A Call To Every Man, Woman And Child In The City Of Lubbock! Today Is LUBBOCK DAY At The Panhandle-South Plains Fair — It's Up To All Of Us!

PRACTICALLY every store in Lubbock will be closed today at 1 o'clock while Superintendent M. H. Duncan has announced a half holiday for Lubbock public schools in order that thousands of employes and kiddies may take advantage of the opportunity to make today the biggest on record at the Panhandle-South Plains fair.

This is "Lubbock Day" folks and every time that turnstile clicks at fair park a stronger feeling that the "home folks" are in behind them will be engendered into the hearts of officials of the fair association. They've worked hard for this exposition and today is your one chance to prove to them that this work is appreciated.

Our friends from neighboring towns and communities are here. Each one of them has a day set aside during this week and they have declared they will be well represented.

It would be news if Lubbock ever fell down on the job. But Lubbock was not, is not and never will be built that way. What made Lubbock the Hub of The Plains—the capital city of a vast empire? Cooperation—and that same cooperation should be manifest today. Let's all take off this afternoon—make up our minds that we are going to have a good time and if we do—Lubbock Day at the 1931 Panhandle-South Plains fair will be something to be remembered!

"Lubbock Day" should set the largest attendance of the week. We'll see you at the fair grounds this afternoon.

Good Morning!

Attend The Fair Like They Vote In Chicago—Early And Often!

Governor Sterling, for four years chairman of the state highway commission, was expected to veto the bill on grounds that diversion of that amount, estimated to aggregate $6,000,000 annually, would hamper highway construction work.

United Charities Employment Office Progressing In Its Work; Many Unemployed Are Now Back At Work

More than 100 men have registered at the United Charities employment office, at 708 Thirteenth street, since its opening September 18, County Judge E. L. Pitts said Monday. About the same number of persons seeking laborers also have filed their names, the county judge said.

"During its short existence, the employment office, under the direction of M. H. Cowan, has been very successful in bringing unemployed and jobs together," Judge Pitts said. "Not all of those placed have been in the cotton fields. Mr. Cowan has had several calls for persons who desired to find workers in several different lines.

"There are still many worthy persons out of employment," he said. "We would appreciate having those who have odd jobs about their places of business or residences call the employment office, telephone number 209, and place their names with Mr. Cowan."

Prison Gates Opened To Convict After 23 Years

(By The Associated Press)

CHESTER, Ill., Sept 28.—Jesse Lucas, who spent almost half of his fifty years of life in the Menard state prison here for a murder he always said he did not commit, was enjoying freedom again today as the result of a death-bed confession of another man.

George R. Pond, a farmer who lived near Decker, Ind., confessed he killed Clyde Showalter, a young stock buyer 26 years ago, and brought release for Lucas yesterday, after 23 years as prisoner No. 401

The Illinois board of pardons and paroles paroled Lucas to Mayor T. B. Wright of Mt. Carmel, Ill., who met Lucas at the penitentiary gates and took him back to his home town where the mayor said he would give him a job and the freed man "can make my home his home."

All the years he has spent in prison, Lucas was "a good prisoner," penitentiary officials said.

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—A battle for one of America's largest fortunes, built u by the eccentric Wendel family and kept intact by them for generations, was begun today by an aged spinster of Vicksburg, Miss., who had always earned her own living and now says she has no means of support.

The fight for the estimated $75,000,000 estate, left principally to charity by the last of the Wendels, was started when Arthur Garfield Hays and Samuel Utermyer, two of New York's most prominent lawyers, entered suit in U. S. district court on behalf of Rosa Dew Stansbury, 74, to break the will of the late Miss Ella Wendel.

Probating Enjoined

The probating of the will, which had been set earlier in the day for January 25, was enjoined when Federal Judge Julian W. Mack issued a restraining order.

Miss Stansbury, a relative in the fifth degree, already had signed a document consenting to the probate of the will, but in the action just started she claims her signature was "purchased" after a "conspiracy."

The aged southerner charges undue influence and restraint were brought to bear upon Miss Wendel, who, the complaint says, was not capable of drawing up a will.

Threats Against Her Life Are Told In Long Statement

(By The Associated Press)

SAN ANTONIO, Sept 28. — Miss Albina Kowalik, 24, was on her way back to Houston tonight to answer charges of murder of one man and assault to murder another there last July, following her capture here today by H. L. Ferguson and Raymond South, investigators for District Attorney Walter Tynan, and C. V. F. Arnold, Houston detective.

Before leaving here the woman had signed a statement in which she told of the fatal shooting of R. L. Urquhart, July 4, and the wounding of Dr. J. C. Bothoff, July 2.

Threats Are Cited

Urquhart was shot on a country road near Houston according to the statement, following an argument in which he threatened to kill her. The woman said she took a pistol from her purse and shot him in the back of the neck.

She also accused Dr. Bothoff of threatening her during an automobile drive and said she took a pistol from her purse and fired four times at him, striking him twice. Although wounded, Dr. Bothoff drove away and left her upon the road, she said. He recovered.

Fled From Houston

Frightened at the investigations being conducted by the Houston officers the woman said she came to San Antonio and obtained a position as a domestic, where she was arrested.

The capture of the woman resulted from a four day's investigation by the officers after letters were written to Houston and San Antonio police in which the shooting of the two men were confessed. She said she wrote the letters "just to see what the police would do."

Miss Kowalik readily admitted her identity when the three officers walked in on her and Arnold called her by name. She expressed little surprise and readily assented when asked to make a statement.

Patman Attack Swung Toward Treasury Head

Texas Representative States He Will Bring Impeachment Proceedings Against Mellon At Next Session

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28—After accumulating data on Secretary Mellon all summer, Representative Patman, Democrat, Texas, today reiterated his intention of bringing impeachment proceedings against the treasury head when congress convenes.

Citing the law that prohibits a secretary of the treasury from being directly or indirectly interested in trade and commerce, the Texan said Mellon had violated his oath of office. He said the treasury secretary was a stockholder in the Aluminum Company of America, and that he and his family owned and controlled the Gulf Oil corporation and the Koppers company.

Declines Comment

Secretary Mellon declined to comment on the charges, maintaining the same attitude as when Patman made a similar announcement in Texas some time ago.

