FALL RIVER, Mass., Feb. 2.—Fire tonight swept through the center of Fall River's business district, causing losses placed in early estimates at several million dollars. At 9 o'clock at least 12 large buildings had been destroyed and the flames were driving on fanned by a brisk northwest breeze. Aid had either arrived or was on the way from New Bedford and other cities.

The fire started shortly after 7 o'clock in the southeast corner of the Pocasset mills, a dismantled textile plant which was being razed. The mills are property of Louis K. Liggett of Boston. All four units of the plant were wiped out.

Fire Spread Rapidly

In rapid order the fire spread to and demolished the Mohican hotel, with several stores in the same building, the Rialto theatre, the Boys' club, the old building of the Fall River Herald-News, the building of the French daily newspaper, L'Independant, the Vermont block, the Kresge building and the Granite block. Johnston Refuses To Order Session

Senators Asked Probe In Alleged Irregularities of Recent Purported Impeachment Court.

(By the Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 2.—Governor Henry S. Johnston late today declined to call a special session of the state senate to investigate rumors of irregularity in connection with the sudden adjournment in December of senators sitting as a purported court of impeachment. The governor expressed the opinion that a grand jury inquiry was the proper procedure.

The governor was urged by members of the senate to call the session.

A majority of the sixteen senators at the conference called to discuss means of obtaining an investigation, agreed that it should be made by special session.

The senate court in December dismissed impeachment charges voted against Governor Johnston, Chief Justice Fred P. Branson of the state supreme court and Harry D. Cordell, president of the state board of agriculture by members of the house of representatives, holding that the house had no authority to call itself into special session.

PANHANDLE CRUDE

Oil From Plains Subject Of Probe

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2. (AP).—Investigation of prices of Texas Panhandle petroleum by the federal trade commission has revealed that a reduction of prices in crude late in 1926 was largely the result of difficulties in handling and expense of marketing because of peculiar physical properties in the oil.

In a report prepared for submission to congress the commission said that at the time these prices declined there was a strong belief among Panhandle producers that they were being discriminated against by purchasing companies.

Postoffice Site Voted by Lubbock City Commission

Lots West of City Hall Placed at Disposal of Government for Building New Federal Structure.

First steps toward insuring speedy action by Washington authorities on Lubbock's long-delayed bid for a new postoffice and federal building were taken by the city commission yesterday when it was unanimously voted to offer a site for the proposed structure.

The ten municipally-owned lots facing west on Avenue J, between Ninth and Tenth streets, were offered to the postoffice department as a probable location. The lots lie back of the city hall.

Donation of the site by the city commission climaxes a movement started some weeks ago by Postmaster John L. Vaughn, Chamber of Commerce officials and other leading citizens who sought, by the offer of a site, to speed action on Lubbock's building bid.

Members of the Chamber of Commerce federal building site committee and about 25 leading business men were present at the city commission meeting and heartily endorsed the offer.

Taking Initiative.

Mayor Parrish made it plain that the commission was not recommending any particular site for the postoffice but merely wished to take the initiative in the matter. Any other gifts of locations will be welcomed, said Mr. Parrish.

Allotments will be made in July

The report, which probably will be taken up by the committee Saturday, recommends the following

Four Children Scream In Adjacent Room As Father and Mother Are Shot To Death.

(By Associated Press)

DALLAS, Feb. 2.—Mrylie J. Nelson, 33, and Mrs. Pearl Nelson, 30, dirvorced earlier in the week, were shot and killed at the Nelson home in South Cliff Heights, a suburb, at 3 p. m. today as four of their five small children screamed in terror in an adjacent room.

Nelson came to the house Thursday afternoon to visit his former wife and called her and the children to a rear room for a conversation, Mrs. Charles F. Nelson, who was visiting her sister-in-law at the time of the killing, told officers. He then told the children to leave the room, she said.

A few moments later three shots were heard and Mrs. M. J. Nelson ran screaming to the yard, where she collapsed. Immediately after she ran from the room, two other shots were heard. Mrs. Nelson died immediately, physicians at the emergency hospital said. Nelson was struck by two bullets, one causing a scalp wound and the other entering the right temple.

Representatives of the district attorney's office and sheriff's office were investigating Thursday night.

The five children who survive the couple are Pearl Frances, 11; Jimmie Lee, 9; Mrylie Nona, 6; Julia Elizabeth, 4; and Margaret, 2. The eldest girl was at school when her parents were killed. When neighbors reached the scene the four others were about the body of their mother sobbing. Mrs. Charles Nelson then took them to the home of a neighbor.

Twenty-Nine Locomotives Badly Damaged When Fire Razes Shops of Baltimore and Ohio Road.

(By Associated Press)

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Feb. 2.—A roundhouse in which 29 locomotives were standing, and the adjoining machine shops of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad were destroyed by fire here today with a loss estimated at more than $4,000,000. All of the locomotives were badly damaged and it was said that the exact loss could not be determined until they were examined.

The locomotives late today were lying amid the smouldering ruins, several with whistles blowing as fallen timbers lay across the whistle cords. While there was steam in a number of the boilers, none of the engines were removed as the roundhouse was swept by the flames.

"The fire was caused by defective wiring in a heating plant." A report from the division superintendent's office said. It started in a room from which heated air was driven by a fan to all parts of the big roundhouse. Driven through the heating pipes by the fan, the statement said, the flames broke out at several points simultaneously. They were discovered shortly before 2 o'clock this afternoon and gained such headway workmen were unable to remove any of the equipment.

Statement Given Out by Women of State Federation

Is Record of Activities Of States and General Clubs Concerning Ousting of Mrs. J. U. Fields.

Mrs. Meade F. Griffin, state federation press chairman, has sent a statement to the Avalanche-Journal for publication regarding the action of the General Federation of Women's clubs, which recently asked the resignation of Mrs. J. U. Fields, of Haskell, Texas, biennial chairman.

This statement was made by Mrs. R. F Lindsey of Mount Pleasant, past parliamentarian of the Texas Federation of Women's clubs, and is being sent to papers by Mrs. Griffin. Mrs. Lindsey concludes a record of actions with the admonition that "informed club women should concede that the General Federation of Women's clubs must transact its own business for its own reasons in its own way."

The statement is a record, telling of the receipt of telegrams in Texas asking for Mrs. Fields' resignation, the protestations of Texas club women with subsequent declaration of a vacancy in the office, made by the General Federation, and followed by the appointment of Mrs. Henry Drought of San Antonio as general biennial chairman for the state of Texas.

No reason for asking this resignation is cited in the statement than "overlapping expenses, overlapping of work which hindered the progress of biennial plans and interfered with the collection of the biennial fund."

Beauty! How and Why

THE COMPOSITION OF DENTIFRICES

Now that we have looked into our mouths and found how nature has colored the teeth in varying tints and shades of pearl to match our varying complexions, we shall proceed to the consideration of ways and means to preserve these jewels in all their lustrous beauty.

The dentifrices used at present are of three kinds, pastes, powders and liquids. All forms are on the market in infinite variety.

Chalk, pumice stone, cuttlefish bone, magnesium carbonate and white castile soap are the cleansing and polishing ingredients usually selected for tooth powders. Not all appear in any one powder. To whatever cleansers have been chosen, aromatic oils, such as peppermint or wintergreen, or a fragrant powder, such as orris root, are added for flavoring. The ingredients are then thoroughly mixed.

By the addition of glycerine, honey or simple syrup to a tooth powder tooth paste is made. In addition, most pastes contain powdered soap.

Liquid dentifrices vary in formula, as do the others, but almost all contain soap, glycerine, alcohol and fragrant antiseptic oils.

—THE— WOMAN'S DAY

By Allene Sumner

"Thank goodness, my boy didn't marry one of these flappers!" a mother said to me not long ago. I met the new daughter-in-law a few days later. She rolled her nude hose, her hair was a boyish bob. She rouged and lipsticked and wisecracked and black-bottomed and played poker. But she also had furnished an apartment beautifully, baked and cooked divinely and ran her house by clockwork. Still, it made me wonder what a flapper was. Time and again I have had this experience. Someone declaiming proudly that their daughter-in-law or their daughter or their boy's intended was no flapper, only to find her wearing all the traditional earmarks. Come now, it's an old subject—but just what is a flapper? Is she always the girl next door or the one across the street?

NELLIE'S DRESS

Poor Governor Nellie Ross! Have you heard her tell her pitiful story of the time she was stepping into a cab bound for the White House where she had an appointment with the president, only to realize that she had put her dress on wrong side out or hindside fore or some such catastrophe? Did she go back inside and change it while the waiter ticked? She did not. An appointment with the president may waver not a jot nor tittle, unless the president does the wavering. She met the president with a hindside-fore or wrong side out dress on. Wonder if the president ever noticed. What will you wager?

