramm's flight included a low-altitude, high-speed pass. With its variable wings swept back the full 67½ degrees, the B-1B screamed about 400 feet over the runway at nearly 500 mph.

Such maneuvers are usually done in sparsely populated areas because of noise complaints.

Flood of illegals seek assistance for INS amnesty

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The waiting lists are long and probably will get longer. Roman Catholic and Protestant church officials are reporting a flood of illegal aliens seeking documentation help as the amnesty period opens this week.

More than 3 million aliens are expected to apply for legalization beginning Tuesday at U.S. Immigration and Naturalization centers across the country.

But many of those aliens will first go to private organizations, primarily church relief agencies, to receive counseling and help in obtaining documents.

The directors of some of those agencies, called Qualified Designated Entities, say the INS has been slow in sending them alien application forms and they fear their backlog will increase. Authorities also have expressed concern, and even filed suits, over unauthorized firms seeking to profit by dispensing amnesty aid.

The designated private agencies will be able to charge as much as $100 each for processing, document retrieval and fingerprinting services, and the INS will charge aliens an additional $185 each, up to $420 per family, for the application.

"A lot of these people are going to go to these QDEs out of fear of the INS, because they simply can't speak English or because they don't know how to gather the necessary documentation," said John Armistead of Outreach Services in Dallas.

"Some of these applicants are hesitant, somewhat leery of the INS," he said.

The private organizations have been busy since last year's passage of the immigration bill, which grants amnesty to aliens who entered the country before 1982.

At the Catholic Services for Immigrants in San Antonio, four telephone lines ring constantly as volunteers take names of aliens needing help with paperwork. The waiting list already numbers about 1,000.

In Houston, Lutheran church officials expect to help process applications for more than 20,000 undocumented aliens, mostly Central Americans.

Coahoma Band again competing

The Coahoma High School band hopes to come home winners again after the May 7-9 "Cavalcade of Music" contest in Colorado Springs.

The band, with its 64 members, will compete for the first time at the annual contest, band director Billy Goff said today.

Coahoma's band is ready for the competition, he said, because of a recent win in Abilene.

The band received a first division rating, the highest rating awarded, in the concert stage competition at the April 23rd University Interscholastic League contest, he said.

Goff said the band will play "Northumberland March," "Songs of Heritage" and "Invicta" at the Colorado Springs contest.

Band members also will visit area attractions including the Cave of the Winds, Pike's Peak, Royal Gorge and the United States Olympic training site.

Sheriff reports probation arrest

Ronald Lewis Gaskins, 19, Sterling City Route T32, was arrested on a warrant of revocation of probation Saturday. Bond was denied.

Steven Edward Norman, 28, Amarillo, pleaded guilty in 118th District Court Friday on a charge of theft over $750. He was sentenced to four years in the Texas Department of Corrections and given credit for 212 days in jail.

Allen Dale Shepard, 22, 2112 W. Third St., was arrested Saturday on Department of Public Safety traffic warrants. He was released on a $200 bond.

Melody Lynn Gay, 25, 800 Marcy Drive Apt. 13, was arrested Friday on a grand jury indictment stemming from a charge of theft over $750. She was released on a $2,500 bond.

Police beat

Deadly weapon cases being probed

Deadly weapons were involved in three incidents investigated Saturday and Sunday by Big Spring police.

Victor Delando Wilson, 501 N.E. 10th St., told police someone he knows threatened him with a deadly weapon at 6:25 p.m. Sunday at his residence.

And Billy Wayne Wilson, same address, told police that someone he knows struck him repeatedly with fists during the incident, the police reports said.

Wilson's car suffered $150 damage when someone threw a rock, breaking the hatchback window, the reports added.

Becky Valdez, 202B S. Goliad St., told police that a Big Spring man threatened her with a gun between 9:25 and 9:32 a.m. Sunday at her home.

Police reports noted Valdomero Ubaldo Jordan, 59, 2911 W. Highway 80, returned to her home while officers were there, and he was arrested.

Jordan was arrested at 202 S. Goliad St. at 9:36 a.m. on suspicion of aggravated assault with a deadly weapon and four traffic violations. He was transferred to the county jail and released on $2,000 bond.

In a third incident, Israel Lopez Pacheco, 707 N. Douglas St., told police that someone fired shots into his home at 10:30 p.m. Saturday, while he and his family were sleeping.

In other action, police reported: Thieves stole a .357 magnum handgun, valued at $225, from the residence of Richard Price, 1526 E. 17th St., between Thursday and 11:30 a.m. Saturday.

Nora Rustamante, 1407 Oriole St., told police that between 11 p.m. Friday and 9 a.m. Saturday someone damaged the paint on her 1986 black Oldsmobile. Damage was listed at $250.

Lloyd Long, Route 2 Box 29B, told police that as he was driving on South Highway 87 near the Brass Nail at 11:45 p.m. Saturday, someone threw a rock that struck and damaged the roof of his pickup. Damage was listed at $150.

Kenneth Wayne Owens, 24, 3313 E. 11th St., was arrested at 300 W. 12th St. Saturday evening on a warrant for delivery of a controlled substance. He was transferred to the county jail and released on $2,000 bond.

Jose Angel Martinez, 34, 1107 N. Runnels St., was arrested at 900 N. Gregg St. early Sunday morning on suspicion of driving while intoxicated and running a red light. He was transferred to the county jail and released on $1,000 bond.

Ernesto R. Gomez, 25, 1505 W. First St., was arrested at Avenue B and Similar Street early Sunday morning on suspicion of DWI and on other warrants.

Weldon Bryant Daniels, 23, 1213 Mobile St., was arrested at 100 W. Seventh St. Sunday night on suspicion of DWI. He was transferred to the county jail and released on $1,000 bond.

Abel Ramirez, 40, 1504 W. Cherokee St., was arrested Sunday on a warrant for failure to appear in court.

Jaime Cruz, 20, Knott Route Box 37, was arrested at 120 Airbase Road Sunday night on a warrant for failure to appear in court, and on charges of failure to maintain financial responsibility and improper lane change.

more faction.

The meeting was spearheaded by Rep. Dick Burnett, D-San Angelo, and Rep. Larry Don Shaw, D-Big Spring.

"The speaker assured us he doesn't care how many sites are forwarded to Washington," Shaw said.

The "one or more" language could eliminate sites all across Texas in which communities have spent private and public funds for site proposals, legislators said.

Probation

said of the other study that didn't give an opinion on certification.

A third study, completed by the juvenile probation office, also advised against adult certification, Hamby said.

"I think there was enough evidence that he could have been certified," Yeats said, adding that he chose not to call the doctors, contracted by the county, to testify on their studies.

It's unusual to cross-examine your own witnesses, he explained, adding that such a measure may not have worked in the county's favor.

"They're the experts, maybe they know more than we do," he said, but also said the juvenile "knew what he did, in my opinion."

Among those interested in landing the project — an underground, racetrack-shaped tunnel 26 miles in circumference — are proponents from two West Texas locations, Garden City and near Smyer, west of Lubbock.

The word around the House, Burnett said, is that a decision already has been made that the Texas National Laboratory Commission will recommend a site near Dallas.

Jim Kaster, legislative liaison from the governor's office, said last week that research has shown the Dallas site best met DOE criteria.

Because it was considered unlikely the juvenile would be certified as an adult, the plea was determined after speaking with the victim's mother, Hamby said.

"The victim's mother ... said she could not put a 15-year-old boy in the penitentiary," Hamby said.

If the certification attempt failed, the youth would have been treated as a juvenile, and be placed on probation or sent to a reform school, he said.

We had to "get what we could or turn him loose," Hamby said.

"I don't think a Howard County jury would have given him any more," Yeats said of the 10-year probation sentence.

Lows tonight will be 44 in the Panhandle and mountains to 54 in the Big Bend and Concho Valley. Highs Tuesday 63 in the Panhandle to near 90 in the Big Bend.

State

A storm-spread thunderstorms across the Plains today, while rain was widespread from the Northeast into the Midwest.

The storm over the southern Plains scattered thunderstorms from southern Texas into eastern Oklahoma. Showers and thunderstorms ranged from the Texas Panhandle into western and central Kansas, and rain was widespread from eastern Colorado into western Nebraska.

Rain also was widespread from southern New England into New Jersey and Pennsylvania and was scattered from the southern and central Appalachians across the Ohio Valley and middle Mississippi Valley.

Today's forecast called for showers and thunderstorms across the southern Plains and lower Mississippi Valley; rain scattered over the central Plains and middle Atlantic Coast region; showers and thunderstorms scattered across the Southeast, and light rain scattered along the Washington coast.

Highs were forecast in the 50s from the eastern Great Lakes through New England and in sections of Colorado and northwest Kansas; 80s in the southeastern quarter of the nation; 80s to 90s over California and the desert Southwest, and 60s to 70s across most of the rest of the nation.

Temperatures around the nation at 3 a.m. EDT ranged from 23 degrees at Marquette, Mich., to 78 at Phoenix, Ariz., and Key West and Homestead, Fla.

Texas storms spawn flooding, hail, twisters

By The Associated Press

Thunderstorms rumbled across Central Texas today, spawning several funnel clouds, large hail and heavy rains that flooded roads and streets, with one woman reported missing after her car was swept from a low-water crossing, authorities said.

Fort Worth Fire Department officials were searching today for the woman, who was reported missing at about 8:30 p.m. Sunday. The 20-year-old woman and the driver, a 42-year-old man had climbed to the roof of their car after it was washed from the low-water crossing.

Rising waters swept the two from the car. The man was able to climb from the floodwaters but could not reach the woman, said fire department spokesman Butch Hall.

Rescuers were using helicopters and diving equipment for today's search, authorities said.

Northeast of Austin, houses and cars were damaged and power lines knocked down Sunday night when what the weather bureau described as a "massive hailstorm" moved through Pflugerville. There was extensive property damage but no injuries, officials said.

Elsewhere, Texas Department of Public Safety officers sighted twin tornadoes on the ground west of Luling just after midnight today.

Lightning hit a pickup truck and a tree as a strong thunderstorm moved through the area, a Caldwell County sheriff's dispatcher said.

A funnel cloud also was spotted near Otto, northeast of Groesbeck, in North Central Texas shortly after 11 p.m. Sunday. Another funnel cloud was sighted west of Mexico, officers said.

Winds in excess of 60 mph hit Saginaw in Tarrant County, Newark in Wise County and in extreme southern Navarro and Freestone counties, said emergency personnel.

The gusts toppled a power line and road signs at the Ben Hur community about 9 miles southwest of Groesbeck, said Limestone County sheriff's officers. Winds also downed power lines in Roanoke and Aubrey in Denton County, authorities said.

Three-inch hail fell in Cooke County about 7 p.m. Sunday, the National Weather Service said. Golfball-size hail covered the ground in the community of Marysville and pelted the city of Harwood and Falls County.

Nixon papers on view

ARLINGTON, Va. — Nearly 13 years after Richard Nixon resigned the presidency, the first of his Watergate papers were readied for public view today, purged of documents he thinks involve personal privacy.

