More than 1,500 back Bush at local rally

Vice President George Bush urges support for the Reagan-Bush re-election bid during a noon-time political rally held Thursday at Midland Center.

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Assistant City Editor

"Some things, thank God, don't change. But some things do," said Vice President George H.W. Bush before a crowd of more than 1,500 persons packed into a standing-room-only Midland Center.

It was a homecoming rally at noon Thursday for Bush and his wife, Barbara, who started their adult lives together in the Permian Basin during the late 1940s. Although they left Midland in the late 1950s, they could still recognize some sights.

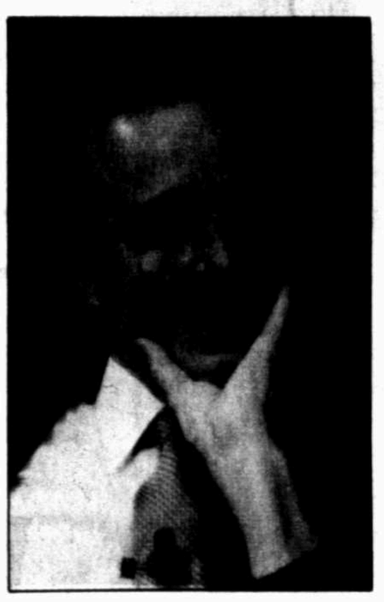
This event, however, differed from a similar one four years ago when the Bushes came back to Midland for another rally. Bush wasn't vice president then; only a candidate. And security wasn't as tight then.

But some of the issues were still the same: promoting conservative politics, balancing the budget, reducing the deficit and criticizing liberal House Democrats.

Instead of concentrating on why the Reagan-Bush ticket should be elected, the vice president focused part of his talk on getting Congressman Phil Gramm elected to the U.S. Senate. And whenever he could find the opportunity, Bush slipped in a few slaps at House Speaker Tip O'Neill.

"It's essential to control the U.S. Senate," said Bush. "And it's essential to elect Phil Gramm to the U.S. Senate. This election has national importance."

"It's essential to control the U.S. Senate. And it's essential to elect Phil Gramm to the U.S. Senate. This election has national importance."
— Vice President Bush



Turning to his own re-election campaign, part of the reason why he was in Midland, Bush talked of national televison ads attacking Tip O'Neill. "There is no way to overstate the highly shrill partisan person." Asked later about his comments, Bush said he thought the comments had been "rather light-touched. Tip persists in attacking our president. A lot of us object to that."

Saying that he actually likes O'Neill, the vice president pointed out his opponent's flaw. "He believes everything he says."

Under President Reagan's leadership, the country has been coming back in the last 3½ years, according to Bush. He cited a new national beginning, a strong, low inflation economy, a strong foreign policy designed to keep peace, a new commitment to values such as family and faith, and about a new American spirit of optimism and determination.

Bush reminded the audience of the campaign four years ago and the incumbent President Carter. "Remember what President Carter had to say about the American people...that there is a growing disrespect for government and for churches and for schools. Part of my job is to remind people of the great productivity."

During Reagan's term, the House Democrats tried to push through a $3.5 billion jobs bill that would have created 300,000 new jobs with federal money, according to Bush. Reagan vetoed it, saying he wanted a recovering economy to provide those jobs — not the government. "Because he held his place, 300,000 have been going back to work each month" as the private sector has recovered.

Carter's handling of the hostage situation in Iran came under fire, too, as Bush compared it to last year's invasion of Grenada. "When Americans were in grave danger in Grenada, President Reagan didn't wait until a thousand Americans were taken hostage. Grenada was a proud moment for America," he said.

Bush comments on bank situation

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Assistant City Editor

The federal government isn't going to get into the position of bailing out all ailing financial institutions, as it did recently with Continental Illinois, according to Vice President George H.W. Bush. But the government should insure all depositors' money, he said during an interview Thursday with the Reporter-Telegram.

When the First National Bank of Midland tumbled last fall, there was no bailout from the government. Instead, it was left to the Comptroller of the Currency to find a buyer and merge the stronger institution with FNB. The result was Republic-Bank First National of Midland.

"Of course we were concerned" about the FNB failure, said Bush of the Administration. But with the merger, it was only the stockholders who lost their money; not the depositors.

FIRST NATIONAL wasn't the only bank to fail; it was added to the list of several West Texas institutions which have been merged with other groups. As the banks have fallen, some doubts about the area's economic recovery have risen.

The jittery nerves over the country's financial institutions spread to some of the leading banks in recent weeks. Continental Illinois is looking for a merger. And rumors that Manufacturers Hanover was looking for cash caused a panic that spread to the stock exchange.

"We believe in less government regulation and less control of people's lives. I think the people of West Texas understand that philosophy," said Bush.

The stories circulating about Manufacturers Hanover were just rumors, he said. "The financial industry can't deal in rumors. It has to deal in facts. I don't think it serves the American people very well."

Most of the banks that have gone under can attribute their problems to bad loaning practices, according to the vice president. He looked back to his early years in the oil industry in the Midland and Houston areas. "I could never have gotten a loan on what they were loaning during the go-go days of high interest rates. You're talking to a guy who got laughed out of banks for wanting a loan for drilling rigs. In those days, supply companies had to guarantee those loans."

Six escape Virginia prison's death row

The Associated Press

WARRENTON, N.C. — Six death row inmates armed with homemade knives briefly seized a dozen guards in a daring escape from a top-security prison in Virginia, then commandeered a van and drove to North Carolina, where an intense search was under way today.

The six convicted murderers overpowered the guards, who do not carry guns, at the Mecklenburg County Maximum Correction Facility on Thursday night, authorities said.

After driving the van about 25 miles into North Carolina, they attempted unsuccessfully to abduct a motorist, then abandoned the vehicle to travel on foot, authorities said.

No one was injured and all of the hostages were released before the inmates left the prison, officials said.

The search for the escapees by about 60 officers from Virgina and North Carolina and teams of bloodhounds was concentrated around Warrenton, where officials believed at least two of the inmates were at large, said Nancy Paschall of the Warrenton Police Department.

She said an aerial search of the area was planned after a resident spotted two men walking along an unpaved road southeast of town.

Warren County Sheriff's Deputy Bobby Bolton said the van was found abandoned in Warrenton, where several men confronted an unidentified motorist stopped at a traffic signal and tried to steal his car and abduct him.

Bolton said two of the inmates got into the man's car and ordered him to drive. The man drove about half a mile out of town, where he stopped the car and escaped, he said.

"He was lucky enough to get away," Bolton said.

"They're still out there," Bolton said early today. He said he was unsure if the escapees were armed, but said, "I would consider them dangerous, very dangerous."

The breakout began about 9 p.m. Thursday when guards responded to a disturbance on the Death Row cell block, said Gilbert Miller, a Virginia Department of Corrections spokesman.

Polling firm probing recent sheriff's race

By RICHARD ORR
Staff Writer

Commissioned by a group of local residents, a New York firm has been polling Midland voters by phone to see how rumors that Sheriff Dallas Smith is a wife-beater may have affected his reputation and the outcome of last month's Republican primary, in which Smith lost to former deputy Gary Painter by a margin of 2,000 votes.

The same polling firm, Arthur L. Finkelstein & Associates of Irvington, N.Y., found in polls taken a month before the election that Smith was ahead by 70 percent to 30 percent, according to King Hughes, one of several prominent Midland residents who spearheaded the post-election polling.

Hughes said Thursday the purpose of the poll was to determine if the rumors affected the way people voted "to satisfy our curiosity and to re-establish his (Smith's) reputation.

"At this time, that's the only purpose. But if anything else falls out of this, so be it."

Hughes said the polling is finished but the results are still being tabulated. About 300 persons were contacted in the poll.

The rumors, which gained wide circulation after Smith's divorce from the former Gail Mabee two years ago, ranged from her suffering a miscarriage due to beatings to her also suffering a broken arm and having to stay in a shelter for battered women.

While Hughes acknowledges that the publicity political newcomer Painter gained prior to the election when he was initially denied a place on the ballot was no doubt a factor in the outcome, the pre-election polling "showed that it had pretty much died down a month before the election."

Hughes also concedes that another possible factor was the Midland Police Officers Association's public statement that "a change in the administration of the sheriff's office", was needed "for the betterment of law enforcement in Midland County and for the safety of the citizens of Midland County."

But, says Hughes, "Probably the single most compelling reason for his defeat were the rumors. A month before the election he looked unbeatable. That's why he took the high ground and didn't respond to Painter's ads."

Painter's ads challenged the way Smith administered the department but did not allude to his marital problems or to his being an alleged wife-beater.

"We want to find out how significant the rumors were," said Hughes. "We think he and the people of Midland County got shafted and we intend to run this thing out."

No allegations were made by Mrs. Smith that physical cruelty was a factor in the divorce, according to court records.

"It wasn't a factor in fact either," Smith noted. Asked to comment on the post-election poll, he said:

"It's really not my right to elaborate because it's an effort by interested citizens who approached me in an effort to set the record straight."

Voters' group files suit

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Assistant City Editor

The at-large system of electing city councilmen has excluded minorities, according to Rolando Rios with the Southwest Voter Registration Education Project. He made that statement Thursday afternoon on the steps of Midland County Courthouse after filing in district court a lawsuit against the mayor and city councilmen.

Listed as plaintiffs in the suit are League of United Latin American Citizens and Black Advisory Council.

Named as defendants are Mayor G. Thane Akins and Councilmen Jesse H. Hatfield, Gordon G. Marcum II, David Godfrey, Steve Davidson and Tom Sloan. However, Sloan's position on the council has been taken by Bart Hotchkiss, and Rios said that name would be substituted on the petition.

"The at-large system dilutes the voting strength of minorities," said Rios. The suit is filed "on behalf of all blacks and all Hispanics. It is supported by local Democrats and the AFL-CIO."

Rios said Midland's population consists of 17 percent Hispanics and 10 percent blacks.

The attorney said he is willing to negotiate with the city. But if there is no settlement out of court, then the case should be heard in about six months.

Suits filed in other cities have been successful in seeing those governments switch to the single member district plan, according to Rios. "If the city of Midland looks around, every major city is going to single member districts. They might look to that for some guidance."

The suit states that the plaintiffs "seek the formation of a city council all of whose members are elected from single member districts." It cites the 14th and 15th amendments to the U.S. Constitution.

Listed as president of LULAC is Isabel Jimenez and president of the Black Advisory Council is Charlie Jackson.

Duarte takes office in El Salvador with U.S. blessing

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Jose Napoleon Duarte, once jailed by the army and then sent into exile, takes the oath of office today as El Salvador's first popularly elected civilian president in 53 years.

Duarte will be sworn in at a ceremony attended by U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz and a delegation of U.S. legisators and officials. The two-stage election which he won was conducted with extensive support from the United States.

Duarte will travel in a motorcade down San Salvador's main boulevard today to the Sports Palace, where he is to be draped in the nation's blue and white presidential sash by outgoing President Alvaro Magana.

Shultz heads an 11-member U.S. delegation that includes ultraconservative Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and liberal Sen. Paul Tongas, D-Mass.

Guatemalan Chief of State Gen. Oscar Humberto Mejia Victores will be the only head of state to attend the inauguration, although several Cabinet-level figures from Europe and Latin America will be there. Representatives from 42 countries will be present.

The Republican Nationalist Alliance, defeated by Duarte in a May 6 presidential election, has threatened to boycott the ceremony.

According to the official tally, Duarte won 53.6 percent of the vote to 46.4 percent for Roberto d'Aubuisson of the Republican Nationalist Alliance. D'Aubuisson claimed the election was fraudulent.

Duarte is the first popularly elected civilian president since Arturo Araujo, who was elected in early 1931 and overthrown less than a year later in a military coup. A series of coups and military regimes followed.

Duarte lost a 1972 presidential election widely said to be fraudulent. After the election, he was badly beaten up by the military and exiled to Venezuela where he spent the next seven years.

Since a 1979 coup by reform-minded military officers, the government has tried under U.S. tutelage to build a workable electoral system. The coup unleashed a 4½-year-old civil war between the government and leftist insurgents.

Magana, a conservative banker, was appointed provisional president of the country in April, 1982, by a newly-elected Constituent Assembly.

The new president has not developed concrete plans, but he is expected to push land reform while encouraging businessmen to invest.

Duarte has sad he will hold a "dialogue" to bring the civil war to an end, but has said he will not share power with the guerrillas.

Duarte's government faces a guerrilla insurgency of about 8,000 fighters, who rejected the electoral process as a "farce." The insurgents control roughly a third of El Salvadoran territory.

Privately, aides say the new president is not planning to negotiate with the rebels soon. They say Duarte wants the guerrillas to show an interest in upcoming 1985 legislative and municipal elections before he will make any overtures toward them.

Duarte must deal with businessman, many of whom consider him a communist, and with rightist death squads that have threatened to disrupt his government.

Shortly after taking office, Duarte is expected to swear in a commission to investigate death squads and political slayings in recent years.

More than 52,000 people have lost their lives in political violence since 1978.

The new president has promised to strengthen the country's legal system and bring the army under control.

Duarte will swear in a new Cabinet today that includes an administrative rearrangement of the defense and public security ministry. He has divided the ministry into two branches, one in charge of the army and one in charge of other security forces.

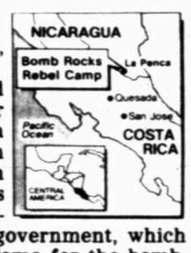
Rebel leader vows to return to fighting



SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — Wounded rebel leader Eden Pastora vowed to return within a month to resume his fight against Nicaragua's leftist government, which his supporters blame for the bombing that injured him and killed four others.

Nicaragua's Sandinista government, however, said the explosion was the result of rivalry among the rebels and may have been instigated by the CIA.

Pastora, in a statement released from a San Jose hospital where is recovering from burns and shrapnel wounds, said: "Within a month at the latest, when we recover from the light wounds caused by the terrorist bombs, we will be fighting again."

The explosion occurred Wednesday evening shortly after Pastora, military leader of the Costa Rican-based Revolutionary Democratic Alliance, began talking to reporters at a house in La Penca, a town in a rebel-held part of Nicaragua about a mile from the border with Costa Rica.

Costa Rica's president, Luis Alberto Monge, who was in Spain on a state visit, ordered Pastora's arrest after he crossed the border from Nicaragua, according to Information Minister Armando Vargas.

Vargas said Pastora was under strict police watch at the hospital and will be expelled to a country other than Nicaragua. He said the rebel leader had not asked for political asylum.

In Venezuela, Gonzalo Barrios, president of Venezuela's ruling Democratic Action Party, said Pastora was free to enter Venezuela if he wanted, either as a refugee or to recuperate.

Among those killed in the bombing were Linda Frazier, reporter for the English language Tico Times in San Jose and wife of AP Central American correspondent Joseph B. Frazier; Jorge Quiroz, a television cameraman from San Jose; a guerrilla identified by Pastora's group as Rosa Alvarez Zambrana; and a guerrilla who had not been identified.

Earlier reports had said five people were killed.

Iraqi warplanes attack oil refinery

By ALY MAHMOUD
Associated Press Writer

Iran today confirmed that Iraqi warplanes had attacked an oil refinery 100 miles inside Iranian territory but said its defense forces downed one plane, killing the pilot, and forced the other planes to flee.

The Iranian report was carried by Tehran radio, which also broadcast a threat that Iran would destroy ports and oil pipelines thoughout the Persian Gulf region if the United States intervenes in the Iran-Iraq war.

Iraq, in announcing the air raid Thursday, said its warplanes hit both an oil refinery and a pumping station near Tabriz, about 300 miles northwest of Tehran.An Iraqi spokesman, speaking on state television, said one Iraqi jetfighter was downed.

In addition, Iraq said Thursday it would destroy installations at Iran's main oil terminal, Kharg Island, if Iran decides to proceed with an anticipated major offensive.

Neither country gave a clear indication what damage, if any, was inflicted on the targets during the air raid near Tabriz.

Iran's Parliament speaker, Hashemi Rafsanjani, said in a speech Thursday to artillery and air defense personnel that Iran would destroy ports and oil pipelines around the gulf if the United States intervened in the war, which began in September 1980.

The United States has said it would intervene if any attempt was made to close the Strait of Hormuz, the narrow passage at the south end of the gulf through which about 20 percent of the non-communist world's oil passes.

Also Thursday, an Iraqi government newspaper said: "Iraq has lately decided to postpone an offensive on Kharg with a view to making room for efforts aimed at talking the Iranians into changing their stance."

CAB reverses decision on smoking in planes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A majority of the Civil Aeronautics Board wants to ban smoking on short-distance airline flights, but the chairman says the idea is being abandoned because airlines might try to skirt the rules and cause massive scheduling and air traffic problems.

The CAB, which two months ago had rejected a smoking ban, stunned the airline industry Thursday by ordering its staff to prepare a regulation that would prohibit cigarette smoking on all commercial flights of two hours or less.

But within hours, the five-member board reversed that decision and announced that it would not pursue a ban, although three members remained "philosophically" against smoking on short flights.

"The practical realities of the real-life world just clash with the idea" of a ban, CAB Chairman Dan McKinnon said in a telephone interview Thursday night, groping to explain why the board in less than seven hours had twice changed positions on the long-standing, much-debated and controversial issue.

The bizarre sequence of events began during a heated meeting by the board in which McKinnon announced he had changed his mind since last March when he opposed a ban on the short-haul flights. With a proxy vote from one board member, who was absent, and support from a third, McKinnon ordered the staff to prepare a regulation banning smoking on flights of two hours or less.

A final vote was planned for June 14.

Board member James Smith called the abrupt reversal from the board's position last March "temporary insanity" and urged that the issue be reopened for debate before any further action was taken. But the suggestion was rejected.

While the staff members sat silent during the public hearing, CAB officials said they later in private meetings strongly urged McKinnon, who held the swing vote on the matter, to abandoned the ban because it could not be administered or enforced.

McKinnon in a telephone interview said that in discussions with the staff he became convinced that the ban, although desirable, was not practical. He denied any outside pressure.

In addition to questions of enforcing the ban, he said the staff told him there were concerns that it would result in "enormous, massive problems" with airline schedules as carriers fearful of losing passengers revamped flights to avoid the two-hour cutoff mark.

"Airlines would change 1 hour and 50 minute flights to 2 hour and 1 minute flights," he said. "...Airlines would change the time of the flights, change the length of the trips" causing enormous problems at major airport hubs around the country.

Unexplained, however, is why those concerns were not taken into account before Thursday's meeting since many of the same issues had been raised often during lenghty debate before the board decided last March 19 to reject a ban.

Meanwhile, as the CAB was going through its series of regulatory flip flops, some air travelers at nearby National Airport were asked what they thought of a smoking ban.

"I think it's a good idea," said George Lahey, 52, who smokes a pack a day.

Daniel Greenblatt, left, a 13-year-old eighth grader from Sterling, Va., holds the National Spelling Bee trophy Thursday after he won the competition by spelling the world "luge." The Bee director James Wagner and runner-up speller Amy McWhirter, 13, of St. Joseph, Mich., are at left.

Spelling champ says he's a 'typical 13-year-old'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's new spelling champ describes himself as "a typical 13-year-old," but he's getting ready to study calculus and, according to his father, spends 90 percent of his spare time in front of a home computer.

Daniel Greenblatt, a word wizard from Sterling, Va., won the 57th annual National Spelling Bee Thursday by correctly spelling "luge," a small sled used for coasting, to edge out Amy McWhirter, 13, of St. Joseph, Mich.

The youngster told reporters he felt he was "going to win all along" even though "I didn't know half those words." He explained that "I'm just an optimist."

The winning word was not the toughest, Daniel said. That was "burgoo," a word for oatmeal gruel or a highly spiced stew, the spelling of which he confessed was a lucky guess. When Amy missed "towhee," a finch, he added, "I knew I was gonna have it."

It took 606 words to spell out the champ this year from among a record 151 contestants. That compared to 574 words last year, when 137 participants made it to the final spelldown.

What will Daniel do with his $1,000 prize money? Probably put it into savings, he said, although he also is contemplating the purchase of a sophisticated program for his home computer to check spelling errors.

Showers Saturday from the western Plains to the Great Lakes and Midwest are forecast by the National Weather Service. Colder weather is expected for the northern Plains, while most areas will be warm.

Partly cloudy skies due in Basin Saturday

From Staff and Wire Reports

Tonight's fair skies will give way to partly cloudy conditions Saturday, and there's a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms. Warm temperatures will continue, with a low tonight in the mid 60s and a high Saturday in the low 90s. Winds tonight will be from the south at 10-20 mph, and from the south and southeast on Saturday at 10-20 mph and gusting.

A year ago a record low of 47 was set, but today's low was 61, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport. Thursday's high of 90 was warm, but not warm enough to challenge the record of 102, set in 1969.

STATE

Skies were generally clear across Texas today as a ridge of high pressure lingered over the northwest Gulf of Mexico.