HIGH HEELS

Women wear such sensible clothing nowdays, they say! But Cleveland, O., estimates that high heels cost about $50,000 a year, or that more than one-half of its personal damage cases result from heel accidents.

Yes, of course they're foolish, but here's hoping that we never reach a sensible day in our civilization when nobody wears 'em. If there's anything prettier than a nice leg in some chiffony stocking inside a lilting high-heeled shoe, I don't know what it is.

MAN VS. WOMAN

The old argument of whether or not women are crueler to women and men to men received considerable impetus at the time of the Ruth Snyder-Judd Gray executions. It seemed agreed that men sympathized more for Ruth than women, and women more for Judd.

But I wonder. It seems to me that we hear considerable "knocking" of women by men—not only considerable, but more than from man to man or woman to woman. In fact, I am changing my insurance company because my agent regaled me the other day with a vicious knocking of a woman in his company.

George Washington

Since this is the month when we pay respect to this great an — the Father of his Country — the month of his birthday, we think it appropriate to publish his picture.

Reflecting on this Great man recalls the story of an incident in his life which told of his athletic ability, having tossed a silver dollar across the Deleware.

That was an athletic feat alright—but what became of that dollar?

Now—we're getting in this story!

You might think because we are new, comparatively small, and absolutely independent, that we can not compete on grocery prices! We want that idea thrown plum across the canyon. If you don't you will throw dollars away. We have little rent, pay no rake-off to foreign corporations. Have very little overhead — never used to making money fast—therefore satisfied with making a little—these are reasons why every day in the week is Ben Franklin Day at this store.

Our location is just north of the Post Office on Avenue H. Same block. More people are calling me "George" now than ever before!

Tech Makes It Four Straight, Defeating McMurry Again

Walker Comes To Fore Taking Lead In Tech Scoring

Jennings Forced Out Of Game Due to Excessive Personal Fouls; Play A. C. C. Tonight.

(Special To The Avalanche)

ABILENE, Feb. 2.—Texas Tech scored its fourth consecutive victory over Abilene college teams tonight by defeating the McMurry college Indians 24 to 20.

Ransome Walker, who has seen little service in the local games to date kept the Matadors in front the first half with four field goals the period ending 9 to 8 in favor of the visitors. Then all hands for Tech turned out to help the offensive in the final chapter, the Matadors holding the lead comfortably except in the latter stages.

Al Jennings and Clyde Park ran together twice for double fouls and that coupled with two more penalties on the Tech captain put him out of the game with an excess number of personals long before the first half was up.

Peltzer, German Runner, Wins In American Debut

Sprints Away From American Rivals In Feature Event of New York; Canada-U. S. Divide.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—Making his American indoor debut, Dr. Otto Peltzer, German champion, scored a sensational victory over nine American rivals in a 1,000-yard race that featured the Millrose track and field carnival.

Yielding at the last minute to demands of American athletic authorities that he enter open competition instead of athletics a special event, Dr. Peltzer demonstrated his prowess on unfamiliar ground by outracing the Illinois A. C. veteran Ray Dodge, in a thrilling nip and tuck battle over the last three laps.

Caught in a jam at the start, after the gun was fired by Mayor Jimmy Walker, the slim blonde German threaded his way out of the pack, took the lead after three laps had been covered and then fought it out with Dodge for the last half of the race. The lead shifted back and forth as the two rivals Teuton and American, battled it out, but Peltzer had more stuff in reserve and won by six yards.

A crowd of more than 12,000 spectators, on their feet yelling from start to finish, gave Dr. Peltzer a terrific ovation for his gameness as well as ability in triumphing under the adverse circumstances over so large a field. The crowd stood with bared heads as the band played the German national anthem after the race.

Dr. Peltzer was timed in 2 minutes, 18 3-5 seconds, close to six seconds behind the world's indoor record held by Lloyd Hahn, but under the racing conditions it was considered a brilliant performance

CANADA SHARES WITH U. S. STARS

NEW YORK, Feb. 2—Canada shares honors with the United States in the opening sprint features of the Millrose track and field carnival tonight, bringing together an international galaxy of more than 300 athletes.

Two flying Canadian girls equalled the American indoor women's record for the 50-yard dash when Kay Flannigan and Myrtle Cook won the two trial heats in the same time, 6 2-5 seconds. The mark was set in 1924 by Marion McCartin and Eleanor Egg, both of Paterson, N. J.

Robert Green-Wade, who made a trip of over 2,000 miles from Silver City, New Mexico, for the meet was shut out of the special sprint series when he finished fourth and last to Karl Wildermuth, Georgetown flash in a 60-yard heat. Fred Alderman, Michigan state star, shared in the same fate when he was nosed out for second place in the same heat by Don Charles of Colgate.

Al Miller, 200-pound former Harvard ace, won the 40-yard dash with Frank Hussey of the New York A. C. second, qualifying for the final test at 50-yards.

The crack New York university two-mile relay team, anchored by the negro star, Phil Edwards, conquered Iowa state and Penn state in a three-cornered race.

The classic Millrose 600-yard race went to George Leness, lanky New York A. C. star, who won by a yard from Oliver Proundlock, Newark, A. C., in a thrilling finish.

Texas Open Will Be Started Today

Rain Causes One Day Delay In Starting of Golf Tilt At San Antonio; Galaxy of Stars On Hand.

(By Associated Press)

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 2.—Events in the Texas open golf tournament will start tomorrow morning and will be played on schedule rain or shine, the tournament committee announced tonight after rain had forced postponement of the opening of the tournament until tomorrow.

The tournament was postponed today after about half of the teams had gotten away in the amateur pro best ball team event. A heavy rain covered many of the greens with water and the committee decided to postpone the contest. Rain fell all day and forecasts for tomorrow said that rain would fall most of the day. The amateur pro event is to be held tomorrow under the new schedule and the medal play for the open championship will start Saturday morning, the field playing 18 holes Saturday, 18 holes Sunday and 36 holes Monday.

33 Nations Enter Competition For Tennis Supremacy

Official Draw In Davis Cup Play To Be Made Friday In Paris; Indications For Brilliant Array.

(By Associated Press)

PARIS, Feb. 2.—With a record-breaking list of 33 nations contending for the right to challenge France's tennis supremacy, the official draw for the 1928 Davis Cup tournament tomorrow will inaugurate what observers expect to be one of the most brilliant campaigns in court history. The official dignitaries taking part in the ceremony of the draw for the European and American Zone eliminations will be headed by President Gaston Doumergue.

This year's competition has drawn the entries of every major tennis-playing nation in the world with France, the first nation to break the Anglo-Saxon hold on the famous trophy, standing out to await the survivor of the preliminary play. Australia, after an absence of two years, is back in the tournament, while the continents of North and South America, Asia, Africa, and Europe all contribute to the universal representation.

Italy, rather than the United States, is regarded as the chief threat by France's non-playing Davis Cup captain, M. Pierre Gillou, who directed the strategy that brought victory to the French and America last September. M. Gillou bases his rating on 1927 performances in which France was harder pressed to defeat Italy than it was the United States.

The 1928 challenge round, scheduled July 27-29, will be played in a new stadium rivaling the structures now at Wimbledon and Forest Hills. Its site is at the Port D'Auteuil, one of the gates of Paris. Work on the courts and temporary stands, seating 20,000, already has begun. At the close of the 1928 season concrete stands will be erected to provide a permanent structure.

Avalanche-Journal Goes Into "Win" Column By Trouncing Artillerymen With 17-12 Count.

In a game featured by fast and hard playing, the Avalanche-Journal basketball five won its initial victory of the City League season last night at the high school court by defeating the Battery C armory quintet by a score of 17 to 12.

In the nightcap Brown and Morgan of the Teachers, ran wild to pile up a 48 to 21 victory over the Producers.

C. W. Ratliff, who started at center for the Publishers, was high point man in the first game by virtue of four field goals and three free shots for eleven points.

Bateman, forward for the army, shot two field goals and three foul throws to lead his five in scoring. He went out of the game with four personal fouls later.

Brown, center for the Instructors, rang up 13 goals from the field and five free throws for a total of 31 points, enough to defeat the Producers single-handed. Morgan accounted for ten points with four field goals and two free shots.

MADNESS?

While the administration's flood control plan was being explained to the House flood control committee by its author, Major Gen. Edgar Jadwin, its provisions came in for a bitter attack at a Senate hearing, the Associated Press records.