The first release includes the White House files of John Ehrlichman, who spent 18 months in prison as a Watergate coverup conspirator, and of John Dean, who gave the first detailed information about the affair to federal prosecutors and served 127 days.

The documents chosen for today's release at a National Archives warehouse total 252,000 pages, one sixth of the 1.5 million-page cache the Nixon administration itself set aside as "special files." The special files contain the most sensitive documents, those involving Watergate.

Secret deals to be told

WASHINGTON — The stars of the Iran-Contra hearings beginning Tuesday will be the witnesses who break their silence and fill in the blanks of the complex story about secret deals and clandestine operations.

But the featured players will be the interrogators: 26 legislators, nearly all lawyers, serving on the special House and Senate committees probing the affair, along with the counsels to the panels.

The hearings into the secret U.S. sale of arms to Iran and diversion of payments to the Nicaraguan Contras are being conducted jointly by the two panels. They will begin in the Caucus Room of the Senate Russell Office Building, site of the 1973 Watergate hearings on abuses of power during the Nixon administration.

Contra effort persists

NEW YORK — President Reagan, undaunted by the opening of new congressional hearings on the Iran-Contra affair, insists America must not blink in a U.S.-Soviet "test of wills" over the future of the Western Hemisphere.

Reagan, using the Statue of Liberty as a backdrop and the opening of the American Newspaper Publisher's Association convention as his forum, declared he will not withdraw his support for the Nicaraguan Contra rebels "for as long as I am president."

Reagan defiantly renewed his pitch for support of the Contras without making any reference to the commencement Tuesday of a new series of hearings into whether the administration violated the law in connection with its efforts to support the Contras.

More aid sought

Communist rebels kill 16 in ambush

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — President Corazon Aquino charged today that the United States is failing to provide enough aid as her government faces a Communist rebellion and the threat of new fighting with Moslem guerrillas.

Meanwhile, Communist rebels ambushed an army unit in the Malinao region of Aklan Island, killing 16 soldiers and wounding nine, the military said. The army said it recovered the body of one New People's Army guerrilla, but had few other details.

The military also said two soldiers and a rebel were killed Sunday in an ambush on Samar Island.

Also today, a campaign worker for a congressional candidate allied with Aquino was shot dead in Dagupan City, 110 miles north of Manila, a news agency reported. By unofficial count, he was the 42nd person killed since March in violence linked to next Monday's elections for the Senate and House of Representatives.

The government-operated Philippines News Agency said Eulogio Cayabyab, 52, was riding in his jeep when a lone assailant opened fire. The killer escaped.

The agency said he was a campaign manager for Gonzalo Duque, a candidate of the Liberal Party, which is represented in the Aquino government.

Speaking at a flag-raising ceremony at Villamor Air Base, Aquino said: "With all the will in the world to achieve a smashing victory, we can only do as much as the means available permit us."

"Our principal military supplier should not expect our brave soldiers and determined commanders to fight the insurgents with our teeth and our hands," she said. She did not mention the United States by name.

The United States provided $100 million in military aid to the Philippines last year. President Reagan has proposed raising the aid to $150 million, but there is strong sentiment in Congress to reduce military aid in general to balance the budget.

Mrs. Aquino said lack of mobility and inadequate tactical intelligence were hampering the military's fight against the 24,000 guerrillas of the New People's Army.

Two reporters shot

Police today were investigating the editorial room of the Asahi Shimbun (newspaper) Hanshin bureau in Nishinomiya, near Osaka, Western Japan, after a shotgun shooting by a masked man Sunday night. Two reporters were shot and one of them, Tomohiro Kojiri, 29, died later in a nearby hospital. The gunman fled and the motive for the shooting was not immediately known, according to police investigators. The Asahi Shimbun is a nationally circulated daily.

Pope advises women

AUGSBURG, West Germany — Pope John Paul II today denounced popular ideas of women's liberation and urged women and youths not to be "led astray by false or short-sighted freedom."

On the last day of his five-day West German tour, marked by strong statements and sermons against the Nazis, the pontiff also called for unity among Christian denominations.

"Today, a great deal is being said about liberation and emancipation," John Paul, speaking at the cathedral in Augsburg, 55 miles north of Munich, told nuns and young women involved in church-related work.

"But is the person who does nothing but shake off commandments and obligations really free?" he said. "Is such a person able to find his or her way out of the captivity of egoism and hate if he or she views every sort of authority with suspicion?"

PLO chief issues offer

KUWAIT — Palestine Liberation Organization leader Yasser Arafat today offered to meet any Israeli leader under United Nations auspices to discuss establishing a Palestinian-Israeli state.

Arafat said he would be willing to meet with Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, Foreign Minister Shimon Peres or another government leader from the Jewish state.

His only condition appeared to be that the United Nations be involved in the meeting.

Israel repeatedly has refused to negotiate with the PLO, which it considers a terrorist organization.

Arafat, addressing a news conference at Kuwait's government guest house, said he was reacting to a proposal relayed to him recently in Algeria by a journalist on behalf of Ezer Weizman, an Israeli minister without portfolio.

Cat triggers explosion

BEIRUT, Lebanon — A mine apparently detonated by a cat exploded in the yard of the French Embassy in Moslem west Beirut today, and police said no people were injured but the cat was killed.

The mine, planted by French marine guards as a security measure, went off about noon at the walled compound in Clemenceau Street, a police spokesman said.

The spokesman, whose name was withheld in keeping with official policy, said the cat apparently detonated the mine by stepping on it.

Two French soldiers were wounded when a similar mine went off at the embassy gardens Oct. 21.

Views of other Texas papers

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion from around the state.

Says no kick in peekaboo booze bill

Oooh, the courage it must have taken. The Texas House has voted to make it against the law for a driver to drink.

Courage? Well, let's not be too charitable. The House action delivers about as much kick as near-beer. The only way it would be enforced is if an officer actually witnessed a driver consuming an alcoholic beverage.

Give the House a sliver of credit. It finally had the gumption to repudiate drinking while driving — actually making it illegal.

Unfortunately it approved a bill so weak it is unlikely to impact the problem. It is simply a challenge for Bubba to improve his eye-hand coordination.

Waco Tribune-Herald

Tel-evangelist rationale confusing

Television preachers have certainly been making headlines recently, beginning with the effort of Oral Roberts to raise $8 million in donations on the threat that God would call him home if the money was not forthcoming.

Now, scandal has rocked the once popular PTL show with the revelation of evangelist Jim Bakker's extramarital sex relationships and his wife's problems with drugs.

It cannot be denied that many worthwhile endeavors have grown out of Oral Roberts' ministry, and PTL can boast of its Heritage Park.

But it is difficult to understand the rationale of the evangelists who feel no compunction of conscience when they induce people with little or no income to send them money on a regular basis and then feel free to use that money for their own personal gain.

Law should allow doctor to stay

While criticism of the immigration reform law mounts, we'll add one about the law prior to reform. It affects a Chilean doctor who came in 1977 to study surgery at Baylor University. He had a two-year, single-entry visa. He chose to remain and practice in small Fairfield — its only surgeon and the only doctor there who speaks Spanish.

The U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service says he must go home because Freestone County's need is not great enough to change him to legal status. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen has, for the third time, introduced special legislation to allow him and his family permanent resident status.

Here's the classic case of a positive contributor to society, educated at considerable expense to this country, who wants only to continue to serve people who need him.

Yet the law does not allow it. While the doctor is not hopeful, we are.

The El Paso Times

Smoking bill is on the 'right' side

Considering all the ongoing furor in Austin about dealing with the state's huge budget deficit, it's scarcely surprising that some worthwhile pieces of legislation have gotten nudged off center stage.

Prominent among these is tdd Texas Smoke Free Indoor Air Act, a measure which acknowledges the serious health implications of smoking — and, more to the point, proposes to do something about them.

The bill ... embodies a number of common-sense measures ...

Enacting this legislation would put the state of Texas on the right side of the smoking debate — not that there really is much room for debate: Public health statistics showing that cigarette smoking is responsible for more than 35,000 premature deaths annually amount to an unassailable case for curbs on smoking.

Corpus Christi Caller

Urges House to cut, not amputate

Last week the U.S. House of Representatives voted to eliminate all $651 million in foreign aid from its $8.5 billion supplemental spending bill for the current fiscal year.

The House did so because of legitimate concern over deficit spending and a growing feeling among voters that the United States has enough to worry about at home. While those reasons are understandable, they are not necessarily convincing.

If the House were serious about deficit reduction, it would also have adopted some of the domestic cuts recommended by the administration, all of which were rejected. In an $8.5 billion shopping list that will bring federal spending to the outer limits of its $1.09 trillion budget for the year, a good deal of fat was available to be trimmed.

Houston Chronicle

Doesn't blame museum for mistake

The flap at the Dallas Museum of Art over three pre-Columbian pieces that turned out to be fakes is regrettable but not unusual in extensive collections, especially in areas where scholarship is skimpy. The ceramic figures, once believed to date back 1,000 years, could have been subjected to expensive tests when purchased to determine their authenticity but museum officials say this is impractical as an across-the-board procedure.

As it turned out, the three objects had been sculpted by Brigid Lara, 47, of Jalapa, Mexico. Once imprisoned for illegally marketing fakes, he convinced authorities he was only minding his own business.

molding clay figures that others bought and misrepresented so effectively that they landed not only in the Dallas museum, but also in the Metropolitan Museum of New York and the St. Louis Art Museum.

... The museum needs to exercise reasonable, but not obsessive, caution in the future and refocus on its areas of strength — the pre-Columbian, African, 20th century painting and sculpture and decorative arts collections.

Properly nurtured, all can be collections of distinction, including the pre-Columbian.

THE KGB IS LOOKING FOR A FEW GOOD MARINES

LOOKING BACK

John Adams and the Constitution The delegates were guided more in their day-to-day deliberations by experience than by theory. They were realists who knew the dismal record of human liberty in the past and who understood that while free government was possible, it was hardly inevitable.

Some of their experience stemmed from previous work with state constitutions. Since 1776, many states had framed their own constitutions, and many delegates had taken part in this work. One absent fellow-revolutionary helped the deliberations along by summarizing his thoughts on government in "A Defence of the Constitution of Government of the United States of America."

John Adams, ambassador to Great Britain, published this important work in London in early 1787. It was circulating in Philadelphia in the weeks before the Convention. Ranging across the history of government in the modern world, Adams argued for a system of checks and balances as the best guarantee of free government.

"We shall learn to prize the checks and balances of free government," he wrote, "and even those of the modern aristocracies, if we recollect the miseries of Greece, which arose from its ignorance of them. The only balance attempted against the ancient kings was a body of nobles; and the consequences were perpetual alternations of rebellion and tyranny, and the butchery of thousands upon every revolution from one to the other.

"When kings were abolished, aristocracies tyrannized; and then no balance was attempted but between aristocracy. This, in the nature of things, could be no balance at all, and therefore the pendulum was forever on the swing.

