Legal Battle Looms Over Board's Action on Ouster of School Head

US Urges Viet POW Exchange

SAIGON (UPI)—The United States has urged South Vietnam to release some North Vietnamese prisoners of war in the hope that the Communists would return some American POWs, diplomatic sources said today.

Normally South Vietnam does send back a symbolic number of prisoners for "humanitarian purposes" to mark Tet, the lunar new year, which begins at the end of January. Last year the government released 30 Communist prisoners.

But there is a complication this year. The Ben Hai bridge, the only land link between the Vietnams, has been destroyed by shelling. The United States now has asked South Vietnam to investigate the possibility of using a boat to get a group of Communist POWs across the Ben Hai River, the sources said.

In addition to freeing some POWs, it was understood the United States also would like to see South Vietnam return some sick and wounded North Vietnamese, possibly on an International Control Commission plane because of their weakened condition.

The commission is the three-nation body created to oversee the 1954 Geneva agreement on Vietnam.

The Geneva Convention of 1949 calls for the release and exchange of ailing and wounded prisoners. North Vietnam subscribes to the Geneva Convention and the United States and its allies have urged Hanoi to release or exchange sick and wounded POWs as a possible first step toward a general prisoner exchange.

Hanoi is known to hold more than 200 downed American airmen with others listed missing in action and possibly held by the Communists. The Viet Cong are believed to hold at least 20 U.S. soldiers in South Vietnam.

There are two main stumbling blocks. North Vietnam insists it has no troops fighting in South Vietnam. And Hanoi contends that U.S. pilots shot down in the north are "war criminals" not POWs.

Tito Arrives In Phnom Penh

PHNOM PENH (UPI)—President Tito of Yugoslavia arrived today for a state visit to Cambodia on the heels of disclosure of a plot by pro-Chinese Communists to assassinate him with hand grenades.

Prince Norodom Sihanok, chief of state, reported the arrest of the leaders of the plot and the discovery of a thousand or more hand grenades before Tito flew here from Islamabad, Pakistan.

Many political experts in Phnom Penh believed Tito's visit might bring Cambodia's relations with Asian Communist capitals near the breaking point —especially Hanoi and Peking which detest Tito.

The Yugoslavian leader received a warm welcome from Sihanouk. Ambassadors from Red China and North Vietnam boycotted the welcoming ceremony.

Sihanouk himself in a broadcast Saturday said Hanoi and Peking apparently regarded Tito as a worse enemy than the United States. Sihanouk said they also were boycotting diplomatic functions.

The special Yugoslav airliner carrying Tito and his wife, Mme. Jovanka Broz, landed at 4 p.m. on the flight from Pakistan.

Heavy security precautions were in force to insure safety of the two leaders following discovery of the hand grenades and other arms and the arrest of a group of Maoists, allegedly backed by Red China in their assassination plot.

Both men were expected to concentrate on the Vietnam problem in their talks.

Deadline Nears For Payment Of 1967 City Taxes

Deadline for payment of 1967 city taxes without a penalty is Jan. 31, City Tax Collector-Assessor Aubrey Jones reminded today.

City taxes become delinquent on Feb. 1 and the new graduated penalty provision of a new city ordinance becomes effective on that date.

Taxes not paid by Jan. 31, automatically become subject to a 2½ per cent penalty and interest charge on the total bill. On March 1 the penalty and interest increases to 5 per cent, on April 1, it will be 7½ per cent and on May 1 the penalty goes to 10 per cent. Starting June 1, one-half of one per cent will be added to the delinquent tax bill each month.

Under the former city ordinance there was an immediate 8 per cent penalty and one-half per cent interest charge on tax bills not paid by Jan. 31.

"The new graduated penalty enables delinquent taxpayers to save on the penalty and interest charge if the tax bill is paid before April 30," Jones said.

"In fact," he added, "if the bill is paid during February, a delinquent taxpayer can save six per cent on the penalty and interest method formerly used."

Union Organizer Says West Texas Situation Good

LUBBOCK (UPI)— An organizer for the AFL-CIO in West Texas said Tuesday he found the situation "much better, much different than I expected."

Andres Sandoval, 47, arrived in Lubbock Jan. 2 to organize the Mexican-Americans in the area and set up his office behind a Catholic church. The labor group persuaded him to move his office from Laredo to Lubbock.

"I've been making a few contacts here and there, mostly with church groups. I've been trying to meet the people, get to know them, and—more than anything else—see if I can get them to register to vote and be first-class residents in 1968," Sandoval said.

"I've found the people very nice and very enjoyable. I think my job here is going to be a very interesting one," he said.

Candidates Are In The News All Over the World

By United Press International

Candidates and possible candidates for Gov. John Connally's post are in the news from South Vietnam to Paris, Tex.

The Dallas Times Herald said Tuesday in a copyrighted story deputy U. S. Ambassador Eugene Locke would quit his post in South Vietnam and return to Texas to run for governor.

Locke, contacted in South Vietnam today, declined to comment on the Dallas newspaper's report.

"The ambassador says he is a Foreign Service officer and, as such, is unwilling to comment on domestic political reports in any manner," a Locke aide said.

Former Atty. Gen. Waggener Carr said Tuesday he had made up his mind about the race and would announce his intentions sometime this week.

The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal said Tuesday it had learned he planned to run.

Carr has made it clear for several weeks that he wanted to run but he reportedly was seeking more backing. He is from Lubbock.

Another possible candidate, Secretary of State John Hill Tuesday repeated statements that he will announce his candidacy next week.

And two of the three already-announced candidates were also in the news.

Dallas broadcast executive Gordon McLendon called on Gov. Connally Tuesday but he said he neither sought nor received Connally's endorsement.

McLendon said he wanted only to "pay my respects" to Connally and inform the governor he would be back later to discuss state issues with him.

He said he did not intend to

US Jets Strike Near Haiphong

SAIGON (UPI)—United States jets fought safely through flights of MIG21 interceptors Tuesday and bombed bulging North Vietnam munitions centers with in nine miles of Hanoi and five miles of the major port city of Haiphong, U.S. spokesmen said today.

U.S. pilots flying 117 mission in a major blow at supply targets protected for two months by cloudy monsoon weather reported no losses in dogfights in Hanoi's "MIG Alley" zone. But North Vietnamese ground fire downed one Air Force jet over the southern panhandle.

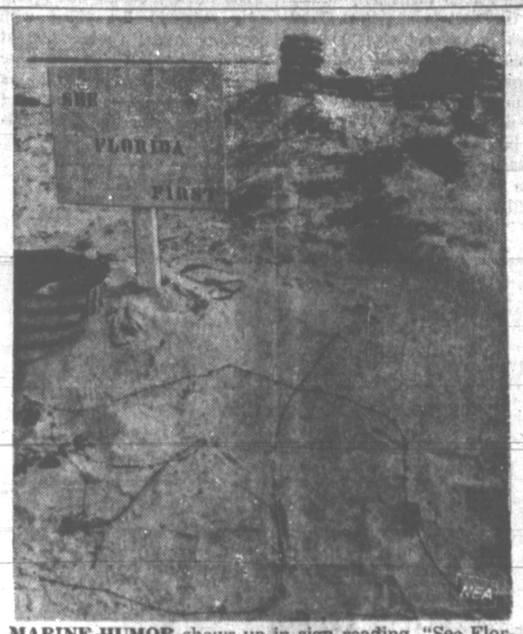

The two man crew of the F4C Phantom was rescued by helicopters. It was the 787th U.S. airplane downed over North Vietnam, spokesmen said.

In South Vietnam, U.S. Army 4th Infantry Division troops today caught a unit of the North Vietnamese 2nd division in the jungle mountains near Quang Ngai, 330 miles northeast of Saigon and killed at least 31, spokesmen said. U.S. losses amounted to two men wounded slightly. Both GI's were patched up and returned to duty, spokesmen said.

In the air war, U.S. officials called Tuesday's North Vietnam raiding a major blow against the Hanoi regime's war machine. The unusual appearance of massed flights of delta-wing MIG21s indicated the value of the targets.

Soviet Naval Power To Replace British

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Soviet Union is extending its naval power farther around the world while Britain pulls her force closer to home.

That was the global military picture as seen by U.S. officials today following Prime Minister Harold Wilson's announcement of military cutbacks.

One of the British steps, cancellation of a $1 billion order for 50 U.S. built F111 swing wing jets, threatened to raise the price America's armed forces will have to pay for the same type of aircraft. The reason for this is that the more planes that are built the lower the unit-cost (about $5 million) can be.

The F111 cancellation, according to U.S. planners, will also contribute to a growing power vacuum in the vast area of the world east of Suez and centered on the Indian Ocean.

Britain was to have stationed F111s on the Indian Ocean island of El Dabra off Madagascar.

The State Dehpartment expressed regret at the decision Tuesday, but said that the United States had "no plans to move in where the British forces pull out."

Some members of Congress thought replacements for the British in the Far East would be necessary. Rep. Wayne L. Hays, D-Ohio, said: "Somebody is going to fill the vacuum they leave. If we don't do it, the Communists will." And Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., thought the British action would "place serious new responsibilities and demands upon the shoulders of the United States."

The Indian Ocean is far off the path of the U.S. Navy, which regularly operates only three small ships there.

When the Suez Canal, closed since last summer's Arab-Israeli war, is re-opened, Washington would not be surprised to see Soviet warships begin to operate in the Indian Ocean.

Soviets Expand Fleet

The Soviet Navy has gradually been extending its range of operations in recent years. The Russians have assembled a Mediterranean fleet of 30 to 40 ships.

There are reports that the Russians have been negotiating for a naval base at Aden, evacuated by the British and now part of South Yemen, where the Soviets have given aid. There are also reports the Russians might move into the naval base at Mers-el-Kebir, Algeria, soon to be evacuated by the French.

Washington believes the Russians reached a decision to expand their navy after the 1956 Suez crisis. Before that time, the Soviets traditionally tended to regard their navy solely for defense of the homeland.

The Soviet navy is the second largest in the world. Recently Adm. Vladimir Kasatonov, deputy commander-in-chief of the Soviet fleet, commented that his ships were "carrying out tasks in distant regions of the world's oceans, formerly considered the domain of imperialist naval supremacy."

Fight Expected Over British Budget Cuts

LONDON (UPI)—The fight over Prime Minister Harold Wilson's $2.4 billion budget cut opened today with Britons warned they face even more drastic austerity measures to save the national economy.

National newspapers argued over Wilson's action and the House of Commons was meeting to open formal debate that will end in a government vote of confidence motion Thursday. The government was expected to win the vote easily.

Roy Jenkins, the chancellor of the exchequer and watchdog of government spending, followed Wilson's budget cut announcements in Parliament with a national broadcast Tuesday night warning worse was to come.

"We have not done the whole job by the cuts announced today," he said. He gave no details of future cuts.