Senator Hawes of Missouri criticized the plan as the "most murderous engineering thing I ever read in my life."

The senator from Missouri, one would judge by his remarks, is a capable engineer, and therefore in a position to term the efforts of General Jadwin and his board of engineers. General Jadwin, too, has made some seven or eight trips through the flood-stricken areas in the Mississippi valley. But wait—the Congressional Directory says this of Senator Hawes: "Harry Barstow Hawes, Democrat, St. Louis, Mo.; born Nov. 15, 1869; Episcopalian; lawyer."

General Jadwin, who from his position of chief of army engineers has evolved this "murderous thing," this silly and ridiculous plan which Senator Hawes, lawyer, so violently attacks, must not know his job. To be sure, he is, or was, generally recognized as one of the most able engineers in the army service—a service which has produced many hundreds of famous engineers. He has been studying the flood control situation to the almost total exclusion of everything else since last spring; for five years prior to that he had made a less intensive study of the same situation—since the inundation of 1922, when, as he says, "I wondered whether the existing system of flood control was adequate."

Maybe the general does know a little about the situation, despite what Senator Hawes says. Maybe, after all, he would not have the temerity to present, after five years of study, a "most murderous engineering thing."

Sometimes it seems a matter of real regret that the judgment of experts must be modified to fit inexpert and hasty suggestions. The Mississippi river cares nothing for politics. Partisanship makes poor levees.

NATIONAL HABITS

America is rather generally known by people of other nations as a nation of spenders. American prodigality is almost an international by-word. To the foreign cartoonist, America is symbolized by a rather fat man, dressed gaudily and extravagantly, wearing expensive personal ornaments and smoking an over-size cigar which cost more than it costs to feed the average European family for an entire day. We are rather free in our spending, and before the world war our national accumulations of savings were so small as to be almost negligible. Practically investment financing by American industry was done abroad. France was the thriftiest of all nations. But, while we still live extravagantly, we learned something during the world war that will go far toward offsetting the costs of the war. For the first time in the history of this country systematic campaigns were carried on with the purpose of teaching thrift. The sale of Government securities in all denominations, ranging from a few cents up to large sums, brought to the average American the idea that financial independence was in reach of millions of people who had never thought of anything but drawing their wages and buying a few necessities. When the war ended and Government borrowing in small amounts was no longer necessary industrial and financial concerns began to capitalize on the work begun by the Government. Securities of big business concerns were offered for popular sale. Concerns that had done their borrowing in large amounts from American or foreign bankers began selling stocks and bonds in small denominations.

Today deposits in savings banks are greater than ever before. Investments in building and loan associations have increased tremendously. Small savings are now invested in such properties as Pennsylvania, Santa Fe and other railways. Bell Telephone, Western Union, Standard Oil and a host of less well known corporations.

The thrift idea is taking hold in America. The accumulated savings have mounted until there is available for financing American business and industry almost untold millions. But there is still much room for progress in teaching the habits of thrift. Many overlook the opportunities for profitable and safe investments of small amounts.

LINDBERGH FLIES ON

The first of the new month should find Col. Lindbergh at St. Thomas, in the Virgin Islands, all set for a hop to Porto Rico from where he will go to Santo Domingo and Haiti, arriving, per schedule, at this last stop on the eighth.

The able navigator has not yet completed his itinerary and his good will tour may terminate, accidentally, anywhere. However, we have no such idea. The flying ambassador will come through, we feel and return safely to his native land. Certainly, there are millions who pray as much. While Lindbergh's flying exploits have been remarkable the essential point in his work is his preparedness. When he makes up his mind to fly a given route he sees that his machine is ready and he keeps himself ready. When the weather is right he steps off and gets there. That is a lesson for every boy and girl. More than that, the natural modesty of this young man has endeared him to many who know nothing of him, personally. He has taken what honors have been showered upon him with remarkable poise and has maintained his balance, continuing to be, as far as he is concerned, a sane, safe and upright young man, worthy to be accepted as a "hero" by the countless young who worship at his shrine.

A MODERN ARMY

The following year will see intensive experimentation by the war department in order to test out automotive and mechanical equipment and newer and more powerful weapons. The recently developed semi-automatic rifles, anti-aircraft guns, and howitzers, the light, medium and heavy tanks, and many types of trucks and tractors will be tried out under the hardest conditions.

Radical changes in the organization of the infantry and of other branches of the service are forecast. The aim of the war department is increased fire power and greater mobility. One object is to see how far it is possible to replace animal power with motor power. For the purposes of the test one infantry regiment will be placed virtually on wheels.

The army has learned to appreciate the new weapons. No army failed to get its lesson during the war. The weapons, though admittedly less developed, were available in the last war and would have won it for any general not so blinded by ancestor worship as to resent modern machinery and for any general staff progressive enough to have kept his country's military establishment up to the mark of general progress. It required the world war to teach military men that it was not irreligious to use methods which were not authorized by Hannibal and Napoleon.

There is only one fault to be found with the program of the war department. It is not extensive enough. And that is not the fault of the war department, but of congress, for its failure to appropriate enough money.

It seems to be the fate of the United States army to be ever in want and always trailing at the end of the procession. Since the passage of the national defense act the army has been repeatedly cut in numbers until there remains but a skeleton force. Appropriations for ordnance and equipment have been pared down and pared down. The development of new weapons and equipment has been turned into a piecework job. Emergency stores of ammunition and material have dwindled and it has not been possible even to take the measures necessary to provide for their replacement in case of war. The regular army is armed with weapons, some of them, of designs 30 years old; and this is the army which would have to fight first and hold off attack during the six to 12 months it would require to equip a national army.

Under only one condition can the United States afford to maintain the small regular force it does today, and that is to keep the regular army so well trained and equipped that it will have a human chance of preserving itself in case of war and to make provision for supporting the regular army with a well equipped and trained reserve and national force before the regular army is annihilated.

Mechanization is the order of the day in armies as well as in civilian life. The American army should be given the opportunity to carry its experiments and its equipment to any limit proved desirable. No other nation has advanced so far in the mechanical field as has the United States; it is plain apathy and carelessness if we allow the army to fall behind.

Perhaps the motorization of one infantry regiment is all that the war department desires at the present time, though it seems a test scarcely large enough to compensate for the lack of modernization in the remainder of the army. But should the army need more funds congress should see that they are provided. The army is not a museum of antiques, an old soldiers' home, or a suicide club.

OUT OUR WAY— By Williams

SO THINK WE

We think it is alright for school teachers to know much about children, but they must also know a great deal about older people as well if they are to succeed.

We think the main trouble with some people is that they want to make a lot of money without a lot of work, and some how or other it just won't work out that way.

We think when airplanes get real thick, the pedestrians will have to watch out or they may get the top of their head pealed, or the crown of their hat knocked in. They will soon have to be watching the streets and the air too.

We think that the old saying that one thing calls for another is very true. We read a few days ago where a fellow was sick and called for a doctor. The patient died and that called for an undertaker. The undertaker came and that called for a casket. The casket was properly draped and filled and that called for a hearse. The grave was filled and that called for a tombstone, and so it seems that its just one thing after another and from the cradle to the grave, one thing calls for another, and still this is a great life, a great world, and most of us are anxious to remain here.

We think that both sets of parents might be of more service to the bride and groom if they would let them alone.

—o—

We think that most of us would not object seriously to the automobile license tax if we did not have to buy an automobile every year on top of that because of the rough roads that that tax is supposed to take care of and keep in good condition.

—o—

We thing another pretty good sign that you are getting old is when you begin to ask people to guess how old you are.

—o—

We think that usually when one takes a chance, the other fellow is not and the chances are he will get the money and your chance will be forever gone.

—o—

We think possibly that it is not luck after all, and this Lindy Luck that you have been hearing so much about can't always be depended upon in your case.

—o—

We think that it could hardly be said that Colonel Smith's seat is vacant, it looks to us like he does not have a seat at all.

—o—

We think sure the fashion books mean that the skirts are going to be higher priced, when they say they are going to be higher next year. Surely they will never get them further off the ground.

—o—

We think there are two times in a man's life that he really thinks he is being noticed, and that is when the first son is born, and when the first grandson is large enough to take a walk with him.

—o—

We think that some of the women of this country are getting in the habit of using slang so much in this country that their husbands have just about cut it out. They can now see how disgusting it is.

—o—

We think that the expression "keen apetite" possibly originated with the sword swallower.

OPINIONS

DISAPPEARING HITCHING POSTS

Observation over the city reveals that there are yet a few relics of bygone days in the shape of hitching posts and a few, just a few stores in Cleburne sport hitch rings in the concrete walks along the streets.

