Legends of Swing Festival rolling into Snyder

Pickin' & grinnin' begins Wednesday

With Bob Wills' tunes flowing from their disc players, the RVs began arriving as early as last Thursday, and by this morning, the park at Scurry County Coliseum was half full. By showtime, recreational vehicles of all shapes and sizes will have filled the 182 spaces.

The RV crowd is only part of the faithful followers of the Legends of Western Swing Music Festival, a four day and night celebration which begins on stage at noon Wednesday.

Only five RV spaces were left unreserved this morning and chamber of commerce officials said they are getting calls about those. All local motel rooms are booked, and motel space in Colorado City, Sweetwater and Post is said to be scarce.

"I don't think Snyder has seen anything like this," grinned chamber manager Donna Fowler.

Fowler wasn't speaking as much of the bookings as the event itself. The festival, she said, is a community-friendly event.

"At night, groups get together outside the RVs and play music informally. They've invited the townspeople to come out and join in," said Fowler.

Inside, people are invited to dance and listen to the likes of Hank Thompson, Johnnie Lee Wills, Tommy Allsup and the Texas Dance Band; Leon Rausch - Tommy Morrel and the Time Warp Top Hands and more.

The music begins at noon and doesn't stop until midnight Wednesday through Friday. On Saturday, the first guitar licks will break out at 10 a.m.

Tickets are $15 per person per day at the coliseum box office. Children under 15 will be admitted free with an adult. There is no charge, of course, for festival-goers who want to join in on the impromptu jamming outside in the parking lot.

Some 13 booths will be open, featuring arts and crafts, clothing, stringed instruments, memorabilia and other items.

In an effort to make access easier for everyone, the chamber has rented a school bus which will leave the coliseum every hour. The bus will go west on Coliseum Drive to the square and south on College Avenue to Western Texas College.

"It's something we're doing to help those who follow the festival, as well as our local merchants," said Fowler. "We're delivering customers right to their door."

Packets with discounted coupons provided by various merchants are also available to festival-goers. Chamber officials have arranged special activities for out-of-town visitors, including swimming, bowling and movies.

The opening act Wednesday will be a popular group, Jody Nix and the Texas Cowboys — an appropriate choice since the festival has designated the first day as Hoyle Nix Day.

Johnnie Wills will be honored Thursday and Thompson will have his day on Friday. Bob Wills Day is set for Saturday.

The festival's organizer, Chuck Woods of Mustang, Okla., said the reception he has received in organizing the festival here has been "outstanding."

Festival-goers are invited to sit in the stands or bring lawn chairs. There will be plenty of room for dancing.

Among the other artists performing will be Peewee

The feller on Deep Creek says, "A rule of summer: Never finish anything you haven't started."

Think More Rain!

Sometimes a dog's life ain't all that bad.

We know quite a few folks who have a reputation for pampering their pets, but most flea-bags don't get this kind of treatment.

A childless couple in New York went to their lawyer to have a will prepared, but were stunned to learn they couldn't leave their estate to their family which consisted of four schnauzers.

The couple objected. The argued that the four dogs were always there for them. The lawyer suggested that they could name other people in their wills and instruct that the money be used to take care of their "children."

However, the couple couldn't find peace of mind that the animals would get the care they deserved.

Instead, the couple found that they can use their money to send their schnauzers to college.

Each now have a "scholarship" to Purdue University in West Lafayette, Ind. The university has a two-year program called Peace of Mind that guarantees quality medical care for the remainder of the animals' lives.

The program provides careful placement and adoption in a good, loving home. The animals' masters make a hefty contribution to the university.

The school suggests a minimum of $25,000 per pet, but the school remains flexible.

Purdue keeps the money in a trust, using interest to pay for pet care and programs at the vet school. After the pet dies, Purdue is then free to spend the balance of the trust.

It all started when a woman called and asked that such a program be established. The dog died before the woman, but she still went ahead with her bequest to the school.

The school's dean says some 10 pets are signed up, and there have been dozens of inquiries from others. So far, the school has agreed to take care of dogs, cats, parrots and horses. But the school would consider almost any animal - even a boa constrictor.

The university once had to say "sit." One well-heeled man wanted to create a foundation worth $20 million to care for his 150 dogs. Before an agreement had been drafted, the "herd" had increased to 300.

Perhaps Texas can get in on the act. Let pet owners pre-pay college tuition for their pets.

Think More Rain!

G.A. Parks says he can remember growing up in Scurry County when things were so bad that kids only had a tumbleweed or red ants for pets.

Police investigate vehicle break-ins

A rash of burglaries was reported Monday as officers and deputies investigated five vehicle break-ins plus a burglary at East Elementary.

Two bicycles were also reported stolen during daylight hours Monday.

The burglaries apparently occurred sometime Sunday night or early Monday morning. Most were reported as citizens were preparing to go to work.

Snyder Police Sgt. Jerry Parker said today that citizens should do all they can to deter the vehicle burglaries and this includes making sure all vehicles are locked when parked.

"Anytime a person is away from their car, it should be locked," said Parker.

He added that suspicious activity in one's neighborhood should be reported by calling the department at 573-2611. Parking one's car in a well-lighted area is a deterrent to break-ins as well as not leaving valuables in open sight, he said.

"We have reports of people leaving cellular phones, cameras and even purses in their cars. That's an open invitation for a burglar."

Parker said citizens should also make sure residences are secure.

"Make sure your doors and windows are locked and be aware of dogs barking in the neighborhood."

The first report of a vehicle burglary was made at 6:33 a.m. Monday when Billy Kirkpatrick requested a deputy and reported someone had broken into his vehicle at 959 N. Avenue R.

At 6:42 a.m., Snyder ISD maintenance supervisor Lawton Taylor reported someone had broken into East Elementary.

Damian Medrano notifed officers 7:09 a.m. that someone had broken into his vehicle at the Kingswood Apartments.

Sharon Sartor, 404 32nd St., notified the police department at 8:22 a.m. that someone had broken into her vehicle sometime during the night Sunday.

John Velasquez notified officers at 8:37 a.m. that someone had burglarized his vehicle while it was parked at 2804 Ave. F. A cellular telephone that was taken was later recovered at 1:12 a.m. today when officers arrested a 23-year-old male on unrelated charges.

Jeff Martinez notified the police department at 11:06 p.m. Monday that he had seen three males trying to break into a residcence in the 3300 block of Avenue E.

Robin Baldwin called the police department at 11:22 p.m. from her residence at 408 30th and stated her husband had seen three males taking something from their vehicle.

Police declined to comment on the items taken during the break-ins or on possible suspects and said their investigation is continuing.

Two bicycles were also stolen Monday.

Ann Overhulser reported the theft of a bicycle at 4:50 p.m. from 3712 Austin Ave. and Josh Green reported a bicycle stolen from 2909 38th St. at 4:53 p.m.

For county clerk...

