Carter promises unified energy policy by April 1

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jimmy Carter said Friday he still has an open mind about a tax cut and, promising a unified energy policy by April 1, also said probably he will name one person to head two energy agencies.

The incoming chief executive visited the secret war room in the Pentagon with Vice President-elect Walter F. Mondale. Both were briefed on how it operates and had lunch with Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld and the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The mix of domestic and defense concerns ended a two-day visit to Washington during which the President-elect and his transition aides planned alternatives to stimulate the economy, reorganize the government, aid the cities, pardon Vietnam draft resisters and provide for transportion safety.

The emphasis of the President-elect's visit was on the economy. He spoke of the possibility of a tax cut with the 250 members of the House Democratic Caucus and 27 senators, who trekked in small groups into Blair House, the government's guest residence across from the White House, where Carter stayed.

Rep. John Conyers Jr., DMich., said more than 70 of the Democrats presented him with a letter saying a tax cut "is an extremely inefficient way to reduce unemployment." Declaring that the economy "apparently is in far worse shape than even the most cautious economic analysts predicted," they urged him to explore creating jobs through public works programs and "quick-activating housing."

The group, including members of the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee and the congressional Black Caucus, said it was concerned that a tax cut "will jeopardize the future sources of funding for the great social initiatives you so ably articulated during the campaign."

That advice, and expressions of caution from Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill, who will be House speaker in the new Congress, ran counter to nearly unanimous advice from Carter's staff, business and organized labor that tax breaks are needed for an economic boost.

O'Neill, who joined other House leaders in a separate meeting with Carter, said the President-elect appears to be leaning toward an economic recovery package that would emphasize job-making programs primarily. A tax cut would be supplementary, O'Neill said.

O'Neill cautioned that no taxcut decision should be made before consumer spending over the next two months, including Christmas, is measured.

Sen.-elect Howard Metzenbaum reported Carter's statements on energy. He said Carter declared that he probably would name the same person to head the Federal Energy Administration and the Energy Research and Development Administration.

Such a double-appointment might run into oppositon in Congress, which established the two agencies under separate laws and where Senate confirmation is required for each of the two administrators. Appointing one chief would be a type of de-facto government reorganization.

The Federal Energy Administration regulates petroleum pricing and distribution and is a key agency in developing general energy policy. The Energy Research and Development Administration manages federal research and development in nuclear and other forms of energy.

Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D-N.Y., said Carter renewed his request for a four-year mandate to reorganize the federal government.

Carter promised the reorganization during his campaign, saying that among other thing he wants to replace the Federal Energy Administration, the Federal Power Commission, the energy Reserch and Development Adminstration and the Energy Resources Council with a Cabinet-level department.

During the war-room briefing at the Pentagon, the first for a President-elect since Dwight D. Eisenhower, Mondale was seated near Air Force Gen. George S. Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs.

After Brown's mid-campaign statement that Israel is a burden to the United States, Mondale said Brown should be fired because he "isn't fit to be a sewer commissioner." Nothing was said Friday about the differences between the two men.

Members of Congress emerged from their meetings with Carter praising what they called his spirit of cooperation. They said he told them he will remain accessible to them, by telephone and in person, throughout his White House term.

"He promised he will be accessible to any member of Congress at any time an individual feels that's important," said Rosenthal. "And he said he will never withdraw that promise, and I think if he maintains that kind of spirit of cooperation the honeymoon will last all four years and perhaps longer."

"There is a feeling that the honeymoon period will be a very strong one," said Sen. Thomas McIntyre, D-N.H.

"He promised that he will not operate through a kitchen cabinet or closed White House staff," said Sen. William D. Hathaway, D-Maine.

Rep. Herbert Harris, D-Va., said Carter displayed a "strong com-

Plea bargaining like old parental threat

Observations from hither and yonder:

On plea bargaining: "I won't whip you if you tell the truth, but I will if you lie." (Or, if you try to "stone wall" it.) That often said parent-to-child threat, recalled by Pat Semple, probably has pulled many admissions, true or false, from the accused.

And the same tactic is used in high places. The persuasive powers of an over-hanging switch, rod, razor strap, jail term or fine are great indeed.

Let's not do without: "The three things you've got to have are food, housing and warmth in winter. In my notion, that puts the Permian Basin in a very important position, because we furnish heat to the greater part of the country," observed L. G. Simmons.

On myth and those rich Texans: If you're ever at the far reaches of the state or country and openly declare that "you're from Midland, people will say, 'Oh, you're up from where all that money is.'"

That observation came from one who, though well fed, clothed and housed, has managed to keep a respectable distance between himself and a full wallet. But he would like to close the gap. Right, Jack?

1,000 brave cold for tree lighting

The only thing missing from Midland's annual Christmas tree lighting festival Friday night was the snow.

But a crowd of about 1,000 Midlanders braved 37 cold degrees and a strong West Texas wind to witness the spectacular lighting.

Midland Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. opened the ceremony by stating his hopes that the 60-foot high tree could stand as a symbol toward the unity of Midlanders throughout the coming year.

He also said he was excited about the large turnout of citizens for the annual event — "considering the weather conditions."

When Angelo called for the tree lights to be turned on, the tree remained unlit while the crowd held its breath. Angelo requested the tree to be lit a second time and the tree was illuminated amid "oohs and ahs" from the shivering Midlanders.

Three large pits of burning Yule logs were the only offer of warmth during the evening, and all three pits remained crowded throughout the evening's activities.

After the tree was lit, the Goddard Junior High School Band directed by Scott Lewis provided traditional Christmas music and announced the arrival of the jolly gentleman from the North with "Here Comes Santa Claus."

Santa's hut was set up north of the huge tree and Midland youngsters hurried around to get in line to

MCT's latest opening act a 'real chiller'

By ROGER SOUTHALL

When theater folks say "The show must go on!", they mean it.

Midland Community Theatre backers and boosters proved that Friday noon when they staged their special show, a "theater raising," to mark the start of construction of MCT's spacious new home on West Wadley Avenue, despite lowering skies, bone-chilling wind and sagging temperatures.

What could have been a dismal affair in the face of such adverse weather conditions was, instead, pronounced a solid success by a sizeable audience and media representatives. The occasion seemed especially successful in retrospect, after blue lips and icy hands and feet warmed up somewhat at the Dutch-treat luncheon in Los Patios restaurant following the outdoor ceremony.

MCT's new home, to be erected by Area Builders Inc., is expected to cost in excess of $1.75 million and will boast two separate stage areas in addition to a library, spacious Green Room, a large lobby and numerous technical and rehearsal facilities. The structure has been designed by the San Antonio architectural firm of Ford, Powell and Carson Inc., and Frank Welch Associates of Midland.

In brief remarks to the crowd at Friday's event, MCT director Art Cole pointed out that the new facility will be "not just a theater but a complete performing arts center" for Midland. It will be unique in the opportunities it will present for serving both the city and Midland College in one performing arts program in one location, he said, and predicted that the cooperative concept of the center will be a model for other cities to study — and copy.

Pat Baskin, Midland attorney, longtime MCT member and a former president of MCT's board of governors, served as master of ceremonies for the Friday ceremony. He paid tribute to Cole, MCT managing director for 30 years, for making MCT one of the best-known and most highly regarded community theater organizations anywhere, and also paid tribute to all the Midland area residents whose support and participation through the years has contributed importantly to MCT's growth and continuing progress.

Several dozen persons representing numerous organizations (civic, municipal, state and business organizations in addition to theatrical ones) raised a 40-foot-long sign with the message "Now Building! Your New Community Theatre" to conclude the ground-breaking-ceremony-that-wasn't-a-ground-breaking.

To heighten the effect of a theatrical production, numerous participants in the event were in costume from such past MCT stage productions as "South Pacific," "Anything Goes," "My Fair Lady," "The Mikado" and "1776," among others.

Friday's "theater raising" show was planned and produced by Marg Samples, Joan Baskin, Ed Vogler, Betty King, LaDoyce Lambert and Charles Sutton.

Model Melody Schick, dressed to look like a rag doll, sits very still in her chair.

Melody dresses like doll, sits still to break record

DALLAS (AP) — The arm and stared into rag doll sat with a teddy space from a revolving bear craddled in her left platform. Only her eyes moved.

Then, five hours and 43 boring minutes later, on a signal from a security guard, she rose slowly and tried to smile.

And thus blonde Melody Schick probably set a world record for sitting still. The old record, she had been told by publishers of the Guiness Book of World Records, was five hours and forty minutes.

The record attempt was tried at a shopping center Thursday evening as hundreds of shoppers watched, a condition set by the Guiness publishers. Melody, 24, a professional model, dressed in a rag-doll costume, put bright rouge on her cheeks and sat with her knees turned inward and her heels out.

"It probably made it harder," she said, "but I thought it was cute."

Next to her on the platform and dressed like a Santa helper was her father, Robert, 57, a professional clown from Florida who only sat motionless for three hours and 53 minutes before he passed out.

The only movement allowed by publishers of the Guiness Book of World Records was that of Melody's eyes.

"No, I really don't feel tired at all," said Melody after she stepped down. "There was one moment, about an hour after I started that I got drowsy, but that was all."

Her father said: "You know, I am 57 years old and I guess the circulation is not what it once was. It was sort of the feeling you have when you are driving at night and suddenly feel drowsy."

Longley favors cutting frills

By ROBERT HEARD

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The State Bar should cut out frills such as memberships in private clubs for bar executives before it asks lawyers for an increase in dues, a bar board member said Friday.

Joe Longley of Austin, opposed to a proposed increase, debated board chairman William Hilgers before the Austin Junior Bar.

Longley said he found it "unconscionable" that the bar's executive director, H. C. Pittman, makes $9,000 more than the chief justice of the Texas Supreme Court.

"And it was a source of embarrassment to me when the board voted July 1 to give him a $3,000 bonus before anybody knew how much he made," Longley said.

Pittman makes $54,000 a year and gets a free car and membership in private clubs, all paid for with bar dues, which Longley stressed is "state money."

After the board voted the bonus, one of the members asked how much Pittman made. When no one could answer, John Lawrence, bar president, stepped outside the room and asked Pittman, Longley said.

Hilgers said the club memberships were not for Pittman and other executives personally but for visiting lawyers.

A female lawyer pointed out that some of the clubs excluded women, and she protested the use of her dues to pay for memberships in such clubs.

Hilgers said the proposed dues increase is needed to expand the bar's work in areas where it only recently has begun to sense its full responsibility such as enforcement of ethical standards, support for a legislative program, and as establishment of a client-security fund that would reinburse persons cheated by dishonest lawyers.

Lawyers who have practiced 10 years or more would have their dues increased by $35 to $100 if a majority of those voting in a mail referendum approve. Sixteen thousand ballots already have been received, which means more than 51 per cent of the state's 28,000 lawyers have voted, making the vote binding.

Hilgers said he could not promise that some of the dues increase will be used to pay interest on the money the bar borrowed to build a new $6 million headquarters near the Capitol. He said, however, the bar building will be paid for in the near future eliminating the need to pay interest.

Longley says the bar illegally mortgaged the building for $4 million to the American Bank of Austin. As a state agency, the bar is constitutionally prohibited as are all other state agencies from extending state credit, he says.

Atty. Sen. John Hill has declined to comment on the legality of that transaction, saying he anticipated receiving an official request for an opinion on the question and it would be inappropriate for him to give an informal opinion to the press.

An opinion by Hill in 1974 to the State Bar specifically noted that the bar had not asked if it could validly mortgage its property.

Buffalo calves offered by store

DALLAS (AP) — Neiman Marcus specialty store is selling stock this Christmas — stock which pays dividends in buffalo chips.

The world-famed store's traditional his and her Christmas gift this season is a pair of buffalo calves, delivered to your front lawn, or set to graze beneath your Christmas tree, certified pure by the American Buffalo Association.

"With recognition of her financial and ecological potential, the numbers of buffalo are dramatically on the increase, and while it may be precipitate to guarantee anything like the herds of 60 million or so which once grazed our continent, this year's his and her gift gives each of us a chance to do his part," observes Neiman's Christmas catalog.

The price tag attached to these shaggy beasties is $11,750 for the pair.

Neiman-Marcus says it will deliver the six-months-old male and female calves anywhere in the United States.

"We have sold one pair and have five other serious inquiries," reported a Neiman-Marcus spokesman.

For those inclined toward the exotic but unprepared to nurse mail a pair of buffalo calves, the store also offers at Christmas a $30,000 solid gold omelette pan; a new $30,00 Excalibur II Phaeton automobile, or "his" Russian crown sable full length coat for $20,000 and "hers" for $45,000.

And if all of this makes you nervous, Neiman's offers an ivory cigarette holder for a mere $80.

Forsan trustees to meet

FORSAN — Forsan school trustees are scheduled to discuss a building program and furniture for library, classrooms and an office when they meet Monday at 7 p.m.

Other business to be considered includes insurance for new and remodeled buildings, means of evaluating the superintendent's performance as required by school policy, plans for taking bids for track, lighting and restrooms and a contract for joint tax appraisal services.

Hearing set

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The railroad commission has set a Dec. 20 hearing on negotiations between Coastal States Gas Producing Co. and its subsidiary, Lo-Vaca Gathering Co., and their customers in an attempt to settle $1.4 billion in lawsuits.

The commission said it wants to know what effect a possible settlement might have on natural gas prices.

Citizens of Gay Head, Mass., voted to give the Wampanoag Indian tribe 250 acres of "common land."

Island residents give Indians land

GAY HEAD, Mass. (AP) — The residents of this island resort have taken the first step to give their land back to the Indians.

The Wampanoag Indians filed suit on Thanksgiving Day 1973 seeking the return of 243 acres of ancestral land which include a cranberry bog, a herring creek and multicolored cliffs which attract about 5,000 vacationers every summer.

The people of Gay Head, where half the 500 year-around residents claim Wampanoag blood, have approved a measure initiating the complicated process necessary to return the land to the Indians.

The area at stake is the Common Lands, set aside in Gay Head's town charter in 1878 for the use of the public under the protection of the town. While no one may appropriate the land for private use, any townsperson may seine herring in the creek or pick cranberries.

"What the town did Thursday night was to direct the selectmen to take whatever steps are necessary to convey the land back to the tribe," attorney Thomas Tureen, counsel to the Wampanoag Tribal Council, said Friday. "It couldn't transfer the land (back to the Indians)."

After 2½ hours of debate, voters approved a proposal, 5028, asking the town's three selectmen — all Wampanoag descendants — to pursue steps to transfer the land back to the tribe. The town has 145 registered voters.

In order for the Indians to acquire the land, the Massachusetts Legislature must approve two bills—one to change the state charter for the town on the Common Lands provision and another to empower the town to give the tract to the tribe. Then the town residents must vote again to actually approve the transfers of Indian land.

The Wampanoags' 1973 suit contended that incorporation of the land was invalid because congressional approval allegedly was not sought as required by a 1790 federal act covering transfers of Indian land.

Record Yule tree sales seen

By LOUISE COOK
The Associated Press

It wouldn't be Christmas without a tree. And Americans are expected to buy a record number of live and artificial trees this year, despite higher 1976 prices.

Wholesale prices for live trees are about 5 per cent higher than last year, according to John Koch, a Birdsboro, Pa., grower and president of the National Christmas Tree Association.

And American Tree & Wreath, the nation's largest maker of artificial trees, says retail prices for its products are about 6 or 7 per cent above 1975 levels.

Deciding whether to buy a live tree or an artificial one is a matter of personal preference. The artificial trees cost more, but they can be used year after year and may work out to be cheaper in the long run. They are easier to handle, present less danger of fire and don't shed.

Live trees, on the other hand, are likely to appeal to people who want the real thing. The pine smell, the fun of picking out the perfect tree, unlike anyone else's.

Koch said growers will sell about 27 million live trees this year — about the same as they have for the past four or five years. The most popular species are the Scotch pine and the Douglas fir, followed by the balsam fir.

The price, he said, depends on the quality of the tree and the place you buy it. A six-foot Scotch pine sells for about $4 to $5 at the wholesale level. Add freight charges and the retailers' costs — including rental of the lot — and you can figure on paying at least double and probably more for the tree you carry home.

What Koch calls the "Cadillac trees" — the Douglas firs — sell for $8 to $9 at the wholesale level. Retail prices will be $18 to $20 and up, he said.

What should you look for when buying a tree?

"Beauty is in the eye of the beholder," said Koch. The expert looks for a full, symmetrical shape, tapering at the top. To check for freshness, try bending the needles. If they are rubbery and don't break, the tree is fresh.

Note: Koch said there are two "musts" for the consumer who wants to keep his or her tree fresh. First, make a new cut at the bottom of the tree or have the retailer do it for you. That enables the tree to absorb water. Second, make sure you give the tree plenty of water and never let the stand get dry. A tree that has been standing in a retailer's lot may absorb up to three quarts of water the first day.

Scotch pines generally shed least, but Koch said all varieties of trees should retain their needles well if you keep them watered.