In talking about this fact with an oldtimer in the city he told us of another and probably more antiquated relic than this, in an "upping block" at the front of a certain residence in the city.

How many of our readers can remember the days when there was an upping block in front of nearly every home, especially in the more polite residential sections where fine horses were kept and where horse-back riding was common?

For fear some of the younger generation do not understand us, we will state for their benefit that an upping block was a square block, usually of stone with a step leading up a few feet from the ground on which milady stood while being seated on her mount. No home was complete without one.

In recent years both these contrivances have passed into the discard to give way to the more speedy and polite autos, while the horse has become, in the cities, almost unknown as a mode of human locomotion, but there still lingers with many, recollections of the days when the upping block and hitching post were the most common conveniences at the front of practically every home.—Cleburne Times.

YOUR HEALTH

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

Numerous cases have been rported of persons suddenly turning blue and fainting away after wearing a pair of tan shoes that have been recently dyed. The result is due to poisoning by the aniline dye or nitrobenzene that exists in the shoe dye or shoe polish.

Cases are also reported of infants that have been poisoned by marking inks used to make clothing, when these inks contained nitrobenzene.

In the Cook county hospital in Chicago some years ago there were eight cases of men who had turned a brilliant purple following the drinking of shoe polish in the absence of more digestible and perhaps more stimulating substance.

New York Twins

The most recent instance concerns twin babies in New York City who suddenly turned blue in September. When the babies were examined after two days they appeared ashey gray in color, the finger and toe nails lead colored, the lips and tongue dark blue.

A careful examination failed to reveal any weakness of the heart to account for blueness or any difficulty with the breathing or respiration that would explain the condition.

The babies were nursing and the mother had not taken any strong drug which might have appeared in the milk and thus poisoned the babies. The mother did not know that any shoe dy had been used in the home or any marking ink.

However, she was asked if any strong smelling stuff had been used around the babies before they turned blue. It was then discovered that the father had brought home some disinfectant which he poured on the edges of a mattress in the hope of killing bed bugs.

The odor was strong and gave the mother a headache, but nevertheless she put the babies to sleep on this mattress, where they lay for 11 hours.

Fortunately the window was wide open at the foot of the bed so that they turned blue but did not die.

Poison Harms Blood

The blueness is due to the fact that the poison injures the blood and prevents it from carrying the oxygen that is necessary and which is responsible for the redness of the blood.

The product used for killing the bed bugs was in this instance a deodorant substance called creco, which is not sold as an insecticide or insect killer, but only as a deodorant.

IT IS REPORTED

It is reported that one bank saved several thousand dollars in interest the other day by sending their money on an airplane. We always knew that our money flew, but we did not know that the bankers' did.

—o—

It is reported that sawing wood and saying nothing will never produce presidential timber.

It is reported that Lindy went fishing the other day in his trusty airplane. We presume he went after flying fish, however.

—o—

It is reported that Santa Claus was tried and convicted the other day for bank robbery, and given 99 years in the penitentiary. We never thought it would come to that, but after all, it was just a man dressed up like Santa, and the old chap will be on the job spreading good cheer again next December, as usual.

—o—

It is reported that when that Dallas woman landed on the burglar with a bedslat he did not have time to claim he was insane.

—o—

It is reported that there are a number of disqualified voters in this county since the first of February. We presume however, it is no disgrace to be disqualified for there are a few Senators that we find in the same shape in the United States.

—o—

It is reported that the collector of internal revenue has been sending out a lot of loveletters the past few weeks, and he insists on a return with a gift on or before the fifteenth of March.

—o—

It is reported that one Lubbock man had not seen a twenty-dollar bill in so long that when he met one the other day he called it Willia minstead of Bill.

—o—

It is reported that a French judge has forbidden roosters crowing at night. We wonder just what those French judges will try to do next.

THE NEWS WE SUPPRESS

"Any thing that the good Lord will permit to happen we will publish." Such in substance was the terse statement of policy advanced years ago by one of the pioneers in sensational journalism. It has stood too long, we believe, as a standard or excuse for the publication of lurid, or nauseating reading matter that makes the front pages of many large papers extremely distasteful to intelligent readers.

Editors who are more interested in the circulation statement than in the social consequences of their work, have long considered it ethical to publish al lthe news, whether it is fit or unfit for publication. But we feel that this is a distortion of the very meaning of the word ethics. It is a simple rule to substitute for good judgment and common decency.

Every intelligent editor must suppress much news. Details of crime that are suggestive, or repulsive, that stimulate unbalanced minds to deeds of violence, have no place in a well-managed journal. Accounts of the indiscretions of youths, details of brutal acts that serve no purpose other than to satisfy the morbid curiosity of immature minds—these and many other things that do happen in life have no place in a clean paper that seeks to have a wholesome influence on its community.

Suppression of a piece of news is not unethical conduct per se on the part of an editor. Everything depends upon the motive that prompted its suppression. Suppression of news is wrong if dictated by fear or favor. It is right if prompted by a desire to make the paper a force for good in its community.

Guided by this doctrine the editor of the Tribune-Chief does sometimes suppress a piece of news.—Quanah Tribune-Chief.

FOLLOWING DIRECTION

People are accustomed to having labels with directions on them pasted on bottles and rules for operating are usually given with all kinds of machinery and appliances, but it is not often that directions are attached to cows. Recently the American Jersey Cattle Club received a letter from a man who had sold a cow to which he had attached instructions to the new owner. And here are his directions:

"We give this cow one gallon of dairy food, half gallon of fresh wheat bran, all the alfalfa hay she will clean up, night and morning, and let her have access to good pastures and fresh water and salt at all times. This cow is a little peculiar about letting her milk down and you will please follow instructions. Let the calf nurse around one or two draws on each teat to get the milk started and then tie the calf off, and she will give you about a gallon or a little over then, then let the calf suck around again two or three draws to each teat and she will then give you nearly another gallon. Then let the calf suck again and let him hunch her good and she will give about another gallon. Why she does this way I do not know unless it is to save the milk for the calf, but this is the way to manage her. You can increases her feed a quart of cow chow night and morning, if you want her to give more milk.

Sales That Don't Stick

Now that the holiday season has passed into history, excerpts from a little conversation with one of the city's merchants affords no little interest. This particular merchant prompted by experiences of former years, took precaution during the holiday rush to display prominently in his store numerous signs reading "No refunds or exchanges after Dec. 25." "You see" he said "in years gone by there were so many requests for refunds on holiday goods, and so many requests for exchanges that we really did not know when we had an article sold. Of course the majority of them stuck, but we had so many folk coming back to exchange this or that or to get money back for returned articles that we suffered a considerable loss. This year I decided that when the store closed on Christmas Eve we would be pretty well certain that the holiday goods disposed of would not come back to us during the few weeks immediately after the holidays.

He continued by telling of a few instances regarding this post holiday rush of returned goods, but said that while his store had a definite policy regarding such transactions, he always impressed upon his clerks that "the customer is always right."

Some of the articles were really purchased in good faith and the sale was a legitimate one, but the recipient of the present would find that the article had been selected with very poor judgment or in very bad taste, and it was altogether unservicable. Therefore, a request for an exchange would be made.

"You have no idea" he said "how little judgment is used by average customer in selecting presents. A few days after the holidays a rather timid woman entered the store carrying an expensive French doll—one of the kind folks suspend over their dressers or the like—and asked if it could be exchanged. She explained that it had been given her by a wealthy friend and that she had no earthly use for it. She told the clerk that she had seven children, and if possible she would rather have a pair of shoes for one of the children than this utterly useless gift.

"Then there will be a customer with some piece of jewelry, scarf or other which she finds does not suit her particular coloring. She would like to have something in a different color or design, or credit on her account for the article.

"And then one woman rushed into the store a day or two before Christmas and wanted to see a pair of shoes for her husband. She really did not know what size he wore, but suggested to the clerk as an aid for him to determining just what size to select, that her husband wore a number 16 collar.

"Then there are the folks who really make a business of getting something for nothing. Some of these have made their appearance at our store with articles on which they desired refunds. Upon examination the articles were found to have been purchased elsewhere and when it is hinted that the customer might be mistaken in the place where it was purchased they get rather indignant and want to know if the clerk cannot believe what they are saying about the article.

"Another illustration of the rash manner in which some people select gifts is that of one woman who purchased an aluminum pot for a relative who boarded at a hotel.