Beck is Democrat's choice

Denise Beck, who has more than 16 years experience working for the county, has been selected as the Democratic Party nominee for county clerk.

Mrs. Beck was chosen by the party's executive committee Monday, from a list of four applicants.

The Republican Party executive committee is scheduled to meet at 5:30 this afternoon at Bullard's Computer Solutions to select a GOP nominee. Individuals who have confirmed they are seeking the Republican Party nomination are Joan Bunch, a deputy district clerk, and Laurie Graves, Development Corporation of Snyder secretary.

The names of the Democratic and Republican nominees — plus independents, if any — will be placed on the November ballot. Whomever is elected will serve the remainder of the term vacated by current county clerk Frances Billingsley. Ms. Billingsley has announced that she is resigning, effective Dec. 31.

Mrs. Beck was employed as a clerk in the county clerk's office from 1980 until 1984, then went to work as a dispatcher and jailer for Scurry County Sheriff's Office. She worked in the sheriff's office for 11 years before taking a position as a mail room clerk at the Price Daniel Unit in 1995, where she is currently employed.

Denise Beck

Prior to 1980, she was a secretary for Hermleigh ISD and for a former Snyder attorney.

She is married to area rancher Weldon Beck. They have two daughters, 20-year-old Jamie, a WTC student; and 16-year-old Jackie, a student at Ira High School.

Others seeking the Democratic nomination were Sue Lloyd, a secretary for Anderson and West; Janet Stribling, bookkeeper and Snyder ISD board member; and Cholanne Lindsey, county chief deputy auditor.

Anyone interested in running for county clerk may file as an independent. To do so, they must notify the county judge and receive a petition which must be signed by 257 registered voters within the county. Those wishing to file as an independent have until mid-July to do so.

Report: IRS material among FBI files

WASHINGTON (AP) — Raising new privacy concerns in the controversy over FBI background files, a Republican senator says one of his aides saw IRS documents among files the White House collected on hundreds of presidential employees from the Reagan and Bush years.

Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, asked FBI Director Louis Freeh in a letter Monday for a description of the type of Internal Revenue Service information included in what some White House workers called the "Update Project" files.

"A member of my staff who reviewed the Update Project files noted that one file contained" IRS documents, Grassley wrote. It wasn't immediately clear where the staff member saw the files.

According to another congressional aide who spoke on condition of anonymity, Grassley's staff member said the IRS file related to "several individuals."

Grassley said his aide got a glimpse of the IRS information in the files, but "because of the confidential nature" of IRS tax information, the aide did not seek a closer look at its entire contents.

A recent report by FBI General Counsel Howard Shapiro on the White House's gathering of 407 FBI files makes no mention of the IRS.

Deteriorating school facilities widespread in big cities, West

WASHINGTON (AP) — Shabby schools exist in every state, but a congressional study found faulty roofs, leaky plumbing and broken-down heating systems are most widespread in big cities and the West.

Problems are worse in secondary schools, buildings housing 600 or more students and schools serving poor and minority students, according to the General Accounting Office study released today.

Thirty-eight percent of big-city schools report at least one inadequate building, compared with 30 percent of schools in rural areas and 29 percent of schools on the fringe of cities, the study said.

In addition, 67 percent of inner-city schools, serving nearly 10 million students, report the need to repair or replace plumbing, heating or foundations.

"We can't seem to get anybody to do anything about it," said Michael D. Casserly, director of the Council of Great City Schools. "It's long overdue."

Good instruction is going on inside rickety school buildings, Casserly said. But most Americans have no children in the nation's 80,000 public schools, and their perception often is determined by schools' appearance, he argues.

Voters are starting to approve local bond issues to repair schools. Casserly's group surveyed 50 urban districts. Only a few of the 35 that responded said bond issues for school repair had failed in the past two years.

Despite that, Casserly argues that schools need money from states and the federal government. After approving $100 million to build, repair and renovate schools in 1994, Congress cut the money in 1995 to help balance the budget.

Even that $100 million in federal money would not have gone far, according to the GAO, Congress' auditing and investigative arm. In a similar report in February 1995, the GAO said it would cost about $111 billion to repair schools nationwide.

The new report gives state-by-state information about schools' conditions:

—Eight states say at least 40 percent of their schools have a building in need of extensive repair or replacement. They were Alaska, Arizona, California, Delaware, Massachusetts, Washington, West Virginia and the District of Columbia.

—States where more than 65 percent of schools have at least one inadequate building feature, such as plumbing, were: Alaska, California, Delaware, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Mexico, New York, Ohio, West Virginia and the District of Columbia.

—Eight states say 20 percent or more of their schools had a handful of bad environmental conditions, such as lighting, heating, indoor air quality or security. They were Alaska, California, Maine, Massachusetts, Oregon, Washington, West Virginia and the District of Columbia.

An estimated $1.2 billion is needed to repair the District of Columbia's 157 schools, said spokeswoman Beverly Lofton. This year, the district has requested $2.63 million, but it's unclear if the money will be available.

"We're under court order for fire code problems, and the little capital improvement money that we've salvaged from previous budgets has gone to do that," Ms. Lofton said.

Among the problems in schools with an average age of 75: leaky roofs, and rundown boilers and electrical wiring.

In New York state, officials constantly work to upgrade outdated heating systems and electrical wiring and leaky roofs, spending about $1 billion a year, said Charles Szuberla, the state's coordinator of facilities planning and management services.

"There are pockets of horrors, but generally the buildings are pretty good outside of New York City," said the state Education Department's senior architect, Robert Lavery.

The average age of New York City schools is 56; in the rest of the state, school buildings were built an average of 38 years ago, Szuberla said.

Urban school districts spend about 3.5 percent of their budgets on maintenance, a previous GAO study found. But 85 percent of that is spent on emergency repairs. Regular maintenance is delayed, leading to costly later repairs.

Dear Abby

Low-Riding Furniture Inspires Woman's Higher Launchpad

DEAR ABBY: I was cheered by the letter from Mrs. Virginia Harry calling attention to the fact that some seniors have extreme difficulty rising from low or even normal seats. I too have used end tables as seats in doctors' offices.

After months of embarrassment at frequently having to ask for assistance to get to my feet, I developed a self-help trick: When going out of the house, I carry a tote bag containing two firm cushions. The cushions raise any seat four to five inches. I can use these cushions on the seats of cars and on chairs in offices and restaurants, and I cherish the independence they afford me.

Perhaps some other "mobility impaired" readers will find this helpful until the furniture designers come to our aid.

HELEN PFAFFENBERGER, SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR HELEN: Thank you for an inventive solution that is easily available to anyone who needs it. Not everyone agreed that redesigning the furniture is the answer for people who have difficulty getting up and down, however. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to Mrs. Virginia Harry, who considers herself among that growing segment of our population known as "the graying of America." She asked that the furniture industry recognize their need for couches and chairs from which they can comfortably rise.