The National Weather Service said temperatures should reach into the 80s and 90s statewide today with the mercury exceeding 100 in the Big Bend.

Winds were southerly over most of the state at speeds generally of 5 to 15 mph.

Relief from the hot, drying winds should come to the Texas Panhandle on Saturday, the weather service said, as cool air makes a weak push into the region from New Mexico.

Overnight temperatures were mostly in the 50s and 60s around the state except in the upper 40s over the mountainous southwest. The early morning extremes ranged from 49 degrees at Marfa in the Davis Mountains to 70 at Corpus Christi.

Warmer than usual temperatures are expected for Texas during the month of June. West Texas is in for hot temperatures, but no strong rainfall trends are indicated, the weather service sayd.

NATION

Record lows and highs were reported at opposite ends of the nation, while thunderstorms and heavy flooding today continued to plague the central Plains and the Northeast.

The mercury dipped to 52 early today in Jacksonville, Fla., setting a new record for the date. Colorado Springs, Colo., and North Platte, Neb., earlier posted record highs, with readings of 87 and 92 respectively.

Heavy thunderstorms accompanied by a half-dozen tornadoes which struck the central Plains and central Rockies late Thursday lingered today in a broad band from South Dakota to western Kansas and the eastern Colorado. No injuries were reported.

Jobless rate falls to 7.5 percent

By MERRILL HARTSON
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON — America's civilian jobless rate fell to 7.5 percent in May, the lowest since August 1981, as new hiring by business created 890,000 jobs, the government reported today. Total employment reached 105.3 million, the highest on record.

Last month's rate also matched the 7.5 percent level of January 1981, when President Reagan took office.

The 0.3 percentage point dip from April's seasonally adjusted 7.8 percent civilian jobless rate broke a string of two months of standstill unemployment. The good news notwithstanding, an estimated 8.5 million Americans were still without jobs, the Labor Department said.

But today's report was studded with good news for the labor market as hundreds of thousands of young people prepare to enter the labor force in search of summertime jobs.

—Of the more than 105 million working Americans, 42.5 million were women. This represented 50.5 percent of the more than 85 million women in the population, "the first time ever that more than half of all adult women have been employed," the department said.

—The overall civilian rate fell even though roughly 558,000 people entered the labor force in search of work. The creation of nearly 900,000 jobs more than accommodated the new job seekers.

—The declines in joblessness touched every population group, but was strongest among adult men and women and among blacks.

—The average manufacturing workweek fell by 30 minutes from the high April level of 41.2 hours to 40.7 hours, an indication that employers were willing to hire new workers rather than just spread the work among the existing workforce.

—The 7.5 percent civilian rate was 3.2 percentage points below the post-Depression peak of 10.7 percent recorded in November 1982. Since then, when the ranks of the unemployed topped 12 million, the tally of the jobless has plummeted by 3.4 million.

An alternative unemployment rate, combining the 113.2 million-member civilian labor force with the 1.7 million members of the armed forces stationed in the United States, fell from 7.7 percent to 7.4 percent.

In testimony prepared for the congressional Joint Economic Committee, the commissioner of labor statistics, Janet L. Norwood, noted that "the bulk of the May unemployment decline occurred among adult men," whose jobless rate fell from 6.9 percent to 6.5 percent.

"During the 1981-82 recession, the rate for men, which usually is lower than that for women, rose sharply and, in a number of months, was more than a full percentage point higher than the rate for women," she said.

"Men's joblessness has shown greater improvement during the recovery, however, and the May figures marked the first time since early in the recession that their rate has been significantly below that for women," she added.

A separate survey of business payrolls, not included in the unemployment rate calculation, showed the addition of 230,000 workers in May, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Among the various population groups, today's report showed these May unemployment rates, compared with the April rates:

—Adult men, 6.5 percent, down from 6.9 percent.

—Adult women, 6.8 percent, down from 7.0 percent.

—Teenagers, 19 percent, down from 19.4.

—Whites, 6.4 percent, down from 6.7.

—Blacks, 15.8 percent, down from 16.8.

—Hispanics, 10.5 percent, down from 11.5.

The May unemployment report was released unusually early, coming on June 1. The figures are based a Census Bureau survey of some 60,000 randomly selected U.S. households and is conducted in the week in which the 12th day of the month falls.

On the eve of today's release of the May unemployment rate, economist Martin Lefkowitz of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce said: "It looks like the economy is still growing, but not like in the first year of the recovery."

Lefkowitz and others were asked about the implications of a host of economic indicators that seemingly spell a slowing pace of expansion.

"There's no reason to believe the economy isn't in good shape, particularly in terms of job creation," he said.

The Index of Leading Economic Indicators, the government's main gauge of future economic activity, rose a modest 0.5 percent in April, and Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige said that means "less robust economic growth lies ahead."

At the same time, new factory orders dropped 3.6 percent, to $189.1 billion in April, marking the largest one-month slide since a 3.9 percent decrease in May 1980. Earlier, the government said the sales of new houses fell 4.9 percent in April, the third decline in the last four months.

Reagan carries pledge to end unitary taxing

By VIC OSTROWIDZKI
Hearst Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — President Reagan is taking to the Economic Summit in London a promise from state officials to dismantle the unitary tax system which has soured relations between the U.S. and its major trading partners.

When he addresses the leaders of other major industrial nations on June 7, the president will relay a commitment from key state governors to end taxing multinational corporations on the basis of the global operations of their parent firms.

The tax – which enriches California's treasury alone by $500 million annually – has drawn considerable criticism as a trade barrier and a bar to greater foreign investment in the United States.

Foreign firms have begun threatening that they will never locate within states that keep the unitary tax on the books.

A recent threat came from Sony Corporation Chairman Akio Morita that the Japanese firm would never again invest in California as long as the state continued the practice.

Currently 12 states tax the worldwide profits of a corporation's subsidiaries as well as the corporation itself. In addition to California, states levying worlwide unitary taxes include Alaska, Colorado, Indiana, Idaho, Massachusetts, Montana, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Oregon and Utah.

Other states have sought to gain business from abroad by promoting the fact that they do no levy a unitary tax.

When a state levies a worldwide unitary tax – a form of franchise tax – it takes into account worldwide operations of a corporation. The tax is calculated as a percentage of the value of the labor, materials and other property in the worldwide operations that support the corporation's activities within the taxing state.

It is estimated that the tax has produced revenues of $750 million a year.

The multinational corporations have complained for years that the unitary method has led to overtaxation if the states exaggerate their share of worldwide income.

Supporters have argued, on the other hand, that the tax provides states with needed revnues and prevents multinational corporations from sheltering profits from taxation or shifting profits to operations in states with lower taxes.

As a remedy, the corporations have been pushing for federal legislation banning the unitary method. One bill to do just that is sponosored by Sen. Charles Mathias, R-Md., and Rep. Barber Conable, R.-N.Y.

The multinationals are not opposing domestic unitary taxation which considers only corporation profits earned within the U.S., better known as profits earned within "the water's edge."

President Reagan decided several months ago against federal intervention, insisting it was up to the state's self-interest to take voluntary steps to address this problem.

Although Reagan refused to be personally drawn into the controversy, late last year he recruited a 19-member commission to study the program. Its members include Governors George Deukmejian of California, James Thompson of Illinois and Scott Matheson Utah and the chief executives of Caterpillar, Exxon, Ford, IBM, Pfizer and Safeway.

The states showed no inclination to compromise as long as there was a possibility that the group would recommend federal legislation, a solution that they believed trampled on the states' rights.

ESCAPE

"The corrections officers were unaware that the inmates had armed themselves with homemade knives that were formed with door casings and tape," Miller said. "The inmates overpowered and took hostage a number of corrections officers, tying them up and taking the uniforms of some of those officers."

The inmates "were able to gain control of the command center," which Miller said "operates the electronic doors."

Virginia Department of Corrections spokesman Wayne Farrar said the inmates could not have obtained guns from the prison because the guards at Mecklenburg do not carry them.

Farrar said the guards carry "what they call 'stun guns,' which is a combination nightstick and also fires a propellant, something similar to a bean bag. It strikes a person with enough force to knock them down."

The inmates left the facility about 10:30 p.m. in a white 1977 Chevrolet van, according to Miller.

The escapees were identifed by Miller as Earl Clanton Jr., 29; Derreck Peterson, 22; Willie Leroy Jones, 26; Linwood Earl Briley, 30; James David Briley, 24; and Lem Davis Tuggle, 32.

James Briley was convicted of slaying three people, including a 5-year-old boy, at their Richmond home during an October 1979 robbery.

His older brother, Linwood Briley, was convicted of the September 1979 robbery and slaying of John H. Gallaher, a Richmond disc jockey.

Clanton was convicted of the March 1981 strangulation death of a Petersburg librarian. Jones was convicted for the May 1983 murders of two retired Charles City storekeepers.

Peterson was convicted for the February 1982 shooting death of a grocery store manager in Hampton.

BUSH

But during those days of high interest rates, financial institutions set aside their prudent banking practices. Their failures are no reflection on the economy.

"This is the strongest recovery in two decades," Bush insisted. "Inflation is under control and interest rates are half what they were. We would say the financial institutions have got to keep looking at their way of doing business."

AS FOR WEST Texas, the suffering oil economy which pushed some of those banks over the edge will get stronger, the vice president said. Decontrol of natural gas still ranks high on President Reagan's list.

"We believe in it. But politics is very difficult right now. It's a controversial item."

The Rev. Jesse Jackson, a Democratic presidential contender, had mentioned that oil and gas belong to the people during an appearance Wednesday night in Hobbs, N.M. That idea, said Bush, is nationalization of the petroleum industry. It's a socialistic philosophy in which resources would be owned by the government.

But that was the only comment Bush would make about the Democratic race, saying that he was staying away from criticizing the opposing party's programs "right now."

More federal and off-shore lands should be opened up for drilling, and former Interior Secretary James Watt had undertaken that task, according to Bush. "But he was criticized for wanting to open up too much. Our philosophy is to prudently — with all the sound conservation that can be mustered — develop off-shore lands. I believe the industry has a good record in conservation."

Although President Reagan has agreed to send Stinger anti-aircraft missiles to Saudi Arabia to defend their oilfields from the warring countries of Iran and Iraq, Bush doesn't think the war will escalate to the point that Americans need to be worried about the petroleum supply.

He defended Reagan's actions, saying that they are keeping open the Strait of Hormuz, something that is in the United States' national interest.

"We only depend on 3 percent of our oil to come from the Persian Gulf, much less than in previous times. It's not unmanageable. We can cope, even if there is a disruption in imports," said Bush. But the United States does have an obligation to help its allies, several of which depend heavily on the Persian Gulf as their source of oil.

MEXICO'S ECONOMIC problems spilled over into the United States in the form of illegal aliens. As the problems worsened, the numbers of undocumented workers increased. Hopefully, said Bush, with the help of the International Monetary Fund and the U.S. Treasury, Mexico has escaped from the worst of the crisis.

To deal with the immigration problem, Bush said the Administration supports the Simpson-Mazzoli bill that would allow amnesty for some workers and place penalties on employers who hire illegal aliens.

The bill, however, would not put the federal government in the role of Big Brother by making everyone carry ID cards, he said. "We're not saying every provision of the bill meets our requirements. But we want to see the U.S. set the immigration policy. We've got to find some way to protect those whose jobs are threatened by an uncontrollable immigration policy."

Last year's drought in West Texas eventually brought some showers of assistance through the U.S. Agriculture Department after prodding from some congressmen and state officials. Despite criticism from some corners, total spending for agriculture is up, according to the vice president.

The request for more aid put the government in the typical "between a rock and a hard place."

"How do you cut government spending and get the budget down and do what you need to do to support those injured in a climactic way, things beyond their control," said Bush.

The aid given last year in the form of lower-interest loans and damaged corn was good, he contended, "despite the highly inflammatory comments by state officials. (John) Block is a market-oriented secretary of agriculture who is good. I've only heard demagoguery out of (Texas Agriculture Secretary Jim) Hightower's office."

The burden of rescuing those farmers and ranchers should be shared by the state and federal governments, he said.

RALLY

Bush sided with Reagan's comments last week that the United States is farther away from a nuclear war than under previous presidents. "Thank God we don't have a president who goes abroad and apologizes for the United States of America," Bush said, receiving an ovation.

"What we're standing for is the concept of democracy, the freedom to come and go," said Bush.

"I'm sick and tired of hearing some of the colleagues Phil works with that Nicaragua is our fault. That's what we were told about Fidel Castro by the New York Times 25 years ago. They were wrong about Castro and they are wrong about Nicaragua."

Americans want a strong anti-crime bill, but it's stuck in the House, again due to O'Neill, Bush charged. While the Senate has approved the legislation, "the House hasn't even had a chance to vote on it. It's a comprehensive anti-crime bill."

Playing up Reagan's philosophies, Bush said the president stands clearly for the values of family, faith, neighborhood and work, and against drugs.

Correction

In a story in Thursday's paper it was incorrectly stated that James Michael Dunn was an oilfield worker.

Instead, he was a parts service representative for Energy Industries.

Dunn was killed in a traffic accident Wednesday.

Cable cars returning to city

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Cable cars will be clanking up the city's hilly streets this weekend for the first time in nearly two years, despite worker complaints of inadequate training and switch problems.

The first rebuilt car was scheduled to roll Sunday with full service expected to resume in time for the Democratic Convention in July. The $58.2 million renovation has idled the system since September 1982.

A gripman was injured in May during a test run, drawing complaints from workers that the system wasn't ready yet. But Bob McNaughton, a Municipal Railway safety officer, said the problems have been solved.

Police seek clues against suspect

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Police are seeking new evidence against a murder suspect after being told not to arrest the man because a statement given by the victim can't be used in court.

Angel Aguair Gordillo died Jan. 7 after being shot Dec. 12. Before he died, he named his assailant and picked out his photograph, officials say.

Assistant Hillsborough State Attorney Mark Ober said Wednesday that Gordillo's statement was not a "dying declaration" because he lived too long after the incident. Ober said the statement is only "hearsay" and can't be used in court.

Swindler faces life in prison

NEW YORK (AP) — A convicted swindler faces up to life in prison for the murders of two women employees he thought were cooperating with federal officials probing his diamond business.

Irwin Margolies, 50, was convicted Thursday by a state Supreme Court jury in the deaths of Margaret Barbera, 38, and Jenny Soo Chin, 46. The jury acquitted him on a charge of conspiring to kill a lawyer who had uncovered fraud at the Candor Diamond Corp.

Prosecutors said Margolies, who currently is serving a 28-year sentence for fraud, hired convicted murderer Donald Nash to kill the women. Ms. Barbera was gunned down at a Hudson River pier in April 1982, three months after Ms. Chin disappeared. Three CBS technicians who tried to help Ms. Barbera also were slain.

Peruvian linen fake Shroud

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — University of Arizona scientists vying for the right to examine the Shroud of Turin say a purported ancient Peruvian linen they tested during a trial run is a 20th-century fake.

Scientists using a $1.2 million carbon-dating machine revealed that a supposed 12th-century cloth sent by the British Museum was a fake, officials said Thursday.

The Vatican has told six institutions seeking the right to study threads from the shroud, claimed to be Christ's burial cloth, that they must first prove the accuracy of their test equipment.

Journalism professor files suit

NEW YORK (AP) — A journalism professor who claims he was blacklisted from the foreign service nearly 40 years ago says his $10 million lawsuit will force government agencies to think twice before they "play fast and loose with reputations of individuals."

In a suit filed Thursday in U.S. District Court, Penn Kimball, 68, of Columbia University's Graduate School of Journalism, said he was falsely classified as Communist sympathizer by the FBI in 1946.

Kimball said the CIA, the FBI and the State Department, which were named in the lawsuit, had files on him containing "derogatory allegations."

Veterans should get counseling

GREENFIELD, Mass. (AP) — A prosecutor says two Vietnam veterans who torched a Buddhist temple on New Year's Eve should get psychiatric counseling and three years' probation instead of prison sentences.

Roland Voudren, 33, and Donald Taylor, 37, face up to 15 years in prison when they are sentenced later this month after pleading guilty Thursday to firebombing the temple in western Massachusetts.

Edward Etheredge, assistant district attorney for Hampshire and Franklin counties, said the two men had no prior criminal record and needed continued psychiatric care and not prison. The men said the temple reminded them of their war experiences.

Entrapment considered in drug trial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John Z. De Lorean's attorney, nearing the end of his cross-examination of a government informant, said for the first time that he will raise the issue of entrapment before the drug trafficking case goes to the jury.

Howard Weitzman, who insists the automaker is innocent, has avoided talk of entrapment in the past because it implies admission of a crime.

"I'm not saying there's an entrapment defense here," Weitzman told reporters after Thursday's trial session. "I don't believe a crime was committed.

"But we'll certainly ask for the entrapment instruction," he said, referring to legal instructions the judge will give jurors before they deliberate.

"If the jury concludes a crime was committed, then we will ask that they be allowed to consider entrapment," the attorney said.

Weitzman, who said he was nearly finished with the government's star witness, appeared with his questions Thursday to be laying groundwork for a claim of entrapment.

To prove entrapment, a defendant must show that he was improperly induced to commit a crime with no predisposition to do so. An admission of the act is implicit in such a defense.

"My personal opinion is that no crime was committed," said Weitzman. "But the entrapment concept applies."

De Lorean, 59, is charged with conspiring to distribute $24 million worth of cocaine in a bid to save his Northern Ireland sports car company from bankruptcy in 1982. Conviction on all counts carries a maximum sentence of 72 years in prison.

In Thursday's court session, Weitzman elicited from James Timothy Hoffman acknowledgements that the informant was the first to suggest cocaine dealing to De Lorean and that Hoffman also proposed saving the De Lorean Motor Co. through laundering of millions in drug profits.

"Did you bring up the cocaine or did he?" Weitzman asked.

"He brought up the subject of doing something narcotically...," Hoffman replied.

"Who introduced the subject of cocaine?" asked Weitzman.

"As best I can recall," Hoffman said, "he asked me that and I said, 'Maybe we can do a cocaine deal.' So to answer your question, I guess it was me."

Weitzman suggested that the government devised the money laundering plan because agents feared De Lorean would not go through with the proposed cocaine deal and they wanted to keep the businessman involved in a "sting" operation.

Hoffman said he had no doubt De Lorean would come through with a promised $2 million for cocaine importation. But he said he never questioned the orders of government control agents who sent him to De Lorean with an alternate deal involving a "group from South America" investing "great sums ... millions of dollars" of drug proceeds in De Lorean's firm.

Hoffman said he offered that idea as early as Aug. 11, 1982, more than two months before De Lorean's arrest and a month before De Lorean reported he no longer had the money for the drug deal.

Testimony has shown that FBI and Drug Enforcement Administration agents posing as drug dealers later proposed accepting collateral in De Lorean's company rather than cash to complete the drug deal.

The talk of money laundering led Weitzman to question Hoffman about Hoffman's own experiences in such enterprises. The witness had testified earlier that he kept a bank account in the Grand Cayman Islands, but said it had a balance of only $400.

"What was the purpose of your Cayman Islands account?" asked Weitzman.

"It was to have local funds there," said Hoffman. "I wasn't trying to launder $400," he added with irritation. "Give me a break."

Jurors laughed.

The only other light moment in the day came when Assistant U.S. Attorney Robert Perry, leaning back in his chair at the counsel table, leaned too far and fell on the floor.

"That was very dramatic, Mr. Perry," said U.S. District Judge Robert Takasugi.

"Your honor, he'll do anything to break my train of thought," quipped Weitzman as Perry brushed himself off and returned to his seat.

Men at the top

A crowd estimated at 1,500 people crowded into and around Midland Center at noon Thursday for a rally in honor of President Ronald Reagan and Vice President George Bush and their re-election effort.

That size gathering was not unexpected. After all, Vice President Bush was on hand for the event and politicians of that stature typically attract crowds.

Another factor in the size of the gathering — which was impressive, to say the least — was that Midland was Bush's hometown back in the late 1940s and much of the 1950s. He still can count numerous Midlanders as personal friends and acquaintances, and he still has several relatives — including a son and family — residing here.

So returning to Midland for a visit or a political rally is, we suspect, a most comfortable experience for the vice president.

That fact is only compounded by the realization that Midland is a Republican stronghold and was back when it wasn't particularly chic to claim allegiance to the GOP. What that note translates into is the fact that a return to Midland puts George Bush among friends — political and otherwise.

Vice President Bush's remarks at Midland Center were not surprising in any regard. He had high praise for President Reagan, noting that the chief executive has brought to the Oval Office a patriotic spirit and respect for work and church and family and other qualities that have seemed in short supply in recent years. He has thrust to the forefront in America a spirit and an imagination even we had suspected were qualities of a dying breed of our countrymen.

