Amelia Earhart Marries Publisher And Explorer

Trans - Atlantic Girl Flier To Retain Maiden Name

Married

The former Amelia Earhart, above and her new husband, George Palmer Putnam.

(By The Associated Press)

NOANK, Conn., Feb. 7—Three months ago George Palmer Putnam, publisher, explorer and aviation enthusiast, beamed on questioning reporters and admitted: "To marry Miss Amelia Earhart would be swell."

Then a sadder tone came into his voice as he lamented, "but nothing in this vale of tears is certain."

Married at Noon

Today the world didn't look at all like a vale of tears ...to him, for at noon he married the famous trans-Atlantic aviatrix at the home of Mrs. Francis Putnam, his mother.

The ceremony was simple. Judge Arthur Anderson of Groton performed it and the witnesses were Mrs. Putnam and Robert Anderson, the judge's son.

The bride, first woman to conquer the Atlantic in a plane, will retain her maiden name and plans to be at work Monday as usual at her executive post for an aviation concern. Her husband won't take any longer time off from his work with Brewer and Warren, New York publishing firm.

The romance was born of mutual admiration and a mutual love for danger and adventure. Back in 1928 Putnam, making a search on behalf of Mrs. Frederick Guest for an aviatrix to fly the ocean, selected Miss Earhart, then a Boston social worker and amateur flier.

On June 17-18, 1928, she wrote her name indelibly in the annals of heroic air exploits by flying from Trepassy, N. F., to Burryport, Wales, with the late Wilmer D. Stutz and Lou Gordon as members of the crew of her plane, the Friendship.

Putnam's delight in strange far-away places sent him in the Schooner Effie M. Morrisey to within 700 miles of the North Pole in 1926. The next year, accompanied by his young son David Binney Putnam, he explored Baffin island. Both trips were rich in scientific results.

Miss Earhart in applying for the license, said she was 32, ten years younger than Putnam. The publisher and his first wife Mrs. Dorothy Binney Putnam, were divorced in Reno in 1929.

Family Living From Charity As Able Bodied Man Declines Work Revealed

AN investigation arising from charges by a Lubbock family that charity agencies had refused to extend needed aid showed that about $50 had been spent for food, clothing and fuel for the family since December 12, and that the able bodied man of the family had not accepted work offered to him.

Report of the investigation of the family, which lives on Avenue P, was made public by United Charities to illustrate the necessity of investigating before helping purportedly needy families.

The wife of a prominent business man last week was telephoned by a woman who reported that she, her husband, and their nine children were in need of immediate aid and that United Charities would not help them.

Groceries costing $6 were sent to the family by the woman to whom the appeal had been made. When her husband came home, he heard about the needy family and some disparaging opinions of United Charities.

The husband had worked in the Community Chest financial drive, he knew the plans and methods of United Charities, and he did not agree with his wife. She was sincere and trying to do her bit toward alleviating suffering, but her ut-

Oklahoma Governor's Policies Endorsed At Mass Meeting

(By The Associated Press)

BRISTOW, Okla., Feb. 7.—Called together in ten minutes, an impassioned mass meeting of Creek county farmers this afternoon endorsed policies of Governor W. H. Murray and finally passed a resolution nominating him as president of the United States.

Murray, addressing the state legislature this week, told it to pass his relief program or he would "carry it to the people" and call mass meetings in every town in the state.

March Is Urged

Some of the participants here urged a march on the state capitol to help bring about passage of drouth aid legislation and other administration measures.

Standing in the rain at a downtown corner, W. L. Cheatham, former legislator, called the meeting, which was attended by about 150 persons, mostly farmers.

Resolution after resolution was passed after the men had poured into the city hall, all expressing confidence in the governor. The resolutions were to be sent to Senator George Jennings, Creek county, who opposed Murray's bill to tax salaries of teachers and other public servants. The bill was killed in the senate.

An organization, known as the "Citizens Good Government League" was formed with Cheatham. Fiery speeches in Murray's behalf were made before the resolution urging him for the presidency was passed.

Suit Is Echo To Car Crash

Clarence Rollo Asks $7,500 Damages As Outgrowth Of Collision; C. A. Coleman Of Wilson Named Defendant

Damages, $7,500 were asked by Clarence Rollo, of Lubbock, in a suit filed Saturday in ninety-ninth district court against C. A. Coleman, of Wilson, in connection with an automobile accident which occurred the night of November 20, 1930, at Thirteenth street and Avenue Q.

Coleman is the father of Grover Coleman, a minor who was driving the automobile which collided with a heavier machine in which Rollo was alone. Rollo was pinned beneath his car and was taken to Lubbock sanitarium where he was unconscious nearly 24 hours. Young Coleman and three companions also received medical attention.

The petition filed by Rebert A Bowder, attorney, for Rollo, alleges that Rolo, who is 23, suffered permanent disfigurements of the face, nose and mouth and stiffening of an arm in the accident; that his nervous system is disorganized and his health impaired, and that he has suffered loss of the senses of hearing and smelling, and acquired an impediment in his speech, as a result of the collision. Rollo's injuries included concussion of the brain.

Young Coleman is charged in the petition with overrunning a stopline on Thirteenth street at Avenue Q and driving at an excessive rate of speed at the time of the accident.

C. A. Coleman was owner of the automobile which his son was driving, according to Rollo's petition.

Grover Coleman was convicted in county court, January 30, of aggravated assault with an automobile and fined $25 and costs of approximately the same amount. The charge also was an outgrowth of the accident of November 20.

Preferential Ballot Bill To Be Introduced In House

AUSTIN, Feb. 7. (AP)—Representative Giles of Austin today had a bill ready for introduction calling for the substitution of the preferential primary for the present double primary election system.

Under Giles' bill, the run off primary would be abolished. The voter in the first primary would be required to vote his first and second choices for each office, otherwise his ballot would be invalid. If only two candidates were in the race, the voter would vote for just one of them. In case no candidate received a majority of the first choice votes, the candidate having the most first second choice votes would be the nominee.

Ferryboat And Steamship Collide; Three Are Hurt

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Feb. 7. (AP)—Three persons were injured tonight when the steamship Marian and the ferryboat Elmyra of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad, collided in midstream off the Jersey City water front.

Thirty panic stricken passengers, including the injured, were transferred in a blinding snowstorm to a Pennsylvania railroad tug captained by Frank Carbon and conveyed safely to a pier on the Jersey side of the river.

Will Rogers For President!

AMARILLO, Feb. 7. (AP)—The Will Rogers for president campaign is a sensible step, said Mayor Ernest Thompson of Amarillo Saturday, and he would like to see it sponsored on a national scale.

"He would make a dandy president," said Thompson. "He is qualified in every respect. He is one of the nation's smartest men and he has plenty of common, practical sense. I'm for him for president." He said Texas should take the lead in an effort to send him to the White House.

Film Director And Actor End Theater Panic

Fred Niblo, Robert McWade Wisecrack Audience Into Laughter After Thirty Are Injured In Explosion

(By The Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 7.—A film director and an actor who "wise cracked" at an audience of 2,000 last night were credited today with turning a near panic into laughter while 30 persons outside a downtown theater were being carried to hospitals in ambulances, victims of a terrific explosion of sewer gas.

Fred Niblo, director of many famous pictures, had just taken the stage to introduce celebrities to the audience following the premiere showing of Richard Dix's new picture, "Cimarron," when the theater was rocked by the blast.

Notables Present

In the audience sat Dix, Ann Harding, Mae Murray, Jack Holt, Sue Carrol, John Boles, Betty Compson, William Collier, Jr., Estelle Taylor, Bert Wheeler, Robert Woolsey, Lowell Sherman, Constance Bennett, Nina Dunne and Dough MacLean. With the audience, they rose in a body but before they could stampede for the exits, Niblo shouted hilariously:

"Don't get excited folks! If anything was wrong, I'd be the first to run." Robert McWade, veteran of the screen, sitting in the orchestra circle, jumped to his feet: "Everything is all right. That noise was just part of the celebration in my honor."

The excited crowd caught the humor and a nervous laugh ran through the audience. The spectators settled back into their seats and a few moments later walked calmly out the rear exits.

Will Rogers Boosts Drouth Relief Total Past $60,000

BARTLESVILLE, Okla., Feb. 7.(AP)—Will Rogers boosted his home-state drouth relief receipts past the $60,000 mark today. Unpleasant flying weather and a forced landing near Miami—plus a ride into town in a flivver—only served to whet the cowboy humorist's quips and earning power.

Revised figures on the Miami collections showed $2,650 from 1,300 persons and the first count of this afternoon's Bartlesville benefit placed the "gat" at approximately $4,000. Another pot of gold was filled up tonight at Okmulgee, scene of Will's next to last performance. He closes in Tulsa tomorrow night.

Conferees Of House, Senate Approve Loans

Rebellion Breaks Out Against $20,000,000 Drouth Relief Compromise Measure; Independents In Opposition

Comes Up Monday

Loan Fund Assailed As Face Saving Proposition With No Provision For Relief In Cities; Would Avoid Doles

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7. (AP)—The $20,000,000 drouth loan compromise on relief was formally approved today by conferees of the senate and house as rebellion against it broke out in the senate from the ranks of the Republican and Democratic independents.

Senators LaFollette, Republican, Wisconsin, and Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, assailed the loan fund as a "face-saving" proposition and announced they would oppose it because it contained no federal fund for relief in the cities.

To Come Up Monday

Chairman Smoot of the senate conferees announced he would bring it up for a vote Monday and the Democratic and Republican leaders were prepared to throw their full strength behind the measure.

The insurgency of LaFollette and Wheeler brought a new fear to leaders who were hopeful of completing business by March 4 and avoiding an extra session. In the new congress the Republican independents will have the balance of power in both branches.

LaFollette told the senate he would speak "at length" against the report Monday but he said he had no intent to filibuster. Both Senators Watson of Indiana, the Republican leader, and Robinson of Arkansas, and Democratic chieftain, were confident tonight the settlement would be approved and an ex-

LITTLE MARSHALL wants a home. He hasn't any mother any more; his father's health and financial condition make it impossible for him to care for his son. Marshall thinks there's somebody in Lubbock who would like to take him . . . Is there?

According to Mrs. W. T. Milam, who has been active in benevolent work in Lubbock for several years, Marshall is 8 years old—freckle-faced, healthy, witty and altogether loveable and above all is looking for a new mother and dad, right here in Lubbock.

Arguments In Thompson Case To Be Monday

Defense Makes About Hundred Objections To Charge; To Be Rewritten; Small Will Open For Prosecution

(By The Associated Press)

VERNON, Feb. 7.—Discussion of the court's charge to the jury in the case of Emmett Thompson, charged with murder in connection with the death of Homer Crabtree near Le Pors last November, continued here tonight.

With almost 100 exceptions to the charge listed by the defense, complete rewriting of the charge was necessitated, and Judge W. N. Stokes indicated it would be ready Monday. Indications were that arguments would be completed and the jury given the case the same day.

Small To Open

A tentative schedule for the arguments listed State Senator Clint C Small to open for the state, followed by R. E. Underwood, W. M. Lewright for the defense, district attorney John Myers for the state E. A. Simpson and Cecil Storey for the defense and Fred Weeks for the state.

Judge Stokes indicated the jury would be charged separtely as to whether the defendant assisted Carl Hefner in the slaying or whether he killed Crabtree himself. Hefner was tried recently at Pampa and was given a 99-year penitentiary sentence.

The state has charged Crabtree was beaten and kicked to death in a fight with Hefner and Thompson. Thompson testified Hefner alone was responsible for Crabtree's death. The fight was said to have followed an argument over a horse which Hefner claimed as his own.

DETROIT, Feb. 7. —(AP)—Chester La Mare, powerful and elusive overlord of west side gangsters, was shot to death in the kitchen of his Grandville avenue home last midnight, six hours before he was to have been taken into custody as a grand jury witness.

The slaying ended eight months of hide and seek played by Le Mare with the police and rival gangsters; threatened to sow the seeds of a new underworld vendetta and made available to the grand jury a vast store of documents, check stubs and papers which are expected to have a bearing on Detroit crime conditions.

Police tonight held La Mare's widow, Anna, and an injured man known as Tony Marino. Mrs. La Mare is held because police and prosecuting officials questioned the stories she told of her activities shortly before La Mare's death. Marino was found with a fractured skull.

FORT WORTH, Feb. 7. (AP) — A man offered to surrender to authorities Friday, an aftermath to what a married woman described as demands on her for $10,000, but he was told there was no charges against him.

The offer followed an attempt by police and private detectives to arrest the man whom thewoman said had made the demand and the shooting of an innocent person.

E. J. Brockshire, 27, warehouse employe, was shot by a woman detective yesterday when he picked up a decoy package placed in a mailbox and did not heed her order to put up his hands. It was determined he had no connection with the demands for the $10,000.

Lay Plans For Hereford Sale Here March 27

Sale Committee Of Lubbock Chamber Of Commerce To Meet Here Saturday To Work Out Detail Of Event

Selection of sub-committees and formulation of plans for the forthcoming Hereford cattle sale to be held in this city on March 27 featured a meeting Saturday of the sale committee of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce.

Dr I. E. Barr, chairman of the group, presided at the gathering, which was attended by six other members.

Plans Discussed

Plans for making the sale, the first ever to be held in Lubbock a success were discussed at great length while Dr. Barr reported that there will be approximately 45 head of the best available cattle offered for purchase. The big object, as officials see it, is to assure a sufficient number of buyers.

A special feature of the sale program will be two dances honoring all visiting cattlemen. These dances will be of the old time variety with the steps of former days holding sway. The first will be held on the night of March 26 while the second is to be given the night of March 28.

Committee in charge of arrangements for the first affair is Sam Arnett and George Boles. Those who will plan the second are W. O Stevens, Fred Snyder and Lem Chesher.

To Prepare Pamphlet

A committee, composed of Tom Ivey, Temple Lewis and W. L. Stangel was appointed to prepare an advertising pamphlet for the sale. Another committee was named to prepare a mailing list of buyers and others interested to whom invitations will be sent. This group is composed of Tom Ivey, Dr. Y. J. Aiken, Temple Lewis, George Boles, Bob Crump, of Shallowater, and Earl Cadenhead, of Meadow.

The general committee plans to send delegations from Lubbock to four other sales in the state during the next few weeks. All of these sales will be held prior to the local one. The four events will be held at Albany, Amarillo, Sweetwater and Fort Worth.

McKee Appeal Hearing Will Be This Week

To Seek Reversal Of Death Sentence In Murder Of W. R. Billingsley, Sparenburg Merchant, Last May 1

Hearing on an appeal in the case of Ira McKee, sentenced to death from Dawson county in June, 1930, for the murder of W. R. Billingsly, Sparenburg merchant, will be held Wednesday in the court of criminal appeals at Austin.

T. L. Price, district attorney of the 106th district, in which the case was tried, will oppose a plea for new trial and will go to Austin Tuesday. Recently while in Lubbock, Mr. Price said that he was confident the higher court would affirm the sentence. "I know of no errors in the records upon which a reversal could be obtained," he stated.

Billingsley was killed at Sparenburg on May 1, 1930, when he attempted to prevent the holdup of a filling station near his store. McKee was arrested about a month later after officers all over the state had conducted a widespread search for him. He was first lodged in jail at Lubbock, officers fearing result of high feeling which was evident in Dawson county at that time. He later, however, was moved to Lamesa where a speedy trial resulted in his conviction.

District Attorney Price states that from 30 to 60 days will probably be required by the higher court for a decision in the case.

Local Persons Invited To Opening Of Pampa City Hall

Invitations have been received by several Lubbock city officials to attend the formal opening of the new city hall at Pampa on next Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock. It is understood that several local citizens will probably attend the dedication exercises.

The invitations are signed by D. W. Osborne, mayor; F. M. Gwin, city manager, and Clyde F. Fatheree and Lynn Boyd, commissioners.

Thirteen-Year-Old Runaway Boy Being Cared For By Lubbock Salvation Army

Curtis Mitchell, a 13-year-old-old runaway boy from Mena, Ark., is being cared for at the Salvation Army home on South Texas avenue by Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Wilson while awaiting word from his parents.

Curtis came into the Army hall on Wednesday and asked for something to eat. He gave one name to Mrs. Wilson, who waited on him and she let him spend the night there. He left early Thursday morning.

Some one told him that the police department might help him get a ticket back home so he called on the police. Later he met Captain Wilson and told his story to him, giving the name of Curtis Mitchell.

"That is not the name he gave me," Mrs. Wilson told her husband. They questioned the boy further and found out that he was not getting along very well, so he ran away. Thursday afternoon he did not eat much and showed a fever so Mrs. Wilson called in Dr. Rollo, who ordered Curtis to stay in bad.

"Friday morning I fixed him some eggs and toast and apples and he ate all of them," Mrs. Wilson said. "He said that he wanted to go back home, so we had him write home for the money to buy his ticket. I think he has learned his lesson. This is not a very good world for a boy of that age to run away in and I hope he learns his lesson."

Even Winner Of Nobel Prize Has His Difficulties

LONDON, Feb. 7 (AP)—Life is not all beer and skittles even for the winner of the Nobel prize in literature. Sinclair Lewis is beginning to find out.

"I used to get letters by the fistful," he said today, "but now I get them by the bushel. A lot of them want money, some of them demand it. A gypsy in Austria sent me the mortgage on his old homestead and wanted me to pay it off.

"I wrote him a polite letter telling him I was poor too and what thanks did I get? He sent me five postal cards calling me all the names I ever heard and some new ones, and said he was praying every day at his mother's grave that some terrible disaster befall my wife and me."

INTERESTING LETTERS

A woman, known for her interesting letters, keeps a clipping fold in her desk into which she slips all kinds of tidbits from newspaper and things friends tell her, filing them under the initial of the friend she thinks they will interest. When she starts writing letters, she looks under the initial and gets out all these tidbits which she often has forgotten.

The first type-printed illustrated book is said to be the "Bible pauperum," printed in or about 1461.

Find Honest Man; Returns Money

Last Wednesday Rev. W. K. Johnson, Presbyterian minister and superintendent of evangelism for this presbytery, lost his pocketbook containing $51 in cash including a $20 gold piece, a check for $300 and some automobile papers. He advertised for the lost article in the Avalanche of Thursday morning and then had to go to Cochran county for a meeting.

Saturday a resident of Southland came to Reverend Johnson's home, 1412 Avenue M, with the missing article. He stated he had found the pocketbook near the Lubbock sanitarium as he and several friends were leaving the building. Everything in the pocketbook was just as it had been when it was lost. The finder explained he would have returned it sooner but was unable to get in touch with the minister before.

WATSON REELECTED

BIG SPRING, Feb. 7 (Special)—C. T. Watson, for the past five years manager of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce, has accepted the post for another year, according to reports here. Recently the board of directors reelected Mr. Watson and he is understood to have decided to remain here. The manager's salary will be cut, however, $300 a year. The salary of his assistant, Mrs. G. I. Phillips, also is to be reduced the same amount.

Larger School Attendance As Clothes Given

Increase Of 20 Per Cent In Dickens County Reported After Red Cross Begins To Aid Children

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 7. (AP)—School attendance has increased 20 per cent in Dickens county, Texas, rural schools since the Red Cross started supplying adequate clothing to children who had stopped school, a Red Cross field representative today advised William M. Baxter, Jr., manager of the midwestern branch office of the Red Cross.

"I do not see how we could have met the school situation without the assistance of the Red Cross," the field representative quoted the county superintendent of schools.

The field representative wrote of a 10-year old boy, who stopped school in November because he had to ride a pony three miles clad only in a shrt and a thin pair of overalls. The Red Cross fitted him out with underwear, shoes, stockings, and a sweater and the boy and the pony again are making their daily trips.

ROVING THE SPORTS WORLD

WITH COLLIER PARRIS
JOURNAL SPORTS EDITOR

Definite news stories may soon be circulated concerning the first coaching school in West Texas. It is already a rather well established fact that Lubbock will play host to college and high school coaches of this section about next August. Just who will be called to lead the school has not been decided, though this also will be known at an early date.

Three men are uppermost in the minds of promoters of the school. They are Bill Roper, Jimmy Phelan and Wallace Wade. One of these men, possibly two, are pretty certain to come here. Since Bill Roper will not be associated with an institution as head coach and due to his recently published ideas of "reform" in football circles the once famous coach may not be considered as highly as the others Wade's success at the University of Alabama and Phelan's wonderful record at Purdue have made these coaches popular in the last few years.

We doff the bonnet to Captain Malcolm Campbell, that fatalist. While the speed of 245 miles per hour he attained to better the world's automobile record for the measured mile is almost beyond our comprehension, and while we wonder why a man of normal sense would risk his life so nonchalantly, we can but marvel at the heart of a man who can do it and come out alive. Traveling at the rate of a little better than 4 miles per minute, the British sportsman has the distinction of being the only man in the world ever to go that fast and stay on the ground. Moreover, he is the only man alive who has ever driven faster than 200 miles per hour. Why, he was going nearly that fast when he slipper into high gear!

Campbell is a confessed fatalist. He never worries about getting killed. He exercises care when he races, not because he fears for his life but because he does not want to clutter up the landscape with wreckage. He wants a clean finish. He believes that when the times come to die, one will die, no questions asked, no quarter granted. In the meantime see how many records you can break. Your day is marked and you'll get yours, no matter whether you are riding a roadster 250 miles an hour on an ocean beach or herding sheep on a hillside. What would a football coach give for eleven husky fatalists?

Not content with breaking just one record, Campbell drove a midget four-cylinder job down the beach speedway on the day following his mighty triumph in the multi-cylinder Bluebird II for a new world's record for automobiles with piston displacement of less than 45 cubic inches. The miniature car was propelled at the rate of 94 miles per hour for the measured mile.

Speaking of records brings other records from the files. The "fastest human is not Paavo Nurmi, Charley Paddock or Cy Leland but A. H. Orgelar, an Englishman, who in September of 1929 broke into headlines when he piloted a seaplane 357.723 miles per hour to set a world's record. So far as we know that is the swiftest any man has ever traveled. The airplanes record is 278.480 miles per hour, established on December 11, 1924, by Bonnett of France. Major Henry Segrave lost his life in an attempt to better his world's record in a motorboat of 98.76 miles per hour.

Roamer rode a horse at the Saratoga track in 1918 at the rate of one minute and 35 seconds for a measured mile. Paavo Nurmi of Finland maintains the world's record for the mile run, having stepped it off in Sweden in 1923 in four minutes and ten seconds. The walking record for the mile is six minutes 22 seconds, made in 1913. Clarence Crabbe set the present world's swimming record at Long Beach, Calif., in July of last year when he stroked, free style, a mile in 21 minutes and 27 seconds.

Hefty Crop Texas Leaguers To Go Big Time

Majors Taking 28 Texas Boys To Plug Ranks

Believed That Third Of Ivory Will Stick In Big Show; Six Spudders Go Up; Lil Stoner To Train With Phillies

BY GAYLE TALBOT, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

DALLAS, Feb. 7. — Two weeks from now, when the big leaguers pitch their camps in the sunny south, a bumper crop of last year's Texas League stars will be on hand to battle for recognition in the big time and fatter salary checks.

Twenty-eight who twinkled in the Lone Star circuit in 1930 are scheduled to report for trials, including all of the outstanding performers. Eight of the number are pitchers, nine infielders, eight outfielders and three catchers. Baseball men figure, roughly that a third of those called will finish the season in major league spangles a fair average

Six Spudders Go Up

Of those going up a notch, six were members of the great Wichita Falls machine that ran away with the first half last season and then lost to Fort Worth in the play-off; five shone for the San Antonio Indians, who never got started; four each were with the champion Fort Worth Panthers and Beaumont Exporters; three each with Houston and Dallas; two with Waco and one with Shreveport.

The list does not comprise by any means the entire number of familiar faces due to be missed from Texas League camps. At least as many more have been sold or traded during the winter to minor leagues of higher or of the same classification. Several clubs, notably Shreveport, will start the 1931 nocturnal campaign with almost complete new rosters.

The major league club that, in the opinion of some expert observers, made the best pick of the Texas League crop was the Philadelphia Nationals. The Phillies plucked the loop's two outstanding pitchers, Lil Stoner and Harold Wiltse, and the most promising young infielder, Lee Mallon of the Fort Worth Cats. Stoner won 14 and lost 6 for the Cats, and Wiltse, 19 and 9 for Wichita Falls.

Cards Get Dean, Stout

The St. Louis Cardinals ran a close second in grabbing off Dizzy Dean and Allyn Stout, two exceptionally bright pitching prospects and Joel Hunt, outfielder, from their Houston farm. Dean and Stout each won 18 and lost 8, and Stout was the league's strikeout king.

Three Spudders To Help

Five cogs from the Wichita Falls powerhouse promise to help the St. Louis Browns plenty. In Levey at short, Storti at second and Burns at first, the Browns got almost a complete infield and a cracking good one. All three can hit and field. In Larry Bettencourt they got the Texas Leaguer's homerun king—he smacked 43—and in Crouch a promising young catcher. Bettencourt should stick this time.

Of the five selected by the New York Giants from their San Antonio farm, two appear to have a fine chance of making the grade. Sam Leslie will be remembered as the first-basing gent who cracked the horsehide at a .409 clip in the last 73 games. John McGraw doubtless will keep him around, even with Bill Terry on the job. Joe Moore, the rookie outfielder who hit .329 also is considered a good bet. Lavequ, catcher and Chaplin and Lucas pitchers are the other three

Detroit Gets Exporters

Detroit bagged four Beaumont Exporters, including Oscar Eckhardt big outfielder, who led the batting race all the way and finished with a lofty .379. Their other acquisition, not quite so promising, were Holley and Shuble, infielders, and Shiver, outfield.

The Pittsburgh Pirates helped themselves to Tony Piet, promising Waco infielder; McClanahan, slugging Shreveport gardner, and recalled Clarke, who third based some for the Panthers toward the last.

Donie Bush's Chicago White Sox drew Hughie Willingham, clouting Dallas infielder, who ran a close second in the homer race with 38. Also, this year they will have the services of Vic Frasier, sensational Young Dallas hurler of 1929, who laid out last year.

X-Ray Cheers Duffers By Exposing Flaws In Ball

Here's Why You've Been Hooking, Maybe

Written Especially for NEA Service

DAYTON, O., Feb. 7.—If you are an average golfer, and have trouble with your putting, the fault is probably in your wrists, or your elbows, or your nervous system. But maybe not. There is a fair chance, depending upon how accurate you are, that the fault lies in the center of those new, larger and lighter balls you're playing.