Abby, let the designers of couches and chairs tend to their business as they will, for we can comfortably rise, by building strong muscles around those aging bones.

I am an aerobics instructor and personal trainer who loves to work with people 55 to 93 (the age of my oldest participant). Many seniors have abandoned their easy chairs for fitness walks, aerobics and line-dancing classes, and strength training. When they finally do sit down during their busy daily lives, any chair or couch will do, and they have no problem getting back up when it's time.

I hope your readers will consider a weekly exercise regime to help build their strength. What a difference they'll see in a very short time. Here's to health and fitness at any age.

CANDY CORLEY, FOXBORO, MASS.

DEAR CANDY: I'm printing your letter as a reminder that growing older does not mean becoming sedentary. A healthy, flexible body is available to those who work for it. Of course, consult a physician before beginning any exercise program.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I am a nursing supervisor at a local hospital. I recently received a call from a nurse's husband stating, "My wife will not be in to work today because there's been a death in the family."

I asked the husband in a sincere and compassionate voice, "Oh, I'm very sorry ... who died?" The husband replied, "Uh ... uhh ... Who died?"

I replied, "Yes, who died?" The husband covered the phone and returned several minutes later and said, "Oh, it was her father-in-law."

I expressed my condolences, then innocently asked, "Isn't that your father?" He then said, "Oh, yeah ... my father died."

The lesson to be learned is when dealing with life and death on a Monday morning, be prepared.

SUZZETTE L. HAACK, SAN DIEGO

Tyler man, Houston woman receive June Lotto prizes

AUSTIN (AP) — Calvin Luce of Tyler has claimed the $12.4 million Lotto Texas prize drawn on June 19.

Also on Monday, Janie Mitchell of Houston claimed the $3.6 million Lotto Texas jackpot drawn on Saturday.

Luce, who requested minimal publicity while representing the Luce Family Limited Trust, accepted a $624,305 check as the first of 20 installment payments.

The remaining payments of $620,000 will be paid every June 15 for the next 19 years. Luce used Quick Pick to select his numbers — 10, 17, 19, 21, 25 and 29.

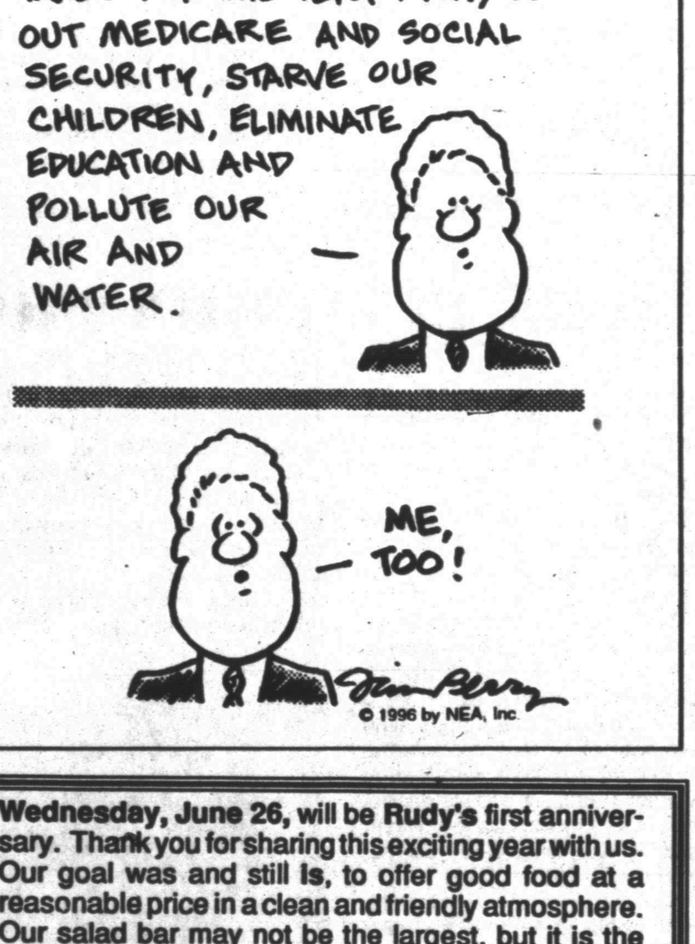

One Stop in Tyler received a check totaling $124,043 — 1 percent of the winnings — as a bonus for selling the lucky ticket.

Ms. Mitchell received $191,305.12 on Monday and will be paid $181,000 every June 15 for the next 19 years.

Ms. Mitchell purchased the winning ticket while shopping with a friend in San Antonio. The winning numbers — 1, 10, 12, 30, 32 and 49 — came on a Quick Pick ticket.

Wednesday's Lotto Texas drawing is an estimated $4 million.

Charges nixed against man convicted of murder in 1978

CHICAGO (AP) — What began as a college journalism project to investigate a possible miscarriage of justice has led to freedom for a man sent to death row 11 years ago.

Verneal Jimerson was freed Monday after murder charges against him were dropped. Earlier this month, three friends also convicted in the case were released on home monitoring while prosecutors evaluate evidence uncovered as part of the Northwestern University project.

Professor David Protess and three of his students spent six months investigating the 1978 slayings of a gas station worker and his fiancee and tracking down the real killers, two of whom signed confessions.

Now Jimerson, 43, wants to visit his parents' grave — they both died while he was in prison — and catch up on the years he missed.

"He wants to walk on grass, go swimming and go fishing," said Jimerson's lawyer, Mark Ter Molen. "He also wants to see his children, and he has grandchildren he's never seen."

Based on witness testimony, Jimerson, Kenneth Adams, Willie Rainge and Dennis Williams were convicted of killing Carol Schmal and her fiance, Larry Lionberg, who were abducted from the suburban Homewood gas station. Schmal was raped, then both were shot in the head.

Readers give the best advice

We've got lots and lots of FEEDBACK.

TROUSERS THAT WILL ACCOMMODATE A LEG THAT SWELLS — Lydia Escamillo of La Puenta, Calif., was looking for these. Her son had radiation therapy and one of his legs swells to three times the size of his other leg.

A Connecticut reader wrote to tell us she had great success with Relaxed Fit Jeans from L.L. Bean, item #PP19422. She said, "My husband, who is a big guy, had knee surgery, and these pants accommodated an entire hinged leg brace worn underneath. The terrific L.L. Bean people in customer service (1-800-341-4341) will actually measure the width of the pant leg for the appropriate size and explain how much larger this is than standard. Lydia should measure her son's leg when it's swollen."

WOOL FOR RUG BRAIDERS — Sandy Peplau of Proctorsville, Vt., was looking for sources. Thanks to our Readers, we now have slews.

Several people wrote to tell us about the Dorr Woolen Mill Store in Guild, N.H. They have first-quality fabric for $8 a yard, seconds for $6 a yard and remnants for $3. The store is open May 26-Sept. 1. For more information or for a price list, write: The Woolen Mill Store, Dorr Woolen Co., Route 11/103 Main St., P.O. Box 87, Guild, NH 03754; telephone: 603-863-6377.