It was good to have Vice President Bush in Midland once again. But even more than having him here — which we enjoy immensely — it's great to have individuals such as he and President Reagan in Washington, D.C., at the helm of this country.

Switzerland, maybe?

President Reagan, always the optimist, is not about to let a Russian monkey wrench wreck the Olympic Games in Los Angeles. In a talk to Olympic athletes training at Colorado Springs, he denounced the Soviet Union's decision to boycott the Games.

"It is unfortunate that not all nations will be represented ... I hope you realize, however, that the success of the Olympics, and your personal success in the Games, in no way depend on political machinations of power brokers in countries that are less than free," said President Reagan. He added that "The Games are moving forward and they will be successful ... the greatest ever had."

Equally optimistic are members of the United States Olympic Committee as they are moving fast to plan for the future. They are in the process of reorganizing the rules and seeking ways and means of avoiding more boycotts, of which there have been three in a row.

A key problem is finding a site, or sites, agreeable to all. This will not be easy, as we learned in 1980 when the United States boycotted the Moscow games, and as we learned again when the opposite happened.

Switzerland might be the answer. It is a neutral country that has managed to remain remote from international politics. It is suitable for both winter and summer games. It could be a hospitable haven where everyone would feel at home.

At any rate, the Olympic Games will go on, thanks to reform initiatives by the United States Committee, and the attitude of people like President Reagan. Meanwhile, let us keep Switzerland in mind.

Another View:

Guilt by accusation

If CIA Director William J. Casey is guilty of a crime for having come into possession of the contents of President Carter's campaign briefing book via a "leak" at the White House, then a new category of crime has been created that will require the filing of charges against most of the newsmen in Washington, as well as tens of thousands of government "leakers" who have been handing over government documents to reporters and others for decades.

The theory put forward in the 2,412-page report prepared under the supervision of a House subcommittee under Rep. Donald F. Albosta, D-Mich., is that the briefing book was prepared by government employees, and therefore is government property. Its unauthorized removal thus is said to be a crime.

A great many of the "leaks" of information prepared by federal employees have come from congressional committees, but no one prior to the Albosta report has suggested that this leaking constituted criminal activity. It is a federal crime to divulge military secrets and other top secret government information, but "leaking" the contents of Jimmy Carter's campaign briefing papers could hardly threaten national security.

After a 10-month-long investigation and after spending enormous amounts in preparing this monster report, the Albosta investigators don't even say who might have passed along this information to Casey. If the accusers don't have someone who can be said to have transmitted the information, how can a case be made against Casey or anyone else, even if the convoluted rationale for charging him with a crime could be accepted?

This was a case where the investigation dragged on so long and cost so much, that those who had authorized it felt compelled to try to justify it by leveling these unsubstantiated charges against Casey. It's called guilt by accusation. The report indicates Casey did something illegal to obtain these papers, and then suggests that someone go out and find the evidence to prove it. Case dismissed.

GOP turning socialism into cash

WASHINGTON — I guess only a Republican fund-raiser would have the chutzpah to send out an appeal for campaign contributions from one of the most luxurious hotels in Paris — and base his solicitation on the horrors of French socialism.

Jack Anderson

But if nothing succeeds like excess, you've got to hand it to the National Republican Senatorial Committee. It raised $31 million last year alone. During the 1981-82 election cycle, it collected $95 million from the party faithful.

The committee's stridently partisan direct-mail fund-raising efforts often raise the specter of a Democratic-controlled Senate. In 1982 for example, an appeal from the committee chairman, Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., fairly crackled with desperation:

"Will you help save our Republican majority?" he asked. "Please let me know 'Yes' or 'No' today if at all possible. What's at stake? If you say 'No,' Ted Kennedy could control the Senate by 1984."

Although that crisis passed safely, it was only a small ideological step to the letter sent out last August by the committee treasurer, Robert Perkins. Writing on the stationery of the elegant Prince de Galles Hotel, he began breathlessly:

"As I write this letter to you, I imagine my eyes still burning from the clouds of tear gas that seem to be a regular occurrence in the beleaguered city of Paris, France ...."

Barricaded in his hotel room just off the Champs Elysees, Perkins described the sorry state that France has been reduced to under the Socialists — a "catastrophe that might one day happen at home." He wrote:

"For example: Anyone wanting to leave France can take only the equivalent of $480 in French currency with him. Imagine trying to take a vacation with your family, or a business trip, with only $480 in your pocket."

Perkins' alarm was understandable. Such a paltry sum would cover perhaps three days at the Prince de Galles, with enough left over for a croissant and a cafe au lait.

"I know France is a long way away," Perkins wrote, "and it's hard to imagine the same nightmare occurring in the United States. ... (But) it's a chance we just can't afford to take. Won't you sit down right now and send a check for $25?"

My associate Tony Capaccio has been studying the committee's expenditures in the past two years. Some of the $25 donors might like to know how their money was used to ward off French-style socialism:

— Sen. Ted Stevens of Alaska was given $3,898.85 by the committee to buy lunches for press people and others.

— Sen. Mark Hatfield of Oregon got $8,107 for magazine and newspaper subscriptions, plus dribs and drabs — ranging from $3.30 to $125 — for office supplies.

— Sen. Pete Domenici of New Mexico got $4,969 for subscriptions and $7,791 in clipping service fees.

— Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois got $6,281 for a clipping service and transmission of press releases on the Chicago City News Bureau's public-relations wire.

— Sen. Gordon Humphrey of New Hampshire got $1.86 for a 62-name mailing list from the New Hampshire Credit Union, plus $7,791 for auto rental and insurance during visits home.

— The committee spent $63 to enroll a press aide of Sen. Rudy Boschwitz of Minnesota in a writing course at the Department of Agriculture.

— Sen. Nancy Kassebaum of Kansas got $28.90 to frame a photograph that hangs on her office wall.

— The committee spent $682.56 for a 19-inch color TV monitor and cart for the use of Sen. Roger Jepsen of Iowa, and $216 for his office staff's business cards.

FEEDING THE FED: While the Federal Reserve Board urges Congress to tighten its belt, the Fed's own budgetary waistline is growing ever paunchier at public expense. The Fed writes its own budget, and so far Congress hasn't gathered the courage to conduct a full-scale audit of the agency, even though there's clear evidence of waste.

A prime example of the fat in the Fed's budget is the $391,384 subsidy for its cafeterias in one year. Some of the best-paid economists in the world enjoy mouth-watering discounts at the lunch table. Officials at the Fed's regional office in Richmond, Va., for example, could feast on vegetable soup, tossed salad, roast beef, whipped potatoes, green beans, garlic toast and ice cream for a grand total of $1.60.

LAND GRAB: The Air Force has been using 139 square miles of public land in Nevada for five years — and discouraging access to it — despite the fact that Congress has yet to approve transfer of the tract by the Bureau of Land Management. A BLM spokesman conceded that "perhaps" things had been done backward. A bill is now in Congress that would legalize the Air Force's land grab.

The property adjoins the Nevada Test Site and super-secret "Area 51" near Nellis Air Force Base, where hot new planes are test-flown. This is where Lt. Gen. Robert Bond died recently while apparently piloting an experimental aircraft.

Incidentally, the land contains a 9,300-foot peak in the Groom Range, from which a mountaineering spy could observe the test area.

Dr. John A. Leitch, director of the Nevada Wildlife Federation, questions the legality of the Air Force takeover, and is afraid it could set a precedent. His group hopes to work out a deal whereby the Air Force would swap other acreage for the Groom Range land.

Reagan getting off Mideast fence

WASHINGTON — Chilling realization that the Soviet Union had committed itself to send medium-range ground-to-ground rockets to Iraq, while the U.S. hung in agonized indecision, helped convince President Reagan that the time for American fence-sitting in the dangerous Iran-Iraq war had ended.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

The Soviet missile decision was stunning. "While you are pussyfooting and mealy-mouthing," a pro-American foreign leader told us, "the Russkis have made their decision and it is 100 percent for the Arabs and 100 percent against the Ayatollah Khomeini and Iran."

Thus after three years of administration short shrift for Arab states, a policy dictated by Secretaries of State Alexander Haig and George Shultz, Ronald Reagan now tastes the fruit: an Arab world under intense Soviet courtship from radical Iraq to royalist Kuwait. The bloody Iran-Iraq war, with its perils to Persian Gulf oil, poses an ideal if dangerous place for course correction.

Backed strongly by the Pentagon and national security adviser Robert McFarlane, it was Ronald Reagan who personally cut through State Department worry about Israel's opposition and ordered the first batch of Stinger anti-aircraft missiles sent to Saudi Arabia under an emergency proviso bypassing Congress. More Stingers — the very same weapon that congressional allies of Israel barred from Jordan only months ago — will follow, if Congress does not succumb to Israel again.

Close observers of Reagan in the diplomatic world outside the Oval Office also credit him personally with reversing a tentative State Department decision that the U.S. should play no favorites in the United Nations debate between Iran and Iraq. The ambassador of one key Arab state, recalling Iran's refusal to accept last year's UN call for a cease-fire, said privately that if the U.S. did not have the spine to finger Iran's Khomeini as the villain in the Persian Gulf crisis, "no country in the world would accept the U.S. pledge to make the Gulf safe for oil tankers."

The Kremlin's decision to give Iraq ground-to-ground missiles for use against oil facilities at Iran's Kharg Island displays an unambiguous intent to assume that role itself — not to preserve Western and Japanese oil supplies but to show it can defend Arab interests while the U.S. cannot.

Years of American ambivalence induced by demands for a higher loyalty to Israel have been an open invitation for this Soviet move on the Mideast chessboard. The U.S., which has been temporizing on Kuwaiti requests for air defense weapons, learned only last week that Moscow is now pressing offers of its own on Kuwait, just as it has on Jordan — which is on the Israeli lobby's blacklist. No prospect so ripe for Soviet penetration of the Arab world as the Persian Gulf war has presented itself to the Kremlin. That is true even though the Arabs know from experience that the Soviet embrace is deadly.

But in the vortex of the Persian Gulf war, the power and fury of Iran's Khomeini is a threat perceived by the Arab states as more virulent than Moscow. Yet even with Saudi Arabia's conservative, royalist government, U.S. credibility is so tarnished that no offer has been made of bases to support direct U.S. air protection against Iran's ancient air force. If and when that moment arrives in a war more likely to escalate into new fury than simmer down, American reliability as an ally can be partially restored by a strong response and a return to the old Arab-Israeli evenhandedness abandoned by the Reagan State Department.

But the Russians are moving fast and with unaccustomed sophistication. The pro-Israeli bloc in Congress is viewed by Arab leaders as almost blind to the dangers of America slowly being squeezed out of the Persian Gulf and the Arab world.

If President Reagan's interventions on the twin issues of Stingers for the Saudis and a pro-Arab, anti-Khomeini U.S. position at the UN are harbingers of a new policy, Arab trust in the U.S. may yet be retrieved.

CHARLEY REESE

Congress a commie's best ally

Communists don't have to be smart because the Democratic majority in the House of Representatives is so dumb.

Charley Reese

Last week the House voted $62 million in aid for El Salvador but refused to vote a penny for the democratic forces trying to overthrow the government of Nicaragua.

That is dumb.

Nicaragua, not El Salvador, is the security threat. The guerrillas in El Salvador have their headquarters in Nicaragua. They get their arms and money from Nicaragua. It is Nicaragua's national anthem which refers to the United States as the enemy of mankind. It is through Nicaragua that the Soviets and Cubans are pouring in military supplies.

It is Nicaragua which has built a 100,000-man army, which has said it intends to spread revolution throughout Central America and which is threatening Costa Rica, Honduras and El Salvador.

What the Democratic majority did was to once more grant communist aggressors a sanctuary. They are saying to the communists, you can play havoc in the democracies but we will leave your little totalitarian state alone.

Well, if they are going to leave Nicaragua alone, then they might as well save us money and cut off all aid to all the Central American countries and bring home all American advisors. How long will it take these idiots to learn that you can't win if you allow the enemy a sanctuary?

Even if you killed all the guerrillas in El Salvador, Nicaragua would simply replace them. If you take their supplies, Nicaragua will replace them. If you win over the peasants, Nicaragua will simply continue to propagandize them.

What the Democratic majority has embarked upon is the familiar American no-win policy which costs lives and treasure and gets us nothing in return.

When you have a hostile government like Nicaragua you have three options: (1) you can declare war; (2) you can undertake covert action; or (3) you can do nothing except suffer the consequences. The Democratic majority has decided to do nothing.

The consequences are easy to foresee. With the guerrillas granted a sanctuary, El Salvador will not be able to defeat them. Eventually, as in Vietnam, we will grow tired of the effort and simply walk away and let the communists have it.

Well, if that's the intention of the Congress, then it would be much more cost-effective to simply surrender all of Central America now because you will darn sure lose it eventually as long as you allow Nicaragua to be an untouched sanctuary.

The excuse that covert action violates international law or offends some of our allies is pure nonsense. Where is it written that a communist government can export revolution to a democracy but a democracy can't export revolution to a communist country? World opinion and 50 cents will buy you a cup of bad coffee.

The kind of thinking exhibited by the Democratic majority will eventually destroy this nation. That's a real world out there. Nobody in the Kremlin or in Havana or in Managua is sitting around and saying, "Well, let's see now what can we do that won't violate the rules of good behavior."

The Soviet Union intends to install Marxist-Leninists governments in Central America. If we don't stop them, they will do it. It is as simple as that. Nor can you stop them by dousing the area in economic aid and telling the governments down there to be nice to the peasants.

That kind of thinking shows an abysmal ignorance of guerrilla warfare tactics. Just what do those dopes in Congress think the guerrillas are doing? They are destroying the economic infrastructure. It wouldn't matter if Franklin D. Roosevelt were president of El Salvador because you can't help people economically if the guerrillas are blowing up bridges and power stations, burning crops, extorting money from the peasants and assassinating every decent public official and economic expert. It is the goal of a guerrilla army to make it impossible for the target government to win the support of the people.

Don't worry about nuclear war, folks. With our Congress, the Soviets will never have to fire a shot.

Dear Citizens of Midland,

I am at the end of a very long and difficult campaign against an extremely liberal opponent who has pulled every political trick in the book to cloud the issues (including, but not limited to, the support of Ted Kennedy).

The real issue is amnesty. Estimates are as high as THREE MILLION (3,000,000) ILLEGAL ALIENS IN TEXAS (equivalent to 35 cities the size of Midland or 21% of the total population of Texas). To give amnesty to these people (as my opponent wants to do) would be devastating. It would destroy our job market, scuttle our school systems and open the flood gates to our border for more of the same. As a citizen of Texas, I am strongly opposed to amnesty as a solution to this problem. The price is much too high!!

If I ever needed your vote and support to back my stands on the important issues, it is TOMORROW. Your vote for KENT HANCE tomorrow could make the difference. PLEASE VOTE!!

Thank you.

HANCE IS CHOICE

" As a state senator, Hance represented well the people of Texas and as a U.S. Congressman he has carried on the fine tradition established in the 19th Congressional District by elder statesman George Mahon. Now Hance desperately needs the active support of the people he has represented in admirable fashion for years."

"As a congressman Hance has strongly supported both the state's oil and agriculture industries and on the economic front he has been a clear voice for fiscal sanity. What has his opponent had to say about the economic recovery program Hance has helped institute? Back in April of 1983, one of Doggett's campaign press releases referred to Reaganomics as "...a misguided theory that works on television but nowhere else."

"We hope every Texan eligible to vote in this runoff election and who has an interest in the economic future of this state and nation, the energy future of the country and conservative leadership overall will vote for Kent Hance at the polls Saturday to represent the Democrats in November for U.S. Senator."

Doggett: Hance turns his back on ordinary Texans

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — State Sen. Lloyd Doggett, after receiving an endorsement from San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros, says Kent Hance, his opponent for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate, has turned his back on ordinary Texans.

"I never complained about Kent Hance lacking backbone, but I think he's turned his back on ordinary Texans," Doggett said at a news conference outside the Bexar County Courthouse.

In continuing his attack before Saturday's run-off for the Democratic nomination for U.S. Senate, Doggett tried to minimize the effect of prominent endorsements of Hance.

In the past two days, former U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger, who finished third in the May 5 primary, and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby have endorsed Hance.

Krueger is campaigning with Hance before Saturday's Democratic run-off for the U.S. Senate seat being vacated by John Tower.

"I don't believe this is a race that is going to be won on endorsements," he said. "It's going to be won on hard work, and we've got the workers out there hustling."

But Doggett continued receiving endorsements of his own.

Cisneros, who backed Krueger in the primary, said he now supports Doggett because "he has fought for Texans by supporting creation of a human rights commission, helping to pass important legislation on education and stopping utility rate hikes."

STATE

The major debate Thursday was a controversy over Krueger's endorsement of Hance. The Dallas Times Herald reported Thursday that Krueger and his chief financier, Jess Hay, discussed Krueger endorsing Hance in order to retire Krueger's $900,000 campaign debt incurred before the May 5 primary.

The newspaper reported that Hay and Krueger discussed the endorsement during a weekend trip to Acapulco, Mexico. Hance, Krueger and Hay all have denied that Krueger is backing Hance in order to retire Krueger's debts.

Doggett said he had "no basis for knowing" if Krueger's decision to endorse Hance was reached in exchange for help in retiring Krueger's debts.

"I wasn't in Acapulco; I wasn't invited," Doggett said. "I hope after time has gone by and (Krueger's) debts are paid, that he will join me in the fall."

Earlier Thursday, Doggett made a campaign swing through South Texas, including Corpus Christi, where Hispanic leader Ruben Bonilla criticized Krueger.

Doggett said that Krueger's support of Hance could backfire, especially among Hispanic voters. Krueger and Doggett each split about 45 percent of the Hispanic vote, while Hance got less than 10 percent.

But Bonilla, Krueger's campaign coordinator in Nueces County and past president of the League of United Latin American Citizens, said he thinks Krueger's endorsement of Hance will hurt Krueger if he ever runs for public office again.

Although Hance said he has gotten many endorsements from state Hispanic leaders, Bonilla and Hispanic groups have criticized Hance's opposition to amnesty for illegal aliens as an attack on Hispanics.

He also said Hance's criticism of Doggett receiving support from U.S. Sen. Edward Kennedy has hurt his chances in South Texas. Kennedy has a "mystique in the eyes of South Texas," and Hance showed his "political naivete by attacking the Kennedy name in Harlingen," Bonilla said.

Earlier in the day, Doggett repeated a campaign theme that the difference between him and Hance is not a matter of left vs. right but of the right way of doing things as opposed to the wrong way.

Halfway house director's trial rescheduled

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — An attorney says international law will be a key point in the defense of a refugee halfway house director charged with transporting illegal aliens.

The trial of Jack Elder, director of the Catholic-sponsored Casa Oscar Romero halfway house, was postponed Thursday until Aug. 6 by U.S. District Judge Filemon Vela.

Elder's attorneys said they would file a motion for a change of venue by July 16 to transfer the trial away from the Texas-Mexico border.

In addition to granting the motion for continuance, Vela approved a change of legal counsel for Elder.

The defense team now includes Rio Grande Valley immigration attorney Lisa Brodyaga; criminal attorney Steve Cooper of St. Paul, Minn.; and lawyers from the New York-based Center for Constitutional Rights, the Washington-based Christic Institute and the National Lawyer's Guild.

"Ideally we would like to have this trial transferred to New York, Washington, D.C., or San Francisco, someplace where there is less gut involvement with immigration issues," said Ms. Brodyaga.

"It will be very hard to ferret out jurors in the Rio Grande Valley who don't have prejudice and preformed attitudes," she said.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Robert Guerra said he felt confident that an impartial jury could be found in Brownsville and would oppose any attempt to move the trial.

Ms. Brodyaga said a change of venue would allow the case to be heard by "jurors with a lot more sophistication about world history and international law."

Defense attorneys plan to argue that Elder's actions are sanctioned by the 1949 Geneva Convention that provides protection to civilians fleeing armed conflict in their homeland, Ms. Brodyaga said.

She said the convention, signed by both El Salvador and the United States, "was drafted in response to what was happening in Germany during World War II."

Three die after running gas hose into car

LONGVIEW (AP) — Autopises were ordered in the deaths of three Longview residents discovered in a car rigged with a hose running from a natural gas meter, a sheriff's investigator said.

The victims — two women and a man — were found about 1:30 p.m. Thursday inside a four-wheel-drive vehicle on an oil lease northwest of this East Texas city, said Gregg County Sheriff's Capt. Larry Smith.

Smith said authorities believe the deaths were accidental and may have stemmed from an attempt to get "high" from the gas fumes.

The victims were identified as Lee Anna Maples, Kimberly Kay Reynolds and Andrew Chionsini, all 18.

Ms. Reynolds, the driver, was the daughter of Rusty Reynolds, owner of KYKX radio in Longview, authorities said.

Justice of the Peace Henry McKinney ordered autopsies, Smith said.

