A $50,000 Investment, New 'Natural Draft' Incinerator Here Is First Of Its Kind To Be Used By A Texas City. Officials Say The Big Burner Will Help Spruce Up The Dumpgrounds, Eliminate Wind-Whipped Refuse And Pay For Itself In 10 Years.

City Incinerator Fires Tuesday

Hereford becomes the first municipality in Texas Tuesday to use the "natural draft" incinerator for trash disposal — a $50,000 investment which city officials say will pay for itself in 10 years in land savings alone.

City Manager Dudley Bayne said the facility, erected in the last month near the dumpground entrance east of Hereford, is capable of handling the town's garbage disposal needs for at least 10 years.

The 68-foot-high burner, with a 40-ton daily capacity (more than twice the amount now hauled daily by city trucks), will reduce by about 90 per cent the amount of material which the city has been burying.

THE RAW GARBAGE will be charred by the burner, a huge, double-walled, conical building laced with vents and blower outlets to supply the blazing trash with oxygen. Ashes and contents which will not burn (tin cans, bottles, etc.) will later be scooped up and buried.

The savings in land area needed to bury the ashes, as compared with the whole garbage, will extend the usefulness of the 80-acre site, purchased in 1958 and now about one-fifth consumed, far beyond what was previously expected.

UP TO NOW the city's disposal method entailed the dumping of the trash trucks' loads (which now run about 11 trips per day by the packer-type units and 15 trips by Dempster units) into open pits.

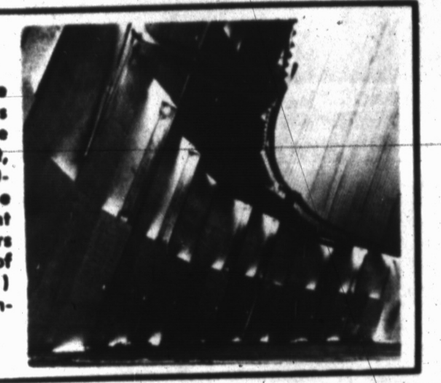

A bulldozer operator then packs the garbage by driving his machine over the refuse, breaking bottles and collapsing cans. A layer of dirt is bladed in, and the contents again are packed. The process is repeated until

Vandals Hit Stores, School

Beer-bottle tossing vandals took aim at three Hereford businesses Thursday night, and intruders at Hereford High School left the principal's offices in shambles.

A Main St. business was pilfered Friday night.

Police had little more than a smeared, hastily-applied footprint, left when the culprit apparently tried to smash a plate-glass window out, to work with in the rash of petty incidents.

POLICE SAID someone entered Martin's Ready-To-Wear, 138 North Main, sometime between 7:30 p.m. Friday and 7:30 a.m. Saturday, taking records and other items valued at more than $200.

Vandals hurled beer bottles through three large plate glass windows at local businesses, causing damage estimated at almost $700.

And someone dumped contents of several file drawers on the floor of the high school principal's office and stole a pay telephone from the office.

LESSER LOSSES resulted from incidents at the Bull Barn and Stanton Junior High School and a theft from a rural area near Hereford last week.

Large plate glass windows at Lankford's Flowers, The Ink Spot, and Carl McCaslin Lumber Co. were broken Thursday night.

Police questioned a suspect in connection with the window-breaking incidents. He was later released after convincing officers he was not involved.

City Building For April Hits $550,000 Mark

More than a half-million dollars in building permits was issued by the city of Hereford in April, bringing the four-month total to $2,630,910 — a million dollars more than the comparative figure in 1964's record-setting pace.

The permits written by Henry Benson, city tax assessor-collector, totaled $556,750.

A MOTEL, TO be constructed as part of a motel-restaurant complex at U. S. Hwys. 385 and 60, accounted for nearly half of the April total. The permit was issued to Owen

Water Lack During Peak Usage Eyed

City Manager Dudley Bayne is guardedly talking of possible water rationing by the city this summer for lawn and garden use during times in the day when water demand is heaviest.

"If we keep on with this drought, it looks like we will have a problem," he says.

FOURTEEN WELLS are now producing the water for municipal consumption, and Bayne says that a 15th well will be dug this month in south Hereford and will be ready for the summer peak consumption periods.

Peak use comes when the vegetable sheds start operation, air conditioning makes it biggest demands and lawns soak up large amounts in low-moisture periods. The problem lies with the possible inability of the city's wells to maintain adequate pressure during times of high demand.

Plans For County Birthday Fete Dropped – At Least For Moment

A 75th anniversary celebration for Deaf Smith County this year apparently was ruled out Wednesday afternoon by about a dozen persons invited to hear a presentation by a historical pageant promotion company.

The suggestion of a celebration, in honor of the county's 75th birthday which occurs in October, was first made by an official of the John B. Rogers Co. of Fostoria, Ohio.

Sam Grogg, a Rogers vice president, spoke to about 25 of the town's more active civic leaders and residents about three weeks ago. Then, he agreed to draw up an outline of a celebration and survey the potential success from the company's viewpoint.

An invitation went out to about 60 persons to hear Grogg's report Wednesday afternoon, but only 12 attended the Hotel Jim Hill meeting.

Chamber of Commerce Manager Bill Thompson said leadership for such a celebration "just hasn't materialized" and suggested that the event possibly be considered for June of 1966 when the town's schedule might not be so crowded.

Thompson said Grogg had made several contacts since the first meeting and he, too, could uncover little enthusiasm for a celebration.

As for the reputation of the Rogers Co., Thompson said he and others in Hereford had investigated their background and found it satisfactory.

TWO DIRECTORS NAMED

Annual Meeting Of Co-Op Draws 300

Some 300 Deaf Smith County Electric Cooperative members registered for the annual meeting of the organization here Thursday.

And more than 1,100 persons were fed at the noon barbecue.

Two new DSCEC directors were named and two students were awarded a trip to Dallas after winning finals of an oratorical contest.

MAURA McANDREWS, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. McAndrews of Hereford, and Tommy Sherley, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Sherley of Friona, were named to represent the DSCEC at a statewide contest in competition with some 100 other winners in Dallas on June 4.

Named to the DSCEC board of directors were Raymond Higginbotham, who was re-elected to the board, and A. W. Anthony, a Parmer County farmer.

Anthony replaces A. W. Gober, also from Parmer County, who is retiring from the board.

THE COOPERATIVE refunded checks totaling $194,000 to persons who were members of the co-op in 1954. The funds represent money taken in as electrical charges and not needed to meet costs of running the three-county rural electric system.

Regulations do not permit the co-op to return the unused funds for 10 years.

A Black community woman won the major prize awarded in a series of drawings held during the day. She was Mrs. T. L. Cresley, who selected a refrigerator from among the five appliances available.

Regular Meeting Of City Commission Set

The Hereford city commission meets at 7:30 p.m. Monday with a zoning case, a petition for annexing two more blocks of the Green Acres addition and the possible hiring of a college trainee on the agenda.

IN CAR CRASH

Youth Sustains Head Injuries

A 20-year-old Hereford youth, Mike Ferguson, was listed in fair condition at Deaf Smith County Hospital following an accident which occurred here shortly before midnight Friday.

Ferguson suffered facial lacerations and a concussion when the auto he was driving crashed into the rear of a parked auto on U.S. Hwy. 385 near its intersection with Seventh St.

A 17-YEAR-OLD companion, Hedy Bailey, was also treated for lacerations following the mishap.

Police said Ferguson's 1962 Mercury crashed into the left rear of a 1952 Chevrolet belonging to C. B. Sherrill of Rt. 3, Hereford.

Mrs. Sherrill said the auto had run out of gas. She had left the car to go to a service station when the mishap occurred.

Police estimated damage to the Ferguson auto at $1,000. The Sherrill car was termed a total loss.

Shorty Of Main Street

The Short Pompadour, The Feather's Edge, The Flattop — Pint-sized Bill Knox, Barbering From the Same Cubbyhole For 20 Years, Has Clipped His Way Through 'Em All.

Hair cuts went up in Hereford Saturday — but not at the little cubicle on Main St. where "Shorty" Knox has hung his shingle for the last 20 years.

Knox, a diminutive (he stands five feet, one inch tall and sometimes has to stand tip-toed to reach more lofty tufts), mustachioed veteran of 36 years of clipping, decided to stay put.

IT IS NOT the first time that William H. Knox has bucked the tide.

Sitting in one of his two "old-timey" barber chairs last week, 61-year-old Bill Knox remembered stoically his rugged first year of barbering in Hereford. The year was 1929.

The town's residents, hard-pressed for the necessities, discovered that a trip to the barbershop could be postponed up to three months at a time. Such sabbaticals were hard on the barber. Knox cut his charge to 25 cents, disregarding that many of the town's other barbers were holding the line.

"AND THEY MADE it," concedes Knox. "I had to fight all through that depression and, boy, it was a knotty thing, too."

Today, pint-sized Bill Knox is a Main St. fixture. For hours on end, interrupted only by the paced entrance of his longtime customers, he sits by his front window and contemplatively watches the downtown scene.

He has a sign in his window: "If you can't come in, smile as you go by."

He will, and usually tacks on a friendly wave, too.

His modestly-furnished quarters (where he has served a tenaciously-faithful clientele for 20 years) exudes the tonic-fragranced odors that waft from a collection of thin-necked bottles, lined up on a tarnished marble shelf. Their labels are emblazoned with gaudy trade names like Budda, Pinol, Osage Rub and Lucky Tiger — and lavishly splashed into Knox's poised palm, they make a man's scalp feel good like a hair tonic should.

THIS SCENE IS basically the same as when Knox gave his first haircut.

But equipment has changed. When he was trimming necks in the Depression, he slaved

With studied devotion to his task—and an occasional stretch of his five feet, one inch frame—"Shorty" Knox gives a longtime customer "the usual" in his Main St. Shop.

away with hand-cramping manual hair clippers.

"Boy, you're hands got tired, and it got tedious," he frowns.

Now, he uses a variety of motor-driven snippers that — zip, zip — make quick work of a bushy head.

Working with scissors—which used to be a mainstay, undoing the damage done by the crude, cumbersome clippers — now is at a minimum, their work replaced by the mechanized clippers, Knox confides.

"USE TO, YOU know, we used the old mug and brush," he notes, glancing around the shop as if to refresh himself with the changing times. "Now, we have the lather maker, but we still use the straight razor and strap."

He makes change from a bulky, ornately-decorated cash register that looks suspiciously like it once swallowed gold pieces at the Long Branch. "There's been four or five nickels go through there," chuckles Knox. "I could probably sell it for an antique if I wanted to. But I think I'll keep it as long as it'll work."

One of the things that the cash register has outlasted is a "store-bought" shave. "Too many electric razors, too many modern bathrooms, too many safety razors — they can do it so much faster themselves," sums up Knox.

HAIR STYLES have changed, too.

Knox, whose solemn expression erupts into a toothy smile and a high-pitched chuckle with only modest provocation, can click them off:

The military cut (where the hair was clipped close on the sides and back) was in its heyday when he graduated from barber school in Dallas (1927). Then came the short pompadour, the full cut and its modification, the half-shingle. The feather's edge, the crewcut and now the flattop round out the gallery.

The rotund-faced little barber does not make much of a hairdresser's model, he points out, with ill-disguised mirth. His grayish-white locks, which he says were once wavy, have receded far to the side.

BUT HAVING hair of his own is not a prerequisite for a barber. Knox admittedly has slowed down from the days, as he remembers them, when he cut hair some Saturday nights until 1 a.m. in the morning.

But he is not comtemplating retirement at 65. "If his health is good, I've seen barbers that worked until they were 80 years old," he avers. "Of course, they were few and far between. Fact of the matter is I'm going to work just as long as I'm able."

Barbering won't make a man rich, Knox says, "but you can make a little money if you try."

window at Lankford's apparently tried first to kick in the window, investigators said. Footprints were found about three feet above the ground on one of the large windows.

But beer bottles were apparently used to shatter the windows at all three locations.

At Hereford High School, someone apparently hid in the building, then entered the principal's office. The building was open until about 10 p.m. Thursday, officials said.

THE INTRUDER removed the pin from hinges on the two doors leading into the principal's office.

Contents of several file drawers were strewn about the office, but the only thing noted missing was a pay telephone which was ripped from the wall of the office.

In a break-in at Stanton Junior High School, a coin-operated dispenser was stolen from a rest room. Investigators said entry was gained by breaking a window which led to the room. Nothing else was disturbed in the building, police said. The theft occurred Thursday night.

