

5.98 inch deluge hits Post on 'Soggy Sunday'

Over 8 inches falls at Graham

"Soggy Sunday" — that was last Sunday for this area—came within .11 of an inch of setting a new record rainfall for Post, with 5.98 inches officially for the 24 hour period.

Soggy Sunday also produced a reported 8.1 inches of rain in the Graham area and reportedly up to an actual 12 inches somewhere between Post and Snyder, with the Scurry County seat experiencing a flash flood which left estimated damages at over $1,500,000 and one woman drowned.

The rains appeared the heaviest in an Aspermont-Graham-Snyder triangle, and produced no real flooding or serious crop losses in this area.

South Lake was so full here that lake water backed over the entrance to the 4-H building on the south side of the lake. A family reunion scheduled for that building Sunday could not be held there because of the water-blocked road entrance.

The First National Bank for the first time advertised for "a whole bunch of warm sunshine" in today's Dispatch.

The bank was the originator of advertisements for rain, but in the past has declined to advertise for sunshine on the premise that Western Texas usually gets more than enough of that.

County Agent Syd Conner told The Dispatch yesterday: "What we need now is a good old-fashioned heat wave."

The county agent said that all the rain hasn't really harmed a Garza cotton crop, which bears a "top prospects" tag.

"It's what the weather does from now on out, and how early the first freeze comes which will determine how good a crop we will have," Conner said. "We need lots of sunshine now, not cool and cloudy weather."

He said current cotton prospects are such that with good weather the rest of the way, Garza has the opportunity to match its record 1968 cotton production of over 28,000 bales.

The county agent reported a number of lakes in the Graham area spread over fields of growing cotton, as a result of the Sunday deluge, but estimated the total cotton and feed acreage under water wouldn't exceed 150 to 200 acres.

"Of course I stayed on the all-weather roads when I went to take a look," Syd added with a grin.

The single day record rainfall for Post, as far as is known, is 6.09 inches which was recorded here on June 7, 1963, when 5.96 inches fell in just 105 minutes between 5:45 and 7:30 p.m. and another .53 of an inch was recorded between 11:30 p.m. and 1 a.m. the next morning.

A wall of water, caused by the heavy deluges to the north, poured down Deep Creek into Snyder Sunday morning flooding much of the business district and making an is-

STREET PARADE AT 5:30 P. M.

Entry lists crammed for 32nd Post Rodeo

The 32nd annual Post Stampede Rodeo will begin at 8 o'clock tonight, following by two and a half hours a downtown street parade that promises to make up in excitement what it lacks in size.

Parade officials said Wednesday that not as many riding groups and floats had entered the parade as they had hoped, but that the addition of motorcycles to the procession for the first time this year is expected to add an extra "something" in the way of excitement that the parade has never had before.

Meanwhile, out at the rodeo office late Wednesday afternoon,

Johnny Kemp, Post Stampede secretary, said the entry lists were rapidly filling up.

"All we're anxious about now is the weather," Kemp said. "If it doesn't rain anymore between now and starting time, the arena grounds are in fine shape for all events."

Kemp said that 30 minutes after the rodeo office opened Monday morning, the bull riding entry list was all full — with 53 contestants.

Up to 4 p.m. yesterday, 62 had entered the tie-down calf roping event and 54 the team roping event.

The secretary said the office will continue taking entries in both these events until noon today, and that there is expected to be a big "overflow" roping after Friday night's show.

The bareback bronc riding event is full up with 45 contestants and so far there are 17 saddle bronc riders, with 20 this year's limit. Thirty-one cowgirls have entered the barrel race event, with nearly that many more expected by the time the books close at noon today.

Benefit roping-art catalog goes on sale

A page catalog on the OS Benefit Roping and Art Exhibit, Sept. 30-Oct. 1, is off this week after a 3,000 sale here at the First National Bank and Post Chamber Commerce office at $2 per copy. Attractive, high quality cat-

fit this fall. There is a word sketch of each artist or roper on his page, together with a picture of artist or roper, and an action picture of the roper or a picture of one of the works of the artist.

Also included are historical articles and pictures on Garza County, Post, and the O. S. Ranch, and article and pictures on West Texas Boys Ranch near San Angelo which will harvest all the benefit dollars from the big ranch weekend.

The catalogs cost approximately $1.50 to print, but the printing cost and more are paid via "page sponsors." Seventy-five such sponsors, including some local firms and individuals, paid $100 each for one-line sponsorships of their catalog page.

The western pictures on the inside are copies of some old Harper's prints.

Nine art galleries sponsored one or more of each of the various pages on the cowboy and western artists whose works will be put on exhibit (See Benefit, Page 8)

Minister accepts call to Arkansas

The Rev. James A. Criswell, who recently resigned as pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church, this week moved with his family to West Fork, Ark., nine miles south of Fayetteville, where he has accepted the pastorate of a Baptist church.

The Criswells have been residents of Post since April of 1968 and he was pastor of the Trinity Baptist Church until resigning last year to become pastor of the Calvary Baptist.

The Criswells' son, Mike and his wife, Ann, live in Canyon where they are students at West Texas State University. The couple's daughter, Paula Kay, who was valedictorian of this year's graduating class at Post High School, will enroll in WTSU this fall. The younger daughter, Ronda, will be a freshman in high school at the place her parents are moving.

The Calvary Baptist congregation is scheduled to appoint a pulpit committee Sunday to look for another pastor.

Antelope Booster Club will meet

The Antelope Booster Club's first meeting of the season will be held Thursday night, Aug. 24, at the fieldhouse following the evening football workout.

The meeting will be for the purpose of electing new officers, hearing the financial report and discussing the club's program for the upcoming season.

All members and prospective members of the club, especially parents of the football players, are invited to attend next Thursday night's meeting.

This column writer "can tell by his patio" when it is really raining.

We were awakened at 4:10 a.m. Sunday by the loud drip of rain water through the front hall air conditioner into a dry plastic container. (When the container is dry, the drip is much noisier.)

We got up to find it pouring outside.

So we checked the "back hall" of the C. Castle, where we have a leak around the chimney flashing that no local repairman has yet been able to close. Sure enough, we were "getting some action there too." We applied about a half dozen of the girls' towels — now unused — to that and threw them soaking into the bathtub.

It was still pouring so we flipped on the patio light and took a look at the patio. We well remembered June of 1963 when the patio side yard flooded, because we had built-up flower and shrub boxes around the edges and no drain.

On that rather grim afternoon we had to stand in the side yard in a pair of shorts and ball water over the six-foot fence to keep the yard water from flooding into the house. It was mighty cold out in the downpour and we even had to dodge some fair size chunks of ice.

