

Algerian City Destroyed...

20,000 Feared Dead In Quake

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — As many as 20,000 people were feared dead today and an estimated 250,000 others, including injured and homeless, affected in a major earthquake in the Algerian city of Al Asnam, which destroyed 80 percent of the city and sent tremors across the Mediterranean into southern Spain and France.

A residential complex housing some 3,000 people was one of the worst hit areas and the newly built Cheliff Hotel, popular with foreign visitors, was completely flattened, the agency said. In Algiers, the U.S. Embassy said no American citizens were known to be living in the Al Asnam region.

The tremors spread through the countryside and APS said the worst hit were the towns of Oued Fodha, El Attif and Sendjaf, where about 10 percent of the houses in each town were destroyed. It gave no casualty figures.

President Chadli Benjedid ordered a week-long period of mourning.

Al Asnam is located on a major faultline of the earth's crust 150 miles west of Algiers.

The quake toppled whole apartment houses and many other buildings, including a girls' high school, APS said. Also destroyed, it said, were Al Asnam's only hospital, central mosque, main department store, the court house and regional administrative center and civil defense headquarters and older, prefabricated buildings.

Like Boom Days...

Oil Leasing Flurry Spreads Over County

You would have thought by now that every foot of land in Scurry County would be leased for oil and gas exploration.

But that is far from the case. Leasing is going on at a pace reminiscent of the busiest boom days of the late 40s and early 50s, and it has kept the county clerks' personnel on the run.

There have not been as many real estate transactions as usual this year because of the high mortgage interest rates, said Beverly Ainsworth, county clerk. "But the oil and gas instruments have more than made up for it."

So far this calendar year, the clerk's office has added more than 1,000 pages to its oil and gas documents on file.

"They are leasing all over the county," said Mrs. Ainsworth.

Some areas of the county which were all but written off back in the 50s, suddenly are attracting interest. This is particularly true of the area southeast of Snyder around Hermleigh. In some cases, there were old wells that proved out at only 12 or 15 barrels per day and it wasn't considered economically feasible to produce them in those days. Now, however, with "new" oil bringing more than $35 per barrel, they are worth a second look.

Also some areas where there has been little, if any, drilling are attracting interest. It is filling the record books in the clerk's office and it is putting a lot of cash into the pockets of Scurry County landowners.

Reports indicate that most of the leases are going for $35 to $50 per acre. Also, more of the potential production is going to the royalty owner these days.

"It used to be that the land owner got an eighth, but now many of them are getting three-sixteenths, and there have been a few getting as much as a fourth," said Mrs. Ainsworth.

So far, there has been no indication that the activity is going to decline. On the contrary, wherever there is any land not under lease, it seems there is someone ready to snap it up.

Ultimately, of course, there will not be any land left unleased, but when that day arrives, the oil people will either be drilling or have it in production, which indicates plenty of activity ahead.

Weekend update

Uganda Town Captured

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Government officials said Friday that military forces invading Uganda from neighboring Zaire and Sudan have captured at least one major Ugandan town.

Foreign Affairs Minister Otema Allimadi declined to identify the invaders, but the attacks followed increased border raids by forces former President Milton Obote has described as loyal to ousted dictator Idi Amin.

Reliable sources said the attackers killed an entire unit of government troops near Koboko, a small town near the Zaire frontier and Amin's hometown. The size of the unit was not specified.

Diesel Smuggling Scheme

LAREDO, Texas (AP) — U.S. Customs agents say they have seized 12 trucks over the past week in a scheme to smuggle diesel fuel to the United States for sale at inflated prices.

"We have seized 12 trucks so far and the rest may be pending based on the outcome of our ongoing investigation," said Jim Lindsey of the customs investigations office. He said no arrests had been made yet.

The trucks fill their "saddle tanks" — side tanks used to store extra fuel for long trips — in Nuevo Laredo, across the border from here. Lindsey said. Each tank can hold up to 300 gallons of diesel fuel, which sells for about 32 cents a gallon in Mexico.

Soviet Flight Ends

MOSCOW (AP) — Two Soviet cosmonauts ended the longest space flight in history and returned to Earth today, the Soviet news agency Tass reported.

Leonid Popov and Valery Ryumin returned to Earth today after accomplishing the program of work on board the Soviet station Salyut 6. Tass said shortly before 2 p.m. Moscow time.

The cosmonauts returned on their 185th day in space. They were launched from Soviet Central Asia on April 9 and shattered the space endurance record on Oct. 1.

Reagan Wins In WTC Balloting

Ronald Reagan won a rather convincing victory Friday in a mock election held at Western Texas College.

Conducting the election were members of a Human Development class taught by Mickey Baird.

The ballot listed the names of the four candidates scheduled to be on the Nov. 4 general election ballot for the office of president.

Reagan topped the field with 190 votes, while Jimmy Carter trailed with 110 votes, John Anderson the independent, and Ed Clark, the Libertarian, wound up with 18 and 7 respectively.

"This was the big project in leadership for the class," said Mrs. Baird.

Participation in the voting

Scurry Voter Lists Total Over 7,900

Scurry County will have just over 7,900 voters qualified to cast ballots in the Nov. 4 general election.

Beverly Ainsworth, county clerk, said that some 60 new voters were added to the rolls in the closing days of the registration period. A voter must be registered at least 30 days before he is eligible to cast a ballot. This voters were required to be registered by Oct. 5 to cast ballots on Nov. 4.

Personnel at the county clerk's office were busy preparing registration lists for applications received by mail and posted across the county.

There were a number of applications reaching the clerk's office just before the deadline, but some were already registered. However, Mrs. Ainsworth said it appeared that at least 10 new registrants would be added to the poll lists. That would make a total of 7,900.

Some Taking Off Monday For Holiday

Some Snyder area residents will get a holiday Monday as the result of a travel problem.

A number of schools and state offices will be closed for the day, including the Department of Public Safety Driver License office.

Also taking the holiday Monday will be banks and savings and loan associations. Business firms and schools will follow their regular business day schedules, however.

Banker Backs Bill Clayton

HOUSTON, AP — A former chairman of the Democratic National Finance Club died Friday in the Texas State Capitol. Texas House Speaker Billy Clayton would never accept any money from organized labor.

Jess Hays, a Dallas mortgage banker, also said the speaker was a man of honor and one that would have accepted an offer of $500,000.

Iraq Cuts Ties With 3 Nations

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iraq said today it broke diplomatic relations with Syria, Libya and North Korea because they airlifted arms to Iran. Iraq also claimed it has enough gold and foreign currency reserves to keep fighting for another year without any financial strain.

A government statement broadcast by Baghdad Radio said the embassies and consulates of Syria, Libya and North Korea have been ordered closed. It said Syrian and Libyan diplomats have 48 hours to leave, and that the North Korean mission has 72 hours to wind up its affairs.

On Friday Libya became the first Arab state to side with the Iranians, and pro-Iraq sources in Beirut, Lebanon, said Libya and Syria, which have pledged to unify their nations, have begun airlifting surface to air missiles and other war supplies to Iran via the Soviet Union. They also said that Iraq has threatened to use missiles and bombs against the capital of Iran's Khuzistan Province and Dezful to the north and warned Iranian civilians to evacuate Iraqi tanks were reported massing for a drive on the Abadan oil center and the rest of the east coast of the Shatt al-Arab estuary.

The SDN Column

Del Hirst, a short wave radio addict, saw the item in Wednesday's SDN about the discovery of a 60 pound gold nugget in Australia, so he was listening for a first hand report when he picked up a Melbourne short wave station Wednesday night.

And sure enough, the valuable nugget, some estimates ran as high as $14 million, was a hot topic on the air waves over here.

Hirst said the Melbourne radio people did not identify the prospector who found the nugget, but did come up with a report that it was a 10-year old child. The Associated Press had reports that the prospector requested anonymity.

Maie Kress came up with this observation: "Why do you insist we wait until it is past 1 p.m. to rob the bank?"

Well as Al says, "You will commit no crime" before it starts.

Crime statistics keep going up, and there is something new added from time to time.

There is an out of the ordinary report from Switzerland. Counter espionage authorities there have cracked the case of a young couple who offered to sell secrets to the embassies of several foreign countries, including the Soviet Union and People's China.

They were not plans of fortifications in all of those Swiss mountain passes, or for anti aircraft defense, but chocolate recipes, confidential formulas for 40 varieties of the Swiss specialty.

The Swiss take this form of industrial espionage very seriously. Just how seriously the Soviets, Chinese and other foreigners took it was not reported. There was no indication that the would be sellers stirred any interest in their offer.

But if they had, it would have been one sweet deal.

The first national political convention was held in Baltimore in 1831 by the "Anti Masonic Party," which failed to survive.

We doubt that any of them would recognize what they started in the extravaganzas put on nowadays by the two major parties.

Five Teens Die In Car Wreck

YANTIS, Texas (AP) — Five East Texas teenagers died and another was hospitalized after a one-vehicle accident south of here early today.

Department of Public Safety troopers said four of the victims were pronounced dead at the scene by Wood County Peace Justice Fred Weatherford. The fifth died at a hospital in Tyler, about 3 1/2 hours later, said DPS investigator Roger Lough.

Trooper Daniel Higdon said preliminary investigation shows there were six people, three boys and three girls, in the truck when it went out of control at a high rate of speed, swerved across the roadway and overturned several times.

"I was down at the hospital when the injured girl came in," Higdon said. "My understanding from talking to her is that they were all in the passenger compartment of the pickup."

All six were thrown from the wreckage, Lough said.

Investigators identified the dead as the driver, James Mann, 19, his 14-year-old wife Candy, Bobby Byram, 16, and John David Preson Jr., 16, all of Yantis, and Terry Herring, 17, of Quitman.

Donna Riddle, 15, of Emory, is listed in good condition at Medical Center Hospital in Tyler with cuts and bruises.

Agents from the National Transportation Safety Board said they would investigate Higdon said the federal agency has asked to be notified anytime there are five or more people killed in a motor vehicle accident.

9th Graders Flunk Basic Skills, Says State Board Of Education

AUSLIN, Texas (AP) — Fifty-four percent of Texas ninth graders fall short of mastery in at least one of the three R's, the State Board of Education was told Friday.

"Certainly we cannot be satisfied when this many ninth graders fail to meet a minimum requirement in the basic skills areas," said Commissioner of Education Alton Bowen.

Bowen and his staff presented results of the First Texas Assessment of Basic Skills to the state board.

"We will work with the school districts to design programs which will be more effective in meeting the needs of these students," he said.

Students were tested to see if they met specific skill levels — or mastery — in reading, writing and mathematics.

Bowen said that the 118,467 pupils who failed at least one of the three tests ordered by the 1979 Legislature included 80 percent of the black ninth graders tested, 71 percent of the Hispanic students, and 41 percent of the "other" students.

The "exit level" exams given the ninth graders were designed to determine whether pupils had attained a level of skill in reading, writing and mathematics that is necessary for anyone leaving the school system.

The results indicated about 70 percent met the level in reading and mathematics tests and needed no remedial work. However, only 59 percent passed the writing test which called for a composition on an assigned topic.

The three-phase tests also were given to fifth graders but was graded only by subject and not "exit level."

In mathematics, 86 percent of the fifth graders could add a column of numbers when regrouping was required. An equally high 85 percent could select a unit of measurement needed to determine weight, mass or liquid volume. However, only 44 percent could use pictorial models to identify fractional parts of objects or sets of objects.

In reading, 47 percent of the fifth graders could understand the meaning of words in a given context but only 36 percent could distinguish a fact from a non-fact.

Ninety-four percent passed the spelling, portion of the writing test but only 64 percent passed the punctuation part.

The district-wide and campus scores were reported to local communities in June. Individual scores were reported only to parents, students and teachers directly involved.

The three, whose names were not released, were members of an earth science class at Beaufort Junior High School, officials said. They became impatient during a trip to a Beaufort Bay marsh to gather marine samples and decided not to wait for the tide to rise. They began walking over the mud to the water.

The class was equipped with boards and poles, but "the students were whooping it up, didn't do what the teacher told them, and some people got hysterical," said Principal Riddick Trowell.

"I'm distressed, but the students really were in no danger," he said, adding future trips are still on for the marine biology program.