THIEVES WHO entered Martin's Ready-To-Wear stole more than $100 worth of records, plus a clock radio, more than 20 metal Crucifixes, about 20 men's rings, and a pair of men's ripple sole shoes, size six.

Police said entry was gained by ripping a hole in a screen covering on an air vent over the rear door of the building.

In another vandalism incident Friday night, someone broke the windshield and three door windows of a car belonging to Primivito Garcia of Rt. 3, Hereford.

GARCIA SAID the incident occurred while his auto was parked at the Bull Barn Friday night.

Sheriff's deputies investigated the theft of two tires and wheels from a butane trailer belonging to Griffin and Brand Thursday night. The trailer was parked about two miles northwest of Hereford.

SAYS PROGRESSIVE YOUNG NEWSPAPER BOY

'Happiness Is A Paid Customer'

By LARRY FUHRMANN
Staff Writer

"The Littlest Businessman" can aptly describe the lad who, twice a week or once every day, is following a common profession among boys in their early teens — throwing newspapers.

Braving the elements with a usually commendable sense of loyalty, the paperboy learns how to meet obligations and how to accept his responsibility in his usually first introduction to a world of business. He works both independently and as an employe.

Out of Hereford's paperboy population (approximately 40), a typical example is Joe Walker, 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Howard Walker of 121 Beach St. Joe is following in the footsteps of an older brother who also threw a route — with a younger brother now in the business.

HE'S NOW BEEN throwing the Hereford Brand for more than two years. With a progressive attitude he has built his route, located in northwest Hereford, into "big business" with 180 customers.

That's a lot of customers for any boy to handle, but the problem was solved when Joe asked for his route to be split. Now he has 100 and knows them all personally.

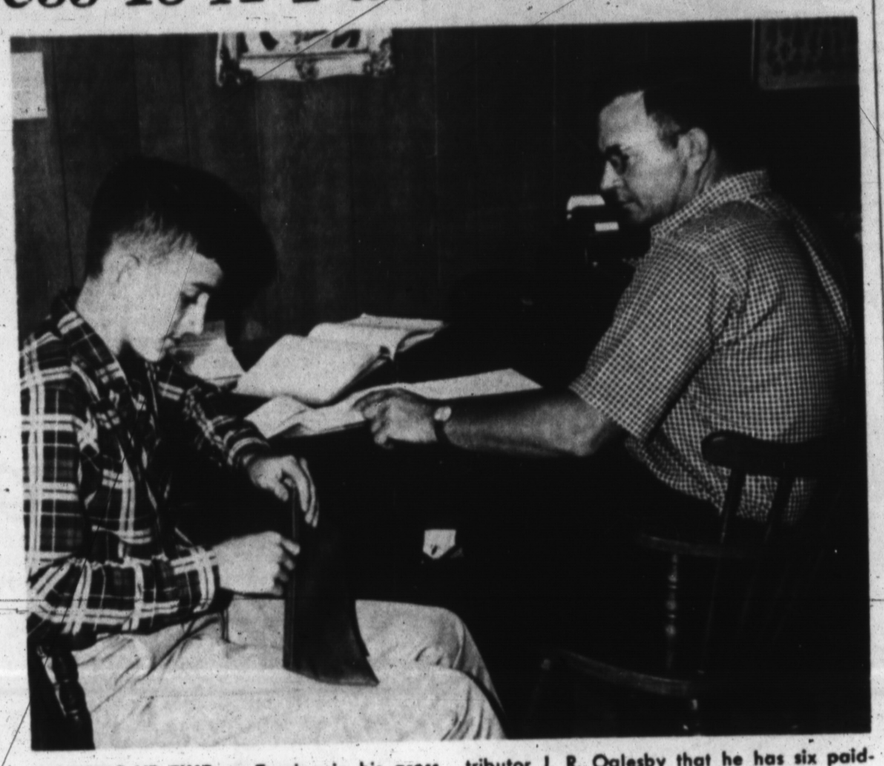

With his salesmanship Joe rounded up 30 new customers last year and as a reward for his efforts he received a trip to Carlsbad Caverns.

STARTING AS A substitute, Joe literally has been all over town as he carried papers for boys who needed him. He was 12 when he got his permanent route, and has been on the same one ever since.

There's nothing vague in Joe's mind when he explained just why he's delivering papers — "Experience, cash, and getting to know people better". His cash will send him to Philmont Scout Ranch this summer.

Dogs, the traditional adversity of the paperboy and the postman, have not given Joe any major trouble. He can only talk about one who "didn't like to see you move too fast."

A glass storm door, his inanimate enemy, influences a boy's aim — Joe has a perfect record. He's never broken one.

CHECKING-UP TIME — Turning in his gross collections on the fifth of each month, here Joe Walker reports to Hereford Brand Distributor J. R. Oglesby that he has six paid-in-advance customers. (Staff Photo)

JOE CAN LOOK back over two years of throwing papers and laugh at some of his experiences — such as the time when he first started and was a little shorter than he is now.

A good-sized blizzard was in town, and he got lost — in a snowdrift. He was walking the route, and with about 50 pounds of newspapers bundled around him, he fell under suddenly.

The family's help caused him some embarrassment once. His little sister — trying to be helpful — wrote out Joe's receipts for him one month. But she also signed them. Joe's face turned a little red as he explained to customer after customer why his name wasn't on the bottom.

A PAPERBOY doesn't realize much profit if he doesn't have all collections in promptly. It's a cardinal rule that all money has to be in by the 5th of each month. In this part of the job, he says he never has any major trouble since he can collect his entire route in one morning when he "pushes it". "The people are friendly," he explained, "and sometimes it's hard to get away from a good conversation." He claims the happiest time in the paperboy's career is when the last collection is in — and on time.

FRIENDLY CHAT — Collections are no problem with newsboy Joe Walker. His problem, he says, is getting away. "The people are friendly. It's hard to break a good conversation." (Staff Photo)

He works on a commission basis. The more customers, the more net profit he realizes. After collecting his route, gross collections must be turned in to the distributor, who then in turn gives Joe his share of the profit.

WHEN STARTING out, throwing papers was a "big game" for Joe, but soon the "new" wore off and he realized the work involved. But he still enjoys it. His route takes about 45 minutes twice a week, exclusive of collections and "crew work".

Crew work is a group project of the paperboys, when all get together and seek new customers by going from house to house.

As his colleagues, Joe's main interest is school and studying. A freshman at Hereford High School, he is taking a heavy schedule of five solids; he also is an understudy in the Thespians. He is a recipient of honors in Boy Scouting.

To him, business is business. "I try to keep everybody pleased."

SAYS CITY MANAGER

Incinerator Should Meet Needs For Next 10 Years

the excavation is filled.

The process is cumbersome, wasteful and inefficient, says Bayne. "It consumes so much land area and on windy days the trash will blow out of the pit before we can get it covered even though the dozer is right there."

WITH THE incenrator, Bayne thinks most of those problems have been solved.

The trucks (only the city's; the public will not be allowed to dump at the incinerator unless specially supervised by a health department official) will enter a 60-foot-by-60-foot prefabricated steel building to unload on the structure's floor. They will be sheltered from the trash-scattering winds.

A tractor will then push the refuse into a pit which has a metal conveyor as its floor. The conveyor moves from the unloading building to the top of the burner, a distance of about 50 feet skyward. There, the trash is continually fed into the burner, which will be ablaze most of the day and burn itself out each night.

FROM MATCH TO flaming inferno, the total ignition process should take no more than three minutes, says Bayne. Two hundred, fifty-eight draft doors line the 60-foot diameter of the burner's aluminized steel shell near ground level. These oxygen-supplying "inlets" are supplemented by 12 blower outlets which push air into the burning trash from grills in the burner's concrete floor.

Bayne says there are only one or two other incinerators of this type used by municipalities west of the Mississippi.

"I saw it in one of our trade journals and went to see this one in operation at West Memphis (Ark.)," he said. "The design has been used for a number of years. You see a lot of them in use in the East around sawmills where they burn their waste and sawdust. Some gin companies use them for burning their burrs."

The Hereford burner was constructed by Industrial Blow Pipe Co. of Memphis, Tenn.

Bayne said a well is being dug at the incinerator site now, and the area will be beautified with grass and shrubbery. New regulations will be put into effect at the dumpground as soon as a fence can be put up around the access road, which — along with the incinerator entrance — is to be topped with caliche.

April Figures Ahead Of 1964

Seamonds and D. C. McWhorter for $215,000.

The April, 1964, total was $368,690 which brought the four-month figure to $1,579,980.

BUILDING PERMITS this year started off slowly despite an optimistic prediction by city officials of a $2 million total by the end of the first two months. But the big item, a permit for a million-dollar-plus shopping center on N. 25-Mile Ave. finally was applied for in late March, and pushed construction to record-setting momentum.

Last year's total was $4,644,380.

Drought Hurts, Manager Says

THE CITY IS using about three million gallons of water daily, compared with the well's capacity of supplying 10 million gallons daily. The city does not have this delivery capacity, however.

Bayne said the remedy would be expensive but will be required in the near future. An additional booster station and another underground storage tank will be required, a project costing about $150,000.

Writer Takes Look At Southwest Loop

By HAROLD RATLIF
Associated Press Sports Writer

Southwest Conference football has settled into a Texas-Arkansas domination. And that domination is probably the greatest for two teams in a single conference, time considered, of any conference extent.

In six years Texas has won two championships and tied for two, Arkansas has won two and tied two. The only other team to figure in the championship was Texas Christian which tied Arkansas and Texas for the title in 1959.

IN THE SIX YEARS Texas has won 56 games, lost 8 and tied 2. Arkansas has won 50 and lost 15. These figures include bowl games.

It has begun to look hopeless for the other six members of the conference.

Trouble is, the same situation is likely to prevail through next fall.

Arkansas, which was undefeated and untied through 11 games last season, has 27 lettermen back. Coach Frank Broyles is worrying about who's going to play quarterback. He was worried the same way lastfall but Fred Marshall became the finest quarterback in the country.

BY LOOKING AHEAD Broyles made possible an experienced quarterback for this season. He red-shirted Jon Brittenum, who lettered in 1963 as a sophomore. Brittenum got more experience working with the squad while Marshall led the Razorbacks to the championship.

So Brittenum is back and should be quite capable of handling the team.

Texas Coach Darrell Royal is lamenting just the opposite from Broyles. He has a top quarterback but only 16 lettermen and claims that while he'll have a good first team, he will have to depend on sophomores for depth.

ROYAL HAS plenty of good sophomores and there is no reason to believe they won't give him the depth.

Arkansas' prospects are terrific—15 offensive lettermen, 12 defensive lettermen. The Razorbacks should be favored to repeat as champions and Texas should be expected to wind up at least second.

There just doesn't seem to be much in the future for the other six members of the league although there will be some good teams — teams that might have been champion back before the Texas - Arkansas stranglehold was clamped on the league.

TEXAS TECH looks very, very tough, Texas Christian should be much better, Baylor might cut a wide swath with its mighty passing attack.

But none of them appear capable of upsetting the Texas-Arkansas domination although the entire conference has strengthened because the others have been trying harder.

BUT ONE THING that has come from the upsurge in strength of the conference in the past five or six years has been to make the league the nation's leader. For two years in a row now the conference has had the national champion—Texas and Arkansas.

Even in the bowl games, the conference has moved rapidly upward. Now it is all even for the period from when the bowl games started in the thirties. The conference has won 27 and lost 27 and tied 5 in the all-time standings.

Belgians Are Reorganizing — Only One Number To A Citizen

By PHILIPPE NEURAY
Associated Press Writer

BRUSSELS (AP) — In about a year, every Belgian probably will have a matriculation number, jut like in the army.

Administration experts claim the progress will be enormous.

In a vision worthy of futuristic writers, they imagine a central computer where each member of this country's more than 9 million population will be registered under a number of nine digits.

All other computers in the administration — finance, justice, defense, public health, social security, etc. — would be tuned to the main computer, allowing communication between all of them and bypassing of the big one.

Their dream sweeps away the hundreds of old-time bureaucrats who spend thousands of hours filling millions of index-cards by hand.

There are 200 public records in the state administration, most of them set in a different way, ignoring the others.

Do you know, they say, that one million Belgians change homes every year? Since the average citizen is listed in about 20 official records, that makes 20 million old addresses to erase and the same number of new ones to write. Or rather, that should make, since the work is so big that it is never completed.

Now with the computer, all that will be done automatically, by push-button, tape or teleprocessing (telephone), in a trice.

