Refinery Denies Union's Sub-Standard Charge

Lackey Says Wage Increase Was Rejected

Malco refinery officials Saturday denied union charges of sub-standard wage conditions in the company's Artesia plant.

The denial came from Joe W. Lackey of Roswell, Malco vice president, following a breakdown in contract negotiations with the union here Friday.

At the same time it was expected that a federal mediator would make an appearance in Artesia in the near future in an effort to resolve the dispute before the union could strike in 59 days.

Answering union charges, Lackey said the union had failed to note that during the 30 month period the company has operated the Artesia plant "substantial strides toward have been taken . . . things like improved working conditions, an all inclusive health plan, and wage increases including our present offer."

The current dispute stems from union demands for part of a retroactive pay boost of about 4 per cent.

Asks the Lord's Blessing

Special Legislative Session Ended With Prayer By Cole

SANTA FE, Oct. 8. (AP)—Rep. Fred Cole of Artesia, who was prevented by a heart attack from attending the last few days of the regular 1955 Legislature last winter, was given the honor of leading the House in prayer just before the special session adjourned.

"May the friendships formed here cement all parts of this state into a greater brotherhood," the Eddy county Democrat asked in the prayer.

The text follows:

"Our most high and omnipotent heavenly Father, the Creator of all the universe, and the Giver of all good things to humanity.

We come to Thee in these closing moments, asking they blessings on the actions and accomplishments of this special session.

Go with all members of this House of Representatives to our homes and care for our families and friends.

If thy will, do not permit any pestilence, disaster, epidemic or catastrophe to visit the people of our great state.

We thank Thee for thy love, who was crucified for all mankind, regardless of race, color, nationality, creed, religion or denomination. Our state is a cosmopolitan people and all are equal in Thy sight.

May the friendships formed here, cement all parts of this state into a greater brotherhood.

Make us all better men and women to serve Thee better and to serve the people of this state in a better way.

We give Thee thanks and ask these favors in the name of Christ, our Lord. Amen.

Chamber Warns Against Phone Solicitations From Strangers

Solicitation business or orders by telephone is definitely being discouraged by the Solicitation Control Committee of the Artesia Chamber of Commerce, according to an announcement made today by Julius I. Chandler, chairman.

"In the past few months," Chandler said, "many out-of-town companies have used this method of soliciting business here, and a number of companies have been completely fraudulent."

Chandler cited one such company which worked in Artesia recently which was indicted for fraud in a neighboring town.

"If the product being sold by these companies is not worth selling in person, it is certainly not worth buying," Chandler said. "Any person in Artesia who is contacted by phone relative to buying their product, should immediately call the office of the Chamber of Commerce to see if they are properly and legitimately registered there. The Chamber has the facilities to investigate these companies," Chandler added, "whereas the businessman and the householder has neither the time nor the facilities."

Chandler added that well-known and reliable businesses are not to be considered in this same category. Their method of operation sometimes requires this method of approach, although it is rarely used in Artesia.

"Beware of any out-of-town firm that is unknown to you," Chandler said. "If they are not a racket outfit, they will obtain permission from the City of Artesia and the Artesia Chamber of Commerce before doing business, and even then they should not use such an unrecognized selling procedure as telephone soliciting."

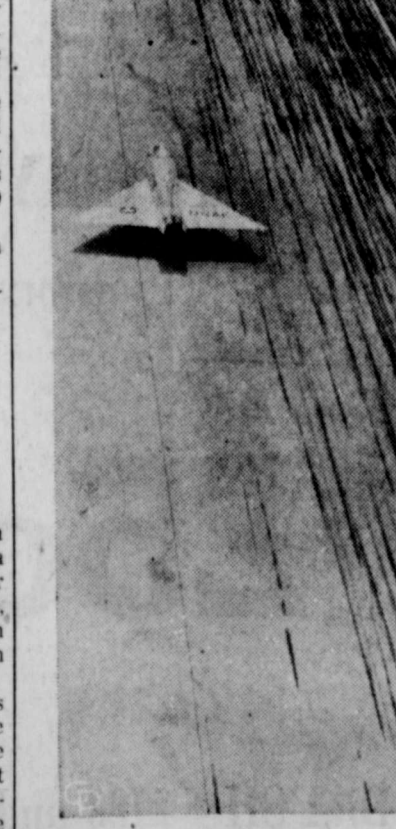

Only 51 Bodies Of Plane Crash Victims Found

LARAMIE, Wyo., Oct. 8. (AP)—Recovery parties searching among rugged snow-covered boulders near the peak of 12,005-foot Medicine Bow today were able to find the bodies of only 51 of 66 persons killed in the plane crash there.

The search continued in the crevices and ledges of the sheer face of the mountain where a United Air Lines DC-4 crashed Thursday in the nation's worst commercial air disaster. Officials said it probably will be Sunday afternoon before all the victims are accounted for.

Working alongside the rescuers were investigators of the Civil Aeronautics Board and the UAL seeking to determine why the plane crashed into the mountain which was 25 miles west of its prescribed course.

Militia - Held City Fears Renewal Of Strike Violence

NEW CASTLE, Ind., Oct. 8. (AP)—This little militia-held town marked time uneasily today while Gov. George N. Craig prepared to seek a truce in the bitter, riot-punctuated Perfect Foundry strike. Peace talks are set for 5 p.m. Sunday.

Business has slumped sharply since the National Guard took over New Castle last Thursday. Merchants are complaining.

Two gunshot victims of Wednesday's riot at the plant described what it was like inside and outside as bullets flew. They related their experiences calmly enough. But their words reflected the angry emotions which have wracked this town of 18,000 in the gentle hills of eastern Indiana. One victim was an outside union official, the other a nonstriking woman foundry worker.

The three-story red-brick Perfect Circle plant is scheduled to reopen Monday morning. Striking CIO United Auto Workers have warned that thousands of their fellow unionists throughout the state are angry enough to again march on the foundry if it returns to production of piston rings.

The midweek demonstration by 5,000 UAW CIO members against 100 nonstriking left eight persons wounded by gunfire. The foundry has only 260 employees.

However, with 600 National Guardsmen patrolling the city, the UAW-CIO officials said they hardly expected any pitched battle. There was no indication when the militia might be dismissed.

However, the city began to chafe under the benign but strict control of the militia. Merchants complained that retail business has fallen off—perhaps as much as 50 per cent.

There was no interference with

Tampico Remains Under Threat Of Flood Epidemic

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 8. (AP)—The swollen Panuco River dropped 10 inches at Tampico today but the threat of epidemics still hung over the stricken city, two-thirds under water.

Some 150,000 residents and refugees huddled in makeshift shelters on higher ground, some of them in open parks and plazas.

A fleet of U. S. Navy helicopters continued to pluck refugees from the rooftops of their flooded homes, and officials hoped to complete the rescue work by nightfall. Several thousand already have been flown to safety, at the rate of 1,000 a day.

