Golden Terrace Village...

Housing applications slated

Application forms for residency in Golden Terrace Village may be picked up all next week at the Senior Citizens Center.

Project sponsors note the date applicants pick up these forms will have no bearing on final consideration. All applications will be numbered, dated, screened and processed as they are returned April 15-19.

At that time, the applications will be considered on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Those applying will seek living quarters in the 11 building complex which will comprise 24 individual apartments.

The application forms may be picked up between the hours of 10 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. through next Friday. These should be returned beginning the following Monday on the same time schedule.

Applicants must be age 62 or older to apply and must return their applications in person. This will enable screening personnel to ask questions at the time of application.

Project sponsors emphasize that only applications returned in person will be considered.

The screening process is expected to take from two to three weeks. Those applying will be reviewed by the board of directors for Senior Citizens Inc. before a final decision is made.

Golden Terrace Village is designed to offer equal housing opportunities for all senior citizens who qualify.

Residences at the project — located west of College Ave. and south of 37th St. — range in size from 655 sq. ft. to 815 sq. ft.

The project is being funded by the Farmers Home Administration, which is providing a loan of $653,110. Interest on the note is set at 10.75 percent and is to be paid back over a 50-year period. Rent monies will be used to retire the debt.

Construction is now expected to be completed by mid-May.

Manager for the project will the L.E. (Doc) Griffin.

For further information, individuals may call the center at 573-4035 or Griffin at 573-6248.

APPLICATIONS BEGIN — County senior citizens interested in residing at Golden Terrace Village should begin pickup up their application forms Monday. These are due back in beginning April 15 and will be considered on a first-come, first-serve basis at that time. (SDN Staff Photo)

Snyder tax rates ranked favorably for tax statewide

Who pays the highest and who pays the lowest percent of property taxes in Texas — and where does Snyder fall in this ranking — was the subject of a study completed recently by the Texas Research League based in Austin.

Of 336 select cities pointed to throughout Texas, Snyder ranked 331 in terms of the lowest taxes paid when compared to actual market value.

This indicates Snyder property owners have the sixth lowest tax burden in the state for cities of greater than 5,000 population.

The lowest noted for the state was at Brenham, where taxes account for less than 1 percent of market value. The exact figure was .70 of 1 percent.

In Snyder, the percentage was .87 of 1 percent.

The percentage was reached by adding together the tax rates of each local entity for 1983-84. Snyder's percentage of .87 means taxpayers paid approximately 87 cents per $100 valuation during last tax year.

The highest percentage was in Crystal City, where taxpayers can expect to pay 2.3 percent of actual market value — or $2.30 per $100 valuation.

For comparisons with select area cities, the tax-market value percentage included:

—Sweetwater: 1.96 percent to rank it the 28th highest of 336 cities.

—Big Spring: 1.57 percent to rank it the 92nd highest of 336 cities.

—Lamesa: 1.38 percent to rank it the 168th highest of 336 cities.

—San Angelo: 1.21 percent to rank it the 239th highest of 336 cities.

—Andrews: .98 of 1 percent to rank it the 315th highest of 336 cities.

The study also took into account actual taxes paid for a single-family home with a market value of $80,000. In Snyder, the average tax bill was $597 for such a residence.

If a homestead exemption was claimed, this went to $537 and if it was owned by a senior citizen, it was lowered to $464.

For the same value of home in Pasadena, an individual would pay $1,935 — the highest tax reported in the state. The lowest was at Dumas, with a $251 tax bill.

With homestead exemptions figured in, the highest tax bill in the state was at Sweetwater with $1,600 in tax required.

The same $80,000 value was figured also for industrial and commercial equipment and inventory.

The Snyder tax bill for industrial equipment and inventories was set at $703. For commercial inventories and fixtures, the bill was set at $576.

The state averages ranged from $558 in Gatesville to $2,160 in Alvin.

The study, "Appraisal Practices and Tax Burdens, Texas Local Governments, 1983-84," is dated March, 1985, and is available at $4 per copy for the 60-page edition.

WINNERS AGAIN — Brad Vincent and Dana Parham — on stage to receive their Best Actor and Best Actress awards for the UIL Area II One-Act Play contest Friday afternoon — led the celebration as the announcement came that the SHS production of "Romeo and Juliet" had been chosen to advance to regional competition in Brownwood next Saturday. One-act 'winner' for area

Critic-judge Richard Sodders — director of the Dallas Shakespeare Festival — chose the SHS theatre department's production of "Romeo and Juliet" and the Levelland High School production of, Elizabeth Duggs' "Close Ties" as the top two plays of the UIL Area II One-Act play contest held here Friday.

Both productions will now advance to regional competition next Saturday — April 13 — in Brownwood.

Brad Vincent and Dana Parham — who portray Romeo and Juliet in this year's production — added to their growing lists of individual honors by claiming both the Best Actor and Best Actress titles Friday.

Local student-actors claimed a total of six individual awards for Friday's performances.

Chelle Krueger — who plays Juliet's nurse — earned her third all-star cast medal of the contest season while John Hamlett,

$2 million lawsuit due discussion

County commissioners Monday are scheduled to discuss the recent $2 million lawsuit filed against the county.

A closed session is slated as commissioners meet with representatives from the law firm expected to represent them. The executive session is part of the regular Monday meeting agenda.

The lawsuit was filed March 29 in 132nd District Court by legal representatives for Glenn and Twila Polk. The couple filed the action against Scurry County and the Snyder Chamber of Commerce due to the death of their 12-year-old son Jeff October Oct. 8.

132nd District Court guilty pleas offered

Two defendants entered guilty pleas to felony charges in 132nd District Court last week.

Twenty-two year-old Ricky Dewayne Cox of Proctor was given a 25-year prison sentence in exchange for his plea to a charge of burglary of a habitation.

He was indicted by the March grand jury for three of 17 burglaries of mobile homes at Lake Thomas. Two of those three indictments were also dismissed after he pleaded guilty to one count.

Drawing a four-year prison term in exchange for a guilty plea was 24-year-old Lon Lee Pilgrum of Lawton, Okla.

Pilgrum was indicted for forgery during the regular April grand jury session last Monday. He had been charged with passing a forged check drawn on Bobby Maxwell of Snyder.

The court also revoked previously granted probationary prison terms for two individuals.

Andres Gutierrez — who had been given three years probation on a conviction for theft over $200 in May 1982 — had his probation revoked in light of a recent arrest for driving while intox-

Bell-Seale announces name switch

Effective last week, the firm of Bell-Seale Funeral Home has begun operations as Bell-Cypert-Seale, adding the name of Jack Cypert, vice president and partner of the establishment.

Cypert became associated with the management and ownership of Bell-Seale in 1973. Bill Seale serves as president.

Other members of the professional staff include Gaither Bell, Don Farmer and Freddie Thompson.

The funeral home was established in 1952 as Bell Funeral Home by Gaither Bell. Bill Seale purchased his interest in 1963 and the name was changed in 1964 to Bell-Seale.

We've had a lot of fun with the most embarrassing moment contest. We've received well over 60 stories from your friends and neighbors.

We've been told countless other stories in person. Most folks start with "it's too embarrassing to tell," or "you couldn't put it in print."

We hope to announce the winner in a week or so. We've asked Fort Worth columnist George Dolan to judge the entries. Dolan is one of the state's best and he always has an eye open for a humorous situation.

Some of the verbal stories really couldn't be printed. Others had just rather tell them on someone else. Martha Gist, secretary out at WTC, likes to tell this one on her husband, David, who is co-owner of Arrow Construction.

David was in one of those fancy restaurants in another city. David is the a "chicken fry" sort of fellow, but he gave into the pressure to eat in one of those places where the waiter has to interpret the menu.

Everthing went just fine until David decided to wipe his mouth. Instead of a napkin, Gist grabbed his tie and gave his mouth a big wipe.

Rex Robinson over at Snyder National Bank likes to tell about selling Ira School Superintendent Jay Martin a Christmas tree from the Rotary Club.

Robinson made Martin such a good deal on the Christmas tree that Jay comes the bank to make monthly installments.

There's a pretty good one on Bill Atwood, owner of Atwood Construction. Several years ago Bill had been conducting a safety meeting for his employees.

After it concluded, Bill was backing out of the firm's parking lot and ran smack over his wife's new car.

Services set Monday for ex-office holder

Services will be at 4 p.m. Monday for former Scurry County Tax Assessor-Collector Clarence Lowell (C.L.) Minton. He died Friday at Lubbock Methodist Hospital in Lubbock.

Time of death was set at 11:55 p.m. as a result of a heart attack suffered here March 28. He was 52.

Services Monday will be at First Baptist Church. Officiating will be Rev. Ken Branam, church pastor, assisted by Rev. Buck Hatfield, pastor of Faith Baptist Church.

Minton had lived in Scurry County most of his life and was a county employee at the time of his death, working in Pct. 4.

He was elected to the tax office in November of 1976, assuming that post Jan. 1, 1977. He won re-election in 1980, then resigned the post in 1982.

At the time of his death he was serving as interim pastor for Cheating scam...

Fishermen get prison

MARSHALL, Texas (AP) — Four Louisiana men are headed to prison for their roles in a cheating scam at high-stakes fishing tournaments that netted participants more than $350,000 in prize money.

Elro Vernon McNeil, 32, of Bossier City, was sentenced Friday to the maximum five-year prison sentence and fined $5,000 by U.S. District Judge Robert Parker.

Parker also ordered a five-year sentence to Gary W. Parkerson, 39, of Sarepta. Carey Harmon, 37, of Bossier City, was sentenced to four months, and Kenneth D. Puckett, 30, of Dubach, to six months for their participation in the cheating scam.

Federal investigators said those involved won seven lucrative fishing tournaments by using large black bass purchased in Florida by McNeil and then pretending the fish had been caught during competition.

McNeil recruited the other men to participate in the scam, prosecutors said.

The court, Parker said, "will no longer tolerate this type of criminal activity because of the number of innocent outdoorsmen involved in fishing tournaments." The judge did not order restitution, saying that victims of the scheme could not be identified.

Parkerson was the winner of the $105,000 KYKX Radio Station Big Bass tournament at Lake O' The Pines in 1983. He is now serving a seven-year sentence in a Louisiana prison for parole violation, and will not begin serving the federal term until he is released from his state term.

Harmon and Puckett were convicted for their participation in the $100,000 Camp Texarkana Big Bass Tournament held at Lake Wright Patman.

All four men pleaded guilty Dec. 11 to conspiring to violate mail and wire fraud laws and interstate transportation of stolen money.

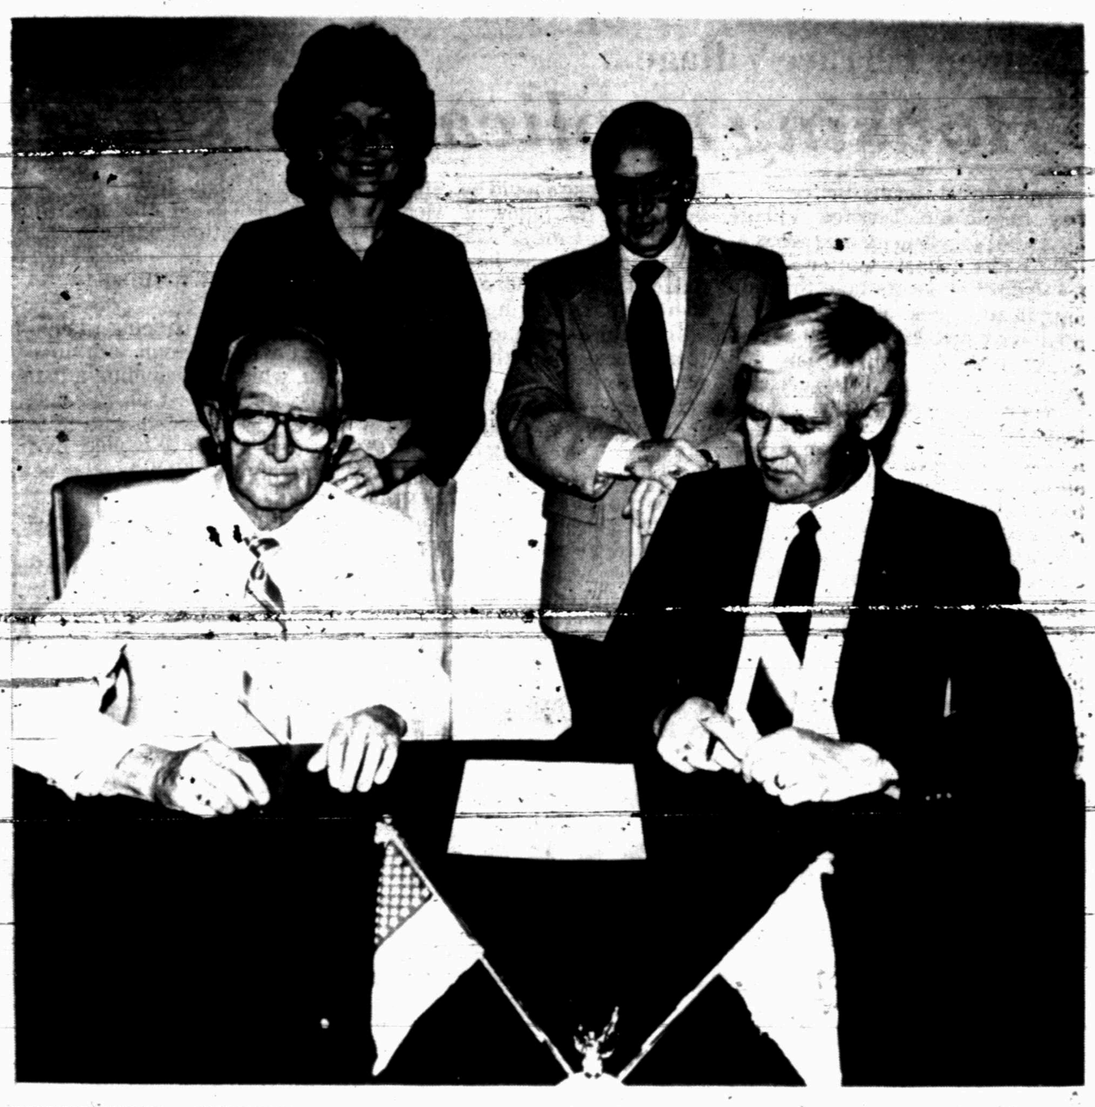
Earlier testimony disclosed that the ring, under the leadership of McNeil, claimed more than $73,000 at the Camp Texarkana tournament by winning the top three prizes.

Danny R. Davis, who later died of a self-inflicted gunshot wound to the head, claimed the $50,000 first prize after two brothers were disqualifed for failing a polygraph examination. Federal investigators said Davis split the money with McNeil, Harmon and Puckett.

The ring also netted $139,000 in prize money from the KYKX Big Bass Classic, authorities said.

Thomas McAlexander of Keithville, La., told federal prosecutors in a plea agreement that he conspired with Parkerson, McNeil and Fred G. Scheen Jr., of Shreveport, La., to take the two top prizes.

McAlexander and Scheen will be sentenced later.



VOLUNTEER APPRECIATION WEEK–The week of April 8-12 has been designated Volunteer Appreciation week in Snyder and Scurry County. Those present for the official signing of the proclamation Wednesday were from left, seated: County Judge Preston Wilson and Mayor Rod Waller; standing: Billie Smith, VIVA volunteer coordinator at the Senior Center, and Bill Dryden, chairman of the advisory council of the center. Highlight of the week will be the Volunteer Appreciation Banquet slated for 6:30 p.m. Thursday at the center. (SDN Staff Photo)

Senior Center sets banquet Thursday

The Senior Center will host its sixth annual Volunteer Recognition Banquet Thursday evening as a means of honoring all those who give volunteer time to the community in and through the center.