"However, perhaps the worst of all are those folks who take articles out before Christmas in order that they may be prepared to return presents to friends who send to them in the event they do receive gifts from the persons. If no present is received, they rush back to the store the day after Christmas and want their money back. This is a method of preparedness, but it costs the merchant a considerable sum, for the articles are not legitimate sales and at the same time they are out of stock and he loses the sale on them to persons who might really want to buy them.

"So you see, while the world is looking thru rose colored glasses the days just before Christmas the average merchant sees quite a different picture after the holidays have passed. While his store may present a busy scene after Dec. 23 the majority of the callers are not for the purpose of making purchases. It makes the merchant and his entire force rather gloomy for his expense is going right on just the same as it did when the rush season was on and sales were being made, and to take back or exchange a large number of these, the margin of profits is considerably reduced, and he can't really tell anything about the holiday trade and whether he made or lost money until about the middle of February when everything is again at normal."

THE HOUSE
By Edgar A. Guest

"That house is bad," the neighbors said,
And passed its door in fear and dread.
All through the day the shades were drawn,
No children played upon the lawn,
No flowers bloomed in summer time.
It wore the tragic air of crime,
And seemed to hang its head in shame
When to the door policemen came.

Forced by the law there came the day
Its evil tenants moved away.
Attracted by the sign "To Rent"
Into that house a couple went
Who walked about from room to room
Undaunted by the air of gloom
And soon where had abided sin
A happy family moved in.

Within a week the windows smiled,
The front lawn knew a little child
Spring came, and tulips white and red
Bloomed in a long deserted bed.
The house which had an ugly name
The dwelling place of peace became
An air of pride the building wore,
Policemen trod its step no more.

A house is helpless. Good or bad
Its fame from those it shields is had,
Who walks a street can quickly tell
The homes where love and laughter dwell.
Shame plants no flowers or keeps no lawn,
Its window shades are closely drawn
But world wide over signs of grace
Mark every good man's dwelling place.

"Life of Riley" Comes to Palace

Myrtle Stedman Decides It Is a "Tough Racket" For Any Actress to Take the Picture's Lead.

Myrtle Stedman has decided that the "heaviest" and most dangerous parts in melodrama and drama are beds of roses compared with the cactus couch represented by a comedy role.

The celebrated film beauty, who is credited with having portrayed a greater number and variety of film roles than almost any other equally noted actress, found her most dangerous and strenuous role in "The Life of Riley," now showing at the Palace theater.

George Sidney and Charlie Murray are co-featured in the mirthful film, which was produced by E. M. Asher for First National Pictures, and directed by William Beaudine. A little adventure such as being trapped by a roaring fire in the second story of a flimsy, frame building, is but one highlight of many of Miss Stedman's role.

Sam Hardy, June Marlowe, Stephen Carr and Edwards Davis play other interesting and almost equally strenuous roles. Needless to say, the famous featured comics, Sidney and Murray, have the most and riskiest parts of all. Probably no comedy ever put its actors through such scenes as does "The Life of Riley."

Potatoes

Doing Them Brown Has Its Own Way

If you have ever noticed people around you when dining in a restaurant or hotel you will discover that many men choose French fried potatoes. Evidently most housewives fight shy of serving potatoes this way at home and since Mr. Man particularly likes these golden, crispy sticks he must humor his appetite when he dines "out."

There are several varieties of potatoes fried in deep fat; it's all in the cutting of the potato as to which you have. Of course the meat determines just which sort to choose. Lattice potatoes must be cut with a special cutter, but shoe-string, French fried, Saratoga chips, potato curls or potato dice can be prepared with a sharp paring knife.

There is one precaution in preparing potatoes for deep fat frying. Be sure the pared and cut potatoes are kept completely covered with very cold water until ready for cooking. This prevents discoloration and causes that delicious mealiness inside the crisp coating of French fried potatoes.

If a fat thermometer is used it should register 400 degrees F. when the potatoes are put into the fat. The cold vegetable will lower the temperature so a hot fire is needed to bring the temperature up to 485 degrees F.

Choose potatoes of uniform size and shape so that they will cut in uniform pieces. Allow about one and one-half potatoes for each person to be served. Wash and pare, carefully removing all eyes. Drop at once into cold water as each potato is pared. Cut in lengths wise slices about three-fourths inch thick. Cut these slices lengthwise in three-fourths inch strips and let them stand in very cold or ice water for one hour.

When ready to cook, take out as many strips as will cover the bottom of the frying basket and drain and dry between towels. Place in basket and lower into the hot fat. Fry until they are a golden brown. Lift from fat and turn onto soft crushed paper. Sprinkle with salt and keep hot until all are fried and ready to serve.

Shoe string or shredded potatoes are cut in slices about one-fourth inch thick and these slices cut in one-fourth inch strips. They are soaked in cold water for one hour and drained, dried and fried like French fried.

Saratoga chips are cut in paper-thin slices crosswise of pared potatoes and dropped immediately into cold water. Let stand one hour, chaging the water twice. Drain and dry between towels—a few at a time. Drop into hot fat and fry until a golden brown. Drain on soft paper, sprinkle lightly with salt and serve warm or cold.

Saratoga chips can be kept for several days and reheated and crisped in the oven.

BRASS ANDIRONS

To clean brass andirons, scrub first with hot suds and soda and then scour with bath brick moistened in kerosene. When dry, use any commercial polish.

SCHOOL CONTRACTS

AMARILLO, Feb. 2.—According to announcement made by George M. Waddill, secretary of the Amarillo school board, contracts for the two ward schools to be built in the Oliver-Eakle and Country Club additions were let last evening to Albert Randall and J. D. Singleton, respectively. Randall's bid for the school in the Oliver-Eakle was $51,415 and Singleton's bid for the school in the Country Club addition was $45,238.

BETTER BUS TIME

ABILENE, Feb. 2.—Abilene to San Antonio via Austin in nine hours has been made possible by motor bus line established by R. H. Harris which goes from Abilene to Brady via Coleman and connects with a direct line on to San Antonio. Mr. Harris recently purchased a new 12 passenger bus for the line.

OIL DEAL FAILS

SAN ANGELO, Feb. 2.—The proposed purchase of properties of the Pure Oil company in Winkler, Crane, Upton, and Pecos counties by the Texas company, contracted for in December subject to title examinations has fallen through. An Associate Press dispatch from New York told of the collapse of the deal. It is presumed that title difficulties prevented the consummation of the trade. The transaction involved properties valued at more than $1,000,000 and the trade was negotiated by the Ft. Worth offices of both companies.

IN BASEBALL LOOP

SAN ANGELO, Feb. 2.—San Angelo will produce one of the six teams to make up a proposed West Texas baseball league, Class D, if league organization is effected, according to E. E. Lowrie, local baseball impresario. Red Snapp, who will handle the destinies of the San Angelo team, if any, and Lowrie plans attendance of a baseball meeting in Abilene Sunday to talk over prospects of organizing the league. It is quite likely that should there be a league with San Angelo a member this city will serve as a farm for Jack Atz's Fort Worth Cats. Games would be played at Fort Concho park.

Yesterday afternoon Miss Baird met with the Becton girls' 4-H club for a sewing lesson. All of the girls are first year members, but have shown decided ability in club work, Miss Baird said.

principles as a declaration of the principles of the congress:

1. All states have the right to exist, to protect and preserve their existence, but this right neither implies power nor justifies unrighteous action by one state against innocent or inoffensive states to protect itself or preserve its existence.

2. All states are independent in the sense that they have the right to achieve their welfare and progress, without intervention or supervision from other states, but in the exercise of this right they must not affect or violate the rights of other states.

3. All states are in their own right, and before the law equal to all other members of the international community. All states can therefore assume among the powers of the world the independent and equal position to which they have the right.

4. All states have the right to territory determined by exact boundaries and to exercise exclusive jurisdiction of persons, natives or foreigners in this territory and over that find themselves therein.

5. All states vested by the law of nations with their rights can exact that they be respected and protected by other states, because the rights and duties are corelative, as observance of the rights of one is the duty of all.

6. International law is simultaneously national and international—national in the sense that it is the law of the country applicable as such for the determination of all questions having reference to its principles; international in the sense that it is the law of the community of nations applicable as such to all questions which may arise between two or more members of that community and which have reference to its principles.

kill him and their five children. He told of her showing signs of insanity from their early married life, down to when her doctors told him she was "crazy."

The witness on the other hand, admitted to Prosecuting Attorney Ara Keyes, that before his wife was sent to an asylum for a short period, he had stated to the committing officials that he never had seen any signs of insanity until she attempted suicide a few months earlier.

Mother Testifies.

