New Taxes Urged By Treasury Chief

Eventual Hike In Debt Limit Said Certain

Huge Deficit For Nation Is Faced In Present Year

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—Secretary Morgenthau, forecasting a $5,700,000,000 federal deficit this year, urged Congress today to open another source of government revenue and provide a "better distribution" of defense costs by enacting an excess profits tax.

An eventual increase in the present $49,000,000,000 federal debt limit to permit more deficit financing was predicted by Morgenthau, while Daniel W. Bell, treasury undersecretary, said that at the present rate of defense expenditures it would be necessary to increase the limit by about $9,000,000,000 next summer unless new taxes were raised.

Urges Prompt Action

Appearing before a joint meeting of the House ways and means committee and the Senate finance committee, the treasury chief also proposed prompt action on pending tax legislation because he said it would facilitate execution of defense contracts.

"The national defense program," Morgenthau said, "places upon us the duty of reconsidering certain features of the tax structure now, in order to obtain a rapid expansion of production for defense and a better distribution of its cost to the taxpayer."

The excess profits tax has been estimated by experts to yield $300,000,000 to $500,000,000 a year.

The treasury and budget bureau have calculated that, as of August 5, the treasury faced expenditures of more than $12,000,000,000 in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1941. Morgenthau said. Revenue estimates, he reported, totaled $6,367,000,000 including the new defense taxes recently enacted.

Unless new taxes were enacted, he continued, virtually all of the new $49,000,000,000 federal borrowing power would be exhausted by June 30, 1941.

"On the basis of these estimates,"

Duke And Duchess To Visit In U. S.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Aug. 9 (AP)—The Duke of Windsor said today he and his American-born duchess would visit the United States "soon."

"The duchess hasn't been there for eight years and I haven't been for 16 years, so it's certainly time we went," the duke said in his first interview since arriving yesterday en route to his post as governor of the Bahamas.

"When I was last in the United States the Woolworth building was the highest in New York—that rather dates me," the duke commented.

Grandfather Of All Bedbugs Is Found

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9 (AP)—Discovery of a bedbug which insures sound sleep—but the wrong kind—was reported today by the public health service.

The bug, which is the "grandfather" of all bedbugs because it is several times larger than the ordinary insects, carries the germ of sleeping sickness from man to man and from animals to men, said Dr. Asgroony Packchanian of the National Institute of Health.

In Texas, where the insect was found in a systematic check of infestations of home and fields, it is known as the "blood-sucker," "Mexican bedbug" and "kissing bug." Its danger as a carrier of the trypanosome germ which causes sleeping sickness had not been recognized before.

Prankish Texas Weather In Strange Tricks

(By The Associated Press)

Prankish Texas weather played one of its strangest tricks last night—using the feeble tail of a gulf hurricane to air cool North Texas with the lowest August temperatures in nearly 20 years.

Dawn brought a chilly minimum of 61 degrees to Mount Pleasant for the lowest recorded temperature.

Dallas, broiling for days under 100-degree weather, awoke to the chilliest August morn in 18 years with a reading of 65 degrees.

Revelling in 63-degree weather were Dalhart, on the Plains; Haskell, Muleshoe and over in North Texas, Paris. The 64-degree readings included Dublin in West Texas; Greenville in the northeast; Kaufman, near Dallas.

Many 65 degree temperatures were announced—from Amarillo to Brownwood to Huntsville to Longview to Lampasas.

Rain came with Tyler's 66-degrees while the intense heat wave of several days at Laredo was broken by heavy rainfall. It was the first precipitation in more than a month.

Gusty-30-mile-an-hour winds made trees and shrubbery bow in Dallas and Fort Worth during the night.

Corpus Christi established a new heat record, when, for the third successive day, the thermometer climbed past the 100-degree mark. Prior to this week, there had been only three days during 53 years when the temperature hit 100 degrees. The all-time high was 105 in 1934. But scattered thundershowers were expected to relieve the coastal city.

Young Killer Goes To Death With Confession On Lips

ROBERT BURGUNDER

Burgunder Claims He Was Goaded To Murder Pair

(By The Associated Press)

FLORENCE, Ariz., Aug. 9—Nonchalant Robert Burgunder went to his death in the lethal gas chamber at dawn today with a confession on his lips.

As he was being strapped to the wooden seat in the little white execution chamber of the Arizona penitentiary, Burgunder, chewing gum all the while, said:

Admits The Killings

"I admit the killings. I never tried to defend myself."

Then the steel door was slammed. Cyanide pellets dropped into a container of acid at the feet of the 23-year-old former college orator. Wisps of blue fumes lifted upward; Burgunder breathed deeply and was dead seven minutes after his entrance into the death chamber.

The youth was convicted of killing E. B. Patterson, who with Ellis M. Koury, was shot to death in the desert near here April 29, 1939.

Admits He Killed Men

Burgunder beckoned to Warden Gene Shute and stated briefly that he alone killed the two Phoenix automobile salesmen whom he persuaded to take him on a demonstration ride.

He added he had never tried to defend himself, a contention he threaded through long legal proceedings and highlighted by his statement to his trial jury: "I do not want life imprisonment."

Burgunder's last-minute confession supported the revelation last night of his closest friend, Johnnie Swearingen, a former college

Reprimand Is Given Cudahy

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9 — John Cudahy, American ambassador to Belgium, was reprimanded publicly by the state department today for his press interview in London on Belgian food condition and other aspects of the German occupation of that country.

Sumner Welles, acting secretary of state, reading a formal statement at his press conference, said that Cudahy, by direction of President Roosevelt had been requested to return to the United States immediately for consultation.

Instructions Violated

Cudahy, the statement said, had given the interview "in violation of standing instructions of the department of state and certain of the views expressed by the ambassador are not to be construed as representing the views of this government."

The incident, the statement continued, "illustrates once again the importance which must be attributed by American representatives abroad to the department's instructions to refrain at this critical time

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 9 (AP)—Mrs. Mabel Wells, 37, was booked on suspicion of murder today after her husband, Jack, 37, died in a hospital of stab wounds.

Police Detective Pat Murphy said Mrs. Wells described how she obtained a butcher knife from the kitchen "to scare him" when her husband came home intoxicated and refused to eat, adding that he was knifed when he lunged at her.

Mystery Given Sinister Cast

(By The United Press)

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 9 — What happened to the beautiful young stewardess of the luxurious sleeper plane hign over the Tennessee mountains became more of a mystery today as postal authorities ordered the plane's mail impounded for inspection.

The order—plus a new disclosure—gave the mystery a sinister cast. The man the girl said slugged her from behind in search of the key to the baggage compartment, actually got into the compartment though she swallowed the key to prevent him from getting it. The compartment contained part of the ship's mail cargo.

Passengers Questioned

Postal Inspector Thomas Cotton rode with the plane's passengers on to Los Angeles and soon after he arrived there, he ordered all mail that had been aboard the plane held up pending the completion of

FDR Approves Plan To Help Cotton Areas

LOAN RATE SET

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9 (AP) — The Commodity Credit corporation announced today it would make loans to growers on 1940 cotton at a base rate of 8.51 cents a pound for middling ⅞-inch cotton. The comparable rate under a similar loan program last year was 8.3 cents.

Officials said that, taking into account differentials for location of the cotton with reference to principal markets, the 1940 loans were expected to average about 8.9 cents compared with 8.7 under the 1939 program. The corporation announced that this year's loan schedule would use 15-16 inch middling cotton as the basis rather than ⅞ inch middling. This conforms with a change in cotton market practices.

Thus, the base rate for 15-16 inch middling will be 9.16 cents.

The base rate will apply at the farthest point from principal terminals. It will range from 9.9 in the Carolina mill areas to 9.16 in West Texas and New Mexico. The rate at all gulf and Pacific ports will be 9.8.

(By The Associated Press)

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 9.—The temporary White House announced today that President Roosevelt had approved a recommendation by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace for a $150,000,000 non-mandatory loan on the 1940 cotton crop.

The loans will be handled through the Commodity Credit corporation. The loan rate will be announced later, probably in Washington.

The action was taken under the 1938 agricultural adjustment act.

At the same time it was announced the president has signed a bill increasing the resources of the Commodity Credit corporation from $900,000,000 to $1,400,000,000 to carry out the mandatory loan provisions of the 1939 AAA act on corn, cotton and wheat.

The bill S3998, was designed to meet marketing emergencies arising from war abroad and to permit temporary advances to other divisions of the agriculture department as required by law for short-term seasonal needs.

Liquor Branded As Dangerous Fifth Column For Americans

(By The Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Aug. 9—The liquor traffic was described today by Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith, national president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, as "a most dangerous fifth column" menacing the nation's welfare.

"It is not a totalitarian foe from the outside, but one entrenched behind millions of invested capital and behind federal and state laws written under its political pressure," she said in a prepared address to the 66th annual W.C.T.U. convention.

She termed saloons "breeding centers for lawlessness" and asserted they were plying youth and adults throughout the nation with the "virus of anarchy and disorder."

Mrs. Smith expressed the opinion wartime prohibition probably would be enacted if the nation went to war. "Then you have to preserve the efficiency of men—and a drinking man is not efficient."

Asserting the liquor traffic was threatening industrial pros-

Conscription Said Tragic Necessity

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9—Senator Sheppard (D-Tex), opening argument for the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military service bill, told the Senate today that conscription had become "a tragic necessity" because emergency defense preparations could not be accomplished speedily enough by voluntary enlistments.

"The doctrines and aggressions of certain dictator-controlled nations become every day more menacing toward the free and independent Democratic countries," Sheppard asserted in urging adoption of the measure, which would require an estimated 12,000,000 men from 21 through 30 years of age to register.

Larger Army Needed

Sheppard contended a larger army was needed immediately to protect American interests in the western hemisphere, warning that if the Panama canal were put out of commission, "our navy would be helpless."

"There can be no withdrawal from Panama, Hawaii, Puerto Rico or Alaska without vital disaster," he warned. "To permit these strate-

Aged Mother Is Found Chained In Home; Son And Wife Held

(By The Associated Press)

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Aug. 9.—Two charges confront a Niagara Falls couple after, State Police Inspector Eugene F. Hoyt said, the man's aged mother was found chained to a wall in an unfinished room of their frame cottage.

Inspector Hoyt said Mrs. Louise Carpenter, 75, was discovered by troopers yesterday, sitting on a stool, her hands tied behind her back with cord, and a metal chain with padlock attached encircling her abdomen. The chain was nailed to a wall.

Her son, Gordon, 34, and his wife Marcella, 31, pleaded innocent of charges of assault, second degree, and coercion, and were released in bail pending a hearing.

The woman was taken to hospital for treatment. Hoyt said she was unkempt but apparently not in serious condition.

Hoyt declined to discuss reasons given by the son for the situation, discovered by a Red Cross nurse.

Blonde Tigress Is Hunted By Posse

(By The United Press)

DWIGHT, Ill., Aug. 9—A posse beat through a cornfield near the Oakdale reformatory for women without success early today in a search for Eleanor Jarman, 36, known as the "blonde tigress" because she one kicked a dying man in the face.

More than 100 guards and state police had guarded the cornfield all night and began a systematic search at dawn. Two state highway patrolmen had reported seeing two women, believed to be the escaped murderess and Mary Foster, who fled the reformatory with her, in the field last night.

Mrs. Jarman had been serving 199 years for murdering a Chicago haberdasher during a holdup, in 1933. She and her men companions were identified by almost 50 holdup victims.

For female viciousness, Mrs. Jarman has had no parallel in Chicago police records. Her hand-bags were always oversize—for her revolver and her blackjack. Some victims were slugged with the butt of her revolver if they even remonstrated; others were blackjacked. At her trial, a woman victim, identifying her, screamed: "She ought to be killed. If I had a gun I'd do it myself."

Had Been Obedient

Reformatory Superintendent Helen Hazard said Mrs. Jarman had been "an industrious, obedient and model woman in almost every respect" since her confinement. She wasn't that in 1933 when she and her blackjack were terrorizing small Chicago shop-keepers. She and George Dale, her male accomplice, came at last to the haberdashery of Gustave Hoeh, 70, who resisted. She shot him and as he lay dying on the sidewalk, kicked him in the face.

At her trial, Mrs. Jarman under-

LEVELLAND, Aug. 9—Body of James Frost, 50, oil field worker fatally injured early Thursday, was taken to Duncan, Okla., for burial today and another victim of the same accident was placed on an airplane in Lubbock this morning.

R. M. Taylor, who suffered a broken leg when hit by the pipe that had fallen on Mr. Frost's head, was taken to Lubbock in a Rix ambulance. A plane piloted by an Oklahoma man took Taylor to Tulsa, leaving Lubbock at 7:40 o'clock this morning.

The accident happened about 12:30 o'clock Thursday morning in Sundown community. Both men were taken to Phillips-Dupre hospital in Levelland. Employed by Helmerich and Payne Drilling company, they were working at an oil rig when the accident happened.

Davis-Mason Funeral home reported the body of Mr. Frost was taken overland to Duncan Thursday night. Mr. Frost had been in Hockley county only about a week and formerly lived in Chicago. He is survived by his wife.

Man Just Wanted Little Air So He Chartered Big Plane

(By The United Press)

NEW YORK, Aug. 9—H. William Rohl, Los Angeles contractor, woke up in his Washington hotel "wanting some air" today, so he chartered a 21-passenger transport plane and came to New York "just for the ride."

He arrived at La Guardia field at 5:30 a. m., took a taxicab to the Waldorf-Astoria hotel where he slept a few hours, returned to the airport and took off for Washington again at 10:15.

The plane trip here and back cost him about $800, but that is just a part of the story.

Rohl—whose only companions on the trip were the pilot, copilot and Stewardess Roberta Schilbach—likes to travel by air, but he doesn't like to have other passengers around and he dislikes small planes.

He said he was in Pueblo, Colo., having gone there from the west coast where he was engaged in contracting work for the government, and decided to go to Washington to seek another contract.

He tried to charter a plane

Thousands Are Homeless As Floods Rise

Food And Clothing Needed At Once; Rains Continue

(By The Associated Press)

CROWLEY, La., Aug. 9.—Southwest Louisiana cities, in some instances completely flooded by nearly 20 inches of continuous rain in the past 48 hours, called today for outside aid.

The business section of Crowley, a city of 10,000 population in the heart of the Louisiana rice belt, was under 15 to 24 inches of water. The rain continued this morning.

Need Food And Clothing

W. J. Cleveland, chairman of the emergency relief organization estimated that at least 3,000 persons were in need of food and clothing and that there was immediate need of health measures.

"There are no lights nor water for household purposes," Cleveland said. "What we need is boats so we can get out and see what the people need.

"The schools and warehouses are filled with refugees. We are running out of food. We need milk, bread and some health officers. We have appealed to the governor and the Red Cross and we understand boats are being sent by the Red Cross."

Rainfall Is Heavy

Lafayette, a city of about 20,000 population, reported an official rainfall of 19.63 inches for the past 24 hours ending at 7 a. m. today with a slight rain continuing.

Every street in the city was flooded, including the main business section, the water varying from several inches to several feet deep.

Nearby cities from New Iberia west to Lake Charles were similarly affected by the torrential rains following a coastal tropical storm.

Reports from the outlying sections were meager but highway traffic was blocked. Crops were submerged or washed away and hundreds of families were driven from the lowlands in a half dozen parishes.

The near cloudbursts were felt as far upstate as Alexandria, where 50,000 regular army and national guard troops were so bogged down they had to suspend their war training.

Emergency Relief Is Being Rushed Today

BATON ROUGE, La., Aug. 9 (AP)—Governor Sam Jones today marshalled state and federal agencies in a giant emergency relief program to aid south Louisiana coastal sections flooded by heavy storm rains.

36th Division Without Food

(By The United Press)

CAMP BEAUREGARD, La., Aug. 9—The 36th division of the national guard—10,000 men—was isolated by floods from this, its base, today with only enough food for breakfast.

How soon enough food could be transported over a flooded terrain whose highways, bridges, and railroads were water-covered, was problematical, but it appeared that the officers and men would either miss meals or be on short rations today and perhaps tomorrow.