Elizebethcq Wilson of Yorkville, Ill., wrote us about Cox Enterprises, located at Fire Road #22 RR2, Box 245, Verona Island, ME 04416. This company carries wool mill ends and sells them by the pound. Call 1-800-233-0234 for more information.

An anonymous reader from Proctor, Vt., wrote enthusiastically about Braid-Aid at 466 Washington St., Pembroke, MA 02359; telephone: 617-826-2560. Our reader bought $135 of wool, for a 12 X 16 feet rug, and paid $3-$6 a pound. The Braid-Aid folks cut the wool to the desired strip width. For information or a catalog, call or write the company at the above address.

LaVerne Payne of Dunnellon, Fla., suggested the Pendleton Woolen Mill Outlet store in Oregon. We gave them a call and found out they have a sample sheet available. To receive it, call 1-503-273-2786 or write: Pendleton Outlet Store, 8550 S.E. McLoughlin St., Portland, OR 97222.

LIGHT DIMMERS — Vida Schlonger of Orrville, Ohio, was looking for these. Several readers wrote to tell us they are available at RadioShack stores. Call 1-800-THE-SHACK, to find the one closest to you. The current RadioShack catalog carries two dimmer switches that will fit into a standard light socket. They are: item #61-2778, a touch-lamp dimmer for $13.99, and item #61-2566, a lamp socket dimmer module for $15.99.

COCO RUBICO BUSH SNAP BEAN — Gene Kiroriski of Carol Stream, Ill., was looking for a snap bean and Barbara Terry of Lakeport, Calif., wonders if this is it. She describes it as a shell bean that needs to be picked before it dries. It's available from Seeds Blum, HC 33 Idaho City Stage, Boise, ID 83706-9725. Telephone: 1-800-528-3658. The packet is $2.65.

The impossible takes a moment longer

In Lewis Carroll's "Through the Looking Glass," Alice protests, "One can't believe impossible things."

"I daresay you haven't had much practice," the Queen replied. "When I was your age, I always did it for a half-an-hour a day. Why, sometimes I've believed as many as six impossible things before breakfast."

There are some bridge deals where it is "impossible" to find the winning play or, more often, defense. This is one of them, which occurred in a match in New York City.

South opened with a strong, artificial and forcing two clubs. With an excellent five-card suit, he judged his hand too strong for two no-trump, showing 20 to 21 high-card points in the partnership methods. However, he wasn't feeling so happy when West bid two hearts and East continued with three diamonds. What should South do now? After some thought, he shut his eyes and bid three no-trump. He half expected East to continue to four hearts, which South would have doubled without optimism. But three no-trump was passed out.

West led his singleton diamond, East putting in the 10. After winning with the king, South led a low heart toward dummy's queen. West won with the king, but, as he didn't have another diamond to lead, South immediately claimed nine tricks: one spade, two hearts, one diamond and five clubs. Whew!

How can three no-trump be beaten? East must win the first trick with the diamond ace and switch to a spade. This sets up five tricks for the defense: three spades, one heart and one diamond. But who would ever find that play at the table?

In early TV days, Lucille Ball, of "I Love Lucy" fame, became pregnant, and she and her husband, Desi Arnaz, had the event written into the show, much to the show's producer's doubts. When shown, the birth of little Ricky proved a hit when 44 million viewers watched the episode. The following day, only 20 million people watched Dwight Eisenhower inauguated president.

Dean's image still draws a crowd

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — Four decades after his death, James Dean's brooding image can still draw a crowd.

His face, which has become a symbol of rebellious youth, was unveiled on a billboard-sized replica of a new postage stamp at the studio lot where he filmed scenes for his three movies.

Near a town square and buildings that provided backdrops for "East of Eden," "Rebel Without a Cause" and "Giant," about 2,000 fans battled the sweltering summer heat Monday to attend the ceremony launching the sale of the stamp.

The stamp went on sale on the studio lot, at the Burbank post office and at 127 Warner Bros. retail outlets. It goes on sale at post offices nationwide today.

It is the second in the "Legends of Hollywood" series of commemorative stamps.

"I was only 16 when he died. He was one of my heroes. That's why I'm here," said Faith Seyforth of North Hollywood. "Nobody's matched him yet."

Graf advances at Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Steffi Graf, showing no signs of the knee injury which has troubled her, opened her bid for a seventh Wimbledon title Tuesday with a 6-4, 6-1 win over Ludmila Richterova.

The top-seeded defending champion started slowly on Centre Court but lifted her game toward the end of the first set and cruised to victory in 53 minutes.

Graf said she was not bothered by the swollen tendon in her left knee, an injury which forced her to pull out of the Wimbledon warmup tournament in Eastbourne. She had asked for her opening Wimbledon match to be postponed until Wednesday but was turned down.

"I practiced for two hours yesterday morning and it was gone," Graf said. "On Sunday afternoon, I wasn't too sure about it, but I really forced it yesterday and it didn't come back."

Graf's only problem Tuesday was with her backhand service return, which she missed repeatedly during the match. One of the few which she made was on match point.

Richterova, a 5-foot-11 Czech ranked 75th in the world, held her own in the early going with a solid serve-and-volley game.

"She's a tall girl, looks very athletic and she is," Graf said. "I expected her to serve well. I didn't have a lot of practice. I'm lacking match play. You could see that a little today. That's why it took me a little while to get into the match."

The match was even at 3-3 in the first set until Graf hit a forehand return pass to break for 4-3. Serving at 5-4, Graf missed three set points before closing it on the fourth with an ace.

Graf dominated the second set, breaking serve three times. In the fourth game, after Richterova took a bad tumble, Graf showed her ruthless side by hitting a drop shot winner on the next point.

Also advancing Tuesday was fourth-seeded Arantxa Sanchez Vicario, who beat Italy's Adriana Serra-Zanetti 6-3, 6-4.

Fifth-seeded Anke Huber beat Spain's Gala Leon Garcia 6-1, 6-1, and No. 11 Brenda Schultz-McCarthy was a 6-0, 6-3 winner over Joannette Kruger.

COUNTDOWN TO ATLANTA XXVI

V Olympiad 1912, Stockholm

The belligerence of 1908 was replaced with benevolence four years later, as Sweden provided a well-organized and pleasant haven for the troubled Games.

And then there were Jim Thorpe and Hannes Kolehmainen.

Thorpe, a 24-year-old American Indian who was a two-time consensus All-America football player at Carlisle (Pa.) Institute, won the two most demanding events in track and field—the pentathlon and decathlon and he did it with ease.

"You sir," said the Swedes' King Gustav V at the medal ceremony, "are the greatest athlete in the world." To which Thorpe is said to have replied, "Thanks, King."