You don't have to worry about shedding at all with an artificial tree. But there are other things to take into consideration: ease of assembly, resemblance to a real tree and storage.

Don Warning, marketing head of American Tree & Wreath, said that sales of artificial trees this year would near the 26 million mark — a record. Another spokesman for the company said the firm's sales this year were estimated at $35 million, up from $25 million last year. He said the increased dollar value was due to price hikes, a growth in the number of units sold and the fact that people are buying more expensive trees.

A spokesman for Dudwick-Shindler Associates, sales representatives for a variety of Christmas products, including artificial trees, estimated that Americans will spend $80 to $100 million on fake trees this year.

He said the cost can run anywhere from $9.99 for a small tree to $99.99 for the eight-foot-and-up variety. The most popular varieties cost between $30 and $50 for six-foot sizes. The so-called convenience trees — which you do not have to assemble branch by branch — are even more expensive: $40 to $70. Most of the artificial trees come in their own storage cartons; you should be able to store a six-to-eight-foot tree in a box about the size of a small coffee table.

The Dudwick-Shindler spokesman said realism is the most important factor in selecting an artificial tree. "The better the tree, the faster it sells, the more like a live tree it looks," he said. "Silver trees are passe," he added, explaining that the aluminum trees fell victim to changing style preferences and concerns over safety.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission notes that the metal trees present no hazard in themselves, but can be the source of serious shocks if electric lights are attached. Sharp metal edges can cut the cord insulation or metal needles may touch an electrically charged component. Never put lights on a metal tree.

The green artificial trees generally are made of a flame-retardant plastic and will not support flames. If you apply a match directly to a needle it will burn and melt, but the fire will not spread.

Suicide among children rising

BELMONT, Mass. (AP) — The rate of suicide among children in their grammar school years, generally thought of as a person's most carefree and happy times, is increasing at an alarming rate, a Bostonarea child psychiatrist says.

Why do children from 6 to 11 want to take their own lives?

"The most obvious reason they do it is the same as for an adult — to get back at someone," said Dr. Peter Saltzman, director of McLean Hospital's Children's Center. "They do it to call attention to a very desperate situation, usually to a loss of a loved one."

Saltzman, 37, who specializes in treating youngsters who attempt suicide, said the most frequent occasion for a childhood suicide attempt is a death in the family or a separation or an argument with a loved one.

One signal of possible suicide in a young child, Saltzman said, is depression, an ailment psychiatry did not recognize in children until about 10 years ago.

Depression in children, he said, can show as hyperactivity, a failure to make friends, poor school performance and hypochondria. Among 10-and 11-year-olds it might show up as delinquency, vandalism and fighting.

The increasing rate of divorce and separation and emotional disorders such as alcoholism and depression among parents also affect young children's behavior, Saltzman said.

"...we've come a long way from thinking it's all the parents' fault. What we're trying to figure out is to what degree is the child predisposed to depression," he said.

Saltzman said that a recent clinical study he did — based on his own experience and that of his colleagues — showed that about 75 suicides of pre-adolescents were officially reported in 1973, the last year his study covered. That figure could be compared to a total of three in 1958, he said.

Among the general population, the number of suicides increased from 18,500 in 1958 to about 25,000 in 1973.

10,000 flee gas

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Lethal chlorine gas spewed out of control at a chemical refinery near here Friday, forcing evacuation of 10,000 persons as the gas cloud moved slowly into rural Pointe Coupe Parish.

Charles Roemer, state commissioner of administration, said the poisonous gas — the kind used in trench warfare in World War I — could not be cut off.

In severe doses, the gas kills. Even limited exposure causes respiratory and skin burns.

Protests mar Nobel ceremonies

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Seven Americans collected all five of this year's Nobel prizes from King Carl XVI Gustaf on Friday in a ceremony marred by protests against the economics award to Milton Friedman of Chicago.

Two minutes before the solemn two-hour ceremony was to end, a young man in white tie and tails jumped up in the audience and shouted "Friedman go home" and "Long live the Chilean people." He was quickly hustled away.

Outside, some 2,000 leftists marched to protest the Friedman award as some 300 policemen stood watch. The leftists claim the University of Chicago economist supports the rightwing military government in Chile. Friedman denies it.

It was the first time in the history of the prizes for science, literature and economics that a single country won them all. Only the peace prize, which was not given this year, was missing.

The American sweep was so unusual that Sune Bergstrom, chairman of the Nobel Foundation, rejected in his opening remarks what he said were suggestions that Sweden's new non-Socialist government had pressured the committees in the U.S. Bicentennial year. And he added, "The American predominance has now presumably attained its apogee."

Some of the laureates themselves considered the sweep an accident or a coincidence.

The laureates rose from their red plush chairs to trumpet flourishes and excerpts from "West Side Story" and Aaron Copland's "The Tender Land," to accept the $160,000 prize certificates from the Swedish king.

Friedman, who smiled through the outburst in the hall, said of Bergstrom's remark about American predominance reaching its high point, "I hope he's wrong, but he may be right. It should be emphasized that we've led these awards over the years because of our open immigration policy. Now, that's changed. It isn't what it should be."

Baruch Blumberg, who shared the medicine award, said his fellow laureates hoped more Americans would distinguish themselves.

"It's our concern that if continues," he said. "But I wonder if it's possible now that basic, not goal-directed, research is getting less support from the government. It would be difficult under today's circumstances to accomplish what I did."

Blumberg explained that he received federal funds for what appeared to be an esoteric, probing project. It lead to finding a virus that causes jaundice.

"Now there's a tremendous concern about 'goals.' I agree with having them, but not right away. A lot of America's unparalleled accomplishments in medicine in the last 20 years have to do with this."

The winners represented a remarkable cross-section of the United States.

There was Burton Richter, a physics laureate from Stanford University, who sent his teenage son for a couple of hamburgers in the official, yachtlength black limousine.

The first to be honored in the brightly lighted concert hall were the physics co-winners, Richter and Ting.

A HIGHLAND PARK, Mich., fireman helps Mrs. Judy Yonts walk away from her home while another fireman carries her two-year-old son, Steve, from the house after a fire engulfed the bedroom where Mrs. Yonts' two children were. Steve was dead on arrival at the hospital and his three-year-old sister is in critical condition.

'Regular' weekend weather due

In what seems to be turning into a weekly pattern in Midland, the weatherman predicts unpleasant weather this weekend.

Considerable cloudiness and continued cold is predicted through Sunday with a slight chance of rain or rain and snow mixed today and tonight, a spokesman at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal said.

The high today should be in the low 40s, followed by a low tonight in the low 30s. Saturday the high should be in the 40s.

Winds should be from the northeast at 10 to 15 mph today and the probability of precipitation should be 20 per cent today and tonight.

Area cities reported generally cold and windy conditions late Friday evening.

Andrews and Crane both reported cloudy, windy and cold weather, while Stanton and Odessa were both cold, windy and clear.

Rankin was cold and clear, with a slight wind. Big Lake reported overcast skies and cool, windy weather.

Navy jet shot down by Marine

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Navy A4 Skyhawk jet warplane crashed into the Atlantic Ocean off North Carolina Friday after being struck by a missile fired by a Marine aircraft, Pentagon officials said.

Defense Department spokesmen said Navy and Marine officers are investigating the incident.

They said the Skyhawk was "accidentally struck by an unarmed missile fired from a Marine F4 during a training mission."

The Navy said the pilot of the A4, Lt. Jerome L. Petykowski, 30, of Chicago, ejected safely before the plane hit the water and was picked up by a Marine rescue helicopter.

The Marine pilot was not identified.

Petykowski, who lives at Virginia Beach, Va., with his wife and family, was taken to a hospital at the Cherry Point Marine base in North Carolina for an examination and was released.

Navy officials said the A4 was on a "routine training mission" when it crashed 40 miles south of Cherry Point at 10:30 a.m. EST.

The Coast Guard and Marines both sent out rescue craft and a Marine helicopter made the recovery, Navy officials said.

Accused abductors convicted of extortion

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — Samuel Bronfman 2nd's two accused abductors were acquitted of kidnap charges Friday, but were convicted of extorting $2.3 million in ransom from the whisky heir's father.

By its acquittal, the jury apparently accepted testimony of defendant Mel Patrick Lynch that the Aug. 8, 1975, kidnaping was a hoax planned by the 23year-old Bronfman to extort money from his father. Co-defendant Dominic Byrne did not take the witness stand.

"He engineered it," said juror Amelia Driscot, a Mount Vernon, N.Y., housewife, in agreeing with Lynch's account of a phony kidnaping. She was one of seven women on the 12-member panel that began deliberations Wednesday night after an eight-week trial that began Oct. 14.

Lynch admitted extortion to the degree that he delivered ransom demands to Edgar Bronfman, head of the Seagram distillery empire, and picked up the ransom, which was later recovered. But he said he was only doing young Bronfman's bidding.

Lynch said he was forced to help when Bronfman threatened to expose him as homosexual.

Bronfman testified that the kidnaping was real and he was in fear of his life. He denied having any part in the extortion scheme adding he had no need for the money. He said he was kidnaped at gunpoint from his mother's estate about 25 miles from New York City.

Byrne, 54, a limousine operator, did not testify during the trial. However, he had claimed he had been duped into taking part in the crime.

The lawyers for both defendants said they would appeal the extortion conviction, which carries a maximum 15 years prison term. Kidnaping carries a minimum of 15 years and a maximum of life. State Supreme Court Justice George Beisheim Jr. scheduled sentencing for Jan. 6.

Both defendants have been held without bail since their arrest 16 months ago and Byrne's wife, Elizabeth, told newsmen she hoped Beisheim would sentence them to time already served.

Despite the kidnaping acquittal, Asst. Dist. Atty. Geoffrey Orlando said he would seek the maximum sentence.

mitment" to putting young people to work in the nation's urban areas.

A $5-billion program to create jobs, primarily among youth, welfare recipients and the longterm unemployed, was part of a proposal presented to Carter on Thursday by Reginald Jones, chairman of General Electric Co.

But a larger part of the plan called for a $15-billion permanent tax cut along with a $3 billion increase in the investment tax credit. Most of Carter's advisers favor a one-time tax cut.

Sen. Harry F. Byrd, Ind-Va., said he hopes Carter proves to be nearly as fiscally conservative as he is and said the President-elect reaffirmed his intention to seek a balanced budget by the end of four years in office.

"I came away well impressed with the President-elect," said Byrd, who didn't endorse a presidential candidate this year. "I liked the way he talked and what he said."

Smith attending course at DPS

AUSTIN — Midland sheriff-elect Dallas Smith is among sixty-six newly elected sheriffs attending a one-week course at the Department of Public Safety which teaches the basic duties and functions of the office.

The five-day school, which started Monday, is sponsored jointly by the DPS and the Sheriffs' Association of Texas.

DPS director Col. Wilson E. Speir said the officers were learning of the extensive and complex facilities that are available to them and other officers through the department.

Instructors for the course represent various federal and state agencies who are explaining the assistance available to the new office holders.

Grade school hit by vandals

More than $1,500 worth of goods were either stolen or vandalized sometime during Thursday night at Travis Elementary School, 900 E. Gist Ave., Midland police report.

A school employe reported the burglary at 7:36 a.m. Friday.

Police found about $80 worth of meat thrown on the floor of the cafeteria. In addition, a wall clock was torn from the wall and a washroom was vandalized.

In an office, one electric typewriter worth an estimated $700 and one coffeepot were found broken, police reports said.

The following items were taken from two classrooms: two reel-to-reel tape players, two cassette tape players worth $50 each, two cassette players worth $100 each, two filmstrip projectors, one record player and three extension cords.

Entry into each room was gained by breaking plate glass windows. A total of five windows were broken, according to police reports.

Later police found two of the reel-to-reel tape players, two projectors, the record player and one extension cord in a field south of the school between the school and a trailer park, according to the reports.

Cat show scheduled

The Permian Basin Feline Fanciers will hold their first national cat show in the Midland County Exhibit Hall Building Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

A four ring registered cat show featuring 160 registered cats and a two ring household pet show featuring 30 pets are scheduled.

Trophies, ribbons and rosettes will be awarded to contestants.

DEATHS

Mrs. Collier dies at age 88

SAN ANGELO — Mrs. Esther Scarborough Collier died Friday afternoon in a San Angelo hospital at the age of 88.

She was the daughter of the late W. F. Scarborough, a pioneer Midland rancher and the sister of Mrs. Tom Linebery of Midland.

Services will be conducted at 2:30 p.m. Sunday in the Robert Massie Funeral Home. Burial will be at 4 p.m. Monday in Restlawn Memorial Park in El Paso, with the Rev. Harold Odum, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, officiating.

Born Jan. 24, 1888, in Merkle, she lived the past 12 years in San Angelo. She was married to Henry Zachariah Collier, who died Oct. 8, 1961.

Survivors include one son, one sister and three grandchildren.

Southwest Airlines asks for midwestern routes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas-based Southwest Airlines asked the Civil Aeronautics Board Friday to let it offer low cost, high frequency air service between Chicago's Midway Airport and 13 other major cities.

The airline had announced earlier it would seek federal approval of the plan as soon as it could get the necessary legal papers completed. An attorney for the carrier said the papers were filed with the board late Friday.

Southwest proposed forming a subsidiary firm to operate the service — a maneuver designed to keep the CAB from exercising jurisdiction over Southwest's Texas service. Southwest currently does not fly across state lines and thus is exempt from CAB regulation. The carrier credits this exemption from federal economic rules as a major factor in its success.

The airline proposed that its subsidary fly between Chicago's Midway Airport and Buffalo; Detroit; Cleveland; Columbus, Ohio; Pittsburgh; Louisville, Ky.; Memphis; St. Louis; Kansas City; Omaha, Neb.; Des Moines, Iowa; Minneapolis, and Las Vegas, Nev.

The airline would charge fares of $25 for one way flights of less than one hour duration during daylight hours and $15 for the same flight at night and on weekends. Flights of more than one hour would have fares of $40 during daylight hours and $25 on nights and weekends. These prices are the same that Southwest charges for flights in Texas.

The only exception would be flights from Chicago to Las Vegas, Nev., which would have a fare of $65.

The proposed fares are about half of what the federally regulated airlines now flying the routes charge. The one way coach fare between Chicago and Buffalo, for example, is $60 while Southwest would charge $40 in the daytime and $25 at night.

UT regents approve UTPB degree program

AUSTIN-University of Texas System Regents gave their approval Friday for the University of Texas of the Permian Basin to offer the master of science degree in earth science (geology).

The action highlighted UT Permian matters before the board of regents' regular meeting.

Approval of the Coordinating Board of the Texas College and University System also is needed before the new program is assured, but Dr. Charles McLarnan, dean of the college of science and engineering, said the degree, 16th master's program for the upper-level and graduate university, could be ready to begin in the fall semester of 1977.

The regents also gave official approval for the membership and bylaws of the UT Permian Development Board which was organized Nov. 3 with Charles H. Priddy of Midland as chairman and E. M. Schur of Odessa as vice chairman.

From Midland are chairman Priddy, James N. Allison, Jr., Ray F. Herndon, Jr., Stanley C. Moore, and W. F. Roden.

From Odessa are vice chairman Schur, W. D. Noel, Norvell W. Harris, Charles R. Perry, and Louis Rochester.

From Pecos is Mrs. Richard Slack.

From Big Spring is Joe Pickle.

From Monahans is Conrad Dunagan.

From McCamey is Claude W. Brown.

From Snyder is Mel Z. Gilbert.

From Andrews is James Roberts.

The board authorized President V. R. Cardozier to accept bids and award the contract for a 4,000 square foot warehouse to be constructed on a south campus site. The structure, expected to cost about $23,000, would house equipment, parts, and a paint and repair shop for the university physical plant division.

Also approved was renewal of an agreement between the university and the Permian Basin Community Centers for Mental Health-Mental Retardation for services performed by the human potentials center at UT Permian. The HPC evaluates occupational and interpersonal strengths and weakness and recommends avenues to enhance the coping behavior and ability of persons to deal successfully with the problems of living. The agreement runs through Aug. 31, 1977.

Approval was given for an interagency cooperative contract for UT Permain to conduct research on the effects of abiotic and biotic factors on growth and development of range plants. The research is directed by Dr. Charles O. McKinney, associate professor of life science, and is conducted on UT lands near Crane.

The board of regents also approved:

—Granting of easements for underground electric service lines serving the student housing area and a pump station for distribution of untreated water for on-campus irrigation.

—A contract with Amigos Bibleographic Council to provide for cataloging of books for the UT Permian library through the Ohio College Library Center.

—An agreement covering costs incurred in attendance at two conferences related to the Texas statewide corrections intern program.

Brownwood company gets contract

Greenwood school trustees have awarded a $1.64 million construction contract to Herman Bennett Co. of Brownwood.

The construction company submitted the low bid of $1,639,500. The contract was awarded at a special meeting of the school trustees Thursday night.