It was recalled at the treasury, however, that supreme court decisions had held that ownership of stock in a corporation did not bring a secretary of the treasury in conflict with the law which prohibits him from engaging in commerce.

Previously Secretary Mellon had said that he had severed all business connections when he became secretary of the treasury and had no part whatever in carrying on the business of any corporation in which he owned stock.

Judge Praises Show Exhibits

Quality Of Textiles, Cakes Are Subject Of Comments By Miss Myrtle Murray In Annual Exposition

The quality of exhibits in the textile division at the Panhandle-South Plains fair is better this year than it has ever been, according to Miss Myrtle Murray, College Station, district home demonstration agent, who assisted in the judging.

Miss Murray has judged at a number of the Lubbock fairs and this year she has been high in her praise of the articles shown in the women's building.

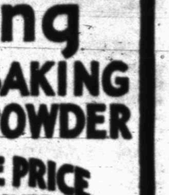

"Miss Hub Jones, director, and her corps of workers, are among the most efficient that I have seen in a fair," was one of her comments Monday evening as she completed her judging. "Frequently, we have to assist in the organization of the departments and are delayed while things are arranged for judging. But in this fear, everything was done quickly and efficiently," she added.

Cakes that were entered in the culinary department were particularly good, she said.

Miss Murray judged in the culinary, textile and club departments and was assisted by Miss Bess Edwards, also of College Station, who is assistant home demonstration agent of the state.

Tech Moves To New Mexico In Aggie Contest

Westerners Meet Golden Tornadoes At Lamesa This Week; Matadors Away From Home Until October 23

Lubbock's favorite football organizations, the Texas Tech Matadors and the Lubbock High school Westerners, off to an auspicious early season start with five victories and no deefats between them, have no games to play here this week but they are not just browsing over the practice fields marking time until further at-home contests. Yesterday's sunshine, although not early enough to do a thorough job, so conditioned the practice fields that practically the only difference felt was the slight increase in the day's laundry bill. At any rate neither the rain not the mud dampened the spirits of the clubs.

Forced to vacate the Fair Park practice field in order that games may be played there each day during the current fair, the Lubbock Westerners probably will work out on the high school field this week Yesterday saw them in a light drill at Fair Park following the scheduled game. It was the first workout since taking the 25 to 0 victory over the Woodrow Wilson High school Wildcats from Dallas. While they went back home as tame as the domesticated member of the specie, the Wildcats gave the locals some good competition and the result branded Coach Chapman's men as real contenders for the District 1 soup. They go to Dawson county Friday to meet the Lamesa High Golden Tornadoes.

The Matadors, none the worse off after their 21 to 0 victory over the Sad Sam Burton's Canyon Buffs Friday night, went through their usual drill at their practice field yesterday. They face another tough lineup this weekend when they journey to Las Cruces, N. M., to keep an engagement with the New Mexico Aggies. The Matadors defeated the Aggies, 14 to 0, last year here

Westerners Meet Slaton Here

Following Friday's game at Lamesa, the Westerners returned home to open their district competition against the Slaton Tigers, youngest members of the Class A family in District 1. Favorites to win over the Tigers, although they expect tougher opposition than general opinion indicates, the Westerners face rather smooth sailing until October 31 when they go to Pampa for the annual setto with the Harvesters.

The Tech gridsters play no more on the local field until October 23 when the Colorado School of Mines eleven comes here. It will be the first meeting between these two clubs in the history of the local school.

General practice, individual blocking and tackling drill and the running of singals was the order at both fields yesterday, the Westerners mixing in a round of calisthenics to loosen sore muscles. The Matadors had a full time workout, Coaches Cawthon and Smith checking on faults seen in Friday night's game against Canyon's Buffs and drilling individuals on certain plays.

Amherst Club Goes Down Before Heavier Locals In First Contest At Fair; Abernathy Meets Olton Today

Coach Swede McMurray's Lubbock High School Cowhands, formerly known as the Pioneers, ran at will over the Amherst High school eleven yesterday in the first game of a series of six to be played during the fair to win by a score of 50 to 0.

Olton and Abernathy teams meet this afternoon at 3:45 in the feature athletic event of the day at the Panhandle-South Plains fair.

Truman Hutson, a shock trooper of apparent first team ability, carried the oval with sensational form for three touchdowns besides doing a big share of the individual ground gaining which placed the ball in position for others to score.

Coach Andy Anderson presented a light team, inexperienced except for one game this season, and against the Westerner understudies it was helpless, never gaining a first down during the entire game. The plucky playing and tackling of Holt, diminutive quarterback, for Amherst was one of the highlights of the game. Once the big Hutson was off for an apparent touchdown but after running about 30 yards Holt brought him down within three yards of the goal line. More than once Holt scrambled through to make neat tackles on the defense.

The Cowboys scored once in the first quarter after a pass from Nelson to Hutson gained 20 yards to place the ball on Amherst's 30-yard line. Bradley took it to the 4-yard line a couple of plays later and Joe Nelson went over for a touchdown. Two came in the second, Bradley, Hutson and Brock advancing the ball from midfield to the goal line in five plays. Nelson helped the trio next time and the same thing was reported in three long plays.

Price Bradbury blocked a punt on the Amherst 30-yard line and crossed the tape ahead of the field shortly after the third quarter opened, and Nelson kicked goal. A few minutes later, Hutson took the ball on the 35-yard line and sprinted for a touchdown, and came back to take it on the 48-yard line two minutes later to scramper half the length of the field, shaking off half a dozen tacklers, for another touchdown. The visitors were on offense only once during the entire period.

Hutson jammed across another touchdown early in the fourth after advancing from mid-field to the 20-yard line. He went over from the 10-yard line for the touchdown. Another blocked kick resulted in the next tally, Love taking it on the 32-yard line and racing for a touchdown. Stone caught a pass over the line for extra point. Little "Stumpy" Bradshaw took the ball at the 40-yard line and drifted down the left sideline for the final score in the fourth.

The starting lineup:

W. Britt	RG	Hale
Bolton	RT	Ford

Mr. Simmons Is Big Thorn To Cardinals

American League Swat Leader Happens To Be An Athletic; Haas And Miller To Oppose Equals In Card Lineup

By GAYLE TALBOT,
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Taken as a group, the Philadelphia Athletics do not have the greatest outfield in the world, but Al Simmons, the "big punch" himself, plays left field for the American League representatives.

