Forces fight last of Grenada's defenders

Six Americans die in attack

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (AP) — A U.S.-led attack force fought the last of Grenada's stubborn defenders, and one of the invasion's staunchest supporters said elections for a new Grenadian government would be held within three months.

By early today, 375 American residents or tourists had been evacuated from the tiny Caribbean island and flown to Charleston, S.C. Pentagon officials put U.S. military casualties at six dead, 33 wounded and eight missing after two days of fighting, but estimates varied on casualties for the Grenadian army and Cuban defenders.

Prime Minister Tom Adams of Barbados, one of six Caribbean nations that called for the invasion, said in a broadcast late Wednesday that the "military intervention" had been successfully completed.

"An interim government will soon be appointed," Adams said. It will take about three months to set up computerized registration for the elections, he said, "and three months or less after that we will expect the interim administration to hand over to an elected government."

President Reagan had cited the safety of some 1,000 Americans on Grenada as one of the main reasons for launching the invasion Tuesday. His other reasons were to restore order after Marxist military leaders seized power and to bring democracy.

"I don't think there's a more beautiful sight than being back in the United States or seeing the (Army) Rangers ... to save us," said Jean Joel, of Albany, N.Y., a student at St. George's University Medical School in Grenada. She had just landed at Charleston Air Force Base.

Officials in Washington said about 500 Americans had asked to be evacuated and would be flown out within the next few days. Most of the evacuees landed in Charleston, while a few stopped in Barbados, 110 miles northeast of Grenada.

U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said Wednesday that the U.S. toll among 2,800 Marines and Army paratroopers was six dead, 33 wounded and eight missing. Late in the day, Weinberger said scattered fighting continued against "diminishing Cuban resistance."

The Cuban government reported on its media that the last resisting Cubans had "sacrificed themselves for the motherland."

Accounts of the invasion were impossible to verify first-hand because foreign reporters remained barred from Grenada.

War Powers again an issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats in Congress, clashing with President Reagan over war powers for the second time in a month, are pressing for curbs on the president's authority to keep Marines and paratroopers in Grenada without congressional consent.

Rep. Clement Zablocki, D-Wis., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, called a meeting of the panel today to vote on a resolution invoking the timetable of the War Powers Act passed in 1973 to prevent more wars like Vietnam.

"The president, as the first citizen of this land, must abide by the law," Zablocki said.

Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., said he would seek a vote on a similar measure on the Senate floor, bypassing committee consideration by offering it as an amendment to pending legislation.

"It's incredible that after the tragedy in Beirut, we're seeing an exact replay of the president refusing to obey the law on the use of military force," said Hart, a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Four weeks ago, Congress completed action on a resolution invoking the war powers limits on the use of Marines in Lebanon, and authorizing Reagan to keep them at their posts for an additional 18 months.

That resolution appeared to settle the matter, at least for the present. This week, however, Congress finds itself plunged into a crisis atmosphere by the terrorist attack that took the lives of more than 200 of the Marines on Sunday and the invasion of Grenada on Tuesday by U.S. Marine and Army forces.

Senate Democrats went on record with unanimous resolutions on both issues Wednesday.

They said the administration should try to arrange for the United Nations or a group of neutral countries to take over the peacekeeping role to which the Marines are assigned in Lebanon.

"We are offering an initiative which would allow us to accommodate an orderly withdrawal of U.S. forces," Democratic Leader Robert C Byrd of West Virginia said.

The Democrats said Reagan did not comply with the War Powers Act in notifying Congress of the landing on Grenada because he failed to say the troops were going under fire, triggering the war powers timetable.

Death toll in command post bombing climbs to 221

List released of Marines surviving attack on Beirut facility

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — U.S. Marines today completed a list of survivors of the terrorist bombing of their Beirut command post and searched the wreckage for more victims as the death toll rose to 221.

Capt. Wayne Jones, a Marine spokesman, said bodies of those killed in the suicide truck-bomb attack on the Marine command post were being flown to the American Rhine-Main Air Base in West Germany. He provided no specific figures on what the military called its "live list," but the Pentagon said there were 1,700 servicemen not killed or wounded in the bombing and began releasing the names in batches.

Jones said more than 450 servicemen at the camp had called home on telephone circuits that had been set up for them.

The command center at Beirut's international airport was flattened by a truck bomb driven into the building's lobby by a suicide terrorist at daybreak Sunday.

Search efforts continued today both at the Marine post and at the wreckage of a nine-story headquarters of a French paratroop company about a mile away. The French Defense Ministry put its casualty toll from the almost simultaneous truck-bombing at 54 killed, 15 wounded and four missing and presumed dead.

Cpl. Randy Barefoot, 21, of Kenly, N.C., who was helping to dig through the wreckage at the Marine camp Wednesday, said: "We've given up hope anybody is alive. All the floors are pressed down and everything is squished."

Vice President George Bush inspected the disaster site Wednesday and also met with President Amin Gemayel and the commanders of the French and Italian peacekeeping forces in Lebanon.

He landed while the Marines at Beirut airport were on their highest state of alert following a dawn attack with small arms, mortars and bazookas. No Marines were hit.

The vice president returned to the United States Wednesday night. On arrival at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington, he said he impressed upon Gemayel "the absolute essentiality of working with all intelligence services to find these culprits .... This simply cannot go unpunished."

In Paris, U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz and the foreign ministers of Britain, France and Italy held an emergency meeting today to discuss the role of the multinational peacekeeping force after the bombings. All four countries contribute contingents to the force.

Shultz told reporters he expected the meeting would "generate some ideas" on restoring stability in Lebanon. He said there are no plans to increase the size of the peacekeeping unit but added: "All of us will be looking to the security of our own forces."

A U.S. State Department official in Washington said another likely topic was the role of a new force of Italian and Greek observers to police the civil war cease-fire that took effect Sept. 26.

Official Lebanese sources said Italy and Greece were awaiting the outcome of a reconciliation conference among Lebanon's warring factions before finally deciding on sending the observers.

The Gemayel government repeated that it is still planning to convene the conference among Lebanon's warring Moslem and Christian leaders Monday in Geneva, Switzerland.

Leaders of the Syrian-backed anti-government National Salvation Front assembled in Damascus, Syria, today to map out strategy for the conference.

Involved in the discussions are former Lebanese President Suleiman Franjieh, a Maronite Catholic, former Prime Minister Rashid Karami, a Sunni Moslem, and Walid Jumblatt, leader of the leftist Druse.

Jumblatt announced in Damascus that he was ordering his troops "for humanitarian reasons" to allow 1,000 Christians trapped behind Druse lines in Deir al-Kamar to leave starting Saturday.

Thousands of Christians fled to Deir al-Kamar, 14 miles southeast of Beirut, to escape fighting in surrounding villages last month.

Grandmother wheeling to keep others dealing

FREDERICK, Md. (AP) — A handicapped grandmother says she is driving her motorized wheelchair from Pennsylvania to Florida to try to convince others with disabilities that "they can do something worthwhile."

Geraldine Yocum of Bethlehem, Pa., stopped near Frederick Tuesday, two days after beginning her trek.

"I hate to see handicapped people sitting at home thinking they cannot do anything," said the 65-year-old Mrs. Yocum.

"This is in hopes of showing handicapped persons they can do something worthwhile," said Mrs. Yocum's husband, Albert. Yocum and the couple's granddaughter, Rebecca Haas, are making the trip with Mrs. Yocum, following her wheelchair in a trailer.

Mrs. Yocum, who lost a leg as a result of polio, said her wheelchair "is like a little motorcycle" complete with a basket in which groceries can be carried. On Tuesday it also sported a sign which said "Wheelin' Granny, Pa. to Fla."

Mrs. Yocum said she is trying to cover 100 miles a day in her gasoline-powered hand-controlled wheelchair, which she said can reach speeds of 30 mph. Her ultimate destination is Epcot, Fla.

Responses from passers-by had been both positive and negative, said Mrs. Yocum, adding that she was undaunted by unfavorable comments.

LCRA pours on its opposition to CRMWD's Stacy Dam project

From Staff Reports

What constitutes "unappropriated" water was the argument flowing between opposing sides Wednesday in the Lower Colorado River Authority's challenge to Colorado River Municipal Water District's Stacy Dam project before the Texas Supreme Court.

CRMWD provides part of the city of Midland's water supply.

LCRA attorney Fred B. Werkenthin of Austin argued the Texas Water Commission had misapplied the definition in granting a permit to the project, which is to impound 554,340 acre-feet, with diversion of 113,000 acre-feet annually.

The 3rd Court of Appeals in Austin, by a 2-1 vote, affirmed issuance of the permit, which had been upheld earlier by a Travis County district court.

CRMWD plans to build the reservoir about 24 miles south of Ballinger and sell municipal water to several West Texas cities, such as Midland, Odessa and Big Spring. Construction of Stacy Dam is expected to cost about $50.5 million.

LCRA contends the TWC cannot issue permits for a greater amount of water than exists in the river, which LCRA says has been done in this case.

Frank Booth, Austin attorney for CRMWD, argued that such over-appropriation is necessary to fully utilize the water in a stream and that existing water permits will be protected during periods of drought by the doctrine of "first in time, first in right."

Booth told the court the battle is a "typical upstream, downstream water fight."

Werkenthin argued the lower Colorado River basin faces a severe water shortage in the future — a total of 3 million acre-feet by 2030 if Stacy is not built and 4 million acre-feet if the reservoir is built.

Construction of Stacy will result in part of an anticipated shortage in the upper basin being shifted to the lower basin, he said.

"Texas is facing a future of insufficient water, regardless of what the court may do in this case," Booth commented.

Booth argued the impact on downstream users, and on the Highland Lakes, will be "not very much at all" if Stacy is constructed.

Assistant Attorney General Lambeth Townsend, representing the Department of Water Resources, argued that a water permit is simply a "mere license to appropriate" water.

Rain is forecast for parts of Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, California, Oregon, Washington and Montana, according to the National Weather Service. Showers are expected in Maine.

Rain may haunt trick-or-treaters

They won't make any promises, but National Weather Service employees at Midland Regional Airport say overcast skies and a chance of rain will haunt trick-or-treaters this weekend.

Partly cloudy skies will carry a 20 percent chance of rain tonight and Friday. Lows are expected to be in the upper 40s and highs in the mid 70s. Winds tonight are to be southerly at 5 to 10 mph, increasing to 10 to 20 mph by Friday.

Wednesday's high of 67 was 23 degrees below the record set for that date in 1950. The record low of 33 set in 1967 was 16 marks below the 49-degree low recorded early this morning.

Otherwise mostly fair elsewhere today, then increasing cloudiness southwest tonight and over most of area Friday with showers and a few thunderstorms spreading southwest tonight and over much of area Friday. Highs today 70s except upper 60s mountains and far west. Lows tonight 46 Panhandle to 54 extreme south. Highs Friday 70s except upper 60s far west and low 80s extreme south.

North Texas: Sunny today. Partly cloudy west tonight and Friday and patchy morning fog southeast. Otherwise fair tonight and Friday. Highs in the lower to middle 70s. Lows in the middle 40s to near 50.

South Texas: Generally fair today and tonight with highs in the 70s and lows in the upper 40s north to low 60s south. Partly cloudy Friday with a slight chance of showers western sections. Highs in the upper 70s to mid-80s.

Extended forecast

Saturday Through Monday

West Texas: Isolated showers and thunderstorms Saturday otherwise partly cloudy. A little cooler north Saturday. Highs lower 70s north to mid 80s Big Bend valleys. Lows lower 40s Panhandle to mid 50s extreme south.

North Texas: Partly cloudy and warm Saturday. Mostly fair with slightly cooler temperatures Sunday and Monday. Highs near 80 Saturday with readings in the 70s Sunday and Monday. Lows 50s.

South Texas: Warmer and more humid. A slight chance of showers north and west Saturday and north Sunday. Lows upper 50s north to the mid 60s south Saturday and upper 50s to upper 60s Sunday and Monday. Highs mostly 80s.

Skies clear

By The Associated Press

Except for some rain over West Texas, skies were clear and temperatures cool over much of the state early today, thanks to a dome of polar air centered over the Brazos River valley in Central Texas.

Fair and mild was the prediction statewide, except for West Texas, where rain was expected to continue.

Waco, centered beneath the cool air mass, was the state's cold spot at 4 a.m. with a 44. Galveston and Corpus Christi were the warmest, each with a 61-degree reading.

Temperatures elsewhere were generally in the 40s and 50s, and winds were light and variable across Texas.

Though skies were generally clear across the state early today, an upper air disturbance over West Texas produced multiple cloud layers and a light rain in that part of the state.

Evacuees recall hours of terror

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — More American students were evacuated from strife-torn Grenada today, bearing memories of diving under beds to evade gunfire, treating wounded troops in a lecture hall and waiting in terror until they were rescued by multinational forces.

"I can speak only for my own part, but a few of us (Americans) here are able to appreciate the meaning of U.S. citizenship. We are very, very, proud to be a part of this nation," said Stephen Hall of Hastings, Fla., one of more than 375 students evacuated.

Some of the passengers kissed the ground after they arrived.

Seventy-four evacuees arrived at Charleston Air Force Base in two flights around 2:30 a.m. today, 122 more shortly before 5 a.m. and another 38 at 6 a.m. Most passengers were American students at St. George's University Medical School.

Two flights airlifted 141 evacuees from the island on Wednesday.

Air Force spokesman George Sillia said later this morning that no more evacuees were expected at Charleston, but that could change.

"We lost everything," said Susan Winkler, a medical student from Oklahoma City who arrived early today. "But we have our lives. Nothing else matters."

Stephanie Jacobs of Millburn, N.J., said, "The Cubans had Grand Anse surrounded. It was tense. We knew the Americans would come, we just didn't know when."

Tracy McGahan of Lincoln, Neb., said she and fellow evacuees had to run 100 yards up a beach in shifts to reach helicopters waiting to fly them to safe positions.

"My husband and I and several others in our group had to hit the sand at one point because we were under fire," Ms. McGahan said.

None of those interviewed said they knew of Americans who were choosing to stay on the island.

None of those interviewed said they knew of Americans who were choosing to stay on the island.

However, Richard Willard of Bloomfield, N.J., said he and many other students wanted to stay before the invasion began. He said that until that point he and several others didn't feel they were in real danger.

"I felt sure the military government that took over felt good about our school and liked what we were doing," he said. "They went out of their way to make it comfortable for us."

Jeff Yusin, a medical student from Los Angeles who arrived in Charleston around 2:30 a.m. today, said there was little fighting when he left Grenada late Wednesday.

"At about 5:30 a.m. Tuesday morning we were all asleep and I heard gunshots," said Roxanna Marin of Fresh Meadows, N.Y., in an interview on ABC's "Nightline." "We just crawled to the back of our room and we laid there until about 8:10 praying for our lives because we thought we were going to die...

"The only time I felt safe was when I got into that lecture hall and they told me that it's Americans, don't worry, they're here to save us," she said.

A fellow student, Jeff Geller of Woodridge, N.Y., took photographs of fighting on the island. News reporters have been barred from Grenada.

Geller took pictures of the airstrip beside the school's True Blue campus, noting that "we didn't see much fighting, but we did hear a lot of it."

He said most students headed for a large lecture hall, which they converted into a makeshift emergency room for wounded troops, and stayed there for 26 hours before leaving the island Wednesday.

Army Rangers arrived at the campus about two hours after the first shots were fired, students said.

"In comes this U.S. Ranger. He said, 'We're here to take you out if you want to go,'" said student Matthew Kern of Wayne, N.J., after he arrived at Newark International Airport late Wednesday. "We heard fire which scared the hell out of a lot of us."

"They wanted to get us out by 1 p.m. today," said Luke Megna of Princeton, N.J., who returned to Newark on Wednesday. "There was a lot of firing this morning and there were snipers around us last night."

Megna said he plans to return to medical school, "but not in Grenada."

"There is no way I would go back there," said Katherine Tracy of Stockbridge, Mass.

But Geller and Ms. Marin said they were told they might lose their medical school tuition if they departed the island. "We did not want to lose either the money or the time. We were afraid we'd lose that if we left," Geller said.

"We're hoping to continue studying medicine. Many of us are hoping the school will relocate to Grand Turk," an island in the Bahamas, said Mary Antoinette Burns of South Pasadena, Calif.

Philip Underwood of Patchogue, N.Y., said a sniper's bullet blasted through the door of his dormitory room. He displayed the rug burns he got from "diving under my bed" to avoid the bullets.

At the State Department, spokesman John Hughes said roughly half of the estimated 1,000 Americans on Grenada had asked to be evacuated and that planes carrying the evacuees would arrive at bases around the country today.

When the two evacuation planes landed at Charleston on Wednesday afternoon and evening, some passengers kissed the ground as well-wishers cheered, waved American flags and carried signs saying "Welcome Home."

Most of the students, dressed in blue jeans, shorts and T-shirts, carried suitcases, knapsacks or duffel bags. They said they had a 30-minute warning that they were being evacuated.

The passengers said they could hear gunshots in the background as they were escorted from the campus by U.S. forces.

"I don't think there's a more beautiful sight than being back in the United States or seeing the Rangers at the True Blue campus to save us," said Jean Joel of Albany, N.Y.

Students in Grenada pursuing American dream

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The several hundred U.S. medical students in Grenada, whose safety was a prime consideration in the American invasion, are among thousands of would-be doctors who have gone abroad after being rebuffed at home.

For decades, frustrated Americans have pursued their dream of a medical degree in Guadalajara, Mexico; Bologna, Italy; and the Philippines.

But in recent years the trail has led most often to the Caribbean, where schools such as the American-run St. George's University Medical School on Grenada have sprung up in recent years. For Americans, they offer one distinct advantage: instruction in English.

St. George's was founded in 1977 by Charles Modica, 36, a Bay Shore, N.Y., lawyer who was himself frustrated in attempts to gain admission to a U.S. medical school years ago. Modica raised $5.5 million from backers including physicians whose children had been rejected by American schools.

Alvin Bucksbaum, a North Woodmere, N.Y., lawyer and head of the 700-family Parents' Network of St. George's school said Tuesday, "Perhaps if the money that's going into this action today (the U.S. invasion) would have gone into opening doors up for American boys and girls statewide, we wouldn't have to send them to foreign medical schools.

"It's a shame there aren't enough places for all those who are determined to become doctors and have the ability," said Bucksbaum, who has a son enrolled at St. George's, but who is not on the island. The school's third-year students, including his son, normally take their clinical studies at hospitals in the United States and Great Britain.

"It's been an excellent education..." Bucksbaum said. "I would hope that the school goes back to normal. These are very determined young men and women who really went through a lot to get a medical education."

St. George's and rival Caribbean institutions are run for profit and are not accredited by U.S. agencies. They advertise frequently in The New York Times' Sunday "Week in Review" section. St. George's ads boast about its graduates' record on a test required of foreign medical school students seeking residencies in the United States — the Educational Commission on Foreign Medical Graduates test.

Dr. Ray Casterline, vice president of that Philadelphia-based commission, said that in 1982, 218 Americans from St. George's took the test and 79 percent, or 173, passed. Only 33 percent of all Americans and aliens who took the test passed.

By passing that test, Americans and others who study abroad can secure residencies in American hospitals. Some Americans also gain transfer into U.S. institutions as third-year students by passing an exam given by the National Board of Medical Examiners in Philadelphia.

Casterline estimated that at any given time, "at least 15,000 to 20,000 Americans are outside the United States studying" in 130 to 140 medical schools. The attrition rate is "very high," he added.

In last Sunday's New York Times, the University of St. Lucia School of Medicine stressed in its ad that it was "in stable democratic St. Lucia." The American University of the Caribbean emphasized that its medical school in Montserrat, British West Indies, is in "a politically stable democratic British Crown Colony of the United Kingdom, which assures students a peaceful and uninterrupted education."

The American Association of Medical Colleges, the organization of 127 accredited U.S. schools, frowns on Americans going abroad to get medical degrees.

The U.S. medical schools reject half of the approximately 35,000 students who apply each year.

A federal advisory panel warned several years ago that the United States was producing too many doctors. The government has cut out some subsidies and put pressure on U.S. schools not to expand.

Elizabeth Ferguson of Woodside, N.Y., who has had two sons attend St. George's and whose husband, Bernard, has done legal work for St. George's and other Caribbean schools, said, "There are just not enough places in the American schools. There may be a surplus (of doctors) in your affluent suburbs, but not in rural areas or your ghettoes."

The foreign-trained Americans and aliens who pass the Educational Commission on Foreign Medical Graduates test can compete for residencies in U.S. hospitals, but they face tough odds.

Dr. John Grettinger, dean for graduate medical education at Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center in Chicago, said the number of Americans trained in the Caribbean seeking U.S. residencies spurted from 785 in 1981 to 1,988 this year, and 2,900 already have registered for 1984 openings.

Grettinger, who is executive vice president of the National Residency Matching Program, which operates a computer match of students with hospitals, said that 51 percent of the Caribbean-trained Americans failed to get a hospital position in the 1983 match, compared with 8 percent of the American medical school graduates. Only 25 percent of the aliens seeking residencies got an offer.

Grettinger said all of the American-trained graduates and half of the U.S. citizens trained in the Caribbean got later offers.

But the competition is getting harder. There were 25,000 applicants for 19,000 residencies in 1983, he said, but 28,000 will compete for those 19,000 positions next winter.

Invaders faces unexpected resistance

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. invasion of Grenada met "a lot more resistance than we expected," said Gen. John Vessey Jr., chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, explaining why American soldiers were still fighting to take over the smallest nation in the Western Hemisphere.

From the start, the Pentagon had been confident the fight could be over quickly. A senior defense official said Tuesday he thought the operation could be wrapped up by noon Wednesday.

But noon came and went and still the 3,000 U.S. troops hadn't secured the island.

Vessey told a news conference Wednesday afternoon that the Army Rangers and Marines had expected to run into about 500 Cubans, "of which 350 might have been construction workers" building the Salines airport.

But there were more — 700, according to Vessey. And they were better equipped than had been expected, armed with machine guns, anti-tank weapons, and anti-aircraft cannons.

When the first U.S. planes came into the new Point Salines airfield, they were met with anti-aircraft fire. After the enemy gun was wiped out by a U.S. AC-130 gunship shortly after dawn Tuesday, the airstrip itself was quickly secured by the 700 Army Rangers, some of whom landed by parachute while the rest came off Army transport planes.

Meanwhile, on the other side of the island, Marines had parachuted around the Pearls airport, taking it quickly.

But there things bogged down. The Cubans retreated north from Point Salines to the capital, St. Georges, pursued by the Rangers in jeeps and armored cars.

The Cubans and Grenadian Army also fought fiercely around the two campuses of the St. George's University Medical School and a prison at Richmond Hill, halfway between the two campuses. One campus was taken only Wednesday afternoon and fighting continued around the prison area.

At the True Blue campus, students hid under their beds while the fighting raged, listening to sniper fire and return fire from American gunships.

"We didn't anticipate meeting Cuban fighting units," Vessey said. "We knew there were Cuban construction workers in there who might have been reservists and might have been armed. ..."

Tuesday night, the Rangers and Marines were reinforced by 800 troops from the Army's elite 82nd Airborne Division, which moved into the airfields to permit the other units to go after the Cubans and Grenadians.

Vessey admitted that American intelligence had underestimated the Cuban strength. The operation was planned quickly, he told reporters, which meant "a lack of total intelligence."

But Vessey and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger also noted that the operation could have been wrapped up more quickly had the Pentagon been willing to use heavier firepower.

That license is perfected by use, Townsend said.

Chief Justice Jack Pope expressed concern that if a person downstream holds a permit and a person upstream is granted a permit, with insufficient water to satisfy both, "are we not breeding a lawsuit and a series of lawsuits?"

Booth argued that not every water right is exercised to its full extent every year.

TWC must consider development of water resources to the greatest extent possible, he said, arguing that large amounts of water continue to flow down the Colorado, despite the large number of permits.

Werkenthin argued that overappropriation could encourage development dependent upon Stacy, with users later finding water won't be available because of demands by downstream users.

That, he said, would not be good public policy.

Werkenthin said that under LCRA's interpretation of the law, only 3,200 acre-feet of water would be available at the Stacy site.

Also arguing before the court was Roger Nevola, Austin, attorney for Garwood Irrigation Co., who said the TWC had used an erroneous legal assumption and assumed that releases would be made from the Highland Lakes to downstream users to make up for the effects of Stacy.

The court did not indicate any time for making a decision in the case, but Booth speculated a decision would be made within six months.

The appeals court ruling came on June 30, 1982, and the Supreme Court agreed Sept. 7, 1983, to hear oral arguments.

Dyess officials won't comment on involvement

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Officials at Dyess Air Force Base have refused to comment on persisting rumors that personnel and planes from the facility were involved in the Grenada invasion.

Base officials confirmed Wednesday that Lt. Col. Carl McPherson, commander of the 772nd Tactical Airlift Squadron, who had a major role in a large military exercise in the southeastern United States Oct. 10 through last Friday, has not returned to the base from that exercise.

They also said that several of his aircraft, C-130s, have not returned to Dyess.

Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Texas, of Stamford said he had "reason to believe" Dyess units were involved in Grenada, but base sources said they had been ordered not to comment, under any circumstances, the Abilene Reporter-News said.

Military transport planes and helicopters bound for Grenada were loaded with ammunition, stretchers, radio equipment, forklifts and spare parts Wednesday at the eastern end of the airport in Bridgetown, Barabdos.

The planes were C-130s and C-5As marked "Military Airlift Command."

Air Force Lt. Col. Vince Strayhorne told reporters in an airport parking lot: "We're still sending gunships in. It's getting better. We'll probably be out of there soon."

About 2,000 U.S. Army Rangers and Marines invaded Grenada before dawn Tuesday and were joined by about 800 paratroopers of the 82nd Airborne Division Wednesday.

They were sent in with the mission to protect about 1,000 Americans in the Marxist-ruled nation following last week's coup, and have been battling Cuban advisers and Grenadian troops since the assault began.

Several Dyess aircraft are believed involved in the Grenada action, the Reporter-News said, quoting sources.

Bush to sub for Reagan at Dallas fundraiser

DALLAS (AP) — The day after inspecting the bomb-devastated Marine camp in Beirut, Vice President George Bush was due in Dallas today to substitute for President Reagan at a $1,000-a-plate Republican fundraiser.

The dinner was billed as a "Salute to President Reagan." Former Republican Gov. Bill Clements, the chairman of tonight's dinner, said $1.4 million in tickets had been sold before administration officials announced Tuesday that the president would be unable to attend "because of the press of recent events."

Texas GOP chairman George Strake said, "Texas Republicans are greatly honored that the vice president and our fellow Texan has been able to adjust his schedule and be with us."

Clements said about 10 percent of the proceeds will go to the state party and the remainder will be put into the 1984 Reagan campaign in Texas.

First on Bush's Texas itinerary today was a morning address at Texas Christian University.

Strake said there would be a reception followed by the dinner at Dallas' Registry Hotel. More than 1,200 are expected to attend.

After the GOP dinner, Bush is scheduled to fly to Houston, where he will speak Friday morning at a Forum breakfast. He will then dedicate a school and speak to the international law section of the State Bar of Texas Friday afternoon.