As we remember it, we had a drain put in the next day, and a week later the bottom fell out of the clouds again, and we were back out there throwing buckets of water over the fence because the drain was too small to keep up (See Postings, Page 8)

Teacher workshops to start Aug. 21

The 1972-1973 school term doesn't officially open here until Monday, Aug. 28, but it will begin a week earlier for the more than 60 Post school administrators and teachers when they begin attending in-service training workshops at 9 a.m. Monday, Aug. 21.

The workshop schedule will continue Monday through Wednesday, with the teachers meeting with the principals of their respective buildings on Thursday and Friday, according to Supt. Bill Shiver.

Also on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, while the workshops are in progress, an evaluation planning team of Dr. Carl Ashbaugh and Dr. Ben Harris from the University of Texas will be carrying on an evaluation program, the topic of which will be "Initiating a System-Wide Instructional Evaluation System."

Instructors for the three days of workshops are Dr. John Roueche and Dr. Cole Murphy of the University of Texas, with Mrs. Ann Burgin and Mrs. Flora de Hart, also of the university, as workshop assistants.

Dr. Roueche will open the series of workshops at 9 a.m. Monday with a lecture and discussion on "Individualized Learning in Public School Systems."

From 10:30 a.m. until noon, there will be a lecture and discussion by Dr. Murphy on "Development of Goals and Objectives: Tie-In Between Institutional Objectives and Instructional Objectives."

The Monday workshop will be concluded with a lecture and discussion by Dr. Murphy on "Criterion-Referenced Testing and Evaluation: Learning Activities; Media (See Teachers, Page 8)

Grand opening for Taylor Tractor in new home Aug. 19

The Taylor Tractor and Equipment Co. will hold its grand opening Saturday at its new location one mile north of the city limits on US-84 and at the same time will unveil John Deere's new Generation II tractors.

Taylor Tractor's new business home is a Delta all-steel building, 50 by 80 feet and two stories high.

Bill Green, Post manager for Taylor Tractor & Equipment invites everybody out for the "big day." There will be a free drawing for door prizes and refreshments for all.

Green points out that the Generation II tractors are the first all-new line of John Deere tractors in 10 years and should arouse considerable interest.

Post Library to honor Summer Reading Club

Members of the Summer Reading Club at the Post Public Library will be honored with a party Saturday at 10 a.m. in the library.

The club has 96 enrolled with 48 completing the required reading of 12 books to receive a certificate.

SP Housing Authority awaits federal funds

W. O. MacLeod of Levelland told Post Rotarians Tuesday noon that the new South Plains Regional Housing Authority, which includes Garza County, is "just waiting for federal money to start work."

MacLeod was introduced by Lewis Herron, Garza's representative on the regional housing authority board.

The speaker who is associated with the South Plains Community Action 14-county organization, explained that the philosophy of the new housing effort is that:

1. Every family who wants and is capable of owning their own home has a right to one.

2. The program is designed to improve housing in existing neighborhoods and is not designed to build new suburbs.

3. Single family dwellings will be built, not housing projects with apartment units.

MacLeod said the South Plains Regional Housing Authority is the second to be formed in Texas.

Turning to the problems faced in housing by the new regional authority, MacLeod said that a real housing shortage exists in all towns as well as cities;

That counseling services are needed to assist low income families in adjusting to a new life environment and to learn how to handle the family income and the upkeep of a home. HUD recognizes the need for this counseling, MacLeod said, and encourages it, but has no funds to pay for it.

City buys building for warehouse use

The Post city council voted at a special meeting last Thursday afternoon to purchase the Service Pipeline Company building at 200 E. 8th St. as an auxiliary city warehouse.

The building, which is being purchased by the city for $7,800 from Mrs. Earl Wrestler of Tahoka, is 43 by 80 feet and the lots on which it is situated measure 76 by 200 feet.

The building will be used mainly as a warehouse for the water and sewer departments, according to Pete Maddox, superintendent of public works.

Garza County budget given tentative 'okay'

County commissioners court tentatively approved Garza County's 1973 budget which includes few changes in spending and a 1-cent tax increase to pay for the share of the new law enforcement complex and county ent improvement fund is being increased from 1 cent to 16 cents next year to pay for the law enforcement building addition to courthouse square.

"We hope to pay off the warrants for the jail and law offices in two to three years," Dalby said.

Dalby also said the county's financial share for Post Public Library operations was doubled for 1973 from $750 to $1,500 to match the cash amount being given by the city for the library.

A public hearing on the budget has been set for 8:30 a.m. Sept. 7 in the county courtroom.

In another major action at its August meeting this week, the court voted to join other South Plains counties and become a member of the Southwest Economic Opportunities, Inc., a new governmental organization which will seek various federal grants for this area in the field of economic opportunities.

City Commissioner Donald Windham met with the court on the possibility of the county participating with the city in the proposed $3,000 summer youth program here for 1973.

James Kennedy who was to have presented the cost figures to the county did not appear at the meeting (See County, Page 8)

Draw Lakes promoted

Platt of Idalou has purchased 200 acres of land around Idalou Lake, on the north side of Post, and plans to build an intensive lot-selling campany to give Post folks the opportunity to own a lakefront property. Platt told The Dispatch that the permanent residents of the lake will be given priority in buying lots.

Platt is consulting with several firms on building lakefront homes and has a trailer on the lake and a trailer on the lake and a trailer on the lake.

The Dispatch he even has a trailer on the lake and a trailer on the lake and a trailer on the lake.

Let the state decide no-fault

Most of us—and that includes more newspaper editors than one might think—really don't know what the term "no-fault" means, as applied to auto insurance.

Not that it makes a whole lot of difference for the moment, since, as a federal project, no-fault auto insurance is dead for the session and the year—perhaps for longer. The Senate has socked it away in committee amid a great deal of hard-nosed lobbying.

Surveys have indicated that a majority of the public favor no-fault insurance because they think it will speed claims and reduce their insurance costs by cutting out lawsuits. Insurance authorities describe no-fault insurance simply as "a form of insurance in which all auto accident victims would be paid for their injuries, regardless of who caused the accident."

Life magazine recently published a "handy guide" to what no-fault insurance is all about. It describes how, in states where no-fault insurance is in force, victims are reimbursed for losses—medical bills, loss of income and the like—up to specified limits, above which the injured person is entitled to take his case to court.

Life magazine points out that the main objection to no-fault is that under a pure no-fault plan an accident victim gives up his right to sue for another person's negligence. To rectify this weakness, major segments of the insurance industry have developed proposals for modified no-fault insurance systems that preserve the principle of driver responsibility.

They recognize the need for corrections in the present system and urge the states to take action on no-fault insurance reform. They stress that the reforms can be made without sacrificing the other values—that it is not necessary to destroy driver responsibility for the injuries and property damage inflicted on other people in order to achieve the goal of assuring that all accident victims are paid promptly and without controversy for their injuries.