"Without three orders, and an effectual balance between them, in every American constitution, it must be destined to frequent unavoidable revolutions; though they are delayed a few years, they must come in time."

New scam hits the town: 'Outside' trading scheme

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

My stockbroker, Marvin (Lucky) Fandango, formerly of Fandango, Fandango and Fandango, called last week to say he is folding his old firm.

I was shocked. Fandango, Fandango and Fandango, which included Marvin, his wife, Fonda, and little Marvin, Jr., was considered a model family-run brokerage house.

"I had to do it," said Marvin. "Why on earth?" I asked. "The FBI nabbed Fonda and little Marvin Jr. last week for an insider trading scam," he explained. "And you weren't involved," I probed.

"I'm the one who turned them in," Marvin said. "The Feds offered me immunity, and it's dog-eat-dog in the market these days. I suppose Marvin can't be blamed for trying to save himself. There have been more shady deals coming down on Wall Street recently than on Pennsylvania Avenue."

Marvin said he had opened a new firm.

"I'm calling it Chance Securities," said Marvin, "and I even have a new motto."

"What is it?" I asked, haltingly. "We'll take a chance if you will," Marvin answered.

He went on to explain in detail. "The entire financial world has been rocked by insider trading scandals and I thought I'd be the first to offer outsider trading."

"Outsider trading?"

"It's just the opposite of insider dealings, where you know a lot of stuff nobody else knows."

"Outsider trading is where you have absolutely no idea what is going on. It's completely safe in the legal sense and I've even made a few of my clients a nice buck."

I asked for specifics.

"Let's say you call me to see what stocks I think you should buy to keep up with the bull market," Marvin began. "In the past, I would check all the various sources and indicators and use all of my expertise and illegal scheming to give you a hot tip."

"But that's too dangerous. Now, what I do is tack a newspaper on the wall of my office and throw darts at the stock listings. I recommend whatever stocks the darts happen to hit.

"Just last week, a dart hit smack-dab on IBM for one of my clients."

"So that's what you recommended?"

"Not exactly," said Marvin. "The point of the dart went all the way through the stock listings to the sports page and hit a picture of Larry Bird. I suggested my client call his bookie and load up on the Celtics against the Hawks and he won a bundle."

"What other methods are involved in outsider trading?" I wanted to know.

"There's the old hat trick," Marvin said. "I take off my hat and I put the names of 100 stocks in it. Then I pull one out and that's the stock I suggest you buy."

"Any big winners there?"

"The very first time I tried it, I pulled out the tag that had my hat size on it. I told my customer to bet the 'seven' horse in the third race at Gulfstream and the horse won and paid $14.50."

"Sounds like you're really on to something there," I said to Marvin. "But you're sure you don't even check the Dow Jones anymore?"

"Never heard of him," said Marvin. "And I'd swear to it in a court of law."

CIA ends Stinger shipments to rebels

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — Afghan freedom fighters used up their modest supply of American Stinger anti-aircraft missiles more than three months ago and have received no replacements, despite reports to the contrary. This has seriously crippled their fight against the Soviet invaders of their country.

That's not all. The anti-Soviet mujaheddin were drastically shorted on the Stingers and launchers they did get: Only 100 missiles instead of 150, and only 28 launchers instead of 50. The CIA simply didn't deliver what Congress apparently ordered it to.

The Stinger scandal is one of several indications that the CIA is botching — perhaps deliberately — its biggest covert assistance program since the Vietnam War. We were alerted by sources within the agency who claim that millions of dollars in Afghan military aid has been wasted or misused. We began an investigation, including a trip by Dale Van Atta to the Afghan-Pakistani border.

From sources in Washington and in Peshawar (the Pakistani city that is headquarters for most of the mujaheddin units), we learned that the CIA has bungled the secret supply line to a mind-boggling degree.

The agency's mismanagement is particularly mystifying in light of the broad bipartisan support for the Afghan guerrillas both in Congress and the country at large.

For years after the Soviet invasion in December 1979, the Afghan guerrillas begged the United States for an anti-aircraft weapon that could shoot down or scare away the Soviet warplanes and helicopter gunships that were devastating their fighting units and the villages that supported them.

The CIA grudgingly produced some Soviet SA-7s, short-range surface-to-air missiles of dubious reliability. The agency compounded the ineffectiveness of the weapons by issuing precise, wrongheaded orders for their use: One or more rebels hiding near Soviet-run airports are supposed to stand up and fire when a plane takes off.

The mujaheddin were dismayed at this tactic. Not only was it almost certainly suicidal, but it missed the whole point of their request for anti-aircraft missiles. The Afghans wanted the weapons to protect their supply convoys and friendly villages from Soviet strafing attacks.

But as one intelligence source put it, the CIA "had a box-score mentality, just like the body-count mentality in Vietnam." No airport attacks, no missiles.

When the Afghans complained that the SA-7s were no good, their CIA suppliers disagreed, pointing out that the Viet Cong had used them with devastating effect in Vietnam. The mujaheddin tried to explain the crucial terrain difference: In Vietnam, the guerrillas could hide in heavily canopied jungles until American helicopters were hovering practically overhead. They couldn't miss.

But there are no protective jungles in Afghanistan. The guerrillas must take what cover they can in gullies on the barren hillsides some distance from their targets.

Determined congressional friends of the mujaheddin finally overcame the resistance of the CIA and Pentagon officials who "didn't want their fancy toys going to some ragheads," as one source put it, and forced the shipment of Stingers in the spring of 1986.

For a while the mujaheddin used the Stingers with great effectiveness, achieving a 60 percent kill ratio. The Soviets radically changed their air operations in eastern Afghanistan — and last December closed their airfield at Jalalabad, between Kabul and the Khyber Pass.

But then, in the first week of January, the supply of Stingers stopped — and the mujaheddin ran out of the missiles a week later. The Soviets quickly realized what had happened, and reopened the Jalalabad airfield, capable of handling 300 or more aircraft.

The CIA still insisted on its airport attack policy — they assigned 10 launchers each to use against the Kabul and Bagram airfields, and eight to the Jalalabad airfield.

DISCOMFITED DIPLOMATS: Senate Foreign Relations Committee staffers have detected a definite "bunker mentality" among State Department officials being questioned about security lapses in American embassies.

Senate aides claim that the perspiring poohbahs from Foggy Bottom are beginning to mutter about "witch hunts" — often a useful diversionary tactic.

The Hill people have minimal sympathy for the hunkering-down bureaucrats, pointing out that congressional alarms over lax embassy security have for years been brushed aside by the State Department. Looks like a long, hot summer in Foggy Bottom.

UNDER THE DOME: Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, isn't usually one of the great headline-grabbers on Capitol Hill, so it was gratifying to the senator's staff when the boss got some nationwide media attention on the recent 25th anniversary of his orbital space flight — the first for an American.

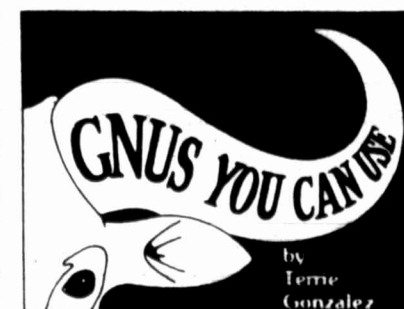

The coverage was apparently particularly heavy in space-conscious Southern California. A Glenn fan in Vista congratulated the senator and mentioned the many stories he had seen. "You were like God — everywhere," the reader wrote.

MINI-EDITORIAL: We're relieved that Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis has forsaken his yuppie solution to the farm problem: suggesting that Iowa farmers grow Belgian endive instead of corn.

Dukakis still preached diversification the other day in North Carolina, but at least he didn't urge the tobacco farmers to switch to cilantro.

It's not that we don't enjoy a good laugh — but let's not get silly quite this early in the presidential campaign. We can hear the taunts now: "Where's the radichio?"

Gibbons give new meaning to the term "swinger." Known as lesser apes, gibbons spend most of their time high in a forest canopy, which is usually 180 feet above the ground.

To get from one tree to another, they swing arm over arm from branch to branch. Sometimes they go so fast that they appear to fly!

"Gibbons can leap as far as 50 feet in a downward direction," said Ray Sutton, wildlife manager of the International Wildlife Park in Grand Prairie. "They are so quick and agile that they can even snatch flying birds!"

If you have a question about wildlife you would like to see answered in this space, write to GNUS YOU CAN USE, 601 Wildlife Parkway, Grand Prairie, Tx. 75050.

Workers treated for fumes

CARROLLTON (AP) — Fire broke out at an electronics company today, sending more than a dozen people to hospitals when they were overcome by fumes from burning chemicals, authorities said.

Between 12 and 17 employees of Thomson Components-Mostek Corp. were hospitalized, said Lt. Randy Posey of the Carrollton Police Department. He said six of the people were seriously injured from what was believed to be cyanide poisoning.

He said the fumes came from burning hydrochloric acid mixed with ammonia chloride.

"We believe it's cyanide poisoning at this time," he said.

Posey said officials would not know the exact nature of the chemicals until checking with officials at Mostek later today.

The injured were taken to Dedman Hospital, Trinity Medical Center and Parkland Memorial Hospital in Dallas.

Posey said the fire was reported at about 8 a.m. Firefighters put the flames out shortly after arriving, he said.

Bentsen: INS unprepared

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Federal immigration officials may be unable to handle the number of illegal aliens expected to apply for amnesty beginning Tuesday because of poor preparation, said U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen.

He praised the spirit of the Immigration and Reform Control Act of 1986 in a press conference. But Bentsen criticized the Immigration and Naturalization Service's preparation for the legislation.

"I don't think they (INS) will have enough employees, and I don't think they're trained properly," he said Sunday.

"I think it finally puts integrity back on our borders," Bentsen said, adding that the act "puts a premium on (U.S.) citizenship."

The senator was at Municipal Auditorium to deliver the commencement address for St. Mary's University, where he was awarded an honorary doctorate degree.

"I do think they've not given enough attention and planning early on," Bentsen said of the INS.

Mauro's program lauded

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rallying Texans to join in an Adopt-A-Beach program to clean the state's Gulf Coast beaches has earned Texas Land Commissioner Gary Mauro a Chevron Conservation Award.

A check for $1,000 and a bronze plaque commemorating his achievement will be presented at a Washington ceremony May 14.

Mauro started the Adopt-A-Beach program in which individuals, companies and civic organizations choose a mile of Texas beach and agree to clean it three times a year. Thirty of the state's 120 miles of beaches have been adopted.

The Adopt-A-Beach program was part of Mauro's overall strategy for cleaning the Texas coastline. He also is attempting to get the at-sea dumping of garbage in the Gulf of Mexico banned by international treaty.

New materials' use would delay SSC

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Modifying the proposed superconducting supercollider with newly discovered materials could delay the project for up to 20 years, says one of the project's designers.

Stanley Wojcicki, physics department chairman at Stanford University, also said the new materials would yield relatively meager savings.

It would make more sense to use existing, well-developed superconducting technology to build the $4.4 billion particle accelerator, he said during an address Friday at Sandia National Laboratories.