Bush will conclude his Texas visit with a GOP barbecue fundraiser in Corpus Christi late Friday.

The vice president, who once represented Houston in Congress, was in Beirut Wednesday. He donned a flak jacket and helmet to look at the horror of the bombing.

During his three-hour stay, Bush met with President Amin Gemayel and the commanders of the French and Italian peacekeeping forces in Lebanon.

"International terror in the world is simply driven home when you see this," Bush said as he stood before the crushed concrete of what had been the four-story headquarters of the Marines' battalion landing team headquarters.

He landed while the Marines at Beirut airport were on their highest state of alert following a dawn attack with small arms, mortars and bazookas.

Leftists release sisters

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — The kidnapped sisters of Chief of Government Oscar Humberto Mejia Victores and former President Efrain Rios Montt reportedly were freed Wednesday by a leftist guerrilla group that abducted them.

Celeste Aida Mejia de Velasco, 54, the widowed mother of four children and sister of the nation's current leader, was kidnapped Sept. 10 by armed men outside the Social Security General Hospital in the capital where she worked as a nurse's aide.

Lucrecia de Velasco, her sister-in-law, told The Associated Press in a telephone interview that Mrs. Mejia de Velasco was freed "and taken to a medical facility for treatment." She refused to give any more information.

Marta Elena Rios de Rivas, Rios Montt's sister, was kidnapped June 29 in Guatemala City near a grammar school where she taught. Mrs. Rios de Rivas, 37, was then five months pregnant.

Nicaraguan rebel leader withdraws

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — Nicaraguan guerrilla leader Eden Pastora has reportedly quit a rebel group fighting to overthrow his country's leftist Sandinista government, claiming a co-leader is trying to kill him.

Rebel sources, who talked on condition they not be identified, said Pastora quit the Revolutionary Democratic Alliance because he felt political chief Alfonso Robelo was plotting to kill him. The sources said Pastora — a former Sandinista hero known as "Commander Zero" — will continue fighting in southern Nicaragua with the 3,700 rebels he claims to have.

Alliance leaders met in San Jose on Wednesday but said only that they planned to issue a statement today.

In another development, leftist guerrillas in Guatemala freed the sisters of Chief of Government Oscar Humberto Mejia Victores and former President Efrain Rios Montt.

Meanwhile, military chiefs from three Central American countries met today to discuss Nicaragua's alleged threat to security in the region.

In a television interview, Honduran armed forces chief Gen. Gustavo Alvarez Martinez said senior commanders from El Salvador, Guatemala and Honduras started meeting Wednesday afternoon and would continue through today.

Alvarez Martinez said the meeting in Tegucigalpa, Honduras, was to study the revival of the Central American Defense Council, an anti-communist regional defense organization set up in 1963 but inactive since Honduras and El Salvador waged a brief war in 1969.

Other sources, who insisted on anonymity, said the commanders were studying the regional defense situation and the threats posed by Nicaragua's Sandinista government.

The three countries represented at the meeting, together with Costa Rica and the Reagan administration, accuse the Sandinistas of jeopardizing regional security by establishing military ties with Cuba and the Soviet Union and smuggling weapons to leftist rebels in El Salvador.

Technically, Nicaragua is a member of the Defense Council, but Nicaraguan commanders were not invited to the Tegucigalpa meeting or a meeting held in Guatemala last month, which Lt. Gen. Paul Gorman, head of the Panama-based U.S. Southern Command, attended.

The Costa Rican-based Revolutionary Democratic Alliance, which Pastora helped form 18 months ago, is one of two rebel exile groups the Sandinistas claim is receiving secret help from the CIA. It is composed mostly of disenchanted Sandinistas like Pastora.

The Nicaraguan Democratic Front, based in Honduras, includes many national guardsmen of the late Gen. Anastasio Somoza, a pro-American rightist strongman the Sandinistas overthrew in 1979.

Reagan administration officials say U.S. aid to the rebels is to pressure the Sandinistas to stop smuggling weapons to Salvadoran guerrillas.

Andropov modifies arms control stance

MOSCOW (AP) — President Yuri V. Andropov has modified the Soviet stance in arms control negotiations but says continuation of the talks will be "impossible" if NATO starts deploying nuclear missiles this year in Western Europe.

Andropov expressed new flexibility Wednesday on the number of Soviet missiles in EuroPe anpdv1' and on destruction of missiles that would be eliminated under terms of an agreement.

But Andropov did not back down from two major Soviet demands that the Western allies have rejected: that no U.S. missiles be deployed in Europe and that British and French nuclear rockets be counted as NATO weapons.

In Geneva, Soviet arms negotiator Yuli A. Kvitsinsky said today there is still a chance for compromise in the stalled talks.

"There is a sound basis for compromise," Kvitsinsky said as he entered the U.S. disarmament building in Geneva for a scheduled round of talks with his American counterpart, Paul H. Nitze.

Nitze could could not be reached for comment on Kvitsinsky's remarks.

Western diplomats said they found "nothing really new, just nuances" in Andropov's offer Wednesday. One called it a "last ditch effort" at getting Western European leaders to seek a delay in the U.S. missile deployment.

In Washington, the Reagan administration said the Soviet Union is trying to "split the allies" by threatening to walk out on the nuclear arms talks in Geneva, Switzerland.

The State Department said Andropov's latest proposals contain "critical shortcomings."

Soviet officials have been saying the talks should continue beyond December if no agreement is reached, as long as deployment of 572 cruise and Pershing 2 missiles has not started. Andropov took that stand a step further by saying the Soviets would find it imporsible to continue negotiating, although he did nod repeav threats %o retaliate againqt 5fed this week that preparations were "under way" for short-range nuclear missile complexes in East Germany and Czechoslovakia.

"The Geneva talks can be continued if the United States does not start the actual deployment of the missiles," Andropov said. He said the Soviets were "not giving up the search for accord until the United States makes it impossible by its actions."

He said the Soviets have analyzed American proposals and concluded U.S. claims of flexibility are groundless. He blamed the United States for the "impasse" and said that is "now clear even to the most devoted allies of the United States, and it is only bloc loyalty that prevents them from admitting this openly."

NATO defense ministers convene a two-day meeting today in Canada and are expected to reaffirm commitment to start the December deployments of the first land-based medium-range missiles in Western Europe. Warsaw Pact military chiefs are to meet in Moscow this weekend.

Soviet threat called attempt to 'split allies'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration says the Soviet Union is trying to "split the allies" by threatening to walk out on the nuclear arms talks in Geneva, Switzerland.

The State Department also said Wednesday the latest proposals by Soviet President Yuri Andropov contain "critical shortcomings." Andropov's positions were outlined in an interview with the newspaper Pravda and relayed by the official Soviet news agency Tass.

"The public presentation of these proposals before they were presented in the negotiations in Geneva shows that the Soviet intention is to split the allies and their publics," the department statement said.

Andropov said in the interview that the Soviet Union is willing to continue the talks on reducing nuclear weapons in Europe.

There had previously been Soviet threats to break off the talks, but the Andropov statement was the first clear statement from the Soviet leader that "the appearance of new American missiles in Western Europe will make a continuation of the present talks in Geneva impossible."

Soldier says he was ordered to rape, kill American nun

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — A National Guardsman says in a written confession he was ordered by his superiors to rape and kill one of four American churchwomen murdered nearly three years ago, according to court documents.

Carlos Joaquin Contreras, one of five guardsmen accused in the Dec. 2, 1980 slayings, said in the statement he was acting on orders from Sgt. Luis Antonio Colindres, who also is charged in the killings.

It was the second piece of testimony in the case indicating higher orders were involved. Cesar Valle Espinoza, a guardsman called as a witness in the case, testified earlier this year that Colindres had told him he was ordered by superiors to kill the women.

Weinberger talking with allies

MONTEBELLO, Quebec (AP) — Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger is likely to win an endorsement from Western allies today for withdrawing obsolete U.S. nuclear warheads from Europe but could run into critical questioning about the U.S. invasion of Grenada.

Already, the British and Canadian governments have registered their displeasure with the invasion, and smaller countries skeptical of muscle-flexing by the superpowers are apt to follow their lead.

Until President Reagan sent U.S. troops to the eastern Caribbean spice island, this semi-annual meeting of 14 allied defense ministers promised to be relatively smooth.

Reagan ordered U.S. Marines and Army paratroopers into Grenada on Tuesday, saying the invasion was necessary to protect the 1,000 Americans on the island and restore democracy to a nation run by "a brutal group of leftist thugs."

Mother, sister ordered freed

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The Philippines Supreme Court today ordered the release of the mother and sister of the man the military claims assassinated opposition leader Benigno Aquino.

"My son did not have to die, he had nothing to do with it," Saturnina Galman tearfully told reporters just before the court granted a petition asking that she and her daughter, Marilyn, be released from two months of government "protective custody."

The court, saying it found no legal basis for the detention, issued its decision less than three hours after hearing the petition.

The women had been confined in a room in the headquarters of the National Bureau of Investigation since Sept. 1.

Freedom of press discussed

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Journalists from the Americas say Nicaragua, Cuba and South America's military dictatorships are the hemisphere's worst offenders in restricting press freedoms.

Speakers at the 39th General Assembly of the Inter-American Press Association recounted stories Wednesday ranging from government harrassment of newspapers to mysterious disappearance of reporters.

The assembly is to issue a report on the status of press freedom in the Americas at its close on Saturday. It began Monday.

Five killed in factory fire

LONDON (AP) — Five women were killed and two injured when a fire gutted a clothing factory in east London, fire officials said.

Five other women escaped unhurt, including two who ran across a roof behind the three-story building.

Sixty firemen fought for two hours Wednesday night to control the blaze. Its cause was under investigation.

Man dies two weeks after win

GIJON, Spain (AP) — Jesus Pacheco, a retired coal miner, died of a chronic lung disease two weeks after winning $320,000 in the soccer pools, his family said.

Pacheco, 48, died Wednesday. He had been living on a modest pension since he was forced to retire in 1970 because of the disease, silicosis, and for the past 10 years had to wear an oxygen mask 15 hours a day.

When he heard of his good luck with the pools, Pacheco said, "I feel it came a bit too late."

Gasoline prices increased

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The government today increased the price of gasoline by 17 to 34 percent, saying it wanted to keep up with inflation.

All liquid fuels in Mexico are retailed by the state petroleum monopoly PEMEX.

The Treasury Department said the price of the regular Nova brand will increase from 24 to 30 pesos a liter; equivalent to an increase from 60 to 71 cents per gallon. The Extra high-octane brand will go up from 30 to 41 pesos a liter, or 75 cents to $1.01 a gallon.

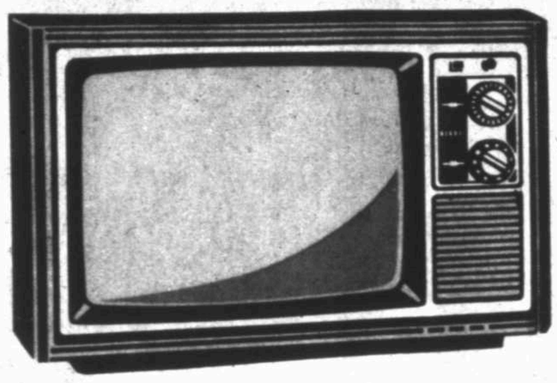

Diesel fuel went up from 12 to 19 pesos a liter; 40 to 42 cents a gallon, the announcement said.

Air Force Base prepares for Marines, Navy bodies

DOVER, Del. (AP) — Cinderblocks representing 50 caskets were placed in a hangar at Dover Air Force Base as a Marine contingent rehearsed memorial ceremonies for the more than 200 servicemen killed in the terrorist bombing in Lebanon.

Base officials awaited word today on when and how many bodies of Marines and Navy personnel killed in Sunday's attack in Beirut would arrive, said Lt. Rick Guidry, a spokesman.

The base was to be notified when planes leave for Dover from the U.S. base at Wiesbaden, West Germany, he said.

The Dover base, with the largest mortuary on the East Coast, has handled six earlier Beirut casualties since the Marines were sent to Lebanon as part of a multinational peacekeeping force.

Maj. Rick Stepien, a member of the 20-man Marine liaison team on hand to help with preparations, said the cinderblocks gave an idea of spacing for the ceremony, to be held in the big hangar where a 14-member Marine escort and an honor guard rehearsed Wednesday.

Thirty-eight members of the U.S. Marine Band from Quantico, Va., rehearsed "Eternal Father," also known as the "Navy Hymn."

Charles C. Carson, base mortician, said the bodies would arrive in metal transfer cases to be dressed and placed in caskets.

"I'm pretty sure we won't be doing any identifications," said Carson, who has a staff of 15, including four morticians. "They will be positively identified when they get here."

Carson said that depending on the condition of the bodies, they would probably be shipped to the hometowns of the victims within 36 hours.

"To the best of my knowledge, there will be one Marine escort for each casket to the hometowns," Stepien said.

The base mortuary, which opened in 1968, processed thousands of servicemen killed in Vietnam and more than 900 victims of the suicide-massacre in Jonestown, Guyana, in 1979.

Marine Corps establishes hotline

By The Associated Press

The U.S. Marine Corps has established three hotline telephone numbers to handle calls from families inquiring their servicemen in Beirut.

The three telephone numbers are: 202-694-1492, 202-694-1495 and 202-694-4309.

Enlistment boosted by heavy fighting in Lebanon, Grenada

By The Associated Press

Marine Corps recruiters are being deluged with enlistments and a lot of "noble gestures" from men too young or old to sign up but nevertheless eager to join the fighting in Grenada and Lebanon.

"When trouble beckons, patriotism seems to rise," Sgt. Jeffrey McCartney said Wednesday from a Philadelphia recruiting office. "People call us and tell us how proud they are."

McCartney says he usually signs up two to three recruits a month, but "this week we got four."

Recruiters in Baltimore, Miami, Chicago, Evansville, Ind., and Austin, Texas all said they were deluged with applicants since Sunday's bombing of the Marine garrison in Beirut and Tuesday's multinational invasion of Grenada, led by Marines and Army Rangers.

In other cities — including Detroit, Atlanta, Denver, Phoenix, Ariz., and Providence, R.I. — officers said it was too early too detect any affect on enlistments.

Navy Lt. Dave Schuman, right, raises his right hand as he inducts new recruits into the armed service at the Military Entrance Processing Station Wednesday in Chicago. According to one spokesman, about twice the normal number of people have passed through recruiting substations in northern Illinois following Sunday's terrorist bombing in Beirut which killed more than 200 Marines.

Wait continues for families

By The Associated Press

A broken leg, a wounded head and an imperfect smile were good news to the family of one Marine stationed in Lebanon, who rejoiced when they learned he was injured but alive, as word of death came silently to others "all cried out" after five days of waiting.

There were no tears left for the family of Lance Cpl. Kevin Custard, 22, of Virginia, Minn., who was reported missing and believed killed on Wednesday.

Ronald Perron of Whitinsville, Mass., said two Marines came to his door Wednesday morning and told him his son Thomas, 19, who was to be promoted to lance corporal this week, has not shown up for musters and is listed as missing in action.

"It's been a long four days," Perron said. The family received a letter from their son Tuesday, in which he told them, "It has started to get to me, all this killing and all this dying."

The Pentagon said only a few of the more than 200 men killed in Sunday's bombing have been identified positively because many weren't wearing dog tags and records were destroyed in the blast.

Military recruiters around the nation reported a surge of inquiries about the service.

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell, in accordance with rules and orders of the Public Utility Commission of Texas, hereby gives notice of its intent to re-file evidence and appropriate tariff(s) in support of a request to establish rates for the use of certain complex inside telephone wiring in the amount of $54.5 million annually. This request was previously a part of the considerations in Docket 5141 and now has been re-docketed as Docket 5420.

Customers who do not own the Complex Inside Wire associated with their Customer Premises Systems (such as PBX and Key Systems), and who utilize Southwestern Bell's wiring after January 1, 1984, could be affected by this request. On January 1, 1984, all of the Customer Premises Systems presently provided by Southwestern Bell Telephone Company will be transferred to a subsidiary of AT&T and that subsidiary of AT&T will be almost exclusively responsible for the charges pursuant to the proposed tariff on January 1, 1984. After January 1, 1984, customers who purchase their Complex Customer Premises Equipment and do not purchase, but continue to use, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company's inside wire will be subject to the charges proposed in the tariff.

The proposed effective date for these new rates is January 1, 1984.

Persons interested in intervening in this matter should file a written motion expeditiously with the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Austin, Texas 78757, as the Hearing on the Merits in Docket 5420 is set for November 21, 1983.

A U.S. Marine is carried down the gangway of a U.S. Air Force plane Wednesday night at Frankfurt Rhine-Main-Air Base in Cyprus. The Marine will be treated at Akrotiri RAF Base for injuries suffered when the Marines were wounded in Sunday's terroristic attack in Beirut.

Servicemen that escaped death, injury named

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here is a partial list of names of 1,700 servicemen who escaped death or injury in the terrorist bombing of U.S. Marine headquarters in Beirut on Sunday.

The Pentagon, which supplied the list, said further names will be released as they become available. No hometowns were provided. Rank, first and sometimes second initial and last name are the only identification the military has released.

The Pentagon said the spelling of the 107 names was as received from Beirut by military cable and could not be confirmed.

nation in brief

Site of death to be fenced off

NEW HOPE, Pa. (AP) — A dirt towpath along the Delaware Canal, apparently mistaken by NBC anchorwoman Jessica Savitch and a friend for a parking lot exit before they plunged into the canal and drowned, may be fenced off, state officials say.

Ms. Savitch and New York Post executive Martin Fischbein were killed at the site Sunday. In 1977, a businessman leaving the Chez Odette restaurant died in a similar accident at the site.

The 12-foot-wide towpath is owned and maintained by the state Department of Environmental Resources, which is studying whether to replace two small signs at the path's entrance with a fence, spokesman Bruce Dallas said Wednesday.

Principal not liable for suicide

HANOVER, Va. (AP) — A high school principal who let students play "Dungeons and Dragons" at school is not liable for a teen-age player's suicide, a judge ruled in dismissing a $1 million suit by the youth's family.

Irving Lee Pulling II, 16, shot himself in June 1982 after having a "curse" placed on him while playing the fantasy game, according to the suit. The suit charged that principal Robert A. Bracey III was negligent in letting the game be played at Patrick Henry High School.

Hanover County Circuit Judge Richard H.C. Taylor dismissed the suit Wednesday, ruling that Bracey was immune from damages because of his "official capacity" as the principal.

Mob figures freed on bond

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Ten reputed mob figures, including the alleged bosses in Chicago and Milwaukee, were freed on bond after pleading innocent to conspiring to skim nearly $2 million in gambling profits from Las Vegas casinos.

The 10, who were among 15 people named in an eight-count federal indictment, appeared Wednesday before U.S. Magistrate Calvin K. Hamilton. The defendants included Joseph J. Aiuppa, 76, of Chicago and Frank P. Balistrieri, 65, of Milwaukee, both identified by federal investigators as the organized crime bosses in those cities.

The indictment alleged that the money was skimmed from casino receipts and distributed to the mob in 1978 and 1979.

Family to test son's remains

IPSWICH, Mass. (AP) — The mother of an Air Force pilot shot down over Laos in 1972 says her family plans its own identity tests on her son's remains, which the Air Force told her have been found.

Inge Hardy said Wednesday she was notified last week the body of Capt. Arthur H. Hardy, who would have been 35 on Nov. 7, has been positively identified at the Central Military Laboratory in Hawaii. She is awaiting word on when the body will be returned home.

"If it happens to be true — I don't think relieved is the right word — but the worrying will be over," Mrs. Hardy said.

Gates briefed on groups

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The former head of the police department's defunct intelligence unit says he briefed Police Chief Darryl Gates weekly on the activities of various citizens' groups, including the Citizens Commission on Police Repression.

Robert Loomis, a retired captain who headed the Public Disorder Intelligence Division from October 1979 through June 1982, made the statement in a deposition released Tuesday by the American Civil Liberties Union. The ACLU has filed six suits charging the division with spying on individuals and organizations.

Department spokesman Cmdr. William Booth said he had not seen Loomis' statement and added, "Talking about a critic is far different from targeting that critic" for an investigation.

Kennedy tapes reveal laughter, specter of war

BOSTON (AP) — At breakfast, John F. Kennedy learned that Soviet missiles were 90 miles from American soil. Three hours later he was ready to discuss a potential nuclear shootout.

Tapes of two meetings in the Oval Office Oct. 16, 1962, the first day of the Cuban missile crisis, were released Wednesday by the John F. Kennedy Library. The first session ran just under an hour, from 11:50 a.m. to 12:57 p.m.

Leading off the discussion is Caroline, then 4. She spoke three times. Kennedy responded three times. There was laughter, says the transcript. But what father and daughter said isn't available; the entire section is blanked out, and a typed transcript says only, "CLOSED IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE DONOR'S DEED OF GIFT."

In other words, the Kennedy family deleted the conversation.

Other parts were excised by National Security Council censors.

Kennedy's humor did not desert him during his gravest crisis, but for the most part, the man heard on scratchy, 21-year-old tapes is a probing, chairman-of-the-board leader.

The discussion moves quickly. The clipped tones of Attorney General Robert Kennedy probe specifics. The deeper voices of McGeorge Bundy, special assistant for national security affairs, and Defense Secretary Robert McNamara outline the larger consequences of an attack on Cuba.

Humiliated by the failure of the Bay of Pigs invasion less than two years earlier, the president appeared worried about U.S. prestige.

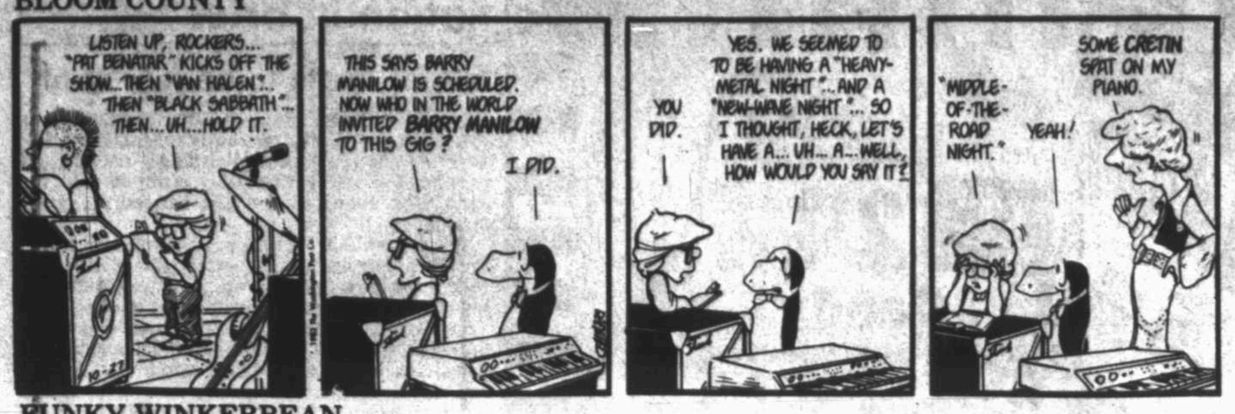

He recently had announced he wouldn't tolerate offensive nuclear weapons in Cuba and was appalled to hear that Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev had decided to install them.

"My press statement was so clear about how we wouldn't do anything under these conditions and under the conditions that we would," Kennedy told the advisers. "He's initiated the danger really, hasn't he? He's the one that's playing God, not us."

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Friday, October 28, 1983

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Hollywood's most famous fashion designer, the late Edith Head, was born on this date. Also sharing your birthday: actress Jane Alexander, novelist Evelyn Waugh, Olympic athlete Bruce Jenner and Dr. Jonas Salk. Although your words are convincing, you must back them up with action. Additional schooling might boost your career to new heights. A parent-child relationship matures, turning into a rich friendship. Frequent, short vacations increase your productivity at work. The romantic fumbles of the past are forgotten when you meet the right partner. Consult loved one before accepting or issuing invitations. He/she might prefer to be alone with you!

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Short-term solutions will buy you valuable time. Think twice before dismissing an unusual idea or person. A potential romantic partner shows up at lunch. Put your best foot forward.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Be tolerant of those who lack your speed or experience. The observations you make now will be valuable in future financial negotiations. A confident attitude helps you climb the career ladder.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A homemaker finds a way to supplement the family's income. Continuing your education could be a smart career move. A former flame shows renewed interest. Do not mislead current partner.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Say "yes" to financial help or a job offer. You gain important experience. Use it to advance your career. A new romance gives you greater self-confidence. Recognize your strengths.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your irritation shows, putting you at a disadvantage. Play it cool! Level with loved ones about your plans. Do not overlook another's discomfort if you make the wrong choice.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A change of environment helps you make a fresh beginning. Be more assertive in romance. Independence and privacy assume greater importance. Try to mediate between a parent and child.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Distant affairs require careful handling. You may have to postpone some social plans. Take note of what a younger person says. Real estate deals enjoy favorable influences now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Unexpected delays will cause frustration about a financial situation. Jointly-held funds should not be used for risky ventures. Tend to routine tasks. An interview could lead to new friendships.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Do not take a rejection in business personally. Your timing could be off. Family ties flourish, boosting your sagging spirits. Trust the advice you receive from a loving parent.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Read the fine print on a contract very carefully and consult a lawyer if in doubt. A loved one's behavior grows even more provocative. It is time to stop being so extravagant.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You find the courage to take care of a difficult personal matter. Resist the temptation to blow the whistle on what appears to be an underhanded venture. You need more facts.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Be alert to any change in a loved one's attitude towards you. A change in lifestyle could benefit you both enormously. Get together with good friends this evening.

Britain lures American comedies

By MATT WOLF

LONDON (AP) — Complaining of a lack of British humorists, a theatrical producer in England is importing American comedies for the inaugural season of a London theater devoted to showcasing locally written comedies.

"We haven't yet unearthed a local writer worth doing. But very shortly, I hope we'll be presenting some new talent of our own," says Ray Cooney, artistic director of the Little Theater of Comedy.

The Little Theater premieres Saturday with two American plays: Christopher Durang's double bill, "Sister Mary Ignatius Explains It All for You — The Actor's Nightmare," and Bernard Slade's "Special Occasions."

Cooney hopes these American imports will give his venture the necessary artistic and financial boost, despite the fact that "Special Occasions" was an overnight flop in New York.

Theater critic Robert Hewison of the Sunday Times of London told The Associated Press he disagreed with Cooney on the shortage of local talent.

Hewison said comic talents exist on the Fringe, the British equivalent of off-Broadway theater in New York, and rarely come to the West End, London's Broadway.

"The real problem, of course, is what you think is funny," Hewison said. "The sort of thing the West End thinks is funny is usually dire. But there's a whole new generation of revue artists who are extremely funny."

As an example, he praised the "critical comedy" of a Fringe show such as Robyn Archer's current "Cut and Thrust," and deplored such tourist-oriented, West End comedies as "No Sex Please, We're British," now in its 12th year.

"What we really need are intelligent comedies, not just belly laughs," the critic said.

Cooney himself is the author and director of one current West End comedy aimed at tourists, "Run for Your Wife." Revenue from this farce about a taxi driver with two wives enabled Cooney to obtain a five-year lease on the Ambassadors Theatre for his new venture.