The St. Louis Cardinals boast a fine, well-rounded corps of fly-chasers, but there is no Al Simmons in the lot. The bespectackled "Chick" Hafey, the National League outstanding slugger, is the closest approach. For the purposes of a short series, in which the championship might ride on a single batted ball, the Athletics hold the aces.

Pitchers Fear Al

Simmons, who has amassed a .390 average this season to lead the American League for the second straight time, is likely to break up a ball game any time he goes to bat. The pitchers insist he has no weakness. This year he has made 72 extra-base hits, including 22 home runs, and driven in 125 runs.

Roaming the Athletic gardens with the volatile Al are two veteran teammates, George "Mule" Haas in centerfield and Edmund "Bing" Miller in right. Neither is a star of the first magnitude, but they are capable and they have been through the World Series mill for two years. Although he has been handicapped by an injured wrist for the last month and been forced to let young Roger Cramer fill in for him, Haas finished with an average of .326 and had 44 extra-base knocks. Miller, the weakest hitter of the trio, posted a .281 bark.

Mule Has Advantage

Conceding Simmons an advantage over Hafey, Haas also appears to rate an edge over Pepper Martin, the rookie sensation who opposes him in center. That is, providing the "Mule" has rounded into top shape for the big series. If he has not, the Athletics will find themselves seriously outnumbered in that position. Neither Cramer nor Jim Moore, Connie Mack's best available substitutes, can hold a candle to Martin, who has hit at a .298 clip his first year in the majors. If Martin is unable to play because of his injured leg, wrenched Saturday, Sergeant Street, has two capable substitutes in Wally Roettger, .318 and Ernest Orsatti, .295.

The confident youngster, who this time a year ago was playing with Rochester, is the only new face in either outfield. He was good enough to win a regular berth this year over Taylor Douthit, one of the smartest outfielders in the business. Whatever he does against Athletic pitching should be an improvement over Douthit in the 1930 series—two hits in six games. Haas, for that matter, made only two hits in the last series.

Watkins Is Equal

In George Watkins, the Cards have a right fielder who is at least a stand-off for Miller. His fielding average does not compare with Bing's .990, the highest of any chaser on either club, but Watkins has proved himself slightly the better hitter over the season, with a mark of .285. If Street desires to make a shift against the Athletics crack southpaws, Grove and Walberg, he has a couple of fine replacements in Roettger and Ray Blades, both righthanded hitters.

Of the five regular gardeners who are facing each other for the second straight year, Simmons has proved by far the greatest "money" player. He hit for a noble .364 average in the 1930 classic, while Hafey posted a respectable .273, Watkins, .167, Miller .143 and Haas .111.

COACH RAY MORRISON OF S. M. U.

Hammon And Mason In Lineup; Help Methodists

BY BILL PARKER,
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Sept. 28.—The fact that Marion Hammon, all-American tackle of 1929, will be available this season is one of the numerous reasons critics are predicting a brilliant football year for the Southern Methodist won the Southwest Conference championship, but with Hammon, who last season was scholastically ineligible, back in the lineup, and with Weldon Mason, speedy halfback, fully recovered from last year injuries, it is generally conceded that Southern Methodist will be one of the big three in this year's conference.

No Change In System

There will be no changes in Southern Methodist's football system. Coach Ray Morrison, wizard of the passing game, will build much of his offense around the accurate passing ability of the veteran Bob Gilbert, quarterback, and on the receiving ability of Mason, halfback; George Koontz and Kenneth Mills, veteran wingmen. Morrison will have a ground game to balance with his overhead system, and for off-tackle smashes he has 210 pound Howard Sprague, fullback; Emmet Jordan, halfback, and Bert Baxter, halfback, who is showing much promise.

A powerful line, composed mostly of veterans, gives Southern Methodist a front wall defense that will rank with the conference's best. Paired with Hammon at tackles will probably be Haskell Ross, 220 pound sophomore prospect. Jeff Neeley, 198, and John Burleson, 210, are veteran guards. Alfred Delcambre, center, is expected to be an outstanding player through his ability to diagnose plays on the defense, and his aggressiveness on the offense.

Koontz And Mills At Ends

Koontz and Mills loom as regular ends. Jim Clayton, sophomore, and L. D. Webster, with an excellent reputation as a pass catcher, will probably be first string end reserves.

Southern Methodist schedule:

October 3—Simmons University at Dallas. October 10: University of Arkansas at Fayetteville. October 17: Rice Institute at Houston. October 24: Centenary College at Dallas. October 31, University of Texas at Dallas. November 7: Texas A. and M. at College Station. November 14: Baylor University at Dallas. November 21: U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis. November 28: Texas Christian at Fort Worth. December 5: St. Mary's College at San Francisco.

Cotton Gathering Pushing Forward

Although rains Monday probably will slow down the harvesting of cotton on the South Plains, reports yesterday indicated that good progress had been made thus far in gathering the crop.

Fifteen hundred bales of cotton had been ginned by the seven Lubbock gins up to Monday morning. Reports from surrounding towns indicated that most gins in the territory had been busy during the last week.

Cotton picking all over the Plains is late this year. Scarcity of cotton pickers also has retarded the gathering of the crops. Many farmers have kept their help in the grain fields harvesting row crops. With that work over, they are turning to cotton picking.

Latest ginning reports from neighboring towns were as follows: Abernathy, 113 bales; Hale Center, 179; Tahoka, 500; Idalou, 377; Lorenzo, 300; Ralls, 100; Snyder, 2,565; Levelland, 208; O'Donnell, 177.

NEWS BRIEFS

France Baker, former president of the Citizens National bank here, has accepted a position as vice president of the First National bank of Lockney, it was announced Monday. Mr. Baker lived in Lockney many years before coming to Lubbock. Starting his business career with the Baker Mercantile company there, Mr. Baker then went into the banking business there, becoming president of the First National bank. Artie Baker, a brother, is now president of the Lockney financial institution.

Officials of the district office of the Texas Cotton Cooperative association Monday announced the appointment of three more cotton classers and branch office managers. C. M. Hoffman has been assigned to the O'Donnell office; J. F. (Frank) Barnes, to the Lamesa office, and O. C. Reynolds to the Memphis branch, it was announced.