Beaufort policemen used life preservers and ropes to pull the students back to solid ground, Trowell said.

Several other pupils also got stuck, though not as deeply, he said.

All of the muddy students were cleaned off at school. The three won't be going on any more outings, the principal said.

Princess Of Monaco Gets Her Divorce

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (AP) — Princess Caroline of Monaco has been granted a divorce from her husband of two years, Philippe Junot, the wealthy French playboy whom she married against her parents' wishes.

The Judiciary Revision Court of this tiny Mediterranean principality granted the divorce without stipulating grounds only six days after the request was filed.

The 23-year-old princess is the daughter of Prince Rainier and Princess Grace, the former American movie star Grace Kelly.

The couple's separation had been announced in August after months of rumors about the marriage being in trouble.

The palace announcement came shortly after a West German magazine published a photograph of Junot, 40, emerging from a Paris apartment with a girl who had her arm around his neck.

Will D. Reynolds and his brother founded the family ranching operations in 1882, and at one time did business in eight states. Indian trouble forced the Reynolds family to consolidate their holdings — 50,000 Herefords by 1900 — in Texas.

A spokesman for the 820,000-acre King Ranch in South Texas said the Reynolds operation is one of the state's largest.

Born in 1889 in Albany, Texas, Reynolds attended Exeter Academy in New

Adult Education In 9th Year At WTC

Western Texas College is in its ninth year of Adult Education classes for community adults who have not completed high school and now feel the need of improving their educational background.

About 45 students are enrolled this year. They may choose to attend night classes in the Learning Resource Center at WTC on Tuesdays and Thursdays or may attend afternoon classes at the education center of Our Lady Guadalupe Catholic at 13th Street and Avenue M.

Students are not required to attend a given number of class meetings and they do not receive grades in the courses they undertake. These students are working for their own self-improvement and they make the decision about how many class meetings they can attend and speed at which they cover the material being studied.

Many of the students are interested in taking GED tests for certificates generally accepted in lieu of a high school diploma. Ena Flack, instructor, said. Students who have been out of school for a short time may need only a few weeks of classes to brush up on the subjects covered by GED tests. On the other hand, persons who have been out of the classroom for many years may need a much longer period of study.

Other instructors for the Adult Education classes are Elizabeth Jenkins and Esther Clarady. Mrs. Flack works with students in the afternoon classes as well as the night classes on the WTC campus.

There is no charge to students for the Adult Education classes and all materials are furnished.

Adult Education offers instruction in English usage, math (basic math to beginning algebra), social sciences and natural sciences.

Students may enroll in Basic Education at any class meeting and they continue their studies for as long as they choose. Persons wishing information are invited to call the Continuing Education office at 573-8511, extension 240, or to attend any class meeting.

Engine Repair Course Set

Small Engine Repair will be studied in a Continuing Education course scheduled at Western Texas College from Oct. 20-30.

Students will attend classes from 6:30 p.m. on Oct. 20-23 and on Oct. 27-30. Jimmy Hess will be the instructor for the 25 hour course. Fees will be $30 per person.

Registration will be held from 6:15-6:30 on Oct. 20 in the WTC Automotive Shop and classes will meet there.

Persons wishing information or to reserve space in the class are to call the Continuing Education office at 573-8511, extension 240.

Hurricanes extract heat energy from the warm ocean and then release it into the atmosphere. If converted to electrical energy, the energy released by a single hurricane in one day would keep the United States supplied with power for three years.

Haircutting, Braiding In WTC Course

Haircutting and Braiding will be taught in a 15-hour course scheduled to begin Oct. 27 at Western Texas College.

Classes will meet from 6:30-9:30 p.m. on Oct. 27, Nov. 17, Nov. 24, Dec. 8 and Dec. 15. Fees will be $35 per person, with enrollment limited to eight students.

Students will need to purchase a mannequin costing $22 or bring a model. The mannequin may be purchased through the WTC cosmetology department.

Judy Border, WTC instructor, will teach the course.

Students will study basic and advanced braiding techniques and basics of cutting with scissors, including mock or actual cutting of such styles as precision, wedge and mushroom.

Persons wishing information may contact Mrs. Border or the Continuing Education office at 573-8511, extension 240.

Bankers Plugging For Familiar Branch Plan

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Bankers want Texans to accept a branch-banking proposal that has a history of opposition dating back to the early 20th century.

On Nov. 4, for the second time in four years, voters will consider a proposed constitutional amendment allowing banks to establish unmanned teller machines away from banks.

The proposal will hold the No. 1 position on the nine-issue constitutional amendment ballot.

In 1977 voters rejected a similar measure by more than 136,000 votes out of some 552,000 cast.

Charles Cheever Jr., past president of the Texas Bankers Association, attributed the defeat to Texas' fear of reaching the end of a grocery line and finding a machine that would instantly deduct the price of their purchases from their checking accounts.

With automatic deductions there would be no float time between the writing and cashing of a check — a delay some people use to make ends meet.

If the constitutional amendment is adopted, a bill approved by the 1979 Legislature would restrict unmanned tellers to the following uses:

- Cashing checks or depositing funds.
- Transferring funds between accounts of the customer in the same bank.
- Paying on a loan from the bank.
- Obtaining the balance in an account.

Three organizations representing 1,416 Texas banks — the Bankers Association, Independent Bankers Association of Texas and Texas Association of Bank Holding Companies — support the proposition.

"We think it's the wave of the future," said E.P. Kolly, executive vice president of Abilene National Bank. "It'll help us compete better with savings and loan institutions, which have branches."

A constitutional amendment is needed to set up unmanned tellers away from banks because federal courts have ruled they are, in effect, branch banks, which are prohibited by the Texas Constitution.

The prohibition dates from 1904 and is the result of a desire by Texans to guarantee the stability of banks and to prevent a banking monopoly.

A former state representative Austin businessman Don Caynes, was chosen by bankers to promote the proposal. Caynes admits the amendment is a form of branch banking but stresses the convenience of the unmanned tellers, which already are used at banking locations.

With passage of the amendment, however, unmanned tellers could be installed around town so Texans would not have to travel to the main bank or wait in drive-in lines.

Opponents of the measure claim it is simply the first step toward a "reckless society" taking away cancelled checks that prove bills and taxes have been paid.

U.S. Funding Training Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 250 military personnel from El Salvador are going through a U.S.-funded training program in Panama geared to improving their "self-discipline" and respect for human rights, according to the State Department.

Department spokesman John Trattner on Thursday sought to downplay military aspects of the program, noting that the training course was officially called "Human Rights Aspects in International Defense and Development."

San Angelo Defendant In Law Suit

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — The City of San Angelo and a construction company were named as defendants in a $1 million lawsuit filed Thursday by the widow of a worker killed in a sewer trench cave-in almost two years ago.

David Zapata, 27, and Earl Cook, 64, were crushed to death Nov. 2, 1978, after a 40-foot section of caliche weighing several tons broke off one side of the 12-foot trench they were digging.

Teresa Guzman Zapata, acting in behalf of herself and her two daughters, named the city and Reece Albert Inc. in the suit, filed in district court. She seeks $500,000 in damages from the city for economic loss resulting from the accident and $500,000 in punitive damages from the company for what her attorney called "gross negligence."

Attorney Sam Sparks said construction companies are required by city ordinance to slant or shore a ditch that is deeper than 6 feet, and that the city is charged with enforcing the ordinance.

Reece Albert spokesmen could not be reached for comment Thursday. Assistant City Attorney Mindy Ward said she could not comment until she studied the ordinance.

"The Theatre," erected in 1576, was the first such structure built in England exclusively for the performance of plays.

Says Defense Secretary...

U.S. Military Ready

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Secretary of Defense Harold Brown sees at least one encouraging aspect of the Iraq-Iran war, despite his insistence that the United States is strictly neutral and only wants to see the fighting stop. "Even after almost two years of lack of supply and running down of an Iranian military, which was supplied and trained by the U.S., Iran has nevertheless stood up pretty well," the defense secretary told reporters Thursday during a trip here to visit troops at Fort Bliss.

During the visit, he knocked reports of a weakened, ineffective U.S. military. In Washington, The Associated Press Thursday obtained a copy of a memo that reflects new orders from Brown to military officers telling them to stress what he calls "the positive factors of our readiness" rather than shortcomings.

The memo from Maj. Gen. James H. Johnson, a senior operations officer on the Pentagon's top military staff, also said Brown has decided not to send Congress a periodic report on the services' combat readiness. Although the memo did not say so, it is presumed the report will be held up until it is revised to meet Brown's wishes.

"The Iraqi forces have been supplied and trained by the Soviets, and here's an example of a conflict between those two," Brown said in El Paso. "Many people have been surprised that the Iranians have been able to stand up as well as they have. It says to me that American military equipment and training are pretty good."

At a Chamber of Commerce luncheon later, Brown insisted that U.S. military forces are "ready to go to war if necessary." He denied that his declaration was prompted by Republican presidential challenger Ronald Reagan's charges that the Carter administration has allowed the nation's defenses to sag.

"The important question is, are we able to go to war if necessary and to fight effectively? Let me assure you, the answer to that question is yes," Brown told civic leaders of this West Texas city.

Earlier, reporters repeatedly questioned Brown about possible political motivations of his trip and his remarks about military preparedness less than a month before the Nov. 4 presidential election.

"For the secretary of defense to speak about the capability and readiness of U.S. military forces can hardly be seen as a political event," Brown said.

Brown met briefly in private with the nation's only living five-star general, Omar Bradley, a resident of Fort Bliss, and afterward, Bradley, 87, joined the defense secretary at the head table.

Brown said the military's own combat readiness ratings had been misinterpreted in the press.

STAR SHELTON

Shelton To Show Original Designs

Original fashions by Star Shelton definitely stand out in a crowd.

Each garment is one-of-a-kind, made from fabric wove, sewn and finished by the designer. She hand-dyes many of the yarns for her creations, often utilizing the space-dyeing technique and warp painting. Each garment is given a descriptive name according to the image it evokes for her.

Mrs. Shelton will be showing her original designs in a fashion show scheduled on Nov. 8 in the Scurry County Museum at Western Texas College. A luncheon will accompany the style show and tickets are $6 for the program. Tickets must be purchased by Nov. 4, and information about tickets may be obtained by calling the museum office at 573-6107.

Clothing and its various aspects have always fascinated Star Shelton. She began sewing her own clothes at the age of 10 and earned the bachelor of science degree in clothing and textiles at Texas Tech University in 1969. There she had classes in pattern making, draping, design, textiles, and art design.

The aspect of weaving which she enjoys most is combining colors and textures in classic garments. She strives to create clothing which is unique and different and, most of all, beautiful.

A style show featuring 24 hand-woven cotton garments by Mrs. Shelton was presented at a luncheon for the Texas Independent Ginners Association state convention in Dallas last March, and several garments were featured on the "Evening Magazine" show on KCBT TV from Lubbock about that same time. Her creations have been shown at the Texas State Arts and Crafts Fair in Kerrville in 1979 and 1980. A group of her cotton fashions were shown to representatives of the National Cotton Council of America in Memphis, Tenn., in May, 1970.

Mrs. Shelton and her husband, Weldon, live near Lamesa, where he is a farmer. Their daughters Cherie and Danica, are "apprentices" in the fiber arts.

Pigs have the reputation of being very dirty, but that is not true. They will wallow in the mud to keep cool and to protect themselves from insects, but if they are given clean beds of straw, they will keep much cleaner than horses or cattle.

FERTILIZING SMALL GRAIN

With the abundance of moisture, fall grain is now about up and growing. Some problems with armyworms have been causing damage in some fields. Infestations reached economic damage and controls were applied. In other fields, the damage has been below economic damage and producers are monitoring the population closely.

Prospects are excellent for the production of fall grazing of small grain pastures. For maximum production of grazing, adequate nutrients must be available. If a pre-plant fertilizer application was not made, producers may want to consider top dressing the small grain fields with nitrogen.

Mitrogen is the key element for small grains. Dryland soils can utilize applications of 30 to 50 pounds of nitrogen per acre when grazed and still have sufficient nitrogen for a grain yield of 20 to 30 bushels. Applying phosphorous after the crop has been established is not recommended. Broadcasting phosphorous on top of the ground usually results in this element remaining on top of the ground or above the root zone and no benefit to the crop. Phosphorous applications should be done before or at planting.