"It looked like natural gas asphixiation," he said. "It appeared to be accidental from all indications we get. They ran a hose from a gas meter inside the driver's window of the vehicle."

Smith said other teen-agers apparently have used the natural gas to get "high."

"We've had the problem out there before, not with these particular ones," he said.

Jim Melvin, a worker for Amoco Production Co., discovered the bodies Thursday afternoon.

Celtics tie series with OT win

Unlikely heros save Boston from defeat

BOSTON (AP) — Unlikely heroes Scott Wedman and Gerald Henderson saved Boston from defeat at the end of both regulation and overtime Thursday night.

Their heroics helped the Celtics deadlock the National Basketball Association Championship Series with a 124-121 victory over the Los Angeles Lakers.

"It was a double-pick with Larry Bird on one side and myself on the other," said Wedman, who hit a corner jumper with 14 seconds left in the extra period for the go-ahead basket. "I was open for the shot and it felt good when I let it go."

Henderson, meanwhile, stole a pass by James Worthy and scored with 13 seconds left in regulation to tie the score at 113-113 and force the overtime.

"Anytime you're in that situation, you have to go for the steal," said Henderson. "We had to have that steal. We had to have something at that point and Worthy just lofted the ball."

HENDERSON AVERAGED only 11.6 points per game and Wedman 4.8 for the Celtics during the season, but the Celtics also used their usual heroes.

Bird scored 27 points for Boston, including two free throws for the final margin with two seconds left in overtime. And Boston center Robert Parish slapped the ball away from the Lakers twice in the final seconds to preserve the victory.

"Team effort is what it takes," said Boston Coach K.C. Jones. "Those were heroic efforts by Wedman, Henderson, Bird and Parish. That's what a team is."

The Lakers play host to Boston in Games 3 and 4 of the best-of-seven NBA finals Sunday and Wednesday.

Cubs end Tulsa series with 4-1 win

From Staff Reports

TULSA, Okla. — The Midland Cubs ended their 10-game road trip on the right side of the score Thursday night, 4-1, but still came out on the short end of the series as Tulsa won five of the seven Texas League games played.

The Cubs opened the scoring in the top of the first inning when Shawon Dunston connected for his first home run of the year, a solo shot, only to have the Drillers tie the game in the bottom of the inning.

Midland scored two in the third inning when Dunston and Danny Norman reached on singles and advanced on a wild pitch by Barry Bass. A single by Jeff Jones scored Dunston. Norman scored on an errant throw to first by the shortstop. A solo homer by Jones in the sixth gave Midland its final run.

Jones conclued the game's scoring when he added a solo solo homer, his fifth, in the sixth inning.

Cub pitcher Ray Soff kept his perfect record intact in two decisions, going the distance allowing only five hits and four walks while striking out three.

The Cubs are off tonight and return home on Saturday for the first of a six-game series with West Division leading Beaumont. The Gators are 32-18 this year and are 3½ games ahead of El Paso. Midland is 16 games off the pace with a 16-34 record.

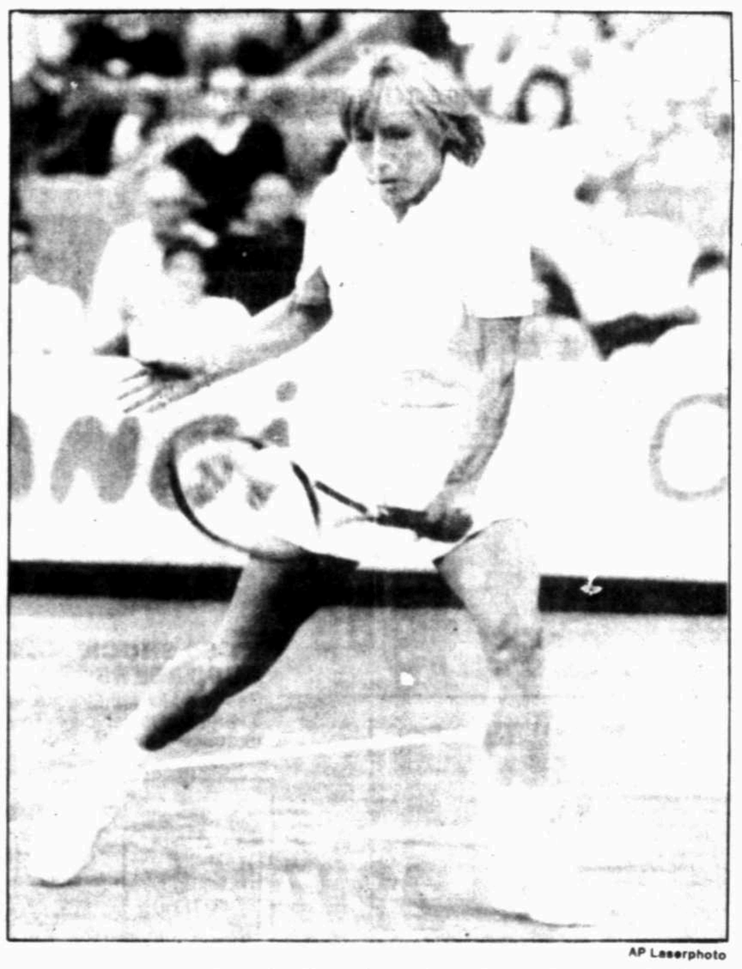
Not all had it as easy as McEnroe, Navratilova



AP Laserphoto

Martina Navratilova backhands a shot during her French Open match against Marcella Meaker Thursday.

PARIS (AP) — With John McEnroe and Martina Navratilova leading the parade Thursday, the top-seeded players in the French Open tennis championships marched easily into the third round.

The parade, however, will go on without Jose Luis Clerc of Argentina, Czechoslovakia's Tomas Smid, Jo Durie of Britain, American Kathy Jordan and Hungary's Andrea Temesvari, all of whom were upset on the slow red clay courts in this $1.8 million tournament.

And the road to the third round was exhausting for John Frawley of Australia, who struggled for a record five hours, 15 minutes before eliminating West Germany's Hans-Jorgen Schwaier 6-1, 4-6, 6-3, 6-7, 8-6 — the longest match ever at Roland Garros Stadium.

McEnroe, Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia and Jimmy Connors all advanced without dropping a set, while Martina Navratilova and Chris Evert Lloyd were in devastating form en route to an expected clash in the women's final.

Yannick Noah of France, the defending men's champion, at last got his service going and beat Belgium's Bernard Boileau 6-4, 6-4, 6-4. Noah's concentration deserted him in his first-round match 24 hours earlier when he was taken to five sets by Mark Dickson of the United States.

But teen-ager Karel Novacek of Czechoslovakia, ranked 356th in the world, shocked Clerc, the No. 8 seed, 2-6, 6-2, 6-3, 3-6, 8-6, and Emilio Sanchez of Spain upset No. 14 Smid 7-6, 6-4, 6-4.

IN THE women's singles, No. 5 Kathy Jordan of King of Prussia, Pa., lost to Virginia Ruzici of Romania 6-3, 6-2; No. 7 Durie fell to Peru's Laura Arraya 6-2, 5-7, 6-4 and No. 12 Temesvari was stopped by Sabrina Goles of Yugoslavia 7-5, 6-4.

McEnroe, the No. 1 seed, was warned for abuse of equipment when he smashed and broke his racketin the third set against fellow American Ben Testerman. He had several other minor skirmishes with the umpire, but none were serious, and he went on to beat Testerman 6-4, 6-1, 6-4.

No. 2 Lendl crushed Mario Martinez of Bolivia 6-1, 6-0, 6-1; No. 3 Connors romped past Britain's John Lloyd 6-4, 6-1, 6-4; No. 4 Mats Wilander of Sweden stopped Australia's John Alexander 6-4, 6-1, 6-3; No. 5 Jimmy Arias of Buffalo, N.Y., eliminated Gianni Ocleppo of Italy 7-5, 6-2, 6-2, and No. 6 Yannick Noah of France, the defending champion, swept past Bernard Boileau of Belgium 6-4, 6-4, 6-4.

Navratilova stomped Marcella Mesker of the Netherlands 6-1, 6-1; No. 2 Chris Evert Lloyd blanked Japan's Masako Yanagi 6-0, 6-0, and No. 3 Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia downed Susan Mascarin of Grosse Pointe Shores, Mich., 6-2, 6-4.

McENROE BEGAN his match tentatively, serving poorly and making an uncharacteristic number of unforced errors, and Testerman was happy just to stay back and let the tournament favorite make mistakes. But after having his service broken to trail 2-4, McEnroe won nine games in a row and raced into a two-sets-to-love lead.

French Open

Testerman never gave McEnroe the same problems as last year when their stormy first-round match went to five sets. But he was unhappy about the number of calls that went in McEnroe's favor.

"The guy in the chair did not control the game very well," Testerman said. "I missed a lot of opportunities, but you are not supposed to overrule calls unless they are blatantly wrong, and several today were very close."

Lendl, beaten on clay by McEnroe in Dusseldorf last week, produced a far more convincing win than his rival. The No. 2 seed, still bidding to win his first Grand Slam tournament, took just 85 minutes to thrash Martinez.

Connors also was in excellent form in the only Grand Slam event he has never won, mixing up his shots and hitting the lines with uncanny regularity. His opponent, the estranged husband of the defending women's champion, served and volleyed well and played the best he could. But Connors was simply awesome and hardly made a single error.

NAVRATILOVA MOVED a step closer to winning the elusive Grand Slam. She already is the reigning champion of Wimbledon, the U.S. Open and the Australian Open.

Beaten only once this year, Navratilova said afterwards: "If I win the Grand Slam, there'll be a hell of a party."

Commenting on the $1 million bonus she would receive from the International Tennis Federation if she wins the Grand Slam, she said: "It's certainly a big chunk of money. But I promise you, the money is the last thing on my mind."

No odds on Soviets showing

Saturday is the official deadline set by the International Olympic Committee for entries for the Los Angeles Olympics.

Even Jimmy the Greek wouldn't make a bet on the odds of the Soviets pulling an about face. The thing is, face is what the whole issue is about. Saving it, so to speak, is what the Russians are doing.

If all is fair in love and war, at least the Soviets are making their version of the rules known. They remember a slight, and they do hold a grudge. When President Carter tried to make a stand by spearheading the 1980 boycott, the Russians were deeply ticked off.

Russia had prepared for the '80 Games with the same zeal they show in the political arena. When the United States and 62 other countries didn't R.S.V.P. in Moscow, the government and people were insulted.

Now, Russia can fight fire with fire.

ANOTHER SOVIET policy seems to be short-sightedness. Two wrongs don't make a right. The U.S. was wrong to boycott in '80. The reasoning then was to condemn the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan. The destruction of a civilian plane doesn't even faze today's world. Boycotting for Afghanistan? I cannot even conjure up in my wildest imaginings the type of reception that awaits the Soviets in Seoul, South Korea, at the 1988 Summer Olympics. Will they bar the Russians from the Games? Would you?

Most Americans feel a sort of outrage at the communists for canceling, but I really can't understand why. In the back of everyone's mind, this was inevitable. The Soviet people probably felt similarly in 1980. The Olympic showpiece they had envisioned had been wrecked by our boycott. The reds would love to louse up these games. The real losers are the athletes who have worked and suffered for years just to get the chance to compete, and the fans of sport. Some, like triple-Olympic Cuban boxer Teofilo Stephenson, now have their careers ended for them. Others will never get even that chance.

Ask SMU's Michael Carter, or Dallas Maverick Mark Aguirre, how they feel about the boycott. In 1980, Carter and Aguirre would have been likely gold medal winners; Carter in the shot put, Aguirre in basketball.

Imagine if you'd never felt the electric thrill witnessing the American hockey team's win over Russia at Lake Placid in '80. Picture the basketball finals. America has never been beaten by anyone — except the Russians once. That was in Munich in 1972. Another bad year for Olympic Games.

ONE ATHLETE quoted a few weeks ago said that the Olympics without the communists would be "just another track meet." This is proabably true. Of the strongest competition the U.S. athletes would face this year, most of it was to come from boycotting nations. It isn't just the Russian challenge. Athletes from East Europe and Cuba were expected to rake several medals.

The result will be "medal inflation." Poor Ronnie Reagan! No matter what he does, he gets inflation, and in an election year. America will reap more awards than they would have gotten, thus cheapening their worth somewhat. Part of the thrill of a gold medal is the belief that on that day, the bearer of the gold was the world's finest at what he or she did.

It's quite a heady thing to consider.

BOTTOM LINE: Leave sports out of it, bureaucrats. What business does the Olympics have becoming a political pawn? Is nothing sacred?

A pro-feminist friend of mine, several years ago, used to say "A woman needs a man like a fish needs a bicycle." By the same token, the Olympics need politics like the world needs opposing sides.

Wouldn't it be nice if the ONLY time we competed with the communists were on the field of play? Unfortunately, the trend indicates that so-called "friendly" competition between people of different beliefs is going the way of the dinosaur.

1893 — Boston Red Sox hurler Harry Staley found men on base every time he came to bat and was never found wanting. He knocked in nine runs on two homers, a single and two sacrifices in a 15-4 win over the Louisville Colonels.

1923 — The New York Giants scored in every inning to beat the Philadelphia Phillies at Baker Bowl 22-8. Heinie Groh, Ross Youngs, and Jimmy O'Connell each collected five hits; O'Connell had the game's only four-bagger.

1925 — New York Yankees' Lou Gehrig batted for Pee Wee Wanninger in the eighth inning and started his streak of 2,130 consecutive games. The Washington Senators beat the New York Yankees 5-3.

1975 — Nolan Ryan of the California Angels pitched his fourth no-hitter, a 1-0 win over the Baltimore Orioles. It was his 100th major league victory.

CELTICS

LIKE TWO boxers trading haymakers, the teams traded spurts throughout the game. The Lakers took advantage of cold spells by Boston to run at will, but when the Celtics got hot for a time, Los Angeles slowed to a walk and its offense suffered.

The Lakers cut a 13-point deficit to two at halftime. Then with Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scoring nine points in the first 3:34 of the third period, Los Angeles took its first lead of the game at 66-65.

Boston then rebuilt a 76-69 advantage by scoring 11 of the next 14 points, but Los Angeles responded with a 16-6 run for an 85-82 lead. Worthy and Michael Cooper, filling the wings for passes from Earvin "Magic" Johnson, combined for every Los Angeles point in the spurt.

Boston came right back with the last eight points of the quarter, the final four on jumpers by seldom-used guard Danny Ainge.

That run gave the Celtics a 90-87 margin going into the final 12 minutes.

WORTHY LED the Lakers with 29 points, including five of their nine 3-point plays. Johnson added 27 points, including four in overtime, and Abdul-Jabbar added 20 for the Lakers.

Parish contributed 18 points for Boston and Henderson and Cedric Maxwell had 16 each.

The Celtics' victory marked the ninth straight time in NBA history that a home team that lost the opening game of a Championship Series had followed with a victory in Game 2. The road team has never won the first two games in the finals in 37 years of NBA championships.

The Lakers also won the opener on the road against Philadelphia in 1982 and went on to win the title.

The early minutes of Game 2 were in sharp contrast to Sunday's opener, won by the Lakers 115-109. The Celtics scored the first seven points Thursday, while in Game 1, Los Angeles led 22-7.

Johnson, who had 14 of Los Angeles' 26 first-quarter points, hit four straight long jumpers to cut Boston's margin to 13-10 before Ainge came off the bench to spark the Celtics to a 13-point lead.

Ainge, who played only two minutes and didn't score in Game 1, hit three long jumpers to lead an 11-2 run that put the Celtics ahead 33-20. It was 36-26 at the end of the period.

The Celtics, who made 12 free throws to just two for Los Angeles in the first quarter, built that advantage at the line to 17-4 in the second quarter to lead 57-44 with 4:32 left in the half.

The Lakers got their fast break perking in the remaining minutes before halftime as Worthy scored nine points and Jamaal Wilkes six during a 13-2 run that cut Boston's lead to 61-59 at intermission. Worthy had four layups and Wilkes two corner jumpers during the spurt.

CUBS

Elsewhere in the Texas League Thursday, Arkansas doubled El Paso, 10-5, Beaumont blitzed Shreveport, 7-0, and San Antonio routed Jackson, 14-1.

The Beaumont Golden Gators used the pitching of Kevin Towers and the hitting of Steve Johnson and James Steels for their shutout victory over the Shreveport Captains in a Texas League game.

Towers went all the way, scattering eight hits while striking out eight. Johnson and Steels contributed four hits each in support of Towers, who raised his record to 5-2.

Steels had two triples and a single and drove in two runs. Johnson drove in one. Jeff Ronk drove in three runs with a single and a double.

A pair of doubles by Curt Ford and Greg Guin in the third inning gave Arkansas a lead it never lost over El Paso. The Travelers rapped El Paso pitching for 15 hits.

The Travelers were down 2-0 in the third when Dave Clements singled to center. Curt Ford then doubled to move Clements to third. Clements scored on a sacrifice fly by Eddie Tanner. Greg Guin doubled over third to score Ford and tie the game. Tim Wallace added another single to score Guin and give the Travs a 3-2 lead.

Johnny Walker drove in five runs in San Antonio's rout of Jackson. Dennis Powell, 4-1, was the winner, with Jackson getting only two hits. San Antonio had 16 hits. The losing pitcher was Floyd Youmans, 0-2. Jackson hurt its own cause with four errors.

Cincinnati pitcher Mario Soto gestures to players in the Atlanta Braves dugout the length of his suspension for bumping an umpire.

Soto gets five days for bumping

CINCINNATI (AP) — The National League has suspended Cincinnati Reds pitcher Mario Soto for five days and fined him for his part in a brawl with the Chicago Cubs in last Sunday's game at Chicago, the Reds announced Thursday.

Soto's suspension starts Friday, the Reds announced. The club declined to say how much Soto was fined.

Jim Ferguson, the Reds' vice president for publicity, said he would answer no other questions and make no other comments about Soto's suspension.

Soto, 7-1 this season with an earned run average of 2.58 to lead the Reds' starting pitchers, was listed as a probable pitcher for one game of Friday night's twi-night double-header with the Atlanta Braves in Cincinnati. The Reds opened a five-game series with the Braves on Thursday night as they played a game rescheduled from an April rain-out.

Lacy's RBI double leads Bucs to win

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — Jose DeLeon pitched a six-hitter and Lee Lacy's seventh-inning double drove in the winning run as the Pittsburgh Pirates edged the Montreal Expos 2-1 Thursday night.

DeLeon, 3-2, struck out four — three of them in the first inning — and walked one while holding the Expos to three hits and no runs after the second inning. He retired 12 of the final 13 batters he faced.

In the eighth inning, with two outs and Pete Rose on second, Tim Raines lined a drive deep into the right-center field gap which right fielder Doug Frobel speared at the wall.

Jason Thompson led off the Pirates' seventh with an infield single and was replaced by pinch-runner Benny Distefano, who moved to second on Tony Pena's bunt. With two away, Lacy drilled a double into the right-center field gap off Bill Gullickson, 1-5.

The Expos scored in the second when Tim Wallach walked and came around on singles by Terry Francona and Doug Flynn. The Pirates tied it in the fourth on Johnny Ray's one-out single, Bill Madlock's double and Thompson's RBI grounder.

Phillies 10, Cubs 2

PHILADELPHIA — Mike Schmidt drove in three runs with a pair of singles and Von Hayes had three hits, two runs batted in and three runs scored as the Philadelphia Phillies moved into first place in the National League East with a 10-2 rout of the Chicago Cubs.

Charles Hudson, 6-3, allowed five hits through eight innings, striking out eight. Chuck Rainey, 3-4, the victim of seven unearned runs, was the loser. The Phils lead Chicago by one-half game.

They broke a 1-1 tie with a six-run second inning.

Braves 7, Reds 1

CINCINNATI — Rick Mahler pitched a four-hitter, rookie Brad Komminsk singled in Atlanta's winning run and Glenn Hubbard and Dale Murphy homered as the Braves beat Cincinnati 7-1, ending the Reds' five-game winning streak.

Mahler, 4-1, struck out five and walked one as he improved his career record against the Reds to 3-0. The victory also left the teams tied for third in the National League West, one game behind first-place Los Angeles.

The game, a makeup of an April 18 rainout, attracted 2,472 paying fans, the smallest crowd since the Reds moved into Riverfront Stadium in June 1970. The previous low paid crowd was 3,921 last April 4, a 2-0 loss to the New York Mets.

Komminsk, brought up Wednesday from Richmond of the International League to replace injured Claudell Washington, singled to left off Frank Pastore, 2-4, to break a 1-1 tie. The hit drove in Jerry Royster, who had walked, stolen second and taken third on a fly ball.

Cardinals 5, Mets 2

NEW YORK — Bob Forsch, making only his second start since May 5 gained his first victory of the season and Bruce Sutter earned his 12th save, pitching the St. Louis Cardinals to a 5-2 victory over the New York Mets.