Kolehmainen, a 22-year-old Finnish vegetarian, ran away with three distance events being run for the first time—the 5,000 and 10,000-meter races and the 12,000-meter cross country run. He also picked up a silver medal in the 12,000-meter team race.

Ralph Craig of the U.S. was the only other winner of two individual track gold medals, taking both the 100 and 200-meter runs. The 100 final had seven false starts, one with Craig sprinting the entire distance before being called back.

Although Thorpe returned to the U.S. a hero, a year later it was learned that he had played semi-pro baseball for $25 a week in 1910. The IOC, with the full support of the American Olympic Committee, stripped him of his medals and erased his records.

The medals and records were returned in 1982—30 years after Thorpe's death.

The United States finished second in the medal count with 63, one behind Sweden with 64. The Americans won 25 gold, 18 silver and 20 bronze medals. Sweden took 23 golds.

Carl Osburn was the leading medal winner for the U.S. team with four. Osburn won one gold, two silvers and a bronze in shooting.

Twenty-eight nations took part in the 1912 games. Americans set six Olympic records, tied an Olympic record and set two world records.

Foreign ban could end at Odessa

ODESSA (AP) — For nearly two decades, Odessa College has sent a message to any Bahamian basketball players, Venezuelan volleyballers or Singaporan swimmers seeking scholarships: Look elsewhere.

The West Texas junior college has an 18-year-old policy of granting sports scholarships only to U.S. citizens. However, trustees are to vote today on a proposal to lift the ban.

Odessa College, one of the nation's most athletically successful small schools, boasts 43 national championships in a variety of sports. A basketball power, Odessa has produced Larry Johnson of the Charlotte Hornets, Craig Ehlo of the Atlanta Hawks and likely first-round pick Moochie Norris of West Florida.

However, tennis and men's track saw their last seasons in 1994, when multimillion-dollar losses attributed to investments in mortgage-backed derivatives forced the school to cancel the programs.

Reopening the Odessa programs to foreign talent would be a relief to athletic director Jim Carlson.

"Good coaches could become outstanding coaches if they had one key (foreign) player available," he said. "But we don't want to say we're winning at all costs."

Supporters of the foreign ban say allowing Odessa to join most other colleges by granting scholarships to noncitizens would be a disservice to the school's mission of providing opportunities to local high school graduates.

"It's something I just think that's not in the scope or mandate of a community college," Odessa College trustee James Gilliland said.

Both sides point to nearby Midland College, which has never banned foreigners, as an example. Those favoring lifting the ban say it can boost a program; Midland College won the 1995 national golf title.

Torch to include city, but not county, of Greenville

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — The Olympic flame, which has lit thousands of communities across the nation, will not shine in Greenville today.

"We've taken the flame to every community we said we would, because we have a commitment to the torch bearers," relay chief David Emanuel said Monday. "They've earned it and we'll honor their selections."

Atlanta Games officials decided the torch would not be seen in Greenville County to protest an anti-gay resolution adopted by the county council.

Also, the Olympic committee canceled reservations for 110 rooms at a Holiday Inn, opting to pick another hotel within the city limits.

Emanuel, who heads the Atlanta Committee for the Olympic Games torch caravan, said the group decided the route simply could not include the county.

"The Olympic flame stands for peace and friendship and we did not think the county's resolution was symbolic of that," he said.

The new route lies entirely within the city, and 22 of the 32 county runners were assigned new spots on the reconfigured path, Emanuel said.

He said the torch would travel via minivan from the Greenville County line to the city limits, where runners would bear it to the Peace Center, the day's final destination.

Jack Nicklaus confirmed for British Open

LYTHAM ST. ANNES, England (AP) — Jack Nicklaus will extend his unbroken run of playing in major golf tournaments to 139 when he tees off in the 125th British Open at the Royal Lytham and St. Annes Golf Club from July 18-21.

Organizers confirmed today that Nicklaus, who won the British Open in 1966, 1970 and 1978, had decided to enter the tournament after his solid performance earlier this month in the U.S. Open. Nicklaus, 56, had said he wouldn't make the trip to England unless he felt he could be competitive.

Nicklaus will be joined by 11 other former British Open champions, including Americans Mark Calcavecchia (1989), five-time winner Tom Watson and defending champion John Daly.

The other former British Open champions in the record entry of 1,919 are Bob Charles (1963), Gary Player (1974), Sandy Lyle (1985), Greg Norman (1986 and 1993), Nick Faldo (1987, 1990 and 1992), Ian Baker-Finch (1991), Nick Price (1994) and Seve Ballesteros (1979, 1984 and 1988).

Ballesteros, who won at Lytham in 1979 and 1988, will be bidding to become the first player to win the Open three times in a row at the same venue since Scotland's Tom Morris Jr. at Prestwick in 1870.

Mussina picks up victory on the hill for Baltimore

ARLINGTON (AP) — Baltimore's Mike Mussina showed the Texas Rangers why he's a prime candidate for the AL All-Star team.

Even though he didn't have his best stuff Monday night, Mussina somehow found a way to win. He survived a shaky first inning and a season-high four walks to beat the Rangers 8-3 for his 10th victory.

"I was okay," said Mussina after allowing three runs and six hits in 6 2-3 innings. "I was walking a lot of guys. So I was fortunate it all worked out."

Mussina, who has an unimpressive 4.99 ERA but a fancy 10-4 record, was facing the potent Rangers lineup for the second time in less than a week. On June 19, he allowed thr e runs and seven hits over seven innings in a defeat to the Rangers in Baltimore.

"It's very challenging to face a team like that twice in that period of time," Mussina said. "They're a great hitting club who scores runs all over the place. They can break out and score five or six runs at any time."

Mussina strengthened his All-Star credentials as the Orioles beat the Rangers for only the third time in 11 meetings this season. He was in command after struggling through the first inning, retiring 11 of 12 hitters from the third through the sixth.

Texas loaded the bases in the first on two walks and Will Clark's single, but Mussina struck out Mickey Tettleton and retired Dean Palmer on a grounder.

"The first inning was scary," Mussina said. "But after that I wasn't in a lot of trouble. Getting Mickey (Tettleton) on a 3-2 changeup was big."

Said manager Davey Johnson: "He pitched real strong early on and it was a pleasure to watch. Then he went into a funk. But it's midway through the season and he's already got 10 wins."

AIDS check presented

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Kimberly McCullough, whose character on "General Hospital" is HIV-positive, presented a $53,000 donation to a center dedicated to research, education and the treatment of AIDS patients.

The Emmy-winning actress gave the check to the University of California, Los Angeles, Care Center on Monday.

Gingrich says Powell could overcome abortion division

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Newt Gingrich says feelings within the Republican Party opposing abortion probably will cause Bob Dole to pick an anti-abortion running mate — unless he picks Colin Powell.