DALLAS, Sept. 26. (AP)—Receiving reservations daily, W. H. "Bill" Hitzelberger of Dallas predicts that the largest "special train crowd" in history of football will go from Texas to Cambridge to see the University of Texas and Harvard game on October 24. Special trains will be routed from many of the larger Texas cities, but Dallas is serving as headquarters for the entire movement of the many fans who will make the trip.

Skepticism Is Voiced

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 28.—Lynching an occasional bad man seems to me almost better than having a law on a state's statute book that is so susceptible to oppressive use by the police as to require the pledge which I heard Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney of the New York department give before a legislative committee here the other day—

Edward Mulrooney

"Don't be afraid to trust us with this power; we'll not abuse it."

It was in connection with his advocacy of one of the Empire State's anti-crime bills, aimed at the stamping out of gang violence in Manhattan that the police commissioner advanced his plea.

The provocation of Gotham's recent child killings has been extreme, certainly.

Nevertheless, long after the epidemic has subsided, it is safe betting that arrests will still continue to be made under the enactment placing the burden of proof upon the suspect to show that he is engaged in a lawful occupation or is living on an income from lawful investments.

VAGRANCY LAWS, such as this one, are deliberately intended, of course, to be elastic.

The original idea back of all of them is to enable the police to exile a relatively small number of individuals of whose toughness they are morally convinced, or of whom maybe they are only suspicious, but against whom they can prove nothing.

It might be all very well if they always were right—never made mistakes, never chased unfortunate folk out of town for no worse offense than being jobless, never were actuated by motives purely of personal dislike, never used the law as a means of extorting money. Not much money is wrung out of ordinary "vags," to be sure, for they have none, but frequently it is to be had from genuinely hard characters, and the beauty of the system is that dishonest bluecoats virtually are offered an inducement to keep these scalawags in their midst, in order to bleed them financially.

THE WASHINGTON, D. C., police have been begging congress (which is the district's city council) for a long time, for some such a law as New York is to be blessed with, but they have failed to get it thus far, due to the conclusive showing by one of its opponents, while it was being argued for, early in the spring of 1929, that its provisions would justify the arrest of Calvin Coolidge unless he left town immediately after the expiration of his term in the White House.

The result was a laugh which ruined the measure's chances, and the recollection of it has prevented its adoption as often as it has been resurrected ever since then.

Naturally, no influential citizen ever is arrested as a "vag" in his home town, but plenty of persons are who are no worse than poor and strangers.

JUST AT the moment, the individuals Police Commissioner Mulrooney is after, as he explained to the legislature, is the class of well-dressed crooks with lots of money, but the law will remain long after the emergency is over—and, for the police, will be extremely convenient.

As for ever repealing it, "Nothing is more difficult," Congressman Fitzgerald of Ohio, for a long time chairman of the house of representatives' committee on revision of laws, once told me, "than wiping a statute out, after it has outlived its usefulness and perhaps become a positive menace.

"People who never dreamed of its existence will rise up in its defense the instant they hear of a move to cancel it."

THE NEW YORK legislature was afraid of its new vagrancy law, too.

All of Acting Mayor Joseph V. McKee's eloquence, all of Commissioner Mulrooney's promises and the backing of ex-U. S. Attorney General William J. Donovan and John W. Davis, the Democrats' presidential candidate in 1924, whose collaborated to make it air-tight, were needed to overcome the legislative codes committee's skepticism concerning its merits.

However, it probably will be some years (that is, until the purpose for which it originally was passed has been forgotten) before it will begin to be employed as a weapon of real oppression.

AMATEUR PILOTS

A substantial increase in the number of private owners and operators of airplanes is indicated by the fact that these amateurs are forming their own organization, to be known as the United States Amateur Air Pilots Association. It is estimated that there are more than 1000 private owners in this country at present.

The new association proposes to draw a line more definitely between the amateur and the professional pilot. It will create a code of ethics appropriate to an amateur standing, restricting its members from race competition against professionals and from conduct unbecoming to sportsman pilots. It is hoped that these restrictions will permit a new basis of insurance for amateur pilots by eliminating certain hazards from their flying. And, in addition, the new club intends to promote the prestige of its membership by various means, including the authorization of a national insigna which will surround the private design of the individual pilot.

The sportsmen of the air have already become a factor in aviation. They have their flying clubs and private fields. The department of commerce permits a private owner to turn his lawn or pasture into a landing field and have it licensed for limited use, if it meets certain requirements. The aviation industry, of course, is keenly interested in the individual owner and operator. Until his numbers increase, the demand for new aircraft will not maintain a large-scale industry. It is likely, therefore, that all possible encouragement will be given to the new association which intends to promote the pleasure of private plane ownership.

Governor Long of Louisiana refused to apologize for saying Texas legislators were "bought." Sounds like Huey.

Once upon a time there was a bridge partner who didn't have to be told the lead was in the dummy.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Pretty NORMA KENT, 20-year-old secretary in a law office, sees MARK TRAVERS for the first time when together they rescue a puppy from downtown traffic in Marlboro middle-western metropolis. Norma refuses Travers' invitation and her indifference spurs his interest.

BOB FARRELL, young lawyer, asks Norma to marry him and she refuses, though she is fond of him as a friend. Norma shares an apartment with CHRISTINE SAUNDERS. She fears Chris is falling in love with her married employer, BRADLEY HART, proprietor of an advertising agency.

NATALIE PRICE, popular debutante, is trying to win Travers as a husband but her efforts fail when Norma at last allows the young man to take her to dinner. She does not know he is the son of F. M. TRAVERS, real estate magnate, but thinks him a clerk in the real estate office. Within a week Mark has launched a whirlwind courtship. Norma finds herself deeply in love but thinks she must send Mark away because of some secret of the past. Chris declares if Norma loves Travers all else is unimportant.

Norma is alone in the apartment one evening when Mark's father arrives and demands she must end the affair with his son. Mark overhears the conversation. Father and son quarrel and Travers declares he will disown Mark if he marries Norma. After his father has gone Mark begs Norma to marry him at once. Chris and Bradley Hart accompany the couple to a little town in the next county where the marriage takes place. Mark takes his bride to the palatial Hotel Marlboro. He discovers next morning that he has only $13 in his wallet. Mark departs, saying he will return soon but by 3 p. m. he has not come.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XIV

The door flew open and Mark Travers, beaming, boomed a greeting from the threshold. In three skips and a lead Norma was in his arms. She was laughing, touching his cheek with reassuring fingers, raising her lips for his kiss and all in one instant. She was aware there was film before her eyes.