Soil samples may be taken now and results received back from the lab in approximately seven days. Soil test cartons are available in our office at 2605 Ave. M.

As yet, greenbugs have not shown up in small grain in damaging numbers. There are some, but very low populations. Producers will need to keep an eye out for greenbug infestations in the latter part of November and on into December. Hopefully, these will not develop into damaging populations.

FRUIT TREE BORERS
Fruit trees, such as peach, apricot, plum (stone fruits) should be treated for the lesser peach tree borer between Oct. 15 and Nov. 15.

In treating for this pest, dig a shallow trench around the tree approximately one foot from the trunk. In this trench scatter paradichlorobenzene crystals (moth balls) at the rate of one ounce per diameter inch of the tree.

After putting the crystals in the trench cover, mound up the dirt three to six inches deep and water. Leave this mound of dirt until about March 1, and then rake it down away from the trunk.

This borer annually causes extensive damage to our stone fruit trees.

Flu Vaccine

Shortage Seen

ATLANTA (AP) — Declining production of influenza vaccine coupled with an unusual clamor for the shots may bring nationwide shortages just as the flu season gets into full swing this year, health officials say.

Georgia and Indiana already have reported vaccine shortages, and other states are being surveyed, said Dr. Alan Hinman on Thursday. Hinman directs the immunization division, at the national Center for Disease Control here.

In an effort to avoid the large vaccine stockpiles left after recent winters, vaccine manufacturers apparently held production steady or reduced it slightly this year, officials said.

Saturn's rings cannot be seen except through a telescope of at least 3-inch aperture.

Pollution Fight Due

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new squad of Justice Department lawyers is stepping up the federal government's fight against polluters throughout the country.

Angus Macbeth, deputy assistant attorney general, said Thursday that air pollution from steel plants was among prime targets for the 16-lawyer environmental enforcement section.

Asked if the Carter administration's recent promise to help relieve the economically troubled steel industry of regulatory burdens would affect such cases, he replied: "The word is that we will move ahead until the law is changed."

Many Opinions Are Voiced On Conservation

WASHINGTON (AP) — It may be months before a boiled-down plan is recommended to Congress on how best the government should work in the future to conserve the nation's soil and water, but the delay is not because of a lack of public opinions.

And those opinions, embodied in 64,872 responses collected during the first three months of this year when the Agriculture Department asked for views in what it called "the RCA process" of implementing the Soil and Water Resources Conservation Act of 1977.

Earlier, going back to 1978, thousands of meetings were held across the country in local conservation districts to explain the RCA process. Full-scale hearings also were held here and in other cities.

A 200-page report of the public's comments was issued on Wednesday by department's Soil Conservation Service.

Generally speaking, the department last winter offered a series of documents for public review and comment.

Those included some possible "alternatives" for operating government conservation programs, some of them going back for more than 40 years, and some "objectives" the government might consider for the future.

According to the report,

the public responses included these general characterizations:

—Most people value highly the nation's soil, water and related resources, and "are concerned about the capacity" of those resources to meet future needs.

—They expressed "strong support for USDA's traditional objectives" for conservation and the preservation of agricultural land.

—Most of the responses favored "redirecting present conservation programs and conservation performance bonuses" rather than shift from the traditional voluntary programs to mandatory or "cross-compliance" devices that would force farmers to carry out conservation measures in return for other federal benefits.

—Those commenting "generally say that they would support a national conservation program that is well funded, voluntary and responsive to local conditions and needs."

Persons who commented on the department's agencies and conservation programs "generally believe that the programs are effective but say that the agencies could do an even better job if they had more funding, if they could provide more technical assistance, and if they were more efficient."

Despite Boycott...

Boothe's Emmy Visit Backed By Colleagues

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Powers Boothe says most of his colleagues rallied to his support after he became the only actor to show up at the Emmys broadcast to accept his award.

Boothe, who stars in the NBC drama "A Cry For Love," won the Emmy as best leading actor in a limited series for "Guyana Tragedy: The Story of Jim Jones."

The Emmy broadcast was boycotted by all actors during the strike. All actors, that is, except Boothe, who said his appearance was either courageous or foolhardy.

"People have gone out of their way to support me," said Boothe. "Ninety-five percent have supported me."

He said he had first decided not to attend, then changed his mind at the last minute. "I felt the thing that was missing was the human element," he said. "We're in the business of making films, not striking or anything else. I didn't set out to do it, but it was like a breath of fresh air."

He said he didn't do it for the publicity or to add fuel to the controversy. Asked if he thought it would hurt his career, he replied: "Absolutely not. There's no legal way that it can, and I think we're past the McCarthy era."

He and Susan Blakely star in "A Cry for Love," which will be broadcast Monday night.

In the movie, he plays an alcoholic and she plays a speed freak.

"I think more of us are alcoholic than we like to admit and more of us are addicted to drugs than we will admit," he said. "People put down others who are on heroin or smoke pot, but they take their Valium and diet pills." Just because someone writes you a prescription doesn't make it any less a drug addiction." Boothe and Miss Blakely fall in love and work to relieve each other's pain, and eventually save each other from self-destruction.

Boothe said he has had several offers for series since NBC's "Skag" folded earlier this year. In that series, he played a rival for Skag's job as foreman at the steel plant.

"No one ever told me why NBC killed 'Skag,' but I think I know," he said. "The ratings were not good, but it had a very loyal following. There's a possibility it may come back as a midseason replacement."

"The problem is that every series needs some kind of action: The action for 'Skag' generally took place at the steel mill. That's what excited people. Suddenly, it moved away from the steel mill and became more talky. It was that laborer's world that I thought was super."

Cuban Pair

Asks Asylum

GANDER, Newfoundland (AP) — A Cuban man and woman sought political asylum after they fled a Havana-bound tour group resting at the airport terminal here while their East German plane refueled, officials said.

The man asked for asylum immediately Thursday, was processed by customs and escorted away.

The woman at first asked to stay in Canada, but then reboarded the plane after an interview in which an interpreter said she wanted to go to Havana. But before the plane could leave Gander, customs officials boarded it and escorted the woman back to the terminal, believing she might want to change her mind.

Officials theorized the woman might have decided to return under duress, since she had been surrounded by other Cubans during the interview. When the officials talked to her again — in private — she decided to stay in Canada.

GOD IS FAITHFUL
By R. Virgil Mott
Trinity UMC

Do you ever use the phrase, "get your feet on the ground," either concerning yourself or someone else? It has been one of my favorite statements of perspective. It could be literal in its use.

There have been moments in my life when disembarking from a plane that I was particularly glad to get my feet on the ground.

More often, though, we use it to suggest that doubts have been resolved, perspective has been restored, or a frantic, uncertain chapter has been ended. This is the impact that is made upon me by Paul's word to the Corinthians: "God is faithful. It suddenly resolves the frustrations of our time, quiets the frantic elusive search after unknown objectives, cools the fever of impatience and lifts the smog and fog of discouragement."

This is the calm after the storm or the solid stillness that follows an earth tremor.

How long has it been since you read the scripture, "Be still and know that I am God?" The question is, are you as faithful to God as he is to you?

What does it mean to you to know that God is always there when you need him most? God keeps his promises. Do we keep ours to Him?

Report Card On Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Religious groups and other tax-exempt organizations may get the go-ahead from the Internal Revenue Service to publish "report cards" assessing how members of Congress vote on various issues.

David E. Landau of the American Civil Liberties Union said Thursday that a private letter ruling by the IRS has granted such approval to an arm of the United Church of Christ.

Previously, the IRS contended that tax-exempt groups are barred from intervening in political campaigns and thus issuing a report card would endanger their tax status.

LIKE YOU, THEY'LL HAVE ALL OF THE NATURAL GAS THEY'LL NEED.

Just as you do today, your children will have a dependable supply of natural gas for their homes — if they're served by Lone Star Gas Company.

In other words, we aren't about to run out of natural gas. The facts are strong and very reassuring.

Our supply is based on purchase contracts for the gas from more than 19,000 wells in Texas and Oklahoma. And because no well lasts forever, we prepare for your future needs by steadily buying new long-term reserves.

The fact that we're well established in Texas and Oklahoma also works in your favor. Nine basins in these two states are estimated to contain 50% of the nation's remaining onshore gas reserves.

And Lone Star's pipeline system gives us excellent buying opportunities in eight of them.

Producers drilled thousands of wells in these major basins last year. They're drilling more this year. And we'll be shopping hard, just as we always have, for the best energy values for your future.

Tests Toughest On Minorities

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — There are many more black and Hispanic ninth grade pupils inadequately trained in reading, writing and mathematics, than "other" pupils, the State Board of Education was told Friday.

Results of the first Texas Assessment of Basic Skills tests given 43,520 fifth and ninth grade pupils, ordered by the 1979 Legislature, show 118,467 ninth graders, or 54 percent failed in one or more of the tests.

"Certainly we cannot be satisfied when this many ninth graders fail to meet a minimum requirement in the basic skills areas," said Commissioner of Education Alton Bowen.

"We will work with the school districts to design programs which will be more effective in meeting the needs of these students," he said.

Students were tested to see if they met specific skill levels — or mastery — in reading, writing and mathematics.

Bowen said that the 118,467 pupils who failed at least one of the three tests included 80 percent of the black ninth graders tested, 71 percent of the Hispanic students, and 41 percent of the "other" students.

The "exit level" exams given to ninth graders were designed to determine whether pupils had attained a level of skill in reading, writing and mathematics that is necessary for anyone leaving the school system.

The three-phase tests given to fifth graders was graded only by subject and not "exit level."

In mathematics, 86 percent of the fifth graders could add a column of numbers when regrouping was required. An equally high 85 percent could select a unit of measurement needed to determine weight, mass or liquid volume. However, only 44 percent could use pictorial models to identify fractional parts of objects or sets of objects.

In reading, 87 percent of the fifth graders could understand the meaning of words in a given context but only 36 percent could distinguish a fact from a non-fact.

Ninety-four percent passed the spelling portion of the writing test, but only 64 percent passed the punctuation part.

The district-wide and campus scores were reported to local communities in June. Individual scores were reported only to parents, students and teachers directly involved.

First Fine Art Event Tuesday

The Western Texas College Fine Arts Association will present its first program of the season at 8 o'clock Tuesday night in the Fine Arts Theatre.

Pianist William Westney, Browning artist-in-residence at Texas Tech University, will be the soloist for the evening. Born in New York, Westney earned distinction as the top piano prize winner in the 1975 Geneva International Music Competition.

His other awards have included a Fulbright grant for European study, winning the 1973 competition of the Piano Teachers' Congress of New York, and being selected as the only American winner in auditions held by Radiotelevisione Italiana. He received his bachelor's degree from Queens College in New York and the doctor of musical arts in performance from Yale University.

In addition to recitals, broadcast performances and orchestral appearances throughout the Eastern seaboard, Westney has appeared abroad as soloist with l'Orchestra de la Suisse Romande (a concert carried on "European" radio and television), the Collegium Musicum of Basel, and l'Orchestra de Mulhouse.

In 1976, Westney and the Yale Symphony performed OrNSTEIN played it with Stokowski and the Philadelphia Orchestra in 1925. His CRI recording of the striking futurist music was singled out by Newsweek Magazine as one of the year's most outstanding releases of American music.

Membership in the Fine Arts Association is still open and interested persons are asked to call the Fine Arts Division office at WTC, 573-8511, extension 234. Individual memberships are $30 for the complete season. Patron memberships are $100.

The Association's second program will be the WTC Theatre Department production of "Becket" on opening night, 13. The Opera Theatre Group from Southern Methodist University will be presented on Nov. 21. Three programs are also planned in 1981.

Medicaid Pact Ruled Binding

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Board of Human Resources has a "legally binding contractual obligation" to give the state's $2 billion four-year Medicaid insurance business to a New York firm, Attorney General Mark White has ruled.

White said the board must abide by a decision it made July 15 when it voted 3-0 to give the contract to Bradford National Corp. of New York City.

Friday's opinion was a setback for electronics magnate H. Ross Perot, whose National Heritage Insurance Co. had pressed the board to reopen the matter and give it the lucrative contract.