Serving is to start at 6:30 p.m. Because of the food preparation and other arrangements which must be made for the banquet, no noon meal will be served on Thursday.

On Friday morning, the Rev. Virgil Mott will present a musical program starting at 11:30 a.m. in the center dining room. Mott will be presenting selections on his harmonica.

Ticket sales are underway for the May Day barbecue to be held on May 4 in the Scurry County Coliseum. Tickets are $5 each and must be purchased in advance since there will be no ticket sales at the serving lines. Booths offering homemade baked goods and crafts will also be open in the coliseum. All proceeds from May Day go into the operating fund of the Senior Center.

Senior citizens who would like to know more about the activities of the center are invited to visit on weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Transportation to the center, located at 2603 Ave. M, can be arranged by calling the office at 573-4035 Monday through Friday.

Pentagon stops General Dynamics payments

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon announced Friday it has decided to stop all payments to the General Dynamics Corp. for work on weapons contracts until it recovers the entire $154 million identified in a new audit as excess claims paid out in past years.

Since General Dynamics collects an estimated $700 million a month for the work it performs on various weapons, it will take the Pentagon less than a month to recover the disputed claims.

The Defense Department decision was disclosed in a one-page memorandum issued to reporters late in the day. Phone calls to General Dynamics' office seeking comment went unanswered.

In its statement, the Pentagon also disclosed that General Dynamics submitted a list of proposed changes in its internal billing procedures last week; and said that even though the money will be recovered in less than a month, the Pentagon is going to continue withholding claims relating to current administrative expenses until certain conditions are met.

The memorandum follows the disclosure on Thursday that Pentagon auditors had identified $154 million worth of excess overhead claims in a special audit ordered on March 5 by Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger.

Weinberger ordered that audit at the same time he imposed a 30-day suspension on all overhead payments to General Dynamics. Both actions followed congressional testimony during which it was disclosed the firm had submitted claims for such things as the cost of boarding an executive's dog at a kennel, country-club expenses and questionable travel costs.

Spokesman Michael I. Burch, in disclosing the audit results on Thursday, had noted the payment freeze ordered by Weinberger had cost General Dynamics roughly $30 million over the past month. That "leaves an owed balance of $124 million," Burch said, adding: "We will collect that amount."

"Under the circumstances," the memo states, "the department has determined to withhold additional amounts from the contractor pending satisfactory resolution of these open items.

"The total additional amount to be withheld for this purpose is $154 million. The general and administrative expenses withheld over the past 30 days will be netted against this sum. The additional withholding will be made against current billings submitted by the contractor until the total has been reached."

In the case of General Dynamics, the Pentagon has said the firm normally receives $700 million a month. Of that, roughly $670 million is for work actually performed on new weapons such as Trident submarines, while the remaining $30 million or so is to cover administrative and overhead expenses.

Even though it will soon recover the entire disputed $154 million, the Pentagon said it will continue the freeze on administrative payments until certain conditions are met.

General Dynamics must adjust "current billing rates ... to conform to auditors' recommended rates." The company must also "alter its internal management and accounting practices ... to assure that claims for unallowable costs will not be made."

The memo then states that last week, General Dynamics submitted a list of proposed changes in its internal billing procedures "to prevent recurrences of the claiming of clearly unallowable costs such as those which arose during recent congressional hearings."

"The department is evaluating the adequacy of these procedural changes at this time," the statement said.

General Dynamics, which in fiscal 1983 was the nation's largest defense contractor, builds all the Navy's Trident missile-firing submarines, most of its attack subs, Army tanks, F-16 jet fighters, Tomahawk cruise missiles and a variety of other weaponry.

Society threatens suit over 'beast'

NEW YORK (AP) — While the ASPCA threatens court action, Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus is sticking to its story: the "Living Unicorns" are real unicorns, not "surgically produced" freaks.

The battle over the one-horned animals was joined Friday as the circus responded to charges from the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals that the "unicorns" are merely goats with crafted-on horns.

"The Living Unicorn arrived at the Circus exactly as it is seen today," said circus vice president Allen J. Bloom. "The only difference in it now is that its horn has grown several inches since it joined the circus."

But John Kullberg, president of the ASPCA, said the four animals he was allowed to inspect Thursday were definitely goats, and unless circus officials answer his charges he will take them to court.

Kullberg accused the circus of being "cruel and severely unethical" and called on the public to boycott "The Greatest Show on Earth," which opened this week for a nine-week run at Madison Square Garden.

"Unless their attitude changes, and that doesn't seem likely right now, I don't think the public should be paying for surgically produced freak shows," Kullberg said.

Bloom's statement coincides with Ringling's public relations campaign, which claims the animals are, indeed, the "elusive, mythical beasts."

The campaign is geared toward only one "unicorn," but a circus spokeswoman admitted there were four in the troupe. "Only one appears in the show but all four are unicorns," said Susahanna Smith.

Miss Smith said circus officials are not doing anything about the ASPCA's charges.

Bloom called the ASPCA's charges of animal cruelty ludicrious and said the call for a boycott was "an unfair and ill-conceived effort by grinches to steal the kind of wholesome fantasy all too rare in today's entertainment."

Ringling Bros.' advertising campaign this season is built around the unicorn, which is described by the dictionary as a one-horned beast with the head and body of a horse, the hind legs of a stag and the tail of a lion.

Circus programs feature color pictures of the animal — which looks very much like a well-groomed, long-haired goat — and a fact sheet with tidbits like where it came from, what it eats, and how long it lives.

The answers, the circus says, are: it appeared out of the blue last summer and joined the circus in Houston, its favorite food is rose petals, and as for its life span, "He is ageless."

Grenada's Carib Indians, after trading most of their land to a Frenchman in 1650, changed their minds and fought a losing battle against the new colonists. Rather than surrender, 40 Carib warriors leaped to their deaths from a precipice.

'Legion of Doom' rocks Fort Worth school

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Their calling card was a swastika. They favored pipe bombs and once left a disemboweled cat in a student's car.

They called themselves the Legion of Doom. And when they were exposed, it rocked the community.

The small band of self-styled vigilantes turned out to be the teen-age sons of affluent families. Some are athletes, others are on the honor roll. All nine are white.

"It was broken hearts and shock," was how police Detective Ken Henry described the reaction of parents.

In what they claim was an attempt to rid Paschal High School of theft, drugs and "undesirable elements," the Legion may have committed as many as 35 felonies themselves, police say.

Whatever their motive, the Legion's message was harsh.

On sidewalks and parks in the pleasant neighborhood of tree-lined streets and comfortable homes near campus, they scrawled messages such as these:

"Democrats, communists and niggers shall perish under our wrath." and "We are the future Aryan lords."

The bizarre story of the middle-class gang with a name taken from the pages of comic books began to unravel after a weekend of violence in late March.

On Friday, March 27, a student's windshield was shot out. A note left on the car bore a red swastika and the message:

"Paschal is now Nazi territory. You are short-lived if you return. Heed our warning. There will not be another."

The next day, another student's windshield was smashed and a gutted cat was placed on the steering wheel. The entrails were smeared on the upholstery.

And on Sunday, a pipe bomb loaded with nails and screws damaged a student's car, a nearby house and another vehicle parked nearby.

Within days two Paschal students and a recent Paschal graduate had been arrested, questioned and released. Six more Paschal students came in voluntarily for questioning, said Fort Worth police spokesman Doug Clarke.

"Some of the offenses appear to be racially motivated," he said.

According to police, the crimes under investigation range from the attempted fire-bombing of a black student's home, to the manufacture and possession of illegal weapons, including a home-made bazooka, to assorted acts of arson, vandalism, terroristic threats and criminal mischief.

So far, none of the students has been charged, a fact that disturbs some people.

"In the classroom these kids might be all-American, Jack Armstrong types, but in the real world they are no better than the criminal elements they are trying to stamp out," said Tom Hill, the father of a student whose car was damaged by a pipe bomb.

Police have defended their handling of the case. Authorities said that rather than file charges, they would take the cases directly to the Tarrant County grand jury, probably sometime this month.

"It's a complicated mess. We're going to sort it all out and let the grand jury decide the final outcome," said Detective Tim Ellis.

The Legion of Doom was born last fall.

"It started out as a gang of pranksters," said Paschal football coach John Somsky.

A member of the Legion told The Dallas Morning News that the group began by harassing homosexuals in a park near the school, but quickly tired of the pasttime.

"It got old real quick," the unidentified member said.

He said the group, frustrated at the failure of authorities to control crime on campus, then launched its campaign to clean up Paschal.

Paschal is not the sort of school usually associated with gang activity, police say. About 45 percent of its nearly 2,100 students go on to universities. About 60 percent of the student body is white, 24 percent is Hispanic and 15 percent is black.

Sgt. M.C. Slayton, head of the Fort Worth police department's gang unit, said the Legion of Doom is the only white gang authorities have identified in this city of 385,000.

School officials said they did not know of the gang until recently, and they added that they have no jurisdiction over off-campus activities.

But Mark Mendoza, a member of a Hispanic gang that was one of the Legion's targets, claims the Legion.

"These are rich kids who come from prominent families and they think they can pretty much get away with anything," he said. "What if it were me and my friends?"

School trustee Maudrie M. Walton agreed.

"If ... the youngsters had been black, Hispanic or poor whites, there would have been a different attitude," he said.

KINDERGARTEN REGISTRATION--Ira Public School will be holding its annual spring registration for children who will be entering kindergarten this fall April 16-18. One prospective five-year-old who will be registering is Amy Harless who is shown here with her mother, Mrs. Mark (Sheila) Harless. Beverly Clements, school secretary, is pictured also. For five-year-olds...

Ira Schools set registration times

The Ira Public School will be holding its annual spring registration for children who will be entering kindergarten for the 1985-86 school year on April 16-18.

Children are eligible for kindergarten if they will have reached five years of age on or before Sept. 1, 1985. Preregistration will be conducted in the principal's office between the hours of 9 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. A valid birth certificate and immunization record will be required at this time.

Parents are urged to begin getting their immunization records up to date. The required immunizations are as follows: polio, minimum of three doses; DPT, minimum of three doses; measles (rubeola), one dose after first birthday; rebella, one dose; and mumps, one dose.

A doctor's written verification of the child having measles or mumps will be acceptable in lieu of a vaccination.

Peso problem...

Vending machine can distinguish quarter

DRESHER, Pa. (AP) — Equipment Systems and Devices Inc. has a 51-cent solution to a 25-cent problem.

The company, which manufactures coin slides for laundry machines, has made a new coin slot that can tell the difference between the new Mexican peso — worth only about half a cent — and the U.S. quarter, Vice President for Sales Earl Romine said Friday.

The peso and the quarter are virtually the same size and weight, so some vending machines, especially laundry machines which use coin slide mechanisms, cannot tell the difference.

There may be a 24½-cent difference in the value of the coins, but there is only one-14-thousandth-of-an-inch difference in their diameters.

"That's enough to correct it," said Romine.

Romine's company has made a new coin slot that is one 14-thousandth of an inch smaller in diameter than the old one. The coin slots can be fitted onto the coin slide by the owner or operator "in probably a minute," he said.

ESD isn't looking to make a mint, he said. The new coin slots cost only 51 cents to make.

"Unless it's large quantities they want, we'd probably give the part to our customers free," Romine said.

Romine said the problem is particularly bad and increasing in Texas and California. But vendors much further north have also reported finding the pesos in their machines.

Several attendants at a Brownsville laundromat said the problem decreased after publicity last month.

"I think it's been less a problem since all the publicity went on TV," said an attendant at a laundromat, who spoke on condition that the name of her business not be revealed. She feared she might lose business.

Joy riders cause Coast Guard search

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Coast Guard helicopters and boats searched a 200-square-mile area of the Gulf of Mexico for nearly 15 hours for three adventurous boys who skipped school, borrowed a boat and went for a joy ride around Galveston Bay, officials said.

The boys — ages 13, 13 and 12 — were spotted about 5 p.m. Friday and taken into custody by Galveston County sheriff's deputies, said Coast Guard Petty Officer Tracy Carlson. They were released later to their parents, Carlson said.

About 8:30 a.m. Thursday, the three boys told friends at McAdams Junior High School in Dickinson, about 20 miles north, that "they were planning to skip school, get a boat and go out into Galveston Bay," Carlson said.

Two Coast Guard helicopters and three boat and the sheriff's marine division began looking for the trio about 1 a.m. Friday, Carlson said.

Authorities feared the 16-foot flat-bottomed boat they took might have sunk in the choppy water.

In Austin...

Fundamentalists compete

AUSTIN (AP) — With Easter Sunday at hand, religious fundamentalists and atheists are competing on opposite sides of Austin, the atheists vowing to ignore the Christians and the fundamentalists urging to "pack up up the forces of evil."

"All they are doing is using our convention to get themselves a name," said Jon Murray, vice president of the American Atheists meeting in south Austin. "We will continue to ignore them."

"Pack up the forces of evil and truck them down the road," said C.E. "Buddy" Hicks, host of a local radio-TV talk show and organizer of the God and Country Rally in north Austin.

Madalyn Murray O'Hair, president and founder of American Atheists told a news conference Friday that religious fundamentalism was spreading throughout the nation "in a manner that frightens me."

"And it is a thing that we must regret and apologize for to the world that we have a president who eggs them on," said Mrs. O'Hair, whose lawsuit on behalf of her oldest son led to the banning of organized prayer in public schools.

Hicks, who also is a part-time preacher, said he organized the rally of Christians after learning from William Murray, eldest son of Mrs. O'Hair, that the atheists planned to hold their 15th meet in Austin on Easter weekend. Murray, who has broken with his mother, is now a Dallas-based evangelist.

"I see the fundamentalists as facists, reactionaries, thought police and basically are sick," Mrs. O'Hair said at the news conference.

She said atheists would work hard to take advantiage of two favorable court decisons this year that she said would allow them access to public schools along with other religions and for tuition tax credits for atheist schools.

Her other son, Jon, director of the American Atheist Center in Austin, sat by her side.

She was asked about a statement by William Murray on Thursday that atheists stand for anarchy, destruction of government, and a number of other things.

"I've got ying and yang for sons," Mrs. O'Hair replied. "I've got a good one and a bad one. There's always a bad apple in the barrel."

She said American atheists stand for "freedom from the oppression of religion, freedom from the censorship of human thought, freedom from the traditions that have been religious which have caused so much misery for humankind."

She said the God and Country rally was formed for the specific reason, to obstruct what we are doing."

Block says farm bill delay would be cop-out

WASHINGTON (AP) — If Congress fails to pass an acceptable farm bill this year and decides instead to extend the current law, it would be "the ultimate cop-out," says Agriculture Secretary John R. Block.

The administration is "absolutely, firmly resolved to reform agricultural policy" this year and will not accept any move by Congress to settle for a simple extension of current law "because virtually everyone agrees that the current law is not working," he said.

Further, Block told a group of reporters on Friday, the budget compromise struck this week by the Reagan administration and senior Republican senators will allow more leeway on Capitol Hill in working out new farm legislation.

Block also said the Agriculture Department will hold a referendum among wheat farmers before Aug. 1 to determine what kind of government program would be in effect next year in case Congress does not come up with a suitable farm bill.

If there is no new legislation, federal programs for wheat and certain other commodities would revert to so-called permanent laws dating from 1938 and 1949 which provide tough government regulation and relatively high price supports.

The budget compromise announced earlier this week would aim at saving $52 billion in the fiscal year that will begin on Oct. 1 and $295.4 billion over the next three years. Farm price supports would be cut by $1.5 billion in 1986 and $8 billion through 1988. Credit programs would be reduced $1.6 billion next fiscal year and $6.8 billion over the three-year period.