"Oh, Mark! I've been such an idiot. I was afraid something had happened—!"

"Happened? Well, I should think there has. I'll tell the world something's happened. What do you suppose I've been doing all this time? Listen, baby, we're starting on a honeymoon in exactly two hours. Look—!"

One of Mark's hands dived into a pocket and came out with a dangling unfolding strips of green paper. Railway tickets. He tossed them toward Norma. A second dive and he was displaying more paper. Greenbacks. More of them than the girl had ever seen. They were folded into a huge roll.

"What—? Why, where in the world—?" Norma floundered for the words.

Before she could go on Mark had caught her arms and was whirling her into a crazy whirl-i-gig pirouette.

"Don't you hear me, Norma, darling? Don't you understand? We're going places! Come on— we've got just two hours to make the train. Blue Springs, Mrs. Travers! How does that strike you? Blue Springs, where the sun shines and skies are almost as blue as your eyes. Riding and bathing and lots of golf. Oh, you'll love it. Blue Springs is the grandest place to play in these here United States. You and me, Norma! Why—why, what's the matter?"

He could not understand the expression in the girl's eyes.

"What's the matter?" Mark repeated. "Don't you want to go to Blue Springs?"

"Of course—only, Mark, do you think we should? I mean do you think right now—?"

"Right now? Say, when is it customary to go on a honeymoon? After the ceremony or 15 years later? If there's some place you'd rather go than Blue Springs I suppose I can change the tickets. I was sure you'd like it there!"

"No, no! It isn't that. I'd love it, of course. I'd—I'd love any place with you."

She could not endure to see the light of enthusiasm fade from his face. Norma went on, laughing. "Did you say we start in two hours? Oh, I'm glad I packed things before you come. We'll have to hurry, won't we?"

Travers was not satisfied. He put a hand on her arm, studied her face searchingly.

"Tell me why you don't want to go to Blue Springs," he said.

"I do want to go, Mark! I guess—well, all the time I was here alone I was thinking we'd have to find some place to live that doesn't cost too much. You—you aren't going back to your father's office, are you? I thought we'd have to save our money until you'd found another job—"

"So that's it!" Mark's laugh was a shout. "But we're not poor, darling. We've got money—lots of it! Here! Take a look at this was again. There's $1,445 in that fistfull of filthy lucre. Enough for a fair sort of honeymoon, don't you think? That's the kind of a man your new husband is, Madam. Walks out without a single penny in his pockets

Billie Hughes Has Many Thrills

Life Is Just One Ride After Another With A Lion Right In Behind Her; He Came Near To Getting A Reward

BY BLANCHE E. BEAN
Avalanche Staff Writer

FOR one seeking thrills, Billie Hughes seems to have them. Yet, to her, life is just one ride after another and, much to her disgust, she is always having to move around from place to place when she would like to settle down some where.

Billie is the woman who rides a motorcycle up and down the sides of a motordrome out at the Dodson's shows, while a hungry lion runs around after her hoping that she takes a spill Last week, she took the tumble and now she is carrying around a scratched arm and a black eye. Her machine came down last and that accounts for the black eye. The lion arrived a little late to get in more than a scratch.

As a matter of fact, the lion was as frightened as she when she took her spill and didn't dash into the melee for a few seconds. That gave some men time to spring a trap door and release the cyclist from the motordrome.

Billie Hughes used to do a lot of stunt driving around Hollywood. She drove an automobile, a motorcycle and an airplane. Then she got into the show business and married so she may stay there. Her husband is here with her and she uses his name in her work. She is a native of Seattle, Wash., and has spent most of her life on the West Coast. Unlike some show people, her family did not precede her here. Her people were lawyers and before she went in for this stunt riding in earnest, she was a stenographer in her uncle's law office in San Francisco.

She likes to ride and she likes to do the thing that an ordinary person cannot do, but she hates to move from place to place to do it. Between rides, she would like to be able to go home and cook a meal or do some sewing and she thinks she would like to settle down to housework as routine.

and comes back with $1,445!"

He had not answered the question about returning to his father's employ but Norma did not notice this. Her eyes were dazzled by that tremendous roll of bank bills.

"Oh, Mark, it's such a lot! You wouldn't spend all that just on a trip!"

"Would I? Lady, Mark Travers' wives always get the best. Look—do you want to know how I got it?"

She nooded, round-eyed.

Mark grinned again. "Sold the car! Might have got more out of it but this had to be cash. That's why I was gone longer than I expected to be."

"You sold your roadster?"

Mark nodded. "Quickest way I could think of to get car-fare and a little extra. We could have driven to Blue Springs but how'd we pay this hotel bill? Eureka—enter Mark Travers, the financier! Now tell me, don't you think you've married a bright boy?"

"Of course I do! Oh, of course I do!"

She knew it must have cost him deeply to part with the roadster, pride of his heart. And he had done this for her! Norma's economic principles, result of grim experience in stretching one week's pay check to meet the next, went glimmering. Here was proof of the love that meant more to her than anything else in life.

They began to make hasty preparations for the trip. Ten minutes of the two hours which Mark had allowed them were gone. The little brown over-night bag which Norma had brought with her the evening before—all the luggage they possessed—stood waiting. Mark held the polo coat and the girl flung her arms into it.

"Look here!" he announced suddenly, "there's a shop where my sister used to buy things. You can get clothes at Blue Springs but you ought to take something more along." (He knew she had only the one brown dress.) "We'll check out, climb into a taxi and dash around to that place—Fanchon's, I believe it's called. You can buy a dress in half an hour, can't you?"

"I can if you'll help me!"

It was all delightful, impossible and exciting fun. They went down into the handsome hotel lobby. Norma was self-conscious, imagined the eyes of everyone about were on her. And why not when such a handsome, distinguished youth as Mark Travers was by her side? Her cheeks flushed.

They stepped into a taxicab and were whisked away into traffic. Here on either side of the street were familiar buildings and yet everything looked different. Mark's hand pressed the girl's. He stole a quick kiss and made her blush more deeply.