Dr. Clifford Weis is just a fair golfer. If your putting trouble was in your nervous system he could probably tell you something about it. But if you can't putt because your wrists are too stiff, he wouldn't be able to do much for you.

Anyway, the doctor found that his putts weren't going down. He held a consultation with a golf professional, and found that he was doing everything correctly, as nearly as the pro could ascertain. So the doctor decided to have a look at what makes the pellets go round.

He took a dozen-odd balls that he had been using for some time, and X-rayed them. The result showed that the core which forms the center of the ball was not round. Having made that shocking discovery, the doctor called your correspondent into the case.

In turn, a golf dealer was consulted. In the interests of science, the dealer agreed to present two balls apiece of each of the four of the more popular 75-cent brands, offered by recognized and reputable manufacturers. The balls were unused, and went directly from their tissue wrappings to the X-ray table.

centers of the balls vary in size, shape and density. A1 and A2, of the same brand, are the more nearly perfect of the bunch. But B1 is fairly round, and B2, made by the same company, is nearly oblong. C1 and C2, also of the same brand, are decidedly not round, but have a certain agreement one with the other. D1 and D2 are also varying.

Dr. Weis drew the conclusion that a ball with an irregular core, the core being the heaviest single part of the ball, would hardly roll true on a slow put. Now the doctor is trying to get refunds on syndicate bet settlements.

And the sporting goods dealer is trying to show his customers why they should buy balls of the same brand as A1 and A2.

And your correspondent is wondering what golf tourneys, and the U. S. G. A. are coming to. During the Agua Caliente meet recently it was found that several balls, although of the same manufacture, were of different sizes. The committee procured calipers and investigated, but finally ruled that everything was legal, because the U. S. G. A. ruling sets a minimum size, but no maximum. Someone suggested that all tournaments be equipped with a mechanical engineer. They might add one X-ray expert.

It might not make so much difference to the average duffer, but a variation in size and another variation in the core of the ball would surely cause the average pro to think the thing over.

Westerners Win Three Games During Day To Take Second Honors; Team Members Get Silver Basketballs

(Special to The Avalanche-Journal)

FLOYDADA, Feb. 7—In what the majority of spectators and judges considered the most sensational game of the entire tournament, the Meadow High school cagers defeated the Lubbock Westerners, 39 to 27, in a wild scoring match here tonight to win first honors in the annual Floydada invitation basketball tournament. Lubbock took second place.

Both teams went into the finals after a hard day's run, each team being called upon to win three games before meeting in the honor contest. Lubbock, entering the tournament at the eleventh hour, swept through the first, second and third rounds, defeating Kress, Turkey and Brownfield in successive games during the day. Meadow defeated Quitaque, Floydada and Plainview before meeting Lubbock.

Captain Knight Stars

Individual honors went to Captain Jimmy Knight of the Lubbock Westerners. Shooting long and true, he scored time after time for the Hub City crew to lead his team to three victories today. Jack Quinlan, Hollis Payne and Gene Brown looked good for the Westerners. Thompson played good games for Lubbock at guard.

The Meadow team was composed of Simpson and Finley, forwards, White and Chisshide, guards, and Castleberry, center. In the Lubbock game, Castleberry was high point man with 14 points to his credit. Jimmy Knight of Lubbock was second with an even dozen. Simpson registered 10 and Finlay 9 points. Payne of Lubbock scored 7 in the final game.

Westerners Off to Lead

The Westerners were off to a great start in the final game, leading 10 to 2 at the end of the first quarter. The Meadow lads came back fighting just before the half and Lubbock's lead at the rest period was narrow. Meadow took a long run in the third quarter and rumbled on to victory as the game drew near a close.

Gold basketballs were awarded by the tournament committee to members and coaches of the Meadow team, symbolic of first honors. Lubbock's Westerners were presented with silver basketballs as winners of second place.

Wooldridge's Blacks Win Tech Campus Team Battle

Reds Lose, 7 to 6 In Game Played On Wet Field

Playing on a muddy field that grew muddier when rain started falling in the second quarter, the Blacks, Tech campus football team, defeated the Reds, another campus team, 7 to 6 yesterday afternoon in the climax to a hectic intramural gridiron season at the local college.

Coached by Floyd Wooldridge, regular Matador quarterback for the past few seasons, the Blacks played circles around the fighting Reds to gain nine first downs while the Reds chalked up two. The fine punting of Mina Watkins, former Lubbock High star, was the outstanding point in the Reds' line of tricks. He punted nine times for an average of 45 yards. His average was matched by Smith of the Blacks, but the latter chose to kick only four times.

Brothers Coaches Reds

The Reds, coached by Buddy Brothers, graduating Tech grid star, played consistently and at times shone on the defense. Watkins, Oswald and Banta in the backfield and Prizzell, Nix and Stubbs in the line made the going rough for the Blacks, but the latter passed and ran to victory, seemingly taking advantage of the slippery field.

The Blacks scored a touchdown late in the second quarter, just before the half, after driving down the field to the 1-foot line from where Bartley, going in for Maddox at quarterback, plunged over for the marker. Smith kicked goal for the extra point.

A pass, Watkins to Love, barely over the line of scrimmage, was responsible for the Reds' touchdown. Love scampered 10 yards for the counter. Watkins missed the place kick that would have tied the score.

Nix, regular freshman team center during the grid season last fall, was a great defensive star for the Reds. Prizzell, former Lubbock High star, candidate for the Matador varsity, showed up well in the Red's forward wall.

Blacks Pass Well

The Blacks gained considerable ground with a neat passing attack. Attempting seven aerial tosses, Smith completed four for a total of 67 yards. The receiver in the combination was Hitchcock, Picador end last season.

The lineups: Reds: Tate and Stubbs, ends; Prizzell and Locke, tackles; Holley and Sparkman, guards; Nix, center; Watkins, quarter; Oswald and Potter, halves; Banta, full. Blacks: Smith and Hitchcock, ends; Davis and Turner, tackles; Harris and Gray, guards; Grundy, center; Maddox, quarter; Williams and Roberts, halves; Smith, full.

Matador varsity men who assisted Wooldridge in coaching the Blacks were George Langford, Jack Durham and Bill Teal. Assisting Buddy Brothers with the Reds were Bill McWilliams, Ross Ayers and Rip Vinzant.

AUSTIN, Feb. 7. (AP)—Representatives of Fort Worth, San Antonio, Dallas, Greenville, Robstown, Abilene, Cisburne and Waco high schools were before a university interscholastic league committee today calling for a readjustment of the new football districting system effected by the league.

Roy Bedichek, director general of the university interscholastic league, said the number of districts in the league had been increased from eight to sixteen.

He said the schools were not protesting against the increased number of districts, but preferred to be placed in other districts. He said he did not expect the committee to report until next week.

Shawnee Club Out Of Western Association

SHAWNEE, Okla., Feb. 7. (AP)—Shawnee was out of the Western Association picture tonight. Phil Watson, president of the club, today blamed lack of fan interest and unsuccessful efforts to sell season tickets for decision to withdraw from the circuit. He has so informed President Dale Gear of the association.

The St. Louis Cardinals recently withdrew their support from Shawnee to Springfield, Mo.

Sul Ross Drops, 26-25, To Daniel Baker Cagers

ALPINE, Feb. 7. (AP)—The Daniel Baker college basketeers from Brownwood nosed out Sul Ross Teachers college 26-25 last night in a Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association game. The contest was the first conference loss for Sul Ross. The game was brilliantly fought throughout and was the fastest ever seen on a local court. The work of Hampton, Sul Ross guard, and of Chambers, Hill Billy guard, featured the contest. Wise, Baker and Shaddix of Sul Ross tied for high point honors.

McMurry Is Here Monday

Medley Cagers Come Here For Pair Of Games

Games Monday And Tuesday Nights Promise Thrills For Lubbock Fans; Indians High In T.I.A.A. Scoring

Eager to make a flying finish as the season passes the half-way mark, Coach Crip Golightly and his Texas Tech Matadors settled down to concentrated practice on their weakest points last week and in the final workout of the week yesterday afternoon they looked like winners. Having nothing to do last week except practice, the Crimsons gained considerable headway, and in their last home games they are due to show a great deal of improvement.

After this week only one game will remain on the home schedule. The Matadors take on McMurry's Indians tomorrow and Tuesday nights in the final series. Next week they meet the Sul Ross cagers here in a single stand. The original schedule calls for two games with Sul Ross but due to conflicts in the gymnasium schedule only one game is likely to be played.

Games At 8 O'clock

The game tomorrow night begins at 8 o'clock. The low admission rates that went into effect with the Tech-A. C. C. series are expected to prove quite a drawing card for Lubbock fans. General admission has dropped from 75 cents to 50 cents, and the ticket is good for a reserved seat, though reserved seats are not marked. A section of chairs on the east side has been thrown open to holders of general admission tickets. Youngsters will be admitted for 25 cents.

Pete Cawthon, head coach at Texas Tech, who has been refereeing basketball games in the Southwest Conference this season, states that the class of basketball played by West Texas colleges compares favorably with that of the big conference. He says that Texas Tech's team is better than the University of Texas Longhorns, and says that even at that, the compliment does not do justice to the Matadors.

Coach Golightly's team has showed consistent improvement with every succeeding game this season, which brands them as steady and capable. A glance at the season's record shows them to have lost five games, and these to unusually powerful teams. A split with the Southwestern Teachers of Oklahoma, two victories over the School of Mines, two losses to Simmons, two losses to Canyon's Buffs, a victory over McMurry and three over A. C. C. constitutes the record so far.

Coach Medley brings no bunch of slouches to Lubbock tomorrow. The Tribe has had no little trouble in winning T. I. A. A. games this season but in the team are four of the leading scorers of the conference. They are hot-shots when they're in trim, and a game last week-end with the Canyon Buffaloes should have served to put them in fighting mood. The games here promise to be exciting and colorful.

Craig Wood Sets Pace In Harlingen Open With 65

Horton Smith Runs Close Second With 69

(By The Associated Press)

HARLINGEN, Feb. 7.—Craig Wood of Deal, N. J., became a favorite to win the $1,000 top prize when he ran away from the field of the Harlingen open golf tournament here today, shooting a 65 for the first 18 holes in the $3,500 event.

Despite a stiff wind, he had long drives, kept his seconds under control and turned in a card of 34 out and 31 in, on the 72-par course. He shot seven birdies. On the thirteenth and fifteenth holes, Wood was under par with two deuces and a tray sprinkled in.

On the back nine he beat 36-par by five.

His card read:
Out: 434 424 544—34.

Horned Frogs Defeat Baylor Bruins, 38-22

Score Knotted 11-All At End Of First Half; Bear Scorers Off Form; Doc Sumner Is Star For Frogs

(By The Associated Press)

WACO, Feb. 7.—The Baylor Bears gave the powerful Frog quintet a hard fight here for three quarters tonight, but were subdued, 38 to 22. The score at the half was 11-all.

Until Puny Witcher, Bear guard, went out on personal fouls in the third quarter, with the score 21-all, the Bears were holding their own. McCullouch and Sumner, Frog forwards, then cut loose, piling up the winning margin. They tied for high point honors with 13 each.

Alford, Baylor forward, did not loop a counter until late in the game, with Strickland, center, proving the Bruins' scoring power.

West Texas Teachers Defeat McMurry, 41-11

CANYON, Feb. 7. (AP)—The West Texas State Teachers college Buffaloes grasped more firmly their hold on first place in the western division of the T. I. A. A. here tonight by overwhelming the McMurry Indians, 41 to 11.

The Braves tried to make a game of it by using a delayed defense, and for the first fourteen minutes held the Buffs to a 3 to 3 tie. It just could not last, however, for the Herd shot so many times in the second half that the law of averages provided the margin. McMurry made only one point in the last half.

Burk Buff forward, was high-point man with 14 counters.

Grandview won the consolation match.

Max Baer Must Start Over Again

California's Bid For Heavy Title Loses Chance

By EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 7. (AP)—Tommy Loughran, a warrior they said was "through" came back to the big battle-pit last night to amaze a crowd of 12,000 with his boxing brilliance and completely outfought Max Baer, California's bid for heavyweight importance.

The former light heavyweight champion, stepping blithely around the ring in the fleet style that made him the stylist of the 175-pounders, jabbed, hooked and crossed Baer with every punch in the boxing guide. He dazzled Max at long range, ridiculed him with his skill in the clinches, and teased him into flurries of wild swinging that set the whole crowd to laughing.

Dempsey Referees Bout

The decision of Referee Jack Dempsey, handling his second match of the night, and the two judges, was unanimous. The Associated Press score card gave Loughran all the ten rounds.

The engagement was Tommy's first in New York since the night in the open air at the Yankee Stadium when Jack Sharkey slugged him on the temple and sent him sleep-walking around the ring looking for a chair to sit upon. It was as amazing a comeback as a man could make, against an opponent tailor-made to bring out the best in him, and Loughran made the most of it.

Tommy got a bit careless in the third round, tried to slug with Baer on the ropes, and picked up enough solid socks to the head and body to make him box his prettiest until the ninth. Then with Max wobbly and tired Loughran went in to finish him.

The victory jumped the game Philadelphia back into the center of the heavyweight picture and may win him another shot at Jack Sharkey here in the Madison Square Garden. Loughran weighed 183 pounds and at the weight seemed to have regained all the speed and strength he lacked in his first joust with Sharkey. Baer scaled 200 1-2.

For Baer the heavyweight road now leads back to California and a new start along the heavyweight trail. He lost a decision to Ernie Schaaf in his opening bout here and won a debatable knockout over ancient Tom Heeney in the second after the officials became tangled in

Registration Fee At Rotary Meet Reduced

Plainview Club Planning To Entertain District Confab Of Rotary International April 20 And 21

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

PLAINVIEW, Feb. 7.—In an effort to stimulate attendance at the annual conference of district 41 Rotary International, the executive committee of the local conference committee of the Plainview Rotary club, decided to reduce the registration fee from $5 to $1 at the annual meeting here, April 20 and 21.

District Governor R. H. Nichols of Vernon, at a conference here, assured the local committee that Allman E. Roth, Palo Alto, Calif., international president, would be here.

List of other speakers have not been prepared.

Entertainment will include a golf tournament and dancing. For the ladies a theater party, tea and a reception as well as dancing, are planned.

Budget Arranged

The local committee has arranged a budget. It is believed by President Maury Hopkins that the budget will be kept within the amount desired to be raised with the local club and that probably fees may be refunded.

Between 750 and 1,000 Rotarians from the 63 clubs in West Texas are expected here for the conference.

One candidate for district governor has announced. He is J. Edd McLaughlin, Ralls, former president of that club which has just completed 71 successive 100 per cent meetings.

Meadowbrook Golf Gossip

By Th' Bug

Th' Bug notices a bunch of the Tech boys out nearly every day now. They're gathering momentum for the second annual tournament scheduled for February 12, 13 and 14. A whole gob of 'em will enter and the regular Tech team will be selected from the low scorers in the tournament. A full page in La Ventana, Th' Bug is told, but Th' Bug is no student of Spanish.

Joe Kirkwood's lecture at the Country Club Thursday afternoon is producing results. Bert Herrin, attempting to demonstrate one of Kirkwood's shots, knocked his old cut-up ball into the creek the other day has bought another repaint with a good cover. By "cut-up" Th' Bug means that Herrin is quite a cut-up with a stick and ball and also a description of the ball's condition.

Nobody welcomes the warm weather we've been having recently more than Larry Hines. The water isn't so cold to wade in now.

For your inforamtion, Th' Bug would impart the secret that the course record is a smart 63. Professional Higginbotham owns it. He got it by going out one day and shooting a fine 30 on the front nine. A few days later he shot a 33 on the back nine and added the scores. Once he shot the whole 18 in 66, however.

Amos Howard has resolved to reduce his score and waist measure before the summer is over. Both stand around 44 at the present time.

Join the dodo club and get a gold golf ball to hang on your watch chain. Th' Bug understands that every golfer making a hole in one will receive a trophy. Th' Bug might add that he's offering a still greater prize. For the man who sinks 18 tee shots in one round we'll have a ring-side ticket to the next prize fight in Texas. The offer is good only this week.

Horton Smith Next

Close on the heels of Wood came Horton Smith of New York with a 69, 35 out and 34 in. It was the first time Smith had shown to advantage but today he hit his stride and excepting for a little faulty work on the greens, might have lowered his bid two or three strokes.

Four players registered 71's for third place in the field. Those grouped at par were Harry Cooper of Chicago; John Golden of Noroton, Conn.; Al Espinosa of Chicago and Wiffy Cox of Brooklyn.

Abe Weak On Putting

Abe Espinosa, winner of the Texas open, was off on his putting and after getting into a water hole at the tenth, finished with a poor 76.

Among the amateurs, Bob Harlow, Buffalo, carried off honors with a 75. "Chief" George, Brownsville, started off parring every hole but broke when he went into the rough at a turn and took a 45 coming in. Jack Speer, San Antonio, who was expected to give the pro's trouble, got off to a bad start.

Visitors from other nations practically went out of the running. John De Forrest, Surrey, England, shot 80, as did Harry Brown of Mexico City.

Public Speaking Course Planned

Business men and women will have an opportunity to take a course in public speaking, if requests of such a course are sufficient to justify arrangement of a night extension class, according to J. F. McDonald, director of extension at Texas Technological college.

A total of 40 persons enrolled in such a course as presented twice last year, Mr. McDonald said. The course includes a study of principles of speech with practical training in public speaking, subjects of current interest being used.

Proposed schedule for the class calls for meeting each week for 12 weeks on a night chosen by the class. The fee would be $10.

Miss Anna Jo Pendleton, professor of speech at Technological college, has consented to direct work of the class. Those desiring to enroll in the course should file their names with Mr. McDonald.

Arkansas Aims An Attack On H. L. Mencken

One Solon Calls American Mercury Editor "Jackass" And Demands Apology; Another Suggests Prayer For Him

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 7 (AP)—A new attack on Henry L. Mencken, editor of the American Mercury, occurred yesterday in the Arkansas house of representatives, one member wanting to demand an apology from "that jackass" and another suggesting "we have a few minutes' prayer" for him.

It all started earlier in the day when the house adopted a joint resolution condemning Mencken for a recent article criticising Arkansas in the Baltimore Evening Sun.

Menecken Replies

Menecken's comment on the resolution that "I didn't make Arkansas the butt of ridicule—God did it," added fuel to the flame.

Representative Johnston of Johnson county read Mencken's cryptic comment to the house this afternoon and moved the speaker "demand an apology from that jackass."

Representative Alexander of Mississippi county who introduced the resolution in the morning, sought to soothe the members. Representative Fleming of St. Francis county then suggested that "we forget it and have a few minutes of prayer for Mr. Mencken.

So the matter was dropped, but meanwhile the senate had approved the joint resolution.

The resolution, while criticising Mencken for his caustic writings about Arkansas, paid tribute to his ability as a writer.

South Plains Scouts Will Observe Anniversary Week

Council-Wide Observance In Area Planned

Emergency Mobilization Of All Troops To Mark Twenty-First Birthday Of Founding Of Boy Scout Movement

THIS week marks the twenty-first anniversary of the founding of the Boy Scouts of America, and an emergency mobilization of all trops of the South Plains Area council has been planned as a council-wide event of anniversary week.

Individual troops and the organizations sponsoring them also have arranged programs to be presented in connection with the anniversary period.

Object Explained

"Boy Scout troops all over the country have rendered service to their communities in times of disaster," said D. T. Jennings, South Plains area executive, of Lubbock, in explaining the object of an emergency mobilization.

"A part of the plan of preparedness is to have troops so organized that they can be mobilized quickly.

"At the time of the tornado in St. Louis, one troop had a first aid station put up and was administering first aid in less than 30 minutes after the storm had struck," the scout chieftian related.

The anniversary week mibilization will be handled independently by each town in the South Plains council, Executive Jennings said.

Neither scoutmasters nor scouts know the day or hour upon which they will receive mobilization orders —they know only that the call will come sometime during the week.

To Give Demonstrations

Plans for mobilization of Lubbock troops call for assembly of scouts at their respective meeting places, subsequent gathering of all troops at a central point and setting up of tents and demonstrations of first aid there, according to Executive Jennings. Telephones, foot messengers and other means will be utilized to spread the orders for immediate mobilization. When 50 per cent of the troop registration has reported at the meeting place, the scoutmaster will report the fact and will be told to lead his contingent to the central base.

Fact that several Lubbock troops have members who reside in the country and in parts of the town far removed from the meeting place led to the decision to permit troops go to the main gathering spot as soon as half of the boys registered had assembled at the meeting place, Executive Jennings indicated.

Troop No. 7, sponsored by Asbury Methodist Episcopal church, gave a first aid demonstration at a meeting of men of that church Thursday night. At the same time, troop No. 8 gave a similar demonstration at the American Legion home before members of Allen Brothers post, No. 148, which sponsors the troop. Although a part of the troops' anniversary week programs, the demonstrations were made last week because the organizations before which the scouts performed will not meet this week.

To Attend Services

Troop No. 4, of the First Presbyterian church, will attend vesper services at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon at the church in a body. The program will be dedicated to scouting and a pageant, "A Year's Scouting," will be presented by 13 Lubbock scouts under direction of Executive Jennings. The pageant first was produced here in connection with the annual meeting of the South Plains Area council, January 29.

The First Presbyterian church troop also will hold a "troop roundup" Friday night at the Lubbock hotel. All men and boys who ever have been connected with troop No. 4 are invited to attend the roundup dinner and program.

A scout service will be held at Asbury Methodist Episcopal church at 7:30 o'clock tonight and the pageant will be presented there.

Other Lubbock troops have indicated that they are arranging events for anniversary week, although the programs have not been outlined definitely, Executive Jennings reported.

Since the Boy Scout movement was transplanted to America 21 years ago, approximately 5,000,000 men and boys have participated in scouting in this country, Executive Jennings said.

About 850,000 men and boys in the United States at present are connected with the Boy Scout organization, he added.

Forty-seven boys joined troops of the South Plains Area council during January, and plans are under way to increase the number of troops in Lubbock, Executive Jennings reported.

Ralph Bradford One Of Outstanding Exponents Of C-C Movements In U. S.

Ralph Bradford, assistant manager of the commercial organization department of the United States Chamber of Commerce, who will address a joint luncheon session of the Lubbock Lions, Rotary, Kiwanis and American Business clubs here Tuesday at the Hilton Hotel, is one of the outstanding exponents of the chamber of commerce movements according to information received here.

RALPH BRADFORD

Extensive Lecturer

He has lectured extensively on economic subjects, represented important commercial concerns in extension development and has worked in the newspaper field. As assistant manager of the commercial organization department of the national chamber, he is in close touch with problems affecting the organization structure and programs of work of local chamber of commerce and day to day developments in the movement in all sections of the country, which he discusses in "The New Chamber of Commerce."

Mr. Bradford is of the opinion that the chamber of commerce, as the vehicle of the collective business enterprise of the community, is rapidly adjusting itself to the new economic conditions manifested in large scale manufacturing and distribution. He believes that it is necessary for the community to study and make more effective use of its own resources if it is to stand against the side of competition which engulfs not only individual business concerns but communities and entire sections of the county. This involves not only a knowledge of the effects of this competition upon the town or city but a knowledge of the advantages and resources of the community and their possibilities of development. Mr Bradford believes that the American city of the future will follow less closely the general pattern but will display greater individuality from the business as well as the civic viewpoint.

Community Chest Group To Report

Final report of the cleanup committee of the Lubbock Community Chest and decision of allotments to each participating agency will be made at a meeting of the board of directors of the organization, to be held Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock at offices of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce.

Plans for the year's procedure in issuing the allotment of each agency will be outlined, according to officials.

Members of the board include the following:

A. H. Leidigh, W. B. Atkins, Mrs. W. B. Price, J. J. Clements, George Dupree, W. G. McMillan, Mrs. J. T. Krueger, J. I. Kilpatrick, A. M. Scott, Chas. Nordyke, Mrs. George C. Wolffarth and K. N. Clapp.

CREAMERY MANAGER

CROSBYTON, Feb. 7—(Special)—J. B. Caruthers is the new manager of the Crosby County Creamery company here and has moved here with his family and has assumed full charge. Mr. Caruthers came from Lubbock. Carey Start, the former manager, has moved to Lubbock where he is in the employ of one of the creameries there.

TO SHOW PICTURE

A motion picture on sulphur is to be shown in the chemistry building auditorium at Texas Technological college at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening and the show is to be open to anyone who is interested, it was announced Saturday.

Beautification Of Grounds Is Goal Of Board

Area Near Municipal Airport, City Hall Block, Property Surrounding Warehouse Are To Be Improved

Plans for beautification of the grounds near the municipal airport the city hall block and the property surrounding the city warehouse and power plant were discussed at length late Friday when members of the Lubbock park board met at the city hall.

Landscape plans have been drawn for each of the projects named and actual work will be started within the near future, according to members of the board.

To Plant Trees

A large number of trees and shrubs will be planted about the various areas it was said, most of this work to be done probably in the spring. Among the list of trees and shrubs to be included are Chinese elms, Crepe Myrtle, Chinese juniper, red cedar, cypress, butterfly bush, salvia, jasmine and poplar.

All parks of the city are now being put into condition, preparatory to sodding. Sodding of all the sites probably will be started in April at which time contracts for the work will be let. Members of the board stated that anyone interested in obtaining these contracts should get in touch with the city manager as soon as possible.

Those attending the session were C. H. Mahoney, chairman; J. B Maxey, Mrs. C. F. Stubbs, K. N Clapp and J. Bryan Miller.

Old-Timers Of South Plains Discuss Balmy February Weather Pro And Con; Early Days Of Section Are Recalled

BY J. SAM LEWIS
Avalanche-Journal Staff Writer

That much mooted question of whether the weather these balmy days is as warm and delightful as in the days of yore, is with us again.

Some folks vow and declare that they used to have this kind of weather and even better, back in the days when there were not so many people here on the South Plains to enjoy it. They search back into their memories of 30 or 40 years ago on the plains to prove their point.

Others Disagree

Again there are other old timers who aver that even as good as the weather "used to be" that today's brand is "better still."