The man who got the idea, a Belgian public officer, admits he borrowed it from the Swedes, at an international public administration congress. They are already working on it, but have a smaller population, he said.

He sold the idea to Interior Minister Arthur Gilson in Charge of administrative reform. He bought it right away. Top administrators in all ministries adopted it immediately and enthusiastic response was received from big private companies. The project is expected to be adopted soon by the council of ministers.

The matriculation system would be simple. The first six figures would give your day, month and year of birth, something everybody remembers. The last three figures would be your exclusive registration number. Males would get numbers from one to 499, females from 500 to 999. Since only 500 Belgians are born on peak days, there is no danger of overcrowding.

The new matriculation would appear on all official documents, and experts believe it would soon be on most private ones too.

The central computer would only include the information already inscribed on each citizen's identity card: name, surname, address, birth date, marital situation, profession.

The other computers linked to this one might be more sophisticated but the basic information would remain, with the possibility to update it in all machines at great speed. The important thing is not so much the central computer, experts said, but coordination of all of them.

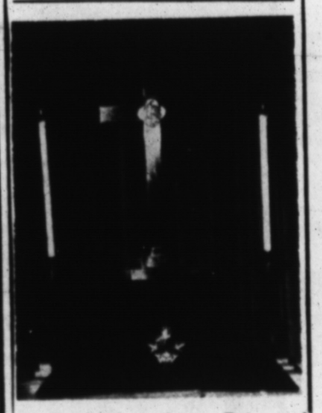

The project was a good subject for the first page of Belgium's top satirical magazine, which derided it by showing people using their matriculation number for introduction or on visiting cards, and critics have claimed that it would invade private life or offer danger in case of war.

Supporters of the project retort that no new detail of the citizen's private life will be asked to set up the new system and that military information on male citizens will be eliminated much faster with the new system, in case an enemy would seize official records.

Because the Episcopal Church doesn't urge upon its adherents abstinence from tobacco, card playing, dancing, and such like, it has gained the reputation of being "liberal about sin"

We who are Episcopalians don't agree with that idea. In fact, quite the contrary. We find that being an Episcopalian involves some rather well-defined discipline.

But, on this subject of sin, let's ask — just what is it?

The way we look at it — that is, the way it's interpreted to us — sin is defined as the error of imposing our own wills over God's will.

That interpretation both simplifies and complicates. Knowing God's will for us, we find, demands a life of prayer, a life of faith, a recognition of God's constant presence, the frequent "strengthening and refreshing" of our souls through the Holy Communion.

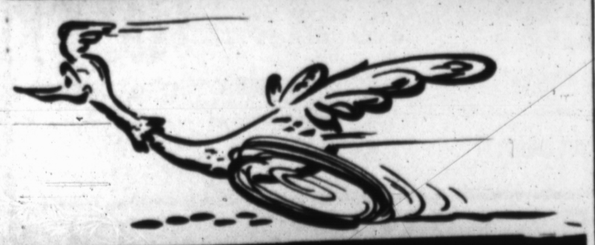

We recognize the fact that God has given us all things, and that sin is not in the thing itself or its use, but rather in its misuse. This must lead to the conclusion that any intemperance — overeating, for instance, is as much sin as any other abuse of God's gifts.

Wouldn't you like to know more about the teaching of the Episcopal Church? Visit St. Thomas' Episcopal Church soon. A warm welcome awaits you.

Round table covers are adaptable to any period of decor and are suitable to any room. Fabrics and trimmings selected will give the cover its versatility. Use a fabric that co-ordinates with curtains, slipcovers or other furnishings.

Ran across instructions for making these round table coverings and thought I'd like to share it with you.

Measure the distance from the table edge to the floor and double this figure. Add the table's diameter for the total measurement of fabric needed to make the cloth.

If the total is 60 inches, for instance, you will need 3½ yards of 36 inch fabric. For large tables, select a wider fabric.

Cut fabric length in half, crosswise, leaving one-half to be used in its full width. Cut the other half in two lengthwise pieces and seam one to each side of the full width piece.

Measure again from the table edge to the floor, then add one-half of the table's diameter plus several inches for the hem. Cut a string this length and tie one end to a pencil.

Place the other end of the string in the center of the seamed fabric and draw a circle. Cut out the cloth in a circular shape along the line you have drawn. Hem and add decorative trim to suit your particular taste. Seams in the fabric will hang diagonally on the sides of the cloth rather than on the table top.

Rows of cotton rickrack, knotted curtain fringe, cotton ball fringe or braid are a few suggestions for the trim.

As usual there was some more excitement at my house this week. I had a turkey in my back yard. Don't know where he came from — and don't know where he is now, but for a short time there, I had visions of the bird adorning my table for dinner today.

One of my boys did run after the bird; he also called on one of my neighbors for assistance, and the two of them spent a good part of the morning tracking the bird and finally enlisted the aid of another neighbor lady and the use of her garage but were unable to cage the bird.

Last report, the bird was sighted in the neighborhood of Burle Elliston. He was in the office and said he was prepared to shoot it out of the tree, if he could get the equipment.

Oh well, the poor bird having escaped this long, really deserves his freedon.

There were certainly some long faces this week at the ball field when a group of the boys didn't make a team for the Little League. As the coach explained to them, too many boys and too few coaches.

Not much consolation however for those who didn't make it.

Heard a lovely musical program this week at the Deaf Smith County Federation of Women's Club luncheon in the Community Center. Really some marvelous talent.

Delightful lunch too. Mrs. A. O. Thompson was the program chairman and it is always a pleasure to hear her speak. She was also the guest speaker for the Central P-TO program Friday evening.

She reviewed some of the history of Deaf Smith County and also told of her personal experiences when she was a young girl. This was back in the days of the horse and buggy and sure sounded like it was fun. Quite an experience to have been here in the days of the dirt main street to the now-in-the-making Variety Park days.

'Round-Ups' Arrive In Surprise Move At HHS

After surprise move by the yearbook staff at Hereford High School last week, members of the student body cheered the long-awaited arrival of the "Round-Up, 1965."

Barbara Langley, editor of the annual, crushed hopes early in the day Tuesday when she told the student body that the annuals probably would not be available until this summer.

BUT BLUE moments turned to joy that afternoon when the annual staff confessed a hoax. Annuals were passed out and the rest of the day was spent in signing each other's books. It ended for the day when a mob of youngsters gathered at the Community Center to continue the signing party after school doors had closed.

Students were faced with a $1,000 shortage, however, and each person ordering an annual had to pay an extra dollar. A portion of the cost of ordering annuals is covered by class suppers every fall, but the revenue was not enough this year.

REIGNING AS Round-Up Queen for 1965 is Sharon Tinnin, a senior. Other top honors went to Barbara Langley and Stan Sigman, "Most Beautiful" and "Most Handsome;" Vickie Inman and Frank Cain were selected as "Most Intellectual" and David Grubbs and Rozi Rush were named "Most Versatile."

This year's annuals are maroon with white lettering. The cover is padded. They are published every year by the Taylor Publishing Co. of Dallas.

ANNUALS ARRIVE — Fearing they would not receive their annuals until this summer, Hereford High School's student body was surprised when they were passed out Tuesday afternoon. Here Cynthia Leasure, assistant editor of the "Round-Up", waits for W. O. Caraway, assistant principal, to sign her book. (Staff Photo)

Beginners, Junior High Bands Plan Spring Concert Thursday Night

Beginners' bands and the Stanton Junior High Band will be presented in their spring concert to be Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the junior high auditorium

Proceeds from the concert will go to a scholarship fund for band students wishing to attend summer band camp at West Texas State University. Students will audition for the scholarships.

The program Thursday will be highlighted by Latin American tunes and a Spanish march. All numbers are new; none were taken from the band's contest repertoire.

The junior high band won the sweepstakes in UIL contests recently. This is the first such honor the school has received.

On the program will be a trombone trio; members are Don Bill Hair, Frank Nobles and Dan Anderson. Lowell Wiggains, Lupe Alvarado, David Alvarage and Steve Hendon are members of a saxophone quartet that will also perform.

The 96-member junior high group will present "Hotz Suite in E Flat," which is an AAA number. Tickets for the concert can be purchased at the door or from any band member for 35 cents and 75 cents.

Pony League Sets Planning Meeting Tuesday

An organizational meeting to plan this summer's Pone League baseball program has been slated for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Community Center.

League president Abe Davis said moms and dads of the prospective Pony League players should attend, as well as anyone else interested in the organization.

There will be six Pony League teams this season, Davis said. This is an increase of two teams over the past.

The league is for boys 12 to 14 years of age.

His Songs Come From The Heart

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Music may provide Matthew Rycombell more than just freedom of expression — it may provide him freedom from the Ohio Penitentiary.

Rycombell, a song writer for 18 years, is looking for a fresh start on the outside, if a parole comes through for him in July. He will go before the Parole Board in June.

Warden Ernie Maxwell also thinks Rycombell's song writing might help the two-time parole violator stay out of trouble. This time "he could make good," the warden said.

At present, Rycombell's ballad "Bandito" is being considered for the theme song of a movie about Billy the Kid. His song "The Ten Commandments of Love" made a Top Ten record list in 1958.

Rycombell is serving an automatic five-year sentence for parole violation in May 1960. He was sentenced originally from Cuyahoga County in May 1954, in a $5 burgary.

Rycombell, 43, has served time in three other prisons since he was honorably discharged from the Army in 1941.

He isn't a musician, but picks out melodies on a piano and a guitar. Three fellow prisoners help at times with words and music.

So far, Rycombell has written 68 songs, all of which he says carry a message and "come from the heart."

UNUSUAL BOOK DISCOVERED — Mrs. J. D. Neill, librarian at Hereford High School, found an unusual book on her shelf last week after reading of another copy of the book being donated to an Amarillo library. Now that the book's value is known, Mrs. Neill says they plan "to take better care of it". The book is "The Mexican Side of the Texas Revolution". (Staff Photo)

School Librarian Has A 'Gem' On Her Shelf

After reading an article concerning an unusual or rare book, Mrs. J. D. Neill, high school librarian here, found an even more valuable copy on the shelf at Hereford High School.

"The Mexican Side of the Texas Revolution by the Chief Mexican Participants (1836)," translated, with notes, was found after Mrs. Neill read of the same book being donated to the Mary E. Bivins Memorial Library in Amarillo.

THE BOOK CONTAINS documents from Gen. Santa Anna and other Mexican leaders at the time of the Revolution.

The Amarillo copy is valued at $25, but the book has been rebound. The copy here has its original binding and is in good condition. It was published in 1929.

From the forward, the author, Carlos E. Casteneda, wrote: The five documents presented show clearly how a series of coincidences that may almost be called providential, united to give the victory to the Texans and to make possible their independence from the merit of the patriots who risked everything to make this great State independent and who laid the foundations of this commonwealth, they show that the traditional sins of Mexico, dissension and personal envy, were more deadly to the Mexican army than the Texan bullets."

Casteneda was Latin-American librarian of the University of the University of Texas. His book was published by P. L. Turner Co. of Dallas and copyrighted in 1928.

Now that she realizes the value of the book, Mrs. Neill said the library "plans to take better care of it."

High Bond Set For Narcotics Sales Suspect

A 23-year-old Hereford man was arrested Friday night and held in lieu of $10,000 bond on a warrant charging him with violation of the narcotics act.

Held was Nicasio L. Morales, 23, of the Labor Camp.

Sheriff's deputies said the arrest was made after a U. S. Marshal in San Antonio notified local authorities to be on the lookout for the man.

Morales is charged in connection with the sale of heroine to an undercover agent. The offense is alleged to have occurred in South Texas.

Plainview Slates Pioneer Round-Up Next Saturday

PLAINVIEW (Special) — "Yester-Years" has been chosen as the theme for the 37th Pioneer Round-Up to be held Saturday. Miss Lou Ella Scarbrough, president of the sponsoring organization, the Plainview Business and Professional Women's Club, said that all plans have been completed for this annual event.

The reception beginning at 10 a. m. at the Reddy Room of Southwestern Public Service Co pany, 306 West 6th Street, is a big feature and is a time when the real "oldtimers" get together to reminiscence and exchange stories of the past.

One of the few remaining parades in Plainview will be staged at 2 p.m. originating at the Santa Fe depot. O. B. Jackson will be the parade marshal. The color guard will also head the parade and the Plainview School bands will march. The antique car section promises to be one of the main attractions. Riding clubs and the Hale County Sheriff's Posse plus miscellaneous riders will give the western flavor to the event. Winners in the parade will be announced at the night program which begins at 8 p.m.