In the administration's original budget plan sent to Congress two months ago, farm supports would have been cut $16 billion over three years and credit programs by $10 billion.

Block said the willingness of the White House to be flexible on reducing budget deficits will help improve the chances of the administration's "market-oriented" approach to farm legislation, which includes the phasing down of commodity price supports.

There has been widespread criticism of the administration's 15-year farm plan as seeking too much too quickly, although it does provide for a transition period of several years to help wean farmers away from federal supports and subsidies.

Block said the budget compromise will "provide a longer time frame for transition to market-oriented agriculture" and that some program features could be financed at higher levels than initially proposed.

Although Block declined to be specific, he did suggest that the administration's proposal for phasing out target price payments to certain crop producers by 1991 might be softened. Currently, when market prices fall below target levels, farmers get "deficiency payments" to help make up the difference.

But Block said he was firm on the administration's goal of reducing price support loan rates — the amount farmers can borrow from USDA by using their crops as collateral — since those often result in artificially high floor prices for wheat and other commodities the United States wants to sell on the world market. Critics say the federal supports make U.S. commodities too expensive for foreign buyers.

"I strongly believe the principles of getting American agriculture competitive (with foreign countries) — which means getting loan rates down — still hold," Block said. "I don't think we want to give that up."

According to law, Block must announce by April 15 whether there is enough wheat in the U.S. pipeline to warrant still marketing quotas to control next year's crop. If marketing quotas are proclaimed, the department then must hold a referendum among wheat producers by Aug. 1 to see whether the quotas will be in effect.

"We are going to hold one, we definitely are," Block said.

Western Co. announces its awards

The Snyder district of the Western Co. of North American announced the following winners in their Pacesetter Award program for the first quarter of this year.

Those receiving a $500 check were Eric Clay, Ron Atkins, James Hattenbach, John Ferris and Steve Rich. This award is given once per quarter for outstanding performance in equipment operation, supervision, maintenance, office and facility operation and sales.

These men were recognized by their supervisors and fellow employees in the district. The Snyder district will also be recognized for its safety record in the first quarter and will receive the only quarterly award given by company in this region.

Rockets explode over race track

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Rocket-propelled grenades exploded over the Beirut racetrack minutes before post time today, sending an estimated 4,000 spectators diving for cover, witnesses reported.

Jockeys jumped down from atop their mounts and the horses, lined up at the starting line, bolted toward the stands as the blasts shook the Hippodrome, on the Green Line separating Beirut's Moslem and Christian sectors.

Two ambulances were seen leaving the track, and police said at least two people were injured in the crowd stampede. They said the three grenades exploded in the air, missing the spectators and the horses.

The track supervisory committee said the weekend races were indefinitely suspended.

A committee source, speaking on condition he not be identified, said a local militia had demanded protection money and was turned down. He declined to name the militia, or say whether it was Moslem or Christian.

In the southern port city of Sidon, sniper fire and occasional blasts of grenades were heard as fighting between Christians and Moslems entered its ninth day, raising fears of a new round of nationwide civil war.

There were no reports of casualties. By police counts, 48 people have been killed and 194 wounded since the hostilities in south Lebanon's largest city began March 29.

Christian politicians were preparing for a "crisis Christian conference" of spiritual and political leaders aimed at trying to patch up feuds.

Camille Chamoun, a former president and current member of the Lebanese Cabinet, said the meeting probably would be held Tuesday or Wednesday in Bkirki, the seat of the Maronite Christian patriarch, Antonios Khoreish, northeast of Beirut.

President Amin Gemayel, who has been under pressure from Syria to resolve the split in the Christian community that began March 12 when Lebanese Forces commander Samir Geagea split with Gemayel's Phalange Party, called for the conference.

Syria has been supporting Gemayel's drive to reconcile Lebanon's Christians and Moslems and end the 10-year civil war. Syrian-controlled newspapers have warned that Syria could interevene militarily to crush the rebellion, which the papers have said was backed by Israel.

Syria and several Lebanese politicians have blamed Geagea loyalists for starting the Sidon fighting.

Trade missiles...

Iran, Iraq targets

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iran fired a ground-to-ground missile into downtown Baghdad Friday and Iraq retaliated with missile strikes on three Iranian border cities, an Iraqi military spokesman said.

The government gave no casualty figure from the powerful blast in Baghdad. It was the eighth huge explosion in the capital in just over three weeks, and the first that Iraq acknowledged was caused by an Iranian missile.

The military spokesman said on state television that Iraq fired five missiles — two each into Bakhtaran (formerly Kermanshah), and Ilam, and one into Shahabad. Iran said nothing of the attacks.

Iraqi missiles hit Bakhtaran and Hamadan Thursday, and Iran reported dozens of people were killed and scores wounded.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's government had said it would intensify the "war of the cities" in an effort to force Iran to negotiate and end to the 4½-year-old conflict.

Iran has offered only an agreement to end attacks on civilians, and its Shiite Moslem leader, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, has vowed to continue the war.

U.N. Secretary-general Javier Perez de Cuellar was in Bahrain on his Mideast tour and renewed his offer to go to Tehran and Baghdad "tomorrow, the day after, or Monday even" — but only if Iran was willing to discuss a "comprehensive" settlement.

The Soviet Union, one of Iraq's military supplier, told Foreign Minister Tarik Aziz last week in Moscow that it wants a negotiated solution. Its official news agency Tass said the same message was given Friday to Hossein Kazempur-Ardebili, Iran's deputy foreign minister and the highest Iranian official to visit Moscow in three years.

In announcing the Iraqi missile attacks, the military spokesman said Iraq would "continue the revenge strikes until they (the Iranians) accept total peace."

Hashemi Rafsanjani, speaker of Iran's parliament, said Thursday night that Iran would fire a missile into Baghdad and warned residents to flee the city.

Police and militiamen sealed off Baghdad's downtown area after the explosion at 3:25 p.m. and kept reporters out. Although Friday is the Moslem holy day, many shops open and the district often is crowded at midafternoon.

Iraqi policemen waved speeding ambulances through intersections. Telephone operators at government-run hospitals refused to answer questions about casualties.

Judge may order state funds for mental health care

AUSTIN (AP) — A letter from a federal judge to attorneys for mentally ill Texans indicates he is considering an order that would force the state to pay for court-ordered improvements in state mental hosptials.

U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders of Dallas asked the lawyers to file a motion promptly to bring state agencies or officials into the 11-year old court case against the eight state mental hospitals, the Austin American-Statesman reported Saturday.

The judge said he needs the names "of those who should be before the court in the event the court ... finds it necessary to require the expenditure of state funds sufficient to obtain compliance with the state's obligations."

Sanders has been overseeing the conditions in the state mental hospitals since a class-action suit was filed against the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation in 1974.

The suit claimed the patients were exposed to dangerous conditions, misuses of psychotic drugs and lack of treatment.

The state settled the suit in 1981 but the settlement agreement became a court order.

Sanders has since ordered the hospitals to comply with staff-patient ratios and monthly reports on the progress the Legislature is making towards earmarking sufficient funds for the hospitals are sent to the judge.

"The reports reflect that prospects are at best uncertain for obtaining appropriations sufficient for compliance with the 1981 settlement agreement and the 1984 settlement stipulation" on staff-patient ratios, Sanders said in the letter.

The mental health department requested a $1.6 billion budget for 1986-87. The request included $151 million for compliance with the mental hospital suit.

House and Senate committees have recommended a $1.2 billion budget for the department.

Prison guard fired in brothel probe

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A Texas Department of Corrections guard was fired after officials learned he asked a prison shop to paint a sign for a house of prostitution that an inmate allegedly operated from his cell.

James Flora, 31, was fired Wednesday from his job at the Eastham Unit in Lovelady after failing to appear before a review board investigating the case, said Warden David Myers.

Flora, who had worked as a prison guard for five years, was relieved of duty last week after prison officials discovered he had asked to have a sign painted bearing the name of the alleged brothel, Hot Tub No.1, located 10 miles north of Conroe.

Eastham inmate Raymond Freda Sr., 51, also known as Raymond G. Conti, was indicted last month on charges he operated the club using his connections with prison employees.

Six other people were indicted in the investigation on organized crime charges, including Freda's wife, Delores Conti, 41; her brother, Tony Rubino, 35; former prison guard Francisco Olivas; and three club employees.

Olivas' roommate, Donald Swafford, 24, was arrested in the apartment they shared on drug possession charges. Swafford was fired from his job as a prison guard because of the arrest.

Freeman throws shot 55-6¾ to claim 8th place at Austin

AUSTIN -- Snyder's Kyle Freeman heaved the shot put 55-feet, 6¾ inches to place eighth among a field of 24 at the Texas Relays here Friday afternoon.

The senior athlete was to compete in the discus Saturday.

Winner of the shot put was Midland's Darrell Davis with a throw of 63-3¼. Second was Frank Mazza of Louisiana with a 62-1¾, followed by Dwain Duncan of Austin Westlake with a 60-7¾.

"Kyle had three throws over 55 feet and that's real good consistancy," said Coach Kevin Wiseman. "He was in the third flight and when they finished qualifying for the finals they had to wait for the fourth flight. I think that delay probably hampered him a little bit."

Westlake's Duncan is the defending Region I champion and would be projected to face Freeman in the the May 3-4 regional track meet, provided both do well in district competition.

Freeman was third among Class 5A putters, behind Duncan and Gainsville's Dante Williams. Williams, who threw a 57-3¾, was seventh overall.

"This has been great experience for Kyle," said Wiseman. "That part of it has been a real plus, I think. He's competed against the best and I think it will help him down the line."

Martin flashes 10.18 in 100 for record at Texas Relays

AUSTIN (AP) - Roy Martin proved that it's not how you start a race but how you finish it that counts.

Martin started slowly Friday night but charged from behind to post a Texas Relays record and the second best all-time United States high school 100 meter mark of 10.18 seconds.

"I felt a little tight at the start but then I just opened up," said Martin, of Dallas Roosevelt. "I felt like I won the race in the last 30 meters."

Martin's time on a windless Memorial Stadium track was just .02 seconds off the all-time best by Houston McTear of Baker (Florida) in 1976.

Joe DeLoach of Bay City finished second in 10.26 seconds, which was the fourth best all-time time. The third best of 10.23 is held by Johnny Jones of Lampasas, Texas.

Martin, who says he plans to attend Southern Methodist, was behind coming out of the blocks but caught DeLoach.

The old Texas Relays record of 10.42 was set by Garland's Herkie Walls in 1979.

Californian Henry Thomas, the top rated schoolboy sprinter in the nation by Track and Field News magazine, was disqualified for a false start earlier in the 100 meter prelimaries.

Martin has anchored Roosevelt to the 1600 meter relay title in the last three Texas Relays. Roosevelt has run a 3:12.28 this year. He also was an alternate on the U.S. Olympic team.

The high school 400 and 1600 meter relay were set for Saturday.

Louisiana State's 3200 meter relay team of Lana Zimmerman, Jackie Bobien, Camillo Cato and Christine Slythe ran a Texas Relays record 8:34.1. The old mark of 8:36.17 was held by Tennessee.

Other Texas Relays records included:

- Florida State's 3:14.70 in the collegiate sprint medley relay beating the old time of 3:15.2 by Kansas in 1967.
- Ranger Junior College's 9:41.65 in the distance medley relay, beating its old record of 9:46.41.
- Arkansas set a meet record of 1:20.93 in the collegiate 800 meter relay. The old mark of 1:21.1 was set by Arizona in 1984.
- Louise Ritter set a new women's open division record and stadium record with a high jump of 6-3 1-4. The old record was 6-3 by Ritter.

Sambito can pitch in AAA

KISSIMMEE, Fla. (AP) - Houston Astros relief pitcher Joe Sambito, trying to make a comeback from elbow surgery, was offered an option to the Astros Class AAA affiliate at Tuscaon, Ariz. Friday, Astros General Manager Al Rosen said.

"We have determined today that Joe can't make our staff at this time," Rosen said. "If he will not accept our assignment to Tucson, the club will give him his unconditional release, which is the only alternative we have."

The veteran Sambito, 32, a member of the 1979 National League All-Star team, had a spotty performance this spring. He pitched 14 1-3 innings, allowed 25 hits, 12 earned runs and walked six and struck out five.

Rosen said Sambito had been excused from spring training to return home and consider his options.

Sambito underwent elbow surgery in July 1982 and did not play in the 1983 season. He returned last season to the Astros but was used only sparingly in relief situations.

The Astros also announced that pitcher Ron Mathis, a non-roster invitee, had been signed to a one-year contract and that pitcher Jeff Heathcock, had been optioned to Tucson, reducing the Astros' roster to 26 players, one above the limit.

Western Texas 5th at WJCAC tourney

ROSWELL, N.M. -- Host team New Mexico Military Institute shot a two-under par 282 here Friday to win the 4th Western Junior College Athletic Con-

Western Texas College, hoping to move up in the pack, shot a 293, but remained in fifth place overall.

"We are just one score away from turning in a good team score, but 293 is not bad," said Western Texas Coach Dave Foster."

The Westerners got fine performances from freshmen Ryan Heller and Barry Fletcher, who both turned in one-under 70s for the single day event. The scores dropped off after that, however. Freshman Pat Fitzpatrick shot a 76, sophomores Jim Batjer and Jack Fallin 77s, and freshman Ron Nedry an 81. The low four scores are used to determine a team total.

The fifth-place finish left Western fifth in the overall standings with 8½ points. New Mexico Military leads the standings with 19 points, followed closely by Odessa and Midland with 18½ points each, New Mexico Junior College has 12½. South Plains trails the group with 7.

Odessa shot a 287 in Friday's 288s by Midland and NMJC, WTC's 293 and a 297 by South Plains.

Mike Krantz of NMMI was medalist with a five-under 66. NMJC's Dan Yrene shot a 69 and Heller and Fletcher tied for third with their 70s.

"The course was in good shape. The greens were fast. We knew we would have to keep it around even par to win. We just didn't have enough low scores to put together," said Foster.

Next action for the conference at Hobbs, N.M. on April 12.

Change in fight card

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) - A change in the fight card will pit Olympic gold medalist Meldrick Taylor against Elias Martinez in a lightweight bout Saturday night, a promoter said Friday.

The two fights, part of a six-fight card, will be televised by ABC.

Taylor, 3-0 in professional action, was scheduled to fight Victor Flores, who was dropped from the card Thursday because of an eye injury, according to Ray Nicosia.

Martinez, from Bronx, N.Y., has a 6-4 record with four knockouts. Taylor, from Philadelphia, has two knock-outs.

Also today, Olympic gold medalist Mark Breland, of Brooklyn, faces Steve Little in a welterweight bout. Breland, 2-0, will be going for his first KO. Little, of Reading, Pa., is 10-2 with four KOs.

Westerners holding down several spots at Big Spring

BIG SPRING -- Western Texas College cowboys Van Hale and Bliss Mayhan are tied for second place in the bull riding at the Howard College NIRA Rodeo, which concludes here Saturday evening.

The WTC performers both scored 68s, Tuff Hedeman of Sul Ross State University holds down first place with a 70.

In other WTC results, Mayhan has also posted a 64 in the bareback event for fourth place and Gary Rowe is third in the calf roping with a time of 9.9 seconds.

Mike Carrillo, competing as an individual from WTC and not on the six-man designated team, is fourth in the bareback with a score of 65.

WTC's women have yet to earn any points. Niki Moist was to compete in the breakaway roping and goat tying while Judy Cox was entered in the barrels and breakaway for Saturday's performance.

Canita Cass, the other member of the three-competitor women's team from WTC, injured a knee in goat tying Thursday night. She was scheduled to vie in the barrels Saturday, but is doubtful because of the injury.