Irrespective of complexities of reforming insurance laws, both insured and insurers have a common interest in preserving the institution of private insurance coverage. The leadership of the insurance industry in seeking to lower costs, improve service and upgrade coverage is the best protection the public has against the usual pattern being followed of a reform movement becoming a crusade for a government take-over, in this case, of the vital function of providing auto insurance protection.

Auto insurance is perhaps the ideal example of an economic problem so painful that the first reports of a better alternative are received like news of a medical miracle. But no-fault is still in the guinea-pig stage, and it's well to let the states be the laboratory. They can test the substance of the pros and cons that now make no-fault so controversial in a way blanket federal legislation never can.—CD

Another Stampede Rodeo under way

The Post Stampede Rodeo, now under way out at one of the biggest little rodeo arenas in the west, once again finds itself threatened by inclement weather—but the chances are good that it will "pull through," just as it has in years past.

This is the 32nd year for the Post rodeo and a book could be written on its history. The rodeo has been held through good years and bad, but it has never failed to attract some of the best amateur rodeo talent from throughout the Southwest and some of the largest crowds of any rodeo its size held anywhere.

The Post Stampede Rodeo operates as a corporation and its board of directors has included at one time or another just about every man in the Post area who has been interested enough in rodeos to want to serve.

Post Stampede, Inc., will be putting on another good show out at the rodeo arena tonight, tomorrow night and Saturday night. The rodeo's slogan started out as, "The Fastest Show in the West," and it hasn't slowed down any. Go out and see for yourself.—CD

The constant threat of sky crime

It's human nature to want to "eat your cake and have it, too," and that's pretty well pointed out in Cong. Omar Burleson's latest "As It Looks From Here" column that he sends The Dispatch every week.

The congressman says that everyone wants the government and the airlines to halt the plane hijackings—but not to inconvenience the passengers in doing so.

The biggest problem, Congressman Burleson says, is how to exercise the greatest possible precaution against hijackings and at the same time avoid delay and inconvenience.

Human frailties being what they are, airlines will receive all sorts of complaints by their passengers if they are greatly inconvenienced.

The Federal Aviation Administration is pressuring the airlines to do more to stop the air crimes. One approach is to give passengers the choice of either surrendering all baggage or requiring a search of anything carried on a plane.

It appears that passengers, airlines and the government may eventually be left with the worst of two choices: Stricter and more time-consuming inspection of passengers and baggage or face the constant threat of sky crime.—CD

What our contemporaries are saying

An optimist is any person who thinks his six-year-old nephew will flip with delight over the gift of a 15-cent box of animal crackers.—The Perryton Herald.

In spite of McGovern's strong leftist views, we have heard quite a few in Armstrong County supporting him. I would say he will have over 300 strong supporters and several more hundreds who are loyal to the Democratic party name. There also will be a large number of Democrats splitting their ballot in November and voting for Nixon. This country, more often, votes for the man instead of the party.—The Claude News.

The right to be heard is a part of our heritage, but the rules of society do not grant a special franchise to anyone to be heard continuously, loudly or contemptuously. The rights of silence ask for certain considerations.—The Matador Tribune.

CHRISTIANITY AND POLITICS

Many are saying Jesus was a revolutionary. The word today is "revolution" and the revolutionaries are trying to convert Jesus to their cause. But was Jesus a revolutionary? This is a very basic question.

In Jesus' time the Zealots were the Jewish Party for guerrilla warfare. They wanted to bring the "kingdom of God" in by driving the "legions of Rome" out. Religion and politics to them were the same.

Jesus certainly did have some political interest. He called Herod a "fox." He also denounced religious and political leaders who hurt people (Matt. 23, Luke 22:25). Probably several of the apostles were Zealots (one so named). There were weapons when Jesus was arrested and He did predict the coming of a new Kingdom (Matt. 16:18-20). Upon this evidence many appoint Jesus as their model for violence today.

This is tragic. Jesus was not a bread king. He told Peter to "scabbard the sword." He said, "love your enemies and be peacemakers." Jesus accepted publicans (tax collectors) in his apostleship too! He refused to endorse any political order and would not inspire any violent overthrow.

Jesus was a peaceful revolutionary. He went where the action was and showed people a better way to live through love and obedience to God. He did not run to a wilderness and hide from the world. He went downtown to Jerusalem and its cross. Jesus was not the "radical" in the hippie sense of the word. He was not bizarre in his dress and disrespectful of those in authority. He kept the law and taught others to do so. He loved both God and man.

SYD B. WYATT
Box 186
Post, Texas

THIS RAIN is going to have to stop if we expect to get the 32nd annual Post Stampede Rodeo off the ground, beginning today. But, then, the rain usually does stop in time for us to have the rodeo. There has been a time or two, however, when we had to finish up a day late because of a muddy arena.

The man up the street says every time the government shifts a little to the left, the decimal point in taxes and national debt shifts to the right.

I KNOW THERE have been a hundred or more Post people who have, at one time or another, attended the musical drama, "Texas," in Palo Duro Canyon, but I don't know how many of them, if any, have lost anything while there. There have been a lot of things lost and found during the musical's run, according to Mrs. Ples Harper of Canyon, public relations director.

Each evening, Mrs. Harper says, after the last long chords have soared, and the audience starts down the hill of the Pioneer Amphitheatre toward the concession building, the patio, and the parking lot, they carry with them the story of the early west, and the dancing and singing and drama they have seen, and the great lights illuminating the 600-foot bluff they have been facing, and the memory of the six horsemen, racing around the road behind the stage, bearing the six flags which have flown over Texas.

BUT, ADDS Mrs. Harper, there are some things certain members of the audience forget to carry down the hill with them.

The "Lost and Found" department of the "Texas" production has numerous articles. There are more pillows than anything else; then come head scarves, jackets and sweaters of all kinds, towels (why do people need towels at "Texas"? They don't have many rainy nights), purses, billfolds, car keys, jewelry single earrings, pins and watches), glasses and glass cases, including all kinds—sun, bifocals, trifocals—ID cards, check books, shoes and children's sandals, hats, paper books, coloring books and car games.

AND, IN ADDITION, one bra and one slip came in, some antique binoculars, a pheasant hat band, a stunning red blazer and a handsome knit coat.

After watching the hospitality crew hunt 15 minutes for a purse, one beguiling person suddenly located it in a dark corner where she had hidden it while drinking a glass of tea, and she exclaimed, "Little old ladies are funny, but they sure do get by with a lot."

TRYING TO TRACE owners, and locate lost items, takes a good deal of time, Mrs. Harper says. One missing purse had been taken to the Park Ranger at the top of the hill and turned in there. The distraught owner was relieved when the ranger managed to fight his way against the outgoing traffic and drive down the hill to bring it to her.