The gray-haired, unemotional mother, in shrewly metallic tones and accent, testified that she remembered a "few times" when she had threatened to kill are husband. She testified she attempted suicide 15 years ago because "nobody seemed to want or care about" her and she "might as well die."

Women jurors were visibly affected when they inspected the murder weapon, and the morgue photographs of the victim's mutilated body. The exhibits were put in evidence by the defense for the first time placing in the sanity trial objects horribly connecting the defendant to his crime.

The second defense alienist, Dr. R. O. Shelton of Los Angeles, was explaining to the jury his medical opinion that the prisoner "suffered the worst form of dementia praecox" when the session was adjourned until Friday.

A swiftly moving panorama of witnesses and evidence today marked the progress of Hickman's trial.

Herman C. Cline, chief of Los Angeles detectives, who directed the hunt for Marian's killer, produced the knife with which he declared, Hickman said he dissected the body. Larger than the ordinary pocket knife, but smaller than a hunting knife, it was almost new with blades encased in an imitation staghorn handle. The longest blade, about 4 1-2 inches, was the one Cline said Hickman told him he used. Neither blade nor handle appeared soiled.

Welby Hunt, also from Hickman's home town, Kansas City, Mo., an accused accomplice in the murder at Christmas time, 1926, of C. Ivy Thome in a drugstore holdup, was the next defense witness.

Young Hunt, tall, slight and fair-haired, in contrast to his short, chunky, dark-haired confessed companion in crime, said that he had known Hickman 14 months.

Announcement of Those In Essay Contests Will Be Made At Bureau Meet February 11.

Announcement of the winner of the essay contest being sponsored by the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton Association will be made at the regular meeting of the bureau to be held Saturday, February 11, N. H. Payne, field service representative, said yesterday.

The contest closes tomorrow. The subject of the essay is: "What We Can Do As Members to Build a Greater Farm Bureau Organization in Lubbock County."

The program of the meeting will be in charge of President Douglas Pounds of Acuff, and will be in the nature of a pageant representing two kinds of marketing, dumping and cooperation.

Boys and girls of the 4-H clubs will give the program, which is being arranged by County Agent D. F. Eaton and Miss Louise Baird, county home demonstration agent.

Stewart Defies

the case of Harry F. Sinclair, now under court sentence.

Talks Like Lawyer

For more than two hours today, today, the tall, thick-set, gray-haired Chicago oil operator, himself once a lawyer, parried questions, defended with loud voice and emphatic manner his own actions in connection with various oil transactions, shot thrusts at the prosecutor, Senator Walsh of Montana, and time and again confessed at inability to remember many details the committee sought.

Then suddenly, as it appeared he was to be excused, the youthful committee chairman, Gerald P. Nye, of North Dakota, put to him two questions which he elected not to answer. They were whether he knew who received any of the Liberty bonds bought by the Continental from its oil profits and whether he had discussed any of the Continental bond transactions with Sinclair.

Previously Stewart had declined to give any hearsay testimony when asked if he had heard that $233,000 of the bonds went from Sinclair to Albert B. Fall after the lease of Teapot Dome and supposedly he had gotten away with that decision.

Makes Evasive Reply

It was nearly on some statement that Nye asked if he knew anyone who did get Continental bonds. Stewart hesitated as he leaned back in his chair.

"I'll say this," he recalled at last, "I never handled any of these bonds and never given any of them to any political party or to any official of the United States of any state or of any territory. That's as far as I can go."

Have you discussed any of these bond transactions with Harry F. Sinclair?" Nye pursued.

"That is not material to the issue," was the answer.

"I want to add it seems to me that in view of the pending trial of Sinclair and the fact that I am summoned as a witness in that case and the issues in that case are the same issues here, that when this story goes in it should go before the judge and jury."

Fire

Herald-News, recently completed, was badly damaged, and the R. W. McWhirr department store was in flames.

Loss of life was feared, but early reports of casualties could not be verified. One rumor was that five firemen had been buried in the collapse of a wall at the Pocasset mills. Six firemen were under treatment at various hospitals for injuries.

When the fire started there was a large audience in the Rialto theatre but the hundreds of spectators filed out in an orderly manner.

Sparks carried by the wind set many fires in other parts of the city.

On opposite sides of Main street two buildings stood as fire breaks in the path of the flames. On the west side of the street the flames were check at the Merchants block, built in 1834. This building had withstood previous conflagrations in the Fall River business district.

Numerous fires broke out in residences on Pleasant street, but most of these were brought under control by residents assisted by firemen. The Union mills on Pleasant street also became ignited, and were threatened with destruction.

From the editorial rooms of the Fall River Globe members of the newspaper staff watched the progress of the flames down Main street and kept the Associated Press informed by telephone.

by Congress on six year federal building program, authorized in 1926 for a total expenditure of $165,000,000 during the 6-year period. It is hoped that Lubbock's building will be authorized at this time.

Plans and specifications for the 50 block building are already in the hands of Postal Inspector Johnson of Amarillo, said Postmaster Vaughn. It is believed that a federal court room will be included in the structure, movement being on foot to secure a Plains district court for this city.

Motion to donate the site was made by Commissioner W. S. Posey and seconded by Commissioner J. O. Jones.

Members of the committee and business men present were: C. E. Mundgen, chairman, Walter Myrick, S. Jack Parsons, Temple Ellis, Sam Arnett, O. L. Slaton, D. D. Roderick, J. A. Rix, George Benson, Neil Wright, W. A. Myrick, sr., J. H. Regan, John Dalrymple, Dr. I. E. Barr, H. D. Woods, T. B. Duggan, Milt Jones, W. A. Bacon, M. G. Abernathy, Joe Nislar, Ed Norwood, Homer D. Grant, Roscoe Wilson, Ara May and Postmaster John L. Vaughan. Commissioners present were: Mayor Pink L. Parrish, J. O. Jones, W. S. Posey, A. V. Weaver, J. H. Hankins, G. W. McCleary, city manager; W. H. Rodgers, city secretary; and E. L. Klett, city attorney.

BUILDING AUDITORUM

J. Cline Moore Announces Hall for City

Plans were announced yesterday for the construction of a new auditorium and dance hall, to be built on a plot of ground south of the city along the Slaton road.

J. Cline Moore has purchased a plot of five acres on which the auditorium will be built. Work has already started. The place, which will have a seating capacity of 1500 will be modern in every respect and will be equipped with all conveniences. Parking grounds will be furnished and trees and flowers will be planted about the grounds. A variety of entertainment, including dances and probably skating will be afforded, Mr. Moore said.

Before ladling out dumpling dough dip the spoon each time into hot liquid. This avoids a sticky spoon and the dough will slide off easily.

WARRANT LEGALITY

Magistrates Must Fix Reliability of Orders

AUSTIN, Feb. 2. (AP)—Determination of the legality of information upon which liquor search warrants are based is left largely to the magistrates issuing them, under a decision of the court of criminal appeals Wednesday.

The opinion was made by Judge O. S. Lattimore, affirming the three year conviction of Anton Rozner, Milam county, on a charge of manufacturing liquor. His appeal attacked the warrant as illegal under a recent holding of the appeals court that warrants must be based on affadavits of "two credible persons" giving detailed facts and circumstances pointing to violation of the law.

Small Acreage Means More Money For Cotton Farmers, Terrell Emphasizes

State Commissioner of Agriculture Issues Plea for Cut In Planting, Declaring This Would Immediately Send Market Higher; Warns On Overproduction

By GEORGE B. TERRELL
Commissioner of Agriculture

AUSTIN, Feb. 2 (AP)—It is very necessary that the farmers and land owners use every effort in their power to control and limit the production of cotton to such an extent that profitable prices will prevail, because we have no farmers' organization strong enough to name a profitable price and hold any temporary surplus off the market.

Acreage is one important factor in the production of cotton, and this is within the control of cotton farmers and should be used to good advantage this year. If we will not increase the acreage this year, cotton will advance in price, just as soon as the acreage is announced by the government. This is one sure way to advance the price as the mills and cotton trade generally are expecting an increased acreage. As soon as it is known that the acreage has not been increased, active buying will begin, because there will be very little, if any, carryover cotton at the close of the present cotton year.

Small Crop Pays.

It has been proved repeatedly that a small crop brings more actual money than a large crop. This was conclusively proved during the years 1926 and 1927. The crop of 12,789,000 bales for 1927 brought $80,000,000 dollars more than the crop of almost 18,000,000 brought in 1926.

The situation is now favorable to the farmer because of the very short cotton crop last year, and certainly every farmer and all who desire profitable prices for cotton should take advantage of the present favorable situation and not deliberately destroy all chance of good prices by planting a large acreage in cotton.