Mayhan was to vie in the bareback event as was Tony Heckshear. Hale was to be out in the saddle bronc riding. Others competing were to be Jason Phillips, bull riding; Donnie Yorks, calf roping and steer wrestling; and David Jones, team roping and calf roping.

"It's still pretty wide open," said WTC Coach Bob Doty, of the rodeo. "There are a lot of good contestants going tonight (Saturday)."

In addition to winning the bull riding, Hedeman is also winning the saddle bronc with a 72. Travis Howe, from Eastern New Mexico, is winning the bareback with a 71.

In women's results, Christy Taylor, Howard, is winning the ble, Sul Ross, is winning the breakaway with a 2.9; and Jinita Williams, Sul Ross, is winning the goat tying. No time was available for Williams.

WTC to entertain rodeo next week

The first of five performances of the annual Western Texas College rodeo will get underway at 8 p.m. Thursday in Scurry County Coliseum.

Snyder school students are invited to be guests for the opening performances. The free tickets must be picked up in the office of their school principal. They will not be available at the box office.

Also slated for Thursday night is the crowning of the 1985 WTC Rodeo Queen. Candidates this year are Sidney Lloyd of Luling and Patti Green of Lubbock.

The rodeo will continue through the weekend with performances at 8 Friday and Saturday and at 2 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. Students from Hermleigh, Ira and Borden County schools will be admitted free on Saturday afternoon and are also to pick up tickets at their principal's office.

Senior Citizens will be admitted to the Saturday afternoon rodeo for $2.

Tickets for each rodeo performance are $4 for adults, $3 for students and $6 for box seats. Advance tickets can be purchased at Bar H Bar Western Wear, from Rodeo Club members or Rodeo Queen candidates or by calling the WTC Student Activities office at 573-8511, extension 275.

This is the sixth year the WTC National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association rodeo has been held in the coliseum. About 250 contestants from 18 colleges and universities in the Southwest Region will participate.

At stake are points for individuals and teams which will be used at the end of the season to determine who advances to the College National Finals Rodeo.

A concession stand will be open for each afternoon and evening performance of the rodeo.

Freeman third in discus event

AUSTIN -- Late word from Austin Saturday morning indicated that Kyle Freeman, Snyder High School senior, took third place in the discus at the Texas Relays with a throw of 169-4.

First was Tracy Simeon of Sweeny with a throw of 187-3. Second was Billy Sims of Galveston Ball. He threw 180-10.

Freeman's effort bested all others in Class 4A.

'Slingers get checks

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Paychecks for the San Antonio Gunslingers were three days late because payments on other debts totalling over $1 million had to be made, team owner Clinton Manges says.

The checks for the United States Football League team were supposed to arrive Tuesday but team personnel didn't get paid until after 5 p.m. Friday.

"It's been taken care of," Manges said. "These players don't have anything to worry about. Even if the league folds, these players will be paid. I'll probably give them all a little bonus because they have gone through this."

The players issued a written statement, written by quarterback Rick Neuheisel, to the media after their morning practice Friday, expressing their feelings on the payroll delay as a team.

"First and foremost, our concern is the Birmingham game," the statement read. "This is not to say that we are not concerned with our financial status. There are those of us who are facing difficulties because of the tardiness of payment, but we are willing to go along with Mr. Manges, who has personally guaranteed our checks."

College presidents worried over integrity in athletics

WASHINGTON (AP) - College presidents are worried about the integrity of athletics, and nearly one-fourth doubt whether they have the authority to ensure sports programs are run honestly, according to an NCAA survey released Friday.

The NCAA Presidents' Commission said it will sponsor resolutions at a special convention in June to bring athletic budgets under college presidents' control and to overhaul the rules for policing athletic violations.

They favor distinguishing between "major" and "secondary" violations and spelling out specific penalties for violations. They also want to give the NCAA enforcement staff the power to impose penalties for secondary violations, subject to appeal to the NCAA Committee on Infractions.

In addition, they want to keep restrictions on rule-breaking coaches even if they leave the campus where the violations occurred and take a job at another school belonging to the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

The current point-shaving scandal involving Tulane University's basketball team has focused renewed attention on corruption in intercollegiate athletics. Three basketball players and five others were indicted for sports bribery Thursday, and the president of the New Orleans school recommended the sport be dropped.

John W. Ryan, president of Indiana University and chairman of the NCAA Presidents' Commission, said an NCAA-sponsored survey of college presidents - including 60 percent of the 791 institutional members of the NCAA - showed the depth of their concerns about athletics.

"They believe there are serious violations of rules occurring, especially by coaches and by alumni and by other boosters. They believe there should be stronger enforcement procedures and more stringent penalties," he said.

Ryan said the commission is urging college presidents themselves to attend the special NCAA convention in New Orleans June 21-22 to address the integrity and financing of college athletics.

The resolutions approved by the commission would require colleges to maintain control over athletics budgets, with all expenditures subject to normal budgeting procedures and approved by the colleges' chief executive officer.

They also would require annual, outside audits of athletics budgets by an auditor chosen by the college's head.

According to the survey, 98 percent of the college chiefs felt they should be ultimately responsible for the integrity of their athletics program, but only 76 percent felt they had the authority to do so.

TICKETS ON SALE - Snyder High School athletes will be honored at an all-sports banquet slated for May 6 in Scurry County Coliseum. Above, left to right, Janice Hart and Vernest Tippens purchase tickets from athletic secretary Sheila Land. Tickets, $6 each, are on sale at the high school, the coliseum, Burgess-McWilliams Pharmacy and the Snootie Fox. (SDN Staff Photo)

Tulane scandal still mushrooming

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - The district attorney said he still hasn't gotten to the bottom of a Tulane University point-shaving scandal that began with a pinch of cocaine and now includes eight indictments.

"There are others out there who need to be scrutinized," District Attorney Harry Connick said, adding that his information may also help federal investigators.

Tulane President Eamon Kelly announced Thursday he plans to abolish men's basketball after discovering Coach Ned Fowler paid several players. Fowler and two assistants resigned the same day.

Hours later, a grand jury indicted three players and five other people on a total of 20 counts of sports bribery and conspiracy. A second indictment charged one of the eight, a student, with selling cocaine to team members.

They remained free Friday on the same bond they posted when they were arrested last week, and were ordered to appear in court Monday for a bond hearing.

Student reaction to the plans to scrap basketball was muted Friday by the start of a four-day spring break on the green and shady campus. However, a booster club called the Tulane Greenbackers was trying to organize some show of disapproval on Saturday.

Howie Farrell, a member of the club board, said boosters will march to Kelly's campus residence to "give him a position paper supporting the continuation of basketball at Tulane."

Mexican drug baron is deported to Mexico

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — Mexican drug baron Rafael Caro Quintero was deported Friday to Mexico where he is wanted for questioning in the murder of an American narcotics special agent, Costa Rican and U.S. sources said.

A U.S. Embassy source, who spoke on condition of anonymity for protocol reasons, said Caro Quintero and the five people with him when he was arrested here Thursday left at 4:30 p.m. aboard two Mexican government planes. The report also was carried by the Mexican government news agency Notimex and on local radio and television stations.

Caro Quintero, 33, was captured Thursday at an estate outside San Jose. He is a prime suspect in the kidnap-murder of U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration agent Enrique Camarena Salazar in Guadalajara, Mexico.

Earlier, Costa Rican officials said they did not plan to file charges against Caro Quintero and that he would be turned over to Mexican authorities. He was being held in a maximum security cell at the Judicial Investigations Office.

Heavy security was already in place in the Mexican government hangars at the Mexico City International Airport.

Earlier Friday, a U.S. official said it was hoped that documents seized when Caro Quintero was arrested may lead police to others involved in the murder of the American drug-enforcement agent.

"We feel there might possibly be evidence that would permit us to assist the government of Mexico in arresting others involved in the murder of Enrique Camarena," said Donald Clements, DEA attache at the U.S. Embassy in San Jose.

Clements declined to elaborate, but said police had found "documents with evidenciary value to the United States."

He told reporters he would ask that the documents be studied in Washington, then returned to Costa Rican authorities.

Police who arrested Caro Quintero also found $150,000 in travelers checks plus jewelry and several weapons, including a gold-plated pistol with Caro Quintero's name engraved on the handle and a diamond-studded handgun, according to Clements.

The man in custody has said he is really Marcos Antonio Rios Valenzuela, but "we are sure it is Caro Quintero," Clements said.

He added that Washington does not now plan to ask that the suspect be extradited to the United States.

"At this point, it is a matter between Mexico and Costa Rica. Later, it could become a matter between Mexico and the United States. But for now, Mexico is the proper country for extradition," Clements said.

$1 million cocaine is found stashed

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — An ice chest containing 28.6 pounds of cocaine was dug up in coastal Alabama, according to FBI agents who estimated the street value of the find at $1 million.

FBI special agent Caroll Toohey of Mobile said Friday the uncut cocaine was buried in a wooded area near Elberta in Baldwin County.

He said seven Baldwin County sheriff's deputies helped federal agents dig up the chest Thursday night in the continuing probe into a cocaine-smuggling scheme that last month led to drug charges against Stewart B. Munro of Houston.

Two other suspects have been arrested, but their names were not immediately available to Alabama authorities. Toohey said Texas and Florida investigators were assisting in the probe.

Munro's sailboat, believed used in the transport of the cocaine, was seized last month at Pirates' Cove in Baldwin County, according to the sheriff's department.

The Denise, a 54-foot offshore racing sailboat, was seized on March 5. The vessel sailed to Pirates' Cove, authorities said, under a contract with Munro.

FBI spokesman Ed Kilday said no one in Alabama has been charged in the scheme, however, he said, the investigation is continuing.

"FILING SHORT FORM NOT SIMPLE," SAYS H & R BLOCK

Two different short forms and new deductions make short form filing more complicated this year.

You may not be eligible or it may not be to your advantage to file one of the two short forms. The short forms, including the new 1040EZ, can only be used by taxpayers meeting certain strict requirements. You are limited in deductions on the short forms. Using the wrong form could cost you money, or even mean an audit.

You will have peace of mind in knowing H & R Block's personal, courteous, and competent service is yours . . . at a very reasonable price. One Day Service is also available for your convenience at any H & R Block office.

H & R Block's tax preparers are trained to know which of the forms - 1040EZ, 1040A, 1040 - gives you the maximum tax advantage for your individual requirements.

Patrick Malone and Tony Pineda were all named to the honorable mention all-star cast.

Student-actors featured in the Levelland production — directed by Snyder native and former SHS theatre student Emmalie (Sleeper) John — also captured six individuals awards.

Lisa Dozier, Lyni Perez, Stacie Frazier and Charyssa Cobb were named to eight member all-star cast for their work in "Close Ties."

Making the honorable mention list from the Levelland troupe were Tom Guerra and Grant Hartline.

Lubbock Dunbar High School's production of Mark Bucci's "The Diary of Adam and Eve" was chosen as the alternate play and will compete in Brownwood if the Snyder or Levelland groups cannot attend.

Kevin Williams and Candy Chandler — who played Adam and Eve — captured all-star cast honors for their performances.

Four members of the crew of the Pecos High School production of "Hedda Gabler" — which finished fourth in Friday's contest — earned individual honors.

Beth Jackson — who had been named Best Actress of the District 2-AAAA contest here last week — was named to the all-star cast. Dalland Shannon, Briar McNutt and Laurence Jackson were included in the honorable mention all-star cast.

Court agenda told for Monday

He died as a result of head injuries suffered in a fall through a suspended ceiling at the Scurry County Coliseum. The accident occurred during a rehearsal of the chamber-sponsored event "Whirlagig."

In other action, the court will hear from a representative of the Noah Project and will receive the annual quarterly report from County Treasurer Billy Wayne Thompson.

In addition, County Auditor Bernard Bartels plans to present a written vacation policy for the court's consideration. With no written policy existing, questions have arisen lately concerning the number of vacation days a county employee is entitled to and how much payment is due for unused days.

Commissioners will also open bids for the extension of the law library in the courthouse.

Five arrests here

Snyder police logged five misdemeanor arrests Friday evening.

Three suspects were jailed on suspicion of driving while intoxicated and two for public intoxication.

Armed forces impose martial law, oust Sudanese president

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — The armed forces took control of the Sudanese government, imposed martial law and relieved President Gaafar Nimeiri and all his aides of their duties, the Sudanese Embassy in Nairobi announced today.

Ambassador Ibrahim Taha Ayub told The Associated Press that a communique from the Sudanese Foreign Ministry in Khartoum, Sudan's capital, also announced suspension of the country's constitution.

There were no independent reports from Khartoum where commercial communication has been cut off for several days.

The takeover came after more than a week of demonstrations and strikes expressing disaffection over Nimeiri's rule. The strikes paralyzed the Sudanese capital for three days.

Nimeiri, 55, a former army colonel who himself came to power in a 1969 military coup, is considered a close U.S. ally in Africa. He has survived more than a dozen previous coup and assassination attempts.

Nimeiri arrived in Cairo today after a nine-day visit to the United States. He met with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak at Cairo Airport for at least two hours, then left by helicopter for an undisclosed destination after reporters were removed from the scene.

The helicopter ride indicated Nimeiri's destination was inside Egypt, and government sources said the deposed president was being taken to one of the Cairo area's presidential palaces.

Ayub said the army also dissolved the ruling party, the Sudanese Socialist Union, and "the president, his deputies, his assistants and all the central government ministers and ministers of state have been relieved of their duties."

The ambassador said the communique was received shortly after Sudan's official Radio Omdurman broadcast a report saying the armed forces had assumed control.

Hours after the coup announcement, Libya became the first country to recognize Sudan's new military rulers. According to a report received in Paris from the Libyan news agency Jana, Libya also warned against attempts by outside powers to interfere in Sudan's internal affairs.

The warning appeared directed at Egypt, which has a mutual defense treaty with Sudan. In a Friday night radio broadcast, Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy had called on Sudanese to overthrow Nimeiri, but there was no immediate indication of outside involvment.

Khadafy and Nimeiri have been enemies since the Sudanese general refused a Libyan bid to unify the two countries in 1972. Nimeiri has claimed the riots, demonstrations and strike of the last 10 days were orchestrated by Libyan agents.

Ayub said the radio broadcast announcing Nimeiri's ouster was made on behalf of the armed forces commander, Gen. Abdul-Rahman Mohamed Hassan Swareddahab. He was named defense minister and commander-in-chief of the armed forces March 18, a few days before Nimeiri left for the United States.

Rain helps fight 8 forest fires

By The Associated Press

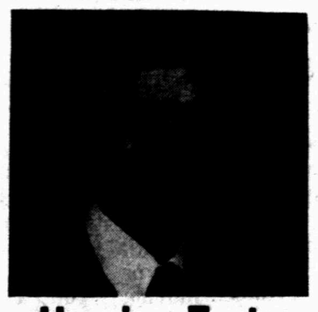
Firefighters battling blazes that scorched 70,000 acres of woodland in eight Southeastern states and injured at least 23 people got a break from heavy rain but some forests remained in danger today.

Fires spread through dry forests in Alabama, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky, Virginia and West Virginia on Friday. In Georgia and North Carolina, 22 people — most of them firefighters — were injured. In South Carolina, a firefighter burned on the arms was treated and returned to battle a 1,000-acre blaze.

Forest and brush fires stoked by below-normal rainfall and gusty spring winds continued to plague much of Virginia, where state forestry spokesman John Graff feared this weekend's opening of the trout season. "There are going to be a lot of people out in the woods and driving around in the country."

So far this year, 1,707 brush and forest fires in Virginia have destroyed almost 10,000 acres.