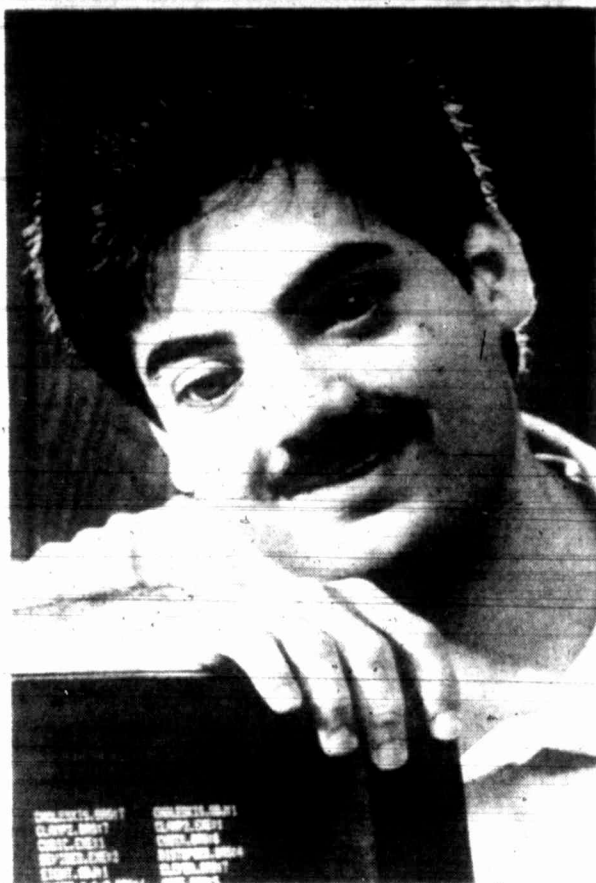

The new superconductors, when fully developed, might later be used to upgrade the supercollider, Wojcicki said.

At least 25 states, including Texas, this summer are expected to submit proposals to the U.S.

Department of Energy for the project, he said.

The Garden City SSC Commission today is delivering its site proposal to Texas officials.

The supercollider would accelerate two beams of protons in opposite directions through a racetrack-shaped tunnel 52 miles in circumference.

Youth dies; no transplant

DALLAS (AP) — A 6-year-old girl, whose family had received more than $115,000 from sympathetic Texans to pay for her operation, died Saturday without receiving a liver transplant she needed to survive, officials said.

Myranda Murchison of Jewett, who suffered from biliary atresia, an irreversible liver illness in which the tiny ducts that carry bile from the liver to the small intestine fail to develop properly.

She was first placed on the list to receive a liver transplant March 3.

On April 12, she entered Children's Medical Center for treatment of a recurrence of an abdominal infection that plagued her because of the failing liver. As a result of the infection, she was moved off the eligible list.

On April 25, she had overcome the infection and was capable of receiving a transplanted liver. During the following week, her liver function continued to diminish, and her kidneys and respiration failed.

Her death brought to an end a drive to raise an estimated $200,000 needed to fund the transplant Myranda had been awaiting for weeks.

Baptist convention schedules debate over biblical inerrancy

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — For the first time in seven years of sometimes rancorous disagreement, the Southern Baptist Convention plans to debate the divisive issue of biblical inerrancy in a week-long convention.

Conservative and liberal members of the organization have been feuding over whether the Bible should be interpreted literally, and the inerrancy doctrine has threatened to split the 14.6 million-member denomination.

"This is the first time in the seven years of our debate that Southern Baptists will have an opportunity for a balanced, objective discussion of inerrancy apart from emotion," said Russell Dilday, president of Southwestern Baptist Seminary in Fort Worth.

About 1,500 people are expected to attend the conference in Ridgecrest, N.C. It is the first conference ever on the doctrine for the Nashville-based SBC.

Conservative and liberal members have been fighting for leadership of the SBC over the issue. SBC President Adrian Rogers, a Memphis minister, supports the inerrancy doctrine.

Conservative members assert the Bible should be interpreted literally, and that it makes no errors regarding history or science. The liberal members have charged conservatives with using the doctrine to purge the SBC of liberal leaders.

At the conference, non-Baptist evangelical theologians will challenge the doctrine of inerrancy and conservative SBC leaders will respond.

An author of a book on SBC's debate over inerrancy said the conference should enable both sides to give better explanations of their positions.

Joe Barnhart, a Knoxville native and author of "The Southern Baptist Holy War," said neither side has explained itself well.

"The inerrantist people pay one heck of a price for their views," he said. "They strip God of any moral standard except power."

BUY A NEW HEATING AND COOLING SYSTEM AT OUR EXPENSE.

It's not often a company encourages you to use less of its product.

But if you buy Energy Action-approved heating and cooling equipment, you'll get more than encouragement. Because we'll pay you a cash rebate based on the efficiency rating of the unit you buy.

You see, high efficiency, Energy Action-approved central and room air conditioning systems, heat pumps and assist devices for electric water heaters help reduce the demand on our generating systems. And the need to build new generating plants.

Which not only means we save money, but you'll save, too, with lower monthly electric bills.

To find out more about the rebates and the savings, contact a recognized Energy Action contractor/dealer. Or call us for more information.

Home Care an asset to the nursing profession

In recognition of Texas Nurse's Week, May 3-9, local nurses will be highlighted for their contributions in a variety of roles, such as clinical nursing, contract nursing, community health, home care and outpatient surgery nursing.

Today's featured nurse is Barbara Adamson, LVN.

She is a 1983 graduate of Howard College and works for Best Home Care, 1710 Marcy.

Her main role is to make home visits for patient care follow-up after hospitalization.

She said she works under the doctor's orders and completes a care plan that takes into consideration all areas of the client's needs.

"This is based on the whole person and the person's family — physically and emotionally. We do direct physical care, like dressing changes and monitor physical status.

"We teach about special diets for diabetics and heart clients. We teach clients how to use walkers, canes and crutches; we teach chemotherapy clients and their families IV therapy; and we give emotional support to clients and their families."

Adamson said her major contribution to health care is "helping clients just released from the hospital to adjust to whatever condition they have."

She said she helps clients learn to function at his or her highest level of wellness.

Adamson reported that her profession influences cost effective quality to nursing service because it enables clients to have daily care, if needed; to have their condition monitored frequently; and to receive instruction concerning any needs related to their condition.

Another positive influence home care has is "it allows family participation to care for the patient and the nurses minister to the client and his or her family."

"These clients are not able to make frequent visits to clinics for physical and financial reasons. Home care helps cut client's costs because they're taught self care. Many of the elderly do not realize home care is available and that it's Medicare funded," she concluded.

Phobics, fans advise woman how to shed snake problem

DEAR ABBY: You really were off the wall in your response to "Snake-a-phobic" in your column recently. The last thing a person with a phobia of snakes needs to hear is how to save one! I feel so sorry for that poor lady who discovered a snake in her attic. She's much braver than I. At least she still lives in the house. I couldn't sleep anywhere knowing a snake was around.

This is not just a silly notion. Apparently you have no idea what it's like to see a snake and totally freak out. I know my reactions are extreme, but I literally cannot control my hysteria. I wouldn't even go into a pet store or zoo building that had snakes. I'm afraid one might get out of its cage. If a snake appears on TV, someone else has to turn off the TV. I couldn't even bring myself to walk over to the set.

Please don't suggest professional help. I'm afraid I'd be subjected to the "conditioning" treatment and shown pictures of snakes, and I'd die of heart failure.

So please, Abby, try recognizing this condition as something other than silly nonsense. If snakes were really as afraid of me as I am of them, they would have the good sense to stay in the ground. If you use this letter, please don't print my name. This is a small town and some sadist is liable to see this letter and send me a snake for kicks. TERRIFIED OF SNAKES, LACEY, WASH.

DEAR TERRIFIED: You are not alone. If a survey were taken, I'll wager that more people are terrified of snakes than lions, tigers and the fiercest of jungle animals. Education conquers fear. The more you learn about the crawling creatures, the less you will fear them.

DEAR ABBY: I can sympathize with "Snake-a-phobic" because we have had a similar situation in our home with black snakes in the basement instead of the attic. We had found several skins and were told by our local exterminator they are a "protected species" in our state, but were advised to try the following method to get rid of them: Sprinkle moth crystals all around the perimeter of the area and stuff all the entry holes with mothballs. Believe it or not, this seems to be working!

Maybe it will work for her as well, and give her a stress-free summer.

JUNE MARTZ, DELAWARE
DEAR JUNE: Many other readers suggested the mothballs (or moth crystals), which is fine — providing children and/or pets aren't "done in" in the bargain.

My desk is crawling with snake mail. Many suggested that if snakes had been hanging around an attic for three years, it might be wise to find out what they're living on up there. Mice and rats, no doubt. And since most snakes are harmless, it might be wiser to let the snakes remain.

DEAR ABBY: About snakes: They make wonderful pets. You don't have to bathe them, you don't have to walk them, and they don't need a license. NORMAN

DEAR NORMAN: And you don't have to worry about anyone stealing them.

Music can help insomniac sleep

NEW YORK (AP) — For more than 10 years, clinical psychologist Stephen A. Kibrick of Encino, Calif., has been using music therapy to lull insomniacs to sleep. "Anything but drugs," says Kibrick in Health Magazine. "Most normal sleep patterns. Music and other forms of self-induced relaxation promote a more natural sleep, without the harmful side effects common with drugs."

Helpful tips to fight mold, mildew

By NAOMI HUNT
County Extension Agent
Mildew can be a problem in many homes, one that is destructive and creates an unpleasant musty odor.

This fungus growth, which may range in color from black to gray or white, is produced by molds that attack any surface. Molds that cause mildew are always in the air but to flourish, they need moisture to grow. Poor air circulation also helps their cause.

Damp, dark, warm and poorly aired basements, crawl spaces, bathrooms and closets are all prey for molds. Rugs and curtains used in basements, wet shower curtains pulled back after use, clothes and linens stored when damp and/or dirty are other ideal environments for mildew growth. New homes are especially prone to mildew attack because of the inherent moisture in many new building materials.

Molds most often develop on fabrics. Given time, the damage can be so extreme, fabrics will rot. At the very least, they usually become discolored.

Such a problem is easier to prevent than to cure. So the best precaution, is to keep areas susceptible to mildew cool and well-ventilated. That includes basements, closets, even dresser drawers.

Focus on family

Before putting clothes, linens and other home furnishings away, make certain they are clean. Molds are attracted to stains on fabrics and will start growing under the right conditions. Even many of the man-made fibers, which are inherently mold-resistant, may become mildewed when soiled.

In addition to being clean, fabrics should be dry. Items dampened and rolled up for future ironing can mildew if left too long, as can damp, dirty laundry in a hamper. So spread any soiled wet garments and towels out to dry before putting them in a hamper. And dampen only as many pieces as you can iron at one time.

Laundried items should be dried quickly and thoroughly before storing. A prolonged drying time may cause fabric to develop a sour and musty odor — sign of mold growth.