The latter are in the majority it seems, holding that the old timers who thought it was mild here "hadn't seen nuthin' yet" in those days as compared with the 1930-1931 season brand.

Says R. C. Burns, better known as Rollie Burns, who almost helped dig the Yellowhouse canyon and who came up on the plains half a century or so ago. "I think it was back in the winter of 1897 that we had some such weather as this I was talking to J. D. Caldwell the other day about it and we agreed that back in the winter of '97 we had a warm spell about like this. Of course we have had lots of nice weather from time to time but I rather think that this winter is the best we have had. I don't recall any better, except probably that one winter."

Nothing Like It

"I have been on the plains for years—39 years ago last August and I don't recall anything like this before," said Mrs. C. F. Stubbs. "I was talking to Mr. David Ware, he has been here 14 years, and he said he never recalled anything like this before."

"Finest I ever saw" was the remark of O. L. Slaton. Mr. Slaton admits having spent 28 years on the South Plains and he says he cannot recall any weather conditions as mild or pleasant in the winter time as those that have prevailed the past month or six weeks.

France Baker, who has lived on the South Plains for 41 years, is another one who says that the brand of weather of the 90's or the 1900's was not even the equal of today's sample. "I never saw it like this before and I have lived here for 41 years," he says.

Ira Doak, who came to the Plains country about 30 years ago, recalls that they used to save watermelons in straw through the fall and into the winter. "But let me tell you," he says, "I see the boys and girls out at Tech playing tennis all winter long. I don't think they have missed a day this winter playing tennis. We never could beat that."

"I have lived out here for 45 years", says C. E. Hunt. "I don't recall anything like this although my father one winter went around in his shirt sleeves on Christmas Day I remember he saved some watermelons and we had them for Christmas dinner once.

Father Wrote Book

"My father wrote a book, but I am not sure if he included that story in it. He wrote about the South Plains in the early days. But the thing that appeals to me is that we had such an abnormal winter last year, so cold. I do not recall that it ever was as cold for as long as it was in the winter of 1929 and 1930. It was down to 10 below then for several days."

Mr. Hunt keeps a diary of events and in it records the weather. He says he compares his thermometer with the reports as printed in the Avalanche and Journal records at the state experiment station and finds that his therometer is fairly accurate.

Max Coleman, who came here in the fall of 1890 when he was less than a year old, says in all his experience he has "never seen anything like this."

"I would not give this weather for California," says Mr. Coleman who admits he has "tried out every state west of the Mississippi river and even up into Canada. I would not give this weather we have here for all of California. I know for I spent some time out there."

For the benefit of the doubting, Don L. Jones of the state experiment station, reports the January mean average was three degrees warmer than the normal mean average of the station, covering a period of years.

Borden Seeks 5-Year Closed Quail Season

Commissioners Prepare Petition To Be Presented To The Legislature; Drouth Aid Is Asked In County

SNYDER, Feb. 7.—The commissioners' court of Borden county, through County Judge L. A. Pearce have prepared a petition with 42 signatures to be sent Rep. J. M. Claunch at Austin for the legislature to declare a closed season on quail in that county, for the next five years. The plea was made owing to the scarcity of the birds in that section.

Machinery is being placed in motion in Borden county to secure drouth relief and Red Cross help. Borden county officials did not ask for this help when the matter came up but hope to secure the same relief as given other counties of the section. Lynn Proud Of Rural Schools In The County

County Superintendent States Each Of Twenty-One Districts Has Teacherage; 17 Schoo1 Buildings Brick

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

TAHOKA, Feb. 8.—"We think we have a county school system that has about as many teacherages in the county as Lubbock county or any other South Plains county with a large school population," says H. P. Caveness, county superintendent of schools, in discussing the rural school work of Lynn county.

"For example," he continued, "we have 21 rural districts. Each rural district has a teacherage. Our teacherages are valued at not less than $18,000."

Most Are Brick

Another cause for pride on the part of the county superintendent is the number of brick buildings. There are 17 out of the 21 rural buildings that are either brick or brick and tile.

Scholastic enrollment for the 21 rural districts and the three town districts, Tahoka, O'Donnell and Wilson, is 3,776.

There are 10 independent rural districts in the county. "We have a peculiar situation here," Mr. Caveness continued. "Besides the 10 rural independent districts, there are eight others that have some sort of independence by reason of a special act of the state legislature. The act is not very clear as to what extent they are independent of the county superintendent's office."

Value of the school property is almost $250,000, the superintendent said. "We have figured very conservatively but I think we have really more than our figures show."

Buildings are valued at $210,000; equipment at $20,000 and teacherages at $18,000, a total of $249,000.

Lynn county has no one teacher schools. There are five two teacher rural schools, six three teacher schools, six four teacher schools, three five teacher schools and one six teacher school.

Rural teachers number 73, with 58 teachers in the three town schools.

Twelve of the rural districts have a classification as standard schools. There are five or six more schools that are expected to make application for this rank this year.

One of the rural school districts of which Mr. Caveness is rather proud is the New Home district, a six teacher school. This district has ten and one-half credits of affiliation with the state school system. It has added this year more science department equipment and is planning to ask for additional credits. "The school heretofore has lacked its science equipment," Mr. Caveness said. "Now that it has science equipment it is planning to ask for more creits of affiliation. J. C. Thomas is superintendent of the district.

Nine rural schools have ten grades of instruction and two have eleven grades.

Ten schools have an average of nine months of school work each year. The average for the entire group of rural schools is nearly eight and a half months.

AGREE WITH WILL?

AUSTIN, Feb. 7. (AP)—Swamped by bills proposing regulation of almost everything in the state, employes of the House and Senate are tempted to agree with Will Rogers concerning some aspects of the legislature. While in Austin on his charity tour, Rogers exercised his right as a newspaperman and gained admittance to the floors of the house and senate and was an interested observer as the legislative wheels ground along.

In his usual style he expressed the desire, among other things to do something for the people of Texas and said one of the biggest things he could do would be to get the legislature to quit legislating and go home, and the state automatically would be saved.

JOBS MEAN SOMETHING

The house and senate employes, however, do not quite agree with him in this respect because their jobs mean a whole lot to most of them right now. But they would like to have things slacken up once in a while so they could have a breathing spell.

Many expressed regret that the 20-day session constitutional amendment was not followed to the letter. This would have given thirty days for introduction of bills, 30 days for committee hearings and the last 60 for final action.

Many of the members evidently believed the time for introduction would be limited to 30 days with the result that house and senate clerks have literally been covered under an avalanche of bills and resolutions. In addition to this the regular work goes on with committee hearings held daily and bills being passed as emergency measures to add to the grief of the enrolling and engrossing rooms.

"BIG" BILLS STARTED

Most of the "big" legislation, however, has started through and high hopes are held by employes that much of the remaining time will be taken up in committees and in floor action. Among the major legislation started was the highway bond issue, various taxation measures, including two bills to increase the tax on sulphur, the semi-annual tax payment bills; a bill to regulate public utilities; bills to revise the state liquor law penalties to make them conform to the federal statutes; the movie censorship bill; one to establish a state fair board and legalize the contribution system at authorized state, county and district fairs; the cotton acreage reduction bills; licensing of automobile and truck drivers; bills widening the scope of the intangible assets laws; the preferential primary plan; a bill to nominate members of the judiciary by convention instead of by the primary and a host of other bills on almost every imaginable subject.

All of the above mentioned proposals were expected to encounter bitter opposition both in committee and when brought out on the floor of the house and senate.

WOULD OPPOSE CHANGE

If they followed merely their own personal interests, state senators elected last year would oppose any legislative redistricting this session.

If the state is redistricted all senators will have to run again next year. A campaign often causes trouble and expense, not to mention the possibility of failing of re-election. If the state is not redistricted, the senators elected for a four-year term last year are assured of their seats until 1935.

MILLER, WIRTZ GRADUATE

Barry Miller of Dallas and A. J. Wirtz of Seguin have graduated from the Senate to the third house as lobbyists in Austin is called.

Miller and Wirtz were two of the most familiar figures in the Senate during the forty-first legislature, the former as presiding officer through being lieutenant governor, and the latter as a leader in many of the floor fights.

Neither sought re-election last year. Wirtz retired and Miller was unsuccessful in his race for governor.

STARTED AS A PAGE

It's hard for Miller to stay away from the political arena because he has been more or less closely connected with politics since he started as a page in Congress in Washington, D. C. when he was but 12 years old.

Miller would like to serve once more in the State House of Representatives but he probably won't. "It's high time I was making some money," he explained.

LITTLE TOO AMBITIOUS

The former lieutenant governor thinks persons who already are naming the next Democratic presidential nominee are a little too ambitious. The candidates who are at the front 18 months ahead of the convention are usually left at the post when the convention is held, he said.

Miller has a great deal of admiration for Owen D. Young of New York. Once a relative died and left an estate to be settled. Miller wrote to Young, who was then in Boston, asking him to investigate the property. Young took half a day off from his duties to comply with the request, Miller said.

FRIEND OF SCRIBES

Ross S. Sterling is a newspaperman and naturally capitol correspondents thought they would have a friend in the governor's office when he became governor. So far, they have not been disappointed.

Governor Sterling sees the representatives of the press as soon as possible after they request an audience, always within a few minutes. He does not evade questions, but answers them quickly and to the point.

Paul Wakefield, the governor's secretary, is an experienced newspaperman, and he smooths the road for the scribes who are endeavoring to chronicle the governor's acts.

WHAT, MORE LICENSES!

A bill has been introduced in the House to license operators of cleaning and pressing establishments. This was done notwithstanding rumblings from certain legislative sources that too many licenses are being required in Texas.

Pink Parrish, the jovial senator from Lubbock, said "it's getting to where a man has to get a license to go into his own backyard." Senator Russek of Schulenburg is asking the legislature to repeal the law enacted by the last session which licensed barbers.

HE MIGHT TRY IT!

Frank Baldwin recently drove Governor Sterling from Waco to Fort Worth to fill a speaking engagement. Several Waco residents remarked jokingly that Mr. Sterling was placing a lot of faith in Baldwin, who is quite a booster for Waco. If anything should happen to Mr. Sterling, Baldwin's fellow-townsman, Lt. Gov. Edgar Witt, of Waco, would become governor.

Charity

ter lack of skepticism had resulted in a "hook, line and sinker" act with her on the swallowing end.

The husband investigated this nine-children-family on Avenue P and went to the official records of United Charities while doing it. In addition to learning that the man of the "needy family" had been offered a job and had not wanted it enough to report for it, he found that the family had received clothing, fuel and food at intervals from United Charities, Salvation Army, and another woman who like his wife may have accepted the family's story as fact.

Last fall the Salvation Army responded to the family's request for clothing, attaches of the post here reported.

A list of contributions to the family by United Charities, taken from official records of the Charity agency, follows:

Dec. 12, groceries, $6.07; Dec. 15, fuel, $3.25; Dec. 20, groceries, $4.50; Jan. 8, clothing, $6.30; Jan. 9, groceries, $3.06; Jan. 13, groceries, $1.76; Jan. 15, fuel, $3.25; January 31, fuel, $3.25; Feb. 2, clothing, $4.75; Feb. 3, sweet potatoes valued at $1.60.

Miss Evelyn Richter, executive secretary of United Charities, reported that Feb. 3 she told the man of the family to report at the United Charities office the following morning and she would have work for him. He did not appear, she said.

The executive secretary also said that the man had telephoned her on Feb. 3 and had told her the family needed additional aid, and that when she went to the home that day, he had been discourteous in a gesticulating, oratorical manner. He told her that wholesale grocers had promised to aid him if United Charities refused to do so, Miss Richter reported.

Subsequently, city officials talked to the man regarding his actions and he reported to Miss Richter, telling her that he would work if given an opportunity.

Men call at the United Charities office daily in search for work, although they will not accept charity, Miss Richter said. United Charities has asked that persons able to offer jobs report the fact to the charity agency.

Drouth Loans

tra session of the new congress avoided.

Would Avoid Doles

Secretary Hyde late today notified Chairman Wood of the house appropriation committee that the $20,000,000 fund "would avoid doles or direct charity from the federal treasury or any implication thereof."

From administration house members there came expressions of satisfaction at the agreement. Representatives Tilson of Connecticut, the majority leader, and Cramton of Michigan, chairman of the subcommittee in charge of the bill, said in statements that it was in entire harmony with the attitude taken by the president.

Senators Robinson and Caraway, also of Arkansas, both announced they were satisfied that under the drouth loan terms that money could be made available for purchase of food by the farmers. The measure provides for loans for "agricultural rehabilitation."

Demos Skeptical

However, some other Democrats were skeptical. Senators Barkley, Kentucky, and Connally, Texas, both Democrats said they wanted written assurance that loans for all purposes necessary would be allowed.

The fact both Robinson and Caraway who have led the Democratic fight for relief legislation were satisfied with the compromise was expected to go along way toward insuring a comfortable majority for the measure.

The $20,000,000 provision was incorporated in the interior department appropriation measure in the place of $25,000,000 Red Cross relief fund to which the administration objected.

Graves Probe

bock county jail, was said to have climaxed a house dance at midnight of January 10 at the home of E. D. Chadwick, 2107 Eighth street.

Horace L. Smith, 28, of 1604 22nd street, was shot twice in the lungs and once in the left arm and died several hours afterwards at the Lubbock sanitarium.

Robert Averett, of 402 Avenue Q, suffered a wound in the abdomen and died several days later at the West Texas hospital.

Three other persons received minor wounds as result of the affair. Helen Louise Smith, 8-year-old daughter of the dead man, received a flesh wound in the right leg; O. L. Bates, 802 Avenue X, was shot through the calf of the leg.

Graves was not arrested until several hours after the affair and was apprehended in Post by authorities of that city who had been notified.

The prisoner has maintained a discreet silence and his attorneys also have had little to say regarding the matter. It is understood that the law firm of Schenck & Triplett will act as defense counsel. W. F. Schenck, partner in the firm, has said that Graves' plea probably will be self defense.

The shooting was said to have followed an argument between Smith and Graves in which the question of Smith's wife dancing with another man figured. Smith made a brief statement before his death in which he said Graves remonstrated with him for letting his wife dance with the man. He further explained that he told Graves to "Shut your mouth, she can dance with him if she likes." The two were said to have retired from the house, the shots quickly following.

First week of the February term of 72nd district court will open in this city Tuesday before Judge Homer L. Pharr. The term will continue through March 21.

Ten Men Drift Helplessly On Ice Floe On Lake Erie

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 7.—(AP)—Driven by a 50-mile an hour wind, at least 10 men drifted helplessly tonight on an ice floe in the storm-swept waters of Lake Erie while darkness and a blinding snowstorm shut them off from possible rescue.

Twenty others were rescued late this afternoon by coast guards and volunteers; eight reached shore by using a smaller ice floe as a raft and paddling into the teeth of the wind. Six others battled their way ashore from one cake of ice to another, while still another reached the Canadian shore after wandering across the broken ice for six miles.

Oil Men Call Him "Lucky Lancaster", Wonder If T-P Head Has Rabbit Foot

DALLAS, Feb. 7. (AP)—Oil men call him "Lucky Lancaster" and are wondering if J. L. Lancaster, president of the Texas and Pacific railroad, carries a rabbit's foot in his pocket or possesses a magic shoe from an "iron horse" which serves as a divining rod to locate oil fields.

Ten major Texas oil fields have been discovered along the line of the Texas and Pacific in the last 15 years, since Lancaster became president of the road. These fields include Ranger, Breckenridge-Stephens county, Colorado county Winkler county, Crane-Upton counties, Big Spring, Pecos, Odessa, all in West Texas. Then in 1929, the Van field in East Texas was discovered, and now the lucky break for the railroad at Longview.

One prominent oil operator called at Lancaster's office today to ask for a "working map" of the railroad company's lines.

"Say, I've just about decided to abandon all wildcatting", he explained, "and instruct my geologists to locate only in the vicinity of your railroad. When I'm working through new territory and run across a railroad, all I want to know is if it belongs to the Texas and Pacific. If it does, then I am going to dig as close to the right-of-way as possible."

All Married Up And No Place To Go

Has Charming Bride, Blooming Marriage Certificate And All That Sort Of Thing But Unwanted By Two Nations

CALEXICO, Cal., Feb. 7. (AP)—Captain Alfred Edmund Clayton Tennyson-D' Eyncourt was all married up and no place to go.

He had a charming bride, really, and the blooming marriage certificate and all that bally sort of thing, but not a place to be off to, which was all a beastly bore.

So the captain and his bride, the pretty former Mercedes Ortega of Los Angeles, stood for several hours first on one foot and then on the other on a narrow strip of turf separating the United States from Mexico. They had been married on the Mexican side of the line.

Captain Tennyson-D' Eyncourt, late of the British army and quite recently, according to his story, a member of Hollywood's cinema colony, had entered the United States at Blaine, Wash., under an extended permit.

The American immigration inspector, dubious, barged him back to the Mexicans.

The Mexican chappies refused to accept custodianship because Tennyson-D' Eyncourt had taken an oath that he was an American citizen when securing his marriage papers.

American Consul Frank Bohr eventually issued a quota visa, "topping use of the old bean, don't you know," and the pair moved happily northward.

Post Stores Show Products Of Texas

By Staff Correspondent

POST, Feb. 7.—Nearly every store window in Post for more than eight or nine months past, has had at least one display of some product sold by the store that is made in Texas.

The plan was originated here and it has been adopted by several nearby towns as well as by other towns over the state.

Dr. A. C. Surman, prominent in civic affairs, is credited with being the originator of the plan. He suggested it to his organization and the directors, after a brief discussion adopted it.

From the first not less than 15 or 20 stores have been at the display program. From time to time other stores took up the plan until now hardly a store in town is without at least one display a week.

"We don't seem to have much trouble in finding something on the shelves of our stores that is made in Texas," says Eddie Wagren, editor of the Post Dispatch. "The plan is certainly a popular one here."

Marshall Mason, furniture man, also is enthusiastic over the plan. "I find that the people are beginning to ask for Texas made goods," he says.

Cards were printed bearing the following "A Texas Product" and "What Texas Makes—Makes Texas."

Officials of the Post Chamber of Commerce presented the plan to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce That organization adopted it and recommended it to other chambers over the area.

Action Is Delayed On Appropriations

AUSTIN, Feb. 7. (AP)—The uncertainty regarding the state's financial condition caused the emergency and deficiency appropriations to be held up in the legislature this week, but they probably will be made next week.

After three days of conferences, attended by the governor, the chairman of the legislative money committees, and representatives of the state auditor, comptroller and board of control, a financial statement was agreed upon. The legislative representatives would not budge from their position that $1,114,520.78 was the lowest possible appropriation for emergency and deficiency needs although they were shown the estimate that in event those appropriations were made the deficiency September 1, the end of this fiscal year, would be $2,419,413. There was small likelihood that the legislature would reduce its figure of $1,114,520.78.

Fifty-One Oklahoma, Texas Theaters Figure In Sale

DALLAS, Feb. 7 (AP)—Negotiations were closed here today by the Hughes-Franklin Theatres company for the purchase of 51 Texas and Oklahoma picture theatres, including four in Dallas, from Harold B. Robb and Ed H. Rowley of Dallas for a reported price of $2,500,000. The Hughes-Franklin company is headed by Howard Hughes, Texas millionaire oil tool maker and movie producer.

The deal for the Texas and Oklahoma showhouses was completed with Robb and Rowley, president and secretary respectively of Robb and Rowley theatres, by Max M. Kravetz of Los Angeles, theater broker representing Hughes. Purchase of the theatres was announced as preliminary to a $3,000,000 improvement and expansion program in Texas, making the total expenditure for this section approximately $5,500,000 it was estimated.

Constructive, Inspirational Press Meeting Is Predicted

AUSTIN, Feb. 7. (AP)—Lowry Martin, publisher of the Corsicana Sun, and general program chairman, today characterized the annual meeting of the Texas Press association to be held in San Angelo, June 11, 12, 13 as the "most constructive and inspirational" meeting ever undertaken by the Texas Press association. Martin announced details of the San Angelo meeting to 150 editors and publishers gathered here for the biennial business meeting of the Texas Press association.

Martin said the 1931 meeting would be known to the six or seven hundred editors of Texas as the "build Texas inspirational convention." Among the men who are scheduled to speak during the convention are: Governor Ross S. Sterling, Clarence Ousley, Amon G. Carter, J. L. Lancaster, John W. Carpenter, Jesse H. Jones, R. L. Marquis, Tom H. Etheridge, L. B. Denning and Walter D. Cline.

Gas Controversy

the months of December, 1929 and 1930, and January 1930 and 1931. We are preparing a list of the names today to be given to the company for reference," the city manager said.

"Upon receipt of these facts I will then be able to present the matter before the commission in something of a more comprehensive form. Citiens of Lubbock may be assured that every consideration will be given the matter."

The question of high gas bills has been aired for the past week in a dozen West Texas cities and city authorities, as well as officials of the several gas companies included in the controversy, have as yet failed to arrive at a satisfactory solution as to the cause. Only suppositions have as yet been forthcoming, these evidently being unsatisfactory as an explanation to a large number of gas consumers.

R. F. Hinchey, vice president of the West Texas Gas company, in a lengthy interview late Friday, declared that his company is offering every cooperation in trying to trace the trouble and that services of his employes are open to consumers at all times.

West Texans Mentioned In '32 State Race

Woodward, Parrish, Small And Ely Are Possibilities In Next Governor's Race; Allred Is Watched

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Feb. 7.—The "wide open spaces" of West Texas have never produced a governor, but four West Texans loom in any discussion of prospective successors to Governor Sterling.

All of which discussion is somewhat premature, as there is no law against Mr. Sterling running next year to succeed himself. He has not said whether he would seek a second term but he made it plain he was not opposed to the second term policy. He cited that his newspaper, the Houston Post Dispatch, supported Walter E. Monteith in Monteith's successful campaign for re-election as mayor of Houston.

The four West Texans who have been mentioned in connection with the governorship are Senator Walter C. Woodward of Coleman, Senator Clint C. Small of Wellington Senator Pink L. Parrish of Lubbock, and W. R. Ely, chairman of the state highway commission.

Senator Woodward won the friendship of the Sterling forces and gained considerable notice when he took the lead in Sterling's campaign in the second primary last summer. Senator Small swept West Texas like a prairie fire in the first primary in the 1930 governor's race. Senator Parrish was urged by many friends to jump into the race last year but he declined. Judge Ely occupies the same position from which Mr. Sterling advanced to the chief executive's seat.

The three West Texas senators have different working policies and different personalities but they are alike in one particular—they are for the interests of West Texas.

Woodward is an orator. Handsome, and well-groomed, he is one of the most forceful speakers in the senate. He does not hesitate to "rip open" the senators who are opposing him on some proposal. Two of his hobbies are public utility regulation and granting water priority to municipal, domestic and irrigation users rather than to power companies.

Small did not enter the senate until two years ago and was recognized as a leader long before the end of his first session. Through his title validation bill, he gained fame overnight. After the governor had vetoed the bill, he led the fight to pass it over the executive veto and was successful.

Small does not take part in the floor jousts as often as Woodward but he does not hesitate to express his convictions. When he gets up to speak he gives the impression of knowing what he is talking about. Small is a past master at the art of changing a bill to suit his desires through amendment rather than through introducing a proposal of his own.

On the surface, Parrish is a big, jovial funster, but underneath is a brain which is keenly alive to the problems of government and a courage which is not easily conquered.

One of Parrish's chief interests is lightening the burden on the taxpayers, through the reduction of appropriations and the like. He is not for a driver's license law which would add one more tax to the number which motorists have to pay. Instead he would bar from the highways motorists who violate the laws.

To know the big Lubbock man is to like him, and to know him well enough to converse at length with him is to receive some interesting commentaries on solutions of government problems. On occasion, he can deliver a real oration.

Near Panic

gathered to see their film favorites as they left the theater, was a tragic scene. Fifty feet of broadway was ripped open the blocks of cement scattered about. Windows up to the sixth floor in adjoining buildings were shattered and expensive autos were wrecked.

The blast occurred as George Delk, a taxi driver, stopped his car over a manhole cover near the theater entrance, the explosion blew the cover through the floor of the car and threw the machine twenty feet into the air. It crashed on one side and Delk, bleeding and unconscious, was dragged from his seat. His skull was fractured and he was badly burned. His recovery was doubtful.

Investigators said gas accumulated in the sewer was ignited either by an underground transformer overheated from the heavy pull of current by the battery of spotlights which illuminated the exterior of the theater, an electric wire short circuit, or flame from the exhaust of the taxicab.

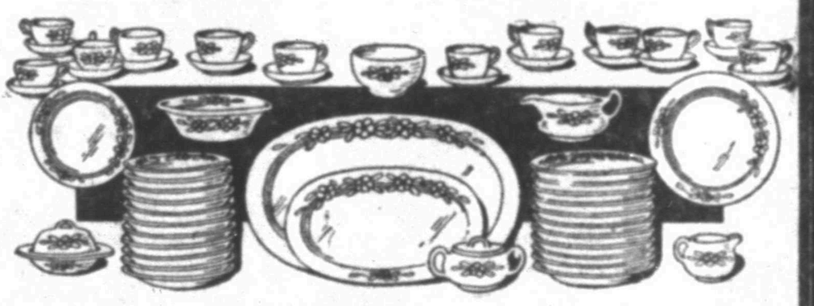

Mahatma Gandhi Says Great Britian Offer Inadequate

ALLAHABAD, India, Feb. 7 (AP)—Great Britain will have to offer India something better than Ramsay MacDonald's declarations at the round table conference, Mahatma Gandhi said today, for there is little possibility of settling her problems on the basis of that declaration alone.

"I am willing to be converted," the prophet of Poona told the Associated Press, "but the delegates returning from the conference at London will have to bring with them something more than I can see in the prime minister's declaration. The British authorities will have to show by their actions that they really want peace."

Many new whaling expeditions were recently organized in Norway.

It is further provided that the grantee shall be allowed to make a minimum charge of $1.50 per month for gas for domestic and heating service and $25.00 per month for industrial gas service.

All gas furnished or supplied by grantee shall be metered, and for this purpose the grantee shall, at its own cost and expense, provide and install for each consumer a good and accurate meter of standard make, to be approved by the City Commission, and when grantee reads its meters to determine the amount of gas furnished each month, a copy of such reading shall be left with or at the residence or place of business of the consumer. Grantee shall also provide and maintain at its proper cost and expense facilities for testing gas meters, to be to the satisfaction of and approved by the City Commission, and said grantee shall also provide and maintain, at its proper cost and expense a standard meter prover of not less than five cubic feet capacity, to be selected by the City Commission, equipped with suitable thermometers and other necessary accessories which shall be maintained to the accepted standard of accuracy, all to be to the satisfaction and approved by the City Commission.