In South Carolina, which has lost about 20,000 acres during the week, several fires were burning early today along the coast, which had not been dampened by overnight rains.



Hearing Tests Set for Snyder

Snyder-Electronic hearing tests will be given at The Beltone Office on Tues. April 9th from 10:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Barry Suratt, licensed hearing aid specialist, will be at the Wallace Building Rm. 2 to perform the tests.

Anyone who has trouble hearing or understanding speech clearly is welcome to have a test using modern electronic equipment to determine if his loss is one which can be helped. Some of the causes of hearing loss will be explained and diagrams of how the ear works will be shown.

Everyone should have a hearing test at least once a year if there is any trouble at all understanding speech clearly. Free service is available for all makes of Hearing Aids. Everyone wearing a hearing aid should have it serviced regularly.

The free hearing test will be given Tues., from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Beltone Office.

Grand jury to eye student paddling

MANVEL, Texas (AP) — A Brazoria County grand jury will be asked next month to decide whether a sixth-grader suffered serious injuries from a paddling by his teacher.

The parents of Michael Young, 14, claim their son suffered welts and bruises from the March 8 paddling and was treated by an Alvin doctor.

But officials at Manvel Junior High School say the paddling did not cause the injuries.

"There had to be some other kind of whipping with a belt — a beating or whatever," said Emmett H. McKenzie, superintendent of the Alvin Independent School District.

McKenzie said the boy's mother, Willine Young, witnessed the punishment administered by a physical education teacher at the school.

"The mother did not protest, she did not complain," McKenzie said. "In fact, the same teacher had paddled this youngster before on more than one occasion with no complaints."

But Mrs. Young said she was surprised by how hard the teacher struck her son.

She said the boy has experienced muscle spasms in his shoulders since the paddling. She said the boy was punished for his role in a scuffle in an unattended classroom.

McKenzie would not discuss the reason the student was punished, but said the discipline was requested by the school's principal.

The grand jury will begin the inquiry in early May, but no charges have been filed in the incident, said Manvel police Officer Robert Parker.

White man wins bias suit

ATLANTA (AP) — An all-white federal jury has awarded $217,500 to a white historian who claimed discrimination because Mayor Andrew Young and three other black officials refused to hire him to run a Civil War museum.

The U.S. District Court jury on Friday awarded Dennis A. Walters Jr. $70,500 in back pay, $150,000 for mental anguish and $7,000 in punitive damages because he wasn't hired as director of the Cyclorama, which features a huge, circular painting of the Battle of Atlanta.

U.S. District Judge Marvin Shoob on Thursday ordered the city to give Walters the $23,100-a-year director's position after the jury found that Young and other city officials had discriminated against him.

In a series of decision dating back to 1981, various city officials passed over Walters for the post, which was filled twice during the period by blacks and on two other occasions was left unfilled for a time.

Young; Former Parks, Recreation and Cultural Affairs Commissioner Geraldine Elder; Chief Administrative Officer Shirley Franklin; and Administrative Services Commissioner Clara Axam were ordered to pay part of the award.

The officials would be allowed to pay their share of the damages with city funds, the jury ruled.

The city was held liable for a total of $176,000.

Girl kills father

HOUSTON (AP) — A 12-year-old girl shot and killed her stepfather because he was beating her mother, police said.

The stepfather, 37, was pronounced dead on arrival Friday morning at Ben Taub Hospital, investigators said.

The girl shot her stepfather once in the back with a handgun because he was beating her 32-year-old mother, police said.

Investigators said they were uncertain whether charges would be filed against the girl.

Conviction upheld

HOUSTON (AP) — A state appeals court upheld the conviction of a man who gave a candy bar tainted with straight pins to a girl on Halloween 1983.

Steven Earl Hunt, 21, was sentenced to two years in prison for tampering with a consumer product and to three years for attempting to injure a child.

Hunt was convicted by a state court jury of placing two straight pins into a chocolate candy bar he gave to an 11-year-old girl.

The conviction and sentence were upheld Thursday.

Teachers sue Houston schools

HOUSTON (AP) — Two school teachers sued the Houston Independent School District, claiming district officials launched a "campaign of harassment and intimidation" to deny the instructors freedom of speech.

Named in the suit were HISD Superintendent Billy Reagan, Milby High School Principal Claude Brinkley, district security director Les Burton and Dan Ortiz, district's Area 5 supervisor.

Milby teacher Brady Davis and Walter Hinojosa, a former teacher at the school, filed the suit Thursday in state district court.

Davis, 38, was investigated by the school district on allegations of sexual harassment of a student. Less than a week after Davis was cleared of the charges, Brinkley accused the teacher of fraudulently handling supplies and money in his wood shop class, and another investigation was started.

Farmers idle 34 million acres

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers have signed up to take 34 million acres of cropland out of production this year under Agriculture Department cutback programs, a 28 percent increase from the 26.6 million acres idled in 1984.

Most of the preliminary figures issued Friday were in line with earlier USDA projections, but the corn signup turned out to be sharply higher than department experts had expected. One official said the boost may have been due to the additional time given farmers to sign up for 1985 crop programs.

The signup period began last Oct. 15 and was supposed have ended on March 1. It was extended until April 1, however.

Although up significantly from last year, the 1985 signup is far below 1983 participation when farmers took a record of more than 70 million acres from production, including huge amounts idled under the payment-in-kind program.

Farmers collected about $9.7 billion worth of free surplus commodities for participating in the 1983 PIK program. No PIK provision is in effect this year.

The department's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service said farmers have signed contracts to place 165.6 million acres of cropland in this year's program.

India rejects $200 million proposal

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The government has rejected a $200 million offer by Union Carbide for an out-of-court settlement to compensate victims of the Bhopal gas disaster, the Telegraph newspaper reported Saturday.

Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi had earlier said India turned down an offer by the American company but he did not disclose the amount.

In an interview published Thursday in London's Financial Times newspaper, Gandhi said the figure was too low and that it was likely India would sue Union Carbide in U.S. courts.

Scurry County Folks...

Christ stands serenely knocking at the door — this graphic portrayal of the Easter message will greet members of First United Methodist Church when they worship this Sunday morning.

The figure is a scene painted into one of five stained glass windows originally placed in the congregation's first brick building completed in 1913. Plans call for the windows to grace the north wall of a chapel now under construction at the church.

Local stained glass artist Michael McCormick completed restoration of four of the windows last Tuesday.

In late 1981 or early 1982, Ann Odom Davis and her brother Holman Odom donated a piece of property adjacent to the church. At one time the Lad and Lassie Shop and the Deffebach Insurance Agency conducted business at the spot.

The pair inherited the land from their parents Ralph and Dewey Odom. Donna Holt explained that her mother and uncle gave the property to the church to fulfill her grandmother's dream for a chapel.

Dewey Odom herself approached then pastor David Robertson with the chapel idea. But her failing health forced the notion to lie dormant. After her death, her family decided the gift of land would be a lasting memorial to her.

Who actually decided to use the windows is unknown. Donna believes that Rev. Robertson made the initial suggestion. "He was the one who knew where the windows were," she explained. "And he had had Mike McCormick make other stained glass items for the church."

The artist who created the windows also remains a mystery. The church's records indicate only that individuals and Sunday School classes donated them as memorials. The records also show that W.P.P. Crenshaw contracted for the building's construction. Donna said that possibly someone who worked for him would remember or that mention of the windows was made in the company's records.

STAINED GLASS WINDOWS RESTORED — This is just one of the four stained glass windows Michael McCormick restored for the new First United Methodist chapel. (SDN Staff Photo)

Stored since the razing of the old building in 1961, the windows suffered some damage. Because the church was familiar with Michael's work, they commissioned him to restore as many of the full-length pictorial windows as possible.

"The windows were in excellent shape considering their age and how long they had been stored," he explained. Because the artwork in the center of the fifth sustained some damage, Michael took it to the Crowley Stained Glass Company in San Antonio hoping to find a competent artist to complete it.

Mrs. Crowley, company owner, does painted work but is trying to contract this piece. "She is very art conscious. She wants to find someone who can do the same quality work," he added.

Originally ventilating windows, they contained two sections. The bottom was designed to swing open to allow the air to circulate. Michael removed the bar that separated the sections and added glass to join the entire window. "There were a few other original windows up there that were broken. They didn't contain the painted panels, so I used the original glass from them to repair these four."

Michael replaced only one small piece in one window with new glass. "I tried to use all original glass, to the point of

Backing into an end play

By James Jacoby

South was hoping for a trick in partner's hand when he jumped to four spades. Even the jack of clubs would be enough. Unfortunately, although dummy had spade support, it wasn't easy to find a trick there. Declarer did make his contract with a combination of imaginative play and a condonable defensive error.

After the diamond king, West continued with the ace. Rather than trump, South discarded the five of hearts. West saw no danger in next playing a heart. South won the ace, played a spade to dummy's seven and trumped a heart high. Now he led a spade to dummy's eight and trumped another heart high. Still another spade was led, this time to the jack, and the last heart played from dummy. When East discarded a diamond, declarer discarded a low club. West had to win the queen and was now end played. Leading a diamond would give declarer a sluff and a ruff. Leading a club would be into the jaws of the A-Q.

This was a well-conceived play by South. For his takeout double, West should have had four hearts as well as the king of clubs. But just in case East held a heart honor, South had to play as he did to keep East from coming on lead and playing a club. But do you see how the defense can counter declarer's expert technique?

At trick three, just let West play his spade rather than a heart. Now the communication is lacking for declarer to engineer his end play.

Cecily offers oriental Bean Thread Beef

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

BEAN THREAD BEEF

2 ounces mung bean threads
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
¾ cup thin strips Spanish onion
½ pound mushrooms, thinly sliced
3 medium scallions, thinly and diagonally sliced
1 clove garlic, minced
1 cup (about) thin strips tender beef
¼ cup bottled teriyaki sauce

Generously cover bean threads with boiling water and let stand until soft — 20 minutes; drain and snip into 3-inch lengths. In a wok, over high heat, heat oil. Add onion and mushrooms and toss with a spatula just long enough to cook onion slightly. Add scallion, garlic and beef; toss, separating beef strips, until meat loses its red color. Add teriyaki sauce and bean threads and, stirring constantly, heat. Makes 2 servings. Repeated by request.

RAW MILK IS HAZARDOUS

Raw milk has become one of the newest and most hazardous fad food for the health-conscious.

Raw milk has always been available to consumers who went looking for it, but now it is being promoted as a "health" food.

Some people claim that raw milk has a higher nutritive value than the pasteurized kind. In addition, it supposedly protects against dental decay, provides greater resistance to disease, contains a higher enzyme and hormone content and includes an "anti-stiffness" factor.

A study by researchers at the Center for Infectious Diseases has demonstrated the alarming risks of drinking raw milk. Eleven bacterial diseases, including salmonella, tuberculosis and staphylococcal infections are shown to be spread by contaminated raw milk.

Since the most important component of unadulterated raw milk is germs, people interested in their health should drink the safe, pasteurized product.

TAX SAVING FOR DEPENDENT ADULT CARE

Many families who care for a dependent elderly relative at home do not know there is a federal income tax credit designed to help them.

The dependent care tax credit, also called the child care or day care credit, is often assumed to be for working parents of young children. But it can also be used by persons caring for an adult dependent who is incapable of self-care.

To claim the credit, your home must have been the principal residence of both you and the person receiving the care.

In addition, the expenses must be work-related and you must have provided over half of the person's support for the year. The credit can also be used for out-of-home adult care in many cases.

Lang answers readers questions about wood

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — In building a wooden fence around the yard in front of our house, how far apart should the fence posts be? Also, what size posts are best?

A. — There are so many different kinds of wooden fences that your best bet would be to buy one of the many books available on the subject. In the meantime, the general information you seek is that fence posts are usually either 6 or 8 feet apart and that they usually are 4-by-4s. But before you buy any wood, determine the kind of fence you want to build. The reading material will advise you all about the proper dimensions for that type.

Q. — I bought some 4-by-8 sheets of wood paneling a few weeks ago and have begun to panel my attic. I am putting them up so that the 4-foot dimension is horizontal. While putting up the first one, I scratched it. I have continued working and am almost finished. Then I intend to go back and cover up the scratch, which seems to be only in the veneer. The lighter colored base shows through, not badly but enough so that it can be noticed. What is the best way to disguise the scratch?

A. — It depends on the color of the panel, which you didn't mention. There are dozens of products that can be used to hide the scratches, many of them ordinary household items, such as shoe polish, iodine, walnut, black coffee and tea, but unless you have had experience with any of them, you are safer to buy and use wax putty stocks that resemble crayons. They come in different shades, are easy to use, and can be purchased at most hardware stores and all establishments that sell wood finishing materials.

Q. — I recently bought three pieces of unfinished furniture. After I got it home, I examined it and discovered the furniture is made of cheap wood and not well made. Is this the case with all unfinished furniture?

A. — Not with all, but unfinished furniture with a low price tag is generally of low quality. However, you can buy custom-made unfinished furniture at woodworking shops which is expertly constructed. In some cases, you can choose the kind of wood you want and have the pieces made to order.

(The techniques of using varnish, shellac, lacquer, stain, bleach, remover, etc., are detailed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," which can be obtained by sending 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P. O. Box 477, Huntington, NY 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column.)

Couple wed in afternoon ceremony

LOCKNEY — Sidney Stewart of Lubbock and Dwight Keith Jackson Jr. of Lockney exchanged vows on March 30 in the First United Methodist Church. Rev. Russell McAnally, pastor of Pioneer United Methodist Church in Merkel and grandfather of the groom, officiated the afternoon ceremony.

MRS. DWIGHT KEITH JACKSON JR.
(Wilson Photography)

The bride is the daughter of Don and Linda Stewart of Colorado City and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Stewart of Snyder. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Jackson Sr. of Lockney.

Two brass candelabra trimmed with white bows and greenery, a kneeling bench and the unity candle set the wedding atmosphere.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a silk brocade, white satin gown highlighted with a "V" neckline and leg-of-mutton sleeves. The scalloped, waltz-length skirt was attached to the dropped waistline. Her fingertip veil of silk flown tulle completed her attire.

She carried a nosegay of daisies, white roses and gypsophilia.

Maid of honor Tammy Bodine of Granbury wore a fuchia chiffon, tea-length dress featuring a blousson bodice tied at the side and a dropped waistline. She carried a nosegay of white roses.

John Fortenberry of Lockney stood as best man.

The reception followed in the church's fellowship hall.

Covered in white lace over white, the bride's table held a crystal candelabrum with white tapers and an arrangement of daisies. Crystal appointments were used throughout.

Also covered in white, the services, pewter candelabrum and a bowl of daisies.

Reception attendents included Noel Sparkman of Slaton, the bride's cousin, Kelly Sparkman of Slaton, aunt of the bride, and Terrisu Sims and Lujean Eckert of Snyder, also cousins of the bride.

The bride is a 1981 graduate of Colorado City High School and currently attends Texas Tech University.

A 1981 graduate of Lockney High School, the groom attended West Texas State University and is currently enrolled at Texas Tech. He farms in Providence Community, northwest of Lockney.

Following a wedding trip to Amarillo, the couple is at home in Lockney.

BEAUTY BRIEFS

Wigs travel

A light, simply-styled wig can be a useful travel beauty aid. It creates an instant hairstyle to wear when your own hair is travel-weary and there isn't time to wash and set.

The Wig Information Service points out that modern wigs are virtually weightless and designed to be worn like a cap to come down just above the ears, not over them.

They add that you can have a temporary color change through use of fashion wigs, a fun thing on a vacation.

Early tan

If you are traveling to the Sun Belt, take it easy if the sun is in its full glory.

Tanning is the skin's way of protecting itself against sun damage. It looks great but can permanently damage the skin. A severe sunburn can play havoc with a vacation, too.