Other bidders were as follows: J. W. Cooper Construction of Odessa, $1,657,400; Area Builders of Odessa, $1,666,500; Haney and Sivley of Abilene, $1,706,880; R. B. Snead Construction of Odessa, $1,708,000; Rose and Sons Inc. of Midland, $1,746,400, and Rose Construction Co. of Abilene, $1,795,200.

The construction project includes a new elementary school, a swimming pool, a stadium, two tennis courts, dressing rooms and a concession stand.

present their wishes to the round man in red.

Meanwhile, members of the Goddard speech and drama department presented Dr. Seuss's play "Once Upon A Time."

Free hot chocolate, coffee and soft drinks were available throughout the night, thanks to the Midland Jaycees. Free pony rides also were provided to the younger set, and the riders seemed almost immune to the cold winds whistling around them while mounted upon the horses.

Winners of the free bicycles given away during the festivities were Tanis Burns and Brian Temple, both of whom met the requirements of being under 12 years of age and present that night.

The city Parks and Recreation Department and the Midland Jaycees sponsored the lighting festivities. City Parks and Recreation Commission chairman Bill Spruill served as master of ceremonies.

No big cuts, please

Election campaign promises certainly are much easier to make than to fulfill, as Jimmy Carter now is finding out, just as other incoming presidents have discovered.

On the campaign trail, Carter accused the Ford administration of allowing "waste and mismanagement" to bloat the defense budget, and assured voters he could find ways to cut it by $5 to $7 billion without jeopardizing national security.

Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld, who has a more intimate knowledge of the defense budget than Carter could be expected to have as a candidate, has issued a word of warning to the incoming administration as he prepares to step down. He says it would inject a "fundamental instability" into world affairs if Mr. Carter tries to fulfill his campaign promise at any cost.

Rumsfeld is concerned that defense cutbacks would have worldwide repercussions if they give the impression that the United States is willing to let its defense capability stand still or deteriorate while the Soviet Union is engaged in an obvious arms buildup.

A defense establishment that is costing more than $100 billion a year deserves as much scrutiny for "waste and mismanagement" as any part of the federal bureaucracy. If Mr. Carter can find ways to save money through greater efficiency at the Defense Department, he should do so.

But what Mr. Rumsfeld is saying — and what Mr. Carter should heed — is that saving money by scrapping entire weapons programs or making unilateral cutbacks in our forces overseas is quite another matter.

The Defense secretary believes the President-elect will find that the defense budget cannot be cut significantly at all without the unsettling results he foresees.

If this is the case, and Mr. Rumsfeld certainly should know what he is talking about, it is hoped that the new President will be more influenced by the facts than by his campaign promise.

It certainly is no crime, as history shows, for presidents to admit that not everything in their platform can be delivered.

New majority leader

Congressman Jim Wright of Fort Worth is due congratulations on his election by the U.S. House of Representatives as its majority leader.

Likewise, the House merits commendation on its wise choice in selecting the West Texan for this important post.

Jim Wright, during his 22 years in Congress, certainly has distinguished himself as a leader and as an efficient, fair and judicious representative of his home district and of the Lone Star State as a whole.

It was encouraging, indeed, that the House chose Jim Wright, who has been termed a leader of moderation, over the more liberal Phil Burton of California.

Regional balance in congressional leadership also is provided since Thomas P. O'Neill, the new House speaker, is from the Northeast.

Texas and Texans are proud and pleased to have this veteran Fort Worth representative assume this position of prominence in the Congress.

All best wishes and continued success are directed to Rep. Jim Wright in his new role of leadership, which, of course, will be more national in scope.

Mark Russell says

ST. JOHN'S JOURNAL:

Reform fever signals domestic dictatorship

By JEFFREY ST. JOHN
Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — "If corporation executives are held to what is appropriately a high degree of responsibility," asserted John J. McCloy, "is it not equally important that our representatives be held to a similar responsibility?"

McCloy, who investigated the Gulf Oil "illegal payments to politicians," has come to the conclusion after a probe of "corporate slush funds" that it was the congressional ban on corporations giving political campaign contributions that led to the creation of slush funds.

The former president of the World Bank and chairman of the Ford Foundation contends, moreover, that enforcement of "anti-corruption laws" in politics is "one-sided." He also maintains that a large percentage of the "illegal" corporate gifts were, in fact, solicited by politicians who later, at least publicly, deplored the practice.

"Should not the corporate citizen," McCloy asks, "even though he cannot vote, have the right to contribute to the campaign of candidates or parties who are disposed to advance business interests just as the trade unions and the labor organizations (which seem to operate under more liberal provisions) have the right to support labor interests?"

Any fair-minded American will, doubtlessly, answer yes.

But the recent presidential election campaign, the first to be financed under the newly enacted campaign spending laws, clearly demonstrated that business was placed at a dangerous disadvantage in contrast to the labor unions. Not only were the new laws written to favor labor union power, but they were drawn, and are now being administered, to favor the unions which are permitted to engage in political activity forbidden to business.

What this amounts to is the disenfranchisement of an entire class of citizens solely because they have financial means at their disposal proportionate to, or exceeding, labor unions. This is, as a consequence, the outlawing of political liberty while pretending that the current campaign finance laws are reforms and democratic.

In reality they are the instrument for destroying representative elections.

Now, with the Democratic Party in control of both Congress and the White House, an extension of this outlawing of political liberty is being proposed under the guise of public financing of congressional elections. The Carter administration is committed to such a proposal, for it would insure a permanent political career for incumbent seats which are now held largely by liberal and left-wing Democrats.

Labor has already had a lion's share of support among Democrats in Congress, and it has gained even greater influence in 1976 because of the newly created campaign finance laws that favor labor's political activities while placing restrictions on business.

"Public financing" of congressional campaigns, augmented by labor's continuing support of the Democrats, would mean the total bureaucratic and government control of the electoral process. With private contributions totally outlawed and business' political activities greatly restricted, the way would be opened for a special kind of corruption and manipulation that would lead to the permanent institutionalization of a one-party control of the entire political process in this nation.

In short, under the fiction of democracy, we would have the installation of one-party dictatorship.

The fever of reform, produced by the Watergate scandal, is already pointing to an era when the law is being used to enfranchise one group and disenfranchise another.

This birth of bureaucratic control of elections can only end as has the bureaucratization and control of the national government of other aspects of America's social and economic life: the laying low of life, liberty, and the pursuit of individual happiness.

It is some present the politicians have handed this Republic as it closes the Bicentennial of its birth. In two centuries we have moved from rebellion against a British dictatorship to the legal construction of a domestic dictatorship.

Organized crime controversy

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — A bitter, blazing controversy has erupted inside the Justice Dept. over how to combat organized crime.

In theory, the special strike forces are supposed to mobilize the resources of the federal government to disrupt underworld operations and to bear down on the crime lords. The strike force chiefs believe this requires a concentrated, coordinated, national effort without interference from politically appointed U.S. attorneys.

Most U.S. attorneys, on the other hand, want to bring the strike forces under tighter control. They are supported by Richard Thornburgh, chief of the Justice Dept.'s criminal division.

In recent months, he has revised and restricted the investigative guidelines. He has also closed down the strike forces in St. Louis and New Orleans, and has given the U.S. attorneys in Newark and New York City jurisdiction over the strike forces in their cities.

This has outraged the strike force chiefs, who look upon themselves as professionals free of political pressure. It has also upset Internal Revenue Commissioner Donald Alexander, whose agents are helping the strike forces bring the crime bosses to justice. He told us the New Orleans strike force, for example, was developing several important cases.

In a blunt, confidential memorandum endorsed by all the strike force chiefs, Michael DeFeo of the Los Angeles strike force warned that the new guidelines would "initially reduce the effectiveness of the organized crime program."

He charged that the guidelines would exclude "associates and confederates of organized crime members." But his greatest concern, according to the memo, was that Thornburgh's moves would "ultimately abolish" the strike force program "by dividing its control among the individual United States attorneys."

The new guidelines, approved recently by Attorney General Edward Levi, limit the definition of organized crime and require strike force chiefs to inform U.S. attorneys about search warrants in advance. There are also other new restrictions; strike force involvement in narcotics cases, for example, will be reduced.

DeFeo discerned from these developments that the strike forces eventually will be "phased out, absorbed by and conducted under direct supervision of a local U.S. attorney, retaining the strike forces name for public relations purposes."

Sources inside the strike forces have told us that Thornburgh intends to kill the program. But Thornburgh insisted that he has no intention of destroying the strike forces. He didn't rule out the possibility, however, of merging the remaining strike forces into the offices of the U.S. attorneys. In any event, he said he will leave the final decision up to the incoming Carter administration.

DeFeo argued in his confidential memo that the strike forces were better suited than U.S. attorneys' offices to wage war on organized crime. The memo, dated September 27, pointed out that "the strike forces had the independent, permanent capability for a sustained program that local U.S. attorneys lacked because of their conflicting obligations, fixed terms and higher turnover."

William Lynch, the tough prosecutor who ran the organized crime section, agreed with DeFeo's assessments. In an earlier memorandum, dated August 30, Lynch warned that the new guidelines "heralds an end to an effective strike force program."

The guidelines will be regarded by Mafia mobsters, he complained, "as limiting the scope of strike force investigative and prosecutive mandates." Thornburgh responded to Lynch's complaints by removing him as head of the organized crime section, which oversees the strike forces.

Thornburgh told us emphatically that Lynch and DeFeo are wrong. The new guidelines, he said, are merely part of an updating of the U.S. attorneys' manual. "It is only logical that such an effort would take account," he explained, "of evolving needs, priorities, conditions and relationships in the criminal justice field."

He denied that the guidelines would limit investigations to mob members only, but claimed that their associates would also be included in the new definition of "criminal syndicates." The term, he said, "appears to me to clearly encompass all of those highly organized, disciplined associations engaged in supplying illegal goods and services."

According to Thornburgh, "the guidelines are premised upon the continued existence of at least some strike forces, and their working in tandem with the U.S. attorneys' offices."

The Democrats who will take over the White House and Capitol Hill, meanwhile, have expressed interest in the internal battle. Rep. William Hungate, D.-Mo., chairman of the House Criminal Justice subcommittee, has asked in a private letter that Thornburgh explain his actions to restrict the strike forces.

President-elect Jimmy Carter's transition team at the Justice Dept. is also examining the strike force problem. But they had an abrupt "no comment" about their views.

INSIDE REPORT:

President-elect Jimmy Carter swings back to detente

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

Evans Novak

WASHINGTON — Apparent acceptance by President-elect Carter of the Brezhnev-Kissinger explanation for why a SALT II agreement was not signed this year points to precisely the same course that hard-liners had feared if President Ford were elected.

In a CBS interview Nov. 29, Carter blamed the stalled strategic arms limitation talks (SALT) on "an incompability among the (Ford) cabinet officers" and election year politics. Like Leonid Brezhnev and Henry Kissinger, the President-elect did not mention Soviet refusal to budge an inch on critical points.

This position on SALT, plus a friendlier attitude toward detente by President-elect Carter than was shown by candidate Carter, and the names now falling into place as his national security team add up to a positive reaction to the Kremlin's new peace offensive. The first step could be early negotiation of a SALT II agreement along the lines of one pushed by Secretary of State Kissinger and Chairman Brezhnev and opposed by the Ford Defense Department and Arms Control and Disarmament Agency (ACDA).

All this is made less than certain by Carter's willingness to double-reverse any issue, particularly one where he is a novice. Moreover, the fraction of hard-line Democrats in Congress will try to slow down Carter. Nevertheless, current evidence indicates the President-elect moving slightly left in foreign policy as he is moving slightly right in domestic policy.

At issue are two new weapons systems not specifically covered under the SALT II understanding at Vladivostok: the Soviet Backfire bomber and the U.S. cruise missile. Typically, the Russians want an agreement permitting unlimited Backfire production and virtually curtailing the cruise missile.

Indeed, had President Ford won, he and Kissinger were ready to push just such a treaty, spruced up by some face-savers. Carter's campaign statements, while cryptic, suggested he might sacrifice the cruise missile — perhaps too severe a loss for the U.S. arsenal — but only in return for the Backfire bomber also being included under the strategic weapons limit.

Carter's comments to Walter Cronkite Nov. 29 represent a shift. Asked about unpleasant surprises in transition briefings, Carter replied somewhat unresponsively but most significantly: "The lack of progress in SALT because of an incompatibility among the cabinet officers and their opinions about what ought to be done...I can understand that the election year in our country is a time for delay, and for an absence of commitment to the resolutuion of a problem."

Cronkite next posed a remarkable question: "Have you learned anything that would give you cause to believe the Soviet Union has as much right to be suspicious of us and our motives as we have to be suspicious of them?"

Instead of snapping back a flat no, Carter paused and said, "I don't know how to answer that question," then, again unresponsively but significantly, revealed he had asked Kissinger whether the Russians had ever lied to him. "And he said no," Carter reported, adding: "I know that one major falsehood could precipitate an international crisis, but to know that has never occurred in Secretary Kissinger's experience is a very encouraging thing."

This extraordinary exchange reflects Kissinger's fabled persuasiveness. One of many instances where, contrary to Kissinger, the Soviets did not tell the truth directly affects SALT. Brezhnev's claim of a 1,000-mile range for the Backfire bomber is one-third the softest-line CIA estimates; the more accurate range may be 6,000 miles.

Carter was reacting favorably to the Kremlin's peace offensive. The message that Moscow plans no "test" for the new President but wants to pursue detente was carried to him by such disparate couriers as Averell Harriman, 85-year-old Democratic pioneer for detente, and William Simon, Republican Secretary of the Treasury.

Whereas Ford-Kissinger desires for a soft-line SALT II agreement were opposed at the Pentagon by Dr. James Schlesinger and later by Donald Rumsfeld, there may be no such counterweight in the Carter administration. Dr. Harold Brown of Cal Tech, front-runner to become Secretary of Defense, is an ardent arms controller and foe of the cruise missile. Secretary of State-designate Cyrus Vance is not renowned for swimming upstream.

Schlesinger returning as Secretary of Defense could counteract all this. But that prospect appears ebbing, with more talk today of Schlesinger becoming intelligence chief. Even in that less influential post, he could insure that the new President receives unadorned intelligence about the Soviets that could inhibit what is becoming a mad rush back to detente.

Two ex-soldiers get death penalty in Odessa

ODESSA, Tex. (AP) — Two former Fort Sills, Okla., soldiers stood calmly today in front of television cameras as a West Texas district court judge told them they must die in the electric chair before sunrise on Jan. 31, 1977, for the murder of a state trooper.

But attorneys for Larry J. Ross and Selwyn Gholson said they would appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court for a stay of execution.

Ross and Gholson, both black, became the eighth and ninth men to have their execution dates set since the Texas death penalty was upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court earlier this year.

A packed courtroom that included the widow of the slain officer and some of his fellow troopers listened in silence as Judge John Busby issued the order to the director of the Department of Corrections to execute Ross and Gholson by means of a "current of electricity," on Jan. 31.

After the four-minute court session, the trooper's widow approached Ector County Dist. Atty. John Green and thanked him for what she termed "real Western justice."

The two men were convicted in Odessa for the slaying of state trooper Hollie Tull in September, 1974, a few hours after the two had allegedly held up the Waburg State Bank north of Austin. The case was moved to Odessa on a change of venue.

Tull was shot to death after he stopped a car described as the one used in the robbery.

Gholson, of New York, was arrested less than hour later in a field near his abandoned car. Ross, of Granger, surrendered to the FBI five days later in Granger after his arrest was negotiated by relatives.

Friday Gholson wore a light tan shirt and blue slacks. Ross wore a dark brown striped shirt and sported a short Afro hairdo.

The two were put in irons and handcuffed and then taken to the county jail and on to the state prison at Huntsville.

Court-appointed attorney Gerald Brown of Temple said he would confer with attorneys for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People to file an application for a stay of execution.

Five of the nine men who had their execution dates set have been granted stays of execution.

Unless some action is taken within the next few days, the first man to die in the electric chair in Texas since 1964 will be Doyle Boulware who is scheduled to be executed Dec. 27.

Mummy identified

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An autopsy and historical research Friday gave tentative identification of a fun house dummy as an Oklahoma outlaw whose hardened body for 65 years was an object of ghoulish humor in sideshows and exibitions.

The body, painted fluorescent red and hanging from a gallows, was taken from a Long Beach fun house this week when an arm came off to reveal human bones.

Coroner's officials said they performed an autopsy Friday and found inside the body a copper jacket of an old-style bullet.

It was this bullet, it appeared from the coroner's examination and information supplied by Oklahoma officials, that caused the death of train-robber Elmer McCurdy in a half-hour gun battle with a sheriff's posse in October 1911.

Ashley tells of distrust for authorities

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A former executive of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. testified Friday he never asked any law enforcement authorities to check for suspected wiretapping on his telephones because he couldn't trust them to tell the truth.

"I wouldn't dare call any law enforcement agency that works so closely with the telephone company," James Ashley told a state district court jury here.