THE EVENING program will be held in the Plainview High School Auditorium. From 6 to 8 p.m. the chuck wagon supper will be served in the new cafeteria which has a southwest entrance. The meal will consist of barbecue, sour dough biscuits and all the trimmings. Mrs. Ellen Ash, Co-Chairman of the foods committee, stated that the annual bean rocking would be done Friday evening by the members of the Plainview B. & P.W. Club.

The evening program will be presented by a novelty musical group composed of members of the Business and Professional Women's Club, known as the "B-PW RED HOTS." Miss Evelyn Vineyard, chairman of the program committee, stated that this program has been tailored to fit the tastes of young and old alike. Also she said prizes will be awarded to the oldest person present, to the pioneer who traveled the farthest distance to come to the 37th Pioneer Roundup and to the couple who have been married the longest.

AN OUTSTANDING feature of the program will be honoring the "Pioneer Woman of the Plains." Previous winners have been Mrs. Sallie LeMond and Mrs. Frank Norfleet, both of Hale Center, Mrs. Lillian Fortenberry of Edmonson, Mrs. Maggie Davis and Mrs. Coleman Jones, both of Plainview.

Tickets for $1.30, including the supper and program, may be purchased from any member of the Plainview B. & P. W.Club or secured at the door.

UNEXPECTEDLY SOLD STRAW

LINCOLN, Ill. (AP) — Farmer Elon Martin drove away from the farm distinctly remembering he had 200 bales of straw in the barn. When he returned he found the barnyard littered with straw and the store of straw gone.

He hurriedly checked with neighbors and found a straw buyer had stopped at the wrong place. He found the straw buyer 15 miles away and discovered that his straw had already been unloaded.

Martin made a deal, deciding it easier to sell his straw than to have it hauled back to his barn.

MINOR INJURIES

Youth Charged After One-Car Motor Accident

A charge of aggravated assault with a motor vehicle was filed by Highway Patrolmen against a 17-year-old Hereford youth following an accident which occurred April 24.

Charged in a case which will be heard in county court is Terry Lynn Hulsey of 829 South Texas St.

HIGHWAY PATROLMAN Robert Sanders said Hulsey was driving a 1964 car which skidded through an intersection and struck an embankment on a county road some three miles southwest of Hereford.

Two passengers in the auto were treated at the local hospital for lacerations following the mishap.

He explained that the charge can be filed against any person driving an auto which is involved in an accident in which an injury less than death results.

CONVICTION of the offense carries a fine of $25 to $1,000 and/or a jail sentence of from one month to two years.

Sanders said the accident occurred as the auto Hulsey was driving failed to slow enough for a turn at a "T" intersection.

The car skidded 271 feet prior to jumping a ten-foot-wide bar ditch. It scrapped the top of the ditch, causing an estimated $400 in damage to the auto, then slid another 32 feet prior to coming to a halt.

United Council Of Churchwomen To Have Fellowship

The United Council of Churchwomen will hold their May Fellowship Day Friday at the First Methodist Church.

This meeting is scheduled to begin at noon with a covered dish luncheon. A worship service on People, Poverty and Plenty will follow the luncheon.

Guest speaker will be Miss Eunice Vasquez from the Migrant Mission. Leader for the meeting will be Mrs. Nell Culpepper, president of the local United Churchwomens' Council.

2 Blast Victims Still Hospitalized

Two brothers injured in a freak blast on their Frio farm remained in Deaf Smith County Hospital Saturday.

Roy Reinart, 12, and his brother, Wayne, 15, were injured Wednesday when spontaneous reaction of a chemical powder caused an explosion.

HOSPITAL attendants listed Roy's condition as poor Saturday morning. Wayne was listed in good condition.

Pieces of metal struck Wayne in both wrists and Roy in the shoulder when a device with which the two were experimenting unexpectedly went off.

Wayne said he and his brother were attemping to make a device to destroy varmint holes on the family farm.

HE SAID THEY had mixed sodium chlorate and sugar to form a powder which they expected to ignite. They had placed the chemicals in a pipe "T" joint, which had two ends plugged.

When Wayne began to tighten a bolt into the third end of the joint, the explosion resulted, he said.

Bachelors Back To Baked Beans

PRETORIA, South Afraica (AP) — Pretoria Technical College has given up its crash program of trying to teach bachelors how to cook.

Worried by a nutritionalist's advice that the many bachelors in the town were eating their way out of baked-bean cans into an ulcer-ridden middle age, the college started a special cooking course. The first one was most successful, say V. Serfontein, head of adult education at the college.

The second flopped for lack of support, however.

The problem of bachelors living out of cans is being taken seriously in this administrative capital of South Africa. To get the men interested, Serfontein has proposed that the college should start co-educational cooking courses.

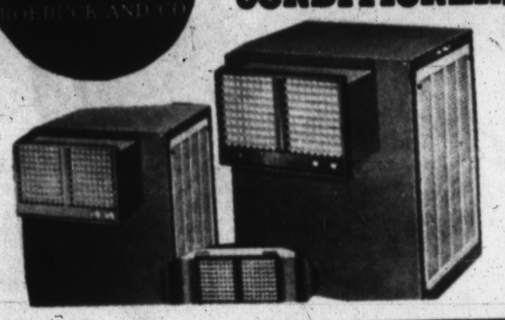

"Who knows, perhaps some young couples could find true love over a simmering casserole," he says.

East African tribesmen use the tenacious jaws of soldier ants to close their cuts, the National Geographic says. An injured man draws the two gaping edges of a cut together and allows an ant to bite. When the jaws penetrate both sides of the wound, the patient nips off the body, and the head forms a perfect stitch.

MEETS WITH REA'S TUESDAY

Busy Legislative Schedule Faces Congressman Rogers

WASHINGTON, D.C. (Special) — Congressman Walter Rogers this week faces a busy legislative schedule — with numerous committee hearings, briefings, and prolonged sessions of the full House of Representatives.

"The week will unquestionably be one of the most important of this Congressional Session to date," Congressman Rogers said. "Each of the measures to be acted upon in the House is of great importance to every American, with attention centering on bills to keep our defenses all-powerful and to advance our space program."

MAJOR LEGISLATION before the House will include authorizations for Defense Department weapon procurement and research and development activities; authorizations for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA); bills providing appropriations for the Labor Department and Department of Health, Education, and Welfare; and a measure to assist establishment of community mental health service centers, among other matters.

Although the House will meet each day in sessions that may stretch into the evening on at least two days, a full agenda of House committee meetings is scheduled.

ON MONDAY AND Tuesday, Rogers will preside over the Irrigation and Reclamation Subcommittee of he House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs as it discusses legislative proposals for reclamation projects in Idaho and California. On Tuesday, the full Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce will continue public hearings on legislation calling for health hazard labels on packages of cigarettes. Rogers introduced the bill on which hearings to date have focused.

Other activities of the Commerce Committee include a session to considerer legislative recommendations of the Interstate Commerce Commission and a meeting with Chairman E. William Henry and other members of the Federal Communications Commission. The FCC briefing will come in connection with a meeting of the Subcommittee on Communications and Power, of which Rogers is chairman, and other members of the full committee have been invited to take part.

IN THE INTERIOR committee, following the subcommittee session Monday and Tuesday, consideration of general pending legislation is scheduled Wednesday in a session of the full committee. On Thursday and Friday, an Anarctica study and research program will be discussed by the Subcommittee on Territorial and Insular affairs, of which Congressman Rogers is a member.

Congressman Rogers will attend an annual event on the Congressional calendar for most Texas members of the House and Senate—the annual dinner of the Electric Cooperatives of Texas, this year to be held Tuesday at the Hotel Washington. Members of REA's from Tulia, Hereford, and Wellington, and other Panhandle points, are expected to be in Washington for the event.

On Thursday, Congressman Rogers will attend a morning coffee given by the League of Women Voters of Texas. Members of the Texas League will be in Washington for a National Council meeting of the League of Women Voters of the United States.

MONKS BAKE CAKE

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Not all newlyweds have a cake like the one made for the wedding of Donald Colvin and Betty Wright.

The cake was made by the monks at the Trappist Monastery at Gethsemane and presented to Colvin.

For three years, during summer vacations from college, he worked at the monastery, helping in farming operations.

BEEVILLE EXPERIMENT

High Concentrate Rations Give Good Results In Cattle Tests

COLLEGE STATION (Special) — "In addition to a reduction in daily feed consumption, extremely high concentrate cattle rations increase feed efficiency, dressing percentage, grade, and lower shipping shrinkage," said B. E. Conrad, animal husbandman, and E. M. Neal, superintendent of the Coastal Bend Experiment Station at Beeville, Texas.

Conrad and Neal based their conclusions on results obtained from a feeding experiment they conducted at the station.

THE EXPERIMENT consisted of feeding different groups of Braford steers different rations containing different concentrate levels. Thirty steers of approximately the same size and quality were obtained and divided into three groups of ten each.

The steers were fed for 129 days on rations averaging 62 percent, 67 percent and 83 percent concentrates. Ground grain sorghum and cottonseed meal were the concentrates used, and cottonseed hulls constituted the roughage portion of the test rations.

After the 129-day feeding period, the three groups of steers were shipped to San Antonio and sold on the open market. Individual weights, hot carcass weights and cold carcass grades were obtained.

RESULTS OF THE experiment showed that that group which was fed 67 percent concentrates had the highest gains, while the group fed the 83 percent ration had the highest feed efficiency, lowest shipping shrinkage and best dressing percentage of the three groups.

"When marketed, the live value of the two groups fed 67 and 83 percent concentrates were nearly equal; however, carcass value indicated a definite advantage for the group fed 83 percent concentrates," Conrad and Neal revealed. "The grader commented that the texture of the meat was good and the packer stated that the carcasses were well suited for his trade."

"EVEN THOUGH the concentrate level reached 95 percent before termination of the experiment, there were no indications of digestive disturbances or evidence of steers going off feed," Conrad added.

Neal explained that the experiment was conducted as a pilot study pertaining to the rapidity of reaching full feed and maximum concentrate level favorable to economic returns and animal performance.

"This type information is particularly applicable in feeding light weight cattle for relatively short periods of time with mechanized feed handling and shortages of low cost dry roughages," he added.

Buds And Blossoms Bring Springtime Beauty

A Tested Recipe Brings Best Results, These Gardeners Say, But A Green Thumb, Rocks, Driftwood, And You-Name-It, Also Come In Handy For Bringing About Colorful Arrays.

The Sunday Brand

By LOIS DEDYNE
Women's Editor

For lovely flowers indoors and out, several of the women of the area who have had a good deal of experience with gardening, seem to agree that one must have the proper recipe for pleasing results.

An interesting garden, and fun for the children too, is the rock garden. Mrs. Ray Johnson of Summerfield suggests a combination of one-third sand, one-third peat moss, and one-third soil for planting rock gardens. "They just love driftwood," she said, "and along with attractive rocks, make a very interesting display."

ROCK GARDENS, she said, require watering about once a week and should be allowed to drain thoroughly. Many people are under the impression that the succulent plants require a great deal of water and in over-watering, do not have good results with their gardens.

Mrs. Johnson has two castor bean plants to shade the rock garden which is to the north side of the house. Among the different varieties of plants in this garden are the hen and the chickens, moss roses or assedium, eleven varieties of the Mexican Christmas tree, lamb ears, the jade plant which bears a pink bloom, the Aloa with red blooms, Equisetum (horses tail) which is used in vine arrangements, and the Echevaria which won a blue ribbon in the October flower show.

"The interesting thing," said Mrs. Johnson, when speaking of the Equisetum, "is these can be pulled apart at the joints and will continue growing when replaced. Children find these plants very amusing."

HER FRIENDSHIP garden, northeast of the house, features poppies, tulips and primroses to mention a few. These are planted with the thought in mind to have plants which bloom at different times.

A landmark in the area, and visible from the highway entering Summerfield, is the windmill which is covered with vines. When they bloom, there is a different color on each side of the windmill.

The Bouganvillia pictured at the upper left has been blooming since last October. Among the other plants in the greenhouse at the Wilhelm's residence north of the city, are orchids, geraniums, succulents and many varieties of cacti which Mrs. Wilhelm said her husband has grown from seed. They both work with the plants and their violets are a joint project.

Blue boy, Imagination, Madonna, Star Gazer, Molton Fire, Ruffled Queen and King Neptune are a few of the different types of African violets pictured at the upper right. Mrs. Tiefel has this arrangement in her north window to insure proper sunshine and lighting. The day can be lengthened for the violets by placing them under reading lamps after sundown.