Plight Unexpected

The plight of the 36th was an unexpected, unscheduled part of the maneuvers of the third army corps area now in progress. The floods had also cut the 45th division from highway communications with headquarters, but a rail line was open and food supplies may be transported over it.

The 36th was camped near Cravens, La., in the area where six inches of rain fell yesterday. While communications still held, some food was rushed to the division by

FDR Declares He Is Poorer But Wiser

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 9 (AP)—President Roosevelt's thumbnail financial and intellectual accounting of his last 12 years in public office is that he is a poorer but a wiser man.

All he had to say, he remarked, was that he was a poorer and wiser man than when he went to Albany as governor of New York in 1928.

WCTU Opens Drive For A Dry Army And Navy, Just As In 1917-18

Convention To Study Problem

By DON P. SANDERS
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

EVANSTON, Ill., Aug. 9—Wartime prohibition—the Women's Christian Temperance Union is all set to demand it as part of the national defense plan.

"No drink in defense" won't show on the program when 2500 leaders of the union's half million members hold their 66th annual convention in Chicago, Aug. 9-14. But officers here in Evanston say the convention is almost sure to endorse the drive.

Says Ida B. Wise Smith, national president:

"In this period of world crisis, it should be evident to all who cherish the democratic way of life that no nation eaten at the core by self-indulgence can long survive. Only a people made strong in body, mind and spirit through self-discipline can achieve or maintain true greatness."

But, Mrs. Smith goes on:

"The view isn't so cheerful."

Union Points To Warring Nations

Today isn't 1917. By the end of that year 21 states were dry. Senate and House were arid. Congress passed and 45 states ratified the prohibition amendment before wartime prohibition became effective July 1, 1919.

W.C.T.U. claims strong dry sentiment today, but admits 1940 is no 1917 from a temperance viewpoint.

Just th same, Mrs. Smith and her followers hope to condense the 1847-1917 temperance story into a single 1940-41 chapter, with the defense emergency doing most of the condensing.

They claim Washington already takes for granted that "mobilization for war would require immediate restrictions on the liquor traffic."

They point to wartime prohibition acts by belligerents in 1914-18 similar steps taken last winter by Germany, Japan and France, and England's restriction of liquor production to one-third the 1938 output.

They say the U. S. should adopt such restrictive measures now as part of preparedness rather than waiting until war strikes.

Not Dry—Not Wet

No rum hounds are United States fighting men.

While the British navy ladies out daily grog rations Uncle Sam's sailors line up at the soda fountain that's part of every American warship.

Alcohol is prohibited on U. S. naval vessels, but sailors can buy hard liquor by the bottle and beer in naval stations, canteens and ship service.

No hard liquors are sold in army canteens; all beers are permitted. National guardsmen come under army anti-liquor regulations while in camp.

These restrictions are regarded as carry-overs from the World war days. By 1917 the armed forces were under complete prohibition.

Widening of prohibition as a conservation measure was next, and a bill forbidding use of food materials for production of alcoholic beverage went into effect.

In 1918 prohibition zones were set up around coal mines and war industries.

500,000 Women Join The Fight

Direct goal of W. C. T. U. will be as always prohibition, as complete as possible as soon as possible.

The nation has not spoken on drink and defense, but speaking for the W. C. T. U. Mrs. Smith reaffirms its historic stand:

"You can say definitely that at least 500,000 women will make every immediate effort to decrease the accessibility of liquor all down the line—in the capital where vital decisions must be made, in the military forces, in key defense industries, and among all citizens."

DOGS IS DOGS

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — A dog owned by a priest is not exempt from a license tax, the Kentucky attorney-general's office has held. A priest who asked the ruling contended the dog was the "property of the church" and, therefore, tax exempt.

British sailors, top, like their rum, American sailors, bottom, have to like their soda. Soda bars are the only kind allowed on U. S. warships. The W. C. T. U. thinks sailors should be forbidden drinks ashore, too.

Marriage Vows Said At Border

MALTA, Mont., Aug. 9 (AP)—The international situation, and not a desire to achieve the unusual, led Roger Thomasset, Las Vegas, Nev., and his bride, Suzanna Morin, Pontieux, Sask., to the choice of a strange wedding site.

Thomasset, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Thomasset of Pife Lake, Sask., is a Canadian citizen living in the United States. Recent immigration rulings presented him with the possibility his return to the states might be delayed were he married in Canada.

The ceremony was performed at the Canadian border 55 miles north of here between the U. S. customs port of Morgan and the Canadian port of Monchy, Sask., with the open prairie as a background.

The border wedding permitted about 100 relatives and friends from both sides of the border to attend without international complications.

Thomasset, arriving first at the border from Malta, awaited the coming of the bride with more than the usual uneasiness, friends said.

For the past three years Miss Trevor has received an elaborate, cleverly arranged scrapbook, recording, via magazine and newspaper clippings, the highlights in Miss Trevor's life the preceding 12 months. It is said that 50,000 airplanes a year will cost approximately three and one-half billion dollars; moreover, it will take approximately four years' time before the airplane factories can reach that production rate.

New World Could Prevent Starvation In Europe If Sea Lanes Open

Blockades Prove A Stumbling Block; Outlook Is Not Rosy

This is the second of two articles giving facts and figures on possibility of famine in Europe this winter and the ability of the Western Hemisphere to prevent it.

BY MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—Can the New World prevent starvation in the Old World this winter?

Department of Agriculture officials here in Washington say the answer is yes—if the sea lanes are open.

The department estimates Europe's 1940 wheat crop smaller than average by 140,000,000 bushels.

Argentina has just prohibited export of hold-over wheat but Canada has 300,000,000 bushels exportable and the United States 38,000,000 bushels.

Europe's feedstuffs are off an estimated 15 per cent.

The U. S. has 675,000,000 bushels of corn in stock. Argentina has 300,000,000 bushels.

Europe's supply of fats and oils is short 25 per cent, of which the U. S. could supply much. The first five months of 1939 the U. S. sold Europe 80,187,000 pounds of lard as compared to 55,760,000 pounds for the same period this year. The agriculture department reports about 34 per cent increased U. S. lard production for this year.

Together the U. S., Argentina, Canada and Uruguay formerly exported about half the beef, mutton and pork consumed by Europe. Argentina now has large quantities of beef, the U. S. much pork.

Canada and Argentina ordinarily sent about 14 per cent of the cheese imported by Europe. Argentina sent 5 per cent of the butter Europe consumed.

U. S. Especially Hard Hit

In the years 1935-38 inclusive the Western Hemisphere exported on an average 327,858,000 bushels of wheat. Canada sent 52 per cent of this, the Argentina 33 per cent, the United States 12 per cent and Chile, Brazil and Uruguay together accounted for 2 per cent.

The average annual export of corn in those same years was 306,859,000 bushels, of which Argentina sent 87 per cent and the United States 12.5 per cent.

The average annual export of hog products was 496,420,000 pounds. The United States sent 45 per cent, Canada 40 per cent, Argentina 12 and Brazil 3.

The average annual export of mutton and lamb was 130,148,000 pounds, of which Argentina sent 86 per cent and Uruguay 13.

The average annual export of beef and beef products was 1,445,710,000 pounds, of which the Argentine sent 73 per cent, Uruguay 14 per cent, and Brazil 8. A large portion of these exports went to Europe.

The war has caused a big decrease in the exports of all those products from the countries enumerated, not only because of the blockades by the enemy countries, but also because they have sought other markets.

Thus to avoid sea transport, Germany and Italy have looked to Hungary, Yugoslavia and Rumania for wheat and have also tried to get big supplies from Russia.

Britain, to save foreign exchange, has looked to its own empire, especially Canada, India, Australia and New Zealand for wheat and meat.

The United States has felt this particularly as regards agricultural products.

For the first eight months of the war, as compared with the same period a year earlier, the U. S. Department of Agriculture states exports of farm products have declined more than one-fourth. Wheat exports were only a little more than one-fourth their volume in the preceding year.

Has Plenty Of Wheat

While the wheat crop in Europe will be off by 15 per cent at least, the Western Hemisphere is well fixed. The department of agriculture, giving unofficial figures, rates the U. S. wheat crop for 1940 at 729,000,000 bushels, Canada 425,000,000, Mexico, 13,000,000, and Argentina 240,000,000.

The estimated wheat surplus for export or carry-over is 258,000,000 bushels for Canada, 22,000,000 for the U. S., and 10,000,000 for Argentina.

Not only is there talk of famine in some places for human beings in Europe, but there is an actual condition of famine for cattle, sheep and hogs because of lack of foodstuffs which are ordinarily imported. It is estimated at least one-third the cattle and pigs of Denmark and Holland will have to be slaughtered before winter.

The United States alone could probably largely supply this lack if things were normal. The U. S. Department of Agriculture estimates that for 1940 the corn crop will be 2,400,000,000 bushels, oats 1,021,000,000. There is little chance of selling this corn.

The blockade accounts for some of the failure, but Argentina is an all-powerful rival for such markets as exist. The large Argentine crop of 419,000,000 bushels this past spring caused little demand for American corn, especially as the price at Chicago was about 30 cents per bushel above the price asked in Buenos Aires.

Outlook Not Good

The United States Department of Agriculture in one of its most recent bulletins does not take a very rosy view either of the present or the near future as regards Europe as a market for American farm products outside of cotton.

The department says:

"It appears that United States agricultural exports are not likely to benefit from the war, that after the war we will face increasing competition from other agricultural exporting countries for a number of years, and, that importing countries will be faced with the problem of how to pay for needed imports."

Alexander Visiting Cities Over Plains

Visits were scheduled in Tahoka, O'Donnell, Lamesa and points south today by Judge James P. Alexander, associate justice of the 10th court of civil appeals and candidate for chief justice of the state supreme court, who visited Lubbock Thursday.

He was guest of honor at an informal reception in Hilton hotel Thursday night.

At the meeting Judge Alexander emphasized the vital importance of the supreme court in the preservation of the fundamentals of the American system of government during these times and that the people should be particularly interested in the election of the best qualified supreme court justice possible.

Judge Alexander, a native Texan, has had 32 years of continuous legal experience and is well qualified for the chief justiceship of the supreme court. He has been a judge 16 years, almost 10 years of which time he has been a justice of the 10th court of civil appeals at Waco. He also had 14 years experience as a practicing attorney, before becoming a judge, and is well known in legal, civic and religious circles. For the past 20 years he has been teaching legal procedure and practice court at Baylor university at Waco early mornings and noon as a professor of law at the famed Baptist school.

"Sailors And Floozies" Picture Will Be Rehung At San Francisco's Exposition

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 9 (AP) — "Sailors and Floozies," an artist's conception of what sailors and their girl friends do on shore, is going back on display at the exposition, from which it was removed because an official said it irked the navy.

A higher official said the painting by Paul Cadmus "should never have been removed," and added he had been unable "to verify reports the navy objected."

"Sailors and Floozies" pictures two sailors and a marine, each with a somewhat buxom lass, clasped amorously in a public park. Another sailor, without a girl friend, is slouched on a park bench, and an empty whisky bottle lies beside one of the seamen.

Dr. Walter Heil, head of the palace of fine arts painting division, announced Tuesday that criticism of the picture had come "increasingly" from navy sources. So he ordered it removed after citing the present need for "national unity" and "respect" for the nation's armed forces.

Today, Timothy L. Pflueger, who is director of the fine arts palace—the head man—ordered the painting rehung.

Along with it, "Seeing The New Year In," another Cadmus picture which was removed, went back on display. Spokesmen said its removal was "a mistake."

"If every picture some individual may object to is removed, none would remain," stated Pflueger.

Tickling Feet Sends This Man To Jail

ROCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 9 (AP)—"Tickling the feet of a minor without her consent"—that old New Hampshire statute was invoked today.

A 30-year-old man was convicted after a 15-year-old girl reported he entered her bedroom and awakened her by tickling her feet. Instead of screaming, she turned on the light and recognized him.

Charged also with breaking and entering, the man pleaded guilty to both charges and was given a three-months sentence in the house of correction.

No arrest had been reported this morning by Lubbock county authorities of a negro man who allegedly slugged a negro woman with a bat. The suspect lives at Slaton.

J. A. Chatman, negro physician, said he took 13 stitches on the face of Lena Mason, about 30, Lubbock negro woman.

Police said a drunk proved somewhat cagey when he jumped out of his car and hid in bushes near an alley in 2200-block Twenty-ninth street. The man was jailed.

A 22-year-old Lubbock man was held for investigation into theft of a purse from Marxy Tussy of 312 Avenue G in a cafe.

County authorities Thursday night sought a Lubbock woman, who had been named on a forgery complaint filed in justice court of Walter Davies.

The complaint, prepared by District Attorney Burton S. Burks and signed by John A. Clark, alleged the woman forged the signature of a relative to an $8 check.

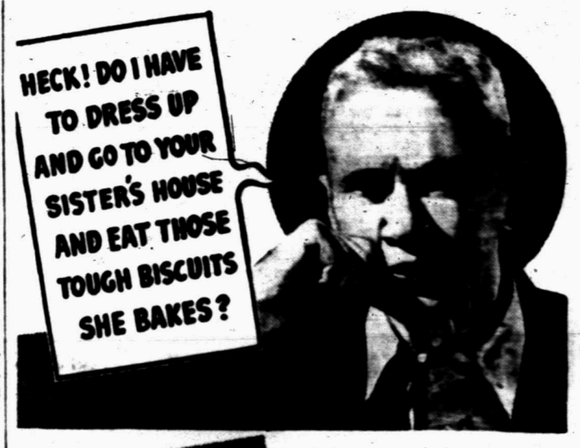

Police activities were of a more minor nature. Billy Fleming of 2412 Twenty-fifth street lost a pair of glasses and M. M. Sullivan of 222 Avenue P reported theft of a garden hose from his lawn.

Boys became too playful in 2200-block Sixteenth street and were destroying shrubs at a residence. Another complainant in 1800-block Avenue D said a neighbor was allowing her chickens to run loose.

The Italian peninsula is eight times as long as its average width.

EVOKES MEMORY—Memories of one of the screen's most glamorous stars were evoked by Helen Dahell, of Washington, pictured as she recently arrived in New York after 18 months in Rio de Janeiro. In Hollywood, she served as the "double" for the late Jean Harlow.

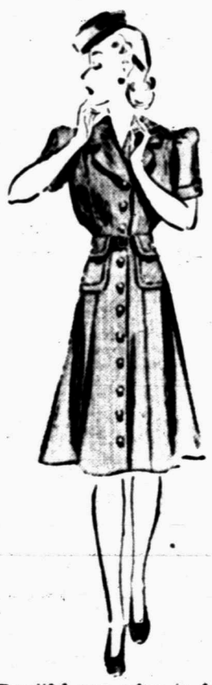

What a difference . . . when you change to Jewel!

● It takes more than a good recipe and a light hand to turn out a fluffy, delicate cake . . . or a panful of tender, golden-brown biscuits. It takes a good shortening. And it's no accident that good Southern cooks have preferred Jewel Shortening for generations!

Jewel has greater shortening power than the "expensive-type" all-vegetable shortenings because it's a special blend of vegetable fats with other bland cooking fats. It creams fast, too—and you'll like the way you can fry with Jewel without smoking up your kitchen. Order Jewel today.

Longer War Works To British Advantage

Blockade May Be Solution

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press Staff Writer

The Idaho Falls Post-Register has asked me to indicate the "relative chances of the two belligerents for victory in case Hitler delays his invasion until after the middle of September when weather will probably force him to delay until next spring."

That seems like rather a tall order to me. However, the question is legitimate.

I have before me a partial answer, from the British viewpoint, countering the German claim that they are secure in all departments and have the battle of Britain in a sack. This is in the form of fourteen favorable factors which the military correspondent of the Yorkshire (England) Post claims for his country.

Summary Is Given

I want to give this summary first, and my reason for quoting the Post is that it belongs, as I understand it, to the family of Anthony Eden, British war minister, and is popularly supposed to express his views frequently. I don't know that the following represents Capt. Eden's ideas, but I should be surprised if the Post published military opinions running counter to those of the British war office. Here are the points:

"1. The German army failed in June to follow up the withdrawal of the British expeditionary force when there was a chance.

"2. We now have a mighty force in Britain and strong defenses.