Texas has nearly enough feed to last this year, and sufficient early feed crops should be planted to finish up the crop. An abundance should be planted for next year's supply. If we will make all farms self-supporting we are not likely to raise too much cotton. It would be a good policy to put more land into pastures for livestock and let some land rest and recuperate from constant cropping.

Hundreds of thousands of acres of cotton have died from root rot the past few years and this land should have a rest from cotton as the best means of curtailing that disease.

CORN MEAL CLEANER

To brighten carpets and rugs corn meal dampened with just enough kerosene to soften is excellent. Sprinkle it over liberally and then sweep.

THE "CANARY" MURDER CASE

Charles Scribner's Sons

by S. S. VAN DINE AUTHOR OF THE BENSON MURDER CASE

THE STORY THUS FAR

The jewel case was most baffling to Vance. It had been opened with a steel chisel after unsuccessfully being pried with a poker, and it was found in the room with the murdered Margaret Odell. Spotswoode had gone out with her the evening of the murder. When he left her he told Jessup, at the switchboard, to call a cab. They heard a scream from her room, but when they reached the door were told everything was all right. The next morning she had been found strangled. Vance believes another man was in the apartment beside the murderer and that he hid in the clothes closet. Investigation discloses that Cleaver had been seen with her a lot and he is brought in for questioning.

"I can eliminate myself easily enough," Cleaver proclaimed, with easy confidence. "There's a speeding summons from Boonton, New Jersey. Note the date and the time: September the 10th—last night—at half past eleven. Was driving down to Hopatcong, and was ticketed by a motorcycle cop just as I had passed Broonton and was heading for Mountain Lakes. Got to appear in court there tomorrow morning. Damn nuisance, these country constables."

He gave Markham a long, calculating look. "You couldn't square it for me, could you? It's a rotten ride to Jersey, and I've got a lot to do to-morrow."

Markham, who had inspected the summons casually, put it in his pocket.

"I'll attend to it for you," he promised, smiling amiably. "Now tell me what you know."

Cleaver puffed meditatively on his cigar. Then leaning back and crossing his knees, he spoke with apparent candor.

"I doubt if I know much that'll help you . . . . I liked the Canary as she was called—in fact, was pretty much attached to her at one time. Did a number of foolish things; wrote her a lot of damnfool letters when I went to Cuba last year. Even had my picture taken with her down at Atlantic City."

He made a self-condemnatory grimace. "Then she began to get cool and distant; broke several appointments with me. I raised the devil with her, but the only answer I got was a demand for money. . . ."

He stopped and looked down at his cigar ash. A venomous hatred gleamed from his narrowed eyes and the muscles of his jowls hardened.

"No use lying about it. She had those letters and things and she touched me for a neat little sum before I got 'em back. . . ."

"When was this?"

There was a momentary hesitation. "Last June," Cleaver replied. Then he hurried on: "Mr. Markham"—his voice was bitter—"I don't want to throw mud on a dead person; but that woman was the shrewdest, coldest-blooded blackmailer it's ever been my misfortune to meet. And I'll say this, too: I wasn't the only easy mark she squeezed. She had others on her string. . . . I happen to know she once dug into old Louey Mannix for a plenty—he told me about it."

"Could you give me the names of any of these other men?" asked Markham, attempting to dissemble his eagerness. "I've already heard of the Mannix episode."

"No, I couldn't." Cleaver spoke regretfully. "I've seen the Canary here and there with different men; and there's one in particular I've noticed lately. But they were all strangers to me."

"I suppose the Mannix affair is dead and buried by this time?"

"Yes—ancient history. You won't get any line on the situation from that angle. But there are others—more recent than Mannix—who might bear looking into if you could find them. I'm easy-going myself; take things as they come. But there's a lot of men who'd go red-headed if she did the things to them that she did to me."

Cleaver, despite his confession, did not strike me as easy-going, but rather as a cold, self-contained, nerveless person whose immobility was at all times dictated by policy and expediency.

Markham studied him closely.

"You think, then, her death may have been due to vengeance on the part of some disillusioned admirer?"

Cleaver carefully considered his answer.

"Seems reasonable," he said finally. "She was riding for a fall."

There was a short silence; then Markham asked.

"Do you happen to know of a young man she was interested in—good-looking, small, blond mustache, light blue eyes—named Skeel?"

Cleaver snorted derisively.

"That wasn't the Canary's specialty—she left the young ones alone, as far as I know."

At this moment a page-boy approached Cleaver, and bowed.

"Sorry to disturb you sir, but there's a phone call for your brother. Party said it was important and, as your brother isn't in the club now, the operator thought you might know where he'd gone."

"How would I know?" fumed Cleaver. "Don't ever bother me with his calls."

"Your brother in the city?" asked Markham casually. "I met him years ago. He's a San Franciscan, isn't he?"

"Yes—rabid Californian. He's visiting New York for a couple of weeks so he'll appreciate Frisco more when he gets back."

It seemed to me that this information was given reluctantly; and I got the impression that Cleaver, for some reason, was annoyed. But Markham, apparently, was too absorbed in the problem before him to take notice of the other's disgruntled air, for he reverted at once to the subject of the murder.

"I happen to know one man who has been interested in the Odell woman recently; he may be the same one you've seen her with—tall about forty-five and wears a gray close-cropped mustache." (He was, I knew, describing Spotswoode.)

"That's the man" averred Cleaver. "Saw them together only last week at Mouquin's."

Markham was disappointed.

"Unfortunately, he's checked off the list. . . . But there must be somebody who was in the girl's confidence. You're sure you couldn't cudgel your brains to any advantage?"

Cleaver appeared to think.

"If it's merely a question of some one who had her confidence," he said, "I might suggest Doctor Lindquist—first name's Ambroise, I think; and he lives somewhere in the Forties near Lexington Avenue But I don't know that he'd be of any value to you. Still, he was pretty close to her at one time."

"You mean that this Doctor Lindquist might have been interested in her otherwise than professionally?"

"I wouldn't like to say." Cleaver smoked for a while as if inwardly debating the situation. "Anyway, here are the facts: Lindquist is one of these exclusive society specialists—a neurologist he calls himself—and I believe he's the head of a private sanitarium of some kind for nervous women. He must have money, and, of course, his social standing is a vital asset to him—just the sort of man the Canary might have selected as a source of income. And I know this: he came to see her a good deal oftener than a doctor of his type would be apt to. I ran into him one night at her apartment and when she introduced us, he wasn't even civil."

"It will at least bear looking into," replied Markham unenthusiastically. "You've no one else in mind who might know something helpful?"

Cleaver shook his head.

"No—no one."

"And she never mentioned anything to you that indicated she was in fear of any one, or anticipated trouble?"

"Not a word. Fact is, I was bowled over by the news. I never read any paper but the morning Herald—except, of course, The Daily Racing Form at night. And as there was no account of the murder in this morning's paper, I didn't hear about it until just before dinner. The boys in the billiard-room were talking about it, and I went out and looked at an afternoon paper. If it hadn't been for that, I might not have known of it till tomorrow morning."

Markham discussed the case with him until half past eight, but could elicit no further suggestions. Finally Cleaver rose to go.

"Sorry I couldn't give you more help," he said. His rubicund face was beaming now and he shook hands with Markham in the friendliest fashion.

"You wangled that viscid old sport rather cleverly don't y' know," remarked Vance, when Cleaver had gone. "But there's something deuced queer about him. The transition from his gambler's glassy stare to his garrulous confidences was too sudden—suspiciously sudden, in fact. I may be evil-minded, but he didn't impress me as a luminous pillar of truth. Maybe it's because I don't like those cold, boiled eyes of his—somehow they didn't harmonize with his gushing imitation of open-hearted frankness."

"We can allow him something for his embarrassing position," suggested Markham charitably. "It isn't exactly pleasant to admit having been taken in and blackmailed by a charmer."

"Still, if he got his letters back in June, why did he continue paying court to the lady? Heath reported he was active in that sector right up to the end."

"He may be the complete amorist," smiled Markham. "At any rate, he gave us, in Doctor Lindquist, a possible source of information."

"Quite so," agreed Vance. "And that's about the only point of his whole passionate unfoldment that I particularly put any stock in, because it was the only point he indicated with any decent reticence. . . . My advice is that you interview this doctor without further delay."

"I'm dog-tired," objected Markham. "Let it wait till tomorrow."

Vance glanced at the great clock over the stone mantel.

"It's latish, I'll admit, but why not, as Pittacus advised, seize time by the forelock?"