Such meters shall be and remain the property of the said grantee, and the grantee shall have the right to require the customer or consumer to deposit with it a sum equal to the maximum meter bill of the consumer, provided, however, that such deposit shall be in a less sum than $10.00 for domestic meter, and $15.00 for industrial meter.

Section 5.

The natural gas to be furnished hereunder shall be at all times kept to standard of eight hundred British thermal heat units or higher per cubic foot at the point of connection, at a temperature of thirty-two degrees Fahrenheit, or zero Centigrade, and to determine whether the gas supplied is of the heating value above specified the City of Lubbock may have tests made by a competent analyst under recognized and scientific processes, according to the approved method of making such tests, and said tests shall be from samples of gas collected from the grantee's mains at any point or points within the City. If the result of such tests show that during a month the daily average of the gas supplied was below eight hundred British thermal heat units then there shall be deducted from the consumer's bills for gas during such month in approximate amount, based upon the deficiency below said eight hundred British thermal heat units. In case the city shall advise the grantee of the result of each test within a reasonable time after it is made, and the official report of such analyst, of which said grantee is so advised, shall be taken and accepted as the agreed prima facie correct test of the heating value of the gas furnished during such month and thereafter until a different result is determined or ascertained in a similar manner; said grantee shall furnish gas to consumers at a pressure of not less than four ounces, nor greater than eight ounces, measured at the consumer's meter outlet.

Said grantee shall supply and install not less than four, and as many as may be needed approved self-registering pressure and gauges of recording the pressure of the gas in the mains at points in the city designated by the City Commission, and said self-registering pressure gauges shall be placed at stations which, in the opinion of the City Commission, fairly represent the pressure on adjacent territory; and such station shall be securely inclosed under locks, and duplicate keys to said stations shall be retained by the City Manager, or some officer authorized by the City Commission; and such self-registering pressuer gas ganges shall be equipped with removable recording dials to record the pressure, and the said City Manager, or some representative authorized by the City Commission, shall cause to be removed or remove from said pressure gauges the pressure records of the preceding period, and provide the gauges with recording blanks for the next period during which such record is desired by the City; and each record taken from such pressure gauges shall be filed in the office of the City Secretary of the City of Lubbock, and a record thereafter be entered in the proper books of the City by the said City Secretary; and the said City Manager, or some representative authorized by said City Commission, shall keep self-recording dials in said pressure gauges continuously for a month, or as often as its required by the City Commission and the said gauge record and the said book record shall each be competent and prima facie proof of the matters set in this point in which such record was made at the time as shown by said gauge record.

Each consumer of gas shall install and maintain suitable piping within his property lines and suitable appliances and fixtures, except meters, subject to the approval of the City Commission, or such supervisor, inspector or other representative as may be authorized by said City Commission to pass upon the same.

Section 6.

The City reserves the right to lay and permit to be laid electric conduits, water and other pipes, lines or cables, and to do and permit to be done any underground work that may be deemed necessary or proper by the City Commission, in, across, along or under any street, alley, highway, or other public place occupied by the grantee, and, whenever, by reason of changes in the grade of any streets, or in the location or manner of construction of any water pipes, electric conduits, sewers or other underground structures it shall be deemed necessary by the City Commission to alter, change, adapt or conform gas mains and service pipes of grantee, such alterations or changes shall be made by the grantee when ordered in writing by the City Commission or any supervisor or other representative of the City Commission so authorized to act, without claim for reimbursement or for damages against the City, said grantee shall indemnify and save harmless the City of Lubbock from any and all claims for injury or damages to persons or property occasioned by or relating to the construction, maintenance, operation or repair of said grantee's transmission, transportation and distributing system, and by the conduct of the business in the City.

Section 7.

The right to use the streets, alleys, highways or other public ways or places of the City of Lubbock by the grantee, as provided in Section 2 above, shall be and is subject to the following restrictions, limitations and conditions, viz: that in building additional mains or lines of pipe, said grantee shall build and construct the same along and under the alleyways, streets and alleys rather than along and under streets, and shall only use the streets for same insofar as may be necessary in connecting from one alley to another; and said mains and pipe line shall be so laid that the top of said main or pipe line shall be placed below the surface of the street or alley and so as to protect all paving, wire cables, water pipes, underground wires or sewer mains, and shall be so constructed and located with reference to water lines and sewer mains as not to interfere therewith, and under the direction and to the satisfaction of the City Commission or the City Engineer.

Section 8.

That the City Commission hereby reserves the right to install at the point where said grantee receives its gas for distribution in the city a meter through which all gas distributed in the City and its inhabitants shall be passed, an adequate self-registering pressure gauge adequate to record the amount of gas distributed to the City and its inhabitants and the pressure at which the same was received by the grantee.

Said grantee shall also supply and install one distant pressure gauge under the direction of the City Commission and at the place designated by the City Commission, which will indicate the pressure at such designated point, said gauge to be placed in the City Hall in the office of the City Engineer.

Section 9.

That said grantee shall make not oftener than each six months, reports to the City Secretary of the City of Lubbock, showing the gross receipts of the treasurer or superintendent of such company, showing the gross amount received from the business done within the city in payment of charges for gas for the six months last preceding.

Section 10.

That after the said gas distribution system shall have been fully constructed, placed in operation as herein provided in the City of Lubbock, and the said grantee shall then fail to substantially comply with the conditions of the franchise of the City of Lubbock shall have the right by ordinance duly passed therefor to forfeit all the right and franchise herein granted to the said grantee, provided that the City of Lubbock shall give said grantee, its successors and assigns (60) days' notice in writing, specifying the conditions claimed to have been violated, and giving full and fair opportunity to be heard thereon before declaring such forfeiture, which notice shall fairly and fully set out all of the conditions claimed and complained of, and shall be given by the said City and shall be signed by the City Secretary under the seal of the City, after having been properly authorized by the Mayor and City Commission of the said City; provided, however, that the said grantee shall have sixty (60) days after receiving such notice in which to rectify and correct such violation and to substantially comply with the terms and conditions of the ordinance; should the violations of this ordinance so complained of not have been rectified and complied with and the terms and conditions of this ordinance fully complied with at the end of said sixty (60) days, then, and in that event the City shall have the power to forfeit this franchise on account of the violations specified in said notice. That in case of forfeiture as herein provided, the City of Lubbock reserves the right to purchase the distributing plant of the grantee at its fair appraised value or to require the grantee to remove same within one year from the date of such forfeiture, provided, that before any or said property may be removed the grantee shall be required to give the city a good and sufficient bond that the streets and alleys will be placed and left in as good condition as found.

For each and every breach or violation of any of the provisions of this ordinance by the grantee, it shall be liable for a penalty of twenty-five Dollars to be recovered in any court of competent jurisdiction by suit, of any person, firm or corporation injured or damaged by such breach or violation; and if the breach or violation shall be a continuous one, each day during which such breach or violation continues shall be deemed a separate breach or violation and a separate ground of recovery against the grantee.

SECTION 11

That in further consideration of the privileges and franchises granted to the West Texas Gas Company, it shall adopt and use any and all reasonable safeguards to provide for the protection of persons or property against injury or damage growing out of the use of gas and that they shall construct and maintain in good order all mains, pipes and equipment used in said City for the distributing of gas, and shall always be prepared to furnish said City and its inhabitants a sufficient quantity of gas for all purposes, provided, however, that in case of explosions, accidents of any character or nature beyond the control of grantee, to the main lines or to the distributing system provided herein, or shortage of gas temporarily in the fields from which the grantee secures the gas, and the grantee is not able on account of such unavoidable conditions to furnish gas for all purposes, that preference shall be given domestic consumers, schools and hospitals in the use of gas until such time as the supply may prove adequate for all purposes. Provided further that grantee shall not be liable for any damage resulting from such accidents either to the lines of the grantee or to the lines on property of consumers.

SECTION 12.

That this franchise is granted to the grantee herein on the representations and distinct understanding that similar franchises have been, will be or may be granted to it by the Cities of Plainview, Canyon, Tulia, Lockney, Floydada and Slaton, and that each franchise will provide for the sale of gas at the same price and that payment therefor will be made on the same terms as provided herein, and it is hereby provided that if at any time any one or more of the above cities makes the requirement that gas shall be sold at a lesser price, or on more favorable terms, and the same are acquiesced in by the grantee, or if the grantee at any time furnishes to any of the above cities, or to the inhabitants thereof at a lesser price, or on more favorable terms of payment, then and in that event the City shall have and hereby reserves the right to amend this franchise to provide for the sale of gas at the same price or prices for like use, and on the same terms of payment granted to any one or more of the above cities, and the inhabitants thereof, the purpose and this provision being to provide that the rates for the sale of gas for like use and the terms of payment therefor, shall be uniform in this and all of the above named cities, provided, however, that in the event gas is found at or near any of the above named cities of sufficient quality and in sufficient quantities to be used therein, that the above provisions as to the equalization of rates shall not apply.

ORDINANCE NO. 417

An ordinance licensing and regulating the sale at public auction of jewelry, diamonds and other precious or semi-precious stones, watches, clocks, pictures paintings, bric-a-brac or such like articles and prescribing a penalty and providing for an emergency.

Whereas, on account of the general complaint which has grown out of the practice of unregulated auctions and auctioneers of the hereinafter described kind and character of goods and the great amount of imposition made upon the public by misrepresentation and practices of deceit and fraud growing out of unregulated and irresponsible auctioneers and auctions it is deemed advisable by the City Commission of the City of Lubbock, Texas, to pass suitable regulations governing the same so as to secure honesty and fair dealing and avoid such evil practices that have grown up on account of the want of proper regulations, now, therefore:

Be it ordained by the City Commission of the City of Lubbock, Texas:

Section 1. That it shall hereafter be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to sell, dispose of or offer for sale in the City of Lubbock, at a public auction, or cause or permit to be sold, disposed of or offered for sale at a public auction within the City of Lubbock, jewelry, diamonds or other precious or semi-precious stone, watches, clocks, platinum, gold or silverware or plated ware, stationery, bric-a-brac or such like articles, whether the same shall be their own property or whether the sale of the same shall be by and through agents or employees or others, without first complying with the provisions of this ordinance and obtaining a license from the Assessor and Collector of Taxes of the City of Lubbock, and making an application therefor as herein provided, however, that this section shall not apply to judicial sales or sales made by executors or administrators, nor to sales made by or in behalf of licensed pawnbrokers of unredeemed pledges which are made in the manner provided by law.

Section 2. That any person desiring to hold an auction sale for the sale of the goods hereinabove described shall make written application to the Assessor and Collector of Taxes of the City of Lubbock, as herein provided, for thirty days before the auction sale begins, and shall state in the said application the period of days any such person desires to hold the said auction sale and the said Assessor and Collector of Taxes shall issue to any such person a license upon compliance with the terms of this ordinance for the period of time so designated, provided, that no license shall be issued for a longer period than thirty days.

Section 3. Said application for a license shall be in writing, stating the name of the applicant, his residence, the street and number of the proposed place of sale, the length of time for which the license is desired, and if the applicant is a person regularly engaged in a like or similar business, to designate the places where the sale was conducted and shall furnish the Assessor and Collector of Taxes with such further evidence as shall be necessary and reasonable to establish the truth of the statements made in said application and the right of the applicant to a license.

Section 4. Said application for a license shall have attached to it a sworn inventory of such stock or merchandise setting out the quality, quantity, kind or grade of such item and invoice cost thereof. To such inventory there shall be attached an affidavit that such inventory is in all respects true and correct. In the case of an individual, such affidavit shall be made by him as such; in case of a firm, it shall be made by one of the partners; and in case of a corporation, it shall be made by the president, general manager, secretary or treasurer. Such inventory and affidavit when so made shall be kept on file in the office of the Assessor and Collector of Taxes as a part of the public records pertaining to the sale. No merchandise shall be sold at such auction sale except that listed and included in the inventory made part of the application. That whenever any extension of the license so granted hereunder is granted to any person holding an auction, an application shall be made therefor as provided herein, which shall be granted by the Assessor and Collector of Taxes, provided that should it appear to the said Assessor and Collector of Taxes, from the application so made, that new or additional articles, commonly known as "fill ins" are added to the list of articles made by any such person, then it shall be the duty of the said person to furnish an additional bond in the amount as hereinbefore described for the sale of the additional articles, or as is required for the sale of the original articles.

Section 5. That all persons desiring a license shall, upon complying with the application herein provided for, and before a license shall be issued to any such person shall tender a bond to the City of Lubbock duly executed by the said applicant, as principal, in the sum of One Thousand Dollars, which bond shall be made payable to the City of Lubbock, at Lubbock, Lubbock County, Texas, and when in compliance with the terms of this ordinance shall be approved by the City Commission of the City of Lubbock, Texas, and shall be conditioned that the said principal thereon shall pay all losses and damages which may lawfully be claimed against him on account of any material misrepresentations of fact and belief or any material impression of facts concerning the merchandise to be auctioned at such sale, or which may grow out of a violation of any of the terms of this ordinance. Such bond shall be made responsible to any person who may sustain any loss or damage on account of any such misrepresentation and shall cover all auction sales of merchandise described in the inventory made and required to be filed with the Assessor and Collector of Taxes, and any such person sustaining any damage or loss may bring suit in any court of competent jurisdiction to recover the same and the provisions of the said bond shall be construed liberally in favor of any such person on account of any loss or damage sustained by any such person either directly or indirectly. All remedies upon or under such bond shall be in addition to any cumulative of all other remedies the parties may have at law or in equity for recovement of any such losses or damages. The bond shall be signed by a surety company doing business in the State of Texas. Cumulative recovering may be had on said bond to the full amount thereof.

Section 6. That the Assessor and Collector of Taxes may inspect and investigate any part or all of such stock or merchandise coming within the purview of this ordinance before issuing the license in order to determine the truth of the statements made in the application and the inventory.

Section 7. That before any license shall be issued the applicant shall pay to the City of Lubbock a license fee in advance in the sum equal to $5.00 per day for each day during which the auction is entitled to be held according to the license.

Section 8. It shall be unlawful for any person acting as auctioneer to make any statements which are false in any particular or which have a tendency to mislead any person present, or to make any misrepresentation whatsoever or at all as to the quality or quantity, character or present condition, or value, or cost, or general selling price, or whether new or second hand, or partly so, of any property offered for disposal by auction sale.

Section 9. That it shall be unlawful to sell or offer for sale any article hereinbefore described as "fill in" unless in each and every advertisement of whatever kind with reference to said auction there be contained a clear and unequivocal statement of the fact that goods and merchandise herein described as "fill in" have been added to the "stock on hand."

Section 10. That it shall be unlawful for any person acting as auctioneer to sell or offer for sale any article hereinbefore described as "fill in" without first stating such fact in a clear and audible tone of voice to any and all persons present at said auction.

Section 11. (Definitions). That a sale or offering for sale, to the highest bidder of any jewelry, diamonds, or other precious or semi-precious stones, pictures, clocks, watches, clocks, platinum, gold or silverware or plated ware, glassware, porcelain bric-a-brac, or such like articles, in any building, or in any of the streets or alleys, or in any other public place, where any and all persons who choose are permitted to attend and offer bids, shall be deemed to constitute a public auction within the meaning of this ordinance.

That by the word "fill in" as herein used is meant such jewelry, diamonds, or other precious or semi-precious stones, watches, clocks, platinum, gold or silverware or plated ware, glass ware, porcelain, stationery, bric-a-brac and such like articles, which a merchant usually and ordinarily carries throughout the year, and does not include jewelry, diamonds, or other precious or semi-precious stones, watches, clocks, platinum, gold or silverware or plated ware, glass ware, porcelain, stationery, bric-a-brac and such like articles as may be added to the stock on hand as above defined and intended to be sold at public auction.

Section 12. It shall be unlawful for any person to act as by-bidder or what is commonly known as a "capper" or "booster" at any such auction or place where any such auction shall take place, or to offer or make any false bid for or offer any false bid to buy or pretend to buy any such article sold or offered for sale at any such auction.

Section 13. That the term "person" as used herein shall include and comprehend any person, firm, or association of persons or any corporation, their agents, servants or employees.

Section 14. That any person, firm, association of persons, or any corporation, their agents, servants or employees violating any of the provisions of this ordinance shall, upon conviction in the corporation court, be fined in any sum not exceeding Two Hundred ($200.00) Dollars, and each and every day that a violation of this ordinance occurs shall be deemed a separate offense. That in addition to the penalty herein provided for any such person convicted in the corporation court, or upon appeal thereof, the judge of the said corporatin court, or any judge upon appeal thereof may revoke the license under which the said auction is being held and it shall thereafter be unlawful for any person whose license is revoked to hold any auction under the terms of this ordinance, provided, however, that any person whose license is revoked, may make application to the mayor and City Commission, and after a hearing upon such application for a re-issuance of any such license and may have a new license granted any such person upon the order of the Mayor and City Commission to the Assessor and Collector of Taxes, provided, that any such person whose license is revoked shall comply with the terms and provisions of this ordinance.

Section 15. That should any portion or part of this ordinance be held for any reason invalid or unenforceable, the same shall not be construed to affect any other valid portion hereof, but all valid portions shall remain in full force and effect.

Section 16. Whereas, on account of the promiscuous auction sales made by traveling auctioneers, as well as on account of the many acts of extortion and oppression, growing out of misrepresentations and deceits practiced on the public by unregulated auctioneers engaged in the sale of articles hereinabove described creates an urgency and an emergency in behalf of the preservation of the public peace, health and safety that requires this ordinance to become effective upon its passage and it is accordingly so ordained that this ordinance shall become effective immediately upon its passage as to the character in such cases is made and provided.

Cotton Trading Moderately Active On Saturday — Livestock Current Cattle Quotations Low — Grain Fair Demand For Light Offerings

Cotton

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 7. (AP)—Trading was moderately active in today's short Saturday session but prices developed no special trend. Although Liverpool came in lower than due the market here opened 2 to 3 points up and soon advanced additionally to levels 5 to 7 points above yesterday's close. The market improved under good trade and foreign buying and there also was considerable price fixing. In the second hour prices eased off owing to the unusual week end liquidation which appeared to be especially active in new crop months. The reaction carried prices down 7 to 9 points from the highs but the close was steady and 1 to 3 points above the lows on covering. The general market closed 1 point net up for the day to 4 points down.

Liverpool came in 1 penny point better to 2 lower than due. Private cables stated that foreign buying was offset by hedge selling. Manchester cabled that there were moderate cloth sales to South America and Africa. First trades here showed gains of 2 to 3 points despite poor cables and prices continued to gain during the first hour on good trade and foreign buying as well as price fixing. May traded up to 10.94 and October to 11.46 or 5 to 7 points above the previous close.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—AP)—Opening advances in cotton was followed by reactions in the market today under a little more southern selling and week-end realizing by talk of an easier technical position. May contracts after selling up to 10.92 or forty points were unsettled to 10.86 or 5 points net lower and closed at 10.88. The general market closed barely steady at net declines of 3 to 9 points.

Much of the business was attributed to the usual week end movement of the technical position, but trade and commission house buying was in evidence at the start, and some hedging was reported during the day. The trade buying again is believed to be partly for European account. Spot interests here seemed to be buying May and July against sales of October and December and there was further switching from near to late months.

Liverpool cables reported covering, trade selling and foreign buying in that market supplied by realizing or liquidation and hedging and said that there were also a few sales for shipment to South America and Africa. The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 71.00 bales against 125,000 last year. Fertilizer tag sales in the southern states for January were 72 per cent of the sales for January last year and 76.10 per cent of January 1929, according to figures published here this morning.

Government employes in England number 9,000 more than a year ago.

Stock Market Breaks Through January Highs To Set Best Price Of The Year

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—(AP)—After three vain efforts, the stock market finally broke through the January highs today and established the best prices of the year, as measured by the average of 20 leading issues.

Something like an old-fashioned rally swept through the list in the last half hour when the turnover amounted to 600,000 shares. Group movements were ragged but well defined, especially in the motor, chemical and office equipment stocks, which labelled the advance as professional. The strength of the bull faction, derived partly from changes in the political outlook, threw the shorts into confusion and there was some lively bidding for many of the scarcer issues.

Sales Heavy

Sales for the two hours approximated 1,200,000 shares, equalling the volume for the full sessions Monday and Tuesday.

Bonds and grains also improved, but bar silver recorded its third historical low of the week. Cotton eased slightly.

Wheat and corn both closed a cent higher. Firmer Liverpool and northwestern markets stimulated covering in the former grain, while corn was aided by predictions of rain. Cotton's net reaction ranged from 3 to 9 points.

Sterling exchange continued to advance with cables rising an eighth to $4.86 7-16. The French franc was up nearly as much, indicating the movement of funds abroad.

District Jobs Will Be Among Road Lettings

Seventeen Miles In Lubbock County And Possibly Twelve More Miles To Be Included In Contracts This Month

Seventeen miles of slab and possibly 12 more in Lubbock county seven miles of grading and drainage in Crosby county, sixteen and a half miles of grading in Motley county and ten and a half miles of grading in Hall county will be included in the letting of contracts by the state highway commission February 27 and 28 according to Guy R. Johnson, division construction engineer.

Definite assurance that the 17.2 miles paving job on highway No. 9 north from Lubbock to Abernathy will be included in the letting has been made by the state highway department. Possibility that the 12.2 mile slab job south from Lubbock to the Lynn county line may be deferred until the March letting was indicated. Latest word from Austin was to the effect that the commission may postpone the south contract for a month.

To Use Same Road

The Crosby county project of seven miles is from the east side of the Crosbyton road district, four miles east of Crosbyton, through the town to the top of the cap rock. It is not planned at this time to build a new road down the cap rock but to use the present highway down the west side of Blanco canyon.

The Hall county project is a 10.5 mile grade an drainage job on highway 18 from the east side of road district No. 4 to Hulver. This will connect with the paving on that highway from Turkey to Estelline.

The Motley county project is a 16 mile grading job from Matador south through Roaring Springs to the Dickens county line. The Dickens county section of No. 18 is paved from the county line into Dickens.

Later it is planned, probably for the March letting, to let a contract for grading from Turkey to the road district a distance of about 14 miles.

Nears Completion

Grading and drainage work on U S. No. 70 in Motley county between Matador and the Cottle county line is rapidly nearing completion, Mr. Johnston said. One bridge over the South Pease river is expected to be completed and ready for opening to traffic by February 19 or 20.

An overpass where the highway and the Quanah, Acme and Pacific railroads cross has been built as well as a bridge east of Matador. A bridge over Tee-Pee creek and another over the Pease river also are nearly complete.

The highway commission is to let between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000 in contracts at the letting, which will consume four days. February 27 and 28 and March 2 and 3.

Highway Head Is Visitor Here

W. J. Van Landon, Recently Named Construction Engineer For North Panhandle Confers With Johnston

W. J. Van Landon of Abilene, former resident engineer for the state highway department, who recently was named construction engineer for the highway district in the North Panhandle with headquarters at Amarillo, spent Saturday in Lubbock conferring with Guy R. Johnston, his predecessor, relative to construction plans.

Mr. Johnson formerly handled the construction work in both the Lubbock and Amarillo districts, from the Lubbock office, under a temporary arrangement by the state highway department at Austin. But the work of supervising the paving jobs in the 45 counties comprising the two districts called for considerable traveling. It was decided to divide the construction work in the two districts.

Inspects Records

"I expect to be in Amarillo about February 15 and will get to work right away as soon as I can locate an office," Mr. Van Landon said "I was not able to find one Friday. I am here with Mr. Johnston going over the office records he has of the work in my new district."

Three paving contracts are to be let in the Panhandle division at the February 4-day letting. One seven mile slab job on highway 33 from the Carson county line to Pampa, in Gray county; a 16.5 mile grading and drainage job in Randall county from Canyon west to the Deaf Smith county line on No. 33 and a 15 mile grading and drainage job in Wheeler county on state 75 or U. S. 66 from east of Shamrock to the Oklahoma state line, constitute that division's program.

The North Panhandle according to Mr. Van Landen, has a building program for the next two or three years that will include nine or ten counties with probably $3,000,000 worth of work to be done.

WOOL IS DONATED

More than two hundred pounds of wool has been donated to the textile department at Tech by the animal husbandry department of the agriculture school. The wool is being scoured and tests are to be made to determine the shrinkage. The wool is divided into three lots, that from Ramble A sheep, Southdown sheep and Hampshire sheep. The tests will determine which lots shrink the least. Heretofore the animal husbandry department has shipped the wool to the experiment station at A. and M. college, but in the future the textile department will make the tests.

The wool will be carded, spun into yarn and then made into a Tech blanket. Earl Heard, textile professor said yesterday. In the center of the blanket will be a huge Matador.

TO PLAN "FUN" PROGRAM

Plans for the "fun night" program when high school athletes from West Texas will be special visitors are to be made at a special meeting of the Tech Chamber of Commerce in the engineering auditorium tomorrow night.

Plans are under way to bring athletes from West Texas high schools here February 18, which is the date of the next all-college "fun night." Athletic authorities have signified their intentions of cooperating with the chamber of commerce officials in arranging a special program for the athletes. A similar program was sponsored last year by the Tech organiation and was branded a huge success by the student body.

Julius Bergfeld, Dallas, is president of the Tech organization. Tomorrow night's meeting was called for 7 o'clock sharp.

DEDICATES SCHOOL BUILDING

Dr. A. W. Jackson, head of the Tech government department, returned yesterday from Andrews where he was the principal speaker at the dedication of the new Andrews High school building.

BUREAU ORGANIZED

The replacement bureau of the college has been organized, Dr. A. W. Evans, head of the new organization, said last week. Dr. Evans also is head of the Tech department of education. At the last meeting of the Tech board of regents, it was provided for a fee of one dollar to be charged every student seeking positions through the departments.

The bureau usually places more than two hundred students in schools each year. Frequently trustees from schools over the state write here inquiring about teachers.

TO INSTALL OFFICERS

New officers in the Aggie club will take their office at a called meeting tonight in the agricultural building, Jason Gordan, retiring president, said Friday. Officers for the club are elected twice each year and the next election will be held the last of May, Gordon said.