F. L. Wilhelm is working with the African violet plants. He and his wife start some of their plants from seed and others from a leaf cutting. He also does some woodworking as a hobby and Mrs. Wilhelm is an adviser for the Hereford Youth Society.

Mrs. Ray Johnson of Summerfield ordered lilacs from New Jersey about 25 years ago. These bloom late in the spring and thrive after a cold winter. Mrs. Johnson also belongs to the Chrysanthimum Society and the Succulent and Cacti Society.

FEDERATION OFFICERS — From the left in top photo are Mrs. C. D. Kelton, treasurer; Mrs. A. O. Thompson, program chairman; and Mrs. John Jacobsen Jr. president; members of the Deaf Smith County Federation of Women's Clubs which met in the Community Center Thursday for their quarterly luncheon and fine arts program. Also on the program were members of the Music Study Club shown in the photo at the bottom. From the left standing are president, Mrs. B. Y. Crosthwait, Mrs. A. J. Schroeter, Mrs. T. W. QUARTERLY MEETING

Guest Soloists Appear For County Federation Luncheon Program

Zack Pennell, music director for the First Baptist Church, led the Star Spangled Banner to open the program of "American Music" at the Deaf Smith County Federation of Women's Clubs quarterly luncheon Thursday.

This luncheon and fine arts program was in the Community Center with Mrs. A. O. Thompson in charge of the program.

Hostess clubs were the Lone Star Study Club, chairman, West Hereford Home Demonstration Club, El Lano Study Club and the Garden Beautiful Club. Members of the garden club decorated the tables with lilacs, tulips and iris held by crystal vases.

Mrs. Ellis Coombs presented Grainger's Spoon River for the opening number of the program.

Mrs. Dale Young and Mrs. Bill Bradly were accompanied by Mrs. J. C. McCracken with three folk music selections. Presented for their vocal duets were Skip To The Lou, Blue Tail Fly and Down In The Valley.

Mrs. A. J. Schroeter and Mrs. B. Y. Crosthwait presented three numbers in a series for their piano duet which included Carry Me Back to Old Virginia, My Old Kentucky Home and Turkey In the Straw.

Mr. and Mrs. Zack Pennell, guests of Mrs. Thompson, sang a sacred number, The Lord Is My Shepherd, as a duet followed by the Dessert Song.

Presenting preludes by Gershwin at the piano was Miss Penny Johnson, a senior at Hereford High School. Miss Johnson has received superior rating on six occasions at the Junior Festival of Music.

Concluding the musical program the Music Study Club Chorus sang Listen to the Lambs (Dett), America (Block), and the Hymn of the Month, Rejoice Ye Pure In Heart (Messiter).

Members of the chorus included Mrs. T. Carmichael, Mrs. Frances Parker, Mrs. Dale Young, Mrs. W. S. Fisher, Mrs. Joe Lyons, Mrs. Bill Lankford, Mrs. T. W. Roberson and Mrs. Joe Frank Clark with the accompaniment by Mrs. McCracken.

Mrs. Parker directed the closing song which was sung by members and guests attending. As a group, they sang the state song, Texas Our Texas by Marsh.

For her introductions Mrs. Thompson gave highlights on the lives of the composers and said that musical life has grown much richer and more vital in recent years. With New York City as the musical capital, she said it is no longer necessary to travel abroad to acquire a musical education.

Mrs. John Jacobsen Jr., president of the federation, conducted the business meeting when it was announced that there have been several more donations towards the purchase of dishes for the Community Center.

It was further noted that the deadline is November 19th for the Community Improvement project for the Top O' Texas.

There were approximately 50 members and guests on hand for the luncheon and fine arts program.

Clothing Workshop Is Program For Westway H.D. Club

Mrs. Argen Draper brought a program of "Clothing Problem Workshop" for the Westway Home Demonstration Club when they met recently in the home of Mrs. Roland Hairgrove.

LET'S COOK SOMETHING

Coconut Is A Great Embellisher

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

DOES YOUR family fancy coconut?

Then here's a pastry roll, made with a coconut and fruit filling, that our tasters approved. For the pastry base, we used a mix, but enriched it by adding light cream instead of the usual water.

Another delightful way to use coconut is in a standard quick-bread loaf — the kind that holds dates or raisins and is served in slices with butter.

And still another suggestion: top a fresh fruit cup with coconut — the modern flaked kind makes a delicious garnish.

COCONUT FIG PASTRY

1 cup chopped dried table figs
1 can (8¾ ounces) crushed pineapple
2/3 cup flaked coconut
1 tablespoon butter
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 package (10 ounces) pastry mix
1/4 cup light cream
Lemon Glaze

Use the soft big figs that are served to eat out of hand. Turn figs, undrained pineapple, coconut, butter, grated lemon rind and the salt into a saucepan. Heat and simmer for 5 minutes; cool thoroughly.

Prepare the pastry mix as directed on the package using the light cream instead of the water called for. With a prepared pastry cloth and stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll out dough into a 13 by 10 inch rectangle. Spread well-cooled fig mixture down center length of pastry, then fold long sides of pastry over fig mixture so edges meet in center. Seal ends. With a kitchen scissor, snip along the sides at 1-inch intervals, cutting in abou 1½ inches toward center. Brush top with milk. Bake in a hot (425) degrees oven for 30 to 35 minutes, or until golden brown. Cool slightly. Drizzle with Lemon Glaze. If desired, sprinkle the glaze with extra flaked coconut. Serve warm. Makes 10 servings.

LEMON GLAZE

2 teaspoons milk
1 1/2 teaspoons butter
1/2 cup unsifted confectioners sugar
1 1/2 teaspoons lemon juice
Dash of salt

In a small sauce pan over low heat, heat the milk and butter until butter melts. Remove from heat. Stir in confectioners sugar. Add lemon juice and salt; beat until smooth. If necessary, add extra milk so glaze can be drizzled over pastry. Makes about 1/4 cup.

AFTERNOON REFRESHER

Delicious to serve when "the girls" come to tea.

Apple Tart Tea
APPLE TART

1/2 cup butter, soft
1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese, soft
1 1/4 cups unsifted flour
2 tablespoons granulated sugar
3/4 teaspoon salt
1 can (1 pound, 4 ounces) apple slices
1/4 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ cup commercial sour cream
½ cup confectioners sugar
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon

In a medium mixing bowl with a wooden spoon, work together the butter and cream cheese until combined. Stir together the flour, granulated sugar and 1/2 teaspoon salt; with the spoon, work into butter mixture until combined; with floured hands, if necessary, pat into a ball. Using a well-prepared pastry cloth and stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll out dough into a 9-inch round. Fit pastry, without stretching, into a 9-inch pie plate; it should come up to rim. Chill about 30 minutes.

Into a medium saucepan turn the remaining 1/4 teaspoon salt, undrained apple slices, brown sugar and lemon juice; cook and stir over moderate heat until sugar dissolves; continue to cook until practically all the liquid evaporates — about 15 minutes for whole cooking period; cool. Spread apple mixture over pastry. Stir together sour cream, confectioners sugar and cinnamon; spoon and spread over apples. Bake on low shelf of hot (400 degrees) oven for 25 minutes. Serve warm or reheat. Just before serving, sift a little confectioners sugar over the top. Makes 6 servings.

FAMILY DINNER

HELEN'S TURNIPS

1½ pounds (6 medium) white turnips
1/3 cup water
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon sugar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
¼ cup minced parsley

Pare turnips and cut into ½-inch cubes. In a 10-inch skillet, heat the water, butter, salt and sugar; stir in turnips. Boil gently, covered, until turnips are tender — about 10 minutes; practically all the water should be evaporated. Stir in the lemon juice and parsley and reheat. Makes 6 servings.

BLENDED BLUE CHEESE DRESSING

¼ cup milk
1/3 cup mayonnaise
½ cup commercial sour cream
2/3 cup crumbled blue cheese
Seasoning salt and white pepper

In an electric blender, blend together the milk, mayonnaise, sour cream and blue cheese. Stir in seasoning salt and white pepper to taste. Chill, tightly covered, for a few hours for flavors to blend. Makes about 1½ cups. Store any dressing not used in the refrigerator.

GOOD DINNER

Give elegance to snap beans!

Steak Casserole
Baked Potatoes
Southern Snap Beans Salad
Ice Cream with Cherry Sauce

SOUTHERN SNAP BEANS

1 pound snap beans
1 cup boiling water
¾ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
¼ cup sliced salted pecans

Cut ends from beans and scrub in cold water; cut into ½-inch crosswise pieces with slanted ends. In a medium covered saucepan, gently boil the beans with the water and salt until tender — 10 to 15 minutes; drain if necessary. In a 6-inch skillet, melt the butter and add the pecans; cook gently until butter browns; mix with beans and reheat if necessary. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

SWAP IS A SWIPE, JUDGE DECIDES

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — A youth swapped his old shoes for a new pair at a department store, but they cost him $50.

The store was not informed of the trade. The 19-year-old was stopped at the door.

"I just wanted to see if I could get away with it," he told City Judge Riley Graham.

"You found out," the judge said, fining him $50.

Simple But Consistent Care Required For Good Gardening

EDITH CAVELL — One of the many types of African Violets is the Edith Cavell which Mrs. Arthur Tiefel is holding. This is among her 231 violet plants which she has at the present time. Mrs. Tiefel also plants a large vegetable garden each year.

UNDER LIGHTS — These violets are grown under fluorescent light which gives the plants an extra boost. The color is accented in both the leaves and blooms and gives the leaves an even more velvety appearance. The light, according to Mrs. Tiefel, insures proper lighting at all times for the violets.

The succulent garden beneath the windmill has different ground coverings such as the Rosary vine and old fashioned ivy. Mrs. Johnson said these ground coverings are becoming increasingly popular.

TWENTY-FIVE years ago she ordered lilac bushes from New Jersy. Color varieties range from white, orchid, and pink to several colors of blue. Friends had told her that bushes from that part of the country would not likely to grown here.

According to Mrs. Johnson, she never had any difficulty with any type of garden. "We can grow anything here" she said with emphasis.

"His and Her" projects are evident at the Johnson home. She takes care of the flowers and gardens, and the lawn and trees are his projects. And with pride he shows his American elms which were planted in 1920, Hackberry trees and the New Mexico spruce which he brought back from there in 1932.

Mrs. Johnson, besides being active in and president-elect of the Hereford Garden Club, studies art with Mary Helen Askew as a hobby, belongs to the Chrysanthimum Society and the Succulent and Cacti Society.

"TWO HUNDRED thirty-one," said Mrs. Arthur Tiefel when asked how many African violet plants she had.

Mrs. Tiefel, along with two of her neighbors, Mrs. Orland Newell and Mrs. Frank Wilhelm, are among the successful violet growers in Hereford.

Leaves which curl, related Mrs. Wilhelm, denotes too much light and she also said to not "over-water" violets. They are not "swimmers" and do not like to sit in water.

VIOLETS, ACCORDING to Mrs. Tiefel, like to be just the other side of dry, and they need simple but constant care.

Violets do not have a rest period and if fed properly, they will bloom the year around.

These growers of African violets use a flourescent light which has come to be the accepted way of growing rather than the unusual. These lights give the foliage added color and increase the beauty of the blooms.

To determine the amount of light they are getting, Mrs. Newell said that too little light gives open, upright and spindly growth, light green leaves and little bloom. Too much light will cause leaves to "cup" around the pot and cause yellowing and bleaching of the leaves.

In this event, the plant can be removed to an area with less light to return the plant to normal growth.

Violets can be started from seed, or by leaf cuttings. When starting plants from leaf cuttings, they will produce plantlets in a very short time, from four to eight weeks.

AMONG THE PLANTS found with these growers are the Blue Boy, King Neptune which has white blooms, Pink Petticoat, and the double pink blooming plant called the State Fair. There are numerous varieties of the African violet plant however.

Mrs. Tiefel is a member of the Red Cross Motor corp and Mrs. Wilhelm is an advisor with the Hereford Youth Society. She also knits as a hobby, tends the "800 and some" chickens along with her husband, who also enjoys working with the violets and does some woodworking as a hobby.

HEN AND CHICKENS — This is what Mrs. Ray Johnson of Summerfield is holding along with other succulents to transplant in her rock garden. In addition to the rocks, the driftwood makes an interesting display and the succulents thrive on this. Mrs. Johnson is the president-elect of the Hereford Garden Club. (Photos by Larry Fuhrmann)

More than half a million dollars was spent in Tobago on road and bridge improvements in 1964.