"I think Colin Powell is probably the only person who could do that," Gingrich said Monday on CNN's "Larry King Live." "I think Colin Powell is the one person whose appeal is so broad" that it could overcome the Republican party's anti-abortion leanings.

Powell, who says he favors abortion rights, also has said repeatedly that he is not interested in running for vice president.

Gingrich said New Jersey Gov. Christie Whitman, also a supporter of abortion rights, probably would not be acceptable. "She's fabulous, (but) my guess is that the party would want someone who is more pro-life," he said.

Gingrich added that he hopes Powell, the retired chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, will speak at the GOP convention in August.

Meanwhile, Gingrich told The New York Times that his party was out of touch with American voters regarding raising the minimum wage, according to poll numbers in USA Today.

"(That) is why I wanted to get that bill out here as quickly as I could, whether it passed or failed, and move on to other issues," he told the paper. The minimum wage bill has passed in the House, but not the Senate.

In his TV appearance, Gingrich called President Clinton "a master of falsehood" who has chosen "carefully managed mendacity as a route to re-election, even if the result is to undermine the nation's civic virtue."

Surveys finds many youth learn about sex from TV

NEW YORK (AP) — A third of youths 12 and older say the media encourages them to have sex, and more than half the girls say they learn about birth control from television and movies, a survey says.

Seventy-four percent of youths questioned by the Henry J. Kaiser Family Foundation said at least one parent had talked to them about sex, but only 46 percent said their parents had talked to them about birth control.

Just over half (55 percent) in the survey released Monday said their parents had discussed sexually transmitted diseases.

Nearly a third (29 percent) said they had had sex and 4 percent said they had at least one child. A third also said they believed some teen-agers have sex because TV and movies make it seem normal.

"It's clear that if teens today are going to make responsible decisions about sex, they need more than the 'birds and bees.' They need practical information about how to use contraception and negotiate sexual relations," said Suzanne Delbanco, a spokeswoman for Kaiser.

Among the sexually active, 36 percent said they still don't know enough about birth control and 30 percent said they need more information about where to get contraceptives. Forty-seven percent said they wanted to know more about preventing AIDS and other sexually transmitted diseases.

San Antonio students connect with astronauts on the shuttle

By KEN DILANIAN
San Antonio Express-News

SAN ANTONIO — "KC7NxHZ, this is KC5OPS. How copy, over?"

Fourteen-year-old Drew Hendricks had been rehearsing the moment for weeks, and when the time came, he sang into the handset clearly and strongly.

But there was no response.

"KC7NHZ, this is KC5OPS. How copy, over?"

A hush crept over three dozen people crowded into the cramped confines of a portable classroom at Eisenhower Middle School on Blanco Road. With the air conditioner turned off, the temperature climbed.

On a computer monitor next to Hendricks, a map of the world tracked the orbit of the shuttle Columbia, 150 miles above, as it flew into South Texas radio range.

Eight students crouched around a set of short-wave controls, using the computer coordinates to aim the 45-foot antenna jutting into the heavens outside. Nine others stood in line along the wall, waiting to ask written questions.

It was 2:27 p.m. — time for middle schoolers from San Antonio to talk to a shuttle astronaut in space.

But all they heard was static.

Hendricks repeated the shuttle's call sign once more.

"KC7NHZ, this is KC5OPS. How copy, over?"

Next to him, retired Air Force test pilot Ken Harwood coordinated by phone with the real Mission Control in Houston.

Hovering nearby was high-strung Walt Dubose, a Kelly Air Force Base computer guru. Dubose is one of many community volunteers who help run the North East School District Young Astronaut program, which offers after-school technology classes in rocketry and computers.

Static.

Hendricks tried again.

Nothing.

Again.

Finally, the speakers came alive. A scratchy, barely audible female voice repeated the call signs, concluding with the magic words:

"We copy it."

Twenty pairs of young eyes lit up. Dubose threw up his hands in triumph.

And in the back of the room, Young Astronaut program director Calvin Best — who looked relaxed in a straw hat and lizard-skin boots but joked about his nervous nausea — was overwhelmed with relief.

The voice on the speaker was Astronaut Susan J. Helms, the shuttle mission commander, live from space.

The kids had done it.

They had just seven minutes before the shuttle flew out of range, so they got right to the questions, which had been selected from among hundreds and screened by NASA.

Students asked Helms about weightlessness, lift-off, and fun in space. Brian Vranes and Tarry Logsdon asked about the current two-week mission, an effort to measure certain physical effects of space flight.

Jennifer Barnhill asked Helms if being in space was the highlight of her life.

"Yeah, I think this probably is the best thing that ever happened to me," the astronaut answered.

Lucky ham radio operators sometimes get to chat with shuttle occupants, explained Charles Thomas, a radio operator standing by to help the students.

And NASA often schedules air time for students. On this mission, the astronauts will try to contact nine other schools, including one in Australia and one in France.

The North East Young Astronauts learned in March they would talk to an astronaut and had been preparing ever since, Best said. He's particularly proud that his students, not their adult mentors, handled the radio equipment.

"We've got some real smart kiddos in this group," he said.

After Helms' voice faded into static, the youngsters milled about, talking excitedly to reporters and parents. For those minutes, they had held a forum unique on the planet: a dialogue with a space traveler.

"It was so cool," said 12-year-old Max Porterfield, who wants someday to follow in Helms' footsteps. "It was one in a million."

A sense of humor is the answer

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: In our newspaper, your column appeared in its entirety one day as follows: "Dr. Peter Gott. The Doctor Says Ban Living." Aren't you going a little too far?

DEAR READER: Readers often send me examples of bad headlines that appear in some newspapers. Many are hysterical. Yours takes the cake, though.

I remember one instance of extreme reader confusion when my column was substituted for a veterinary feature; people became quite concerned about having heartworm. In another mix-up, my byline somehow headed up an article on astrology. Some readers thought that I'd taken leave of my senses.

As they say on Nantucket: Fog happens. Please keep a tongue-in-cheek attitude when you read something that is really off-the-wall and your newspaper indicates that I wrote it.

I may truly have said something outrageous, but — maybe — there is a typographical error. I did not say "ban living," although I must admit that some days I wish I had.

You might be interested to learn that some editors cannot resist expressing a sense of humor on occasion. What looks like a typo may, in reality, be intentional.

Several years ago, one of the most respected medical textbooks was updated and re-published. We medical students, who thronged to buy this new edition, were stunned and delighted to see the following item in the index — in the INDEX, mind you: Birds, for the (pp. 1-1, 281). I swear this really happened.

Keep a sense of humor at all times. (Gott's rule.)

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have found that feverfew and lavender in liquid form taken daily as a preventive works for migraines. A two-week supply costs about $8 — a far cry from some prescription medications. I should add that my sister tried feverfew in capsule form and it upset her stomach. While the liquid is bitter and somewhat unpleasant, when added to a liquid it is tolerable.