The partial job was enough to excite this nation. Wilson cancelled an order for 50 U.S. F111 swingwing fighter-bombers to save $700 million, said almost all British forces east of Suez would be pulled home as soon as possible, doomed the Royal Navy's aircraft carrier force, cut the building of nuclear

State of Union Talk Will Bring Few Surprises

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson delivers to Congress and the nation tonight an election-year report on the State of the Union that is expected to call for renewed effort both in Vietnam and on the home front.

Few surprises were anticipated in the annual message the Chief Executive was to give before a joint session of the House and Senate at 8 p.m. CST. The speech was to be televised and broadcast nationally and beamed abroad by the Voice of America.

Johnson and his top advisers have been working on the message since last month, but as is customary there have been no advance indications of its contents. Whatever he says, there is no doubt the President's speech will assume the proportions of a major campaign document in the days and weeks to come.

With that in mind, the Republicans were preparing a three-part effort to answer the President.

Senate GOP leader Everett M. Dirksen, Ill., and House Republican leader Gerald R. Ford, Mich., were to hold a news conference immediately after the address; a group of Republican governors, led by Rhode Island's John H. Chafee, were planning a similar effort Thursday, and a bevy of young Republican congressmen were to be starred on an hour-long

Dodd Wins Round In Damage Suit

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., has won a partial victory in his court battle to collect damages from two columnists who published documents stolen from his office.

U.S. District Judge Alexander Holtzoff ruled Tuesday that columnists Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson were guilty of converting to their own use documents taken from Dodd's files by former employes of the senator.

Publication of article based on the documents eventually resulted in Dodd's censure by his Senate colleagues for diverting campaign contributions to his personal use.

Holtzoff's decision opened the way for Dodd to try to substantiate in court his claim that the use of the stolen documents caused him to suffer $1 million damage, but it appeared unlikely Dodd will be able to collect much.

Holtzoff noted that damages for conversion of personal property are limited to the "value of the property. In this instance the property consists of documents."

Concerning Dodd's contention that his right to privacy was violated by publication of the documents, Hotzoff said publication of the material "is not protected by the cloak of the right of privacy because the publications relate to his activities as a high ranking public officer, namely, senator of the United States, in which the public has an interest."

He ruled that Dodd was entitled to sue for damages "only on the theory of a conversion and not on the theory of a violation of a right of privacy."

Dodd originally sued the two columnists for $5 million on grounds of libel and conspiracy. He subseqently amended the suit, seeking $2 million for libel.

Damron Charges Vote Taken After Recall Of His Resignation

Job, Pay Terminated Immediately; Lane Named Acting Superintendent

By WANDA MAE HUFF

The Pampa School Board last night terminated the services and salary of Dr. John D. Damron, superintendent, and informed him his contract would end two hours later at midnight

Dr. Damron stated today he would appeal the decision to State Education Commissioner J. W. Edgar in Austin on the grounds of breach of contract.

The board's action was taken after a four-hour executive session that concluded shortly after 11 p.m.

The unanimous vote, 5 to 0, came after Damron had withdrawn his resignation and asked the board for a vote of confidence.

It came on a motion by board member Dr. R. M. Hampton and a second by John Spearman. Other members voting in favor of the motion were H. Creel Grady Jr., board president; Jimmy Thompson, who was attending his first meeting, and John Gikas.

"I intend to pursue both the educational and legal channels to collect my salary for at least the remainder of the current year," Dr. Damron said this morning.

He also stated that he interpreted the board's action in the light of being "fired." He said that he was called into the executive session and informed there had been an agreement to accept his resignation. No vote had yet been taken, he stated.

The superintendent immediately withdrew his letter of resignation. After he had left the room the board voted to accept the "original resignation" and terminate his services immediately.

Atty. Bill Waters was called in shortly after 9 p.m. to advise the board on possible legal angles involved in the action. Waters was acting for school attorney Arthur Teed who was out of the city undergoing tests at a Houston hospital.

Dr. Damron said this morning he had retained the services of J. C. Hinsley, Austin, attorney, to represent him in the legal aspects of the case. Hinsley is author of the "Handbook of Texas School Law."

Hinsley, he said, will prepare the appeal which will go to the state commissioner of education. A date for a hearing, he said, will be set by the commissioner.

McHenry Lane, curriculum co-ordinator, was named acting school superintendent on a temporary basis until a new superintendent can be employed.

Dr. Damron vacated his office as of last midnight. Lane took over this morning. Although he would not confirm it, it is understood one of his first steps was to call a staff meeting of other school administrators.

Lane, a Pampa school official 21 years, was Pampa Junior High School principal seven years before he took the post of curriculum coordinator. Before coming to Pampa, he worked in the White Deer Schools three years, one year as superintendent.

Asked about his first steps as acting superintendent, Lane said, "I have no comment. We will go on to run the school as best we can. We think we had a good school and will continue to have a good school. We think the whole staff will cooperate in continuing as we have done. It's an unfortunate circumstance, but we are all working together to do what we can. I'd rather not say anything about specifics or any plans."

One of Dr. Damron's main contentions today was that after he withdrew his resignation last night, the board no longer had a resignation to accept.

He also charges that the board acted illegally by terminating his services at a date not mutually acceptable to both the board and the superintendent.

"When you are given a two-hour notice that you no longer have a job or salary, it is my interpretation that you have been fired," Dr. Damron said when commenting on what he termed breach of contract.

There was some activity this morning indicating the possibility that petitions may be circulated seeking a recall election on all five school board members.

Dr. Damron, when informed of this, said he knew nothing about it.

Before the board took any action last night, board president Grady administered the oath of office to Attorney Thompson, the new board member. Thompson was appointed last Thursday to the vacancy created by resignation of C. E. (Gene) Steel.

From 7 to 7:50 p.m. the board left the Pampa Junior High School Library, where the executive session was held, and met in a PJH classroom to "discuss informally what had been submitted to the board," Grady said.

It was after the board returned to the library, that Dr. Damron, in the suprise move, withdrew his resignation and asked for the vote of confidence before the board acted on his letter of resignation.

Also at this time, Dr. Damron submitted five alternatives to the board. The alternatives included a request for him to withdraw his resignation. Other alternatives were to accept it and specify a termination date, reject the resignation, extend the contract its full length until 1970, or ask him to withdraw his contract and accept a new one.

The board called Dist. Atty. Waters in for consultation after it learned it was legally faced with paying Dr. Damron to the full extent of his contract because he had rescinded the resignation before they had acted on it. The salary would amount to about $47,000. The superintendent's yearly salary is $18,850.

After Waters explained the legal implications of the board's decision, Dr. Damron met with the board about 40 minutes. At 11:10 p.m., Board President Grady quoted from the executive session minutes that "the board of trustees has voted to accept the resignation of Dr. John Damron, school superintendent, effective immediately. McHenry Lane, curriculum coordinator, was named acting temporary superintendent."

DEAR ABBY: None of us can hit a home run every time we go to bat. While I agree with you most of the time, I think you should reconsider your advice to the boy whose friends were stealing bikes. "I do not agree with friends informing on one another," you wrote, "but a real 'friend' would do all in his power to set his companions straight."

If we follow your thinking it is only a short step to keeping quiet while a fellow citizen is slowly murdered in a courtyard in sight of dozens of people. They didn't want to "inform" or "get involved" either.

In our present world we are too willing to condone wrongdoing and to expect someone else to punish wrongdoers. Personally, if my child were involved in stealing of any nature I would certainly appreciate someone having the courage to tell me.

JRM, MEMPHIS

DEAR JRM: You've made a good point. In the case of the bike thieves, I had in mind some effort to stop this criminal conduct, or to try, before giving the erring kids a police record. After that, the parents should certainly be tipped off. But among youngsters, the persistent "tattletale" on childish pranks becomes a social outcast early in life.

DEAR ABBY: Some friends of ours with a little girl not yet five years old have been allowing an unmarried couple to spend week-ends together in their home. (This unmarried couple couldn't be any closer if they were married. I'm sure you get the picture.)

The mother says the child is too young to know the difference. I personally think the child is old enough to know that something about the arrangement is wrong. I would like your opinion.

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: It's the same as yours.

DEAR ABBY: On a recent visit to the home of my husband's sister (we live in different cities), she turned to my nine-year-old daughter and said, "I want you to know that you ruined our Christmas this year because you told Cindy (their eight-year-old) there wasn't any Santa Claus."

Our daughter had no answer other than, "Cindy asked me if I believed in Santa Claus and I said, 'No, not since I was in first grade.'"

My sister-in-law pursued the subject with a vengeance saying it was a terrible thing for my daughter to have done, etc.

We have always had a good relationship with this family, and now I feel a definite rift, although I said nothing and didn't enter into it.

I have never encountered a problem such as this. Just how long should a child be encouraged to go along with the Santa Claus bit? Isn't eight a little too old? How great a sin did my child commit? I would appreciate your opinion.

INJURED FEELINGS

DEAR INJURED: Shame on your sister-in-law. Your child committed no "crime." Her younger cousin must have suspected that there was no Santa Claus, otherwise why would she have asked? To deliberately destroy a child's beliefs in fairy tales and Santa Claus is unkind, but when a child suspects that something is only "make believe," it's time to draw the curtain and let in the light of truth. Your sister-in-law needs to grow up.

Organize Items for Shipshape Living

By AILEEN SNODDY
NEA Home Editor

NEW YORK — There must be a little of the pack rat in all of us. No matter how few niches there are in homes and apartments we all manage to stuff extra items away for future use. It takes a long time, though, for most to admit the time when that china aspidistra will shine at a party never seems to come. If this is true, why not give it away and let some other person use it as a dust collector?

Mature couples face the problem of weeding through things accumulated over many years. Those moving to smaller homes now that children are grown and in their own houses find there is little space to waste.

A major trouble spot in a new home is the kitchen. Now is the time to put all those kitchen planning ideas to work and really organize storage and work space.

This begins by making a list of possible needs for two. Kitchen designers suggest you get rid of extra kitchenware as a starter. For example, a married daughter or niece will be delighted with a corn popper or waffle iron you no longer use. Logically, cooking for two takes smaller pots, casseroles and roasting pans.

Unless you plan to entertain large groups regularly, save valuable storage space by storing giant-sized salad bowls, cooking pots and broiler ovens in a locker or basement. Or, give them to someone with several children. You can always borrow these utensils for the two or three times a year you use them.

You also will want to minimize the inconvenience of stooping and climbing to reach food and equipment by storing them in specially designed units that keep them at your finger tips and in one spot. Turntables in several sizes are designed to fit in wall and base cabinets and there are slide-out drawer units for base cabinet storage. These hold boxes and bottles out of view but slide forward so you may reach them easily. These drawers are of different widths and can be stacked to take advantage of wasted cabinet areas. Use dividers for kitchen drawers and racks to hold a maximum number of lids and pans, china and glassware in a minimum of space.

Friends who have always lived in apartments recommend those new at the life will find a pegboard a colorful wall decoration and one of the most convenient ways to keep all kinds of utensils at your fingertips. This fits the concept of taking some equipment out of drawers and cabinets to make more space for others. Keep knives and cooking cutlery on the wall right where you do your chopping, slicing and mixing.