"3. The Royal Air Force has achieved moral superiority.

"4. The blockade is closing the last loopholes for supply.

"5. Enemy power has failed to interrupt imperial and American sources of supply.

Navy Sweeps Seas

"6. We have more food and materials in this island than ever before, and the navy sweeps the seas.

"7. Hitler's forces are widely dispersed on a sea-line from the Arctic to the Pyrenees.

"8. His vast coast-line has not ships enough to protect it or to escort maritime invasion.

"9. Italy's position is a burden to Germany, who may have to give material help, especially if Italy is attacked as our main offensive.

"10. Britain controls the Mediterranean and separates Italy from her colonies.

"11. We are confident of repelling massed air attacks and our fighter planes increase daily.

"12. We have achieved superiority in bombing and attack.

"13. We are united and resolute while Hitler has trouble in the conquered lands, as well as in the Balkans.

"14. Russia again cramps German freedom."

War Of Attrition

If Herr Hitler doesn't win the conflict by blitzkrieg in the immediate future, it probably will settle into a war of attrition. The chief feature of this will be a starvation contest — blockade and counter-blockade. I see no reason to change the view expressed in this column before — that grains of wheat are likely to have more to do with the outcome of the war than will bullets.

The Nazis are making a terrific onslaught with bombers, U-boats and fast torpedo-boats. At the same time the English blockade has remained so tight that John Cudahy, American ambassador to Belgium, earlier this week in discussing the food situation said to newspapermen:

"If you gentlemen think the continent is a howling hell now, what do you think it will be this winter?"

The other day the German radio quoted French political circles as saying the French government had appealed to the United States to exercise pressure on Britain to ease the blockade. Berlin doesn't circulate statements like that unless the blockade hurts.

I believe the consensus of neutral military experts is that a short race and a fast one would suit Hitler, but that in a long run the advantage should be with the British because of vastly superior resources and command of the seas.

Judge Lattimore Is Visitor In Lubbock

Judge H. S. Lattimore, high man in the first primary by a plurality of approximately 40,000 votes, visited Lubbock Thursday in connection with his campaign for chief justice of the state supreme court.

He praised highly the appointment by Governor O'Daniel of Judge W. P. Moore of Paris as the present chief justice and declared he "would not have been a candidate against Judge Moore."

Moore Is Praised

He said, "The appointment of Judge Moore by Governor O'Daniel was a recognition of the sterling qualities and honorable career of a great lawyer. Judge Moore would have been glad to serve the remaining two years of Justice Cureton's term if he could have had same without opposition. To do so, under the law, he was compelled to stand for the office in the first primary. I felt he should have the office without an opponent since his appointment in the spring was immediately before the election and put him in position of having to run without opportunity to exhibit to the people his ability as chief justice.

"However, some of my opponents immediately announced as candidates for the office, and Judge Moore was not willing to undertake the labor of a campaign in the face of opposition and publicity announced that under the circumstances he would not be a candidate. Then, and not until then, I entered the race to be his successor."

Home From Plains

Judge Lattimore served three terms as 96th district judge and was then elected associate justice of the 2nd court of civil appeals at Fort Worth. He is a native Texan, was a naval aviator during the World war and is widely known in the civil and fraternal life of Texas, in which work he has been active.

Truck Hearings Are Ended On Thursday

Representatives of the Texas Railroad commission finished hearings here Thursday afternoon on applications to extend several truck lines in West Texas.

Three applicants asking virtually the same routes started offering petitions Aug. 1 after the hearing had been consolidated because of similarity of their requests. They were A. E. Dermott of Paducah, J. P. Tarry of Wichita Falls and Miller & Miller Motor Freight lines of Wichita Falls.

Leonard King, railroad commission examiner, will make recommendations to the commission on results of the hearing.

King and Jess C. Levens, Lubbock attorney, left by automobile for Austin Thursday night.

New Farm Program Is Discussed Here

New program of the Farm Security administration was discussed by Rex Baxter of Amarillo, state director and acting regional director, at a conference here Thursday.

Present were, Earl Wise and Marvin C. Wilson, Lubbock area supervisors, and Tom Finley and W. F. Stubbs, Amarillo supervisors; Mrs. Ruby De Long Matthews, home management supervisor from Amarillo, and P. F. Murray of Lubbock and Walter Allen, farm debt supervisors.

Under the program since July 1, FSA loans are to be approved by district supervisors instead of by the regional office. The farm tenant purchase plan program for the state also was discussed. In this section Lubbock and Hale counties were added to Dawson, Lynn and Lamb, who came in last year and Floyd, with two years of purchase work.

Baxter returned Thursday night. He is acting in place of Wilson Cowan, Amarillo, director, who is in Washington at a national conference.

Music School Will Be Started Monday

Asbury Methodist church, Twentieth street and Avenue T, will be scene of a three weeks' music school starting Monday.

The Vaughan Music company will sponsor the instruction. Afternoon classes will open at 1 o'clock and night classes at 8 o'clock.

The arrangements were made by the Lubbock Vaughan quartet and Clyde Burleson, local representative of the company. Teachers will include W. B. Walbert, manager of the Vaughan radio quartet, Austin Williams, Bud Warren and others.

Fee will be $5 for both afternoon and night and $2 for night general vocal instruction for each individual or $10 for both afternoon and night instruction for an entire family. Instrumental instruction also will be offered at additional coast by James D. Walbert, Chalmers Walker and Taylor Hilton.

Daily Work Is Easy Since The Gly-Cas

Not Confined To Her Bed With A Dreadful Suffering Now; Appetite Has Returned, Nerves Are Calm

"I had taken so many medicines for cases such as mine but never was there one of my experience that I would compare with Gly-Cas," said Mrs. Cora Loudamy, 407 West Ave., B, San Angelo, Texas.

MRS. CORA LOUDAMY

"For four years I had been in failing health. Indigestion attacks were sure to come after every meal. I ate, gas formed in my stomach regardless of my diet and there were many foods I did not dare eat at all. The accumulated intestinal impurities from faulty elimination had caused me all this miserable suffering. I became extremely nervous, could not rest at night and had awful pains through my body. My back pained constantly and I would have such dizzy spells I was often confined to bed. I continued going from bad to worse . . . until I began Gly-Cas.

"Gly-Cas went directly to work on my stubborn case," continued Mrs. Loudamy. "I was confined to my bed when I began Gly-Cas but now I am up feeling fine since the removal of those clogged intestinal impurities through proper elimination. My digestion is fine, the various aches and pains over my body have disappeared, nerves are calm, I have plenty of pep and energy, do my daily work with ease and credit. Gly-Cas for the glorious health I am now enjoying."

Gly-Cas is sold by Mark Halsey Drug Co., 1219 Broadway, this city, and by the leading druggists in surrounding towns. Adv.

British Troops Being Ordered Out Of Shanghai And North China

Request Made By Japanese

(By The United Press)

LONDON, Aug. 9—Great Britain today ordered withdrawal of British troops from Shanghai and North China for transfer elsewhere in the far east following a "request" for such action understood to have been made by Japan.

The British government, engaged in a life and death struggle in Europe and in serious dispute with Japan, was understood to have decided in principle on the troop withdrawal about two months ago. Britain had between 2,000 and 3,000 troops in Shanghai, Peiping and Tientsin.

Made Other Demands

It was stated that the Japanese made this "request" to Britain simultaneously with Japanese demands (later accepted) for closing of the Burma road and otherwise cutting off supplies to the Chinese.

Britain informed the United States, which has forces stationed in Shanghai, of the decision, but there was no indication here whether United States troops would be available in the future to patrol the British sector of the international settlement.

There are French soldiers and several hundred Italian troops in the Shanghai international settlement. The Italians would risk capture by the British navy if removed.

Of Minor Importance

A Chinese spokesman said that the British decision to withdraw was of "minor importance" but it was another move in the direction of Japanese control of the settlement.

A communique issued indentically here and at Shanghai said:

"British troops at present stationed at Shanghai and in northern China are being withdrawn for service elsewhere."

Whether they would be sent to Hong Kong, the British naval base on the southeast coast, was not immediately made known.

However, well informed sources said blandly that the fresh disposal of the Shanghai and North China forces would strengthen the British forces in the far east.

Hong Kong was being guarded closely against tens of thousands of Japanese troops now in southern China.

Britain Getting Out

It meant that Britain, so far as its military forces on strictly Chinese soil were concerned, was getting out. It obtained its foothold in China almost 100 years ago, in 1843 in the "opium war" and fought another war and the Boxer rebellion to hold it.

British troops are stationed at Peiping; in the legation quarter; in Tientsin, in the British concession, and at Shanghai in the international settlement.

Left to defend foreign interests are American marines at the three cities, with the main force at Shanghai where they have their own defense section in the international concession, and French troops, who guard the French concessions at Tientsin and Shanghai.

It was said authoritatively, immediately after the brief withdrawal announcement, that the United States government had been kept informed of the British intention to withdraw and that Japan also had been notified.

Only Few There

There are about 1,500 British troops at Shanghai, it was said authoritatively — two battalions minus one company. At Tientsin there is one company (perhaps 150 to 300 men). At Peiping there are a handful. It was announced last November that the North China forces, stationed at Tientsin and Peiping, would be reduced to the number necessary "to protect property and maintain order."

Withdrawal, it was said today, had been under consideration ever since the European war started.

The press association, which enjoys excellent sources in situations like the present, commented:

"Britain at war must dispose of her forces in the best possible manner."

Killer Confesses

roommate who had the last meal with the condemned youth, that his trial story of watching an accomplice kill the two bound men, was a fictional presentation.

Hadn't Intended To Kill

Burgunder was quoted by Swearingen as saying he "hadn't intended" killing Peterson and Koury, but that Peterson's insistence he "couldn't get away with it" prodded him to kill both men.

During his last hours Burgunder, who fancied himself a student of law, wrote a letter to the Arizona supreme court, addressing Chief Justice Henry D. Ross as "Dear Hank."

He took issue with the court's premise that "substantial justice" could be accomplished in a murder trial despite certain technical errors.

Robert M. Burgunder, former Seattle, Wash., prosecuting attorney, spent three hours with his son yesterday.

As a defense attorney and witness he had attempted to save his son's life. Once before he had been in court on the boy's behalf, when he was charged with a Seattle drug store robbery. Sentenced to the Washington reformatory for two years, young Burgunder said he had committed the holdup to regain money lost in slot machines.

His gambling mania followed him to Arizona State Teachers college at Tempe, and after spending all his money he decided to "get a new start" in Tennessee. To make possible his trip he enticed Peterson and Koury to the desert, shot them and drove their car to Tennessee. He was captured emerging from church with new-found college friends.

GAINS ARE LOST

NEW YORK, Aug. 9 (AP) — Stocks tried a rallying sortie in today's market but most were unable to hold ground gained in an early push.

Recoveries of fractions to around 2 points were posted for favored steels, motors and specialties in the first hour when activity was the best. Both volume and prices began to fade after midday and at the close advances for many issues were all but erased. Transfers were around 300,000 shares.

Brokerage opinion was that the news had little to do with the initial flurry which pushed the list out of the rut. Technical influences, it was explained, provided the main stimulant. The fact volume yesterday dried up to the second smallest in 22 years led some speculative forces to conclude lack of offerings meant a solid-out condition which could result in at least a temporary comeback.

Considerable buying timidity apparently persisted because of fears regarding an imminent invasion of England. Customers still showed a disposition to step carefully pending further clarification of the national tax program.

Well in front in the forenoon some eventually slipped were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown, General Motors, Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, United Aircraft, Anaconda, American Telephone, Baldwin Locomotive, American Car & Foundry, Allied Chemical, Eastman Kodak and Allis Chalmers.

The majority of utilities, oils, rails and rubbers jogged over a narrow route.

Conscription

gical areas to fall into the hands of any enemy would jeopardize the security of the continental United States itself."

Previously, Sheppard announced the military affairs committee would invite Gov. Herbert Lehman of New York and Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel of Texas to testify in open hearings next week on legislation to set up a "home guard" force.

Suggestions Considered

Several suggestions, including one by President Roosevelt that World war veterans be called into "home guard" service, have been considered by the committee, the chairman said.

Governor O'Daniel suggested that Congress authorize the setting up of state troops, equipped and maintained by the state, he pointed out.

Overwhelming Senate passage of the bill authorizing the president to muster the national guard and army reserves emboldened conscription advocates today to propose a broader registration program under the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory service measure.

Just before the Senate began debate on the conscription issue, Senator Burke (D-Neb) disclosed he had drafted an amendment calling for registration of all men from 21 through 44. The bill approved by the military committee fixed the ages at 21 to 30, inclusive.

Action Encouraging

Burke said the Senate's 71 to 7 vote yesterday in favor of legislation which could put the guard and reserves into active service was encouraging to those who want to increase the number of men subject to possible conscription.

His proposed change, he explained, would make 24,000,000 men subject to registration, instead of the 12,000,000 contemplated in the committee-approved measure. In either case only those from 21 through 30 would be liable for immediate draft and military duty.

The guard-reserve bill was sent to the House with only minor changes. Seven senators voted against passage: Bulow (D-SD), Donahey (D-Ohio), Gillette (D-Iowa), Holt (D-WVa), Danaher (R-Conn), Nye (R-ND) and Lundeen (FL-Minn).

The Senate adopted unanimously an amendment by Senator Pittman (D-Nev) to permit guardsmen and reservists with dependent wives or children to resign within 20 days after enactment of the measure.

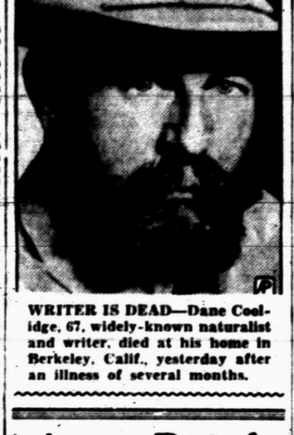

Amendment Defeated

Defeated 39 to 38 was an amendment by Senator Adams (D-Colo) to restrict use of the guard to the continental United States, American possessions and the Philippines.

As the bill now stands, its operations would be authorized anywhere in the western hemisphere.

Approximately 396,000 guardsmen, reserve officers, enlisted reserves, retired officers and retired enlisted men would be subject to call for a year's service under the bill.

Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief-of-staff, testified only 55,426 enlisted men, 3,930 officers and 53 warrant officers of the guard would be ordered to duty immediately

There are only about 6000 stars in the entire heavens that can be seen by the average person. Only half of these are above the horizon at one time, and many near the horizon are obscured by the denser atmosphere and surrounding objects on the landscape, so we can only see between 1500 and 2000 at any one time.

Plane Mystery

his investigation. He interrogated all the passengers, took their names and addresses, and permitted them to go their way. Some passengers who left the plane here, had not been questioned, however.

Officials of American Airlines Inc., operators of the plane, had asserted that Stewardess Rosemary Griffith, 24, had been found unconscious in the women's lounge. They permitted no outsiders to talk to her in a local hospital, but quoted her as saying that a man had entered, demanded the key to the baggage compartment, then slugged her before she could see him. On the floor, before she lost consciousness, she swallowed the key to be sure that he couldn't get it.

Last night United Press reporters learned from a postal inspector and from John Oman, 2nd, of Nashville, that Miss Griffith was found not in the women's lounge but in the baggage compartment. Oman said his son, Lieut. John Oman, 3rd, had been a passenger on the plane, had seen the girl in the baggage compartment. Oman, 3rd, had gone to the military maneuvers at Camp Selby, Miss., and was not immediately available for comment. In Memphis, Roy Mitchell, assistant operations manager of the air lines, said it was possible that Miss Griffith had been found "partly in the ladies lounge and partly in the baggage compartment" because the two doors adjoined.

There was no explanation of how the baggage compartment door could be unlocked after she had swallowed the key to keep it from being unlocked or what caused her to believe that it would be better for her to swallow the key than run the slightest risk of it falling into unauthorized hands.

Woodrow Woods, a taxi driver, told United Press reporters that he drove a "nervous man" from the airport to the railroad station soon after the plane, with the unconscious girl, arrived here Wednesday night. The man said he was taking a train to Birmingham. Airline officials said they "knew" this man. They did not identify him.