Rescue workers estimated 10,000 homes have been destroyed by floods which devastated an area 50 miles broad and 120 miles long centering on Tampico. The unofficial death toll stands at 326. Three successive hurricanes and

Molotov Admits Ideology Error

MOSCOW, Oct. 8. (AP)—Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov confessed in the magazine "Communist" today an ideological error in a speech Feb. 8. He said the slip was "theoretically and politically dangerous to the Soviet Union."

In brief he wrote that he erroneously referred to the Soviet Union as a nation "where the foundations of a socialist society have already been built," when he should have said socialist society is already built and the U.S.S.R. is ready to progress to communism.

Welfare Department's 'Life or Death' Ruling Making Liars Out Majority of State Doctors

By ED MARTIN

SANTA FE, Oct. 8. (AP)—The old man must have been 75 years old. He hobbled out the door of a doctor's office, carefully protecting his bandaged forearm.

The office nurse watched him go, then handed the doctor a form. He signed it with a wry expression. "Send it on in to welfare," he directed, "but don't count that penicillin shot."

What's the significance of this scene?

It actually occurred the moment the physician told the nurse he would see and treat the old man—a relief client.

Because of a strict Welfare Department rule, adopted when the giant agency was struggling with a financial crisis last March, only recipients with a "life-endangering" condition are eligible for paid treatment.

But who can say what a "life-endangering" condition is exactly?

In the case of the old man, his badly burned arm could be life-endangering at his age. Or it could be only painful and not a prelude to death.

Many doctors throw up their hands and say the rule is unworkable.

A nurse for one here says: "Sure, the doctor fobs a little when he has to decide whether to treat a welfare patient or not. What would you do? It's months before he gets paid anyway."

Two Las Vegas doctors appeared before the State Welfare Board to protest the regulation. Their appearance crystallized feeling of a majority of physicians who have RABAT, French Morocco, Oct. 8. (AP)—A riotous demonstration by 600 diehard French colonialists tonight brought the resignation of Francois de Panafieu as French Morocco's chief civil affairs officer. He was a backer of Premier Edgar Faure's home rule plan.

The colonialists clashed with French police. The police sprayed them with fire hoses and red paint.

Labor Leader Says CIO-AFL Merger to Control Politics

CARLSBAD, Oct. 8. (AP)—A labor figure declared today labor is going to build "one of the biggest political machines in history" when the CIO and AFL merge.

C. L. Green, western states director for Labor's League for Political Education, was one of the main speakers at the New Mexico Federation of Labor convention.

As Green told the 300 delegates that labor has been forced into politics, another speaker called on labor to support the national farm program.

Harvey R. Solberg, president of the Rocky Mountain region of the Farmers Union National Planning Committee, said farmers are, and always have been faced with an economic problem when it comes to earnings.

Need Support

Green warned delegates that labor must have support of voters at the polls. He called on them to play a more active role in voting and local level politics.

"The AFL did not enter politics by choice," he said. "The Taft-Hartley law forced labor into politics. The only thing left to protect free labor is the ballot."

"When the merger of the AFL and CIO is made," he said, "we are going to build one of the biggest political machines in history. But we are going to build it for good, not for evil."

Solberg said the national farmers union supports labor and "labor should support the national farm program."

He said that "only when the national economy grows by 10 per cent does the farmer show any increase in his earnings."

Small Gains

"The national income would have to grow at least 26 billion dollars to show an economic gain of

Moonlight Rocket To Give Valuable Solar Information

BEFORD, Mass. (AP)—Air Force Cambridge Research Center scientists will launch an Aerobee rocket containing sodium vapor sometime this week at Holloman Air Development Center, N. M., it was announced today.

Scientists reported that "artificial moonlight" resulting from previous sodium vapor rocket experiments is not the purpose of this week's launching.

Dr. Howard Edwards, chief of the atmospheric visibility section of the Geophysics Research Directorate said last August the primary purpose of the experiment "is concerned with observations of minute amounts of metallic sodium high in the atmosphere."

The launching is tentatively scheduled for Oct. 12, about 20 minutes after sunset. However, authorities said weather conditions at both the launching site and observation post 10 miles distant must be ideal. The rocket firing may be delayed for several days for this reason, he said.

Although Aerobee rockets have been used for several years, the only other time sodium vapor was used was last January, the sci-

Aptitude Tests Test Your Capabilities

Are You a Square Peg in a Round Hole? If So Your State Employment Service Can Shave the Corners

Looking for a job? Are you a square peg in a round hole? Ever think you'd be adapted to some other form of employment?

Well, if any of these problems bother you, drop into the Artesia office of the New Mexico State Employment Service and talk it over with the staff.

As a feature to aid workers in finding the right job for their talents, the office is now giving a series of aptitude tests designed to best determine your field of ability.

The program, which is given each Friday, is broken into three basic types.

1. Proficiency tests are to measure specific skills in the clerical occupations—typing, dictation and spelling. These are used to determine actual abilities of applicants interested in office work. Stenographic employment, filing, receptionist or other jobs where these skills are required. The tests are beneficial to both the applicant and employer. First it enables the Employment office to give the applicant and employer better service by giving us concrete measures of the applicant's skill. The tests provide the applicant with a method of verifying his acquired skill. They are beneficial to the employer because they save time and money by helping weed out applicants who do not meet his minimum requirements before they are put on the payroll.

2. The second type of tests which are available through the New Mexico State Employment Service are Specific Aptitude tests for approximately 350 different occupations. Some of the occupations for which specific aptitude tests are available are: Accountant, automobile mechanic, bookkeeping machine operator, carpenter, dentist, radio repairman, telephone operator, telegraph operator, trainee, and veterinarians, and numerous other occupations. For each occupation a series of tests have been designated to indicate whether the person who takes the test has a reasonable chance of succeeding in that type of work they are related to.

3. The third type of test which is available through your Artesia office of the New Mexico State Employment Service is the general aptitude test battery commonly known as the GATB. Psychologists have referred to the GATB as the best test ever developed to measure aptitude. The general aptitude test battery consists of a series of 12 tests or exercises which are designed to measure nine aptitudes which have occupational significance.

These nine aptitudes are:

General Intelligence—the learning ability.

Vocabulary—the ability to understand oral and written matter.

Numerical—ability to perform arithmetic operations quickly and accurately.

Spatial—ability to comprehend forms in space—understand relationship of plane and solid objects.

Form Perception—the ability to make visual comparison.

Clerical Perception—ability to perceive pertinent detail.

Motor Co-ordination—ability to co-ordinate hands and eyes.

Finger Dexterity—the ability to move fingers and manipulate small objects rapidly and accurately.

Manual Dexterity—the ability to move hands easily and skillfully.

These nine aptitudes which the GATB measures are related to over 4,000 different jobs in American industry which the Employment Service has classified, studied, and defined.