Closets that are poorly ventilated can get damp and musty. Prevent mildew on items stored in closets by allowing air to circulate freely. Hang clothes with space between; use perforated shelves or wire racks; consider installing louvered doors. Closet doors that are solid should be left ajar. Or keep a 6-100 watt bulb burning in the closet for short periods of time so that the heat from the bulb will discourage mold growth. Be careful that the bulb is not touching cloths or any items stored on shelves.

Since items storage are highly susceptible to mildew, they should never be packed away unless they have been laundered or dry-cleaned. And they should be thoroughly dry. Starched items should also be pressed. Any stored articles should be inspected occasionally and taken out to air in a well-lit, ventilated place.

There are water-repellent sprays, mildew inhibitors and fungicide products to make fabrics less susceptible to mold growth. When purchasing and before using any of the products, read and follow package directions carefully. Observe all precautions and keep such products out of the reach of children and pets.

Despite all these precautions, you may encounter mildew problems from time to time. When mildew is properly removed, infested items can often be saved. But badly mildewed fabrics may be damaged beyond repair.

Upon discovering mildew spots on fabrics, remove them immediately before further damage set in. Brush off loose spores outside, so they will not scatter throughout the house.

If mildew stains are still apparent, dry clean articles that cannot be laundered. Washable items should be laundered immediately with detergent or soap and chlorine bleach, if safe for the fabric. Or soak the items in nonchlorine bleach according to package directions; then launder.

Rosebud Garden Club to donate to park renovation

The Rosebud Garden Club met at the home of Suncha Christensen. Lisa Nichols was cohostess.

Mamie Lee Dodds, a member of the Big Spring Parks and Recreation Board, updated the members on the Comanche Trail Park renovation. She said the parks board originated the idea of a temporary bank account identified as "Friends of the Park."

Anyone can contribute to the city park improvement fund at State National Bank.

An anonymous contribution of $100 will open the fund for beautifying the park.

The club voted to contribute $225 to the Comanche Trail Park, requesting it be spent on bird seed and for plants to be placed in the Bidde Garden, located at the right entrance of the amphitheater.

Eleanor Adkins presented a program on "Doing Community Service."

She reminded the group of national volunteer week. She said that unstructured time leads to depression. Members were asked to identify their favorite community service.

The club will have a luncheon on May 26 at Thelma Carlisle's home.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Entertainer Bill Cosby will have some words of encouragement for his daughter, Erika — and about 680 other Wesleyan University seniors graduating this month in Middletown, Conn. Cosby is the star of the nighttime comedy hit "The Cosby Show" which airs Thursday nights at 8 on NBC.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — James Caan says he ended his five-year absence from the movies after director Francis Ford Coppola made him an offer he couldn't refuse. Caan stars with Anjelica Huston and James Earl Jones in "Gardens of Stone," which is set for release this month. He plays an Army sergeant who served in Vietnam.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Debra Winger and her actor husband, Timothy Hutton, have a new co-production — a baby boy named Emanuel Noah. Mother and child, the couple's first, were doing fine Thursday, said spokeswoman Pat Kingsley. The new parents waited more than 24 hours to pick a name for the 8-pound, 11-ounce boy, who was born at 6:35 a.m. Wednesday, Ms. Kingsley said. The couple didn't "want to rush it and decide prematurely. He (Emanuel) has to live with it the rest of his life," the spokeswoman said. Miss Winger, 31, and Hutton, 26, were married March 16, 1986.

Women need weight-bearing exercises

By NYU MEDICAL CENTER
Weight-bearing exercises such as walking are needed especially by women to help prevent osteoporosis, according to doctors at New York University Medical Center.

"Osteoporosis is the softening of bone due to loss of bone tissue.

Although some bone loss is normal as we age, women are particularly at risk of excessive loss after menopause," said Dr. Valery F. Lanyi, clinical associate professor of rehabilitation medicine at the medical center. "The disease can lead to bone fractures in several areas of the body."

To help build and maintain bone mass throughout life, recommendations include regular exercise, such as walking, as well as a diet high in calcium. "All women, especially those at risk for osteoporosis, should develop a daily exercise regimen," emphasized Lanyi. She describes those at highest risk as light-skinned women who smoke, drink alcohol and coffee, don't drink milk or other dairy products, and are physically inactive.

Lanyi also stressed that it is important that exercise be weight bearing, such as walking, rather than non-weight bearing.

GARY HART
on campaign trail

Hart denies newspaper's woman-friend story

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gary Hart says a Miami Herald story claiming he spent the night with a young woman over the weekend isn't true.

And his campaign manager calls it character assassination, based on "hiding in bushes, peeking in windows and personal harassment."

But a Herald executive said the newspaper stands behind its page 1 story, published Sunday, which told how its reporters followed a woman from Miami to Washington and saw her leaving a townhouse belonging to Hart. The newspaper said she "spent Friday night and most of Saturday" with Hart.

"The womanizing issue has become a major one in Hart's campaign because it raises questions concerning the candidate's judgment and integrity," Herald Executive Editor Heath Meriwether said Sunday.

"That's why we are reporting on this story."

Hart, the front-runner for the 1988 Democratic presidential nomination, denied any personal relationship with the woman and denied any impropriety when questioned by Herald reporters Saturday night.

"No one was staying in my apartment," Hart told the newspaper. "I have no personal relationship with the individual you are following."

The newspaper did not identify the woman, but Hart spokesman Kevin Sweeney said she was Donna Rice of Miami. The newspaper described her as an actress in her 20s.

There are two listings for a Donna Rice in Miami - directory assistance. The first number is unpublished, and there was no answer Sunday night at the second number.

Today, the newspaper said someone could have left Hart's townhouse without being noticed between midnight and 5 a.m. Saturday, when the paper had no one watching a rear entrance.

William Dixon, Hart's campaign manager, said the allegations were "preposterous and inaccurate in their entirety. They have taken a casual acquaintance and a simple dinner with three friends and political supporters and attempted to make a story where there is none."

Hart attended a dinner Friday night at the nearby home of friend William Broadhurst, Sweeney said, with Rice and her friend Lynn Armandt. Broadhurst said Rice and Armandt spent the night at his Capitol Hill house.

Dixon told The New York Times that Hart, Broadhurst and the two women had walked to Hart's nearby townhouse after dinner to see some renovation work he was having done and that Broadhurst, Rice and Ar-

Broadhurst said in an interview in today's Herald that he had planned to hire Armandt as "coordinator" of social events at his townhouse, and that she declined to come to his house for an interview unless she could bring Rice.

Hart described Rice as "a friend of a friend of mine" who had come to Washington to visit friends of hers, the Herald said.

Hart said his wife, Lee, was in Denver for the weekend, the Herald said.

Hart has been dogged by rumors about his personal life since the 1984 presidential campaign. He has denied the rumors.

Hart, in an article in Sunday's editions of The New York Times Magazine, was quoted as saying, "Follow me around. I don't care. I'm serious. If anybody wants to put a tail on me, go ahead. They'd be very bored."

Howard Hawks state bound!

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Sunday afternoon the Howard College Hawks rode the strong right arm of Howard Landry and the home run bats of Joel Chimelis and Freddy Lopez to a berth in the state playoffs.

Landry limited Ranger Junior College to one run on two hits, while Chimelis and Lopez drove in seven runs with their homers, as the Hawks defeated the Rangers 12-1 in the second game of a double-header here at Jack Barber Field.

Ranger won the first game, 6-2. With the victory, Howard clinched ed a spot in the State Junior College Baseball Tournament to be held later this month in College Station. Howard ends the regular season with a 15-9 Region V record and 35-11 overall mark.

In his own words, Landry pitched "My best game in a while," in picking up the win. After allowing a first inning home run to Ranger first baseman Mark Tepper, Landry shut the Rangers down the rest of the way, giving up only two hits while striking out seven.

Meanwhile, his teammates were making sure his fine performance didn't go to waste, scoring 12 runs on nine hits. After spotting the Rangers a one run lead, the Hawks evened the contest when Ernesto Castro scored on a two-base error by Ranger shortstop John Bural.

The Hawks blew the game open in the second inning. With two outs, and Frank Medina and Jeff Shults on base, Castro lined a double to right field, scoring both runners. Chad Baker walked, and then Randy Deal smacked a single into left that scored Castro.

Deal's single chased Ranger pitcher Randy Rivera from the game, and reliever Tepper promptly walked Juan Rodriguez to load the bases. Chimelis then stepped to the plate and crushed an off-speed pitch over the left field fence for a grand slam home run. This gave Howard a 8-1 lead and they would not be headed for the remainder of the game.

The biggest worry for the Hawks was a 15-minute rain delay in the fourth inning. At that point, it was not a considered a complete game, and if the rain had continued, the game would have to have been completed at a later date. Much to Ranger's chagrin, however, the rain let up and the game was resumed.

Howard clinched the game in the fifth inning. Shults reached base on an error and stole second. Pinch-hitter John Wiles then hit a high fly ball that Ranger right fielder Ramon Hernandez misjudged, putting runners at second and third.

The next batter, pinch-hitter Lopez, was just looking for a hit. He got much more than that, as he lifted a Tepper fastball over the right field fence for a three-run homer.

With those runs, the ten-run rule was put into effect, and the game was called.

And the celebration started.

The mood in the Hawk dugout was jubilant, to say the least. "This feels great," Rodriguez said. "We're going all the way to Grand Junction (Colorado, the site of the Junior College World Series)," he added.

Deal echoed Rodriguez's sentiments. "After all that we've been through, all the work, all the time we've put in, and all the effort it took, it's all worth it now."

Landry, who said that he had felt no pressure in the do-or-die situation he was in, admitted that he felt "real excited," adding "This team

Milwaukee eliminated Philadelphia for the second straight season and ended Julius Erving's basketball career.

Craig Hodges keyed a 17-2 run with two 3-point baskets and a 2-pointer as the Bucks turned a 69-67 lead late in the third quarter into an 86-69 rout with 8:53 left. Hodges scored all of his 14 points in the fourth period.

Much of the decisive spurt came with a lineup that included reserves Hodges, Paul Mokeski and Dudley Bradley. Assistant coach Del Harris was in charge of the team after Coach Don Nelson was ejected with two technicals in the second quarter.

Jack Sikma led the Bucks with 18 points and 21 rebounds. John Lucas added 17 points.

Erving, who is retiring after 16 professional seasons, led the 76ers with 24 points.

"Even though it was a disappointing finish, we're still leaving with a oneness," Erving said. "It's not that men can't cry, but this was not a tear-jerker situation."

Warriors 118, Jazz 113

The Golden State Warriors, the second NBA team to win a five-game playoff series after trailing 2-0, now face another tough assignment in the Los Angeles Lakers.

"We've had our backs against the wall, every game has been a pressure game, and we've answered the call," said Purvis Short, making the first NBA playoff appearance of his nine-year career. "The playoff will hurt the Lakers more than us. We're ready to play."