A. H. Leidigh, dean of the Tech school of agriculture will be the principal speaker tonight.

WORKS AT HOUSTON

Edgar Cappleman, 1930 Tech graduate, recently accepted a position with the J. A. Phillips company at Houston and will work in the accounting department.

Cappleman, whose home is at Honey Grove, was a varsity football player and received his degree in business administration.

TO CONDUCT CONTEST

A lettering contest will be conducted among the freshmen in the Tech engineering drawing department, W. E. Street, member of the department announced. Freshmen will be divided into six groups and a prize will be awarded for the winner in each group.

The lettering will be on small cards regarding information of pictures.

PLAN ALUMNI BANQUETS

At the same time Tech engineers will be making merry at their annual banquet February 28, Tech alumni of the engineering school will gather for at least three other banquets in other states. Ten engineers who carry sheepskins from Tech will gather at Dallas for a banquet. At Chattanooga, Tenn., approximately ten will gather for a banquet and at Pittsburgh, Penn., eight will meet for a celebration.

The engineer's banquet is an annual affair for practically every Tech engineer, and many students return to the college every spring for the feast. The annual date is March 1, but because that date fell on Sunday this year, the event was moved up a day.

PLAN PROM DECORATIONS

Spanish design decorations are being worked out by E. C. Simmons and W. B. Rushing, architectural students in the college, for the annual junior prom March 7. The event will be held in the Tech gym and unique decorations are being planned, according to Simmons.

Miss Catherine Jameson, Lubbock will be queen at the frolic.

WORKS AT BONHAM

Word has been received that Bill Caldwell is now employed with the Texas Power and Light company at Bonham, Caldwell's home town.

Caldwell attended Tech the last three years.

PREPARES LAYOUT

Douglass Ross, Brownwood, is preparing a layout of the Brownwood Dam project now under way. Ross's father is chief engineer of the project which involves more than two million dollars.

Young Ross, who is a freshman in the Tech engineering school, assisted his father on the plans during the last summer.

Warning Made On Sale Of Bottles

A final warning was issued Saturday by officials of the city health department regarding the sale of milk bottles in the city of Lubbock after Monday without a permit.

"The ordinance, which makes it unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to buy empty milk bottles in the city of Lubbock except from one who is a merchant or regularly engaged in the bottle business or licensed to sell milk in the city or from one who does not deliver with the bottle a printed ticket or tag showing from whom he obtained such bottle, will be rigidly enforced," city officials announced.,

"The ordinance was passed as an emergency measure in 1927 in an effort to curb the theft of milk and bottles from private homes. Penalty for violation of the ordinance is a fine not to exceed $200."

The tickets may be obtained by merchants from all dairymen and the merchant will in turn give one ticket with each bottle of milk sold. Purchaser, if he expects to keep the bottle for resale, should keep the ticket and return it at time of the sale.

VOTE SCHOOL BONDS

POST, Feb. 7—(Special)—Bonds have been voted for the erection of a $20,000 school building for the consolidated district of Graham Chapel and Garlyn. The issue won by a vote of 59 for and 1 against. Plans and specifications are to be completed within another week and bids for construction work will be passed upon soon.

RALLS, Feb. 7—(Special)—Prior to January 16, 1931, there had been ginned in Crosby county only 9,220 bales of cotton compared to 24,897 bales at the same date last year.

Simplicity Marks Paris Mid-Season Fashions In Tailored Dresses, Coats

A black and white early spring ensemble created by Jean Patou in the new figured silk.

BY JEAN PATOU
Written for NEA Service

PARIS, Feb. 7.—In the mid-season collections there is no trace of any tendency toward a definite change of mode. This is due, in part to the fact that perfect simplicity is almost the absolute rule in regard to these inter-season creations.

Even the woman who usually prefers the more complicated ideas in dress shows a very strong leaning toward a simplicity almost severe in character in her mid-season clothes. The mid-season mode, therefore, is a very definite one in that it bears no trace at all of any tenacity of style endeavoring to make itself manifest as is seen in either summer or winter collections.

"Tailleur" Mode Intact.

Generally speaking, a winter or summer collection offers several modes, each with a very clearly defined character, but all the same mid-season styles are useful in that they re-affirm a mode or confirm a tendency. That is why, both for morning and afternoon clothes, the present inter-season collections show a distinct "tailleur" inspiration which the couturier has endeavored to express in a new way.

The tailored effect is a style admirably suited to the necessary simplicity of this type of dress. No accessory or trimming is allowed to intervene and break up the simple line, but this does not prevent some of the afternoon models from looking sufficiently dressy for formal spring functions.

Unity of coloring joins forces with simplicity of cut and line in these between-season creations. In the plain colors pink, blue and green will probably be most popular, and in color combinations I think that black and white and perhaps navy blue and white will prevail against all others.

Without certain artifices of cut, I think that some of these models might probably run the risk of being monotonous. These are oftentimes imperceptible except to the trained eye, but they certainly play an important part in the decorative scheme. Hip yokes so far are the features that bring some change in line and the manner in which pleats are disposed is another.

All-White Frock In Vogue.

The varied fancy weaves that appear in both silk and wool fabrics this year also contribute to the required touch of fantasy and femininity, or afternoon wear. I have used a great touch deal of figured silks. Printed silks have been more or less abandoned except in some of the more modernistic designs. These figured silks are new and give very good results if the design is chosen to suit the style of the dress.

A novelty in mid-season styles is the all-white frock for day wear. While perhaps a trifle premature for early spring wear, it can look immeasurably chic on the right type of woman, especially if worn under a black coat. With revers of white showing at the bottom of the coat cuffs and in a narrow shawl collar effect, the result is incredibly smart.

DR. MYERS
BY GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.
Head Division Parental Education Cleveland College, Western Reserve University

Doctor Myers' Daily Column On Child Welfare

DR. MYERS GIVES RULES FORMED TO AID PARENT IN SHAPING BOY'S HABITS

"My boy of six wets the bed," said a mother in a study group. "When I help him get dry clothes he wants to come into my bed with me. 'Just a little while,' he begs."

"Then what do you do?" I asked.

"Well," she replied. "I generally let him. He says he is so lonely and finds it hard to go to sleep again in his own bed." Then she continued, "I tell him he wets the bed because he is too lazy to get up. I have had the doctor examine him and he finds nothing wrong."

"Does he go to bed regularly, and early enough?"

"Every night at seven I start him, but it is sometimes 11 before he goes to sleep, and sometimes I have to tell him for an hour or so before he goes He fools around, calls me to tell me something, or to do something for him. I always go for I want him to know I love him. Sometimes he gets out of bed and comes down stairs to me."

"You have several problems of which the least is his bed-wetting. Why not forget about that for the present? Two more important problems are: (1) To teach him to send himself to bed at seven, say, by the clock. (2) To train him to stay in bed and never to expect you to come to him. The second one is simpler than the first, since it is always easier, as a rule, to keep a child from doing certain things than to make him want to do certain other things."

Better attack the easier problem first. Tell him before bed time not to get out of bed and exactly what will be the consequences if he does. Be truthful then. Tell him also that you are not coming back. When you say "good night" check over every item to be sure all his needs have been met. Then say, "Remember, I am not coming back." Better not forbid him to call. When he does, merely be deaf to him.

This problem well solved, proceed to hold him responsible for going to bed without your reminding him Announce to him the consequences Define the punishment for every minute he is late. Then merely read the clock and proceed accordingly. Say nothing; seal your lips. If you think he will respond to a reward scheme, employ it, instead.

If he wets the bed don't be disturbed. Take it as a mere event not to be referred to at all. Until you have solved the two main problems incident to going to bed, better let him go on climbing into your bed when he gets up wet at night.

With them solved, announce to him during the day that you are going to call him up once or twice (or as often as you think necessary to keep him dry; using an alarm clock if it is needed) that night, when he will take himself to the toilet and go back to his own bed. No more is he to climb into bed with you. Make this final, absolute Tell him he can put his light on if he chooses.

By a reward scheme you may induce him to set the alarm clock to call himself up. At any event, always approve him heartily when he awakens dry in the morning.

Mothers who have a younger child, pray, don't ever let your child get into bed with you even once. If you do, you start a habit which may be no end of worry to you and the child. Never give any such unnecessary attention to him once if you do not wish to keep on doing so.

Speaker Will Be At Course

Talk By Mrs. Cunningham Is To Be Open To Any Who Are Interested; Complete Plans For Course

Women of the town may attend a lecture that is to be given at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning in the engineering building at Texas Technological college.

Mrs. Minnie Fisher Cunningham, who is associate editor of the Extension Service News, A. and M. college, College Station, is to speak at that time. She will be here in connection with the woman's program of the third annual Texas Tech Farmers and Homemakers Short Course, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Mrs. Cunningham, who is well known throughout the state, is the only outside speaker for the women's division. Speakers for the most part will be drawn from the home economics department of the college here. Ten lectures and demonstrations have been planned for the women who attend, according to Dean Margaret Weeks, who is in charge.

These Are Topics

Meal planning for health, clothing, bread making, exercises for health, an agricultural policy, preparation of vegetables, ideals for the modern home, woman's place in aiding agriculture, stain removal, color in the home to make it more livable and other such topics will be discussed during the school.

Mrs. Cunningham's topic will be "The Relationship of the Family to the State."

A reception is to close the course at 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

Dancing Leads As Diversion Among Various Social Units In Lubbock; Clubs Entertain

High School And College Students Dance With Others In City; Adults Attend Informal Gatherings For Dancing At Intervals During The Week Here

DANCING leads as a mid-winter diversion with practically every age in the city enjoying informal and semi-formal affairs.

High school and college students dance as groups and with others in the city. Members of the Pioneer Gulley Jumpers gather weekly for dances, either as a body or as congenial groups drawn from that organization. Couples dance in the home of members at intervals during the week, combining square dancing with the more modern steps. During the week ending last night two such dances were held in the homes of Miss Delia Wilkinson and Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Stevens.

Informal dancing was enjoyed by a group of young people Friday evening at the Country Club, following junior and senior class parties in the High school.

Have Annual Dance

Following the winter program for dances at Texas Technological college, Las Chaparritas club has announced their annual formal dance for Friday evening at the Uptown Dance Palace.

The month of February bids fair to rival January in activities among the social clubs of Texas Technological college. During the week-end attractive dances were sponsored by members of the Centaur and Silver Key clubs. Monday evening the Stag Bridge club is to attend a party at the Hilton hotel with Olen Purcell and J. W. Timmons, jr., as hosts.

Simplicity marked the decorations at the dance given by Centaur members Saturday evening at the Country Club. About twenty couples and as many stags were in attendance.

Special guests for the occasion included Miss Lena Bert Medlin, former student of Texas Technological college and a campus favorite during her stay here. Miss Medlin who lives in Stamford is the guest of her aunt, Mrs. A. V. Weaver, 1901 Broadway.

Other special guests were Dr. and Mrs. C. M. Ballenger, Miss Annah Jo Pendleton and Elmer Hall.

Honor New Members

New members of the Stag Bridge club were named honor guests at the dance given Saturday evening in the home of Dr. W. J. Howard, 1212 Avenue N.

Games of bridge were played early in the evening and dancing was enjoyed later. The Valentine motif was featured in appointments.

About eighty people were in attendance.

Beginning early in the year, semi-formal dances were planned by leading social organizations on the campus of Texas Technological college. Several of these have been given and others are to follow during the next few weeks. The College Club and Las Vivarachas have announced dances for this month and the annual Junior Prom will be on the evening of March 7.

Pastime Club Has Party Here Friday

Pastel sweet peas were floral decorations at a party given by Mrs. O. W. Ribble, 2220 18th street, in her home Friday afternoon. Members and guests of the Pastime club were in attendance.

At the close of the afternoon the hostess passed an ice course featuring the decoration motif.

Guests were Mesdames Allan Hill, W. E. Bourland, Marshall Harvey, D. C. Rogers, Miss Etheline Ribble and Miss Estelle Griffin.

Members included Mesdames Robert L. Stewart, W. J. Spikes, C. E. Moreman, Joe Baldridge, Joe Reese, A. K. O'Kelley, Marvin Stovall, C. V. Sandlin, J. L. Murfee and Albert Fryar.

The club will meet the third Friday in the month with Mrs. Sandlin in her home at 2217 25th street.

FRESH SALAD

Put a couple of raw carrots and apples and a few stalks of celery through the coarsest blade of the meat chopper. Mix with mayonnaise and mould the mixture into a little mound, top with a couple of nuts or a ripe olive and serve on lettuce. It makes a delicious fresh salad.

Tentative plans for a district meeting in Lamesa in April were made here Saturday at a luncheon that was attended by members of the board of managers of the fourteenth district, Texas Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher associations. The luncheon was served at the Hilton Hotel and Mrs. A. C. Surman, Post, district president, presided.

In addition to the board members, a number of women from Lamesa were guests and joined in discussion of plans for the district session, which will be on April 8, 9 and 10.

Speakers for the affair Saturday included Mrs. Leon Noel, of Ralls, who talked on "Observing Our National Birthday"; Mrs. Lester LaGrange, of Amherst, who talked on "Standard Associations"; Mrs. John Dean, Sudan, who spoke on the publicity scrapbook; Mrs. T. A. White, Lubbock, whose talk was on life memberships; Mrs. J. A. Stallings, Post, who discussed the endowment fund; Mrs. W. W. Royalty, Lubbock, who talked on city councils, and Mrs. R. E. McCaskill, Littlefield, whose topic was county councils.

Miss Mae Murfee, superintendent of schools in Lubbock County, was a special guest at the luncheon.

Mrs. Surman, who attended the state P.-T. A. board meeting in Austin in January, announced that Mrs. Stephen Chamness, of Austin, will be the state representative to the fourteenth district meeting, and that Mrs. R. E. Ledbetter, chairman of health in the state association, will conduct a health conference during the meeting.

Among the other plans that were announced at the luncheon were that the University of Texas is to provide a speaker for a class on Parental Education and that there is to be a speaker on "A Dean of Women in High Schools." A pageant is to be given at the Lamesa meeting depicting the seven objectives of childhood, Mrs. Surman announced. A definite program will be announced later this month.

Spring Parade Shows Stripes, Plaids

STRIPES or plaids, take your pick, but you must have one or the other to be in the van of spring fashions.

One of the newest ways to use plaids is to have the blouse and scarf of it, worn with a monotone suit. One of the new gray suits (left) that new color that promises such popularity, has a luscious scarf and blouse of pastel greens, blues, gray and a line of off-black in a tone that makes it almost purple.

Very smart and new is the white linen frock (center) that has the loveliest bit of color in the way of stripes of gay tone for the turned-back revers, for the front of the belt and banding around the bottom of the circular skirt. This sports frock features tiny cap sleeves and a beret of the linen to match the frock.

For the beach, the white flannel trousers and the striped jersey shirt in nautical blue and white, is chic and vastly becoming to the majority of women. The bag and clogs may be blue to match for the stripes or they may be red to make a tri-color scheme of things.

Founders Day In P-TA Is To Be Observed Here With Pageant

The Woman's Angle

BY BLANCHE E. BEAN
Avalanche Woman's Editor

THE age-old question of what men prefer is up again with Dr. James M. Fitzgerald, Chicago metaphisician, explaining that "men prefer not blondes or brunettes, but Dumb Doras," and then he proceeds to put out some advice to the gullible women as follows:

"In choosing a wife, a man's inner motive is to get some one to worship him. He always wants to be the top dog. If by mistake he should get a wife who puts him in his place, he will grow morose and ill-tempered. He becomes irritated. He can't stand an atmosphere where his superiority is questioned or deflated. He must keep his illusion of superiority at all costs. And if he can't maintain it he becomes a dreamer and forms ideals," when women, meek and obedient, lovely women, worship intelligence which is superior and impregnable."

Then someone else writing in the Chicago Herald and Examiner suggests that "psychologists advise all women to appear and act as Dumb Doras, even if it hurts. Know nothing, ask questions and acquiesce in whatever he answers, knowing in your feminine heart that his answer is ridiculous nine times out of ten . . ."

And to the question of "isn't it too much to ask the brilliant, competent women of today to constantly submerge their own intelligence when they are in the company of men whom they wish to attract?" Dr. Fitzgerald replies that "Because she is so versatile she's going to figure out how to be a successful business or professional woman and be a man's woman, besides. So long as she stays within her own realm of nature, as God intended her, she'll be popular with her man or men. But when she strikes into the jurisdiction that has been his since the caveman days, watch out! . . . If a woman feels she cannot be happy unless she is directing, let her stick to her career and do as she pleases with it."

And because I am such a Cleo myself, my reaction to all of this is that it is interesting reading worth just about a dime per thousand words.

If I have to counterfeit my admiration for a man in order to get him to marry me, and simulate a lot of ignorance and general dumbness that I do not feel, I don't know why I should want to marry him at all.

If all the men in the world preferred one type—blonde, brunette, Dumb Dora or what have you—we would be universally unhappy—men as well as women.

My mighty mind can't offer any panaceas for unhappy marriages or any solutions for the various problems of the world arising from our every day relationships with one another, but I know that whatever terminates the troubles will have some very uncommon common sense as a basis.

FLOWER BONNETS CHIC

BONNETS of flowers are the Parisian debutante's favorite chapeau for theatre and dancing honors. One of the newest models is a toque made entirely of white violets. It is worn well back from the forehead, revealing the left side of the weaved coiffure, and dips low over the right ear, almost touching the shoulder.

OUR EXCHANGE

SEVERAL years ago, women of Lubbock started a flower exchange in the spring and then during succeeding seasons, the exchange was revived with more or less success. The crying need has been usually a medium of exchange. We're going to start another one this spring and The Woman's Angle is to serve as the medium.

A lot of plants can be moved now with more success than later in the season and during the next few months most flower beds will be prepared for the remainder of the year. The system of this exchange is simple.

Mrs. Brown may have larkspur or phlox beds that cover half of her garden but she may want petunias or morning glory or cosmos. She may have chrysanthemums and lack golden glow. If she will phone to the Avalanche-Journal woman's department and list what she has and what she needs, leaving her name and address, others may then trade plants with her.

The exchange is open now and will serve for whatever time it is needed. All exchanges will be free, of course. This is simply a method of distributing flowers and helping to keep those growing that might otherwise be thrown away when beds are thinned.

A Hearty Welcome For Valentine's Day Guests; Red Is Favored

BY JULIA BLANSHARD

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—Valentine's day is the perfect time to pay back all those party debts you owe. Giving a party on St. Valentine's day is one of the easiest things in the world to do. You have all the hearts and flowers and sentiments in the world to help you out!

Decorations this year are tremendously varied. You can paint the whole house red with hearts and fancy paper and have heart hats and heart aprons for the gentlemen and ladies, respectively, to wear. If it's a bridge party you are giving, you can declare hearts are trumps for the entire afternoon, and have all your score cards, paper plates for refreshments and cloths for the table decorative crepe ones in Valentine's designs.

Day Lends Self To Masquerade

If you want to give a regular written invitation party, there are cute little gamin cards to send, messengers with invitations under their arms, running much faster than the average messenger has ever managed.

You can make your party a masquerade, even a pink pajama masquerade, declaring that no one shall use any material more costly than paper cambric or crepe paper. You can offer a prize in the shape of a huge Valentine box of candy, for the prettiest, if you want. Or your masquerade party can consist of nothing but pretty pink masks, with white lace edging those for the girls, and fancy caps. You will be surprised how much just a mask and cap change the appearance of your best friend. And this much of a masquerade breaks the ice and starts the fun.

There May Be A Fortune In Your

All the good old sentimental games are in order for Valentine's day. Post-office might have been invented for the day. Heart-shaped fortune candies may be hidden, bags given the hunters, prizes offered for the King and Queen of hearts who find the most. For games that require partners, cut up red hearts in two pieces each, each pair cut differently; make the boys and girls match them up to see whom they play with.

Fortunes should play a big part in Valentine's parties. If you can have a heart-shaped booth where a dressed-up gypsy can tell fortunes, that is fine. Having a Valentine grab bag where each guest gets a Valentine that will tell his or her fortune is another good dodge and of course everyone reads his aloud.

Tossing heart-shaped horse-shoes, made from wire around which red crepe paper is wound, is another lively game. Trying to get a bite of a heart-shaped lollypop that is suspended from the door top by a string is another diversion.

Old-fashioned square dances are lovely for Valentine's day, especially if you can get some person to call the dances. Charades are another favorite group game that is just made for this Valentine's party.

There are such a lot of decorations available this year that when you come to plan your refreshments and table decorations, you will have to make up your mind about one scheme and stick to it. The new table decorations include whole tablecloths in decorative crepe paper, centerpieces of huge heart-shaped lollypops dressed like Cupids, pasteboard plates and cups in Valentine designs, favors of new-fangled dells in chenille or crepe paper, little heart-shaped containers, in red, for biscuit tortoni or other dessert, heart-shaped candles in the form of little girls' faces, with the little wood stand fluted like a girl's collar, and painted like cloth.

Here's Opportunity For A Hearty Meal

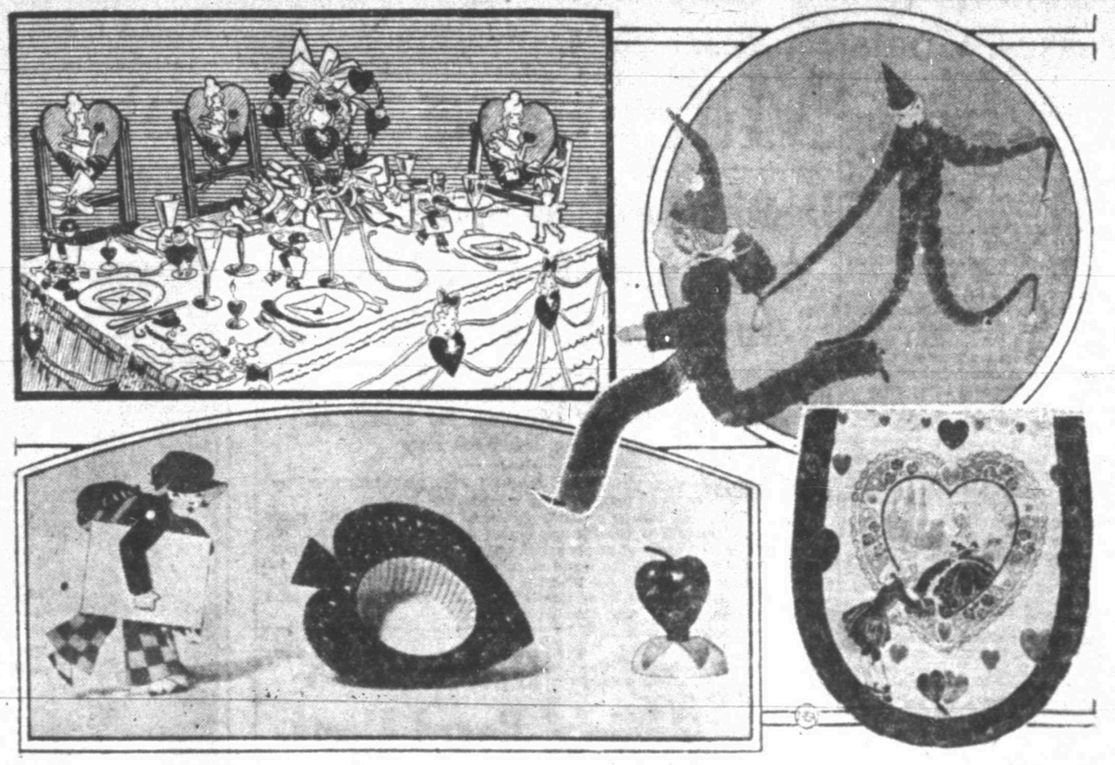

A good menu for a Valentine's party, one that gives you a chance to carry on the red and white color scheme, is as follows:

Creamed chicken and oysters, with pimento cut in tiny hearts, served in heart-shaped patty mouls; tomato aspic salad, moulded in heart-shape; hot rolls; hot beverages, individual heart-shaped portions of cherry ice or strawberry ice cream, and heart-shaped cakes, all iced with candy and mottoes on top.

If you want to add a little nest to the refreshments, you can type-write a little fortune for each person and jell it into the tomato aspic salad, right side up. You can read these through the aspic and it will be amusing.

All of the candies that you finish your refreshments with should be heart-shaped and all of your nuts should be served in heart-shaped moulds.

Since Valentine's day is celebrated in the name of that little god of love, Cupid, remember that you can't make your party too sentimental, nor can you plan your decorations with too many hearts to suit your guests. It should indeed be a sweet party and a pretty one.

When the broken hearts are all matched up and the couples go in for supper, the Valentine's party table (upper left) may be set with Cupid crepe paper tablescloths, each chair may be decorated, and a basket of Valentines with fortunes may be the centerpiece. Red crystal or decorated paper plates and cups are equally effective. Among the new Valentine gadgets are (upper right) a coy pink paper crepe doll, for gentlemen, and a green chenille little gigolo for the ladies. Lower left: One of the new invitations slip under the arm of Mr. Cupid in modern dress; a red lace heart has a container for a biscuit tortoni: Valentine candles in the new heart shape and face form, with the holder a little wooden collar. Lower right: A crepe paper heart-apron, for the feminine guests.

Demonstration Club Women, Have in Twenty Counties, Canned Food At A Value of $293,062 During The Year

BY MYRTLE MURRAY
District Demonstration Agent

"If our stock were as well supplied with food as our families are, we would have no food worries," declares 420 4-H Pantry demonstrators and cooperators who worked under the direct supervision of the county home demonstration agents in fifteen West Texas counties in District 2 in 1930. These demonstrators and cooperators made a net profit of $84,999.56 or an average of $202.38 for each pantry.

The 4-H Pantry program was a state-wide program, but the demonstrations mentioned above were conducted in Clay, Young, Stephens, Fisher, Scurry, Knox, Baylor, Garza, Dawson, Lubbock, Hale, Floyd, Dickens, Lamb and Lynn counties. Hockley, Castro, Swisher, Haskell and Shackleford counties had excellent garden demonstrations, and many of the home demonstration club members who canned according to a canning budget will be able to qualify as 4-H Pantry demonstrators and cooperators in 1931.