Another woman was frantically hunting for her purse on a rainy night when a car returned to the theatre with it. When the rain started, the man of the party had grabbed a purse from the floor near his daughter's chair. After part of the trip home, he asked and found that he had walked off with the purse of a stranger, so he returned. (It has rained out only nine "Texas" performances in seven years, but each downpour brings its own stories.)

THE USHERS found one purse with a name and Corpus Christi address. After many telephone calls to motels, the owner was located and answered the telephone sleepily. After the inquiry, she was very indignant about being awakened, saying she had her purse. Only after considerable urging did she look around and learned, to her surprise, that her purse was missing.

Recently a patron with a dress of nubby fabric, discovered a pair of bifocals hanging from her skirt, and their owner hasn't asked for them yet.

THE LOST AND found story which will always be remembered, however, is the one of the teeth which were lost. A young lady came to inquire, saying that her mother had put the teeth into a paper sack after eating, and had left the sack about two weeks previously. She wanted to know whether they had been found and, if not, whether the trash were located where it could be searched. Unfortunately, there was no way to trace it.

WHEN I WAS introduced to Jan Sanders, wife of Barefoot Sanders, at the reception last Saturday in the home of Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Wilson, I didn't look down at her feet to see if she had on shoes, but I would have if it had been her husband.

I did ask Mrs. Sanders about her husband's first name, inquiring if it was a nickname. She assured me that her husband's given name has nothing to do with him liking to go barefoot or being born that way. She said that though many people guess that Barefoot's an Indian name, Barefoot himself has traced it to its Anglo-Saxon origin.

SINCE I, TOO, am a tracer of names, I looked up the surname Barefoot in a dictionary of English and Welsh family names after I got home and found that it was first given to people who habitually went barefoot, such as pilgrims, friars, etc. The name originally appeared as "Barfoot," which is still the spelling some people of the name use, and a Richard Barfoot was listed on the feudal rolls in Northamptonshire, England, about 1150 A. Amendment would up pay of state solons

EDITOR'S NOTE: Between now and the general election in November, the Dispatch will run a series of articles setting out the main issues in the "pros" and "cons" of the proposed constitutional amendments that will appear on the November ballot.

AMENDMENT No. 1—HJR No. 38 proposed amendment to Article 11, Section 24, of the constitution, which increases the annual salaries of the Texas solons from $4,800 to $5,400, and makes in mileage allowances.

Background to the proposed amendment follows:

The early days of Texas, when the state was a frontier, the legislature was permitted to set rates of compensation that would increase in salary as the state grew. The effect during the session was the increase was voted. However, the heavy expenditures for reconstruction Government and the framers of the Constitution of 1876 to insert a provision per diem to $6; further, the long sessions a provision was inserted to drop compensation to $2 a day after the first session. The reduction after 60 days resulted in adjournment of the legislature and, consequently, a need for frequent special sessions.

To discourage this practice, and also to encourage those with better qualifications to seek office, a constitutional amendment was adopted in 1930 which set per diem at $10 for each of the first 120 days of a session. Pay after the 120-day period was reduced to $5 a day for the remainder of the session.

In 1954 Article 111, Section 24, was again amended to raise per diem to $25, to be paid only during the first 120 days of the regular session, and for the 30 days of any called session.

Tommy Cotney served his brother as best man. Ushers were Mason McClellan, brother of the bride, and Jay Scott Stone of San Antonio, nephew of the bride. Miss Beth Peel sang "All of My Life," accompanied at the piano by Miss Nancy Norman.

A reception followed the ceremony in the home of the bride's parents.

Mrs. Mason McClellan and Miss Beth Peel served the three-tiered wedding cake from a table laid with a white cloth and centered with a candelabra with purple and white candles and flowers. Milk glass appointments were used.

Members of the house party were Meses Carl Fluit, Quannah Maxey, Willie Mason and Ronnie Graves.

The bride is a 1970 graduate of Post High School and attended McMurry College. The bridegroom is a graduate of Follett High School and is a senior student at McMurry. The couple will live in Abilene where the bridegroom is employed by a television station and will continue his studies.

Out-of-town guests were from Follett, Canyon, Plainview, Andrews, Abilene and San Antonio.

Mrs. Riley Miller and Mrs. Billy Blacklock served finger sandwiches, white and yellow cake squares decorated with miniature paper umbrellas and punch from a table covered with white net cloth over yellow satin and scalloped with yellow satin ribbon, centered with an arrangement of white and yellow carnations. The napkins were yellow and lettered "Jim and Becky." Milk glass appointments were used.

Special guests were Gordon Bright, father of the bride-elect, and Mrs. Bright, brother of the bride-elect, Mrs. William A. Carnes, Miss D'Ann and Jean Carnes, sisters of the future bridegroom, all of Slaton.

Post visited by wife of Senate candidate

Vivacious Jan Sanders, wife of Barefoot Sanders, Democratic nominee for the U. S. Senate, came to Post last Saturday afternoon pushing her husband's state wide campaign.

At an hour and a half reception in the home of Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Wilson, Mrs. Sanders passed out brochures and the Sanders campaign treat—barefoot-shaped cookies baked by the candidate's mother.

"Texans want a senator who will listen, a man who cares and a man who will take his job seriously enough to be present when important laws are voted on in the Senate,"

Mrs. Sanders said. "Our Republican senator John Tower has one of the worst attendance records in the Senate."

As Mrs. Sanders has traveled over Texas she has found that voters are interested in a candidate's family—it gives them a view of what kind of man they are voting for. Jan and Barefoot have four children—all involved in the campaign effort. The two oldest daughters, Janet, 19, and Martha, 18, have traveled extensively over the state.

"Barefoot is an honest, easy-to-approach man," his wife said at the reception here. "He is serious about wanting to serve Texas in a Texas way—working fulltime at the job and being a spokesman for the Texas point of view in Washington."

"Campaigning is a two-way conversation," she said. "Because of our travel, Barefoot has a better insight into the needs of Texas and what concerns the voters. We have found that Texans are looking for new and independent leadership—leadership which will be attentive to Texans and listen to the problems of Texans."

Mrs. Sanders was accompanied to Post by Sheila Weaver and Blair Cherry, both of Lubbock.

CAMPAIGNS HERE FOR HUSBAND

Jan Sanders (second from left) has just placed a Barefoot Sanders sticker on the dress of Mrs. Boone Evans at a reception here Saturday in the Dr. W. C. Wilson home for Mrs. Sanders, whose husband is the Democratic candidate for the U. S. Senate. Soggy Sunday—

Land out of the hilltop courthouse square.

Fifteen to 20 Snyder business suffered heavy damage, including the Snyder Daily News which had water over its new offset press.

The National Guard was called out in Snyder by Gov. Preston Smith to help with rescue operations of persons stranded by high water, including a man with two broken legs and two trapped up a telephone pole for four hours by flood waters.