Golden State, making its first playoff appearance since 1977, defeated Utah 118-113 at Salt Lake City Sunday to advance to the second round against the Lakers, who swept Denver in three games and haven't played since Wednesday. The Lakers, 65-17 in the regular season, play host to the Warriors on Tuesday.

The only other time an NBA team has won a best-of-five series after trailing 2-0 was in 1956 when Fort Wayne defeated St. Louis. The best-of-five format was not used for 16 seasons between 1968 and 1983.

In other games Sunday, Milwaukee beat Philadelphia 102-89 to win that first-round series 3-2, and Detroit edged Atlanta 112-111 in a second-round opener. On Saturday, Seattle beat Houston 111-106 in overtime to open that second-round series.

On Tuesday, it's Milwaukee at Boston, Detroit at Atlanta and Seattle at Houston along with Golden State at the Lakers.

Joe Barry Carroll scored 24 points and Larry Smith tipped in a rebound with 17 seconds left for Golden State, which led 87-65 in the third quarter, but had to hold off a Utah rally.

Smith, who finished with 12 points and 14 rebounds, put Golden State ahead 116-111 when he tipped in a rebound. Eric "Sleepy" Floyd, who had 21 points and 14 assists, stole Kelly Tripucka's inbounds pass with 17 seconds left to spoil Utah's comeback.

Pistons 112, Hawks 111

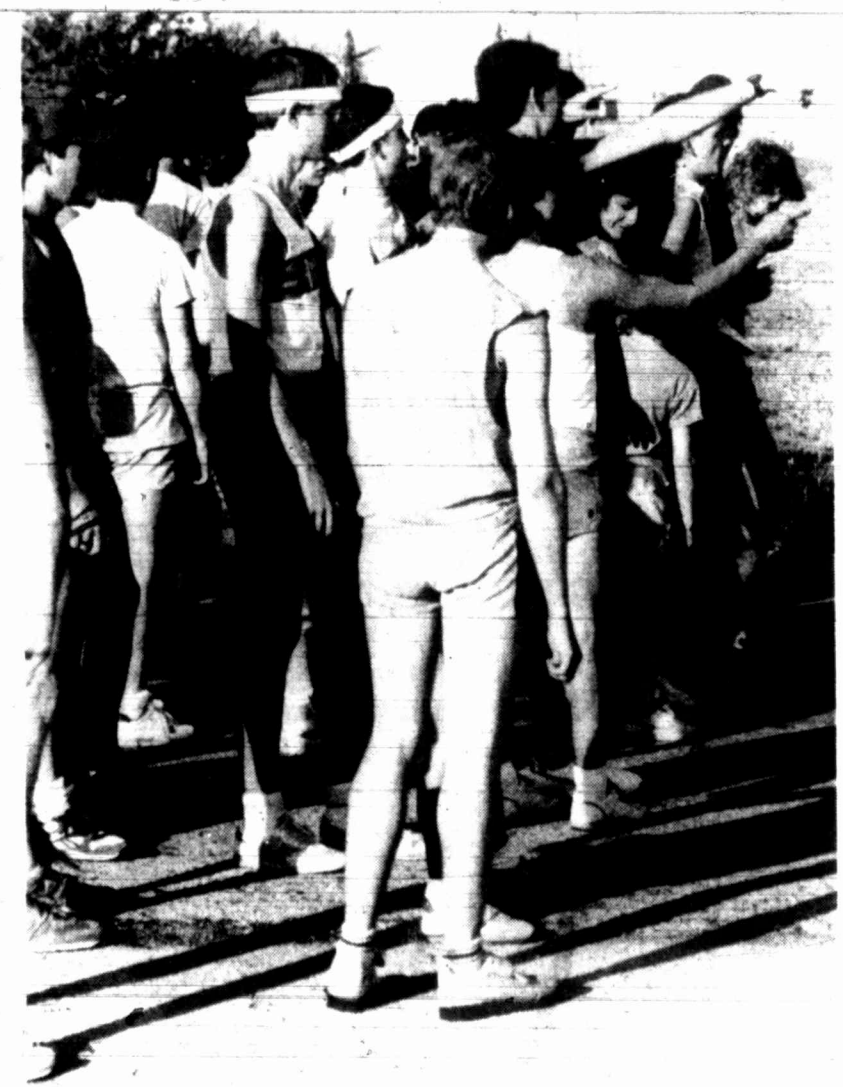

Detroit won its second-round opener against Atlanta as the Hawks missed two shots in the final seconds after Isiah Thomas broke a 111-111 tie by hitting one of two free throws with 16 seconds left.

Thomas, who scored 30 points, gave the Pistons a 111-108 lead with a long jumper with 1:02 left, barely beating the 24-second clock. A short jumper by Antoine Carr got the Hawks within a point, and a turnover by Thomas led to a foul on Glenn Rivers, who hit one free throw to tie the score.

When Thomas was fouled on Detroit's next possession, he broke a string of 17 consecutive Pistons free throws without a miss, but made the second for the final point of the game. After a timeout, Dominique Wilkins missed a 15-footer and Randy Wittman missed a rebound attempt before time ran out.

Julius Erving carries the game basketball as he walks off the court at the Milwaukee Area Sunday following the Sixers 102-89 defeat. The loss knocked the Sixers out of the playoffs and was the last game for Erving, who will retire.

Little League Roundup

MAJOR LEAGUE

Cardinals 6, Lions 4

In National Little League action Thursday, the Cardinals defeated the Lions 6-4.

Chris Alexander was the winning pitcher, striking out 10 batters in six innings work. Oscar Cervantes was the loser for the Lions.

The Cards got a triple from Alexander and doubles from Danny Fierro, Ross Roberts and Chris Lewis. For the Lions, Ryan Williams hit two doubles and Dennis Paulette and Brian Burchett singled.

Both the Cards and Lions are 1-4 for the season.

MINOR LEAGUE

Bears 17, Warriors 3

In Minor League action at the American League field, the Bad News Bears downed the Warriors 17-3.

Marc Baker was the winning pitcher and Jeremy Talbot took the loss. Baker fanned 12 and allowed a single to Clint Faulker.

Jerome McCarver paced the Bears with two singles. Jason Chandler, Colby Weyman and Adam Sedinger each singled.

The Bears are now 2-2 while the Warriors fall to 1-3.

UTEP hoop player dies

EL PASO (AP) — Hernell "Jeep" Jackson, a

Texas El Paso basketball star and first-team All-Western Athletic Conference player, died Saturday after apparently suffering cardiac arrest during a game at Fort Bliss.

Jackson, 23, a UTEP senior, was on a Fort Bliss all-stars team playing a team composed of Houston Oilers football players when he collapsed shortly before 3 p.m. MDT.

Azinger Las Vegas winner

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Paul Azinger rammed in an eagle putt on the final hole and scored a one-stroke victory Sunday in the richest golf tournament on the PGA Tour, the Las Vegas Invitational.

Azinger's 20-foot putt, over a hump on the 18th hole, finished off an 8-under-par 64 and him leaping into the air, howling in joy, both hands raised to the sky.

The victory, added to his first career triumph earlier this season at Phoenix, enabled Azinger to join Corey Pavin as the only two-time winners on the Tour this season.

Hill nets LPGA win

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Cindy Hill, who took sole possession of the lead when Jan Stephenson withdrew because of injuries suffered in an automobile accident, shot a 6-under-par 66 Sunday to win the LPGA's $225,000 S&H Classic by three strokes over Jane Cramer.

Hill, winning for only the second time in nine years on the tour, finished with a 72-hole score of 17-under-par 271 that shattered a tournament record of 16-under 272 set by Alice Miller in 1985 and equaled by Pat Bradley last year.

Sweden wins gold medal

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Sweden won its first gold medal in 25 years Sunday at the World Hockey Championships by beating Canada 9-0, prompting the Soviets to claim the Canadians had thrown the match.

Sweden and the Soviet Union wound up tied in the point standings, but the Swedes won the world championship on the basis of goals scored. The Soviets beat Czechoslovakia 2-1 in a later game Sunday.

Gomez wins marathon

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Rodolfo Gomez, a 36-year-old distance running veteran known as the father of Mexican marathoning, sprinted away from two other runners at the 24-mile mark Sunday to win the rain-soaked Pittsburgh Marathon in 2 hours, 13 minutes, 7 seconds.

The women's winner was Canadian record holder Silvia Ruegger, 26.

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Briton Steve Binns kicked away from Ecuadoran Rolando Vera near the finish line to beat a field of 53,500 and win the 11th Lilac Bloomsday Run in Spokane Sunday with a time of 34:38.

Boston's Lesley Welch, coming off a victory in last week's Trevira 10-mile run in New York's Central Park, won the women's race over the 7.5-kilometer course with a time of 39:22.

Two Sonics arrested at club

HOUSTON (AP) — Two Seattle SuperSonics guards — including playoff star Dale Ellis — have been ordered to appear in court Friday on charges stemming from a weekend altercation at a crowded nightclub.

Ellis, 26, and teammate Kevin Williams, 25, were arrested and jailed briefly early Sunday after Williams punched an assistant manager in the face and struggled with two off-duty police officers at the Ocean Club, police said.

The two were released later Sunday on bonds of $500 each posted by Sonics head coach Bernie Bickerstaff, police spokesman Dan W. Turner said.

Ellis, a 6-foot-7 guard who led the team with 34 points in Seattle's 111-106 victory over the Rockets on Saturday, was charged with hindering an arrest.

Williams, a 6-foot-3 reserve guard, was charged with resisting arrest. Both charges are Class B misdemeanors, carrying a maximum punishment of six months in jail and a $1,000 fine.

"They were arrested for what? Spitting on the sidewalk or beating us yesterday afternoon?" Houston Rockets Coach Bill Fitch joked Sunday.

The incident was the second in less than a year in which visiting athletes have been arrested after confrontations with police at Houston nightclubs. Four New York Mets baseball players were arrested last July at Cooter's.

Karen Post, a spokeswoman for McFadden Ventures, owner of the Ocean Club, said Williams had been blocking an aisle at a waitress station, and assistant manager Scott Shelton asked him to move.

When he refused, a waitress called the officers — who work

Davis goes out three times vs. Phils

By The Associated Press
Souts always said Eric Davis could become the best player in baseball. A month into the 1987 season, he is.

"You can't anticipate anything like this," Davis said after his best game yet, hitting three home runs, including a grand slam, as the Cincinnati Reds beat the Philadelphia Phillies 9-6 Sunday.

Davis leads the major leagues with 12 home runs and a .411 average, and is tied with Baltimore's Cal Ripken for the major-league runs batted in lead with 27. He has also stolen 10 bases and keeps drawing raves for his defense in center field and his throwing arm.

"He can be as good as he wants to be," Reds Manager Pete Rose said, "and make as much money as he wants."

Davis destroyed host Philadelphia during the weekend, going 9-for-13 with five homers — including a grand slam Friday night — 11 RBI and seven runs scored as Cincinnati won twice in the three-game series.

On Sunday, Davis went 4-for-4. He singled, stole second and scored in the second inning.

Davis hit a solo home run to right field in the third, a grand slam to left in the fourth and another solo homer to center in the sixth.