In George Washington's time, a pound of sugar cost at least $2.75. Today it costs about 25 cents.

WATERLESS BECAUSE OF RAIN

PALERMO, Sicily (AP) — Actually it was too much water that caused the village of Gangi Sulle Madonie to go dry for almost a week.

Days of heavy rainfall caused a landslide which broke an aqueduct and cut off the village's water supply.

Sunshine Club Has Anniversary Dinner

A chicken fry and salad dinner was on the menu for guests in the home of Coy Fryar, 606 Oak, Dimmitt.

Members of the Sunshine Club met there Tuesday evening for their club's anniversary dinner.

The color theme for the club was carried out in decorations in the form of a large yellow rose arrangement which centered the serving table. The table was covered with a cutwork cloth over yellow.

Miniature place cards in the shape of umbrellas carried spring showers.

Club mother, Edith Sheppard, gave the invocation and following the dinner several games were played and gifts were exchanged.

Mrs. Sheppard was presented a crystal necklace for her loyalty and work for the club.

Visitors for this anniversary dinner were Mrs. Rhoda Mays and Mrs. Kenneth Malone of Dimmitt.

Mrs. Fryar presented miniature yellow rose corsages to Elsie Miner, Helen Watts, Edith Sheppard, Dorthy Lundry, Margie Kemp, Elsie Jones, Patsy Findley, June Koelzer and their guests.

The group will meet again in the home of Elsie Jones 142 Emma Street, May 11th.

AT CAMBRIDGE INSTITUTE

Homewives Do Part-Time Research With Grants

EDITOR'S NOTE: More and more women these days feel an overwhelming need to continue their education, to revitalize themselves as thinking individuals. How to fill their intellectual cravings without neglecting their families and homes? Within the last five years an amazing number of academic institutions have set up programs designed to help homemakers do graduate research on a part-time basis. Here is how one school meets the problem.

By LYDIA BICKFORD

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—In a tiny studio high up in the sedate yellow and white clapboard building that houses the Radcliffe Institute for Independent Study sits Mary Chapman, mother of three, but student-like in her houndstooth jumper and red sweater.

Sipping a cup of coffee, Mary regards the slashes of color in a painting propped up on an easel, and describes the revolutionary elements that have changed her life, and which seethe inside the sedate building.

"I'll never be the same," confesses Mary. "This is my second year at the Institute, and I wonder what I'll do without it when it's over. I'm exploring the relationship between art and architecture. This painting, for instance, is really a mural design, expressed differently."

As a color consultant, specializing in mural designs for architects, Mary had been working on a freelance basis before the Institute grant came her way. Now, the grant pays for a housekeeper in her Framingham, Mass., home, so Mary can come two or three days a week to the studio, "spend every free minute studying at home, and still have the flexibility that a mother must have. Nothing is iron-clad here.

"Before I had household help, I couldn't read for one uninterrupted minute. Now I have time to read and think, and to revitalize myself. Painting frees me to think about new materials, new theories in color and pattern."

Mary is one of 35 women chosen from a horde of applicants who receive grants ranging from $500 to $3,000 annually to work on a part-time basis on a project that will mean an important contribution to knowledge.

From a separate fund comes money to support research projects in Harvard's enormous library and myriad laboratories.

Says Miss Constance E. Smith director of the Institute, "There is an enormous difference in research expenses. A writer needs practically nothing, just paper and typewriter. But a historian may require costly micro-films for his research. One anthropologist here needed $125 just for secretarial help in preparing her dissertation."

When the Institute was set up in 1960 as the brain child of Dr. Mary I. Bunting, Radcliffe's president, it was done to fill a gap.

As Miss Smith says, "There had been no fellowship funds for half-time research. We wondered, What would happen?"

The answer came quickly. Letters of congratulation poured in from all over the world. So did applications for the first fellowships. The Institute was on its way.

It's still churning up a storm. On Miss Smith's desk one morning were letters of inquiry from North and South Dakota, from Seymour, Iowa, and China Lake, Calif. These were from women looking for similar enlightened part-time programs nearer home. Unexpectedly Miss Smith found that the Methodist Church had suggested some probings into women's continuing education as a topic for circle meetings in churches across the country.

As contagious as the Institute program has been the relaxing of full-time only rules in other institutions. Nancy Hendrie, a young pediatrician with three children, became the first half-time resident in the history of Children's Hospital Medical Center in Boston.

New York Medical College now has initiated a program of part-time residencies in psychiatry for women doctors with family demands.

Comments Miss Smith, "Before these part-time residencies were available, women doctors would earn $6 or $7 a day, and then go home and pay the babysitter $12.

Newest venture for the Institute is the compilation of a booklet called "The Next Step," which is a guide to part-time opportunities in Greater Boston for for the educated woman.

Again, an international correspondence. A group in New Zealand sent Miss Smith a similar compilation. The Institute was made aware of a British version, called "Come Back," which sold 16,000 copies when it was issued.

Now groups of college women, some Radcliffe alumnae, many not, are preparing similar directories in cities like Chicago, Cleveland, Washington, New York, Baltimore, San Francisco, and Detroit. The Institute is grateful that it has helped inspire such contributions.

Family life seems to have suffered little disruption from mother's intellectual involvement. Most women applied to the Institute, says Miss Smith, at their husbands' insistence. They themselves didn't have the confidence without male encouragement.

"Now some say they are eating more frozen food than they had in the past," Miss Smith says with a twinkle, "But all are pleased—and enormously proud of their wives."

BURKESVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The first oil well in America was drilled accidentally here by John Croghan, who was drilling for salt.

The oil was first sold for medicine in bottles labeled "American Oil."

PROGRAM FOUND OF PLAY GIVEN IN 1680

PRAGUE (AP) — A 285-year-old theater program was discovered in the library of an old Czechoslovak castle.

The program found in Kornik castle near the Czechoslovak-Polish border is the oldest printed in Czechoslovakia, the news agency Ceteka reported.

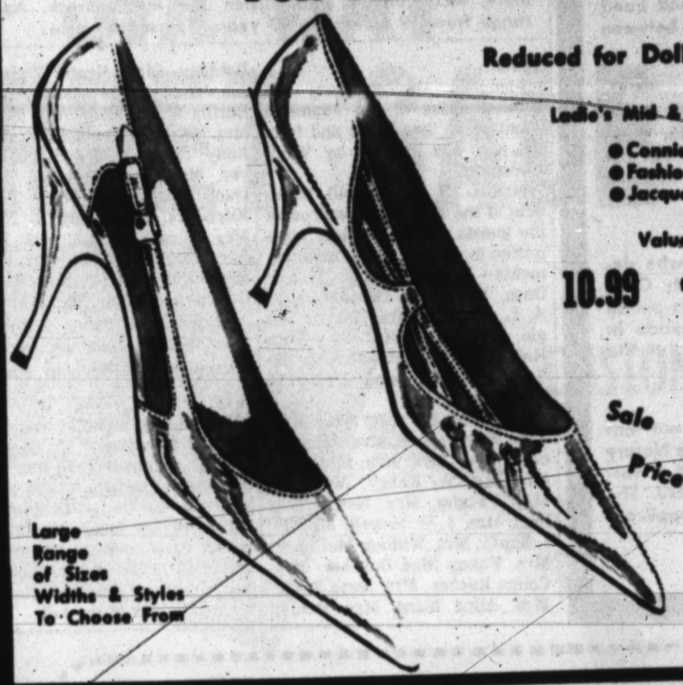

The 11-page program printed in Brno, Moravia, in 1680, includes a list of 112 actors performing a play on the life of Saint Vitus. The play was performed on Oct. 25, 1680, by members of the Society of Jesus before the Bishop of Olomouc.

The program also gives a short description of the play, which was presumably formed in Latin.

Notaries Public!

Secretary of State Crawford C. Martin announced that all qualified Notaries Public desiring re-appointment for the new term ending June 1, 1967 must re-qualify by the payment of the required fee and the filing of a new oath and bond with the County Clerk of his residence between May 1, 1965 and May 15, 1965, inclusive.

Martin emphasized that Notaries Public should not send requests for re-appointment or for commissions directly to the Secretary of State. The law specifically requires that the County Clerks approve notary bonds.

Any person not now a Notary Public who desires appointment should apply to his County Clerk before May 20, 1965. Application during this period will assure that the appointment will be made in sufficient time for the applicant to qualify at the beginning of the new term.

The Secretary of State further pointed out that each person applying for a commission as a Notary Public must be at least 21 years of age and a resident of the county for which he is appointed. The exact name and permanent address of the applicant must be furnished the County Clerk.

the sound of year-round pleasure

Color it PLEASANTLY...
May is National Radio Month!

May is National Radio Month. And this light, happy, smiling symbol is being used by thousands of radio stations throughout the United States to illustrate the theme of this year's observance: "Radio — The Sound of Year-Round Pleasure!"

Using infinite care, we'd like you to color it for us—professionally, painstakingly and, of course, pleasantly! Make it a labor of love—like we do our hour-to-hour, day-to-day, week-to-week, month-to-month, year-in, year-out service to our community.

The smiling face is indicative of the wide range of listening satisfaction found in today's radio. Color it appealingly.

The concentric circles emanating from the center reflect the timely, tireless, total service of radio. Color them completely. (Warm, sun-like pigments will do fine.)

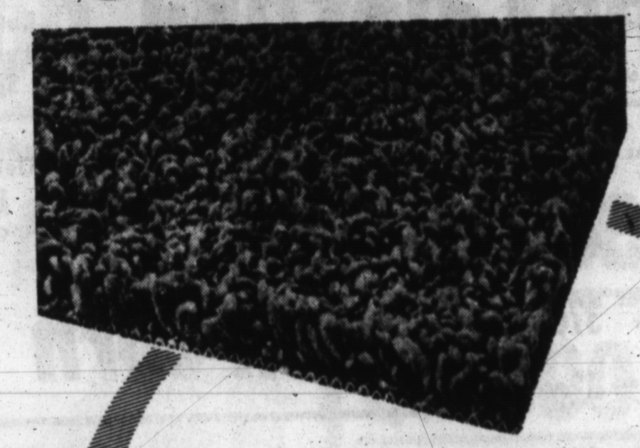

The cheerful, friendly letters surrounding the design suggests the variety that is yours on radio. Try provocatively varied colors that portray the interesting and exciting worlds of music, news, commentary, drama, religion, sports, public affairs, comedy, discussion, science and public service—so vital to progressive, modern living and so conveniently available everywhere on radio.

MAN IN WAITING

LONDON (AP) — After five years in London as Israel's ambassador here, diplomat Arthur Lourie, 61, revealed that Queen Elizabeth delayed his presentation of credentials in 1960.

The reason, Lourie told the Anglo-Israel Association at a farewell luncheon, was that the Queen was awaiting the birth of a third child. A son, Prince Andrew, was born Feb. 19, 1960.

Lourie said that when he finally presented his credentials, Queen Elizabeth remarked: "I am sorry to have kept you waiting."

We Reserve the Right to Limit Quantities

By MELVIN YOUNG

Construction crews are making headway this week bringing Hereford's "Variety Park" project into focus. Sidewalks on the first block have been ripped out and concrete storm sewers placed in the ground.

Just the corners have been removed on the other three blocks, and storm sewers have been placed across the streets.

All in all, they're making pretty good progress on the main street face-lifting.

Incidentally, streets will be cleared Monday for the dollar day shoppers. So come on down and shop. You won't need to worry about running over the dirt moving equipment. It won't be there.

-HB-

Abe Martin, dean of the main street barbers, is now worried about the coloring of the sidewalks.

"Don't know whether the new color will match my shoes or not," Abe told us this week.

That could be a problem we suppose, particularly if the sidewalk happened to be pink and he was wearing blue suede shoes

Oh well, you can always depend on Abe to find something wrong with the deal.

-HB-

We've noticed also, that we have more sidewalk superintendents than workers since the project got off the ground.

Among the observers, kibitzing or advising, (whichever the case may be) was V. O. Hennen, Johnny Pool, Charlie Morris, and of course, Abe.

With help like that, who needs engineers?

-HB-

La Cafe Hacienda, a new Mexican food and pizza emporium, will open its doors for business Monday May 3rd at 239 Avenue D., former location of the Gas Light.

Open house will be held Saturday and Sunday from 2 p.m. until 6 p.m.

Operated by Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Wilson, the specialty restaurant will feature Mexican food as well as pizza. They will not have a complete Italian menu. Just Pizza.