Ashley testified under cross-examination by Southwestern bell lawyers in his $4 million invasion of privacy suit against the giant telephone company.

In earlier testimony Ashley said he hired J.L. Patterson of Houston to check his home telephones for bugging. Patterson said in a sworn statement that he found two strange wires on one phone that could only be used for wiretapping.

Patterson could not testify in person because he currently is serving a five-year prison sentence for defrauding the telephone company with a so-called "blue box," which is used to make long distance calls without paying a toll charge.

Ashley testified Friday he knew Patterson was "in trouble with the telephone company" when he hired him to check for wiretaps on his telephone in 1975.

But Ashley, who had said earlier the telephone company works closely with law enforcement agencies, said he didn't trust these authorities.

He said that if law enforcement agencies cooperated against the telephone company, then the telephone company would refuse to help the law enforcement agencies make wiretaps in the future.

Hubert Green, Southwestern Bell lawyer, implied during his cross-examination that the two wires in Ashley's phone could have been part of a speaker-phone arrangement that was not in use at the time.

Ashley contends in his suit that Southwestern Bell invaded his privacy by wiretapping his telephones and improperly using his long distance telephone call records.

The privacy invasion allegedly occurred after Ashley joined the family of the late T.O. Gravitt in November 1974 to file a $29 million libel and slander suit against the telephone company.

Ashley was fired from his $55,000-a-year job in San Antonio and Gravitt committed suicide following an internal company investigation in 1974. Gravitt was head of Bell's Texas operations at the time of his death in Dallas.

No trial date has been set for the big suit, which is pending in federal court here.

"THINKING" with ODOM
PHILIPPIANS 4:8

The words "love" and "faith" are probably the most popular words among Bible reading and Bible believing people. We hear nearly every day people talking about loving Jesus. I saw a sign on an automobile bumper this past week which said, "If you love Jesus honk." I saw another sign a few months ago which simply said, "I love Jesus." Lest you wonder if I "honked" as I passed by this neighboring autombile, the answer is, "No, I did not!"

My testimony of loving Jesus is not the honking of my horn. Such nonsense is as far away from the teaching of the Holy Bible as the east is from the west. Jesus Himself declared, "...If a man love me, he will keep my words..." (Jn. 14:23) People can go around all the live long day honking their horn and that doesn't mean a thing on earth, so far as testifying for the Lord Christ is concerned. The test of loving God is the keeping of His commandments.

Let me illustrate the point in a more graphic form. The lady who was driving the car with the bumper sticker which said, "IF YOU LOVE JESUS, HONK," was driving 48 miles an hour in a 30 mile speed zone. Now, if I was going to drive like that in violation of the laws of the land, I believe I would remove my sticker. The Bible says to "obey the laws of our land." (Ro.13) Jesus said, "IF you love me you will keep my commandments." How can the good lady honk about her love and at the same time violate the teaching of Christ? I would rather study the New Testament and try to obey its commands to show my love for Christ than to go about letting the world know it by simply "honking my horn."

Faith works on the same principle. People are constantly talking about being saved by faith and in the same breath deny that some of Christ's commands are binding on man. When we come to this side of the cross and learn what people did in the first century to be saved from past sins, why is that not enough? In every dispensation of time, man has had to express his faith in God by DOING what God said. Read Hebrews the eleventh chapter and learn once and for all this important point. No man can please God and ignore the commands of God to him. It works exactly like love. One is saved by faith when his faith leads him to obey the gospel of Jesus Christ. (Js. 1:21-25)

Reader friend, think about it with me. Can any of us say we love Christ without showing reverence to the teaching of the New Testment? Can we claim salvation by faith and at the same time refuse to obey the gospel of Christ? I don't believe so!

Probe chief spawns controversy

By GEORGE LARDNER Jr.
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The cramped, three-room suite is deceptively modest. The staff already numbers 35; luckily, they have yet to show up for work all at once.

Some of them are in Mexico City, looking for memories of Lee Harvey Oswald. Others have been in Memphis, tracking down records on Martin Luther King.

The House Select Committee on Assassinations is evidently anxious to make a quick start. It was created less than three months ago. Its members will met Thursday to discuss a two-year inquiry that is expected to cost approximately $5 million.

It could be the single most expensive investigation in Congressional history, but its proponents argue that it ought to be done thoroughly and professionally, or not at all. The trails behind the murders of President Kennedy and Martin Luther King will not be easily picked up again.

The chief exponent, and director, of the investigation is the committee's chief counsel, Richard A. Sprague, a longtime prosecutor from Philadelphia with a remarkable record of success.

He has tried more than 70 first-degree murder cases and "lost" only one.

"The courts upheld us," Sprague says proudly. "He went to jail."

For the present inquiry, Sprague, 51, brings only his tools. When he took the assignment, he says, he knew next to nothing about the assassinations of either Kennedy or King. He has, he insists, no preconceived notions about whether either one was the victim of a conspiracy.

For instance, he says, he worked for years under Arlen Specter, former Philadelphia District Attorney and onetime Warren Commission lawyer who authored the "single bullet theory" — which holds that both Kennedy and Texas Gov. John Connally were wounded, at one point, by the same shot from Oswald's rifle. It is one of the most controversial findings of the Warren report. Yet Sprague says he never once discussed it with his former boss.

There are those who are still unimpressed. "I say he's got a confict of interest," protests Harold Weisberg, author of "Whitewash" and other attacks on the Warren report. "It is not possible to investigate the Kennedy assassination without investigating Arlen Specter."

Other assassination buffs, by contrast, are happy to see Sprague on the job. It even appears that one of them, Mark Lane, author of "Rush to Judgment," may have been the first to broach Sprague's name to the House committee.

Acting as a sort of self-appointed talent scout "without portfolio," Lane says he sounded out the veteran prosecutor about the job and commended him to the office of Rep. Thomas Downing (D-Va.), the committee chairman, as well as to others.

Sprague has had little to say about all these goings-on except to state that he intends to be his own man. For instance, he says, he insisted on "the absolute right of hiring and firing" committee staffers. He also demanded to be named not only chief counsel but also staff director, so he could make sure the investigation is "thoroughly impartial" and proceeds "in a professional manner."

Such prerogatives have, by all accounts, been firmly promised to Sprague, both by Downing, who is leaving the House, and by Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez (D-Tex.), who is expected to be the next chairman. It remains to be seen whether Sprague's insistence on being in charge of the show is compatible, in the long run, with continued employment by a Congressional committee.

All sides profess to be optimistic, at least for now. Rep. Richardson Preyer (D-N.C.), who heads the subcommittee investigating the Kennedy assassination, says the goal is nothing less than a "definitive report" that will resolve all the nagging doubts and questions about the Warren Commission's work. A former Federal judge and one of the most respected members of the House, Preyer adds that he has been highly impressed by Sprague.

"I think Sprague is a remarkably fair-minded and tough-minded investigator," Preyer says. "I don't feel he's the kind of fella who is going to be swayed by whoever recommended him or who talked to him last. He's a professional."

He also has a touch of flamboyance. As a prosecutor in Philadelphia, he drove around in a bulletproof, city-owned Chrysler New Yorker with telephone, radio and police siren. He used to park it on the sidewalk outside city hall.

With a rumpled, expressive face that reminds some of a bloodhound, Sprague was best known nationally as special prosecutor in the Yablonski murders, which were finally traced to former United Mine Workers president W. A. (Tony) Boyle. But in Philadelphia, there are plenty of other cases to remember him by.

One of them was the "case of the missing body," a long-ago murder without a corpus delicti. The victim, a meticulous woman, had disappeared without a trace, but she left everything behind, even her bridgework. Sprague built a circumstantial case against her common law husband, who had reportedly acknowledged to friends that he carved the victim up and left her remains for the garbage man.

"Sprague had a beautiful case made out," recalls A. J. Brem Levy, the defense lawyer who tilted with him at the 1961 trial. "I remember going before the jury and emphasizing how they never found her body. I said, 'My goodness gracious, she could come walking through that door any second now.'

"Everyone on the jury turned and looked to the door," Levy says. "But Sprague didn't look. He got up and said, 'I didn't look -and the defendant didn't look because he knew she wasn't going to show up.'"

In his new role as Congressional committee counsel, Sprague's first major chore will be not in solving any murders, but in convincing the House that the effort needs, and is worth, a staff of 170 people.

Prisoners concerned for birds

CRANSTON, R.I. (AP) — Prison inmates may sometimes think about flying the coop, but a group of Rhode Island inmates is more concerned about finding new homes for their feathered friends.

The National Prisoners Reform Association said Thursday that inmates want to help birds dislocated by construction of a new high security prison. Groundbreaking for the new prison is scheduled for spring, and prisoner Alfred Bishop said he was "dismayed at the thought of the birds who will be made homeless when land clearing begins."

So inmates at the Adult Correctional Institutions are building birdhouses in the prison shop and are offering them to anyone who's willing to provide housing for the birds.

Hill's grant request rejected

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A $588,000 grant sought by Atty. Gen. John Hill for a probe of "narcotics activities involving official misconduct" on the Mexican border was denied Friday by the governor's Criminal Justice Division.

Hill later said he was "shocked and dismayed" and explained that one purpose of the money was to mount an undercover operation against a "guns for drugs" operation in Starr County.

"Starr County is definitely a part of the guns for dope traffic. It is a county where we have more heroin and other drugs transported than any other county on the border. ..Guns for dope gives an added dimension to the problem because of the threat it poses to Mexico's stability," Hill told a news conference.

He said Starr County's only local law enforcement officers are a sheriff and two deputies.

"I am not ready to say, 'Yes, there is no law enforcement in the county.' But it is certainly not effective, and we need to know why," Hill said.

The attorney general said he would ask Gov. Dolph Briscoe next week to restore the grant request to the criminal justice division's agenda.

Robert Flowers, the division's executive director, said that Hill was trying to exceed his constitutional and statutory authority.

"Nowhere do the statutes authorize the attorney general to have an operational tactical police force," Flowers said.

Hill planned to use the money to hire three investigators.

Beautiful, But DEADLY

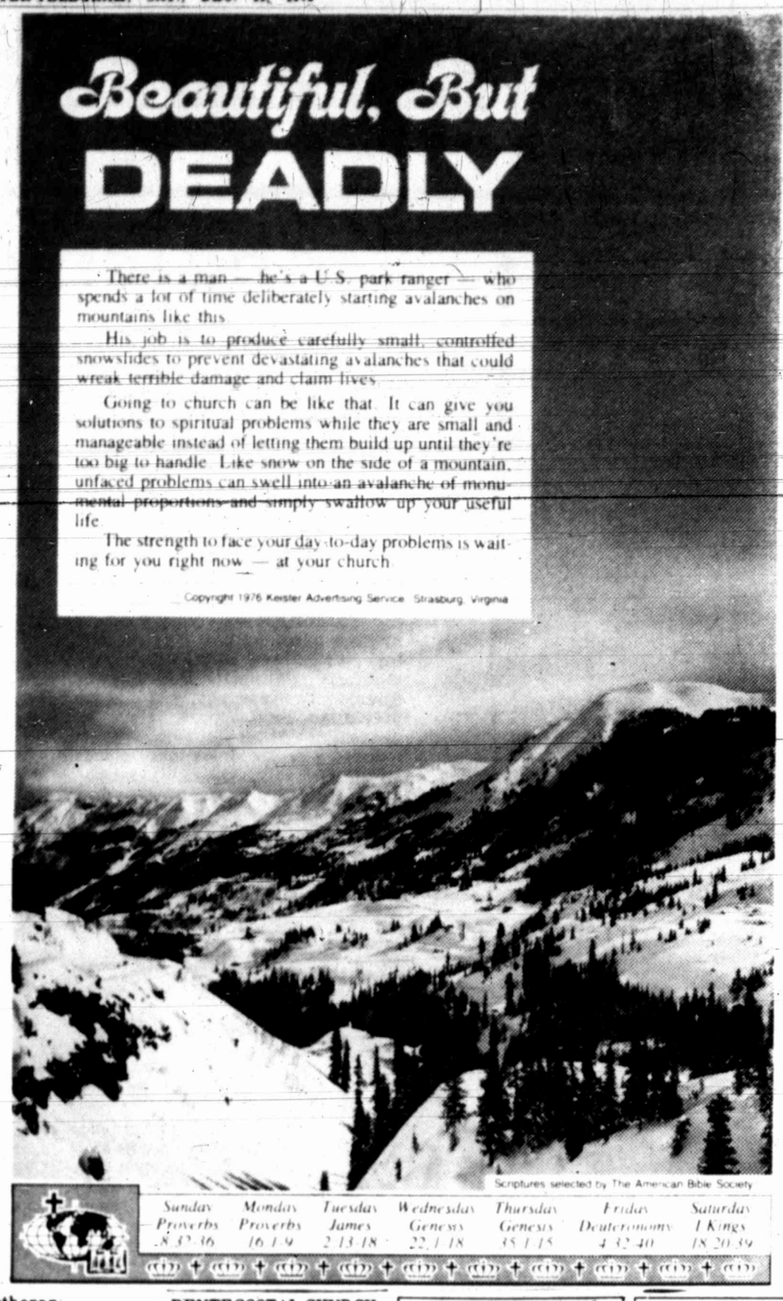

There is a man — he's a U.S. park ranger — who spends a lot of time deliberately starting avalanches on mountains like this.

His job is to produce carefully small, controlled snowslides to prevent devastating avalanches that could wreak terrible damage and claim lives.

Going to church can be like that. It can give you solutions to spiritual problems while they are small and manageable instead of letting them build up until they're too big to handle. Like snow on the side of a mountain, unfaced problems can swell into an avalanche of monumental proportions and simply swallow up your useful life.

The strength to face your day-to-day problems is waiting for you right now — at your church.

Singers from numerous Midland church choirs rehearse Handel's "Messiah" for the free public performance of the famous oratorio scheduled Tuesday night in Lee High auditorium. David Campbell, minister of music at First Baptist Church, leads the group.

Vocalists to ring out in Handel's 'Messiah'

Midland singers representing numerous church congregations in the city will be joined by vocal soloists and a chamber orchestra in a performance of George Frederick Handel'a famous "Messiah" Tuesday night.

The 8 p.m. concert in the Lee High School auditorium is sponsored by the Midland Association of Churches, the Midland Ministerial Alliance and the Midland Baptist Association. Admission will be free and the public is invited.

Featured as soloists in the concert will be Mrs. Ty Morris, soprano; Mrs. Robert F. Ward, alto; George L. DeHart, tenor, and Robert LaFontaine, bass. Robert Poer will provide harpsichord continuo and the chamber orchestra will be under the direction of Dr. Tom Hohstadt of Odessa.

Tuesday's concert will present all the Christmas segment of the oratorio and selected portions of Part 2, including the beloved "Hallelujah" chorus.

Handel composed his acclaimed oratorio in Dublin, Ireland, in the early 1740s and its first performance 234 years ago was in the Dublin Music Hall as a benefit to the Society for Relieving Prisoners, the Charitable Infirmary and Mercer's Hospital. The monumental music work has enthralled and inspired millions of listeners throughout the western world in sueceeding years.

RELIGION

Nation's small churches present powerful influences inside U.S.

By CLAIRE COX
Copley News Service

NEW YORK — Never underestimate the power of the small church.

The nation became aware of the potential of the small congregation during the recent controversy over the refusal of Jimmy Carter's Plains, Ga., congregation to admit a black stranger to a service.

That pre-election incident created headlines that raised fears that Mr. Carter would be hurt in his bid for the presidency by an action of the Plains Baptist Church, with a mere 300 members.

Although that was an extreme example of the power that can be exerted by a single small group, there is no underestimating the impact of small congregations on the national religious scene. More than 50 per cent of all the congregations in the major Protestant denominations are estimated to have fewer than 200 members, and a large proportion of other religious bodies are represented by equally small groups of believers who gather in storefronts, trailers and homes as well as one-room church buildings.

The backbone of American Christianity is the small congregation. In President-elect Carter's denomination, the Southern Baptist Convention, for example, more than 21,000 of 34,900 affiliated churches have fewer than 300 members.

Similar situations prevail in other church groups, and the National Consultation on Evangelism and Church Growth reports that the average Protestant congregation has fewer than 200 members and is not growing.

One of the important factors pointed up by the Plains incident is that regardless of size, every congregation in the Southern Baptist Convention is autonomous. No person, board or agency of the nation's largest Protestant body can dictate to the Plains congregation whether to fire its pastor for favoring black membership or to rescind a 1965 congregational resolution barring blacks.

The latter decision was made in a vote in which the Carter family was in a small minority urging black membership.

Spokesmen for the Southern Baptist Convention, which has 12.7 million members, emphasize that autonomy has been the cornerstone of the organization's life throughout its growth from a small rural body launched in 1845 in Augusta, Ga., to a large, diverse, pluralistic organization that includes more than 30 ethnic groups in all 50 states.