Negro Youth Admits Attack Upon Woman

FORT WORTH, Aug. 9 (AP) — A negro youth, who officers said admitted maltreating and attacking a young expectant mother at Grandview, Tex., yesterday, is in the Tarrant county jail.

Officers planned to file charges today at Cleburne, Tex.

The youth was brought here from Cleburne last night as feeling mounted in the Grandview area.

The woman, wife of a Grandview business man, was brought to a hospital here in a critical condition. Part of a broken ice pick was embedded in her chest.

Officers visiting the woman's home, found a window weight, the broken ice pick and a broken hammer which they believe had been used during the attack.

LUBBOCK JOURNAL

Alaska Is Defense Outpost; Work Is Rushed On Bases

JUNEAU, Alaska, Aug. 9 (AP) — Alaska, faraway northern territory, suddenly has entered another phase of its vivid history and become a lusty war baby.

Until the German army marched into Paris, Alaska was farther removed from the nearest United States port, in transport time, than was Germany itself. Today it is 7 hours from Seattle, less than 24 hours from New York and Washington, over the aerial seaway just opened by Pan American Airways' Alaska Clipper.

The big 32-passenger, four engined flying boat, withdrawn from the New York-Bermuda run, is making two round trips weekly between Seattle, Ketchikan and Juneau. At Juneau connections are made with daily air services all over the territory.

Over the Clipper route, until it is closed by the sub-arctic winter in mid-October, army and navy officers and engineers are moving northward to supervise construction of the tremendous fortifications and defense works just authorized by Congress.

Defense Network Drawn

The two "bridges from Asia" which might make possible invasion of Alaska, Canada and the United States by way of the Aleutian Islands, from Russia by way of the Seward peninsula, are being protected by an effective series of blockhouses in the form of first-rank submarine, air, naval and army bases.

Northward also over the new sea airway are moving Americans and Canadians interested in the creation of one of the greatest highway projects in the world's history, to connect the United States north through Western Canada and the Yukon with its rich and strategically vital territory of Alaska.

The routes between Asia and Alaska, by which Russia used to administer the new-world territory it finally sold for less than $8,000,000, are being closed presumably for all time. Simultaneously new routes by air and land are being opened southward to the United States over a turbulent topography that up to a few years ago seemed impossible to conquer.

The sudden opening of Pan-Air's clipper service to Alaska represented an ingenious hurdle over obstacles which were delaying the opening of the long-projected commercial air connection, and cut the four-day steamer route (used by 50,000 Americans last year) to 7 hours.

War Problem Faced

Pan-American lines for some time planned to fly non-stop land planes from Seattle to Alaska, but have been forced to wait completion of adequate airports in the difficult terrain of the sub-Arctic end of the run, and has been further faced with the problem of flying commercially over a nation engaged in war—Canada.

Use of the big Sikorski flying boat solved both problems. The Alaska Clipper departs from and lands on the waters of Seattle, Ketchikan and Juneau, and neatly avoids the point of traversing warring Canada by flying up the Pacific some 10 miles offshore for the entire length of the Canadian coast. Even so, passengers are requested not to attempt to take pictures of the Canadian coastal terrain from the portholes of the Clipper.

Five major defense centers are under construction in Alaska, to employ, as the work accelerates, more than 5,000 men.

The regular defense force of the territory, consisting principally of two companies at Chilcoot Barracks, Skagway, is being increased many-fold. The army will not reveal the eventual personnel figure, but admits that a single transport recently arrived at Anchorage from Seattle with enough men in the one move to triple Alaska's previous military strength.

Three Navy, Two Army Bases

Of the defense centers now under construction, three are for the navy and two for the army. The navy's program consists of a $6,500,000 air base, plus army defenses at Kodiak; $2,500,000 air base at Sitka; $2,900,000 submarine base at Dutch Harbor, out on the eastern trip of the Aleutians.

The army is working three shifts daily to complete its $4,000,000 air training station at Fairbanks within a year. Primary purpose of the station is to accustom American fliers to northern flying conditions.

Largest single military project in Alaska is the army's great new base at Anchorage, for which $9,000,000 has been appropriated.

All the suddenly-intensified activity in Alaska is not American. "Asiatic espionage is in evidence," an army officer said, smilingly, "but we know who our visitors are, what they're doing, and they don't see much more than we want them to. We even take a look around ourselves once in a while; for instance, we are quite aware of what Russia is doing 'secretly' on Diomede Island."

Arctic Highway Pushed

Topping the combined military and naval program in scope, however, is the $50,000,000 Arctic highway plan. This is a "triple threat" program intended to tie Alaska to the mother country from a defense standpoint, to furnish a possible all-year artery for movement of the territory's $100,000,000 annual commerce with the United States, and also as a magnet for tourists.

"The road is needed for the simple and vital purpose of linking one part of the United States to another," said Gov. Ernest Gruening. "It will serve commercial and military purposes, and from the tourist's standpoint will in Southeastern Alaska traverse the most beautiful scenery in the North American continent."

A meeting of the International Highway Commission, consisting of five Canadians and five Americans, is to be called soon by Rep. Warren G. Magnuson, chairman, to decide the routing and the financing of the northern end.

Rep. Magnuson arrived in Seattle June 28 from Washington, and planned to go on to Juneau in connection with the highway project.

From Seattle To Fairbanks

The road will be 2,200 miles in length, from Seattle to Fairbanks. The original estimated cost of $27,000,000 has been raised to approximately $55,000,000 by enlargement of the plan because of war conditions. Canada already has completed approximately 1,000 miles of its section of the route, from the American boundary to Hazelton, B. C., 750 miles north of Vancouver. The roadway when completed will be 24 feet wide and gravel surfaced.

Canada has appropriated an additional $50,000 for surveys north of Hazelton, while the United States has $16,000 available for its own surveys over a proportionately smaller link in Alaska proper.

Next meeting of the commission, when called by Magnuson, will be for the dual purpose of deciding upon the routing between Hazelton and Fairbanks, and for preparation of a formula for financing construction.

The formula will be presented jointly to the Canadian House of Parliament and to the American Congress. Because of the large section already constructed by Canada and that nation's impaired financial position due to the war, it seems possible that the United States will be asked to advance all remaining funds and to cover Canada's share on a loan basis.

Throng Of 4,000 Being Expected At All-Star Classic In Amarillo Tonight

Texas Title Is At Stake In Battle Of Two Babes

Hubbers Again Wallop Oilers To Pare Lead

With the first three places in WTNM circuit standings more closely packed than at any previous time this season, league observers today are predicting that the wrangle battle for supremacy before the Shaughnessy playoff is in the immediate offing.

Pampa's Pampering Oilers continue to lead the league by no mere, but everyone in the north Panhandle city from Manager Grover Seitz on down possibly are wondering today what manner of spell apparently has shed advantage the leaders enjoyed before their visit south more than a week ago.

Ends Tonight

Tonight, the circuit gets a rest—with the exception of the All-Stars who must perform in the second "dream" game in Amarillo. Saturday, a quartet of tussles will find the eight members squaring off for things to come, five of those eight still remaining well founded and high hopes of entering the Shaughnessy in September.

The Lubbocks took their second decision of the three-game stand with Pampa, 5 to 4, Pat Bahr chalking up his seventh straight mound triumph, his fourteenth win of the season against five losses.

Knuckle Wins Again

Dobbins furnished the Hubs with the victory, the defending champions scoring twice in the second, twice in the third and showing in the winning counter in the eighth. Young 17-year-old Montgomery was the victim, Wilbert Dunlap relieving him in the ninth stanza.

The victory moved the Hubs to within 2 1-2 games of the leaders, still 1 1-2 notches behind the Gold Sox who trounced Midland's Cowboys, 15 to 5, on Billy's nine-hit hurling. The division brought Manager Bubba Jonnard within two games of the Oilers.

Ramon, Roger Stable

At Borger, the Lobos snapped an impressive Gusher winning streak by taking the nightcap of a double bill, 4 to 2, after losing the opener 3 to 2.

Wiley Moore received credit for the victory in the seven inning curtain raiser, defensive play giving Ramon's Dobie the nod over Crane in the finale, each allowing seven safeties.

Ernie Perry, a star hurler in the league when it first got under way in a big way in '38, tossed no-hit ball for six innings to set Odessa down in order before groups piled in the final three chukkers gave him a score, although his Clovis mates triumphed in the seven inning affair, 6 to 3.

Sportometer

Fisticuffs Start Tonight

By Collier Parris

BEFORE EVEN MENTIONING that there's to be a fuss out at the Sportarena tonight between the two Babes, Hunt and Ritchie, and before saying a word about the super baseball attraction at Amarillo tonight between the All-Stars of the South and the All-Stars of the North of the West Texas-New Mexico league, we will state that there is an important softball game out at Fox Park tonight between the Lubbock Central Labor team and the Denver City team.

The game is in the semi-final round of the District tournament, and the winner will slide into the finals Saturday night against Dalhart Freighters, and the winner of that will compete in the State tournament at Abilene. To the softballers and their fans, these games are just as important as all the fights and baseball games you could frame up.

Now, getting along to the Big Events—but before doing that we must say that women golfers of the city are having a whale of a big time in their current City Open tournament at Lubbock Country club these days—it gives a fist fight here tonight in which the heavyweight championship of the state is at stake.

The bout will be the third between the two principals within the last year and few months. Draw decisions were handed down in the first two fights, last of which was staged at Carlsbad in February. We do not anticipate a draw tonight, although that would be about the easiest way out of a prognostication sum. They've fought two draws, and they're both in better shape for this fight than for either of the others.

They represent two schools of boxing thought. Hunt and Ritchie. The big square-jawed veteran from Oklahoma (but actually a native of Texas) is a boxer; Ritchie a slugger. Hunt's hope lies in outsmarting, outmaneuvering the state champion. Hunt will do a lot of infighting, a lot of hanging on, in efforts to tire Ritchie out. He will do a lot of plain and fancy blocking and counter-punching Ritchie will try to keep Hunt away with his newly found left hand, and bide his time for the kill with his terrific right. He will try for a knockout early in the game, and if there's an opening, he'll get it in the third round, possibly earlier. If the fight goes past three rounds, however, it's likely to go the full distance.

On the basis of Ritchie's youth and his vastly improved style and increased stamina, as compared with Hunt's greater age and natural slowing down, we're picking Ritchie to win tonight, by a knockout.

But we are reserving the right to appear unshocked, unsurprised if the fight ends in a draw, or if Hunt should win.

WHATEVER HAPPENS, tonight's card should serve to heat up the patrons for some real rough and tumble fisticuffs next Monday and Tuesday nights at the same arena.

We mean the District TAAF championship boxing tournament, in which are entered some right classy scrappers from here and around. You'll like those fights, because they'll be on the order of Golden Gloves.

Barring another accident or misbehavior of the elements, the postponed All-Star game of the WT-NM league will take the baseball spotlight of the section tonight. It's tabbed for Malin Park, Amarillo, and if the players perform for Managers Jodie Tate and Bubba Jonnard like they do for their own regular managers, it ought to be a whiz of a ball game.

The Southern pitchers, Loyd Patterson of Lamesa, Gene Stack of Lubbock, Willard Ramsdell of Odessa and Rankin Johnson of Midland, have won a total of 63 games, latest official returns show, compared with 67 won by the Northern hurlers, Gus Hallbourg and Rex Dilbeck of Pampa, Russ Crider of Amarillo and Clem Hausman of Borger.

Batting averages of the players selected by the fans in the July poll may give a little more edge to the North, but we have a tiny hunch that Jodie Tate and his Rebels will "pull something" and come out ahead.

PICTURED ABOVE in this column is a young lady to whom is due a heap of respect and admiration by all sportsmen and sportswomen and by all non-participating fans who admire courage and fearlessness in people. Miss Etoile McLeod never had a golf club in her hand until a week or so ago, had never played so much as one hole of golf, let alone a round or part of a round, until Wednesday.

Then she set out to qualify for a place in the Women's City Open tournament, now raging at Country club. Her first trip around the course, mind you, was her qualifying round for her first tournament. The score was 'way up there, but that doesn't matter. It didn't matter to her, because she came right back yesterday and played her scheduled match in the first round of competitive play. She lost the match—didn't win a hole, in fact—but she didn't quit until the round was over, and she'll be back out there in the consolation round today. A handsome

Fighting Eyes Of Texas Will Focus On City

Texas' fighting eyes will be focused on Lubbock tonight.

State heavyweight champion Babe Ritchie and challenger Babe Hunt, two of the Southwest's biggest boxing behemoths, are the reason for the widespread interest.

The two tangle about 10 o'clock at the Sportarena with the Texas heavy crown at stake in addition to a few assorted personal issues each claims he has to settle.

Sexton To Referee

Initial official act for the big show was booked this afternoon when the two weigh in at the Downtown gym. The former Lubbock High tackle expects to enter the ring at 202 pounds, Hunt scaling 192, his trimmest fighting form.

Third man for the main go will be O. J. "Bo" Sexton, thus exploding what apparently was another publicity stunt by the two mutual enemies — each having bickered earlier in the week over who should officiate. But as it developed, neither the champion nor challenger had any voice in the selection of a referee according to contract. Preliminaries will be handled by Henly Hilburn, who has turned in an excellent job thus far in matches at the arena.

A likely visitor for the title tussle will be Travis McCall, first assistant in the matter of supervising wrestling and boxing in Texas.

Promoter L. D. "Pup" Thomas has arranged a supporting card of four, possibly five, matches which promises entertainment of a humorous if not talented variety, the entire program to be topped off with a negro "battle royal" featuring five colored boys, four small, one big.

Starts At 8:30

Starting time is 8:30 o'clock for the first preliminary, a four-rounder. The main event should get under way about 10 o'clock.

Sonny Smyer, Lorenzo's larruping slugger, brings his Sunday slinging back to the city in an 8-round semi-final go with a newcomer to Lubbock's bash boulevard, one "Buzz" Wood of Ponca City, Okla. The scales will read 140 pounds for Sonny, one pound more for "Buzz," who comes here with a reputation for being able to take care of himself in anybody's ring.

Linda Meets Sessums

Immediately preceding this bit of leather tossing will be 6-rounder featuring Filipino Frisco Linda, former flyweight titlist of the Philippine islands and West Coast sensation of several seasons back, and Tahoka's Lewis Sessums. Veteran of 330 professional skirmishes, the 115-pound Linda will be top heavy favorite to polish off the acrobatic Sessums before the limit bell sounds.

At least one four-rounder and possibly two will raise the curtain on the show, the "battle royal" to climax proceedings.

Little To Compare

Little fuel could be added to the fire which already has been burning around the Ritchie-Hunt scrap. The two have met twice before, once here last summer in which the matter ended in a 10-round disputed draw and the last time during February over in Carlsbad when the raising of both fighters' arms brought down the house.

Neither has fought any outstanding boxers recently, with the exception of Ritchie's ill-fated two-round knockout at the hands of Madcap Maxie Baer here last September. Consequently there is little "dope" on which to compare the two.

Both Are Confident

Confident and crafty Tony Herrera, the former Lubbock High athlete's manager, says Ritchie will win in short order. The champ backs him up with a cocky remark to the effect that he will have to do little more than raise his hands. On the other side of the fence, Hunt maintains that a new champion will be crowned.

"It won't go the distance," Hunt has warned.

So, it's just a matter of getting the odds and taking one's choice.

Thomas announced that two special buses would leave the city bus station at 8 o'clock for the North College Sportarena.

Season Ticket Sales Are To Start Today

Heralding the fast approaching football campaign, season ducats for the Texas Tech home games—five of them—went on the market today at the Hilton hotel ticket booth in the lobby.

Graduate Manager "Mule" Dowell has been taking ticket reservations for several days but the actual pasteboards will go on sale today. Season tickets will sell for $6.60, boxes going for $7.50.

Dowell will be in the Hilton hotel ticket booth from 9 o'clock each morning until 3 o'clock each afternoon and will take care of fans' ticket desires on the spot. The Raiders first home game will be October 5 when they take on Loyola of the Coast, a team that holds three victories over the Scarlet and Black. It will be a nocturnal affair. Purchasers of season tickets will save 30 per cent on their ducats, according to Dowell.