The Wilsons have been operating the Corral for the past 5 years, serving the school students at noon and Mexican food at night. They will continue operating the Corral at noon only.

-HB-

AND G. D. Caison Jr. is beginning to make a little progress on his new restaurant, which will be located at 385 and U. S. 60. Caison figures the place will be open for business August 1.

-HB-

Also in the mill now, is the new motel to be located directly West of Caison's new rewtaurant.

Foundations have been dug for the 50 room motel which is being built by Owen Seamands and D. C. McWhorter.

And just in time too. Hereford will host the Lions Club District 2-T-1 convention next spring, and we're betting every available room in town will be filled.

-HB-

The new building on 25-mile Avenue which will house the Hereford branch of SIC is also almost complete.

In fact, Southwestern Investment Co. has already put up their sign.

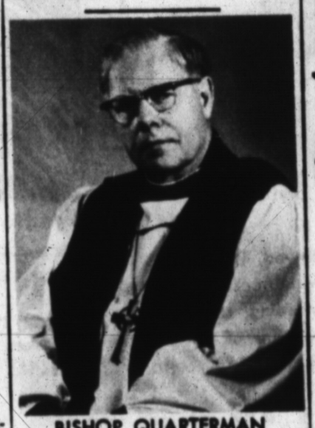

Another foundation just to the South indicates that 25-Mile Avenue will soon be full of business houses.

-HB-

Al Yeager, manager of Foxworth-Galbraith Lumber Co. was trying to tell us the other day about the duties of an executive.

"He's the man," Al says, "Who checks to see that all the towel dispensers are full, that there is plenty baleing wire at each side of the yard so the boys won't be delayed when loading out lumber, check to see that the inside clerks have plenty of paper sacks under the counters and empties the waste baskets.

"And incidentally, he runs errands too," he said as he left our office.

BISHOP QUARTERMAN
. . . At St. Thomas' Church

Episcopal Bishop To Appear Here

The Right Rev. George H. Quarterman, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Northwest Texas, will administer the sacrament of Confirmation and the apostolic rite of the Laying on of Hands at the 11 a.m. service today at St. Thomas' Episcopal Church here. This is a semi-annual visit.

Bishop Quarterman will also celebrate Holy Communion and preach the sermon. Following the service will be a reception honoring the bishop and those confirmed and received.

The bishop will meet with the Bishop's Committee of the Church while here.

Britain's Aging Scotch Valued Over $3 Billion

By GRANVILLE J. WATTS
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Take a good deep breath in the Highlands of Scotland and you'll notice a difference in the air.

It's whisky.

Evaporation during the maturing process accounts for some 10 million gallons a year of the stuff. That's an awful lot of scent on the wind.

At this moment there are about 425 million gallons of Scotch maturing throughout Scotland.

Lines of huge oak wood casks, thousands upon thousands of them, lie in silent, dark warehouses across the land.

Their value is estimated at a staggering $3,360 million. And it's all going to be drunk within the next few years.

An average Scotch takes up to six or seven years to mature. Some of the classic malt whiskies, however, are kept up to 30 years. So they become collector's pieces, like an old brandy or a famous champagne.

But most Scotch has a quick turnover.

People the world over like an ample supply and a sobering fact for Britons these days is that four-fifths of all Scotch produced is drunk by the people outside Britain.

Half Exported to U. S.

Half of all Scotch exports go to the United States. But the beverage is now sweeping through Europe.

Exports to the six Common Market countries (West Germany, France, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg) have trebled in about four years.

Scotch producers are particularly pleased at their success in the French market.

Advertising of Scotch is banned by law in France. Despite this, sales there have shot up from $9.5 million in 1959 to $30.2 million in 1963.

Exports to Scandinavian countries, with Sweden in the lead, continue to rise.

What is Scotch?

Its origins are buried in antiquity. But there's no doubt that for centuries a spirit distilled from a fermented barley mash has been made in the Scottish highlands.

The oldest reference to whisky occurs in a Scottish document dated 1494, where an entry says: "Eight bolls of malt to Friar John Cor where with to make aquavitae."

The term "whisky" is derived from the Gaelic "usquebaugh" or "uisge beatha," meaning "water of life."

Scotch malt whisky is made from malted barley only. Scotch grain whisky is normally made from malted barley and maize.

The manufacturing of scotch is pretty straightforward.

SIXTY-EIGHT VARIETIES — There are 68 varieties of Scotch shown here in Fortnum and Mason's wine cellar. Aging Scotch is now valued at more than $3 billion in Scotland.

Malted barley is taken and mashed with hot water to extract the sugar. This sugary liquid is then fermented with yeast in a vat and distilled twice. The whisky is then put in casks and allowed to mature.

Blends Consumed Most

The Scotch most people drink is a blend of malt and grain whiskies.

But the straight malt whiskies, a heavier drink with a more pronounced flavor than the blendeds, are gaining ground.

The malts have names that ring like poery:

Glenlivet, Laphroaig, Glenfiddich, Strathisla, Glenmorangie, Aultmore, Talisker . . .

The list seems endless. In fact there are 2,000 different Scotch whiskies, and more are being added all the time.

Four new distilleries are planned for Speyside, the Highland area where most of the Scotch is produced.

It has been written of whisky: "It sloweth age; it strengtheneth youth; it helpeth digestion; it cutteth phlegm; it abandoneth melancholy; it relishes the heart; it lighteneth the mind and it quickeneth the spirit; it keepeth and preserveth the teeth from chattering and the throat from rattling."

And it getteth you drunk.

Crossing Grocery Store Threshold Sets Visitor Back For 100 Years

By JO BALL

DALLAS, (AP) — When you step into the Wagner Grocery Store on downtown Dallas, you are stepping back almost one hundred years.

Since it opened in 1868, the store—the oldest in Dallas and possibly the oldest in Texas—has undergone little change.

Across from the courthouse in downtown Dallas, the ancient establishment with its dim, antique interior remains a bit of "the country in the city."

THE TWO-STORY brick building with a peaked roof and iron steps once was the hub of a growing city. Now it is destined for oblivion.

The curved showcases, wooden bins that held peas, beans and bulk sugar, and the rectangular screened case that held many sides of bacon are empty. The most modern equipment, a wooden cash register made in 1889, rings out only a few meager sales these days. Workmen from the new courthouse building make up most of the daily trade. They order bologna slices and bread for sandwiches. The meat is cut with a butcher knife not a machine.

Louis Wagner, now in his 80s and son of the original owner, has been minding the store for 55 years. He recalls the days when corn whiskey sold for $2 a gallon and Coon Hollow, the finest, for $4 a gallon. On top of the dozen barrels lining one wall sat a little glass for "samplin' for choice. "After two or three samples, the cusomer always bought a jug." he says with a smile. There also were barrels for kerosene, cottonseed oil and grain alcohol.

WAGNER RECALLS coming to work on a mule car, dropping his nickle in the glass box and watching it drop through the many shelves inside. About this time, one streetcar company wanted to put a loop around the courthouse, but the judges said no, the racket would interfere with the courts.

The high, big-bellied stove stands cold now in the back of the store, cobwebs cover stacks of old records, bins of coal are covered with a deep layer of dust. The old elevator that carried supplies from the basement hasn't operated in years.

Soon the building will be torn down to make room for the new courthouse complex now under construction. The farmers still come on Saturday mornings to sit on the steps and chat, but soon they have to move on as another remnant of Dallas' early days falls victims to progress.

Generous And Sound

Rep. O. C. Fisher of San Angelo has raised valid objections to the administration's efforts to rewrite our basic U.S. immigration law, the McCarran-Walter Act.

Appearing before the House sub-committee which has just begun holding hearings on the proposal, Fisher said that his primary objection is that the new law, which the administration wants as a replacement for McCarran-Walter, would transfer from Congress to the executive the responsibility of determining how many immigrants would be admitted each year.

"It would give a politically appointed commission power to decide who would be admitted and from what country they would come," says Fisher. "This would create a bonanza for immigration lawyers and influence peddlers, and would not be in the public interest." For more than a decade, the McCarran-Walter Act has kept politics out of our immigration program. If it is scrapped in favor of a law that will give political appointees the power to decide who shall be permitted to enter this country, the program very likely will be subject to manipulation for political purposes.

Since its enactment in 1952 by an overwhelming majority of both houses of Congress, the McCarren-Walter Act has been a favorite target of liberals and leftists, who charge that it fails to treat all nations alike, imposes unnecessary restrictions and is discriminatory. Actually, it is one of the most liberal immigration laws in the world.

If any nation has been fair and generous in terms of its immigration policy, it has been the United States. What other nation has thrown open its doors so wide to millions seeking liberty and opportunity? Since we began keeping tabs on immigration in 1820, this nation has admitted approximately 43 million immigrants.

The liberals who oppose the McCarran-Walter Act have complained about the alleged discrimination of its quota system — which the administration hopes to junk under the bill (S-500) proposed on Jan. 15 by Sen. Philip Hart, D-Mich.

They point to high quotas assigned to prospective immigrants from Northern Europe and the low quotas given to those from Southern Europe, Asia, Africa and elsewhere. What they fail to point out is that the quota system is by no means the only regulator of immigration.

In fact, in the last 10 years — the period during which the McCarran-Walter Act has been in effect — only one third of all immigrants have been affected by the quota system. During that 10-year period, approximately 100,000 immigrants were admitted each year under the provisions of the quota system; some 200,000 per year entered under nonquota provisions of the law.

Whatever discrimination exists in the quota system has been offset to a large degree by other provisions. For example, while the McCarran-Walter Act assigns an annual quota of only 205 immigrants from China, 185 from Japan and 100 from the Philippines — three typical quotas which the liberals frequently cite as evidence of the law's discrimination — the actual number of immigrants admitted each year over the past decade has averaged 3,274 from China, 4,467 from Japan and 1,809 from the Philippines.

The liberals are also fond of pointing out that Ireland's quota (17,756 per year) is more than three times as large as Italy's (5,666).

What they don't point out is that, in the past decade, the actual number of immigrants from Italy (an average of 18,700 per year) has been almost three times as large as the actual number of immigrants from Ireland (6,455 per year). Similarly, while Sweden's quota is nearly eight times as large as Portugal's — which the liberals say is evidence of discrimination against Portugal — the record shows that we have admitted more immigrants from Portugal than from Sweden in the last decade.

Our basic immigration law, the McCarran-Walter Act, has been fair, generous and sound. Members of Congress would be wise to pay attention to the record and give careful study to the facts, instead of listening to the emotional arguments of those who would junk that law.

People, Town Make Newspaper

The Brand was fortunate in awards and recognition when announcements were released last weekend at the Panhandle Press meeting in Amarillo. Needless to say, we are happy about the whole thing, and more especially are we pleased with the fact that so many people have taken the time to express their appreciation.

However, as we have noted before, a newspaper can definitely be no better than the community and the people which it serves — and we know that recognition for The Brand is also recognition for all of our subscribers and advertisers, along with a diligent staff of interested, hard working people.

More gratifying still is the fact that Brand circulation has gained more than 40 percent during the past three years. To us, this indicates that The Brand is serving newcomers, along with the old guard; that we have been successful in extending our scope of news coverage to fit a constantly growing area — and this is far from a simple task. Sometimes, it is revolutionary, and frequently it is unpopular. At the same time, we recognize many shortcomings in operation of The Brand, and are doing our best to remedy them on both short and long-range basis.

Meanwhile, we do appreciate the many kind words expressed, just as we appreciate criticism and assistance when we get out of line.

Once again, we say: "A newspaper can be no better than the community and the people it is privileged to serve".

Moisture Helps Produce Smiles

It is hard to please everyone, but the moisture which fell last week came about as near achieving this impossibility as any occurrence we can recall in a long time. The only complaint, in fact, was centered around the small amount recorded. And, if it is followed by additional moisture, even this could be good.

In addition to crops and other economic phases, the very fact that the moisture broke into an early heat wave can be classified as highly important. Seldom do we observe 100-degree weather in this area, and when the mercury hits 98 in April we do have the makings of a long, hot summer.

Drouth, even before the pioneers, has been a general Panhandle problem and, while irrigation is a life-saver, it still cannot replace the benefits of a good, soaking rain. Like most other things, we are prone to appreciate our benefits more when we have long been without them — and moisture is no exception.

To Stand Firm Brings Peace

President Johnson has adopted a firm stand on the question of Vietnam, and we are inclined to agree when he declares, "To yield brings only greater threats. To stand firm will bring lasting peace."