That autonomy became crucial on Sunday, Oct. 31, when the Rev. Clennon King, pastor of an interdenominational church 45 miles from Plains, and three other blacks were rejected when they applied for membership in Jimmy Carter's church. Coming two days before the election, the incident brought cries of Republican foul play from Democrats — a charge that never was proved and was denied by the Republicans.

King turned up again after the election — on Nov. 7 — to attend a Sunday school class, but again he was barred from the worship service.

The minister, the Rev. Bruce Edwards, favors black membership, a stand that sharply divided the congregation, in the manner of a family quarrel.

"The controversy is cutting through the small congregation like a searing pain — the kind of searing pain one feels when his family is crumbling," a Southern Baptist official said. "Baptists are very conscious of the church as a 'family' of believers — with brothers and sisters in Christ."

On Nov. 14 the congregation held a closed meeting instead of a service and voted to admit anyone to membership who wanted to join. Although the deacons recommended that the pastor be dismissed, the congregation asked him to stay.

Such bitter fighting as well as long-held grudges within congregations are a special plague to a small church because its conflicts are more difficult to manage than those in a larger church, where members are on less intimate terms and where there is more diversity of opinion. The fact that the Plains congregation settled its dispute "in the family" without the presence of outsiders is typical of the small church's approach to problem solving.

That bears out the findings of Dr. Carl S. Dudley, associate professor of ministry at McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago, who has made a special study of "the secret of the small church." He discussed it in the latest issue of A.D., a magazine published jointly by the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. and the United Church of Christ, both of which, incidentally, have a lower than average number of small congregations.

In discussing "family quarrels" in small churches, Dudley said that the emotional character of the membership is manifested in many ways, with the "feelings" expressed in a worship service being more important than the sermon content.

"The mood of the pastor on a particular Sunday is remembered long after the three points of the message," Dudley explained. "A month later many members can reconstruct who was present and who was absent on a particular Sunday."

In this climate, Dudley maintains, conflict is difficult to manage, particularly where issues of great intensity come to the surface.

"They fight," he said.

"They can afford to fight because they are not held together by rational commitments or by the outcome of any particular decision. The ties that hold most small churches are in their past: family and people, space and territory, history and tradition, culture-carrying in the Christian faith. These are commitments of the heart."

MIDLAND CHURCH ROUNDUP

Churches probe idea of group for singles

Possibilities of a new church-related organization for single young adults are being explored in the city.

A meeting to determine the feasibility of such an organization, open to young adults of all denominations and faiths, was held earlier this week under sponsorship of FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH here.

It was pointed out by spokesmen for the sponsoring church that while many congregations have good Sunday school classes for singles, there still appears to be a need here for a different kind of organization that brings together young adults from different churches and varying backgrounds for the purpose of fellowship.

Serving as convenor for the first exploratory session this week was the Rev. Rill K. Weir, minister of program and education at First United Methodist Church, and additional information on the proposed new organization, which would be self-directed and ecumenical in scope, may be obtained from him at 682-3701 or 682-9951.

Music scheduled

A program of inspirational music will be presented at 3 p.m. Sunday at ANTIOCH BAPTIST CHURCH, 1400 E. Golf Course Road.

The concert will feature various choirs, including the United Spiritual Singers of Midland and the public is invited by the Rev. J. A. Mitchell, pastor, to attend.

Missionary guest

The Rev. Joe Tarry, a Southern Baptist missionary to Brazil, will be a Sunday guest at CRESTVIEW BAPTIST CHURCH, 3300 Thomas St. The church will be observing Foreign Mission Day.

Mr. Tarry, currently on furlough from the mission field, will speak and show film slides of his work in Brazil during the church's Sunday school hour, and he will preach at the 12 a.m. worship service.

Plans seminar

The Rev. Herb Miller, area minister of the High Plains Area of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), will be a Midland visitor Sunday when he conducts a seminar for elders, deacons and deaconesses at FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH, 1301 W. Louisiana St.

Priest touts bizarre Catholicism

By WAYNE BRITTENDEN
Special to The Washington Post

PEKING — Father Fu Tin-shan, one of a handful of Catholic priests still practicing a bizarre form of Catholicism in the People's Republic of China, says he loves Mao more than God.

"Chairman Mao gave us food, shelter and clothes. He stopped our suffering and led us to change the whole face of China," said Father Fu in an interview here.

The founder of modern China and the Communist party scored more points than God in Father Fu's explanation of Chinese Catholic theology.

"God saves our souls but the Communist party liberated us physically. We love the motherland and that is why our spirits will go to heaven," Father Fu said.

He is one of 10 priests and a small number of nuns who live and work within the faded baroque elegance of the Peking Catholic Church, built in 1950. All grew up as Catholics under the Nationalist Chinese government before the Communist victory. They do not wear clerical garb but vow celibacy, administer communion and hear confessions.

Peking's Catholic clergy approve of divorce and abortion and believe that the Vatican "has always been a tool of imperialism," said Father Fu.

"The Vatican took advantage of religion to sabotage the revolution," Father Fu said. "It ordered everyone not to wear the uniform of the Communist Party or to read its literature.

"Now it (the Vatican) has a so-called council in Taiwan, one of our provinces. There have been spies from Italy and bombing attempts."

"Ours is the China Catholic Church and we arrange it according to the teachings of Jesus Christ," the priest said.

Chinese Catholic congregations are made up of a dwindling number of elderly believers.

Father Fu said that while he "would like more and more people to believe" he feels it is "natural for young people to study Marxim-Leninism."

"We restrict our activities to inside the church, serving believers," the priest said. "Some believers have tried to educate their own children with religious teachings, but the children follow their schoolteachers. But I don't feel sad. Everyone has a free will and we cannot interfere."

Chairman Mao "taught us about the correct handling of contradictions," said Father Fu. "In China we have freedom to believe or not to believe and no one has the right to force us to do either."

Asked first about abortion, Father Fu said that "even among theologians there is disagreement" as to when a fetus actually becomes a human being. Asked then if he opposes killing humans in war, the priest said "in my understanding" the commandment, thou shalt not kill, "means killing your own countrymen."

Remember that the Fourth Commandment says 'Love your Motherland,' so if it's threatened by the enemy you must defend it."

Reminded that the commandment actually reads, "Honor thy father and thy mother," Father Fu replied, "Yes, you're right. But it really means 'motherland.'"

The Chinese church finances its activities with funds "accumulated from different activities before liberation," said Father Fu. When those funds are gone, "we'll apply for help — besides, the Bible says not to worry about food and shelter because we will be provided for."

Methodists set annual service

An annual "Service of Lessons and Carols" will be presented by the choirs of First United Methodist Church during the Sunday morning worship hour, beginning at 10:35.

Dr. Charles E. Lutrick, pastor, will deliver a sermon titled "The Word of Good News-Sharing" at the service. Betty S. King will be the reader for the lessons interspersing the choral selections.

Featured in choral presentations will be Chancel, Junior and Carol choirs, as well as the Youth Handbell Choir. The musical program has been planned and directed by George L. Opening the program will be the Chancel Choir's presentation of a carol, "Prayer," by Jane M. Marshall of Dallas. Another special selection will be the Junior Choir's presentation of "Huron Indian Carol," accompanied by Paula Beshears on flute and the Rev. Jerry Wyatt on tom-toms.

Other selections programmed for the service include "Welcome, Dearest Jesus," "Jesus Was Born in Bethlehem," "A Day For Dancing," "The Gift Carol," "Away In A Manger," "O Little Town of Bethlehem," "Procession Carol" and "Christmas Joy."

The service will be open to the public. The church nursery will be available.

Transport service test today

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The reputation of the Metropolitan Transit Commission will be on the line Saturday when Arthur Greenough says, "Get me to the church on time."

Greenough, 55, who lives in an apartment complex for handicapped persons, will marry Beverly Scott, 46, at the Minneapolis nursing home where she lives.

The commission's dial-a-ride, door-to-door transit service for disabled persons began Nov. 27, and Greenough says it's "the best damn thing that's ever come down the pike."

Special programs

Special musical programs are planned Sunday during the 8:30 and 11 a.m. worship services at FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, 800 W. Texas Ave.

"Carols for Today," a program presenting new settings of favorite and familiar Christmas carols, will highlight the 8:30 service in the First Presbyterian chapel. The program will be premented by Genesis IV, the youth choir at FPC.

The late Benjamin Britten's "A Ceremony of Carols" will be presented during the 11 a.m. service in the sanctuary. Shirley Hansen will be the pianist and soprano soloists will include Alice Helms, Billie Robbins, Phyllis Cowden and Carolyn Tucker.

The musical programs are under the direction of Robert Poer, organist and choirmaster at First Presbyterian.

New deacons

New deacons were elected recently at FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH to serve three-year terms.

Taking office in January will be Bill Burchard, Bob Crawford, Ralph Gassiott, Dr. Roy Johnson, Ray Lowery, C. E. McKenzie, Gary Owem, Lee Parks, Reagan White, Vondyl Willis, Clyde Williams and Jim Worley.

Turkey dinners set

In response to popular demand, HOLLOWELL UNITED METHODIST CHURCH today will repeat its project of serving turkey dinners to the public. The church had a similar fund-raising project back in November.

The meals will be served at the church, 400 S. Marshall St., beginning at 11 a.m. today. Arrangements may be made to have the dinners delivered elsewhere in the city by dialing the church at 682-1574.

Christian Living School set Jan. 9 through 13

The 1977 School of Christian Living will be held here Jan. 9 through 13.

The school is one of the ongoing projects of the Midland Association of Churches and annually draws participants from church congregations throughout the city.

According to the Rev. John Long, minister of Memorial Christian Church and the dean of the 1977 school, the faculty will be:

Dr. Leroy T. Howe, professor of philosophical theology in Perkins School of Theology at Southern Methodist University, Dallas.

James A. Rurak, instructor in religion at Texas Christian University, Fort Worth.

Dr. Andrew Edington, president emeritus of Schreiner College at Kerrville.

Dr. Ann McGee, assistant professor in the creative arts department at Purdue University, joined by Don Frick, an Indianapolis media specialist, who will present a special course exporing the facets of personal potential.

The 1977 School of Christian Living will have class sessions in St. Luke's United Methodist Church here.

Church to burn its mortgage

The Rev. John Hurst Adams, presiding bishop of the 10th Episcopal District of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, will be guest speaker at a special service Sunday afternoon at Midland's Greater St. Luke A.M.E. Church, 401 S. Adams St.

The event will celebrate the church's debt-free status and will be highlighted by a mortgage-burning ceremony, said the Rev. V. T. Herron, host pastor. The public is invited to attend the 3 p.m. service.

Bishop Adams, whose headquarters are at Dallas, served as pastor of churches in Boston, Seattle and Los Angeles prior to his appointment as bishop in 1972. He has been a Midland visitor on several past occasions.

East won the first trick with the queen of hearts and returned the king of diamonds to South's ace.

South lost a trump finesse to the queen and ruffed the next diamond. East got a second trump trick, but South discarded dummy's remaining low heart on a club, after which he could eventually ruff a heart in dummy.

East should return a heart at the second trick. West's opening lead of the nine indicated that South had the jack and ten of hearts. After the first trick South still had the jack and ten of hearts, and West had one more heart at most.

HAND IS DOOMED

The idea of returning a heart is to give West a ruff. East can win the first round of trumps and lead a third heart. West ruffs, and the hand is doomed.

East thought he could sit back and wait for his second heart trick, but this was complicated defense. Too many things could go wrong with it, as East found out. Nothing could go wrong with the heart return as long as West had two or more trumps.

Partner opens with 1 NT (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes. You hold: S63; H95; D86432; C6532. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two diamonds. You may avoid a double if you bid your long suit, such as it is, at once. If you pass, your partner may well be doubled; and from then on any rescue will likewise be doubled.

Old trunks are among the most desirable items being sought by the tag sale set, who have discovered their usefulness in solving storage problems.

They are used at the foot of beds, in the nursery, and have even gone off to college dorms.

Finding just the right trunk has become a real scavenger hunt as neighbors try to outdo one another in refinishing them. Until a few years ago, only the smaller, older trunks were being sought, especially for homes furnished in antiques. But there just aren't enough of the bridal variety around, so many women are refinishing the larger trunks to look old. One woman "distressed" a trunk for a beautiful look. It had so many gouges and dents, she had no alternative, she said.

But gouges and dents can be filled up if you don't mind spending a little time. Paint experts suggest big gouges or pores can be filled with paste wood that has been thinned to the consistency suggested by the manufacturer. The paste is brushed on and allowed to set until it loses its gloss. Then burlap or coarse sandpaper is wiped across it to distribute the paste into the grain. After drying it for 24 hours, it is sanded with medium paper — in the direction of the grain — to remove excess filler.

All straps, wooden knobs and other pieces of hardware should be removed from the trunk before it is refinished. It may be simpler to mask the hinges if the trunk is old. To get a trunk down to its bare wood surface use a coarse sandpaper in the direction of the wood grain. After that use a medium grade and then a fine grade sandpaper. Remove all traces of sandpaper dust with a cloth or a vacuum brush.

If paint remover is used, put it on heavily and soak it for perhaps 30 minutes, the paint people suggest. If the bare wood doesn't begin to show, you may need another coat of the remover, which might be washed with lukewarm water after another 30 minutes.

Some people like to stain the wood after a fine sanding. It should be applied with a lint free cloth or a bristle brush. The stain is applied to the sides of the chest first, then the top, using either pigmented oil stain or a combination stain sealer. Brush on the stain, a thin coat if you want a light stain, with average smooth strokes and let it penetrate into the wood. When the stain dries to a dull tone, wipe with a clean cloth.

However, after cleaning the piece, the restorer may discover the wood isn't all that great, and that's where "distressing" the wood even further may make it look like an antique piece. Worm holes done with an ice pick, and hitting the wood in certain places with a bunch of keys or an old chain, are among the methods some people use.

While distressing old furniture is usually an involved process, it can be made a simple process on a trunk because it need not look a certain age. A dark paint is put on first — a brown color, rubbed into the wood. The next day white paint is brushed lightly over the brown. While it is drying the paint is rubbed with a cheese cloth so that it leaves a streaked effect with brown showing through. When it is dry, a blue or green or red paint is put on a cloth and rubbed lightly over the whole thing, and then quickly rubbed off. The effect should look old, but you should practice on a piece of wood first. This is a quick method that did achieve results for one person who had a knack. In any event, a trunk can be a fun place to experiment. Not much harm is done if you make a mistake.

Other trunks that have been seen after they have been refinished illustrate that color coordination may be the most important aspect of the job.

Many people gild the hardware, and if this is done, it should not look corny-bright. It should be toned down. A bronze finish might even be prettier.

Dermatologist endorses old wives' wart therapy

By C.G. McDANIEL

CHICAGO (AP) — Burying a dead cat at midnight can cure warts as effectively as medical treatment, a dermatologist says. Or you might try rubbing the wart with grasshopper spit or milkweed juice.

Whatever the treatment, the crucial ingredient is faith that it will work, said skin specialist Dr. Jerome Litt of the Case Western Reserve University school of medicine in Cleveland.

He told a news conference at the annual meeting of the American Academy of Dermatology this week that he has had "spectacular results" using a "special wart tape" — ordinary sticky tape on which he puts an impressive-looking label.

Litt said he tells his patients that if they wear the tape over the wart, the wart will drop off. It usually does, he said, especially when the patients are impressionable children.

Doctors aren't sure how the "witchcraft" works, he said. It has been suggested that the methods stimulate secretion of body chemicals which fight the virus that causes the horny growths.

Almost everybody has warts at one time or another, although they may not be recognized and often go away without treatment.

Dr. H.J. Whyte of Emory University's School of Medicine in Atlanta said all warts are caused by the same virus, but they vary in appearance depending on where they are situated — such as planter warts flattened by pressure on the bottom of the foot.

Medical means of removal include cutting them off or using chemicals to burn them off. But the problem often is to remove them so that they do not leave a scar, Whyte said.

Because warts are caused by a virus, they are contagious. They most often affect children, who have not developed immunity to the virus as most adults do.

Infant heart defects reported on increase

The Los Angeles Times

Researchers who keep track of birth defects in the United States are puzzled by an apparent sharp increase in the incidence of heart defects in newborn infants since 1970.

They are especially concerned by the incidence of a heart defect called patent ductus arteriosus. It tripled between 1970 and 1975, according to researchers at the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta.

But at this point the CDC researchers are not sure whether the statistics they have compiled reflect an actual increase in the number of cases or whether there are other explanations.

"The rise has continued now for three to six years, depending upon the region (of the country), and has reached over a threefold increase in the Western part of the United States. Such continuing trends are unsettling, despite possible explanations," a report by CDC's Birth Defect Monitoring Program said.

The number of cases recorded by the monitoring program rose from 298 in 1970 to 1,088 in 1975. The rate jumped from 3.52 cases per 10,000 births to 10.29 cases, the report said.