Mrs. Cora Barrington Tate, 69, of Muleshoe, was drowned when the car in which she was riding was swept into 15 feet of water in a normally dry creek, 13 miles north of Snyder on State Hwy. 208.

Mrs. Lois Barrington, 69, of Lubbock, driver of the car, managed to climb out a window of the sinking automobile and was rescued.

Early Sunday afternoon, a passenger bus was swept from US-84 about 12 miles northwest of Snyder en route through Post, but no injuries were reported from the accident.

Highway US-84 at Snyder was closed for several hours as flash floods blocked the highway from overflowing creek beds normally dry.

The Dispatch includes the coverage of the Snyder flash flood especially for its many out-of-state readers who otherwise would not learn of the Snyder flood from the national news reports.

is creating more interest than it first appeared it would, and there are expected to be from three to four teams competing each night, Kemp said. Up to yesterday afternoon, teams entered included radio station KPOS, Wacker's and the First National Bank.

Each team in the "pin the bloomers" contest will consist of one man and two women or one woman and two men. The event has proved especially popular at collegiate rodeos, the Stampede secretary said.

Another new event this year is the Garza County calf roping, open only to residents of Garza County. There had been 15 entries up to Wednesday afternoon. This contest will be held following Thursday night's regular show, with the four finalists roping for the championship at Saturday night's show.

The always-popular wild mare races will also be held each night of the rodeo, Kemp said.

Western dances will be held each night on the arenas enlarged dance slab with music by Fernie Reed and the Westernaires, featuring Herb Propps on the trumpet.

Propps also will be the rodeo announcer.

The parade, scheduled for 5:30 p.m. today, is to follow its usual route from the courthouse east on Main Street to just this side of the railroad tracks, then back up Main.

The floats in the parade will be competing for $200 in cash prizes being offered by the Post Chamber of Commerce. First, second and third place trophies will go to the winning riding groups.

Another new parade unit will be "The Postettes", a group of young twirlers who are pupils of Miss Dejuana Hays. This group will be appearing together in public for the first time.

Wyvonne Kennedy, Chamber secretary, said there also will be a number of other units in the parade, including a pair of dune buggies.

The court also approved a publication notice to bidders for the law enforcement complex which will be published in The Dispatch as soon as the architect is ready with the plans.

PCG election to be held Monday

Garza County cotton producers and agribusinessmen will elect a producer director to Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. at an 8 p.m. meeting Monday, Aug. 21, in the community room here.

Announcement of the election comes from Wayne Carpenter of Post, current Garza County producer director to the 25-county commodity organization, and Lewis Herron, also of Post, businessman director. Each of the counties in PCG territory has two directors, one a businessman, usually a cotton grower as well, and the other a cotton producer. They serve two-year terms, with businessmen being elected on odd years and producers on even years. Each is eligible for re-election every second year.

Carpenter and Herron said all interested parties are urged to attend, and that both farmers and businessmen are eligible to vote in the election.

In addition to the election, Carpenter said a member or members of the PCG staff will be on hand "to bring us up to date on cotton activities and to answer any questions concerning the organization's objectives." He added: "Directors to PCG are the men who determine the organization's policies and actions on legislation, research, promotion, finances and other matters so vital to the cotton economy of Garza County and all cotton people should make every effort to be on hand for this election."

Benefit—

and offered for sale here.

The catalog doesn't have an editor named, but most of the work was done by David and Ruth Ann Newby with very generous assists from Jim and Mary Prather.

At a meeting of the combined benefit roping and art exhibit committee Tuesday night in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Giles C. McCrary, a number of decisions were made concerning the rapidly approaching weekend benefit.

The dance, which is held on Saturday night, has been shifted from the community room here to the Post Stampede outdoor dance slab because the community room was too small for the initial dance crowd last year.

Admission price for the dance will remain at $4 per person.

Security guards will be hired for the art exhibit, the joint committees decided to guard the art both during opening and closed hours.

It was announced that the ranch benefit also will receive considerable billboard advertising on US-84 between Snyder and Post and Post and Lubbock as well as other billboard locations in this area.

A Lubbock billboard firm has offered free use of the billboards and very low cost for the printing of the billboard signs, which will contain a drawing by Joe Taylor of Jim Prather and his roping horse, "Old Pete."

Posters for the steer roping and art exhibit, also drawn by Taylor, have been printed and will be going up soon around the southwest at art galleries, livestock commission companies, etc.

with the heavenly onslaught.

When we cautiously peeked out into the downpour Sunday morning, the yard was a sheet of water. Brick by brick it was beginning to creep across the roofed patio floor toward the sliding door of the family room.

We watched in fascination for some 15 minutes. It couldn't keep raining like that. But it did. Finally the last brick was crossed and only another two-inch rise would bring it into the house.

This time, our disposal operation was a bit more refined, and not quite so exhaustive. We simply stood in the family room door with a pan and a pitcher. We panned the pitcher full of water and dumped it into the kitchen sink four feet away. At least that beat getting soaked and arching the water over the fence.

We didn't think the rain could keep up long. But it could. Silently, except for rather continuous puffing, we panned water into the pitcher and into the sink for 75 minutes without stopping.

We did manage to keep even with the deluge.

Finally, it let up and we collapsed soaking wet with sweat. In a mere 15 minutes the side yard drained clear, although during this period continued to rain, but at a more normal West Texas gait.

Come to think of it, we may not get the leak in that front air conditioner well fixed after all. If the drip hadn't awakened us in the first place at 4:10 a.m., we might have been mopping out the family room and trying to dry furniture and carpet for a whole day or two.

Sometimes a loud leak is a very good thing to have.

Rites pending for former resident

Damon "Shorty" Shelton, 62, of Continental Divide, N. M., formerly of Post, died of an apparent heart attack Tuesday at Clayton, N. M., where he was employed on a road construction job.

Funeral services were pending this morning at Hudman Funeral Home.

Shelton and his wife, Ann, had lived in Post at two different times. The last time they operated the old Algeria Hotel and coffee shop.

Besides his wife of the home, Shelton is survived by a daughter, who also lives in New Mexico, and three grandchildren.

erable interest among farmers. Taylor Tractor Equipment purchased the John Deere business here of A. C. Cash Jan. 3 of this year. The firm under Wayland Taylor of O'Donnell and Wayland Taylor Jr. of Taboka operates other tractor centers for John Deere at O'Donnell and Taboka.

The Post operation has a six-man payroll. Besides Green, others include Phil Guinn parts manager, Raymond Perdue, service manager, Troy Nelson, service, and Murphy Lee and Wade Atkinson, warehouse.

Platt hopes to build good-sized homes fronting an air strip in the area so the "man of the house" can fly to work in the city and back home at night. Platt said private plane hangars will be built with the house much like an attached garage.