The mature couple has reached a stage in life filled with great changes. Those who get organized early find more time to do things they like, such as hobbies, traveling and spending more time with the grandchildren.

ORGANIZATION AND PLANNING mean more time to enjoy their new status, mature couples find. A woman begins by disposing of useless items collected through many years of marriage. Nostalgia gets in the way at first but many gimcracks bring laughs and a "Why did I keep that?" snort. Compact kitchens call for helpful accessories, such as plastic food bins, drawers and turntables.

Even the Best Shoppers Get Stuck Occasionaly

By AILEEN SNODDY
NEA Consumer Affairs Specialist

Husbands blanch and manufacturers smirk at the prospect that women will spend more money for clothes this year. The estimated increase includes an across-the-board rise in prices.

Why women buy as they do is a problem psychoanalysts wrestle with. However, even the most experienced woman shopper occasionally gets stung when the urge to buy overwhelms her better judgment.

There are certain precautionary checks for those who get caught up in the whirl of shopping for a new dress, suit or coat.

One of the first steps is to wave off the overly solicitous or pressure saleswoman who makes you feel inferior if you do not buy.

Another move is to read the labels or hangtags required by federal law. The tags give the buyer an idea of what to expect in the way of performance and tells the type of care the garment needs.

Some women appear to have that special knack for finding attractive bargains and of dressing with a flair for less money than their friends spend. How do they do it?

Well, for one, they consider what they have in their closets before shopping. They consider color, styles, accessories and such. When browsing through a store during a sale they fit new items into what they now have. Although their buying may look impulsive, it isn't. These fashion-shrewd women—many with money to buy a $1,000 dress at the slightest whim—have well-interchangeable blouses, skirts and sweaters in their closets. Their buying is not without thought.

When buying clothes you also will want to keep in mind how much time and money will be needed to maintain their pristine neatness. For example, a light-colored dress for everyday wear should be washable. The white wool that must be dry cleaned with each wear in most cities soon gets shoved to the rear of the closet because it is too costly to wear often. Drip-dry, crease-resistant fabrics and soil-resistant fabrics are money-saving buys in sports skirts, slacks, shorts, blouses and robes.

Dior Widens Market

By ROSETTE HARGROVE

PARIS (NEA) —"Miss Dior" was born and named just a few weeks ago.

Keeping pace with a rapidly changing scale of values, the House of Dior here, after 20 years of supremacy in high fashion, realized the importance of reaching a much wider audience.

Until now "Mrs. Everyone" could hardly aspire to own one Dior model. The price tag was probably higher than her dress budget for a year.

Even the Dior Boutique, opened several years ago, was one of the most expensive of its kind, with prices ranging from $150 to $500.

So Miss Dior was created and aimed at the woman with a modest budget and more dress sense than money. The new salon not only caters to the ye-ye group, the minettes, but also to their "elders"—30 and over.

All these 50 off-the-peg, with-it designs in dresses, coats and suits have that "little difference" that adds up to a lot.

They were created by 32-year-old Philippe Guibourge, who for the last seven years was assistant to the top designer at Dior, Marc Bohan.

The clothes, of course, are made in less expensive fabrics than those that come from the House of Dior itself or the Dior Botique. And the cut is less complicated.

But they do capture the current Dior look. There are also little gold buttons reading "Miss Dior" on them which contribute to that wonderful "little difference."

Starting at $75 for a jersey dress and going to $160 for a long, embroidered evening dress, the shop has a wide range of prices in between those two.

The accessory department is there to capture the head-to-toe Dior look.

High, skinny black boots, black felt Al Capone hats, sheer black stockings, all are there at the fingertips, as are baroque and black-and- white plastic jewelry.

A good selling point is the offer to change hemlines and sleeve lengths free of charge.

And every client gets a small bottle of the famous Miss Dior perfume.

As for the salon itself, it is as startlingly stark and functional as the House of Dior just around the corner is lavish. The House of Dior is redolent of the 19th century. The walls are gray satin, the chairs gilt and the chandeliers elegant and enormous.

The birth of "Miss Dior" is one more step after the boutiques to bring haute couture to a wider market — and to put badly needed coins into the coffers of the couture houses.

For four new spring signature scarves, Rudi Gernreich was inspired by calligraphy. Lettering, dots, dashes, and typography symbols all became the basis for the new designs.

Waistlines Mark Styles Of New Spring Fashions

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—The fashion world has been so busy hoisting hemlines it looked as if its leaders had forgotten waistlines.

But lo, they're back in the spring clothes collections, giving strong competition to the unbelted shifts and tents women had become used to. Belts show on dresses, coats, blouse and skirt combinations, in shiny patents, crushed leathers, and fabrics. Some of them are skinny one-inchers, others are wide and wrapped obi fashion. And some are built inside the garment to make it hug the midriff.

If you're not yet ready to belt it (tell the truth about your waistline measurements), you can still have the loose silhouettes. Designers are aware that the comfort of the tents and A-line dresses are as hard to give up as the extra helpings which put those unwanted inches around the middle. So they still offer a choice, especially in the late day and evening apparel.

The New York firm of Burke-Amey, for instance pulls out all stops on short jewelled formals with full skirts and unfitted shapes. Then it turns right around and wraps fabric, obi fashion, around other simple little numbers.

Burke-Amey is one of the dozens of firms participating in those semi-annual events for the nation's fashion reporters. These are showings of everything in new apparel from hat to heels. Sponsor of the first group of shows is the New York Couture Business Council, followed immediately by the American Designers Group. The whole exhausting display ends Friday, Jan. 14.

In forecasts prepared as the shows opened Wednesday, much was made not only of the belt but of the whole new shape to clothes. Mildred Sullivan, the couture group's press director, put it this way:

"A fresh, soft concept of shape that stresses the waist, snuggles high and tight at shoulder and rib cage, and flows with gently movement in the skirt. It is the story of fit and flare where set-in sleeves and narrow cut bodice drop to massed pleats, gathered dirndls or full swingy circles of skirt."

Daytime hemlines remain well above the knees, although you'll see in some collections "trial balloons," skirts coming down to mid-calf. But they matter little in the over-all accent on leginess.

Soloists Chosen For Concert

Dr. Richard P. Condie, director of Mormon Tabernacle Choir, Salt Lake City, Utah, has named soloists for the Pampa Oratorio Chorus' Spring Concert, which will be presented April 21.

Fred Watkins, baritone, of Pampa, director of First Methodist Church choir, was chosen to do both bass solo parts for the "Requiem."

Mrs. John Garcia, soprano (Colorature Lyric,) of White Deer was selected as soprano soloist. Mrs. Eldean P. Reed, coloratura soprano, Borger will be the alternate soprano soloist.

Jerry Whitten of Pampa will be organist with Mrs. John Gill Pampa, as piano accompanist. Both will play at rehearsals and at the final performance.

The first all-choir rehearsal will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday in Pampa High School Choir-room. All interested singers are asked to attend the rehearsal. Bill Davis, Pampa High School choir director, will conduct the first rehearsal.

"Singers who have their own "Requiem" scores are asked to bring them to the rehearsals which will be held each week until the final performance," Curt Beck, musical arts committee chairman of Pampa Fine Arts Association, said.

The performance was originally scheduled for March 31, but was changed to allow the Pampa High School A Capella Choir to participate without interfering in their rehearsals for the musical "Brigadoon," Beck said.

Chamber Schedules Business Letter Clinic For Jan. 30

Thirty per cent of the average business letter consists of needless words. One of every twenty letters is written to correct an error or omission in previous correspondence. Three letters out of four contain trite, "horse- and- buggy" phrases that waste the reader's time and kill his interest.

These are a few of the findings of W. H. Butterfield, one of the nation's leading authorities on letter writing, who will conduct a Business Letter Clinic in Pampa on Tuesday, Jan. 30. Sponsored by the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, the clinic will be held from 7 to 10:30 p.m. in The chamber conference room.

W. H. BUTTERFIELD
... authority on letters

Author of sixteen books and many magazine articles on business correspondence, Butterfield has conducted letter writing programs for business and professional groups in more than 300 cities. In many communities his clinics have been held four and five times.

"How you say it is just as important as what you say in your business letters," says Butterfield. "Sometimes the reader is influenced even more by the tone of a letter than by its contents. A friendly, human tone wins his cooperation and good will. A blunt tone irritates him. A mechanical tone bores him."

Many letters contain too much "I" and not enough "you," Butterfield points out. "The average reader has little interest in what he can do for you. He wants to know what you can do for him."

A list of trite expressions to avoid in letter writing is included among the fifteen letter-improvement charts used during the clinic. Other materials cover negative words and how to avoid them, short cuts to concise writing, effective selling psychology, how to write clearly, how to give letters a friendly tone, correct form and layout, how to decline a request and still hold the reader's good will, and a "check list" for successful letters. The $10 registration fee for the Business Letter Clinic includes the set of fifteen letter-improvement charts.

Formerly Chairman of the Department of Business Communication at the University of Oklahoma, Butterfield later served as Educational Director of the International Consumer Credit Association, St. Louis, and Editor of its Better Letters Service. He has served also as Vice President in charge of development at two universities.

Listed in "Who's Who in America," Butterfield is a past president of the American Business Writing Association. In reviewing one of his books, Printers' Ink magazine called him "the most expert of the authorities." Butterfield is author of the section on "Letter Writing" in World Book Encyclopedia.

"We feel that the letter clinic will be helpful to many business and professional people," says E. O. Wedgeworth, manager of the Chamber of Commerce said today. "This program is open to everyone who wants to write better letters. It is being offered as a service to the business men and women of this community."

Lenning To Go To Election Meet

County Judge S. R. Lenning Jr. will attend an election seminar tomorrow in Austin sponsored by Secretary of State John Hill.

The seminar will deal with the new Texas election code which will be used for the first time in the forthcoming elections.

The seminar is primarily for county clerks and county judges. County Clerk Charlie Thut is unable to attend because of a shortage of personnel in his office due to illness.

While in Austin, Judge Lenning will also consult with the Texas County and District Employes Retirement Board. Judge Lenning said he would be seeking information on the establishment in Gray County of a retirement plan for county employes.

Waters being in the conference, Grady said, "The board felt it needed legal counsel."

Grady further stated as soon as the executive session minutes were typed they could be filed in the public records.

Dr. Damron stated to a Pampa news reporter last night, "We accepted employment with the Pampa Public Schools in order to render a service to the educational community of Pampa. A superintendent of school's position is at best a 'challenge' and we accepted the challenge with a great deal of enthusiasm.

"We take no personal feelings with us as we realize that the board of trustees in Pampa feels that they have made the right decision and that the educational philosophy of John D. Damron is at this point, foreign to the Board of Trustees of the Pampa Public Schools.

"We sincerely hope that the Pampa Public Schools can achieve in the future that standard of excellence which we have attempted," Damron added.