There is one important aspect to keep in mind when considering a vocational choice. Aptitude is a very important factor and should be considered when selecting an occupation. Some people have discovered after working on one job for several years and then discovering that they are dissatisfied and are having difficulty getting ahead.

But aptitude is just one factor. A personal technician from our agency can tell you that as far as possible all factors of occupational significance should be considered. In addition to aptitude, you should consider your education, training, interest, the working conditions, your family background, the salary the job offers, the opportunity for advancement and your personality.

Naturally, while aptitude may indicate that you have the potential to succeed in a given occupation it will not guarantee it, and if you do not have measured aptitude for the type of work you are interested in, you may still succeed in it, but it will probably be more difficult for you than for a person with the aptitude.

For further information, visit our office at 511 West Main St., The State Employment Service tests were designed to help both workers and employers.

Seven Millionth Visitor Due Soon At Carlsbad Caves

CARLSBAD, Oct. 8.—Officials figure the seven millionth visitor to Carlsbad Caverns will appear the weekend of Oct. 15.

National Park Service rangers have been carefully calculating daily attendance of past October to arrive at the exact time when No. 7,000,000 will show up.

They believe it will be between Oct. 14 and 16. On Oct. 1, the total attendance since the national park was created in 1930 stood at 6,988,864—leaving 11,136 visitors to fill the gap before the seventh-millionth mark is reached.

Even in the slow travel month of October, nearly a thousand persons a day join guided tours through the seven miles of underground scenery of the caverns. State Tourist Director Joe Bursey says.

This year new highspeed elevators were put in to facilitate the trip and additional parking facilities were opened to take care of visitors' cars.

Clovis Wildcats Hold Bulldogs To 6-6 Tie In Tight Game

Close Thriller Marked By Top Defensive Work

The Clovis Wildcats and the Artesia Bulldogs Friday night slammed the door on each others toes in a thrilling back-to-the-wall 6-6 tie game.

The two lone TDs for each of the evenly-matched teams came in the first quarter and from then on a crowd of about 3,000 persons watched one of the most exciting defensive games of the year.

Both teams made penetrations inside their opponents' five-yard line at the start of the third and fourth quarters and both times the defensive walls held for four breath-taking downs.

The Artesia scoring came early in the first quarter. A 60-yard Bulldog drive to the Wildcat 20 fell apart when Halfback George Price fumbled and then recovered his own ball on a third down. The loss cost the Bulldogs the needed yardage and Clovis took over the ball on the 20. But the Bulldogs, fighting hard held them to a two-yard gain and a weak fourth-down punt put the ball back in Artesia hands on the Clovis 46.

On the first play, quarterback Max Ratliff pitched out to big fullback Clyde Bratcher. Bratcher faked for the line and then heaved a pass down to the 18 where end Bill Jones grabbed it and raced over the goal line. Ratliff missed the conversion kick.

Backed up against their own 5-yard line after a clipping penalty following the kickoff, the Wildcats sparked by quarterback Buck Wilson moved to their own 36. There, Wilson swivel-hipped through the left side of the Artesia line, broke into the secondary and then sprinted the length of the field into pay dirt for the Wildcats lone tally.

Four punt exchanges — two by each squad, kept the pigskin rambling up and down the gridiron throughout the scoreless second quarter as the pattern was set for the defensive ball that marked the remainder of the game.

The Bulldogs put together a smashing 54-yard drive from their own 40 at the start of the second half but the drive went from high, into second gear on the Clovis 10, ground into low gear on the 4, and came to a jarring halt on the one yard line as the Wildcats threw up an impenetrable wall.

After booting out of danger, the Wildcats recovered possession of the ball on their own 32 only to lose it back on another fumble two plays later on the Bulldog 38.

But it was futility all around as the Artesia squad bobbled the ball back on the Wildcat 11 and set up the Clovis offensive that ramblled to the Artesia one-foot marker.

The Bulldogs held for four downs and moved up to their own 24, fumbled again, then fought another four-down defensive battle to regain possession of the ball. Then, trying the last of four passes Ratliff found his receiver covered and the Wildcats intercepted on their own 40. A 15-yard penalty put the ball on the Wildcats 49 after the runback but the final Clovis offensive collapsed with another fumble on the Artesia 32.

As the final gun was sounded, the Bulldogs had rolled to the Clovis 22, but their scoring threat was killed by the gun.

Waterfowl Shoot To Be Allowed At U.S. Hatchery

The U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service will open a designated portion of the Dexter Fish Hatchery grounds to hunting during the coming waterfowl season. Ducks may be hunted from Nov. 2, 1955 to Jan. 15, 1956 and geese may be hunted from Nov. 2, 1955 to Dec. 31, 1955, all dates inclusive.

The section open to hunting will be the eastern half of the grounds, or that portion lying east of the cross fence. To get to the hunting grounds, hunters must enter by the front entrance on the county road east of Dexter. From this gate plain markers will direct the hunters to the parking lots.

There will be three parking lots one at each cattleguard entering the hunting area. Hunters will be required to park in the designated areas and walk to the area open to hunting. The following regulations must be complied with:

No shooting on any of the ponds, other than those in the designated hunting area; waterfowl only can Service may close the property

Pigskin Roundup Around The Nation

DALLAS, Oct. 8 (AP)—Clutch running by Tommy McDonald, an inexorable ground game under the touch of clever Jimmy Harris and eagle ball-hawking by ponderous Jerry Tubbs gave Oklahoma a 20-0 victory over Texas today and extended college football's greatest streak to 22 games.

It was nationally third ranked Oklahoma's fourth straight triumph in this storied intercollegiate football series and was a new record for the Sooners. They never had won four consecutive games from Texas before.

A crowd of 75,504 jammed the Cotton Bowl to watch the raging Tubbs intercept three passes, one setting up a touchdown and the others halting dangerous Texas drives, and McDonald run 27 yards for a touchdown in the first period and skipped seven for another in the second.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Oct. 8 (AP)—Jim Swink, a 6-foot-1 junior scored three touchdowns and rolled up 139 yards rushing today as he powered Texas Christian to a 21-0 gridiron victory over a fumbling Alabama team.

It was the Crimson Tide's sixth loss in a row and the ninth consecutive game without victory a record unparalleled in Bama's football history.

STATE COLLEGE, Miss., Oct. 8 (AP)—Halfback Art Davis and Jim Tait steered Mississippi State's lumbering land machine to a 14-0 victory over fumbling Tulane today before 19,000 happy homecoming fans.

State did all its scoring in the first half. Then held off the Green Wave the rest of the way.

LAWRENCE, Kan., Oct. 8 (AP)—Iowa State's Cyclones gambled for an inch on a fourth-down play in the fading minutes of the game and Kansas turned the visitors' mistake into a score and a 7-7 tie today in a Big Seven football contest.

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 8 (AP) Texas A&M mixed a sprinkling of timely passes with a bruising ground game today to smother Nebraska, 27-0, in an intercollegiate football game played before a stadium-bulging crowd of nearly 40,000.