Bill Wright, spokesman for Perot, said National Heritage "most definitely" would sue and that the company's lawyers do not agree with White that the vote in July amounted to an oral contract with Bradford.

Texas is the only state that uses an insurance mechanism to pay the medical bills of recipients of Supplemental Security Income (the elderly and disabled) and Aid to Families With Dependent Children.

The state buys a group insurance policy for the welfare recipients and pays the monthly premiums.

Board Chairman Hilmar G. Moore of Richmond said Friday that it appears Bradford will provide that policy.

"As an individual board member, I am prepared to hammer out the best contract we can (with Bradford) and go forward," Moore said.

White left one possible loophole by saying the board had the authority to cancel a contract if it was "in the best interest of the state" to do so. He said, however, the law "does not authorize unilateral termination without cause."

Moore said he believes the board would have to give the New York company a chance to perform before it could cancel the contract.

"How are you going to know what's in an egg until it hatches?" he said in a telephone interview.

The board's vote in July came after both its staff and an outside actuary, Paul Barnhart of St. Louis, said Bradford's bid was $20 million to $50 million cheaper than Perot's.

But Perot said the experts were making some incorrect assumptions about future use of the Medicaid program. He also claimed his experience in holding down costs was not given full consideration.

Perot started his insurance company specifically to handle the state's Medicaid business, which National Heritage took away from Blue Cross in 1977.

After Perot individually contacted each board member, the board decided on July 29 to back off and take another look.

White's opinion, however, said the board had no such privilege, and Moore said the Bradford contract would be discussed at the board's Oct. 24 meeting and might even be signed then.

"We do not believe the department may revoke its acceptance of a bid by later refusing to sign the contract," White said.

Poll Indicates Scurry County Conservative

Scurry Countians definitely lean toward the conservative side in their political and social philosophy, according to a poll taken during the Scurry County Fair.

The poll was a project of the Snyder Moral Action Committee, headed by Lynn Wilkerson, president.

The poll was taken in a booth at the fair, said Wilkerson. People were asked to respond to a list of questions, and none was asked his or her political, religious, or ideological persuasion, and no signatures were required on the ballots.

Results show that those participating (910 ballots were cast) are overwhelmingly opposed to the government spending more than its revenues, abortion on demand, increasing federal involvement in public schools and increasing homosexual rights.

They were in favor of voluntary prayer in public schools, a reduction in government election or reconfirmation of federal judges every six years and a big majority felt that the government is unresponsive.

The questions and responses were as follows:

Do you think this country was founded on God's principles? Do you favor a return to them? Yes, 91.8 percent; no 4.2 percent; no opinion 4.0 percent.

Do you favor abortion on demand (when the life of the mother is not in danger)? Yes 20.8 percent; no 72.7 percent; no opinion 6.5 percent.

Do you favor passage of the Equal Rights Amendment? Yes 24.3 percent; no 69.3 percent; no opinion 6.4 percent.

Do you favor voluntary prayer in public schools? Yes 93.1 percent; no 4.6 percent; no opinion 2.3 percent.

Do you favor more federal involvement in education?

Yes 12.8 percent; no 81.3 percent; no opinion 5.9 percent.

Do you favor government spending more than revenues (more than it takes in)? Yes 6.6 percent; no 89.5 percent; no opinion 3.9 percent.

Do you favor a reduction in government? Yes 83.4 percent; no 9.0 percent; no opinion 7.6 percent.

Would you favor election or reconfirmation of federal judges every six years? Yes 74.6 percent; no 14.0 percent; no opinion 11.4 percent.

Do you favor increasing homosexual rights? Yes 4.6 percent; no 89.0 percent; no opinion 6.4 percent.

Do you feel government is unresponsive? Yes 78.2 percent; no 12.7 percent; no opinion 9.1 percent.

WTC Poll

was voluntary, but the polls were open to all students, faculty and staff on the WTC campus.

Prior to holding the election, the class had gathered campaign materials from as many sources as they could find so that prospective voters could familiarize themselves with the candidates and their platforms.

Most of those participating appeared to take the project seriously, although there were a few write-ins that obviously were in the prankster category.

As might be expected, J. R. Ewing received a few votes, as did Willie Nelson, Boss Hogg, Paul Harvey, John Connally, and even Richard Nixon.

Even so, 47 of those who participated were undecided on a choice for president.

County Court

A charge of fleeing from a peace officer netted Jerry Don Greene, Rt. 2, Box 126, a $300 fine and a 180-day probation.

An identical $300 fine and 180-day probation was given John William Martin of Big Spring on a charge of possession of marijuana.

Enrique Flores, 2107 28th St., received three days in jail and a $200 fine to a charge of driving while intoxicated.

All the sentences were based on guilty pleas.

Dear Abby

Mother Wants to Be Parent Without Partner

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I want to be a surrogate mother. I've been married for 14 years. My only child is 17, but I'm still young enough to have another. I'm 33, but don't look it. I'm still asked for my I.D. when I go out.

The problem is my husband. He doesn't approve of the surrogate mother idea at all. When we married, he was a widower with six children — all grown and gone now. We had one child together, then he had a vasectomy, and I've been wanting another baby ever since.

Abby, I have always felt that giving birth is the most noble function a woman can perform. It's the reason we were put on earth. Those of us who are able-bodied and fall in this duty are committing some kind of crime against nature.

I feel so full of life and want more than anything else to have a beautiful, healthy baby for some woman who can't have one. I wouldn't mind giving it up. I just want to experience the thrill of pregnancy and childbirth again. Please help me to feel wanted.

My husband, who is against any kind of service to his fellow man. He got mad when I started to work for Meals on Wheels, but I am still active in the program anyway. Where can I register to be a surrogate mother?

UNFULFILLED IN L.A.

DEAR UNFULFILLED: I know of no place where one may "register" for surrogate motherhood. Arrangements are usually made through physicians and scientists. Please discuss this with your doctor. It's a far more complicated commitment than Meals on Wheels.

DEAR ABBY: I work as a waitress in a nice family-type restaurant. We have our "regulars" who come in every week. One family comes in every so often with their teen-age children. They eat a large meal and are always given good service.

After they finish eating, the teen-agers always leave first and the man goes to pay the bill. His wife lingers at the table applying makeup and then casually scoops up the generous tip her husband has left and puts it in her purse!

We work hard for our tips and find it hard to stand by and watch! What should we do?

TIPLESS

DEAR TIPLESS: Tell the cashier that the next time "generous husband" pays his bill, to confide quietly, "Somebody around here has been getting to the tips before the waitresses, so would you please hand the gratuity to your waitress instead of leaving it on the table?"

DEAR ABBY: A reader signed STUFFED wrote to say that after a satisfying meal, in order to be more comfortable, he would unbutton the top button of his trousers. This embarrassed his wife. You suggested "bigger trousers or smaller portions."

There's another solution dreamed up by a New York tailor named Wetzel. (He makes my clothes; that's where I got this story.)

It seems that Wetzel also made clothes for a Mr. G. who loved to eat. Mr. G. confided to Wetzel that after a filling meal he would slip down his zipper a bit. His wife thought this crude, so Wetzel solved the problem by putting two zippers in all of Mr. G.'s trousers — one in front and one in back — so Mr. G. could reach around under his jacket and pull down the rear zipper without being noticed!

N.Y. ADMIRER

DEAR ADMIRER: I wonder how many tailors will read this and try the "Wetzel maneuver?" Nu?

Businesses Report Prospering In Midst Of Current Recession

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) — U.S. business leaders offer a gloomy forecast when asked about the American economy. But a question about individual companies brings a different answer.

"We expect a ninth straight record year," says J. Paul Lyet, chairman of Sperry Corp.

"We definitely are seeing a bottoming out of the recession" in the sale of consumer products, adds Reginald H. Jones, chairman of General Electric Co. "It hit bottom last July."

Progress is slow, says Lewis W. Foy, chairman of Bethlehem Steel Corp., but at least movement is in the right direction. "The fourth quarter is going to be a lot stronger than the third."

The corporate executives offered their views to reporters at the fall meeting here of the Business Council. The council, headed by Jones, is made up of chairmen of 65 corporations and includes as inactive members top executives of another three dozen.

The council's official economic forecast, prepared by 20 analysts, is for little or no growth in the third and fourth quarters, and abnormally slow recovery from recession next year and inflation of about 10 percent through 1981. The consensus of the analysts is that the economy is unlikely to slip backward into recession, even if the Federal Reserve Board tightens the money supply.

As for individual companies, several executives shared the view of Irving Shapiro, chairman of E.I. duPont de Nemours & Co. The chemical industry hit bottom in July and is now recovering.

Shapiro said, but because the economy plunged to such depths in the second quarter. "It's like saying we had a 104-degree fever and now it's down to 103."

Donald V. Siebert, chairman of J.C. Penny Co. Inc., one of the nation's largest retailers, blamed a share of the current sluggishness on the credit controls that were imposed last March as the government concentrated on fighting inflation. Now that the controls are gone, he added, cold weather and the coming Christmas season will boost sales again.

Thomas A. Murphy, chairman of General Motors Corp., one of the hardest-hit victims of the recession, said car sales are rebounding from disastrous summer levels and truck sales will pick up again as businesses resume capital spending. "Consumer confidence is back and we look for good improvements in the next few months," he said.

All the economic forecasts were prepared without considering the fighting around the oilfields in the Middle East, said Clifton Garvin Jr., chairman of Exxon Corp. Experts guess that damage to refineries in Iran and Iraq has been greater than the world has been led to believe, Garvin said.

The effects of the war, which could cost the world four million barrels of oil per day, will depend on whether consumers change their habits and what other oil-producing countries do, Garvin added. Although Saudi Arabia is pushing production to the maximum of 10.5 million barrels a day, he said, "we don't know what they plan to do with the extra one million barrels daily."

LAMESA—It certainly couldn't be called Snyder's finest hour, but you'd never have known it from stopping by the dressing room after the game.

Snyder's Tigers, opening the year with a dismal 0-4 record, broke out of the streak with a 28-14 win over Lamesa here Friday night and it was enough to send players and coaches into a frenzy.

"We did a lot of things that weren't too good on there tonight," head coach Mike Jenkins told the group. "We fumbled, and gave them some big plays and we found ourselves with third down and about 93 yards to go a time or two, but I'd like to say one thing. There were several times there that you could have just folded and quit, but you didn't. I'm proud of you."

The Tigers never actually had a third and 93-to-go situation, but it must have seemed like it at times. Yellow flags flew like confetti, and 105 yards of penalties were stepped off against the visitors. Throw in another 27 for pass interference, and it's more like 132.

Snyder also lost three fumbles and gave up an interception. But Lamesa wasn't having it any easier. The Tornados turned the ball over six times, twice on fumbles and four times on interceptions.

The Tigers fumbled from the opening kickoff, but it took a second gift before the Tors painted some points on the board. Snyder held after Lamesa took over on its 23-yard line, but after getting the ball back, turned it over again on the third play.

This time, working from the Tiger 21, Lamesa drove it in. Two plays netted a minus-three yards, but on third down, Tor quarterback Sam Hansard found Mark Ray, open for a 24-yarder and the first Lamesa TD. Will Wright's point-after kick was good, and with 5:10 still remaining in the first quarter, the hosts led, 7-0.

Snyder again fumbled away its next possession, but turnaround was fair play in this game, and Brent Roemisch did just that - picking off a first-down pass by Hansard to return the ball to Tiger paws.

Roemisch's effort left Snyder at its own 23-yard line and from there the offense began to click. Keying the surge was veteran flanker Dale Jenkins. The Tiger game captain pulled down tosses of 18 and 17 yards from quarterback Mike Roemisch, and combined with runs of 4 and 1 yards by tailback Perry Echols - the Tigers reached the Tor 37. A penalty gave the visitors possession at the 27.

The scoring strike was that Mike Roemisch's 23-yarder route again this time for the whole 27-yard chunk with 0:09 left in the opening period. Matt Taggart's PAT kick was low.

Penalties sapped the power from possible drives by both teams through the early second quarter. Snyder took over on the Lamesa 32 after a short punt, but a 15-yard walkoff for holding caused the effort to stall.