"We are frustrated," Dr. J. William Flynt, chief of the birth defects branch, said in a telephone interview.

On the one hand, the researchers have some reason to believe the statistical increase may be due to better diagnoses and other factors rather than any actual increase in incidence.

On the other hand, they are really not sure the increase is not real, and they would hate not to call an alert if there really is an increase.

The Birth Defect Monitoring Program was set up several years ago to detect possible outbreaks of birth defects due to environmental chemicals.

The data on which the report is based comes from the medical records of 983,506 births in 1,201 hospitals.

Flynt said there has been a great deal of concern in some quarters that an epidemic of birth defects may be occurring. However, he said, when all of the data that has been collected at CDC is analyzed "there is no evidence of any mass epidemic."

Certain kinds of defects are on the rise. Others, however, are on the decline. The overall picture leads the researchers to lean toward the conclusion that no unusual problem has presented itself.

For example, the report shows a decrease between 1970 and 1975 in spina bifida, hydrocephalus, anencephaly, cleft palate and clubfoot, among others.

Defects which showed an increase are ventricular septal defect, patent ductus arteriosus, hip disclocature and absence of a kidney. The increase in patent ductus arteriosus was the highest. The condition is one cause of "blue babies."

Flynt admits that the heart defect picture makes the researchers feel uneasy.

"We've been watching it now for two years," the physicain said. "We keep trying to explain it but we don't have the ability to explain it away. It's unsettling."

Belief that the rise is not a true increase in incidence is based mostly on methods of diagnosis which have improved in recent years, Flynt said. He believes it's quite possible that doctors are picking up cases which a few years ago would not have been diagnosed.

This speculation, he said, is supported by the observation that the incidence of patent ductus arteriosus is higher in the larger medical school-affiliated hospitals where specialists and more sophisticated equipment are apt to be located than in smaller hospitals.

Another possible explanation is that the survival rate of infants has increased markedly in recent years, especially among premature infants. As a consequence, more babies survive long enough for doctors to make a diagnosis.

Eagle displayed

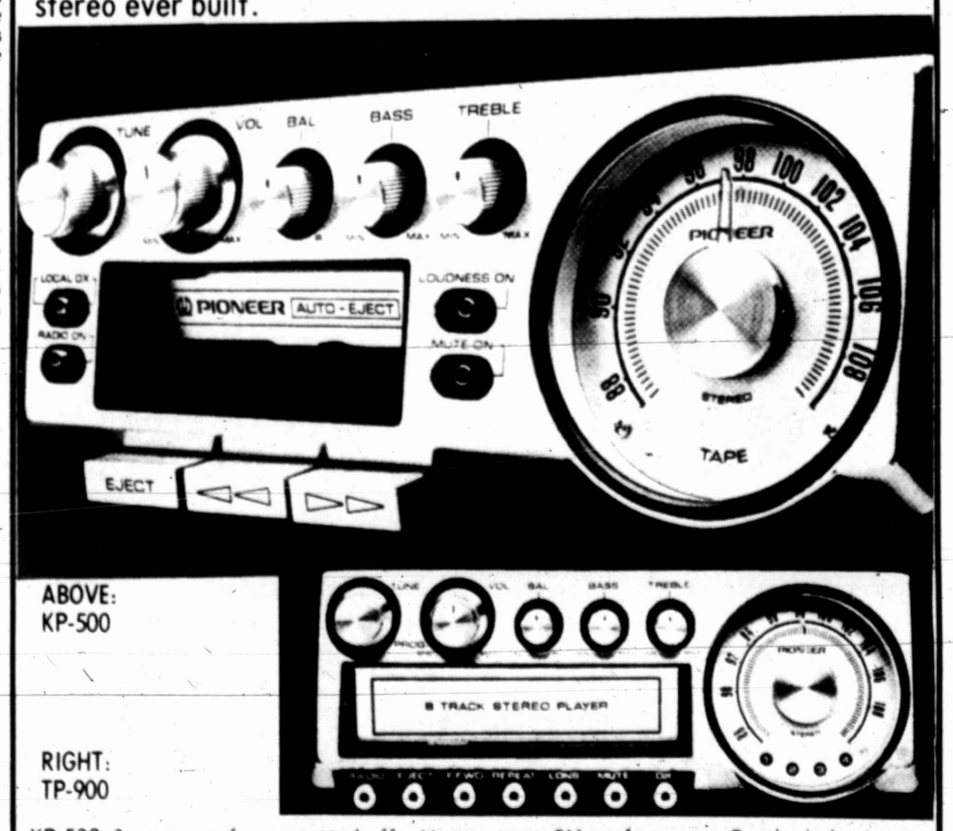

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The cover on Austin's new telephone directory may not make Gov. Dolph Briscoe happy.

The picture is a full color painting of a golden eagle on a tree limb.

Only a couple of months ago Briscoe unsuccessfully tried to get federal government permission for West Texas ranchers to kill golden eagles, which they said prey on sheep and goats.

Southwestern Bell division manager said the cover had no connection with the federal request and was intended merely to "depict the majestic beauty surrounding the birth of a golden eagle."

The painting was done by Warren Martin of Ingram.

INTRODUCING PIONEER SUPERTUNER
Two years ago we wondered what would happen if we built a car stereo that had the specs of a home stereo system.
So we told our engineers to forget about price-just build the State of the Art Car Stereo.
They did. It's called Supertuner. And to prove that specs don't lie, we tested it 75 feet below the rim of the Grand Canyon. Supertuner got a super signal. The others? Nothing. We think it's the BEST car stereo ever built.

RIGHT: TP-900
KP-500. Supertuner for cassette buffs. Home stereo FM performance. Brushed aluminum front. Phase lock loop for stereo separation. Automatic stereo/mono switching. Local distance switch. Automatic eject. And audiophile type features: loudness switch, muting and separate bass and treble.
Specifications: Maximum RMS output power: 7.6 watts. FM usable sensitivity: 1.1 uv. at 75 ohms (12dBf). 50 dB quieting sensitivity: 14uV at 75 ohms (14.3 dBf). Selectivity (alternate Channel): 74. Db Capture ratio: 1.8 dB Wow and flutter less than 0.3%.
TP-900 Supertuner for 8-track nuts. Home stereo FM performance.. Automatic/manual program selection. FET front end. Phase lock loop for stereo separation. Automatic stereo/mono switching. Local/distance switch. Plus features you thought you'd only find in a home stereo: loudness switch, muting and separate bass and treble.
Specifications: Maximum RMS output power: 7.6 watts. FM useable Sensitivity: 1.1uV at 75 ohms (12 dBf). 50 dB quieting sensitivity: 1.4uV and 75 ohms (14.3 dBf). Selectivity (alternate Channel): 74dB Capture ratio: 1.8 dB Wow and flutter less than 0.25%.

If your goal is extra cash, tackle those idle items with a fast-action Want Ad!

Fighting inflation can be likened to football -- if you want to gain ground you must make the right moves.

In the buying and selling game, the smart players make the move to Classified. They can find extra cash by selling their no-longer-needed items in a sure-fire Want Ad. They make gains two ways -- added income and roomier storage areas.

To further bolster your defense against inflation, rely on Classified for money-saving bargains. Whether your needs are great -- such as a better home or new car -- or whether you would like a CB radio, Classified is the great stay-at-home bargain center.

Hold that line against inflation and make some big gains in cash and savings. Call our Classified department.

Washington dilemma prompts Majors to cooperate

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Perhaps the most significant development at baseball's week-long winter meetings was the emergence, for the first time, of a sense of cooperation between the two leagues in seeking an answer to the sport's lingering Washington dilemma.

Until now, the National League has considered Washington American League territories, but with the AL expanding to Seattle and Toronto, it became obvious that a return of baseball to the nation's capital would have to come from the NL.

That idea was vetoed last spring, submarined by the National League's rule requiring unanimous approval for franchise matters.

WHEN IT became obvious that Congress was getting ready to take another, long careful look at baseball's anti-trust exemption, the owners recognized the need for speed in coming up with some solution giving Washington a team.

The first suggestion, produced by both leagues, was little more than a smoke screen. It proposed a package of games to be played in the nation's capital by Washington's turnpike neighbors, the Baltimore Orioles. The suggestion includes a presidential opener, All-Star game and exhibitions. It is not new. It has been kicked around in baseball circles for the last three or four years.

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn was in Washington Friday, trying to sell that package to the lawmakers. He has two chances of succeeding—slim and none. The owners realize that. In the NL meeting, it was decided to hold the 1978 All Star Game in San Diego. Obviously, the NL bosses don't expect it to be in Washington.

BECAUSE IT knows Congress won't buy the limited Baltimore package, baseball has a backup plan.

The NL offered two contingency ideas and virtually guaranteed the approval of either by suspending, for one year, that troublesome unanimous approval rule for franchise matters.

First, the NL agreed to approve the application of any existing NL club to relocate in Washington. Failing that, the NL invited the application of an existing AL franchise to change leagues and move into Washington.

The second suggestion would create two 13-club leagues and inter-league play. Until now, the NL has steadfastly refused any such proposal creating regular season meetings against AL teams. The fact that the stubborn Nationals have changed that stance indicates how vital the solution to the Washington problem has become for baseball.

LOS ANGELES (AP)— Third baseman Ken Reitz completed a baseball round trip Friday when he was traded by the San Francisco Giants to the St. Louis Cardinals in exchange for right-handed pitcher Lynn McGlothen.

A year ago, Reitz had gone the other way, swapped by the Cards to the Giants at the winter meetings in a deal that sent pitcher Pete Falcone to St. Louis.

What changed the Cardinals' minds about Reitz?

"We wanted to strengthen our situation at third base," said Bing Devine, general manager of the Cardinals. "Last year, we felt Hector Cruz could do the job. But he was originally an outfielder and we want to move him back there."

REITZ BATTED .267 with five homers and 66 runs batted in for his only season with the Giants. To get him back, the Cards had to surrender McGlothen, 13-15 with a 3.91 earned run average.

"We felt we could give up Reitz because we have a real good third base prospect in Jack Clark, who played at Phoenix last year," said Spec Richardson, general manager of the Giants.

NFL races head down to the wire

By Associated Press

While the Baltimore Colts and New England Patriots slug it out for the lion's share of the glory Sunday, their intended victims have something more prosaic on their minds—survival.

The Colts play the Buffalo Bills, who haven't won a game in their last nine tries. The Patriots play the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, who haven't won a game ... period.

At stake—besides pride, of course—in the two National Football League games are the American Conference East Division title and the AFC wildcard playoff berth. The Colts and Pats are each 10-3 and, if the clubs remain tied, Baltimore will take the title by virtue of its better divisional record.

IN SUNDAY'S other games, Washington is at Dallas and St. Louis at the New York Giants with the Redskins and Cardinals seeking the National Conference wild card; Cleveland at Kansas City; Cincinnati at the New York Jets; San Diego at Oakland; Seattle at Philadelphia; Green Bay at Atlanta; Denver at Chicago and San Francisco at New Orleans.

In today's game's, Pittsburgh is at Houston, with a victory giving the Steelers the AFC Central title; Minnesota visits Miami and Detroit hosts Los Angeles.

AT STAKE for the Bills Sunday is one of those individual things that crops up on the final weekend of regular-season play— Simpson's statistics. He has a solid shot at a fourth NFL rushing title in five years. Simpson has put together 200-yard games his last two times out and trails Chicago's Walter Payton by just nine yards, 1,341-1,332.

Baltimore's Lydell Mitchell ranks third in NFL rushing, 175 yards off Payton's pace. But the Bills' major job will be trying to stop Bert Jones, the league's No. 2 passer who has thrown 21 touchdowns.

The Colts lead the NFL in scoring with 359 points but have split their last four games. "We may have peaked a little bit early," linebacker Jim Cheyunski says. "Hopefully, we'll go back uphill now that the playoffs are coming. We're going to be forced into a good performance."

IF ANYTHING could salvage this disasterous first season for the Buccaneers it would be a victory ... even a tie. Never in the history of the NFL has a team lost all 14 games in a season. The two to come closest were the 1942 Detroit Lions, who lost all 11, and the expansion Dallas Cowboys of 1960, who went 0-11-1.

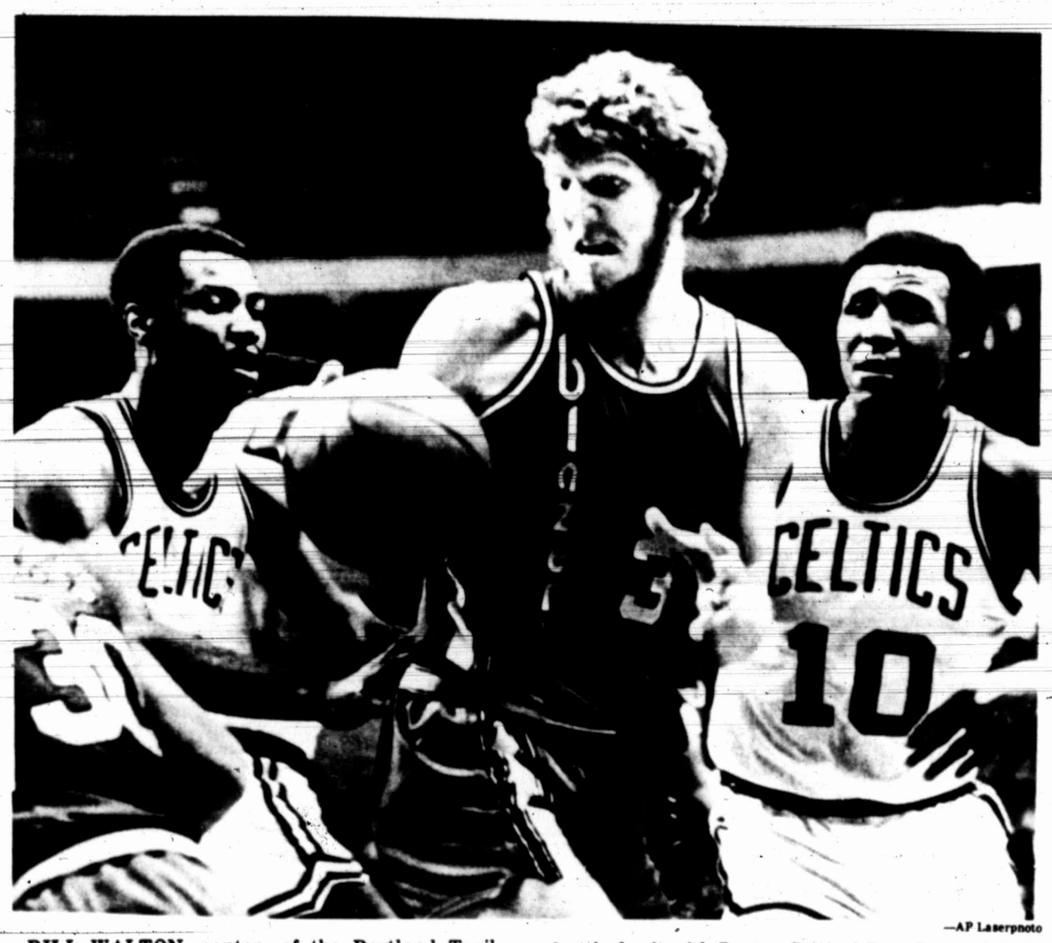

The Pats-Bucs game is a mismatch of terrifying proportions. Tampa Bay is the league's worst offensive team, averaging 210 yards a game. New England is averaging 338.

Pats quarterback Steve Grogan already has thrown 18 scoring passes and run for a record-tying 11 touchdowns to account for 29 of the club's 42 TDs. He will be operating against a defensive unit which has given up 20 touchdowns rushing and 19 passing. Steve Spurrier starts for Tampa Bay. Terry Hanratty ran the show in last Sunday's 42-0 loss to Pittsburgh.

Rangers' Danny Thompson dies

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP) — Danny Thompson, an infielder for the Texas Rangers, died Friday night at the Mayo Clinic. He was 28.

A clinic spokesman said Thompson, died at 6:07 p.m. CST from "complications of leukemia."

He was admitted to the clinic Nov. 16 and had undergone spleen surgery, the spokesman said.

A&I seeks 3rd straight title

KINGSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Texas A&I pursues an unprecedented third straight NAIA Division I football championship Saturday afternoon when the Javelinas host the University of Central Arkansas in a nationally-televised contest.

Kickoff is set for 1 p.m. in Javelina Stadium with the offensive-minded Javs an overwhelming favorite to nail down the title and their 39th consecutive win.

"I'm not even sure we can score against them," said Central Arkansas Coach Ken Stephens who brings a defensive-orientated team into their first NAIA Division I champion bowl.

The Jays, with Little All-America Quarterback Richard Ritchie at the controls, have averaged 577.6 yards and 48 points per game. The Bears, however, are noted for their defense, holding foes to an average of 155.2 yards and 5.8 points while compiling a 9-2 record.