Our only question is, if this policy is so good in the Far East, why it should not also apply in Cuba? Or for that matter, why not in the Dominican Republic, where we evacuated 1,000 Americans this week?

While we are gaining a certain amount of respect over our stand in the East, we definitely continue to lose face on our home shores — and when it comes to swapping, almost any horse trader would say, "There's more to gain at home". Mostly, though, it seems to us that the "get tough" policy might well apply in both locations.

THIRTEEN MOVE IN

Texans Well Situated In New House Building

By TEX EASLEY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Office moving time on Capitol Hill is about over and the biennial migration finds 13 of the 23 Texas House members in the new $100 million Rayburn Office Building.

Suites in the colossal structure, a memorial to the late Rep. Sam Rayburn of Bonham who served as Speaker longer than anyone in history, were assigned on a seniority basis. Locations in the building, which sprawls over a big city block, also went according to seniority.

ONLY CALIFORNIA with 16 of its 38 members in the Rayburn building exceeds Texas in on occupancy.

The dean of the Texas delegation, Rep. Wright Patman, D, Texarkana, continues to occupy a suite in the Longfellow Building, the second oldest of the three House office buildings. Patman, as the fourth ranking member of the House, could have had almost any spot he wanted in the new building.

The House Texans now settled in their four-room Rayburn suite —many with more space than they are using, are:

George Mahon, Lubbock; W. R. (Bob) Poage, Waco; Albert Thomas, Houston; Clark Fisher, San Angelo; Lindley Beckworth, Gladewater; Olin Teague, Bryan; Clark Thompson, Galveston; Omar Burleson, Anson; John Dowdy, Athens; Walter Rogers, Panpa; Jack Brooks, Beaumont; Jim Wright, Fort Worth; John Young, Corpus Christi.

BESIDE PATMAN, Reps. Bob Casey, Houston; Henry Gonzales, San Antonio, and Graham Purcell, Wichita Falls, are in the Longworth Building. Reps. Ray Roberts, McKinney, and Jake Pickle, Austin, both in Cannon, were scheduled to move soon into Longworth.

With Roberts and Pickle moving, that leaves Rep. Joe Pool, of Dallas, and he three Texas freshmen in Cannon. Reps. Earle Cabell of Dallas and Richard White of El Paso had to take run-of-the-mill suites, so to speak, but Rep. Eligio (Kika) de la Garza of Mission luckily inherited the choice layout occupied by his predecessor, Joe Kilgore. Pool moved into one of the better suites from the back corridor quarters he had occupied.

Work Is Progressing On Electric Plant

50 YEARS AGO

J. B. Storm is planting cotton this week. He aims to plant thirty acres in cotton this spring. I guess we will know in a year or two that cotton on the plains should not be considered just an experimental crop. And gardens are looking well in these parts, especially Irish potatoes. It looks now as if we all ought to have several acres planted in Irish potatoes.

Telephone service in Hereford continued to grow as two more phones were added last week.

The representative of the Brand called around to see how the work was progressing on the new electric light plant now under construction in our city. He was very agreeably surprised at the amount of work that has been done and in the way the foundation for the heavy machinery has been laid. Tucker and Jacobsen, the owners of the plant, are expecting a car load of brick which is on the road already. The seventy horsepower engine will be used both for running the gin and the electric light plant.

10 YEARS AGO

One thousand and forty-nine persons were served lunch at the annual meeting of the Deaf Smith County Electric Co-op which was highlighted by the election of three new directors and a vote on irrigation rates. New directirs elected were Sloan H. Osburn of Friona, Dewey L. Wright, who lives south of Dimmitt, and Tom Draper, who lives south of Hereford. The three were elected by acclamation.

Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson recently toured the drouth-stricken areas of Texas, Colorado, Kansas, Oklahoma and New Mexico to get a first hand idea of situations as they exist. Some of it was sad, according to the Secretary, while other parts appeared better than he expected. In conclusion, he advanced two basic theories which seem to go hand in hand. Several times he recommended a good rain to cure the drouth and that "we try to get to the source of the drouths, rather than combat them with emergency relief measures."

Panhandle Paragraphs

Denial of a motion for rehearing on the Moore County redistricting suit opened the door to the possibility that the reapportionment case may be argued before the Texas Supreme Court. The case went to the 7th Judicial District Appeals Court in May, 1964, after a summary judgment by Judge Harry Schultz on the grounds that all administrative procedures in redistricting the county had not been granted.

THE BOOTLEG —Philosopher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Bindweed farm probably is looking too far into the future this week, but you never know.

Dear editar:

I don't know how many cars there are right now in the United States, I may have read the figure in a newspaper somewhere and probably put it in my files for future use but it's too far down to get to, which may need explaining. I file newspapers by stacking them in a corner and if something I want is on top it's readily accessible but if it's a few feet down I hesitate to pull it out, I've got forethought, I don't want the whole stack toppling over on me. You run your business and I'll run mine.

At any rate, there must be at least 30 million automobiles in the U. S. right now, maybe a lot more, but 30 million is a good enough figure for my purposes.

What I'm getting at is that I read in a newspaper last night that the automobile industry expects to produce nine million cars this year. This is first-rate business news, but it has its drawbacks. I mean, we're producing cars a lot faster than we're getting rid of them. Makes no difference how hard and conscientiously people try, they can't get the wreck rate up to the production rate.

Therefore, say we're gaining four or five million cars a year. In ten years, instead of haying 30 million, we'll have 75 or 80 million. In twenty years, 125 million. In thirty years, 150 million.

Have you stopped to think that in a hundred years from now we'll have over 500,000,000 automobiles in the United States?

Do you realize that if they all started in one direction at the same time, those stacked up behind would never get there?

Is Congress working on legislation now to establish Driving Days, as it should be? What I mean is, with that many cars, driving will have to be prorated, with one group allowed out on Monday, one on Tuesday, etc. I can see some smart people right now buying seven cars so they can drive one every day in the week, but Congress will catch on and plug that loop hole before it spreads.

Then there'll be the problem of developing underground farming, as most of the land will be paved.

I tell you, there are vast problems coming up in the future that are going to take a lot of forethought.

Yours faithfuly,
J. A.

Doctor Splints Broken Leg On Mountain Side

By DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer

SEATTLE (AP) — It was a simple enough procedure: splinting a broken leg. Straighten the limb to its normal position. Elevate it. Use plenty of cushioning. Immobilize both of the adjacent joints.

A simple procedure — but Dr. Otto T. Trott was performing it in the middle of a wind and snow storm at the 3,400-foot level of Mt. Si in the Cascade Mountains. The patient, Mrs. Norma Newell, lay in a bed scooped out of snow beside the wing of a crashed airplane.

Dr. Trott, a wiry German-born general practitioner who says he has "probably hung more on helicopter cables than any other physician in America," is medical director of the Mountain Rescue Council.

The council, a privately financed volunteer organization, began in a 1948 meeting of Dr. Trott; Ome Daiber, a home builder, and Wolf Bauer, a consuling engineer.

All were mountain climbers and had taken part in rescues on an unorganized basis ("Just because of the need," says Daiber. "Somebody had to do it.")

Bauer had called the meeting after returning from a business trip in Europe, where he witnesses operations of the Berg Wacht, the Bavarian rescue organization in the Alps.

"We had nothing like that here," Dr. Trott recalls. "We dicided something had to be done."

150 Members

Today, the Mountain Rescue Council has about 150 members in the Seattle area — among them Jim Whittaker, first American to scale Mt. Everest. It has become the nucleus of the Mountain Rescue Association, with affiliates in Alaska, California, the Rocky Mountain states and New England.

Although it receives no public funds, the council is called upon by federal, state and county agencies and responds immediately when there is an accident in the mountains.

Like a climber tumbling into a crevasse in Washington's Olympics. Or a group of youngsters lost on an overnight hike. Or what happened to Mrs. Newell and pilot Lawrence E. Clarke.

Mrs. Newell, 40, a secretary for a Seattle flying service, was taking flying lesson from Clarke, 26, a pilot for the service, when their small plane iced up and smacked into the north face of Mt. Si a little before 3 p.m. Dec. 29.

Mrs. Newell flipped the plane's radio onto an emergency frequency and put out a call for help. Then she lost consciousness. A radio operator at Paine Air Force Base at Everett, Wash., happened to have a very high frequency receiver, the kind used by civilian pilots, in addition to military ultra high frequency sets. He heard the call and relayed it to military planes. He also notified the county sherriff's office in Seattle.

Rescue Council Alerted

At 5:15 p.m., Sheriff's Capt. Harold Gauntlet, in charge of rescues, called Daiber. A second, unlisted, phone in the house is paid for by the Mountain Rescue Council and is for outgoing calls. Mrs. Daiber got on it.

She called the council's telephone committee, wives of members whose job it is to spread the word. She also called the residence of Dr. Trott.

The doctor was on a hospital call. His wife, Ruth, (whom he first met while whe was strapped to a toboggan with a broken leg from a skiing accident) relayed the message. A short time after he got home, about 8:30 Dr. Trott was on his way to North Bend, Wash., with his 15-year-old daughter, Karen, for company, his medical bag, a portable heater, a plastic tarpaulin and blankets. "The only difference between a mountain accident and any other," he says, "is the urgent need of additional warmth."

About 90 men assembled for the Mt. Si mission at 7:30 p.m. at a shopping center and split into car pools. They assembled again about an hour later at the State Patrol office in North Bend. Most of the trip was on an icy highway. As always, the drivers paid for their own gasoline and any wear on their cars.

Dr. Trott got to North Bend about 12:30 a.m.

Clubs, Companies Cooperate

Splitting into their usual six-man teams, Mountain Rescue workers headed toward the crash area in four-wheeled vehicles provided by a group called the 4x4 club.

They drove on a Weyerhaeuser Co. logging road. Weyerhaeuser sent a man to open the gate. The Pacific Northwest Bell Co. sent a tracked snow vehicle. The roundabout trip was about 20 miles, from North Bend to the crash area.

By midnight, a near-blizzard was raging on the mountain. At 2 a.m., search for the downed plane was suspended until dawn. Most of the searchers stayed on the mountain, huddled in their vehicles. Temperatures ranged from zero to 12 above.

Shortly before 10 a.m., a helicopter spotted the wreckage. Two paramedics were dropped by cable and Clarke was hoisted aboard.

Members of the ground party made a landing strip on the logging road by marking it with flares and the copter landed. Clarke, who had head injuries, was transferred to another draft and taken to a hospital at North Bend.

Got to Injured Woman

Then Otto Trott climbed aboard, was flown to the scene, and made what he estimates is his 25th or 30th cable descent from a helicopter.

"At first I couldn't see the plane because it was covered with snow. The right wing had hit a stump and their heads had bumped the instrument panel. The woman had a broken back and leg."

With the medics assisting him, Dr. Trott lifted Mrs. Newell out of the plane and laid her between the crumpled wing and a shelf of snow. They placed Arctic gloves and a down-filled parka on her. The doctor made a cushion of foam rubber and covered the patient with a tarpaulin. Then he got out a collapsible plastic splint and blew it up by breathing into it like a balloon.

"We tested her hand to see if she could hold onto the horse-collar to be hoisted on the cable. She was conscious and cooperative and was able to do it, so we slipped the horse collar under her arms and they lifted her straight up."

Mrs. Newell was flown to North Bend, where an ambulance met the helicopter and took her to the hospital.

Mountain Rescue sent in a party on snow shoes to meet Trott and his compainions. They made their way to the road and then rolled down it on the snow vehicle.

At the hospital, Mrs. Newell and Clarke were reported in satisfactory condition.

In North Bend, the doctor picked up his daughter. By 3:30 p.m., he was back in Seattle.

Expansion Plans Will Be Topic For FB Meeting

A membership meeting of the Deaf Smith County Farm Bureau has been set for 8 p.m. Monday at the Community Center to outline plans and secure approval for a $30,000 headquarters building.

Denzil Pulliam, chairman of the meeting is required by state law and 10 per cent of the membership card holders must be there before any action taken is official.

THE LOCAL FARM Bureau, organized in 1953, currently occupies quarters at 120 N. 25-Mile-Ave.

Pulliam said they hope to sell this property and buy a building site on the Harrison Hwy. north of the cemetery. Plans call for the erection of a building housing six offices, a reception room and a conference room.

The non-profits organization cannot sell property, however, without the approval of the membership. "The building committe has gone about as far as it can go," Pulliam said, "without the membership meeting to approve the plans."

Carroll Newsom is president of the county unit.