Start by sunning briefly in the morning or late afternoon for only 20 minutes. After a week, increase the time by five minutes daily.

Use a suntan product suited with a sunscreen for your needs.

Makeup change

The light changes as spring comes on, calling for a rethinking of your makeup needs. Instead of a thick lotion or cream foundation in a vivid tone, spring calls for a moisturizing foundation with more sheer coverage in a peach, rosy beige or pale beige tint.

Buildings all over the country are landscaped with more outdoor art

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Recently, a large outdoor sculpture installed in the plaza of the Jacob Javits Federal Building in downtown New York made headlines when some protested its presence.

They raised such an outcry that a special hearing was convened to consider removing the work, although it had originally been installed only after a lengthy review process.

The debate should not come as a surprise since art has often outraged public sensibilities. One authority says this debate and others like it cannot, however, disguise the fact that the use of art in public buildings is "at an unprecedented all-time high" in the United States.

Elena Canavier, executive director of the Public Art Trust, a Washington-based nonprofit organization, told an audience at the Parsons School of Design in New York recently that "percent for art" programs are partly responsible for the inclusion of art in buildings all over the country. Such programs mandate that a certain percentage of a building's cost — usually from one half to one and one half percent — be used to purchase art for the building.

A number of private developers, corporations, banks, artists and local groups are also involved in placing art outside where it can be seen by the public.

"We are getting calls from all over the country from towns seeking information on how to set up a public art program," she said.

The reason for the increase is, first of all, that "in every city around the country there is public support for art in public buildings. People can see what their tax money has bought." Private developers feel art is generally conducive to good public relations. Furthermore, some cities offer tax or zoning incentives for the inclusion of art within or outside commercial buildings.

Some of the best-known examples of private support for public art are the satellite museums established in corporate buildings. In New York City, for example, Phillip Morris Corp. offers free space to the Whitney Museum of American Art, and International Paper has a similar arrangement with the American Craft Council.

In Boston, Rouse Co., which developed the Faneuil Hall marketplace, has alloted space to the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, said Miss Canavier.

Other cities where public art is widely found include Los Angeles, Seattle, Chicago and Baltimore. But in many cities and towns across the country, smaller examples abound. For example, in Lewisboro, N.Y., a large sculpture now stands outside the local library. The sculpture was carved by local artist Axel Horn and town residents from an old tree which had been toppled by lightning.

According to Miss Canavier, percent-for-art programs started at the local level and then moved to larger-scale use in state and federal government. The first city to have a program was Philadelphia, which inaugurated a percent-for-art program in 1959. Approximately 50 cities, 26 to 28 states and a number of federal departments such as the General Services Administration and the Veterans Administration have public art programs.

One type of program not widely known in this country is an art bank. Canada set up an art bank 13 years ago to provide support for Canadian artists, according to William Kirby, head of the program. He noted that each year the bank buys between 300 and 400 works. A changing board of art authorities recommends which work to buy from among slides submitted by artists who wish to be considered.

The works are rented out to government departments and nonprofit organizations. Rental fees range from about $50 a year to $1,000 and total receipts from fees are about $750,000 a year. This money is used to fund new purchases.

A program such as this could work well in the United States, says Miss Canavier. It is one of many possible ways of increasing access to art and of supporting the work of American artists.

Miss Canavier, an artist who shows her porcelain sculptures and drawings under the name Elena Karina, was crafts coordinator of the National Endowment of the Arts.

The Public Art Trust serves as a middleman and answers questions about public art programs. The group also puts on exhibitions, publishes a newsletter, holds seminars and maintains a slide registry of artist. Local officials and others interested in establishing public art programs can contact the group at P.O. Box 6635, Washington, DC 20009, for information.

MUSEUM ACQUIRES MAJOR PAINTING

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The painting "Hot Springs of the Yellowstone," done in 1872 by Thomas Moran, has been acquired by the Los Angeles County Museum of Art as a gift of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert M. Gelfand.

Moran, a 19th-century landscape painter, was the first artist to travel to and record the natural spectacle of Yellowstone. His attempts to capture its magnificence for the American public led to Congress designating it as America's first national park.

Moran first traveled to the western United States in 1871.

salvaging glass from the additional windows. That's why some hairline cracks still show."

Striving to keep the original windows intact as much as possible, Michael even salvaged original lead to solder glass in place.

The painted scenes and the shading technique in the surrounding glass make these windows unique. Michael explained that the pictures were painted most likely with an enamel base paint, then fired into the glass. With heat, the paint sets permanently.

The artist first created each scene. Carefully cutting it into three sections, he rejoined them with lead matching the lines perfectly. The fifth window, Christ the Good Shepherd, features leading around the Christ figure. Michael added that the quality of each compares to fine paintings done in other mediums.

The four windows Michael restored include Christ knocking at the door, an angel child holding a lamb, Christ with children and Christ with Mary and Martha. At least three other windows completed the set in the original building. "Apparently when the old building was destroyed, the families who donated them were given the option to keep them," Donna said.

Green glass shaded to purple surrounds each scene. "You don't see purple very often in stained glass. These have no red (glass) and that's kind of unique," Michael explained. "I feel like whoever built the glass was real thoughtful — using the shading technique to go from green at the bottom and shading to purple at the top. (Louis) Tiffany was famous for this blending. They either blended the glass themselves or cut it out of glass sheets."

In the stained glass business here nearly 10 years, Michael said that he "played with it for about two years" before starting out on his own.

He worked for Snyder Glass Company for about a year. "There I cut patterns and got in on some of the art aspects of glass. I started reading books on glass works and had the opportunity to cut some stained glass. That's what got me started in glass work in general."

After leaving Snyder Glass, he resilvered mirrors. But because he has always enjoyed art, he sold his tools to devote his time to glass.

Most of his inspiration comes from Tiffany's work. "Glass is a terrific art medium because you can do so many things with it. You're not stuck doing just stained glass. It's exciting to have a job that allows me to be an artist too.

"Restoring the church's windows has been exciting for me. It would be interesting to know where they came from," he added. "Since each artist has his own recognizable style, we might be able to trace them if an antique or art dealer recognized the style."

Regardless of who created them, for the people at First Methodist the windows will be a welcomed addition to the chapel.

Currently under construction by T.E. Shelburne and Son Inc., the chapel will seat about 100 people. Building chairman Bill Wilson designed the interior and exterior of the chapel and is overseeing the project. He has also designed a marble cross with a wooden cross placed over it. The crosses will center the same wall as the windows.

The church hopes that its members and the community will use the structure for small weddings, funerals, piano recitals and other functions.

Looking at the windows, Michael added, "This is what a church ought to look like."

CONTINUITY STOPS FOR JOE PALOOKA

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP) — Joe Palooka once had a very powerful punch.

More than 900 newspapers published the comic strip at its height of popularity, but only 180 were doing so when Palooka was knocked out of the box last November after 54 years. Palooka's exploits in and out of the ring were followed by millions and in 1941 he was the first of the comic strip heroes to go to war.

Why was Palooka finally knocked out? According to the syndicator, a main reason was that contemporary readers do not want to follow a story line in a continuity strip. They want quick gags, not character development.

Implementing 'Star Wars' to cost trillions

WASHINGTON (AP) — He has money to spend and a mandate to spend it, so all of a sudden people are beating at doors to reach a little-known scientist named James Ionson.

A physicist, Ionson thrives on wild ideas and hard-to-imagine concepts — like the ingredients used by scientists such as Oppenheimer, Fermi and Teller to create critical mass and then the atomic bomb.

The Manhattan Project laid out $2 billion by the time bomber pilots delivered Fat Boy to Hiroshima. Even in today's terms — add $10 billion for inflation — it's small change to Ionson; he and his colleagues at the Strategic Defense Initiative office could end up spending hundreds of billions to create the invulnerable "Star Wars" defense.

That kind of money is sure to attract attention.

In December, the SDI office picked 10 lead firms to receive $1 million grants for initial studies on what the "architecture" of the revolutionary defense should be.

More than 200 firms — an unusually high number of respondents to a Pentagon request for proposals — bid for the work. The winners included such aerospace giants as Hughes Aircraft Co., Lockheed Missiles & Space Co., Martin Marietta, McDonnell Douglas, Rockwell International, Telednye Brown Engineering and TRW Inc.

Everybody wants a piece of this action.

"I can't think of anyone in the aerospace industry that has been critical of Star Wars; I wonder why?" says physicist Carl Sagan, an opponent of the project who thinks business will be the chief beneficiary of President Reagan's dream to build a space-based defense against Soviet missile attack.

It isn't only big business that is lining up. Ionson says his "Innovative Science and Technology Office" is being inundated with ideas.

Some are "off-the-wall." and they prompt a polite don't call-us-we'll-call-you letter from the SDI office, three blocks from the White House.

But when Ionson is intrigued, the idea may be worth money.

Ionson expects that about $100 million will be disbursed next year to researchers, aerospace firms and universities that can devise new technologies to help lead to Reagan's goal.

The program could end up costing $1 trillion if the system is built.

All this talk about money probably was far from Reagan's mind on March 23, 1983, when he launched the Strategic Defense Initiative with a speech to the nation.

Instead of building bigger and better offensive weapons, Reagan asked, why not create a super defense based on ultrafast computers, lasers, invulnerable metals, "smart" ammunition and energy propellants and put much of it in space to zap any enemy missiles that might be hurled at America or its allies?

Reagan even suggested that once the system was built the United States could share it with the Soviets. Then both sides would have no need for nuclear weapons, the arsenals would be scrapped and the world would be safe, under its umbrella of space-based defenses.

In the same way that the scientific community rose to President Kennedy's challenge to put an American on the moon by the end of the 1960s, the scientists of the 1980s and 1990s were being asked for a concentrated surge of brain power and energy to answer this new and noble call, Reagan said.

But it would require vaster sums than the $24 billion — $100 billion in 1980s dollars — that it cost to send a man to the moon in 1969.

The Defense Marketing Service, a private company advising corporations on defense procurement, projected spending of $75 billion on research between 1990 and 1994.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., said the finished system could cost $500 billion. Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif, whose state leads the nation in receipts from defense spending, came up with $1 trillion — a figure quickly picked up by Sagan and other scientists who oppose the program.

Although it won't speculate about potential high prices, the Pentagon's strategic defense office is far from sheepish about them. In fact, using the lure of profits to whip up enthusiasm is a tenet of a Star Wars philosophy that companies need incentives to devote energy and resources to solving the scientific riddles posed by such a massive undertaking.

Air Force Lt. Gen. James Abrahamson, the SDI director, calls this the "horse race" concept. Companies start out evenly in the race to make the necessary discoveries and are rewarded with future contracts if they finish first with the successful solution.

SDI officials say that by 1986 there will be an estimated 400 to 600 firms with strategic defense contracts.

Schafer Associates, a laser research firm in Arlington, Va., that employs fewer than 100 people, is working on one of the initial programs.

Dale Rowley, an executive at the communications company, Contel Information Systems in Fairfax, Va., another relatively small Star Wars contractor, says the bigger firms like Lockheed will rely on companies like his with expertise in a minute phase of the project.

To interest other small companies that don't have giant marketing teams to investigate possible contracts, the strategic defense office has set up a special library with detailed listings of available contracts and information about work being done by other researchers.

The library is at the non-profit Institute for Defense Analysis, a few miles from the Pentagon, in Alexandria, Va. Cathryn C. Lyon, who runs the operation, says that few contractors have used the service so far but she expects a rush as time goes by.

Message given great reception

By JEFFREY D. MILLER
Sunbury Daily Item

MOUNT PLEASANT MILLS, Pa. (AP) — Letters, so many letters, arrive that Jack Benson just can't answer all of them.

Written mostly on yellow or white lined paper, the kind young students use to practice their penmanship, the letters speak with powerful simplicity of the impact his message has had on them. Although he can't answer these letters, he will read them all. Often, he reads them again and again.

Jack Benson, Mount Pleasant Mills, RD1, has received letters for five years, ever since he began carrying a message to school students across Pennsylvania: that handicapped people are people, too.

Benson, through a 29-minute audio-visual show that he's compiled, attempts to educate the young about what it's like being mentally retarded. "A Boy Called Danny," a film that Benson shows, traces the life of a retarded person from 5 months of age to 25 years old. Danny is Benson's son.

Danny, Benson explains, fell from a couch at 5 months of age, injuring his brain. He was blind for awhile, but now has partial sight in one eye. It took him years to learn to walk and talk. Danny lives in a group home in Columbia County with two other mentally retarded men and a house parent.

Though the focus of his discussion is mentally retarded people, his message appears to leave an imprint in the young listeners' minds that there are many other handicaps besides mental retardation. He encourages the students to help blind people, perform a chore for an elderly person and be patient toward the handicapped.

Benson has taken his message to 128 schools, conducting 354 programs, but hasn't "even scratched the surface yet."

SDN Opinion Page

Editorials-Columns-Cartoons-Kid Stuff-Look Back-Letters

Embarrassing moments have been popping up like spring dandelions lately on the pages of the Snyder Daily News.

Since SDN staffers are ineligible for any prize monies, this contribution will have to be viewed as a freebie.

During the fall of 1982, Texas was in the throes of a really hot political race. At question was who would be our next governor, Republican incumbent Bill Clements or Democrat Mark White.

Any Texas in carshot of a TV or within reading distance of a newspaper knows the result of the race, although folks on both sides are still shouting about how it happened and who will ultimately get the last hoorah.

So anyway, the final weeks of the campaign produced the usual run of political visits — and each visitor, of course, expects a newspaper photo with accompanying copy.

One bright fall morning in '82 promised a visit from our then first lady of the state capitol, Rita Clements. Like most of these things, she had sandwiched Snyder in between whistle stops at Colorado City, then on to Post and ultimately Lubbock.

Or it may have been the other way around. Things like the right direction always get a little fuzzy near election time.

As she had sandwiched us between stopovers, we also had to sandwich her between the crush of writing meeting stories from the previous night and the daily heart palpitation called deadline.

But we managed to arrive at the appointed time along with a goodly sized gaggle of Republican supporters.

At the time, we had never seen Mrs. Clements in the flesh, and when she swept into the door, we were struck by her apparent resemblance to her predecessor, our last first lady of Austin, Janey Briscoe.

Since we know these two women about as well as we know, for example, Linda Gail White and her current gov-husband Mark, they may not look anything alike. But they both do have dark hair and are of the approximate same age and social bearing.

So in nervous expectation of our ultimate meeting — the thing was billed as a press conference, although the only press there was Noble B. Young and yours truly — we turned to Noble and commented, "Good grief, she looks just like the last governor's wife."

Innocent remarks sometimes cause deadly vapor locks in our thinking process.

By the time the welcome line got down to us, we gushed, "Good morning Mrs. Briscoe, how are you today?"

We have no idea what Rita Clements is like in the privacy of her own home. But that campaign morning, she fixed us with a stare that called to mind an arctic wind blowing across a rusty strand of barbed wire.

"I'm sure Mrs. Briscoe is fine," she said, "I'm Rita Clements. Who are you?"

John Dunnam

Since the beginning of time they have been around, and I'm afraid they will always be with us. I'm talking about the end-of-the-worlders. That segment of the population that insists the end of the world is at hand. And what if they are right? Who are they going to say, "I told you so," to?

Whether rich or poor, young or old, dumb or smart, the end-of-the-worlders can be lumped in four general categories: 1.) Stampbook variety — This term may be obsolete because Green Stamps are getting as scarce as hard cash, but the description fits so I will go with it.

These kind hearted people will patiently explain why all the signs are right for the immediate destruction of the world. If you are skeptical, they will offer to show you in scriptures, just as soon as they finish licking their stamps and carefully sticking them inside the little squares. Oh the nice things you can get if only you save your stamps.