After a couple of false starts early in the contest, the Texas Aggies poured on the heat in a three-touchdown second quarter then added a good measure tally with 15 seconds of game time remaining.

COLUMBIA, Ohio, Oct. 8 (AP)—A 11-American halfback Howard Hopalong Cassidy put on one of his finest shows today, pacing Ohio State to a 27-12 Big Ten Football victory over Illinois.

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 8 (AP)—Georgia's Bulldogs displayed amazing alertness, a dazzling defense and the stellar passing combination of Dick Young to Jimmy Orr while walloping North Carolina 28-7 day in a sometimes weird football game.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 8 (AP)—George Welsh, 160 pounds of bamboozling artistry at quarterback, and a handful of Navy ironmen jabbed the stuffings out of a beefy Pitt squad today for a 21-0 football victory. It was the third in a row for the undefeated, unscored upon Middies.

Welsh cleared the decks of Pitt's hulking line with impartial running by his three other backs and then took pot shots through the air to score Navy's two touchdowns in the second and third periods.

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Oct. 8

Maryland's first ranked Terps jumped off to an early lead with their finest display of offensive power this season, then rolled to an easy 28-7 football victory over Wake Forest today.

The Terps scored the first time they got the ball, then added two more before halftime while their rock-ribbed defense held the Deacons until the close moments of the game.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 8 (AP)—Pent up Michigan, realising more than a decade of football frustration, finally shattered its Army jinx today, whipping the unbeaten Cadets 26-2 behind the violent running of halfback Terry Barr.

A futile fumble only two short weeks ago, the 20-year-old junior from Grand Rapids, Mich., scored two touchdowns as the Wolverines ground Army into submission for the first time in their six game series which started in 1945.

DALLAS, (AP)—Southern Methodist, which wallowed in despair after two straight licks, turned loose Charley Jackson, a hurrying sophomore, on the Missouri Tigers Friday night and hit the victory trail 13-6.

The young man from Paris, Tex., had quite an evening, catching a 39-yard touchdown pass to shove SMU ahead and then putting on the clincher with a 40-yard scoring sprint. He also had 55 yards rushing and that made him the game's leading ground-gainer.

LARAMIE, Wyo., Oct. 8 (AP)—Colorado A&M continued its upset pace today by dumping unbeaten Wyoming 14-13, in a Sky-line Conference football thriller.

A&M's one-two halfback punch of Jerry Zaleski and Gary Glick scored two touchdowns before the Cowboys could score late in the second quarter.

SEATTLE, Oct. 8 (AP)—Washington furnished one 80-yard stroke of football lightning in the last quarter of a rain-drenched game today to bowl over the highly favored Trojans of Southern California 7-0 and take the lead in the Pacific Coast Conference race.

Business Boom Continues

ALL well known authorities and those who make predictions regarding the nation's business have declared the trend will continue and that not only will the rest of 1955 be good but that 1956 looks promising.

They are predicting, however, that the brakes will be added in some cases to slow things down a little. This is supposed to be done with a hike in interest rates; making money a little harder to get; and being more particular as to those to whom loans are made or are being made.

We fully appreciate those selling merchandise on credit with no down payment down and a year or two years to pay want to make sales. We also appreciate fully the fact the average person wants the modern conveniences including automobiles whether they can afford them or not.

We realize there has been considerable change in the attitude of most of us from 25 to 30 years ago regarding our finances and what we can and can't afford.

We recall the day and time when a young couple starting out did so in a rented house with furniture they had bought on credit. In those days they walked where they were going cause they couldn't afford a car. That isn't true today. Today they buy a house with a few dollars down; they buy furniture with a few dollars down; they buy a car, television and the modern conveniences with a few dollars down and then start sweating to meet the payments.

And in about nine times out of ten they want their employer to sweat right along with them or to help them pay for what they have bought by loaning them money; helping them borrow money; increasing their salaries.

There was a day and time when an employee would lose his job if he approached his employer with such a proposal. Today they not only approach them but they expect them to help.

We are still old fashioned enough to believe that it is always wise to do a little checking before we buy to be sure we can meet our payments and to buy in keeping with what we can afford to have.

We still believe the individuals or the couple who do that and at the same time pay as they go; tries to live within their income and seeks to put away a few dollars for that rainy day has more happiness and less financial worries than the person who never gives it a thought until they are in trouble.

responsibility for a clash between Frenchmen.

There were no immediate reports of casualties.

Along the Spanish Moroccan frontier, Foreign Legionnaires, Frenchmen and North African troops cleared the roads between three harassed towns but Berber snipers continued to bang away from nearby ridges.

Bourder, Aknou and Tizi Ouzi again were connected by usable roads and the French set up five mobile units in the area to be ready to move to new troubled spots. Reinforcements continued to move along the road from Fez, an eastern Moroccan center, toward Tizi near the embattled triangle of the frontier.

At one point a convoy between Taza and Bourder was fired upon but Legionnaires cleared the way after a three-hour halt. A said (chief) friendly to the French was hunted out and murdered by rebels in the battle area.

The French charged the Berber warriors continued to operate in and out of Spanish Morocco. The French said they continued to amass information that Berber supplies were coming from out-fitters in the Spanish zone. Already the French have made representations to Spanish authorities to keep their tribal charges on the Spanish side of the frontier. The French are having enough trouble with their own.

citizens going about their business inside the city. Mass gatherings were banned. A high school dance was postponed Thursday night. Friday night's football game between New Castle and Anderson high schools was transferred to Anderson, 30 miles away.

Read blocks halted all incoming motorists. Guardsmen examined drivers' licenses and searched for weapons. One clothing dealer here said farmers—who do a great deal of trading in New Castle on Friday and Saturday—are either resentful of or cowed by the barricades. He said they are shopping elsewhere.

Welfare—

to treat welfare patients.

The way things stand now, staff workers of the Welfare Department have been put to work in an attempt to draw up a rule which would limit a middle course concerning medical treatment for persons on relief.

The New Mexico Medical Society's advisory group to the department meets Oct. 27 to discuss the same problem. It appears likely the rule will be changed.

But any changes must be carefully thought out, officials agree. "We just can't afford to go back to the wide-open policy in effect before," Welfare Director Murray Hintz told his board this week. "With higher hospital costs now, we just don't have the money."

The difficulty is deciding where the line should be drawn in treating relief clients.

On one side is the economist: The Welfare Department doesn't have funds to give treatment to every case—from a cut finger to pneumonia.

On the other side is the humanitarian: You can't decide not to treat an injured or sick person on relief no matter what's wrong with him.

In between are the doctors and the patients. Physicians have to be paid for their work. And yet no doctor can turn down a sick person who happens to be on relief.

The special session of the Legislature helped some. In the Welfare Appropriation Bill there was written a provision that the department could not pay more than $18.50 a day to hospitals for patient care.