Though the ball went over on downs, Snyder got another big break moments later. Defensive back Casey Peterson slipped in front of a would-be Lamesa receiver and ripped off the second interception of Hansard, giving the Tigers excellent field location at the 17.

Echols, Snyder's leading ball carrier on the night, ripped for 9 yards on first down, and picked up all but a few inches of the necessary 10 on the next carry. Mike Roemisch put the points on the sheet on third down, as he faked to Echols up the middle and raced to his right for the flag. A Roemisch to Echols pass bought the 2-point conversion, and the visitors were ahead, 14-7.

Lamesa drove the ball 28 yards and into Tiger territory after the kickoff - before a clipping penalty shoved the ball back to the Tor 35. A Hansard-to-Ray pass gave them new life at the Snyder 47, but lucked stayed with Snyder as the hosts fumbled on the next play and Vaughnie Voss was there to recover it.

The Tigers found themselves in a hole immediately when officials charged them with another 15-yard penalty, and despite runs of 5, 5 and 3 yards, Snyder was forced to punt.

Once again fate was with the visitors. The Lamesa deep man bobbled the punt reception and Steve Ham was there to pounce on the ball for the Tigers, setting up their final TD of the half.

Taking over at the Lamesa 23, Snyder got runs of 2 yards by Echols and 16 by Roemisch before the tailback burst over from five steps out with 1:06 to play before intermission. Glenn Parham's kick-after was good for a 21-7 Tiger lead.

It was in the second half that the Tigers might have jumped ship, were they going too. The Tornados, celebrating their homecoming, returned to the field with a whirlwind offensive attack that cut the score to 21-14. As if that weren't enough, Snyder couldn't seem to move the football - but they stuck in there - they did move it - and they won the ballgame.

The Tors took the kickoff and marched 72 yards in 11 consecutive running plays to score. Todd Hatchett took the ball in on a 33-yard scamper. Wright's kick was good, and with only 5:18 gone in the quarter, Lamesa was back in the contest.

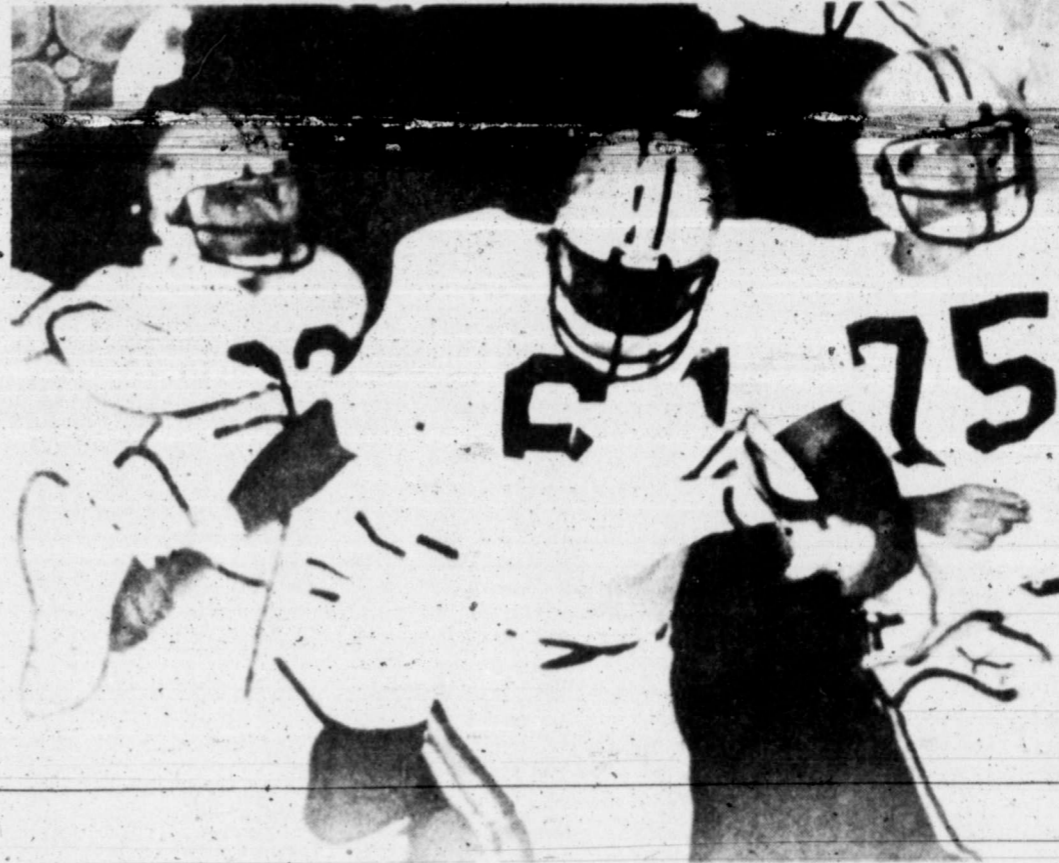

Lamesa's Ray and Snyder's Peterson exchanged interceptions, following the touchdown, and though the Tigers broke loose on an Echols 16-yard run to mid-field, penalties again began to hurt the visitors.

Snyder's big break was to come near the center stripe; a break the Tigers were to make for themselves. Lamesa took the ball after a punt to the 47 and in two plays, moved to the Tiger 45. With third down and two yards needed, Tor tailback Bernard Williams got the call, but Snyder's Matt Davis charged in to drop him for a three-yard loss.

At the Snyder 48-yard line, Lamesa elected to go for the first down. The call was to Williams again and this time the fleet runner looked like he had a chance. He galloped to his left, searching for a way around the corner...but suddenly there was none. Good pursuit by the Tiger team cut him off, and Voss and Peterson brought him down for no gain.

The defensive effort gave the offense new life. Echols ran for three yards on first down and another two on second, but a face-mask penalty awarded the visitors a first down at the Tor 30. On the next play, Roemisch sailed the ball to Parham, who had beaten his defender down field. The sophomore receiver cradled it in, pulled away from a would-be tackle, and dashed into the end zone for the touchdown. He then tacked up the extra point, and Snyder had an insurmountable 28-14 victory.

Snyder was to get three more first downs in the final minutes of the game, but penalties shot down each drive. Lamesa, in turn, got passes of 23 and 12 yards from Hansard and a 27-yard interference call that put the hosts on the Tiger 5-yard line, but Miguel-Ortega intercepted in the end zone to kill the threat.

Coyotes Conquer, 43-18

GAIL—If you can't teach an old dog new tricks, why not a Coyote instead? That's what Borden County Coach Randy Roemisch is attempting to do this year, and so far he has his Coyotes turning cartwheels. The Coyotes, who dropped down from 11-man to 6-man ball this season, impounded the Ira Bulldogs here Friday, 43-18 to remain one of three unbeaten teams in District 2-1A play.

It was billed as the veterans against the newcomers and offense against defense. In the end, the defense-minded newcomers - the Coyotes - conquered.

"Take nothing away from Ira," commented Roemisch, whose team has won four straight in a 4-1 season. "They'll hit you. They didn't come out in the offense we expected them to (Coach Tom Pierson's Quail offense). They ran the spread most of the time. Also, their speedster, Wade Pierson, got hurt in the second quarter and didn't play the second half.

"But we sure don't want to take anything from our boys either. We outscored some fine athletes. My kids went out there to play. They played hard and hit hard," he added. Neither team scored in the first quarter. Ira was the first to put points on the board when James Crowder scampered in from 20 yards out in the second period. The PAT kick failed.

Borden County took the lead for good moments later however, as Van York sprung across on a 15-yard run and Jr. Benavidez kicked the 2-point conversion for an 8-6 Coyote lead.

York made it 14-6 later in the period on a two-yard dash. The follow-up conversion failed.

Ira stayed with the hosts though, scoring on a 60-yard pass play from Crowder to Scott Sharp that made the halftime score 14-12 in favor of Gail.

Following homecoming rituals at intermission, the Coyotes went back to work out of the triple-option in an attempt to throw the visitors a curve. Bart McMeans was the key athlete this time, racing 30 yards to the end zone for a 20-12 Borden County advantage. The hosts stretched the margin to 26-12 when Mike Peterson crossed over from five yards out, but Ira kept close as Kesner countered with a 10-yard TD run for the Bulldogs.

The rest of the points all belonged to the Coyotes, who scored when Jym Rinehart ran back the ensuing kickoff 75 yards and York scored on a 5-yard jaunt. Benavidez kicked one of the conversions and Rinehart ran over the other for a 41-18 advantage.

Borden County's final points came when Ira fumbled the ball in its own end zone and recovered it for a safety.

Borden County came up with 16 first downs, 248 yards rushing and 5 passing for a 253 total. Rinehart was 2 for 12 passing with one interception. The Coyotes recovered three Bulldog fumbles.

Ira had 10 first downs, 48 yards rushing, 117 passing, for a 165 total. The Dogs threw no interceptions and recovered no Coyote fumbles.

Sweep New York Three Straight...

Kansas City Royals Bound For World Series

NEW YORK (AP) — George Brett wrote another chapter in his fairy tale season Friday night, hammering a monstrous three-run homer that carried the Kansas City Royals into their first World Series with a 4-2 victory that completed a three-game playoff sweep over the New York Yankees.

The Royals ended a string of three playoff frustrations against the Yankees and became only the second expansion team to qualify for a shot at baseball's world championship. They will meet the winner of the Houston-Philadelphia National League playoff in the World Series, beginning Tuesday night.

Brett had been a member of the Royal teams that lost to New York in 1976, 1977 and 1978. Twice those playoffs went down to the ninth inning of the fifth game before the Yankees won and left Kansas City with the bitter defeats.

This time, the Royals got the jump on New York by sweeping the first two games at home to leave the Yankees on the edge of elimination as they returned home. Owner George Steinbrenner angrily pledged that his team would reverse the trend and win three straight at home — a feat that has not been accomplished in league Championship Series history.

But Brett and the Royals put a stop to that. New York stirred for the first time when it erased an early 1-0 Kansas City lead with two runs in the sixth in a rally triggered by a Reggie Jackson double.

Most of the damage came against Kansas City bullpen ace Dan Quisenberry, who had relieved starter Paul Splittorff after Jackson's two-base hit.

If the Royals were thinking about Steinbrenner's pledge, that would have been the moment. But it could have only been a fleeting thought because in the next inning they seized the lead for good.

Tommy John retired the first two batters in the Royals' seventh but then Willie Wilson, who led the majors with 230 hits this season, rifled a double into the right field corner. Yankees Manager Dick Howser moved to the mound and motioned for Rich Gossage, whose 33 saves tied Quisenberry for the major league lead in games saved.

Gossage had not appeared in the first two games of the series and he came in Friday with a fastball clocked at 96 mph. Still, U.L. Washington hung in against the big right-hander and nudged an infield single behind second base. Wilson advanced to third on the hit that brought up Brett.

The Royals' slugger, who batted an amazing .390 this season and carried on a late-year flirtation with .400 that captivated the country, had been retired seven straight times by Yankee pitchers Thursday and Friday night after homering in the first game of this playoff series.

He wasted no time with Gossage, jumping on the first pitch and sending it in a huge arc high and deep into the upper stands in right field. The three-run shot propelled Kansas City in front and emptied the Royals dugout to greet Brett as he finished his home run trot. The Yankees didn't go down quietly, however: They mounted a major threat against Quisenberry in the eighth.

Bob Watson, who had three hits in the game, opened with a triple up the gap in left-center field. Then Jackson and Oscar Gamble drew walks from the submarining right-hander.

Now, with the bases loaded and none out, the Yankee Stadium crowd of 56,588 roared on every pitch as Quisenberry faced Rick Cerone. The Yankee catcher drilled a 1-1 pitch that seemed to be a sure base hit. But Washington, the Royals' shortstop, grabbed the liner and turned it into a rally-killing double play, trapping Jackson off second base.

Pinch-hitter Jim Spencer then rolled out, ending the inning. That was the last gasp for New York as Quisenberry finished the Yankees off in the bottom of the ninth and ended their bid for a 33rd AL pennant and nailing down the first league pennant for the Royals.