Favorites In Women's City Open Are To Tangle Today

Akey-Paulger And Dean-Farmer Tilts Share Spotlight

Semi-final competition in the current Women's City Open today narrows the field down to a pair of contenders in each flight who will tangle for respective titles Saturday.

Not plagued with upsets of a major nature thus far, the favorites today must see their ranks somewhat riddled—seeing as how any one of the quartet left in the running for the crown being defended by Mrs. J. R. Farmer of Meadowbrook might be termed in the select list of contenders.

Akey, Farmer Win Easily

Second round play today was to have found Mrs. Charles Akey, medalist with an 84, tangling with Mrs. Ruby Paulger while Mrs. C. L. Dean, former titlist, mixed it up with Mrs. Farmer. Consolation competition sent Mrs. Cliff Widener, loser yesterday to Mrs. Akey, 3 and 1, against Mrs. Fenner Tubbs, victim of Mrs. Paulger, 2 and 1. The other consolation contest found Mrs. J. H. Stiles, who lost Thursday to Mrs. Farmer, 4 and 3, playing Mrs. A. G. Finnell, defeated yesterday by Mrs. Dean, 5 and 4.

Highlight of the day's activities was Mrs. Culver Hill's hole-in-one on No. 17.

Opening battles in the first flight saw Mrs. Lee Hubby win from Mrs. Olan Key, 1 up; Mrs. E. A. Henry defeat Miss Ruth Ford, 2 and 1; Mrs. W. F. Helwig eliminate Mrs. M. L. Waldrop, Jr., 2 and 1, and Mrs. Guy McAfee defeat Mrs. Homer Hall, 1 up. In second round matches, Mrs. Hubby plays Mrs. Henry; Mrs. Helwig meets Mrs. McAfee, and in consolations, Mrs. Key plays Miss Ford and Mrs. Waldrop meets Mrs. Hall.

Boone Is Winner

In the second flight, Miss Mildred Boone won, 1 up, from Mrs. Culver Hill, despite Mrs. Hill's ace on No. 17. Probably the only ace ever made in tournament play here. Mrs. Hill's was fired from a four-iron across the creek, landed on the green and dribbled to the cup. It squared the match, but Mrs. Hill got in trouble on the 18th and lost to Miss Boone.

Paulger Driving Champion

Other second flight results: Mrs. H. R. Fluke defeated Mary Jarrott, 1 up; Mrs. Bob Crawford won from Mrs. Wright Kerr, 5 and 4, and Mrs. Mark Schwab advanced on a bye. Miss Boone plays Mrs. Fluke, and Mrs. Crawford meets Mrs. Schwab in the second round, with Mrs. Hill playing Miss Jarrott and Mrs. Kerr drawing a bye in the consolations.

Considerable interest lay in the special nine-hole flight for beginners. Mrs. W. H. Freeman defeated Mrs. Barnie Rushing, 1 up; Mrs. Oliver Thomas defeated Mrs. Vance Swaim 1 up; Mrs. Ernest Ohnemus won from Miss Etoile McLeod, and Miss Betty Ann McAfee won from Joyce Halsey. In the second round, Freeman meets Thomas, Ohnemus plays McAfee, and in consolations, Rushing plays Swaim, McLeod meets Halsey.

Mrs. Paulger was declared winner of the driving contest, with a best drive of 179, and Mrs. E. A. Henry won the putting contest, for the 18-hole flight players, and Mrs. Ohnemus was winner for the nine-hole flighters. Mrs. Farmer was second in the driving contest for the "veterans."

Baseball Tourney Will Open Sunday

25,000 Fans Howl In Glee At Film Feud

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 9 (AP)—It is always difficult to say whether Hollywood's annual baseball burlesque should carry a sports or dramatic heading, and last night's hilarious production between the heroes and comedians of the screen was no exception.

Twenty-five thousand men, women and autograph hunters jammed Wrigley field, and what they — and Buck Jones' horses — did to the park will be further determined tonight when the Los Angeles ball club takes over for its regular chores.

Andy Rounds Second

Suffice to say, Mr. Wrigley's groundkeeper took one look at Andy Devine in a stagecoach drawn by four squealing nags rounding second base and hurried home in a state of nervous collapse.

Had he waited, he would have seen Buck's equine entourage arrive in a cloud of dust on the pitcher's mound, play musical chairs around the bases, and depart in favor of 200 Leroy Prinz dancing girls and boys, all in high heels.

The crowd overflowed into the outfield, and gradually edged in to the base lines. Everyone was perfectly safe that close to the batter's box, because few of the cinema idols could hit the ball out of the infield.

The Batting Star

Dennis Morgan was the batting star, hitting one of Broderick Crawford's pitches clear into short right field. The three stooges played third base, all at the same time, armed with butterfly nets.

The final score was something like 4 1-2 for the comedians — they had a midget, Jerry Maringe, make one run — to 3 plus for the leading men. Boris Karloff, in complete Frankenstein makeup, tallied once for the heroes, the comedians letting him round the bases without molestation, and their plus run came on a homer by the invisible man, who wasn't there at all.

Or maybe it was Yehudi. It wasn't quite clear.

With their ultimate goal participation in the state playoff, six of the section's hottest aggregations tee off at Fox Park Sunday afternoon with a double bill that inaugurates the city's 1940 District TAAF baseball tournament.

Play then will be suspended until Wednesday night so as not to conflict with the District TAAF boxing tournament slated at the Sportarena Monday and Tuesday nights.

Opens At 2 O'clock

Opening contest of the tourney is scheduled for 2 o'clock, Dr. Peppers meeting Ropes, class of the Lubbock County amateur league as the Bottlers currently are undefeated in circuit play, the Ropes nine having suffered one setback. Second game on the afternoon's bill will send the Lubbock Seven-Up boys against Manager Fred Rich's ambitious Richmen.

Two teams, the Lubbock Sandies and Wolfforth drew first round byes.

Winner of the Lubbock district is scheduled to play the champion of the Dallas district in the first of a series of inter-city or inter-district playoff to decide the ultimate state champion.

Fifteen Teams Now Certified For Play

WICHITA, Kas., Aug. 9 (AP)—Fifteen of the 32 teams in the 1940 national semipro baseball tournament which gets underway a week from tonight have been certified to Ray Dumont, president.

The qualifiers include Duncan, Okla., Halliburtons, defending champions; Mt. Pleasant, Tex., Cubs, 1939 runnerup.

Houston Buffaloes Lead By 10 Games

(By The Associated Press)

Houston's bounding Buffaloes stretched their Texas league lead over San Antonio to 10 games last night by sweeping a doubleheader with Fort Worth, 5-0 and 4-1.

Hank Nowak pitched three hit ball for the shutout.

Oklahoma City's Indians nipped San Antonio 4-3.

Jupiter Pluvius won a scoreless doubleheader at Beaumont. After a 10-inch rain, league officials decided to cancel the twin tilt with Dallas since it was the Rebels' last appearance of the season at Beaumont.

Tulsa's game at Shreveport also was rained out.

Central Labor To Meet Denver City

Lubbock's District A. S. A. softball tournament—to be climaxed Saturday night—continues at Fox Park tonight with a single contest on the menu, and that with the ladies as guests of the management.

With Tahoka's delegation already out of the running, another team will be eliminated tonight when the crack Denver City crew attempts to battle its way into the finals. Central Labor Union of Lubbock, victor over Tahoka last night, 9 to 0, will offer the opposition for L. D. Cunningham. Denver City's sensational one-armed hurler, and his mates, who met their match last night.

Starts At 8:30

The umpire shouts "play ball" for the single contest at 8:30 o'clock.

Tomorrow night, the winner will be decided when the undefeated Dalby aggregation takes on the Central Labor-Denver City victor in one or two games, as may be necessary.

Second game of last night's double header saw the Freighters toss a bomb into pre-tournament speculation by upsetting the strong Denver City boys and their mound ace who watched his three-hit, 16 strikeout performance nullified by a deluge of wild pitches, passed balls and errors. Dalby won, 10 to 1 after Tahoka had gone down before Central Labor in the opener.

McKnight In Form

The verdict for the Freighter hurler was a personal triumph for E. J. McKnight, their star hurler. He also twirled three-hit ball, receiving fine support to turn back the invaders. The setback marked Cunningham's first in seven tournament appearances here.

After two singles and a stolen base scored a man in the first, McKnight never allowed another man to advance past second base, retiring the last eight men in order.

Cunningham walked the first two men to face him and mishandled a bunt to fill the bases. Then three passed balls and a single by Horace White scored three runs.

Four Runs, No Hits

The contest eased along scorelessly then until the sixth. Then the Denver City defense blew a fuse. Four errors plus a few more battery misplays scored four runs without a hit. Two more came across in the seventh, Lefty Bettes singling them across.

Flawless fielding by Central Labor turned Wayne Sullivan's three-hit pitching into a shutout job. Two walks put a runner on second in the fourth, but other than that, no Tahoka man passed first base.

Pigg, Taylor Lead

Durwood Morehead's two-run single bounced Central Labor off to a sudden first-frame lead, and they added to that score consistently. Percy Pigg and Houston Taylor each got two hits to lead the batting for the winners.

The line scores:

CENTRAL LABOR	310 202 1	9 9 0
TAHOKA	000 000 0	0 3 5

Sullivan and B. Pigg, Evans and Holland, Bovell.

DALBY	300 004 3	10 3 1
DENVER CITY	100 000 0	1 3 6

McKnight and Hilliard; Cunningham and Bryan.

Joe DiMaggio Is Great Center Fielder But Brother Dominic Proves That He Is Better

BOSTON, Aug. 9 (AP) — Joe DiMaggio of the New York Yankees is a great center fielder but his little brother Dominic, of Boston's Red Sox, is better.

The famous brothers faced one another in center field for the first time in their big league careers while Dom's Sox were copping four out of five from Joe's fading Yanks.

And it was Dominic all the way — from the time he dumped a single in front of brother Joe in the first game until he raced into deep left center to catch Joe's towering drive for the final putout in the ninth yesterday.

Joe was brilliant as ever afield, and his big bat smashed out a clean-cut .428 average over the five-game stretch.

But little brother, who's worth Tom Yawkey's $75,000 just for this series, was making game-saving clutches and whipping the ball in so fast that Yankee base-runners stopped dead and hustled back to the bags. Dom was no weakling at the plate either. He averaged .611 for the series.

Take a look at the figures:

	AB	R	H	O	A	E	Avg.
Dom	18	6	11	14	1	0	.611
Joe	21	4	9	12	0	0	.428

The Red Sox are chuckling. They've taken plenty of ribbing from the Yankee front office because they passed up Joe after hearing he had a trick knee. The Sox are doing the ribbing now. The Yanks passed Dom because he wore glasses.

Northern Club Seeks Revenge For '39 Loss

(Special To The Journal)

AMARILLO, Aug. 9.—Nightmares of the once postponed game out of their minds, All-Star nines of the West Texas-New Mexico circuit clash here tonight in the second annual "dream" classic.

A throng of 4,000 or more persons has been predicted. The same select machines which fans chose in a special poll in mid-season again will be the participants for the game which a wind and rain storm caused to be postponed from the original July 20 date.

To Be Broadcast

The contest will get under way at 8:30 o'clock. Station KFYO in Lubbock will carry the game to the southern half of the league.

The Yankees will be out for the Southerners' scalps, seeking revenge for the 10 to 9, eleven inning licking the Rebels plastered on them at Parris Field in Lubbock last year in the initial classic.

Players, positions and home teams of the Southern All-Stars follow: manager — Jodie Tate, Lamesa; pitchers—Gene Stack, Lubbock; Lloyd Patterson, Lamesa; Rankin Johnson, Midland, and Willard Ramsdell, Odessa; catchers — Vince Castino, Lubbock, and Timer Pride, Lamesa; first base—Ben Drake, Lubbock; second base—Steve Niedziela, Lubbock; third base—Jodie Beeler, Lamesa; shortstop — Don Wolin, Odessa; left field—Red Hood, Lamesa; center field — Bill Garbe; right field—Ed Schweda, Lubbock; utility—Sam Hale, Midland.

Northern players, positions and their home teams include: manager —Bubba Jonnard, Amarillo; pitchers —Russell "Kid" Crider, Amarillo; Clem Hausman, Borger; Rex Dilbeck and Darwin Hallbourg, Pampa; catchers—Dick Ratliff, Amarillo, and Ernie Potocar, Borger; first base—Dutch Prather, Pampa; second base —Bobby Decker, Borger; third base —Bill Altenburg, Amarillo; shortstop—Dick Adkins, Clovis; left field —Gordon Nell, Borger; center field —Grover Seitz, Pampa; right field —Johnny Stone, Clovis; utility—Sam Malvica, Pampa.

Mike Will Be A Lone Wolf

NEW YORK, Aug. 9 (AP) — If and when Mike Jacobs buys the Brooklyn baseball Dodgers — and Mike says it's more "when" than "if" right now — the only "syndicate" involved will be Michael Strat... Jacobs, himself.

Laughing at the talk that he's only one of a group in the deal, "Uncle Mike" explained today that up to now it has been strictly a "lone wolf" proposition.

Now Talking Price

"Why should I take a lot of other men in the thing?" he pointed out. "The bank (Brooklyn Trust company, which controls 51 percent of the Dodger stock) came to me as an individual and started the negotiations. We've reached the stage now where we're going to get down to talking price.

"If it looks like a good thing from a business standpoint, I'd be pretty silly to cut a lot of other guys in."

Incidentally, Mike has no idea of giving up fight promoting just because he may own a big league ball club.

"I get too much of a kick out of putting on fights, and maneuvering around," he said. "Why should I quit?"

Wants Whole Thing

Jacobs insisted he must have the club 100 percent — lock, stock, and barrel.

"I want whole hog or nuthin', he said today, "because when I own a club and want to buy a ball player, I don't want a board of directors or a lot of stockholders fooling around with the idea for days. I want to work fast, walk right in there and get the player, quick, before the price goes up."

And, yet, some of the boys say he doesn't know anything about baseball.

Comedian Ed Kennedy Hot In Golf Play

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 9. (AP)—Bruce McCormick, state amateur golf titleholder, bowed in the Riviera invitational golf tournament yesterday to Comedian Edgar Kennedy, 3 and 2.

Kennedy, famed for his "slow burn," was downright "hot" against the defending champ.

There's A Dead Game Guy Down In The Texas League Who Just Refuses To Admit He's Quits

BY HENRY McLEMORE
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—This concerns a telegram from a dead game guy who refuses to admit that he has a dead, game, arm.

In its fewer than 150 words the telegram tells a story that is as old as baseball itself—the story of a star who has been detoured off the glory road and is walking once again the hot and dusty trail through the minors.

And Here It Is

It came in for me today from Dizzy Dean, and here it is just as he penciled it in the Western Union office down in Shreveport, Louisiana:

"The fans have been great with me down here. Have been able to draw in full houses every time I have pitched. Couple or three times my arm has been nearer par than it was last three years. Am working very hard. Pitching in my turn every three or four days.

"My arm doesn't hurt me the last four or five times I have pitched but it isn't as strong as I think it will be. I am getting in shape to where I can go through nine innings without tiring. I am pitching just about the same delivery as I always did, though maybe not quite as high. Of course I want to go back to the majors. That's why I am down here working so hard. I would like to break down that old theory that 'they never come back'."

Diz Has Won Seven

Since the Cubs sent him off to the Tulsa Oilers of the Texas league Diz has won seven games and lost but three, which would indicate that his optimism is based on something more substantial than the hope that springs eternal in the breasts of pitchers who have gone to the showers too often. They play baseball in the Texas league, fast baseball, and a pitcher doesn't win seven games in the length of time Dean has just because he has a trunkful of clippings and a couple of World series rings.

A sure indication that his lame arm has improved since he left Wrigley field is to be found in Dizzy's statement that he is using very nearly the same pitching motion he employed when he was "fogging 'em through" for the Cardinals and was baseball's Mr. Big. When he left for the minors Dizzy was mighty close to being a side-arm chunker. He just couldn't get his aching arm high enough to use the full, loose delivery that was, so to speak, his birthright. He still doesn't pitch as "high" as he once did, he admits, but the inference is that it won't be long.