Platt launched the opening of his "lot sale" advertising campaign on page 8 of today's Dispatch.

Utilization."

The Tuesday and Wednesday workshop sessions will be continuations of Monday's, but will also include "Preparation of Individualized Instruction Packages," under the direction of Mrs. deHart, reviews of participants' work, and summations.

This week, all three schools—high, junior high and elementary—are registering new students who will be going to school here for the first time this year, and the registration of these students will continue through next week.

Jack Alexander, principal of the elementary school, asks that those with children who will be attending the Post Elementary School (kindergarten through fifth grade) for the first time this fall, come by the office of the primary school building and register them before school starts on Aug. 28.

Principal Alexander said all kindergartners and first grade students will need a birth certificate and all students will need a medical record form.

Stephen Myers winner steer riding contest

Stephen Myers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Myers, won first place in steer riding, 10-12 age group, at the Little Britches Rodeo, held recently in Seagraves.

Also, at a rodeo in Guthrie, Stephen won sixth in steer roping in the 12-16 age division.

Evaluation —

bership — "the Monday morning quarterbacks." Not all "on the spot" criticisms are undeserving, but for the most part that type of evaluation is as significant as the amount of time that it takes to state it. The statement that "Johnny can't read," is valuable criticism, though, if it results in finding out why Johnny cannot read. Because a reading deficiency can be caused by literally a hundred different things, it is unscientific to blame the entire program and staff without knowing the cause of the problem.

We became acutely aware that we did not have enough systematic feedback from the instructional program to make either strategic (long range) or tactical (short-range) plans for continuous growth. It is to be noted that we were not concerned with comparing Post schools with any other school system. We were concerned with the understanding of our programs and what we must do to strengthen them. We were faced with the decision of whether we wanted a "one package" evaluation of a year's duration or whether we wanted our staff to be trained to specifically provide evaluative information annually which could be assessed by competent university professors on a one-day annual visit. We chose the latter approach because it would be economically more feasible.

For several consecutive years, Dr. W. E. Barron recommended to the board that a comprehensive evaluative study be undertaken in Post. Dr. Ben M. Harris was alerted to the possible need for his services several years ago. Prior to the actual writing of the evaluation program, we felt it necessary for Dr. Harris and his colleagues to make "on the job" observations in order to confirm their opinions

Since a teaching program was obviously needed, we began to begin the change as soon as possible; otherwise, the school would spend three years of money developing a highly sophisticated evaluating system and then have to begin the process all over again. Therefore, a proposal was lined to Dr. Harris for the improvement of the teaching process that would run concurrently with the evaluation program. He was asked to approve or reject the proposal and assume the responsibility for it. Dr. Harris agreed and was responsible.

A special focus of attention in the early stages of the evaluation project will be on determining the learning problems created by the instructional program in culturally deprived child. The evaluation program will focus on detail on reading during first year. Six major areas of learning will be examined: reading comprehension, reading integration, response, oral and aural word recognition and reading chanciness. These are further broken down into over a hundred areas.

An evaluation planning committee composed of eight to twelve professional staff members and lay person, has been organized. The first meeting of this committee will be held Monday and Tuesday, Aug. 21-22.

In summary, some of the Post schools will be trained college professors on how to evaluate the Post schools system provide systematic feedback to the board of trustees in conjunction with program data to run the school system

Good 'peach year,' according to samples brought to Dispatch

This has been a good year for peaches in Post.

Clovis Hudman brought two big peaches to The Dispatch office, along with a tape measure, to show that one was 10 1/2 inches in circumference and the other 9 1/2 inches.

A day or so later, E. A. King of 408 West 4th St. brought in four peaches that looked as large as Hudman's, although no tape measure was immediately available, and the peaches Mr. King left at the office had "disappeared" before one could be found.

It all might have started with an item in The Dispatch editor's column, "Thursday to Thursday," last week about his wife's "big" peach crop.

FIVE ATTEND FROM HERE

Post Antelopes hear Carlen at FCA meet

FORT COLLINS, Colo. — Jim Carlen has been called "The Deacon" and cartoonized with a halo, but the Texas Tech head football mentor ignores it and bluntly maintains that what coaches and athletes and American youth in general need is the leadership of Jesus Christ for a complete, fulfilled life.

Carlen was here last week to address the Fellowship of Christian Athletes Conference of over 900 athletes and coaches, among whom were: Randy Kennedy, Roger Pace, Mark Bevers, Rodney Compton and Danny Lee of the Post Antelope football squad.

"We don't make a big issue of Christianity, of course," Carlen stated. "I never force Christianity on my players or anyone else. I wouldn't call myself pious but I wouldn't be a Christian if I didn't try to live my faith and try to share it through my life and counseling. I try to show my players the really important thing in life by living my Christianity. If I say a boy shouldn't drink, smoke or use drugs and then do it myself, it makes a big difference in my effectiveness."

"Also, I think players and all young people are feeling a vacuum in their lives; they don't feel fulfilled. They're looking for an answer. We are the most educated people in history; so we've gone the book route. We are the most successful nation financially — so much so that we call it poverty when we give a man $350 a month. We have more big cars, more colored television sets and more of everything going for us, and we still haven't made it. So what's the next step? Young people are trying drugs and it's still not giving them that sense of having a fulfilled life. There still is that vacuum."

"I happen to believe that Christ can fill that vacuum, that hunt for contentment and satisfaction. He should be No. 1 in our lives. Many may not agree with me, but still the name of Christ keeps popping up among young people and they keep clinging to it as the answer."

Idalou coach takes Spur principal job

Jack Fry, who has been serving as head coach and athletic director at Idalou High School, has accepted the position of principal of Spur High School, replacing Dean King, who resigned to become superintendent at Trent.

Fry coached and taught at Sonora, Henderson, Lubbock High School and Lubbock Cooper before going to Idalou.

Graveside rites held here for Valdez baby

Graveside services for Guadalupe Valdez Jr., 11, week-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Guadalupe Valdez Jr. of Route 2, Post, were held Monday at Terrace Cemetery here, with the Rev. Emilio Abeyta of Slaton officiating. Burial was under the direction of Mason Funeral Home.

The child was born Aug. 6 at Slaton and died there Sunday, Aug. 13.

Besides his parents, he is survived by a sister, Gloria, and a brother, Larry Valdez, both of the home.

Some people, Carlen revealed, criticize an open show of faith such as before-game prayers. "But when you're in a situation where you have to visit the family of a player who has been killed in an auto accident and they ask you to pray with them, then practicing Christianity isn't offensive at all."

"I think that a coach has to meet many crises in the young lives of his players. That is, if a coach is interested in young people. Now many people may be a lot smarter than I am because they avoid all conflicts with a young man, but I think if I'm not there to help him with his problems, then I'm really saying to him that it's fine just as long as we just talk about it, but when we get down to his little problem or something that might be controversial, let me out. I can't stand such an attitude. That's the reason my coaches are so close to my players."