What Is Included

This demonstration includes the growing, utilization and preservation of foods necessary for an adequate diet. It correlates the demonstrator's knowledge of growing vegetables, fruits and meat animals for home use; and the canning, brining, drying and curing same for the non-productive months, and the preparation of both fresh and preserved foods, adequate diet and its relation to meal planning.

Each demonstrator, with the help of her home demonstration agent planned her program around the essentials of an adequate diet. These are: one and a half pints of milk daily per person; leafy vegetables at least three times a week; other fruits, vegetables and starches daily; fruit or tomatoes three times a week, and meat and cheese as needed.

Have Year-Round Gardens

The year-round garden is one of the essential requirements of the 4-H Pantry demonstration. Because of the drouthy situation this year, there were many more fall gardens than spring gardens.

In order to provide a sufficient amount of leafy and succulent vegetables during the winter and early spring months, 329 hot beds have been made by these demonstrators and cooperators. The cost of these hot beds has ranged from ninety cents to $11.20, depending on the amount of material purchased. "Sunglass may be used for the frames", says Mrs. Prather of Young county, "It is less expensive and more easily mended than glass if hit by hail."

"No other 18 square feet of soil on our farm produced as much as $10.70, but the hot bed (3ft. x 6 ft) did," said Mrs. W. E. Miller of Floyd county, "and I never expect to be without one again."

Food Classified

The pantry shelf is arranged with these foods and staples from the store in classified order for quick use. An important item of the scheme is a simple filing case in the pantry so that the housewife may prepare an adequate and an appetizing meal in thirty-five minutes when company comes, or in an emergency. Such a meal may consist of meat roast and brown gravy, string beans, corn, canned tomato salad, and canned peaches with whipped cream.

The total value of all garden products is the twenty above mentioned counties is $115,245.63; and the total value of all canned products is $293,062.46.

While several flour mills in Denmark experienced financial difficulties in 1930, breweries report they had a banner year, both in production and earnings.

Annual District Meet Is Scheduled For April 24-25

Two Thousand Students Are To Visit City

Preliminary Plans For Annual Interscholastic Contests Are Made; Medals Have Been Ordered

APPROXIMATELY two thousand high school representatives from 18 West Texas counties will gather here April 24 and 25 for the annual Interscholastic league meet for district 2. All literary events will be held in the Texas Technological college buildings and athletic contests will be decided on the Tech athletic field.

This year's meet will be the sixth consective league gathering to be held at the college, according to Dr. A. W. Evans, head of the Tech department of education who is general director for district 2. Faculty members at the college and speech majors will act as judges in the literary events this spring.

Medals Ordered

More than five hundred dollars worth of medals already have been ordered for winners in the meet Dr. Evans said yesterday. Medals will be given for the first three places in each event. Winner of first place in the various contests will be allowed to compete in the state meet at Austin in May, and the state department of the Interscholastic league will pay approximately forty percent of his expenses to Austin.

Contests will be held in senior debate, senior extemoraneous speech junior and senior declamation, senior essay writing and senior athletics. All literacy contests will have a boys and a girls division. Contests also will be divided into a rural division and class A division.

Cage Tourney Slated

The annual high school basketball tournament of district 2, which is a part of the Interscholastic league, will be held at the Tech gym Friday and Saturday February 20 and 21. Tropies will be given to the winners of the first two places, Dr Evans said.

April 4, a one act play tournament will be held at the college, which also is part of the Interscholastic league. Only a few schools are expected to enter this contest, however. The latter event is the latest contest added to the league.

Counties eligible to compete in this district are: Andrews, Bailey, Borden, Cochran, Crosby, Dawson, Dickens, Floyd, Gaines, Garza, Hale, Hockley, Lamb, Lubbock, Lynn, Martin, Terry and Yoakum.

Ollie Webb Reported To Be Injured; May Attend Fete

Ollie D. Webb, assistant to President J. L. Lancaster of the Texas and Pacific, and well known to many people of Lubbock and the South Plains because of his work last summer in connection with the surveys for the Texas and Pacific Northern, is reported to be recovering in a Marshall, Texas hospital from injuries received in an automobile accident.

In the event his physicians permit him to make the trip, he plans to attend the annual meeting of the Levelland chamber of commerce on February 16.

Garland Woodward, former Lubbock resident but now living in Big Spring, will be the principal speaker on that occasion. He was chairman of the railroad committee of the twelve towns along the proposed Texas and Pacific Northern at its hearing on the application to build the line, held here in December.

Another speaker will be M. C. Lindsey of Lamesa, former county judge of Dawson county.

Several representatives of the Lubbock chamber of commerce are expected to attend.

Tech Will Serve Again

LUBBOCK this week is to be host to the farm women and men of the South Plains at the third annual Texas Tech short course. No less than two thousand of the bone and sinew of this sector of the Llano Estacado will meet here for three days of fellowship, entertainment, socialities and profit.

Agriculture is just a business as selling dry goods, or hardware, or drugs, or jewelry, or any other product. It takes as much management to operate a business of raising agricultural products as it does to sell these products after they have been turned into manufactured goods.

The South Plains has an agricultural problem all its own. There is a breadth of vision out here on the broad plains that is being caught by the men and women of the farm as they look out over their broad acres day by day. These workers are going at it with the idea of trying to handle the problem as they can best do it.

One of the leaders in this work has been Texas Technological college. Its agricultural school has been functioning only a few years, yet in that time it has sent out into the world about two score of trained men who are taking their places in their chosen fields. Others are being trained in the school here to do likewise.

The faculty of the school here is second to none. Its department products are also the equal of other schools.

This short course is just one means of showing the men and women of the farms of the South Plains what the local school has to sell, technical instruction in farm matters. Every man and woman who attends the course, (and the attendance should be larger than ever this year) is a prospective customer. Even though one does not have a son or a daughter to take the work, the "customer" idea still prevails because the farmers will sooner or later come in contact with one of the trained products of the school as teacher or leader of the community. So the school is anxious to show its line.

In passing, it should be remembered that the short course is being sponsored by the faculty and others with private funds, not with school or state funds. Members of the faculty are securing speakers, providing their expenses and entertainment while here so that the people of the South Plains will have the advantage of the professional knowledge of these speakers.

Right here it is not amiss to point out that members of the faculty are guaranteeing the expenses of L. E. Call, dean of the Kansas State Agricultural college, to Lubbock and back to Manhattan. His former associate, H. J. Bower, is the key man in this work.

No state money is available for the course, or for many other types of service that the school of agriculture and the entire college faculty are rendering. What is being done is largely a matter of a man or a woman digging down into his own pocket and providing the expense money.

Lubbock should show its appreciation of the short course by supporting it in a very material way.

Practical Health Problems

DIET RICH IN SUGARS BEST FOR GALLSTONES

"Medical drainage of the gall bladder" was a term used in this column several weeks ago and puzzled some of my readers greatly. It refers to a method of treatment in great vogue several years ago. It is not used so frequently now, but still has its value in proper cases.

Dr. Clendening

It depends for its action on the old method of treating mild infections of the gall bladder. This was to have the patient drink a large glass of epsom salts or sodium phosphate dissolved in hot water before breakfast. The solution was imbibed slowly and was supposed to open up the mouth of the gall bladder in the intestines and allow the infected bile to drain out.

The next step in our understanding of the way it worked came from Dr. S. J. Meltzer. He showed that if magnesium sulphate (epsom salts) were applied directly to the opening of the gall bladder in the intestines, the muscle which kept this opening closed would relax. At the same time the gall bladder would contract and force out bile into the intestine.

Instead of depending on the uncertainties of action of the epsom salts which were taken in the morning, it occurred to a Philadelphia physician that the salts could be introduce into the intestine exactly at the place wanted. He therefore had his patients swallow a small metal bulb with perforations in it and attached to a hollow rubber tube. This would go easily into the stomach, and when the patient lay on the right side for a while would gradually get out into the intestine, and lie just over the opening of the bile ducts. When this had occurred a 30 per cent solution of epsom salts was run through the tube and appeared in the intestine exactly at the place wanted. The gall bladder contracted, the contained bile flowed out into the intestine and was sucked up by the tube. If it contained infectious material or pus this was removed from the body.

In proper cases it seems to do a great deal of good. It is of no value when gallstones have actually formed.

Biliary antiseptics—substances which have an antiseptic value and are excreted into the gall bladder when taken by mouth—have not been found very valuable in treating gall tract infection. One of these substances is called methenamine and another merurochrome, but their action is very uncertain.

The diet, which should be free from fat and rich in sugar, was prescribed yesterday.

Plenty of exercise in the open air and a deliberate attempt to lose weight complete the scheme for the medical management of gall bladder disease.

This regimen will often, with the help of time, result in a resolution of the trouble. Even if it does not, it will put the patient in good physical condition for surgical intervention.

Reckless Is Oratory

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler not only is desperately strenuous. He has one of those magnetic personalities, too. If he is anywhere around it is impossible to miss coming into contact with him.

The first time I ever met him, we happened to get into the same elevator. The minute I looked at him I recognied him as "Smed" Butler. It is true I had seen pictures of him. However, one may easily see a man's picture, then see the man himself and not put the two together; but not in the case of "Smed" Butler. I "spotted" him immediately. At that point a mutual acquaintance introduced us, so there was no doubt about it.

Yet "Smed" is an individual of no especially imposing presence. He is only medium-sized. The solely conspicuous thing about him is a trick he has of sticking his under lip out quite prominently, but anyone can do it. It is his personality that makes "Smed" noticeable, rather than his appearance.

To visit with for awhile, as he and I and our mutual acquaintance did for half an hour, upon getting out of the elevator, "Smed" is highly likable and entertaining. He has led an adventurous life and tells about it very picturesquely.

As a steady diet, I would imagine that he might pall on a person who occasionally wanted a little of the attention on his own account.

Wherever "Smed" may be, only two classes of folk are present—"Smed" and his audience. If it is a well-behaved, respectful audience everything is lovely. Otherwise there is certain to be trouble. At least such was the impression I gathered while listening to him, and I cite testimony in corroboration of it.

Although "Smed's" abilities are good, he has his mental equals, and despite the fact that his courage is of the first order, doubtless he has his peers in that respect also, but it is mighty seldom that ability and courage are combined in a single character as his combines them.

Nevertheless, I believe I would rate his nerve a trifle ahead of his judgment.

For example, he certainly is reckless in his fashion of making enemies.

Far be it from me to suggest that he was reckless in referring to Mussolini as a hit-and-run autoist. Supposing that he plans to run for United States senator in Pennsylvania, or some such office, I can hardly think of anything likely to help him more than to have been blamed by a court martial for his verbal thrust at the Italian dictator.

But "Smed" has a habit of doing or saying something calculated to offend the entire public on one side of a red-hot issue like prohibition and following it up by doing or saying something to offend the entire public on the opposite side of it.

Making enemies on both sides is overdoing matters.

After his experience in trying to purify Philadelphia, the drys in congress virtually were ready to boost him for president—until he termed the Eighteenth amendment an attempt to "keep liquor away from folk without influence." Even after that he restored himself in good dry standing by preferring charges against [illegible] Alexander Williams, his host, at a social function in San Diego, Cal., for serving cocktails—and then made a speech in which he mentioned the "fool Volstead law."

What I suspect is that "Smed's" oratory tends to run a trifle wild when he gives free rein to it.

It was while under the spell of a bit of this after-dinner eloquence that he took the jab, quoted above, at the Eighteenth amendment. Remarks he once was supposed to have made concerning marine activities in Nicaragua nearly resulted in an official investigation, but, on being pinned down, no one recalled just how he had expressed himself. In a third instance the San Diego labor federation complained to the navy department of certain of his utterances as "anarchistic and inflammatory," but the then secretary, Curtis D. Wilbur, never did anything about it.

Apropos, maybe, of nothing in particular, "Smed's" father, the late Congressman Thomas S. Butler of Philadelphia, for many years was chairman of the house of representatives' committee on naval affairs, and tremendously influential. He died during the last session.

HE WENT CRAZY

Most people have a great deal of sound sense and decency in everything except public affairs. They are fit to govern the world well until elected to public office and then they lose the power of governing even themselves.

A Middle West editor writes of a farmer of apparent fairness and intelligence. For years he was a reformer and said many true and sensible things. He lived simply and honorably. His life and many good works won for him the respect of his fellow citizens and a seat in the legislature of his state.

About the first thing he did was to introduce an educational bill contemplating the expenditure of millions unnecessarily and foolishly. He was a good citizen in private life, but the moment he became a statesman he went crazy.

Our great wrongs originate with former good citizens who become lawmakers and public executives. On the outside looking in they see clearly and with surprising vision. On the inside looking out they completely lose their bearings.

Far better for society were the alchemist to discover the secret of making men as level-headed in office as out of office than to find the formula for turning baser metals into gold.

These are certainly trying times for General Smedley Butler.

The wife of the flying squadron hero is probably the only one who can trump an ace and get away with it.

"One good turn deserves another," said the girl in the window as she flipped another pancake.

Men will get so tired of women using cosmetics, says a beauty expert, that they will turn in relief to milkmaids. But on cold winter mornings, even milkmaids handle cold cream.

"I like to sleep in old houses with wind-creaking shutters," says a noted columnist. He may be brave, but likely he's saying this for a blind.

An author has finally given the mystery fiction field something new. He has created a detective who looks like a detective.

Today's One-Minute Sermon

Be ye therefore followers of God, as dear children;

And walk in love, as Christ also hath loved us, and hath given himself for us an offering and a sacrifice to God for a sweetsmelling savour.

—Ephesians, v, 1, 2.

The BOOK SURVEY

"Coronado's Children", Frank Dobie's New Book, Reeks Legends Of Texas

TALES of buried treasure, of lost mines, of jack-loads of silver and gold bullion—tales that have filled the Southwest with wonder for more than a century. Aye, for nearly four centuries—and since Francisco Vacquez Coronado and his brilliant cavalcade set out in search of the fabled Seven Cities of Cibola.

Coronado's children, who today follow little trails to treasure as blindly as did that Spainsh adventurer, bring fame to Texas. For it is of them and the hidden gold they seek that J. Frank Dobie, Texan, writes in his book of that name.

Truly Honor To Texas

When the Literary Guild, national book-of-the-month club, named this book their February selection, it was truly an honor to Texas. "Coronado's Children," of Texas authorship, is printed at the Southwest Press, a Texas publishing house, and is illustrated by a Texan, Ben Carlton Mead, formerly of Amarillo.

"Coronado's Children is a book of quaint allure, worthy of its national laurel. From the colorful jacket carved out of a map of the Southwest where lost treasure troves are marked, through the ghostly tales of the golden Spanish days, it is a distinct contribution to American literature.

A professor bred in the cattle country of the West with a series of legends bring this about. Fiction it may be; but it is fiction of legend. The seed of truth has grown the fabulous flower.

Treasure Hidden

Somewhere in the Wichita Mountains of Oklahoma Frank James hid $2,000,000 when the James gang was hard pressed by a pursuing posse; Breyfogle was found by a horse-hunting rancher clutching specimens of ore which he brought from Death Valley; down in the bayous of the Mississippi Pirate Lafitte a raid, Spanish and Indians acquirstowed away the treasure of many ed their gold, silver and lead from mines somewhere in the mountains of New Mexico—the seed is there and the generations who handed down the tales bred the flowers.

Dobie is well able to bring the stories to the readers. For many years he has been secretary of the Texas Folk Lore Society. Information gathered at the campfire of the Texas cowman, in the Mexican sheep herder's adobe, on the prospector's trail he gives lavishly.

No one is better fitted by training and temperament to tell the story of Southwestern treasure hunts than J. Frank Dobie, This professor of English at the University of Texas who looks enough like Will Rogers to be his twin, has spent all of a very active life in pursuit not of buried gold and lost mines, but of tales of them—stories told as far back as James Bowie and beyond, yarns that have sent hundreds of men loose on the quest, and stirred the blood of Spanish Don and Yankee buecaneer, of backwoodsman and frontiersman, of Indian fighter and mule skinner, of redskin, halfbreed and cavalier. What an odyssey it is—and what a tale-teller J. Frank Dobie is!

O. Henry Started Something

Once O. Henry wrote a yarn of buried treasure—and filled the hills about Austin with treasure-hunters for months. We can foresee a recrudescence of this adventuring spirit as a result of the Dobie opus. In spite of the fact that Dobie strips the patina of legend and conjecture from many a lurid tale of treasure, your genuine treasure-hunter will go right on believing in his own particular dream of storied wealth—for that is the nature of the treasure-hunter.

Texas Rich In Lore

More than any other state Texas abounds in tales of lost mines, caves filled with silver and gold, and buried treasure. Almost every county has its own particular buried treasure or lost mine, but the celebrated San Saba or Bowie mine is perhaps best known. Dobie approaches the tale in the double attitude of doubter and half-believer. He cocks a critical eye at extravagant circumstanciality, but you note that the man keeps a bottle of testing acid handy. He doesn't believe, yet he is almost persuaded. His sophisticated approach is tinctured with the naivete of the incorrigible prospector. And what a whale of a book he has written as a result!

Maps, charts, signs, symbols—the whole gamut of the treasure hunt is in this book. Ten years of research went into it. One of the best masters of the English language in the country wrote it.

"Coronado's Children" should be a best-seller for months to come. If it isn't, it will be because the human family has lost its flare for buried treasure and the tall tales of its devotees.

The beauty of Professor Dobie's writing is excelled only by the tremendous amount of knowledge he presses into the pages. It is almost inconceivable that one man could gather the folk lore of so wide a country, in so extended period of time.

Lou Tells

Lou Tellegen loved and now he tells.

The amorous adventures of Sarah Bernhardt's leading man, as related through the burning pages of his memoirs, "Women Have Been Kind," make it a book to be locked up with Boccaccio and Casanova until the kiddies are grown up.

Women were both kind and generous to Handsome Lou, and he leaped so frequently and agiley from amour to amour that he came to call them "amourettes."

Lou Tellegen was born in Holland 47 years ago, the son of a Dutch dancer of Spanish descent and a military genius who had lived a lot himself.

From the time Lou ran away to Russia at the age of 15 with papa's pretty friend until he married his fourth and current wife, Eve Casanova, life was a tempestuous adventure.

For Anybody

After that, "The Science of Life," by H. G. Wells, Julian S. Huxley and G. P. Wells, sounds rather dull. It is anything but that.

In two massive volumes, the elder Wells has done for science what he did for another branch of learning in "The Outline of History." With biology by Huxley and further aid from his son, he has humanized accepted science from the sludgy origin of life to human behavior and the mind.

Life A Festival

"Festival" is likely to enhance the reputation of its author, Struthers Burt, as a novelist.

Its principal character is Dorn Griffiths, a Philadelphia banker who retires at 50 to enjoy life. He finds himself rather out of it.

Gradually he wakes up to the inadequacy of his platonic relationship with the pallid Elsie Holt as a release from his cold and uncongenial wife. He learns from his daughter, Dellce, the so-called modern attitude toward love and the conduct of life, which is, a character says, "either a fiesta or a long sickness."

Persons Feel Rather Foolish In Earthquakes, Walter S. Raffner, Lubbock Man, Says In Recalling Experiences

EDITOR'S NOTE: Below is another of a series of articles being written by Walter S. Ruffner for the Sunday Avalanche-Journal. Mr. Ruffner, former consular official for the U. S. Government on three continents, is now an executive for the West Texas Gas company. Other articles on his experiences are to follow on this page on successive Sundays.

Earthquake of January 15, 1924

Being on edge most of the time, as the result of threatening shakes, it is really a satisfaction to have a real one; that is, a person feels foolish so many times when, at the slightest shock, he scurried from a building that he, regardless of results, likes to see himself justified.

Early in the evening of January 14th we experienced a couple of short quakes which did not become more violent.

Shaking Like Leaf

At about 5:55 on the morning of the 15th my house began shaking like a leaf in a Panhandle breeze. (Many a mortgage has been blown off a farm by such a breeze.)

Jumping out of bed I dashed, in pajamas and bare feet, for the window, and out I jumped. Others were doing the same thing. At first we could scarcely stand on the ground, on account of the terrific tremor, and made a pathetic looking sight huddled together on a heavy frosted tent floor.

Upon checking up, we found that Vice Consul Walters was missing—but not for long. A door had jammed and that, as well as the fact that he was garbed in an old fashioned nightshirt and hated to join us, accounted for his slight delay.

Standing on the compound, we watched tons of masonery, etc., rolling into our back yard. This came from a six story telephone building standing next to our grounds. It had been ruined during the September earthquake, and its presence caused a number of the boys considerable worry.

Stayed in Room

Upon returning to my room, I soon realized that I had picked up most of the glass on the grounds in my one foot. As the lights had been turned off, there I sat on the side of my bed working at my foot and shivering considerably. Mr. Johnson came with a lantern and iodine and I proceeded to apply the latter freely. Just then along came another shake. That was the last straw and, not being able to navigate, I stayed in the room.

One hundred people were killed in Yokohama by this quake. As there were practically no buildings standing at the time, a repetition of the previous quake was impossible.

Japanese Burglar

First he called at the office one night, stole some stamps, took the weight from the clock and left everything of real value.

He then centered his efforts upon our house. Three times in ten days he made an entry and getaway with suits, overcoats, watches, etc.

Evidence tended to prove that this gentleman first would devote quite a little time to filling up with food in our pantry. He then would collect our butcher knife and stove poker, carrying them with him while working.

He crowded through my window one night, waded through basins, oil stove, etc., without a sound, and took things from my table near the bed. My chow pup, Chong of Hongkong, enjoyed a real sleep—no doubt dreaming of the rice and fish that would be his on the 'morrow.

The Lady of the Blood

Upon receiving word from the Department of State to assist Mrs. Groves, New York serologist, I met the Empress of Canada as it tied up at the dock in Yokohama. Little did I realize just how much I was getting into.

When I met Mrs. Groves, who was the wife of a colonel of the Marine Corps, the question came up concerning how she could get 250 tubes of blood serum past the customs. Although she was to go into the Hokkaido to determine the origin etc., of the Ainus for the Japanese government, we felt that customs officer would hold her up—being suspicious of so many little bottles (could be dope or something to blow up the island, you know) and by the time that matter would have been straightened out the serum would (without ice) have been spoiled, and her mission would have been defeated.

So getting a taxi, we hid the bottles, them in a bag, on the floor and rode toward the customs gate. The customs appeared to be ready to make a real inspection, when a few chosen words settled the matter to our mutual satisfaction.

I, of course, was asked to put the serum on ice, with the understanding that it would be called for in the morning. I did so, and three days later Mrs. Groves called for it—having been sick.

All the time I had to keep the serum on ice, and out of the way of my pup who was ready to tackle anything. At night I put it in my room—under the bed, the pup having been temporarily banished to the backyard. To say that I was pleased to get rid of my charges (250 of them) is putting it mildly.

Mose

Mose was about the most powerful colored gentleman I had ever seen. He wandered upon the compound one day, asking for a place to sleep, and a chance to work his way back to Seattle. Figuring that we could use him to advantage, since he had been a cook, we fixed him up and told him to teach Fuji to bake a standard American pie.

He fraternized in great style with the servants, and Seki San was heard to say to him "Black man Japanese man—allee same." He could cook, and did it willingly.

The gentleman never left the grounds at night; so I asked him why he didn't step out. From him and other sources I got the truth, which accounted for his sober demeanor.

It appeared that Mose had been

In New York

With Swan

NEW YORK, Feb. 7—California's boast to the contrary notwithstanding, Manhattan makes proud boast of being one of the major winter resorts.

New Yorkers, to be sure, run for Florida or Havana or Bermuda, if they have the money, but outsiders come rushing into New York to catch up on the theaters and the spring styles and the shopping season.

"The cost of a vacation in New York may be as great or as little as one desires it to be."

Well, as a regular resident, this allows quite an elasticity of choice. It's true that you can ride from the Bronx to Brooklyn for a nickel and can cover a vast amount of territory on the elevateds; you can go from Washington Square to the last rim of Riverside Drive for a dime—but, strangely enough, most visitors are not content with such simple excursions.

But my limited experience has taught me that visitors seek odd eating places, with a certain percentage looking for drinking places as well. I'll leave the latter to the taxi drivers, bell boys and such.

As for the places to eat, we'll revise our list to read—

The Algonquin Hotel, if you care to surprise a few authors and playwrights at lunch. Sardi's if you would catch the midtown theatrical and newspaper aggregation, as well as get to eat good food.

The Chili Villa, for tamales and Mexican dishes. And almost anywhere in Hoboken or Yorkville for German and Bavarian food, with an eye on Lois Siegel's, if you eat in town.

hired to train with judo (or jiu jitsu) professionals at Kobe, and had gone to Tokyo with them. He stood their punishment well, as few do, but longed for home; thus becoming disagreeable.

One night, a little before the Immigration Act of 1924 was passed, he was with the manager and a few others in a cafe. Someone, in open meeting, asked what he thought of the act. Now Mose knew nothing about it, but, with a wise and knowing look, replied "I guess Uncle Sam sure am right on dat question." He had hardly finished when a beer bottle collided with his head, and the fight was on.

Things were very interesting for a few minutes but he cleaned up the cafe eventually. He then came by train to Yokohama, hoping to get aboard some ship before the police got in touch with him. This explains his hesitancy in going from the consular grounds.

Mechani Prisonniers

A rap on the consulate door about 10:00 p. m. resulted in my meeting five college boys from the S. S. Lambs.

Three of the boys appeared to request help in getting the other two fellows out of the prison.

They had been arrested upon their return to the ship, after a trip to Brussels, for the good reason that they had left their ship before being passed by the immigration authorities. Also, they had neglected to get permission from their captain to go sightseeing.

Realizing that the boys never intended to follow the sea as a livelihood, and being young myself, and that they came to France primarily to see the country, I immediately set out to effect the discharge of the two boys. By the next morning, I had succeeded, although the prison warden considered them dangerous men, as did the chief of police who had them taken from the lockup to the prison. The latter told me seriously how they had nearly broken the door, calling them "mechant prisonniers."

The boys remarked when I saw them in prison to the effect that they figured that the vermin would soon have carried them out, and they certainly bore the signs of several banquets.

Bill, he larger of the two, while out in the courtyard; used to break out of line and run for a grapevine which was covered with grapes, while Tiny, his partner, continually called to the august warden for a cigarette.

At night when the guard was taking them upstairs to their cell, Bill and Tiny worried him by occasionally kicking back at him.

I got them back on their boat, after satisfying the captain that they were most worthy specimens, and they returned to the States and the University of Pennsylvania.