The regular session had passed a law which required the department to pay from 75 to 100 per cent of the hospital's actual cost per day to care for welfare patients. Costs submitted by hospitals ranged from below $10 to nearly $30 a day. Many were around $25 a day.

"It's a silly regulation," said one doctor. "Actually, all it does is make liars out of 80 per cent of the medical profession."

cent from June of this year.

The company refused to meet the request for retroactive pay but has offered a 6 per cent wage increase effective upon acceptance by the union. Also at issue is a union demand for seven guaranteed holidays each year.

About 100 employees would be affected if a settlement is not reached before the strike deadline. Union rank and file members are expected to take a strike vote Monday after the negotiations committee notified both the company and federal labor conciliators of intentions to strike after the 60-day cooling off period prescribed by law.

Answering the charges of Local 876, Lackey said in a point-by-point statement:

"Because of the community-wide interest in the negotiations between our union and the management of our Artesia refinery, I believe it is important that statements attributed to Mr. D. A. Brazel, union representative, be answered.

"Mr. Brazel has commented that Malco employees have worked for sub standard wages for 10 years. But fails to note that Malco's ownership extends back over about 2½ years and that, during that 30 month period, substantial strides forward have been taken.

Things like improved working conditions, an all inclusive health plan, and wage increase including our present offer, ranging from 10 per cent on the highest levels to 29½ per cent on the lesser jobs. We think that is progress!

"Mr. Brazel is quoted as saying that on March 1 the oil industry granted a 10 cent wage increase and that within 15 days, virtually every major oil company had granted the increase. Mr. Brazel says 'in May when we didn't hear from Malco, we asked for the increase and were turned down.' In the interest of both fair play and accuracy, May I point out that the company did offer an increase equal to the industry with the one sole condition that the present contract be extended for one year from its expiration date, that is until Nov. 1, 1956. You see, under the terms of the contract, neither the union nor the company was obliged even to discuss wage matters until time for the negotiation of the new contract. The company, however, was willing to put the wage increase into effect at once and not wait for contract renewal time if, as seemed fair, the union would extend the contract to November 1956. Our willingness to make the wage increase effective at once made reasonable our request that the contract be extended.

"I am afraid that Mr. Brazel has quite unintentionally given the impression that the company is unwilling to discuss wage matters and not interested in so-called 'sub standard' working conditions. I am sure that a study of the past two and a half years under Malco management, health plans, wage increases as stated above from 10 to 29½ per cent, vastly improved working conditions, will be assurance to all of Malco's very real interest in its people, the plant, and the community.

"In our negotiations with our union this past week, Malco has offered wage increases which exceed those granted by the industry. Whereas the industry increase was figured 4 per cent or 10 cents per hour, Malco's offer is 6 per cent, which amounts to from 10 cents to as much as 14 cents per hour."

EXPERTS AID ASKED

SANTA FE, (AP)—The Ohio College Assn. has asked for the services of Dr. John Dale Russell, chancellor and executive secretary of the State Board of Educational Finance. Rep. Tampico—

Rescue work was interrupted yesterday when a new storm from the north endangered helicopter operations. The storm cleared to day and helicopters resumed their mercy flights.

Although flood waters are down about two-thirds from their crest, a Navy spokesman said the situation is still grave. Relief work is under the over-all direction of a joint Mexican-U. S. committee, with the U. S. Navy and U. S. Army's Caribbean Command coordinating rescue work.

A roundabout road and rail route from the battered city was opened to bring in food and other relief supplies. An emergency road to the airport was opened earlier for incoming airlifted supplies.

The U. S. aircraft carrier Siboney and the cargo ship Oglethorpe were expected to reach Tampico tonight or tomorrow with additional helicopters and supplies to supplement those from the carrier Saipan and destroyer Bassett anchored off Tampico.

New supplies of disinfectant tablets and portable distillation units were expected to stem the rising toll of typhoid, malaria and dysentery cases.