The Texas Tech team has a devotional hour on the day of each game and a prayer before each game and after. "The players themselves asked for it," Carlen said. "We allotted the time and the coaches join in. Sunday mornings we have a loosening-up practice and tend to injuries, but we always see to it we are finished in plenty of time for them to attend church. We encourage them to do so."

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Windham and children of Tahoka moved Saturday to Lorenzo where he has accepted a position as first assistant football coach.

Windham, a 1959 graduate of Post High School where he lettered three years in football, had been an assistant coach at Tahoka for two years. Mrs. Windham is the former Melanie Thompson, also a Post High School graduate.

Before entering the coaching ranks two years ago, Windham was employed by the Railroad Commission.

Lorenzo, his new place of employment, is in District 4A.

The Tahoka Bulldogs, who are in District 5AA along with Post and five other schools, are starting the 1972-73 school year with four new coaches, according to Head Coach A. J. Viertel.

The new Tahoka coaches are Ray Findley, offensive line coach and defensive end and linebacker coach, from Childress; Phil McCannely, backfield coach and defensive secondary coach, who has just completed a tour of military duty in Germany; Charles Harrington, girls' basketball coach and freshman football coach, from Amarillo; and Tom Miller, junior high coach, a graduate of Reagan County High School and Angelo State College.

The other Tahoka coach besides Viertel is Cecil Robinson, boys' basketball mentor and junior varsity grid coach.

Crops looking great up around Southland

By TOMMIE WILKE

"Raindrops keep falling on my head!" They fall and they fall and they fall and some of the farmers in the community are wishing for some dry and sunny weather. Right here in Southland we haven't had too much, but Walter Stolle says he has had 21 inches of rain since the 12th day of May. How about that? The rains have been spotted but they have really fallen nice here at Southland. Crops are sure looking great.

Sorry to report that Mrs. G. D.

THE WINNER

Susie Howard of Cuero was crowned Miss Texas Rural Electrification in San Antonio during the 32nd annual meeting of Texas Electric Cooperatives, Inc. Miss Howard is 20, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Howard and is a college junior. New Miss Texas Rural Electrification will participate in numerous activities during the next 12 months representing the 80 electric cooperatives in the state.

Ellis has been in Mercy Hospital for the past week. By the time you receive this news, she may be out, because I don't know when she might be coming home. But we are hoping it will be real soon. Mr. Ellis is staying with his son, Don.

Otto Klaus's company this past week was his sister, Mrs. Bertha Schroeder and her son and family. Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Schroeder from Elgin, Tex. They also visited with Mr. and Mrs. Werner Klaus at Wilson and spent last Friday night with them.

Say — if you didn't attend the Southland School Reunion this past Saturday, you really missed something great. The Slaton Club House was chocked full of Southland Exes and their families. Two hundred and thirty persons registered with at least 30 or 40 that didn't register. Ronnie Dunn, president, said this was the best turnout we have ever had. Mrs. Buford Jones of Ruidoso was Southland's earliest student to attend the reunion. She started in 1915 with T. H. Basinger close behind her in 1916.

Otis Neill of Slaton signed a contract to teach with the Southland School 50 years ago on Aug. 12 — which was a very interesting item to all of us. Bobby Fields, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tim Fields and former Southland resident, was the guest speaker. He gave a very interesting talk. He is a Baptist minister.

Mrs. Joan Trimble Smith was elected queen.

New officers elected were Johnny Haire, president; Donald Basinger, vice president; secret a treasurer, Gloss Davies and Tommie Wilke.

Joan Gindorf from New York came to teach with the Southland School 50 years ago on Aug. 12 — which was a very interesting item to all of us. Bobby Fields, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tim Fields and former Southland resident, was the guest speaker. He gave a very interesting talk. He is a Baptist minister.

CYCLING SCENES

by Thompson

THE FIRST motorcycle hill-climbing contest held in America was won by Glenn Hammond Curtiss in 1903. The race created quite a sensation because few people at that time thought motorcycles were powerful enough to negotiate steep hills.

THE FIRST internationally sanctioned motorcycle road race to be held at California's Laguna Seca Raceway will take place July 21-23, 1972. Sponsored by the people who make Kawasaki motorcycles, the historic contest will feature professional racers from all over the world who will flash through the 1.9 mile circuit at more than 130 miles an hour.

AMERICAN FIRSTS

THE FIRST practical motorcycle built in the United States was manufactured in Buffalo, N.Y., in 1900. It was really little more than an ordinary bicycle fitted with a one-cylinder engine, a flat belt and a rear wheel pulley.

Ellis, Bell attend soil workshop

Sam Ellis of Southland, Garza County Soil and Water Conservation District director, and J. R. Bell of the Soil Conservation Service in Post, attended a conservation education workshop last Thursday at the South Plains Electric Co-op in Lubbock.

Those attending the workshop were educators from some of the public schools in the area, professional conservationists and representatives of the education department at Texas Tech.

The purpose of the workshop was to obtain a better understanding of conservation education and also to stress its importance in youth education today. The use of outdoor classrooms in the educational program was the main topic.

Speakers included John Arnn, state resource conservationist of the SCS, who spoke on the SCS role in conservation education, and Mr. Ellis, who spoke on soil and water conservation districts and conservation education.

ATTEND CAR SHOWING

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lucas returned last Thursday afternoon from Denver, Colo., where they attended a regional showing of the new 1973 Oldsmobiles. They also visited Mrs. Lucas' sisters and families in Farmington, N.M., and friends in Denver. They had left Post the previous Friday.

Texas produces more oil, natural gas, cattle and cotton than any other state.

It's the Law . . .

DRAG STRIPS

To hot rodders, the opening of a new drag strip is a cause for jubilation. But to residents of the neighborhood, the occasion may be less joyful. Do they have legal grounds for complaint?

Unless banned by local statute, a drag strip (or other kind of race track) is a perfectly lawful activity. It may become unlawful, however, because of the way it is run. That is, it may amount to a "nuisance" — subject to abatement by court action.

The noise alone may be offensive enough to justify a stop order. Take this case:

Residents living near a suburban drag strip found the noise so unbearable that they had to keep their windows shut. Residents one mile away had to keep their television turned on high. Residents three miles away said the noise ("like a chain saw") could plainly be heard.

Impressed by these tales of woe, a court ordered the track closed down.

Even if the noise itself isn't too bad, other factors may tilt the scales against the track operators. In one case, in issuing an injunction, the court stressed that the smell of burning fuel. In another case, the court called attention to the glare of lights, powerful enough to keep the neighbors awake at night. Said the indignant judge:

"To dangle restless sleep before an exhausted mortal and never allow him to taste of its refreshing juices constitutes one of the most torturous experiences of mankind."