"Happy, kid?"

She assured him to his complete satisfaction that she was. Another 10 minutes and they had arrived before the impressive white stone front of "Fanchon's." Twin show windows exhibited each a single frock. Even the name, "Fanchon," on the inconspicuous metal tablet hinted at exclusiveness and expense.

Norma hesiated, wondering if she had the courage to enter such a place. Travers had turned to the cab driver. "Wait for us," he instructed.

They were into the shop and a svelte, black-satin clad woman came forward to meet them. Somehow Norma made it known that she wanted to buy a traveling dress or perhaps a suit. She was in a fever of self-consciousness aware of the shabbiness of her costume in comparison with those about her. She thought of the taxicab outside, its meter clickirig away dimes and quarters. What a way to shop!

Mark's face, smiling, loomed before her and she was reassured.

They bought the traveling suit—a gray tweed with threads of blue in it and snug, trimly fitted collar and cuffs of tight-curled krimmer. They selected gray because Mark reminded Norma she had worn gray the first time he saw her. There was a black hat that came down closely over the head but hid none of the glory of the soft-waving hair about her face. It was a beautiful costume and fitted without alteration. Fanchon brought out even shoes and purse and gloves to go with the tweed suit.

The minutes were flying. Norma, getting into her new finery hurriedly, reappeared from the dressing room.

"I'm ready now, Mark!"

He had caught sight of another frock which she must have—an evening dress of lovely peach-colored soft stuff with shoulders dropped like an 1860 belle's and beneath the bouffant skirt a bit of lace-trimmed petticoat.

"Oh, but we don't have time!" the girl protested.

"Is it the right size?" Mark asked the saleswoman.

"It should be. The young lady is so slender. She wears the gowns exactly as they have been created."

"We'll take it," Mark announced. "Trust to luck it will fit."

"And, Madam, what about sports clothes—?" suggested the saleswoman, emboldened by this wholesale manner of purchasing.

When they finally emerged from Fanchon's barely 15 minutes remained before departure of the train for Blue Springs. Boxes of assorted sizes jostled about them in the taxicab. Mark's roll of bank bills was $425 thinner.

The taxi driver complied with Travers' instruction to "step on it." The cab careened through the crowded streets, turned corners on two wheels, jolted to abrupt, breath taking stops for traffic signals, and discharged them at last at the cab entrance of the huge railway station.

"Fifty seconds to make it!" Mark whistled sharply. "Red cap!" he shouted, "Red cap!"

Two colored boys rushed up and loaded themselves with the packages. Mark thrust a bill at the cab driver whose eyes widened as he realized its denomination. Then with the boys in red caps leading Norma and Mark ran pell-mell for the train gates.

A brakeman was shouting "All aboard! All aboard!" for the last time as they swung onto the car. Breathless, they floundered to seats in their compartment. The colored boys dropped the luggage and made a swift retreat. The train had begun to move, was gradually gathering speed.

Norma looked at Mark.

"We—we got here!" was all she could manage to gasp. She raised one hand to straighten the little black hat that had been pushed back at a foolish angle in the run for the train.

There came a tap at the door. Mark answered. It was the conductor. Something about the tickets needed to be settled. Only a moment and the couple were alone again.

Norma had discarded the troublesome little hat. Mark helped her out of her coat. Somehow this led to slipping his arms about her, whispering precious nonsense. Norma's hair became badly disarranged but neither of them noticed that.

"Happy, kid?"

It was to become a habit of Mark's during the next few weeks to make that inquiry. As habitually and with emphasis the girl was to answer as she did then:

"Of course!"

Without talking they watched the landscape stream past. Mark's arms were about his bride. Her head rested on his shoulder. They had passed the suburbs now and were flying through wooded ravines. The foliage, touched by the first frost of October, had begun to show gorgeous tones of gold and scarlet.

"What time is it Mark?"

"Nearly six. I'll have the porter bring a menu. You'd rather eat here than go into the dining car, wouldn't you?"

She nodded. Instead of summoning the porter, however, both preferred to prolong that perfect interval. The shadows on the countryside grew longer.

Why at that moment of all times should memories she had relentlessly put behind suddenly reappear to plague Norma? She turned away from Mark. What was he saying? She heard the words dimly:

"Oh, there's something I forgot —something important!"

Take $7,000,000

Under the existing distribution of the gasoline tax the schools receive one cent and the highway commission three cents. It was estimated that the highway department received approximately $21,000,000 from the tax and that diversion of one cent to the counties would take about $7,000,000 from this fund.

Senators Walter Woodul of Houston, W. A. Williamson of San Antonio and T. J. Holbrook of Galveston argued that taking the additional funds from the department might cause the federal government to withdraw much of its aid from state projects. Senator W. R. Poage, of Waco, contended that the highway commission now was expending funds from all sources aggregating approximately $50,100,000 annually and that the one cent per gallon allotted to counties would lift a tax burden from the people.

Senator Woodul said the phase of the bill which would take a tax burden from property owners and place it on users of the road was its only good feature.

Cotton Fluctuations On Price Are Narrow — Livestock General Trend Of Cattle Is Lower — Grain Further Weight Placed On Grain

Cotton

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Sept. 28. (AP)—Cotton was generally lower today.

December contracts broke from 6.25 at the opening to 6.13 and closed at that figure with the general market closing steady at net declines of 8 to 12 points.

The opening was steady 3 points lower to one point higher. Traders paid little attention to relatively easy Liverpool cables, attributing the declines in that market to the rally in sterling exchange rates, and the initial prices were steadied by trade buying and covering.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 28. (AP)—Cotton today was decidedly quiet and price fluctuations were narrow. Traders were apparently waiting for some fresh developments, and although the market was supported by fair trade buying and also by price fixing by the mills, there was also hedge selling which however was apparently readily absorbed. Prices made new lows for the season again and closed steady at net declines for the day of 11 to 13 points. Liverpool is due tomorrow 3 to 4 points down.

Liverpool cables came in 26 to 38 penny points worse than due but rallied some before close and reported sales of 10,000 bales of spots.

Annual Fair

Lubbock people will visit their own fair," officials reasoned last night.

Stores To Close

Stores affiliated with the Lubbock Retail Merchants association, local banks, and the postoffice here will be closed at 1 o'clock this afternoon for the remainder of the day.