Forsch, 1-4, who missed 16 days with a back injury, pitched five innings before being lifted for a pinch hitter. He allowed three hits, striking out two and walking one. Walt Terrell, 3-5, losing for the fourth consecutive time, allowed four runs, two of them earned.

Hubie Brooks had a seventh-inning single for the Mets to extend his hitting streak to a club-record-trying 23 games, also the longest streak in the majors this season.

Twins 7, Royals 2

MINNEAPOLIS — Ed Hodge and Ron Davis teamed on a seven-hitter as the Minnesota Twins moved within one game of first-place California in the American League West with a 7-2 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Hodge, 2-1, yielded a run in the second inning on consecutive singles by Steve Balboni, Lynn Jones and Don Slaught and one in the eighth on Willie Wilson's double to right and George Brett's single before Davis took over and posted his ninth save.

Olympic festival begins

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Russians aren't coming and neither is "the CIVIL warS," but ticket sales and public support are high for an unusually ambitious Olympic Arts Festival.

Arts events are required in conjunction with Olympic Games, but the $10 million, 10-week festival that begins June 1 is impressive in scope.

There will be some 75 performing companies for a total of about 400 performances, plus art exhibits, a film festival, an exhibit of masks and the unveiling of artworks and banners throughout Los Angeles.

"By the middle of July, the entire city will be transformed," said festival director Robert Fitzpatrick, president of the California Institute of the Arts.

The Olympic Arts Festival starts at noon on June 1 with the dedication of Robert Graham's "Olympic Gateway" sculpture at the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum.

There will be only one participant from an Eastern bloc nation: Poland's innovative Cricot 2 theater group. Fitzpatrick said the group confirmed last week that it is coming.

He said he negotiated for 2½ years with the Soviet Union to bring ballet and theater companies. He was scheduled to go to Moscow last September when "they simply called me and said, 'Sorry, we are withdrawing from discussions.'"

Fitzpatrick said the cancellation occurred before Soviet fighters shot down a Korean Air Lines passenger jet last Sept. 1 after it had strayed into Soviet airspace. All 269 passengers and crew members aboard were killed.

The Soviets cited primarily the refusal by the United States to sign a cultural exchange agreement with them as their reason for not participating in the festival, Fitzpatrick said.

Another, unrelated disappointment is the festival's decision to drop artist Robert Wilson's multimedia piece "the CIVIL warS," sections of which were created and premiered in countries around the world.

"Time and money ran out" after the piece ballooned to 12 hours and $2.5 million, Fitzpatrick said.

Also canceled were tentative plans for a blockbuster rock concert at the Rose Bowl after Fitzpatrick and promoter Bill Graham were unable to line up the performers they wanted.

The goal had been a once-in-a-lifetime array of talent anchored by the Rolling Stones, who were not available.

Festival events were selected to have a varied appeal while maintaining high artistic standards.

Looking at the North-South hands, it might seem that, unless diamonds break 3-3, South will need the heart finesse to make his spade slam. But, in the words of the Gershwins, "it ain't necessarily so."

Even though North was a passed hand, South had slam aspirations. He could not use Blackwood because of his two fast losers in diamonds, so he started a cue-bidding sequence. When North cooperated by showing the ace of diamonds, South bounced into slam.

West led the jack of clubs. Declarer won in hand, drew trumps in two rounds, cashed the king of clubs and ruffed dummy's remaining club. It might seem that declarer should now take the diamond finesse, but that has an obvious drawback. If the finesse loses, East will surely shift to a heart. Declarer will then have to decide whether to take the heart finesse or play for a 3-3 diamond division.

After some study, declarer realized that, if West had the king of diamonds, he didn't need the finesse! Declarer led a diamond to the ace and returned a low diamond. Had East played low, declarer would have inserted the queen. If West takes the king, his only safe return is a diamond. Declarer will have time to see if diamonds are 3-3 before his ace of hearts is forced out.

As the cards lie, East must win the second diamond. Declarer wins the heart return, cashes the jack of diamonds, then gets back to his hand with a trump to discard the table's remaining heart on the queen of diamonds. Declarer has succeeded in combining his lines of play without giving up anything.

Hope for Soviets gone; Trouble stirring in Africa?

Olympic Games

By The Associated Press

With hopes dead that the Soviet Union will reconsider its boycott of the Los Angeles Olympics, the International Olympic Committee may have to contend with another troublesome issue — the reaction of African nations to Britain's inclusion of Zola Budd on its Olympic team.

Juan Antonio Samaranch, president of the IOC, met for two hours in Moscow Thursday with Marat Gramov, head of the Soviet Olympic Committee, and Nikolai Talyzin, one of 11 Soviet deputy premiers.

Afterwards, Samaranch told Western reporters there the Soviets emphatically maintained their position that sending a team to Los Angeles was impossible because of fears for their athletes' safety. Eleven Soviet allies have joined the boycott.

"The hopes were very, very little and today there is no hope at all," said Samaranch, who had hoped to meet while in Moscow with Soviet premier Konstantin Chernenko. "We requested that the Soviet Union take part in the Los Angeles Olympics and their answer was 'no.'"

MEANWHILE, THE British Olympic Association announced it had declared the South African-born Budd eligible for its Olympic team. She could officially qualify for the team when she competes in the 3,000 meters at London's Crystal Palace grounds June 6 in the first of two official British Olympic trials.

The 18-year-old distance runner, whose grandfather was British, was granted a British passport within 10 days of arriving in the country from South Africa last March. Her native land has been banned from most international meets, including the Olympics, because of its racial policy of apartheid.

The inclusion on the British team of Budd, who holds an official world best in the women's 5,000 meters, could bring a strong reaction from black African nations, many of whom boycotted the 1976 games in Montreal because a rugby team from New Zealand had played a South African team the previous year.

The executive committee of the Supreme Council for Sport in Africa will meet in Upper Volta June 16-17. Amadou Lamine Ba, secretary general of the Council, said two weeks ago that barring unforseen developments, he believed that most African nations would participate.

However, last Monday, the official Congolese news agency ACI said that Budd's inclusion on the British team could jeopardize the participation of African teams in the Games. Its dispatch said in part:

"Britain's apparent intention of integrating white South Africans in its national team by giving them British nationality, and (thus) flouting the International Olympic Commitee regulations, which forbid the participation of South Africans.

"The disguised participation of South African sportsmen could cause African countries to refuse to take part in the Games."

SAMARANCH HAD gone to Moscow ready to extend, at the slightest hint the Soviets might reconsider, Saturday's deadline for nations to declare their participation.

Instead, he had to settle for one minor concession in his talks with Gramov and Talyzin, who heads the U.S.S.R.-Finnish Friendship Societ and is the Soviet Union's permanent representative to the Socialist Trade Bloc. A member of his delegation said afterwards that the Soviets reaffirmed their promise that there would be no alternative games organized during the Olympics by any boycotting countries.

But otherwise, things appeared gloomy.

Gramov, who saw Samaranch and his delegation off at the airport, declined to give assurances that the Soviets would participate in the 1988 Olympics, scheduled for Seoul, South Korea. "Let's wait until the end of Los Angeles and then we'll discuss Seoul," he said.

The Soviet Union is joined in its boycott by Afghanistan, Bulgaria, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, East Germany, Hungary, Laos, Mongolia, Poland, Vietnam and South Yemen. Iran, not a part of the Soviet bloc, has also said it will not send a team to Los Angeles.

In addition, North Korea is reportedly ready to pull out, although it has made no official statement and is continuing to pursue a joint-team venture with South Korea. Officials from those two nations were to meet today.

Peter Ueberroth, president of the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee, has said that 132 nations have given written assurance they intend to take part in the Summer Games. That is 10 more than the record of 122, set at the 1972 Summer Games in Munich, West Germany, the last games without a major boycott.

IN OTHER Olympic developments:

— Ueberroth announced that Romania, the only Eastern bloc nation not to join the Soviet boycott, said in its letter confirming its participation that it will send a 207-member delegation to Los Angeles. That is that nation's largest Olympic delegation ever.

— The United States Baseball Federation announced that Japan and Canada have been recommended as additions that would bring the number of competitors in baseball to eight. The other competing baseball teams are the United States, Korea, Italy, Nicaragua, Chinese Taipei and the Dominican Republic, which replaced the boycotting Cubans.

— U.S. Olympic basketball Coach Bobby Knight repeated his contention that the Soviets will abandon their boycott. But he said they wouldn't be missed anyway.

"There's going to be enough competition in the Olympics whether the Russians are there or not," Knight said. "Our basketball team is going to be tested to the fullest and we're all looking forward to it very much."

Panthers have to start now

USFL Roundup

By The Associated Press

Michigan Coach Jim Stanley is stealing a line from George Allen.

For the Panthers, the future is now.

Michigan, which has lost seven of its last eight games after starting the season 6-0, plays the Gunslingers in San Antonio's Alamo Stadium tonight, knowing a victory is essential just to stay on track for a United States Football League playoff berth.

Once the playoffs are made, then Michigan can worry about recapturing the USFL title it won in the spring league's first season.

"We don't have anyone on the schedule we can't beat," Stanley said. "By the same token, we don't have anyone on the schedule who can't beat us. We can still salvage a good season, but we have to start now."

Michigan at San Antonio is one of two USFL games tonight. The other is New Orleans at Memphis. Saturday night, Jacksonville is at Oakland and Chicago visits Oklahoma. On Sunday it's Houston at Denver, Arizona at Birmingham, Los Angeles at Washington and New Jersey at Tampa Bay. Monday night's game is Pittsburgh at Philadelphia.

The Panthers-Gunslingers game is a rematch of an April 1 contest in Pontiac, Mich., won by the Panthers 26-10. After that game, Stanley antagonized some Gunslingers when he was quoted as saying "you've got to be able to beat a team like that and not be at a fever pitch."

But that was before Michigan lost wide receiver Anthony Carter to a broken elbow and proceeded to drop seven of eight.

Stanley says the Gunslingers, who lost 27-20 to Denver last week and fell to 5-9, have improved markedly since that first meeting, particularly on offense, where head coach Gil Stienke has taken over as his own coordinator.

"They've always played good defense, and if you play good defense you can stay in the game," Stanley says. "But they're moving the ball now also, averaging over 20 points a game since then."

The New Orleans-Memphis game is also a rematch — of a 37-14 Breakers win in what was only the third game every played by the expansion Showboats.

But things have changed. Memphis has won three of five to improve to 6-8 while New Orleans has lost six of nine and dropped to 8-6. Despite playing without injured quarterback Walter Lewis, Memphis upset 10-4 Tampa Bay last week, 31-21.

"Memphis is a different ball club than when we played them earlier in the season," says New Orleans Coach Dick Coury. "Coach (Pepper) Rodgers has brought them along and they can play with anybody in the league. Just look at what they did to Tampa Bay."

Mike Kelley, who completed 21 of 26 for 282 yards and three touchdowns against Tampa Bay is the key to the Memphis attack. New Orleans, by contrast, has been depending on a ground game keyed by Buford Jordan and Marcus Dupree, who has gained 629 yards for a 5.2 yard per carry average in his rookie year.

"Any team that has a Marcus Dupree in the backfield is going to give us problems," says Rodgers.

New Orleans only CWS first-timer

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Eight teams are entered in the College World Series which begins Friday at Rosenblatt Stadium but only one squad, from the University of New Orleans, is making its debut in the annual NCAA Division 1 championship.

"It's been a dream come true, really," said New Orleans Coach Ron Maestri. "We've been at regionals before but never got out of them to come to Omaha."

The Privateers, 45-24, open the series against defending champion Texas, 57-12, on Friday. That game will be followed by Michigan, 43-18, against Cal State-Fullerton, 61-19.

On Saturday, Miami, 47-26, will meet Arizona State, 53-18, while Maine, 33-18, takes on Oklahoma State, 58-13.

The championship in the double-elimination tournament will be played either June 9 or June 10.

Maestri said he has past opportunities to attend the College World Series as a spectator but never as a coach.

"I'd served on a couple of different baseball committees and had chances to or invitations to come to Omaha but I didn't want to spoil it," Maestri said. "I've always said I'm not coming out to the College World Series until I bring a team there. It's the Cadillac of college baseball. It's what you want in baseball."

The Texas Longhorns have nearly been a fixture in the championships. In the 36 years the series has been played in Omaha, Texas has compiled a 51-37 record in 22 tournaments. The Longhorns won the championship in 1949, 1950, 1975 and 1983.

The Privateers qualified for this year's tournament by winning the rugged six-team South II regional over traditional powers North Carolina, South Carolina and Mississippi State.

"We probably lost more games than anybody (who qualified) but we played as tough a schedule as anybody in the country," Maestri said. "We were quite concerned whether we would even get a bid to play in the regionals. Fortunately, as the selection committee had stated last year, the NCAA encouraged people to play a good schedule and we made it."

New Orleans split a four-game series with Miami early in the season and took up the challenge against other powers such as Alabama, South Carolina, Lamar, Wichita State and Mississippi State.

"We played at times up and down, but our schedule probably had a lot to do with that," Maestri said. "We're the kind of club that has a little power and if we get good pitching, we're going to be in a ball game.

"We shouldn't be intimidated because we've played everybody. Our schedule will help us coming in. Anybody could win it. It's the team that has good pitching. I've heard Fullerton has great pitching, Oklahoma State and Texas and Arizona State always have good pitching."

Norman takes Kemper lead by two

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — Greg Norman knew he was having problems with his golf game, so he put in a long distance call to his native Australia.

Norman, a long hitter nicknamed The Great White Shark, called his teacher of 12 years in Brisbane, Charlie Earp, last week in an effort to straighten out his problems.

"I didn't know what problems I was having but he was able to pinpoint them," said Norman, the first-round leader of the $400,000 Kemper Open. "I told him what I was doing and he told me what he thought I was doing wrong."

Norman, who shot the lowest score in the tournament's Pro-Am on Wednesday, scored 33-35-68 over the 7,173-yard, par 72 Congressional Country Club on Thursday to take a two-stroke lead over four others including Gary Hallberg, Scott Simpson, Ralph Landrum and Jim Thorpe, who came in at 2-under par 70.

The others among the eight golfers who were under par were Tom Purtzer, Jim Simons and Peter Jacobsen, with 71s.

Norman said he was prepared to shoot good scores at the Kemper because the Congressional course was suited for his game.

"You need to hit a lot of long irons here, and that's what I do well," said Norman, who lived in the Washington area from 1979 until 1981.

Mike Donald, a six-year pro, threatened Norman but took a triple bogey on No. 13 after going into a sand bunker and three putting to wind up with 11 others at even par.

The Kemper, which had only four of the top 10 money leaders at the outset, lost No. 2 Andy Bean, with $271,419, whose wife is about to give birth in Florida.

Veteran Gary Player shot a 38-39-77 and did not sign his card, so he was disqualified. His son Wayne shot a 78.

Norman, who has entered nine tour events with a high finish of tied for sixth at Bay Hill in Orlando, Fla., — a course he described as similar to the Congressional layout — said Earp will be coming to the United States next week to caddy for him during the U.S. Open.

Rallying support

Midland volunteers rally for Reagan-Bush campaign

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

Behind the youthful pep rally theme of the Reagan-Bush campaign stopover, complete with high-pitched junior high cheerleaders and the brassiness of a high school band, preparations far surpassing those of a senior prom were present.

While the Lee High School band played patriotic tunes usually associated with political rallies, red and blue balloons bounced gaily in the airy Midland Center as some 1,500-2,000 people gathered to wish Vice President George Bush and his wife Barbara a down home welcome back to the city where they began their adult lives.

The San Jacinto Junior High School cheerleaders screamed and jumped, waving their green and white pompons to the beat of spirit yells revised for political purposes to an oblivious crowd, more intent on finding seats and munching on aromatic barbecue lunches stacked on wobbly paper plates. A few, however, did manage to squeeze their chairs back enough to stand for the familiar "Two Bits."

But beneath the handpainted signs of "Permian Basin is Reagan-Bush Country," and "Midland Loves George and Barbara," sprayed in red and blue paint on white sheets floating lazily above the crowds, another organization of people was seen.

Walking among the women dressed in blue skirts and vests with red-trunked elephants sporting red and white gingham-checked ears were the vice presidential guards and staff.

"We never discuss numbers," said Shirley Green, Bush's deputy press secretary.

And it was impossible to tell how many there were traveling with the vice president, his family (including the twin granddaughters who made their "political debut" on stage) and staff.

The many Midland volunteers, recognizable by the yellow and black "S" badges pinned to collars and lapels, may or may not have been outnumbered by the formally-suited men — identified by the wires running from underneath their shirts to their ears and the eyes that never ceased moving over the crowd.

DWIs most common offense, judge says

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

The most common offense bearing on the Midland County Court docket is driving while intoxicated (DWI), noted County Court-at-Law Judge Willie DuBose.

"In DWI cases, I sort of hesitate to decide how much restitution is appropriate," DuBose told a gathering of members of the Midland Crime Prevention Commission.

Instead, DuBose said he recommends that the victims take their grievances to civil court to settle any restitution issue.

The real benefits of the revised DWI laws have been in the "public awareness" those revisions effected, he said.

The revised penalities for DWI include:

— First DWI offense, fine of $100 to $2,000, and a jail sentence of 72 hours to two years.

— Second DWI offense, fine of $300 to $2,000, and a jail sentence of 15 days to two years.

— Third DWI offense, fine of $500 to $2,000, and a jail sentence of 30 days to two years, or, if the offense becomes a felony, a penitentiary sentence of 60 days to five years.

"Now, it takes a third (DWI) offense to become a felony," DuBose said. Previously, a second offense of DWI subjected the offender to prosecution as a felon if the first offense resulted in a misdemeanor DWI conviction and therefore subject to serving up to 10 years in prison. As now, a first offense was a misdemeanor, which is punishable only by a fine or jail time.

DuBose noted the institution of videotaping of DWI offenders at the time of their arrest "tends to make it easier to settle the case."

He said Texas law has two criteria for determining intoxication: (1) diminished use of mental and physical faculties, and (2) a 0.10 percent (1/10 of 1) percent level of alcohol in the blood stream.

"Not everybody who takes a drink is intoxicated," DuBose said. He also observed that Texas' 0.10 percent criterion for determining legal drunkenness is applicable "whether or not (the accused) has normal use of his mental and physical faculties...It's a manner of opinion."

DuBose, who also serves as the Midland County juvenile judge, made these observations:

Ector County voters to decide run-offs

By LAWRENCE BUDD
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Ector County voters will return to the polls Saturday to cast their ballots in six run-offs.

The race closest to home for Democrats will be the Precinct 3 County Commissioner contest pitting incumbent Julian "Coach" Pressly against Adela Vasquez.

Pressly, 60, is a veteran already part of the way through his 12th year on Commissioners Court who is looking to voters at least 45 years old to secure his re-election. He coached baseball and taught at Odessa College and Odessa High School for 23 years before entering the political arena.

Ms. Vasquez, 35, is seeking her first political office. Much of her support is expected to come from Hispanics and women, with her campaign efforts spearheaded by members of the Permian Basin Women's Political Caucus.

If the school counselor and planning and zoning commissioner should defeat Pressly, she would be the first woman county commissioner in Ector County. County Judge Jan Fisher, also a women's caucus member, presides over Commissioners Court proceedings.

Pressly has been involved in run-offs before. In the aftermath of the January tax rollback, he kept his primary campaigning to a minimum, but has picked up the pace since the May 5 results.

In past campaign years, Ms. Vasquez' yard has featured a sign promoting Pressly for the spot she now seeks. The incumbent coached Ms. Vasquez' husband and the GOP nominee for the post, Gerrid Bowen, during his ballfield days.

Pressly outpolled Ms. Vasquez by 169 votes in the primary. Two other candidates, former City Councilman Keith Weddell and County Constable Jerry Roberts, followed the two run-off opponents in May 5 results.

MMH tentatively OKs new nursing degree progam

By MARK LEWIS
Staff Writer

Nurses would be able to complete their baccalaureate degrees without having to leave Midland under a new plan given tentative approval Thursday by the Midland Memorial Hospital trustees.

The plan would set up a satellite baccalaureate degree nursing program at Midland Memorial run by the Texas Tech nursing faculty.

"This plan is a bachelor's degree program for nurses who've gone though an associate degree program at Odessa College or Midland College," said Hospital President Ray Branson. "It would provide an opportunity for nurses to continue their education without leaving the Permian Basin."

The program might be "a major factor" in attracting nurses to the area, Branson said.

Final approval awaits an agreement with other area hospitals to share the costs of the program, estimated at about $300,000 for the first two years. Midland Memorial will donate building space and about $40,000, and Branson said he has verbal committments for financial support from the other hospitals, which would also benefit from the program. The faculty would be paid by Texas Tech.

The trustees also discussed plans that would turn the Allison Cancer Center into "the intellectual hub of the Permian Basin for cancer research."