"It was my day today. I saw the ball real good, and got good pitches to hit," said Davis, 24.

In other National League games dominated by fine performances, Tim Lincecum helped Montreal over New York 2-0, Andre Dawson led Chicago past San Diego 4-2 and Atlanta defeated Houston 5-3. The Atlanta Braves Dale Murphy (3) pulls slides into second base ahead of the tag by Houston second baseman Bill Doran in second inning action.

San Francisco at Pittsburgh and Los Angeles at St. Louis games were rained out.

Davis was not the only Cincinnati player hitting well Sunday. Winning pitcher Bill Gullickson, Kal

Daniels and Davis each homered in the third inning off Kevin Gross, 0-4.

Davis tied the major-league record of two grand slams in a month (held by many), but has four weeks left to break the mark.

Expos 2, Mets 0
Tim Lincecum capped an amazing weekend in New York with another home run as Montreal beat the Mets.

Raines, who went 4-for-5 with a winning grand slam Saturday in his first game for the Expos since re-signing as a free agent, hit a solo homer in the first inning. He was hitless in his other three at-bats.

Raines homered off Bob Ojeda, 2-3, who was making his first start since April 21 because of tenderness in his left elbow.

Cubs 4, Padres 2
Andre Dawson continued his hot hitting with a home run, double and single that led Chicago past visiting San Diego.

Dawson, signed as a free agent, is batting .312 with nine homers and 24 RBI. His RBI double in the fifth made it 3-0 and he hit a solo home run in the seventh.

The Padres lost their fifth straight game and fell to 6-20, the worst record in the majors.

Braves 5, Astros 3
Ken Oberkfell and Ken Griffey drove in two runs apiece and Dale Murphy homered as Atlanta beat Houston and Mike Scott.

Griffey hit a two-run double in the first inning. Murphy hit his fourth homer in the third and Oberkfell added an RBI double in the fifth and a run-scoring single in the sixth, the 1,000th hit of his career.

off-duty security jobs at the club and were in uniform. As they approached, they saw Williams strike Shelton in the face, Turner said.

"They saw him hit Shelton with his fist," he said. "Apparently he saw the blow coming because he was able to step back and it was a glancing blow."

Shelton was not seriously hurt and did not have a chance to return the blow as the officers stepped in and separated the two, officials said.

Ellis then tried to talk to the officers as Williams struggled with them, and Turner said Ellis grabbed at one of the officers. Both Sonics were hauled off and handcuffed in one of the club's private offices.

When the officers got the two into an office and learned they were players for the Seattle team, they allowed Ellis to call Bickerstaff to inform him of the arrest.

"We have been advised by counsel and by the National Basketball Association to make no comment at this time," Bickerstaff said Sunday. Players were advised at a team meeting not to comment publicly on the matter.

SuperSonics president Bob Whitsitt said in a statement, however, that the team and NBA "are conducting an independent investigation into the circumstances surrounding last night's arrest of Kevin Williams and Dale Ellis. We have no comment at this time and will issue a statement following the conclusion of that investigation. Both players will play Tuesday night against the Rockets."

The Rockets and SuperSonics face off in the Summit Tuesday night in the second round of the NBA playoffs.

Asked if the incident could have a negative effect on his team for rest of the series against Houston, Bickerstaff said, "There is always a concern there. But it also could fuel the fire."

Gooden just wants to put troubles behind him

NEW YORK (AP) — Dwight Gooden, warned by Commissioner Peter Ueberroth that he faces at least a one-year suspension if he goes back to drugs, admitted Thursday he made a mistake by using cocaine and said he hoped he could put his problem behind him.

Gooden, who rejoined his New York Mets teammates 24 hours after ending a 28-day stay at a drug treatment center, will face frequent drug testing.

"I know I made a mistake and I regret it, but I must turn the page once again because life goes on and I want to put all this behind me," Gooden said, reading from a prepared statement. "I want to get back to doing the things that I like, and that's playing baseball and having fun again."

The 1985 Cy Young award winner appeared nervous and uncomfortable as he rushed through his remarks in less than a minute at a briefing at Shea Stadium. The Mets had said he would not answer questions.

Earlier, the 22-year-old pitcher was presented with his 1986 World Series ring and then spent a short time throwing from the mound and running in the outfield. He did not get any exercise other than climbing steps during his stay at the Smithers Alcoholism and Drug Treatment Center.

Gooden read his statement in a soft voice. He did not look up at the crowd of more than 100 reporters.

The Mets hope Gooden can resume pitching in the major leagues by the first week of June, but General Manager Frank Cashen emphasized the team would not hurry him.

"The last thing on our mind is to rush him back into baseball," he said.

About the time Gooden had arrived at the stadium, Ueberroth's office released a statement that said, "Any return to drug use will result in his suspension from baseball for a minimum period of one year."

The statement also said that Gooden will not be subject to disciplinary action if he continues with the after-care program, which includes drug testing.

"We wish Dwight Gooden well in his ongoing rehabilitation. We will continue to consult regularly with his doctors and the Mets regarding his progress," the commissioner's statement said.

Cashen said Greg Pavlick, the Mets' traveling minor pitching coach, would accompany Gooden on the road once he comes back. But Cashen admitted it would be impossible to monitor the right-hander's off-the-field activities.

"I think he can be on his own," he said.

Dr. Alan Lans, associate director of Smithers Center, declined to discuss the specifics of Gooden's case and said the pitcher's recovery depends on his after-care program.

"Of people who do follow the program, we can look for success in 75 can go as far as we want."

Chimelis said "The way we ended this game will help us going into the state tournament." Asked if he were looking forward to a possible rematch with the Hawks' rival McClennan, Chimelis simply stated "Definitely."

The Hawks' mood is a drastic turnaround from that of a week ago. Howard had lost six in a row and faced the difficult task of winning two out of three from the same team that had swept them the week before (Ranger). Part of the credit for the dramatic about-face, according to Deal, must go to head coach Bill Griffin.

"He (Griffin) talked to us a lot, but you couldn't print most of what he said," Deal stated. "He let us know that it was do-or-die time, and he made us think about it a lot," Deal concluded.

For his part, Griffin said that he "Felt good for them" (his team). When asked for his evaluation of the team's chances in the state tournament, Griffin said "Right now, our momentum has turned, and we're heading in the right direction."

For the Hawks, it is now time to prepare for the state playoffs. Griffin said he planned to give the players three days off to savor the victory. "I don't even want to see them on this field for three days," he said.

After that, the Hawks will be back on the practice field to get ready for their first-round opponent, San Jacinto College. The prospect of facing the top-ranked team in the nation didn't seem to worry Griffin. "I'd rather us face them sooner in the tournament than later," he said.

The Texas Junior College Tournament will get underway Thursday, May 14, at College Station. The time for the Howard-San Jacinto game will be announced later.

Red Wings headed to semifinals

DETROIT (AP) — Jacques Demers called it a great day for Detroit hockey. What it really was, however, was another great day for Jacques Demers hockey.

When the Red Wings, behind the continued brilliance of goaltender Glen Hanlon, put away Toronto 3-0 Sunday night, it marked the second successive year Demers had defeated the Maple Leafs for the Norris Division title and a trip to the Stanley Cup semifinals.

"Two years in a row in the Final Four. That's great," Demers said. "You're going to get a lot of respect. It's great to be there."

Last year, Demers coached St. Louis as the Blues beat Toronto in seven games in the Norris Division finals.

This season, Demers guided the Red Wings to second place in the Norris Division after they had the NHL's worst record in 1985-86.

"I'm very proud of my team," Demers said. "I was proud last year, but I think I'm more happy now. This is a new team. Last year my team was expected to win."

Hanlon turned in his second shutout in three games as the Detroit Red Wings completed a three-game comeback to win the division final in seven games.

"Jacques wouldn't let us give up," Hanlon said. "After the second period, even though we were ahead 3-0, he told us we couldn't let up."

Only three other teams in NHL history have rallied from a 3-1 deficit to win a playoff series. Those teams were the 1942 Maple

Leafs, who had trailed Detroit 3-0 in the Stanley Cup finals; the 1975 New York Islanders, who had been behind Pittsburgh 3-0 in a quarter-final series; and this year's Islanders, who had trailed Washington 3-1 in a first-round series.

"I don't think we let them win," Toronto left wing Wendell Clark said. "Their backs were to the wall and they performed when they had to perform. We tried to stop them. It just didn't happen."

Adam Oates, Steve Yzerman and Darren Veitch scored for the Red Wings, who open the best-of-seven Campbell Conference finals against the Oilers in Edmonton on Tuesday night. Detroit has lost 13 straight games to Edmonton, including all three of its regular-season games this season.

Hanlon, who played the last five games after Toronto routed Greg Stefan in the first two, handled 30 shots. Toronto goalie Ken Wregget turned away 30 of 33 shots.

"When you're in a groove like I am, things slow down a bit for you," Hanlon said. "You almost see the play before it happens."

The Red Wings, who were idle for eight days after sweeping four games from the Chicago Blackhawks in the first round, carried the play most of the game and several times had the sluggish Toronto defense out of position.

"The guys played their hearts out," Toronto Coach John Brophy said. "That's all I could ask."

Oates scored his fourth playoff goal at 2:51 of the first period. Yzerman and Veitch scored 71 seconds apart in the second period.

It was the goal by Yzerman, who was easily the best player in the series, that seemed to swing the game to Detroit's favor and stir the crowd of 19,729 in Joe Louis Arena.

Yzerman, the Red Wings' captain, took a lead pass in stride from Bob Probert as he crossed the blue line, skated around defenseman Al Iafrate and snapped a shot over Wregget's glove into the upper corner of the net at 3:57.

Toronto won the first two games of the series, both at Joe Louis Arena, and Toronto fans showed up with brooms for Game 3 at Maple Leaf Gardens.

But there would be no sweep. And a Detroit fan, with 6:16 remaining Sunday, tossed a broken broom on the ice as a reminder.

Mirror series to begin tonight

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — When the Montreal Canadiens meet the Philadelphia Flyers, the Canadiens say they feel like they're looking in the mirror.

The Canadiens and Flyers open a best-of-seven Stanley Cup semifinal series here tonight. Both reached the Wales Conference final Saturday night with second-round, seventh-game victories. The Canadiens won 5-3 over Quebec, and the Flyers were 5-1 winner over the New York Islanders.

After Montreal beat Quebec, Canadiens Coach Jean Perron said of the Flyers, "They are a lot like us."

Added goalie Brian Hayward, "There won't be an advantage for either team in this series because we have more similar styles than any other teams in the league."

"The Flyers are like us, a team based on defense."

The defending champion Canadiens had the best defensive record in the NHL, with the Flyers a close second.

"Defense is critical in this series," Canadiens defenseman Rick Green said. "We're looking for a good one. Philadelphia is a very good club. They play defense very well."

Green recalled that, during the regular season, the Flyers were 2-0-1 against the Canadiens. They won two at home and tied in Montreal.