Public schools will have the morning classes only, enabling pupils to attend the exposition in the afternoon.

No mail deliveries will be made in the afternoon, although mail will be collected in the business district at 6 p. m. and 8:30 p. m., Postmaster John L. Vaughn said.

Gates will open today at 9 a. m., as usual. Livestock judging will begin at 10 a. m. at the livestock arena, with W. T. Magee, judging the Hereford cattle, and Fred Hale, judging Duroc-Jersey hogs. A band concert will be given at 2 p. m., to be followed by vaudeville at 3:30 p. m. At 4 o'clock, a football game, between Hale Center and Muleshoe will be staged in front of the grandstand.

Time Is Changed

The free acts will start at 8 o'clock, rather than at 8:30 o'clock, as originally scheduled. The fireworks program will start a half-hour early.

Finishing touches on some of the booths and displays were not completed Monday until afternoon, because of the rain in the morning. Most of county and community exhibits were in place soon after the gates opened.

Counties represented in the agricultural building were: Lamb, Lynn, Dawson, Collingsworth, Gaines, Bailey, Roberts, Hale, Terry, Hockley, Yoakum, Collin, Haskell, Potter, Harding and Quay county, N. M. Communities with booths were: Union, Posey, Grovesville, Hardy, Liberty, Shallowater, Monroe and New Hope. The state health department, the Texas Cotton Cooperative association and Four-H clubs also had exhibits in the agricultural building along with a large number of individual exhibits.

Judging Underway

Perishable exhibits, flowers, cakes, pies and bread, were received at the woman's building up until noon yesterday. Mrs. Hub Jones, in charge of the woman's department, said much of the judging in her division was under way.

The culinary, textile and art departments, and relics and curios division, attracted a great deal of attention.

Most of the booths in the industrial building were in use yesterday. Attractive displays have been arranged by Lubbock merchants and wholesalers.

Shows and rides of Dodson's World Fair shows were ready to receive patrons when the crowd began to grow in the afternoon. Some of the rides could not be operated until noon, due to damp weather.

By far the best poultry show in the history of the Panhandle-South Plains fair, is the claim of Aubrey Ashley, Lorenzo, superintendent of the department.

Judging is to start at 8 o'clock this morning. Walter Burton, Arlington, superintendent of the poultry show at the Dallas State fair, is the judge. Mr. Burton arrived yesterday.

Bodyguard Is Rushed

A detachment of the personal bodyguard of President Chiang Kai-shek was rushed to the home of Wang to shoot to kill if another attack was threatened upon him.

Wang's foreign policy would be continued, the government announced.

Chinese had hoped the League of Nations would act in their behalf against Japan, despite the latter's promise to withdraw her troops from recently occupied areas outside the Japanese owned South Manchurian railway, and despite Japan's declaration she held no territorial ambitions in Manchuria.

The attack upon Wang for asserted lack of aggressiveness in pressing China's case before the league.

Handicapped By Weak Bond Market, Stocks Are Unable To Make Headway

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 28. (AP)—Handicapped by a weak bond market and the tangled state of foreign currencies, stocks were unable to make much headway today and declined in the last hour when selling was resumed on a moderate scale.

Although Wall street did not feel the gold suspensions by Norway and Sweden would have direct repercussions in this country, selling of those countries bonds, as well as fresh declines in many other foreign listings and U. S. governments, proved distinctly unsettling. Domestic corporate loans also met liquidation, numerous high grades losing a point or more.

Stocks rallied steady to firm in the morning, feeling their way upward behind the metal and railroad shares. The last hour or so, however, witnessed a resumption of pressure against the general list.

ter being called to the attention of the commission, a public hearing was held in Lubbock September 14, and testimony from the petitioning towns was heard by O. D. Hudnall. The traffic bureau of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce presented the petitioners' case.

Decision in the case was made by the Railroad Commission last Friday.

Findings Reported

The Commission's findings and decision, follow in part:

"Prior to the readjustment of rates that took effect June 15, 1931, the rate on cotton from all of these points was 93 1-2 cents per 100 pounds to these port cities.

"These complaints, primarily, charge discrimination in connection with the readjustment of rates. It was unanimously testified to at the hearing that all cotton in the territory is bought on a Houston basis—the Houston price less the freight to Houston, and the complaint was supported by testimony to the effect that owing to the very close proximity of the cotton producing territory adjacent to these towns to stations and shipping points in the 95 cent territory, cotton heretofore marketed at these towns will be trucked by the pioneer and sold at nearby marketing points in the 95 cent territory.

Little Difference

"Considered singly, it may be said that the situation surrounding each of these complaining towns individually is probably not different from that surrounding many other points in the state under the new adjustment of rates. Boundary lines between groups must be drawn somewhere, and whenever they are drawn there are likely to be and probably are many interior cotton marketing points just above them that will have lower rated shipping points to content. There are eleven such boundary lines in Texas under the new adjustment, and it might seem that we should hesitate to start a disruption without knowing where it may be stopped. But here it seems to us that, regardless of what precedent may be established, is a situation that merits careful consideration and some correction, considering, as a whole, this cotton growing territory on the Panhandle and the locations of the petitioning points there to.

"In reaching our conclusions in this case we are not unmindful of the fact that in the cooperative proceedings pursuant to which the new adjustment of rate was made there was a finding by the Interstate Commerce Commission of discrimination and preference, Texas vs. Oklahoma, and that in order for such prejudice and preference to be removed there must be no substantial disparity between the cotton rates from Oklahoma and from Texas points to the Texas Gulf ports. We do not see that what we are doing here will create any substantial disparity between the rates from Oklahoma and from Texas points to these ports, or create any discrimination against Oklahoma."

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Sept. 28. (AP)—Readjustments from a gold basis in various European countries put further weight on grain prices today, despite enlarged purchases of North American wheat for overseas. Wheat closed unsettled, 2-8-3-4 cents lower, corn 3-8-5-8 down, oats 1-4 to 3-4 off, and provisions varying from 5 cents decline to a rise of 15 cents.

Sheriff Offers Reward In Fire

Sheriff Will Arthur posted a reward of $100 Monday for evidence that will lead to the conviction of the guilty party or parties in the burning of the Berset gin at Dickens Friday night.