Cooney called the Durang plays, still running at the Westside Arts Theatre off-Broadway after 2½ years, the "best thing" he's seen recently in New York.

But he doubts that "Sister Mary" will be greeted with the protests from Catholics that marked its regional performances in the United States.

"Those people who would be offended by it won't go," Cooney said. The show is about a maniacal nun whose former students come back to her classroom to take their revenge.

Opening lead: Two of ◇.

There is nothing unsporting about taking advantage of a penalty imposed on your opponents by the Laws of bridge. But it is appealing to see someone recover neatly from an inadvertent lapse.

This hand is from a recent tournament at a New York club. North-South were not doing as well as they had hoped, and they needed a few top scores if they were to place. That is the only excuse we can offer for North's decision to raise his partner's weak two spade opening bid to game.

West led the two of diamonds, but the seven of diamonds also fell, face up, on the table. That became a penalty card. According to the Laws, it must be played at the first legal opportunity unless some other penalty is exercised. When the offender's partner gains the lead, declarer may require or forbid the lead of that suit. If declarer exercises that option, the penalty card is picked up and play proceeds normally.

Declarer was not overjoyed with his contract. However, he saw a way to take advantage of the fact that West had a penalty card. East captured dummy's diamond ten with the ace, and declarer required that he lead another diamond. West picked up the seven of diamonds, East returned a diamond and declarer sluffed a heart.

Declarer thought that West would win the king of diamonds, setting up two high diamonds in dummy for discards. On those declarer would sluff another heart and a club, then fall back on the club finesse for his contract.

Those plans were soon scotched. West followed with the seven of diamonds, allowing dummy to win the trick. But now declarer still had to lose a trick in each suit for down one — the same fate he would have suffered had there been no irregularity.

American action

The invasion of Grenada by U.S. military forces Tuesday was (1) justified by events there during recent weeks and (2) wise, judging from past actions by the Soviets and Cubans.

President Reagan's contention that the invasion was launched to protect about 1,000 American students threatened by the military coup there last week was understandable. After all, Americans don't want to think of themselves as aggressors running rampant over the liberties of another nation's countrymen. The Soviets and the Cubans do that.

The "protection" excuse, while being part of the president's motive for invading, actually was just convenient for accomplishing his real intent: To provide stability in a region of this hemisphere that desperately needs it and to directly oppose Soviet intervention in this half of the world.

Maurice Bishop, Grenada's Marxist leader until the coup, had brought Cuban troops to the Caribbean island to train his 3,000-man army and to build an airfield capable of accommodating any aircraft in the Soviet Union's arsenal. Grenada's true-blue Marxists killed Bishop last week in a coup that set in motion the events leading to the U.S. invasion.

That airfield was one big danger point for this hemisphere because it provided the means for the Soviet Union to export revolution to Central America and to pose an even greater threat to Mexico and the United States. In that respect, it was intolerable to President Reagan.

Ironically, the invasion's timing (although it wasn't planned this way) was such that it didn't stir liberal passions as much as it would have had it occurred prior to the bombing of U.S. Marines headquarters in Beirut, Lebanon. When the invasion was launched, patriotism was building among Americans who were shocked and horrified by that tragedy. That fact tempered protests in this country against the action at Grenada.

Oh, the invasion already is being used by the Soviets and Third World nations to paint the old portrait once again of the imperialistic American. So be it.

The threat posed by the military coup in Grenada was recognized by President Reagan who acted in the interest of Americans. That's the kind of American action we haven't seen much of lately, but hope we see more often when events justify.

Another View:

The first question

Who does not ask in bewilderment why more effective measures were not taken against a car or truck suicide mission, a familiar terrorist tactic in Lebanon and elsewhere and one that had been used against Americans in Beirut to devastating effect only a few months earlier? It is not the only question to arise from the carnage in Lebanon, but it is the first question.

It seems that the Marines were trapped not so much in the literal flat land of the airport coastal plain as in the figurative flat land of official thinking about their role. Even after the premises of the policy were undermined by events, the Pentagon clung to a calculation that the Marines were in Lebanon to keep a peace that would steadily take root as foreign troops departed and the Lebanese factions drew together. Reasonable precautions were taken but, for the most part, only within the context of those rather sanguine expectations.

After the blast, for instance, it was explained that the Marines' specific mission of keeping the airport open and walking Beirut back to normality — of serving as a "presence" — had precluded constructing the kind of "fortress barriers" that might have stopped the deadly truck. This statement has a certain ring of alibi after the fact. Surely the purpose of creating a "presence" did not require that these Marines be left as vulnerable as they self-evidently were on Sunday morning — and surely something short of "fortress barriers" could have been devised.

It says something about earlier planning that after the event ideas started to bubble up promising greater immediate physical security for the Marines even without a formal change in their mission — that is a larger matter on which the Marines' security cannot wait. Let the Marines bivouac on ships offshore, it was suggested; double the guard; expand the defense perimeter; shift from a "static" to a "forward" defense; move the patrol bases around or to different locations; reduce concentrations of Marines.

We are in no position to judge which of these or other suggestions make the most military sense. Our point is that the explosion quickly expanded the list of threats and contingencies which the military accepted as necessary to weave into its plans.

A disaster on this scale — like the aborted Iran rescue effort — invariably calls into question some of the fundamental procedures of military planning and command. Is there something in the system that impedes anticipation of misfortunes which, when they occur, seem not all that hard to have anticipated? No one wishes to belabor the military at a time of its special distress, but the analysis that must be part of future planning requires an unflinching inquiry.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Thursday, Oct. 27, the 300th day of 1983. There are 65 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Oct. 27, 1858 — 125 years ago — the 28th president of the United States, Theodore Roosevelt, was born in New York City.

On this date:

In 1880, on his 22nd birthday, Theodore Roosevelt married Alice Lee.

In 1904, the first rapid transit subway, the IRT, opened in New York City.

In 1920, the League of Nations moved its headquarters from London to Geneva, Switzerland.

And, in 1938, DuPont announced the invention of nylon.

Ten years ago: A United Nations peacekeeping force arrived in Cairo, Egypt, to attempt to set up a lasting cease-fire between Israeli and Arab forces.

Five years ago: Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin were awarded the Nobel Peace Prize.

One year ago: Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev told military leaders in Moscow that the United States was threatening to push the world into a nuclear war.

Today's birthdays: Producer Fred DeCordova is 73 years old. Actress Nanette Fabray is 63.

Thought for today: "Most folks are about as happy as they make up their minds to be." — President Abraham Lincoln (1809-1865).

ART BUCHWALD

It's 'real thing,' but will it sell?

The Mondale people are going ga-ga trying to figure out how to counteract all the publicity John Glenn is getting from the film "The Right Stuff." The movie hype has made Glenn a far more serious candidate than he was before, and Mondale's headquarters is running scared.

"What we need," said one of Mondale's top advisers, "is our own film with Mondale as a hero. We could call it 'The Real Thing.'"

Art Buchwald

"The title's fine but what about a story line? Fritz never orbited into space."

"He flew in Air Force One when he was vice president."

"I'm not sure most people would consider that as risky as being an astronaut."

"But we could make it into a dramatic story. No one has ever done the thrilling saga of what goes into becoming a vice president of the United States. We could show how they're chosen after rigorous testing, and how they're trained to handle one of the most important missions in the country."

"Yeh, so what role does Fritz play?"

"He's the serious one who rides herd on the other vice presidential candidates, who are always horsing around and getting into trouble with their superiors and sometimes their wives. Fritz is a true-blue straight arrow, because he knows how much is riding on the vice presidential program."

"You really think people will pay money to see that?"

"It all depends on the way it's done. This has to be a human story and what makes it human are the vice presidential candidates' wives who have to support them, not showing fear and trepidation whenever their men are sent on a training mission to raise a million dollars for the party.

"Joan will be the heroine of our story. We'll show her trying to keep busy, ignoring the thought that at the very moment she and her children are watching him on television, her husband has his hand on the throttle which will open a new federal dam in New Mexico."

"Don't forget the press, and the role they played in making our vice presidents America's heroes."

"It will be in the script. We'll show an ordinary guy from the wheat fields of Minnesota being thrust into the limelight by a hungry, voracious media. We'll depict the invasion of his private life, and how he and Joan were able to handle it. We'll have a scene in which Fritz chews out all the other Democratic vice presidential candidates because they're partying and living it up, and not taking their roles seriously."

"We don't want Fritz to look too much like a boy scout."

"Why not? The American people always believed their vice presidents were boy scouts. 'The Real Thing' will portray Mondale as the most serious and the most qualified of all those who ever had the office."

"Yeah, that's all well and good. But what about drama? How do we match a guy going into orbit from the top of a rocket?"

"The drama comes when President Jimmy Carter chooses Fritz over all the other members of his staff, and decides he will be the first American ever to attend the inauguration of a new chief of state of Sierra Leone."

"So?"

"Fritz, cramped in Air Force One, sits waiting for the air controller's countdown. We cut to Joan nervously biting her nails. All systems are go and suddenly the 707 is streaking down the runway. The world, with bated breath, is waiting as it wings across the Atlantic Ocean. One of the engines starts giving trouble, and President Carter calls Mondale and asks him if he wants to abort the mission. But Fritz knows if he fails, the vice presidential program will be set back for years. He says he'll keep going. Finally, with barely enough fuel to make it, Air Force One sees the Sierra Leone runway and makes a perfect landing.

"When Fritz gets back to the U.S. he gets a ticker tape parade down Broadway. He has proven to America and the world he has 'The Real Thing.'"

"It sounds good to me. Does anyone know somebody in Hollywood who will make it?"

"Everybody will want to make it. How many pictures about former vice presidents have they produced in the last 10 years?"

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Official still wants 'voodoo tests'

WASHINGTON — Earlier this month, I uncovered a startling Justice Department proposal to identify future criminals by studying thousands of 9-to-12-year-old boys. The inquisitors would watch for such ominous signs as lefthandedness, oddly shaped ears and failure to sweat when given electric shocks.

Jack Anderson

My disclosure of the proposed study blew up a storm of protest and Justice Department officials are backtracking frantically. I have been assured by sources within the department and on Capitol Hill that the initial $500,000 funding request doesn't stand a chance. The project is now dead.

But now my associate Indy Badhwar has obtained a copy of another Justice Department proposal along the same lines — and it has already been funded with a $324,845 down payment. The three-stage study would be conducted by the prestigious Rand Corp. It is intended to develop "intervention strategies" that will stop "the careers of serious juvenile offenders before they become fully developed."

The Justice Department official responsible for both projects is Alfred S. Regnery, director of the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention.

I had my reporter Kevin Ellis do a little checking on Regnery to see if perchance he exhibited any of the telltale signs his scientists were going to look for.

According to a number of sources, Regnery is not lefthanded nor do his ears appear to be misshapen. My sources could not determine whether Regnery's palms remain dry when he's given an electric jolt nor could they find out whether his second toe was longer than his middle toe (another bad sign for the voodoo scientists).

But he was described by three sources as having shifty eyes and he never looks at the person he is talking to, a sign of suspicious motives — to silent-movie directors if not to medico-scientific quacks. And he has greasy hair, hunches over his desk and appears insecure.

These physical traits are meaningless, of course. The point is they are just as valid measurements of potential criminal tendencies as the characteristics Regnery does not show — but which he evidently thinks were worth observing in young boys.

Theories of biological litmus tests for criminals have long since been discredited as quackery on a par with phrenology and palm reading. The theories enjoyed their peak of popularity among the demonstrably criminal leaders of Nazi Germany — with sickening results that were documented at the Nuremburg trials.

Interestingly, the proposal for "Early Identification of the Chronic Offender" has references that are reminiscent of Nazi ideology. "It will be important," the proposal notes, "to assess neighborhood characteristics such as ... ethnic and racial heterogeneity ... Schools can be evaluated in terms of ... ethnic and racial composition, and heterogeneity ...."

In this context, "heterogeneity" is simply a seven-syllable word for that old bugaboo of the Third Reich: race mixing. Like the Nazis, the study's proponents apparently fear that young boys can be corrupted simply by associating with kids of different ethnic or racial backgrounds.

Regnery, a former official of the conservative Young Americans for Freedom, drew considerable opposition at his Senate confirmation hearing because of his outspoken views in favor of harsh punishment for juvenile offenders. At one point he suggested "maybe sending a juvenile to Wales for a week as a sort of shock treatment."

And during his confirmation hearings, his car bore a bumper sticker that asked: "Have You Slugged Your Kid Today?"

HEADLINES AND FOOTNOTES: Next month Congress will announce the annual Congressional Excalibur Award for outstanding public service. I'd like to second the nomination of two unsung Labor Department racket busters, special agents Wesley M. Walker and Fred Ferrone. They were the key players in an investigation that broke organized crime's long stranglehold on the Fulton Fish Market in lower Manhattan. Their efforts led to 48 indictments and 44 convictions, many of them top members of the Vito Genovese crime family.

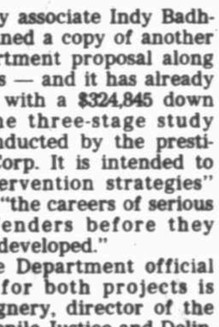

— For months, two Washington State environmentalists, Carew Papritz and Russ Tremayne, cajoled and wheedled caricatures of Interior Secretary James Watt from 100 of the nation's cartoonists. They tried to interest publishers, but none thought Watt would be around long enough. So they published "100 Watts" themselves — two weeks before Watt resigned.

GEORGE F. WILL

U.S. showing impotence again

WASHINGTON — There have been even more cease-fires in Lebanon than there have been explanations of the mission of the multinational force in Lebanon. But new explanations are coming even faster than cease-fires.

George F. Will

Last month British Prime Minister Thatcher, who has a small contingent in the multinational force, said the aim of the force is "reconciliation": "I do not believe there is a civil war. They (the multinational units) are trying to achieve reconciliation between both sides."

"Both"? There are 16 militias, for starters. It is a civil war — civil anarchy — within Syria's war of aggression. "Reconciliation"? The Marine Corps is a magnificent mobile force for carrying the fight to an enemy. But those young men from the Bronx and Boise are not suited to "reconciling" religious fanatics speaking strange tongues.

In Vietnam, the Marines were supposed to be instruments of "nation building." In Lebanon, it seems that the Marines' unfulfillable mission has been to avoid casualties — which, as Henry Kissinger says, they could do best back in North Carolina.

A great power's primary objective cannot be to avoid casualties. Its policy must be to minimize the violence involved in the pursuit of vital objectives. If there were 10,000 U.S. forces ashore, authorized to move about, there would be less risk to American lives than there is with an immobile force of 1,300 — a force that last Sunday was literally decimated: reduced by one-tenth.

In fixed position, in numbers irrelevant to any imaginable mission, the U.S. forces are trapped. President Reagan took the oath of office as one hostage crisis was ending. Now he has his own.

As Israeli forces approached Beirut in the summer of 1982, the United States held the upper hand: The PLO was broken, Syrian was intimidated and, hence, the Soviet Union, Syria's sustainer, was discredited. But the United States pressured Israel to stop outside Beirut. Having contributed to the breaking of Israel's momentum, and will, the United States precipitated the Israeli pull-back. The Marines are trapped in a vacuum the United States helped to make.

The original idea was for the Marines to be interposed between PLO, Syrian and Israeli forces as they disengaged. Israel has agreed to withdraw when Syria does, but there never was reason to think that Syria would agree. Syrian nationalism, Syria's deepening dependence on the Soviet Union, and Syria's decreasing sense of danger make withdrawal increasingly unlikely.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger now says the U.S. "commitment" is "to restore peace to the area." But 1,300 Marines obviously can make no military contribution to that, and have no discernible diplomatic relevance.

Weinberger suggests that Lebanon's army is almost ready to guarantee Lebanon's sovereignty. That assessment conflicts with reports that before Lebanese units can be sent to a particular area, commanders must determine the ethnic composition of the area, and of the unit. Lebanon's army is irrelevant to the problem of displacing Syrian forces.

The Reagan administration's first misconception concerning the Middle East was that Saudi Arabia — in Sen. Clairborne Pell's words, a nation run by 3,000 cousins — could be a pillar of our strategic strength. Imagine the effect on the Saudis as they watch the rise of Iranian power and the inability of the United States to project convincing power for a clear purpose.

The administration's second misconception born of wishful thinking (and some coolness toward Israel) was that Syria would be spontaneously cooperative — that is, cooperative without coercion. Here is where the strongest force in the region — Israeli's — becomes relevant.

A premise of U.S. policy, for decades, has been that Israel is a strategic asset to the United States, with identical objectives. But with Israel's economy in crisis and its morale shattered by the worst 15 months in its 35 years, Israel is, for the moment, a diminished asset. But it still is formidable and could be helpful.

Kissinger states the truth with a directness that should not be exclusively a luxury of persons out of power: The truth is that satisfactory negotiations are impossible until the balance of forces on the ground has shifted in our favor.

Syria is a Soviet client that sees no risk in obduracy. The best development now would be for a local power, Israel, to bomb Syrian artillery positions in the Bakka valley. The second best development would be for U.S. aircraft to do that. Something must be done to convince Syria that its army is at risk. What certainly is at risk today is the crux of Reagan's foreign policy.

The aim of Reagan's foreign policy is to repair U.S. credibility — to reestablish the material capability, and national will, to project force. But the U.S. involvement in Lebanon, as currently configured and explained, promises another protracted demonstration of impotence.

state in brief

Mattox said suit considered

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas is "giving serious consideration" to a lawsuit that would stop EPA approval of burning of toxic wastes off the Texas coast, Attorney General Jim Mattox said Wednesday.

"The proposed burning has aroused concerned citizens in the Rio Grande Valley and elsewhere along the coast, who fear that clouds of toxic fumes or dangerous drifting liquids from a spill could reach shore from the site," Mattox said in a letter to EPA chief William Ruckelshaus. "There also is concern about sensitive marine life in the gulf."

Mattox's telegram said EPA failed to adopt specific procedures and standards for ocean incineration of dangerous wastes before it tentatively approved last week a permit for Chemical Waste Management Inc. to operate two incinerator ships out of Port Isabel.

Agencies to work on conservation

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Land Commissioner Garry Mauro says his office and the Soil Conservation Service will cooperate in developing and implementing soil and water conservation plans on 900,000 acres of state-owned lands.

A memorandum prepared by the two agencies was outlined in McAllen at the annual meeting of the Texas Soil and Water Conservation Districts, Mauro said.

The land office had worked informally with the Soil Conservation Service in the past "and with the implementation of this memorandum of understanding our working relationship will become closer with an improved coordination of agency activities," he said.

Highway maintenance to be cut

AUSTIN (AP) — Engineer-director Mark Goode of the state highway department said Wednesday the department will cut back on maintenance costs — litter pickups and mowing — to save $20 million for road surface repairs.

Last year, he said, litter pickups cost the department $17.2 million, and mowing cost $32 million.

Goode said crews will continue to mow at highway intersections and other locations where good visibility is essential for motorists' safety.

Hospital to be shut down

JOHNSON CITY (AP) — Directors of the debt-ridden Lyndon B. Johnson Memorial Hospital have voted to shut it down.

John Stevenson, president of the governing body for the hospital, said it was closing because of $800,000 in debts and shortage of personnel.

The hospital has operated as a 15-bed hospital with a 24-bed nursing care center.

White names group members

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White on Wednesday appointed lawyers Larry Temple of Austin and George Bramblett Jr. of Dallas to the Texas College Coordinating Board and designated Temple as board chairman.

White appointed Paul Hopkins of LaMarque to the Texas Water Commission and he named David Cook of Houston to the Texas Real Estate Commission.

Shuttle contracts to be consolidated

HOUSTON (AP) — Officials at the Johnson Space Center say that 16 contracts to support space shuttle operations will be consolidated into one pact in an effort to save money and free NASA workers for research and development work.

The center, which employs 3,396 government civil service workers and 5,676 contract employees, will let the single contract for 1986, spokesman Steve Nesbitt said Wednesday.

"It simplifies the number of people the government has to deal with," Nesbitt said. "It focuses responsibility and makes keeping track of the work a little bit easier."

Nesbitt said the change will reduce the number of executives of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration who are needed to oversee work done for the space shuttle.

"We're not an operational agency. We need to put ourselves in the position of handling routine operations in a simple way," he said. "This will free our people to research and development, which is what NASA does best."

Nesbitt said it was not clear how much money the consolidation would save, but officials called it "considerable." Nesbitt said no final decision had been made concerning exactly which jobs will be involved.

"The objective of the new contract is to develop a more efficient and cost-effective approach to shuttle operations as the flight rate increases and as operations become more routine," JSC Director Gerald D. Griffin said.

"We're going to award a major contract in 1986 which will consolidate space transporation system operational support activities, currently performed by about 16 different contractors, as well as some routine functions currently performed by civil service staff," he said.

Among operations affected by the consolidation will be maintenance and operation of the mission control center, the shuttle simulator, the shuttle avionics integration laboratory and the shuttle portion of the central computing complex, he said. Other areas affected will be flight planning and direct mission support.

Space Center officials are planning to meet in early November with those companies likely to be affected by the consolidation, spokesman Dave Alter said.

A similar consolidation took place recently at the Kennedy Space Center in Florida, he said.

"They've been analyzing ways to cut back expenditures for quite some time so we can operate at the most economical level, and this is one means of doing so," Alter said.

Man charged with murder in family's deaths

GILMER (AP) — Police here say they have been unable to question a 37-year-old local hotel owner who remains in intensive care at a Marshall hospital, charged with four counts of murder in the deaths of his family.

Gandabhiv M. Patel, the owner of a small stucco hotel in this East Texas town, wrote authorities a rambling note calling the slaying of his family of four "a spiritual act" to call attention to President Reagan's criticism of the Soviet Union, police said.

A state trooper said Patel shot himself as the trooper approached Patel's car, parked in a roadside park near Marshall, Tuesday night.

Patel remains hospitalized in stable condition in the intensive care unit of Marshall Memorial Hospital with a single gunshot wound to the abdomen, said hospital evening supervisor Georgia Anderson.

Patel "was unable to talk with police officers at this time due to the extent of the injury," said a police dispatcher who declined to be identified. "When he is well enough, he will be moved to a hospital in Gilmer or Longview."

The dispatcher said a Gilmer police officer was stationed around the clock at the hospital ICU.

Friends said Patel emigrated from India about 13 years ago and settled in Gilmer in 1979. He was the target of an intensive manhunt after his wife and three children were found fatally shot in the family's second-floor suite.

Gilmer police said all four were shot either late Monday or early Tuesday as they laying sleeping on their backs.

Autopsies were completed Wednesday in Longview on the bodies of Patel's wife, Bhikhibev, 35; the couple's two daughters, Jayaben, 9, and Shila, 6; and their son, Jayesh, 2. But police Lt. James DeCuir said the results were not yet available.

DeCuir said he could not comment on the one-page, handwritten note found in Patel's green 1975 station wagon because it was considered important evidence.

"Part of the note refers to a spiritual act. You have short captions but we are still withholding most of it," said DeCuir.

"What I have done was the only best way out, to let the truth come out," Patel had scrawled on an envelope containing the letter, the Longview News-Journal reported.

DeCuir said a motive for the shootings was contained in the letter. He also said authorities "strongly believe" that the gun Patel had with him was the same .38-caliber revolver used in the slayings.

Patel had been withdrawn recently and was apparently depressed, said friends.

Gilmer Police Chief Bill Wells said Patel had tried recently to sell the 35-room hotel he had purchased in 1979, which until last summer had been the only hotel in this town of 5,200. A larger motel was opened a few months ago closer to Interstate 20.

Department of Public Safety Trooper Rex Aiken said he spotted Patel in his parked car about 40 miles west of Gilmer six hours after police found the bodies in the Upshur House Hotel at about 3:18 p.m. Tuesday.

Patel was apparently hiding in his station wagon, which was parked at a roadside park on U.S. Highway 80 about seven miles east of Marshall, Aiken said.

"I approached the car, and when I got about 20 feet from it, he sat up in the driver's seat," said Aiken. "I hollered for him several times to get out of the car but he didn't.

"He leaned over to one side, and that is when his gun went off," said Aiken. "He sat back up and looked at me and unlocked the door. I opened it and he fell out, wounded. He probably had the gun in his pants and had to lean over to get it out. He was probably bringing it up to shoot me."

The victims, who were in their nightclothes, appeared to have been lying in bed when they were shot, DeCuir said. Mrs. Patel's body had been moved against a door to the apartment, he said.

DeCuir said Patel's wallet and more than $1,000, along with spent cartridges, were recovered from the room. He said police believe the family was shot eight to 10 hours before their bodies were discovered.

Henry Odom, a part-time night watchman at the hotel, said he discovered the bodies in a bedroom of their apartment.

"I've been looking for them since 8 a.m. this morning," Odom said. "I went up and knocked on the door and even called on the phone and nobody answered."

He said the apartment was locked, and he was unable to find a spare key.

Four Texas servicemen have been declared missing

ARLINGTON (AP) — Less than 30 minutes before a powerful bomb exploded, Marine Lance Cpl. Steven "Tex" Bland completed a tour of duty as a guard outside the four-story Marine compound at the Beirut airport, his mother was told.

"They said he could have gone in for a shower or a cup of coffee," Rosa Bland of Arlington said Wednesday.

The soldier's wife, Ruthann Bland, learned early Wednesday that her husband had been officially labeled as missing. She called her mother-in-law, who confirmed the missing-in-action status through the Pentagon.

Bland is one of four servicemen who, Texas relatives have been told, are missing in action.

The younger Mrs. Bland said she believes the "missing" tag means her husband is dead.

A Marine lieutenant and chaplain visited the couple's home outside Camp Lejeune in eastern North Carolina and informed her that Bland had not been found.

"They basically told me he was dead," a sobbing Mrs. Bland told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. "The lieutenant said he'd be back...I'm still waiting. I don't know what to do. They're pretty sure he was in the building."

Rosa Bland said she had heard nothing more and had not given up hope.

With her Wednesday afternoon was Barbara Madera, a neighbor whose son, Staff Sgt. George Steven Kelly, also is among the missing from the bombing.

Mrs. Madera said she has heard nothing about her son, who she believes was stationed on a ship in the harbor bordering Beirut at the time of the explosion.

"We just want to know where our boys are. It's this waiting that's so awful," Mrs. Madera said.

In Fort Worth, the Donald Fulton family was awakened at 4:30 a.m. Wednesday by two Marines who informed them that their son, Lance Cpl. Michael Scott Fulton, was missing from the bombing.

Soldier said he 'was placing his fate in God's hands'

DALLAS (AP) — The third Texas serviceman known to have been killed in the Beirut bombing said in a letter to his family that he was praying he would leave Lebanon safely by Thanksgiving and was placing his fate in God's hands.

The letter from Army Spec. 4 Marcus E. Coleman, 19, arrived at his mother's home here this week.

"You get closer and closer to going home and then you don't make it. I'm getting closer and closer and I don't know whether I'm going to make it. I pray every night I do. I'm leaving it in God's hands," the soldier's mother, Dorothy Coleman, quoted the letter as saying.

Mrs. Coleman heard of her son's death after her son's letter arrived Monday. Coleman had been listed as missing since Sunday's attack on the American compound near the Beirut airport.