DEAR READER: OK. This is a new one for me. This herbal remedy is safe, so if it works for you, fine — as long as your doctor approves of it.

The customary therapy for migraine includes Imitrex injections, beta blockers for prevention, and other analgesics.

To give you more information, I am sending you copies of my Health Reports "Headaches" and "Fads II: Herbs and Other Healing Fads." Other readers who would like copies should send $2 for each report plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title(s).

Paula Jones accuses Clinton of dodging harassment suit

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Dealt a setback by the U.S. Supreme Court, Paula Jones accused President Clinton of abusing the power of his office to dodge her sexual harassment suit.

"If the man's innocent, why did he take it all the way to the Supreme Court?" Jones, 29, said in an interview Monday with the Press-Telegram. "He's using his power once again. He's very good at abusing power."

Earlier Monday, the Supreme Court put the suit by the former Arkansas state employee on hold, sparing Clinton the possibility of an embarrassing trial at the height of the presidential campaign.

The justices agreed to study whether the lawsuit should be delayed until Clinton leaves office.

Some Texas police protest gun ban at parks

By The Associated Press

Police in Texas' three largest cities are protesting the policy at Six Flags amusement theme parks in Texas that bans off-duty officers from bringing their guns onto the premises.

The new Texas concealed handgun law prohibits licensed civilians from carrying their guns in theme parks.

Officials at Six Flags Over Texas in Arlington, Six Flags' Fiesta Texas in San Antonio, and Six Flags' AstroWorld in Houston have notified law enforcement agencies that their off-duty police officers will be expected to comply with the prohibition.

Carl King, president of the San Antonio Police Officers Association, called for a boycott of Six Flags' Fiesta Texas by all law-enforcement officers over the policy.

Last week in Houston, Police Chief Sam Nuchia protested the policy by cancelling work permits for about 25 city officers who had been moonlighting as security guards at Six Flags' AstroWorld.

Monday, Harris County Sheriff Tommy Thomas followed suit, cancelling the "extra job" permits of about 15 deputies working parttime as security guards at the popular theme park.

The Dallas Police Association has attacked the policy at Six Flags Over Texas in Arlington.

Fiesta Texas' spokeswoman Sydne Purvis said she was unaware of King's call for a boycott of the park.

"We have had this policy since the park opened in 1992," Ms. Purvis said.

A written statement from Fiesta Texas stated the policy is based on "common sense and safety."

King said the Texas Penal Code allows law enforcement officers to carry their sidearms anywhere in the state.

"Obviously, their lawyers can't read the penal code," King said Monday. "We can carry our guns at Sea World; obviously their lawyers can read."

Sgt. Joery Smittick, a spokesman for the San Antonio police department, said Chief Al Philippus recently sent a letter to Fiesta Texas outlining the department's policy.

"Our department does require our officers to carry their weapons and identification at all times, on or off duty," Smittick said.

The chief's letter was the result of an incident May 29 in which an off-duty patrol officer with his family was refused entry to Fiesta Texas because he was armed, the sergeant said.

The officer, whom Smittick declined to identify, wrote letters of complaint to the chief and to King.

"They also stopped an FBI agent from going in," King said.

No San Antonio police officers work off-duty at Fiesta Texas, Smittick said.

AstroWorld will rely on private security officers to police the park now that the sheriff and police chief won't let their officers moonlight there.

Officers who were working there were allowed to carry their weapons, just as the private guards will. The conflict with the two law enforcement agencies came over a rule that requires off-duty officers to be disarmed, like everyone else, upon entering the park as customers.

Plastic miniblinds can poison children

WASHINGTON (AP) — The window industry is promising that by next month, miniblinds linked to lead poisoning in children will no longer be available in the United States.

The industry is responding to pressure from the federal Consumer Product Safety Commission, which said Monday that aging plastic miniblinds can deteriorate and turn to poisonous lead dust, which children can swallow.

"With no new regulations and no red tape, we'll still be protecting children," said commission Chairman Ann Brown. "It's good common sense government and heaven knows we need that."

Every year, 25 million non-glossy, vinyl miniblinds are imported to the United States from China, Taiwan, Mexico and Indonesia. Lead is added during production to stabilize the plastic in the blinds.

The miniblinds in question are the cheapest available, at $5 to $10 per window covering.

Over time, the plastic deteriorates from exposure to sunlight, heat or cold temperatures to form lead dust on the blind's surface, the commission determined. Children may ingest the lead if they touch the dust and then put their hands into their mouths, similar to the more widespread exposure to chipped lead paint.

Through scientific testing, the commission found that children ingesting lead dust from less than one square inch of a blind each day for 15 to 30 days could end up with dangerously elevated lead levels in blood.

Inhaling or swallowing even tiny amounts of lead can cause brain damage, lifelong learning disabilities and behavioral problems for children under 6. The commission recommends consumers replace their plastic miniblinds if children under age 6 are likely to come into contact with them.

In response to pressure from the commission, manufacturers voluntarily agreed to stop importing blinds that are made with lead. Products labeled "non-leaded" or "new formulation" should be on shelves beginning in July and should completely replace the leaded blinds by September. They are expected to cost 10 to 15 percent more.

Atlanta-based Home Depot announced Monday it would remove all vinyl miniblinds with lead from the shelves of its 449 stores while it awaits the new products.

An industry official said the government action was not necessary, but manufacturers wanted to be responsive to government concerns.

"I think the government has taken a relatively insignificant problem and made it into a major issue that is going to increase the cost of the product for all consumers," said Peter Rush, executive director of the Window Covering Safety Council.

"Frankly what we've done is something that may or may not improve the product's performance," he added. "We're not a big enough industry to fight with the government."

The safety commission first heard about the problem from researchers in Arizona and North Carolina, who came to the same conclusions after spotting local cases.

Nolan Electric: experience, quality work

Located at 1010 25th Street for 16 years, Nolan Electric has an accumulation of several years of experience. They have been here through the good times and the low times when the oil economy took a big drop.

Bobby Nolan takes great pride in doing a professional job, and the men that work for him believe in this same pride. They are licensed electricians and apprentices. An ethical code is there that prevents them from doing anything that would be against the National Electrical Code. This code is there for the safety of everyone.