Westerners Third In Loop Tourney

ODESSA — Western Texas College fired a 295, seven-over-par, to tie for third place in the 3rd Western Conference Golf Tournament, held here Friday. The finish puts the Westerners in third place in the conference standings, 3 1/2 points behind leaders Odessa College and New Mexico Junior College.

Despite the third-place finish, Coach Bob O'Day was not displeased with his team's score, still one of the lowest team scores ever recorded at Odessa Country Club.

"Odessa Country Club is not an easy course, and Odessa College (290) and New Mexico Junior College (293), played outstanding. Also, New Mexico Military played well, tying us for third with a 295. It was their best team performance in conference play since we've been playing 10 years," O'Day noted.

"I've seen 305 to 310 win this tournament at Odessa, especially if it is cold and the wind blows hard. Odessa's 290 is the best team score ever shot at the country club. WTC held the best team score previously (a 291 with the 1977-78 team)," he added. "We are still not out of the conference race with two tournaments remaining in the spring. We will have to win both of them. It will be an uphill struggle, but we haven't thrown in the towel yet."

Sophomore Jeff Wagner tied for runner-up medalist with his one-under-par 71. Other WTC individual scores were Jeff Seger and Chris Johnson 74, Phillip Jones 76, Richard White 77 and Gary Hodge 78. Johnson is currently fourth in the WJAC individual standings with a 225 total. Wagner is seventh with a 228, and Jones is 10th at 231. White and Seger are in 15th and 19th place, respectively. Next action for the Westerners will be the 54-hole New Mexico State University Intercollegiate at Las Cruces, N.M., Oct. 16-17. Fifteen senior and junior colleges will compete in the same division.

Cowboys To Get Test In Secondary

IRVING (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys find out Sunday whether the defense that played so well against the New York Giants is indicative of the way things will be the rest of the National Football League season.

"I think our defense is ready to get going," said middle linebacker Bob Breunig. "I think we're getting it together. Of course, San Francisco is a big test."

The San Francisco 49ers, who have averaged 270 yards per game passing, play the Cowboys at 1 p.m. in Texas Stadium Sunday.

The 49ers have a surprising 3-2 record and are tied atop the National Conference Western Division with Atlanta and Los Angeles.

The Cowboys are 4-1 and locked with Philadelphia for the lead in the NFC East.

The Cowboys rolled over the Giants 24-3 Sunday, allowing just two first downs in the first half.

"San Francisco uses a control passing game," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "They pass for three yards like most teams run for it. It will certainly be a big challenge for our young secondary and linebackers."

The Cowboys got good news this week when defensive back Benny Barnes, who underwent an emergency appendectomy the night before the first regular season game against Washington, was cleared to work out.

Oilers Hope Campbell Can Make Difference

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Kansas City Chiefs, coming off their first victory of the year, meet the Houston Oilers, who are struggling with a 3-2 record but have Earl Campbell back healthy again, in a National Football League game Sunday.

Kickoff is set for 3:01 p.m. CDT. The Oilers have sorely missed Campbell while dropping their season opener to Pittsburgh 31-17 and losing last week to Seattle 26-7. The big running back has carried only seven times for 30 yards.

The Chiefs, buoyed by a 3-1 exhibition record, are off to a miserable 1-4 start, breaking into the victory column last week by beating Oakland, 31-17.

The return from injuries of center Jack Rudny and offensive tackle Charlie Getty provided quarterback Steve Fuller with better pass protection than he'd had the first month of the season. But the Kansas City attack still lists last in the AFC, and the Oakland victory was put together by several big plays from the defense, starting with linebacker Gary Spani's fumble recovery for a touchdown.

"We got the big break early," said Coach Marv Levy. "It bowed our confidence and made you want to do more of the same. It was a big psychological impact. That's really what I think spurred them and let them believe they could do things like that. I realize it's only one win after five games, but it's got to help us from here on and that's how we have to look at it. Good things happen when you win. It's as simple as that."

Houston quarterback Ken Stabler was intercepted five

Morgan Gives Extra Edge; Astros Needed One More

HOUSTON (AP) — Joe Morgan has been down the track before, the road that leads to the World Series.

But never before has he been this far in the uniform of a Houston Astro, a National League baseball club that never before had even won a division title.

Morgan hit a triple in the bottom of the 11th; a hit that ultimately resulted in a 1-0 Houston victory over the Philadelphia Phillies. One more win and the Astros will be in the World Series.

The Astro dressing room was a place of subdued joy. There were many comments of "we can do it" and "this is the one we needed."

But there was that feeling of wait until its all over before celebrating.

Morgan said he wasn't sure of what kind of a pitch he hit that broke open the scoreless game.

He said, "It was either a fastball tailing in or a slider."

"I was running for the home plate all the way until the coach stopped me. You have to run that way in a big ball park like this. Just because you have a man on third base with nobody out is no sign you are going to score. If you have a shot at it, you better take it."

Morgan was replaced by pinch runner Rafael Landestoy, who later scored on

Morgan, twice voted the National League's Most Valuable Player while with the Cincinnati Reds, has been nursing an injured knee in recent weeks.

He said, "The knee wasn't hurting at all when I saw the ball bounce off the wall. It is not a matter of pain. It is just a matter of strength in the leg."

"When you hit the ball, all you think about is that you hit it hard. It might have been a homerun anywhere else."

The 36-year-old infielder was asked to compare the Astros' with the championship Reds of several years ago.

He said, "The Reds were a great bunch of guys. These are tremendous guys too. I don't compare teams."

Morgan said the Astros had been confident all along they would win their division and now expect to be in the World Series against the Kansas City Royals.

Astros Manager Bill Virdon was asked if he would stack his lineup with right-handed hitters to face Steve Carlton today.

Early Family Closes Store

Early's Food Store, 1906 37th St., an 18-year landmark in Snyder, is closing and with it goes one more full service family-owned and family-operated business.

Store owner Bill Early said he plans to operate the store until Oct. 25, or until the merchandise is sold, then hold an auction to dispose of fixtures.

"It's not a paying proposition for me to stay in business," said Early, adding that the store has not shown an appreciable profit for the past two years. He cited competition from chain stores and inflation as factors. Early said he doesn't know what he will do next but is considering several options.

"I've always been a pretty private person. I'm 52 years old and I'll need to do something for my own private satisfaction," he said.

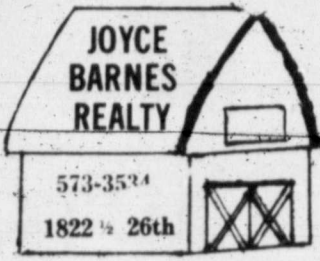

Early, a Snyder native, has spent a total of 30 years in the grocery business. He went to work first at the Rainbow Market in 1944. He stayed there three years and then entered military service. Once out of the service, he went to work at Piggly Wiggly, and later at B&B Parkway. After that he worked for Rex Miller at Everybody's Thriftway. Then he went into business for himself.

"I appreciate the people who made it possible for me to do this. If it hadn't been for them I couldn't have done it," he said.

"I feel fortunate I was able to stay in business 18 years. I'm real grateful for it," he added.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) - They're off and running in Hollywood. Your favorite television shows, weeks behind in shooting schedules because of the lengthy actors' strike, are coming to life, with a new season of sorts to start the week of Oct. 27.

While balloting on a proposed three-year contract continues among the 67,000 members of the two actors' unions, such shows as "WKRP in Cincinnati" and "The Jeffersons" are being readied for the ratings war.

NBC, with a substantial backlog of shows produced before the 11-week strike got under way, managed to cover itself and honor the traditional season opening week of Sept. 15 by showing the mini-series "Shogun." But CBS and ABC delayed new programming.

Work on most series is expected to resume by next week, although there exists the possibility of complications from the continuing musicians' strike. Actors decided to cross picket lines set up by the 5,000-member American Federation of Musicians because of the number of stagehands and technicians also being hurt by the strike. The musicians, who walked out July 30, perform background scores for films and TV shows.

And it plans a new sit-com starring "Mary Tyler Moore Show" veteran Ted Knight, "Too Close for Comfort." The cast began work for the first time Friday since filming the pilot back in April.

At the "WKRP in Cincinnati" set at the CBS Studio Center, work was in progress Friday on the season's first episode. In between rehearsals for interior shots, the cast and crew said they were glad to be working again.

CBS plans to broadcast two comedies - "Flo" and a new series called "Ladies Man" - in October with 17 series offering new shows starting in November. "The White Shadow" will return in December.

Fans of CBS' prime-time hit soap opera, "Dallas," will have to wait until Nov. 7 to begin learning "Who shot J.R.?"

For its opening week, ABC says it will offer five continuing series, three new comedies, three specials and the network premiere of "A Star is Born" with Kris Kristofferson and Barbra Streisand.

ABC also will present a replay of the Muhammad Ali-Larry Holmes championship fight on Friday, Oct. 31.

Tentative agreement between the actors and producers on higher wages and residuals for the new field of home video entertainment was reached late last month.

Members of the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists and the Screen Actors Guild began filtering back to work Monday after reversing a decision not to return to work while the voting goes on.

Police investigated the disappearance of two rings and worked one minor traffic accident.

Police Probe Disappearance Of Two Rings

Police investigated the disappearance of two rings and worked one minor traffic accident.

Reporting the disappearance of the rings was Mrs. Joe League, 3106 El Paso. Reports indicate, however, it is not known whether the rings are stolen or misplaced. Value of the rings was placed at $6,075. Investigating it was Sgt. Jerry Parker.

A traffic accident was worked Friday at 1 p.m. at 2603 Ave. M. There, a 1971 Oldsmobile driven by Odie Pollard was in collision with a parked 1977 Chevrolet owned by S.T. Minor of Hermleigh. Working the wreck was Kerry Fritz.

BLANCHE'S BLABS

By BLANCHE CHISUM
Scurry County

Fathering is not feminine—it's part of being male, and it's a much-needed, rewarding MUST for both the father and his child.

Our heritage has prepared men to work toward an exaggerated form of masculinity, which does not include the so-called feminine role of nurturing.

Without nurturing, though, men cannot establish close, loving relationships with their children.

Neither can they fulfill the masculine-feminine traits every person has as part of their normal human makeup.

Men often equate femininity with homosexuality, but the two are totally different.

Men can strive for the masculine image of bodily strength, toughness, prestige and successful breadwinner—and at the same time enjoy the pleasures derived from the intimacy of a close parent-child relationship.

Successful fathering often goes hand in hand with a successful husband-wife relationship.

Parenting at its best, like many other integral parts of a marriage, is a "partner thing." Both spouses must make the decision together to share in the responsibilities and rewards of parenting.

Successful role-sharing, a part of active fathering, indicates a warm, rewarding relationship between spouses.

On the other hand, role segregation is most often associated with a social distance—and a lack of positive feedback—between the two spouses.

It is a mistake, too, when there are difficulties with role-sharing, to assume that "dad" is always "the problem."

For example, in some cases one parent wants to monopolize the parenting role rather than share the responsibilities. This is true of many women who find it hard to "give up" the mothering role, and they actually see "sharing" as losing this prestigious role.

Some women even feel guilty or humiliated about suggesting that their husbands share in the raising of children.

Sharing tasks associated with parenting does not take place only in a crisis or just with older children.

Many fathers are only active in a parenting role during a crisis or later in a child's life.

These fathers miss out on all the other times they could have been a parent—and the child misses all those special times he could have had his "other" parent.

Later when these children become adolescents, their fathers realize no relationship has been developed.

The earlier a father-child relationship is established, the more enjoyable and rewarding it is for both generations.

Flexibility is important in active fathering—who does what and when.

Effective shared-parenting means accepting each other's timetables and each other's priorities for children-related activities.

In fact, accepting the other partner's ideas and schedules, along with being flexible, are vital elements in shared-parenting.

Some men tragically never discuss or accept the nurturing side of themselves.

For many, it becomes a startling conclusion that the traditionally feminine role of nurturing is the role that both men and women find is the most satisfying one of all in old age.

Why wait for old age to discover the pleasures of parenting?

Forward-going bids shown.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

In one sense, any bid except a pass is forward-going. In another sense, some bids do not really invite partner to bid again.

A jump bid is never given the forward-going title because it is stronger. Most jumps are forcing bids—others merely invitational, but all show substantial additional values.