2.) Sky pilots — Perhaps I should include all preachers, but the ones who use the air waves, be it radio or TV, are the most pointed, so I will stick to them in this highly scientific analysis.

There is nothing laid-back about this group. With impassioned pleas they beseech you to get right because the time is nigh. Then they ask for money so that their important work may continue.

Some of these chaps made a good living predicting the end. There must be a future in it because many are teaching their sons the trade.

3.) The third category is the "Atomic Bombers." They are convinced that any day now World War III will destroy every living thing except cockroaches and perhaps a few bees.

The Atomic Bombers can be further sub-divided into the "It Don't Matter" party and the "Survivalists." The latter believe they will be spared because they are prepared with all sorts of paraphernalia and contingency plans and recipes for fried cockroach and stewed bee. The former make better company.

4.) The fourth category is — "The Rest of Us". We are not as vocal as the other groups, but admit it; deep down you believe you will live to see the end of the world.

One thing is for sure. Your chances are greater than the last generation's, just as your grandparent's chances were greater than their parent's. Still, statistically speaking, it is a longshot, even for your grandkids.

I hate to leave you hanging, folks, but that is as far as I can take you. I only wanted to let the end-of-the-worlders know that we know, so shut up.

For more information on this subject, consult your local clergy. I'm afraid my own counsel is rather worldly: Buy on credit.

FIVE YEARS AGO

Snyder High School theatre students took the first step in their quest for a sixth straight trip to the UIL State One-Act Play finals in Austin Tuesday — April 1 — as they captured a co-championship of District 3-AAA with their production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream." Mark Robertson and Becky Pierce captured the district best actor and actress awards respectively for their performances.

Officers of the Sparkle City Squares square and round dance club for 1980 who took office April 1 are Leda and Richard Beck, Nellie and Bo Womack along with Betty and P.I. Youngkin.

Incumbents fared well in Saturday's — April 5 — city council and Snyder school board elections with Bryce Booker retaining his seat on the city council by a six vote margin over challenger H.D. Hines and Jerry Rice retaining his seat on the school board. Rice outpolled challenger Larry Bills 419-376.

10 YEARS AGO

Col. Wilson Speir, commander of the Texas Department of Public Safety, presented a plaque to local oil man C.T. McLaughlin here Tuesday — April 1 — honoring McLaughlin's many years of service to the law enforcement community.

New Snyder city councilmen sworn into office today — April 2 — following April 1 elections were Rod Waller and Jerry McWilliams. Waller will fill the council seat vacated by Joe Sentell and McWilliams will fill the place 1 seat formerly held by J.D. Hinton.

20 YEARS AGO

New members of the board of trustees of the Snyder Independent School District elected in at large balloting Tuesday — April 6 — were Kenneth Wilson and W.L. Schiebel.

Snyder Boy Scout Jerry Northcott was awarded scouting's highest honor Tuesday night — April 6 — in special ceremonies at the First United Methodist Church. Northcott became the third active Eagle Scout in Scurry County. Other active Eagles who participated in the installation were Willie Everett and Jackie Beane.

SDN Week in Review

SUNDAY
March 31

The death last Oct. 8 of 12-year-old Jeff Polk has prompted a $2 million lawsuit filed by his family against both Scurry County and the Snyder Chamber of Commerce, it was reported Sunday.

Eight new directors for Scurry County's United Way campaign and the 1985 drive chairman were reported Sunday by campaign officials.

Named as the 1985 United Way Drive Chairman was Mike Banta, senior vice president here with American State Bank.

New directors include Blanche Chisum, Dr. Bid Cooper, Jack Denman, Mort Ewing, Bob Hawes, Eddie Johnson, Jeff Lowrance and Ralph Williamson.

MONDAY
April 1

The construction of a bandstand to be located south of the Scurry County courthouse has been questioned by the Texas Historical Commission, but representatives of the local historical group say they feel the inquiry is only a misunderstanding.

Regarding this, it was reported Monday that plans to construct the facility are moving ahead as planned.

Snyder High School had only one UIL contest entrant advance from the district meet concluded here during the weekend, it was reported Monday.

Robyn Fambro, a sophomore at SHS, placed second in prose interpretation, and four entrants qualified for first alternate positions — Brad Vincent, persuasive speaking; Shannon Lunsford, prose interpretation; Missy Trull, editorial writing; and Cindy Martinez, typewriting.

An increase in swimming pool use fees was approved Monday by Scurry County commissioners for the Towle Park facility.

For youngsters under age 18, the daily fee will go from 35 cents to 60 cents. For adults, the fee will go from 75 cents to $1.25. The wading pool for children age 5 and under is still free to the public.

Mike Line officially began service as Scurry County Attorney Monday as he accepted the oath of office. Line replaces Gary Terrell, who resigned the post effective April 1 to accept a position with a Lubbock law firm.

Eleven suspects — arrested here March 18-19 following what was called an undercover investigation of suspected drug use in the county — were named in 17 felony indictments by a local grand jury Monday.

They are now ordered to stand trial on charges alleging the delivery of various controlled substances here ranging over a two-month period of time from Jan. 15 to March 15.

The Snyder High School and Junior High school bands scored a clean "sweep" Tuesday — picking up sweepstakes awards for all three bands — in UIL Regional Concert and Sightreading Contests in Sweetwater.

The three Snyder Bands — two from the high school and the junior high eighth grade band — were the only entrants in the competition to capture the sweepstakes awards.

WEDNESDAY
April 3

Gene Thomas, whose unchallenged bid for his first full term on the Snyder City Council was interrupted by a job promotion and accompanying transfer, has indicated to city officials he is withdrawing from the race, it was reported Wednesday.

THURSDAY
April 4

The month of March produced new construction estimates here near $600,000 to include one new commercial building and a second sizeable commercial addition in Snyder plus five single-family type residences.

The month's figure reported Thursday set new construction at $598,870, bringing the year's amount to more than $4.5 million. The exact sum is $4,537,192.

FRIDAY
March 5

An all-time record in total deposits were revealed by five Snyder financial institutions at the end of the first quarter of 1985, it was reported Friday.

Deposits at three banks and two savings and loan firms were $255.8 million — a substantial increase of $17 million over the same time last year.

An unpredictable and "up to the minute" race for the Snyder city council post place 1 was promised Friday as local residents are set to go to the polls Saturday.

As of the day before the election, Gene Thomas, incumbent for place 1, had withdrawn and three write-in candidates — one of these, Gloria Shaw, coming forth Friday morning — were either announced or endorsed. Also in the running were David Hines and Gary Roberts.

Letter to the editor

To the editor,

Several weeks ago I was watching NASHVILLE NOW on the Nashville network. They interviewed the backup singers on the show and the dark haired lady singer stated that she was Jana King from Snyder, Tx. I was curious and wrote to the Nashville network about her. A few days later I received a reply from Jana which gave some information you might find interesting. It read in part, "I lived in Snyder all my life, until graduation from high school in 1971. My name was Jana Bullard, daughter of J.C. (Jake) and Pat Bullard. My father worked for Chevron and my mother was a bookkeeper for the city. They now live in Jakarta, Indonesia in the Far East. My father is superintendent over production for Natomas Internatioal (a division of Shamrock). They have been there almost five years. In school I was involved in choir and was a cheerleader for seven years. I went to Texas Tech and majored in music. I married Tim King in Lubbock and moved to Dallas in 1976. I moved to Nashville two years ago. I am so glad that Snyder is receiving the network. I'd love to hear from more people there. I've been thinking about calling someone with the Snyder Daily News to let them know what is going on in my life. My parents still receive the Snyder Daily News."

Before I knew that Jana was the former Jana Bullard, I would try to figure out who she could be because she looked like someone I had seen many times in the past. The reason turned out to be that Jana and her family attended church at the same congregation that my family attended for several years.

Her address is: Jana King, Nashville Now, 2806 Opryland Dr., Nashville, Tenn., 37214.

Research: singers work hard at profession

By CINDY HUBERT
The Arizona Daily Star

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Don't ever let anyone tell you that professional singers don't work for a living.

Just ask the classical basso or soprano who routinely drops a couple of pounds in the process of performing an opera.

Singing — particularly opera singing — is an athletic event, say two University of Arizona researchers who have completed a study on how classical singers breathe when they perform.

But using the lungs, rib cage and abdomen correctly can make the job a whole lot easier, they say.

"Trying to sing without using the respiratory system properly is sort of like trying to play an organ that doesn't have a wind-box," said Thomas J. Hixon, a professor of speech and hearing sciences. "The excellent singer uses his respiratory system to the fullest."

Because they don't use microphones and they often must sing above the music of an orchestra, classical singers "tax everything" when they perform, said Peter Watson, a UA research assistant who directed the study.

With the aid of modern technology, opera singers can train to make their singing "more efficient" and acquire skills more quickly, the researchers said.

Hixon and Watson, who has a master's degree in vocal performance, put a half dozen local male baritones to the test.

For their study, to be published in a national journal, Watson and Hixon put the professional singers onstage in a church auditorium and attached electrodes to their shirtless bodies.

Polio symptoms returning

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Susan Maslar figured the pain and agony was over when she left a home for crippled children three decades ago following a successful battle against polio.

But many of her old symptoms gradually began reappearing. She began sleeping through entire weekends and needed a cane or a wheelchair to get around.

It was a nightmare returned, worsened by doctors' insistence that the horror was all in her head.

"I was tired of them telling me I was crazy," the 30-year-old transportation analyst said from her home in Fairfax, Va.

Finally, last spring, Ms. Maslar learned in a magazine article that she wasn't crazy, that she wasn't alone. Thousands of others who had overcome paralytic polio as children were now experiencing many of the same symptoms that they'd thought they'd left behind for good long ago.

"What we're finding is a small group of patients, all of them with polio as children, who are developing new muscle weakness," says Dr. Marinos Dalakas, a neurologist at the National Institutes of Health.

The non-fatal syndrome, called post-poliomyelitis muscular atrophy, seems to strike about one of every four polio survivors about 30 years following the disease's onset, according to Dalakas. There are about 300,000 people in the United States today who are believed to have contracted the disease before the advent of vaccines in the mid-1950s.

"There is no link to the virus," Dalakas says. "But there is a link to the whole disease in the sense that the nerve cells have been previously affected in acute disease and now cannot meet the increased (body) needs. They're overworked and may be succumbing to the aging process faster than usual."

Until the past few years, no one realized there was any connection among former polio patients who complained of weakness, fatigue and muscle pain.

Like Ms. Maslar, they were considered "crazy or depressed or going through mid-life crisis," says Dr. Michael Alexander, medical director of D.T. Watson Rehabilitation Hospital in Sewickley.

Alexander knew better. He'd been stricken with polio 34 years ago at age 3 and was among those experiencing the disease's delayed effects.

For Alexander, post-polio meant getting rid of his hand-pedaled bicycle and cutting out exercise.

"A lot of these people have to learn they have a disability and that they have to alter their lifestyles," he says.

Susan Maslar is one.

Research continues, meanwhile, to uncover a cause.

Your Birthday

April 7, 1985

In the year ahead you will begin to see the returns you've been hoping for in an enterprise that has thus far been unfruitful. The flow will start with a trickle and then pick up momentum.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Something may develop today that could be initially disappointing. But after you study the matter thoroughly, you'll see it really has a bright side. Trying to patch up a romance? The Matchmaker set can help you understand what it might take to make the relationship work. To get yours, mail $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You might not accomplish your purposes on your first try today but don't let this dismay you. Regroup your forces and make your second effort really count.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're well equipped today with both courage and wisdom to make difficult career decisions. Don't be intimidated.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It may be necessary for you to take a calculated risk today to improve your lot in life. If the odds are in your favor, act accordingly.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If things have been a bit boring for you lately, get in touch with that special friend of yours who knows how to rekindle your enthusiasm for life.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't pack it in today on something worthwhile you've been pursuing. The rewards you've been hoping for are much closer than you realize.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You can be remarkably resourceful today in figuring out ways to improve your financial position. Utilize each bright idea you get so that they really count for something.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You have a rare gift today for turning an unusual situation to your advantage. Your skills will be especially pronounced in financial areas.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Lead your own parade today, instead of merely being one of the people in the ranks. Matters you personally direct will turn out fortunately.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're a good investigator today and you won't be deceived by surface appearances. If there's a matter you'd like to get to the bottom of, dig around a bit.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A goal you thought would be difficult to achieve will work out much easier than you had supposed. The secret is to think "win," so get started now.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Restrictions that have impeded your progress the past few days will be alleviated now, especially where your ambitions or finances are concerned.

Your Birthday

April 8, 1985

Interesting and exciting times are in the offing for you in the year ahead. Many new friends will enter your life and open unusual vistas for you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Today you will have a better grasp of the big picture regarding an important matter. All the bits and pieces can be fitted together advantageously. Major changes are in store for Aries in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your native financial shrewdness will come to the fore today. You'll arrive at ethical solutions that will benefit everyone involved.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Friendly associates will play important roles in your affairs, both today and tomorrow. Make every effort to keep these alliances intact.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be alert for larger than usual work or career opportunities. Don't be reluctant to take on additional responsibilities if it's necessary.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Keep your channels open, both today and tomorrow, to friends and contacts you have in faraway places. Good news is trying to break through to you from a distant source.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Joint ventures could work very fortunately for you at this time, provided you're involved with people who can make contributions equal to yours.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your warm, ingratiating attitude and your generous outlook are your tickets to success today. Let your true personality emerge.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today you have the ability to make much from sparse beginnings. Small opportunities, skillfully managed, can yield big returns.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It behooves you to do more listening than talking today because valuable information might be forwarded to you from the least expected sources.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Lady Luck may favor you today by placing you in the right spot at the right time where you will benefit from something good another has going.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Have a hopeful, positive attitude today and look toward the new, rather than the old. There is something good on the horizon that will bring you joy.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Financial conditions continue to look hopeful for you, so focus your energies and efforts on situations that could increase your income or add to your resources.

Salk vaccine is 30 years old

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Summer after summer, as certain as school vacations and sandlot baseball, the specter of polio terrified the nation.

The victims were both young and adult, but most often they were defenseless children. Infantile paralysis struck regardless of race or riches, suburb or city.

Thousands died each year. Tens of thousands were left crippled.

Parents barred children from swimming pools, theaters and other public places where the disease was thought to fester.

Entire communities — like Florence, S.C., in July 1948 — were quarantined when an epidemic hit. Emergency teams of polio experts and tons of iron lungs were rushed in. Day after sweltering day, as the cursed season dragged on, newspaper headlines kept track of the toll.

Then, 30 years ago Friday, came the word: the Salk vaccine is safe, effective and potent.

For a quiet, young scientist named Dr. Jonas E. Salk, that meant vindication and fame. The world had an answer to polio.

The announcement was made on the 10th anniversary of President Franklin Delano Roosevelt's death, culminating a crusade he had led from his wheelchair, the March of Dimes. The date was April 12, 1955.

In a recent telephone interview from The Salk Institute for Biological Studies in La Jolla, Calif., Salk said, "I entered into a dialogue with nature and asked, 'Is it possible?' I put it to nature in the form of an experiment and nature replied, under these conditions, yes it would work."

Elaine Whitelaw, 70, a director for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, now known as the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation, called it the first "people's victory over a disease."

The chain of research was long and distinguished. Earlier, a team of Nobel Prize-winning scientists had learned how to grow viruses in tissue culture. And the race was on to develop an effective vaccine that could persuade the body to produce antibodies against polio.

Salk's work began in earnest in a University of Pittsburgh laboratory in the early 1950s. But the basis for the breakthrough had begun to ferment many years before.