MALOUF ABRAHAM

Abraham To Run For Re-Election

Malouf Abraham of Canadian today announced his candidacy for re-election as state representative for this District. His present district is the 84th, but will become the 79th District with the addition of Hansford County, making seven counties.

In his formal announcement, Abraham said:

"Two years ago when I ran for this office the only thing I promised was that I would work hard to serve the needs of the District and State as a whole. I have enjoyed serving very much and have certainly learned a lot about State Government. I know this experience will benefit me greatly next term. I have made it a point to stay in touch with the people of the district and will continue to do so. Please feel free to contact me any time about your problems. I will be planning on seeing as many as possible this year. You will recall when I ran two years ago there was only one Republican in the House. Three of us were elected and now there will be seven Republicans in the House for the special session. I am expecting a lot more next year. I solicit your continued support."

broadcast report next Tuesday.

No new initiatives on Vietnam were expected to be unveiled, despite North Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Duy Trinh's recent statement that Hanoi "will" enter into peace talks if the United States stops the bombing. Secretary of State Dean Rusk has said repeatedly that U.S. efforts to determine the sincerity of the Communist offer, now in progress, would take time.

In addition, there were no indications that the President had changed his position that "the United States is willng to stop all aerial and naval bombardment of North Vietnam when this will lead promptly to productive discussions." The emphasis was on "productive discussions," and the view of U.S. officials was that Hanoi had yet to demonstrate any such desire for these.

Rail Merger May Be Reality In Only Few Weeks

NEW YORK (UPI)—New York Central and Pennsylvania Railroad officials worked today toward "earliest possible" implementation of the biggest merger in the nation's history. It could become reality as early as Feb. 1.

The Supreme Court approved the long contested merger Monday and the only obstacle left is a formal order by a New York three-judge panel. That order was expected this week.

The resulting network will become the largest privately owned railway system in the world, stretching from Boston to St. Louis and from Louisville, Ky., to Michigan's northern tip.

The order was a lifesaver to the bankrupt New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad.

The New Haven, which carries 30,000 commuters to and from their jobs in New York City daily and provides passenger and freight service in New England, will get a $25 million three-year loan by the merged Penn-Central to prevent its threatened collapse.

The rescue of the New Haven is part of the merger as sanctioned by the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC).

Three smaller eastern railroads will be merged with the Norfolk Western system as part of the court-approved arrangement to protect them from operating at a competitive disadvantage with Penn-Central. The three smaller lines are the Erie-Lackawanna, the Delaware & Hudson and the Boston & Maine.

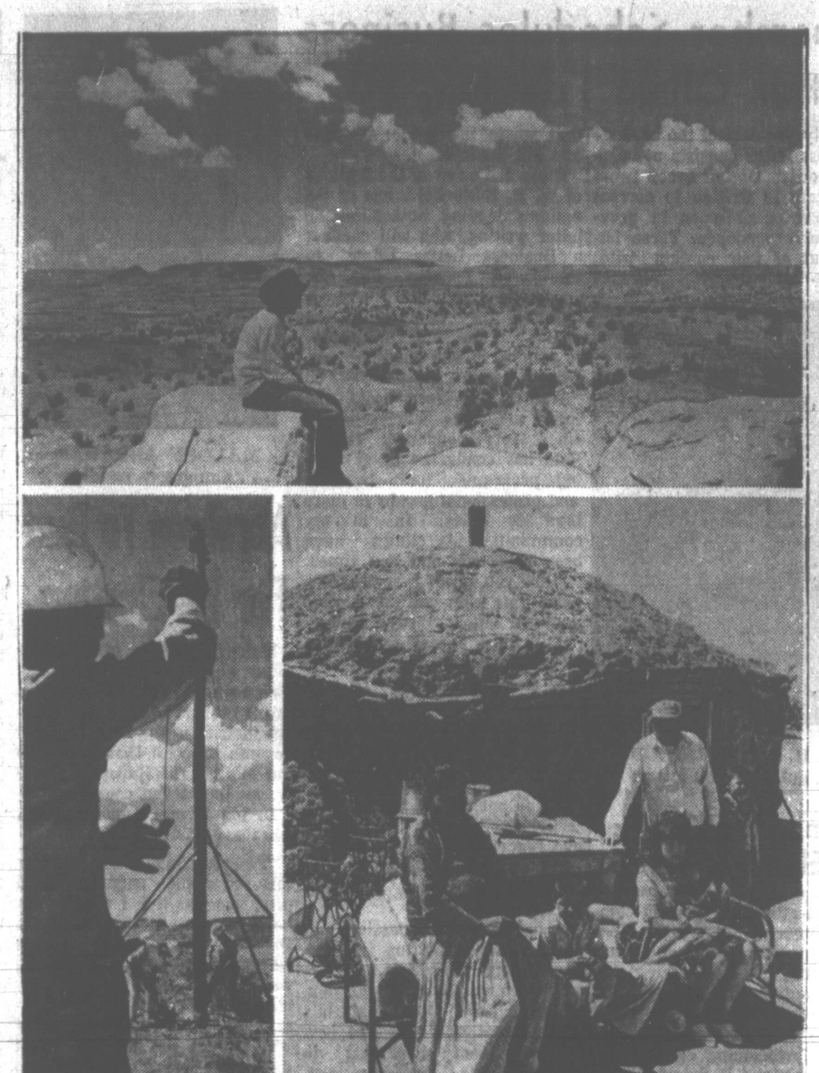

The Supreme Court rejected an appeal by the Reading Railway system which wanted the same protection as the three small lines and turned down an effort by Pennsylvania state interests seeking to block the Penn-Central merger.

The merged system brings together the nation's two largest railroads in terms of the number of passengers carried. The network will operate over 20,000 miles of track in 20 states and two Canadian province and have an operating revenue of some $2 billion.

Beginning salaries of college graduates have increased nearly 30 per cent since 1960, according to the Southern Illinois University Placement Service.

CIVILIZATION has caught up with the Alamo Navajo Indians who have been living on their New Mexico reservation without telephones, electric lights or household appliances. A loan by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Rural Electrification Administration has provided money to build 92 miles of power lines to serve the remote 52,000-acre homeland. Scientist Says US Missiles Could Hit Soviet Cities

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A leading nuclear scientist said Tuesday that the United States' new multiple warhead missiles have made a "lost cause" of the Soviet Union's efforts to protect its cities against nuclear attack.

Dr. Ralph Lapp, a Washington consultant who was assistant director of the university of Chicago laboratory that achieved the first self-sustaining nuclear chain reaction, was speaking of the MIRV, which would put several hydrogen bombs on a single missile. They would be released individually against different targets.

"If half of our 1,710 strategic missiles are converted into multiwarhead configurations," Lapp said, "the United States will have 18 times the kill-capacity required to knock the Soviet Union out of the 20th century.

"Given the nature of modern nuclear attack systems, the Soviet Union is pursuing a lost cause in erecting a ballistic defense system to protect its cities," he added.

"It simply cannot keep pace with the power of the strategic offense. It cannot hope to make a leakproof defense umbrella to ward off determined ballistic attacks."

Lapp spoke in a speech prepared for delivery Wednesday at a convocation at Washington and Jefferson College, Washington, Pa. The text was released in advance in Washington.

His remarks tended to reinforce the current view of U.S. military strategists who generally believe that theories of a limited nuclear war between Russia and the United States were improbable.

They generally now feel that each country's cities would be devastated in the early stages of a nuclear conflict.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Alexander Hamilton Institute, in its Investment Bulletin, notes the dual effect of the proposed curb on the nation's outflow of dollars and renewed pressure for Vietnam peace negotiations is causing investors to engage in substantial switching of their holdings.

Thus, long dormant blue chip industrial and utility stocks have suddenly sprung into the arena of investor interest, driving out many of the specialty glamor stocks. The Institute also believes "that quality growth stocks will continue to out perform the general market, and we advise taking advantage of the current weaknesses in this group."

Washington Window

By RAYMOND LAHR

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A search for a strategic plan to draft Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller for the Republican presidential nomination leads quickly to a survey of the favorite sons whose names may be put before the GOP national convention.

About a dozen governors and senators have announced themselves as favorite-son candidates or indicated that they are willing to be.

There could be more by convention time in August. But if Richard M. Nixon or any other candidates seems to be getting a lock on the nomination before the convention, some of the favorite sons can be expected to bury themselves in the sands of Miami Beach and throw their support to the apparent winner.

A state delegation may present one of its own resident political leaders as a favorite-son candidate as a tribute to his public or political service. More often the device is used to avoid a first ballot choice and to avoid factional fights between major contenders for the nomination.

A favorite-son delegation, tightly held, can also be a source of major bargaining power at the convention.

States which will (or may) have favorite-son candidates at the Republican convention include Arkansas with 18 votes; California, 86; Florida, 34; Illinois, 58; Kansas, 20; Massachusetts, 34, New Jersey, 40; New York, 92; Ohio, 58; Pennsylvania, 64; Tennessee, 28, and Texas, 56. These states will have 588 of the 1,333 convention votes.

If Gov. George Romney of Michigan is the victim of an early knockout eliminating him as a major contender, his 48-vote delegation may be added to the list.

If the Nixon campaign falters, there are almost enough favorite-son delegates now in sight to deny him the nomination. But if he looks good in the state presidential primaries, many of them will be scrambling to make clear that he was always their choice.

In contrast with the Democrats, the Republican national convention recognizes no pre-convention commitments binding delegates beyond those fixed by law in states with presidential primaries. A delegate who deserts a favorite son may risk reprisal at home, but the convention cannot penalize him.

Death Toll Climbs in Sicily In Earthquakes' Aftermath

PALERMO, Sicily (UPI)— The known death toll climbed steadily today in the series of earthquakes that devastated portions of western Sicily and left tens of thousands homeless in freezing weather. Some survivors kept alive with bonfires made from the debris.

The Ministry of Public Works in Rome said more than 250 were known dead and more than 200 persons had been admitted to hospitals. Temblors shook the area again Tuesday, adding to the fears, and the ministry said the final toll would be far higher.

The hilltop town of Montevago, which is Italian for Shadow Mountain, was the hardest hit. It lay as if it were the target of a saturation bombing raid—800 houses destroyed along with all the municipal buildings, banks and schools. The water and sewage systems were gone.

More than 200 of Montevago's 3,000 residents died when a series of quakes hit it Monday.

Other towns in the 230-square mile area on Sicily's western tip near Palermo were almost as hard hit. The hillside town of Santa Margherita Belice, with a population of nearly 8,000, was 95 per cent destroyed.

Only nine bodies were officially counted but it was feared far more lay crushed beneath the heaps of stone and rubble that were once picturesque narrow streets and piazzas.

Another town almost totally destroyed was Salaparuta with a population of 3,000. The smaller town of Poggioreale was hit almost as hard and each was believed to hold more victims.

The homeless coped with the cold weather as best they could. Some joined army and police rescue squads to dig through the rubble for victims. Old men and women with shriveled faces and gnarled hands hunched over bonfires and watched the search.