In general, bids of one notrump, single raises of partner or minimum rebids in your own suit are not forward-going while bids of two notrump or raises when you have not been invited to bid are forward-going as is the bid of the fourth suit.

Let's look at some partnership sequences:

1. 1H-1S-2H-? If responder bids two spades he is merely telling partner that he has length in spades and doesn't like hearts. If responder bids 2NT he is heading forward to a game somewhere, but most likely in notrump. If he raises to three hearts he shows heart support and strongly invites game.

2. 1C-1D-1H-1S-1NT. Opener has shown a minimum-type hand with four hearts and probably four or five clubs. A two-club or two-diamond bid by responder is not forward-going; it merely shows that he doesn't like notrump. A two-heart bid is definitely forward going. It shows either four hearts or three good ones and game interest. A bid of two spades would show five spades and probably six diamonds since he bid that suit first.

3. 1C-1S-2C. In this case any bid except two spades is forward-going.

4. 1C-1S-2C-2D. If opener now bids two spades, he is merely showing a preference. If he bids three clubs, he is saying that he wants to play clubs and if responder goes on he does so at his own risk. If he bids three diamonds, he is going forward with real diamond support.

You can discuss all sorts of these situations with your regular partner and if you can work them all out, you will be really good players.

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Sleeping pill habit

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I want to warn your readers about the problems of Dalmane. My problem began after I had fractured my pelvis. While I was in the hospital I couldn't sleep any way except on my back. I had never been able to do this so they started me on Dalmane. I went home with Dalmane and a bottle of pain killers. I was able to walk with the walker and sit in a soft chair but I still had to try to sleep on my back. I tried to stop taking the pills but my initial effort of stopping the pills was a failure.

Even after I was able to sleep in some position other than on my back, I still couldn't stop taking the pills. If I tried to stop, in addition to reducing my ability to sleep, I became nauseous, nervous and generally ill so I went back to the pill. At my final session with the orthopedic surgeon I explained this to him and how that after three days off the pill I would get nauseated and nervous and couldn't sleep.

Eventually by gradually decreasing my dosages I was able to stop. But, in my opinion, Dalmane is definitely an addictive drug. When I stopped taking Dalmane, my sleep deteriorated but I could tolerate this better than problems associated with Dalmane. I found that Dalmane was effective in increasing my ability to sleep after taking it most of the time for a year. So it didn't lose its effectiveness.

Stopping taking Dalmane was the most difficult thing I have ever done, even more difficult than reducing my cigarette consumption from two-and-a-half packages a day to zero. Breaking my cigarette habit was child's play compared to breaking my Dalmane addiction.

DEAR READER — Congratulations on being able to stop the sleeping pill habit. As you probably know, I'm not in favor of sleeping pills of any kind and that includes Dalmane. Most people do much better if they're able to adjust their life style rather than using such a crutch. It's commonly said that Dalmane is not addictive if used in recommended dosages. However, it is in some people. And prolonged use of it can result in dependence or a form of addiction, sometimes in the manner which you have described.

Dalmane is sometimes recommended by physicians because its effect does last longer than many of the commonly prescribed sleeping pills. The barbiturate group, for example, may have effectiveness that lasts only two to four weeks whereas Dalmane seems to continue to induce sleep.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 12-2. Sedatives, Hypnotics and Tranquilizers: The Pill Problem. It will give you an overview of most of the different medicines that are used and their interrelations. Obviously, no one who uses such medications should be drinking alcohol. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Some people have significant side effects from Dalmane. These are particularly prone to occur in older people and may cause their behavior to be confused with senility. It's really too bad when an older person is considered as senile when, in fact, he is being poisoned by a medicine. The medicine can cause excessive drowsiness in some people and it can cause dizziness and loss of balance, resulting in falling. It may even cause slurred speech and disorientation.

Hope Beats Politicians

CHICAGO (AP) — Politicians got no votes from the Custom Tailors Guild of America this season.

Instead, entertainer Bob Hope topped the Ten Best Dressed Men in America list, the Chicago-based organization said Thursday.

"President Carter, who got just enough votes to be on our list last year, has slipped badly in his selection and cut of clothing, while Ronald Reagan never did know how to be stylish," said Guild president Alfonso Caprio. It was the first time in 33 years, that the poll excluded politicians.

Reagan Says Sr. Citizens Endangered

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Republican presidential nominee Ronald Reagan today accused President Carter of having "endangered the economic security of senior citizens" and vowed that if elected he would work to repeal the current earnings limitation on Social Security recipients.

"I would veto any attempt to tax Social Security benefits," Reagan also told a stadium rally.

Reagan proposed a complete elimination of the current $5,000 annual earnings limitation on those receiving Social Security benefits.

He said the limitation "forces retirees to give up one dollar in benefits for every two dollars they make above $5,000."

Although the thrust of Reagan's speech was clearly aimed at courting Florida's substantial senior citizen vote, only a small percentage of the crowd of about 3,000 was elderly. The crowd was made up of many students and Cuban-Americans who waved signs claiming that Reagan's election would be a victory for those of Cuban descent.

Texas Farmers Planting Grain For Winter Crop

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Farmers and ranchers are taking advantage of recent rains across the state by planting small grain for winter grazing, according to Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

In addition, Pfannstiel said cotton harvesting has increased across the plains and East Texas and the rains have enabled fields "dusting in" earlier to come up.

Many producers will be depending heavily on winter pastures due to the drought which left hay supplies short, said Pfannstiel. They have already cut back their herds sharply in recent months and will be grazing from small grains to help keep costs down.

Cotton harvesting continues in the Brazos Valley of South Central Texas and the crop is opening rapidly in the South Plains. Some farmers are starting to apply desiccants to prepare the crop for harvesting. Cotton is extremely short in the Rolling Plains and many fields have been plowed under, with the remainder due to be harvested after the first frost.

Corn harvesting is ending in the High Plains, but harvesting of sorghum, soybeans and sunflowers and some vegetables continues.

Vegetable harvesting is also active in the Rio Grande Valley where sugarcane harvesting should start next week. Citrus shipments are starting with about 50 tons of early oranges marketed last week.

With the exception of East Texas, most livestock are holding up well and rains have begun to bring improved grazing in many areas. Reports from district Extension directors showed these conditions.

PANHANDLE: Cotton is opening rapidly, with some fields being desiccated. Corn harvesting is about complete, with yields lower than normal. Sunflower harvesting remains in full swing, with sorghum and soybean harvesting about to start. Wheat seeding remains active, with rain needed in dryland areas. Culling of cattle herds continues.

SOUTH PLAINS: Recent rains brought adequate moisture to most of the area which boosted wheat plantings and fall grazing on ranges. Harvest operations are resuming after the rain delays, with most of the corn crop in. Cotton is opening rapidly and some fields are being desiccated to enable early harvesting. Harvesting of sorghum, soybeans and sunflowers is making good progress. Some bell peppers and cucumbers are still being harvested.

ROLLING PLAINS: Early planted small grains are making excellent growth due to recent rains and planting continues in full swing. Many farmers continue to plow under cotton so that they can plant small grains. What little cotton is left is opening rapidly but won't be harvested until after the season's first frost. Ranges are improving due to recent rains.

NORTH CENTRAL: Wheat seeding is in full swing due to recent rains. Some cotton harvesting continues. Most dryland peanuts are being cut for hay due to poor yield prospects. Pastures and ranges are responding to recent rains and should take some of the pressure off livestock feeding.

NORTHEAST: Parts of the area received good rains recently which will boost pastures and wheat and oats planting. Planting is about 50 percent complete over the area. The sorghum harvest is complete, with low yields. Cotton harvesting ranges from 40 to 50 percent crops have been lost to the season-long drought.

Baze Speaker At Museum

Roy Allen Baze, a retired Exxon executive, will speak on the energy situation in the United States at the brown bag luncheon in the Scurry County Museum on Oct. 20.

The public is invited to attend the brown bag luncheons. No reservations are necessary.

Baze, a Scurry County native, retired in July. He and his wife now make their home in Snyder. Before his retirement, Baze was in charge of Exxon's oil production and coal departments.

Baze is no stranger to the Scurry County Museum. He worked with the museum in obtaining many of the items included in the oil exhibit.

Dr. Wm. Friend reports in Modern Medicine that rectal itch is usually caused by one of six common foods - coffee, tomatoes, beer, cola beverages, tea, or chocolate. Since coffee is most often the culprit, the doctor advises, "Don't drink coffee for two weeks. If the itch disappears during that time, it's likely coffee was causing it." If eliminating coffee does not halt the itch, similarly test each of the other foods in turn. Should the itch persist or bleeding begin, call your family doctor.

CASPER, Wyo. (NEA)—No mere mortal ever defeated Jack Frost, but two enterprising young men, Francis Luzzatto and Gary Garber, have ambitious plans to ameliorate the impact of the winter storms that soon will swirl through the Rockies.

They are working to marshal the financial, technical and human resources of this community as part of a unique experimental grass-roots program to substantially reduce energy consumption by winterizing homes here.

"People are finally realizing they have to start solving their own energy problems instead of waiting for government solutions," says Luzzatto, director of the Community Energy Project. The project is administered by Action, the federal volunteer agency.

"You've got to give people credit for the ability to solve their own problems without meddling from Cheyenne (the state capital) or Washington," adds Garber, a weatherization specialist in the Wyoming governor's office.

Casper is one of 23 communities ranging in population from 600 to 685,000 where a Action-led consortium has launched a pilot program testing techniques to maximize public involvement in no-cost or low-cost weatherization and conservation efforts.

Despite the government's role, the project was specifically designed to preclude large expenditures of federal funds, with the Action grant to each of the participating cities, towns and counties typically limited to $5,000.

In an experimental public-private partnership, however, the John A. Hartford Foundation of New York has given a $231,000 grant to the United Way of America, which is channeling the money into about half of the participating communities.

Additional assistance financial and otherwise comes from utility companies, college students, civic groups, church congregations, governments and businesses directly involved in a program designed and administered by local citizens to meet their special needs and utilize their particular resources.

Some communities are stressing the needs of deteriorating inner-city neighborhoods while others are placing their emphasis on isolated trailer parks.

In Jackson County, Ill., and Chemung County, N.Y., local organizers have structured their program to meet the differing needs of urban and rural residents of their areas.

In Ellsworth and Hancock, Maine, and in Northampton, Mass., hardware-store owners and other merchants have agreed to provide discounts on conservation and weatherization materials to people who have participated in do-it-yourself workshops.

Those workshops include instruction on how to affix weatherstripping, apply caulking materials, insulate hot-water heaters, tape leaks in forced-air heating ducts, install storm windows and attach flow restrictors to faucets and shower heads.

Other participating communities include Council Bluffs Iowa; Lafayette, La.; Inkster, Mich.; San Juan Pueblo, N.M.; Valley City, N.D.; Charlottesville, Va.; and Madison, Wis.

Although the program emphasizes assistance to the elderly, the handicapped and the poor, it is structured to demonstrate what all low-to-middle-income citizens can do in their own homes with minimal money and training.

The most notable success thus far has been in Fitchburg, Mass., where a intensive two-month-long citywide effort included door-to-door canvassing, establishing storefront training centers and distributing weatherization materials. Approximately 3,600 households - more than one-quarter of all homes in the city - were directly involved in the program, which Action Director Sam Brown estimates will save more than $1 million in energy costs this year.

Although the country has been glutted in recent years with energy-conservation programs, too many of them have been dismal failures with no impact beyond their simplistic public-relations campaigns to turn down the thermostat. This effort is different - and more likely to succeed - because of its emphasis on community involvement, initiative and imagination.

korea-type morality

Continuing purges in Korea, highlighted by the "kangaroo court" sentencing of opposition leader Kim Dae-jung to death for allegedly plotting a coup, contain some lessons about the advisability of trying to impose morality from above and enforcing morality through the political process.

We believe the situation in Korea can be better understood by going beyond the usual finger-pointing about undemocratic practices. It's important to understand that not all the actions of the military government that took power last December have been unpopular. Indeed, some have had popular support and the whole campaign has been carried out under the rubric of a "purification" campaign whose rhetoric could strike some responsive chords among good people in this country. Perhaps that is what makes the whole process even more horrifying.