Taking Regular Turn

It's just a guess, but perhaps the thing that has helped most in Dean's effort to regain what may be properly termed the dizzy heights, is regular work. He's taking his regular turn out there on the hill, and all the pampering and petting and hothouse protection of Wrigley field is finished. He's back to a schedule like the one he had in St. Louis under Frisch, a schedule that doesn't give him much time for fretting about himself and thinking himself into new and painful miseries. In Chicago he pitched every ten days or so, which was scarcely often enough to determine whether his arm was really sore, or just a victim of mould, rust and cobwebs.

Rear back, Diz, and let 'er fly.

Red Ink Now Being Erased

CHICAGO, Aug. 9 (AP) — Night baseball, with a neat assist from a tight pennant race, is rapidly erasing the red ink from the books of American league clubs.

Even the St. Louis Browns, worst drawing club in the circuit, face a fine chance of breaking even this season for the first time in recent years, mainly because the team has 14 games under lights.

Prediction Fails

When permission was granted the Browns to play 14 night games instead of the usual seven, the prediction was made on all sides that day baseball was doomed eventually. But President William Harridge of the American league says club officials have not changed their attitude toward the night game.

"As far as I can tell," says Harridge, "our owners haven't changed their minds and I think if a vote were taken today on the matter, we still would favor only seven night games per team."

Three Games Slated In Twilight League

The week's Business-Professional twilight softball play will reach a climax this afternoon with the three concluding games on the program. Competition will be resumed Monday afternoon.

American league contests find the Federals meeting the Baptists on Field No. 1, Courthouse and Horn Bible Class clashing on Field No. 2. In the senior circuit, only one tussle is scheduled—the Carpenters and Public School Faculty meeting on Field No. 3.

Thursday's games found the Lawyers, Tech Faculty, A.B.C. and the Lions emerging victorious from hotly contested engagements.

Hitting Parade Staged

Bill Street and Bill Davis, the latter with a homer, were the batting stars as Tech defeated the Doctors, 15 to 12. Williams starred afield for the winners, Lee turning in the top performance defensively for the losers. Winning pitcher was James Huffman, Berl Huffman catching. Thousand and Mansell were victims. The other American loop contest found the Lawyers plastering a 20 to 13 licking on the Christians. Ralph Brock pitched, Mike Crenshaw caught for the Lawyers, Grady West pitching, Gray catching for the losers. Shelby Boling led the winning attack with two homers, John Hudspeth shining afield.

Closest game of the day was A. B. C.'s 4 to 3 decision over Asbury. Frank French losing in a mound duel to Joe Bass, Simril catching for the winners. The Lions' victim was the Jaycees ten, 17 to 7. Hop Toles hurling winning ball, R. B. McAlister catching. Tom Murphey pitched, Hugh Dunlap caught for the losers. A. C. White topped batting for the Jaycees, for four, one homer included; McAlister and J. B. Beauchamp pacing the winners, each with four for four.

NEW ZEALAND'S ISLANDS

South Island, New Zealand, is the 11th largest island in the world, with an area of 58,500 square miles; North Island, New Zealand, ranks 13th, with 44,500 square miles of area.

Feller Can't Pitch Indians To Title All Alone

Tribe Muffs Good Chance To Take Lead

BY JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's as evident as the headlines in your newspaper today that Bobby Feller can't pitch the Cleveland Indians into the American league championship singlehanded — or even with two hands.

The famous fireballer stands out as the best hurler in baseball, with 19 victories already in the bag, but the Indians are in second place just the same and unless they can figure out something else, they may stay there.

Chance To Seize Lead

Cleveland had a chance to take over the lead yesterday. The Detroit Tigers were idle and the Tribe was down for a doubleheader with the seventh-place St. Louis Browns.

Feller took care of winning the first game, 7-4, pitching shutout ball for five innings until his teammates got him a working margin. Then came the nightcap and even with Johnny Humphries pitching three-hit ball the Tribe couldn't capture the crucial game. Elden Auker of the Browns gave up eight hits, but he kept them scattered and singled home one of the runs that won the game, 2-1.

The Boston Red Sox reinforced their third place position by whipping the New York Yankees again 6-5, bunching seven of their 13 hits in the last two innings and notching the winning tally with two out in the ninth on Manager Joe Cronin's single.

Athletics Stop Senators

The Philadelphia Athletics beat the Washington Senators 6-4 in ten innings. Frank Hayes delivered a pinch double to tie the score in the ninth and in the tenth a single and two more doubles provided the winning margin.

An even more breathtaking spectacle was the Brooklyn Dodgers' 6-3 triumph over the New York Giants on Dolph Camilli's 12th home run in the 12th inning. Two were out and two were on at the time.

The game served as a savory introduction to the majors for Lefty Wesley Flowers, just up from Louisville. He took over the Brooklyn pitching chores in the seventh and hurled three-hit shutout ball for the remaining six innings.

Bucky Walters checked the skid of the Cincinnati Reds by scattering nine hits so effectively that he shutout the Chicago Cubs after the first inning and won 3-1.

In the only other National league game the Boston Bees prodded the Phillies into their ninth consecutive defeat, 6-2. Jim Tobin, apparently recovered from his arm trouble, allowed only seven hits and Eddie Miller helped with a homer. He now has hit one in each of the last five games.

Stewart Is Favorite In New Mexico Play

LAS CRUCES, N. M., Aug. 9 (U.P.) Verne (Spec) Stewart, the long driving amateur from Roswell, went into the first round of the New Mexico amateur golf tournament today the favorite. Stewart carded a 65, seven under par, for the leading qualifying score yesterday.

Six strokes behind Stewart in second place was Ralph Petty, of Carrizozo, who carded a 71. Johnnie Ritter, Las Cruces, turned in a 72 for third low.

Ed Armstrong, of Hobbs, last year's runner-up, slipped to a 74, as did another favorite, Jake Walker, also of Hobbs.

The 1941 tournament was awarded to Roswell.

1939 Titleholders Meet Runnerups

DENVER, Aug. 9 (AP) — It's the 1939 champion against the 1939 runnerup in tonight's game at the Denver Post's 25th anniversary baseball tournament—and the winner may be the team to pull down top money when the last tourney out is scribbled in the scorebook next week.

Enid, Okla., the defending titleholder, will clash at 8:30 o'clock, Mountain standard time, with Buford, Ga.

Each has won three and lost none, with the Oklahomans showing a string of 10 consecutive tournament wins over a two-year span.

The team from the Yellowstone park gateway, Cody, Wyo., goes out at 1 p. m. against Mount Pleasant, Texas, which has won two and lost one.

Mexico expects a shortage of sugar.

Tricky Course And Hazards To Be Faced

DEL MONTE, Cal., Aug. 9 (U.P.)—Competitors in the 1940 United States Golf Association's women's championships will have to battle not only against their rivals but against tremendous odds in the form of natural hazards.

Setting of this year's competition, to be held Sept. 23 to 28, is the tortuous but magnificent Pebble Beach course bordering the Pacific Ocean at Del Monte. The sea is an unsurpassed water hazard, especially on the seventh hole, which is surrounded on three sides by the Pacific and heavily trapped on the land approach.

Most spectacular of the 18 holes is the eighth where, between the approach and the green, an arm of the sea has etched a deep chasm into which the golf balls of many a champion has fallen.

Deep-Carpeted Fairways

Pebble Beach will be at its best when the country's leading women golfers tee off. The fairways will be carpeted with deep grass, and the greens will be in perfect condition, according to tournament officials.

No California golfer has ever won the U.S.G.A. women's championship, but this year's event may tell a different story. Western women who have played around the Pebble Beach course will have a distinct advantage over the uninitiated from the East on this network of strategically placed traps and natural hazards.

Miss Betty Jameson, of San Antonio, Tex., the defending champion, is one of the most consistently good golfers in America, and must be rated the tournament favorite, but there are several Far Western players qualified to step into her shoes should she falter. Miss Jameson is one of the many entries who never have tackled Pebble Beach.

Miss Hicks Formidable

High in the list of favorites is Elizabeth Hicks of Long Beach, who went to the semi-finals of the women's national at Noroton last August and later defeated Miss Jameson in Florida. Then too, there is Clara Callender, also a Long Beach resident, who started her golfing career on the Monterey Peninsula and knows every inch of the sea-wide course. She returned here last month to set a new women's course record of 74—two over women's par.

Both Miss Hicks and Miss Callender, upon their return to California from Florida, were defeated in the California State championships by Mrs. James Ferrie of Flintridge, Cal., a golfer not known in the East.

Now Mrs. Ferrie is rated as the dark horse of the 1940 competition.

Players who fail to qualify still will have plenty of opportunity to get in some games on the Pebble Beach course. For them, the Women's Golf Association of Northern California has arranged a full program of added events starting Sept. 4 and continuing on through Oct. 3. A similar program is planned by the Women's Southern California Golf Association, starting Oct. 6 in Los Angeles.

YESTERDAY'S HERO—Dolf Camilli, Dodger first baseman who clouted a homer with two mates on base and two out in the twelfth to give Brooklyn its third straight victory over the Giants, 6-3.

Prusoff Pulls Upset Over Frankie Parker

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 9. (AP)—Henry Prusoff was an easy guy to talk to yesterday, especially if you wanted to talk about Bitsy Grant.

Five minutes after his 6-4, 6-3 upset of Frankie Parker in the quarter-final round of the eastern grass court championships, the telephone rang. It was Grant.

Bitsy wanted to tell Prusoff that he had just licked Joe Hunt, the midshipman, 6-3, 3-6, 6-2. Prusoff howled his congratulations into the mouthpiece, turned around and said, "Bitsy's sure a great little fighter. He's got a fighting heart from way back."

That was tribute from an authority, because Prusoff himself had to be more than courageous five years ago when he broke his back in an elevator accident, spent six months in a hospital and listened skeptically to doctors who told him he would never walk again.

Prusoff's semi-final opponent Saturday will be Bobby Riggs, the defending champion, who beat Frank Shields, of New York, 6-8, 6-4, 6-2 yesterday. McNeill, a winner at 6-2, 97, over Gardnar Mulloy meets Grant today.

East Texas League Back Into Action

The East Texas league resumed play today after showers throughout the piney woods circuit postponed all of last night's games.

Jenkins-Montgomery Bout Facing Delay

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 9 (U.P.)—A non-title bout between Lightweight Champion Lew Jenkins and Bob Montgomery of Philadelphia, scheduled for Shibe Park Aug. 19, was expected to be postponed today.

Jenkins was leaving his Pompton Lakes, N. J., training camp yesterday to come here for final workouts when he learned that his mother was critically ill at their home in Sweetwater, Tex. He immediately left by automobile for her bedside.

State Athletic Commissioner Leon Rains was to meet today with Jenkins' manager, Hymie Caplin, to determine whether a postponement was necessary.

Red Murphy Will Be Littlefield Coach

Announcement that A. B. "Red" Murphy, Texas Tech line captain and tackle on the Sun Bowl and Cotton Bowl elevens, has accepted a coaching position with Littlefield High school was made Thursday.

Murphy has resigned his Memphis job, which he held last season, to take over the Littlefield duties. There is a strong possibility that he will take Phillip Harmon, former Texas Tech guard, to Littlefield as his assistant.

Littlefield has bright prospects for one of its best teams in years this fall, a bumper crop of gridiron material coming up.

Bimelech Will Make Last Bid Saturday

CHICAGO, Aug. 9 (U.P.)—Bimelech today entered the thirtieth running of the $40,000 American derby. It may be his last chance to cement the 1940 three-year-old title, but the big news at Washington park was that this time Basil James—not Fred A. Smith—will ride him.

Only four opponents were named to go against the Idle Hour colt tomorrow over a mile and a quarter route of what once was the richest race in America, but three of them were unusually tough. The field included Gallahadion, Mioland, Sirocco and one outsider—Weigh Anchor.

The switch in riders was looked upon as a move that would prove once and for all whether Bimelech's three defeats this season can be attributed to bad rides or a bad horse.

Bimelech never has gone to the post without Smith on his back. Together the son of Black Toney and the little Cuban boy rose from the ranks to the two-year-old title a year ago. Together they won their two first starts this season then Gallahadion came along in the stretch of the Kentucky derby to hand them their first defeat. After that whipping and after both the succeeding ones, Smith received more abuse than his horse.

OVERLIN GETS DECISION

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 9 (U.P.)—Middleweight Champion Ken Overlin outpointed Ben Brown of Atlanta in a 12-round non-title fight last night. The referee, former Heavyweight Champion Jim Braddock, gave Overlin six rounds, Brown two and called four even. There were no knockdowns.

Overlin weighed 161-1-4, Brown 162.

That Girl on Broadway says the most subtle and effective way a man can flatter a woman is to treat her as his equal.

A portly, dignified, middle-aged woman mistakenly took a seat in the smoking compartment of a chair car.

When the gentleman beside her started filling his pipe she was horrified, and said:

"Sir, I'll have you know that smoking always makes me ill."

The man calmly lit his pipe and puffed it contentedly before replying. Then he said:

"Too bad, lady. Take my advice and give it up!"

THAT some good comes out of everything and you can find it if you look hard enough was reiterated in El Paso recently in a speech delivered there by E. D. Gardner, supervising engineer of the strategic minerals division of the United States Bureau of Mines.

According to Mr. Gardner, the current war in Europe is causing to be brought to light the slumbering mineral wealth of the nation. The same thing he said, was true a quarter of a century and more ago when World war flames were burning in Europe.

Under Mr. Gardner's supervision, writes Betty Luther, in the "Side-Bar Remarks" column of the El Paso Herald-Post, the United States Geological Survey is looking for and investigating the privately owned mines in the western states where might be found the "deficiency," or "critical" minerals which our country will need—and need badly—in case of a war emergency.

"Critical," or "deficiency" minerals are those which are imported by the United States now. They are manganese, tin, chrome, quicksilver, tungsten, antimony and nickel.

DURING World War No. 1, Mr. Gardner said in El Paso, sulphur, molybdenum, vanadium and potash were on the strategic list. But right after the war, the Bureau of Mines and the Geological Survey were instructed by Congress to search for and prospect potash deposits in this country. This search uncovered the now famous New Mexico potash deposits in the vicinity of Carlsbad, mine buildings of which can be seen from the highway linking Hobbs and the Caverns city.

The Carlsbad deposits can supply the nation's potash needs and are doing so at the present time. But all during World War No. 1 those deposits were tucked away in the soil of New Mexico, untouched and, in all probabilities, unknown.

As a result of search and prospecting, American copper mines today are producing molybdenum as a by-product, making this nation the largest producer of this steel-strengthening material in the world.

Reserves of vanadium have been found in Colorado and Utah and the Bureau of Mines believes there is enough of that material in those states to meet an emergency, if need be.

CERTAINLY it should not be too much of a task to store up tin against an emergency, even if no raw tin is ever found within our borders.

Every day, Americans are throwing away and destroying hundreds of thousands of cans in which tin is a chief material and we see no reason why steps are not taken to redeem and re-use this metal which threatens to become scarce.

There must be at least a dozen tons of tin, in the form of beer cans, lining the highways and by-ways of Lubbock county, alone, and we're not joking or being sarcastic in wondering if it might be a smart move on the part of the nation as a whole to conserve these and all other receptacles containing the vital tin.

We can hear a lot of people snorting over this suggestion of saving tin cans of all kinds. But before you snort, read a little further.

For years and years, Germany has carefully saved and used over again as many products made from importations as possible.

For instance, no one in Germany has thrown away an empty tooth-paste tube for years.

When a German housewife buys a tube of tooth-paste, the merchant makes a note of the transaction and after the elapse of time enough for that tooth-paste to be used, there's a knock at the lady's door. It's a guy asking for the used tooth-paste tube—and he gets it!

While that may be carrying efficiency and conservation a little to the extreme, we must admit that Hitler, whatever else he is, is a very efficient man; and that he has done and is doing a very efficient job.

Saving tin cans in a country without tin might not be so dog-gone dumb, after all!

* * *

BUT the point to this discussion is just this:

As war tears down and destroys in Europe, it is furnishing the thought and action here essential to discovering what we have and making a use for it.

Not much good can come out of a war. But some good that can come from the current one will be in the form of the awakening of the American public to look into what their country has and then make the most possible use of it.