OFFICER ARRESTED

BANGKOK (UPI)—Police reported Tuesday that an officer of the Free Karen Movement was arrested in Udorn with a consignment of arms believed destined for Burmese rebels. He was identified as Lt. Charn Jabua. Udorn is 350 miles northeast of Bangkok.

King Plans Civil Rights Campaign

ATLANTA (UPI) —Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. said his massive civil disobedience campaign in Washington would begin during the first week of April with a corps of 3,000 trained demonstrators.

King said he dispatched about 30 veteran civil rights workers, most of them Negroes, to nine cities and six states to recruit the 3,000 "initial demonstrators."

King refused to disclose the specific targets on march routes in the Washington campaign. He said they probably will not be revealed until the campaign begins.

King's recruiters went to Boston, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Newark, New York, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, the Carolinas and Virginia.

"This campaign will be nonviolently conceived and nonviolently executed," King insisted. He denied reports that he had told former Congressman Adam Clayton Powell that he had given up the non-violent approach to civil rights.

Pet Deer Develops Unusual Tastes; First Shrubbery, Now Automobiles

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)— It was all right as long as Snoopy, the pet deer at Ft. Sam Houston, roamed around the quadrangle and nibbled at the shrubbery. But now that she apparently has taken a liking for automobiles, her popularity is declining.

Army Spec. 5 Dennett complained Monday he parked his red convertible on the quadrangle and when he returned to drive away found Snoopy in the front seat. She was munching on a magazine Dennett had left on the seat.

Dennett watched her tolerantly for a while but realized something had to be done when she started nibbling at the ignition key. He was convinced when Snoopy grabbed a mouthful of upholstery.

Dennett tried to push Snoopy out of his car but she kept on eating upholstery. Pfc. Clint Nunez came along and grabbed Snoopy's hind quarters while Dennett grabbed her head.

As they pushed and tugged, Snoopy started taking bites out of the soldiers' sweaters and trousers. But they finally evicted her and as Dennett drove away, Snoopy was trying to get at his mirror.

"I'll never park my car in the quadrangle again," Dennett said.

WAVING EXTRADITION

Foreign News Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

An end has just about been written to the farce that has been called the neutrality of Laos.

It is not the fault of Prince Souvanna Phouma who took his office as a neutral between political right and left and has strived manfully to make a reality of the neutrality decreed for Laos at a Geneva conference in the summer of 1962.

Rather, it is further melancholy evidence of the escalating nature of the war for Southeast Asia.

The Geneva accord provided a three-way coalition with Souvanna Phouma as premier. His half-brother, Prince Souphanouvong, leader of the Communist Pathet Lao would be a deputy premier. And a second deputy premier would be Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, leader of rightist forces.

Phoumi Nosavan long since has disappeared along with Brig. Gen. Kong Le, who installed Lao's first neutralist government in a bloodless coup in August, 1960, and who later commanded neutralist forces in the field.

Failed To Cooperate

The ink scarcely was dry on the Geneva accord when it became apparent that the Pathet Lao would not be neutral and that North Vietnam had no intention of honoring the clause ordering removal of all foreign troops.

In May, 1964, the pro-Communist Prince Souphanouvong withdrew recognition of Souvanna Phouma as premier.

In January, 1965, the United States officially admitted its war planes were flying so-called armed reconnaissance over the jungle-covered Ho Chi Minh Trail along Laos's spiny eastern ridge which the North Vietnamese were using to siphon their supplies into the South.

Within Laos itself, the Pathet Lao and North Vietnamese controlled approximately 40 per cent of the country, mostly in the north and east to protect the increasingly important Ho Chi Minh Trail.

Involved not only was Laos but Cambodia.

Of Little Value

Since it is subject to Soviet veto, it appears of doubtful value sa a source of Communist supplies.

Militarily, the Ho Chi Minh Trail through Laos remained the most important since it was the source not only of supplies but of manpower.

And as the United States has stepped up its attacks against the trail so the Communists have taken counter measures.

One is a reported attempt to move the trail farther west since air attacks have made earlier routes impossible.

Another was the first reported North Vietnamese air attack on Laos and the apparent defeat of a Laotian garrison at Nam Bac.

How much further the war is to escalate remains a question. But the United States has warned it will send troops into Laos rather than to permit a Communist takeover.

US Production Up $16.5 Billion

WASHINGTON (UPI)— America's output of goods and services rose $16.5 billion to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $807.6 billion during the fourth quarter of 1967, the Commerce Department reported today.

The department's Office of Business Economics also said preliminary statistics showed that prices over the full year rose 3 per cent—the biggest jump in more than a decade.

The upsurge in the Gross National Product (GNP) brought the total dollar value of U.S. production for the year to $785.1 billion.

The gain for the three-month period came to 2 per cent. The year's total gain was 5.5 per cent, compared to an 8.5 per cent rise in the calendar year 1966.

Southern Illinois University's Journalism department at Carbondale, Ill., is headquarters for the International Conference of Weekly Newspaper Editors.

The Texas cities of Swamp City and Nickel Creek Station both have a population of eight.

Western All-Stars Favored By 7 1-2 in Pro Bowl Sunday

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The Western Conference All-Stars have been installed as 7½-point favorites over the Eastern Conference team in Sunday's 18th National Football League Pro Bowl game.

The oddsmakers went with the West team despite its loss of a key defensive player, Los Angeles Rams safety Eddie Meador, who developed a case of mumps and had to be replaced by rookie Baltimore safety Rick Volk.

Meador had gone through Monday's picture-taking session and light workout. After practice his neck began bothering him and Meador went to a private physician who determined the defensive veteran was suffering from mumps. He was ordered home by the doctor.

Physicians said, however, that the chances were remote that any of the other players might have been exposed to the disease in so short a time.

Although both teams were scheduled to hold their first workout Monday, the West squad was short nine men due to the late arrival of the Green Bay Packers contengent.

Coach Otto Graham's Eastern Conference team previously had suffered its losses when Sonny Jurgensen of the Redskins was forced to drop out because of a sore elbow. He was replaced by Don Meredith of the Dallas Cowboys who won the Eastern Conference championship.

And St. Louis center Bob DeMarco withdrew from the East team when his wife became ill. He was replaced by Jim Ringo, a 15-year NFL veteran from the Philadelphia Eagles.

Houston Coach Hopes Alcindor Will Be Ready

Guy Lewis is expected to get his wish Saturday night—although he may regret it afterwards.

Lewis, the Houston coach, says he hopes Lew Alcindor will be in the lineup when his second-ranked Cugars host UCLA in the Astrodome Saturday night in the biggest collegiate basketball showdown of the season.

"I hope he plays," Lewis said. "We've got a sellout crowd and it would be a shame for him not to play." A crowd in excess of 50,000—the largest ever to see a basketball game—will be on hand.

The word from UCLA coach John Wooden is that Alcindor, whose left eye was injured riday night against California, will be ready to play.

Wooden even said he expected Alcindor would play Portland Thursday night at UCLA before the Bruins travel to Houston for season.

"The injury does not appear to be of a serious nature," Wooden said, "but we've decided to have it examined Monday at the Stein Eye Institute of the UCLA Medical Center Monday just as a precaution."

Alcindor sat out Saturday afternoon's game when UCLA ran its winning streak to 46 straight by routing Stanford 75-63. It was the first game the big center has missed as a collegian. At the same time Houston boosted its season record to 16-0 and its win streak to 17 straight—since losing to UCLA in the NCAA semis last March—with a 98-53 rout of West Texas State.

With Alcindor out of the lineup, the Bruins used 6 foot -7 senior Mike Lynn at center and boasted a balaced scoring attack. Lynn had 17, Lucius Allen 16, Mike Warren 12, Lacey 12 and Lynn Shackelford 11.

Elvin Hayes scored 31 points while Ken Spain added 24 and Don Chaey 15 for Houston.

Baylor's Lead Safe For Awhile

WACO, Tex. (UPI)—The Baylor Bears, thanks to the mid-term exam break, will be on top of the Southwest Conference standings for the next two weeks and the way coach Bill Menefee has them playing they may be there in March.

In his fourth year at Baylor, Menefee's club has surprised the league with three victories in as many conference outings and are in contention for what could be their first league crown since 1950, when they shared the title with Arkansas.

When Darrell Hardy and Jimmy Turner departed from a team that posted a lackluster 6-8 SWC mark last season, most of the pollsters had Baylor pegged for near the bottom of the list this year.

So what happened?

"It's been our sophomores, they have really come through for us," says Menefee. "And then we have shot pretty well, too."

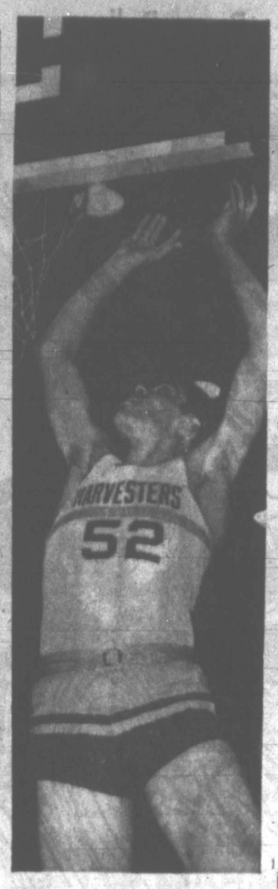

The sophomores Menefee refers to are David Sibley, a 6-5 forward from Houston; Larry Gatewood, a 6-5 forward from Oklahoma City and Tommy Bowman, a 6-4 forward from Athens, Tex.

Four Games Set At Lefors

LEFORS (Spl) — Four Pee Wee basketball games are scheduled to be played Jan. 18 beginning at 7:00 p.m. in the Lefors High School Gym.

Boys and girls will be playing in inter-team games, which are sponsored by the Lefors Optimist Club.

Members of the club will act as coaches. The club sponsor Pee Wee athletic activities all year. President of the Optimists is Ben White. Other members include Dick Sierman, Wayne Moxen, Jesse Ring, Ralph Hicks, Bob Klein, Neal Cates, Chestine Dunn, Dean Crain, Ed Brock, George Smith and Chas. Shelton.

BEAU BOND sinks one of his eight field goals in Pampa's 76-57 victory over Caprock here last night. Bond's 16 points was second only to George Bailey's 22. Bond, who played only three quarters grabbed 13 rebounds.

Fat Cats Don't Win

NEW YORK (UPI)—The secret of the Green Bay Packers' success stares everybody right in the face, yet nobody ever really notices it.

Actually it's not even a secret.

Vince Lombardi talks about it publicly from time to time but hardly anybody ever pays much attention. Hardly anybody outside the Packers.

Here's a hint about that thing which makes Green Bay go:

Dick Williams used it to win a pennant with the Red Sox last season; Cassius Clay is a fanatic about it and credited it for having kept him unbeaten; Red Auerbach preaches it to the Celtics all the time, and Carl Yastrzemski says it made him a new man.

Got the answer yet? No? Well, here's the final hint:

A few of the Packers happen to be bald but not a single one is fat.