"We're holding up," Coleman's sister, Vickie, said. "Mother was already prepared when they told her he was missing Monday. I guess we all were prepared, but we still had hope."

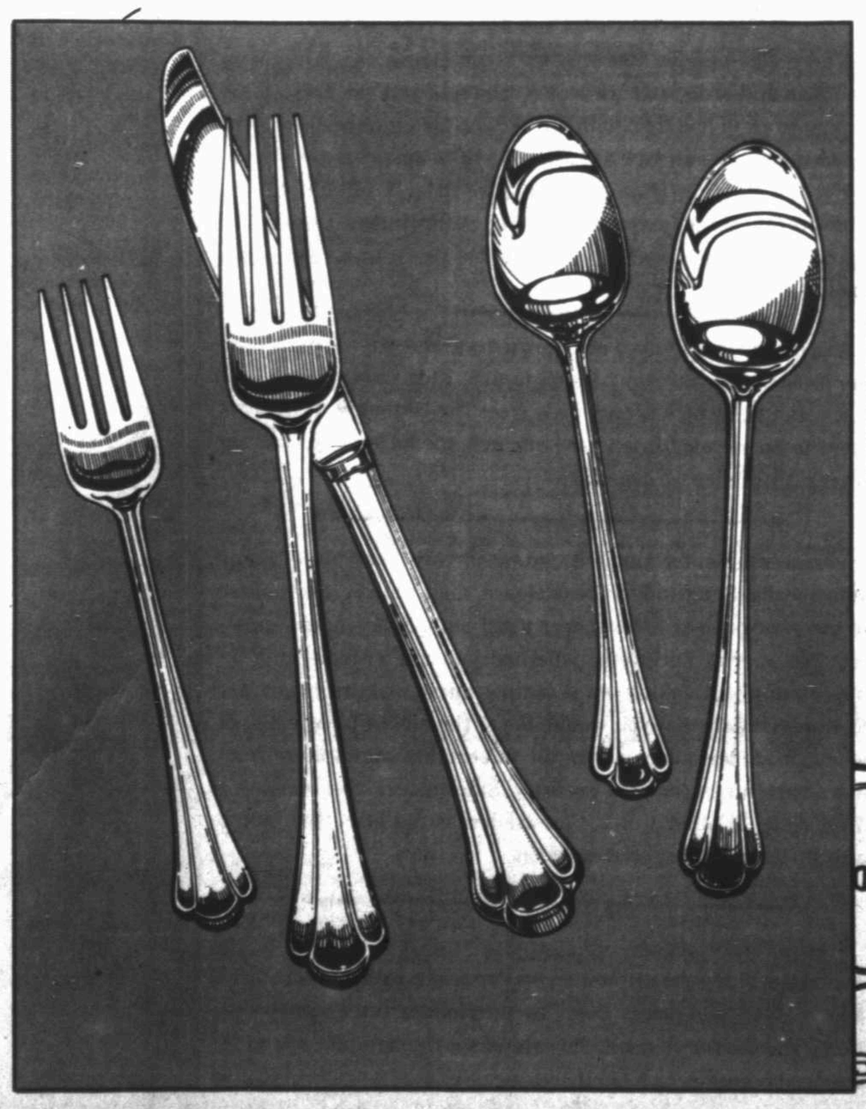

Coleman was the first Army soldier from Texas known to have been killed in the Beirut bombing. More than 200 servicemen perished when a suicide bomber drove a truck loaded with explosives into the American command post.

Ms. Coleman said her mother had received phone calls from a number of North Texas women "who had had sons."

"One woman from Grand Prairie told mother she had a son in Vietnam, and he was nothing but 19 when he died, too," she said. She added that Coleman was the youngest of 10 children. "Mark was the baby."

Midland College tennis player Andy Bruner reaches for a shot during recent practice session.

Chap netter needs his daily needle

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

Midland College tennis player Andy Bruner has a supply of hypodermic needles in his room. They help him get through the day.

MC tennis coach Joe Williams knows all about the unhidden supply and supports Bruner and his morning shots.

Bruner has been a diabetic since the age of five. His daily shot comes at 7:30 a.m. daily and then it's off to classes or a round of tennis. His story is nothing new to the hundreds of diabetics who must take insulin daily, but his story is an inspiration in the world of college athletics.

COMPETING ON the college level in any sport is a rigorous test for anyone. For one with diabetes, it can be a strain beyond belief. It takes a person with his priorities in place.

Bruner lives a structured life, but it is paying big dividends for both he and his family.

Not only does he have to have his insulin shot precisely at 7:30 a.m., but he must eat meals on a scheduled basis. That can be hard for any college athlete where schedules were made for midnight snacks and afternoon trips to the hamburger joint.

But Bruner says it isn't as bad as it sounds. "I get breakfast and lunch every day at the college except Saturday and Sunday. On week nights and on the weekends, I have to fend for myself. I like to find the places that have the good salad bars. I have to eat sensibly."

Fortunately, Bruner has some moral support from Margie Peddy, a diabetic herself who is in charge of the cafeteria at MC. "Marge is a big help. Marge and I are on the same wavelength. She doesn't realize the amount of sugar I need to play tennis, but she's a big help."

BUT THERE is also a matter of playing tennis competively.

"The only time I really get in trouble is when my sugar drops," said Bruner. "As long as I stay well balanced and eat well on and off the court, I'm OK."

When Bruner goes into any match, he looks like a portable grocery store. He carries with him a tupperware container full of peanut M&M's, a thermos of soft drink and a jug of water.

"I take food and liquid with each changeover. It's very important during a match," he said.

Bruner, a freshman who is away from home for the first time, has run into few problems through the fall tennis season.

"He went into insulin shock after two long, three-set matches in Abilene," noted Williams. "It gave us a scare, but he was fine by the time I realized what was going on. I've had to learn to be aware of a few things about diabetes since he joined the team."

However, Bruner didn't remember anything about the Abilene incident. "You'll just have to ask someone else about that. They told me about it, but I don't remember anything."

BRUNER STARTED playing tennis at the age of 14, late by today's standards. However, at Northeast High School in Oklahoma City, he played No. 1 singles four years and lost in the state Class 3A semifinals as a freshman before winning three straight state titles. He was also ranked No. 1 in the state for two consecutive years in the age group rankings.

Still it was a hard decision for his parents when it came time for a college opportunity.

"My parents were very apprehensive about me leaving home," Bruner said. "This is my first time out of the nest, so to speak. Diabetes is a very complicated disease, but I think my parents are beginning to feel better about everything now. I haven't had many problems."

Bruner's college roommate and teammate, Brad Bailey, is partially responsible for Andy being at Midland College.

Next 2 are vital for Lee

By ROBERT BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

Midland Lee football coach Spike Dykes knows how important the Rebels' next two football games are despite the fact his team is in the driver's seat in the District 4-5A title chase. He knows, as do the Rebels, that one slip at this late date and the entire season can go for naught.

"They (the Rebels) know if they don't win there is nothing more to think about," said Dykes. "We've achieved nothing yet. We're just in a good position. You work so hard year round to try and get ready to play 10 games and every one of them is important."

The "good position," stems from Lee's record of 7-1 overall and 4-1 in district play. However, those marks are matched by Odessa Permian while Odessa High and San Angelo are only one game back at 3-2 (in district) and looking for something to happen.

If the Rebels and Panthers get through their remaining two games unscathed, then Lee will be declared the 4-5A champion by virtue of the 20-7 victory over Permian two weeks ago. The Panthers would then settle for a playoff berth as the district's runnerup. If either team loses, there are plenty of teams willing to step in and take over.

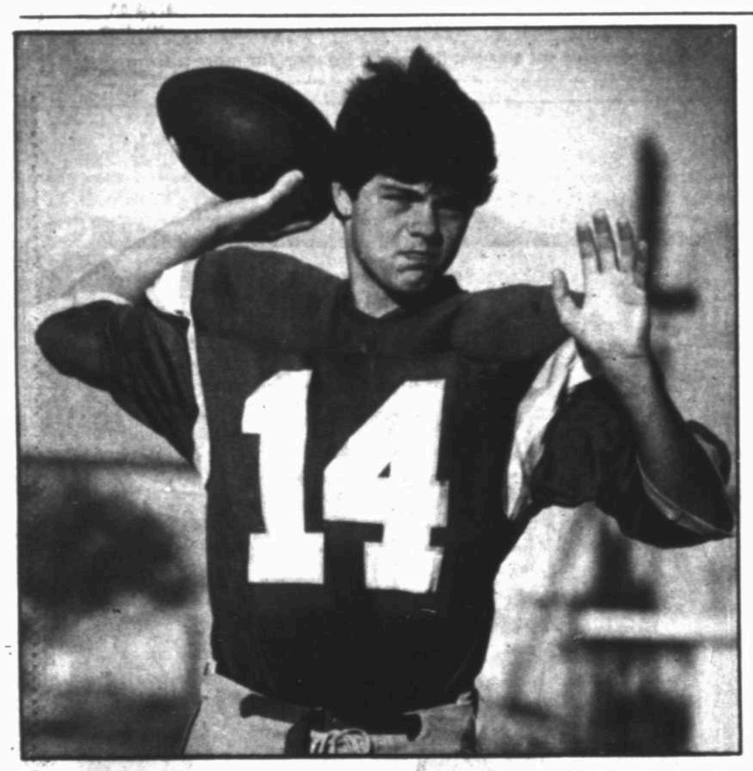

ABILENE COOPER, AT 2-6 and 1-4, isn't one of those teams this year. But it would be a big boost for the Cougars and their athletic program if they can knock off Lee Friday night when the two teams get together at 8 p.m. at P.E. Shotwell Stadium. That's one reason Dykes isn't ready for them to roll over and play dead.

"Not if you saw the Odessa High game," said Dykes. "Cooper beat them 29-28 and is capable of beating anybody on any given night without a doubt."

A balanced offensive attack led by tailback Allen Gunter and quarterback Doug Hadley is a cause of concern for Dykes though Gunter hasn't been at full capability the past few weeks. The Cougars are sixth overall in total offense with 2,158 yards and third in passing with 996.

"They've got a 225 pound tailback and he's the third leading rusher in the district," said Dykes about Gunter who trails Odessa High's Charles Hunter (1,320 yards) and Lee's Isaac Garnett (1,018) in the rushing stats with 863. "Their quarterback is the third leading passer in the district, Doug Hadley. They can score a lot of points. It's a high octane offense."

Midland High quarterback James Welborn...
...working hard to rehabilitate an injured knee.

Welborn wants to play

By ROBERT BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

There is a little squabble going on at Midland High this week and it appears injured quarterback James Welborn is on the losing end.

"I'll be ready for Abilene next week," said Welborn before Midland High's loss to San Angelo Friday night.

"No he won't," said MHS trainer Doc Dodson.

"It's all right. I think I could play on it. That's what I tell everybody but they won't believe me. It's kind of weak but it doesn't hurt or anything," Welborn said Tuesday afternoon after his daily rehabilitation workout.

"He's not ready to do any running yet and won't be for 10 days after surgery (which happens to be Saturday) and then we'll let him start jogging," said Doc. "If swelling occurs, we'll make him stop."

It's the age old problem of athletes coming off an injury. They want to play before they're physically able. Their desire sometimes gets in the way of their common sense.

Welborn is luckier than some athletes who have sustained a knee injury. He does have a shot at returning to active duty for the Midland High-Midland Lee finale next week.

His knee injury, though serious, involved torn cartlidge (a lateral meniscus) with no damage to ligaments. Arthoscopic surgery last Wednesday was able to repair it.

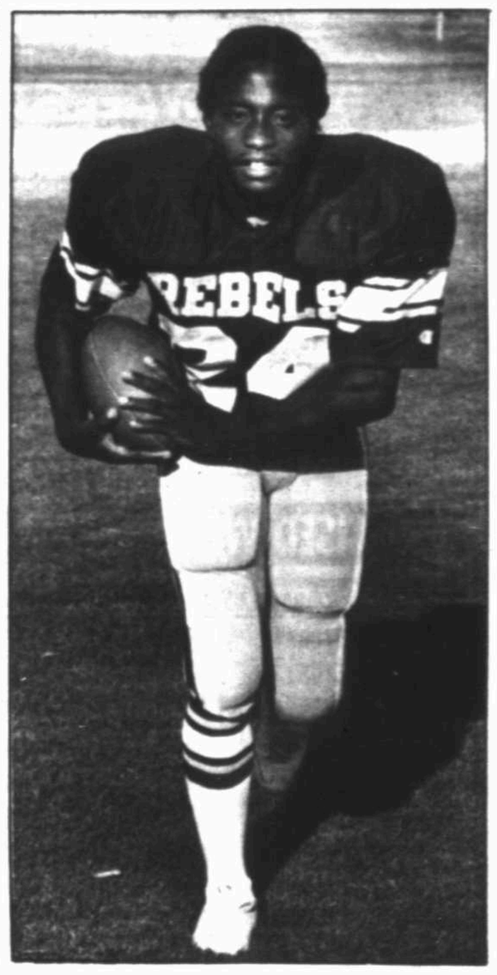

WHILE HE is waiting for the green light to return to practice, which won't even be considered until after a cybex test is run (to measure the strength of the injured knee compared to the healthy one), Welborn has been rehabilitating his knee "more than dilligently," said MHS head coach Pat Culpepper.

"He's working on it all the time. Even when we were in San Angelo. During our pre-game meeting he was in a corner with a weight boot trying to strengthen it."

One of the reasons Welborn is so anxious to return to playing football is because of the game in which he was injured, the Odessa High game. Culpepper says "He took it hard because I don't think he's pleased with the way he performed against Odessa and he wants to play again. If an artist draws a picture that isn't good he can tear it up. It's the same with a football player. He wants to put something good on canvas but in his case it's on film. He was frustrated after the Odessa game and wanted to play again but couldn't do it."

Along with Welborn's private work on his knee, he's on a rigorous conditioning program that involves repetitious leg lifts with various weights (from five to 20 pounds), riding a bicycle two miles a day and going through electrical stimulation to help the healing process.

Texas-Tech SWC showdown

Looking at it from a West Texas standpoint, Texas and Southern Methodist met last Saturday to determine a challenger to Texas Tech for the Southwest Conference lead.

Granted Texas will have the home field advantage Saturday, but a 30-point spread? Don't they realize this is between two SWC unbeatens?...

Dallas quarterback Danny White looking on the brighter side of the Los Angeles loss Sunday night, noted, "At least we didn't lose to a team we should have beaten easily. We have nothing to be embarrassed about."...

Drew Pearson's observation on the Danny White touchdown catch, "That Ron Springs can really throw....but not as good as I can." There was a suspicion that Drew might be resentful of White cutting into his territory by catching passes....

Has the Southwest Conference ever been weaker? With Texas and Arkansas alone in a class by themselves, the SWC this year bears an unwanted resemblance to the Big Eight...Nebraska, Oklahoma and the guys that fill out the schedule...

After all the fuss about where Stanford's John Elway would do his NFL quarterbacking, it turns out that Pittsburgh's Dan Marino was the prize catch of the draft. He has ousted veteran David Woodley and has made the Miami Dolphins better than ever.

Elway, meanwhile, rides the bench at Denver in deference to Cowboy castoff Steve DeBerg and Baltimore, the team John refused to report to, is having the last laugh...

Wonder if Penn State quarterback Todd Blackledge is having second thoughts about passing up his senior year to ride the pines in the NFL?...

Midland Cubs' GM Bill Schammel is just back from the San Francisco area where he participated on the winning team in the annual Bill Rigney, Sr., golf tournament. Bill contributed two birdies and six pars to his team's winning score, not bad for an alleged 40 handicapper...

Is it true Dallas Green may return to Philadelphia as general manager? 'Tis said a sign of the Chicago Tribune people's impatience with Green's progress was the hiring of Jim Finks, a football man to oversee the Chicago Cubs baseball operation...

Florida could wind up with three major bowl representatives—the University of Florida, Florida State and Miami...

Dale Berra, the Pittsburgh Pirate shortstop, has become an expert in reaching first base through catcher's interference. Berra says he doesn't plan it that way but it happens. "I swing late sometimes," he said. "The catchers must think I'm going to take the pitch and move forward for the ball. Then their gloves get in the way."

The all-time unofficial champion of baseball in reaching first base on catcher's interference is Pete Rose of the Philadelphia Phillies, but Berra expects to top him before his career is over.

Unbeaten Ballinger, Crane clash Friday

By BRUCE CASTLEBERRY
Sports Writer

In Ballinger this week, folks are likely to be getting pretty worked up over Friday nights' Bearcat game.

The town already has had plenty to be proud about concerning the Ballinger team. The 'Cats are rated fourth in the state among triple A schools by the Associated Press.

This Friday at 7:30 p.m., Ballinger and the Crane Golden Cranes will butt heads with two unbeaten records in the line. The survivor has almost a certain lock on the district 6-AAA title for 1983. The loser will have to nab a victory in the season finale to have a playoff shot.

This is what is known as a West Texas shootout.

Ballinger is where they were predicted to be, atop the 6-AAA standings. The Bearcats escaped their toughest challenge last week in beating second place Colorado City 14-7. Colorado City is a game off the pace with a 2-1 district mark, 5-3 overall.

The Cranes seem to be one of the areas' most consistent performers. nly in the Cranes' season-opening 12-7 win at Reagan County have they looked less than dominant.

Crane and Ballinger are an even matchup. Both schools have a potent ground game, with Crane's twin backfield duo of Jim and Joe Vasquez providing the main thrust of the Crane resurgence.

The Bearcats have averaged 24.5 points per game and have allowed an average of just under eight points. The Crane scoring figures are slightly better, at 26.0 offensively and a meager 7.0 points allowed.

The Crane running game has been a major reason for the 8-0 mark, but the line size and team experience have been Crane strong points. The Cranes have gone with 26 seniors on this year's group, and that includes a bevy of large, capable down linemen.

The Bearcats will have their hands full Friday in trying to preserve their undefeated season.

ONE SCHOOL THAT is eagerly awaiting its Friday game is the Greenwood Rangers. Greenwood has won six in a row, and a win in Greenwood over Eden will clinch the district 7-A title for the Rangers. Greenwood was supposed to be in the winner's circle last year but floundered to a 6-4 mark. This year, after an 0-2 start against Jal, N.M. and top-rated Wink, the Rangers ignited.

The one-two rushing punch of Roger Smith and Todd Forsi, along with the steadily-improving development of sophomore quarterback Chad Longley has keyed the Ranger run. Eden, 5-3 and 3-2 in the loop, has shown moments of excellence this year and is the last team with a shot at overtaking the Rangers.

An Eden upset win Friday would slap the Rangers into uncertainty, and they would be forced to wait a week to determine their playoff fate.

Other area games for week nine of the 1983 season:

Sanderson (4-2, 3-1) at Rankin (1-6, 1-3): The Red Devils are in for trouble Friday night. Rankin has struggled all year, as coach Dwayne Turner has played a numbers game with only 19 players. The Devils have scored in only two games all year, and were lucky enough to win one of them. Last week, the Devils fumbled the ball away ten times (yes, ten) in giving sorry Balmorhea their first win. Sanderson, meanwhile, has an outside shot of a playoff berth and is only one game behind Iraan and awesome, top-rated Wink in the district.

Stanton (4-4, 3-0) at Wall (7-1, 3-0): This game will determine the odds-on favorite to win district 8-AA. Stanton has overcome an early season slump to become the district co-leader, but barring a tie one team will be left at the top after Friday. Stanton plays ball-control offense and stick-em-in-the-ribs defense, and if the Hawks aren't careful they could surrender their second loss of the year.

The Buffs know they have a hard road in the final two weeks. After Wall, Stanton hosts McCamey. A loss this week would put heavy pressure on the final game. A win Friday, however, puts the Buffs in the driver's seat.

Eldorado (4-4, 1-2) at McCamey (5-3, 2-1): McCamey has a tough test in enigmatic Eldorado. The Badgers are only one game behind Stanton and Wall in the district 8-AA chase, and this one is still up for grabs and wide open. McCamey is in the best position to make a run for a playoff spot, but a loss to Eldorado would not help the Badger cause very much. Eldorado has been a team without much stability, but they possess the ability to win. Badger coach Buster Leaf is certainly aware of the game's meaningfulness.

Lake View (6-1, 3-1) at Andrews (4-2-1, 1-2-1): The Mustangs are down after a 7-7 tie last week with district 2-AAAA leader Sweetwater. The tie is the only non-win on the Sweetwater season, but it didn't help the Andrews playoff chances at all. The Mustangs self-destructed in mid-season, and opened district play with a pair of losses. The bad start has been a hole the Mustangs have not been able to dig themselves from.

Monahans, at 4-0, and Sweetwater's 3-0-1 seem to have the edge on the district playoff spots, but Lake View is still very much a factor and this is an important game for them.

Andrews has to be concerned now with being the spoiler.

Lamesa (2-5, 1-3) at Pecos (4-3, 3-1): The Pecos Eagles are another 2-AAAA team with playoff aspirations. With two games left on the schedule, half of the district's schools are eyeing post-season invitations. While the Tornadoes have been one of the area's most improved teams, the Eagles ghave too much at stake to lose this game.

Reagan County (1-7, 0-3) at Miles (1-7, 0-3): The only interesting thing about this game is that it will almost undoubtedly decide the identity district 8-AA's worst team.

Both squads are going through a dreadful season, but even so this is an honor both teams would gladly pass on. Unfortunately, only one team can win, but in this case there is every possibility the battle could end in a tie.

Rivera stable after surgery for thoracic spine

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Steelers rookie defensive lineman Gabriel Rivera remained in serious but stable condition after "successfully" undergoing an operation to stabilize a thoracic spine fracture.

Rivera, 22, returned to the trauma unit of Allegheny General Hospital following the three-hour operation Wednesday, spokesman Joe Gordon said.

"It is anticipated that surgery will facilitate his rehabilitation," Gordon said.

The surgery came a day after Donald Diamond, Rivera's physician, said the former Texas Tech star had massive internal injuries in addition to paralysis below the mid-chest.

Diamond said the operation would have no effect on Rivera's paralysis, but would allow doctors to "better treat his lung injury."

Rivera will have to undergo extensive rehabilitation merely to regain the simplest of physical skills, Diamond said.

Diamond, chief of Allegheny General's trauma unit, said Tuesday that Rivera nearly died after his traffic accident in suburban Ross Township last Thursday night.

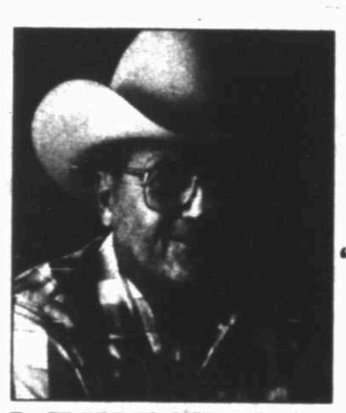

Rivera has been charged with drunken driving and speeding in the accident.

Diamond said he doesn't know how many mechanical skills Rivera will retain. It is possible Rivera could learn to move about in a wheelchair, he said.

Would you let your sister date...?

The Los Angeles Raiders are often pictured as the barbarians of the NFL and when someone steps to their defense, the counter question is: Would you let your sister or daughter go out with Raider? Well, would you?

Raiders thrive on the fans' Boos

BY TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

Although they complain that other teams point at them accusingly and ask, "Would you want your daughter or sister to date a Raider?", somehow you get the feeling they thrive on being ostracized by the caring, humane, compassionate element of society.

The mere sight of a silver helmet atop a foreboding black jersey can turn a National Football League stadium into a bedlam of boos. It happened Sunday night at Irving. When the first Raider came out of the tunnel an hour before game time, Texas Stadium was one loud boo, and not even all the fans were there.

By pregame introductions the stands were packed and it was an anvil chorus of hoots that greeted the Los Angeles players.

You could almost see the Raiders' spirits leap for joy. It was the equivalent of a letter from home for someone wintering in Greenland.

THEY USED to be the Oakland Raiders, but they left the Bay Area, although Oakland seemed to be the Raiders' kind of city, some say because they closed Alcatraz and there was no suitable place for Rest and Recreation after coming home from a mugging.

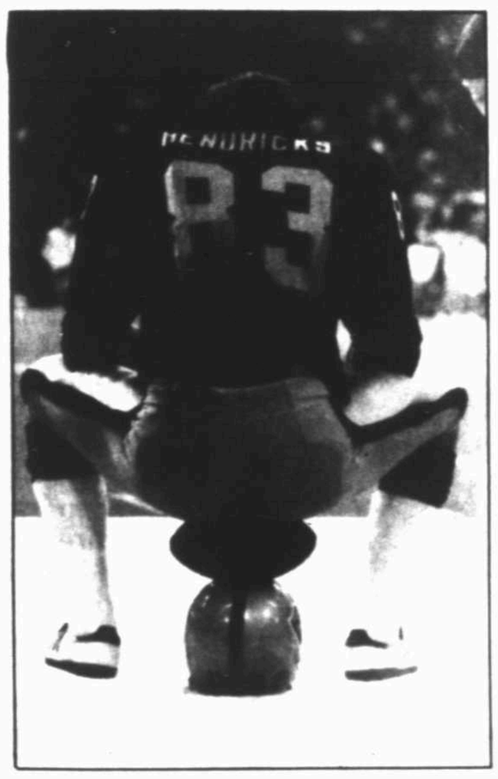

Others contend, they left Oakland because they couldn't stand the fawning fans lavishing them with love. It was a town where they heard nothing but cheers. They longed for boos, the "otherwise kind" as well as the bottled.

Some claim that when the Mafia is frustrated in efforts to extract satisfaction for what they feel is an insult or effront, they request an audience with Al Davis or one of his players. Raiders, however, deny that this has happened...very often.

IN DALLAS, the rowdies from the Watts section of LA were every bit as onery as advertised. They roamed the sidelines like an on-the-prowl cycle gang looking for a bash. Everybody else in the league observes the restraining lines on each side of the bench. Players are supposed to stay within the striped borders. The Raiders ignore such restrictions and defy anyone to do anything about it.

They stray both sides. An official orders them back and is greeted by surly, "Yea, Yea" or "Sure, sure" but the requests are completely ignored. If a penalty goes with such violations, the Raiders could get one every down.

Bouyed by the boos, the Raiders wasted little time trying to intimidate the Cowboys Sunday night with elbows, an unsuspecting after whistle shove, a knee here, a forearm there, an insult on the way back to the huddle.

Los Angeles' Ted Hendricks adds a little extra comfort to the "sit-on-your-helmet" routine, but he does it outside the bench-boundary.

"They pride themselves on pushing and shoving, but you have to ignore it," said Dallas quarterback Danny White.

"They were talking and telling what they were gonna do to us," added Drew Pearson, "But you expect that from the Raiders."

"Matt Millen was going at Doug Donley pretty strong, trying to rattle him" said Drew, "But I told Matt, 'Hey, you're wasting your time, he doesn't even understand language like that.'"

"No, they didn't intimidate us, although they tried. It's their style," bristled defensive back Everson Walls. "You can't let that stuff effect your concentration, because that's what they are trying to do, get you out of your game."