The eldest son of a New York City garment manufacturer, Salk graduated from high school at age 15 intending to become a lawyer. In college, however, he opted for medical school and scientific research.

In 1942, following a fellowship in protein chemistry and an internship at New York's Mount Sinai Hospital, Salk joined the University of Michigan and began working on an influenza vaccine to protect the country against a wartime epidemic.

Five years later, Salk agreed to head a virus research program at the University of Pittsburgh's fledgling medical school. There he was asked to conduct part of a polio virus classification program for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Former British prime minister Winston Churchill died at his London home Jan. 24, 1965. He was 90.

Cap, gown people see new growth

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Students in U.S. high schools and colleges continue to show increased interest and participation in graduation ceremonies, according to an executive of a major manufacturer of graduation apparel.

"During the Vietnam years, participation in graduation ceremonies by students and faculty dropped significantly," says Ted Beach, vice president marketing for Collegiate Cap and Gown here.

"But the volume and kind of orders this year indicates students and faculty not only want to participate, they are seeking ways to make the event more memorable — adding more color, more pageantry, and a stronger emphasis on souvenir items like tassels, cords and pendants.

"This has been a major trend in the cap and gown industry in the past several years," Beach said.

The executive said a substantial increase in the number of gowns for graduates of day care and other preschool programs reflects the increasing number of two-career and single-parent families.

"The day could come when one individual might go through six or more graduations in a lifetime — kindergarten, grade school, junior high, high school, college and graduate school," Beach added.

Since the company ships more than a million garments each season and most graduation ceremonies fall between mid-May and late June, precision delivery is of overriding importance, Beach points out. The company processes orders with a IBM computer to make sure that each graduate gets a gown of the right color and size at the right time.

"In this business, there's no tomorrow if the gown's not right or if it's not there on time," Beach said.

Man loves caring for animals

By JULES LOH
AP Special Correspondent

THONOTOSASSA, Fla. (AP) — The meter reader left this note on Lynn Ash's gate: "Your turkey wouldn't let me in." Some turkey.

"It is a rhea," Lynn Ash said. "His name is Big Foot. I don't blame the meter reader. A rhea can take a chunk out of you. Rheas are not sociable, especially at nesting time. See how close he stays to his mate? Her name is Rosie."

Lynn Ash, at 45, is himself a strange and beautiful creature.

And rare. He is a person without guile. Animals sense this. And if you can find this unpronounceable place, which is off in the boonies 15 miles out from Tampa, a visit with Lynn Ash will restore anyone's perspective about man's place on the planet.

Remember reading, about five years ago, of an animal attendant at Busch Gardens in Tampa who leapt into a cage to give mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to a gorilla? That was Lynn Ash.

(Actually it was mouth-to-nostril resuscitation, and it was, sadly, unsuccessful. So Ash spent the next three nights in the adjoining cage consoling the widow.)

Or you might remember Lynn Ash from the 1960s. He was a rarity in those days, too, an artist making a good living.

His paintings, during that turbulent decade, tended toward the sentimental. They reflected the things he considers life's rewards: tree bark, spring buds, autumn leaves, scarecrows, wooden ice boxes, sunsets, animals. Especially animals. Among art collectors and animal lovers, the signature 'Lash" was well known.

Then, one day in 1969, he put aside his brushes and quit. "The work had drained me," he said.

He took a job at Busch Gardens, where 2,000 animals romp in Africa-like surroundings. Between man and animal, the devotion was mutual. That old gorilla, for example, seemed to require a morning back rub, which Lynn Ash provided.

The creatures seemed to sense Ash's comforting presence. A blind rhinocerous would amble up for a pat. Snoozing orangutans would raise trusting eyes when he passed through the crowds and follow him fondly until he was out of vision.

Zookeepers marveled. When that old gorilla's widow bore a son, the choice of a name was unanimous: Lash.

Even the store of animals at the theme park, however, didn't satisfy Ash's passion. He began envisioning a home. He did it as he might have envisioned a painting, seeing in his mind's eye exactly what it would look like when it was done.

Well, he is more than halfway there, and is not disappointed. He has turned an acre of ground into a Lynn Ash version of Eden.

A snow white peacock greets visitors from his chosen roost on the porch rail. Other peacocks decorate live oaks, hickories, elms, cypress.

Golden pheasants, Java green peacocks, Pharaoh quail, vulturine guineas from Africa, green jungle fowl reside in enclosures as painstakingly "natural" as any at Busch Gardens.

The rheas, flightless, have the run of the place. So does Remus, who is half shepherd and half timberwolf. So do the black breasted red bantams, and their chicks, no bigger than cotton balls, and the mallards and wood ducks and wild turkeys and, yes, bald eagles, attracted instinctively to this wild domain of Lynn Ash.

An eight-foot indigo snake slithers in the underbrush. "Keeps away the rattlers."

Inside, Ash, the semi-recluse, has surrounded himself with America's past — a working juke box, an old pay phone, old ice box, old beer signs, old whiskey barrel. When the phone rings, an old parrot, Spanky, croaks hello.

Maybe it was the nearness of all those critters and all those comfortable relics, Lynn Ash isn't sure. Whatever the inspiration, he could no longer resist the lure of a blank canvas.

At Busch Gardens, his creative urge has burst out in the form of signs and educational exhibits of the sort that fetched handsome prices for the artist 20 years ago.

Dear Abby

Boss Trapped in Affair Gropes for A Way Out

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 By Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am a married man, 43 years old. I have a good wife and an 11-year-old son who mean the world to me.

My problem started four years ago when an attractive divorced woman (she's now 36) came to work for me. I own a prosperous business. I'm not without blame, but she did tempt me, and we had an affair. I told her from the beginning that I had no intentions of leaving my wife, but she thought she could win me over. She insists that she loves me, and things are now in a terrible state.

She gets jealous if I smile at another woman, and my customers are starting to notice, as well as the employees. I bought her a car to keep her quiet and I give her money on the side. I finally suggested she find another job. She refuses to leave.

I'm sorry I got involved with her, but it's too late now. I can't fire her or she'll tell my wife everything. I can't go on this way. Am I trapped? I don't want to hurt my family. Please help me.

NO WAY OUT

DEAR NO WAY: Tell your wife that you had an affair with this woman, but it's over. Ask her (beg her, if necessary) to forgive you, and promise to be the world's best husband if she will give you the chance.

Then tell your ladyfriend that you've confessed everything to your wife. This will render her powerless to blackmail you. Good luck.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I was not a virgin when I married. I fell in love more than once, but I never was promiscuous.

Luckily, I had the advice of a realistic and loving mother, and thus avoided VD and pregnancies. It was simple.

To every boyfriend who wanted to have sex with me I would say, "Either you use protection, or no go!" It's always worked.

The media, and you, too, Abby, preach daily the awful consequences of VD and unplanned pregnancies, but you say very little about prevention. If you print this, I'm sure you will get thousands of indignant letters, but you might save a million girls a lot of grief and shame for life.

SMUG IN VICTORIA, B.C.

DEAR SMUG: I'll risk it. I can preach self-control from now until my typewriter falls apart, but there will always be people who will continue to do what comes naturally and take their chances, so to them I say, "Take precautions. We don't need any more VD or unplanned pregnancies."

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I am a 23-year-old male student nurse. Recently I met representatives from several hospitals and learned that my chances for employment are excellent—but my chances for the jobs of my choice range from poor to non-existent. Why? Because I am a man.

Some hospitals will not hire a male R.N. for general medical-surgical duty because male nurses are not allowed to perform routine care of female patients without a female nurse present. Obviously this is not cost-effective if two nurses must be in the room while only one is necessary.

On an obstetrics-gynecology service, the male R.N. is simply not allowed in most hospitals because "intimate care" is required. At least that's how it was explained to me.

Abby, female nurses take care of male patients (even on urological services), and no chaperones are required.

Is this discrimination practiced all over the country? Or is New England behind the times? I would also be interested in knowing how your female readers feel about having a male R.N. care for them in the hospital.

M.B.E.

DEAR M.B.E.: Discrimination against male nurses is news to me, and I have no way of knowing how widespread it is until I hear from readers.

I personally feel the sex of a nurse is unimportant as long as that nurse is competent. Readers?

High points

While Alaska's Mount McKinley is the highest point in the United States, Leadville, Colo., is the highest city. The highest place on the East Coast is Cadillac Mountain in Maine, and Yosemite Falls in California is the tallest falls. The Sears Tower in Chicago is the tallest building, and the TV tower in Blanchard, N.D., is the tallest structure.

Dangers of marijuana

Scientists believe marijuana can be particularly harmful to lungs because users typically inhale the smoke deeply and hold it in their lungs for prolonged periods of time. Marijuana smoke has been found to have more cancer-causing agents than are found in cigarette smoke.

Several types of hepatitis

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — When I was 23, I had the type of hepatitis that is contagious. I don't know if this is hepatitis A or B. My doctor told me that it would take me 10 years to get over it. I didn't believe him, but I'm now 30 and my health has never been the same. Please send me some information on the effects of hepatitis.

DEAR READER — All forms of viral hepatitis are contagious, but they are contagious in different ways. Hepatitis A is like food poisoning and usually is contracted from contaminated food, such as contaminated oysters. Patients can transmit it for up to three weeks.

Viral hepatitis B used to include everything that wasn't type A. Today, type B is spread by body secretions, including saliva, and can be transmitted sexually. About 10 percent of those with type B may develop chronic hepatitis. There is now a vaccine to prevent hepatitis B.

Hepatitis from transfusions or needles usually comes from still other types of virus, so it is called non-A, non-B viral hepatitis.

I have discussed the differences and the outlook for each of these in The Health Letter, Special Report 27, Common Liver Disorders, which I am sending you as you requested. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What does it mean if a woman has a history of arthritis and collagen disease? I never heard of collagen disease. The doctor said it was vascular and had to do with bone tissue. Is it a form of cancer? I am 60 and was taking Feldene for about a year. Now I'm taking Tolectin for arthritis.

The doctor says that I am healthy and should live for at least another 20 years.

DEAR READER — Collagen is difficult to explain. Connective tissue holds the body together and gives it its shape. All of the cells in the body are bound with connective tissue. This tissue includes elastic fibers and collagen fibers. The collagen is a protein made of connected amino acids, and it is in all of the body organs, joints and skin.

Sometimes something goes wrong with collagen formation, which can cause many different types of diseases. Rheumatoid arthritis is considered a collagen disease by many. Lupus erthematosus is a collagen disease, as are some kidney diseases. The exact mechanisms involved are not fully understood. Your arthritis probably has something to do with your doctor's comment that you have collagen disease. Collagen disease often is associated with joint disorders.

Collagen disease can affect the blood vessels, since they also contain collagen. When the arteries in the eyes are involved, it can cause eye disorders.

No, collagen disease is not cancer or related to cancer. Many medical disorders are classified as collagen disease, so one can't predict the disease's effects without knowing which collagen disease is being discussed — a fairly innocuous skin disease, a joint disease or an eye disease. However, your doctor has reassured you that he doesn't think your disease will cut your life short.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Several of my relatives have nerve-conductive hearing losses. These relatives are young (10, 15 and 17) and are afraid to wear hearing aids, since their peers might make fun of them. What would you suggest for this problem?

Doctors have told them that if they wore hearing aids while young, they might "grow out of the hearing loss." Will surgery correct this problem?

DEAR READER — If they have a hearing loss due to damage of the hearing nerve, they will not grow out of it, and there is no operation for this type of hearing loss. If they had fusion of the small hearing bones in the ear, then a surgical procedure would help.

If testing shows that a hearing aid will help, they could wear a model that is contained inside the ear and is virtually invisible. The new small ones are very satisfactory. They also could wear a hearing aid behind the ear, since it could be concealed by hair. That might be the best solution. Be sure that they have been tested by an audiologist before being fitted for a hearing aid, since they must have enough hearing to use an aid satisfactorily and safely. Determining this requires more than just giving them a hearing aid.

If they have a significant hearing defect, it is important to see what can be done to correct it. Hearing is essential to their schoolwork and their social life.

To help update you on hearing problems and what can be done, I am sending you The Health Letter 16-8, Your Vital Hearing. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — For the past few years I've had my blood tested at an annual health fair. Each time, the total bilirubin is 3.62. The normal range is listed as 0.10 to 1.4.

Out of 26 chemistries, this is the only one that keeps showing up out of the normal range. Is it important to check this? If so, who should I consult?

DEAR READER — Bilirubin is the pigment that gives bile its color. It comes from the breakdown of the hemoglobin in red blood cells. Most of the hemoglobin is recycled to conserve iron, and that which is not recycled is processed by the liver to form bilirubin.

Several different disorders can cause an increased level of bilirubin. It can be caused by an increased destruction of red blood cells, but a more likely cause is Gilbert's disease. This is an inherited defect in the way in which the liver forms bilirubin. It usually causes an increased level of bilirubin in about the range you describe and can result in mild jaundice. Gilbert's disease usually is not evident until the second decade of life, and the jaundice is so mild that it often goes unnoticed. At least two of the highly qualified and highly screened candidates for the astronaut program had this disorder when my group examined them for the space program. One became a famous astronaut.

The prudent course is to see your doctor about your test results. This is what such screening tests at health fairs are for — to detect disorders that need further evaluation.

Experts hold different views on history of early man

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Ask an anthropologist to help find a stranger at a crowded buffet dinner and he gives a precise reply: "Professor So-and-So? Oh, he's wearing green jeans and has a large jaw."

Sure enough, there's the professor, near the meatballs, jaw and jeans exactly as described.

Identification is harder when the jaw is millions of years old. Some 250 early-man specialists from a dozen countries assembled recently to pay homage to one of the most significant fossil skulls ever found, and went away again still divided over its place on the human family tree.

Some, comparing shapes and angles of bones and teeth, said the 2-million-year-old child's skull is a true ancestor of man. Others, on the opposite side of the liveliest debate in earlyman studies, said it represents an evolutionary failure that died out long ago.

Controversy has surrounded the skull ever since Australian Raymond Dart picked it out from bones dug up at a remote limeworks near Taung, 180 miles southwest of Johannesburg, 60 years ago. Dart, who conducted his scientific career in South Africa, called it Australopithecus (southern ape) africanus and insisted it was the missing link in the search for a common forebear of man and ape.

It took colleagues 25 years to come around to Dart's view that Africa, not Asia, was the cradle of mankind. Louis Leakey, his wife, Mary, and their son, Richard, produced Homo habilis and other early human remains in Kenya and Tanzania, and thus focused the search in eastern Africa.

Eleven years ago, Don Johanson, now president of the Institute of Human Origins in Berkeley, Calif., uncovered Lucy, a partial Australopithecus skeleton, in Ethiopia. He classified the 3.5-millionyear-old find as a new species — afarensis — and contended that it — not africanus — was an ancestor of man.

A week of lectures and field trips celebrating the Taung skull and Dart's 92nd birthday did nothing to resolve disputes about how man began. But anthropologists, in interviews, said their discipline has made major strides since Dart put Africa on the map in 1925.

Among their comments:

—Johanson: "It's a more respectable and rigorous science. No longer does one person go out and find a skull and become an expert. Now there are teams in the field — geologists, dating specialists, anthropologists. There are new techniques of statistical and computerized X-ray analysis.

"Before, certain dominant individuals could make statements and not have to back them up. Now younger scientists are gaining access to study fossils and are presenting their own views. It's very healthy."

—Anatomist Bernard Wood, Middlesex Hospital Medical School, London: "There is less looking for a missing link, less compulsion to fit things into a single chain of being — ape to man. But no doubt there was one animal about 5 million years ago that was the apex of a triangle. At that time, some climatic or other event sent apes to the forests as vegetarians, while hominids — manlike creatures — branched out as scavengers."