Now you got it. The secret of the Packers' phenomenal success is conditioning.

With all this high sounding hocus-pocus about blitzing, keying and following the game plan, it turns out that what the Packers really do best is follow orders. They never have that extra beer or piece of pie. One guess who gives them the orders?

When all is said and done, it develops the world champion Green Bay Packers are nothing but a bunch of weight watchers. They have been since 1959. By one of those curious coincidences that's when they first started winning. By a bigger coincidence yet, that was the year Lombardi first took over.

Walk up to any member of the Packers and glance at his waistline.

Look ma, no fat!

Then take a look at some of the New York Jets, for example. Alongside the Packers, they look like the married men against the single men.

The Jets shouldn't really be singled out although if you haven't seen Sherm Plunkett, their unhurrying 320-pound piece of, blubber, then you've never really seen a dream walking.

Ralph Houk keeps scratching his head wondering what went wrong with the Yankees the last couple of years. Like the reason for the Packers' success, one of the reasons for the Yankees' failure is anything but a secret.

They just went to fat.

One day last summer a member of the Yankees looked around the clubhouse and shook his head.

"Not too many of us are in what you'd call tip-top shape," he said.

He wasn't talking about injuries, either.

Pampa Sweeps Past Caprock For Ninth District Triumph

By CURTIS MONTGOMERY

George Bailey's 22 points and Beau Bond's 13 rebounds paved the way to the Pampa Harvesters' ninth consecutive District 3-4A cage triumph over the Caprock Longhorns, 76-57, here last night.

A scoring duel failed to materialize between Bailey and Caprock's chief gunnery officer, Kenny Carson, who was held to a lone bucket in the first half and nine for the evening.

Johnny Carlos hit a free-toss with 15 seconds gone at the start, putting Pampa ahead, 3-2, and they never looked back.

It would have been a close game, perhaps, if the Longhorns had not had "foulitis". The Harvesters went to the charity line 29 times and made it good 20 times, for 69 per cent. At the same time Caprock hit 7 of 12 attempts for 58 per cent.

Bond's strength on the boards and a scrambling defense which played a more fired up game than would be expected from a team which already has the first half crown sacked up, proved too much for Carson and his orange-clad cagers.

The Harvesters ran up a 26-point lead with 4:45 remaining by 67-41 on a basket by Jim Hollis. Bailey was relieved with 3:20 to go, and fro mthere on the game took on all the markings of a church league game.

A key factor in the victory was the fact Pampa did not make very many careless errors. One aspect of their play, however, could prove to be the margin of defeat against a better team. That was Pampa's habit of shooting a short jumper instead of making a brief drive underneath for an easy lay up.

Bo Lang, Jimmy Cornutt, and Carlos all contributed much to season-win No. 19. The Caprockers' season record is now 8-11 and 3-6 for district.

Bailey remained in second place in district scoring but a new leader showed up in Jack Pierce of Tascosa who hit 29 in a losing effort. Borger upset Tascosa, 54-48. Pierce now has 197 to Bailey's 192.

In other games Monterey finished the first half race with a 7-2 mark, beating Palo Duro, 64-61. Tim Lane's 16 points paced Plainview in the Bulldogs' 78-73 win over Amarillo's Sandies.

Pampa hosts Plainview to open the second round of play this Friday night here.

In the "B" game the Shockers demolished Caprock's Shorthorns by 69-43. Young Jim Gallman canned 28 for the winners as Jim Manning led Caprock with 11.

Minnesota Stays On Top of ABA

By United Press International

The Minnesota Muskies are back on top in the American Bsketball Association's Eastern Division—even if it's only by eight percentage points.

Coach Jim Pilard's team had six players in double figures as the Muskies climbed past idle Pittsburgh with a 128-107 rout of the Oakland Oaks. Mel Daniels led the way with 27 points followed by Ls Hunter and Sam Smith with 19 each, Don Freeman with 8 and Errol Palmer with 14.

Lavern Tart of Oakland scored a game high 36 points, 30 coming in the first half when the Oaks took a 69-64 lead. The Muskies held Oakland to 38 points after intrmission, breaking the game open in the third period.

In other games, the Dallas Chaparrals rallied to down Anaheim Amigos 130-123 and the Houston Mavericks tripped the Indiana Pacers 92-87.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS

TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license, nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself. No more, no less. It is thus consistent with the Human Relations Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Oxygen: Newest Cosmic Worry

When people worry about the population explosion, as more of them are doing nowadays, they usually conjure up the specter of widespread starvation.

But famine may be the least of the consequences of world overpopulation, according to one scientist. Too much human life is endangering the very breath of life itself the earth's supply of oxygen, says Cornell University biologist, Dr. Lamont C. Cole.

Speaking at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science in New York, Cole warned that if the deterioration of the atmosphere is allowed to continue, we may reach a point where our consumption of oxygen outruns the capacity of the plant world to replenish it through photosynthesis.

Oxygen, as everyone knows, is necessary for combustion, from the burning of a candle to the metabolism of food in the body. We are, in effect, burning our oxygen candle from both ends.

At the one end, we are consuming greater amounts of fossil fuels every year to meet the growing needs of a growing population, thereby both using greater amounts of oxygen to burn these fuels and releasing greater amounts of carbon dioxide into the air (not to mention other pollutants).

At the other end, we are annually removing millions of green acres from the photosynthetic cycle through road building and the expansion of cities. To an unknown extent, we are also polluting the oceans, where most of the earth's photosynthesis takes place.

An over-all reduction in the amount of oxygen in the atmosphere would have the same effect as moving the entire population of the world to a higher altitude, says Cole, probably with disastrous consequences.

All of this sounds reasonable, and the average person will not argue with the professor. But except for trying to take shallower breaths for a few seconds after reading about it, he will likely file the warning away in the back of his mind along with all the other cosmic worries he has no personal control over.

What we need is not more doomsday warning but hard facts and concrete proposals.

In this case, just how much is the world's supply of oxygen decreasing every year, if any? What can we do about it, and how much time have we got left to do it in.

The scientist describe. Who but they can prescribe?

A House Divided on Negro Goals

More disturbing news has come out of Detroit. In the aftermath of the rioting in that city last summer, the New Detroit Committee was formed to open lines of communication between leaders of the white and black communities.

Among the white members of the committee are such prestigious names as Henry Ford II, James M. Roche, chairman of General Motors, and Walter P. Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers.

But communication, barely begun, has broken down. Militant black separatists have turned down the committee's offer to a grant of $100,000 because of "too many strings." One of the strings is a condition calling for the militants to cooperate in spending the money with a group of moderate Negroes, who would also receive $100,000. Two of the militants have resigned from the committee.

It's the same old story, says the Rev. Albert B. Cleage Jr., a separatist. "Whites have tried to absorb blacks paternalistically and then on terms set by whites."

The irony of it all is that the committee was about to fund the militants until moderate Negroes objected.

If Negro leaders can't agree among themselves what their goals and tactics should be, if they can't get along among themselves, what are concerned white leaders to do? They are damned if they do and damned if they don't.

The black separatists are rapidly separating themselves not only from white Americans but from the overwhelming majority of black America as well.

It just won't lead anywhere. Not anywhere desirable.

Perception of the Young

The latest opinion polls indicate that President Johnson would beat any of the leading GOP presidential contenders if the election were held right now.

All except one poll. Purdue University's Measurement and Research Center reveals that Sen. Robert Kennedy is the favorite to win both the Democratic presidential nomination and the election.

If high school students could vote; that is, for they were the ones questioned in this survey. The Purdue pollsters say, however, that past polls of high school students accurately mirrored actual adult voting behavior.

Coincidentally, Sen. Jacob Javits of New York has an article in the current Playboy magazine urging the enfranchisement of the nation's 12 million 18- to 21-year-olds. Javits is one of 40 congressmen who have co-sponsored a resolution calling for a constitutional amendment to lower the voting age to 18.

He doesn't think it has a chance, however, because the prospect of these 12 million voters being added to the rolls overnight "scares the political pants off" many local and state officeholders and party functionaries. They visualize a veritable hippie take-over of the country, with everyone over 30 being thrown out of office.

This wouldn't happen, of course. The nation's parties have always been able to assimilate transfusions of new ideas and new people, Javits points out.

Besides, Bobby Kennedy is over 30.

Foodstuffs is riding the balloon again. And it is going up about 3 percent more. The Blouse & Skirt says she has 2 days of the week left over at the end of her money.

One of her troubles is getting meat to flavor the vegetables with. It is all choice cuts and voice prices. There is too many push-carts and not enough ox-hearts.

Somewheres between the low price charged by the cattle raisers and the high price paid by the eaters there's a incredible gap going to the dogs.

One crux is that housewifes won't buy cheap cuts anymore They want everything trimmed right down to the goodie. As a result the packers only get 182 lbs. of saleable meat out of a 300 lb. carcass. So they can't make it.

Two of the biggest meat packers in the country are now trimming their help by half and another one is cutting out altogether.

Now the grocer is only making a penny on the dollar. So where is the money going? Why, to labor and processing—they get about 40 cents, or two-fifths.

So I guess we'll be eating a lot of meat with wings on it. Chickens somehow seem to keep flying on the level.

Sensing The News

By THURMAN SENSING

While many writers are focusing attention on what Congress will do in 1968, it is worthwhile for readers to bear in mind the pattern of congressional attitudes in the old year. Something very ineresting and significant took place in the last session: the conservative coalition came alive again.

When Barry Goldwater's conservative crusade failed in 1964, the Congress received a flood of new liberal members. The liberal atmosphere that followed the last presidential election enabled President Johnson to get just about anything he wanted from Capitol Hill. But the mood of the Congress has changed. Evidence of this appears in an editorial in The New York Times, a powerful voice of liberalism.

"The pattern of voting in the House of Representatives," said The Times, "reveals that the traditional coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats has returned to power. According to an analysis by Congressional Quarterly, the coalition won more roll-call votes this year than at any time in the past decade."

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch, another spokesman for liberalism, recently took the same line as The Times. It angrily condemned the nation's legislators, saying: "This has been a cynical Congress." In a bitter comment, it questioned "Whether the votes in Congress reflect the conscience and the sense of responsibility of affluent America."

Liberals may weep at the rebirth of the conservative coalition, but middle-of-the-road citizens have reason to rejoice. In the last session, the Congress was moving in the direction of greater responsibility and —yes —conscience.

Surely the time is past when informed citizens will buy the sob sister line that Congress is cruel and hardhearted when it decides to stiffen the rules for welfare. The word "welfare" no longer has a halo about it.

Millions of Americans today are aware of the evil of welfare chiseling and of massive freeloading on the taxpayers by people who are ablebodied and capable of holding down a job. Informed citizens also know that stern measures will be needed to deal with those who make a career of welfarism and who believe that they aan indulge in private immorality at public expense, as in the practice of having more and more illegitimate children to pad the monthly welfare check.