As described by Branson, this strategy would include training doctors and support personnel, supplying visiting professors to area schools, disseminating new information and techniques, and generally taking a leading role in organizing the fight against cancer in this area.

"We want to do more in the area of intellectual activity," said Branson.

The trustees also heard a glowing report by Dr. Charles Younger, president of the medical staff, about a recently completed survey of the hospital taken by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals.

The final results of the survey aren't in yet, but Dr. Younger said preliminary indications were very favorable.

"Overall, the hospital received only 11 recommendations," he said. "This is probably the least number of recommendations I've ever heard of them making."

The good news continued as Ron Peterson of the Finance Committee reported that revenues exceeded expenses by $318,000 in April, even though the number of patient days was under budget by about 10 percent.

"We're continuing to experience the phenomenon of lower patient days and increased revenues," said Peterson. "The number of admissions is not down, but the average length of patient stay is, and that's what has caused the reduction" in patient days.

Peterson attributed the increase in revenue to new Medicare reimbursement procedures, which he described as "extremely beneficial" to the hospital.

The trustees were also told that the new parking garage was completed and would open on Monday.

Judicial candidate fights 'low profile'

Thomas B. Thorpe

By MARK LEWIS
Staff Writer

Candidates in statewide judicial elections often have a hard time arousing much excitement among the electorate.

While Kent Hance and Lloyd Doggett make daily headlines in their run-off battle for the Democratic U.S. Senate nomination, Thomas B. Thorpe's campaign for Place Three on the state Court of Criminal Appeals is conducted in a virtual media vacuum.

"It's such a low profile race that people don't really get educated about the candidates," said Thorpe in a campaign appearance Thursday at Midland Regional Airport. The Dallas district judge faces former San Antonio district attorney Bill White in Saturday's run-off election for the Democratic nomination.

"People want to vote for the most qualified judicial candidate, but it's difficult for them to know who he is," said Thorpe.

Thorpe contrasted his experience as a private attorney, prosecutor and judge with that of his opponent, who has never sat on the bench.

"I have over ten years of experience as a judge trying criminal cases," said Thorpe. "My opponent has zero."

The Court of Criminal Appeals needs a judge with experience who can write clear opinions, Thorpe said.

"He has an obligation to write opinions that not only resolve the case but give guidance to the judges, lawyers and law-enforcement people."

White's campaign has stressed his objection to legal "technicalities," which he says protect criminals, but Thorpe said he prefers to stress fairness, responsibility and common sense.

"I'm running as a judge without a chip on my shoulder one way or the other," he said. "I'm not sure we want someone on the court who feels a law unto himself and above the Constitution."

Thorpe said he has the endorsements of four of the five candidates who didn't make the run-off, and that none have endorsed White.

"And in addition to the support of the legal community, I have also consistently received support from the law-enforcement community," he said. "I've been endorsed by the Committee for a Qualified Judiciary, the Dallas Sheriff's Association, the Dallas Police and Fire Action Committee, and the Houston Police Association."

Thorpe said it was important to elect an experienced judge to the state's highest criminal court.

"People should know that this race will affect the criminal justice system in Texas for the next six years."

— On juveniles (youth aged 10 through 16): "If he's under 10, the parents ought to be able to take care of the (errant) child. I'm not sure that's a fact anymore." He noted that some children seem far tougher than their years and some are into crime, such as theft, burglaries and drug-abuse offenses, as a way of life.

— On juvenile laws: "I think the philosophy needs to change more than the law." He noted that the Texas Youth Commission functions to rehabilitate deliquent children and not to incarcerate them. The TYC's policy, he said, is to keep the juveniles "close to home" and send them "back home at the earliest possible date."

— Working with juveniles: "I have more confidence in our people than I do their (TYC's) people." Juvenile probation officers in Midland work with the troubled youth and their parents. Youth may be confined to Culver Youth Home up to a maximum of 10 days. "It's basically 'jail' for juveniles," he said, and the Home "takes them out of the (adult) jail atmosphere." A youth's "detention" in the Home allows the parents and the youth time "to cool down."

— Teaching by example: DuBose noted that parents teach their children something "everyday whether they intend to or not...Not all the things they teach them are good."

— On setting bond: "The purpose of bonds is not to keep someone off the streets. The purpose of a bond is to ensure a person shows up for trial."

— On rehabilitation of misdemeanor offenders: "The ones that do change we never see again...They made a mistake. They're not 'criminals.'" In many cases, the DWI candidates go to the country club, have "too much to drink...or at least someone thinks they did."

— Criminal filings: Each month, about 200 misdemeanor criminal cases are filed in county court.

RALLY

"The ones with the red pins are the permanent vice presidential staff," Ms. Green said. "Those with the rectangle pins are the guests, the ones that are traveling on Air Force II with us. That means they are attached to this particular party on this trip.

"The Secret Service are the ones with the gold pins with the alternating colored backgrounds," she continued. "Let's see, we have two of the White House Communications Association — we call them WHCA (pronounced wa-ca), and then we've got the military personnel."

And then there were two groups of the Secret Service: the uniformed division dressed in white shirts with military emblems on the shoulders, and dark pants with gold stripes down the leg; and the protective detail, the ones with the constantly moving eyes, dressed as if to attend a high-ranking corporate meeting.

"The uniformed detail aren't with us all along," Ms. Green said. "The protective detail is, whether it's for a trip with the president, the vice president or Walter Mondale.

"We've had wonderful local cooperation," she said. "From the local police to the state law enforcement to the volunteers."

"I don't think any other community could do this," Bobby Holt, a chief organizer of the rally, said later. "This was on extremely short notice and there is so much devoted work here. We had about a two-week notice to get it all together — and that includes organizing committees for decorations, phone banks and cars. There is so much depth involved. But all the volunteers are so capable."

Frank Mermound, from the advance office of the Reagan-Bush campaign, came in a week early, according to Holt.

The advance people spend their days blocking out time for every movement, including speeches, meetings and driving time, and helping to set up security vans, cars and drivers, Ms. Green said. They also are responsible for setting up phone lines to keep the vice president in touch with Washington, D.C., and helping with other arrangements.

"They could send 200 advance people down here but without the community it wouldn't have gone as smoothly," Holt said. "We have so many good Republican volunteers — the kind you give an assignment to and you know you won't have to call and remind them. Those are the people that make this work. And you never even see them.

"With the expertise of the advance people and our volunteers coming together smoothly, there are going to be natural ripples in the water. And then the last day comes together in one wave," he said. "I'm surprised, very pleased and amazed at the turnout."

It's over for the Midland volunteers, but for Ms. Green, the vice presidential staff and the Secret Service, it won't be over for six more months.

"I've been in Washington for five days in the last three months," Ms. Green said, smiling and glancing through the miniature White House Briefing Book, a schedule prepared by the advance staff. "From here we go to Beeville and then back to Washington where we'll get in at about 1 a.m."

The recent oversea trips and harried schedule is hard, she admitted, adding with a smile: "But then I've also seen the Taj Mahal and gone to Pakistan."

ECTOR

Voters will also express their preference between U.S Senate hopefuls Kent Hance and Lloyd Doggett. Hance received almost 6,000 more county votes than Doggett in the primary here.

Bob Krueger garnered 930 to 687 for Doggett here in the May primary, but fell short statewide of qualifying for the run-off. Robert Sullivan, David Young and Harley Schlanger followed the three front-runners in final results.

Democrats going to the polls will also be choosing between two Richards' for 19th Congressional District nomination. Don R. Richards, 36, is a former Hance aide, while Thomas M. "Tom" Richards, 43, is a Lubbock attorney.

Both have admitted a name identification problem has arisen during the campaigns, with even their supporters saying Don when speaking about Tom and vice versa. Voters should be prepared for some confusion when facing this decision Saturday.

This problem failed to keep the two Richards' from defeating John Selby, Gary Condra and Delwin Jones in May.

Jones received 1,859 votes and Selby 1,387 here — both more than Don Richards' 810. Tom Richards totaled 3,874, more than 46 percent, in carrying Ector County.

Two run-offs will decide the Democratic nominee for Court of Criminal Appeals judgeships. Roy E. Greenwood faces W.C. "Bill" Davis for the Place 2 nomination, after outdistancing Buddy Stevens and George Martinez in Ector County and statewide. Thomas B. "Tom" Thorpe and Bill White, the top two vote-getters here and overall, remain from a field of seven candidates who sought the Place 3 party nomination.

GOP voters will be asked to venture to the polls Saturday for a single race. Electronics distributor Larry Combest and accountant Ron Fleming offer Republicans in Ector County diverse backgrounds from which to choose for U.S. Rep., District 19. They survived a four-man primary field which included Tom Schaefer, a professor at the University of Texas of the Permian Basin.

LIFE

Logan is director of the department, Casey is assistant parks superintendent and Ms. Bowers is program director. She and the department have been planning activities for the annual "Life. Be In It Day" since December and are hoping to get as many Midlanders involved as possible.

All events are open to the public and there is no charge, with the exception of the Tall City Triathlon, which is being co-sponsored by Midland County March of Dimes and Midland Metropolitan YMCA.

"It's free," said Ms. Bowers of the other activities. "We're just trying to get participation from the people. It's something fun and not just athletics."

Last year was the first year for Midland's participation in this annual nationwide event proposed by the National Recreation and Park Association. "We tried to expand it. It's much bigger this year," said Ms. Bowers.

Her day will start at 6 a.m. when she goes to open up the Doug Russell Pool.

The day for participants starts at 7 a.m. with the Doug Russell Pool serving as the starting point of the Tall City Triathlon, which consists of a 1,000 meter swim, 30K bike ride and a 10K run. Finishing point is Mission Country Club pro shop. Fee is $8 per individual or $24 for a team of three.

Immediately following this will be the mini-triathlon, consisting of a 200-meter swim, two-mile bike ride and a two-mile run.

At 10 a.m. the Arco-Jesse Owens Track Clinic will be held. Then there is a jazzercise demonstration and class at 11 a.m. in Dennis the Menace Park.

The afternoon starts off with a splash party at Doug Russell Swimming Pool. From 1 to 4 p.m. KCRS radio will have a live broadcast from the pool, and free soft drinks will be served. Admission will be reduced to 25 cents per person. For others who might prefer being out of the limelight, the city's other swimming pools will be opening this weekend.

At 2 p.m. the Boy Scouts will give canoe rides and races at Wadley-Barron Park.

At 5 p.m. the department is encouraging citizens to bring a picnic lunch and their family and eat supper in the Downtown Park. "We're trying to get people together and get them downtown to stay there," she said.

What they will be staying for is the street dance that starts at 8 p.m. in front of the Yucca Theater on Colorado Street. Midland Community Theatre is working with the city on this event, said Ms. Bowers. Performing will be the band "Showdown," which plays a variety of songs. Soft drinks, beer, wine and mixed drinks will be sold at the Yucca. The street dance is free.

If it rains this year, the dance will be moved indoors, she said.

"We're trying to get everyone more aware of what we have to offer" in summer programs, said Ms. Bowers.

Fund set up to pay injured youth's expenses

A fund to help offset medical expenses of 14-year-old Steven Jeter, who was injured in a "log drill" in football practice at Alamo Junior High School, has been set up at ClayDesta National Bank in Midland.

The youth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Jeter of Midland, was injured May 14, as he was high-stepping on the logs, tripped and fell to the ground. His chin hit one of the logs. As a result, Steven suffered a bruised spinal cord and two fractured vertebrae.

Today, he has limited movement in his arms and legs and is to undergo treatment in a rehabilitation center at a cost of about $12,000.

Those wishing to contribute to the fund may contact the president's office at ClayDesta National Bank.

Traffic light to be altered Saturday

From Staff Reports

The traffic light at Big Spring Street and Wall Avenue will be changed Saturday to provide for a left turn phase. This change should greatly reduce delays for through traffic, according to a spokesman in the Traffic Department.

The left turn lane will provide for left turns from Wall onto Big Spring at this intersection.

The changes are being made during the weekend to reduce interruption to traffic flow as much as possible. However, the spokesman noted that it will be necessary to close certain lanes while stripes are being painted on the street.

In addition, all signals in the downtown area will have to be retimed to coincide with the increased signal cycle. This retiming will occur during the first part of next week. The change in phasing at this location, together with the lane realignment, will create some traffic problems for a short period. However, in the long run it will provide a much better traffic flow through this heavy volume intersection. Construction work will create some delays and inconvenience, said the spokesman, and drivers are being asked to be on the lookout for hazards in this area.

The City Council authorized the addition of the left turn lane to be made as soon as the construction zone on the southwest corner of the intersection was cleared. This changed also required approval from the State Highway Department because Wall and Big Spring are part of the state highway system. To provide for the left turn lane, it will be necessary to restriet parking on one block either side of Big Spring Street. Signs restricting parking, standing or stopping will be posted.

White announces summer plans for 400 youths

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White says he hopes two new programs, which will provide summer jobs and educational opportunities to 400 youths at a total cost of about $1.4 million, will serve as models for combating unemployment among the young.

"Of the more than 1.6 million young people between the ages of 16 and 21 living in Texas, 17 percent live below the poverty level and 16.8 percent are unemployed," White said Thursday.

White said the Texas Conservation Corps, fashioned after the Depression-era national Civilian Conservation Corps, would provide jobs for 100 youths between 18 and 21. They will perform state park improvements and other jobs while living in camps at the worksites.

That program will cost $500,000 in state and local job training money and private contributions, the governor's office said.

Bob McPherson, director of the governor's planning office, said $135,000 would go for wages. The rest of the money will cover training costs, room and board, transportation and administrative expenses, he said.

White also announced the Youth Opportunities Unlimited program for 300 14-and 15-year-olds. Participants will divide their time between classroom work and jobs at three state universities.

That program will be paid for by federal job training money given to local officials, McPherson said. He said the cost will be about $3,000 per student, or $900,000 should all 300 slots be filled.

Gold piece taken from residence

From Staff Reports

In theft and burglary complaints to city police in the past 24 hours, Bill Cawthon of 500 W. Tennessee Ave. said a 1922, $20 gold piece mounted on a necklace was taken in a theft at his home Thursday.

Tony Jordon, 1408 W. Tennessee, told officers cash and jewelry worth $2,900 were missing after a burglary at his residence sometime in the past week. Entry was through a bedroom window.

Ronald E. Smith of 2600 N. Loop 250 reported a burglary in which stereo equipment, clothing and a guitar valued at a total of $930 were stolen in a break-in of his apartment. A patio door had been pried to gain entry.

And Michael Glenn Howell, 3607 Roosevelt, said $2,770 worth of jewelry was stolen from his home Thursday night. Entry was gained through an open window, according to police.

Economist: State needs to keep tight rein on expenses

AUSTIN (AP) — An economist who would thin out the ranks of state employees says in all the talk about raising state taxes there is not enough said about keeping a tight rein on expenses.

Speaking Thursday to a group of Texas House members, Dr. Bernard Weinstein discussed the public debate over raising taxes to fund state government.

"There's not enough discussion, to my mind, of controlling expenditures," he said. "The good ol' days of Texas state finances are over."

Weinstein, assistant director of the John Gray Institute at Lamar University, recalled past years when "expenditures rose to match the revenues available," and said, "It was a wonderful world to live in, but that world no longer exists."

Weinstein joined former House speakers Bill Clayton and Waggoner Carr and others at a session arranged by the Texas Foundation for Conservative Studies.

The speakers addressed a panel that included foundation president Richard Collins, Dallas, and state Reps. Stan Schlueter, D-Killeen; Bill Messer, D-Belton; and Lee Jackson, R-Dallas.

Weinstein said Texas had a "robust economy" until 1982, when it was hit with a "quadruple whammy" — a national recession, decline in oil and gas prices, peso devaluation and a drop in the rate of inflation.

He said Texas state government could use "much tighter cost accounting" and a "dose of better management." He also suggested that the state should consider turning over some governmental functions to the private sector and should look at reducing the "bureaucratic overburden."

He said in 1983 total tax collections dropped from the previous year "for the first time in memory."

Weinstein said as of 1981 Texas had 115 full-time state government employees per 10,000 population, and could save $375 million by September 1985 by reducing the number of state employees to 100 per 10,000 population. He said the reduction could be accomplished through attrition without firing anyone.

Over the years, he said, savings "would be in the billions."

Carr, speaker from 1957-61, said state spending "began to skyrocket" in 1973 and grew by 170 percent over the next decade.

White: No tax bill without strong reforms

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White says it doesn't trouble him in the least that many legislators are demanding the House and Senate pass an education reform plan before they will consider raising taxes during the upcoming special session.

"We won't have a tax bill unless there's a strong reform package," White said Thursday.

"I think that's something everyone involved in this effort has said time and time again. If we get that strong reform package, I think the people will be delighted to put up the money to finance it," White said.

The governor has proposed a sweeping overhaul of public schools in Texas, including higher teacher salaries, a form of competency for teachers and students and other changes. To pay for it, he wants a tax increase that will raise $4.8 billion over three years.

Most members of the Legislature, which will convene on Monday, have indicated they agree reform is needed.

But some say they don't favor White's plan to raise the sales tax an additional 1 percent, which the governor wants along with increases in the gasoline, cigarette and liquor taxes.

Compounding the problem are projections from the Legislative Budget Board that an economic downturn or too much spending by the special session could leave state government up to $456 million in the red during the 1986-87 budget years.

This week, House Speaker Gib Lewis joined the chorus of lawmakers who say a school reform bill must reach White's desk before they will agree to any tax increase.

White told his weekly news conference Thursday that he is confident his tax increase proposals will raise enough money for school reform and highway repairs while still leaving about $1 billion to cover "any so-called shortfall in the next biennium."

He said he will outline his plans in a speech to the Legislature shortly after they convene on Monday.

White also discounted speculation that lawmakers might pass the school reforms but not any additional money.

"It (reform) would be ineffectual to have that without a tax bill," he said.

One reform White favors has been very controversial — replacing the elected 27-member state Board of Education with a board appointed by White.

White repeated his support of the concept, but said he isn't as concerned about how the board is selected as he is that there be a way to hold board members accountable for their handling of more than $8 billion in state money every two years.

Atom-smasher to begin testing in September

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Officials say the Southwest's largest atom smasher should be in place at Texas A&M University and ready for testing by September.

The $8 million expansion of the research cyclotron at Texas A&M involves construction of an accelerator so advanced that only a few are being planned worldwide, said Dave Youngblood, director of the Cyclotron Institute.

Officials said 55 tons of iron equipment have been delivered for the project, the first major expansion since the research cyclotron was built in 1968.

The magnetic assembly includes an iron core, a bobbin wrapped with niobium-titanium-copper wiring and cooling shields containing liquid nitrogen and liquid helium, Youngblood said.

A cyclotron accelerates atomic nuclei to almost the speed of light before they are extracted as beams of high-energy particles that are hurled at a target.

The expansion project is funded by the university and the Robert A. Welch Foundation of Houston. Researchers said the project should be completed in about 18 months.

The superconducting cyclotron, which saves energy by cooling wires carrying electrical currents to minus 450 degrees Fahrenheit, will be coupled with Texas A&M's existing cyclotron to more than double the level of energy obtained during experiments.

The combined cyclotrons would accelerate atomic particles up to an energy level of 2 billion electron volts.

Although the new superconducting cyclotron's magnetic coil will generate a magnetic field three times larger than traditional nuclear science equipment, it will do so while using less energy than a 100-watt light bulb.

Unemployment, factory orders fall; Sales up

By The Associated Press

The number of Americans filing first-time claims for jobless benefits fell in mid-May to 353,000 from 361,000 the previous week, the Labor Department reports.

Overall, an estimated 2.75 million Americans were collecting unemployment compensation benefits in the week ended May 19, down more than 50 percent from a year ago, the department said Thursday on the eve of reporting the national unemployment rate for May.

Meanwhile, in two signs of a slowing economic expansion, the Commerce Department said factory orders took their biggest plunge in four years in April, and its gauge of future economic growth rose a modest 0.5 percent.

And major U.S. retailers posted strong sales gains in May. Industry analysts said Thursday the trend should continue, but not without heavy promotions to bolster consumer spending following the post-recession buying spree of a year ago.

Industry leader Sears, Roebuck & Co. said May sales rose 6.1 percent over May 1983; No. 2 K mart Corp. saw a 9.7 percent increase, and third-ranked J.C. Penney Co. had a 19.8 percent gain in its store and catalog sales.

The Labor Department's weekly report on jobless benefits showed 2,752,000 people were getting payments under a variety of state and feeral insurance programs, compared with 5,649,800 during the comparable week in 1983.

At this time a year ago, the government logged 455,000 new applications for benefits. In mid-September 1982, first-time applications hit a 1981-82 recession peak of 703,000, when adjusted for seasonal factors such as school openings and weather.