GINGER ELLA TOLLIVER

CHAPTER I

"The trouble with us," declared Ginger fiercely, "is that we're too good.

"I might even go so far as to say," she added, glancing with some apprehension at the parsonage windows where ministerial ears might overhear, "I might even go so far as to say," she repeated softly but with increasing firmness, that we're too—damn—good."

"Soap and water for Ginger Ella!" called Eddy Jackson.

"Yeh?" Eddy Jackson grinned. "I doubt if you could get many subscribers to that theory around Red Thrush."

"I know what you mean, Ginger," said Wesley Meeker sympathetically. "And you're darn well tootin'—we are too good." Wesley Meeker always showed a flattering deference to Ginger's opinions, he being—albeit a junior in college—a mere minister's son, while she was daughter of the District Superintendent.

"But Ginger," protested Patty Sears anxiously, "it doesn't do us any real harm to be good, does it?"

"Well, it jolly well doesn't do us any good either!" declared Ginger. "For my part, I'm pretty well fed up with it. Why, we're so good we don't even get into any interesting scrapes to tell our children about."

"What children?" inquired Eddy Jackson, with interest.

"When we get them," she added hastily.

"You might tell them about the time you locked your sister Helen in the attic on her wedding day," suggested Eddy Jackson. "And about your being arrested for using the mails to defraud. And about your startling mismanagement of your erstwhile Home for the Blind."

"Those," said Ginger coldly, "were mere incidents."

The four of them sat under the budding maples beside the old parsonage, the very parsonage that had been Ginger's own home until her father's marriage to Phil Van Doorn.

It was Easter Week, and Wesley Meeker was home from college for his spring vacation. The maples were just curling out into leafty tendrils, and the first hardy tulips were showing bright colors in the narrow beds under the bay window. The grass seemed fairly springing up beneath their restless tapping feet, for spring was in their nature as it was in the nature of earth.

GINGER WAS BORED.

Ginger took a morbid pleasure in visiting the familiar old parsonage of which she had called herself official head for so many years. Long, long ago those days seemed now.

It was her father's marriage to Phil Van Doorn, Miss Philadelphia Van Doorn, of Doorndee, which had effected the change in the worldly estate of Ginger Ella Tolliver, and incidentally, of her father also. Even the powers of his church could see the incongruity of retaining as a plain minister in a modest pastorate a man whose wife had more money than the whole Southeastern Iowa Conference put together.

Something had to be done about it, and the only thing that could be done was to make him a District Superintendent, independent of local charges—which presto, was accomplished. The Reverend Mr. Tolliver moved out to Doorndee, the beautiful estate of his wife, taking with him Ginger Ella, the one remaining daughter of his original four, the others, as Ginger often plaintively stated, "degenerated into a state of total marriage."

The fact is that Ginger was bored. For a while she had experienced a tingling satisfaction in the mere possessiveness of her new and enviable estate. She had been thrilled with her pretty home; with her own thoroughbred riding horse, as good and as well accoutered as Phil's own; with the rich and simple elegance of her wardrobe. There had been a particular joy in shoving off before the properly impressed, familiar, friendly eyes of Red Thrush and Eddy Jackson.

But as the novelty of possession ebbed, the tide of boredom flowed. Gone were the old mad merry days of scheming to make one dollar do the work of three or four—and the even more desperate scheming to get hold of a dollar in the first place.

Ginger had a bank account of her own now, founded on a check for $5000 given her by Phil when she was graduated from high school. Gone were the days of flying in a panic to the kitchen to gather together scraps and remnants of food to be stretched into a meal for three or four, and expanded again at the last minute to provide for the inevitable unexpected guest.

There was a cook at Doorndee, a large Scotch woman, to whom Phil had taken a fancy on a trip abroad and, in the offhand way of rich people, had imported for her private use. Goobins, her name was, but Ginger, her innate spirit of democracy rebelling at the proletarian discard of a formal prefixed title, had shortened it to an affectionate "Gooby."

WHY GO TO COLLEGE?

Ginger had always been a bit unusual, and her sudden acquisition of wealth with its accompanying prestige had done nothing to render her more-to-be-expected. In the first place, although it was certainly the proper thing to do, she refused to go to college.

"Go to college?" she queried blandly. "What for? I am neither going to teach school nor marry a minister."

"But a little cultural background," suggested her father mildly.

Ginger's grin disconcerted him. "Listen, precious," she said, "the post-graduate preachers who comprise the faculty at Wesleyan are far more up on orthodoxy than they are on culture. They know a lot more about the Discipline than about the Fine Arts. I was brought up on the Bible and oat-meal porridge, just like they were. And in some respects, I think the results in my case were better."

"But what are you going to do?"

"Phil wants to support me," said Ginger moodily. "Let her! We've always been supported by somebody. Might as well be Phil as a Ladies' Aid. Better, if you ask me."

Ginger, having been born and bred in the cheerful charity of a parsonage, had none of the temperamental prejudice against the acceptance of gratuities common to those who are accustomed to giving and receiving little.

Phil, for her part, was more than satisfied. It was what she desired of all things in the world. In the privacy of her most secret thoughts she admitted that her marriage to the minister had been prompted more by a desire to get hold of Ginger than to surrender her future to the keeping of a husband.

For Mr. Tolliver she had a cordial and affectionate regard, for Ginger a passionate and gay devotion. Certainly the two Tolliver had brought purpose and plan into the useless, well-ordered, complacent routine of Doorndee and its mistress. Ginger beyond a shadow of doubt was the most amazing and amusing human being Phil had ever encountered, and she often told herself that she would gladly have married half a dozen preachers if it had been necessary to gain the charge of Ginger Ella.

As long as she could keep the girl with her, she was well content. Indeed she was inclined slyly to encourage Ginger in her defiance of what-was-to-be-expected. Phil did not want her to become like everybody else in Red Thrush.

A LITTLE FLAME NEEDED

"Red Thrush," Ginger was confiding hotly to her particular intimate on the parsonage lawn that mild spring day, "Red Thrush is fatal. I've made up my mind to that. It gets under your skin before you know it, like a flea on a dog."

"I don't see how the others stand it," agreed Wesley Meeker. "We're brought up on it, and sort of used to it by this time, but it sure must rile the heathen."

"It not only riles the heathen," Ginger went on. "It riles me. Eddy, you weren't there, you didn't see it. It was the last straw, and I'm a camel's back. Saturday night at the Country Club! Heaven knows it isn't much of a Country Club, and Saturday night there is nothing to brag about. All husbands and wives, with two or three children apiece, cluttering up the floor in the beginning, and sleeping all over the best chairs toward the end.

"Heaven knows it's not much—but it's all we have. But last Saturday night—Bishop Stains was here, so father and Phil took him to the Country Club to dinner. Well, it's the only place to take anybody, and you've got to take a bishop somewhere. And I ask you—Wes, you were there—I ask you!—is it your idea of a wild night when they get up before a dinner dance and call on the Bishop to ask a blessing?"

Eddy laughed, but after a moment he, with the others, lapsed into a troubled and throbbing silence. Plainly, Red Thrush had sunk pretty low.

Mutely, each for himself, they considered it in comparison to the goings-on in the rest of the world: the dance marathons, the pocket flasks, the midnight swimming parties, the strip poker—all commonplaces of social intercourse as portrayed by modern novels and magazine stories, and emphasized a hundredfold by the betrayals of the silver screen, so lately bursting into speech.

All Red Thrush could give them was Saturday night at the Country Club, with everybody's babies falling asleep on their evening wraps and the Bishop asking a blessing before dinner.

"Phil says she will take you to Canada this summer if you want to go," suggested Patty, yearning to be of comfort.

"I don't want to go," said Ginger darkly. "I'm not the type to go tripping from resort to resort. I can't flirt with people until I've known them from the cradle up and understand their line. These piazza petters who offer you a flask for life in the first intermission give me a pain in the neck. I don't want to go any place. I want to do something."

"I say so too, Ginger," said Wesley Meeker. "What this town needs is a little flame for its youth."

"What this town needs," said Ginger, "is a place where its youth can get away by itself—away from its fathers and mothers and nieces and nephews and family dogs and bishops—and do its flaming without benefit of clergy. Nothing puts a wet blanket on the incandescent like a family reunion in public."

A HOME FOR THE BORED

"A bit mixed," said Eddy Jackson, "but on the whole, true. I suppose you're grousing because you had to nurse Helen's baby through the last strawberry festival."

"I'd rather nurse anybody's baby than attend the best strawberry festival in the world!" cried Ginger. "I never want to see another strawberry festival. The next person that offers me a strawberry I'll—I'll—"

"Yeh, but you're lucky," said Wesley drearily. "Look at me. I've got to go. Your father's Superintendent. You can make excuses and cut off somewhere in the car. Us—we got to go! We've just got to. No cutting away for us."

"Wait." Ginger stood up suddenly. "Wait." Her eyes darkened with the strange far-away intentness that from her early childhood had been a warning signal that she was up to something. "I've—got—an—idea. Let's have a Home—"

"For the Blind," suggested Eddy Jackson brightly.

Ginger did not smile. "For the Bored," she said dreamily. "Wait."

She struck off briskly across the lawn in the direction of the street. "Ginger," called Patty Sears plaintively, "are you going home? Aren't you going to take me with you—you brought me here?"

"Wait," Ginger tossed back over her shoulder without turning. "I'm just going up to Jenky's a minute."

In the village of Red Thrush, Ginger Ella Tolliver had two staunch and unfailing allies, poor, faithful, blind old Benny Brooks, and his wife, the former Miss Jenkins. Of these two Ginger was more sure than of her very self. Her plans might be wild, her hopes intangible, even her intentions not above reproach, but the two saw never a flaw in them or her.

Miss Jenkins had served as a doting, gratuitous companion to the four Tolliver girls during the hectic years of their growth from a troubled motherless childhood to a romantic young maturity; had indeed, as Ginger Ella stoutly believed, hoped one day to officiate in place of a parent, as the wife of their reverend father.

But coming, and largely by the machinations of that same Ginger Ella, to realize the futility of her fond and foolish fancy, in a final desperation at the prospect of the dreadful and futile loneliness which threatened her declining years, in a sudden accession of great sweet courage, she had become the wife—and at no instigation but her own!—of poor, blind, shrinking Benny Brooks.

During nine months of the year she continued her work in the kindergarten schools of Red Thrush, thus financing their modest menage, and saving every possible penny against the inevitable rainy years that lay ahead.

In a small, three-room apartment on the second floor of the old house across the street from the parsonage, she made a happy home for the lucky man, while he assisted in every way possible—making baskets, weaving rugs—to further the financial good that plays so large a part in spiritual contentment.

Upon the support of these two Ginger could unfailingly count, and the occasions when she required support were not infrequent. In her young girlhood she had known no intimate friendships.

The boundless enthusiasm with which she, the youngest of four, had assumed active management of the parsonage and its inmates; her feverish devotion to her father and everything that concerned him; her passionate determination to marry off her sisters as best became their separate charms and values; her eagerness to enhance the family fortunes by means either fair or almost foul; all these interests had united to occupy both all her time and her affection.

GINGER GETS INTO ACTION

But with her sisters happily married—albeit not entirely to her own best judgment; with her father comfortable in the companionship of Phil Van Doorn; and with no financial needs to egg her on, Ginger wanted a chum.

It was natural that of all the girls in Red Thrush, her fancy should center upon Patty Sears, pretty, amiable and unopinionated, a happy satellite to revolve around irrepressible Ginger. "Ginger's central moon," Eddy Jackson called her.

But Ginger had learned much. For one thing, she had discovered that a secret shared is not a secret kept. And she had found by bitter experience that plans only half perfected may be easily prevented. Patty Sears, for all her love and loyalty, was susceptible to friendly overtures, and the suspicious nature of Eddy Jackson rendered him dangerously adept at ferreting out Ginger's intentions.

When she went to Ben and Jenky Brooks, on the other hand, it was not to confide a secret, but merely to place it in a private and practical repository all her own. Neither the sweetly sympathetic Patty nor the insidiously sly Eddy Jackson could pry a secret of Ginger's from that faithful pair.

Ginger's mind was apt to leap kangaroo-like from crag to crag of high accomplishment. She never bothered to blaze a trail for herself through the studied valleys of detail that lay between the mountain peaks of inspiration.

From her sudden grand concept of a Home for the Bored Youth of Red Thrush, it was but one flying five-mile leap to an old, neglected, run-down farmhouse on a wooded curve of the Rabbit river, a house which had borne a For Sale sign so many years it was all but obliterated by time and weather. From this abandoned house on the Rabbit, in another deep breath she was back the five miles talking it over with Ben and Jenky Brooks. And as this peak was more physically accessible to her at that moment, being right across the street, she was practical enough to turn to first things first.

She tore breathlessly up the stairs and bounded through the open door was tearing old clothes into long thin rags and tying them together of their cheery sitting room. Jenky end to end in a seemingly eternal chain for the small rug Benny was weaving.

"Darlings," Ginger began explosively, "what in the world are you going to do all summer when school is out?"

"Finish this rug," said Benny, with an apologetic little cough.

"What have you thought of?" inquired Jenky, who knew Ginger much better than Benny did.

"Well," said Ginger impressively, "I think you ought to go out in the country and get a lot of fresh air and exercise and sunshine and build up rosy checks and backbones and what-have-you. I thought maybe you would like to act as caretakers for my little place out in the country!"

GINGER'S BIG IDEA

"I didn't know you had a place in the country," said Jenky breathlessly, dropping the pile of rags in a great heap at her feet.

"Well, I've practically got it," said Ginger. "A sort of get-together ground for the Junior Country Club."

"Why, I didn't know there was a

Hawk, president of the Tri-State Fair Association, under whose auspices the event takes place. Special events are planned for each day of the show. On Tuesday, March 3rd, at 2:00 p. m., an outstanding sale is planned of Poland China and Duroc Jersey hogs. Thirty head of bred sows and gilts are to be offered, selected from the best herds of Texas, and bred to outstanding boars that have won in their classes in the leading fairs of the Southwest in 1930. The sale will be conducted by Col. Ed F. Herriff, of Oklahoma City. There will also be a Pig Club Show and Sale, in the Swine Department.

To Sell Herefords

On Wednesday, March 4th, at 1:00 p. m., sixty-five registered Herefords will be auctioned off by Fred Reppert, auctioneer. These will include fifty-five herd bull prospects and high class range bulls. Ten females, select foundation cattle, will complete the sale. All animals carry the blood lines of Anxiety 4th strains. In addition, some good polled cattle are included in this event.

The final day of the show, Thursday, March 5th, will have as its feature the sale of two hundred baby beef calves. This event will take place at 9:00 a. m. Earl Gratin is to be the auctioneer. Gaines Plans Annual Show

Sixth Annual Poultry Show To Be Held In Seminole, February 20, 21; Eaton Is To Act As Judge

By Staff Correspondent

SEMINOLE, Feb. 7.—With a score of additional coops received here and stores in the Seagraves Motor company building at Seagraves in anticiptation of the sixth annual Gaines county Poultry show, there will be over 50 coops for the show owned by the association. Half that many privately owned coops are available and here will be a number of large coops built especially to house the flocks of nine hens and a cock. Date is February 20 and 21.

"We are anticipating more breeds this year than last," says R. F. McFatridge, county agent and secretary of the show, who is handling arrangements. "We had 25 breeds last year.

More Interest Shown

"This year our show will have 500 to 600 birds, I believe. There is more interest in poultry this year, in spite of the present low prices, than ever before."

D. F. Eaton, county agent of Lubbock county, has been invited to judge the show again. He has officiated before and is popular with the poultry men of the county.

A school for farmers and those interested in the business is to be held this year, Mr. McFatridge announced. "We expect to have W. W. Evans, county agent at Lamesa and Mr. Eaton, besides both the vocational agriculture teachers of the county," he added. "R. H. Wells of Seagraves and Dewey Davis of Seminole are the teachers and they have been a big help in promoting the show.

J. D. Tinsley, agricultural agent for the Santa Fe in Texas has been invited to attend. He has been here before and is well known among Gaines county farmers and ranchers.

Dawson County In Need Of New Jail; Present One Full

LAMESA, Feb. 7.—(Special)—The Dawson county jail is crowded to over flowing, according to Dyrel Kirk, county attorney "no room for more." Plans are for seriously contemplating the building of a new jail for Dawson county owing to the over-crowded, unsanitary, inadequate facilities and unsafeness of the present county jail, according to Kirk.

Noble and his son, Burns Noble, who established their concern six or seven years ago after moving here from Tulia. Mr. Smith, who bought the interest of T. K. Morris, expects to sell his elevator and grain company.

She's Champion Milkmaid Of Co-Eds

She'd never done any milking before the Little International Livestock show at Fargo, N. D., but after the show was over, Myrna Ottinger, shown here with the animal she milked, came out the champion co-ed milker. Myrna is a junior in the school of education at the North Dakota Agricultural College, in Fargo. In four minutes she produced 1.1 pounds of milk to win the contest.

Plant Pecans On The South Plains?

Lubbock Woman From Pecan Center Of Southwest States Profit Awaits Pecan Growers In Sandy Soil

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article was written for the Avalanche-Journal by Mrs. Edgar T. Neal, 2108 13th Street. Mrs. Neal is a former resident of San Saba, known as the pecan raising center of the Southwest.

PLANTING and propagating pecans on the south plains sounds symphonyous as a subject, if not pratical as a project of proven profit. With a rich sandy soil known to be so propitious to pecan growth, there is no apparent reason why this native nut and the state tree should not in time become a plains' favorite for both commercial and ornamental purposes, claiming as it does the charactistics of a tough timber, beautiful foliage, graceful growing habits, rapid in grouwth as other orchard trees, providing the proper root system is furnished, plenty of moisture given, and grafting to older growing timber is carefully done.

Pecan culturalists, particulary in the central sections of Texas, have for some years been engaged in propagating certain named western varieties of pecans that should respond heartily to cultivation in rich sandy and loan soils of the south plains area.

Varieties Created

Those western varieties, created by the selection and cultivation of superior native nuts grown in western localities, by grafting patch budding and by crosshyphenpoleniza-tion,have been wroked out with adaptations to high altitudes and dry climates, to the extent that it is now known that pecans do not require a river bottom seetinf to insure a successful growth. While the first pecans undoubtedly grew along river bottom setting to insure a lands and soils, the tree, it's habits and cultivations have now become so modernized that upland groves when given sufficient moisture, by irrigation and otherwise, after careful selection and setting, have proven not only a satisfactory but profitable experiment; it now being a well established fact that where cotton will grow, pecans will grow. Especially in San Saba county, located in the geographical center of the state, and famous as the center of the native pecan producing area of the world-that county having a record for the production of one third the native pecan crop of all the world, being known to contain more native pecan trees than any like area on earth, has the propagation of certain named and adapted western varieties been worked upon with an unusal and successful zest.

Getting back to the proposition of pecans on the plains- the foregoing facts have been presented as a preface to the argument that pecans should at least be given a chance in his country. A few trees planted here several years ago have come into bearing. Other young trees are to be found growing here and threr in town, some are growing in the Acuff community; there are some quite thrifty pecans at Seagraves; some at Post, and perhaps elsewhere on the south plains, all having a healthy appearance and semingly holding their own with climate and altitude. Around one thousand two year old seedling pecan trees are growing on a farm at Roundup, planted in 1929, these will probably be ready for grafting in 1932, having by that time established a sufficient root system to support a good growing top wood.

Should Be Western Variety

It would probably prove a mistake to set out here grafted pecans ordered from eastern states nurseries, as the habits and requirements of trees started in low and damp situations would be different to those acclimated to higher and dryer localities, and to those propagated with a view to growth in uplands. The pecan, like the proverbial prophet, has only been without honor in it's own country. Larger areas having been devoted to pecan orcharding on a commecial scale in Georgia, Louisiana and Florida, than in Texas, where the industry, on that scale, is comparatively new. Even in the native growing parts of the state, where the trees abound in countless numbers, interest has not been widely awakened until within the past few years.

If for no other reason that that of beautification of grounds, and the perpetuation of the state tree on the plains, it is to be hoped that home owners of Lubbock and Lubbock county will adopt as one project of progressive developement for 1931, the planting of pecan trees around homes and in the parks of the city. Some San Saba pecans are already started on Tech campus. Pecan planting would constitute a fine slogan for womens clubs and other civic organizations, and if there are those who are pessimistic as to the fruiting of the trees, while there is no special proff to be offered in that particular, it is certain that the sentiment of growing the state tree would be well placed. And who knows, but in time, the pecan becoming acclimated would ajust it's self to surroundings and short seasons, and become a fruitful and prolific bearer of fine nuts on the south plains?

Home Raised Feed Is Used In Fattening

Beef Cattle Specialist Of A. & M. Says Area Could Feed Two Or Three Times More; Can Raise Feed

SIX South Plains counties this winter are feeding home raised feed to approximately 14,000 head of cattle and nearly half that many sheep, while, according to A. L. Smith, beef cattle specialist of the animal husbandry department of Texas A. and M., these Plains counties could and should feed two or three times the number now being fed.

"Take these three counties west of Lubbock alone, Lamb, Hockley and Terry, they are now feeding approximately 10,000 head of cattle." Mr. Smith declared following the recent tour of Lamb county. "I see no reason why they should not feed two or three times that number next year.

Cannot Be Beat

"These counties can raise the feed. They can raise it in still larger quantities than they are now doing. I don't know of any other counties in the state that can raise any more feed or any better feed. Their sorghums simply cannot be beat.

"Farmers should receive more than the market price for feed, if they put it into livestock. Of course, in years when cattle are higher than they are now, the profit will be still greater. But every feeder I know of in these counties will make much more by feeding his grain to his livestock than by selling it."

70,088 in Texas

Late in December Mr. Smith made a survey of Texas counties and found that reports from county agents indicated 70,088 cattle were on feed in the feel lots of 88 counties. This is about half the number of counties with agricultural agents.

Since making the survey Mr. Smith found additional reports from over the territory had increased the totals in several counties.

"Reports show that the 70,088 cattle being fed in 88 counties, are being fed by 507 men," Mr. Smith explained. "This does not include many commercial feeders. I believe there are over 45 0farmers feeding.

To Double Next Year

"Last year we had 40,000 cattle being fed in 51 counties by 250 men and a good many of them were by commercial feders. The number of farmers who are feeding cattle will be doubled next year, in my opinion, what it has been this year.

"Of the 70,000 cattle on feed, there are about 10,000 being fed by commercial feeders in Tarrant county and about 6,000 by commercial feeders, mostly the packing plant, at El Paso. The rest are all being fed by farmers."

South Plains counties and the approximate number of animals being fed this winter include: Lamb, 4,000 by 28 men Hockley county, 4,000 by 10 men; Terry, 1,500 animals by 15 men; Dawson, 1,000 animals by eight men; Bailey, 1,600 animals by ten men; Gaines, 1,000 animals by two or three men; Scurry county, 500 animals by several men.

Lubbock county has probably several thousand head, mostly at the cotton seed oil mills in Lubbock and Slaton. Other mills over the territory also have several hundred animals each.

Hale county's program is confined mostly to 4-H club boys and their calf programs. R. B. Davis, county agent, says the number of boys feeding will double next year. There are believed to be around 100 cattle on feed, mostly calves.

Gaines Raises Grapes, Fruits

Almost Evermy Farm In County Has Orchard And Vineyard; Plums, Cherries Do Good In Area, Also

(By Staff Correspondent)

SEMINOLE, Feb. 7.—Grapes are especially good in Gaines county and almost every farm in the county has a vineyard or a fruit orchard, says C. H. Westcott, well known farmer who lives near here.

Mr. Westcott has one of the most successful vineyards in the county according to those who know him. He has had a vineyard on his farm for the past six years.

Begun in 1925

"I began with some grapes in 1925," Mr. Westcott said. "I built an arbor 20 feet wide and 40 feet long and seven feet high. I planted ten vines.

"Since then I have had to add 30 feet to the arbor. The ten vines cover it all over.

"My grapes have been successful. After the second year I have never had a failure. They do well here. Even if there is a frost, the grapes come out again."

R. C. McPatridge, county agent, says that a good many farmers are now beginning to prune their vines. He has arranged for several demonstrations of pruning this month.

EXPLANATION OF LAST SUNDAY'S CARTOON

ISABEL LOUISE, THE MOST ELIGIBLE GIRL WHO EVER LIVED

Isabel Louise, daughter of Don Pedro II of Portugal, is the prototype of the "fairy princess." As the heiress to one of the most powerful thrones of the time, she was, at the age of eight, considered so desirable a match that an emperor (of Austria), four kings, (Spain, Savoy, France and Parma), 19 princes (Conti, Bourbon, Vermandois, Poland, Modena, France and two each of Bavaria and Tuscany), two dukes (de Chartes and de Julliers), and two bishops (Breslau and Augsburg), demanded her hand in marriage. Yet this most marriagle girl in history was destined to die unmarried at the age of 21, (1690).

EIGHT TELEGRAMS CAN BE SENT AT THE SAME TIME OVER ONE WIRE

At each end of a single copper wire are fou receiving and four sending operators, 16 in all. The machines of sending operators perforate tape, which is automatically translated into an electrical impulse for each letter. These impulses travel over the wire in rotation by means of a distributor at each station, from sender A to printer A, sender B to printer B, etc. Four messages, COME AT ONCE, SHIP TEN DOZEN, WILL MEET YOU, LOVE FROM ALL, would go over the wire in this form: CBWLOHIOMILVEPLE ATMPTEER NBOO TMND COYAEOL FUL N. The printers, on receiving machines, receive the impulse from the distributor in rotation, and automatically type the letters on paper tape.

THE BLACK CHICKADEE'S NORMAL TEMPERATURE IS 112 DEGREES

The bevelopment of birds' feathers enable them to maintain and retain bodily warmth much superior to that of any other animal. The warmest of all birds is the black chickadee, whose body temperature has been ascertained to be 112 degrees, compared with the average mammal's temperature of 98.

When Students Of Tech Get Together They Organize, Adopt Spanish Name

New Club Formed Since Work Was Begun On Story

BY MARGARET TURNER
Avalach-Journal Staff

THERE is no absence of clubs at Texas Tech college. On the contrary, if there is one thing that Tech has plenty of it's organizations and these include a variety for the most exacting person. If a number of students find themselves together for several successive times they organize, elect officers and give the club a Spanish name.