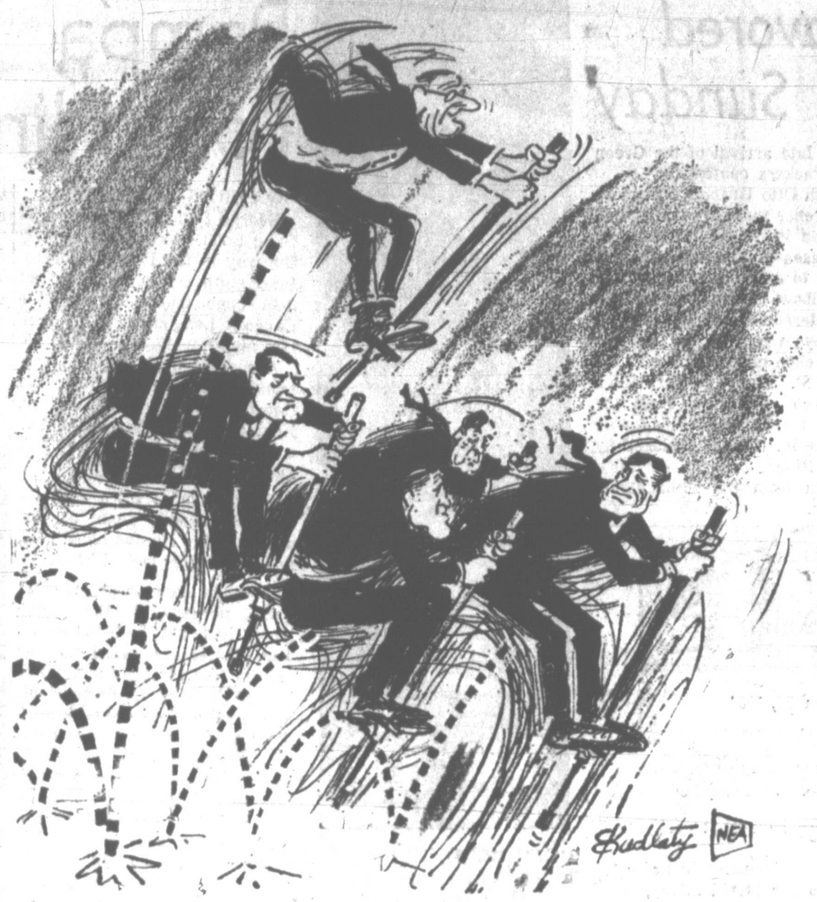

Yes, Congress has a conscience. But it is moving in the direction of greater awareness of the true dimensions of public policy measured in moral terms. For example, Congress in the last session showed signs of realizing that one of the demands of conscience in an affluent America is government spending policy that is in accord with the economic facts of life.

Liberals long have presented unlimited government as a highly moral act — as an example of the do-good philosophy. But it is not good for legislators to authorize spending when income does not equal the outgo of resources. Indeed such spending is irresponsible, and, therefore, immoral. A truly moral government is one that does not waste the people's resources, that prepares for a rainy day, that tries to teach people to practice self-reliance and self-restraint.

If the conservative coalition continues to regain strength in the next session of Congress, it can do a great deal for the quality of life in our country. As a nation, we have in recent years tended toward a reckless, unprincipled waste of our substance. We have not properly curbed our desires, and debt has piled up — not simply on the people of today but on the next generation. This is grievously wrong, for the next generation is handed a burden it should not be asked to carry. A profligate parent is not admired. Nor should a profligate Congress or Executive Branch be considered estimable.

Fortunately, in both major parties are many legislators who want the country to get back on the fiscal straight and narrow, who want responsibility to rule in government. These men, working together in the Congress, form the conservative coalition. They are a great stabilizing force for the nation; and if their numbers are increased in the year ahead the American people will have cause to be glad.

Under Pressure, McCarthy Becoming More 'Activist' As a Leader in February Washington Vietnam Protest

ROBERT ALLEN PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — Senator Eugene McCarthy's anti-Johnson campaign is taking on a new dimension.

The Democratic "peace" candidate has agreed to take part in a Washington protest being organized by a New York based organization called the "Clergy and Laymen Concerned About Vietnam."

This anti-Vietnam war group is set to invade the nation's capital on February 5 and 6 to take part in a worldwide campaign to protest U. S. involvement in the war and to seek an immediate halt to U. S. bombing of North Vietnam.

McCarthy, who will address one of the organization's strategy sessions during the protest, is listed among the "leadership for the mobilization" in the New York group's literature.

Other leaders include Dr. Martin Luther King, who is organizing his own demonstrations to "disrupt" government here in the spring; Father Daniel Berrigan, of Cornell University; Rabbi Arthur Lelyveld, president of the American Jewish Congress, and Dr. Harvey G. Cox, associate professor at Harvard Divinity School.

In addition to trying to rally congressional support against the Vietnam war, this group of clergymen plan to use their protest "to make clear our concern for young men of draft age who in conscience cannot fight in Vietnam."

FIGURE- HEAD CANDIDATE — McCarthy's decision to participate in this 'direct action' 'anti-war protest came after his main financial backers threatened to withhold their support if the Minnesota Democrat didn't become more of an "activist" in protesting the war.

Financial pressure was also the reason behind McCarthy's decision to reverse himself and enter the March 12 New Hampshire primary.

As one of McCarthy's longtime legislatives aides, who is not too happy about the campaign, explained it: "The senator had virtually no choice. He entered the primary after his chief financial backers threatened to withhold their financial support if he didn't make the race. They told him that nobody would take his candidacy seriously if he did not enter the nation's first primary."

McCarthy is now being pressured by these same financial backers to broaden his campaign to attract more Negro voters. They are demanding he publicly support King's coming massive demonstrations of civil disobedience here and Adam Clayton Powell's campaign to regain his seat in the House.

SKINNING THE CAT —House Democratic leaders are planning new strategy to try to speed up action on the President's legislative program so Congress can adjourn by August 1.

In an unannounced pledge to the President, the House leaders have agreed to by-pass important legislative committees if necessary to expedite legislation.

These revolutionary tactics are revealed in a letter that President Johnson sent Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., late in December, which reads:

"As for the Congress, I join you in urging the committees to hold early hearings on new and continuing legislation.

"I have been informed by the House Leadership that next year (1968), if legislative committees of the House do not act promptly on measures within their jurisdiction, the Appropriations Committee will go before the Rules Committee and request authority for floor action on appropriations prior to authorization."

One veteran House committee chairman, after being shown the President's letter, remarked:

"That's news to me. If that is for this session, it will touch off a major revolt among legislative committee chairmen. They won't sit still and see their committees by-passed in that fashion."

MAKING A SECRETARY — Strong pressure is being exerted on President Johnson to appoint Washington attorney Clark Clifford as successor to Defense Secretary McNamara.

Clifford, who served in the White House during the Truman Administration, is being pushed by former Secretary of State Dean Acheson and Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas.

Although neither man holds an official position in the Johnson Administration, Acheson and Fortas have become the President's closest advisers on foreign and domestic policies from outside government. Along with Clifford, they helped the President shape his present Vietnam war strategy.

In pushing Clifford as McNamara's replacement, Acheson and Fortas are trying to block the President from going outside the Democratic party and picking "another Republican" for the key Cabinet post. Such a possibility has been mentioned by the President in his discussions with Democratic congressional leaders.

At several informal White House sessions recently, Acheson and Fortas have argued the new Pentagon head should be a trusted Democrat who knows something of politics, since the war will dominate the coming presidential campaign. Clifford played a key role in Truman's 1948 campaign.

H. L. Hunt Writes

"BRIDGE-BUILDING" TO OUR ENEMIES

There is no excuse for using the services of the U.S. Government and its tax dollars to promote trade with Soviet Russia when, according to figures released by Congressman Melvin Laird of Wisconsin, Russia supplies more than 80 per cent of the war materials going to North Vietnam.

This incredible policy, called "bridge-building" by the Administration, claims that by dealing with Russia we will somehow soften the hearts of their leaders and make them more kindly disposed toward us. Such an argument sounds as though it might have been made by a naive and innocent child rather than by persons highly placed in our State Department.

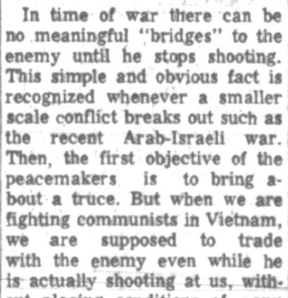

In time of war there can be no meaningful "bridges" to the enemy until he stops shooting. This simple and obvious fact is recognized whenever a smaller scale conflict breaks out such as the recent Arab-Israeli war. Then, the first objective of the peacemakers is to bring about a truce. But when we are fighting communists in Vietnam, we are supposed to trade with the enemy even while he is actually shooting at us, without placing conditions of any kind on the aid we are giving.

Every month Russian and Polish ships deliver 178,500 tons of cargo to North Vietnam, according to Congressman Laird's figures. All of our trade with Russia makes it that much easier for the Kremlin to send this aid to Ho Chi Minh.

The bridges we are building to Moscow by this fantastic policy are highroads of death for our men in the jungles of Southeast Asia.

A thought for the day: Poet Walt Whitman said "once fully enslaved, no nation, state, city of this earth, ever afterward resumes its liberty."

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

There were 81,253 local governments in the United States at the beginning of 1967, a decrease of almost 10,000 since 1962, reports The World Almanac. The decrease came mainly in the number of school districts, which dropped from 34,678 in 1962, to 21,782 in 1967. This reduction of over one-third was predominantly the result of widespread school reorganization and consolidation for reasons of efficiency.

The Manion Forum

By MARILYN MANION

Maybe This Year Will Be Better

The New Year has begun—and already it is old. Thousands of New Year's resolutions have no doubt by now been broken.

But before we leave the reflective mood that always accompanies the annual end and beginning of the calendar, we ought quite seriously to hope for a happy new year. God willing, it will be happier than the last.

It was not a very good year. Race riots in our cities—and the evidence that government-employed "poverty workers" helped instigate them. "Practically all the agitators, the snipers and the arsonists who have been indentified have well-paying jobs, many of them with the Anti-Poverty Corps," declared Dean Clarence Manion over the Manion Forum network last August.

The announcement came last year that crime has risen, since 1960, 88 per cent — while the population increased only 10 per cent. It was a year in which criminals were told their "rights" — and law-abiding citizens discovered that they were less safe than the criminals.

The war in Vietnam took its toll in American lives throughout 1967. The Reds continue to kill our boys as we go to press. Yet, our Administration will not make a decision as to whether to win or get out. Instead, it pursues the "middle way" — an agonizing, drawn-out, no-win war. "There is no such thing as a merciful kind of war," stated Jack Gore, Editor of the Fort Lauderdale News, as he spoke over the Manion Forum in March of 1967. "War has always been a hellish and a dirty business, and we don't make it any less hellish or less dirty by stretching it out over a longer period than necessary because we don't want to employ sufficient force to bring it to a military conclusion."