As far as Tony Dorsett is concerned, "That intimidation business is far-fetched and overplayed. I think it's their dark jersies. Because of the dark jersies, they are thought of as villians. They really aren't that bad." However, he didn't go so far as to claim the Raiders were "really nice guys."

White contends the Raiders were more menacing back in the days of Jack Tatum, Ben Davidson and Ted Hendricks (before he got religion) and some of the other hatchet men. "Now, they are just trying to perpetuate that image."

IT'S LIKE the spit ball. If a batter thinks a pitcher is throwing it, he's thinking about the injustice of it and not intent on making contact.

However, the Raiders attempt at intimidation was a factor in the first half, one that was of concern to Coach Tom Flores. The fights in the first half bothered him.

"Our guys get excited. We are an aggressive team. We battle (ed. note: I think he means "fight") all the way, but at halftime we settled them down, and said just get out there and play football. Plus everybody got a little tired and figured it was time to save their energy and play football."

DO THE Raiders deserve their reputation? Are they truly thugs, ruffians, uncouth brutes who shouldn't be turned loose in the NFL social whirl?

Would you want your sister or daughter to date one of these guys?

Out on the field, a controversial play resulted in a penalty. At first against Los Angeles. After the officials huddled, it was decided the Cowboys were the offending team.

The stadium rocked in vocal indignation.

A camera man on the sidelines joined in.

Matt Millen, a hulk standing beyond the restraining boundary, naturally, heard him and roared belligerently, "Hey, Fatso. You wanna get knocked out. Keep your big mouth shut."

That's when he spotted another guy with a Nikon snapping his picture during the incriminating utterance.

For a moment, the photographer didn't know what Matt would do, and, for that matter, Millen probably was undecided as well.

Then, making sure "Fatso" wasn't looking, Matt smiled and winked.

Stopping Dorsett worked wonders

By BLACKIE SHERROD
Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

DALLAS — Mr. Al Davis was dining in our city the other night and confided to his dinner companion that his roving Raiders were going to pound the wadding out of the locals. Well, he didn't exactly mention wadding, but he did infer that his team, regardless of its underdog role, knew how to defeat the Cowboys.

"We will beat Dallas," he said, placing one hand to the side of his mouth like Edgar G. Robinson, "because we know how to stop Tony Dorsett."

This is not exactly a unique ambition — this stopping of Tony Dorsett when you are playing Dallas. It is a comparatively simple equation, like the first thing one should do to keep the Titanic afloat is to plug the gash the iceberg left. If one wished to keep the cows from escaping, one should first close the gate. This is known as basic logic and was employed as early as the days of Noah when he heard, on good authority, that a flood would soon cover the earth. He didn't plant tomatoes, did he?

WHATEVER DEVIOUS plans Davis and his coach Tom Flores used to stop Dorsett, it worked grandly. For most of the evening, Dorsett looked like a mouse who kept finding his emergency exits blocked. His ledger showed 65 yards in the Cowboys' first loss of the year.

Now the Cowboys have won games before, when Dorsett was stopped. He doesn't always run for 150 yards. But it has been a proven statistic over his seven years that Dorsett success means Dallas success.

It is not always vice versa. Dallas success doesn't always depend on Dorsett's success. The Cowboys have won when Dorsett had modest numbers. But when he glows, it is much easier for his associates to prosper.

Ask Tom Landry how he would plan a defense against his own team.

"The first thing you do is stop Dorsett," said the coach. "First, you stop him wide, and then work back inside."

This, incidentally, is what the Raiders did, with some nefarious plan concocted deep in their X's and O's laboratory. Their defensive net is probably too involved for us slobs to comprehend. Perhaps when certain situations called for a Dorsett run, Raider strategy called for certain defenders to take outside charges or inside charges, or cross their eyes and whistle Alexander's Ragtime Band.

LANDRY DIDN'T see the Raider defense especially "keying" on Dorsett. "They really weren't doing a whole lot," he said. "We started out the game thinking we could go wide on them, and they adjusted very well to the play, right away for some reason."

Sounds as if the Cowboys were very well scouted by Davis and his pirate band.

"They made adjustments that we hadn't seen and they stopped us two or three times trying to run outside," said Landry.

Apparently those "adjustments" are what Davis referred to when he spoke darkly of his secret knowledge. Just once, in the fourth quarter, Dorsett squirted for 27 yards in one of his waterbug imitations. But the remainder of the game, he averaged only 2 yards per try.

Dorsett did carry the ball 20 times in the loss. As a rule, when Dorsett carries the ball 20 times, he gains 100 yards or more. In fact, over his career, when he has run at least 20 times, he tops 100 yards 72 percent of the time.

And when he runs 20 times, the Cowboys win 91 percent of the time.

Further, on the 36 occasions in which Dorsett has rushed 100 yards, the Cowboys have won 34.

All these numbers tend to induce a migraine, so suffice it to say it is to Dallas' advantage to feed the ball to Dorsett at least 20 times per game. But that is Landry's decision to make, thank goodness, not yours and mine.

And certainly it is the Raiders or Giants or anybody's advantage to set defenses, first of all, to halt Dorsett.

"You have to stop the running first," said Landry, for the umteenth time, "unless you are playing a real passing team like the Vikings or 49ers. Most teams who have the good running backs, you got to stop them first. We went after Marcus Allen in this last game and it wasn't Allen who was hurting us. The fullback was doing all the running."

THE UPCOMING Giants, as a rule, have pointed their lances toward Dorsett. In 10 games against New York, Tony has surpassed 100 rushing yards in three. Over the years, he has averaged 3.9 yards rushing against Giant defenses, several notches below his norm.

Landry seemed to think it was his offensive line's shortcomings that hobbled Dorsett, moreso than any planning by the Raider braintrust.

"I think that the lack of having our people in the front line...well, we went without Jim Cooper and we probably should have gone without Pat Donovan," he said, of the Cowboys' starting tackles. "Donovan tried but he finally left in the second quarter. Of course, when you move Phil Pozderac from left tackle to right, when you move Howard Richards from guard to tackle, you lose a lot of your execution up front. I don't think that was totally the reason why we didn't gain more yardage. I think Los Angeles played a good defensive game."

Which is precisely what Al Davis was confiding when we all came in.

Pryor resigns welter crown

CINCINNATI (AP) — World Boxing Association junior welterweight champion Aaron Pryor, with nothing more to prove as a fighter, has submitted his resignation to the WBA, his lawyer says.

"He has fought either the No. 1 or No. 2 contender in all of his last six fights, and he doesn't feel that there's anything left for him as fighter to prove. He's retiring as the undefeated WBA world champion," said Robert Buechner. He said he and Pryor sent the letter last week.

However, Buechner said Pryor, 28, will remain in training and consider match proposals.

Newspapers. Where color brightens your sales picture

Newspapers are still mostly a black and white medium in which color commands extra attention, recall, and sales. Adding even one color to a newspaper ad increases sales an average of 64%* —much more than the extra cost. UNM linebacker rides bench

From wire reports

FOOTBALL—University of New Mexico Coach Joe Lee Dunn will not start linebacker Johnny Jackson at Colorado State Saturday. "I'm not interested in a guy being an All-American and not doing what he's supposed to do. We don't want to make a hero out of someone who doesn't act properly. Until he conforms to team standards on and off the field, he won't be starting."...

Former Green Bay Packers' lineman August "Iron Mike" Michalske, 80, first guard inducted into the NFL Hall of Fame, died Wednesday. He anchored the Packers' line during the championship seasons from 1929-31. Michalske was a star at Penn State before joining the New York Yankees of the old AFL in 1926. The Yankees joined the NFL the following year and Michalske played two more seasons for them before joining the Packers in 1929...

BASEBALL—Yankees' owner George Steinbrenner denied that Manager Billy Martin would be fired just because he summoned Martin and his attorney, Judge Eddie Sapir, to a meeting. "I told some people before the meeting that if news guys waited around for this, all they'd get was tired. We had some problems last year and we still have them. We talked about the past season and what we can do to correct those problems, but no firing took place."...

BASKETBALL— An NCAA investigation of a recruiting rules violation should conclude with nothing more serious than "a reprimand" against Western Kentucky's, Coach Clem Haskins said. Haskins admitted he violated a rule when he allowed an academic adviser to accompany him while recruiting 6-foot-9 Kannard Johnson, Ohio's player of the year for 1982-83, and three other freshmen on Western's 1983-84 team. Haskins said he was "not worried" about the investigation. He said he unknowingly broke the rule...

TENNIS—Wimbledon, which made more than $4 million profit this year, is waiting to see if the players will demand a bigger slice in prize money. "We believe in making our surplus public," said Sir Brian Burnett, chairman of the All-England Club, "The U.S. Open does not publish its financial results. Still, I have no doubt they become known to the players' organizations. No doubt the bigger the profits, the bigger the pressure the players will put on us for a larger share." Wimbledon nearly doubled its prize money this year and paid about $1.7 million to the players, but it also nearly doubled its television and radio income and received nearly $6 million for the worldwide rights. It is the only major event that shuns commercial sponsorship...

Doc calls the different lifting positions "straight leg program where he's on his back and lifts five pounds 30 times then comes up on his elbows and lifts five pounds 30 times and then sits up and lifts five pounds 30 times. Then he repeats the process with 10 pounds.

"After that, with the knee over an eight-inch pillow, he does TKE's (Terminal Knee Extensions). With five pounds he does 100 lifts, with 10 pounds it's down to 50 lifts, with 15 pounds 50 and 20 pounds 50."

There are also exercises called "hip abductors and modified ham strings. He has to keep the program up for six weeks."

Since Friday night's Abilene High game is out of the question, Welborn has his sights set on Lee. Unless their is a major shakeup in the District 4-5A standings, it will be his last chance to play for the purple and gold. It's a chance he doesn't want to miss.

"I'll be back for Lee for sure," said Welborn and then added, "if everything works right I'll be back. That's what they said before I had the operation."

It's what he's banking on now.

Browns sideline Brian Sipe

BEREA, Ohio (AP) — Arm-weary quarterback Brian Sipe hates to be on the sideline, but that's where he'll be Sunday when the Cleveland Browns meet the Houston Oilers to begin the second half of the National Football League season.

Coach Sam Rutigliano said Wednesday that backup quarterback Paul McDonald will start Sunday in place of Sipe.

"It is difficult for me," Sipe said Wednesday. "I don't like to see anybody lined up on the field besides myself. I feel at this time we're doing what's in the best interest of everybody."

Sipe said he would "take this week off and see where we stand next week at this time."

"Brian Sipe has a very tired arm," Rutigliano said. He said Sipe, 34, needed a shot of cortisone in his elbow last Friday, and that his arm has given him trouble for a couple weeks.

"It's a decision that we had to make because he's got too much courage — he's too damn competitive to make it himself," Rutigliano added.

Rutigliano said that as soon as Sipe is rested, he will start again.

"Hopefully, he will be ready in a week or two or whatever. But whenever it's ready, he'll be our starting quarterback," the coach said.

He said the quarterback change had nothing to do with the fact that the 4-4 Browns have lost three of their last four games, but he said Sipe has not been throwing as well recently as he did at the beginning of the season. Sipe has had 17 passes intercepted, including six in the Oct. 16 game against the Pittsburgh Steelers, and 36 passes have been knocked down.

Rutigliano would not speculate whether the 25-year-old McDonald could win back the starting position. McDonald had replaced Sipe as the starter late last season and led the Browns into the playoffs. Sipe won the job back in the preseason.

"I'm excited, apprehensive, nervous and all those things that go along with being named the starter," McDonald said. "I'm going to go out and do the best possible job I can and take advantage of the situation."

If McDonald cannot play for any reason, Sipe will go in, rather than third-string quarterback Rick Trocano, Rutigliano said.

Rutigliano said Sipe developed elbow pain after overcompensating for his tired arm. However, the coach said Sipe never complains.

"He had a knee injury in the Jets game (Oct. 9) that some guys would've missed three weeks for. He missed three plays.

"He's spoiled me over the years. He's the kind of a guy who always manages to play no matter what happens."

OPEN FRIDAY NIGHT OCT. 28

Rebels face Abilene Cooper on road Friday

Gunter was injured against Midland High and missed the Big Spring game before "playing last week against Permian," said Cooper head coach Dick Winder, "but he isn't 100 percent yet."

Lee is fifth in total offensive stats with 2,393 yards, 2,188 of which have come on the ground for the second best 4-5A rushing total. The 205 passing yards are the fewest in the district.

Those nearly equal stats make the defensive units the big difference in the game. Lee, allowing only 178 yards per game, is tops in the 4-5A while Cooper has been hit hard and has given up a 337.6 per game average.

WINDER HAS a lot of respect for his opponent, seeing it as a very tough game for his Bobcats.

"They've got perhaps the finest coaching staff in West Texas and a bunch of great kids," said Winder. "I hope we can stay in the game and give them a battle. We'll really have to compete to stay on the field with them. Stranger things have happened."

True! One only has to look as far as the conclusion of the 1982 district season to see what he means by "stranger things have happened." In that grand finale, Midland Lee had only to rely upon Permian defeating Odessa High while the Rebels beat the Midland High Bulldogs to gain one of the two state playoff berths.

The first necessity came true. However, Midland High knocked off Lee and with San Angelo's narrow victory over Big Spring there was a four-way tie for first place. San Angelo won the ensuing coin flip and went to the playoffs. Lee stayed home.

It's a scene Dykes, as well as his Rebels, would prefer not to live through again this year.

Roommate helped

Bruner's college roommate and teammate, Brad Bailey, is partially responsible for Andy being at Midland College.

"I used to know Brad when he lived in Oklahoma City and we were good friends. He told Coach Williams about me and Coach Williams came by and let me hit him a few balls and the rest just happened.

"Coach Williams is a great coach and individual. I've found Midland enjoyable, but I'm not playing as well as I would like right now. I had some other choices, but I think MC was a good choice for me."

Williams is also a Bruner fan. "He must work harder than most to improve. He's a real fighter on the court and very coachable. He also has another thing going for him in that he's our only lefthander. He plays No. 6 for us most of the time, but could play as high as No. 2."

However, a morning rolls around every 24 hours. That means another shot of insulin. "Oh, it's not fun, but you get used to it," he said.

PREP HONOR ROLL

Bovina back tops list

By Associated Press

Bovina running back Richard Shepherd hit Springlake from all directions with four touchdowns — all by a different method — in a 47-0 victory last week.

Shepherd, a senior running back-cornerback, scored on a 20-yard run, caught a 66-yard TD pass, threw a 25-yard halfback pass for a score and returned an interception 60 yards for his fourth trip into the end zone.

Shepherd earns mention in The Associated Press Honor Roll along with Celeste quarterback Boyce Hobbs, who scored all of his team's points in a 32-7 victory over Caddo Mills.

Bovina Coach Larry Helton says Shepherd is what makes his team run.

"He's our franchise player here," Helton said. "We run the veer and he's not going to line up and run over you. But he's got great lateral movement. One second he's here, the next he's over there."

HELTON WAS an assistant coach at Sealy during the first two schoolboy years of Los Angeles Rams running back Eric Dickerson.

"Richard doesn't have the size or speed of Eric but he's got better moves," Helton said.

Shepherd, 5-10, 150, had 104 yards rushing on 11 carries and had another non-scoring interception.

Hobbs took advantage of Caddo Mills' pre-occupation with Celeste running back Deuce Hemphill and read the veer option offense to perfection.

Hobbs ran for five touchdowns and kicked two extra points. He completed four of seven passes for 128 yards and had touchdown runs of one, four, 12, two and one yard.

"They kept taking the pitch man (Hemphill) and he just turned it up," said Celeste Coach Ron Sanderson. "He's really made our offense come around because he's able to read the veer so well."

HOBBS HAS completed 38 of 48 passes this season, including 15 for touchdowns. "That's the strongest part of his game," Sanderson said. "Friday night was the first time this season he hasn't thrown two touchdown passes."

Little Cypress-Mauriceville quarterback Richard Parnell had a good running and passing performance in a 27-0 shutout of Lumberton. Parnell rushed 141 yards on 21 carries that included a pair of two-yard touchdown runs and completed five of six passes for 104 yards and a 49-yard TD pass.

Hardin-Jefferson's Reggie King accounted for 307 of his team's 365 rushing yards on 24 carries in a 34-14 victory over Huffman. King had touchdown runs of 81, 77 and 66 yards and returned a kickoff 85 yards for a touchdown.

Sabine Pass, the No. 7 ranked Class A team in the state, used the pass-catch skills of quarterback Keith Mayhugh and receiver James Street to defeat previously unbeaten High Island 22-14.

Mayhugh completed 10 of 18 passes for 216 yards and had touchdown passes of 13, 54 and 75 yards. Two of the touchdowns went to Street, who caught four passes for 152 yards.

Wasps great for manure

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Lynn Stone, president of Churchill Downs, isn't about to carry a rolled-up newspaper or hang rolls of sticky brown paper when he goes after flies in the stables. He imports wasps.

When faced with the possibility of a fly population of untold proportions last summer, the first in which the track operated continuously from the end of April to Labor Day, Stone prepared for the worst.

"Where you have horses, you have manure. And where you have manure, especially in hot weather, you have flies," he explained. "So we brought in a special breed of wasps from South America and distributed them around the stable area throughout the meeting."

The wasps didn't go buzzing after the flies. "They eat the flies' larvae." And, he adds, "They don't sting horses or people."

Finsterwald takes lead

CHIYODA, Japan (AP) — Former PGA champion Dow Finsterwald shot a 3-under-par 69 to take a one-stroke lead Thursday after the first round of the $200,000 Coca Cola Grand Slam seniors golf tournament.

The 64-year-old American rolled in five birdies against two bogeys on the 6,497-yard Chiyoda Country Club course.

Americans Rod Funseth and Gay Brewer were tied for second place with 2-under-par 70s.

SPORTS WITH A LIVING ROOM VIEW

TV fans drifting away from NFL

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Sports Writer

Something funny has been happening to the National Football League this fall. America's League — the league America loves to watch — isn't being watched as much as it used to be.

Question: What is happening to the greatest television spectacle ever devised by man?

Answer: Probably nothing that a few good games wouldn't cure.

With half the season gone, ratings are down for all three major networks' NFL coverage. The comparison is 1981 — the season before the strike and an all-time ratings record holder. Leaving room for adjustment, CBS is down about 5 percent, NBC about 9 percent and ABC about 15 percent.

Why? There are a lot of opinions, which means no one's really sure. Some samples:

— Parity, which also means that there are few can't miss attractions. Dallas, always; Washington, maybe; the Raiders, Miami. Who else?

— The strike.

— The weather. Too warm at the beginning of the season, which started earlier anyway. Meaning people went to the beach or to the golf course or just took a walk instead of watching football.

— The United States Football League. Fans used to go without football from January to August. This year, they went without football from July until August.

— Monday night counter-programming. CBS and NBC lined up specials and other attention-getters to draw viewers away from Howard and company on ABC. Meaning the folks that bring us the NFL on Sunday afternoons are doing their best to blow it out in prime time.

The best bet: Parity combined with just plain bad luck, particularly for the big loser, ABC.

Or, as Val Pinchbeck Jr., the NFL's television coordinator and schedule maker puts it:

"We had a whole series of games that looked good on paper that were one-sided and uninteresting."

AH, YES. Scratch off the Washington-Green Bay 48-47 game, Dallas' opening Monday night 31-30 win over the Redskins and the Raiders' 40-38 win Sunday night over the Cowboys and what did ABC get. They got:

San Francisco 48, Minnesota 17; the Giants 27, Green Bay 3, the Raiders 27, Miami 14; the Jets 34, Buffalo 10. Plus offending snoozers like Pittsburgh 24, Cincinnati 14; San Diego 17, Kansas City 14, and this week's clinker — the Giants 20, St. Louis 20.

Which gets us to parity, which can make one season's contender the next year's dog. Tampa Bay, 0-8 at midseason will be on ABC Dec. 12. The Cardinals and Giants demonstrated their wares Monday night and Cincinnati is due for an encore.

On the other hand, San Francisco, one of the better attractions, won't be on until the last week of the season.

Things should get better. Dallas and the Raiders set a record for ABC's Sunday night telecasts, and Dallas-Washington and Washington-Green Bay did fine in the ratings.

Moreover, network people point out that it's hard to do better than 1981. And as races for the playoff shape up, more people get interested. As it gets colder, more people stay indoors.

"We're concerned even when ratings are down marginally," says Pinchbeck. "But as of now, we're not all that concerned."

Rebels face Abilene Cooper on road Friday

Gunter was injured against Midland High and missed the Big Spring game before "playing last week against Permian," said Cooper head coach Dick Winder, "but he isn't 100 percent yet."

Lee is fifth in total offensive stats with 2,393 yards, 2,188 of which have come on the ground for the second best 4-5A rushing total. The 205 passing yards are the fewest in the district.

Those nearly equal stats make the defensive units the big difference in the game. Lee, allowing only 178 yards per game, is tops in the 4-5A while Cooper has been hit hard and has given up a 337.6 per game average.

WINDER HAS a lot of respect for his opponent, seeing it as a very tough game for his Bobcats.

"They've got perhaps the finest coaching staff in West Texas and a bunch of great kids," said Winder. "I hope we can stay in the game and give them a battle. We'll really have to compete to stay on the field with them. Stranger things have happened."

True! One only has to look as far as the conclusion of the 1982 district season to see what he means by "stranger things have happened." In that grand finale, Midland Lee had only to rely upon Permian defeating Odessa High while the Rebels beat the Midland High Bulldogs to gain one of the two state playoff berths.

The first necessity came true. However, Midland High knocked off Lee and with San Angelo's narrow victory over Big Spring there was a four-way tie for first place. San Angelo won the ensuing coin flip and went to the playoffs. Lee stayed home.

It's a scene Dykes, as well as his Rebels, would prefer not to live through again this year.

Bruner's college roommate and teammate, Brad Bailey, is partially responsible for Andy being at Midland College.

"I used to know Brad when he lived in Oklahoma City and we were good friends. He told Coach Williams about me and Coach Williams came by and let me hit him a few balls and the rest just happened.

"Coach Williams is a great coach and individual. I've found Midland enjoyable, but I'm not playing as well as I would like right now. I had some other choices, but I think MC was a good choice for me."

Williams is also a Bruner fan. "He must work harder than most to improve. He's a real fighter on the court and very coachable. He also has another thing going for him in that he's our only lefthander. He plays No. 6 for us most of the time, but could play as high as No. 2."

However, a morning rolls around every 24 hours. That means another shot of insulin. "Oh, it's not fun, but you get used to it," he said.

PREP HONOR ROLL

Bovina back tops list

By Associated Press

Bovina running back Richard Shepherd hit Springlake from all directions with four touchdowns — all by a different method — in a 47-0 victory last week.

Shepherd, a senior running back-cornerback, scored on a 20-yard run, caught a 66-yard TD pass, threw a 25-yard halfback pass for a score and returned an interception 60 yards for his fourth trip into the end zone.

Shepherd earns mention in The Associated Press Honor Roll along with Celeste quarterback Boyce Hobbs, who scored all of his team's points in a 32-7 victory over Caddo Mills.

Bovina Coach Larry Helton says Shepherd is what makes his team run.

"He's our franchise player here," Helton said. "We run the veer and he's not going to line up and run over you. But he's got great lateral movement. One second he's here, the next he's over there."

HELTON WAS an assistant coach at Sealy during the first two schoolboy years of Los Angeles Rams running back Eric Dickerson.

"Richard doesn't have the size or speed of Eric but he's got better moves," Helton said.

Shepherd, 5-10, 150, had 104 yards rushing on 11 carries and had another non-scoring interception.

Hobbs took advantage of Caddo Mills' pre-occupation with Celeste running back Deuce Hemphill and read the veer option offense to perfection.

Hobbs ran for five touchdowns and kicked two extra points. He completed four of seven passes for 126 yards and had touchdown runs of one, four, 12, two and one yard.

"They kept taking the pitch man (Hemphill) and he just turned it up," said Celeste Coach Ron Sanderson. "He's really made our offense come around because he's able to read the veer so well."

HOBBS HAS completed 38 of 48 passes this season, including 15 for touchdowns. "That's the strongest part of his game," Sanderson said. "Friday night was the first time this season he hasn't thrown two touchdown passes."

Little Cypress-Mauriceville quarterback Richard Parnell had a good running and passing performance in a 27-0 shutout of Lumberton. Parnell rushed 141 yards on 21 carries that included a pair of two-yard touchdown runs and completed five of six passes for 104 yards and a 49-yard TD pass.

Hardin-Jefferson's Reggie King accounted for 307 of his team's 365 rushing yards on 24 carries in a 34-14 victory over Huffman. King had touchdown runs of 81, 77 and 66 yards and returned a kickoff 85 yards for a touchdown.

Sabine Pass, the No. 7 ranked Class A team in the state, used the pass-catch skills of quarterback Keith Mayhugh and receiver James Street to defeat previously unbeaten High Island 22-14.

Mayhugh completed 10 of 18 passes for 216 yards and had touchdown passes of 13, 54 and 75 yards. Two of the touchdowns went to Street, who caught four passes for 152 yards.

Wasps great for manure

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Lynn Stone, president of Churchill Downs, isn't about to carry a rolled-up newspaper or hang rolls of sticky brown paper when he goes after flies in the stables. He imports wasps.

When faced with the possibility of a fly population of untold proportions last summer, the first in which the track operated continuously from the end of April to Labor Day, Stone prepared for the worst.

"Where you have horses, you have manure. And where you have manure, especially in hot weather, you have flies," he explained. "So we brought in a special breed of wasps from South America and distributed them around the stable area throughout the meeting."

The wasps didn't go buzzing after the flies. "They eat the flies' larvae." And, he adds, "They don't sting horses or people."

Finsterwald takes lead

CHIYODA, Japan (AP) — Former PGA champion Dow Finsterwald shot a 3-under-par 69 to take a one-stroke lead Thursday after the first round of the $200,000 Coca Cola Grand Slam seniors golf tournament.

The 64-year-old American rolled in five birdies against two bogeys on the 6,497-yard Chiyoda Country Club course.

Americans Rod Funseth and Gay Brewer were tied for second place with 2-under-par 70s.

SPORTS WITH A LIVING ROOM VIEW

TV fans drifting away from NFL

AP Sports Writer

Something funny has been happening to the National Football League this fall. America's League — the league America loves to watch — isn't being watched as much as it used to be.

Question: What is happening to the greatest television spectacle ever devised by man?

Answer: Probably nothing that a few good games wouldn't cure.

With half the season gone, ratings are down for all three major networks' NFL coverage. The comparison is 1981 — the season before the strike and an all-time ratings record holder. Leaving room for adjustment, CBS is down about 5 percent, NBC about 9 percent and ABC about 15 percent.

Why? There are a lot of opinions, which means no one's really sure. Some samples:

— Parity, which also means that there are few can't miss attractions. Dallas, always; Washington, maybe; the Raiders, Miami. Who else?

— The strike.

— The weather. Too warm at the beginning of the season, which started earlier anyway. Meaning people went to the beach or to the golf course or just took a walk instead of watching football.

— The United States Football League. Fans used to go without football from January to August. This year, they went without football from July until August.