Orders to factories for manufactured goods dropped 3.6 percent in April, the steepest slide since May 1980, the Commerce Department said. The drop mainly reflected a 44.8 percent decline in orders of military hardware, a sector not expected to remain depressed.

The department also said its Index of Leading Indicators — designed to forecast the economy's health six to nine months in advance — resumed its upward trend of nearly two years after dipping a revised 0.1 percent in March. However, the new increase was much smaller than the gains that were typical much of last year.

The March decline initially was estimated at 1.1 percent.

A slowdown from a year of rapid economic growth was not seen by government officials and private analysts as all bad. It could mean the expansion is more likely to continue rather than explode into a new burst of high inflation followed by recession, they said.

"It's better to have a sustained recovery rather than a boom-bust situation," said Thomas Thomson, chief economist for Crocker National Bank in San Francisco. "I'm not concerned at all that the slowdown will become a stall."

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige said that after 1⅛ years of "vigorous rebound," smaller gains in the leading indicators and other economic readings are "a normal development signaling a more moderate, sustainable growth period ahead."

In other developments:

—The prices that farmers received for their crops in May fell 1.4 percent from April, while farmers' costs were unchanged, the Agriculture Department said. Higher prices were reported for oranges, soybeans and cotton. Eggs, cattle, tomatoes and milk fell in price.

—The basic U.S. money supply rose $3.3 billion in the week ended May 21, the Federal Reserve said. The increase was higher than credit analysts had expected, but kept the supply within the growth targets sought by the central bank in its effort to curb inflation.

—President Reagan named Martha Seger, a former bank regulator from Michigan, to the Federal Reserve board of governors. Ms. Seger, if confirmed by the Senate, will succeed Nancy H. Teeters, who was the first woman ever appointed to the central bank's board in its 70-year history when she was named in 1978 by President Carter.

—Assets of the nation's 328 money-market mutual funds rose $121.5 million in the latest week, bringing the increase over the past four weeks to $5.1 billion and pushing the total to the highest level in 13 months, the Investment Company Institute reports.

The rise, to $175.2 billion in the week ended Wednesday, propelled the funds' assets to the highest level since April 20, 1983, when they stood at $175.25 billion, the Washington-based mutual fund trade group said Thursday.

This graphic illustrates the drop in orders to American factories, as released by the U.S. Commerce Dept. Thursday.

Seger not expected to soften policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The woman President Reagan is appointing to the Federal Reserve Board will add conservative flavor but won't do much to soften policies that have drawn administration complaints, some private analysts say.

Martha Seger, the Central Michigan University professor nominated Thursday, will be joining a group that is determined to keep inflation in check, even if it means rising interest rates and a slowing national economic recovery, the economists said.

And besides, said those familiar with her statements, the available evidence is that she basically agrees with Chairman Paul Volcker and his colleagues.

If confirmed by the Senate, Ms. Seger would become the second female governor in the 70-year history of the Federal Reserve, replacing the first, Nancy Teeters, who was appointed by former President Carter.

The addition of Ms. Seger would lead to a modest philosophical change in the overall board as Mrs. Teeters was known as the board's most liberal member.

Ms. Seger made her own conservative views clear in a six-word summation of the president's economic policies during a White House ceremony announcing her appointment. "I support everything that he's doing," she said.

Volcker, also present at the announcement, called her "a very fine addition." And the president said, "I'm confident Dr. Seger can and will make a significant contribution helping us meet the challenges of keeping our economy growing and inflation down."

AP Laserphoto

President Reagan stands with Martha R. Seger, his choice to fill a position on the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, Thursday in the White House Rose Garden.

Reagan has made the fight against inflation one of the main efforts of his administration. But some of his aides — notably Treasury Secretary Donald Regan and presidential spokesman Larry Speakes — have recently complained the Federal Reserve was restraining the nation's money supply too tightly. They said continued tight restraint could bring a new recession.

Controlling the amount of money flowing into the economy is one of the Federal Reserve's most important tasks, and certainly its most controversial because of the impact on the economy in general. Volcker and a clear majority of the board feel that allowing too much money would bring inflation surging back, while some critics say more money would simply allow interest rates to fall and the economy to thrive.

On that subject, said Thomas Thomson, a former board economist who is now chief economist at Crocker National Bank in San Francisco, "I think she will be a greater hawk on inflation" than Mrs. Teeters has been.

Sears issues warning on garden sprayers

CHICAGO — Sears, Roebuck and Co. has issued a warning to consumers of a catalog copy error involving the use of certain garden sprayers. The only sprayers involved are Tri-poxy sprayers, model numbers 711521, 711522 and 711523.

Sears 1984 Spring-Summer catalog says these sprayers can be used with "even the more harsh chemicals such as Round-up, Diazinon, Hydrochloric Acid and more." This information is inaccurate and consumers who own the sprayers should not use them with these types of harsh chemicals, the company said.

Approximately 4,000 Tri-Poxy sprayers have been sold through the Sears 1984 Spring-Summer general catalog and the Lawn and Garden Sale Supplement, which carry the inaccurate description. An additional 6,000 Tri-Poxy Sprayers have been sold in Sears retail stores.

Although there have been no reports of injuries, Sears said the use of these types of chemicals in the Tri-Poxy Sprayers may result in corrosion of certain component parts and cause leakage or discharge of the chemicals.

Sears will notify customers of the inaccuracy by including a notice with the product and posting signs at its catalog order counters and in the Lawn and Garden departments of its retail stores.

Customers who purchased the garden sprayers for use with these chemicals may return them to the nearest Sears retail store or catalog outlet for a full refund, the company said.

Dollar falls today in response to signs of slowing economy

LONDON (AP) — The dollar fell against all major currencies in Europe early today in reponse to signs of a slowing of U.S. economic growth. The value of gold bullion rose.

West German traders said the dollar was under pressure from Thursday's reports that the U.S. Commerce Department's Index of Leading Indicators rose a moderate 0.5 percent in April and that new factory orders fell 3.6 percent in the same month.

Midmorning dollar rates compared with late Thursday included:

-2.7110 West German marks, down from 2.7265.

-2.2465 Swiss francs, down from 2.2610.

Power plant construction may get delay

AUSTIN (AP) — The Public Utility Commission staff has recommended a statewide policy that would require utility companies to consider obtaining power from non-utility companies rather than building new plants.

As part of its proposed statewide cogeneration policy, the staff also took the first step Thursday to determine whether to revoke a certificate for Houston Lighting and Power Co. to build two generating plants in Henderson County.

HL&P's yet-to-be built Malakoff lignite units 1 and 2 were scheduled to deliver 1,230 megawatts of electricity by 1990 and 1991. By comparison, said commission chairman Al Erwin, the proposed South Texas Nuclear Project near Bay City would produce 2,500 megawatts.

The staff recommended a review of congeneration after receiving a report on Thursday which had been done for several industries, including HL&P, and the city of Houston.

The commission defines cogeneration as the combined production of electricity and heat by non-utilities. Erwin offered as an example the possibility of Diamond Shamrock Inc. selling electricity produced by one of its steam turbines to HL&P.

Because cogeneration is readily available within the HL&P service area, the commission staff said, it could offset the need for power to be generated by the two planned Malakoff units.

Donoghue's Money Fund Average
(Averages for all 253 taxable funds)		38	9.60	9.52

Yields represent annualized total return to shareholders for past seven- and thirty-day period. Past returns are not necessarily indicative of future yields. Investment quality and maturity may vary among funds. x - average term to next rate adjustment date, g - one time sales charge, r - restricted availability.

MONEY FUND TABLE COMMENTARY: Assets of the 253 taxable money funds reported by Donoghue's MONEY FUND REPORT(R) of Holliston, MA 01746 increased $130 million to $169.9 billion for the week ended May 30, 1984. The taxable funds' 7-day average yield increased to 9.60% from 9.51%. The taxable funds' 30-day average yield increased to 9.52% from 9.46%. The taxable funds' average maturity remained at 38 days for the second week.

William E. Donoghue says: "The asset increase in taxable money fund assets was in government-only money funds. During the month of May the assets in government-only funds have increased at nearly twice the rate of non-government money fund assets. This may be an indication of a flight to quality. The 7-day average yield on taxable money funds is currently 0.84% higher than the average yield on money market deposit accounts as reported by Bank Rate Monitor. In February the spread was 0.24%. Although both averages are rising, the MMDA average is not keeping pace with the money fund average yields." ClayDesta promotes Mitchell, Smith

Clayton W. Williams Jr., president, and Bob Smith, executive vice president, of ClayDesta Corp., developers of ClayDesta Plaza, have named A. Joe Mitchell Jr. general manager of ClayDesta Plaza. Mitchell has been project manager of the 183-acre office complex since construction began in 1981.

In his new position, Mitchell assumes responsibilities for the leasing, construction, operations and financial areas of the plaza from Smith.

Williams said the move is one of those "good changes" that everyone is happy with.

"I am very glad to have Bob back in a position where he can work closer with me and my overall business and I am pleased to have a man with Joe Mitchell's experience step into Bob's shoes in that capacity," Williams said.

Smith, who has been handling the day-to-day operations of ClayDesta Plaza since its inception in 1980, will now direct his energies toward exploring and cultivating new projects and new directions for ClayDesta Plaza and for Williams. An organizer and director of ClayDesta National Bank, Smith will also become more involved in business development for the bank.

Smith, who has been a long-time friend and associate of Williams, grew up in Rule, Texas. He received his bachelor's degree in agronomy from Texas A&M University in 1949. In 1953, he moved to Midland and took a job with Core Laboratories. Six months later, he joined Lion Oil Co. (now Monsanto) as an oil scout and later became a landman. From 1958 to 1977, Smith worked as a landman for Buford & Sams Oil Co. and as an independent before joining Williams as executive sidekick.

A. Joe Mitchell Jr.

Bob Smith

A native of Oklahoma, Mitchell received his bachelor's degree in architectural engineering from Oklahoma State University in 1974. After graduation, Mitchell joined Conoco Inc. as facilities manager in Houston. In 1980, he left Conoco and opened a consulting firm in Houston and one year later joined ClayDesta Plaza as project manager.

Mitchell called his new position challenging. "I am very plesed with the opportunity and excited about future challenges that ClayDesta Corp. and the Williams companies will bring about," said Mitchell.

In addition to managing ClayDesta Plaza, Mitchell will also be responsible for managing Spring Park — an office/warehouse complex in north Midland and the Gulf building located downtown.

ClayDesta Plaza, located at Big Spring and Wadley in north Midland, includes the ClayDesta National Bank building, ClayDesta Towers, the Gulf Building, the Southland Royalty and Williams Accounting complex and Harrigan's restaurant.

Midlander honors personnel consultants

Kathy Blackman, Midland, ended her term as president of Texas Association of Personnel Consultants during the association's annual awards banquet in Galveston.

During the awards ceremony she honored the two top personnel consultants for the year in the following categories.

Top consultant in the Administrative Support Division was Shelley Harris of Snelling & Snelling Personnel of Dallas.

Top consultant in the Technical/Professional Division was Kenneth J. Bohan, C.P.C. of Liberty Personnel of Houston.

Exceptional achievers from private personnel service offices throughout Texas that are members of the Texas Association of Personnel Consultants competed for the awards.

Results were based on dollar volume generated by placements of candidates in the private sector of the work force. These placements were responsible for putting hundreds of people into new permanent full-time positions and thereby pumping millions of dollars in annual salaries into the Texas economy.

The Top Producers awards are just one of the many ways the state organization strives to promote professionalism through its membership.

Accountants to meet Monday

The Permian Basin Chapter of The Texas Association of Public Accountants will meet at 7 p.m. Monday, June 4, at the new Holiday Inn Centre in Odessa.

All practicing accountants, bookkeepers and tax preparers are invited to attend. Reservations for dinner should be made through Kathy Conway, 332-0466.

Funds provided by operations in the first quarter were $250.8 million, compared with $201.9 million in the previous year's first period, an increase of 24 percent.

Total revenues for the first three months of 1984 were $438.0 million compared with $457.6 million in 1983.

Capital and exploration expenses increased slightly to $234.8 million in the first quarter of 1984 from $226.3 million in the same 1983 period.

Net production of crude oil, condensate, and natural gas liquids averaged 87.1 thousand barrels per day during the quarter, commpared with 77.3 thousand barrels per day in the 1983 first period. Natural gas production averaged 946 million cubic feet per day during the 1984 quarter versus 908 million cubic feet per day in the first three months of 1983.

AMFAC INC.

The board of directors of Amfac Inc. declared a quarterly dividend of 36 cents per share on the common stock, payable June 15, 1984 to stockholders of record May 21, 1984. This represents no change from the previous quarterly payment.

Permit granted to increase brine production zone

Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

The Texas Water Commission has granted an application by Permian Brine Sales, Inc., for a permit authorizing the production of a 10 lb/gal. brine from a brine well located in Grandfalls in Ward County.

The Grandfalls Brine Station will consist of two fresh water wells to be drilled on the site to supply fresh process water for the operation, with one well also serving as a monitor well to detect any contamination from the operation. Surface facilities will consist of a brine well, two water wells, two steel brine storage tanks, two water storage tanks, an aquiflex lined spill catch basin and loading facilities.

The production zone is the Salado Salt Formation at a depth interval of about 798 feet to 1,415 feet, the TWC reports. No surface discharge is authorized from any production or processing facilities.

The Grandfalls Brine Station is located on a 0.37-acre site in the city at the north corner of the intersection of First Street and Avenue G.

In other action, commissioners granted an application by Norton Well service, Inc., doing business as Cox Transport Co., for an amendment to a permit authorizing an increase in the brine production zone of the Salado Salt Formation at the Wickett Brine Station, also in Ward County.

The company sought an increase in the brine production zone from a depth interval of about 1,550 feet to 1,650 feet below land surfact to the approximate depth interval of 2,155 feet to 2,284 feet below land surface. At the time of drilling, the original production zone did not contain salt beds of sufficient thickness to provide for sustained solution mining.

The permit authorizes the production of 10 lb. brine from a well located on a five-acre tract about 0.3 mile west of the intersection of FM 1219 and US 80 near Wickett.

No surface discharge is authorized by a permit, according to the TWC.

OIL & GAS DIGEST

Adobe announces cash dividend

Adobe Oil & Gas Corp. has announced that its board of directors has authorized a common stock quarterly cash dividend for second quarter, 1984, of six cents per share to be paid on June 29, 1984 to shareholders of record on June 8, 1984.

Figures released in error

ARLINGTON, Va. — The Natural Gas Supply Association (NGSA) has released [illegible]stimate of 1983 natural gas reserve additions based on the annual reports of the major oil companies. In it, NGSA claimed that "1983 gas reserve additions will fall far below 1983 natural gas production." NGSA, in fact, estimated a 1983 lower-48 states replacement rate of between 79-87 percent.

The NGSA materials are misleading and inaccurately presented by them, reports the American Gas Association (A.G.A.). NGSA did not include Alaskan gas reserve additions and made several numerical errors which distorted its results.

However, the most important error was that NGSA used the "scaling factors" used in the A.G.A. reserve analysis, which was developed for the entire nation, including Alaska, but NGSA applied that factor to just the lower-48 states. This distorted NGSA results.

If one uses the key assumptions of the NGSA analysis and does the computations correctly, the results are surprisingly similar to those reported by A.G.A. — and, that in fact, reerve additions exceeded production in 1983.

Firm reports completion of four wells

HOUSTON — American National Petroleum Co. (ANPC) has announced the successful completion of two exploratory and two developmental oil and gas wells in New Mexico and Texas.

The H.J. Enloe No. 1 well, an exploratory gas well in San Jacinto County, Texas, was drilled to a depth of 8750 feet and completed in the Kirby Sand which flow tested at the rate of 1,378,000 cubic feet of gas per day and 40 barrels of 55 degrees API condensate per day from perforations at 8670-76 feet on a 10/64 inch choke with 2489 psi flowing tubing pressure. ANPC and its 1983 Oil & Gas Fund own a 12.5 percent interest in the well.

The Red Fish Bay State Tract 322 No. 1 well, an exploratory oil well in Nueces County, Texas, was drilled to a depth of 9286 feet and completed in a Frio Sand which flow tested at the rate of 300 barrels of 38 degrees API oil per day and 150,000 cubic feet of gas per day from perforations at 8789-94 feet on a 12/64 inch choke with 780 psi flowing tubing pressure. ANPC and its 1983 Oil & Gas Fund own 12.5 percent interest in this well.

Two confirmation developmental oil and gas wells have been completed in Eddy County, New Mexico by ANPC's wholly-owned subsidiary, Coquina Oil Corp. The Stonewall "EP" State No. 7 well, which was drlled to a depth of 5701 feet and completed in the Bone Springs, flow tested at the rate of 1,700,000 cubic feet of gas per day from perforations of 4979-4988 feet on a 1/2 inch choke with a 260 psi flowing tubing pressure. The Stonewall "EP" No. 8 well, which was drilled to a depth of 5300 feet and completed in a Delaware Sand, flow tested at the rate of 320 barrels of 42 degrees API oil per day and 640,000 cubic feet of gas per day from perforations at 3384 to 3688 feet on a 1/2 inch choke with 600 psi flowing tubing pressure. Coquina and ANPC own 17.6 percent interest in these wells.

Third man jailed in alleged $56 million oil sale scam

HOUSTON (AP) — A British citizen accused of an international scheme to cover up the theft of $56 million in crude oil by sinking a tanker has been jailed here in lieu of $1 million bond.

James Hillary Shorrock, 50, appeared briefly before U.S. Magistrate George Kelt Thursday after being flown here from the Netherlands in custody of an Internal Revenue Service special agent.

Shorrock and two others were named last week in a federal indictment that said the tanker The Salem was scuttled off the coast of Senegal on Jan. 17, 1980.

Shorrock was picked up by Dutch authorities, and the U.S. Justice Department began immediate extradition proceedings.

The alleged mastermind of the huge fraud is Frederick Ed Soudan, 40, of Missouri City, who operated a Katy Freeway Mercedes car dealership.

Lebanese-born Soudan, a naturalized U.S. citizen, is also jailed in lieu of $1 million bond.

His cousin and brother-in-law, Abdul Wahab Al Ghazou, 47, is in custody in lieu of $500,000 bond.

The three were indicted in a purported plot to defraud several companies and the South African government by diverting to South Africa a shipload of oil supposed to go to Italy.

Soudan borrowed $12 million from a South African bank and bought The Salem, then allegedly contracted with Pontoil S.A., an Italian company, to transport 1.4 million barrels of crude oil from Kuwait to Italy. The oil was owned by Shell International Trading Co., a subsidiary of the Anglo-Dutch Royal Dutch/Shell Group.

However, Soudan allegedly had earlier promised SSF Association LTD, the South African-owned government entity that procures crude, a large oil shipment.

Soudan, who had posed as an oil magnate, allegedly had the oil cargo secretly off-loaded at Durban, South Africa, which is being boycotted by oil-producing nations because of its racial policies, and then had The Salem crew sink the vessel. They got off safely.

The incident cost the South African government $30.5 million in a Shell settlement. Shell, which sought the remaining $26 million from the insurer, Lloyd's of London, had to absorb all but $1.5 million of that loss.

The alleged fraud and Soudan's possible role have been continuously investigated by several governments since the ship sinking.

Shorrock is charged with conspiracy to defraud the United States in taxes, conspiracy to obstruct justice and perjury.

All-black scout troop gears for Jamaica

By LISA GERLOCK
Lifestyle Editor

Eleven Midland girl scouts in Troop 85 are scheduled to depart for Jamaica 7 a.m. Monday.

Though it is not new or unusual for individual scouts to travel internationally, the mission marks a special occasion for the 13- and 14-year-olds. This is Midland's first all-black troop to make an overseas visit.

After a year of popcorn ball, cookie, cake and candy sales, car washes, fashion shows, luncheon caterings and several garage sales, the troop raised enough to cover the $400-per-person lodging and transportation expenses.

If any money is left over, they plan to apply it toward an extended excursion to Europe in a couple of years.

With three chaperones, the girls will learn about Jamaica and work on a project with its people.

The purpose of the trip is "to work in the country to leave a gift of their labor," said Ava Jane Warren, field executive of the Midland Girl Scout Council.

International trips are intended to give the girls an opportunity to visit a country and see its crafts, dances and songs.

National headquarters must give approval before a troop may make an international venture. The girls decide how to finance the trip.

The process teaches them responsibility, Mrs. Warren said. They set goals, make long-range plans, organize themselves and determine how to reach the goals. They create projects and see them through, such as advertising and ticket planning. And they enjoy the realization of their goals.

International travel is not new to girl scouting, according to Mrs. Warren. In the early '50s a Midland troop visited Europe for several weeks.

"The longer a girl stays in scouts, the more opportunities are open to her," she said.

To accommodate the travelers, international houses were established throughout the world: "Olave House," established in London, England, in 1939; "Sangam," founded in Peoona, southeast of Bombay, India, in 1966; "Nuestra Cabana," established near Cuernavaca, Mexico, in 1957; and "Our Chalet," founded in Adelboden, Switzerland, in 1932.