The Communists went about their grisly tasks elsewhere in the world last year. Cuba, an armed enemy camp, was the scene last summer of a meeting of Communists from all over the world. They met to plan revolutions in Africa, Latin America and maybe even the U.S.A. Yet, at this moment, we may be honoring a reputed "deal" between Khrushchev and President Kennedy, to the effect that the U.S.A. will never invade, help invade or even allow invasion of Communist Cuba.

The Soviets and Eastern European Communists spent last year sending supplies to North Vietnam so that Ho Chi Minh could have the wherewithal to kill more American boys. But our government has actively encouraged trade with the Reds—even removing from the strategic list such "innocent" items as scrap iron.

Here in the United States the Communist Party conceived, organized and successfully brought off a "Vietnam Week" to protest the war. American Reds took part in other such rallies last year as well, hoodwinking thousands of American youths into aiding the enemy. A few months after the disgusting spectacle of "Vietnam Week," our Supreme Court declared that Communists cannot lawfully be barred from working in United States defense plants.

We could go on and on with this doleful recitation——but doing so would be of no avail. The only way to change things for the better is to accent the positive. Fortunately, the American people have a chance to save their country this year—for it is an election year. The question is, do they know enough to act in their own behalf?

Your Dental Health

By DR. WM. LAWRENCE

'Dead Teeth' Myths Have Been Disproved

Harry F. of Pittsburgh, Pa., writes: "I've heard of the Erie Canal, Panama Canal and, for a few days last June, the Suez Canal, but only recently have I heard of the Root Canal.

"My upper right first molar has three of them, and each one had a nerve. Each nerve was removed with a thin wire that had lots of tiny fish-hooks on it, and each canal was filled. My dentist told me that if I didn't have all this done I'd lose the most important tooth in my head.

"And do you know what else I found out? Each canal cost $50 to treat. These have to be the most expensive canals extant."

O.K., Harry F. But what are the alternatives? If your tooth was extracted, a bridge would be necessary, preferably a fixed bridge, and that would cost even more. It also involves defacing other teeth, perfectly innocent teeth that would be needed to hold the bride in place.

If no replacement was made, teeth that surround and oppose the space created by extraction tend to shift position, often resulting in more major dental problems. Loss of even one tooth can destroy one's chewing apparatus and cause associated ills, such as periodontal and hinge joint problems.

Yes, teeth are worth saving. And it needn't cost $50 per canal. If, as you suggest, $50 is the average fee, then very few dentists ever hit the average. Usual fees are considerably less, depending on where you live and who does the work.

One reason for high cost of root canal therapy is that many appointments are usually necessary for proper treatment. But already new techniques have shortened this process. Many teeth can now be treated in one sitting. Some single-rooted teeth can be treated by cutting out the abscess and filling the canal from the root end. This is called apicoectomy with retrograde filling. It's not a brand-new technique, but it's newly refined and many more teeth are now treated in this way.

Sofe people think "dead teeth" are dangerous to one's health and, in any case, they don't last long. Both these myths have been disproved long ago. Root canal treated teeth last as long as vital teeth and are equally useful as support for bridges and crowns; and it's never been proved that they are potential foci of infection.

Direct Route To Shortages

(Industrial News Review)

There is a strong liklihood that continued inflation, soaring deficits and lack of the necessary self-discipline to cut government costs will inevitably lead to a "demand" for price controls. The illusion will be encouraged that if prices are too high, all that is necessary is price-fixing. But, as experience should have proven long ago, when price controls are imposed it means that the prices of certain items are fixed at a lower level than supply and demand would have set. When that happens, demand soon outstrips supply.

Thus, price controls are a direct route to shortages and black markets. This will always be so for the reason that the natural law of supply and demand is immutable. In the long run, there is but one way to control prices—get the government's financial house in order. Just taxing the people more and more is no guarantee the government will retrench.

Hollywood In Review

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—There is only one thing more rare than a day in spring, and that is a television show that has been on the air 10 years or more.

With a single exception, those shows that have survived a full decade of prime time on the tube have starred an outstanding personality.

Only Drama

"Gunsmoke" is the only drama among the handful, and the venerable horse opera is now in its 13th year.

All time champ is Ed Sullivan. The stone-faced one is celebrating his 20th year on the air this season with the naming of a New York theater after him. Many attribute the Sullivan success to his lack of professional polish. He is someone with whom we peasant are able to identify.

Not far behind Sullivan and his "rilly big shew" is Red Skelton, the master clown, with 15 years to his record.

There is no explaining Skelton's weekly high ratings and longevity except that he must be the funniest man on television, otherwise he would have gone the way of a dozen lesser comedians.

Off and On

Jackie Gleason, off and on, has had a 15-year run on television. The round one has had a variety of formats, but has managed to hold in there year after year.

The only female on the list of 10-year veterans is Lucille Ball, another strong personality who has managed to survive 16 years, although not in an unbroken chain, as have Sullivan, Skelton and "Gunsmoke."

Curiously, one thing all these shows have in common is the same network—CBS. NBC-TV hasn't a single show that has shown a 10-year run, although "Bonanza" is now in its ninth year.

ABC-TV has one member of the exclusive little club, Lawrence Welk, who has a dozen years behind the bubble machine.

Ambulance Service Available Over State Even After Funeral Homes Quit

United Press International

When many funeral homes quit the ambulance business, contending the wage and hour law forced them out, Texas cities responded with a wide range of approaches. Every town of any size has ambulance service, a United Press International survey showed today.

The Texas Funeral Directors and Embalmers Association (TFDEA) said it knows of no Texas community without emergency ambulance service.

In some cities, there is still compeittve service.

Edward McGuire, executive secretary of TFDEA, said only about 45 per cent of the organization's 550 members still operated emergency ambulance service.

Why They Quit

When the government ruled any funeral home employe who devoted more than 20 per cent of his time to ambulance work was covered by the wage and hour law, many funeral homes quit ambulance service because they felt they could not operate successfully with the increased expenses.

Texas communities set up services ranging from contract or franchise agreements with funeral homes or private ambulance companies, to community—operated services through fire and police department. In a few towns, funeral homes still compete for emergency ambulance calls.

In Fort Worth, a Wichita, Kan., company operates under a contract with the city that calls for the police to refer all calls for emergency ambulance service to the firm. A spokesman for the ambulance company said today the arrangement was not presently profitable and the company was negotiating with the city for a subsidy.

McGuire said Houston and Dallas were the only two major areas where the franchise was held by a funeral home. In Dallas, the funeral home holding the contract charges $22.50 for an emergency run. The contract holder is entitled to $5 for every trip where nobody is taken to a hospital and is paid $11.25 for every call the holder cannot collect on within 45 days.

In Brownwood, one funeral home provides the only emergency ambulance service in Brown County and receives no subsidy.

McGuire said a suit was pending in Austin where an exclusive franchise similar to the Dallas and Brownwood agreements was awarded. He said the funeral home which was not awarded the franchise had filed a test case to determine if the city council has the right to grant an exclusive franchise.

Emergency ambulance service is operated by the fire department in Lufkin and by the police department in Kingsville.

Kingsville officials said they felt the city was doing a better job than the funeral homes had thus lives had been saved.

In Beaumont, three funeral homes compete for emergency ambulance business.

McGuire said ambulance service had money problems even before the wage and hour ruling. He said funeral homes often could collect only 40 per cent of their bills.

Funeral homes still in the ambulance business said their prices had not risen, but some contractors said they raised prices to put the ambulance business on a paying basis, because they had no other line to help absorb costs.

NO MORE LION'S ROAR

Britain Abandons Role As World Power

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Britain has abandoned her role as a world power.

Henceforth her future will lie in Europe.

British Prime Minister Harold Wilson's announcement before the House of Commons came after more than 31 hours of agonizing soul-searching by the British cabinet and contained little that had not been expected.

It simply was the official seal on the end of an empire, upon which the sun long ago had set.

But even though the harsh steps by which Wilson hoped to restore his nation's staggering economy had been anticipated, many of the repercussions still were to be felt.

His announcement of cuts in Britain's health services brought angry cries of "resign" from members of his own Labor party.

Many Concerned

Foreknowledge of the defense cuts and England's withdrawal from east of Suez had aroused consternation in Australia, New Zealand, Singapore and Malaysia.

Singapore Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew suggested loss of British protection might lead Singapore to reassess her own position, especially in the economic field.

The prospect of the disappearance of British naval power in the Persian Gulf led to worried consultations between Iran and Saudi Arabia.

For the United States, it meant the loss of a billion dollar sale of the F111 fighter-bomber for which a payment of $130-million in penalties would not constitute reimbursement.

For Wilson it was both a final admission of defeat and the issuance of a new challenge.

Took Difficult Step

It was at 9:45 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 18, 1967 that Wilson took the step he said he would never take. He reduced the value of the pound sterling from $2.80 to $2.40.

Today's announcement was meant to make devaluation produce the gains that were intended—to progress from an estimated $720 million deficit in 1967 to a $400 million surplus by 1969.

A number of reasons have been advanced for the situation.

One is that Britain herself realized too late her own decline as a world power.

Another is that she placed too much faith in her economic ties to the commonwealth.

And still another is that both British labor and management failed to move with the times.

Whatever the reasons, the facts are that as members of the European Common Market advanced their Gross National Product by more than 5 per cent, the British economy was advancing by only a little more than 1 per cent.

Annually she was spending nearly $1.5 billion to maintain troops in far away places and to extend economic aid to developing countries. The load was second only to that carried by the far richer United Sates.

Refused To Join

Through the centuries she had eliminated every challenger to arise in Europe and after World War II she continued to believe in her own invincibility, refusing to join Europe's first bid for unity in the European coal and steel community and later the European Common Market.

When she did decide to join the common market, Charles de Gaulle of France declared it was too late.

Historians place the beginning of Britain's decline at the end of the 19th century.

Even as Queen Victoria ruled an empire upon which the sun never set and Britannia ruled the waves, Prime Minister Benjamin Disraeli complained of "these wretched colonies" as a "millstone round our necks."

Today, Wilson assesses Britain's new role:

"At home it means a cutback of excessive demand, both as individuals and as a community. Abroad it means reassessing our role in the world and realistically limiting our commitments and outgoings to our true capacities.

"On this basis, provided our recovery is soundly based and lasting we can go forward."

VACCINATION CEREMONY

ACCRA, Ghana (UPI)—Dr. H. William Stewart, surgeon general of the United States, met with government chief Gen. Joseph Ankrah of Ghana Monday and later witnessed a ceremony marking the 25 millionth vaccination against smallpox and measles. Stewart was in Ghana for a smallpox eradication campaign.

Diamonds were strictly a male ornament until a few centuries ago, worn only by kings and exalteed churchmen.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Andorra, a 175-square-miie state between France and Spain in the Pyrenees Mountains, is semi-independent, owing only nominal allegiance to the president of France and the Spanish bishop of Urgel, says The World Almanac. Andorra, with a total population of 11,000 Catalan-speaking people, has a 16-man police department, its only armed force. Her "arms" budget is about $5 a year—for blank bullets used on state occasions.