'Who lets slip fortune, her shall never find:
Occasion once past by, is bald behind,'

But the elder Cato anticipated Crowley. In his 'Disticha de Moribus' he wrote—"

"Come!" pleaded Markham, rising. "Anything to dam this flow of erudition."

DAILY MARKETS

ST. LOUIS LIVESTOCK

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., Feb. 2. (AP)—(United States Department of Agriculture)—Hogs: 15,500; 10 cents higher; top $8.60; 210 pounds down $8.50 to $8.60; medium weight butchers $8.35 to $8.50; heavies $8.25 to $8.35; pigs $6.50 to $7.50; packing sows $7.00 to $7.25.

Cattle: 2,200; calves 800; vealers steady at 16.75; steers weak to 25 cents lower; medium bulls 25 cents lower; top on bulls 8.50; other classes fairly steady; steers 10.40 to 13.15; butcher yearlings 8.50 to 10.00; cows 7.25 to 9.00; cutters 5.25 to 6.50.

BOSTON WOOL

BOSTON, Feb. 2. (AP)—Wool continues moderately active on 58-60's territory combing, with prices strong to slightly higher. According to report by mills to the United States department of commerce, the consumption of wool in the grease declined in December, the total being 41,700,000 pounds compared with 46,300,000 in November.

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Feb. 2. (AP)—Raising of the New York federal reserve rediscount rate from 3 1-2 to 4 per cent, which was announced after the market closed, was the outstanding event in today's financial markets. While fears of an increase were expressed in some quarters earlier in the day, pools nevertheless continued aggressive bullish demonstrations in special stocks, morking up more than a dozen issues 3 to 14 points to new high records. Standard industrials also pointed higher but rails continued sluggish in reflection of the poor December earnings statements.

Wall Street looked for a higher New York rate but apparently did not expect it so soon. In the past, such advances have been regarded as bearish, at least temporarily, on the theory that they tended to restrict the volume of credit available for speculative purposes. The money market gave no indication of any immediate change, call money dropping from 4 1-2 to 4 per cent while time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged. The weekly statement of brokers' loans showed an increase of $27,135,000, bringing the total to $3,815,820,000, or slightly less than $5,000,000 below the record breaking figure established weeks ago.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 2. (AP)—The cotton market made new lows for the present movement today in moderately active trading. Although the trend of prices was downward, the market had several good recoveries on trade buying and covering which developed on the scale down. March contracts after selling off to 16.93, rallied to 17.07, but in the afternoon trading dropped to 16.78, and closed at 16.85; 22 points net low for the day. The general market closed steady 14 to 22 points down.

Following another rally of 4 to 9 points, the market weakened again in the afternoon under a renewal of hedge selling and on a bearish private report of increased fertilizer sale in December and January. All months made new lows at 16.79 for May and 16.81 for July, 26 to 31 points or more than $1.50 a bale below the previous close.

A rumor that large spot interests had bought a hundred thousand bales from cooperatives in the west induced moderate buying near the end and prices recovered 10 to 11 points, May closed at 16.85 and July 16.90, 20 to 22 points net lower for the session.

Exports for the day totaled 29,440 bales.

FORT WORTH LIVESTOCK

FORT WORTH, Feb. 2. (AP)—Most of the offering here in the different classes today was only fair quality in the live stock market. Trading held about steady but a little slow on some classes.

Nothing especially desirable were offered in the slaughter steer division. Top $11.25; other loads at $10.00.

Except for one car of bulls which sold at $7.50, very few bulls were offered. The weakness that has been evident in bulls this week continued weak and about 25 cents lower. Thin bologna bulls $5.50 to $6.00; heavies $6.00 to $6.50; more resirable ones up to $7.00.

Cow sales were a little uneven and slow in spots. One car of desirable fat cows sold at $8.10. Canners $4.50 to $5.00; cutters $5.00 to $5.50.

A four car string of yearlings sold at $11.00.

Calves appeared fully steady. Weighty calves up to $10.50 on packer account. Common calves $7.50 to $9.00.

One deck of fleshy shorn feeder lambs sold at $11.00 and represented the sheep supply for the day.

Hog sales were active at steady to strong values. Top $8.20. Bulk of the 180 to 250 pound buthchers cleared at $8.00 to $8.20. Pigs around $5.75 to $6.50.

COTTONSEED OIL

NEW YORK, Feb. 2. (AP).—The cottonseed oil market was unusually active and weak today, reacting 19 to 27 points, establishing new low levels for the season under general liquidation, stop-loss selling and offerings from refiners in response to the upset state of outside markets, especially cotton and lard. Sales 61,000 barrels. Prime crude 7.75; prime summer yellow spot 9.60; March closed 9.60, May 9.65, July 9.87, August 9.98, September 9.99.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Feb. 2. (AP).—A further sharp decline of $1.50 a bale in the cotton market today followed continued liquidation, and local and southern selling influenced by relatively easy Liverpool cables and talk of an easier spot situation. March and October contracts broke below the 17-cent level, while May sold off to 17.06, or 30 points from yesterday's final quotation, and closed at 17.10. The general market closed very steady at net declines of 10 to 33 points.

The opening was easy at a decline of 6 to 18 points under selling influenced by weakness of Liverpool and Alexandria, and unfavorable trade reports from Manchester. Initial offerings were absorbed by trade buying and covering, but rallies to a shade above yesterday's closing quotations met increased offerings during the afternoon. Lowest prices of the day and movement were reached in late trading.

March contracts sold off to 16.87 and October to 16.96. Old crop months showing net declines of 27 to 38 points, while the new crop was 15 to 19 points net lower. The close was a few points up from the lowest on covering.

Some of the early buying may have been encouraged by complaints of continued droughty conditions in West Texas, but later in the day there were rumors of bearish figures on the sales of fertilizer tags for December and January which probably contributed to the decline.

Private cables said the decline in Liverpool was due to hedge selling, together with London and Manchester liquidation, influenced by a decline in the Egyptian market, and pessimistic reports from Manchester, where the tournover in cotton goods was said to be limited with business checked by the decline in raw cotton.

Exports today 29,540, making 4,676,856 so far this season. Port receipts 18,159. U. S. port stocks 2,326,457.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Industry Going Through One of Cycles

NEW YORK, Feb. 2. (AP) — Henry M. Dawes, president of Pure Oil Co., explaining the action of directods in reducing the common dividend, says the oil business is going through one of the cycles of overproduction which seems to be inherent in every industry in which supply of raw materials is affected by discovery element. The industry is in a sound position, he says, but no one can tell how long this particular phase will last. The company's financial condition is satsisfactory, but directors felt the conservative course was to husband resources.

Pinkston To Run For Commission

Present Incumbent Will Be Candidate to Succeed Himself; Hold Position From Precinct No. 2.

The Avalanche has been authorized to announce the the voters of Precinct No. 2, Lubbock county, that J. T. Pinkston is a candidate for reelection to the office of commissioner of that precinct. Mr. Pinkston is a farmer.

Mr. Pinkston is now serving his first term as county commissioner. His work with the commissioners' court and the way he has handled the affairs of his precinct during his present term has been and is highly commendable, according to expressions of those who have kept closest tab on his efforts during the past.

Commissioner Pinkston states he has been absent from one meeting of the commissioners' court since taking office. That was when he was away on his vacation last summer, he says.

Under the supervision of the commissioner, lateral roads of the precinct have been kept in splendid condition, it is pointed out, the precinct being well equipped with road machinery which is in good shape, and is always available for use at the discretion of the commissioner. Mr. Pinkston says he greatly appreciates the hearty cooperation that has been given him by the people of this precinct and credits the success of the administration the past year to the unselfishness of the people in giving their time and land where it was necessary to improve the roads.

No promises are being made by Mr. Pinkston, only that if elected he will continue to serve the people in as capable and faithful a manner a spossible, wit hthe positive assurance that partiality will be shown no one, but that all will be treated alike insofar as dealings from the county commissioner are concerned.

A BEAUTIFUL ENGLISH TYPE SIX ROOM BRICK VENEER

Certainly there is a real buyer in Lubbock who has been looking for a home, and perhaps disgusted after inspection of poorly constructed homes? If such is the case, then your troubles will end provided you really would buy one of Lubbock's most attractive and best constructed homes, with east front, situated in the very best section of our city where there are no cheap homes, in fact none that cost less than $5000 in this block, a home you can buy for a great deal less than you could possibly build it, one you can dispose of when others would drag on market. It is ready to show to a real prospective buyer, not a mere curosity seeker. Very attractive price on application, terms most reasonable to responsible parties.