JOHN Cudahy, U. S. ambassador to Belgium, announced from London the other day that unless the United States raises millions of dollars in money and foodstuffs right away, the people of Belgium will be "close to famine by mid-September."

We aren't going to dispute the point with Mr. Cudahy.

In the first place, we are not in a position to argue with him. He should know what he's talking about and we believe he does know.

And in the second place, we believe Mr. Cudahy's appeal for Belgium is simply the first of a series of such appeals which will come to us within the next few weeks from the Hitler-ridden lands across the sea.

As a result of these appeals, Americans are going to be on a spot—a great big spot.

They're going to have to decide whether they're going to try to fish European nations out of the stew into which they have either placed themselves or been euchred; and if they're going to send supplies to the downtrodden, only to find later that the bulk of those supplies went to feed the German soldiery of the present and future against a possible assault upon the Western Hemisphere, if not upon our very shores.

Most logical interpretation of extremely veiled statements attributed to Mr. Cudahy in London is that Germany intends to use this threat of famine among conquered nations in an attempt to force this nation to aid or deal with the Nazi reich.

Full import of his statements, he indicated, will not be explained until he returns to this country next week. But his assertion as reported from London that the United States is to be confronted with the "reality dealing with power as the only force" hints that the most savagely inhuman ever presented by one civilized nation to another need not be surprising.

IT hints that Germany may be about to tell us that there can be no assistance from this country to conquered and starving European people unless administered through German hands. That would mean, of course, when one considers German ruthlessness, that Germany would take what she wanted and her victims would get what was left—if any. It may even happen that Adolf Hitler will say that the United States, in order to provide the barest necessities for starving women and children of Belgium, Holland, France or anywhere else in war-stricken Europe, first must make liberal provision for Germany either by gift or by sale.

If Hitler says that to us—or if there is any chance of his stealing our gifts for the use of his own people—the United States must blind itself to the horrors of hunger in conquered Europe and must stand steadfast in refusal to send a single pound of foodstuffs abroad.

It will be a hard course for our sympathetic, civilized people to take. But it will be the only logical course—and a course which will be thrust upon us against our will and better nature.

We cannot afford to feed Germany and her allies if to do so will threaten our own peace, the safety of our shores and the perpetuation of our free, democratic form of government.

CAST OF CHARACTERS

ANNE NORRIS — Wealthy college student, looking for thrills, enrolls in CAA flying course.

GEORGETTE PARKER — Anne's friend. Learning to fly is a serious business with her.

TONY SCOTT—College playboy, son of a gangster, envies Anne's social position.

CAPTAIN DICK DOUGLAS—Instructor of the student flying course at Midland University.

YESTERDAY: Submitting to her guardian's wishes, Anne tells Tony she cannot see him until after school closes. On their last date, Tony takes her to a roadhouse, banned by school authorities. There is a shooting. A dice-game girl helps Anne escape before police arrive.

CHAPTER VII

In a back room of the Villa Aloha one of the gunmen grabbed Clarice by the arm.

"That red-haired girl, who was she? Where is she?"

"I don't know. Let me go—"

"We've got to find her." The other man swore angrily. "If she's picked up, she'll talk."

Clarice shook her head frantically. "I tell you I don't know what happened to her!"

With a half-snarled oath, his companion followed him out through a back doorway as the police entered the front.

Meanwhile, a short distance down a side road, Anne was hurrying as best she could. Her light evening wrap was little protection against the storm, and her filmy dress clung to her like a rag. But Anne was long past caring about how she looked. Her one thought was to get away, as far away as she could.

She had no doubt of what would happen if she were publicly involved in the shooting at the Villa Aloha. She would be held for questioning, she was a witness. Headlines would tell the story.

That she had been at the Villa Aloha, in spite of the college ruling, would mean instant expulsion from Midland. It would mean the end of her flying course. Curious, she thought, that she should think about that now.

In the next instant, a revulsion at the thought of running away brought her to a stop. Running away from things was not in Anne Norris' tradition. It was true, she reminded herself, that her presence at the Villa Aloha had been entirely innocent. She was not really to blame. Yet, the fact was that she had been there. The fact remained that she had broken the college ruling. The reasons for her having been at the tavern would make no difference to college authorities. In spite of that, she could not run away. There was only one thing to do, and that was to go back and take her medicine.

Where was Tony? Why had he deserted her? She could only assume that his one thought had been to save himself. The idea that he might have suddenly seized on the shooting as an unexpected opportunity for letting Anne become involved in scandal never occurred to her.

The police were at the Villa Aloha now. Whatever came of it, she must retrace her steps, go back and tell them that she had been there. They would want her testimony, she knew. Of all the people in the room, she probably had had the best look at the two gunmen. She could identify them.

Then once more, as she stood in the rain, she had that terrible feeling of being pursued. Instinctively, she drew away from the edge of the road. She saw that she was right.

Two men were hurrying down the road, obviously looking for someone. Instinct and quick thought told her they were the two who had done the shooting, and that they were looking for her. At almost the same instant, she heard one of them call out.

"There she is!"

Anne Norris turned and ran blindly down the road through the rain. This time she was not running from disgrace, from the fear of expulsion from college. She was running in sheer terror, from what she instinctively recognized as real and immediate danger.

Her chiffon formal, drenched with rain, clung to her ankles, slowing her, occasionally almost tripping her. Ready to drop from exhaustion, fear kept her going.

She didn't dare look back, yet she realized that her pursuers must be very close. In another minute they would catch up with her.

The headlights of a car coming from behind her illuminated the highway. The car skidded to an abrupt stop beside Anne. The door of the car fell open, a hand reached out to Anne, and a voice called, "In here—quick—"

It was the voice of Dick Douglas!

With one swift motion he pulled Anne into the car and slammed the door. He jammed the car into gear, sent it roaring down the highway in a burst of speed. Behind them a shot rang out, and another. At the first shot the car was well ahead, and in another moment it was out of range of Anne's pursuers.

* * *

Dick slowed to normal speed. He glanced curiously at Anne, huddled, white-faced, in a corner.

GARNER WILL "BE AROUND"

About as safe as any bet that could reasonably be made at this time is that Vice President John Nance Garner won't remove himself too long from the Washington scene, even though his official career is about to end.

Mr. Garner has been an important part of the national capital for 38 years. After 30 years as a member of the House of Representatives he was elevated to the Vice Presidency nearly eight years ago.

Undoubtedly his job may have become pretty tiring at times. At this age, he cannot have escaped the strain of the terrific responsibilities he has carried. Doubtless he has thought innumerable times how good it would be if he could retire to the carefree comforts of his Uvalde, Texas, home to spend the remainder of his days.

But Mr. Garner could no more remain in the quiet of that Uvalde home than a fish could live out of water. He might like that kind of life for awhile. But he would die of dry-rot if he should take himself suddenly from the activities of Washington where, more than any other place, the affairs of the world and of civilization are being shaped.

It isn't to be expected that the national capital will see as much of Mr. Garner, the plain citizen, as it did of Mr. Garner, the congressman and the Vice President. But it is virtually a cinch that as long as he is able to hobble around, the wisdom of the experience of this grand old man of democracy will always be available to his people and to his nation.

MACK SENNETT, whose bathing beauties and pie-in-puss routines made Hollywood famous, never made pictures in Hollywood. His original studio was in Edendale, no longer on the map. . . . When the stars actually lived in Hollywood some years ago, you couldn't get a drink in town and the only dancing was formal—at the Hollywood hotel. Now, when no stars live in Hollywood, there are plenty of bars and rug-cutting emporiums. . . . The first Tarzan picture, starring Elmo K. Lincoln, an ambulance driver, was financed by a Mormon bishop, David P. Howells, who proved a talent scout as well as a successful "angel" by bringing Pola Negri to the U. S.

The first motion picture club ever formed was founded and organized in New York in 1912 by King Baggott. Members included such people as Herbert Brenon, Carl Laemmle, Francis X. Bushman, Jack and Harry (Columbia) Cohn, Maurice Costello, Irving Cummings, Alan Hale, B. P. Schulberg and Earle Foxe, an actor who now runs a military school in Hollywood . . . . The first movies on the Pacific shores were not made in Hollywood. Tom Ince was exposing celluloid in Santa Monica Canyon, American Pictures were centered at Santa Barbara, Universal Pictures were out in San Fernando Valley (and haven't moved since) . . . Mack Sennett once closed his studio and moved bag, baggage and actors across the border, in Mexico. He only stayed two months. . . . Despite the oft-repeated canard that Hollywood has no railroad station, there is one on Santa Monica Boulevard. It's a freight depot and the railroad is an electric suburban road.

THE still-enduring gangster cycle in pictures began with a story called "Doorway to Hell," written by Rowland Brown and put on celluloid by an up-and-coming producer named Darryl F. Zanuck . . . Wallace Beery and Gloria Swanson rode around town in Hollywood's first foreign car, a huge Mercedes driven with the seats out, so Wally and Gloria could barely see over the sides of the car. But it was swanky to drive a car that looked underslung . . . Whitely Heights, the Nob Hill of Hollywood, was the first "movie star colony." Actors were making so much $$$$ in those days they had their homes built with day labor (because the other way, job-contracting, was cheaper) and they put in double of everything; retaining walls twice as thick as necessary, extra and unneeded rooms, minarets, etc . . . Charles Kessell and Charles O. Bauman once owned the New York Motion Picture company and spent a million to build a studio in Culver City. When K & B came out to look over the plant (is now MGM) they couldn't get on the lot. The buildings were erected on ground given not to them but to their studio manager by Harry Culver, the realtor. Said manager was having a tiff with his bosses and used cowboy extras to police the place. Later a settlement was made.

A guy named Joseph Ferdinand Antoine Plateau started it all. He was tied up with the University of Ghent in 1935 when he invented a twirling disc device he called a phenakistoscope. This had a series of hand-drawn figures around the rim of the disc, and when it was spun the eye picked up the image as a single figure in apparent motion. . . Color isn't recent parent motion. . . Color isn't recent in pictures. The first color film was shown in London in 1909, imported to Madison Square Garden for exhibition in December of that year . . . Censorship of pictures began when a doll named Dolorita appeared in Atlantic City in a celluloid opus called "Passion Dance," in 1896. Just 24 years ago, Mary Pickford demanded the amazing salary of $1,000 a day from Famous Players — and got it. Same year, Charlie Chaplin picked up the tidy sum of $670,000. He got $10,000 a week and a bonus of $150,000. (The income tax in those days was a breeze.)

* * *

IN 1936, 85 per cent of the U. S. treatres were on a double-bill policy. And the nation is getting weaker eyes as time rolls on . . . There are 250 accredited correspondents in Hollywood (to say nothing of the thousands writing throughout the country about the place), but the World Almanac dusts off the movie capital with this 46-word mention: "One of the points of interest (in California) is the motion picture colony in Hollywood, near Los Angeles. The atmosphere is so clear that motion pictures may be taken on about 350 days of the year, while the topography and the flora afford most varied locations" . . . The biggest private arsenal (gun hotel, to you) west of the Mississippi is on the Paramount lot—devoted to entertaining instead of killing . . . J. S. Stembridge, who has more than 7,000 guns in the collection, was once a C. B. DeMille stock actor . . . Among his odder firearms is a shotgun that shoots off the left shoulder with the right eye aiming. They call this cock-eyed fowling-piece "Ben Turpin" . . . All muzzle-loaders in the movies have to be made over to shoot cartridges on account of the time involved in loading while filming . . . In 1865, some murderous-minded gent invented a little number called "My Friend." The stock of this small caliber gun also served as brass knucks . . . The collection is graced by a weapon with a spring dagger attached to the barrel of the pistol. If your aim isn't so good, you can flip the blade out bayonet-fashion and being carving.

Nation's Roads Must Be Modernized To Best Serve Mobile Army

Plan To Rebuild Main Highways Being Studied

BY BRUCE CATTON
Journal Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—If you're vacationing in the family bus this year, you may spend your two weeks whizzing along the road to war.

Catton

Officials of the army Engineers corps and the Bureau of Public Roads are putting their heads together to decide just which roads they are, and how much reconditioning will be necessary before they can bear the stress of mechanized army units.

When conferences now going on establish which are the strategic highways, road builders will know how big a slice of the defense appropriations they want.

Right now they're working with the $191,000,000 appropriation supposed to see them through 1941. Congress has authorized $178,500,000 for 1942 and an equal sum for 1943. It will cost a lot more than that to condition United States roads for wartime traffic.

Army Needs Direct Routes

A mechanized mobile army needs good roads, routed to avoid city traffic, and as direct as possible.

Earlier this year, Congress for the 20th consecutive year rejected a proposal to build six transcontinental supertoll highways. Cost was estimated at $202,270 a mile.

A mile of highway such as you speed over on your coast to coast motor trip costs about $30,000.

There are few innovations in the science of road building. Asphalt, gravel, cement, crushed stone, and tar are the popular materials today, as they have been for many years. Salt, molasses, glucose, burnt clay, cotton, rubber and even tin cans have been suggested as road materials. All have proved impractical or too expensive.

Road building machinery and processing have improved. Because of a new process which grinds cement finer, concrete roads are twice as strong as they were in 1920.

Twenty years ago it was necessary to grade from one to two years to allow for settling before the final surface was laid. Now improved tractors make the road bed compact as soon as it is laid.

Roads of sand, clay, gravel, chert and shale are cheap, but not strong. Macadam roads are middle class in the opinion of road engineers. Bituminous concrete, cement and brick are considered high type materials. A few years ago gravel roads were rated high only in nuisance value, but modern surface treatment has improved them.

We Know All Romans Did

Clay sub-soil is the worst possible base; best is a mixture of sand and gravel. The thickness varies. An adequate gravel bed for Alabama might be six inches thick, while in Vermont the gravel base should be a foot thick for adequate weather resistance.

Incidentally, the Romans didn't know anything about road building that we don't know. But they had a lot of time, a reservoir of slave labor, and a lot of stone. Their roads are built of cut stone blocks from four to six feet thick.

Similarly, because of the availability of material and cheapness of labor, road builders in the Dutch East Indies make their roads of rubber, and in India, where asphalt is almost unobtainable, they roll along on molasses. Most unusual roads in the United States are those near iron mines, built of low-grade iron ore and likely to outlast the job the Romans did.

Japanese efforts to increase cotton production in North China appear to have failed.

I passed them. You have some y odd friends, Miss Norris."
At the sound of his voice, Anne it her strength returning.
"I'd hardly say their manner was y friendly!" She tried to be sual.
In spite of himself, he gave her glance of admiration. But in the xt instant his resentment of her turned.
"Well, what has the beautiful Miss orris been doing for excitement? ooks as if it might have been more han a rotogravure picture in the unday supplements this time."
Embarressed, half-angry at herelf for doing so, Anne told him the hole story . As she finished it, she dded, "I don't know why on earth should tell all of this to you."
"You needn't," he said curtly. "I ill say you showed even less judgment than I'd have expected." He ooked at her as he spoke, and all t once began to laugh.
"That's right, laugh," Anne snaped, her temper rising.
"If you could only see yourself," e gasped. "Wait—" He stopped the ar, took out his flashlight. "Take look at yourself in your vanity. ake a look."

Still angry, Anne took out her mirror and stared at herself as he held the flashlight. Her hair had turned to a wet, tangled mass, there were streaks of dirt, rain, and muddied powder on her face, a long scratch ran down the length of her nose. Her Paris gown hung in rain-soaked, muddy shreds. For a moment she stared at herself, aghast. Then she too began to laugh.
"Anne Norris, the glamorous." Dick Douglas' voice was amused but kind.
For a few minutes they sat laughing. Then with a flash of sympathetic concern he pulled off his coat and wrapped it around her, then started the car.
"Got to get you home, youngster, before you catch pneumonia."
"No. I've got to go back. Don't you see? I was a witness. The police—"
He looked at her curiously. "You mean you're going back there—let yourself in for all it would mean?"
"I was at the Villa Aloha. I've got to go back and take my medicine."
"Anne Norris, you're certainly game." His voice could have held no higher praise. "But don't do it. In the first place, the chances are your testimony wouldn't do any good. I know how those scrapes usually wind up. In the second place, you were innocent of any intent to do wrong. You don't deserve what would happen to you." He smiled at her. "Let me be jury and judge? Verdict, not guilty. Now let me take you home."
In her heart she knew that he was right.