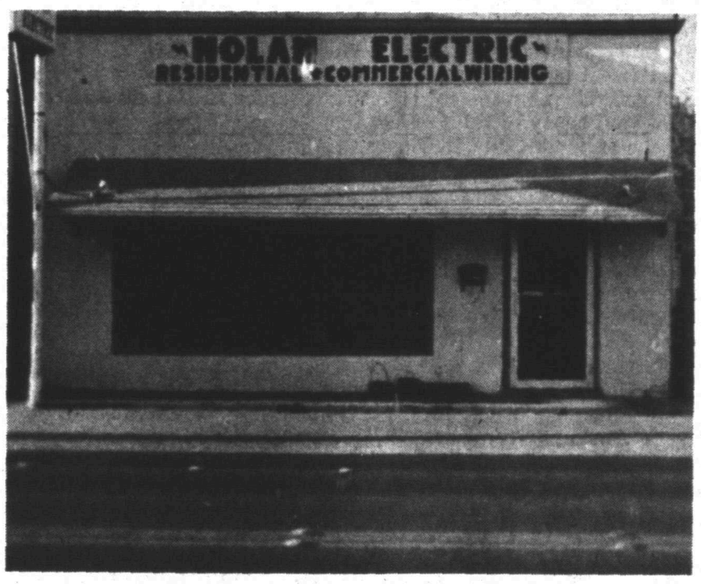

Many people don't realize that there are several years of experience needed before a person can become a qualified licensed electrician. First of all, an apprentice (one who is learning) must be under the teaching of a journeyman electrician for a period of four years. At that time he may take a test and if he passes, he'll become a journeyman electrician. A journeyman electrician must then work for four years and at the end of that time he may take a test to become a master electrician. Only a master electrician can operate his own business.

Bobby Nolan has been a master electrician for about 30 years, although he has only been in business for eighteen years.

Nolan Electric has a variety of work that they specialize in. Some of these things include: new residential and new commercial wiring; remodeling of homes or businesses; trouble-shooting electrical problems; wiring and lighting on signs (including roadway signs — they have two bucket trucks that can meet these needs; electrical hot water heater repairs; and repair of all types of lamps. Also they have a large variety of electrical supplies for those that like to do their own home wiring.

They work on all types of lighting — florescent, incandescent, metal-halide, high-pressure sodium, and quartz. As a result they carry a large supply of these lamps and ballasts. Kim Nolan will be there in the office to help you with the purchase of any of these supplies. If they don't have it, they can usually order it and receive it within 24-48 hours. Sometimes special items may take several days if the suppliers are out of stock. Kim takes care of the office and answers the phone during normal office hours: Monday-Friday 8 a.m.-noon and 1-5 p.m. She also repairs a variety of lamps and keeps a supply of lamp parts.

All of those at Nolan Electric wish to express their thanks to all of their customers. There have been some times when they couldn't get to all the work that needed to be done. With an added electrician, they are better able to meet your electrical needs without you having to wait a long time for them to get to your work. They appreciate the patience of those customers who chose to wait for them during the time that work was overflowing. Please call us for all of your electrical needs: 1-915-573-5117. Once again, they want to thank you so much for your support.

New primaries would cost State of Texas $3 million

AUSTIN (AP) — It would cost the state at least $3 million to hold new primary elections to pick nominees in three congressional districts ruled unconstitutional by the U.S. Supreme Court, election officials say.

Holding new primaries is one of three options outlined Monday in a memo written by Secretary of State Tony Garza, the state's top elections officer.

Garza said that a second option would be to hold special elections in the three districts in November, with December runoffs if needed to pick a winner.

A third possibility would be to have the state Democratic and Republican parties select nominees in redrawn districts for the November ballot, he said.

Garza endorsed no specific course of action. He simply outlined for state and legislative leaders what could happen if the court ordered new district lines before November.

The Supreme Court earlier this month upheld a lower judicial panel's decision that the 18th, 29th and 30th congressional districts were unconstitutional because the state unlawfully made race the main factor in redrawing the district boundaries.

The 18th District in Houston and the 30th District in Dallas are predominantly black. The 29th District in Houston is mostly Hispanic.

Lawyers for the state could request a rehearing before the Supreme Court on the issue. If the high court rules against a rehearing, the case returns to the three-judge panel in Houston, which would decide how to proceed.

Philadelphia to pay $1.5 million judgment

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — For 11 years, the survivors of the radical group MOVE have been haunted by the police firebombing of a fortified row house that killed 11 of their comrades.

Now a jury has fashioned a penance that forces the two ex-officials responsible for the fire to remember it every week for the next 11 years.

Once a week, former Police Commissioner Gregore Sambor and former Fire Commissioner William Richmond must each pay $1 to a survivor. Sambor also has to pay $1 a week to a relative of a person that died, while Richmond must make two other weekly payments.

That's in addition to a judgment of $1.5 million, which the city is expected to pay.

"The message that we were trying to send is that that type of behavior by officials ... will not be accepted," said juror Connie Irvin, a 32-year-old homemaker.

"Every time you have to sit and write a check, even for such a small amount as a dollar, that's going to trigger something in you, about what you did on May 13, 1985," she said.

Tracey Meares, a professor at the University of Chicago, said the jurors' requirement of periodic payments, while not unprecedented, was "quite brilliant."

"If the purpose of punitive damages is to make the defendant realize that they've caused a person harm, what better way than by imposing a weekly burden on the defendant?" Meares said.

The bombing killed six adults and five children in the MOVE house and burned 61 homes in the surrounding neighborhood. Despite a special commission finding that top city officials were "grossly negligent" and two grand jury investigations, no one from city government ever was charged.

Officers were notified at 10:45 a.m. of several juveniles bothering people at the RV park at Scurry County Coliseum during the previous night.

Troy Botts notified officers at 11:15 a.m. that he had found a cellular telephone near the traffic circle. It had been reported stolen Friday at Moffett Field by John Faulkenberry. The telephone had apparently been left on top of the vehicle and had fallen off as it was being driven.

A person on Brick Plant Road reported that someone in a pickup was throwing firecrackers at passing motorists.

Young boys safe after night in woods

AUSTIN (AP) — Two 5-year-olds survived a night in the woods by divvying up their jelly beans, sheltering under a ledge near a creek and bedding down on a rock.

Roger Davis and Logan Pope had been trained by their fathers in outdoor survival, said Andy Hinman, a friend of the boys' families.

"Maybe they started training them a bit too young," he joked after the boys ended their outdoor odyssey Monday.

The boys last had been seen by their parents around 3:30 p.m. Sunday, playing in a creek bed on the Davis ranch in southwestern Travis County.

They were reported missing about 7 p.m., prompting a search by more than 100 law enforcement and volunteer rescue workers.

The youngsters found their way home just before 8 a.m. Monday. The boys' jeans and shirts were dusty, but other than suffering some fire ant and tick bites, they were OK, Hinman said.

Pain may be eliminated for millions

(SPECIAL) -- A new drug has been approved that is exciting researchers in the treatment of pain. This material has been formulated into a new product known as "Arthur Itis..." and is being called a "Medical Miracle" by some, in the treatment of debilitating conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, rheumatism, painful muscle aches, joint aches, simple backache, bruises, and more. Although the mechanism of action is unclear, experiments indicate that Arthur Itis... relieves pain by first selectively attracting, and then destroying the messenger chemical which carries pain sensations to the brain, thus eliminating pain in the affected area. Arthur Itis... is an odorless, greaseless, non-staining cream and is available immediately without a prescription and is guaranteed to work. Use only as directed.