South Korean military leaders claim all they are doing is trying to restore the country's sense of honesty and ethics, which they claim it has lost in a blind pursuit of economic success.

"We are going to establish a just society, a society in which honesty is the word, order is well established and creative initiative can play a brighter role," says Gen. Lee Chun-gu who heads the campaign.

Restoring honesty. Getting rid of corrupt officials. Bringing in a new generation of leaders. Cracking down on the immorality and free-swinging lifestyle of rich businessmen who indulge in expensive dinners and geisha parties. Ridding the population of hooligans and gangsters.

But how is it being accomplished? After anti-government demonstrations in May, martial law was extended and dozens of dissidents, including the three top presidential contenders, were arrested. Two hundred and thirty-two senior government officers, described as corrupt and inefficient, were purged. That move is generally regarded as popular in the country, as was the arrest of thousands of young "hooligans" sent to re-education camps. Many of the officials probably were corrupt, and arresting youngsters may have reduced violent crime.

Private tutoring has been banned because it supposedly gives children of the rich an unfair advantage. That's been popular.

Now, Gen. Lee is moving forward with a campaign to "develop the good qualities" of society. Part of the method is the "new community movement." Prominent people are "invited" to a week-long session at a re-education camp. Here they hear lectures, sing Korean songs and exercise. They are prohibited from reading, listening to radio or smoking.

Most people may experience a feeling of ambivalence about all this. There are undoubtedly some worthy goals there, and we're willing to grant some sincerity to the South Korean leaders.

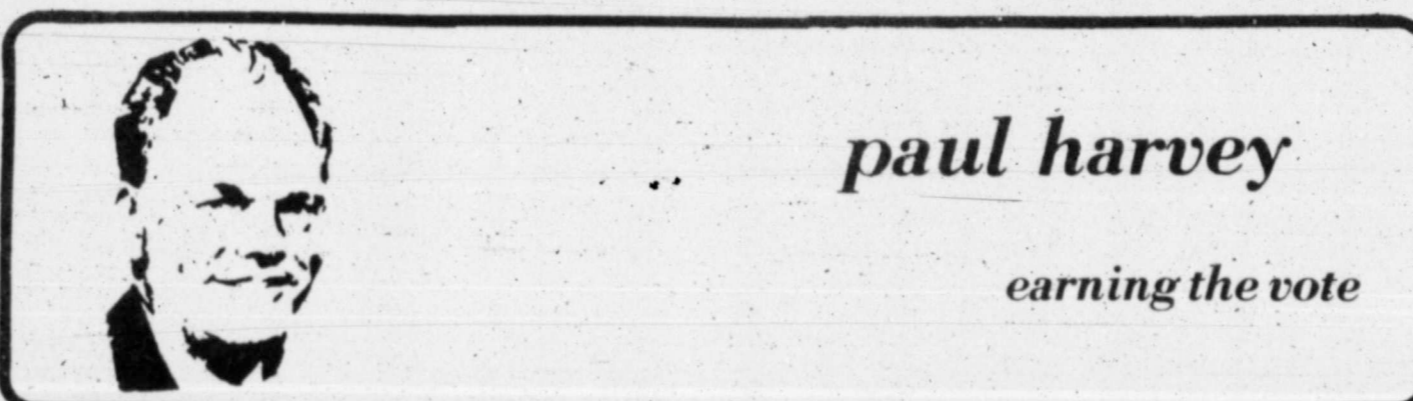

But the whole campaign is horrifying. Why? Because they're trying to impose morality from the top down, using force and compulsion. They're forgetting that a morality that doesn't allow room for individual choice is no morality at all, just enforced behavior. In their impatience for results now, they're forgetting the power of example, and permitting themselves to do things that are morally reprehensible.

Wholesale violation of individual rights. Enforced re-education almost amounting to brain-washing. Purges without any semblance of due process. Are these the ways to build a moral and honest society?

Few Americans would think so.

"Good! We can say our tests show it will seat six people in moderate comfort."

earning the vote

Why does the incumbent president tiptoe around the subject of welfare misuse? Why is Reagan rhetoric on the subject clored pastel? Be realistic; any criticism of welfare is construed as "an attack on poor minorities." Welfare, after three generations, has become "a way of life" for recipients. With national elections frequently decided by a few hundred thousand votes, what politician dares now to turn his back on a welfare army of 13 million-plus their kin? No way he could get elected-or re-elected. Now the big cities are demanding and the courts are ordering a census recount so that those cities may get more "Washington money" to perpetuate this plantation-style subservience. There is one way you could get the freeloaders off the backs of the politicians-and eventually, perhaps-back to work. That would be to allow the privilege of voting only to taxpayers. If that sounds un-American-on the contrary-in early America voting was not a "right"-it was a "privilege"-which one had to earn. A federal court ordered a census recent of big city populations on the presumption that many blacks and Hispanics had been missed. Nothing noble about the applause from big city mayors; it's a matter of money. Atlanta's Maor Maynard Jackson guesstimates that the nose-counters missed 17,000 noses in his city-costing his city between 20 and 40 million dollars in "Washington money." Other cities-New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Newark-are celebrating the decision. Philadelphia's solicitor general calls it "a wonderful, wonderful ruling." Now census bureau people must launch a much more thorough-and much more costly-census. The census bureau canvassers can locate and identify all the people-including those who for various reasons do not want to be located and identified-it will mean that some cities will receive more tax dollars and may receive larger representation in Congress based on an increased number of people who reap with without sowing. A spot check of households is no way to conduct a census, anyway. The one way that a meaningful head-count could be conducted would be to feed the tax rolls into a computer. That way you'd promptly have a precise count of the Americans who have earned the rights of citizenship. Then only people who'd been taxpayers would be entitled to unemployment benefits; only taxpayers would be entitled to vote. As is, those running "for" political office are forever running "from" an army of gimee-gimees. (c) 1980, Los Angeles Times Syndicate

The feller on Deep Creek says, "The easiest way to keep a secret is now knowing that's what it is."

We made a quick trip to Austin early last week, and we never ceased to be amazed at the contrast of lifestyles. For big, growing communities, the state capital has to be our favorite.

The first thing to catch our eye was a terrible traffic accident where the top of an auto had literally be sheared off by the trailer of a large 18-wheeler.

The accident drew a large crowd, and the next morning we looked in the newspaper to see about the number of deaths or injuries. When we found nothing, we had to conclude that traffic accidents are so commonplace that they no longer are considered newsworthy in big cities.

While looking in the same newspaper, we read with interest the announcement that State Rep. Mike Ezzell had been named chief of the health planning agency in the state health department.

As is normal in the big cities, Mike will be starting his $34,000 a year job with a host of supporters and critics on the sideline. One Austin city councilwoman took several blasts at the appointment which she called "political." It seems she was hoping that some health professional would be appointed to the post.

However, the director of the health department solidly defended the appointment because of Mike's record in the field of health care while serving in the legislature.

Another incident also caught our attention. It was related to us by our wife who was attending a seminar. At the opening session, a city councilman was asked to give the traditional welcome to the delegates attending the seminar.

His remarks, however, were not the traditional chamber of commerce style.

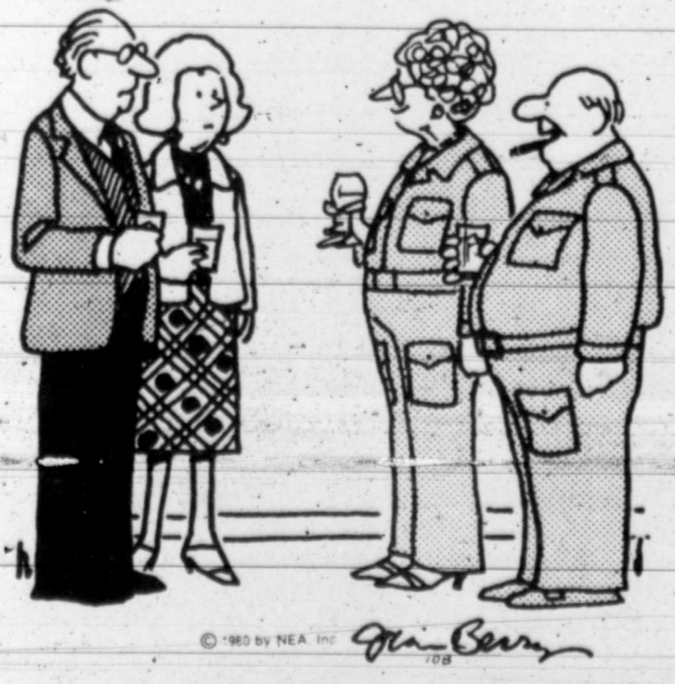

He said welcome to Austin, hope you have a pleasant and enjoyable visit, but leave when you get finished. He said we hope none of you are planning to stay, we've got too many people now. Enjoy your visit, but go home when you get through.

It reminded us of a story a couple of years back when Austin officials were working to land a new plant, but citizens got up in arms and actually told the industrial prospect to go elsewhere.

A few hundred miles and a few hundred thousand people create a completely different perspective on growth attitudes.

We have a new, solar-powered, battery-assisted, quartz-invigorated chronograph that doesn't lose a second a year - it drops 37 minutes a day.

Look on the bright side and watch it tarnish, says our resident cynic.

The car that runs with alcohol is here, every time we have to drive our bibulous neighbor to the grog shop.

Remember when "home cooking" involved something a little more complicated than adding an egg to the cake mix?

GROWING OLDER

Harold Blumenfeld

In the Sunbelt where I live, older people talk about more than golf, bridge, recipes, health and financial problems. And we listen to more than the hardening of our arteries.

We discuss national and world conditions - and especially our forthcoming presidential election.

Statistics indicate the aging population is more likely to vote than any other age group. To my dismay, however, I have heard some neighbors and friends say they probably will sit out this election.

They explain that they don't like either Jimmy Carter or Ronald Reagan, that they find little difference between the major-party nominees. So why bother wasting gas or shoe leather to get to the polls?

Their situation is like going to a Chinese restaurant and finding you don't like any of the offerings from columns A and B. If that is the case, you do not go hungry. You order whatever you dislike the least - or go to another restaurant.

We're fortunate to have the opportunity to show our displeasure with the choices offered by the two major parties. We can vote for a third-party or independent candidate. Or we can write in a name, if only as a protest.

Similar options are usually available to us when we vote for candidates for congressional, state, county and municipal office.

Unlike the peoples of many countries, we are not restricted to voting for one candidate or one side of an issue.

The value of the inalienable right to vote was instilled in me by my father before I cast my first presidential ballot in 1928.

When he arrived in the United States at the turn of the century, the first thing he did was to get a job. Though he knew a little English, he enrolled in night school to improve his speech and learn more about his new homeland.

Next he obtained his naturalization papers. As a new citizen, he was proud of his ability to vote; he had been denied that privilege in the middle European country he had fled.

I haven't missed voting on any Election Day, no matter how long the lines at the voting booth or how seemingly minor the offices and issues.

I'm not suggesting who you should vote for this year. I'm still undecided, but I will vote for someone.

Until Nov. 4, I will be reading what the candidates say about the important issues. We all have special interests - aiding the poor, improving health care and living conditions for the elderly, halting inflation, keeping pace with the Soviet arms buildup.

Our presidential vote is most important because the man in the White House for the next four years not only will govern our country but will be a major power in international politics.

There is still time to change your mind about sitting out this election. You can get plenty of information on the candidates and where they stand from newspapers, radio and television.

True, you will have to sift through much political rhetoric and listen to many campaign promises. And risk ending up more confused in November than you are today.

But don't fool yourself into believing that yours is just one vote in millions, that it won't matter if you stay home on Nov. 4.

Vote. No matter for whom.

To The Daily News:

On Sept. 11, 1980, I wrote a letter to Governor Bill Clements asking him why Mike Ezzell was being considered for a job after he had been defeated by the people in this state legislative district.

I have not received a reply from him or his office and now it is confirmed that Mr. Ezzell has been given the job as Director of State Health Planning with the State Health Department in Austin.

As I see it, this is another example of the governmental bureaucracy taking care of its own. People wonder how bureaucracy has gotten so large. Well, multiply all these types of situations by all the governmental units in the United States and it becomes apparent why we have so many people on our payroll.