A few minutes later he turned down the street to her sorority house.
"Captain Douglas, I can't go in looking like this—"
"No, you're right. Where's Georgette? Any other way you can get in?"
"Georgette is home for the weekend. There's the fire escape—I hate to do it, but—"
Without a word he swung his roadster into the driveway, stopped in the shadows and helped her from the car. Under the fire escape he stopped.
"Take a hot bath and get right into bed."
She nodded. "Don't worry! I will."
"Okay. Up you go." He boosted her up to the fire escape, his muscular hands hard against he arms. "And—good luck. If you get into any trouble because of this—let me help, if I can."
In the security of her room at last, Anne had only one thought She would never see Tony Scott again, never.

"Business As Usual"

Election years needs must be. Then they are over. Prices go down. Then go up. Congress fights—then drink and make up. Every war has its end. Every tyrant reaches his Waterloo. The Fifth Column comes, but it has to go.

Real Americans may differ, but most of them will die in defense of Liberty.

The part of wisdom on the part of all is to face these emergencies with the head up and do "Business as usual."

Both Sides Claim Victory In Air Fight

Oh, You Can't Get Into The Army, If . . .

(By The Associated Press)

Suppose, young Mr. America, your number DOES come up in the proposed draft lottery. What then?

One chance in three, you'll be turned down as physically unfit!

That's been the recent proportion of rejection among volunteers, and U. S. army officials anticipate no lowering of standards for drafted men.

On a sample lot of 1,186 volunteers in May, 393 or 33.1 per cent were rejected. Of these rejections, 27.23 per cent failed because of teeth. A rookie must have at least 12, properly located. Next biggest current cause of rejection is faulty eyesight, failing of 19.34 per cent.

Minimum requirements for height are 5 feet, 4 inches; for weight, 120 pounds, and for chest expansion, two inches. Just 13.69 per cent went out for these reasons. Poor hearing knocked out 10.89 per cent. Pronounced flat feet, knock knees and bow legs took a toll, along with lesser causes of rejection including just plain facial ugliness.

Extra Business Is Provided Stores By Food Stamp Plan

Operation of the federal food stamp plan in Wichita county provided retail food establishments there more than $21,000 worth of business last month that they would not have received had the plan not been in operation.

This was the information reported at the chamber of commerce this morning by Wynn S. Goode, Northwest Texas area supervisor for the Federal Surplus Commodity corp. under whien the stamp plan is operated, with headquarters in Wichita Falls.

To Set Up Office

Goode came to Lubbock to arrange for office space for Jac Austin, organiser for the stamp plan, who is due to arrive here Monday under authorization to put the plan into operation in Lubbock and Hale counties.

He did not learn until his arrival, Goode said, that five representatives of the city, county and the City-County Welfare association had gone to Wichita Falls today to investigate operations of the food plan there.

Members of the investigating party are County Commissioners P. B. Penney, Ben Mansker and C. L. Holt, Executive Secretary Joe W. Wilson of the City-County Welfare association, and City Manager W. H. Rodgers, who went by instructions of the city commission.

The trip was made after Penney and Wilson had indicated that they are not satisfied that the plan should be put into effect here.

Costs May Be Higher

Wilson expressed the opinion that operating costs of the plan to the city and county might be considerably higher than many officials anticipated.

Penney expressed the fear that the requirement that orange food stamps must be bought in order to obtain free blue stamps might work a hardship on people who are entirely destitute and wholly without income.

Of the completely destitute classes, Goode explained, it is necessary for the community to provide some assistance regardless whether the stamp plan is in operation.

Under the stamp plan, he continued, part of the assistance such people would receive would be in the form of orders for orange stamps, which could be exchanged at face value for anything that the retail food merchant might have in stock. With the orange stamps, the official explained, such relief client would receive free blue stamps in larger proportion than is available to those with limited incomes.

Report Is Cited

The monthly report on the operation of the plan in Wichita county for July, Goode said, showed that $21,834 in blue food stamps were distributed to persons on relief, to be exchanged by them for various of the approximately 18 foodstuffs which have been designated as surplus commodities.

Had the plan not been in operation, he said, the surplus commodities would have been bought in various parts of the country and would have been shipped into Wichita county to be distributed directly to relief clients.

Under the stamp plan, he said, the retailers bought as much of the surplus commodities as they could directly from the farmers and wholesale houses at home and then sold them to relief clients for the blue stamps. The retailers then turned the blue stamps in to the government, receiving cash at face value.

Working effect of the plan, Goode related, was that clients got as much or more of a wider variety of surplus commodity foods for their stamps than they would have received under the old plan, and that every blue stamp used meant just that much new retail business for the community.

Goode related that, "the last time I heard," more than 100 Texas cities were asking for establishment of the plan. It is now operating in about seven or eight such cities, and is being put into operation in three or four others, he added.

Man Wanted Air

but there weren't any 21-passenger craft available in Pueblo, so he had one flown from Burbank, Calif. The flight to Washington cost him $82.100, plus whatever was charged for ferrying the plane to Pueblo from the coast.

But the cost was a minor matter, Rohl indicated. What he wanted in Washington was "another contract, just like everyone else." The town was "full of contractors," however, "so full you can't even move."

So, needing some air and solitude, he flew to New York.

Rohl, who did not specify what kind of contracting he did, spent just enough time in New York to catch up on his sleep. He didn't even wait for breakfast before starting back.

Miss Schilbach, he said, would take care of that during the ride.

Burglars Get Best Of Joe Once More

HOUSTON, Aug. 9 (U.P.)—The burglars, it seems, have got the best of Joe Watson.

Joe runs a filling station. Three months ago thieves broke open the door of his station and made off with $20. Monday night of this week they broke down the door again, took $10 worth of cigarets.

"This has got to stop," Joe said.

So he bought some chains. These he rigged up across the front door every night he closed.

No use.

The thieves last night made another raid. They got a $150 adding machine, a $60 cash register, $5 in cigarets.

You guessed it—this time they came in through the window.

EVIDENCE UNCOVERED

NEW YORK, Aug. 9 (AP)—Thurman Arnold, assistant U. S. attorney general, today declared a special federal grand jury had uncovered considerable evidence tending to show that patents vital to United States war industries are German-controlled.

Battle Staged Over Desert

(By The Associated Press)

The biggest air battle ever fought in Africa—a furious combat waged by British and Italian planes high over the burning Libyan-Egyptian desert—was reported today in communiques from Rome and Cairo. Each claimed the victory against a larger force of planes.

The African combat followed closely upon yesterday's greatest air fight of the battle for Britain, concerning which both the British and Germans published new and differing versions today, each side increasing the number of enemy planes it claimed to have destroyed.

New Figures Announced

The British said they destroyed 60 Nazi planes and damaged many others in a swarm of 400 which attacked a food convoy off the southeast coast. The earlier London figure was 53 Germans shot down, 10 more believed downed, and British losses of 16.

The new Berlin version upped the British losses from 34 to 40 and admitted the loss of 10 planes, while repeating that the attack cost British shipping 12 merchant ships totalling 55,000 tons and seven more badly damaged.

In the African action the Italians said 16 of their planes fought 27 British craft with a loss of 5 to the British, 2 for the Italians.

But the British communique said the Italians outnumbered the RAF 2 to 1, in spite of which the British "pressed home their attack with such determination that 15 Italian aircraft were destroyed." It admitted the loss of two British planes.

Leaves Are Cancelled

Meanwhile, as the African situation became more menacing to the British lifeline, the Cairo police commandant cancelled all leaves of officers and men "as a precautionary measure against emergencies."

The government of Egypt, determined to keep out of the war if possible, remained outwardly confident the British could handle the situation.

In the far east the British announced they were withdrawing 70 officers and 1,500 men from Shanghai, leaving about 10,000 British subjects and British investments estimated to be worth $800,000,000 under the protection of British navy units.

Besides the ships claimed to have been sunk by the German air force, the Nazi high command also asserted torpedo boats sank 17,000 tons of shipping in swift raids along the channel.

More Raids Made

German air raiders roared inland over Britain last night and today in attacks that followed almost without letup day-long raids by a total of 800 planes on ship convoys and English channel defenses.

The Germans bombed towns along the east, south and west coasts, and in the midlands.

The British government said "some" persons were killed, although casualties were said to be few.

Neutral military observers in London speculated that long-threatened German invasion of Britain might be timed with Italian thrusts now under way in Africa.

Government leaflets stuck under householders' doors warned Britons to "stay where you are," to keep from clogging arteries for emergency troop movements, and to "seek shelter and stay there" to keep from being killed in air raids.

The press predicted that mass raids of as many as 500 planes each might be in the offing.

British Hit Back

Ten scattered German radio stations went off the air and British interpreted this as an indication the Royal Air Force was hitting back with the widest-spread bombing yet attempted against the Nazis.

Indian nationalist leaders voiced no immediate reaction to Britain's proposal of possible independence for India at the end of the war in a bid for war-help.

Premier Ion Gigurtu of Rumania announced his government must comply with Adolf Hitler's orders to give up some territory to Bulgaria and Hungary, but never will yield the 75 per cent of Transylvania that Hungary has asked.

To solve the Transylvania issue he proposed that vast transfers of peoples be made, for "definite separation" of Rumanians and Hungarians, but only a relatively small piece of territory be ceded Hungary.

Hike In Debt Limit Looms

he said, "it is obvious that in view of the requirements of the defense program the present debt limitation of $49,000,000,000 will sooner or later need to be increased."

The increase, however, might be postponed until next year, he added.

He also called attention to provisions of the pending excess profits tax bill which would suspend the profit limitations on warplane and warship contracts under the Vinson-Trammel act and authorize manufactuers to speed up amortization, for tax purposes, of new factories built for defense production.

Barrier Of Uncertainty

"There has arisen in the minds of contractors who desire to do business with the government," the secretary said, "a barrier of uncertainty as to the conditions under which they will operate.

"To remove this hesitancy, it has been my opinion that immediate steps should be taken to obtain adequate remedial legislation."

Discussing the revenue situation, Morgenthau said provisions of the recent defense tax bill "were sufficient to meet the situation as it existed at that time."

"With the rapid deterioration of world conditions, however," he continued, "it became necessary to plan for an expansion of the program for national defense, and the president requested the Congress to provide additional funds for this purpose."

Tabulation Presented

He presented a tabulation showing that already approved or pending appropriations and contract authorizations for the army and navy totaled $14,702,000,000, composed of $6,809,000,000 for the army and $7,893,000,000 for the navy.

Some of this money may not be spent until a later fiscal year, he explained, but along with other governmental expenditures, the actual cash outlay of the treasury in the current fiscal year will total about $12,058,000,300, including $5,000,000,000 for defense, $1,600,000,000 for relief, $1,060,000,000 for regular civil departments and agencies, $1,090,000,000 for aids to agriculture, and $1,100,000,000 for interest on the public debt.

Asserting passage of the bill would help speed up the national defense program, Morgenthau said "it is therefore essential that differences as to details of the bill be not allowed to stand in the way of early passage of this urgently needed legislation."

The excess profits provisions would tax at rates ringing from 25 to 40 per cent the extra profits corporations might make in 1940 and succeeding years over either a fixed percentage of their capital investment or their average earnings in the 1936-39 period.

Louisiana Floods

shelter and the situation was "most serious."

He communicated with Adjutant General Raymond Fleming and, in lieu of calling out the national guard, now employed in army maneuvers in western Louisiana, asked the war department for use of all available Civilian Conservation corps boys.

Jones prepared for a special radio broadcast to appeal for aid on a statewide basis, particularly for boats to transport food, water and clothing to storm refugees isolated from communications.

The governor enlisted the aid of the state board of health, Red Cross, federal agencies, state police, highway commission and volunteers.

Funeral Rites For Sima Bell Not Set

Funeral arrangements had not been made at 2 o'clock this afternoon for Sima Bell, 50, of 1622 Fifteenth street, who died at 6:25 o'clock Thursday night at the home after two years' illness.

He had lived in Lubbock three years.

Surviving are the wife; a son, Robert C. Bell of Lubbock; a daughter, Miss Louise M. Bell of Lubbock; four brothers and two sisters.

Absentee Voting Is Started Here Today

Absentee voting began this afternoon in the office of Ed D. Allen, county clerk.

L. C. Ellis, chairman of the Democratic county executive committee, explained that a statement of the attorney general had interpreted legality of county committees proceeding with printing of ballots despite the fact the state committee will not meet before Saturday to certify to county chairmen names to go on the state ticket.

Necessity for printing ballots ahead of the committee's meeting was because absentee voting period opened Aug. 4. Aug. 21 is the last day for such voting.

GROW ON INSIDE

The outside covering of a 20-year-old tree is the same as that which enclosed it as a 1-year-old sapling. The cambium layer adds annual growths on the inner side, while the outer bark stretches and splits, to accommodate the increasing girth.

Lubbock Police Department May Be Given New Station

Lubbock police department may have its own separate building before very long as result of the semi-monthly meeting of the city commission Thursday afternoon.

O R Walker architect was directed to prepare preliminary sketches and estimates of cost of such a building which if erected will be located on City Hall square at Ninth street and Avenue J.

Proposal that the separate building be built was made when the commission resumed its already prolonged consideration of proposals to alter and remodel the city hall in which the police department jail and courtroom now are jammed into sardine-like quarters.

Less Than Estimate

Original estimates by the commission were that the city hall could be extensively altered so as to include more commodious quarters for police and a greatly enlarged jail at a cost not to exceed $35,000. Bids and negotiations with contractors, however, have indicated that the cost might be substantially larger than the estimated figure, thus providing only very temporary relief from present over-crowding in the city hall.

It was the expressed opinion of members of the commission that the new building can be erected and that the limited alterations to the city hall which then would be needed can be made at a total cost substantially less than the originally estimated $35,000.

To Go Ahead

Detailed specifications for the originally contemplated alterations were prepared by Walker and the commission voted Thursday afternoon to pay him $900 for that work. It was the amount suggested by Walker.

The commission decided also to go ahead with some of the city hall alterations and authorized City Manager W. H. Rodgers to employ John T. Glover at $10 per day to supervise that work. The supervision will require only part-time personal attention on Glover's part, but the agreement stipulates that he must supply most of the tools and equipment for the work.

Glover's first job, officials said, will be to supervise alterations to and the re-flooring of the space on the first floor formerly occupied by Central Fire station. The water, light and tax departments will be moved from the second floor into that space as soon as the alterations are completed.

Sustrand To Take Over

The commission also authorized the tentative award of a contract to build a four-room frame residence at Municipal airport for the manager to C B Harris whose bid of $2,285 was the lowest of four received. However the commission explained that sufficient changes in plans for the residence must be made to bring the total cost within the $2,000 provided in the budget for that purpose.

Dr P W Sistrand was employed to take over the office duties of Dr J W Rollo city health officer, who has been seriously ill in Lubbock sanitarium with a heart ailment. Dr Rollo who was reported Thursday to be continuing improvement, recommended Dr Sistrand whose offices in the temporary position will be Dr Rollo's suite in Lubbock National bank building.

Audit Approved

Chas A Guy, who resides at 2610 Twentieth street, urged the commission to take some action looking to the opening of the alley between Nineteenth and Twentieth street from College avenue westward to Adams avenue.

The annual independent audit of city records, prepared by C J. Brasher, was approved by members of the commission with compliments to the auditor. It disclosed, Brasher said, that city records have been kept in excellent and accurate condition. Payment to Brasher of $845, the amount of the bid which obtained the audit contract for him, was authorized.

Paving Accepted

An ordinance extending the city limits so as to include the M. E. Simmons addition was passed on second reading and final reading. The addition, which now is part of the city, is bounded on the north by Twenty-seventh street, the east by College avenue, the south by the alley between Thirtieth and Thirty-first streets, and the west by Adams avenue.

Resolution accepting approximately 30 blocks of street paving completed within the past 10 days was approved.

An appropriation of $1,000 for the City-County Welfare association was authorized.

Bonds of B V Martin, P O Kelly and E H Neal as general contractors were approved.