Industries Of Artesia

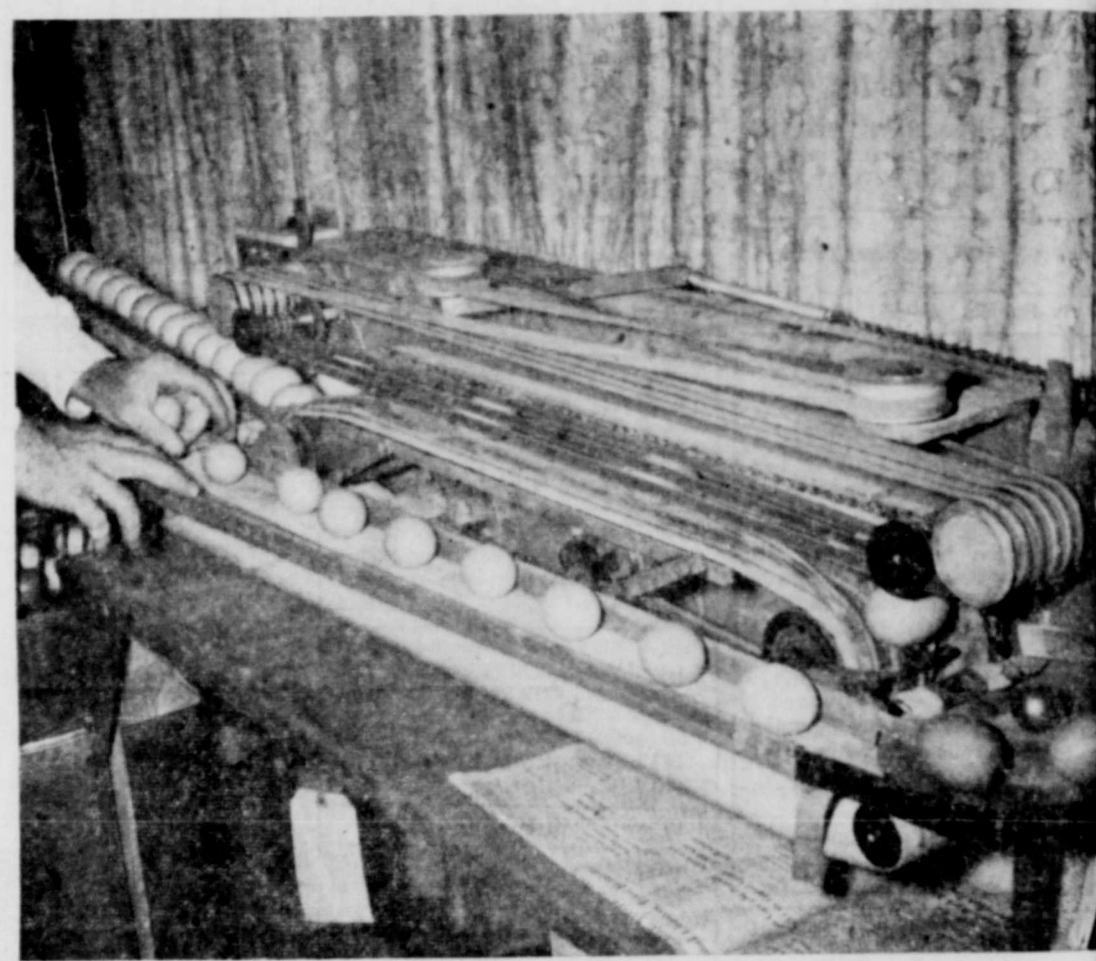

How do you like your eggs? No matter how you like them, Bob and Jack McCaw (center left) like them even better because they represent a big item of business for the McCaw Hatchery on South 13th Street—one of Artesia's old and well-established industries. From the more than 1,200 laying hens such as shown (upper left) come hundreds of eggs each day. And at this time of the year, housewives menu thoughts are beginning to turn to the fine, strutting broad-breasted turkeys another McCaw product. Catering almost exclusively to Artesia needs, the hatchery supplies much of the poultry feeds for the area plus a goodly portion of the fresh eggs, fresh and frozen chickens and turkeys sold in and around Artesia. To process the scores of dozen of eggs each day, the hen fruit is candled and then sanded and cleaned by machine (center right) then graded (lower left) and boxed for sale. In the spring of the year hundreds of tender fryers are killed, dressed and cleaned for the ready market, while the excess of both chickens and turkeys are processed and packaged for storage in the McCaw freezer lockers. Established here by Jack in 1936, the hatchery has grown with the town. Bob joined the organization after World War II, with long experience in hatchery and egg production work in Arkansas. And what does an egg man do for relaxation after a hard week of hunting for eggs in the laying house nests? Well, Jack hunts uranium. (Advocat Photos)

Upper Pecos Valley WSCS Seminar Held in Hagerman

The W. S. C. S. Seminar of the upper Pecos Valley Zone met Tuesday at the First Methodist Church of Hagerman with an all day meeting. Registration began at 9:30 a. m., and there was representation from the First Methodist Church of Carlsbad, the Hillcrest Methodist Church of Carlsbad, and the Epworth Church at Carlsbad, Artesia Methodist Church, Loco Hills Methodist Church, Dexter Methodist Church, Roswell First Methodist Church, the Odessa Methodist Church, and the Hagerman Methodist Church, including six pastor's wives and nine district officers.

Mrs. Harold Young of Odessa presided over the meeting. She is the District Missionary Education and Service Secretary. The meeting was opened with a devotional, and Mrs. Oscar Greene of Dexter gave the opening meditation. Mrs. Young made an introductory talk, and stressed the new building project in the Sacramento Mountains. This was followed by book reviews. The first book, "The Christian Mission in a Revolutionary World" was reviewed by Mrs. C. P. Bunch, District President, of Artesia, who attended the Jurisdictional School of Missions at Sequoia. This book was a study of foreign missionary work.

The second book, given by Mrs. C. W. Bynum of Carlsbad, District Vice-President, was entitled "Towards Lasting Peace." Mrs. Bynum attended the School of Missions in Sacramento. She was assisted by Mrs. Zant of Odessa, who is the District Secretary of Literature and Publications. This book dealt with the study of Christian social relations.

Lunch was then served in the undercroft of the church under the supervision of the Belle Bennett Circle. The banquet tables were covered in white and centered with floral arrangements of Ageratum, Galliardia, and Marigolds. Flower arrangements of Dahlias and Canna leaves, and California Sunflowers were also used in decoration in the sanctuary. The lunch was preceded with a prayer by Mrs. A. A. McCleskey.

Following the lunch hour, Mrs. Young gave a short devotion. The third book, "The Introduction to the Five Spiritual Classics" was reviewed by Mrs. Roberta Haynes who is the president of the Artesia W. S. C. S. group. She

CWF Executives Meet at Gores

The executive board of Christian Women's Fellowship of the First Christian church held a meeting Thursday morning in the home of Mrs. E. T. Gore.

Mrs. Beanie Juarez opened the meeting with prayer. The group voted to purchase a flag and staff for the Brownie troop which is sponsored by the group. They also decided to make Christmas stockings to sell.

Those present were Mrs. Norman Stewart, Mrs. Orvan Gilstrap, Mrs. Beanie Juarez, Mrs. N. T. Kelly, Mrs. William M. Siegenthaler, Mrs. C. Bert Smith, Mrs. Wirt Rooney, Mrs. Joe Walker, Mrs. C. V. Miller, Mrs. C. C. Connor, Mrs. Earl Darst, Mrs. John Lanning and Mrs. Albert Richards. Refreshments of cinnamon nut crescents and coffee were served.

Menoud, had planned a perfectly scrumptious weekend. Miss Brockway, Eulalia Gregory, who is the head of the Brockway School for Girls had relaxed rules and allowed Bunny to invite Larry down to be "passed on" by Aunt Clarissa, Robbie Knay. And then Aunt Clarissa doesn't come. Bunny is aghast! There goes her lovely weekend with Larry. Whereupon Janie, Mrs. J. W. Langenegger, who is a triple threat with a car, almost knocks down a "sweet old lady" who is on her way to the bus station and the girls hit upon a super plan. Why not pass the "sweet old lady" off as Aunt Clarissa? The "sweet old lady" is delighted to help out until her bus leaves and she carries off the ruse perfectly, too perfectly in fact, for she practically takes over the house and simply won't think of leaving for at least two weeks. The girl pleads, begs and bribes, but to no avail—until a snooty lady reporter comes around.

Then the "sweet old lady" picks up her skirts and dashes out, with the reporter after her. She is wanted by the police. In a wild third act, the real Aunt Clarissa appears on the scene and confronts the fake one. And is that a scene—with Aunt Clarissa landing in the clothes closet! Just then Bunny tells the truth and admits that the woman is not her Aunt Clarissa, whereupon she is flabbergasted when her real aunt is let out of the closet. The ending is fast, furious and funny. It is one of the funniest plays you will ever see, and a real hit.

Other characters are portrayed by Louise Brown, Jean Marie Langenegger, Roswell Kirkpatrick, Lucille Mayberry, Ruby Ackerman, I. V. Freeman, Helen Langenegger and Wendan Wallace.

The Junior class of the Hagerman school held a party in the gymnasium Tuesday evening.

Several games were played and at the close of the evening, refreshments of cakes and ice cream sandwiches were served to the following:

Manuela Aguilar, Angie Barnett, Tommy Bledsoe, Cleo Brown, Peggy Cumpsten, Eugene Dearman, Joe Elliott, Della Finch, Bob Estes, Jodel Freeman, Shirley Hartman, Phyllis Jumper, Katie Langston, Fred Pilly, Mary Shipman, Ray Turner, Johnny Tulk, David Gomez, Daniel Gomez, two guests Judy Taylor and Milton Creek and Mrs. Robbie Knay, Junior class sponsor.

Also present were Mr. Knay, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Bledsoe, Mrs. Horice Freeman and Mrs. Louise Brown.