"The burning of the gin was surely the work of a fire bug," Sheriff Arthur said. He pointed out that threats had been made against the gin several days prior to the fire. Sheriff Arthur corrected a statement made Saturday, that E. M. Berset, operator of the gin, had refused to come down on the price of ginning. Mr. Berset was the first ginner to lower his price in Dickens, the sheriff said.

Take $7,000,000

Under the existing distribution of the gasoline tax the schools receive one cent and the highway commission three cents. It was estimated that the highway department received approximately $21,000,000 from the tax and that diversion of one cent to the counties would take about $7,000,000 from this fund.

Senators Walter Woodul of Houston, W. A. Williamson of San Antonio and T. J. Holbrook of Galveston argued that taking the additional funds from the department might cause the federal government to withdraw much of its aid from state projects. Senator W. R. Poage, of Waco, contended that the highway commission now was expending funds from all sources aggregating approximately $50,100,000 annually and that the one cent per gallon allotted to counties would lift a tax burden from the people.

Senator Woodul said the phase of the bill which would take a tax burden from property owners and place it on users of the road was its only good feature.

Most of the booths in the industrial building were in use yesterday. Attractive displays have been arranged by Lubbock merchants and wholesalers.

Shows and rides of Dodson's World Fair shows were ready to receive patrons when the crowd began to grow in the afternoon. Some of the rides could not be operated until noon, due to damp weather.

By far the best poultry show in the history of the Panhandle-South Plains fair, is the claim of Aubrey Ashley, Lorenzo, superintendent of the department.

Judging is to start at 8 o'clock this morning. Walter Burton, Arlington, superintendent of the poultry show at the Dallas State fair, is the judge. Mr. Burton arrived yesterday.

clubs and ink pots and wrecked his office. The minister received three wounds in his chest and his arms and legs were injured.

Bodyguard Is Rushed

A detachment of the personal bodyguard of President Chiang Kai-shek was rushed to the home of Wang to shoot to kill if another attack was threatened upon him.

Wang's foreign policy would be continued, the government announced.

Chinese had hoped the League of Nations would act in their behalf against Japan, despite the latter's promise to withdraw her troops from recently occupied areas outside the Japanese owned South Manchurian railway, and despite Japan's declaration she held no territorial ambitions in Manchuria.

The attack upon Wang for asserted lack of aggressiveness in pressing China's case before the league.

Handicapped By Weak Bond Market, Stocks Are Unable To Make Headway

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 28. (AP)—Handicapped by a weak bond market and the tangled state of foreign currencies, stocks were unable to make much headway today and declined in the last hour when selling was resumed on a moderate scale.

Although Wall street did not feel the gold suspensions by Norway and Sweden would have direct repercussions in this country, selling of those countries bonds, as well as fresh declines in many other foreign listings and U. S. governments, proved distinctly unsettling. Domestic corporate loans also met liquidation, numerous high grades losing a point or more.

Stocks ruled steady to firm in the morning, feeling their way upward behind the metal and railroad shares. The last hour or so, however, witnessed a resumption of pressure against the general list.

ter being called to the attention of the commission, a public hearing was held in Lubbock September 14, and testimony from the petitioning towns was heard by O. D. Hudnall. The traffic bureau of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce presented the petitioners' case.

Decision in the case was made by the Railroad Commission last Friday.

Findings Reported

The Commission's findings and decision, follow in part:

"Prior to the readjustment of rates that took effect June 15, 1931, the rate on cotton from all of these points was 93 1-2 cents per 100 pounds to these port cities.

"These complaints, primarily, charge discrimination in connection with the readjustment of rates. It was unanimously testified to at the hearing that all cotton in the territory is bought on a Houston basis—the Houston price less the freight to Houston, and the complaint was supported by testimony to the effect that owing to the very close proximity of the cotton producing territory adjacent to these towns to stations and shipping points in the 95 cent territory, cotton heretofore marketed at these towns will be trucked by the pioneer and sold at nearby marketing points in the 95 cent territory.

Little Difference

"Considered singly, it may be said that the situation surrounding each of these complaining towns individually is probably not different from that surrounding many other points in the state under the new adjustment of rates. Boundary lines between groups must be drawn somewhere, and whenever they are drawn there are likely to be and probably are many interior cotton marketing points just above them that will have lower rated shipping points to content. There are eleven such boundary lines in Texas under the new adjustment, and it might seem that we should hesitate to start a disruption without knowing where it may be stopped. But here it seems to us that, regardless of what precedent may be established, is a situation that merits careful consideration and some correction, considering, as a whole, this cotton growing territory on the Panhandle and the locations of the petitioning points there to.

"In reaching our conclusions in this case we are not unmindful of the fact that in the cooperative proceedings pursuant to which the new adjustment of rate was made there was a finding by the Interstate Commerce Commission of discrimination and preference, Texas vs. Oklahoma, and that in order for such prejudice and preference to be removed there must be no substantial disparity between the cotton rates from Oklahoma and from Texas points to the Texas Gulf ports. We do not see that what we are doing here will create any substantial disparity between the rates from Oklahoma and from Texas points to these ports, or create any discrimination against Oklahoma."

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Sept. 28. (AP)—Readjustments from a gold basis in various European countries put further weight on grain prices today, despite enlarged purchases of North American wheat for overseas. Sweden and Norway's abandonment of the gold standard was construed as bearish. Late weakness of Wall street securities was also a disturbing factor.

Wheat closed unsettled, 3-8-3-4 cents lower, corn 3-8-5-8 down, oats 1-4 to 3-4 off, and provisions varying from 5 cents decline to a rise of 15 cents.

Sheriff Offers Reward In Fire

Sheriff Will Arthur posted a reward of $100 Monday for evidence that will lead to the conviction of the guilty party or parties in the burning of the Berset gin at Dickens Friday night.

"The burning of the gin was surely the work of a fire bug," Sheriff Arthur said. He pointed out that threats had been made against the gin several days prior to the fire. Sheriff Arthur corrected a statement made Saturday that E. M. Berset, operator of the gin, had refused to come down on the price of ginning. Mr. Berset was the first ginner to lower his price in Dickens, the sheriff said.

Mr. Berset plans to start rebuilding his plant at once and expects to have it in operation within a short time, Sheriff Arthur said.