Still, if these assorted annoyances are kept within reasonable limits the mere fact that the track brings some commotion into the neighborhood may be overlooked.

The main objections to a new midget race track were (1) that traffic in the neighborhood had increased, and (2) that parking spaces had become harder to find. But this time the court denied an injunction, saying that traffic and parking were problems for the city, not for the operators of the track.

The judge said the right to use the public streets belongs to all members of the public — including racing fans.

CHILDREN'S SPENDING

"But Mommy, why can't I have this toy? I have three pennies and a nickel to pay for it." Perhaps you've heard this naive plea from your youngster. Television, radio, and newspapers keep the young under constant pressure to buy, buy, buy. It is consequently essential that a child learns the wise use of money from his earliest years.

Money is like any other tool, using it intelligently comes only from direct experience. Even before children reach school age, they have many occasions to use money — for toys, gifts, snacks. It's a good idea to take your pre-schooler along on shopping trips and allow him to make a small purchase of his own. Let him give the money to the salesperson. It's also useful to explain the relative value of different coins.

During the years of 6 through 12, a child should be guided to plan his spending and set short-term goals for savings. At this age, your child's attitudes toward money and how it should be spent are influenced greatly by his friends. He may also go through phases, such as penny-pinching one month and splurging the next.

For teens, it seems everywhere they turn requires money. Social life and school life are well mixed-up with the dollar sign. Give your teen greater responsibility in planning for his personal needs and wants, as well as allowing him to participate in family financial discussions. You can help him understand the use of cash and credit by setting up a spending plan to meet future goals.

A weekly allowance is a good idea and it's never too early to start. Let your child be responsible for as many routine expenses as he can handle — lunches, school supplies, grooming aids, snacks. It's important for him to make mistakes early, so let him spend the money as he wishes. Jobs around the house, such as washing the dishes or taking out the garbage, should not be paid for. They are part of the family responsibility. The allowance is not a wage, but a device to teach your child how to manage his money. Money should be emotion-free and not influenced by other factors. It is a symbol of barter and not a sign of approval or punishment.

Set a good example and re-examine your own money habits. Your children will be smart consumers tomorrow if you teach them proper money management today. When your child leaves home, he should know how to deal with dollars and sense. If he's ready or not depends largely on you.

A SUMMER PARABLE

By Bernard S. Ramsey

"It came to pass that as the time of summer drew nigh a certain church member lifted up his eyes unto the hills and said: 'Lo, the hot days do come, and my work lieth heavy upon me. Come, my family, and let us depart together, and unto the mountain streams where the fishes do bite and the cool breezes refresh and the glorious scenes do call for the shutter of our camera to be opened.'"

"Thou speakest wisdom," straightway said the wife. "Yet three, nay, even four things we must do ere we go."

"Three things I perceive, but a fourth," saith he. "That we ask our good neighbor to minister unto our flowers, that we arrange for our mail to be forwarded whence we are, and that the delivery of the daily papers be temporarily suspended. But a fourth eludeth my mind."

"The fourth is like unto the others, but greater than all," said his spouse. "Even this, that thou shalt dig into thy purse, and giveth unto the Lord in proportion to the abundant manner in which he has blessed us, and this we must surely do ere we depart, in order that the good name of the church may be preserved; that the heart of the treasurer may be glad, and that it may go well with thee. For verily, I say unto thee, thou hast more money in thy jeans than thou wilt when thou returnest."

"And the husband replied: 'Verily, though art wise and blessed among women!' And it came to pass that he did give in advance, for the days they would be gone, lest the money in his jeans be gone ere they returneth."

And the treasurer rejoiced greatly, saying: "Of a truth I perceive—there are those who care and are concerned for the good and welfare of the church and the work of the Lord, and are aware the work and worship of Almighty God, goes on through Jesus Christ their Lord, whether or not they are present . . . and it was so."

What Does Your Credit Bureau Do?

The credit bureau provides necessary information to credit granters to show how well a person has earned the privilege of credit.

Most people pay their bills as agreed and the credit bureau helps to speed the granting of credit for them. Some consumers are saved from over - obligating themselves and their families because the credit bureau maintains records that show a prospective credit grantor that the person has a recurring record of financial instability. Most credit granters will draw the conclusion that such a record would indicate further indebtedness to be unwise.

Thus the credit bureau can furnish the information that may keep a person from compounding his financial problems.

Through all these services the credit bureau serves the community and makes it possible for consumers and credit granters to deal with one another in an atmosphere of mutual trust and goodwill.

— gone, in a twinkling it seems.

One thing that has come to an end is the Summer Reading Club.
This activity which has been so popular here the past five years was successful again. Close to 100 children enrolled, and at most half of them have completed their 12 books for a reading certificate.
Many of them read far more than 12, of course.

This Saturday, between 35 and 50 children will be invited to come down to the library at 10 in the morning and receive their reading certificates. They will also be refreshments, thanks to Mrs. Margie Wilson, who will be hostess for this party.

This has been one of the best summer reading clubs we've ever had. Congratulations to all of our summer readers!

Have you been intrigued by the occult? Do you believe in Flying Saucers? Do you call KPOS each morning and ask them to read your horoscope for the day? Or are you interested in taking up witchcraft as a hobby?

If your answer is "yes" to one or more of the above questions, you are a bona fide member of "Occult America" — which also happens to be the title of a very entertaining new book by John Godwin.

Witchcraft — in case you didn't know it — is the latest thing. There are witches all over the place.
Some of them are very gruesome, dabbling in all kinds of loathsome potions and spilling chicken blood by the gallon. Others are just eccentric, holding their "witchcraft services" in the nude and intoning fervent prayers to Satan.

Sounds crazy, or like something out of the Middle Ages? Well, according to Mr. Godwin, they're here and now. In the big cities and the university towns, rich people and poor people, professional men and laborers. The Age of Aquarius is the age of the Occult.

Some of the most fascinating people around are the Flying Saucer believers. Their tales are staggering, their "proofs" incredible, their faith unshakable. The tales are so wild, it strains your good manners to keep from spitting with laughter. Yet the believers are earnest and eager to enlist more followers.

The crazy side of America — and here I'm afraid my prejudice begins to show — is a lurid and believable part of the most peculiar beliefs you ever heard of. Mr. Godwin has explored a lot of them — I don't suppose anyone could look into them all. He makes his report open and easy to understand. He treats astrophers and crystal-ball gazers with genuine seriousness and is equally sympathetic to the witches, warlocks, UFO sighters, mediums, fortune tellers — you name it.

The result is an extremely informative book, surely as fair a report as anyone could ask for. And some of the most enjoyable reading you can find in the library. I recommend "Occult America" by John Godwin. I think you'll like it.