Central Arkansas advanced to Saturday's championship with a 10-7 overtime win over Elon College. A&I swamped Western State College of Colorado 57-14 to reach its sixth championship bowl in the last 17 years under Coach Gil Steinke.

"The (Bears) have shown they can stop the veer and that's the type of offense we run," noted Steinke. "They have a quick, stunting defense which will pose a problem to our passing game."

A victory Saturday would give the Javelinas the longest winning streak in NAIA history. They tied the record of 38 set by Missouri Valley in the 1940s in last Saturday's semifinal game. The longest collegiate win streak is 47 by Oklahoma from 1953-57.

Earlier this year, the Javs set the Texas state record for most consecutive wins, surpassing the streak of 30 compiled by the University of Texas from 1968-70.

Dorsett feat no surprise

NEW YORK (AP) — In the third game of his sophomore season, Tony Dorsett broke the University of Pittsburgh's career rushing record.

It didn't come as much of a surprise to Marshall Goldberg, the previous record-holder.

"By that time, Tony had carried the ball more times than I did in my whole career," Goldberg recalled this week as Pitt recaptured a measure of its former football glory by winning the Lambert Trophy as the top college team in the East and having Dorsett formally presented with the Heisman Trophy as the outstanding player in the country.

Goldberg, who starred for Pitt when the Panthers won the first two Lambert Trophies in 1936 and 1937 and later played 10 seasons with the Chicago Cardinals in the National Football League, can only wonder what kind of records he might have set if two-platoon football had been the style in his college days.

He gained 1,957 yards carrying fewer than 400 times. By contrast, Dorsett carried 338 times this season for an NCAA record 1,948 yards and had 1,074 rushes for 6,082 career yards, not including a pair of post-season bowl appearances.

"I think I averaged around 5 3-16 yards a carry," said Goldberg, a Chicago businessman. "That's not too bad. But I didn't carry the ball any more than our other halfback, Harold Stebbins."

Goldberg, however, leads Dorsett in one category—tackles.

"You had to play both ways in those days. If you couldn't play both ways, you didn't make the team.

"But it was a completely different game. The individuality is so much greater today and the game is more wide-open.

"In my day, the attitude was different, the equipment was different, the ball was different—everything was different.

"The offense was completely different. I think I had two laterals in my career and we just didn't have pitchouts in those days. You can get outside much better now than you could from the Single-Wing formation we used.

"I'm not taking anything away from Tony Dorsett. He's as good as you can possibly get and he'll probably be the same in pro ball.

"But multiply the times I carried by my average. What would that come out to if I carried as often as Dorsett did?"

Somewhere around 5,600 yards, second only to Dorsett on the all-time major college list.

"Yes," Goldberg mused, "but that's only a supposition. You can't go by that. It's a completely different game today."

Fromholtz, Barker move into Melbourne semifinals

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Top-seeded Diane Fromholtz of Australia and Sue Barker of England scored three-set victories Friday to move into the semifinals of an international women's tennis tournament.

Miss Fromholtz was a 6-4, 3-6, 8-6 winner over Ilana Kloss of South Africa, and Miss Barker beat Francoise Durr of France 6-3, 4-6, 6-3 in matches on the center court at Kooyong.

"I think I can lift myself for the semifinal against Dianne Fromholtz," Miss Barker said. "She hits the ball with so much topspin that I should get more bounce to suit me." Miss Barker will be trying to avenge her straight-set loss to Miss Fromholtz in another recent international tourney.

House postpones action on exemption

WASHINGTON (AP) — As commissioner Bowie Kuhn roamed the offices of Capitol Hill, the Select House Committee on Professional Sports postponed until next month any action on a staff recommendation to take away baseball's special antitrust exemption.

The 13-member committee took up the recommendations of its staff but voted to wait until Jan. 3, the day the current Congress adjourns, before acting on all the proposals contained in the 250-page report.

THE PANEL, however, approved a recommendation that a successor sports (supervisory) and investigation committee be established with "full authority to conduct inquiries into the need for legislation with respect to all professional sports. Such authority should be extended over amateur athletics where concerns raised in professional sports coincide with or are common to concerns prevelent in amateur athletics or are directly related to them," said the staff report which was introduced as a motion by Rep. Frank Horton, R.-N.Y., ranking Republican and committee vice chairman.

In its recommendations, the staff said: "Adequate justification does not exist for baseball's special exemption from the antitrust laws and that its exemption should be removed in the context of over-all sports antitrust reform."

NO VOTE was taken on the recommendations, it was learned, because of opposition by Rep. Gillis Long, D-La., who earlier in the year introduced legislation to strip baseball of its antitrust immunity but wanted more time to study the staff's proposals.

Baseball, unique among professional sports, received antitrust protection under a 1922 Supreme Court decision which held that the game was not engaged in trade or commerce, as those terms were then construed. Twice, in 1952 and 1973, the high court refused to remove the exemption, saying Congress should do so if it wished.

Kuhn took the so-called "Red Eye" flight from Los Angeles to Washington, arriving in the nation's capital at 7 a.m. to meet with committee members to report on baseball's weeklong winter meetings which ended Thursday.

HE MET with Rep. B.F. Sisk, D-Calif., committee chairman, Melvin Price, D-Ill., ranking Democrat, and Horton prior to the hour-long session and with various members afterwards.

Sisk and Horton have headed an ad hoc congressional committee which has sought for the past five years to return a team to the nation's capital to replace the Washington Senators, who moved to Texas and became the Rangers in 1971. The select committee was created last May after the National League turned down Sisk's request for a team for Washington after the American League expanded to Toronto and Seattle.

After Friday's session, Sisk said that Kuhn did not attempt to dissuade the committee from taking action on baseball's antitrust exemption but only reported on the league meeting, which he had promised to do when he appeared here as a witness.

They even went on record as endorsing the possibility of an established team moving to Washington. But they and their American League counterparts damped it all down in the same resolution, the thrust of which was a resort to the old proposal that the Baltimore Orioles play a "suitable number" of games in Washington beginning in 1978.

In its proposals, the committee staff also said the new panel to be created next year should "monitor the effects of court-ordered or negotiated changes in the player allocation systems in professional sports including, but not limited to, football's option system and college draft, the re-entry draft in baseball, and the elimination of option clauses in basketball."

Only Houston stands in way of Miracle Comeback

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers play hosts to Pittsburgh Saturday in the final regular season game for both teams with the Oilers representing the final obstacle between the Steelers and a mircale comeback that gives them a chance for an unprecedented third Super Bowl title.

The amazing Steelers, who lost four of their first five games this season, have won eight straight but still need a victory over the Oilers, 5-8, to claim the American Football Conference's Central Division title.

Kickoff is at 3 p.m. CST in the Astrodome.

"We'd look pretty foolish if Oakland beat Cincinnati and then we go down to Houston and lose," Steelers Coach Chuck Noll said, referring to Oakland's victory over the Bengals last Monday.

The Oilers, who went into the season with high hopes of being a playoff team themselves, would like nothing better than to end a frustrating season with a victory over the Steelers.

"This certainly adds a little excitement to our final game," Oilers Coach O. A. "Bum" Phillips said. "We're glad to have the opportunity to play in such a game."

In addition to the playoff significance of the game, the confrontation also will mark the return of starting quarterbacks for both teams—Terry Bradshaw for the Steelers and Dan Pastorini for the Oilers.

Bradshaw missed two games with a sprained right wrist but returned in the second half last week and completed six of eight passes against Tampa Bay.

Rookie Mike Kruczek, who had directed the Steelers through most of their winning streak, now returns to the bench.

"I've always said Terry would be our quarterback when he's 100 per cent," Noll said. "Well, he's 100 per cent now."

Pastorini, who suffered rib injuries in a game against Cleveland, lost his starting job to backup John Hadl but will get the nod again this week.

Pastorini returns just in time to face the awesome Steelers defense, which has been the backbone of their amazing comeback odyssey with four shutout victories during the eight-game winning streak.

Pittsburgh has allowed only 28 points in its last eight games and the Oilers are the only team to score a touchdown against the Steelers defense in those eight games.

Bullpups face Steers in final

The Midland and Big Spring High JV's scored impressive victories Friday, and vaulted into today's championship final of the Midland Junior Varsity Basketball Tournament being held at the MHS gym.

Coach Eddie Shirley's Bullpups, who drew a bye in the tourney's opening round, had very little trouble disposing of their own Midland sophomore squad, 92-57.

Despite playing without such standouts as Walter Bryson, and Bill Fredrickson, the Pack JV's still displayed an awesome offensive attack, as they took the lead in the opening minutes, and never relinquished it.

Randy Hammonds and Brian Miller picked up the slack for them, scoring 19 and 15 points respectively. Also figuring significantly in the Bullpup offensive attack were Albert Traweek with 10, Tracey Dodson with nine, and Roy Lee Jefferson, James Daugherty and Parasko with eight apiece.

High for the Pack sophomores was Gotcher with eight counters.

The Big Spring Baby Steers won their second game of the tournament to earn the right to face off against Midland in today's title tilt, which gets underway at 1 p.m., knocking off Lubbock 71-63.

Three players paved the way to victory for the Steers, as Wright was high with 22 points, and Poss and Lotts added 22 and 14 respectively.

High scorers for Lubbock in a losing cause were Johnson with 21, Del Boosta with 14, and Phillips with 11.

In a consolation round game, the Lee Rebs bounced back from a first round defeat, and destroyed Snyder, 76-31. Twelve players figured in on the offensive scoring spree, with Goudeaux and Shanks leading the way with 12 points apiece. The only other Rebel in double figures was Eastman with 10.

Jackson led Snyder with 15 points, and was the only Tiger cager in double digits.

Today's action will get underway at 9 a.m., with the Lee sophomores facing the Rebel junior varsity in a battle of friends. In the final consolation contest at 11, the Midland sophomores will oppose Lubbock. Then at 1 p.m, Midland and Big Sping will tangle for the tournament title.

Lou Holtz arrives to look over Hogs

"I'll be looking at Fayetteville like they will be looking at me. I want to find a place where I will be happy the rest of my life," declared Lou Holtz upon arrival Friday to discuss the University of Arkansas head football coaching job. Holtz was scheduled to appear Saturday at a meeting of the UA trustees...

Courageous Brian Hall, who kicked a career total of 28 field goals in 38 tries, using an artificial leg to become Tech's all time career placekicker, was named winner Friday of the prestigious Kern Tips Memorial Trophy.

The award is named after the late Kern Tips, a broadcaster for the Humble radio network. Other nominees included Rickey Wesson, SMU; Scott O'Glee, TCU, Edgar Fields, Texas A&M; Mark Mohr, Houston; Bill Hamilton, Texas; Bob Busby, Arkansas, and Flynn Bucy, Baylor...

CLAUDE CHARRON, minister responsible for the Montreal Olympic facilities, described the $800-million Olympic stadium as a "white elephant". Charron said, "The facilities will always be in deficit. The stadium is a white elephant, and if you throw in the velodrome and swimming pool, I'd have to say I'm in charge of a herd of white elephants."

Earlier this week, Charron vetoed a proposed contract between the Montreal Expos and the Olympic Installations Board for lease of the 72,000-seat stadium during the 1977 season. Charron said the rent in the proposed lease was not high enough to reflect the drawing power of the stadium as opposed to "last year's rotten team."...

Tornadoes advance to semis

BROWNFIELD-Lamesa advanced to the semi-final round of the Brownfield Invitational Basketball Tournament here Friday, as the Golden Tornadoes squeaked by Odessa 47-44.

Arnold Martinez and Clarence Wellington were high for the winners with 12 points apiece, while the Bronchoes' Danny Wright's 16 point performance was high for both teams.

In other first round action, Lubbock Dunbar disposed of Perryton 75-69, host Brownfield won easily over Dumas 61-46, and Canyon came from behind to down Lubbock, 51-49.

Dunbar's outstanding cager, Billy Dunbar led his team to victory, with 33 points. James Ridgeway was high for Perryton in a losing effort with 25 totes.

Brownfield got 16 point showings from Danny Hamilton and Brent McClinton in their one-sided victory.

In Canyon's exciting two point win, James Walling was high for the North Texas team with 16 points. Gary Norris and Greg Mitchell each had 13 in a losing effort for Lubbock.

Unseld sparks Bullets to win

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Wes Unseld returned to the game after spraining an ankle and scored 11 points in the fourth quarter to lead the Washington Bullets to a come-from behind 98-88 National Basketball Association victory over the Indiana Pacers Friday night.

Unseld twisted his ankle midway in the third quarter when the Pacers were in the process of overcoming a 55-44 halftime deficit. He sat out the first four minutes of the fourth period but came back after the Bullets fell behind 77-71.

Sobers lead Phoenix Suns

BOSTON (AP) — Ricky Sobers scored 25 points and backcourt mate Paul Westphal added 21 Friday night as the Phoenix Suns built a whopping lead and hung on for a 107-103 National Basketball Association victory over the Boston Celtics.

The Suns, beaten for the NBA championship in a six-game playoff with the Celtics last spring, pushed their record to 10-10 with the victory. They started this season with a 1-5 mark.

Trailing 64-58 early in the third period, Phoenix went in front to stay with a 14-2 burst. Gar Heard scored three field goals, Westphal two and Sobers and Curtis Perry one each in the decisive seige.

The Suns, who outscored Boston 26-17 in the third period, boosted their lead to 14 points, 84-70, early in the final quarter, but then had to hold off repeated Boston challenges.

The Celtics closed to within two points, 103-101, on a threepoint play by Tommy Boswell with 1:05 remaining.

Orantes dazzles Harold Solomon

HOUSTON (AP) — Spain's Manuel Orantes dazzled Harold Solomon with a tricky bag of finesse shots Friday night for a 6-4, 6-3, 6-4 victory and a berth in the final of the $130,000 Master's Grand Prix tennis tournament.

Orantes, runnerup to Mexico's Raul Ramirez on the Grand Prix circuit this year, will meet Wojtek Fibak of Poland in Sunday's title match with $40,000 going to the winner.

Solomon, who has beaten Orantes only once in eight career matches, couldn't handle Orantes' drop shot-lob pattern throughout the match.

The Spaniard repeatedly drew Solomon to the net with pinpoint dropshots that, if returned, Orantes lobbed over the scrambling Solomon's head.

Solomon, noted for his lastditch comebacks, never could get untracked, although he fought off two match points in the ninth game of the third set to break Orantes with a scorching backhand down the line at break point.

Orantes broke back in the 10th game after Solomon fell behind 15-40 on a double fault to force the third match point.

The Spaniard didn't let that chance get away and took the match when Solomon dribbled a backhand volley harmlessly to the court.

Orantes first took charge of the match when he won 12 of 13 points over a three-game period and broke Solomon in the fifth and seventh games to take a 52 first-set lead.

Solomon, who finished fifth this year on the Grand Prix circuit, then broke back in the eighth game and held in the ninth, winning eight of 10 points before Orantes held to take the first set.

Orantes broke Solomon in the fifth and ninth games of the second set and by this time Solomon's frustration was beginning to show. After Orantes hit a cross-court smash at break point in the fifth game, Solomon stood on the opposite side of the court and waved at the ball.

Solomon fought off four break points before holding in the seventh game but fell behind in the ninth game on a double fault, two volleys by Orantes and a backhand error.

Ramirez and Brian Gottfried, the No. 1-ranked doubles team in the world, defeated Brian Fairlie of New Zealand and Ismail El Shafei of Egypt 6-3, 6-3, 6-4 to advance to Saturday's finals against Sherwood Stewart of Baytown, Tex., and Fred McNair of Chevy Chase, Md.

Crane loses to Stockton

FORT STOCKTON-Crane lost their fourth game of the young season Friday night, as the Golden Crane cagers lost to Fort Stockton here, 61-53.

Steve Hollifield was high point totaler in a losing cause for the Panthers with 13 points, while Bustos led the winners with 19.

Crane is now 3-4, while Fort Stockton is 5-4. Crane will be in action again Tuesday night, when they travel to Andrews.

Owls, Badgers clash

McCAMEY—Reagan County and McCamey will meet today at 7:30 p.m. for the McCamey Girls Basketball Tournament championship.

Host McCamey rolled over Alpine, 67-40, Friday in the second round while Reagan County disposed of Iraan, 50-35.

Joy Harris pumped in 33 points for McCamey while Emma Deanda scored 20 and Vickie Ybarra 12. Dorothy Watson scored 24 points for the Reagan County crew as Karri Page helped out with a 16 point effort.

Fort Stockton and Eldorado gained a berth in the consolation finals. Fort Stockton defeated Ozona, 42-31, while Eldorado eliminated Crane, 65-56.

Jill Yates led Eldorado with 28 points while Linda Loper paced Crane with 21 points. Wanda Byrd and Sharon Knight had 13 and 16 points respectively for Crane.

In the junior varsity division Friday, McCamey defeated Alpine, 42-33, as Lisa Steward hit 18 points and Jeannie Fuller 14. Reagan County downed Eldorado, 40-31, with Armstrong hitting 14 points.