To one who is not familiar with the Spanish language, the campus organizations may appear a trifle strange but he may rest assured that he will not be confused with too many Greek letters.

When the students are not bothered with pursuing that thing which they playfully term their education they may be found in a caucus bent on pleasure on mental profit.

Necessary Curricula

Since the time one girl joined fifteen organizations, there have been those who look upon club membership as a necessary part of the college curricula.

The Inter-club council which was organized last year, set a few laws which were to be put in action this year but the mis-placement of the constitution and by-laws created some misunderstanding and now a committee has been appointed to draw up a new set.

Included in the social club are those that require a correct back-slapping technique for invitation to join and it is getting to where there is such a word as "rate' on the campus but we'll not go into that.

About the only club which is missing is a night club and if that is organized Jack Hightower, the night watchman, should be made a charter member and in addition might give some interesting pointers.

Old Order Changeth

From year to year the students re-organize clubs and change names with the new personnel. An alumnus in returning to the campus even now would find that secret whispers could not interest a new student in the magic "Alamo" or "T. P. club" while the Sweethearts of the Ring, better known as The Arena-Ritas were not reorganized this year and Los Gauchos and Las Hermanas are no more.

Once in a while a student has been known to become associated with a club which he finds is not to his expectations and to his embarrassment he resigns and affiliates with another one. This is of course met with hearty approval by his former college brothers.

The words "hazing", "rushing" and "pledging" are forbidden by the Inter-club council and initiations are milder than in former days.

There are thirteen social clubs in Lubbock whose memberships are made up largely of Texas Tech students and another will likely be organized before this story goes to press.

Most of them are of Spanish or French name and this is just as well since translations in liberal English reveal "The Horse-men", "Of What", "The Smart Ones", "Without Care", "The Crickets", "The Comrades" and "The Loyal Ones."

Sectional Clubs Active

Sectional clubs, which meet weekly although no one seems to know just why, have a place on the social calendar also. The Lubbock club was disbanded last year after it was discovered that no one came except the officers. Other clubs include the Fort Worth, Scurry county, Big Spring, Amarillo-Tech, Waco and Dallas.

Not all of the clubs have entertainment as their aim, but on the contrary there are those that encourage the pursuit of learning in scientific lines and others that attempt to show the attractive side of a technical course.

Pi Gamma Mu social science fraternity was organized early in the history of the college and an International Relations club has met this year. The Double Key society promotes scholarship and its members must contribute to college activities thus it will be seen that organizations are encouraged.

The Association of Women students, presided over by Miss Lilah Gaye Rodgers, has as one of its purposes the promotion of beneficial undertakings on the campus. Forum members meet weekly to discuss a similar program.

New Music Needed

After a two years' standing offer of $25 to someone to compose a pep song, the Tech Chamber of Commerce succeeded in its work and the song was given at football games last season. New music is needed, however less some Notre Dame alumnus be mislead and stand in honor of his alma mater.

Upper classmen who are fortunate enough to have a high scholastic standing may belong to the Southern Scholarship society, and if the work of the Students' council is hazy in one's mind, still it's out there.

The Mathematics club is attended by several faculty members as well as students and the Pre-law club holds kankaroo courts and ushers prospective lawyers through the intricacies of the courts.

Organizations with similar purposes are the Geology club, the Hobbins club, Architectural society and the Engineering society. The Aggie club and Home Economics club have been organized since the beginning of the college.

Included in the language clubs are to be found Caps y Espada, which attracts those interested in the furtherance of the Spanish tongue; S. P. Q. R. is attended by Latin students and the German singing club is not to be overlooked. The organizations of next year may embrace a Chinese club.

The Y. M. and Y. W. C. A.'s are sub-divided into committees which divide responsibility and this year there has been a freshman Y. M. C. A.

Has Annual Banquet

The Alumni association has a banquet at the end of the school year annually and elects officers who in turn plan a banquet and nominate officers for the coming year.

In addition to sponsoring a thrilling initiation for new members, the Pre Medical society attends lectures and studies scientific discoveries.

Forensic activities are on the campus and those who feel a call to the legitimate stage are given a chance to heed it in appearing in Sock and Buskin plays. The Thespian club is composed of expression pupils and the speech department sponsors a girls' and boys' debate clubs.

Music plays a big part in the life of the campus. Who has not heard the boys' and girls' glee clubs and the choal clubs practice singing? Then there is the public school music club; the Matador band directed by Harry LeMaire and the girls' band, which is enjoying initial performances this year.

The Press club spends the time not occupied in getting members out to meetings in meeting.

The Plains Museum society, which convened last week, sponsors a college museum that is placing rare articles as time passes.

With all that behind, far more is still ahead because there are all of the athetic organizations for men and women students alike.

Rifle Club Formed

One of the most recent activities is the Rifle club for girls. Sighting and triangling are being taken up prior to actual target practice.

The Woman's Athletic association sponsors this as well as the horseback riding and clogging clubs. The girls jog up and down the dusty lanes and with spring will organize volley ball and archery clubs.

The men's organizations include the famous "T" club, Tech rifle club and seasonal athletic activities.

And since this story was begun another club has come into being and this is the Chemical club.

For Ginger's Sake

On Trip To Altar

Fifteen thousand miles aren't far when there's a wedding at the other end of the journey—so Miss Lilyan E. Frank of Oklahoma City was all smiles as she embarked on the liner President Wilson at San Francisco to go to Bangkok, in Siam, where she will become the bride of Glen E. Morrow, young college professor. The two met at a young people's convention in Oklahoma a year ago.

Junior Country Club," protested Jenky.

"Oh, of course there is a Junior Country Club—or practically so, at any rate. What do you think of it?"

"I'd like to finish this rug," said Benny modestly.

"Where is it?" asked Jenky.

"It's the old Mill Rush Farm out on Rabbit river," said Ginger.

"Why, I didn't know it had even been sold."

"Well, it's just the same as sold. To tell the truth, you've practically bought it," said Ginger, with a faint smile.

"I've bought it!" gasped the amazed woman.

"Yes. For me, of course. I want you to go to old Jop Westbury and get it on the best terms you can and I'll give you the money to pay for it. Pay as little down as you can and stretch the payments out as long as possible. And then you can give me a bill of sale for it or a note or whatever you call it. Because I'm not altogether sure that father would be heartily in favor of my owning a road-house."

"A road-house!" gasped Jenky. "How terrible! Is Mill Rush a—a road-house?" She almost whispered the horrible words.

"Well, practically so," said Ginger. "Anyhow, it'll be a road-house as soon as we get it fixed up, and you and Benny are running it for the Junior Country Club. Why don't you run along uptown now and find out what old Jop wants for it? You've got enough rags tied to carpet half the Middle West. Pretend you want it for yourself and don't mention me. And whatever he asks, you bring him down."

"I will," said Jenky, who loved to transact business for other people, "I'll go this very minute. We won't have to pay any rent if we live out there, will we?"

"Not a cent! And we'll pay all your living expenses, too, and maybe give you soemthing to boot—if there's any money left over after we get it fixed up."

"I'll go this very minute," said Jenky excitedly.

"And for goodness' sake, don't say anything about it before Eddy Jackson, or somebody'll put a stop to it before we get started."

"Are you sure you've got enough money to pay for it?" suggested Benny, with a meek cough.

"Well, practically," said Ginger. "I can mortgage the Dido if I have to." The Dido was the small smart roadster Phil had given her for her birthday.

Jenky's hands trembled nervously as she put on her hat.

"I've always liked the country," she said. "We'll can a lot of fruit and put up enough jelly to last all next winter. It'll be good for Benny. He doesn't get outdoors enough. We'll raise chickens, Benny."

"Be sure to argue his price down," cautioned Ginger. "Half of what he asks will be about right. And pretend you're buying it for yourself."

Gaines County Cattlemen Feeding Cotton Seed Cake

(By Staff Correspondent)

SEMINOLE, Feb. 7—Scores of Gaines county cattlemen, finding the pastures of the county sadly depleted this winter because of drouth conditions that prevailed in the summers of 1929 and 1930, are feeding cotton seed cake to their herds as a supplement fro thin pastures.

"I guess about every rancher in the county—at least every one I know of, is feeding cake this winter," M. S. Doss, one of the old timers of Gaines county, said.

"Our ranges this winter have been mighty thin. We did not have enough moisture last summer and thhe grass was very poor. We got some rain last fall but the grass was so bad that it has come back. It will be much better this coming summer if we get enough rains this spring.

Lorenzo Farmer Has Unique Plan Of Farm Equalization

(By Staff Correspondent)

LORENZO, Feb. 7—J. W. Dalton, well known farm owner of this part of Crosby county, who decided recently to dispose of a portion of his holdings has adopted a unique plan for obtaining what he considers a better equaliation of farm crops that will help those purchasing the properties.

Mr. Dalton cut up nine sections of land and has sold it on contract. He inserted in the contract a claus providing that one half of the area be planted in feed and the other in cotton.

Farmers and others here are watching the experiment.

Judge Louis Duffee, 74, of Griffin, Ga., prefers a mule to autos and other means of conveyance.

Comedy, Romance, Drama Week's Movie Menu

Wide Variety Of Talkies On Program Here

Greta Garbo, Bert Wheeler, Robert Woolsey, Ronald Colman, Edmund Lowe And Billie Dove Among Stars

COMEDY, romance, thrills and drama have a part in Lubbock's movie menu this week.

The comedy feature will be "Hook, Line and Sinker" with Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey—and, of course, Dorothy Lee, who seem to be turning out pictures in Hollywood like so many automobiles. After their sudden rise to popularity in "Rio Rita" when they appeared with Bebe Daniels, Wheeler and Woolsey have been turning out pictures in rapid succession, including "The Cuckoos", "Dixiana", and "Half Shot at Sunrise", "Hook, Line and Sinker" is said to be somewhat similar to the others with laughs less numerous for moviegoers who have seen all of the pictures. But if you failed to see the previous Wheeler - Woolsey talkies you should get a big kick from their current hit. It starts a three-day run at the Lindsey today.

DOROTHY LEE

Greta Garbo Coming

Turning to the dramatic section of the theater program, which contains also a touch of romance, Greta Garbo will be seen at the headliner. She appears in "Inspiration" at the Lindsey Friday and Saturday. Miss Garbo returns to the exotic type of role which made her famous in the silent films. She is seen as an artist's model who becomes the toast of Paris as a result of her amorous fascination. Surfeited with the admiration of wealthy admirers she falls in love with a young, provincial student who already is engaged to be married. The desperate strategies by which the impassioned model attempts to win over the student, together with a subsequent unexpected turn of events, make up the plot. Robert Montgomery is the leading man and Lewis Stone plays an important part.

"Raffles", a mysterious, romantic thriller, will reveal Ronald Colman, the star, as a smooth and polished gentleman, a society favorite and a popular athlete. Kay Francis and David Torrence have leading parts. In the suave and refined role of Raffles, Colman finds the lure of criminal adventure more than he can resist. In consequence his many distinguished associates are victimized time and again without the faintest suspicion of whom the malefactor can be. The climax is reached after Raffles' resolution of reform is brought to an end and he is shoved headon into his last and greatest adventure, for this time the stakes are the honor of his best friend and the heart of the girl he adores. "Raffles" shows at the Lindsey Wednesday and Thursday.

Thriller Showing

Deeds of thrilling heroism played against the background of romantic outdoor beauty mark the drama of coast guard life, "Men Of Call," now showing at the Palace. Edmund Lowe, remembered as the creator of the role of Quirt in "What Price Glory", and Mae Clark are the leading players. A storm at sea furnishes the climax of the picture. It started showing here yesterday and will continue through tomorrow.

Billie Dove and Douglas Fairbanks, jr., will be seen in the reading roles of "One Night At Susies", which shows at the Palace Tuesday and Wednesday. The picture of a vivid drama of love and sacrifice and a struggle between a foster-mother's selfish desire to serve and the willingness of a girl to pay any penalty for the happiness of the man she loves. Helen Ware is cast in an important role and almost steals the picture from the stars.

A real comedy hit, "Only Saps Work", comes to the Palace Thursday and Friday. It is a side-splitting, uproarious, farse comedy, taken from a play by Owen Davies. Leon Errol, Richard Arlen, Mary Brian and Stuart Erwin are in the cast.

Hawaii expects to produce 11,000,000 cases of pineapples this year.

At the THEATERS

Billie Dove who is to appear at the Palace Tuesday and Wednesday with Doug Fairbanks, Jr., in "One Night at Susie's".

Robert Montgomery will play in "Inspiration" opposite Greta Garbo at the Lindsey Friday and Saturday.

Ronald Coleman who will be at the Lindsey in "Raffles" on Wednesday and Thursday.

Youngest Students Keep Up Pace

Four 15-Year-Old Students Are Enrolled At Tech; Good Grades Are Shown; One May Get Degree At 17

BY MARSHALL FORMBY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

YOUNG in age but mighty in grades are the four youngest students in Texas Technological college. Perhaps the youngest of the four is Roy Ruckman, who is 15 years old and is a sophomore in the school of liberal arts. Ruckman graduated from Vernon High school in 1929 and entered Tech the following fall.

The youngest girl registered at Tech, according to the records, is Miss Rose Mary Heatly, freshman co-ed from Austin. Miss Heatly, however, is only one month younger than Miss Roberta Myrick, freshman co-ed who graduated from Lubbock High school last spring. Roberta is the daughter of Walter Myrick, jr., of this city, and is enrolled in the Tech school of liberal arts. Miss Heatly will be 16 on May 18, while the latter will be 16 on April 15.

"Oofie" Is Favorite

Among the favorite men on the campus and especially at Cheri Casa, football boy's dormitory, is Malouf Abraham, 15-year-old freshman from Canadian. "Oofie" as he is called by his friends, is very popular among the football men. It is a simple trick for littlt "Oofie" to sit on the lap of George Langford, Tech varsity football tackle. The young freshman rooms with his brother Tom at the football dormitory. He graduated from Canadian High school last spring and is a second term freshman.

Records show that students who enter college at an extremely early age make as good grades if not better than do the older students.

When Miss Doris Sayer receives her B. A. degree next spring she will be barely 17 years of age and will be the youngest student ever to receive a degree from Tech. Miss Sayer whose home is in Lubbock, graduated from Hamlin High school.

Although several students are enrolled who are only 16 and 17, a survey made last fall showed that the average was slightly more than 18 years of age and that the average students started to school at the age of seven. The average graduate is between 22 or 23.

'Won't You, My Love, Agree, My This Year's Valentine To Be?'

They Speak Of Love — The Same Old Sort, But Which To Modern Words Resort; Valentinus Evidently Started Something With His Design Cutting, It Seems

BY BLANCHE E. BEAN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

IN days of old when maids and men sat down to write with pen in hand of love divine and hearts that bled for love's old song and many said the same old things in phrases trite. Oh well, them days may've been all right, but look about at modern ways and cast among the recent lays that speak of love—the same old sort, but which to modern words resort and banter when they make their plea of "won't you please, my love, agree, my this year's Valentine to be?"

The tradition of Valentine Day dates back to the time when a handsome Roman youth, Valentinus, was thrown into prison for his religious undertakings to languish there for an interminable period during which he amused himself by cutting designs out of paper and writing on them assurances of his love for the keeper's daughter. On the morning of his execution he left a frilly sheet of fancy paper to his loved one on which was written "Your Valentine."

Later It Was—

Later centuries saw an elaboration of his style with such modest phrases as:

"If thus unseen I dare to woo
Doubt not my honor nor intent
But let this truth remembered be—
True love is always diffident."

And a demure Nineteenth Century maiden might aptly reply:

"Her love a maiden cannot speak
Howe'er she may incline,
For modesty would burn the cheek
Of thy fond Valentine."

Today's effusions speak of the same love but are in a bolder note and modern maid waits not for fearless man to declare undying love before she speaks, in this vein:

"Your luvin's sorter wrecked my heart
And set my brain a-whoi!
But heving will protect me
For I'm a wolking gol!"
Or She May—
Or she may propose to use some modern salesmanship with:

"I'm not a blonde, by men preferred,
Nor have I "It" of which you've heard,
I never flew nor wrote a book,
But man, oh Man, how I can cook!
And cooks, when all is said and done
Well, every man's in need of one!"

And, being her equal in every respect, sir modern knight probably will reply:

"In days of old, girls got their thrills
From Valentines all fired with frills,
While we go in for simpler stuff.
Tell 'em nothin'; treat 'em rough.
But we are none the less sincere;
Come be my Valentine, ol' dear!"

Another year has rolled around and sentiments again abound. An opportunity has come to make amends for what you've done in failing to your choicest friend, a Christmas card-sal note to send. Now you may spend a little time in seeking out a charming rhyme and all your obligations pay with cards this Valentine Day.

THE TINYMITES

STORY by HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES by KING

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

Below the bottle tree there stood nine houses. "My, but they look odd," said Scouty. "Little cabins always quite appearel to me. If folks who own them could be spied, I'd ask them, can we look inside. How any one is furnished is what I would like to see."

The Travel Man said, "We'll find out just what these shacks are all about. I'll rap upon the door of one. Perhaps someone is home. If sights are what we're going to see, we'll be as bold as bold can be. I've found you never get far, if you're bashful when you roam."

He promptly rapped upon a door and then, in 'bout a minute more, a native swung it open with a friendly "howdy do." The Tinies answered, "Oh, we're great. Wee Clowny didn't hesitate to say, "We'd like to look around." The man said, "Walk right through."

So, as the door was opened wide, the Tinymites all walked inside. And there, they very shortly found a big surprise in store. There were no pictures on the wall. There were no chairs. Nope, not at all. The natives sat and also slept upon a rug-spread floor.

"I'm disappointed," Scouty said. "Why, they don't even have a bed. I thought these little houses would be, but they're not." The bunch soon went outside and then hopped into their oxcart again. The oxen strolled on, slowly, 'cause the weather was so hot.

Not very far away they found a group of natives walking 'round with bags of charcoal on their heads. Said Coppy, "What's that for?" The Travel Man replied, "Why they are paid to do that, day by day. That's what the merchants sell for fuel. They'll soon have quite a store."

(The Tinymites drink from a tree in the next story.)

Interest High For Staging Of Show Sometime This Month Or Early In March; Dates To Be Decided On

PLANS for an automobile show in which all the latest models of local agencies will be displayed are to be discussed in a meeting of automobile dealers on Monday night it was announced yesterday by G. At least two days and likely three will be used for the exhibiting of the cars.

Dates for the event are also to be decided in the meeting Monday.

Grandfather's Clock Cabinet Latest Thing In Radio Design; Is Out Now

This new model closely resembles a small grandfather's clock but a rear view (right) reveals that it is really a radio set.

NEW YORK, Feb. 7. (AP)—The "skyscraper", receiver has made its appearance, to bring the season something new in radio design.

The new receiver is somewhat revolutionary in design, its outward appearance resembling that of a condensed grandfather's clock. Looking at the set in place against the wall, all that can be seen is a clock face set in the top of a cabinet which stands five feet high and takes up only a square foot of floor space.

In putting radio apparatus into such a cabinet, engineers found it necessary to place the equipment against the front wall, standing the chassis on end, so to speak.

The loudspeaker is in the top, and the five-foot column of air in the cabinet is used as an adjunct to tonal reproduction. The speaker thus is taken from the front of the cabinet, and engineers say that better distribution of music through a room is thus obtained.

Misses Gladys and Bess Hudson drive the first and only Victoria Ford coupe sold in Lubbock. The car is one of the latest designs in automobiles. It carries five passengers comfortably, is shorter than a regular coach or two-door sedan but the space inside is almost equal to that of the coach. Minus an outside sun and rain visor, the Victoria is equipped with two inside visors, folding against the top of the car when not in use and so constructed as to afford regulation of height.

Investment In Equipment Over Billion

Selectivity Is Primary Requisite In Europe; Power Sets Used Mostly In U. S. Homes; Stations Many

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7—More than 24 million receiving sets, representing a value of one and a half billion dollars, are believed in use in the world today.

That is the estimate of Lawrence D. Batson, department of commerce statistician, in an analysis of world markets for radio.

Batson estimates the total investment in broadcasting stations throughout the world to be approximately $29,000,000, one-half of which is represented by stations in the United States.

Selectivity Primary

Selectivity, he says, is a primary requisite in receiving sets designed for use in Europe. That is attributed to the comparatively small amount of chain broadcasting. With large stations on clear channels, the fan is able to choose his entertainment from a wide field of programs.

In this country, on the other hand, identical programs are broadcast by large stations on cnains in various sections.

Power Sets Greater

Socket power sets account for 52 per cent of the total number in use in North America, for about one-half of the sets in Europe, and one-Crystal sets are fewest in North quarter of those in South America and South America, representing one and two per cent respectively. They are highest in Russia and Turkey where the ratio is around 20 per cent.

Attendance Increase Reported By Lubbock Churches During Campaign

Farming And Home Making To Be Topics

Plans Complete For Third Annual Event; Expecting 2,000 Or More Visitors For Event; Plan Feast

BY J. SAM LEWIS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

PLANS virtually are complete for the third annual Farm and Homemakers Short Course, sponsored by the faculty of Texas Technological college, to be held Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week at the college, with a list of well known speakers, many of them with national reputations, on the program.

The course is sponsored by the college and assisting it are a number of local organizations including the chamber of commerce and the various farmer groups.

Expecting 2,000

An attendance of 2,000 or better is predicted. There will be sessions for men and for women and joint sessions. Demonstrations will feature the program as it is desired to make it as practical as possible.

It is believed, according to H. J. Bower, of the department of agronomy of the college's school of agriculture, that farm conditions of the past year will give the course a larger attendance than in previous years. Farmers, he says, want to learn the best methods of farming to secure the greatest production at the least cost. For this reason, they will attend to seek to learn better and easier methods of production.

Experts To Talk

Principal speakers will include L. E. Call of Manhattan, Kas., the dean of the agricultural division of Kansas State Agricultural college and director of the extension service of the state; L. D. Howell, Washington, D. C., division of cotton marketing, U. S. Department of Agriculture; N. M. Blainey, Chicago, director of farm to market bureau of American Farm Bureau Federation; John Manley, Enid, Okla., manager Texas-Oklahoma Wheat Growers association and a member of the National Grain association and vice president of that group; E. S. Burgess, Dallas, an authority on cotton economics for the Texas Cotton Cooperative association; W. T. Martindale, Chicago, director of the American Farm Bureau.

Besides these men of national reputation, there will be a number of Texas men of more or less national reputation as experts in their line, including several South Plains speakers who are known over the state for their work.

Others Are Coming

R. V. Miller, Austin, secretary of the state plant and seed board is to be here. State experiment station officials will include R. E. Dickson of Spur, superintendent of that station and Don L. Jones, superintendent of the Lubbock station, both of whom have become well known for their work on the South Plains. The state extension service of Texas A. and M. will be represented by Sterling C. Evans, district agent leader; W. W. Evans, county agent at Lamesa; David F. Eaton, county agent for Lubbock; E. L. Tanner, county agent at Spur and Mrs. Minnie Fisher Cunningham, associate editor of Extension News at Texas A. and M.

James Burroughs, Lubbock, seed breeder and president of the South Plains Seed Growers association and L. T. Mayhugh, Plainview, an official of the Texas Wheat Growers association are also on the program.

Faculty To Take Part

Faculty of the local school will play a large part on the program. Headed by Dean A. H. Leidigh, the agricultural program staff will include: W. L. Stangel, department of animal husbandry; H. J. Bower, department of agronomy; R. C. Mowery, department of animal husbandry; K. M. Renner, department of dairy manufacturing; Dean Margaret W. Weeks, school of home economics; Miss Jonnie McCrery, professor of foods and nutrition; Miss D. Erwin, professor of clothing and textiles; Miss Dorothy McFarlane, associate professor of foods; Miss Johnnye Gilkerson, assistant professor of physical education; Mrs. Edna Buster, assistant professor of clothing and textiles; Miss Mayme Twyford, associate professor of foods; Miss Jean Dorrel, asociate professor of applied art.

One of the big features of the program will be the dinner to be served in the college gym at 6 p. m. Wednesday. It will be a dinner of which everything served except the coffee and groceries will have been a product of Lubbock county farms.

Ladies of the home demonstration clubs, under the leadership of Mrs. R. L. Stewart, head of the committee and Miss Ruth Stockton, county agent, have arranged for the procuring of the food. N. H. Payne is general chairman of the committee on arrangements.

Ten clubs have been asked to furnish the food. The following will supply the portions of the meal: Acuff and Wolffarth clubs, turkey, dressing and gravey; Becton and Foster, the salads; Carlisle, garden beets; City Line, the favors and nuts; Hardy and McClung, home made pies; Union, baked beans and New Hope, milk and butter.

Boys, Girls To Serve

Boys and girls of the 4-H clubs of the county will serve the dinner, with one woman from each of the home demonstration clubs in charge of a group.

Following the serving a short program will be given with Normen N. Blaney of the American Farm Bureau Federation and Mrs. Minnie Fisher Cunningham of the extension service as the speakers.

"We have a four fold object in this farmers dinner," H. J. Bower said. "First, is fun and entertainment; second, to show a market for home products; third, the social side and fourth an educational objective."

To Serve 400 Or More

Plans are that 400 or more will be served. Ticket sale has been on some time and the advance sale is reported to be good.

An estimated attendance of from 500 to 800 a day is predicted. Reports to the college and to others interested indicate the crowd will be from as far away as Amarillo on the north; Big Spring and Sweetwater on the south; Spur, Matador and Paducah on the east and to the New Mexico state line on the west.

Large delegations are expected from every county seat town within 75 miles of Lubbock.

The women will hold their program in the home economics building while the general sessions and the men's meetings will be in the livestock judging pavilion.

Three general sessions will be held on Tuesday, two on Wednesday with the banquet at night and two Thursday.

A reception for the visiting ladies will be given Thursday from 2 to 4 p. m. in the home management house of the home economics school.

The subject is the second coming of Christ and the conditions that will prevail on the earth prior to and during the time of his reign, when "the kingdoms of this world shall become the kingdom of our Lord and His Christ and He shall reign forever and forever."

"We have had the failure in the world of monarchy, oligarchy, and autocracy; democracy seems incapable of coping with the world's problems; and dictatorship, even that of the proletariat, is unable safely to govern men; and next, the Bible tells us, is a theocracy when Jesus will return to reign on the throne of his father David in Jerusalem." Visitors are always welcome.