"We didn't do well," Green said. "This will be a real challenge for us. Philadelphia works hard and they have some real experience on defense."

The statistics bear out Perron, Hayward and Green.

Montreal led the league with a 2.97 goals against average, with Hayward at 2.81 and Patrick Roy at 2.93. Philadelphia was second with a 3.03, losing a chance to edge the Canadiens when the Flyers gave up nine goals to the Islanders in the final game of the season.

Rookie Ron Hextall, who led the league with 37 victories, was third in average at 3.00.

The Flyers and Montreal have met just twice in playoff competition since Philadelphia joined the league in 1967.

Evert wins second straight tournament

LARGO, Fla. (AP) — Chris Evert won the $150,000 Eckerd Tennis Open with a 6-3, 6-2 victory over Kate Gompert, avenging an earlier loss to her opponent and bringing the number of her career singles victories to an unprecedented 151.

Sunday's triumph followed Evert's victory over Martina Navratilova at the Virginia Slims of Houston last week.

"I'm happy with the match and the whole week," Evert said. "My concentration is good and I'm happy with my overall game."

After defeating Gompert, Evert and Wendy Turnbull teamed up to defeat Elise Burgin and Rosalyn Fairbank 6-4, 6-3.

Evert and Gompert split their only other two career meetings. When they met in February at the Virginia Slims of Florida, Evert was returning to action after a six-month layoff because of a knee injury and lost to Gompert 3-6, 6-4, 6-2.

After Sunday's action, top-seeded Evert, who has won three tournaments this season, took home $30,500. Fourth-seeded Gompert earned $13,800.

"Kate has been playing really well," Evert said. "But I must say that it's easier to play well when you're playing a top player as opposed to playing someone who is as good as you."

Gompert, who was competing in her first championship match on the women's tour, is ranked 25th in the world. She said she also was pleased with her performance.

"I still have to add a couple more things to my game," she said. "This gives me a lot of confidence. And confidence has always been my stumbling block."

"Chris is really playing well right now," she added. "She's keeping the ball deep. Instead of thinking about winning the match, I was just thinking about winning a game."

Gompert took the first two games, then managed to win only three of the final 15 games.

The first set's turning point came in the seventh game when Evert broke Gompert to go up 4-3. Evert ran down a drop shot, then countered with a drop shot of her own to get to break point. Gompert then smacked a backhand long.

Evert held to go up 5-3. The game ended with a furious rally, including four straight volleys at the net. Evert clinched it by punching a backhand volley past the lunging Gompert. Then Evert broke at love to wrap up the first set.

"Going up 4-3 was so important," Evert said. "I don't know what it is about tennis, but whenever you're at 3-3 like that, the next game usually turns out to be the most important."

After surviving a six-deuce first game in the second set, Evert raced to a 3-0 lead. Gompert cut it to 3-2, but Evert closed quickly by winning the last three games, which included two service breaks.

DeCinces gets offended; makes red Sox pay dearly

By The Associated Press

Doug DeCinces took it personally and made the Boston Red Sox pay for what he took as a slight.

It was the sixth inning when Red Sox Manager John McNamara decided to walk California's Wally Joyner to load the bases and bring DeCinces to the plate. DeCinces responded with a grand slam.

"I take it as a personal challenge when they walk the guy in front of me to pitch to me," DeCinces said after California's 11-4 victory on Sunday. "And when you homer with the bases loaded, it's the ultimate."

AL

It had been six years since DeCinces' last grand slam. He was in a Baltimore uniform then and the opponent was California.

"Gene Mauch (the California Manager) walked the batter in front of me to get to me," DeCinces laughed.

And less than a week ago, the Milwaukee Brewers intentionally walked Jack Howell to get to DeCinces. He also responded that time with a home run.

DeCinces' grand slam was the big blow in the Angels' six-run sixth inning. Howell and Joyner each had two-run homers earlier in the game.

The Red Sox got solo homers from Dave Henderson and a three-run shot from Don Baylor.

Royals 2, Indians 1

Danny Jackson pitched a four-hitter to outduel Ken Schrom and lead Kansas City over Cleveland. Jackson, 1-4, held the Indians hitless until Carmen Castillo doubled leading off the fifth. He struck out seven and walked four.

Athletics 2, Tigers 0

Eric Plunk held Detroit to six hits for 8 1-3 innings and Mike Gallego got his second game-winning RBI in two days as Oakland stretched its winning streak to four games.

Gallego broke up the scoreless duel between Plunk, 1-1, and the Tigers' Eric King, 2-2, on an RBI grounder in the seventh inning.

Jose Canseco hit his second homer of the season in the eighth off reliever Mark Thurmond.

White Sox 4, Orioles 3

Donnie Hill's eighth-inning RBI single scored the tie-breaking run lifted Chicago over Baltimore. It was the fourth straight loss for the Orioles, who have now lost 14 of their last 18 games.

Daryl Boston, Greg Walker and Ron Hassey hit solo home runs for Chicago, and Walker scored the winning run when he doubled to lead off the eighth against Mike Boddicker, 2-1, and eventually scored on Hill's single.

Mariners 7, Brewers 3

Mike Morgan, 2-3, won his second consecutive start since returning from the bullpen as Seattle downed Milwaukee. Morgan went the distance, allowing eight hits, striking out three and walking two.

The Mariners scored in the first against Teddy Higuera, 4-1, on RBI singles by John Christensen and Alvin Davis and added three runs in the third on RBI doubles by Davis and Rey Quinones, and a sacrifice fly by Dave Valle.

Blue Jays 3, Rangers 1

Pitching two-hit ball for 8 1-3 innings against Texas, Jim Clancy led Toronto to its sixth straight victory. Clancy, 3-2, struck out seven and walked two.

Texas Manager Bobby Valentine was ejected for the second straight game, both times for questioning ball-strike calls.

Twins 4, Yankees 3

Gary Gaetti, Dan Gladden, Tom Brunansky and Kirby Puckett hit solo home runs for Minnesota.

Puckett connected on the first pitch from Tim Lincecum and sent it over the left-field fence for his seventh homer of the season, snapping a 3-3 tie. The Twins had eight homers while winning two of three games against the Yankees.

New York's Rickey Henderson stole four bases, tying the Yankees' single-game record accomplished nine other times. He is perfect in 12 steal attempts this season.

Gooden

The Mets, who have tried to shield Gooden from the media since his arrival in the majors in 1984 at age 19, plan to be especially protective now.

The team's clubhouse was closed to the media after the briefing until after Thursday night's game against Montreal. Cashen said no one-on-one interviews with Gooden would be allowed in the near future.

Cashen said Gooden, whose cocaine problem was revealed in a voluntary drug test one week before the season started, would have to "start spring training all over again."

said Gooden threw hard from the mound before the briefing, adding the pitcher joked "I wish I could pitch a few innings tonight."

Johnson said Gooden would begin 15 minutes of light throwing on Friday and would soon start throwing 10 minutes from the mound every other day. In about three weeks, the Mets hope Gooden can pitch three innings in a minor league game, probably at Class AAA Tidewater in the International League.

Cashen speculated that Gooden could possibly make his 1987 major league debut after the Mets conclude a West Coast trip in the first week of June.

The general manager said that start could come in a series with Pittsburgh, against whom Gooden has a 6-0 career record. But Cashen said those plans could change.

Johnson said he would prefer that Gooden pitch his first game at Shea Stadium, where he might feel more comfortable.

"He is recovering, not recovered. The victims are forever recovering. The difficult part lies ahead," Cashen said of the pitcher.

He said Gooden will be recovering for the "rest of his life."

Cashen said it would be important for Gooden to "rebuild his confidence to handle the stress" of major league life. But Lans said there was no evidence that Gooden's cocaine problem was caused by such stress, and he did not believe the cocaine use had caused any physical impairment.

Gooden's lawyer, Charles Ehrlich, said previously that it had been determined by the center that Gooden was an occasional user rather than a cocaine addict.

Mets first baseman Keith Hernandez, speaking for his teammates, said, "The No. 1 concern is Dwight the person" and the team hoped Gooden could "close this chapter in his life."

Hernandez was among the players suspended by Ueberroth a year ago after their involvement in a drug trial in Pittsburgh. The suspensions were never served because the players fulfilled requirements that they undergo regular drug testing, do community service involved with drug abuse and donate a portion of their salaries to drug-abuse programs.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, MAY 5, 1987

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Difficult influences are in effect if you try to force your special aptitudes, but tonight conditions start to upswing and it is time for social and romantic activity.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Gain your mate's approval for the plan you have in mind. Acquire the backing you need by being charming.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't try to gain more efficiency at home today, but tonight all goes smoothly there. Make your plans carefully.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Your routines may be difficult to follow during the daytime, but tonight you can relax with congenials.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Be careful you do not make a terribly costly error where some property affair is concerned.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Study your personal goals well and forget those that are too complicated. You can be very charming tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have many tasks to complete during the daytime. Once you have cleared the decks, enjoy romance.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Don't try to get others to help you push your personal aims during the day. Be with charming people tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Study your position with the public in general and do something to improve it, but do it quietly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You may have to make some revisions if you want your plans to work. Get more data from an expert.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get busy and solve those problems for your mate. Tonight your efforts will be appreciated.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A partner could give you some trouble during the daytime, but be patient and you come through efficiently.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have committed yourself to some special work, so plan it carefully. Enjoy your satisfied feelings.

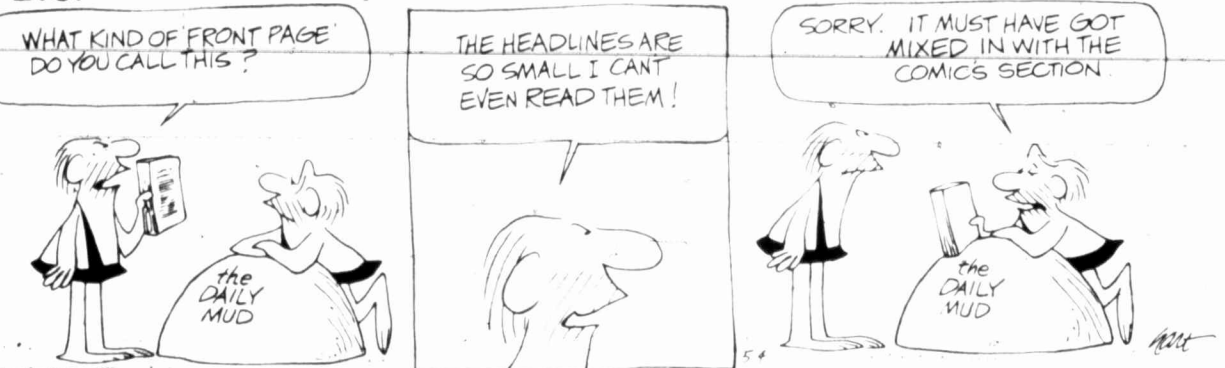

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he, or she, will be one of those remarkable young persons who will have many difficult problems to handle early in life and can solve them. Much success and happiness can be realized during this child's lifetime. Participation in sports is a good idea here.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!