The lower elementary grade children are busy in their school work. They have learned to read books, and are learning poetry and action songs. One group has made a nature collection of rocks, shells and fall leaves and miniature trees with the leaves. Pumpkins have now been placed under the "trees" in keeping with the season. Other rooms have hobby displays.

Clack-Fuller Vows Said In Baptist Church Ceremonies

Miss Patricia Anne Clack became the bride of Danny E. Fuller at 7 p. m. Saturday, Oct. 1, at the First Baptist church with Rev. S. M. Morgan, pastor, officiating at the double-ring rite.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor L. Clack, east of town, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eddie M. Fuller.

The altar was decorated with pink and white mums and pompons, and candelabras.

Mrs. Bill Shearin was organist and played the traditional wedding music, also accompanied Mrs. G. B. Dungan who sang "Because," and "If God Left Only You."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white imported French lace and pleated tulle over net and satin. It was designed with high neckline framed with upstanding collar of lace embroidered with iridescent sequins and pearls. The fitted lace bodice had a sheer yoke outlined with applique of lace, long sleeves ending in points over the hand, and terminates with deep point at center front waistline. From this stems a voluminous skirt made of alternating panels of scalloped lace and pleated tulle-fully shirred-fulness of lace, tulle and satin is emphasized by hoops and crinoline worn underneath. Her veil of silk illusion was joined to coronet of pearls accented with pearl drops.

She carried her Bible to which was attached pink rosebuds and white stephanotis.

For the old tradition of something old she wore pearls belonging to her grandmother, something new, pearl hair clips, gift of the bridegroom, something blue, garter, something borrowed, a Bible, and wore a penny in her shoe for good luck.

Miss Linda Briscoe was matron of honor. She wore an ivory lace floor length dress over pink satin. Her accessories were pink. She carried a crescent bouquet of pink mums.

Pat Briscoe was best man. Russell H. Clack, brother of the bride, and Jimmy Liles, cousin were ushers.

Mrs. Clack wore a mauve two-piece wool jersey and lace over taffeta with black accessories. Her corsage was orchids. Mrs. Fuller wore a navy blue crep and satin dress with navy and white accessories. Her corsage was orchids.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's table was laid with a white cutwork cloth and centered with a bouquet of flowers, and the two-tiered wedding cake of pale pink iced in white, with a miniature bride and bridegroom on top.

The serving table was centered with white pompons and flanked with pale pink candles in silver holders. Refreshments of individual cakes iced in blue bells, punch, nuts and mints were served. Those assisting in serving were Cleo Garner, Nancy Franklin and Ann Wagner.

Mr and Mrs. Fuller left on a honeymoon trip to El Paso. She chose for traveling a navy suit with matching accessories. Her corsage was the pink rosebuds taken from her bouquet.

Mrs. Fuller was a member of the Artesia High school graduating class the past May, and Fuller graduated in 1949 and is employed with Continental Refineries.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Don Payne of Los Angeles, cousin of the bridegroom.

Top state Republicans lean toward Eisenhower for a second term in spite of his heart attack—but only if the President is fully recovered.

Only one of the GOP hierarchy in New Mexico feels strongly that Ike would be taking too much of a chance, and shouldn't even be asked by the party to seek the nomination.

In the first despair over the chief executive's illness, the Republican leaders would talk mostly off the record. They didn't want to commit themselves by name to supporting one candidate or another in the event Eisenhower is unable—or feels he shouldn't—seek a second term.

And obviously there was some feeling involving the possible effect Eisenhower's not running would have on the state races.

National Committee woman Mrs. Earl Moulton of Albuquerque will speak for the record—and she is proud to do so. Although even the thought of the President's continued ill health pains me, to think about Mrs. Moulton feels very strongly that Vice President Nixon should be the party's candidate to succeed Ike.

Another top Republican leader favors Earl Warren of California, in the event Ike shouldn't run—but doesn't want to say so publicly. He lists as his second and third choices Gov. Stratton of Illinois and Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey.

But leading Republicans, though they may differ on whether he should or should not run, and whom his successor should be, agree 1000 per cent on one thing:

They all deeply feel that the loss of the President, either to death or illness, would be not only a political but a personal loss. No matter to which political party you belong, a man who can inspire such real emotion among experienced political figures has got something.

In all newspapers there is what is known as a makeup table, topped by a "stone" on which the pages of type are put together from which to print the newspaper. At the Hot Springs Herald in Truth of Consequences, the stone sits on what once was a billiard table. Editor Paul Tooley takes considerable kidding about his people getting the paper to press, then raising the lid and shooting a game of pool.

When they hold the annual Maso-King Allowance at La Mesa

Park in Raton, it means something. Mason King of Amarillo is perhaps one of the best known figures in Southwestern horse racing circles. The allowance at Raton was named in his honor. King was for the first four years of its history the presiding steward at the race meet at the New Mexico State Fair in Albuquerque and has officiated at numerous other race meets in the Southwest.

A STORY RECENTLY from Holloman Air Development Center gave a tentative indication that the mysterious cosmic rays of upper atmosphere—long feared as a possible bar to space travel—might have no more disastrous effect on humans than possibly to turn the hair grey. A lot of folks in these modern days of speedy living and worry pilled on worry might contend rightly that it doesn't take a cosmic ray to produce grey hair.

ADVERSITY doesn't mean much to white-thatched New Gorman, New Mexico inventor. A few weeks ago he unlimbered his old car, which he hadn't used for a year, packed up his gear and headed out of Albuquerque for Fort Smith, Ark.

A few miles east of Clines Corners, some began pouring from the engine, he stopped, lifted the hood, and flames shot up. Gorman whipped a blanket from his belongings and tried to smother the blaze. But it was getting the best of him. Then, from the east came a car bearing New Jersey plates. Out jumped two young Japanese-Americans headed for California. They dragged out one of their blankets and dumped it on top of Gorman's. They dashed back and forth from the car to a bank, gathering sand to dump on the still smoking engine. Finally the flames were snuffed, and the boys drove on to Clines Corners to summon a mechanic.

Matter-of-factly, Gorman observed he never had liked automobiles—"don't trust 'em." The stout little older, who grew up on a ranch north of Deming, added with a grin that "if the car doesn't burn up somewhere along the way, I'm going on to Fort Smith."

"Then," he said "I'm going to get rid of the car and buy a little place where I can set up a shop, garden and raise chickens." He wants the new shop to develop his inventions. Now he's looking for a market for a recently patented telescope, which he says "gathers more light than others."

Why has he picked Fort Smith to settle down?

He isn't very definite about that —just sort of picked it out of the blue. I'm a sort of lone wolf. I've got a mess of relatives—66—but I've never had any strings tying me down," he grinned as he settled down comfortably to wait for the mechanic. He observed, "I'll get there sooner or later. Say! I never thanked those boys! And they left their blanket!"