— Monday night counter-programming. CBS and NBC lined up specials and other attention-getters to draw viewers away from Howard and company on ABC. Meaning the folks that bring us the NFL on Sunday afternoons are doing their best to blow it out in prime time.

The best bet: Parity combined with just plain bad luck, particularly for the big loser, ABC.

Or, as Val Pinchbeck Jr., the NFL's television coordinator and schedule maker puts it:

"We had a whole series of games that looked good on paper that were one-sided and uninteresting."

AH, YES. Scratch off the Washington-Green Bay 48-47 game, Dallas' opening Monday night 31-30 win over the Redskins and the Raiders' 40-38 win Sunday night over the Cowboys and what did ABC get. They got:

San Francisco 48, Minnesota 17; the Giants 27, Green Bay 3, the Raiders 27, Miami 14; the Jets 34, Buffalo 10. Plus offending snoozers like Pittsburgh 24, Cincinnati 14; San Diego 17, Kansas City 14, and this week's clinker — the Giants 20, St. Louis 20.

Which gets us to parity, which can make one season's contender the next year's dog. Tampa Bay, 0-8 at midseason will be on ABC Dec. 12. The Cardinals and Giants demonstrated their wares Monday night and Cincinnati is due for an encore.

On the other hand, San Francisco, one of the better attractions, won't be on until the last week of the season.

Things should get better. Dallas and the Raiders set a record for ABC's Sunday night telecasts, and Dallas-Washington and Washington-Green Bay did fine in the ratings.

Moreover, network people point out that it's hard to do better than 1981. And as races for the playoff shape up, more people get interested. As it gets colder, more people stay indoors.

"We're concerned even when ratings are down marginally," says Pinchbeck. "But as of now, we're not all that concerned."

Stockholders suing MetroBank directors

From Staff and Wire Reports

ODESSA — Two stockholders have sued directors of the failed MetroBank for more than $800,000 for allegedly giving them misleading information that coaxed them into investing more than $100,000 in the bank.

In the lawsuit, Odessans Larry Rackley and Carmelee Boyd charge that MetroBank directors, in order to secure investment in the bank, made representations to them about the bank's financial condition and the value of stock knowing that they were "untrue, false, misleading and fraudulent."

The civil petition was filed Monday by Odessa attorney Phil Godwin in Ector County's 70th Judicial District Court.

Malfeasance and misfeasance — bad management — have been alleged by the petitioners, Godwin told the Reporter-Telegram. He said "The officers and directors either knew, or should have known, that management was bad" and that poor decisions were being made.

Godwin said he — and his clients — do not think bad energy loans had actually caused any local bank failures. Although National Bank of Odessa and First National Bank of Midland failures were attributed to them; "We think it was simply bad management."

MetroBank loans were improperly made, federal authorities said when it closed. But its portfolio was not energy-heavy. Godwin expects the records of MetroBank will show improprieties, and expects "... to be afforded access to MetroBank's records through deposition and discovery."

He said he plans to sue other local banks on behalf of shareholders: "I have been requested by other clients to pursue several claims."

According to the petition, Rackley and Boyd purchased MetroBank stock at $40 a share on or about April 23, 1982.

Rackley purchased 2,500 shares and paid $100,000 for the stock, and Boyd purchased 51 shares, paying $2,040, the petition states.

The state-chartered bank, located near Midland Regional Airport, was declared insolvent and ordered closed July 29 by state banking officials.

Rackley and Boyd are seeking payment for their initial investment of $102,040 plus double that amount "as prescribed by the Texas Business and Commerce Code," the petition states.

In addition, the two seek exemplary damages of $500,000, attorneys' and court fees, and any interest on their investment, according to the petition.

Rackley and Boyd said in the petition they would not have purchased the stock had they known the true value of the stock or had they known the bank was in failing financial condition.

"I anticipate there will be more litigation with Metro," said Godwin, who said "a number" of other shareholders have hired him to pursue their claims.

"My clients have told me there were misrepresentations made to them about statements of condition" and other bank financial reports, Godwin said.

Named as defendants are 13 people who were MetroBank directors at the time the stock transaction occurred.

New bank planned

Texas' second-largest bank holding company plans to make its presence known in Midland.

To be capitalized at $2 million, half of which will be in-house stock, Texas Commerce Bank-Midland is a proposed de novo institution to be affiliated with Texas Commerce Bankshares Inc., Houston. TCB Inc. has $18.2 billion in total assets and 63 member banks.

Its application to organize a national bank was filed in Washington Oct. 21, saying the new bank would be located near the corner of Big Spring and Illinois. Independence Plaza, a highrise being built there now may be a possible site for the bank. However, the firm would not say where the bank is to be located.

The U.S. Deputy Comptroller of the Currency, Southwestern District, is accepting comments on the Texas Commerce Bank-Midland charter application at the Dallas office until Nov. 21.

"As of this point, the only thing I know about (the de novo bank) is that we've applied for a charter," said Sally Jenkins, of the TCB Inc. marketing division. Ms. Jenkins said the company had never been turned down for a charter — but official comments aren't usually made until after its approval.

Since most Texas Commerce banks are in Dallas and Houston suburbs. This is TCB Inc.'s first West Texas de novo bank.Texas Commerce Bank, in Odessa, became a member of the Houston bankshares firm years ago — it was formerly called American Bank.

Chamber hears encouraging housing news

Housing sales in Midland, during September, hit 119. Speaking Wednesday at the monthly board meeting of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, Laura Manulik, president of the Midland Board of Realtors, said she was encouraged by the slight decline in the number of houses on the market in Midland. Manulik also suggested that a break in current interest rates might mean an increase in sales activity.

Manulik said 28 new homes were sold in September; with a total sales volume of $2,915,000. The average selling price of a new home during this time was $104,137. In addition, 91 existing homes were sold totaling $8,209,000. Average selling price of an existing home in September was $90,212. Last month, the board of Realtors reported 1,642 listings. This month they have 1,614 listings.

W.P. Franklin, chamber president, told the board members all the news is not bad as he reviewed the list of new members since June 1. He called the 95 new members an "impressive" group.

Guy McCrary, speaking for the Midland Jaycees, briefed board members on the status of the Centennital Park project. McCrary introduced architect Walter Pate, whose firm has been retained to design the park. Pate showed board members the artist's renderings and explained the different areas of the park. The park will be located on the vacant land adjacent to the Midland Center complex, and will cost about $900,000. Construction should begin in about one year.

Franklin told board members a "high-tech" company had visited for a second time with chamber members. The second meeting was held at Midland Regional Airport. The Midland and Odessa chambers made a joint presentation and then conducted tours of their respective cities. Franklin would not name the company.

The economic development department told members September was a busier month for out of town inquiries. Randle Lee, assistant manager for the department, told the board 18 official visits were made during September, which was more than July and August visits combined. Lee also reported Southwestern Life Insurance, Dallas, has located a regional office in Midland and may possibly be increasing their staff by 17 people.

The transportation committee will be meeting with Robert Lanier, director of the State Highway Department, to discuss Midland's growing traffic problems with emphasis on the completion of Loop 250.

A Midland Memorial Hospital representative told the board it had completed a successful year. Despite current economic conditions, MMH reported a net profit, before taxes and donations. This is the first time in a long time this has happened, the spokesman said. Patient days increased 7.5 percent. Births were up 11 percent to 200 per month. Operating room procedures increased 6.5 percent.

Nancy Mann, convention and visitors bureau, reported travel last year brought $112.4 million to Midland County and its labor market. Mann said pleasure travel accounted for 75 percent of receipts and 25 percent came from business travellers.

Bill Collyns told the board more than 700 Petroleum Pioneers are expected Friday for the 13th biennial reunion. This number will break the previous attendance record of 640.

Oct. 8, Clean Midland Day, was a huge success. Nancy Sharp reported more than 133 tons of debris was delivered to the Midland landfill on the free day.

Dave Griffin, chairman of the sports committee, presented a plaque from the chamber to Joe Fagin, president of Green Tree Country Club, and to Warren Chancelor, club pro. The plaque recognized their efforts to bring championship PGA golf back to the Midland-Odessa area. Green Tree Country Club recently hosted a Pro-Am in which 25 pros and 100 amatuers golfers participated.

"We made over $22,000 in 3 months with our Kis 1-Hour Photo Processor."

"We started out in January with our first Kis Photo Processor and by July we were so busy, and making so much money, that we got a second."

Kis has made photo processing so easy that now virtually any business can be in the photo processing business too. A Kis Photo Processor takes up just 25 square feet of floor space and, by processing as few as 20 rolls of film a day, can earn you more than $55,000 a year. Process 40 rolls and you can earn more than $119,000 a year. If you have floor space that isn't pulling its weight, get a Kis 1-Hour Photo Processor and Kis that low profit space goodbye.

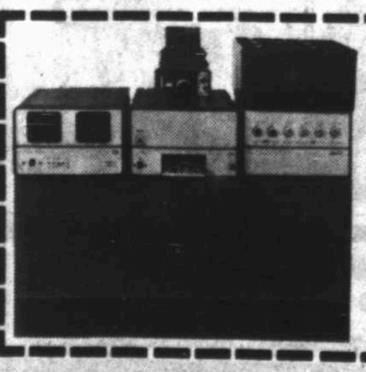

"Right now we average 50 rolls a day, and I think we'll be up to 75 before you know it, because today everybody wants their pictures in an hour."

Kis processes, prints and enlarges 110, 126, 135 and disc film in just one hour (machine time). The quality of prints and enlargements is unsurpassed.

"Like everything else about this Kis machine, the price is manageable too. You can buy one for just $1,800 down. Kis is truly one-of-a-kind."

Kis costs only $32,900, yet the quality photos this system produces are the equal of equipment costing over $100,000. You can get a Kis for as little as $1,800 down (the balance up to 5 years), and Kis can help arrange financing for qualified buyers.

Pioneer hosts, hostesses named

Names of the official hosts and hostesses for the 13th biennial Permian Basin Petroleum Pioneers Reunion scheduled here Friday have been announced by Les Weatherall, hospitality chairman.

The hosts include G.W. Brock, Earl Chapman, Ford Chapman, Decker Dawson, George Donnelly Jr., T.P. (Red) Drew, Lewis Feagan, Pat Fletcher, Berte Haigh, Fred Hogan, J.H. Hugghins Jr., Holt Jowell, Maurice Kennedy, Vaughn Maley, Jack Matthews, Joseph I. O'Neill Jr., W.M. Osborn, D.G. Roberts, Charles Snure, Keith Somerville, W.D. (Boots) Watson, Rudolph Wright and Arthur Yeager.

Jno. P. Butler, Grant Billingsley, Bill Collyns, Harvey Herd and Weatherall, members of the reunion's arrangement committee, also serve on the host panel.

The hostess group, named by Mrs. Arthur Yeager and Mrs. Sally Patteson, includes Alva Butler, Mable Shaw, Lou Dawson, Harriett Herd, Frances Black, Inez Hazlip, Nelda Coleman, Wilma Maley, Gladys Abell, Florence Larsh, Sarah McDonald, Ruth Bartha, Ann Lindsey, Lillian Hanley, Barney Snure, Estilleen Nelson, Ann Estin, Mrs. M.T. Oakley, Mrs. Sam Thompson, Annie Laurie Chancellor, Esther Denton, Ann Roberts, Marge Wood, Hazel Somerville, Minnie German and Alyce Chapman.

The Holiday Inn Country Villa, 4300 West Highway 80, will be the scene of all events, with the exception of the ladies luncheon, which will be held at the Midland Country Club.

Eddie Chiles of Fort Worth, formerly of Midland, will be the featured speaker at the men's luncheon.

Tours of the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum and of the Midland area will be conducted during the afternoon.

A reception/buffet for both men and women will be held from 6 to 9p.m. as the celebration's concluding event.

Drilling ship missing

PEKING (AP) — The U.S. drilling ship Glomar Java Sea, carrying a crew of 79, was missing in a typhoon in the South China Sea, China's official Xinhua news agency reported today.

Chinese airplanes and 11 Chinese naval and commercial ships were searching for the vessel, which was reported missing Wednesday, but so far had found no signs of it, Xinhua said.

U.S. officials in Peking and Canton said about half the crew was American and about half Chinese. They said the U.S. Navy was notified, and that there was no precise information on the ship's location.

The Glomar Java Sea was leased by Atlantic Richfield Co. of the United States from Global Marine Drilling Co., another U.S. company, to explore for oil in China's Yingge Sea basin,

Coal exports high on issues list

WASHINGTON (AP) — Coal exports will be high on the list of issues President Reagan will discuss in Japan next month, according to senators hoping to recapture a one-third share of the domestic Japanese coal market for U.S. coal.

"The administration would like to see U.S. (coal) contracts back to what they were," Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa., co-chairman of the Senate Coal Caucus, said Wednesday at a news conference.

Here's Why At ClayDesta National Bank, Oil & Gas Is Our Business.

Ever since the discovery of gas and crude in the Permian Basin, Midland has attracted countless independent energy pioneers who came here with a hat full of dreams and a pocket full of leases.

And with the kind of hard work (and a little luck) that only oil and gas people can understand, these operators have made our city one of America's great energy centers.

But factors like the economy, government regulations, and imports have changed the face of the oil and gas industry forever. And as a result, the kind of financial backing an oil and gas man needs now is a lot different from what he needed just a few years ago.

Backing the oil and gas industry is a major part of ClayDesta National Bank's business. It makes up the biggest single component of our loans. And because our bank was built by oil and gas men, we know how to handle the special needs of independent operators.

Quick response. Sometimes you've got to have an answer now! Oil men who deal with ClayDesta National will tell you they can usually measure response time in days not months.

Personal attention. Any oil man's relationship should be one-on-one with his banker, not with a department. And frankly, our oil and gas customers tell us ClayDesta National is the friendliest bank they've ever been in.

Commitment. There aren't many things more important to an oil man than knowing his bank will stand by him. You get a commitment from ClayDesta National, and you've got a commitment.

Asset strength. We opened just a few months ago with the largest capital structure of any bank in West Texas history. Since then our deposit base has grown more than 1000%, while our loan-to-deposit ratio is less than 50%. But most importantly, because of our sound relationships with other financial sources, truly no oil and gas deal is too big for ClayDesta National to handle.

Expertise. Not many things are worse than talking to a banker who doesn't understand your business. We're one of just a handful of Texas banks who have full-time engineers and oil and gas lenders on staff, ready to work with you.

Positive attitude. Let's be honest. A lot of people think energy loans are a dirty word these days. But those independent oil and gas operators who risked all they had to establish this great industry are still the backbone of it today. And we stand behind 'em. At ClayDesta National Bank, energy lending is OK!

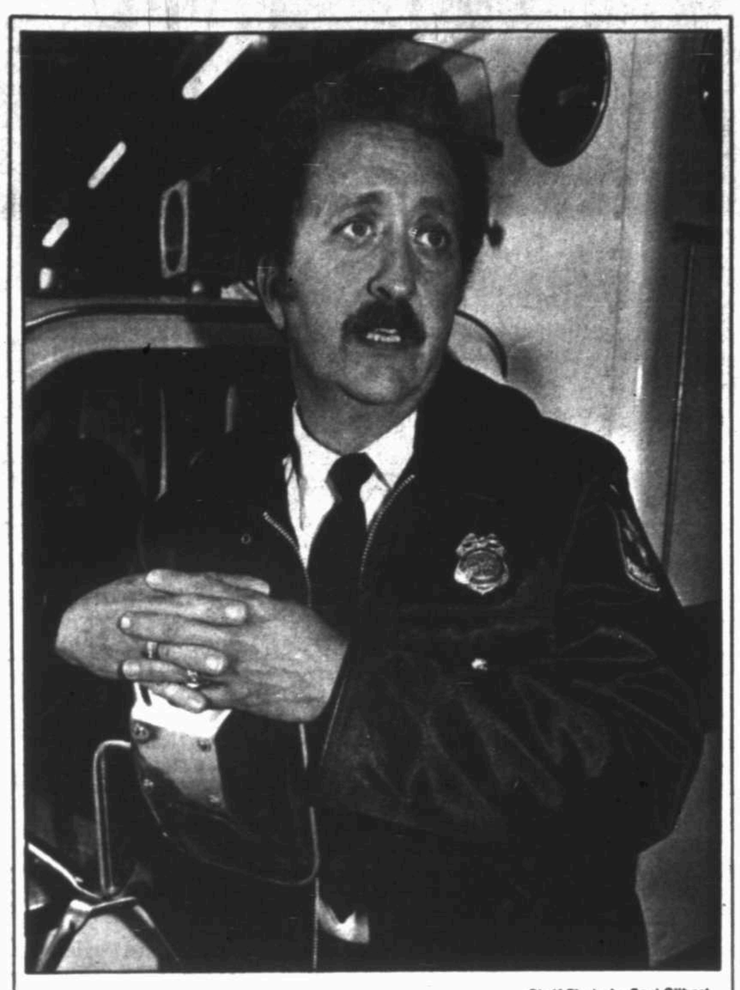

The oil and gas industry has kept this part of Texas looking great for nearly a century.

And at ClayDesta National Bank, we think it's looking better all the time.

Ray Sprague, of the Midland Fire Department, was recently named the Emergency Medical Service Chief.

Fire captain now EMS chief

By GAIL BURKE
Staff Writer

After 16 years, Ray Sprague has shed his blue shirt for a dress white and tie.

Entering the Midland Fire Department as a firefighter in 1966, Sprague has gone from tailboard man to driver, then captain.

Monday he was accepted as the new Emergency Medical Service Chief.

"That's everybody's goal," he said, explaining that all firefighters want to climb the ladder, but too little turnover at the department hinders this.

With the retirement of Chief Raymond Lewis, Deputy Chief James Roberts applied and was hired as chief and EMS Chief Dean Williams was moved to deputy chief.

"I applied for the job and got it," Sprague said. "I never really appreciated Dean's position until I began doing this."

Sprague, who has been on the job almost two weeks, said "when you take off the blue shirt and put on the white, you're half crazy to begin with."

The new responsibilities differ quite a bit from his old duties at Station 8 at Midkiff Road and Haynes Ave.

"This is the first time in 16 years, I'll be working a 'normal' workweek," he said, explaining that as a firefighter and a paramedic, he worked three different shifts year-round.

As the EMS chief, Sprague will be coordinating personnel, instead of rescuing citizens. But the paperwork won't completely replace the sirens.

"This is supposed to be an 8 to 5 job, but I'm on call 24 hours," he said. "I want to be involved with the runs and be on the scene. Dean made runs and improved some things. I'd like to do the same, but those are some big shoes to fill. I hope I can."

During his first week, Sprague was busy meeting people. He has and will continue to stop by all four substations.

"This is a whole different world, but it's a challenge," he said. "The most I had to worry about as captain was to fill out a report. Now there's budgeting, education, traveling and complaints to take."

One-man exhibit benefits temple

Artist's works depict 'aloneness of man'

By GEORGIA TEMPLE
Entertainment Writer

He began painting 37 years ago. Through the years Robert Watson has maintained a steadfast consistency in theme: "The dream that follows the solitary man in his journey through life."

The Arts Committee of Temple Beth El is sponsoring an exhibition of his work Friday and Saturday from 1 to 5:30 p.m. at the Lionel Daury French Restaurant, No. 20 Plaza Shopping Center. The event, which opens tonight with a private showing, is a fund-raiser for Temple Beth El.

Watson arrived in town Wednesday. He and several friends were preparing to hang his works when he took a break to answer questions.

A man of medium height and build, Watson is not someone who would stand out in a crowd during a cursory look. However, he has a special manner about him. His eyes' contagious twinkle infect his entire countenance. The lines in his face bespeak frequent laughter.

When asked why he began painting, he tried to suppress a smile while replying, "I can give you a flip answer, which is, 'I paint because I like something decent to look at.'" Pausing slightly, he adds laughing, "I may as well make my own."

Watson's career in the arts began three decades ago with his first one-man show, a sell-out, at Gump's in San Francisco in 1947. That show has been followed by many others at the California Palace of the Legion of Honor, Pasadena Art Institute, Santa Barbara Museum of Art as well as numerous other museums and private galleries throughout the United States.

His Midland show represents a first.

"I have not had a one-man show in Texas. I've been widely collected in Texas, mostly out of Los Angeles and out of New York (through) my dealers. I did a private exhibit down in Corpus Christi last summer." Then he adds in a reflective tone, "I'm fascinated by Texas. I'd love to perhaps even come live here and work one day."

Watson studied at the University of California and the University of Wisconsin, but considers himself "pretty well self-taught." His themes and approach are modern, but his technique is rooted in the traditions of the old masters.

"I am trained in the school of the old masters, the old Venetian painters. I use the same technique that was used by El Greco and Titian, which is pretty well forgotton now.

"I was lucky enough I had one teacher who said that a great art was not born in a Martinez, Calif., or a Midland, Texas. You've got to go to a metropolitan museum or to a Louvre and absorb. And I was lucky enough to be starving in New York for one winter, and the Metropolitan was the warmest free place in town. I just looked and looked and looked, and it rubbed off on me."

From that experience Watson "decided what made a painting tick. What was good taste and what was bad taste. Why was one painting better than another?"

Watson says, "There's not a painter who's not been influenced by another painter." But the painter who most influenced Watson's work is "a minor Venetian painter by the name of Francesco Guardi, he was an 18th century Venetian painter." Others who have had strong influences on his work are "Turner, the great English painter, Salvador Dali and Italian surrealists.

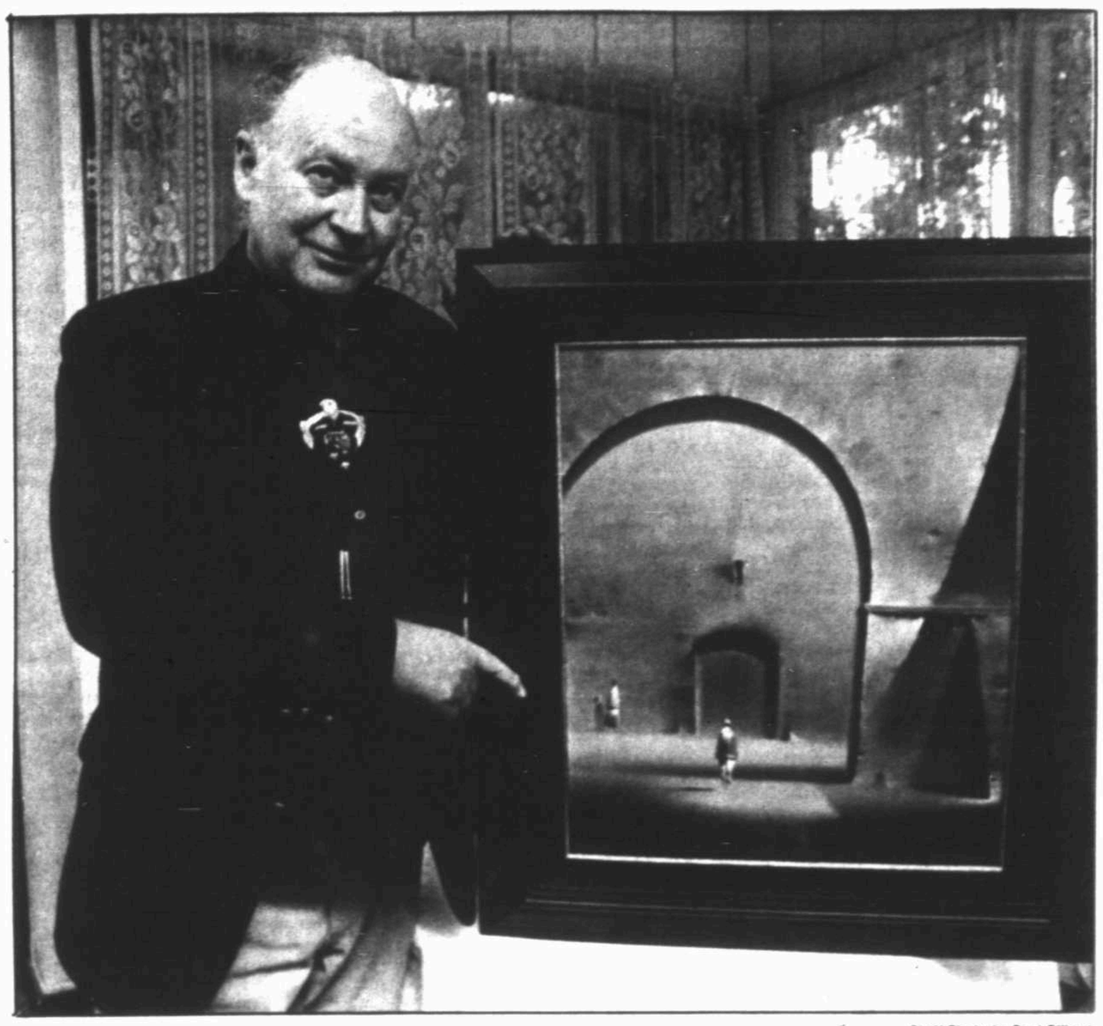

"Everything rubs off. Every painter picks up from everyone else. Raphael influenced everyone right down to Picasso. Rembrandt was influenced by Raphael. I'm influenced by Rembrandt. I'm no Rembrandt, but I've painted a few good paintings."

Watson's work can be found in the private collections of, to name a few, Vincent Price, Norman Cousins and Ray Bradbury.

His subject remains basically the same.

"I paint essentially the basic aloneness of man. You're born alone, you live alone, you die alone. They're not depressing. If you can accept aloneness, you can accept life — the folly, the tragedy of life and the joy and the laughter.

"I see it in simple things: land, sea, sky, man, his flimsy structures, his sense of aloneness and the little bit of peace and joy that he gets from those few things around him by using his God-given eyes and his God-given feelings."

Point of view

Robert Watson, whose works are on display at the Lionel Daury Restaurant Friday and Saturday from 1 to 5:30 p.m., paints primarily on the subject of man's solitary walk through life. His paintings may also be viewed both evenings by calling 683-1444 or 684-4274 for an appointment.

Canadian oil, gas operators sue

Suit alleges racketeering

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Two Canadian oil-and-gas operators and their companies have filed a $35 million lawsuit against the defunct First National Bank of Midland, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., Texas Commerce Bank, former president of FNBM and its directors.

The lawsuit was filed in federal court in Midland.

The plaintiffs, James R. Herbert and Kenneth Ian Matheson of Vancouver, British Columbia, are alleging racketeering against certain officers and a director of FNB and "dereliction" of duties by the bank's board of directors by not properly supervising the bank's officers, including Charles D. Fraser, former president, and Joel T. Mays, former executive vice president.

Further, Herbert and Matheson are charging Fraser, Mays and John H. Hendrix, FNB board vice chairman and a director, with rackerteering by scheming to defraud.

The complaint by Herbert and Matheson apparently stemmed from deeds of trust or mortgages, representing 76 oil-and-gas wells in Oklahoma and signed by John Wood of Wood & Locker to secure loans totaling about $24 million.

The Canadians invested with W&L in the drilling programs, the suit's petition says.

Hebert and Matheson are claiming that the deeds of trust were not properly executed, violated Oklahoma law, and "are therefore invalid for the purpose of securing the interest of FNBM and TCB, though they insist on its validity."

However, W&L did not own the properties on which the mortgages were secured and did not have authority or permission to act on behalf of the numerous investors in the drilling ventures, the petition claims.