In other JV games, Iraan defeated Crane, 50-42, and Fort Stockton nipped Ozona, 41-40.

LBJ tops Lee in tournament

AUSTIN—The Midland Lee Rebels dropped an 84-80 decision to L.B.J. High School here Friday in the opening round of the Austin Independent School District Basketball Tournament.

The loss was only the second in 11 outings for the Rebels.

Lee hit 33 of 68 shots from the field, but the 49 per cent shooting percentage was offset when the Rebs connected on only 14 of 33 from the charity line.

L.B.J.'s Newsom led all scorers with 24 points while Owens canned 19. Schuler and Harris and 11 and 10 points respectively as L.B.J. placed four players in double digits.

Lee was again led by Billy Ray Ennis with 22 points. Roy Lee Smith and Mike Wallace each had 14 points

Owls bow to Chiefs at Ozona

OZONA—The AAA Lake View Chiefs defeated the Class A Reagan County Owls, 53-38, here Friday in a key second round game of the Ozona Invitational Basketball Tournament.

The Owls, playing without veteran senior Jennings Teel who is out with a sprained ankle, tried to slow the game down early, but Marshall Avants' 24 points destroyed Reagan County. Mitch Kiser had 15 points in the losing cause.

Iraan met Eldorado in the late game, and was the only other second round action in the championship bracket.

The first round was completed Friday with Brady defeating Mason, 53-43, and Menard downing Coahoma, 67-51.

In second round consolation action, Ozona, playing only its second game of the year, escaped McCamey, 57-50, as Sterling Lay led the way with 18 points. David Myrick and Cesar Garcia each had nine points to pace the Badgers in a losing cause.

Stanton, Greenwood reach tourney finals

GREENWOOD—The Stanton Buffaloes and the Greenwood Rangers reached the finals of the Greenwood Invitational Basketball Tournament Friday night with second round victories.

Tim Glynn pumped in 31 points to lead Stanton to a 66-49 victory over Forsan, but the Buffs trailed in this one, 29-21, at the half. Doug McCalister added 18 points for the Buffs while Randy Creger had 12 for Forsan.

Greenwood pulled out a 53-50 overtime upset over the Rankin Red Devils. Johnny Womack led the way with 18 points while Mark Swafford and Russell Brooks had 17 and 10 points respectively. Swafford sank two free throws in the overtime to ice the decision. Greenwood and Stanton will meet at 8 p.m. today in the finals.

Randy Doege had 13 for Rankin while Michael Dupriest had 12 and Lynn Parker 10.

In the boys consolation, Carpenter's 22 points led Sundown to a 71-40 win over Klondike and Larry Simer's 27 paced Borden County to a 74-55 win over Grady. Borden County will meet Sundown today in the consolation finals.

In the girls division, Greenwood advanced to the finals today with a 46-40 win over Rankin as Cindy Brewer hit 25 points. Russan Ratliff had 11 and Lovanda Pruitt had 10. Joyce Plagens had 20 for Rankin.

Jeanne Bradford's 31 points led Klondike to a 49-33 win over Forsan. Klondike will meet Greenwood in today's finals at 6:30 p.m.

In the girls consolation bracket, Stanton nipped Sundown, 44-40, as Bonnie Bludworth led the way with 19 points. Sue Hancock's 25 paced Borden County to a 54-35 win over Grady. Faye Welch had 20 points for the losers.

Stanton and Borden County will meet for the consolation prize 12:30 p.m. today.

Aggies pummel Baptists

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — Freshman guard David Goff hit 12 points in an 18-point secondhalf rally that put Texas A&M on top to stay in an 87-72 victory over Houston Baptist in the Bayou Basketball Classic Friday night.

Centenary and Southwestern Louisiana met in the second game of the first round.

Houston Baptist took an early lead on the scoring of Huey Smith, but that disappeared late in the second quarter. Smith finished the night with 24 points.

Holding a four-point lead after intermission, Texas A&M reeled off 18 unanswered points early in the third quarter to put the game away.

State appeals ruling on girls

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A federal court ruling here requiring high schools to allow girls to play full-court basketball with five players has been appealed to the U.S. 6th Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati.

U.S. District Court Judge Karl Saulpaw said the appeal by the Tennessee Secondary Schools Athletic Association was received here Friday but that it did not include a check to pay for the filing fee.

Attorneys for the TSSAA said the check was left out of the envelope by mistake and would be sent to the clerk's office.

U.S. District Court Judge Robert L. Taylor ruled last month that the current TSSAA rules requiring six players from each team on the floor are discriminatory and unconstitutional. Taylor said the regulations reflect an archaic concept that girls are "weak and awkward" and violate the equal protection clause of the 14th amendment.

The suit was filed against the TSSAA and the Oak Ridge school system by James Cape on behalf of his 16-year-old daughter, Victoria Ann, a member of Oak Ridge High School's girls team.

The state was set for an appeal a week after Taylor's ruling when members of the TSSAA voted 192-172 to retain the six-player rules.

Under the six-player arrangements, three players are guards and three are forwards. Only the forwards can shoot the ball and play at the offensive end of the court. The guards are primarily defensive players at the other end of the court.

Texas, New York, Iowa, Arkansas and Oklahoma have similar regulations for high school girls. College women's basketball is played under the same rules used for high school boys and college men—five players, all of whom can play at both ends of the court and score points.

Spain leads as U.S. protests

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Spain, benefitting from an overruled protest by the United States, swept into the team lead and Kuo Chie-hsuing of Taiwan took sole control of the individual competition Friday in the second round of the World Cup international golf tournament.

The obviously annoyed Americans, Dave Stockton and Jerry Pate, called a rule infraction on the Spanish team—their playing partners—but were overruled by Robert Dwyer, a U.S. Golf Association official and a member of the tournament's rules committee.

IT TOUCHED off one of the greatest controversies in the 25-year history of this usually placid event that has drawn two-man teams from 48 nations.

The Spanish team of Seve Ballesteros and Manuel Pinero had a 142 total and was the only team even par after two rounds at 288.

The defending champion United States, first-round leader Scotland and Japan were tied for second at 291.

The veteran Kuo holed two monster putts of about 60 feet in length on his way to a windblown, one-under-par 71 that staked him to first place in the individual competition at 140, four-under-par on the 7,181-yard Mission Hills Country Club course.

PATE, THE U.S. Open champion and PGA National titleholder Stockton drifted well back after the controversy on the sixth hole. Pate shot a 74 and had a 144 total while Stockton was 73-147.

Ballesteros and Pinero both missed the green and were in the rough on No. 6, with their balls coming to rest only inches apart. Pinero marked his position and removed the ball to enable Ballesteros to play. Pinero, however, handed the ball to his caddy and "the caddy had a towel in his hand and the ball was in the towel," Pate said.

Cleaning of a ball under such a condition is prohibited by the rules and involves a two-stroke penalty.

THE INFRACTION was brought to the attention of Dwyer, who conferred with the Spaniards. Pinero told him the ball had not been cleaned and Dwyer ruled no infraction had occurred. A two-shot penalty was thus avoided.

Pate said he was not bothered by the ruling, but he bogeyed the next three holes.

The Spaniards refused to discuss the incident.

"My Spanish friends have told me it is better not to comment," Pinero said.

"It doesn't make any difference," Stockton said. "We felt something happened, but it was ruled that it did not happen. We're playing in a tournament we want to win very much. But we don't want to win it by calling rule infractions. We want to win it playing golf."

HE AND Pate then refused to answer any further questions.

Phil Mahre defies fog, rain to win skiing race

VAL D'ISERE, France (AP) — Former U.S. giant slalom champion Phil Mahre, 19, of White Pass, Wash., defied fog, rain and driving snow Friday to win the season's first World Cup ski race for men by more than a full second from Sweden's World Cup champion Ingemar Stenmark.

Mahre, in his second year as a member of the U.S. team, beat Stenmark and the entire world elite in each of two heats of the giant slalom race of the troubled "First Snow" ski tournament here.

It was the first World Cup victory in Mahre's career, and the first time the U.S. men's team has won a World Cup race in Europe since Terry Palmer won a slalom race in Sestriere, Italy, in 1972.

Mahre's triumph came one day after Abbi Fisher of South Conway, N.H., placed second in the women's slalom. The women's downhill was cancelled because of the blizzard that has swept across the French Alps almost without interruption for a week.

The snowfall suddenly turned to rain when Phil Mahre started down the 430-meter-drop, 80-gate giant slalom course early Friday, the first of 78 starters from 21 countries.

The early start was a clear advantage on the heavy, rainsoaked snow, and none of the subsequent starters equalled his time of 1:43.85.

Atlanta, Minnesota deadlock

ATLANTA (AP) — Roland Ericksson scored with 4:38 left to play to give the Minnesota North Stars a 3-3 tie with the Atlanta Flames Friday night in a National Hockey League contest.

Ericksson's 10th goal of the season came after the Flames had scored twice in the final period to take a 3-2 lead on goals by rookie defenseman Richard Mulhern, his fourth and fifth of the season.

Atlanta now has lost only one of its last 14 games and remains unbeaten in seven contests.

The Flames took a 1-0 lead in the first period on Tom Lysiak's goal when the Atlanta center knocked in a rebound of Mulhern's shot from the blue line.

Portland triumphs

BUFFALO (AP) — Larry Steele scored 11 points in the fourth quarter Friday night as the Portland Trail Blazers held off a Buffalo rally to beat the Braves 103-102 in a National Basketball Association game.

John Shumate was the high man for the Braves with 19 points. Bill Walton led Portland with 18 while Steele and Bob Gross had 17 points each.

Ball hogs will win in Pioneer

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP) — Coaches for Montana State and Akron University agreed Friday that the ball-hogging team will win Saturday's NCAA Division II national football title game here.

Jim Dennison of Akron University said "We have to control the ball and play defense. We believe you have to control the ball at least 32 minutes to win."

Akron has had more time of possession than nine of their 12 opponents.

Sonny Holland of Montana State said "Our running game must come through for us because we believe in ball control also."

"I don't care how close the game is I want to give each one of our kind a place to play. I don't expect anyone to come all this way, play and help us all season and sit on the bench in the last game."

Montana State is 11-1 going into the game. Akron upset Northern Michigan 29-26 in overtime to gain the finals.

Shavers eyes title go

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Earnie Shavers suddenly finds the added incentive of a possible heavyweight championship fight if he can beat Tiger Roy Williams on Saturday.

Muhammad Ali has announced that he won't retire after all and imediately started the backroom talk of a fight in March against Shavers, the 31-year-old from Warren, Ohio.

He's prominently mentioned because he is one of the ranking heavyweights who never has fought the champion.

"SURE, I want to fight Ali," Shavers declared as he weighed in at 210 pounds Friday for his scheduled 10-round nationally-televised fight against Williams, of Philadelphia, who scaled a hefty 231.

"First I thought Ali would retire and then I really didn't," said Shavers. "It's hard to give up when you love the game. Ali is a great fighter, but age is catching up with him and slowing him down. He's not the fighter he was three years ago.

"Now is the time he could be taken," said Shavers.

Shavers and Williams battle on a double bill also featuring light heavyweights Mike Quarry of Orlando, Fla. against Mike Rossman of Turnersville, N.J.

Quarry weighed in at 175 and Rossman, who lost a split decision to the Irishman in their first meeting, was 166½.

BOTH FIGHTS will be televised by CBS with the light heavies starting the action at about 3:20 CST.

Duane Bobick seemed the natural foe for Ali, in a white vs. black matchup, but he has fight coming up against Ken Norton. So the conjecture centers on Shavers, a hard puncher who is ranked No. 6 aong the contenders by the World Boxing Council.

"The championship fight possibility puts more importance on this Williams bout," declared Earnie. "It would mean more security for my family."

The boxer has five daughters and said he and his wife are conidering adopting a son.

Many observers give Williams a solid chance of an upset although he's the 9-5 underdog.

Montana State rules slight favorite today

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP) — Montana State rated a slight favorite over Akron University in Saturday's nationally-televised Pioneer Bowl, the playoff for the NCAA Division II football championship.

Montana State, ranked No. 1 in the final poll, tripped North Dakota State 10-3 in the Grantland Rice Bowl to advance to the final.

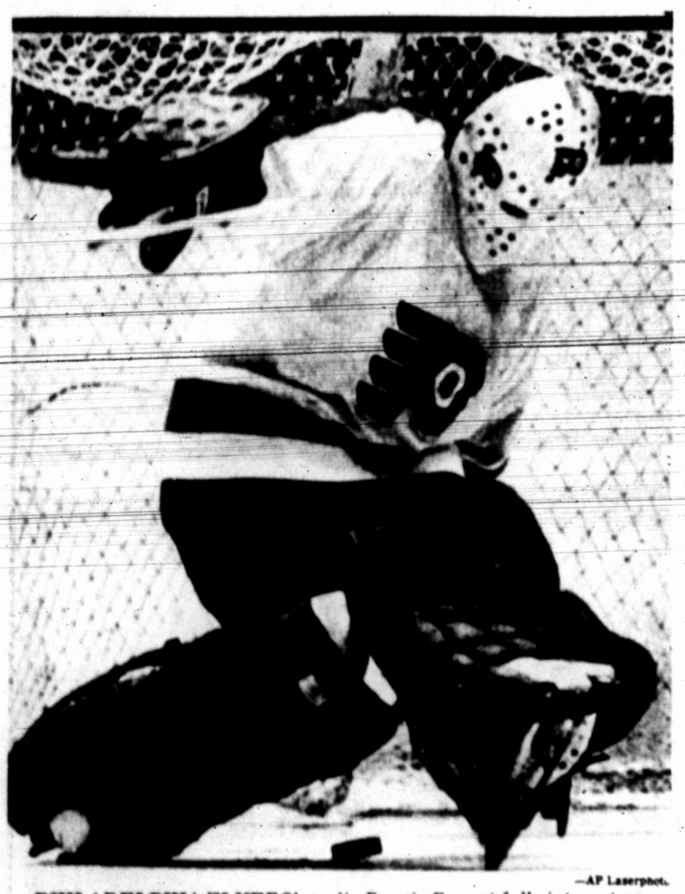

But the Zips are not without credentials. They upset defending champion Northern Michigan 29-26 in overtime—the first ever under Division II rules.

The Bobcats of Bozeman, Mont., who are coached by Sonny Holland, boast an 11-1 record and the top rushing attack in the division.

Junior tailback Tom Kostrba has gained more than 1,000 yards this year for the Bobcats.

Jim Dennison has coached the Zips to a 9-2 mark and can field a gritty ground game headed by junior halfback Dave Axner, who gained 120 yards against Northern Michigan.

Akron was No. 3 in the final NCAA Division II poll.

South Carolina State, Norfolk clash in bowl

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — South Carolina State's Bulldogs and Norfolk State's Spartans both will be seeking their first post-season victories when they tangle Saturday in the first Bicentennial Bowl football game at Richmond City Stadium.

Because of a special television arrangement, the game matching Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference champion South Carolina State and Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association champion Norfolk State will begin at 11 a. m. EST.

It will be the fourth consecutive bowl appearance for the Bulldogs and the second in three years for the Spartans, each of whom has won its conference title the last three years. Neither, however, has been successful in previous postseason outings.

"They say the game might boil down to our offense against their defensee. But I don't want anybody to overlook our defense. We have a mighty tough defense, too," says Norfolk State Coach Dick Price.

Hoosier freshman drops out

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Mike Miday says he left the Indiana University basketball team because Coach Bobby Knight demeaned him.

A spokesman for Knight said Thursday that Miday, a promising 6-foot-8 freshman forward from Canton, Ohio, quit because he thought he made the wrong choice of schools and was uncertain whether to remain a student.

However, the campus newspaper, The Indiana Daily Student, quoted Miday as saying there was a conflict with the coach.

Miday said he admired Knight's knowledge of basketball, "but I couldn't stand the way he treated me as a human being.

"I felt that as a player on the NCAA champions that I deserved better than to be treated as an object and demeaned in public...."

Miday said he was especially upset by things Knight said to him in the lockerroom.

"Maybe the things he said he just meant then, but I couldn't accept that," Miday said. "I really wanted to play for the guy....When you are recruited, you don't see him in a tense situation...he just goes bananas."

Carter trial halted after short session

PATERSON, N.J. (AP) — Legal motions on possible witnesses and their testimony took up an abbreviated session Friday at the murder retrial of former boxer Rubin "Hurricane" Carter and John Artis, found guilty in 1967 of a triple bar room murder.

Superior Court Judge Bruno L. Leopizzi recessed court early because two of the 16 jurors were ill.

In hearings without the jury, New York Times reporter Selwyn Raab voluntarily turned over his notes regarding a recantation of original trial testimony by the state's chief witness, Alfred P. Bello.

Raab also said he would appear voluntarily as a defense witness and had offered to appear for either side.

Former Manhattan television newsman Hal Levenson turned over a portion of his file on Bello's recantation and asked to consult with an attorney before turning over all materials.