A clerk considered by other employees of Tiffany's, the fabulous New York jewelry company, as an expert on the firm's past, says the company owns no turquoise mines in New Mexico.

That's contrary to tale heard in the state. There is a long-inoperative, fenced-off turquoise mine near Silver City reported to be owned, or have been owned, by the jewelry firm.

However, the clerk, who declined use of his name, stood behind a counter in the New York store and vehemently declared "Tiffany's never owned any mine."

"Every so often," he added, "we have been questioned about whether we owned turquoise mines in New Mexico. I wonder how those stories got started. It may have been someone else named Tiffany who owned them."

He shrugged aside the idea Tiffany's would be interested in the stone Southwest Indians have used for centuries to adorn themselves and which now is so popular with people all over the nation.

DOUG KUBOSH, telephone company service man in Albuquerque, is a displaced Texan, and he says he likes it. "I guess I'm different," he says, "I don't like Texas. Back there in my home town they always wake up worrying that there's going to be a depression."

He says that's one of the main reasons he doesn't like his home state. "They're too pessimistic." Doug was a Golden Glove boxer a few years ago. But the big 200-pounder says he "didn't have the heart" to make it to the top. "I didn't like to hurt a guy," he says.

"If I could knock him out, it was okay, but I didn't like to stand there and pounds on him."

He says that in that way he's like other Texas fighters. "You know," he says, "I haven't been able to find one Texan in the records who ever made it to the top. I don't know what's the matter with us."

my new york

BY MEL HEIMER

NEW YORK—Autumn, of course, appears in many ways. In Goose Creek, Tex., the long-horn steers' coats start thickening and growing shaggier. In Westchester county, housewives remove the tweed topcoats from the paper storage bags and find hundred-dollar bills they've forgotten, in the pockets. Everywhere, the leaf turns, the car oil coagulates, the sunlight pales and we hoary ones consider the melancholy prospect of another summer gone.

In New York, the crazy parties begin. An author will do a book about the Brooklyn bridge and a party will be held for him in dead center of that span. An actor will do a movie about flying and a party will be held for him in a four-engine jet 20,000 feet over Staten Island. Parties will be held incessantly, the odder the more successful—and yet, I wonder somehow if from here on in, all parties this autumn and winter won't be anti-climatic.

Just the other night, a mattress company took over the Gold suite of the Savoy-Plaza from 11 p. m. to 6 a. m. and threw a pajama party there. I sent my man Dreyer to the bawls and he reported back like so:

"MUCH CONFUSION IN ANTEROOM of Gold suite. Guests all arrived on time. Pajama counters all around room looked like bargain day at Macy's basement, as guests sized pajamas against their bodies."

"Comic Buddy Hackett—glowing in striped pajamas, paisley robe, tasseled nightcap and bowtie—brought order by standing on chair and yelling, 'C'mon folks, this is it. Put 'em on; it's a party!' Then, holding up arms traffic sign-wise, directed men and women to dressing rooms."

"Amazing turnout of theatrical personalities. It figures. They get little opportunities for parties, since when they finish work, everyone else is going to bed."

"Don't know what took place in ladies' dressing room. Men looked sheepishly at each other, waiting for someone to make a move—undecided whether to wear pajamas over street clothes or really get into spirit of thing. Problem settled by bearded, portly super-press agent Jim Moran, who said, 'Boys—if I can, you can.' We did."

"Checkroom scene of confusion. Girls found themselves with armfuls of trousers and unmade shoes. Main room carpeted with 300 mattresses. Mattresses served as rugs and, piled up, as settees and tables. Work of Beata Gray, NBC set designer—who worked all day on decor, then started dancing at midnight and was still dancing at six in the morning."

"Small area cleared for dancing, with bouncy five-piece combo. Scene looked like seraglio as guests lounged on mattresses. Aspect different in next room. Everyone standing at food and drink bar. Bartenders agitated at amount of liquor being used."

"DIRECTOR GEORGE ABBOTT, who just played Mr. Antrobus in Skin of Our Teeth, proved again to be one of country's best dancers, as he jitterbugged with Nanette Fabray. Late arrivals booted for failure to wear pajamas."

"One 6-foot-4 gent, irritated, dashed out and returned with lady's shorty nightgown. Said was last one and was he expected to wear it? Party emceed by Ernie Kovacs, who topped his pajama outfit with miner's helmet, complete with electric torch. Kovacs wore only waffle weave pajamas in place. But no ersatz waffle weave, his. Real waffles sewn on coat."

"Around three or four, less hardy ones said goodnight and plopped down on nearest mattresses for naps. One celebrant, after too many bourbon sandwiches, wandered out and returned shortly with toothbrush and tube of toothpaste. How blasé can New York be? He walked through lobby in pajamas and nightcap, east on 58th street to Madison, made purchases and walked back to hotel. Nancy Andrews, great talent, sang a few dozen of her songs."

"Left, finally, at 6 a. m. with several others wearing pajama tops over dresses and jackets. Much gawking by early workers. Peasants."

Southern Prod. Co., Inc., No. 43,

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8. (AP)—In 1939 one state, Pennsylvania, produced 2,000 barrels of oil. This year oil is coming from 29 states, and U. S. production is expected to set a new record of some 2 1/2 billion barrels.

That is the story of the oil industry which will carry to the nation next week during Oil Progress Week.

A television show, "1976," will start off the week tomorrow. It is sponsored by the American Petroleum Institute (API) in behalf of the industry. Special events will follow during the week throughout the country.

Records show that 20 years ago the annual production of oil was around 900 million barrels, coming from 22 states.

Production today is averaging around 6,000,000 barrels daily.

About 300,000 persons are working in crude oil production, the industry estimates.

The API estimates of daily average output for the week ended Sept. 30 showed Texas as the top producing state with about 2,700,000 barrels, followed by California with 984,200 and Louisiana with 688,700.

Other producing states are Oklahoma, Kansas, Wyoming, New Mexico, Illinois, Colorado, Mississippi, Arkansas, Montana, Kentucky, Indiana, Michigan, North Dakota, Pennsylvania, Nebraska, New York, Ohio, West Virginia, Utah, South Dakota, Florida, Virginia, Alabama, Tennessee, Missouri and Nevada.

Alabama, Florida, Nebraska, Nevada, North Dakota, South Dakota and Virginia have joined the list in the last 20 years.

Total value of the wells of the production since the first well was completed in Pennsylvania is estimated at 80 million dollars. The API's committee on petroleum reserves estimates the nation's total proved reserves of crude oil as of Dec. 31, 1954, at 29,560,746,000 barrels, an increase of 615,918,000 during the year.

The Bureau of Mines reports the supply situation indicates crude runs have been substantially above seasonal requirements since June 30. The report added:

"The stocks of finished and unfinished gasoline are close to the high level of last year, residual stocks are about 10 million barrels below last year—due to a heavy liquidation in California from increased exports and shipments to the East Coast—while stocks of distillate fuel oil are about 17 million barrels higher than a year ago."