The Canadians say that once FCD Corp., Oklahoma oil operator, learned of the deeds of the trust, it ceased making payments to them. In a subsequent court action in Oklahoma, FNBM told the two investors that "they had no dog in the fight."

Further, the Canadians claim that FNBM participated in the defalcation of trust funds from W&L's trust account of $780,000. Mays allegedly told W&L's Gary Bolding that the funds taken through the trust account could be regarded as a "back door loan."

TCB got involved after it endorsed the notes for the deeds of trust.

In their lawsuit, the Canadians alleged that Hendrix told them if they asserted their legal claims against FNBM, then their loans would be called in. On Sept. 7, 1983, their loans of $3.3 million were called in, though no legal claims were made, the petition says.

Herbert and Matheson claim they were unable to meet "certain of their obligations to FNBM since the runs of oil and gas revenue were suspended and were being paid into the interpleader" in proceedings settling the Oklahoma dispute.

Had those funds from oil-and-gas ventures not been cut off, Herbert and Matheson say could have met their obligations to prevent the notes from being called in. FNBM intervened, the petition says, and delayed payments to them.

In that Oklahoma action, the Canadians claim that the FNBM directors' supervision of management "was of such a low caliber in nature as to amount to a total dereliction of their duties."

"They (directors)...were negligent and in some incidences acted with a conscious disregard for the rights of others...," the petition says.

The lawsuit's petition noted that the FDIC on Oct. 14 become the receiver of the insolvent FNBM. The Canadians are asking that FDIC recognize their claims against the bank.

Actions of the bank caused the Canadians to get in the forced sale of $500,000 in Fort Worth property, to lose $2.1 million in the foreclosure of property in the Midland area, and to lose $4.5 million in stock transactions and income on the Vancouver Stock Exchange, the suit claims. They are seeking $15 million in actual damages and $20 in punitive damages.

Co-plaintiffs in the suit are Mather Oil & Gas Inc. and Mather Corp., both in Canada, and the Texas-based Venture Holdings Inc. and Texacan Investments.

Other than Fraser, Mays and Hendrix, defendants named in the suit are former FNB directors Jno. P. Butler, senior chairman of the board; Clarence Scharbauer Jr., Paul L. Davis, J.T. Baker, Frank Cowden Jr., J. Harvey Herd, W.B. Yarborough, Richard S. Brooks, William B. Blakemore III, Joe Mabee, Barry A. Beal, Mitcell A. Cappadonna, Allen K. Trobaugh, Marshall S. McCrea Jr., Douglas Scharbauer, Thomas C. Brown and Donald L. McCall.

Segregation lawsuit heard against ECISD

By RHONDA RIGENHAGEN
Staff Writer

NEW ORLEANS — A segregation suit against the Ector County Independent School District was heard before a three-judge panel in New Orleans Wednesday morning. The 5th Circuit Court of Appeals is expected to render a decision in two to six months.

A suit, charging Odessa schools with failure to desegregate its schools, was filed 12 years ago, but did not go to trial until the fall of 1981. In August of 1982 Federal District Judge Fred Shannon of San Antonio ruled the district must immediately implement a court-ordered desegregation plan.

Dissatisfied with the court plan, two local minority organizations filed an appeal. Crucial and Mexican-American Legal Defense and Education Fund (MALDEF) feel their plan should have been used instead of the one now in effect.

During the hour-long hearing Wednesday Norma Cantu, representing Crucial and MALDEF, argued that a hearing for remedies was never held after the plan was announced. Such a hearing would allow the parties involved to support or disagree with the plan and present alternatives.

Man born with knack of throwing time to the wind

Within the "Gone With the Wind" saga is this message:

Do not squander time
That is the stuff life is made of

It's a timeless exhortation.

But that admonition is heeded about as well as the love-thy-neighbor commandment. Evidence of that defiance extends from locks on your doors at home to war abroad.

Sermons on "time utilization and efficiency" do about as much good as labels on packages, directions on a how-to kit and advice in books. Unheeded, they are as pearls cast before swine. The value is in the implementation.

To instruct yourself or anyone less not to squander time may be a noble gesture and full of good intent. But the problem comes in knowing how to busy yourself with tasks and endeavors that are not time-wasting. Man was born with the knack for throwing time to the wind. Undisciplined, he is prodigal.

In his childhood and youth, the fledgling, like a bird learning to fly, has no real idea why he is so regulated — why he is told to do this and that and, failing, is reprimanded by word or hand. Parents of this walking timepiece may be frustrated that they cannot adjust their child. They make progress, they think, but there's plenty of slips. Parents of the child certainly are not the enbodiment of perfection. Occasionally, they skip a tick themselves.

The child is sent off to school to learn by rote, thought and logic what to do with the time in his life. It must be a tedious experience for the child, who toils, it seems, just to please teacher and Mom and Dad by earning or getting decent grades and by not getting ridiculed by his peers.

Poor child. He gets marked for the duration whether he sorely fails or exceeds expectations. Fortunate is the student-child who learns to succeed for his own sake and to challenge himself to the greatest level of greatness of which he is capable. Fortunate is the man who does likewise.

Through life, man by his schooling, training and working is admonished to be diligent and thorough in his life's goals and tasks. The promised rewards are enticing: success.

Now, what's beyond success? Is it the privilege to go to the former undisciplined self? Once success is in your grasp, can you then throw time to the wind and return to the prodigal self?

Certainly not — not in good conscience. That would be foolish. Why build up and then tear down? The scriptural rule is: "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might." Often you may will that "might" were mightier than it is and that your talents were more than they are or seem to be. But a beauty of this "stuff" of life is that God has given each person time to do what he will.

With a little luck, discipline and an earnest search, a child grown up can reap the benefits of not squandering time and realize a fulfilled life.

DEATHS

Stan Warlick

Stan Warlick, 48, of 3307 Cardinal Lane died Wednesday in a Midland hospital after a lengthy illness.

Services were to be at 2 p.m. today in Fairmont Church of Christ with Paul Hall, minister, officiating. Burial was to be in Resthaven Memorial Park, directed by Ellis Funeral Home.

Warlick was born July 24, 1935, in Greer County, Okla., and spent his early life there. He moved in 1959 to Snyder, where he worked in the oilfields with Halliburton and Western Oil companies. Warlick moved to Midland in 1965 and began work as a dirt contractor. He was a member of the Church of Christ.

Survivors include his wife, Althea of Midland; and a sister, Mrs. Marvin Hunt of Lubbock.

Cora Hunt

Services for Cora Hunt, 85, of Midland were to be at 10:30 a.m. today at Grace Temple Baptist Church in Kermit. Burial was to be at 4 p.m. in Foster Cemetery in Sterling City directed by Cooper Funeral Home of Kermit.

She died Monday at a Kermit hospital.

Mrs. Hunt was born Nov. 5, 1897, in Ballinger. She married Charley Hunt Sr., who preceded her in death in 1937. She was a Midland resident for 13 years and a member of the Baptist Church.

Survivors include two sons, Charley Hunt Jr. of Kermit and Lee Roy Hunt of Garden City; one daughter, Perla Faye O'Brien of Hanby; three sisters, Nora Brashers of Oroville, Calif., Nettie Key and Ida Adams, both of Archer City; 14 grandchildren; and 10 great-grandchildren.

Ruth L. Boles

Mrs. Ruth L. Boles, 69, of 4518 Leddy died at a Midland hospital Wednesday after a lengthy illness.

Services will be Friday at 2 p.m. in Ellis Chapel with the Rev. Bob Porterfield of West Kentucky Baptist Church officiating. Burial will be in Resthaven Memorial Park.

She was born Nov. 23, 1913 in Kemp and spent her early life in Kaufman County. She attended school in Roswell, N.M., and in 1930 returned to Kemp, where she met and married Cecil Boles in 1932. In 1938 they moved to Dallas and in 1946 to Tyler. They later lived in Lubbock before moving to Midland in 1956.

She was a member of Calvary Baptist Church of Lubbock.

Survivors include her husband; one brother, William Riggins of Midland; and one sister, Mrs. Bessie Davis of Mabank.

H. Heckathorne

Harold Heckathorne, 62, of 2900 N. I St., died Tuesday evening in a Midland hospital following a lengthy illness.

Services will be at 11 a.m. Friday in the First Presbyterian Church sanctuary with Dr. Robert Boynton Smith, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in Resthaven Memorial Park, directed by Ellis Funeral Home.

Heckathorne was born Feb. 19, 1921, in Beaver Falls, Pa., and spent his early life in Pennsylvania. He graduated from Grove City College in Grove City, Pa. He entered the U.S. Air Force and served during World War II. He was discharged in 1945 but remained in the U.S. Air Force Reserve until two years ago when he retired with the rank of lieutenant colonel. After his discharge in 1945, Heckathorne began his buiness career with Jones & Laughlin Steel Co. as a metallurgist in Pennsylvania. He transferred to Midland in 1963 and had worked for J&L Steel for 35 years.

Heckathorne was a member of the First Presbyterian Church and also served as an elder.

Survivors include his wife, Maneeta of Midland; two sons, the Rev. Robin S. Heckathorne of Fort Worth and Harold Wendell Heckathorne of Dallas; a brother, Dr. O. Howard Heckathorne of Beaver, Pa.; and a sister, Mrs. J.T. (Helen) Anderson Jr. also of Beaver.

Lloyd H. White

Services for Lloyd H. White, 54, of 1911 W. Frances St., were to be at 11 a.m. today in Ellis Funeral Home chapel with the Rev. Bob Porterfield, associate pastor, officiating. Burial was to be in Fairview Cemetery.

He died Monday in a Midland nursing home.

Pallbearers were to be Jimmy Strickland, Gaylan Strickland, Ray Tindall, John Weldon, Joe Howell and Bob Nelson.

Honorary pallbearers were to be Dale Smith and Bob Busby.

Connie Gould

Connie Gould, 44, of rural Midland died Tuesday afternoon in a Midland hospital following a lengthy illness.

Memorial services were to be at 7 p.m. today in Moose Lodge, 2423 W. Indiana Ave. Handling arrangements is Ellis Funeral Home.

Mrs. Gould was born July 1, 1939, in St. Louis, Mo., and spent most of her life there. She served in the U.S. Navy 18 months and was discharged in 1961. She moved to Midland in January 1981. Mrs. Gould was a member of the American Veterans of Foreign Wars Post No. 7, and Women of the Moose, Chapter 1447.

Survivors include her husband, William Gould of Midland; two daughters, Rosemary Lillian Sellers of Midland and Regina Sellers of Whittier, Calif.; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Wilson of St. Louis, Mo.; and two sisters, Jeri White of Hanley Hills, Mo., and Nancy Bitteck of Marthasville, Mo.

Robert Cox, attorney for ECISD, defended implementation of Judge Shannon's plan by saying the school board and the district were merely following the orders of the federal court. The Justice Department was a co-defendant in the hearing.

Presiding over the hearing were judges Jerre Williams, Sam Johnson and Caroline Randall of the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals. If they rule in favor of Crucial and MALDEF the parties involved may be ordered to start over, or the case may be returned to a lower court for alterations.

Police investigate thefts, burglaries

Midland Police are investigating burglaries and thefts which occurred Wednesday.

According to reports, Jackie Barton told police about 4:41 p.m. that a stereo valued at $250 was taken.

At 10:24 p.m., Delores Allen, 1603 E. Oak, reported a burglary. Entry was gained through a back door, according to reports. Items reportedly taken were $2,600 in cash, a $300 watch and a $319 cassette recorder.

Earlier Wednesday, Mrs. L. Webb, 1515 S. Baird St., told police about 10:15 a.m. that various household items valued at $4,000 were taken from a van. According to reports, entry was gained by prying open a vent. A detailed report of items taken was not available.

At 12:22 p.m., the manager at the Dew Drop Inn, 607 E. Illinois, reported that eight cases of beer, eight cartons of cigarettes and five cue sticks, valued at $250 were taken from the business.

Dancerobics classes start at Ys

New sessions in Dancerobics will begin the week of Nov. 7, at the Midland YMCAs. No dance experience is needed for the physical fitness program, which consists of warm-up, aerobic and muscle conditioning exercise routines.

A YMCA membership is not required and babysitting is available for all classes.

Odessans hospitalized after collision

ODESSA — A 22-year-old man and a 38-year-old woman are listed in critical condition, following a two-car collision Wednesday night in Odessa.

According to Department of Public Safety, Randall Smith and Janis Burris, both of Odessa, were in separate cars traveling in opposite directions about 8:20 p.m. Wednesday.

The DPS dispatacher said Smith was northbound and Ms. Burris was southbound, when their cars collided at 57th Street and Golder in Odessa.

According to a spokesman at Medical Center Hospital, Smith suffered a broken leg and chest injuries and Ms. Burris suffered a broken ankle and chest injuries. Both are in the intensive care unit.

Sprague said his last night in the station house as captain, "was the longest and it seemed like I was awake at least 100 times during the night.

"You form an awful tight bond with the men. They're your family. The ambulance service is the best service the city has to offer as far as training and conscientious work. I won't be right there anymore."

Sprague won't be spending any more nights with his fellow firefighters. He'll be going home to his wife, Becky, and their four children.

He said his youngest son, who is four years old, doesn't quite understand why Sprague isn't down at the fire station all night.

"Last Saturday I took him to the park — that's probably the fourth time I've been able to do that," Sprague said. "I'm looking forward to spending a whole lot of time with him."

Perot wants to delay session in teacher pay

AUSTIN (AP) — Dallas computer magnate H. Ross Perot says that a special legislative session to raise teacher pay and to reform schools should be delayed until after state elections next year.

Perot, chairman of the state's Select Committee on Public Education, said Wednesday he does not believe legislators will want to consider broad educational finance and reform issues while they were running for election.

Perot told The Dallas Morning News his committee should wait to make its recommendations at least until after the May primaries and, "depending upon the number of runoffs," possibly later.

Gov. Mark White pushed unsuccessfully for a 24-percent pay raise for teachers during the regular legislative session that ended in June. White said last week he thought that December or January would be a good time for a special session on education issues.

Perot has declined to specify a timetable for his committee's work. However, he said that "we (the committee) won't be the holdup.

"But the real issue here is, politically, when is the best time to produce it, when it will stand the best chance of getting full consideration and attention from the Legislature," Perot said.

White said Wednesday that "until the members of the Legislature are committed to change, it makes absolutely no sense to go into a special session.

"I've been ready since January 18" when the Legislature convened to approve education finance legislation, White said.

Perot said that the committee's recommendations "will have to be taken through the Legislature like eggs in a basket."

The businessman said he will approach the subject of improving Texas schools in the same way that he organized Texans' War on Drugs, a statewide effort on anti-drug education and legislation.

"We're going to be doing this exactly like we did the War on Drugs, but with a different tune," Perot said.

MC Department of Community Services will offer short courses

Eight short courses will be offered by the Midland College Department of Community Services beginning the week of Oct. 31. Included will be Bookkeeping II, Defensive Driving, Cake Decorating II, Typing Brush Up, Interior Decorating II, Gift Wrapping, Aerobic Dancing and Microwave Cooking III.

Bookkeeping II will meet eight Mondays from 7-10 p.m. The course covers combination journals, general and subsidiary ledgers, payroll systems and inventories and introduces automated data processing. Fee is $36.

Defensive Driving will meet 6:30-10:30 p.m. Monday and Tuesday. Upon successful completion of the course students may qualify for a 10 percent discount on their auto insurance for three years. Fee is $18.

Cake Decorating II will be taught from 7-9 p.m. six Mondays. The course covers intricate flowers, lily cup flowers, color flow method, garlands, roping and setting up wedding cakes. Cake Decorating I or equivalent is a prerequisite. Fee is $18.

Typing Brush Up will meet Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 5:30-7 p.m. for six weeks. Course is designed to familiarize students with electric machines, keyboards, machine parts, typing techniques and tabulation. Prior typing course is required and textbook and typing paper are needed the first class. Fee is $29.

Interior Decorating II will be six Wednesdays from 7-9 p.m. Prerequisite is Interior Decorating I. Cost is $18.

Gift Wrapping will meet three Wednesdays from 7-9 p.m. It includes techniques for decorating packages for all occasions. Fee is $12.

Aerobic Dancing I will be taught Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7-9 p.m. for six weeks. The course is directed toward increasing cardiovascular endurance, decreasing body fat, increasing stamina and improving body tone. Fee is $36.

Microwave Cooking III is an introduction to the microwave preparation of gourmet food and foods for entertaining. It will meet from 6:30-9:30 p.m. Nov. 3. Fee is $8.

For further information call 684-7851, extension 147 or 216.

MISD lunch policy changes

Beginning Monday the lunch policy of the Midland Independent School District will see another change.

In order not to raise the price of school lunches, at the beginning of the school year the district excluded desserts from meals. Desserts could be purchased separately. Next week fruit desserts only will again be included as part of the regular lunch. The price of meals will not increase at this time.

"We may have to raise the cost of meals at midterm from 95 cents to $1 at the elementary schools," Superintendent Joe Baressi told the school board Tuesday.

Junior high students will continue to have the option to purchase a la carte desserts, and elementary children will receive cakes and cookies for dessert on special occasions and holidays.

MC seminar to be offered again

A Midland College seminar on "Women and Money" was so popular it is being offered again beginning Nov. 7.

The class will meet three consecutive Mondays from 7-9 p.m. in Room 186 of the Occupational-Technical Building. There is no cost, but class size is limited so interested persons are requested to preregister by calling 684-7851, extension 243 or 264.

Gay Price, administrative assistant to the division manager of Bass Enterprises Production Co., will acquaint students with methods of money management, financial planning and avenues for investment. It is designed for women with an annual income of $15,000 to $25,000.

Historians study old ads

Hearst Feature Service

"Within the Curve of a Woman's Arm," the magazine ad states in bold letters. "A frank discussion of a subject too often avoided."

One would hardly guess that the ad, printed in a 1919 Ladies' Home Journal, is about B.O. — body odor.

"A woman's arm!" the text reads in small print. "Poets have sung of its grace; artists have painted its beauty. It should be the daintiest, sweetest thing in the world. and yet, unfortunately, it isn't, always."

Not until the eighth paragraph does the ad mention the product — a deodorant called Odorono. "To meet this need, a physician formulated Odorono — a perfectly harmless and delightful toilet water. With particular women, Odorono has become a toilet necessity which they use regularly two or three times a week."

About 200 women felt the ad was so offensive that they reportedly canceled their Journal subscriptions.

How advertising has changed. Or rather, how society has changed. That transformation, some historians believe, has been documented in advertising.

Advertising, once bypassed as scholarly material, is now being studied as evidence of social trends, says archivist John Fleckner of the Smithsonian Institution's Museum of American History in Washington, D.C.

In the past decade, more researchers have begun turning to ads to trace the growth of American consumerism, economic and business cycles and popular tastes dating back to the 18th century, he says.

From fraudulent patent medicines promoted in the 19th century to today's Calvin Klein jeans commercials, historians view advertising as a reflection of the times.

History professor Jackson Lears of the University of Missouri in Columbia says ads have become a more significant resource for those historians taking a cultural or grass-roots approach to history.

He uses ads, though, only as clues or fragments of information about society. Ads more frequently represent the values or views of advertisers, not the general public, he says.

Smithsonian historian Spencer Crew says the American History Museum has one of the largest collections of ads and business memorabilia, called the Warshaw Collection. The collection, which includes two million items, was donated by New York businessman Isadore Warshaw.

The museum also has about 100,000 ads donated by the N.W. Ayer ad agency in New York. The two collections include items from the late 1700s through the 1960s.

Crew and other museum staff are studying the possibility of an exhibit on the history of advertising.

Other major ad collections include those at J. Walter Thompson ad agency in New York and the New York Historical Society, each with about one million items.

Librarian Larry Sullivan of the New York Historical Society says American advertising can be traced to the 18th century, when there were local newspaper ads to sell land or retrieve runaway slaves. At that time, newspapers didn't allow pictures with ads, he says.

When national magazines emerged in the mid-1800s, national advertising began. But ads didn't really flood the market until after the Civil War ended in 1965 and American industry boomed.

Advertising thrived with almost reckless abandon to sell the surge of products manufactured, Sullivan says.

The most fraudulent ads were probably those for patent medicines. Cocaine, for instance, was advertised as a cure for dandruff. "If it didn't cure your dandruff, you probably didn't care," Sullivan says.

Between 1890 and 1910, advertising still contained more print than pictures and often included a "reason why" sales pitch. Advertisers spent most of their time explaining reasons why consumers should buy their products.

An Ivory soap ad from 1882, for example, had no catchy slogan. Instead, it was five paragraphs of text explaining the "fine qualities" of the soap that floats.

Then in the early 1900s, image advertising — promoting products as symbols of beauty, wealth or good health — became prevalent. By the 1930s, basic advertising themes as we know them today were already in place, historian Lears believes.

It was during this period that car ads first described the sleek, sensual characteristics of a car and essentially "equated driving a car with sexual intercourse and other pleasures," Lears says.

Celebrity endorsements became popular in the mid-1920s with the introduction of a Lux soap campaign. "Nine out of 10 screen stars care for their skin with Lux Toilet Soap," the company boasts in a series of ads stored in the J. Walter Thompson archives in New York.

Stars such as Clara Bow and Joan Crawford were featured in the ads. Star endorsements for Lux continued through 1960 with stars such as Natalie Wood and Sophia Loren.

Fear was another popular technique.

A 1930 Scott tissues ad warns: "A single contact with inferior toilet tissue may start the way for serious infection."

The ad pictured a dejected-looking man, apparently preoccupied with the hazards of toilet tissue.

Hearst Feature Service

SEATTLE — "An invention," says Robert L. Rodwell, "is just the first step; getting a patent for it is just another.

"There is the manufacturing process to work out, market research and a marketing plan to complete, and then there's the distribution system. It goes on and on."

Too many inventors, however, think the world will beat paths to their doors, he said. He knows. Rodwell is director of the year-old Innovation Assessment Center at Washington State University.

Part of the problem is the mythology surrounding great inventions.

"In too many success stories," he said, "there is a missing chapter — the one between 'Henry Ford invents Model T' and 'Henry Ford sets up assembly line.'

"When you hear only those two, it sounds easy," Rodwell said, "as if Henry just went out and invented the Model T, then mass-produced them. You can imagine the frustrations he must have had, but you hear very little about them."

Help in filling those blanks is part of the IAC's job.

Among 33 specific blanks filled in by Rodwell's computer, are legality, safety, market potential, product life cycle, service, durability, new competition, investment costs, demand trends, price, appearance and promotion.

During IAC's first year, the center received more than 600 evaluation requests. The majority, Rodwell said, came from independent inventors without business experience, and only about 50 have gone beyond the evaluation process.

If he had the chance, Rodwell would revamp America's patent process and revise its patent laws. Although innovation today is hardly declining in America, it is being stifled, he said.

Patents don't provide the kind of time protection needed to thoroughly bring a new product to market, and, once the product is patented, "Anyone can look at it."

Possible contraceptive risks listed

By The Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

A study by the University of Southern California has found that several years of use of oral contraceptives with high progestin potency carries an increased risk of breast cancer if the woman begins use before age 25.

The risk is with contraceptives whose progestin potency is 5 or higher, the researchers said. They found no increased risk from use of contraceptives with potencies below 5. The 25 commonly used oral contraceptives for which progestin potency has been calculated are listed below, arranged in descending order.

COMBINATION ORAL CONTRACEPTIVES: Ovulen, 15.0 progestin potency; Demulen, 15.0; Ovral, 15.0; Enovid 10, 10.7; Norinyl 10, 10.0; Ortho-Novum 10, 10.0; LoOvral, 9.0; Enovid 5, 5.4; Norlestrin 2.5, 5.0; Loestrin 1.5/30, 3.0; Zorane 1.5/30, 3.0; Enovid E, 2.7; Norinyl 2, 2.0; Ortho-Novum 2, 2.0; Norlestrin 1, 2.0; Loestrin 1/20, 2.0; Zorane 1/20, 2.0; Norinyl 1/80, 1.0; Ortho-Novum 1/80, 1.0; Noriday-1, 1.0; Ortho-Novum 1/50, 1.0; Brevicon, 0.5; Modicon, 0.5.

OTHERS: Norquens, 2.0; Ortho-Novum SQ, 2.0; Micronor, 0.35.

DEAR ABBY

Girl should pay her own way

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I want to congratulate the 16-year-old Iowa girl who didn't think it was fair for the fellow to always treat the girl. She said she had a job and could pay her own way, but her friends and parents thought she was crazy — the boy should always pay.

She is not "crazy" — she is smart. I am a senior citizen and have always felt that boys obligated girls by paying their way, then they expected sexual favors in return. (Maybe not all, but about 98 percent did.)

I say the girl should pay her own way, and if the boy makes romantic overtures, she is free to do what she wants, depending on the way she feels about him, because she won't owe him anything. — WISCONSIN GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: Another Wisconsinite shares your view:

DEAR ABBY: When I first started to date about 15 years ago, I was one of those rare girls who insisted on paying for myself. I got some strange looks, but that's the only way I felt comfortable.

My reason was twofold. First, I felt if a man treated me, I would owe him something, and that something could mean sex. Second, I believe male-female relationships should be mutual.

One of the few men I dated told me he appreciated my independent attitude. We're married now, and still share all the expenses. — IT'S WORKING IN EDGERTON, WIS.

DEAR ABBY: My mother was terminally ill, so we decided to keep her home in familiar surroundings instead of having her live out her last months in a hospital.

This decision necessitated constant care, night and day, changing bed linen several times a day, and trying to make Mother as comfortable as possible. This was exhausting enough, but worse yet were friends, neighbors and relatives who felt the need to visit from 7:30 a.m. until 11 p.m.

I had to stop whatever I was doing to prepare coffee for these visitors, make sure they didn't stay too long and answer the telephone, which rang at least 50 times a day — people wanting to know how Mother was.

My husband finally put a "NO VISITORS" sign on our front door, which did no good because everyone thought the sign didn't apply to him.

Abby, please ask your readers to be more considerate of dying relatives and their families, and not drop in at all hours expecting conversation and coffee. — EXHAUSTED IN NEW YORK

DEAR EXHAUSTED: The "inconsiderate" visitors who need to heed this message will think it doesn't apply to them, so it's up to those caring for the very sick person to meet the visitors at the door with a firm but gentle, "I'm sorry, but this is not a good time to visit." And put a muffler on your telephone.

CONFIDENTIAL TO AMBITIOUS IN CONNECTICUT: There are two ways to get money: Marry it or earn it. Actually, there is only ONE way, because if you marry it, you will earn it. — "ALEXANDER PO PO"

(Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple, "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (37 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

AT WIT'S END

Battle against bugs never ends

By ERMA BOMBECK

Some women dedicate their lives to African violets. Others are fascinated by Russian history. Me? I'm an authority on roaches, ants, mice, crickets and mosquitoes.

My eyes can pick up a shadow running across a baseboard during an eclipse. I can pick a mosquito off a ceiling with a rolled-up copy of Good Housekeeping, using the bed as a trampoline. I can tell when a cricket is chafed just by the way his back legs are rubbing together.