Midland Troop 265 will make a trip to Nuestra Cabana in August.

"Troop 85 is an excellent troop with excellent leadership," Mrs. Warren said, which is what it takes to make a major trip.

Mrs. Smith agrees. The girls started as Brownies together in kindergarten. And though they are now in different junior highs, they still belong to the same troop, primarily because their meetings are held near their homes.

Even though the scouts' World Opportunity project allows select girls to make international trips every year, it is limited to one girl from each council each year, Mrs. Smith said.

And with 1,700 girls comprising the 94 troops in Midland's council alone, the program is competitive.

Mrs. Smith said the girls decided on the trip to Jamaica because they said long ago they wanted to go on "a big trip" together. They later decided "some place over the water."

The girls scheduled to make the Jamaican trip include Tamala Davis, Khristie Davis, Debra Dunson, Sheila Dunson, Aniecha Carr, Demetra Carr, Trelita Mitchell, Shurah Smith, Stacy Conally, Patricia McGrew and Lorna Harris. Chaperones include Mrs. Smith, Virginia Davis and Brenda Sanders.

Mrs. Smith said the girls are goal-oriented, which is what scouting is all about. Four or five of the girls are A honor roll students, she said. Some of the 13- and 14-year-old girls have said they want to become lawyers, accountants, gynecologists, orthodontists and models.

The scout program is designed to offer an opportunity to produce and coordinate events, Mrs. Smith said. "They have to know they have done it themselves. The leaders understand the girls need the 'know-how' and how to get help when they need it."

In another summer trip, 16 girls selected from the entire council will participate in the Wyoming Trek National Center West June 25.

Closer to home, Midland Day Camp begins at the Program Center, 901 W. Dengar, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., June 18-25. According to Mrs. Warren, 360 girls and 70 leaders are registered. The camp will feature such activities as canoeing, horseback riding, bicycling and a career program, which will offer the girls an opportunity to meet with professionals from different fields.

Teen competes in pageant

Susan Jill Minnix, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Barton and Leroy Minnix of Midland, will participate in the Miss Teen of Texas pageant June 15-17 in Austin. Winner of the pageant will receive a $1,000 scholarship, many merchandise awards and an all-expense paid trip to the National Miss Teen of America pageant.

Before the pageant in Austin, contestants are judged on scholastic record, service and achievement to school and community and personal development. In Austin they will take a written test designed to measure their general awareness of the world around them. Judges will score contestants on personality, poise and appearance in formal wear.

American Heart Association is official charity of the Miss Teen of Texas pageant. Contestants are raising pledges and donations in the form of a scavenger hunt. Official Host Group is the Austin Jaycee Women.

Miss Minnix will be sponsored by McClatchy Bros. Inc.

Elderly, working-age population up sharply

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's elderly population has jumped 65 percent since 1960, led by a whopping 337 percent hike in Florida, the Census Bureau reports.

Seven states now have a million or more residents aged 65 and over, the bureau said, up from only three states with that many elderly in 1960.

And during the same period, working-age Americans have also increased their numbers massively, the bureau said.

Indeed, the study of the population by age group suggested the jump in those aged 18 to 64 may be the most significant change in recent decades.

The 46 percent growth in this age group since 1960 is a result of the maturing of the post-World War II baby boom generation and produced huge numbers of new workers, the bureau said.

In the 1960s, it said, 15 million people entered the labor force. The figure rose to 24 million in the 1970s and 7 million so far in the 1980s.

The survey concentrated on state population changes between the 1980 census and July 1, 1983, and looked at national trends dating to 1960.

The study estimated the U.S. population as of last July 1 at 233,981,000, up 30.5 percent from 1960.

Those under age 18 declined 2.5 percent since 1960 to 62,575,000, while the 18 to 64 group totaled 144,022,000, up 46.1 percent from 1960.

Those 65 and older climbed 65.4 percent, to 27,384,000.

The bureau said that only California, New York and Pennsylvania had more than 1 million elderly residents in 1960.

California still leads that list with 2.6 million elderly, up 190 percent since 1960. New York is second, up 31.7 percent to 2.2 million.

But Florida's massive 337 percent increase raised it to third place with 1.8 million over 65.

Other states with a million or more elderly are Pennsylvania, 1.6 million, up 45 percent; Texas, 1.5 million, up 197 percent; Illinois, 1.3 million, up 36 percent, and Ohio, 1.25 million, up 39 percent.

Also noted was the previously reported upturn in the population under age 5 since 1980.

Alert given on dumpsters

The Associated Press

The United States Consumer Product Safety Commission has issued an alert to parents to keep children away from unstable slant-sided refuse bins.

The bins were banned in 1978. Most have been removed from service or corrected to eliminate the hazard of tipping over, but a few may still be in service, the commission warned.

It noted that a 6-year-old Maine girl was killed recently when the bin she was swinging on tipped over on top of her.

The bins are usually found near apartment buildings, stores, malls, office buildings or other commercial areas.

DEAR ABBY

Couples need not remain childless

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I would like to comment on the many childless couples who write to you moaning about how miserable they are because they can't have children "of their own."

Don't get me wrong, I'm not unsympathetic toward infertile couples. I am, however, a bit disgusted with childless couples who are so obsessed with reproducing that they speak of little else.

What about each other? Is there so little love and satisfaction in their relationship that it's "empty" without children? Was their only purpose in marrying to produce children?

If the "emptiness" of their lives without children is so intolerable, may I suggest that they take an orphan into their home? It would fill their need to be parents and give the child a wonderful gift — a loving home with parents.

Don't be fooled, Abby. Childless couples are childless by choice. — RICHARD G., BRISBANE, CALIF.

DEAR RICHARD: Please don't minimize the heartache and disappointment experienced by couples who desperately want to conceive and bear children and can't. But you make a valid point. No one need be forever childless. Today there are many children growing up in institutions because they are racially mixed, too old to be adopted, or they're physically or mentally handicapped. And there's a special place in heaven for those people who will provide a loving home for such children.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 23-year-old man serving in the U.S. Navy, stationed in the Philippines. After knowing this 22-year-old girl for a year, I recently proposed to her, and she accepted.

Because she is a foreign national, there is much paperwork to be processed before our marriage can take place. One paper needs to be signed by her parents and mine. It states that the parents approve of the marriage. It is a requirement of Philippine law.

My fiancee's father is a pastor of the Church of Christ, and I am of another religion. He will not consent to the marriage unless I convert to their religion. I don't mind converting, but I would like to know more about their religion and their doctrines first.

I would greatly appreciate it if you would send me some information about this religion. I wouldn't have bothered you with this, but I am presently deployed to the Indian Ocean and the chaplains on board do not have the information I need. Thank you. — MICHAEL FROM THE U.S.A.

DEAR MICHAEL: The most authoritative source of information would be your future father-in-law. Write to him.

Dolls' prices frighten novice collectors

Hearst Feature Service

The record-breaking prices being commanded by top-ranked antique dolls are needlessly scaring novice collectors from the market, according to George and Florence Theriault, owners of the world's only auction firm specializing in antique dolls.

"There has been so much publicity about the high prices that people say, 'I can never afford antique dolls, so I'll buy new dolls,' " said Mrs. Theriault. "And they're paying $200 or $300 for a reproduction when they could be buying old dolls for that price."

Headquartered in Annapolis, Md., the Theriaults sold a rare French-made A. Marque doll for $38,000 in 1983, setting a record for the most expensive doll ever sold. The firm also set a record last year for sale of an American folk art doll, an Izannah Walker doll that fetched $11,500.

"The big money dolls are the glamour part of the business, but that's just the tip of the iceberg," Mrs. Theriault said.

The Theriaults believe it's a mistake to settle for a reproduction because such dolls seldom rise in value. Modern dolls sold in toy stores may appreciate in value, but only if they originally were intended for children, Theriault said.

"Dolls that appreciate in value are those that were made primarily as playthings," he said.

School stresses 'back-to-basics'

ALBANY, Ga. (AP) — Maureen DeLoach, her eyes ablaze with excitement, reels off the statistics with the fervor and conviction of a street preacher.

The object of her enthusiasm is Highland Fundamental School, a special back-to-basics public elementary school governed by strict discipline and a no-frills focus on academics.

The southwest Georgia school was created last year as a result of a federal desegregation order. But higher attendance and test scores are what have parents pounding on Mrs. DeLoach's door to have their children enrolled.

The goal of the school is "to teach academics to produce responsible citizens," said Mrs. DeLoach, magnet school coordinator and acting principal.

"We take a child and teach him the basic skills and knowledge that he needs, but if he does not behave in the best interests of the community around him and of himself, then he is not a productive member of society ... We want to produce a child who is very smart and does the ethical thing as well."

The school's enrollment, an even black-white ratio, was 560 for the 1983-84 school year, but more than 1,700 children are on the waiting list.

Students begin class at 8:10 a.m., work all day and go home at 2:55 p.m. Physical education, lunch and two five-minute breaks are the only diversions. There are no extracurricular activities.

"If we're going to teach the kids the basic skills they need, then we must give teachers uninterrupted teaching time and they must use every minute they have," Mrs. DeLoach said. But children are encouraged to be creative, something critics say the back-to-basics approach often lacks.

The responsibility for discipline is shared by children, parents and teachers.

"We have rules and we have consequences if they choose to break those rules," Mrs. DeLoach said. "They have a choice."

Children sit quietly at their desks and raise their hands for permission to speak. They stand by their desks when they read or recite. If they fail a daily dress code inspection, they are sent home.

A minor infraction of the rules results in one check. Three checks bring a 10-minute "time-out" period of isolation. Four checks warrant a call to the parents. A major infraction — disrespect to the teacher or a racial slur — is swiftly punished.

Parents must sign contracts with the school system, agreeing to abide by school rules and support the teachers. Discipline is balanced with "good news notes" which teachers send home for good behavior.

Parents say their children feel more comfortable knowing the boundaries and what happens if they are overstepped.

The school may seem reminiscent of public schools of more than 30 years ago, but its philosophy is progressive. The school's goal is to create "lifetime learners" who can cope with rapidly changing technology.

"We need to have kids with good reasoning skills who are flexible to learn whatever comes our way," said Mrs. DeLoach. The philosophy apparently produces academic results.

On the 1983 Georgia criterion reference test given to fourth-grade students, Highland scored over 92 percent in reading, far above the 79 percent score for Dougherty County, in which Albany is located. The state average was nearly 84 percent

In mathematics, Highland fourth-graders again topped state and county averages, scoring 87 percent to a state average of 80 percent and a county average of 73 percent.

Highland was spawned by a federal order for further desegregation of Dougherty County schools in the 1980-81 school year. The first students for the 1982-83 year were chosen by lottery. Each year's kindergarten classes will continue to be picked by lottery. Families with one child already enrolled are given special preference.

The racial balance is maintained in upper grades by keeping separate waiting lists of white and black applicants. If a black child in the third grade moves out of the county, another black child takes his place, Mrs. DeLoach said.

Actress spared foreclosure auction by sale of stone house

O'Neill

BEDFORD, N.Y. (AP) — Actress Jennifer O'Neill has escaped foreclosure proceedings by selling her estate in this Westchester County community, a lawyer and a real estate agent said.

A New York City literary agent is buying the 14,000-square-foot stone house for $895,000, said Sally Siano of Sally Siano and Associates Real Estate Agency in Bedford Hills. She would not disclose the buyer's name.

The 9.5-acre estate had been scheduled to be sold at auction in July because the actress was behind in her payments, Steven C. Greene, an attorney for one of the mortgage holders, said Thursday.

Miss O'Neill, 35, and her ex-husband, John Lederer, bought the house in 1981 for $600,000, according to Greene.

On Oct. 22, 1982, the star of the film "Summer of '42," accidentally shot herself in the stomach with a .38-caliber revolver in the bedroom of the home. She was charged with possession of a weapon and received a conditional discharge.

Lederer, 36, was charged with possessing an unregistered weapon. The charges were dismissed in January.

BOSTON (AP) — Nate Nelson, who for nearly 30 years sang with the pop groups the Flamingos and the Platters, is in critical condition and in desperate need of a heart transplant, doctors said.

"Nate is dying," his wife of 25 years, Angel, said Thursday. "He has survived this long only with life-support systems...but time is running out."

Nelson, 52, has been at Brigham and Woman's Hospital for a week in critical condition and will become too ill for a transplant if a heart is not found within two days, said Dr. Gilbert H. Mudge at a hospital news conference. Nelson suffers from coronary artery disease, the doctor said.

Nelson's three-decade career ended abruptly 2½ years ago with the first of a series of heart attacks, Mrs. Nelson said.

Cagney

NEW PALTZ, N.Y. (AP) — Former heavyweight boxing champion Floyd Patterson says he and actor James Cagney have scuttled plans to go into business together.

It was Patterson's decision Thursday to end a tentative deal with Cagney and the actor's secretary, Marge Zimmerman, to open a restaurant. The decision followed a Life magazine report that accused Mrs. Zimmerman of exploiting her boss.

"Our friendship means a lot to me," Patterson said of the 84-year-old Cagney. "I don't want people to even think that was my motive.... With all the bad publicity, I decided to scrap the idea."

Patterson, 44, also defended Mrs. Zimmermann.

"People are saying that Marge is taking advantage of him. I don't know anything about their business," he said, "but I do know that he is her number one."

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II has come under fire from a British garment workers union upset over press reports that she wears hats made outside the country.

"Other royal garments are made in Britain without complaint, so why not hats?" a spokesman for the 76,000-member National Union of Tailors and Garment Workers said Thursday.

The union's protest followed press reports that London-based Australian hat maker Frederick Fox has his royal hats made up in France or Italy.

"The queen has a number of hat makers who are generally British, but where the hats are made is entirely for the hat maker," a palace spokesman said. "The queen would not be aware of where the hats are actually made."

Mailman logs four decades on Front Range

By DENIS M. SEARLES
Associated Press Writer

GOLDEN, Colo. — In fair weather or foul, Dick Grenfell has carried the mail to the highlanders in the Front Range canyons and hollows for four decades.

The mountain folk and their homes have changed since he began. The roads are wider, crime has come and the sloping farms have given way to new, expensive chalets.

Yet the mail goes through, along with "those darn baby chicks" and bare-root trees. And once even a small alligator.

"That darn alligator got loose in the post office" and caused all kinds of consternation, Grenfell recalled, before he finally stuffed it in the owner's remote mailbox.

"At one time in this whole area you had maybe 30 stops. Just a bunch of farmers. Now you've got over 400 stops in this canyon alone," Grenfell mused as he headed out on one recent morning.

"During prohibition, they had stills all over these mountains. They'd haul their booze down to Denver and hide it under their mountain peas. They're all gone now. They all died off," Grenfell said.

The uniform for this stubby, 68-year-old rural mailman is flannel shirt, jeans, rubber boots and, on still chilly spring days, a down vest.

Stacks of letters and packages fill both front and rear seats and the trunk of Grenfell's small, front-wheel drive car, crowding him as he drives the daily run.

The U.S. Postal Service recently awarded Grenfell a million-mile safe driving prize, quite an accomplishment considering the rigor of his route.

The maze of hill and mountain roads Grenfell covers starts with Golden Gate Canyon, then Crawford Gulch, Ralston Creek and Dory Hill — where the wind blows 150 miles per hour and knocked the back window out of his car last winter.

"I just strapped everything down and kept peddling it. Boy, it was pretty breezy," Grenfell recalled.

He noted fresh bullet holes through a line of mailboxes on a pine-shaded stretch of isolated road.

"The biggest problem you have anymore is the kids destroying mailboxes — get to drinking beer and destroy 15 or 20 at a time. Blow 'em up," he said. The more frequent targets have been replaced with welded boiler-plate boxes.

Noting two shiny, new mailboxes in a row of weathered veterans, Grenfell explained:

"Some of the neighbors got to feudin'. Stole each other's mail boxes. Neither of 'em got mail for a few days until they got their feudin' over with."

Suddenly, the mail car is surrounded with barking dogs. Big ones. Black shepherds, a Saint Bernard and setter-Labrador mixes.

"They have it pretty well timed — they know when you're coming," Grenfell drawled, stuffing a line of mail boxes as the dogs dashed about the car in a tight circle.

Ever been bitten? "Naw."

Later, in an open, grassy stretch, a couple of burros ambled up to the fence and hee-hawed pleasant greetings.

Birthday boy

Heard the one about the 10-minute final?

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — A 10-minute final examination might sound like a dream come true. But spending the time onstage telling jokes to a hostile, drunken crowd can make it seem like an eternity.

The 22 students in journalism professor Melvin Helitzer's humor-writing class at Ohio University had their final test in a campus barroom Thursday night, each trotting out their best jokes and trying to defuse the legion of hecklers.

It sounds like a scholar's nightmare — there was an abusive proctor, tipsy evaluators and a supervising professor who laughed out loud at the students' work. But it provided them with a brief moment in the spotlight — a chance to enter the heady world of stand-up comedy.

Helitzer, a former advertising executive who started the class three years ago, advised the students to write jokes about matters close to their hearts.

Most of them followed the advice, and the show was laden with one-liners about bodily functions, drugs and, especially, sex.

Jan Angiella hobbled to the stage on crutches and explained her injury.

"You know the book "The Joy of Sex?" Well, on page 72 there's a misprint," she said.

Some succeeded with their presentations, but others missed the mark and had to endure the scathing remarks of audience members who thought they were funnier than the comedians.

Cop stop nets gift

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Bill Highfill was going the speed limit and wearing his seat belt as he drove down Interstate 70 — but that didn't stop the Missouri Highway Patrol from pulling him over.

"Well, you always think you have done something wrong," said Highfill, a Columbus, Ga., resident who was on his way home Thursday after several weeks of vacation.

But instead of a ticket, Trooper Jim Garrison handed Highfill a bag filled with pens, maps, a key chain, plastic cups, coupons, a tiny tool kit and a country-western cassette tape.

The Missouri Division of Tourism is giving away the bags to 166 out-of-state motorists as a promotional gimmick, officials say, and the highway stops are just a way to grab attention.

Legal Notice

The City of Midland has been notified by the Texas Department of Health that the water being supplied by our system exceeds the maximum constituent level for Trihalomethanes established by the Department's "Drinking Water Standards" which were promulgated as required by the "Safe Drinking Water Act", Public Law 93-523.
The limit is set at 100 parts per billion (PPB, or 0.1 mg/1). The samples of water from our system contained an average of 205 ppb of Trihalomethanes. In more easily understandable terms, one part per billion is equal to one second in 32 years.
Chloroform is the most common Trihalomethane and is formed by the reaction of free chlorine with with certain naturally occurring organic compounds in the water. The effects of chloroform and the other Trihalomethanes on the human body are still the subject of many studies and much debate.
The Environmental Protection Agency has determined that Trihalomethanes in concentrations above 100 ppb may result in an increased health risk. As a result of the determinatin, the Environmental Protection Agency established a limit for Trihalomethanes as a final rule on November 29, 1979. Public health officials see no cause for alarm. They are also of the opinion that the benefits of chlorination still far outweigh any adverse effects that might result from the chlorination process.
Ammonia will be added to the City water supply and will combine with chlorine to form chloramine disinfectant agents. This change will take place in sixty (60) to ninety (90) days.
John B. Lowe
Director of Utilities

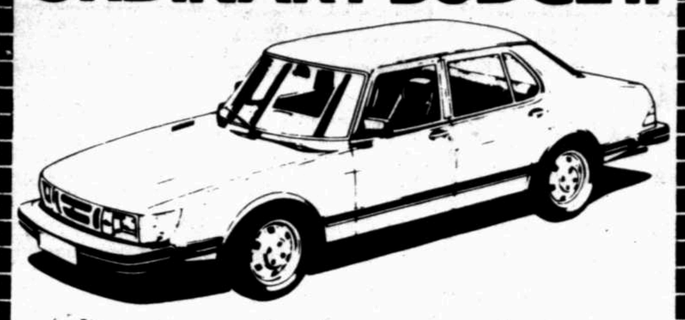
EXTRAORDINARY PERFORMANCE FOR THE ORDINARY BUDGET.



Do you ever wonder why so many people who seem to understand and appreciate high-performance cars wind up buying ordinary, undistinguished automobiles?

It might be easier to understand if you knew that the average price of a new car today is around $11,000. And if that's the price of an average new car, what does it cost to own an outstanding new car?

For example, take the Saab 900, one of Europe's most widely praised sports sedans. Here's a car that's justly famous for performance and handling; a car that couples a powerful two-liter, fuel-injected engine to one of the world's most fully developed front-wheel drive systems. It's a car that is far above average in comfort, strength and luggage capacity.

What does it cost to own an extraordinary car like this? About the same as it costs to own a just-average car.

SAAB
The most intelligent car ever built.