Sometimes I wish I had the Disney-type mentality toward animals that my husband has. To him, every mouse is Mickey, every cricket is Jiminy, every squirrel is Rocky, and why can't we all live in the forest together in harmony?

For openers, anything in fur that is not on a hanger terrifies me. If I wanted the animals to live in the house with me, I'd give them their own key.

I'm always looking for a miracle. Some humane way of ridding the house of these pests without my having to track them down, with specially trained guard dogs, bait traps or poisons that reduce them to dust.

I visited a hardware store a few weeks back and the salesman was ecstatic. He showed me one of those sonic boxes that you just plug into the wall and voila, every insect in the house goes running into the streets holding its ears.

I was suspicious.

"What's it sound like?"

"We don't know," he said. "Only the insects hear it."

"How do we know they hear it?"

"You never see them again."

"Do dogs hear it?"

"No, only the insects you want to get rid of."

"Can they hear it under the sink when the cupboard doors are closed?"

"Yes."

"Does it make them crazy? Destroy their hearing? Maybe we're creating a new threat . . . insects and rodents with impaired hearing."

"No," he persisted.

"Where do they go when they run out of the house?" I asked.

"Probably next door."

"And then she buys these sonic things?"

"And they move on," he said.

"Where do they eventually wind up?"

"Someplace where they have no electricity," he snapped. "Maybe the ocean."

I bought eight of them at $39.95 each.

I want to believe, but yesterday I thought I saw two crickets dancing in time to something.

Study: Family still popular

WASHINGTON (AP) — The high divorce rate doesn't necessarily signal disenchantment with the traditional family, researchers say. Rather, husbands and wives might simply be less tolerant of problems and more willing to accept divorce as a solution.

The traditional family is alive and well in America, a new report says, despite increasing divorces, falling birth rates, more working wives and the growing number of singles who live together.

"Family relationships continue to play a vital role in today's world and are likely to do so in the future," Arland Thornton and Deborah Freeland of the University of Michigan conclude in a report.

While 29 percent of couples married in 1952 were divorced before their 25th wedding anniversary, couples married in 1967 reached that divorce percentage after only 10 years.

Volunteers do variety of jobs

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) —The Little Rock Zoo wants adult volunteers for the zoo's Education Department and to guide tours of the zoo. It wants teen-agers to do a lot of the other jobs, like shoveling manure.

KLRE-FM, owned by the Little Rock School District, seeks volunteers for clerical work, often in connection with fund-raising work — KLRE gets operating funds from donations, not just from taxes.

Gov. Bill Clinton says volunteers are needed to help solve medical problems in rural areas.

The quest for volunteers doesn't stop at public agencies.

St. Vincent Infirmary, Little Rock, "needs volunteers in the following areas: Surgery Waiting Room, Intensive Care Waiting Room, Admitting Area, Best Cellar Thrift Shop and the Gift Shop."

Doctors' Hospital, Little Rock, "needs a volunteer to work part-time as the gift shop manager."

Inner-City Children's Ministry in Winfield United Methodist Church "needs volunteer help from 8 a.m.-12:30 p.m. Monday-Friday."

Why volunteers? "We don't have enough money to hire paid help," said Avis Moore of KLRE. "We put as much of the budget as we can into the programming the public has told us it wants."

Who volunteers? All kinds of people — retired men and women who want to get out of the house or into something interesting or useful; night-duty Air Force personnel looking for worthwhile daytime tasks; housewives who don't need income but want to help a school or church or hospital or something; teen-agers looking for interesting jobs.

KABF-FM, a public radio station that is being developed, has the aid of a volunteer electrician and a volunteer amateur carpenter in the remodeling of facilities that will be the KABF studio, said the station's general manager Scott Holladay.

Old people help, too. Bobbie Forbush, a secretary at the zoo, said one guide is 86-year-old Jessie Sniegocki.

Clinton gave 12 Arkansas communities volunteer awards this year.

First graders learn second language

FERNDALE, Mich. (AP) — The first-grade classroom looks like any other with its knee-high desks, dusty chalkboards and bright wall posters. But to all but a few of the nation's schools, the conversation inside is totally foreign.

"Guten tag, kinder," Lynn Haire greets students at Ferndale's Warren G. Harding Elementary School.

"Guten tag, Frau Haire," the 22 youngsters gathered around her respond in unison.

For the next 20 minutes, she leads class discussion, songs and games — all in German.

Mrs. Haire is among seven teachers in the suburban Detroit district who visit elementary schools, conducting daily classes in German, Spanish and French for kindergarten through third-grade students.

The language varies according to the building, but the method is constant.

"We always speak the language in front of the students," Mrs. Haire said during a recent visit to the school. "In fact, they're a little shocked when they finally hear you speak English."

"We're trying to present this in much the same way children learn a language at home — by being absorbed in it," added French teacher Annick Brown. "At first, they tend to giggle a lot and find it amusing. But after about the third day, they understand what it's about and start answering."

"Our belief is that, if you start young enough, everyone can learn," explained Glen Brackenbury, deputy superintendent of instruction in the 4,700-student district.

The program is mandatory for kindergarten through second-graders and through third grade at classroom buildings where it began as a 1980 experiment.

Foreign language programs suffered for a decade from a lack of money and, often, a lack of interest, Michigan State University language professor George Mansour said.

"I'm quite optimistic about what is going to happen in the future," Mansour said. "It bodes well that 10,000-12,000 fourth-, fifth- and sixth-graders are studying Latin in Philadelphia, and Chicago has six foreign language academies for elementary students."

He added that foreign language enrollment in high schools and colleges has risen steadily for three or four years, while more schools are hiring foreign language teachers.

Winter hurts batteries

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. (AP) — Winter weather reduces battery efficiency, warned the Automotive Information Council here, which suggests that having a battery checked before cold weather sets in could save a time-consuming and expensive road service call.

It may be time to shop for a replacement if your present battery is more than four years old and showing signs of weakness, such as an engine that cranks slowly or dimming headlights, advised the AIC.

French author Cocteau can still shock

ENTERTAINMENT

PARIS (AP) — It's been 20 years since the death of Jean Cocteau, the author of "Les Enfants Terribles" and one of France's boldest and brightest artists.

But the man who drew pictures of naked sailors and decorated churches with equal ease still stirs scandal, and is currently the subject of unprecedented attention and lavish praise.

For the first time since Cocteau wrote "Le Livre Blanc" in 1928 — the risque, but unsigned autobiographical account of his sexual adventures with sailors and servants — it is being published with its original illustrations. It contains 43 erotic drawings the public has never seen.

Cocteau did not sign the work because he did not want to upset his mother. But 31 handwritten copies of his salacious confessions circulated freely among Left Bank intellectuals. The book, which was published in English in 1957, became the bible for generations of homosexuals.

While critics say the text is unlikely to raise eyebrows today, they say the drawings, even by modern standards, probably will.

The anniversary of Cocteau's death was inaugurated with the publication of the first volume of his diaries, 468 pages of irreverent musings on such notables as Pablo Picasso, Marcel Proust, Charlie Chaplin and Coco Chanel.

The reviews have been favorable and Cocteau is back in the artistic limelight he enjoyed for more than a half century.

Many critics say "Le Passe Defini" ("The Definite Past"), published by Gallimard this month, will guarantee his literary immortality.

"If there were ever any doubts about Cocteau's grandeur, this diary should lay them to rest," wrote Jean Chalon in the daily Figaro. "This Cocteau is profound, classic, prophetic and brutally honest, even when it comes to himself."

French radio and television have programmed dozens of hours on the man who made movies, wrote novels, staged ballets, decorated public buildings and handcrafted ceramics with equal verve and panache.

The French public is being urged to see countless special performances of his plays. The films, including "Beauty and the Beast" and "Les Enfants Terribles," that once sent shock waves through the movie industry are being shown on television.

Bookstore windows are crammed with the fancy reissues of his writings brought out to coincide with the anniversary festivities.

Countless newspaper and magazine articles and scholarly reviews show Cocteau, who once was dismissed as a superficial dilettante, as the uncontested "artistic workhorse of the century."

French literary critics have called Cocteau, "a veritable phenonemon, a prodigious draught of fresh air that blew across the 20th century." Some have even compared him to the phoenix — the mythical bird who dies, only to be reborn out of his own ashes.

Cocteau was a pale, thin-lipped aristocrat who brought elegance and amusement into the fashionable literary salons he frequented with his friend, Marcel Proust.

But in the diary he wrote in 1951-52, Cocteau is hard on Proust, the author of "Remembrance of Things Past."

"The petit Marcel has no heart. He forgets the people he loves in five minutes," wrote Cocteau, who was a notorious opium addict prone to fits of depression and homosexual jealousy.

"I have just re-read 'Sodom and Gomorrha'...It is unreadable — a mess of poorly written sentences with parentheses that leave the text dangling."

Name doesn't bother son

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — David Niven Jr. says he has never been bothered by being named after his famous father because he never wanted to be an actor.

"As it was, there were more pluses than minuses," he said. "People always return my calls and it was great for getting good tables in restaurants."

Sometimes he drops the "Junior." Once, when he was a teen-ager, he and Winston Churchill Jr. met two pretty French girls. He introduced himself as David Niven and his friend as Winston Churchill. The two young women didn't believe them.

'Cole' still swinging at MCT's Theatre One

"Cole" continues in Theatre One at Theatre Midland, 2000 W. Wadley Ave.

This musical revue brings to life many of Cole Porter's most famous numbers, such as, "Why Can't You Behave?" "Another Openin," "Brush Up Your Shakespeare," "Anything Goes," "I Get a Kick Out of You," "When Love Beckoned on 52nd Street," "Come on In," "I Love Paris," "Night and Day," "Miss Otis Regrets," "Most Gentlemen Don't Like Love" and "It's Delovely."

MCT's cast includes Jackie Ruiz, Daphne Pemberton, D.A. Plumlee, Victoria Smesny, Dee Ann Jones, Mark Wilkins, Rick Wannell, Tim Ryan and Oza Whitten. Dancers include Billy Cook, Nancy Cook and Peggy Crush.

The production is directed by Michael Spicer. Musical direction is by Shirley Hansen. Choreographer is Cherry Jones.

Actress no longer disdains television

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Diana Muldaur recalls that when she was a young actress in New York theater she was asked to join the Academy of Television Arts & Sciences.

"I remember laughing and throwing it away," she said. "I wouldn't even do Broadway then. I was only going to do Shakespeare and the classics. That shows how much my attitudes have changed."

To say the least. Miss Muldaur has just taken office as president of the organization that annually produces the Emmy Awards.

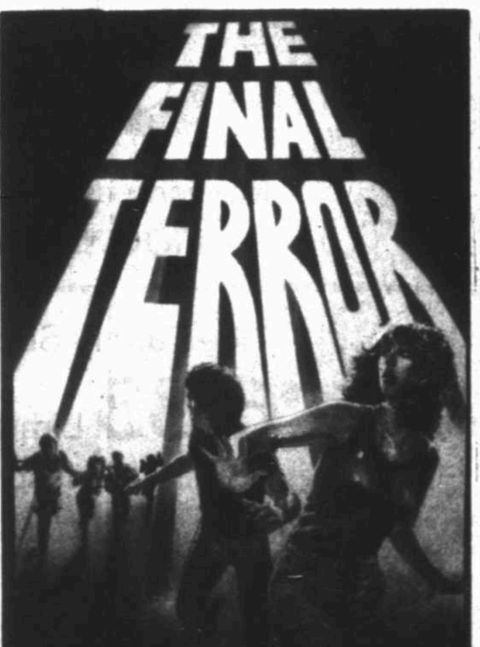

The unpaid job will require nearly all of her time for the next two years, but she doesn't mind. "I never wanted to be an actress. I always wanted to have a full view of the industry. I've always wanted to see how it worked."

In the past Miss Muldaur has starred in such TV series as "Born Free," "The Survivors," "McCloud" and "Hizzoner."

The academy, which has 3,800 members, is best known to the general public for its Emmys. But it also publishes a magazine, runs an intern program for college students and operates an archive at the University of California at Los Angeles to preserve old television programs and commercials.

Playwright Beth Henley, rocking on her porch swing in Hollywood, won the Pulitzer Prize when she was not quite 28 years old. Since then she has had to deal with the sharply critical reviews of her second play. "I'm glad I had the success first," she says.

Playwright goes from top to bottom

By SYLVIE DRAKE
The Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

HOLLYWOOD — When Beth Henley's "The Wake of Jamie Foster" opened on Broadway last fall, the opening-night party turned into a real wake once the negative reviews rolled in. For Henley, whose only other Broadway experience, the previous year, had been the large success of "Crimes of the Heart," a play that won her the Pulitzer Prize when she was not quite 28 years old, the shock of this failure was traumatic.

Unable to control her disappointment, Henley rushed outside, sat in the gutter and broke into tears. Her agent, Gil Parker, tried to comfort her. Actress Belita Moreno, a longtime friend and a member of the cast, followed, reminding Henley that, before "The Wake" went to Broadway, they had agreed that they were not going to worry about its success or failure. They were doing it for the experience, for the fun, for the art.

"Yes," Henley replied between sobs, "but we lied."

It's the kind of story that sounds apocryphal, but Henley knows it was too true.

"Gil was down there in his Brooks Brothers suit and I was down there in my new dress," she recalled with a wince. "I got both ends of it. I went from the top of the heap one year to the bottom the next. I'm glad I had the success first. I'm startin' to feel better, but I was in shock after it happened. I didn't realize how lucky I was the first time.

"I mean, I loved the production of 'The Wake.' I went to the theater every night. It was the best experience I've ever had, working on any play. I loved the cast. I loved Ulu (Grosbard, the director). I was completely surprised (by the reviews), which was good because I had no sense of dread. It's like suddenly you're hit by a meteorite or something."

Henley, spoke slowly in a marked Southern drawl, her bashfulness sometimes getting in the way of the words. We met in her office — a pleasant, old-fashion apartment on the second floor of one of those 1930s pink stucco mock haciendas on the outskirts of Beverly Hills. In this unpretentious hideaway, she burrows and writes.

Slender and brown-eyed ("I have all the way to 40 before I'm a failure in my 30s"), Henley, 30, whose "Crimes of the Heart" is playing in Los Angeles, spoke of her childhood in Jackson, Miss. Her father was a lawyer who had a career in state politics. Her mother was active in the Jackson Community Theater. Her three sisters — one older, two younger — "don't recognize themselves" as the siblings in "Crimes," a play about three sisters reunited in the kitchen of their family home when the youngest is accused of shooting her husband.

"My older sister is not a spinster," she said. "My younger sister has a happy marriage and didn't shoot her husband. 'Crimes' is kind of based on how we all get along, how we have fun together, fight about little things and break apart. My plays are a great chance for us to see each other. They come up to New York. They think I'm going to have a play there every year!"

It was, all things considered, an uneventful childhood.

"We did the usual stuff," she said. "I wrote a play in sixth grade about a girl running off to live with beatniks. I wanted to stage it in the garage, with boys. I could hardly talk to boys, let alone direct them. It was horrible."

Things went from bad to worse. By junior high and high school, Henley had grown shy and withdrawn. Then her parents separated, which made her retreat even more:

"I was bored and not fitting in, wanting something and not knowing what, especially back in Mississippi where everyone was going to pep rallies and I was thinking, 'Where am I?' Then I went to SMU as an acting major, and I was in ecstasy. I was so happy to find something I cared about doing instead of staring at the walls."

After college and a year of knocking about Dallas despairing of getting a good job, then another year in a graduate program she hated at the University of Illinois, Henley came to Los Angeles in 1976, where she later wrote "Crimes of the Heart."

It was almost a first effort. After her sixth-grade fiasco, Henley had only written a one-act at SMU called "Am I Blue," then a musical during her floating year in Dallas.

"A friend of mine, Mark Hardwick — he's the piano-player in 'Pump Boys and Dinettes' — wrote the music," she reminisced. "Stephen Tobolowsky (another friend) wrote the lyrics and I wrote the book. The university gave us $600 and let us do it for the students.

"I felt like I was in New York City or somethin'. There I was, watchin' them practice the tap-dancin' and playin' the music. I've reread the book, and I hate it now. Mark hates the music. So we'll never get it together, but I loved watching him play the piano. It was one of the best times of my life."

It was another Dallas friend, playwright Frederick Bailey, who was responsible for launching "Crimes of the Heart." Bailey's "The Bridgehead" had been a winning play at the Actors' Theatre of Louisville's annual festival of new plays. After reading "Crimes" in the summer of '78, he sent it to Louisville artistic director Jon Jory. It was selected a winner and staged in the 1979 festival.

Three other regional productions followed. Interest was manifested by New York producers, but it was not until the production at the Manhattan Theatre Club and Henley's subsequent winning of the 1981 Pulitzer that "Crimes" received its final Broadway validation, opening at the Golden that fall.

Museum shows how to 'Get it On'

A "Get it On From Print to Broadcast" seminar is being held Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to 3:15 p.m. at the Marian Blakemore Planetarium, Indiana Avenue at K Street. The one-day workshop is being presented by the Permian Basin Museums Institute.

Registration will be from 9:30 to 10 a.m. Speakers and their topics include:

— 10 to 10:30 a.m. "New Emphasis in Funding Regulations," Amanda Stover, executive director of Texas Association of Museums;

— 10:30 to 11:30 a.m. "How to Use Volunteers for Programs and Public Relations," Enid Holm, executive director of Texas Non-Profit Theatres;

— 1 to 2 p.m. "How to Develop a Professional Marketing Campaign," Alice Berthelsen, Permian Basin editor of Towns West Magazine;

— 2 to 2:45 p.m. "Tuning the Mystery Out of Television and Radio Promotion," Linda Bond, founder of The Producers, a promotions company;

— 2:45 to 3:15 p.m. "How to Get it on Regardless of Budget," Anne Sherburn, development and public relations officer at the Museum of the Southwest.

The $5 registration fee is payable at the door. This fee covers the cost of a workbook written by Ms. Berthelsen on marketing strategies.

The workshop is sponsored by the Museum of the Southwest and the Texas Historical Commission.

Vic Tayback returns to slinging hash

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The "Alice" marquee at the entrance to the Burbank Studios said, "Welcome Back, Vic," and the gate was decorated with balloons.

Vic Tayback has returned to his role as the owner of Mel's Diner on CBS' "Alice" after recovering from bypass surgery.

Tayback, who missed two shows, was welcomed back by the cast and crew for the episode currently in production.

He underwent bypass surgery at St. Joseph's Medical Center in Burbank on Sept. 3.

Six shows were taped at Warner Bros. Television for the series' eighth season prior to taking a summer recess. The return to production was delayed a month because of his illness. His character's absence was explained on the series by a trip to Las Vegas on one show and a fishing trip on the other.

Air Force band to give concert at Lee High

The United States Air Force Band of the West will perform a free concert Nov. 2 at 7:30 p.m. at Lee High School Auditorium.

This band, the Headquarters Band of the Air Training Command, is stationed at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio.

The Band of the West has performed in concert with the Dallas and San Antonio symphony orchestras, has participated in many music festivals throughout Texas and Oklahoma and has been featured in concert at Del Rio's Fiesta de Amistad and San Antonio's Fiesta.

More than 60 musicians are currently assigned to the band of the West. Lt. Col. Nevin L. Langtry is the band's new commander and conductor.

No tickets are necessary.

Actress likes to get away from it all

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pamela Bellwood, who stars as Claudia Blaisdel on ABC's "Dynasty," likes to get away from it all — as far away as possible.

"The cruder the environment, the more I enjoy it," she said. "You can't imagine how great it is to hike through a jungle, come to a village that no one's been to before and sleep on a mud floor of a hut after the pigs have been cleared out."

Miss Bellwood, who is married to British photojournalist Nik Wheeler, is a frequent world traveler. She has been on a whale roundup in the Arctic, tracked grizzly bears in Alaska and trekked to the Masai Mara game preserve in Kenya.

"My husband says that I never go to a place where I don't say, 'God, I'd love to live here.' "

Miss Bellwood is also a photographer and writer for a French press syndicate. She has written pieces on rhino poaching in Kenya and Philippine gunboat patrols.

Lange to star in 'Country'

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Academy Award—winning actress Jessica Lange and Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright Sam Shepard star in "Country," the first movie to be filmed for the newly created Walt Disney Pictures.

They previously starred in "Frances," which brought Miss Lange an Oscar nomation as best actress. She won as best supporting actress for "Tootsie." Shepard, who won the Pulitzer Prize for drama in 1979 for "Buried Child," is currently starring in "The Right Stuff."

The movie, about a farm family's struggle for survival, also stars Wilford Brimley. It is being filmed on location in Iowa.

Butterflies a clue

Butterflies are excellent barometers of an environment's stability, says Paul Erlich, professor of biology at Stanford University. "They're the "ideal indicator of insect and plant diversity. If the butterflies are disappearing, you can be sure the ecosystem itself is in trouble."

Yoko Ono to put island up for sale

Yoko Ono

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — The race is on for the Irish isle of Dornish, which the late former Beatle John Lennon described as "one of the most peaceful places on earth."

The secluded island, which Lennon, who had a Dublin-born grandfather, bought in 1967, is among the $5 million in property, cash and drawings that Lennon's widow, Yoko Ono, is putting up for sale for the benefit of orphanages and other charities.

Dornish is a remote island two miles offshore in Clew Bay, on Ireland's Atlantic coast, consisting of about nine acres of stones and sand and 10 acres of grass. It has no buildings and is valued at about $7,500.

Auctioneer Frank Chambers said Wednesday he had already received offers for the 19-acre isle although Ms. Ono had not yet officially put the property on the market.

The widow of the slain Beatle announced Tuesday in New York that the recent violence around the world prompted her to make the donation.

Lennon, shot and killed in December 1980, had planned to build a holiday home on Dornish.

LONDON (AP) — Hollywood star Douglas Fairbanks Jr. and other actor friends of the late David Niven hope to come up with a Chistmas present of $325,000 to aid research into amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, commonly known as Lou Gehrig's disease.

Niven, who appeared in more than 90 films, fought the disease for more than a year before he died at the end of July at age 73.

The 73-year-old Fairbanks and the others launched the drive Wednesday at London's Mayfair Hotel. Niven's widow, Hjordis, also was there. So were British playwright John Mortimer and actors Sir John Mills, Deborah Kerr and Bryan Forbes.

"There is no way old Niv, wherever he is now, would be more happy for his memory to be used than in this appeal," said film star Anthony Quayle.

"If the memory of David Niven, one of MND's most famous victims, proves to be a means of substantially increasing the money available for this work, then that brave and talented man will not have died in vain," said Roy Price, director of the Motor Neuron Disease Association.

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — Actress Jennifer O'Neill, who accidentally shot herself last year at her suburban New York home, will be moving back to the area after a brief spell in California.

David Kramer, Miss O'Neill's public relations agent in Los Angeles, confirmed that the 35-year-old actress, who starred in the 1971 film "Summer of '42," is planning to buy the White Plains house she now is renting.

However, the deal on the four-bedroom English Tudor house listed for sale at $212,000 is not yet closed, according to real estate agent Nicholas Wolff.

Miss O'Neill moved to California to star in the television series "Bare Essence," which has since been canceled.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Archbishop Joseph T. McGucken, 81, who led the San Francisco archdiocese for 15 years and presided over the rebuilding of fire-damaged St. Mary's Cathedral, died Wednesday of complications from congestive heart disease after a lengthy illness. He retired in 1977 as leader of the archdiocese.

The archdiocese, which covers San Francisco, San Mateo and Marin counties, now has about 365,000 members.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tamara Shayne, a Russian-born actress of film and stage who is best remembered as the matriarch of the "Yoelson" family in "The Jolson Story" and "Jolson Sings Again," died Sunday of a heart attack at the age of 80.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

'Trace' minerals needed, but in very small amounts

Solomon

Dear Dr. Solomon: I have heard people talk about "trace" minerals, but I'm not clear about what they are. Will you explain? — Sheila, Towson, Md

Dear Sheila: A trace mineral is one that is needed by the body in very small amounts. Included in this category are such minerals as cooper, zinc, and selenium.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My mother has several small meals during the day instead of three large meals. She is 83 years old, and she says that she doesn't feel well after a large meal and becomes faint and sometimes even blacks out. Is it a good idea to have smaller meals rather than three regular meals for a person my mother's age? — Lena, Duluth, Minn.

Dear Lena: The immediate question to be resolved is why your mother becomes faint after eating, not the number of meals she should have. If one of my patients came to me with such a complaint, I would first want to discover the cause, and I suggest that this be done in your mother's case. The fact that she is 83 years of age is not an answer.

There is some evidence that blood pressure in older people tends to fall significantly after a meal, and this may be a factor. But the important thing at this point is to determine the cause of your mother's fainting.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Will you please explain this whole business about whether people who have diabetes should or should not have sugar? The more I read about it, the more confused I become. — Mr. T.L., Atlanta, Ga.

Dear Mr. L.: Before responding to your question, I want to emphasize as strongly as I can that diabetic patients should not change their diets without the approval of their physicians. Devising a proper diet is not a do-it-yourself proposition.

As for your question, it had been believed for many years that carbohydrates fell into one of two major classifications — single or complex. It was thought that simple sugars, such as glucose and fructose, were rapidly absorbed and caused a relatively large rise in blood sugar, while complex carbohydrates, such as are found in rice and potatoes, were absorbed slowly and caused smaller increases in blood sugar. Therefore, diabetic patients had been advised to avoid simple sugars and to use complex carbohydrates instead of refined sugars.

More recent studies challenged these views. For example, glucose and potatoes have been shown to produce similar blood sugar levels after a meal, while beans and fructose cause a lesser response. Moreover, the same food may produce different responses when prepared in different ways. It therefore appears that the classification into simple and complex carbohydrates can no longer be supported because of the substantial overlap of the biologic response to various foods.

For Louise, Charleston, W.Va.: The fact that a beverage is labeled low-calorie does not mean it is decaffeinated. A drink is not decaffeinated unless the label indicates that it is.

Senate in syndication war

WASHINGTON (AP) — A high-stakes battle between Hollywood and the major TV networks is spilling into the Senate thanks to an appropriations bill that would temporarily keep the networks from syndicating reruns of old programs.

The appropriations bill is designed to provide additional funds for several federal agencies. It was amended by the Senate Appropriations Committee last week, however, to prohibit the Federal Communications Commission from changing its so-called financial interest and syndication rules for the next six months.

Those rules currently bar ABC, CBS and NBC from controlling the licensing of network reruns or from receiving any profits from program syndication. Controversy erupted when the FCC tentatively decided last August to relax the rules to allow the networks to enter the syndication business.

Unless Congress acts, the agency would make its proposal final next month.

The Senate committee vote was a clear-cut victory for Hollywood, but the amendment cleared the panel by only a 16-13 margin and its future on the Senate floor was considered uncertain. Hollywood producers have been lobbying the Senate vigorously, arguing the six-month postponement is necessary if Congress is to have time to review the FCC's proposal.

Today's late model used cars are a better buy than ever before. They are built better, they get better mileage, and even the exteriors and interiors stand up far longer. Most important, of course, is the price. There's much more value for the money in today's late model used car BUT because cars are being driven for a longer time by the original owner, it's more important than ever WHERE you buy a used car. Our reputation for offering good value for the money is your best assurance. Buying your used car
